More danger with 65 mph

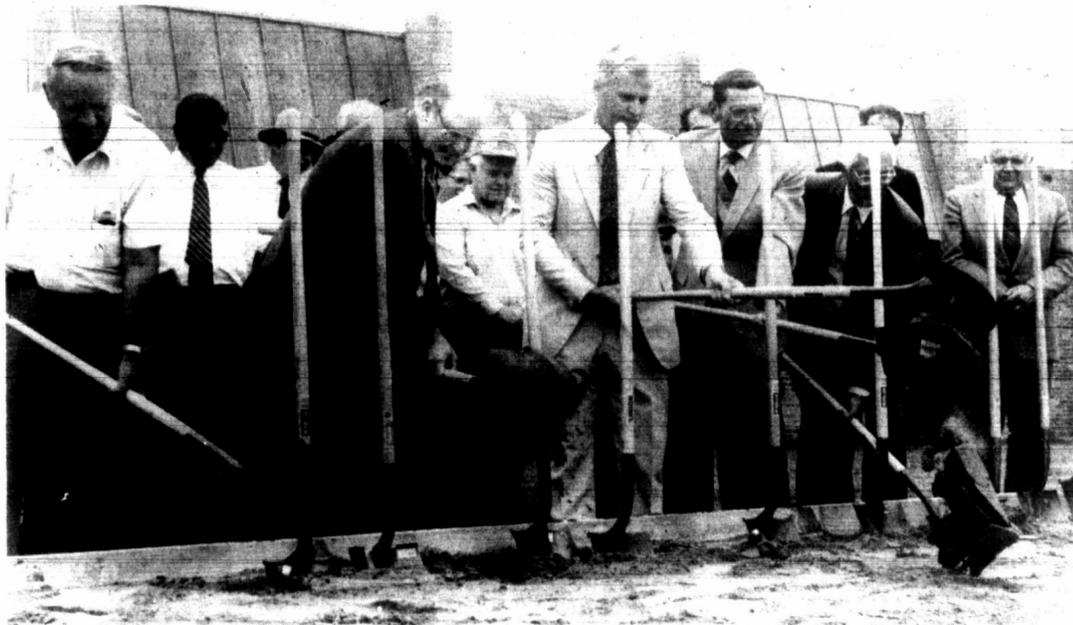

AUSTIN (AP) — An insurance industry spokesman says Texas drivers will face a greater danger of injury or death this Memorial Day weekend because of the new 65 mph speed limit.

"This Memorial Day, holiday travelers will be at even greater risk since Texas recently increased the speed limit to 65 mph for passenger cars on rural interstate highways," said John Hance, chairman of the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office.

"Experts tell us that the likelihood of a fatality or serious injury in an automobile accident almost doubles as speed increases from 50 to 60 mph," Nance said. "The probability then doubles again between 60 and 70 mph."

However, Nance said it was hoped the indicated increase of seat belts might keep the Memorial Day traffic toll down.

"Fortunately, the most recent statistics indicate that Texas led the nation in mandatory seat belt use compliance," Nance said. "More than 70 percent of drivers buckled up in Austin, Dallas and Corpus Christi, and more than 63 percent used seat belts in seven other major Texas cities."

Stacy Dam Snake jokes enliven groundbreaking

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

BALLINGER — Amid jokes about the endangered Concho water snake Saturday, local, state and national leaders said they are thankful the Stacy Dam project is finally under way.

After a decade of delays, officials broke ground for the $70 million dam project — but they shoveled dirt in a box on the Ballinger High School lawn thanks to muddy site conditions.

The dirt, taken from the project site, was a special mixture of soil from Runnels, Concho and Coleman counties — the three counties that will have water impounded from the dam, claimed Joe Pickle, secretary-treasurer of the Colorado River Municipal Water District. An estimated 1,500 people attended the ground-breaking ceremony and barbecue luncheon at the high school parking lot, according to the Associated Press.

About a half dozen officials poked fun at the snakes while observing the importance of the dam project.

With a look back to biblical times, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told the crowd that a conflict has long existed between snakes and humans. "Not since the Garden of Eden has that conflict endangered the well-being of mankind," he said.

Gramm commended the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for its role in moving the project forward.

The Service gave approval in January for construction of the reservoir if developers built rock nests for the endangered Concho snake to live.

"My job is to ensure that West Texans never appear on that endangered species list," Gramm said.

Stacy Dam "will be an economic base for jobs and growth for our people," Gramm said. "(It) has the potential to make West Texas bloom," he said.

Preliminary construction already has begun, Water District Board President John Taylor said, explaining that brush is being cleared from the area.

Test scores show student improvement

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Improvement among nearly all grades of Big Spring students is noticeable in recently-released results of two achievement tests.

Mrs. Helen Gladden, elementary curriculum coordinator for the school district, presented the test results during the School Board meeting Thursday.

Information released by the Texas Education Agency shows that results from the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills tests in grades three, five, seven, and nine indicate statewide student performance improved from last year.

Local third, fifth, seventh, and ninth-graders took the TEAMS test in February, and grades one through ten — excluding the ninth — took the California Achievement Test in March.

"Excellent," was the one-word description Gladden used in describing the results.

The California test examined students' skills in reading, spelling, language, and math. The results show that there was improvement in Big Spring in all areas from a year ago in grades one through eight. Grade 10 results were lower than a year ago, although Gladden called the decrease

"minimal." This test also showed that the improvement was most noticeable in the lower grades.

In 1986, third-graders' language skills were tested to be at a level comparable with a fourth-grade, one-month level. The same students this year tested at a sixth-grade, sixth-month level.

In the TEAMS test, student skills in math, reading, and writing were examined. The results show that third and fifth-graders' averages were higher in all areas, compared to the state average. Seventh-graders tested higher than their state-wide counterparts in math and writing, while dropping behind in reading skills.

Local ninth-graders, however, scored lower than the state average in all three areas. The biggest difference was in writing, where 44 percent of the local students passed the exam, while 67 percent of the state-wide students passed.

"We're concerned about that, and we will take steps to correct the situation," said Bill McQueary, the superintendent-elect of the Big Spring school district. He also said that the school district would work very close with the students next year, particularly in

The phone rang at 1:30...

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
City Editor

An emergency room is so busy at times, you can't answer the telephone.

Debra Wallace is glad that was not the case Friday afternoon.

When the phone rang at 1:30, she had no idea she was about to save the life of a one-year-old child.

The Emergency Room Coordinator at Scenic Mountain Medical Center spent less than five minutes on her phone call. In the life of Temeka Clemons however, they may be some of the most important minutes ever.

Temeka's mother, Jacqueline Clemons, was terrified Friday. She was in search of help for her choking child when she dialed the operator.

"My baby's dead — my baby's choking — my baby can't breathe."

That was the message Wallace was getting from Jacqueline when the operator connected the mother with the emergency room.

The R.N.'s first directive was for the 20-year-old mother to turn the baby upside down and strike its back with the flat of her hand.

Although Jacqueline was nearing hysteria in the nurse's opinion, Wallace credited her with staying calm enough to follow instructions.

Adding to Jacqueline Clemons' dilemma were the two babies she was watching for friends. Both are less than a year old and the nine-month-old was getting fussy while Temeka was the center of her mother's attention.

"I asked her if the baby was crying — I could hear that in the background — and she said, 'No, that's another baby.'"

That was about the time Debra Wallace was wishing she was not alone in the emergency room at the moment. She would have jumped in her car and driven to the woman's home, she later recalled.

After the first effort failed to dislodge what turned out to be a plastic piece of toy, the mother gave her address — between shouts of "My baby's dead. My baby can't breathe" — and an emergency room registrar immediately called an ambulance to respond.

It proved unnecessary.

Barbara gave more specific instructions a second time, fearing that the mother may have simply leaned the child over and slapped its back.

"Hold the baby by the heels with one hand, and slap it between its shoulder blades."

Then, a welcome sound: the whoosh of air coming from the baby as the airway was cleared and the piece of toy fell to the floor.

"I've got it!" was the mother's response when the object was freed. "My baby's gurgling — breathing." In the emergency room, Wallace could hear the baby begin to cry — a joyous sound under the circumstances.

The operator remained on the line, although she could do little but worry and encourage Wallace when Jacqueline laid down the receiver when following the nurse's instructions. "She was nice," Wallace said of the operator, "but she was upset. I was too," she admitted.

An ambulance crew arrived within minutes, Wallace said, and found everything apparently alright — a healthy, breathing baby and a mother who was beginning to feel calm.

"I feel very lucky. I'm glad that lady was there to tell me what to do," Jacqueline said two hours after the incident.

It was not a typical afternoon in the emergency PHONE RANG page 2A

Players in a Friday afternoon drama include Jacqueline Clemons, top left, her daughter Temeka, and Emergency Room Coordinator Debra Wallace. Holding a baby upside down and striking it between the shoulder blades is based on the same principle as the Heimlich maneuver, although safer for the child, Wallace said. The upside down movement helps allow gravity to help the situation, while the Heimlich maneuver can cause damage to a child's internal organs if applied with too much pressure.

Hobby blasts Clements' tax stand

DALLAS (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says Republican Gov. Bill Clements' campaign to hold the line on taxes is foolish and a tax bill is inevitable.

Hobby, a Democrat, also said Friday that the Texas Senate was considering new revenue options, including a revised corporate franchise tax, a real estate transaction tax and a gross receipts tax on professional services.

Hobby predicted the Legislature will approve at least $5 billion in new revenues, if not by the end of the regular session, then in a special session.

He criticized Clements while referring to the two special sessions last summer in which sales and gasoline taxes were raised temporarily.

"If everybody had gutted up last summer and done the proper thing, if Clements hadn't been running around making a fool of himself, saying 'no new taxes,' this job could have been done last summer," he told the Dallas Morning News.

