E. L. Finley May Be Named To High Post

There is a good chance for a director of the Coleman Production Association to be named director of the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, Production Credit Association of Texas, and a general director of all production credit association in the state, Secretary W. E. Melton of the local organization believes.

The local association, in a meeting here Wednesday, nominated E. L. Finley of Abilene for the place and, with the aid of some five associations in the section of the state, representing between 35 and 40 counties, director of the local group believes Mr. Finley has an excellent chance to be elected.

Nominations for the place are being made from nearly every section of the state. A run-off election will be held between the ten who get the most votes in the first election.

Mr. Melton believes Mr. Finley will be one of the high ten and that enough other counties can be obtained to support him in the run-off election to insure his election.

one way," the report says, point- to what seems to be viewed as the satisfactory accomplishment thus under the NRA. "codes have ful- ed expectations. They have with w exceptions wiped out child labor."

President Roosevelt employers through which there would be a cessa- tion of the strikes that have been dis- rupting the nation's business. He said he would ask the representatives of these forces to agree temporarily on questions of wages, hours and working conditions, and that with such agree- ments in force he expected further ad- justments would be made peacefully, through governmental or private medi- ation.

"I shall not ask either employers or employees permanently to lay aside the weapons common to industrial war," he added. "But I shall ask both groups to give a fair trial to peaceful methods of adjusting their conflicts of opinion and interest, and to experiment for a reasonable time with measures suitable to civilize our industrial civilization."

By way of reply to the appeals of many business, industrial and financial leaders that the more radical measures of the administration's program be abandoned, Mr. Roosevelt declared the New Deal is to go on. To the questions of those leaders concerning bal- ancing of the budget, government ex- penses, further evaluation of the dol- lar or return to the gold standard, he made no reply. However, he did declare himself in favor of a system of business based on private profit. Then he said:

"I cannot for a return to that defini- tion of liberty under which for many years a free people were being gradu- ally regimented into the service of the privileged few. I prefer and I am sure you prefer that broader definition of lib- erty under which we are moving for- ward to greater freedom, to greater se- curity for the average man than he has ever known before in the history of America."

Concerning the NRA, the President gave praise to General Johnson and said the national recovery administra- tion was entering its second phase, which is in turn a period of prepara- tion for legislation which will deter- mine its permanent form." He admit- ted there was a question as to the wisdom of some of the devices em- ployed during the first phase of the NRA, but declared the attacks on the constitutionality of many of the things his administration has done. "We are not," he said, "frightened by reaction- ary lawyers or political editors. All these cries have been heard before."

Near the beginning of his address, the President said:

"I am happy to report that after years of uncertainty, culminating in the collapse of the spring of 1933, we are bringing order out of the old chaos with a greater certainty of the employ- ment of labor at a reasonable wage and of more business at a fair profit. These governmental and industrial de- velopments hold promise of new achievements for the nation."

First formal response to the Presi- dent's speech came from the National Association of Manufacturers, which urged him to issue a proclamation for a "truce on industrial warfare" during which existing employment relations would be continued, and challenged the American Federation of Labor to take like action. Its statement said:

"The President will find employers willing to sit down with him, as he proposes, to devise means for ending the constant series of strikes which have been one of the major obstacles to recovery."

Green and Morrison, respectively president and secretary of the federa- tion, said this was a subterfuge and that the manufacturers should first publicly announce they would obey the decisions of constituted authorities, es- pecially concerning discrimination and collective bargaining.

WHILE President William Green and some other leaders of the American Federation of Labor, just convened in San Francisco, expressed approval of what Mr. Roosevelt said in his radio address, many others promi- nent in the federation are far from satisfied with the way things are going. The executive council's annual report devoted pages to an analysis of the effect of the NRA upon the inter- ests of labor. Almost without excep- tion, the effects were found either di- rectly harmful or at least unsatisfac- tory.

The criticism was directed at the workings of the recovery program, in actual operation. The NRA and the New Deal itself were not condemned. But the committee indicted the pro- gram on these main grounds:

That it has failed to increase the purchasing power of workers.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

What You Read You Are She Is Lonely Yes, Money Does Count The President's Broadcast

The whole country follows the "Hauptmann case," dealing with the Lindbergh kidnaping. Newspapers have increased circulation since Haupt- mann's arrest. This proves that citi- zens, able to get along without ordi- nary news of national and international affairs, cannot do without the Lind- bergh kidnap news.

The East reads about the "Bobby" Edwards case, that of a young man accused of killing a girl, Freda McKechnie—knocking her on the head and drowning her when he tired of her.

Others are much interested in the case of a woman with a well known name and a quarrel about control and possession of a child, heiress to several millions. Foreign princes, plain Amer- ican drunkness, many unpleasant de- tails, are dragged into the story. A considerable crowd finds that interest- ing. That judge's decision will be in- teresting.

Future historians will know what we were by reading the "news stories" that interested us.

Mrs. Eva Coo, whom reporters choose to call "Little Eva" Coo, now in the women's wing of the death house of Sing Sing prison, convicted of murder- ing a man whose life she had insured, and waiting to be electrocuted, makes a statement.

It has nothing to do with the here- after, death's uncertainty or its mean- ing, the horror of the electric chair. The statement says:

"I like company. I am so lonesome I don't know what to do."

Only a few weeks to live, the elec- tric chair and all that is on the other side of that chair just ahead of her, and Mrs. Coo's strongest impression is that she likes company.

