Amnesty topic at convention

Five delegates will represent Big Spring's Chapter 4375 League of United Latin American Citizens at this weekend's state LULAC convention in Midland.

LULAC's 58th annual state convention will be May 21-24 at Midland's Holiday Inn convention center.

The local organization will send Raul Marquez, president; Chon Marquez, treasurer; Patty Garza, vice president; Sharon Deanda, secretary; and Pat Deanda, spokeswoman.

President Raul Marquez said delegates will attend symposiums on the Immigration and Reform Act of 1986 and education.

"I'm very interested in education and that's what I'm pushing for with our organization," Marquez said.

Marquez said he also hopes to learn more about topics relating to the immigration law.

Mario Ortiz, from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, is scheduled to talk Friday about the new law granting amnesty to illegal aliens.

Women delegates will hear keynote speaker Henry Cisneros, San Antonio's mayor, at a Saturday luncheon and will attend a women issues symposium, Marquez said.

The delegates and several local youth also will attend leadership training programs, Marquez said.

Elections of state LULAC offices also will be conducted, she said.

All symposiums are open to the public for a $20 fee. Information can be obtained by calling LULAC president Joe Jimenez at 683-9084.

A&M study bolsters SSC appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — Garden City site supporters hope a Texas A & M University study identifying Garden City as the best state site for the supercollider will convince the state commission to reconsider its selections.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission received four appeals Tuesday from sites ruled out as possible locations for the giant atom smashing project.

The groups submitting appeals were the Permian Basin group with the Garden City site, the Sam Houston group which proposed a site in the Sam Houston National Forest, a Houston-Beaumont group proposing a site between the two cities, and a far West Texas group proposing a site near El Paso.

Thane Akins, project manager for the Garden City SSC Commission, said the group's appeal had two new attractions.

The group included results of a Texas A&M study of six sites suggested in another study as possible supercollider sites and the Garden City site.

"The bottom line of the whole thing was the Garden City site was the best site in Texas," Akins said.

The group also is offering to pay all the costs of putting together its proposal to be submitted to the DOE, Akins said. He estimated the cost would be about $100,000 to $200,000 since most of the work already is done.

The commission has said it would cost $1 million to put together a single proposal.

"We're not here to replace either one of (the chosen sites), but to become a third site for the state of Texas," Akins said.

Also Tuesday, the House tentatively approved a bill that would allow Dallas, Tarrant and Ellis counties to set up a taxing district to raise money to support the project.

The bill also would give the counties the authority to condemn any homes or buildings on the land proposed for the site and to issue up to $300 million in bonds to acquire land for the project and other related costs.