"Clements now says, 'Well, I don't want to revise the tax structure in a hurry,'" Hobby said. "But, governor this process has been going on for a long time, and you have chosen not to take part in it — in fact, to criticize what needs to be done."

Clements' spokesman Reggie Bashur told the News that Clements was not a fool, but rather a statesman.

"We respect the lieutenant governor," Bashur said. "The lieutenant governor, the speaker and the governor work very well together and we are confident a solution will be worked out."

Bashur was not immediately available for comment to The Associated Press Saturday.

Clements has vowed to veto any tax increase above the $2.9 billion continuation of the temporary sales and motor fuels tax rates now in effect.

Sheriff's log $200 damage reported by local couple

A local couple reported Friday approximately $200 worth of damage to a door after a break in.

Mr. and Mrs. Rainey, Sterling City Route, told sheriff deputies the incident occurred between May 10-15.

Becky Rainey reported that someone entered her mother's home on Todd Road through the garage. The house door was damaged around the lock, according to the sheriff records. Nothing was reported stolen.

Local man arrested on suspicion

A Big Spring man was arrested at 2 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated after he struck a parked car in the 1400 block of East Sixth Street.

Guy Coleman Heffington, 31, 1011 W. Sixth St., collided with a van that was legally parked in a driveway.

He was taken to Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released, according to hospital officials.

Heffington was cited for DWI, driving on the wrong side of the road, and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

According to the accident report, Heffington was eastbound in the westbound lane when he collided with the van. The van was reportedly knocked approximately 20 ft. into a second car that also was parked in the driveway.

room, Wallace explained.

"It may be only the second time in 10 years here that I've answered the phone and felt like I had really made a difference.

"The emergency room can be a depressing area to work... this gives you something — a purpose for being here. There are some (patients) there's not a lot you can do. When something like this happens, you realize why you're here," she said.

For Debra Wallace, her purpose was crystal clear Friday afternoon.

Baptist Alliance members vote to stay in Convention

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Southern Baptist Alliance unanimously approved a constitution and bylaws but said they intended to stay in the Southern Baptist Convention — at least for now.

"We have no intention of leaving the convention as far as I'm concerned," said W. Henry Crouch, the alliance president.

James C. Strickland of Cartersville, Ga., an alliance director, agreed that the group's goal is to remain within the convention.

"The sentiment is we do not want to be a new denomination," Strickland said. "But we will wait to see what circumstances dictate. We need to cling together for awhile and wait to see what's going to happen."

But a conservative member of the SBC called the constitution and bylaws "a vehicle from which a new denomination is formed."

T. Lee Roberts, a conservative member of the Southern Baptist Convention from Marietta, Ga., said he attended the first meeting of the alliance this week to "see what the purpose of the SBA was going to be."

There was no breakdown of results based on sex or minority, and Board member Dock Voorhies questioned the availability of such information. Gladden told him at the meeting that it is available, although costly, from the testing service.

Superintendent Lynn Hise said that such detail can cost from eight

That may change soon.

McQueary reported to the board that because the state requirements will soon call for analysis of the narrowing of differences between minorities, the district is taking steps to computerize its results and extract such data locally.

Prisoner stabbing fatal

ANGLETON — An inmate at the Retrieve Unit was stabbed to death early Saturday morning apparently with a sharpened gravy ladle, a prison spokesman said.

The victim was identified as Ramiro Rivera, a 35-year inmate serving 35 years for aggravated robbery out of Atascosa County, said Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown.

Brown said the stabbing occurred about 5:15 a.m. Saturday while inmates were returning to their cells from breakfast. Prison officers investigating a disturbance they heard found Rivera lying in his cell suffering multiple stab wounds.

Rivera was rushed to the Angleton-Danbury Hospital where he was pronounced dead a short time later, Brown said. A sharpened gravy ladle was confiscated after the stabbing.

Three other inmates were being held in pre-hearing detention pending an investigation by Brazoria County officials, he said.

Tech callers prosecuted

LUBBOCK (AP) — Prosecution of students in Texas Tech University's long-distance telephone scam is continuing on two fronts, an MCI Telecommunications Corp. official says.

MCI investigators will present more than 100 cases to federal and state prosecutors against people who made illegal long-distance calls, said Jack Polson, MCI's regional public relations manager.

Polson's comments came Friday, the day after a former Tech student was indicted on charges of trafficking in counterfeit telephone access devices.

He did not have a breakdown of the cases' jurisdictions. If the amount of calls totals more than $1,000 in a 12-month period, it is a federal violation. A bill less than $1,000 is a state offense.

U.S. Secret Service Agent Dave Freriks predicted Thursday that four or five more traffickers could be indicted as well.

David Douglas Day, who was charged by federal prosecutors last month, became the first person indicted in the case. An Amarillo grand jury on Thursday named him in three counts of trafficking between Oct. 1, 1986, and April 1.

Chinese learn of Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A delegation of Chinese government officials visited Dallas Friday as part of a mission to examine American legislative and regulatory procedures.

"We are trying to draw on the experiences of other management in industrialized countries," said Wang Hanbin, secretary general of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress.

The six-member delegation led by Wang stopped first at Bell Helicopter Textron in neighboring Hurst. Their return helicopter flight took them to the landing pad at Reunion Tower downtown.

"We had a bird's-eye view," Wang said.

"We feel Dallas is a beautiful city, like a garden."

The delegation lunched at Electronic Data Systems, the computer service company founded by billionaire H. Ross Perot, and later met with officials of E-Systems, a defense electronics manufacturer.

The delegation's 19-day trip to the United States will include visits to San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York and Washington. On Saturday, the group planned a day trip to Houston to visit the Johnson Space Center.

During the Dallas visit, which ends Sunday, the group will attend functions hosted by the Dallas Committee on Foreign Relations and Caltex Petroleum and attend a barbecue at a local ranch.

Bonds bill is dropped

AUSTIN (AP) — A senator who predicts the Texaco-Pennzoil court battle will probably go on for years has given up trying to pass a bill this legislative session that would help Texaco by limiting appeals bonds to $1 billion.

Sen. Carl Parker, a Port Arthur Democrat whose district includes a Texaco Inc. plant that employs 3,300, and Hurst Republican Charles Evans, the House bill sponsor, announced Friday they would halt efforts to win legislative approval even though a majority of Texas lawmakers favored the bill.

They cited as reasons "obstructive lobbying" by Pennzoil, lack of time and the threat of Senate filibusters.

Parker said he lacked the two-thirds majority in the Senate to suspend rules to debate the bill, which had been approved by committee.

"It's kind of frustrating where you have a clear majority of both the House and the Senate ready to pass something and for procedural reasons you can't get to it," Parker said.

Texan foresaw danger

HOUSTON — A Texas nurse who was kidnapped in Mozambique wrote in her last letter home that she was aware of the dangers of her post but believed she was doing the right thing.

Kindra Bryan, 28, was kidnapped Wednesday along with an Australian and five white Zimbabweans. She was stationed at a medical mission on a farm previously raided by rebels.

Ms. Bryan, who had worked as a pediatric nurse at three Houston hospitals before moving to Africa, was in Mozambique less than a week before the kidnappings, said her mother, Mary Jo Free.

The nurse, who left the United States April 7, wrote that she looked forward to the assignment in a letter from Zimbabwe on May 4, said Mrs. Free, who lives in Wellborn near College Station and learned of her daughter's abduction Thursday.

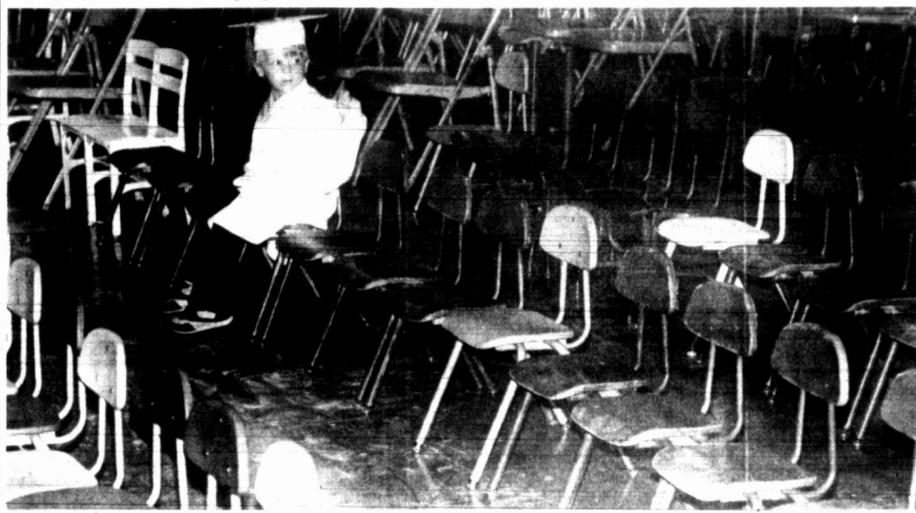

"I don't think she was afraid. She said the only thing wrong with going to the clinic on that farm was that they had been raided once and they had been evacuated several times because the fighting was too close."

Garbage barge continuing northward

ISLIP, N.Y. (AP) — New York City officials Friday barred a garbage-laden barge from docking, but the unwanted wayward trash continued slowly on its journey north.

"This is garbage without a home, and I don't want it to squat anywhere in New York City," said First Deputy Mayor Stanley Brezenoff.

Five other states and three foreign nations have refused the trash. The barge was supposed to be unloaded in Long Island City in the borough of Queens on Monday, but New York City officials expressed concern about health hazards that might result from the waste.

"It is basically our concern that it has been at sea for a long time and there could potentially be a lot of problems with it," said Michael P. Huerta, city Commissioner of Ports, International Trade and Commerce.

"We felt it was better to be safe than sorry. It might present a health hazard — and we don't want to be too cavalier in how we handle it."

Huerta said the barge should return to Islip, where the garbage originated.

REPORTING REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

The new tax law requires that certain real estate transactions be reported to the Internal Revenue Service.