We are a gregarious race, and ab- sence of imagination is a great help if you must be electrocuted.

Does money make a difference in the United States? It made some differ- ence when, in Foley Square, oppo- site New York's Supreme court build- ing, six rather old men were arrested charged with "vagrancy." One of them, sixty-four years old, who gave a name not his own, was found with bank books showing that he owned $6,000, safe in the bank.

The magistrate "suspended sentence" on the $6,000 vagrant. He was not even fined. Five others that had no money were fined $10 each and sent to jail for ten days when they did not pay.

There is a text for some budding Communist orator.

Some call President Roosevelt's broadcast "crumbs of comfort," thrown to "the right," where dwell big indus- trialists, disgruntled financiers and other sad conservatives.

It is taken as "hitherto shalt thou go and no farther, and here shall thy proud waves be stayed," addressed to on-rushing "radicalism."

The President's broadcast proves that gentlemen were mistaken who said the President intends to do away with "profits," making private enterprise an obedient unit in the new system of society. The address means to opti- mistic conservatives that the New Deal desires only to be "helpful" to private enterprise, not choke it. But private enterprise must be good, and, with the New Deal, keep its eye on the ultimate happiness of the many.

If you buy whisky it is wise to buy a brand that you know. In New York, this year, government agents seized 100,000 cases of "queer" whisky. In- cluding 15,000 cases of "Scotch" whis- ky made in America, with one-eighth Scotch to make it taste "smoky," the rest being sherry, glucose, and home- made alcohol.

The old game for children was "But- ton, button, who's got the button?" The new game for grownups is, "Dol- lar, dollar, who's got the dollar, and how shall we tax it?"

New York city, seeking $17,000,000 a month now, more later, for welfare relief, has already put a tax on income taxes.

To "tax a tax" is a new idea. If only deficits could be taxed, the problem would be easy.

Secretary Wallace suspects, and farmers will be glad to hear it, that "an ignorant, unscrupulous" political attempt will be made this fall to make the government lend 75 cents a bushel on corn and $1 additional on wheat. If Mr. Wallace's fears are realized the "new frontiers," as regards United States finance, will be as wide as the Milky Way and as high as the blue star Vega.

H. H. Kung, intelligent Chinese statesman, finance minister, tells Sec- retary Morgenthau that he would really and truly like to know what the United States means to do about silver. Also, since this country is anxious for silver, China will sell us all she has taking gold in exchange.

Bret Harte, in considering that Chinese statesman, might add a verse to his description of Ah Sin, who possessed "a smile that was childlike and bland."

National Topics by William

Washington.—As the federal relief administration looks forward to the winter months when the relief burden obviously is heaviest, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, makes public figures showing that the average cost of maintaining a family of five on public relief now is $23.00 a month. He says this figure varies materially from section to section, that it is materially higher in the industrial centers of the South where relief rolls are largest and that, probably, the country may expect a higher average cost during the forthcoming winter.

The statement by Mr. Hopkins be- comes exceedingly significant, in the opinion of observers here, especially with reference to the likelihood that there will be an increase in cost this winter. It reflects two things. First, the administration's drive to bring about increased prices through crop limitation or crop destruction or any of the several methods employed not only is adding to the burden of those with limited buying power but it is compelling Uncle Sam and the states and counties and charitable organiza- tions everywhere to pay an added price to keep people from starving. Second- ly, the Hopkins statement gives more than an intimation of how many addi- tions to the relief rolls there may be as a result of refusal of some people to accept any kind of jobs. It has been known many months that relief rolls carry a certain percentage of individ- uals who amount to the same thing as parasites, but the mounting cost both in the average and in the total figures are being examined by many experts with the thought in mind that consid- erable waste is in prospect.

The relief administration has been attempting to make surveys of relief rolls in many jurisdictions. The re- sults in some of the cases have been quite disturbing to those in the gov- ernment who are wholly desirous of lending help wherever help is neces- sary but who obviously are unwilling to see government funds drained off to care for individuals who are refus- ing to help themselves. How far this condition is going, none can foretell; nor can anyone at this time say accurately how extensive has become the list of those who regard relief rolls as their rightful meal ticket.

Some of the political leaders have become alarmed because, having knowl- edge of the dole system in England and in some of the other European countries, they know how hard it is to separate individuals from relief after those individuals have lost the pride and morale which causes people to support themselves. Hearings before con- gressional committees last winter dis- closed in numerous cities how some people had declined to do the odd jobs created under the "make work" cam- paigns for the unemployed and had preferred to make their semi-weekly trips to the relief stores. At that time there were relief advocates of the solis- ter type who insisted that the num- ber of such unemployed was very small and that it would not increase. Relief administration figures, however, seem to show that the contrary is true and that wherever they may be there is a certain number of the unemployed who will remain attached to the govern- ment relief roll until that roll is abso- lutely liquidated.

I have heard several members of congress express the opinion that this phase of the relief problem is really the most difficult of the whole structure. They want to see the government spend all of the money that is necessary to keep people from starving but they are beginning to demand that some way be found by which the sheep may be separated from the goats and properly fed. Here in Washington a taste of the condition mentioned above has been exposed as the result of complaints by a taxpayers' organization. The tax- payers' group declared that its in- vestigators had found many unemployed appearing at relief headquarters driv- ing their own automobiles, they thought it was paradoxical that a man could afford to maintain his automo- ble and could not maintain his family. Relief authorities in the local offices denied these charges. The relief ex- perts said some of the destitute were being transported to relief headquar- ters in the cars of friends, but despite the denials there seemed to have been some fire in all of the smoke.