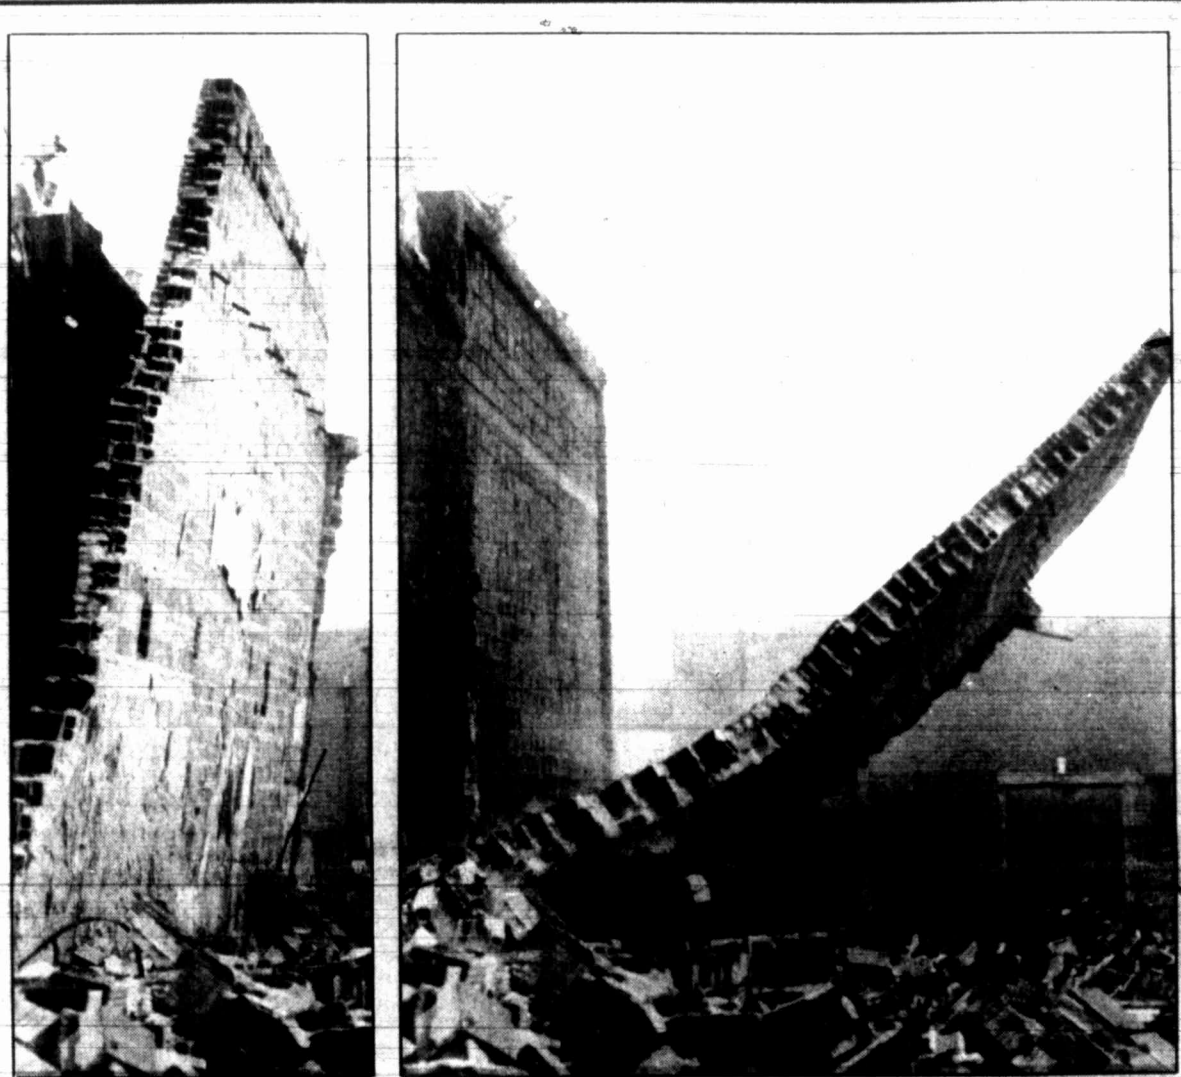

Two weeks ago the sites near Dallas and Amarillo were chosen to represent Texas in the national sweepstakes, touching off a storm of protest and allegations of a rigged decision. The commission gave the 12 losing sites five business days to submit a request for reconsideration.

The multi-billion dollar supercollider project features a 52-mile tunnel which will be used to smash together atomic particles to probe the building blocks of matter.