The temporary regulations issued by the Internal Revenue Service specify the following:

- The regulations shall apply to transactions closing after December 31, 1986. However, no penalty will be imposed with respect to transactions with dates of closing before May 4, 1987.
- Reporting is required only on a sale or exchange of one to four-family real estate.
- The reporting requirements do not apply to corporate and government transferees (sellers).
- If a Uniform Settlement Statement is used for the closing, the person listed as the settlement agent on that statement is considered the "broker" under IRS regulations and is, therefore, responsible for reporting the transaction. If such uniform statement is not used, then the "broker" can be any of several parties connected with the transaction. The regulations specify the succession of responsibility.
- The temporary regulations provide that the participants in a transaction may designate a person as the real estate "broker" if such person is a party to the transaction.
- If a broker reports 250 transactions or more for a calendar year, the filing with the IRS must be done on magnetic media (500 for 1987 with special waiver). The IRS filing is due by February 28 of the following year.

The IRS anticipates that additional regulations will be published governing the reporting of transactions for other than residential property.

Opinion

SSC selection has bad aroma

We're more than a little disappointed by the state commission's failure to select the Garden City site as one of the two Texas proposals for the Superconducting Super Collider.

The Dallas-Fort Worth site emerged as the No. 1 selection, and a site south of Amarillo received the nod for the second spot.

It appears obvious that the selection was rigged, that the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission was told which sites to select.

We don't see how the state can ignore the lowest-cost option that the Garden City site would offer to the U.S. Department of Energy — particularly when it has been said repeatedly that cost will be an important factor, especially to Congress.

Although we admit that the Garden City site may be a bit of a long-shot on the national level, we felt that it had to be one of the two Texas proposals.

"We still have the best geology and the lowest cost — that remains unchallenged," said Thane Akins, Garden City SSC Commission project manager.

Ralph McLaughlin, Garden City SSC Commission chairman, and others have noted that most of the other 13 Texas proposals lacked the detailed preparation and documentation that went into the Garden City proposal.

That lack of detailed documentation is a major reason the second choice site near Amarillo came as such a surprise.

It makes us wonder how much study actually was given the individual proposals.

In only one week, we doubt that the state commission could properly digest the 167 pounds of materials submitted by the Garden City SSC group, let alone adequately examine the other 13 proposals.

In addition, some observers are asking if the Amarillo site was selected purposely because it can't compete and won't detract from the Dallas-Fort Worth site.

And now there's a hint that a trade for acceptance of the nuclear waste dump near Amarillo was a part of the considerations.

With such questions in need of proper answers, we think it's appropriate that the Garden City SSC Commission has decided to appeal the elimination of the Garden City site. Perhaps the appeal will get a more equitable consideration than the proposal did, although that is doubtful.

The more we hear about what was involved in the selection process, the more we think it stinks as much as the skunks that traverse parts of Big Spring at night. We hope that smell doesn't linger through the appeal process.

Peacemaker issues friendship statement

Pope John Paul II's suggestion that the Protestant Reformation may have been part of God's plan was the statement of a peacemaker.

He said that the Reformation may have occurred "in accordance with God's unfathomable wisdom ... in order to lead the church to reflect on and review its original values."

Rome's reaction to the Reformation was bitter and, at times, violent.

The Reformation was condemned at the Council of Trent in the 16th century. Martin Luther, John Calvin and other Reformation leaders were considered heretics and sometimes depicted as devils.

Religious differences led to persecution and wars, one lasting 30 years. Catholic and Protestant rulers burned each other's cities. Some people who refused to recant were burned at the stake.

John Paul made his statement at Augsburg, West Germany, where he participated in a service with Protestant clergymen.

Before the Vatican Council in the 1960s, the Protestants had a head start in seeking ecumenical friendship. But John Paul took an important step at Augsburg.

His comments reflected an attitude far removed from the harsh condemnations of an earlier age. The new view is gracious — and, at its heart, truly Christian.

Is income tax better than non-deductible sales tax?

By DARRELL BERKHEIMER

A state income tax?

Those seem to be four-letter words to Texans.

But should Texas have a state income tax?

It's been suggested that some Texas politicians were relegated to obscurity for barely hinting at the idea.

Are Texans blindly against one, period?

Does mere mention of a state income tax prompt closed minds to quickly end the discussion?

I don't know the answers to those questions. After all, answers aren't my bag. News workers are most skilled at asking them, not answering them. We try to go to the experts for the answers.

I think that's the obligation of good journalists. We should state the issues, raise the questions, supply the data and information that relate to the issues, and then allow the readers to make their own informed decisions.

So now that I've raised the income tax issue, it's time for the related data and information.

I was attending the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors annual meeting in Austin when the subject was raised by Harold Gross, a Southern Methodist University economist. He's the assistant director of the Center For Enterprising at SMU.

Gross noted recent changes in federal and state situations that should at least stir Texans to review or reconsider the income tax issue.

He explained that Texas has relied too heavily on property taxes and sales taxes, and that both have failed to meet the state's needs.

For instance, the decline in real estate and oil property values has had near-disastrous effects on many cities, counties and school districts throughout the state.

Next, Gross noted the sales tax has become a liability because sales taxes no longer are deductible as a result of federal tax reform. But income taxes still are.

He further explained that the state's movement toward expanding the sales tax base only will alienate industries that can find more hospitable tax situations elsewhere.

In other words, a company that has been considering a West Texas location might instead select a site in another state that has a deductible income tax structure rather than a non-deductible sales tax structure.

But the SMU economist's reasoning is logical only if the state withdraws or eliminates most of the sales tax at the same time an income tax would take effect.

Certainly I can see his logic in stating that an income tax now might be better than a sales tax — if one were traded for the other.

Unfortunately, the history of taxing agencies throughout our nation shows that seldom is one tax removed when a new one is added.

I suspect that Gross is right, however, in his prediction that eventually Texas will have an income tax.

Berky's babblings

Whether it's an income tax or something else, it should be obvious to everyone that cities, school districts and counties can't maintain the same levels of service while both property valuation totals and sales tax receipts continue to decline.

Some taxpayers might argue that cities and counties should reduce services, but many appear reluctant to allow more cuts in school district services.

Texans drink a lot of ice tea. So do many other southerners, from Texas east to Georgia, where I also lived.

Many Yankees, however, aren't familiar with the ice-tea addicts of the South — only us damn Yankees who came and stayed.

That's why those northern Yankees often are surprised when their glasses of the brew automatically are filled, without request, over and over again when they visit southern restaurants.

In reverse, visitors from here to the northlands might learn some costly facts about drinking ice tea in the North — as one Texan did.

Our daughter in Odessa has a friend who works at the Texas Instruments plant near the Midland Regional Airport. And he tells a story about a fellow worker who was sent to New York City on a business trip.

The West Texan ordered ice tea in a New York restaurant, where the glassful served to him wasn't very big — perhaps only an eight-ounce container. So he requested that it be refilled — several times.

We can only imagine his shock when he got the bill. It included a charge of more than $10 just for ice tea.

Colonia dangers grow

By JESSE TREVINO

As Texas legislators haggle over the budget, the outgrowth of one particularly ill wind has reached Austin. Many Texans already have dealt with it for some time.

It is the stench of open sewers blowing into incorporated communities from surrounding "colonias."

Texans are hearing that word with increasing regularity, thanks to a recent awakening in the news media. Spanish for colony, the Texan meaning of the word refers to clusters of huts and shacks outside city limits where people live in abject, Third World poverty.

These "homes" have no water and no power. Outside lie open sewers; inside live the most desolate of our forgotten poor. Small wonder that many Third World diseases also are found in Texas.

Besides the obvious problems posed by this situation, the hidden menace of colonias is their growth rate. A recent Texas Water Development Board survey of just three counties in South Texas found more than 70,000 people living in this poverty.

The conditions in these dwellings are so foreign to most of us that they seem almost unimaginable, especially in our own country.

Yet unofficial accounts estimate that between 250,000 and 500,000 people inhabit these colonias across the primarily Hispanic border region of Texas.

Texas' geography lends itself to a situation where people living in one area of the state can be totally unaware of what is happening in another region. This, combined with their location in the poorest sections of South and West Texas, has allowed the colonia problem to be ignored for years.

Left unattended, this growing population will emerge more alien than any immigrants.

In addition to the media, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby recently has shown an appreciation of the scope of the colonia problem. He has initiated efforts among various state agencies to find ways of alleviating the problem.

Yet, a simple remedy exists beyond the usual pouring of tax dollars down a rat hole. Simply put, the Texas Legislature should empower county governments with ordinance-making power to control unincorporated areas where colonias have emerged.

Legislation to give counties that power has been opposed bitterly by landowners and developers who continue to build subdivisions with no governmental supervision.

Another government official to attack the problem is Hidalgo County Judge Edgar Ruiz. Hidalgo County is near the tip of Texas, and boasts one of the state's fastest growth rates. One of the components in that growth is derived from the creeping danger of colonias.

Ruiz' plans appeal directly to common sense: He would require developers to guarantee that every household has the bare connections for water, sewage and electricity.

Standing in his way is a host of landowners and developers elsewhere in the state who, fearful of changes in their standard business practices, have blocked the necessary legislation at every step for two decades.

If developers, who have stymied the bill for years, remain jealous of their current freedom, one possible compromise might emerge in granting the regulatory power to just those counties in the so-called Border Region.

As the colonia population multiplies, the Legislature should muster the backbone to deal with the problem. Pressed as it is with solving the state's budget, lawmakers should at the very least appoint an interim legislative committee to prepare for serious action on this problem during their next session.

When local people want the power to rectify their own problems, the Legislature should be the last thing to stand in their way.

Jesse Trevino writes on Hispanic social and political issues.

Social leads chamber's list of events

The third "Business After Hours" membership social is scheduled Tuesday at 5-6:30 p.m. at Security State Bank, 1400 S. Gregg St.