Whatever the facts in the National Capital itself may have been, the condition it faces is nevertheless attract- ing attention for the reason that some of the soft-hearted individuals who usually do more talking than anything else have risen to the defense of those who called for their doles in their mo- tor cars.

The upshot of this and of the veiled charges of waste—and sometimes graft—in other cities is that this govern- ment is approaching a point where it must become more or less hardbodied in its relief administration. If it does not, nearly all of the observers agree, the United States will have a relief roll of six or eight millions which will continue to serve as a drain upon the treasures, both national and local, for a good many years to come. Some of the authorities are growing fearful.

A situation somewhat unique in American politics is developing in Wisconsin where the LaFollette brothers are undertaking to continue the family dy- nasty by marching under the banner of a new organization, the progres- sive party. It is all being done very quietly but the facts seep through the national political headquarters here in Washington.

The regular Republican organization sees an opportunity to "knock off" the LaFollettes by throwing their support to John M. Callahan, the Democratic candidate for the senate. Apparently they have little or no hope of electing their own senatorial candidate, the Wisconsin publisher, John B. Chap- pelle, who ended the political career of former Senator John J. Blaine in the primaries of 1932.

If Mr. Callahan does poll a sizeable Republican vote the question is whether this will offset the defections in the Democratic party. He was one of the leading supporters of Alfred E. Smith at the 1932 convention and neither the President nor his lieutenants have for- gotten that it was the present Demo- cratic senatorial candidate in Wiscon- sin who gave publicity to charges that Mr. Roosevelt's early campaign in the South for Presidential nomination was in part financed and supported by the officers of the Klu-Klux Klan in Geor- gia.

All of which leads to the observa- tion that political leaders sometimes do very strange things. They have been known to throw their own candidates overboard when the occasion required if they were to hold their control of the party machinery, state or national. Consequently, it is not particularly strange that the Republicans will sup- port a Democrat for the senate if it would mean the removal of the thorn in their sides which the LaFollette family has proven for several decades.

(I don't think that the spelling of it, but spelling don't mean much out here. You just add plenty of H's, U's and K's and let her go.) And the funny part of that every one of these names over here are like that. There just aint any Oklahoma names. I tell you, you pretty near got to be a Hawian to be able to ask your way home.

Well its a great country though. Was just sitting up there in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel listening to a band right down under our window. I doubt if there is a more wonderful setting in the world. Course we were placed on the ocean side where we got a wonder- ful view. Right there under our nose is the famous Wikipi Beach. Surf boards are coming in there like Fords down a Boulevard at home on Sunday. Those guys really ride em. Its the peculiar formation of the Coral Reefs that reach s far out that makes it possible for it to be so fine to do and here is the funny part of it. Its the only place in the whole islands where you can do it. So when you see them trying it at home and not getting far, you know why.

My wife and daughter Mary had been out there and had such a good time a couple of years ago, and she kept yapping it to me, that finally on this trip, I said well lets stop a week in the Islands. And I tell you it was a month or two too short. A guy on the boat from there kept telling me that the time was too short, and I kept kid- ding him, and asking him what I would do with the other five days.

The folks were awful excited when I was over there over the sugar quota. You see the Hawian Islands are really and truly a territory of the United States. Not only of those things they call an "Insular Possession." Insular possessions are like Porto Rica and the Philippines. An insular possession is like a first mortgage. You got it if nobody else pays it off and takes it up. But this skalele group out there in the very bowels of an ocean, why it is just as much a part of us as if it was down in one of Huey Longs parishes.

But there was some kind of an argu- ment on where the Government had kinder used them like they was only an insular possession. It was more a case of pride than a case of dollars and cents. They felt that they had been discriminated against, and I guess you come down to the thing they really had, but they had been doing well and lots of em thought it might be better not to make a fight. You know these islands are in pretty good shape, lots better shape than the mainland. There had been no drought there, and there is parts of the islands that it rains every thirty minutes. They got a golf course there where they say you get rained on at Number one, you dry off by Number two, it starts raining again at 3 and visa versa. So you are wet on even numbers and dry on odd ones.

Its the greatest country for clouds floating low over the mountains, they just come pretty near into your house. Its not a tropical country, but it just borders on to being one. They sure raise an awful lot of stuff. Sugar fields are just like wheat fields in Oklahoma, (or Kansas), in spite of all the rain- fall in some places, in the sugar plan- tations they have to irrigate, and when you say irrigate, brother you irrigate. It takes a world of water to keep that sugar cane growing, but what a mass of stuff it is when they do harvest it. They first burn it to get all the leaves off the stalk and the blaze dont burn the stalk. They do that early in the morning when the wind is low. They burn off about what they could pile up and haul off that day. That burning is an experts job. They have to have each patch fire- guarded (that is a fairly wide swat- cut around the piece being burned). Oh they have on some plantations thousands and thousands of acres. Frank Baldwin showed me his. He had in over 17 thousand acres, and from the amount of money having been spent on the growth of the stuff it must take millions to handle the whole layout. It seems no crop for poor white trash. Its all done on a large scale. Oh you could just go on for hours and try to explain the working of some big in- dustry over there.