The event offers an opportunity to meet chamber members, exchange business cards, make business contacts and win door prizes. Admission is with a business card and everyone is invited.

The Wall Committee will meet at the chamber office Wednesday at 8 p.m. Work is proceeding well on the efforts to bring the Vietnam Veterans memorial replica to Big Spring. Tax deductible donations may be submitted to The Wall, P.O. Box 2854, Big Spring, 79721.

Today through May 24 has been declared National Tourism Week by President Reagan and Gov. Clements to recognize an industry that contributes billions of dollars to our economy each year.

In Texas the tourism industry contributes more than $16 billion dollars annually, including more than $18 million yearly in Howard County. This week is the time to recognize the businesses and people who work in this growing and productive industry.

The Heart of the City Festival is scheduled June 6 around the downtown square. It will feature food and refreshment booths, arts and crafts, and hourly entertainment.

Admission is free, and entire families are invited to enjoy the celebration of our community's heritage.

The annual "Christmas in June" Auction again will be a part of the June 6 Heart of the City Festival. The auction is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Business Committee to finance and maintain Christmas decorations for the city, and to defray the expenses of the holiday parade. Merchandise is donated by local merchants.

Nominations are being accepted for prospective members to the 1988 Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors. Five new board members are elected each year.

All nominees will be considered by the Nominating Committee, whose members are Johnnie Lou Avery, Cotton Mize, Bill Crooker, Drew Mouton and Clyde McMahon Jr.

The Blue Blazers continue to solicit ads for the 1988 Membership Directory — distributed to members and others requesting information from the chamber office.

All members can advertise in this directory. For more information, contact any Blue Blazer or the chamber office at 263-7641.

Rattlesnake Belt Buckles are still available in the chamber office. They are the fifth in the series of seven buckles offered by the Belt Buckle Committee to raise money for the downtown project.

The solid brass buckles are $20 each and one gold plated buckle is $250.

The Leadership Big Spring Class of 1986-87 will graduate Thursday, May 28, at the Dorothy Garrett Ranch. This year's class participated in nine monthly programs about all facets of our community. Congratulations to them all.

Say North handled fund

WASHINGTON — In addition to funding a war in Nicaragua, Contra bank accounts paid money to a cast of characters that included Nicaraguan Indians, a former congressman and a White House secretary.

But the payments — including at least one to help lobby Congress on Contra aid — were directed by then-White House aide Lt. Col. Oliver North, according to Contra officials and a North assistant.

North, who reportedly kept the money in his office safe, apparently spent the funds — totaling up to $100,000 — on a variety of efforts to help the Contra cause, preferring to do it himself rather than ask the Contras to make the payments from their own bank accounts.

The Contras gave North the money at his request and did not know specifically how he spent it, said Contra leader Adolfo Calero, who as head of the largest rebel army had control of the Contra finances.

In collecting records for the ongoing Iran-Contra investigations in Washington, the Contras have recovered the traveler's checks from their Miami bank, and found many were signed by people the Contras had never heard of or did not recall paying, Calero's attorney Joseph Portuondo said.

Reagan signs extension

WASHINGTON — President Reagan signed a temporary extension of the federal debt ceiling, giving the government an additional $17 billion in borrowing authority through July 17.

The extension had been approved Wednesday by the House and Thursday by the Senate, averting a government financial crisis. Reagan signed the bill just hours before the borrowing authority would have expired at midnight Friday.

Congress takes up a long-term debt measure in mid-July.

Nuclear jump predicted

WASHINGTON — The number of nuclear plants producing electricity is expected to rise well above 400 worldwide this year, but analysts say financial troubles and the memory of the Chernobyl accident will slow future growth.

The United States, which is expected to have 110 nuclear plants by the end of 1987, now gets less than 17 percent of its electricity from nuclear power. But the proportion probably will rise to 20 percent — the level in other industrial countries — by the end of the century, said Don Winston, a spokesman for the Atomic Industrial Forum.

The forum is an international organization of industries, labor groups and government agencies involved in using nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

"It's a little-known trend, but there's a new reactor licensed in this country about every eight weeks," Winston said.

Outside the United States, the total number of operable reactors rose to 285 last year from 272 in 1985, said Winston, who expects the number to rise beyond 300 in 1987.

Students at Seoul National University, armed with bottle bombs and stones, rush riot police during an anti-government demonstration Saturday in Seoul.

South Korea

Students clash with authorities

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Riot police backed by armored cars surrounded universities in a major show of strength Saturday as students clashed with police in Seoul and four other cities.

The national police force was on top alert across the country and reinforcements were trucked in from rural areas. Thousands of riot police in combat uniforms were posted at the gates of universities and colleges after five days of violent protests.

Hundreds of students at two Seoul universities and schools in the provincial cities of Chunju, Taegu, Kongju and Chungju battled police, hurling firebombs and rocks at riot squads who fired tear gas to disperse them.

"Down with the military dictatorship!" the students yelled. "Down with the violent police!"

At Seoul National University on the outskirts of the city, about 1,000 students fought a running two-hour battle with riot police, with gasoline bombs and stones against tear gas. At least three police were hurt.

The students, wearing red, white and blue headbands with revolutionary slogans, screamed, "Drive out U.S. imperialists who support military dictatorship!"

Thousands of riot police were deployed in provincial cities, including Kwangju, some 200 miles south of Seoul. The city was the scene of a bloody anti-government uprising in 1980 in which least 194 people were killed. A formal memorial service for the victims was scheduled for Monday. Students across the country have been demonstrating to mark the anniversary.

About 200 people staged a demonstration in downtown Kwangju on Saturday, which was quickly broken up by police who seized several protesters and chased the rest away.

Students gathered at several Seoul universities to discuss plans for more demonstrations and call for greater efforts by opposition groups against President Chun Doo-hwan's government.

Columns of students marched around campuses of several Seoul schools where no clashes occurred, singing revolutionary songs calling for Chun's ouster. The students marched to the school gates where their way was blocked by hundreds of helmeted police with interlocked shields.

Student leaders, who refused to be identified, said they were waiting for major protests Monday on the anniversary of the start of the Kwangju uprising.

A wave of protests has hit South Korea since Chun announced April 13 that he was calling off talks with the opposition on its demands for a direct vote instead of the existing electoral college system in presidential elections expected at the end of the year.

The opposition says the present system favors those in power.

Chun said the talks would be suspended until after the 1988 Seoul Olympics to protect the games and safeguard national stability.

In another anti-government action in Seoul, 700 students at Hanyang University clashed with riot police briefly Saturday as they tried to leave their campus for a marathon race, witnesses said.

Police firing tear gas blocked off Hanyang's main gate, they said. Thirty students were taken away.

Violent protests were reported in Chunju, Taegu, Kongju and Chungju but it was not immediately known if injuries or arrests resulted.

About a dozen students at Hanshin University in Seoul shaved their heads Saturday as an anti-government protest.

Coup leader makes vow

SUVA, Fiji — Military coup leader Sitiveni Rabuka vowed Saturday to prevent Indians from ever assuming political power again in Fiji, and Indians shuttered their shops and gathered in crowds to protest the takeover.

Lt. Col. Rabuka said earlier that he led the bloodless seizure on Thursday to stop fighting between ethnic Fijians and Indians following the April 11 election, which led for the first time to an Indian-dominated government.

On Saturday, the 38-year-old career soldier, a Fijian, told a news conference the takeover would "safeguard Fijian land and protect the Fijian way of life." He said a new constitution would be written to guarantee Fijian supremacy in this South Pacific island nation, which lies between Australia and Hawaii.

Indians, who slightly outnumber Fijians, can play an economic role in Fiji, Rabuka said, but they also are free to leave.

"The British left India," he said.

On Saturday, Indian crowds gathered outside the prime minister's residence in the capital of Suva, where Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra and 27 of his Labor government colleagues remained under house arrest.

Waldheim attacks Nazis

VIENNA, Austria — President Kurt Waldheim on Saturday condemned Nazi atrocities and said the world had idly allowed Austria to fall prey to the territorial ambitions of Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany in 1938.

Waldheim, whose activities in World War II led the United States to declare him an unwanted alien, suggested in a speech that he and others of his generation found out too late the horrors of the Nazis.

Jewish groups and others have accused Waldheim of hiding a Nazi past and of helping deport Jews and Yugoslav and Greek partisans to Nazi concentration camps while serving as a lieutenant in the German army in the Balkans.

Captor sought better life

WARSAW, Poland — A Polish high school student said he held hostages on a bus and demanded to be flown to West Germany because he wanted to "improve his living conditions," the state-run PAP news agency said Saturday.

The state prosecutor's office in Warsaw identified the bus hijacker as Artur Slupski, 18, from the village of Bodzentyn, 125 miles southeast of Warsaw, PAP reported.

It said "Artur Slupski was ... motivated by his desire to improve his living conditions."

Anti-terrorist police on Friday stormed the bus and captured Slupski, who was holding five hostages in the vehicle at Warsaw's airport.

Slupski detonated a grenade during the assault, wounding hostage Marek Losinski, 20.

The Polish evening television news Saturday broadcast a hospital bedside interview with Losinski, who suffered minor head injuries.

SMU fight song about to change

DALLAS (AP) — "Win at any cost" won't be part of Southern Methodist University's fight song when the scandal-scared Mustangs return to the gridiron after a two-year hiatus.

"We desire to continue the best possible athletic program, but that does not necessarily mean winning. It is only one goal and should not be allowed to dictate all standards and procedures," Dr. Eugene Bonelli said after his blue-ribbon committee issued its report Friday on the pay-for-players case.

The Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics recommended several reforms in the athletic department, but said the school should continue playing in the Southwest Conference.

The NCAA in February abolished SMU's 1987 football season because of payments to athletes, a violation of NCAA rules. The university later decided to ax the 1988 season as well.