Pineapple is the next biggest thing, you dont have to irrigate that its a pretty looking thing growing. They dont seem to have much wheat, have oats, and corn. Well in fact they do about everything over there they do at home. The only thing is that pictures dont get over there till maby the star of the picture is dead from old age. "State Fair" had just swept their Country. I want to go back there and see a million and one things that I didnt get to see. And thats the best answer to "How do you like the Coun- try."

ROBBERS' RO

by ZANE GREY

SYNOPSIS

Jim Wall, young cowpuncher from Wyoming, has a new field in Utah. He meets Hays, who tells him he is working for an Englishman, Herrick, who has located a big ranch. Hays and others are plotting to steal their employer's cattle and money. With Hays and two other rustlers, Jim Wall goes to Herrick's ranch. Hays and his lieutenants ride away to drive off the first bunch of cattle. Heeseeman is Hays' rival among the cattle rustlers. Jim is sent to meet Miss Herrick. Hays betrays unusual interest in the girl's coming. The rustlers begin driving cattle from the ranch. Wall finds himself falling in love with Helen, and he fears Hays's designs on the girl. Jim coaches her in riding western style, and finally kisses her. She is angry and dismisses him, but relents and asks him not to leave the ranch. Hays' men return from the drive, having sold the cattle and brought back the money. A quick getaway is imperative. Hays tells his men to go on ahead, that he will join them at a certain canyon. He comes with Helen Herrick—a captive. Hays explains that he stole Helen for ransom. Realizing that Helen will be worse off if she falls in Heeseeman's clutches, Jim Wall does nothing. Heeseeman's riders are discovered in pursuit. Hays leads the gang into a canyon retreat—The Robbers' Roost. Jim seeks out Smoky Sloucum, and secures his promise to aid in case Helen is threatened with harm by Hays.

"Sparrow, you don't look flighty," replied Jim, gravely. "But your talk is. Else you've a reason to think it."

"Shore, I have," rejoined Latimer, lowering his voice to a whisper. "Hays beat an' robbed Herrick! . . . The girl I wanted to tell you, if I was goin' to crank. But I gotta tell it anyhow. An' I ask you both, as pardns, to keep what I tell you secret till I'm dead."

"I swear, Sparrow," said Smoky, huskily.

"You can trust me, too," added Jim. "Wal, that's why I feel Hank must have done for the girl, too."

"Robbed Herrick!" exclaimed Sloucum. "Incredulously. 'Was there a fight?"

"Yes. But Hank might have avoided it. He drove the man crazy. Fellers, Hays'd steal coppers off a dead man's eyes—shore. But what he said he wanted was the girl for ransom. Yet he picked a fight with Herrick an' beat him with a gun."

"Sparrow, how come you didn't tell us before?" asked Smoky, sternly.

"I'm beholden to Hank. But I will say that if I'd knowed his game I'd never have gone with him. After it was too late—wal, I stuck. An' I'd kept it secret. But I feel in my bones I'm done for. So I'm squealin', an' I'm doin' it because Hays double-crossed you all."

"Reckon I'd have done the same, if Hank had a hold on me," conceded Smoky, generously. "Suppose you take a nip of whisky and tell us what happened."

"I'm hot enough without liquor. But I'll tell you. . . Gimme some more water."

"I'm cleaned," he said, rising. "B by gosh, I gave you a run."

"I'm way ahead. I'll lend you some," offered Hays.

"No, thanks. I'm glad to get off this well. I'll go up to the rock and send Mac down. From now on I'll do most of the lookout work. I like it."

Jim was glad this phase of his connection with the outfit was past. He had played for days, won and lost, all in the interest of the scheme fermenting in his mind. He wanted to be alone. If nothing else intervened, this gambling would lead to the inevitable quarrel. Whether Hays won all the money or lost what he had, there would be a fight.

At once a restless, baffled, harried condition of mind seemed to leave Jim. To face those men hour after hour, day after day, hiding his thoughts, had engendered irritation. When the split came and the shooting began Jim wanted to be around. He would help it along considerably.

One day, when he was returning to camp, somewhat before sunset, he heard a shot. He listened for others. None came.

The moment he entered the oval, to see Hays striding for the cabin, his hair standing up, and his men grouped outside of the camp shelter. Jim knew that there had been trouble.

"What now, Smoky?"

"Hank did fer Brad."

"How? Why? . . . You don't mean Hays beat Lincoln to a gun?"

"He did, Jim," ejaculated Sloucum. "He bored Brad. I was the only feller who seen it. The rest was duckin'."

"What was it about, Smoky?"

"Wal, Brad has been gittin' sorer every day, an' today we cleaned him. Brad opened up on Hank, no doubt meanin' to call him fer fair. But Brad didn't git goin' good before Hank went fer his gun."

"Smoky, he had his mind made up," declared Jim, tensely.

"Shore. That's the queer part of it. Hank was not goin' to let Brad spit out much. . . An' friend Jim, that's a hunch fer us."

"Hays can't beat me to a gun," rejoined Jim, with a cold ring in his voice.

"Nor me either. That's a safe bet."

They reached the camp. Lincoln lay face down over the table, his right arm hanging low, his gun lying near his hand.

"Lend a hand, some of you," ordered Sloucum, peremptorily.

They carried Lincoln, face down, across the oval to the lower side of the cottonwood grove, and in half an hour he had been consigned to earth, and his possessions divided among the men who had buried him.

"Grave number two!" speculated Smoky. "Fellers, it runs in my mind that Robbers' Roost in these next twenty years will be sprinkled all over with graves."