The SMU committee's report follows a four-month examination of the role of athletics on campus. The committee chairman and the interim school president said academic integrity will not be sacrificed for the win column.

"We think the integration of athletics into the academic life of SMU is important, but what is more important is academic integrity," said Bonelli, who chaired the committee.

Interim SMU President William Stallcup said winning at all costs is a campus theme of the past.

Cave trial concludes second week

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecutors in the sex-fornicity trial of state District Judge Tom Cave have introduced evidence foreshadowing testimony expected from a former prostitute who Cave had planned to marry and who police used to gather evidence against him.

Friday marked the end of the second week of a trial in which Cave, attorney Ronald Aultman and bail bondsman Dorsey Adams are accused of forcing women into sexual relations with the judge in exchange for favorable treatment in felony court cases.

An FBI laboratory specialist presented a 2-foot by 4-foot enlargement of an envelope addressed to Rachel Tallent with Cave's return address. Using a pointer, he showed the jury why he concluded Cave had written it.

A representative from the county auditor's office presented telephone records of long distance calls between 1983 and 1986 and singled out nearly $200 worth of personal calls that Cave paid for. Most of them were to Tallent's phones in San Antonio, according to earlier testimony.

Defense attorneys did not challenge the handwriting or telephone records but repeatedly questioned another witness, detective Benny Thompson, about his contact with Tammy Gunter, who in September 1985 was on probation for a drug conviction in Cave's court.

According to testimony, on Sept. 13, 1985, Thompson was called to Cave's chambers by a court investigator who wanted him to see Cave's copy of a 1981 Oui magazine — particularly a photo of Ms. Gunter.

While the detective was there, the judge told him he was raising Gunter's bail from $5,000 to $50,000 for failing to appear at a court hearing and told Thompson where he might find her and take her into custody.

Also that same day, Cave signed off Gunter's case and transferred it to another judge.

Soviets push for riders on its rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Hoping to capitalize on the state of the U.S. space program, a delegation of Soviet space and trade officials are making efforts to sell American satellite companies a ride aboard Proton rockets.

A six-member Soviet delegation spent much of Friday meeting with technical consultants for Space Commerce Corp., a Houston company formed by lawyer Art Dula to market the Soviet rocket in the United States.

"We're not doing this for the Russians," said Dula. "We're doing this because it's good for American business."

Part of the salesmanship included a reception for the delegation at Dula's northside home Friday night. About 100 members of Houston's aerospace community attended.

Earlier, Dula predicted the Soviets will have a U.S. customer prepared to launch from the Soviet Union late next year. But he refused to reveal who, if anyone, has met directly with the Soviet delegation, nor how many U.S. companies have expressed interest.

Dmitry Poletayev, who heads the launch department of the Soviets' civilian space program, also discounted the stigma attached to a U.S. company's use of a Soviet rocket after decades of space competition.

"I'm sure the Americans would like it much better if they didn't need to ask other people to launch their satellites, but the facts are just different, that is all," said Poletayev.

Working in favor of a launch deal is the stagnant state of the satellite communications industry, which is more than 90 percent owned and operated by U.S. companies, said Dula. The industry has been crippled by the January 1986 Challenger accident and subsequent failures of unmanned U.S. Delta and Titan rockets.

A state with bluebonnets on it

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH
John called: "You want go see some wildflowers tomorrow?"

"Sure," I said. As we left at 8 a.m. Sunday, fellow Big Spring resident John Taylor laid down the rules of the road: "Girls in back, boys in front. When you want me to stop, just holler."

The back seat of his car was filled with all kinds of books about wildflowers and birds.

We hadn't gone three blocks before his wife, Beverly, yelled, "Slow down, we've gotta see what those flowers are."

They were verbenas, the first of 53 species we saw, enjoyed and identified on our 12-hour, 500-mile outing.

We decided to just look on the way down, then take pictures coming back, when the light was better. We headed south, stopping about a dozen times between Big Spring and San Angelo to compare real wildflowers to photographs and drawings in the books.

Then we got down to some serious looking. Highway 71 between Brady and Llano has got to be one of the best wildflower roads in the state. The landscape looked like someone had spray-painted it with yellows and blues and reds.

Bluebonnets swept over the hills and Indian paintbrush collided with primrose, winecups and phlox. It made a beautiful spectacle.

Tumbleweed Smith

We were not the only ones on the road looking at the flowers. We met several people who take annual trips down that very stretch of highway.

Everybody we met said the same thing: "This has got to be one of the best years for wildflowers Texas has ever had."

We saw flowers, and we heard birds; but I was not prepared for the aroma the millions of bluebonnets produced. Inhaling nature's own perfume was wonderful.

We all decided if New England was the place to be in the fall, Texas was certainly the place to be in the spring — this spring, anyway.

The temperature, the sun, the view — everything was just right. And this trip was different. We were not just noticing the wildflowers while we were enroute elsewhere. We were there especially to look at the wildflowers. That is really quite a different thing.

On the way down, we had made mental notes of places we wanted to photograph on the way home. There was one special lane with bluebonnets growing on both sides of it. With the red sand and the blue flowers, it was a perfect sight — just what we were looking for. But on the way home, we couldn't find it.

We constantly were telling John to stop, go back. We must have made half the trip in reverse. And we turned around some, too.

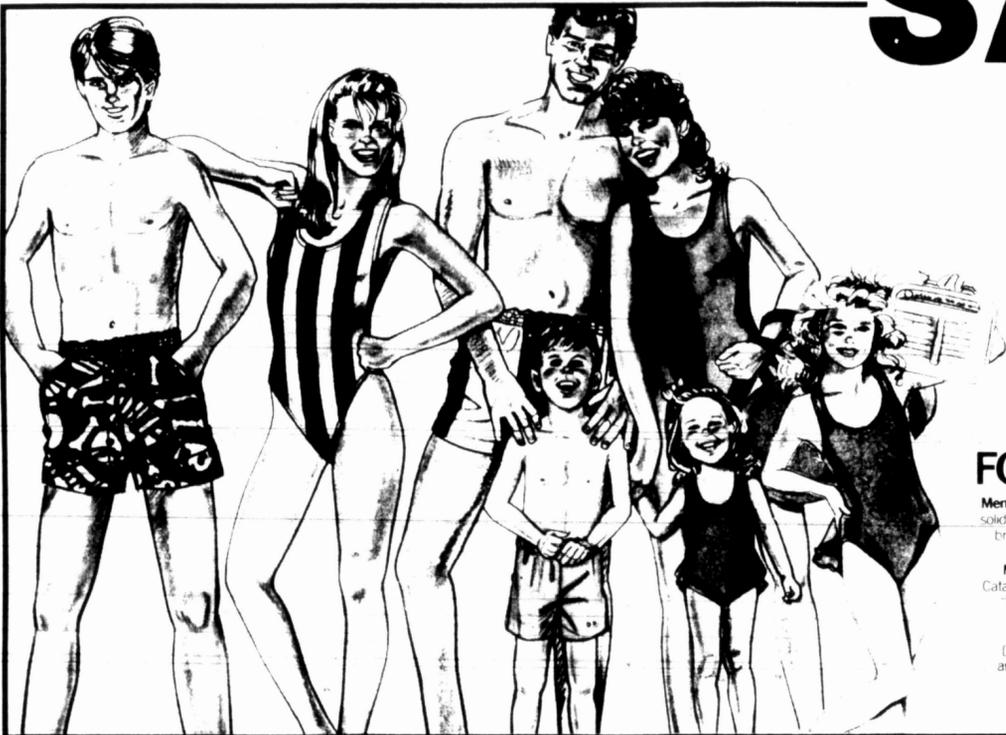

At one rocky ledge we passed, I noticed an especially good variety of colorful flowers within a small space. It would make a super picture.

Because we couldn't turn around on the narrow highway, we had to go past the spot I wanted to photograph. We turned into a small country road to wait for the traffic to clear, and it just happened to be the lane we had been looking for. It was the driveway to the Union Band Cemetery.

Click, click, whirr. We all took the picture. In all, we took about 100 pictures.

We're waiting for them to be developed now. I know they're going to be good. At least one of them will be the ultimate wildflower picture.

National board charged with setting standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Carnegie Corp. panel Friday announced the creation of the first national board to set standards for teachers and to offer them professional certification similar to that given medical specialists.

The board to be composed primarily of classroom teachers will certify teachers who pass its muster after defining what they in various fields "should know and be able to do."

Leaders of the Carnegie Foundation on Education and the Economy were scheduled to announce details of the creation of the new National Board for Professional Teaching Standards today in San Diego.

The board, consisting of as many as 64 members, will have to decide how it will judge teachers and in what subject areas and grade levels it will offer certification.

The idea is to give America's 2 million elementary and secondary school teachers a pathway for professional development and recognition similar to the board certification that physicians can gain in their medical specialties.

It will be three years to five years before the board awards its first certificates, and it may cost as much as $60 million to develop the networks of assessment and get the board started, a spokesman, Scott Winters said.

Winters said in a telephone interview that teachers would have to pay as yet undetermined fees for the certification process, which likely would include oral examinations, written testing and possibly internships.

The door is not closed to any teacher in America, he said.

now," Taylor said, adding that the moving of dirt may begin Monday.

The dam is expected to provide drinking water for 500,000 people in San Angelo, Midland, Abilene and surrounding areas that buy water from the CRMWD.

Revenue bonds will pay for the project. The Water District had to fight "like dragons for a project that didn't have one penny of federal money in it," Pickle said.

"It literally has the potential for making West Texas bloom in terms of new opportunities," Gramm said.

The reservoir, which is being constructed by Brown and Root Inc., is located south of Ballinger near Leaday on the Colorado River.

It will encompass more than 19,000 surface acres in Concho, Coleman and Runnels counties and will have the capacity for 544,000 acre-feet of water, said Water District officials.