"How so, when nobody has any idee where it is?"

"Heeseeman will find it, an' Morley, an' after them many more," concluded Sloucum, prophetically.

"Let's rustle out of the hole," suggested Bridges.

"Miss Herrick," he says, "them fellers was bent on robbin' your brother—mebbe killin' him. I shot Progar, but the other got away." . . . He tied the bundle on his boss, an' leadin' the girl's horse he rode up the mountain. We rode the rest of the night, stoppin' to rest at daylight. Hays I turned the money an' trinkets over to Hank. He counted the money Herrick had turned over—somethin' more'n sixteen thousand—but he never opened the Wells-Fargo package I'd found in the girl's trunk. . . . Thee's all, fellers. We rode till noon, meetin' our ass agreed in the cedars."

"What was in that Wells-Fargo package?" asked Smoky, after a long pause.

"Money. Hundred-dollar bills. I

"Keep Quiet an' Shell Out Your Money," Hank Ordered."

He tore a corner of the paper off. It was a thick an' heavy package.

"Ahuh. So Hank went south with that an' the jewelry?"

"Yes. When he made the divvy hys he give me his share of that sixteen thousand. It's hys in my coat. You an' Jim air welcome to it. 'Cause where I'm goin'—I won't need any."

"Sparrow, it was a long story fer a sick man—an' hard to tell," said Smoky, feelingly. "Jim an' me will respect your confidence. An' if you pull through—as I hope you do—we'll never squeak. . . . But, pard, don't be surprised at what comes off."

Five days later Sparrowhawk Latimer died during the night, after a short interval of improvement which gave his comrades renewed hope. He passed away alone, evidently in agony, to judge from his distorted face.

"Wal, I don't know but that Sparrow's better off," remarked Smoky, with pathos.

They buried him in his tarpaulin on the spot, and divided his effects among them by drawing lots.

"What'd you do with the money you found on him?" queried Hays.

"We didn't find none. Sparrow gave it to me an' Jim some days ago," replied Smoky.

"Reckon you better divide it."

"Ump-um," rejoined Smoky, nonchalantly, his beady little eyes on the chief.

"Why not?"

"Wal, Sparrow wanted us to have it, not, I reckon, because we took care of him when you forgot, but jest because he cottoned to us."

"Smoky, tell Hays the other reason," spoke up Jim.

"The'll wait, Jim. No hurry. An' I'm not so shore Sparrow wanted us to tell."

Hank Hays turned livid.

"Ahuh. Mebbe you'd both be wise to stay shut up," he said and left.

"Fellers," said Brad Lincoln, turning to the others, "I've had a hunch all along there was a hitch in this deal. Air you with me in demandin' a showdown from Smoky an' Jim?"

"We shore air," rejoined Bridges, and Mac and Happy Jack expressed like loyalty.

"Smoky, you're square. If there's anythin', we want to know."

"Mebbe we can slick it over," replied Smoky, smoothly. "If we win all the boss' money—an' he'll shore be easy now with that girl on his mind—I reckon there won't be any sense in tellin' at all. Ed, Jim?"

"I don't make any rash promises. Smoky," returned Jim. "I admire you

Tomb Centuries Old

What is described as "beauti- fully-painted tomb nearly fifty cen- turies old" has been discovered. The tomb belonged to Tissen, presumably a member of the Council of Ten comprising the executive of the then Egyptian government. The paintings are in colors so fresh that they look nearly new.

Not Wanted

A courteous thief of Boulder, Colo., who stole two tires off an automo- bile trailer standing in a private driveway, returned the tires two days later with a card tied to them which read, "Wrong size; thanks, anyway."

CHAPTER IX

It was dark by the time Happy Jack called them to supper. Jim carried over an armload of brush to make a bright fire. By its flare Hays was seen approaching, and when he drew near he said: "Jim, did they tell you straight how I come to draw on Brad?"

"Reckon they did," replied Jim, coldly.

"Anythin' to se-?"

"No. I don't see how you could have acted any differently."

"Wal, you've copped it with the ace. The second Brad jumped me I seen in his eyes he meant to egg me on to draw. So I did it quick. Jack, what you got fer supper?"

By tacit consent and without a single word the men avoided Happy Jack's table that night and ate around the camp fire. Hays stood up, Smoky sat on a stone, Jim knelt on one knee, and the others adopted characteristic poses reminiscent of the trail.

"Cool after the rain," remarked Hays, after he had finished. And he took up a blazing fagot of wood.

"Reckon I'll make a little fire fer my lady prisoner."

He stalked away, waving the fagot to keep it ablaze.

"I seen her last night when he called me to fetch her supper," said Jack. "Fust time I'd had a peek at her face lately. Seemed a ghost of that other girl."

NOTION CERTIFIED TRANSFER
 It must be borne in mind that the ton certificates can be transferred any other person after the producer has finished with his crop but it must be kept in mind that these certificates can not be torn out of the book and sold. They must be properly transferred in the county agents office and bear the name of both the seller and purchaser. All gins warned not to take any certificate that is detached. It is a violation of the law and is made so as a protection against being stolen. The reason that the government insists that those certificates be recorded in the county agents office is so that the owners may be protected, both owner and buyer.
 All cotton certificates that are not going to be used are subject to be pooled by any owner if he wishes to sell them. Mr. A. L. Cook was advised today that no transfer could be made other than the regulations allowed which is 4 cents per pound. None can be brought across any county line
 Any persons who may have obtained certificates other than the prescribed way would see Mr. Cook for explanations.