The Water District filed a permit 10 years ago, but delays included the water snake and battles in the Legislature and the federal government.

"I've walked the streets of Austin, I've walked the streets of Washington and I've prayed in our CRMWD offices," Water District General Manager Owen Ivie said.

Gramm said he had argued with federal officials about the importance of the project to the area.

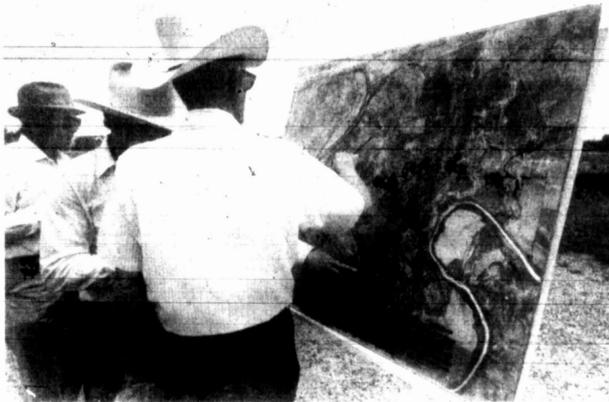

"We have pretty well guaranteed that if West Texans ever were in danger of being on the endangered-species list, we have taken them off to lay," he said.

"It's the fulfillment of a dream that we didn't know would come about," Pickle said.

The project is expected to be completed in approximately three years.

Grady hurdler strikes gold

From staff and wire reports
AUSTIN — Although there wasn't many Crossroads Country athletes competing in the state meets, the Crossroads area still made its presence felt as three Class A performers won medals in Saturday's competition.

Shelli Terrell gave Grady High School its second consecutive state champion when she won the 100 meter hurdles and Garden City senior Danette Holdampf finished second in singles tennis play. Rounding out the medal winners was a second place high jump by Sands' Jay Fryar.

Terrell joins Shanna Hale as state champion. Last year Hale won the 3200 meters. But it wasn't an easy race for Terrell, a heavy favorite going into the confrontation.

The speedy senior was breezing along with a comfortable lead when she hit the seventh hurdle and nearly fell. She managed to regain her balance in time to hold off Kathy Wilde of Munday. Terrell's winning time was 15.8 while Wilde ran a 16.0.

The time was Terrell's slowest all year. She owns the state's fourth fastest time at 14.17. "The time wasn't that great, but what the heck? She won a gold medal," said Grady coach Ted Bedwell.

"It wasn't a close race at first, she was on a 14 (seconds) pace. When she hit the hurdle she bruised her Achilles tendon. We put the foot in ice and now she's walking on it. I'm really happy for Shelli because she's a quality athlete."

The win concluded a perfect season for Terrell. She won all 20 of her races in the hurdles this season. In the eight track meets she competed in, two were against AAAA and AAAAA competition.

Holdampf competed in state singles play as a freshman. Her sophomore and junior years she failed to get out of regional.

This year she got over the hump and ended up in the finals against Stacy Shanks of Baird, the player who defeated her in the regional finals 6-0, 6-4.

This time Shanks went one even better, winning in two straight sets 6-0, 6-0. Shanks was runner-up in Class AA last year.

"I thought we had a chance and we played some of the games close," said Garden City coach Terry Burelsmith. "Some of the games were close than the score indicates. We just could manage to get that point to win a game. I'm proud of Danette. She's accomplished a lot. She played a pretty good game but the Shanks girl is an excellent tennis player."

Holdampf earned the right to play in the finals by defeating defending state champion Kelli Williams of Borden County 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Williams and Stacy Bessire of O'Donnell both received third place medals.

Fryar, a junior high jumper, tied his career-best 6-8 while notching a silver medal in the event. He came off a rough outing in the long jump Friday where failed to place. The winning distance in the long jump was just five inches more than his career best 22-0.

But he redeemed himself in the high jump, finishing second to Charles Howland, who jumped 6-9.

In Class AAA track, the Coahoma Bulldogettes 1600 meter relay team of Nancy Hardison, Shona Drewery, Jo Hudson and Robin Musser, finished sixth in a time of 4:06.6. Medina Valley won the race in 3:57.3. Giddings finished second in 3:59.1 and Post was third in 4:00.0.

Forsan quartermiler Lee Morris competed in the 400, but his fate was not known at press time.

Billy Sims' double victories in the discus and shot put gave Galveston Ball the Class 5A boys' championship Saturday night in the 77th University Interscholastic League track meet.

Ball won the title the hard way without competing in the relays where points pay double. It scored 42 points to 38 for both Conroe McCullough and Dallas South Oak Cliff, 36 for Dallas Roosevelt, 32 for Dallas Carter and 30 for Grand Prairie.

Fort Worth Trimble Tech won the 5A girls title with 44 points to 39 for Dallas Carter, 38 for Houston Sterling and 31 for Galveston Ball. A victory in the 800-meter relay clinched the trophy for Tech.

Refugio won both the 2A girls' and boys' titles.

The girls had 98 points followed by Kerens 52, Wall Brazos 42, Hart 34, Crandall 24 and Albany 23. The boys scored 56 points to 48 for Haskell, 40 for Alto, 36 for Eastland, 18 for Frankston and 16 for Whitewright.

Panola ousts Hawks

COLLEGE STATION — The Howard College Hawks' baseball season came to an end Saturday morning as Howard dropped a 10-7 decision to the Panola Ponies in the third round of the junior college state baseball tournament.

It was Howard's second loss of the double elimination tournament. Thursday Howard lost to San Jacinto 2-0 and Friday the Hawks defeated Angelina 10-1.

The Hawks were their own worst enemies against Panola, which dropped to the loser's bracket, via losing to McLennan Community College. The Hawks didn't take advantage of 11 walks, stranded 15 men on base and committed a key error that led to a five run Panola sixth inning.

Mark Hutchinson took the loss for Howard. He came in relief of starter Thad Webber who pitched four-and-one-third innings, gave up five hits and three runs. Hutchinson surrendered six runs on four hits, and was a victim of Panola's big sixth inning.

In that fatal inning, Howard made an error on a routine double play ball that could have ended the inning. Instead, a Panola runner scored on the play and two batters later Terry Brown hit a three run homer, giving Panola a 8-3 lead.

Trailing 2-0 in the bottom of the third, Howard put together a two out rally to take a 3-2 lead. Panola starter Dave Savell walked three straight batters to load the bases. First baseman Juan Rodriguez singled, driving in two runs. Designated hitter Randy Deal gave HC a 3-2 bulge by singling in another run.

Panola tied the game in the fifth and was never headed after its big sixth inning.

Howard cut into the lead by scoring two runs in the seventh and eighth innings, but it was not enough. In the seventh, Deal's sacrifice fly scored a run, and Chad Baker's single scored Joel Chimelis, who had also singled.

In the eighth, Joey Camarillo singled and scored when Chimelis reached base on an error. Deal drove in another run by singling in Ernesto Castro, who had walked.

Both teams used their pitching staffs to the hilt. Besides Webber and Hutchinson, Howard also used Derek Matlock and Ted Hebert. Panola also used four pitchers.

Hawks assistant coach Greg Henry said Howard never got its bats untracked. "We just didn't have any offensive punch, we never got started offensively and we didn't capitalize on their walks. They (Panola) did take advantage of their chances."

Howard ends the season with a 36-13 record, the best in coach Bill Griffin's five year stint at Howard.

Alysheba one away from Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Alysheba put trainer Jack Van Berg and his brown suit back in the winner's circle Saturday at the Preakness and now the colt, whose only victory until two weeks ago was in a maiden race, now stands on the threshold of the Triple Crown.

It was no surprise to Van Berg that the Kentucky Derby winner came back Saturday to win the Preakness on a cool, sunny day at Pimlico. The 50-year-old Hall of Fame trainer, who won the Preakness with Gate Dancer in 1984, has been telling people for several weeks that Alysheba was a genuine race horse.

Just to help Alysheba along, Van Berg wore the same suit he wore at the Derby May 6. He also carried a couple of four-leaf clovers with him but it was Van Berg's training, Chris McCarron's riding and the talent of Alysheba that were the key ingredients of Saturday's half-length victory over Bet Twice, who had finished second by three-quarters of a length in the Derby.

Cryptoclearance finished third and Gulch was fourth in the field of nine 3-year-olds.

"He's a very, very good colt," said the 32-year-old McCarron, who started his highly successful riding career in Maryland in 1974 and who won his first Preakness in five tries. "He tries hard every time and thank goodness he has the talent to go with his effort."

Before the race, Van Berg said "if he runs the race he ran in the Derby, they will not beat him."

Alysheba took the lead from Bet Twice in the upper stretch and the two battled to the wire as a Pimlico record crowd of 87,945 cheered them on. Alysheba got to the end of the 1 3-16 miles under scale weight of 126 pounds in 1:55 3-5 and paid $6, $4.60 and $3.40.

Bet Twice, ridden by Craig Perret, returned $4.60 and $3.60 after finishing 1 1/2 lengths ahead of Cryptoclearance, ridden by Jose Santos. Cryptoclearance, who paid $3 to show, finished 3 1/2 lengths ahead of Gulch.

It was the third straight victory in a Triple Crown race for McCarron, who won the Derby on Alysheba and last year's Belmont Stakes on Danzig Connection.

Now the 1 1/2-mile Belmont Stakes stands between Alysheba and his becoming the 12th Triple Crown champion and the first since Affirmed in 1978. Saturday, he became the first Derby winner to win the Preakness since Pleasant Colony in 1981.

That colt finished third in the Belmont.

Should Alysheba, owned by Dorothy Scharbauer and her daughter Pamela, of Midland, Tx., win the Triple Crown, he would receive $5 million from Triple Crown Productions Inc. The payment includes the winning purses of the three races.

Alysheba also is in position to win a $1 million bonus based on points awarded for first, second or third-place finishes in each of the three races. He has 10 points for his two victories while Bet Twice has six points and is the only 3-year-old who can take the bonus away from Alysheba if he wins the Belmont and Alysheba finishes out of the money.