OPTION CERTIFICATES

Word was received this week from Washington that those who hold Trust Certificates may soon borrow $7.30 net per bale by presenting them to the county agent. This is publicized certificates less than their value.

PEA-NUT PROGRAM

The latest move that has been urged upon the AAA has been to place a processing tax of 1 cent a pound on peanuts and let the farmers sign a reduction contract similar to the cotton contract next year and cut down the surplus in peanuts and there by get a better price for the crop. It will pay a rental on the acres (not in production for another year. At last it seems the government is giving protection to the needy farmer as well to commerce and manufacturing. For years those industries have had protection but never before has agriculture had any help or guidance. Corn, Wheat, Cotton, Tobacco, and Hogs have more than doubled in price in less than 12 months with government relation of surpluses.

Messrs O. F. Henderson of Rowden
 Clint McIntyre of Oplin, and John A.
 Moore of Cottonwood accompanied county agent Ross B. Jenkins to East land Tuesday October 9th to attend an agricultural meeting composed of Callahan, Eastland, Erath Summerville, and Parker counties. Both men and women were present.

Mr. W. H. Darrow Southwestern representative of AAA was the principal speaker, and organization specialist R. H. Bush closed the day with an inspiring talk of cooperation among the farmers and its result in the past two years.

The five-year-old actress, who shares

If, by making one little change, you could relieve a condition of sluggishness within 24 hours, and feel about 100% better—would you do it?

David Wadsworth did. You can do the same. All that is necessary is to get your bowels in the right condition. But you can't do that by doing them violence.

Doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives. They've seen the damage sometimes done by highly concentrated drugs in the form of pills or tablets! They know that a properly made liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative) does not do this harm. And they use a liquid laxative to relieve the bowels, because the dose can be easily regulated.

To Relieve Bowels

Constipated or sluggish bowels can never be corrected with violent purges. They can be safely relieved with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without forming the laxative habit.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative made from fine herbs, pure pepsin, senna and

If you are a victim of "sluggish bowels"; an occasional sufferer from constipation, here's the secret of prompt and safe relief until nature restores your regularity. Use a liquid laxative.

Start tonight with Syrup Pepsin.
 If necessary to repeat the dose use less each day, until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

If there is an occasional return of the trouble, Syrup Pepsin will comfort and relieve you again, as easily as it did the first time you ever took it.

Ask any druggist for a bottle of

How to save GAS

- 1: Don't turn gas up so high that flame goes over top of any burner. This wastes gas and makes bad air in the room.
- 2: Don't open doors and windows to cool the room; turn the gas down instead. A thermometer will assist in keeping correct temperature.
- 3: Don't try to heat too much space with one heater. An additional heater will save gas consumption.

PERSONAL LIQUIDITY

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

In these days of economic uncertainty the wise man sets his house in order. Waiting until a crisis arrives before planning for its possible occurrence has many times met with disastrous results. The man most likely to succeed is the one who is always prepared to embrace an opportunity. Such preparation requires years of education and training. Who ever heard of a man waiting until a job turned up before he got himself prepared to take it? By the time he had completed that preparation some other person would doubtless have spent years in successful work at that particular task. Does it not seem strange that so few persons prepare for emergencies or opportunities? When caught unawares in a financial difficulty do we need sufficient reserve strength to weather the storm.

He Keeps the Cup

Frederick J. Perry, British tennis champion, won the American singles title for the second straight year at Forest Hills, N. Y. He is seen above with the trophy which Wilmer Allison of Texas failed to take away from him.

There is a liquidity of moral and intellectual resources as well as financial. We emphasize the latter, but too frequently forget the former.

Liquidity of moral values means a reserve power ready to meet any moral crisis. Thus fortified no person can be caught off guard. No temptation can assail one greater than he can bear. Many persons convicted of crime have confessed that had they taken time to think the matter over, the crime would not have been committed. No crime is instantly born. It is the result of a long series of temptations each one stronger than the previous attack; without proper restraining power. With sufficient financial liquidity a bank can successfully withstand any "run." Its reserves enable it to weather the storm. The man with sufficient moral liquidity is not likely to go wrong.

There is also a liquidity of spiritual forces which needs serious consideration these days. Life is uncertain at best. Not only may the rich man of today become the poor man of tomorrow, but the most healthy man of today may be "absent" from us tomorrow.

We set our house in order by preparing for the inevitable in the form of adequate life insurance and other means with which to meet the financial problem. What do we do about the moral and spiritual?

Both Doctor Kolmer and his assistant, attractive Anna M. Hale, risked their lives in order to demonstrate the success of the new vaccine. The vaccine contains the virus of the deadly poliomyelitis, which is the medical term for infantile paralysis.

Said Doctor Kolmer: "I am convinced that the vaccine is entirely successful."
"Neither of us suffered any ill effects from the injections."

"Miss Hale volunteered to submit to the injections of the serum and displayed the highest courage in the face of possible death."

"The vaccine is available now to ward off any possible epidemics of acute anterior poliomyelitis that may be lurking in the future."

Vaccine From Spine

The successful vaccine is prepared from the spinal cord of monkeys that have developed the disease after the injection of the poliomyelitis virus into the brain under ether anesthesia. The spinal cord of one monkey, incidentally, will furnish about seven ounces of vaccine, sufficient for the vaccination of about 50 children.

The vaccine containing the virus is treated with a chemical substance derived from castor beans called sodium ricinoleate. The presence of the sodium ricinoleate does not completely kill the virus, but effects a change that renders the serum safe for injections into monkeys and human beings.

The discoverer of anti-paralysis vaccine lives in suburban Cynwood. He is married and has two children. He was born in Lonaconing, Md., in 1886.

He said: "At present I am attempting to procure a serum for the prevention of pneumonia."

"I hope to be successful with it in the course of time."

The famed immunologist declined to disclose details of his new experiments. He, instead, preferred to discuss the research work he has already done on the successful anti-paralysis serum which he injected into his own veins and those of a laboratory assistant.

Preventative Measure

Doctor Kolmer stressed the fact that the vaccine is entirely a preventative measure and is in no way a cure for poliomyelitis after infection sets in.

The scientist explained he is now ready to attack the problem of curative treatment of the disease. Doctor Kolmer said his interest was aroused

Age 13

Old enough for strong drugs!

It is not wise to give a laxative of adult strength to a child, just because you give it less often or in less amounts.

Stomach upsets and bowel troubles of growing children can often be traced to this single mistake.

There is a better way to relieve those occasional sluggish spells of constipation in a child of any age:

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use...

Doctors advise liquid laxatives, and hospitals use the liquid form. Almost any child who has been convalescing in the hospital usually comes out with bowels working like a well-regulated watch.

Make the change now to pure, California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you won't risk any more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

HOW SHOOT

By B. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Shooting Editor

FEW upland gunners—ones—ever realize shooting depends on the brush without even where their feet ought be in the most advantageous position for quick and accurate will venture to say that cent of all misses made in the field are the result and body position. The of the miss may be over under-shooting, or probably shooting behind. The primary cause is bad stance. Use this term instead of other because it is already an understood word in an association with correct in golfing.

It actually holds as much significance in shooting as it does in golf. You understand the principles of golf form you can, through constant practice, adapt these principles to your physique. No two golfers use the same identical stance. Yet each is applying the same identical principles to his own peculiar characteristics of height, weight, arm length, and so on.

Good stance in shooting, as in golfing, is simply the elimination of muscular conflict—which results in smooth co-ordination.

With smooth muscular co-ordination, your hands and arms and legs synchronize in completing any given motion. You act with speed, and yet without hurry or bungling flusteration. Your bird flushes, your feet assume well-practiced and unconsciously remembered positions, your hands and arms function faultlessly through the familiar routine, your gun swings onto your target and—bang! Dead bird!

Having learned form, the good shot appears to shoot and kill his game with an air of easy carelessness. But behind his apparent carelessness lies an experience of perhaps thousands of practice shots. He shoots in unconscious rhythm because form has become automatic and mechanical with him. He no longer needs to think about it.

The average hunter walks too fast in the field and takes too long steps. On a surprise rise he is invariably caught off balance. Walk slower and you will not only kick out more game, but you stand a much better chance of bagging it when it gets up. In cover where it seems likely a bird or rabbit may pop out at any moment, your good shot is a most careful walker. If he is a right-handed shot he will take short steps, keep his feet fairly close together, take shorter steps with his right foot than with his left foot, and always his left foot out ahead of the right. But his feet are never very far apart.

He knows that to shoot well you must swing your gun, using the body as a steady, supporting pivot. If the bird gets up and quarters to the left (in front of a right-handed shooter) he pivots on his left foot. For the right swinging shot he pivots on the right foot. His movements are mechanical—and smooth. No pulling muscles to stop his gun swing. His gun movements are almost pendulum-like in their freedom from conflicting muscle strain.

Some good shots often fall into a slight, free-moving crouch when shooting. But they pivot just the same. The loose-kneed crouch sometimes gives one a feeling of increased security of footing. But if the crouch becomes stiff and exaggerated the shooter will find himself missing quartering and crossing birds because the severe crouch "freezes" his muscles into rigidity and therefore prevents freedom of swing.

Never try to shoot from bad footing if you can help it. If the game zooms out behind you, don't try to twist yourself into a pretzel to shoot. Turn around, get your footing—then shoot. Shooting in good form makes it easier to score!

Implements of Iron and Stone Age Exhibited

Funeral urns, in which ashes of Vikings' ancestors have rested since placed in Denmark some 3,500 years ago, form part of a collection of Stone and Iron age implements on view at the American Museum of Natural History, says United Press.

There are in the collection approximately 3,500 implements, among which figure weapons with which these primeval men fought and amber with which their wives and daughters adorned themselves.

Consisting of daggers, spear heads and scrapers of primitive planes for smoothing rough wood or bone, the oldest implements in the collection are of flint. Razors, molded on much the same pattern as the modern ones, came later and were of bronze, dating about 1,500 B. C.

N AND HIS BIBLE

XT—O how love I thy meditation all the day.

TOPIC—Learning from the Bible

OPIC—An Ethiopian Finds Good News in the Bible.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Time for Bible Study.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Study the Bible.

In the conversion of the Ethiopian we not only see the Word of God in relation to the salvation of a sinner, but the Lord's work broadening in its scope.

1. Philip Meeting the Ethiopian (vv. 26-29). Leaving the Lord's work by Divine direction (v. 26). The Lord called Philip away from a great work in Samaria, and specifically directed him to this man, Abraham-like, he obeyed the divine command, not knowing why he should leave the work in Samaria and go into a desert place.