Should Bet Twice win and Alysheba finish third, they would share the $1 million with 11 points each.

Lakers hold off Sonics, 92-87

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — James Worthy scored 27 points and Michael Cooper sank three free throws in the final 1:42 Saturday as the Los Angeles Lakers held off the Seattle SuperSonics 92-87 in Game 1 of the NBA Western Conference finals.

The second game of the best-of-seven playoff series will be held Tuesday night at the Forum.

The Lakers, who had the NBA's best record at 65-17 in the regular season, could not shake the SuperSonics, who upset the Dallas Mavericks and Houston Rockets in the playoffs after finishing 39-43 during the season, seventh best in the conference.

The Lakers, after Seattle rallied from a 13-point deficit to within four, took an 89-83 lead on two free throws by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 2:05 to play. Seattle got a basket by Xavier McDaniel 11 seconds later to get within four.

Cooper then hit a free throw after Seattle was called for an illegal defense technical with 1:42 left, giving Los Angeles a 90-85 edge.

After two free throws by Seattle's Tom Chambers, Cooper sank two more free throws with 10 seconds left for the final margin.

After Los Angeles squandered most of a 15-point third-quarter lead, the Lakers held the SuperSonics scoreless for the first 5:40 of the fourth period, scoring eight consecutive points for an 85-72 advantage.

However, Seattle got back in the game by outscoring the Lakers 11-2, making it 85-82 with 2:41 remaining.

The two teams combined for only 13 points in the first 8 1/2 minutes of the final quarter.

Seattle, after falling behind 63-48 early in the second half, scored 10 straight points in a 1:42 span to cut the deficit to 73-69 late in the third period. Chambers, who led Seattle with 28 points, scored eight during that run and then added a 3-point basket that got the SuperSonics as close as 75-72 with 26 seconds left in the quarter. Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 19 for the Lakers, who won their eighth playoff game in nine tries.

McDaniel finished with 21 points for Seattle, and Dale Ellis, the Sonics' leading scorer in their first two playoff series with a 28.9 average, scored just 11.

The Lakers opened a 51-42 halftime lead by outscoring Seattle 14-6 over the final 4:50 of the second quarter. Los Angeles rallied from a 15-9 deficit to lead 27-25 after one period.

Rangers beat Chisox with big 7th inning

CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Parrish's tie-breaking, two-run single triggered a five-run seventh inning Saturday night, leading the Texas Rangers to a 7-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

With one out in the seventh, Scott Fletcher walked and Pete In-avaglia's short fly dropped for a double when center fielder Daryl Boston slipped.

Parrish followed with his two-run single and Ruben Sierra beat out an infield single. Pete O'Brien then doubled to left, scoring Parrish. After the relay to the plate, catcher Ron Karkovice threw wilder past third, attempting to get Sierra, and both Sierra and O'Brien scored.

Reliever Dale Mahorcic, 2-1, was the winner and Jim Winn, 0-1, took the loss.

Ranger starter Mike Loynd limited the Sox to two hits going in to the sixth when Boston led off with his fourth home run. Gary Redus singled and Ron Meredith relieved.

Alan Ashby that apparently ended the game. That improved the Cubs' road record to 15-5, best in the National League.

Nolan Ryan, 2-3, was the loser, going six innings and giving up two runs on five hits, including Sand-berg's sixth home run, a drive over the left field wall that broke a 1-1 tie with one out in the fifth.

Red Sox 6, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Home runs by Wade Boggs and Bill Buckner backed Roger Clemens' eight-hitter Saturday night as the Boston Red Sox blanked the Minnesota Twins 6-1.

Clemens, 3-3, the 1986 American League Cy Young winner and Most Valuable Player who missed spring training because of a contract holdout, has recovered from a shaky start to lower his earned run average to 2.40.

All of Minnesota's hits off the hard-throwing right-hander were singles. The Twins finally scored in the ninth when Kirby Puckett led off with a single, moved to second on a fielder's choice and came home on Gary Gaetti's single.

Baseball

Phillies 9, Padres 0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don Carman pitched a three-hit shutout and gothit first hit in 48 career at-bats and the Philadelphia Phillies scored six runs with two out in the fourth inning in defeating the hapless San Diego Padres 9-0 Saturday night.

It was the third straight triumph and sixth in eight games for Philadelphia. The Padres have lost five in a row, 10 of 11 and 30 of 38 games this season.

Tigers 5, Indians 3

DETROIT (AP) — Lou Whitaker ignited a four-run Detroit first inning with his 20th career leadoff homer and Jack Morris pitched a five-hitter Saturday night as the Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

Morris, 4-2, struck out a season-high 11 while walking two. He gave up solo homers to Chris Bando, Pat Tabler and Tony Bernazard, the 11th, 12th and 13th home runs he has yielded this season.

Cleveland's Phil Niekro, 2-3, gave up four runs on five hits in just two-thirds of an inning.

Cubs 2, Astros 1

HOUSTON (AP) — Jamie Moyer combined with two relievers on a five-hitter and Ryne Sandberg's home run provided the winning margin as the Chicago Cubs beat the Houston Astros 2-1 Saturday to continue their winning ways on the road.

Moyer, 3-3, allowed four hits, struck out three and walked three before being relieved in the ninth by Ron Davis and Frank DiPino.

DePino posted his first save, retiring Dickie Thon on a fly to center with two men on in the ninth after a catcher's interference call on Jody Davis on a ground out by

Sculpturist to visit Big Spring

Herald photos by Tim Appel

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

The personalities of Dr. Clark's creations have become a part of Jan Noyes' family.

Tom Clark, who will visit Big Spring Friday, is the creator of sculptures for Cairn Studio woodspirits, mountaineers, seafaring characters and gnomes.

Jan began her collection three years ago and now has 110 limited edition sculptures.

"I've never been a collector. I thought I wanted a store, but I didn't want to work Saturdays. So I started collecting."

Dr. Clark's imagination is what fascinates her the most — "Each character has a story. This makes them come alive."

The increase in value is also fascinating.

For example, Doctor Gray, from a series of people based on real people in Clark's life, was purchased for $120 and is now worth $600, she said.

Although she admits that her collection is a profitable investment, Jan says she'd "really have to be hungry to sell them."

Her pieces vary in price, from $15 to $500.

The figures remain active for an average of 18 months to two years before they are retired, Virginia McMillian explained. She and her husband, Buzz, have collected Clark creations since they began carrying the items in their Candle Shop 2½ years ago.

"He (Clark) retires a few in March and in October and in January and July he comes out with 15 to 20 more," McMillian added. Clark will visit the Big Spring Mall May 22 from 5-9 p.m., across from Gale's Bakery.

Each sculpture is signed, numbered and features a coin — to make it difficult to be copied, Jan said.

"He can take anything natural and make something out of it," she added.

All of the creations are made from pecan shells and feature realistic replicas of dog bones, strawberries, chocolate, garlic cloves, pickles, a telephone receiver, a tennis ball and coal.

Clark's first figures were inspired by The Book of Gnomes, but his woodspirits were the product of his imagination and environment — more varied in background than the gnomes, he has said.

"They are more like me," Clark said. "Sometimes they are totally happy (like Hyke), sometimes puzzled (like Spock), or they may be a bit shy (like Val) or just reflective (like Padre). Whatever the mood, their faces reflect it."

The lightweight sculptures are easy to care for, Jan said.

"You don't dust them. Just dip them in soapy water to clean them. They're almost indestructible. You can drop them on a rug and they won't break."

"They're real handy for gifts because the kids know what to get you for Mother's Day, Christmas and special occasions."

She said Clark is creating a $3,000 3-foot-tall statue, but admits — "It's not feasible for me."

Jan doesn't consider herself a true blue collector, limiting her purchases to the figures that truly appeal to her.

"I figure, 'Why buy the ones I don't really care for?'"

Among them are the Christmas series. "Why have Santa Claus sitting out all year round? And I couldn't bear to put them away."

Clark's enthusiasm for his family of Cairn creations doesn't end with sculpting. To share his stories and demonstrate his art, he spends 42 weekends a year visiting with his collectors and traveling store to store around the country.

Use of herbicides and CRP program important

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

What herbicides can be used on CRP acres?

As a result of the USDA's specific designation of CRP acres — CRP acres have specified land use — hence only products specifically labeled for use on CRP acres may be used. It must say on the label that the product can be used on CRP designated land.

Labeled products for rangelands, non-cropland, cropland or anything else can not be used on CRP acres. At present, there are four products that can be legally used; Ally, Brominal, Weedone 638 (2, 4-D product) and Weedone LV4, (2, 4-D product).

Ally can only be used NORTH OF and including Andrews, Martin, Nolan, Mitchell, Taylor and Callahan Counties and west of highway 283. The counties of Midland, Dawson, Martin and Gaines have further restrictions regarding the use of 2, 4-D products. Brominal is a selective, broad leaf weed killer that forms down small weeds. It should be sprayed before the weeds are six inches tall. It can be sprayed on the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board for development and promotion of the beef cattle industry.

How often should I water my newly planted trees?

Irrigation frequency and the total volume of water applied depends on the size of the root ball soil type, the weather and foliage production. Clay soils retain moisture and would require less frequent irrigation than sandy soils where water backs and moves away freely.

very small grasses with no damage. Brominal and the 2, 4-D products are labeled by various carbide.

I recently sold two calves at the local livestock auction and had $1.00 per head charged for a beef cattle checkoff. What is this?

Cattle coming off pasture and changing ownership are subject to the $1/head mandatory checkoff unless a non-producer form is given (or cattle were collected on by brand inspectors from other states). These checkoff funds go to Temperatures above 75°F with high winds dictate more frequent water applications. The water must be applied to the entire root mass and beyond. Irrigating only the immediate trunk area of the tree with a basin is a poor practice. The root hairs (feeder roots, absorptive roots or whatever you wish to call them) are also growing at the edges of the root mass of newly transplanted trees and beyond the dropline on older established trees. Water must be applied to sufficiently wet the soil to a depth of 2 ft. or more.

Anniversary

The J.O. Huitts

Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Huitt, H.C. 77 Box 203-B, will celebrate their 50th anniversary May 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Elbow School Cafe.

Hosts of the event are Becky Huitt, daughter-in-law of the couple, and grandsons of the couple: Mr. and Mrs. Quert Huitt and Mr. and Mrs. Terry D. Huitt.

Huitt was born in Eastling and Mrs. Huitt, the former Vera Mae McCarty, was born in Cooper.

The couple met in 1935 through a mutual friend at Mrs. Huitt's home. They married in Big Spring May 22, 1937 with Rev. Homer Sheats, officiating.

The couple has one son, the late Kenneth O Dell Huitt, and two grandsons.

During their marriage, they've lived in Howard County.

Huitt is retired from Cosden Refinery where he worked for 35 years. Mrs. Huitt was a housewife.

They attend Elbow Central Baptist Church. Huitt enjoys hunting and fishing and Mrs. Huitt likes doing this for others and reading.

When asked to comment about their marriage, they said: "It's give and take, more give than take. One kind work will get you everything and one hateful word or griping gets you nothing. When you learn to give, your marriage will work."

Friends and relatives of the couple are invited.

MR. AND MRS. HUITT ...to celebrate 50th anniversary

Explain death to children

NEW YORK (AP) — Children have special needs when a friend or relative dies and should be helped to face the loss rather than be shut off from the reality.

"Children feel responsible when someone dies," says Dr. T. Berry Brazelton in Family Circle magazine. Brazelton, an associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School, says "parents should reassure them that the loss is not their responsibility, that it does not result from a child's bad deeds or wishes."

A child's sense of death is more primitive than an adult's, Brazelton says. He'll tend to equate it with being left alone, which brings on the fear of desertion. If parents simply withdraw without explaining what has happened or how they feel about it, the child's worst fears will be confirmed.

"Anytime there is a death in the family," says Brazelton, "I would urge you to tell your child the truth."

Locksmith's call no open-and-shut case

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a locksmith. The other night he received an emergency call from a hysterical woman who said that her bathtub was overflowing and she had locked herself out of her apartment!

My husband rushed over and found that her lock could not be picked, so he told her that the proper procedure would be to drill it. The woman said she couldn't wait that long as the water was already running down the stairs, so my husband broke a window, entered her apartment, turned the water off and let the woman in.

Then this woman got nasty because my husband couldn't just pick the lock! She refused to pay him for the call, and now I wouldn't be surprised if she tries to sue us for the broken window and the water damage!

We learned a valuable lesson, Abby. People in business cannot afford to be Good Samaritans — no matter what the emergency. Next time, if a person can't wait to have the lock properly opened, my husband will walk away. Your comments, please.

FORGET MY NAME AND CITY
DEAR FORGET: "Good Samaritan"? It's my understanding that your husband responded to an emergency service call for which he is entitled to be paid. He could sue her for payment in small claims court, but should she sue him for "damages," I hope your husband has insurance. And if he hasn't, perhaps he should have.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: When "Vince" and I got engaged, we decided to live together for six months before getting married. Here's the problem: Vince makes me pay for half the rent. When we go grocery shopping, he separates my groceries from his in the grocery cart, and he pays for his groceries and I pay for mine unless it's an item we both share — then we split the cost 50-50.

I agree a woman should pay her fair share if she lives with a man, but, Abby, Vince is a registered pharmacist and makes alot more than I make. (I am a sales clerk, and after I get finished making my car payments and pay half the rent, I don't even have enough left over for gas.)

I love him, but I am not happy with this arrangement. Help.

THINKING TWICE
DEAR THINKING TWICE: Think again. Your live-in pharmacist has written a prescription for a miserable marriage with an inconsiderate penny-pinching man. The signs are clear. Proceed at your own risk.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in the hopes that you will print this as a warning to parents of infants.

The last day of February, my son and daughter-in-law laid their 4-month-old son on their waterbed with his bunting suit on. The baby was asleep, so they chose not to remove the bunting for fear of awakening him. Within an hour my little grandson was dead! He was found face down against the waterbed, which had folded around his face. Being unable to free his arms and lift himself to breathe, the child was asphyxiated.

I hope that everyone who has an infant — or knows someone who as — will never lay a child on a waterbed, especially if the child is wearing a heavy garment that restricts natural movement.

And to mothers who nap with an infant on a waterbed: Don't do this, I beg of you.

BROKENHEARTED GRANDPA
IN KANSAS

DEAR GRANDPA: I offer my heartfelt sympathy to you and your family. How incredibly generous you are to warn others of this freakish trap while you are still mourning the loss of that precious child. Pity you will never know how many babies will be spared because you cared enough to write. God bless you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "VIRGO"
IN ESTHERVILLE, IOWA: You've gone from bad to worse in your search for popularity. Estherville is a small town for people with big mouths. Take my advice and move to Sioux City.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Shopping the options in fitness centers

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Your membership in an exercise program or facility is an investment in improving yourself. Consider what you want for your investment and then shop around before spending your money.

Before you even make any phone calls or visits to fitness centers, decide what you need. Is your goal a weight-loss program, exercise program or both? You may enjoy aerobics more than jogging, or walking more than calisthenics; decide your exercise preferences.

Also consider where you will feel most comfortable. There may be community-based programs offered through a public organization such as community education, or the parks department. Or you may prefer a private fitness center.

Then think about cost. What can you afford to pay for membership fees? Will you have to pay for babysitting while you go to the fitness program? What's the difference in cost between the community programs and private fitness centers. Commitment to a fitness program is also a commitment of time. No fitness program can work unless you actually participate regularly. What days and times will best fit your lifestyle?

Focus on family

By knowing what you need in a fitness program, you'll be more likely to get the most from your investment of time and money.

CHECKLIST FOR

CHOOSING A FITNESS CENTER

Just the thought of trying to get into last year's shorts or swimming suit has many women heading to the nearest fitness center. But the fitness center on the corner may not be the best choice.

Two centers may have similar facilities and equipment, yet offer very different programs. Consider your individual or family interest when answering these questions about a fitness center:

Are organized classes with qualified instructors offered or is the facility based on an open recreation plan?

What kinds of programs are available in weight training, tennis, racquetball, swimming, aerobic dance or other activities? Which ones are your interest areas?

Is the center open at times that are convenient for you? Visit the facility during the time periods you will use it. How crowded is it?

What is the instructor-participant ratio? Are staff on duty in all facility areas at all times?

Does the facility offer the opportunity for a physical fitness assessment before starting your actual program? Is the program tailored to your individual needs or a one-size-fits-all plan?

If the program includes a diet plan, ask a registered dietitian or county Extension home economist about the safety of the diet. Be cautious of programs offering miraculous changes in weight or fitness level. Both are gradual processes.

Are baby-sitting services and/or children's programs available?

Is the facility clean and the equipment in good condition? Poor maintenance could indicate poor management.

Finally, is the location and parking convenient? If the fitness center on the corner meets your other criteria, it could be the best choice after all.

Ruth Rothfarb, 85, and still running strong

When she jogs around Miami, her neighbors stare. Though the 85-year-old runner has broken 19 road-race records, she has no competitors her age. And when she runs in this year's Boston Marathon, she'll set out alone, four hours early.

"I'm not remarkable," insists Mrs. Rothfarb, who took up running at age 72. "I have slowed quite a bit in the past few months. Now I'm a 12-minute mile. It's natural. My age has a lot to do with it. But I feel good. I feel great."

Mrs. Rothfarb, who spends summers in Cambridge with her son, a psychologist who competes in triathalons, spoke by telephone from Miami, where she spends the winters.

She says her training regimen is relaxed. She runs up to eight miles in the morning and another four miles in the afternoon — if she's in the mood.

If Ruth Rothfarb was a born athlete, she also was a late bloomer.

When she was 13, Mrs. Rothfarb's father brought his family from Romania to Cambridge. At 19, she married and with her husband ran a drygoods store.

Back then, the only inking of her future was a love of walking. She would walk the three miles from home to the family store. On Sundays, she went strolling with the family.

Mrs. Rothfarb sold the store after her husband died in 1961.

When she began running 13 years ago it was for fun. "It's something you can do for yourself that you can't buy," she said. Three years later her son, Herbert, suggested she try a 10-kilometer race in Beverly.

She soon broke race records for her age group. For five years Avon sponsored her on the running circuit and for a time she lived in California. Every weekend she races, whether in New Zealand, Boston or towns within 40 miles of Miami.

Next Monday's Boston Marathon will be her second time in that race and her seventh marathon. Last year in the division for women 60 and older she came in third at 7:35:31. Both women who beat her were 60, the winner finishing in 3:23:38. The fourth competitor dropped out.

This lack of real competitors can be irksome. "I can't compare myself with anybody else," she said. "There's nobody around (my age) when I'm running."

On the other hand, her singular feats are known from Australia to Moscow, where a cousin of her late husband read about her and started a correspondence.

If there is a sour note to the story, it's sounded by the elderly residents of a condominium complex where she lives.

"They stare at me. They ask, 'Are you still running?'" she said, mimicking a voice dripping with derision. They want to know,

"Where do I get the strength? Where do I get the energy? You have to do something for yourself," with emphasis on the "do."

"Their hair is just so. They have the latest clothes. Well, that's not doing anything for yourself. I'm not bothered. I'm bored with them, really."

Her goal at Boston is simple: "Just that I want to get to the end."

She's allowed to start the race at 8 a.m., four hours early, so she can have access to aid. Not that she fears dying on the road, but she is a realist. "I know that I'm not going to stay around here much longer, but now I feel great."