2. An officer of state reading the Bible (vv. 27, 28). The Ethiopian had been to Jerusalem to worship. Despite his high official position, he was not ashamed to be a worshiper of God. Following after God should not be considered beneath the dignity of a statesman. Indeed, the world's greatest statesmen have been God-fearing men.

3. A providential meeting in the desert (v. 29). The coming together of these two men was clearly the predetermined way of God. God knew the road which the eunuch would be traveling, and the time of his passing through Gaza.

II. Philip Preaching to the Ethiopian (vv. 30-35).

1. The Ethiopian's employment while journeying (v. 30). His occupation at the time of this meeting was reading the Word of God. At the invitation of the Ethiopian, Philip joined himself to the chariot and found him reading from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. God will eventually show the way of life to the one who searches his Word.

2. The absolute need of an interpreter (v. 31). The Ethiopian was reading one of the clearest testimonies to the Messiah in the Old Testament, yet he was unable to understand it. The Ethiopian, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures. The mind of the natural man is blind to spiritual things, making the work of an evangelist indispensable. Preaching the Word of God will always be necessary. Valuable as is the Bible in the hands of men, the touch and influence of the living man who has experienced the work of God's saving grace in his own heart is needed.

3. Philip's message (vv. 32-35). He began at the Scripture which the Ethiopian was reading, and preached unto him Jesus. This shows us that the person represented in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah as suffering in the stead of others was Jesus Christ instead of Israel. It shows also that the central theme of the preacher's message should be Jesus. He did not preach Jesus as a great teacher, but as a Saviour who had suffered and died instead of the sinner. He preached Jesus as the one who had offered himself as a ransom for many. If there is to be a revival, there must be a return to the preaching of salvation through the shed blood of Jesus Christ.

III. Philip Baptizing the Ethiopian (vv. 36-38).

As a result of Philip's preaching, the eunuch proposed baptism. When Christ is truly preached, men naturally desire to confess him in baptism. Water baptism is clearly included in the program of evangelization. The Ethiopian might have offered many excuses as to why he should neglect this important ordinance, but, like every man who is honest before God, he was willing at any cost to render obedience. It is faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ that saves, but those who have a genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism.

IV. The Ethiopian Rejoicing (v. 38). Having understood the way of salvation, embraced the Saviour, and rendered obedience to the Word of God, he went on his way rejoicing. Confession of Christ always issues in joy.

Rights of Others

Everywhere the Gospel bids the Christian to take sides against himself. He is to stand ready to forego his surest rights, if only he is hurt by so doing; while on the other hand, he is to be watchful to respect even the least obvious rights of others.—Dr. H. C. G. Moule.

Hurry and Despatch

No two things differ more than hurry and despatch. Hurry is the mark of a weak mind; despatch of a strong one.—Colton.

Four Acres Needed for Each Man's Sustenance

One average Englishman, employed in a manner needing a moderate amount of exertion, requires the entire produce of more than four acres of land to keep himself even moderately fit during a year. He needs in addition a large proportion of one carcass of beef and of the produce of one cow.

This is the conclusion drawn from prominent doctors and agricultural experts, writes a correspondent of the London Post.

A committee appointed by the British Medical association reported on the subject of minimum weekly expenditure on foods needed to maintain health and capacity for work.

The specimen dietary for the average man per week was drawn up primarily with a view to establishing the maximum amount of nourishment to be drawn for the minimum amount of expense. It may fairly be taken, however, as indicating an average when terms of necessary food derived per acre are to be calculated.

The vast majority of the population, of course, consume far more than the bare necessity for efficiency, with the result that the average consumption of food per head of the population is far above the produce of four acres.

The committee of the British Medical association drew up a comprehensive list of foodstuffs required in varying quantities. Extended on the weekly average over a year, the list would prescribe the following chief commodities in set quantities:

- Beef, 52 lbs.; bacon, 20 lbs.; corned beef, 20 lbs.; other meat, 30 lbs.; eggs, 104 ozs.; milk, 12 gals.; flour, 250 lbs.; potatoes, 250 lbs.; cabbage, 52 lbs.; barley, 26 lbs.; cheese, 26 lbs.; butter, 13 lbs.

The totals are approximate. Fish, beverages, confections and other commodities not easily reducible to terms of acreage are also included in various proportions.

One acre of meadow and pasture land, it was decided, would produce approximately 72 pounds of beef or 133 gallons of milk during a year. Considering "other meat" as principally beef products, accordingly well over two acres would be necessary in pasture and meadow alone to produce the required complement of meats other than bacon. This is taking no account of the small proportion of oil feeding the man's beef.

The entire annual dairy produce found from the cow is less than an acre of land needed for raising bacon would be increased, hens could probably produce more than the average man, and the amount of land required would be small.

The estimate of the fertility of the soil in terms of food is only 315 pounds to the acre.

An acre of potatoes would, on average, produce 500 pounds a year's requirements would, therefore, be drawn from approximately three-sevenths of an acre.

one-quarter of an acre would be necessary for the production of the various green vegetables prescribed. The necessary amount of barley could be found, on similar computation, in about three-twenty-fifths of an acre.

Records Whitewashed

When John Vacko, headman of Lhots, Czechoslovakia, returned home he found that the walls of his room had been whitewashed by his wife, so he beat her. John told the judge the local council met in the room, and to save paper, he had written the minutes on the walls. His wife's act caused the loss of an entire year's records.