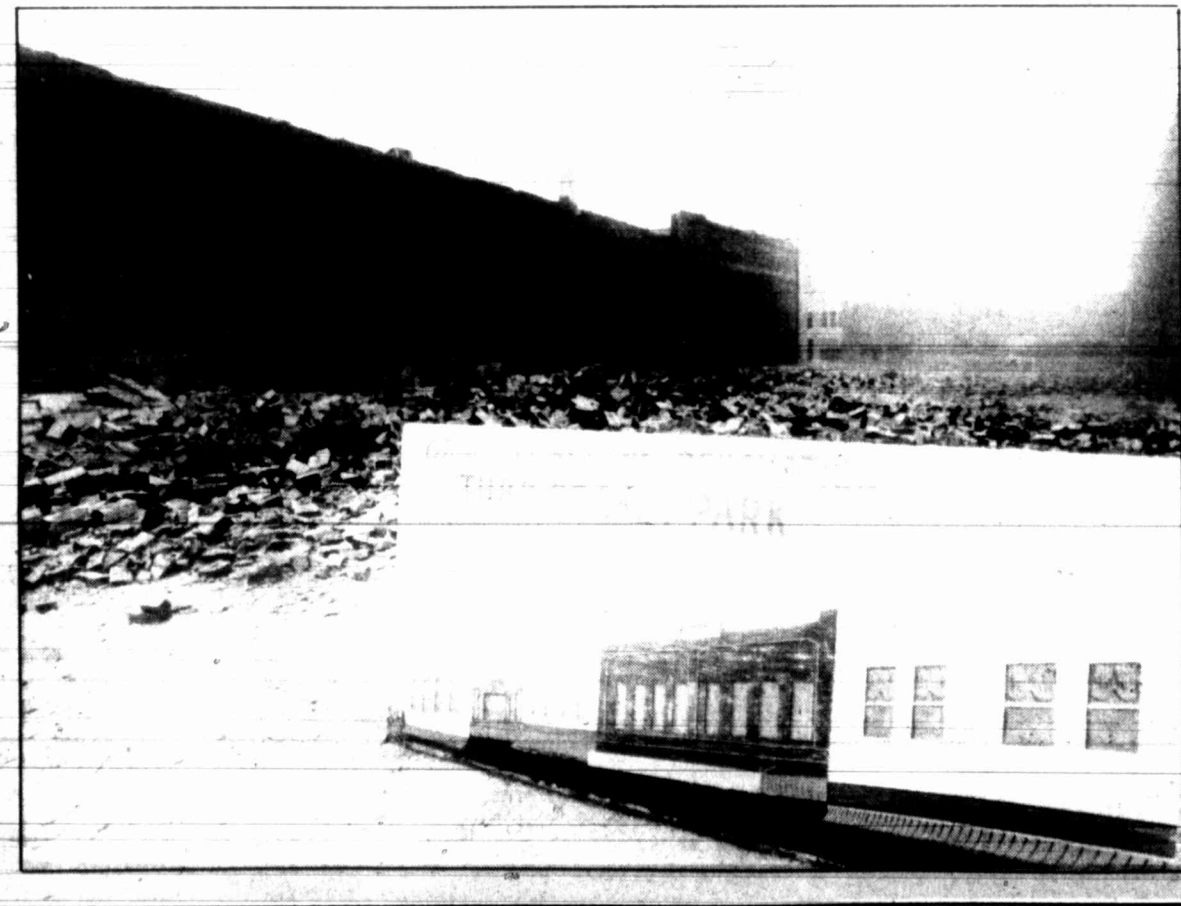

The Sam Houston and Garden City groups hand delivered their appeals to the commission while the Houston-Beaumont and the far West Texas group sent theirs.

"We will look at the letters, look at the information that they have asked us to look at and get back to them as expeditiously as possible," said Susan Tonetti, executive assistant for the commission.

Tumblin' down

Members of the Howard County Road and Bridge Department push down a wall in a vacant lot next to the Howard County Courthouse Annex Tuesday morning, as their contribution to the Downtown Steering Committee. The lot is destined to become the Tubb Pocket Park as part of the downtown renovation. The property belongs to Horace Tubb. Estimated cost of the park project is $25,000 according to Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones.

Astronaut: Space program to blossom before 2000

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The space program should blossom within the next 15 years, and ideas for future missions include construction of a space station, a colony on the Moon, and a manned expedition to Mars, astronaut Capt. Mike Coates says.

Coates spoke Tuesday evening in Midland at a meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers.

NASA officials expect an expanded Soviet space program to generate renewed American interest keeping pace, he said.

Although the U.S. is far ahead in space technology, the Soviets have more space experience — about four times our number of man-hours in space, he said. The Soviets are expected to plan a "spectacular" space mission for 1992, the 75th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, he said.

There has been talk of a Soviet manned mission to Mars, but Coates says the USSR doesn't have the technology for it yet.

A problem with humans living in a no-gravity environment is deterioration of bones and muscles, he said. When Soviet cosmonauts returned from an eight-month space flight, they were unable to lift their heads in earth gravity.

American space missions typically last a week to 10 days, he said.

In addition, the cosmonauts' bones had begun to de-mineralize, making them brittle, he said.

With current technology, a trip to Mars would take nine months one way, and astronauts would have little or no bones left when they returned, Coates said.

The solution, he believes, is artificial gravity. Scientists say gravity could be created with centrifugal force, by spinning the space shuttle.

When a space station is built, personnel would be returned to earth after a few months, to help avoid physical problems, he said.

He added that the Soviets already have a space station, but they don't have the short-term space shuttle technology.

A space station, which would be constructed in space, will probably be in orbit in eight to 10 years, he estimated.

"We think we're going to make discoveries, in long-term experiments, that we can't even grasp now," including medicine processing and metallurgy, he said.

Experiments conducted on short space shuttle trips have given scientists a glimpse of the long-term projects that could be conducted in a space station, he said.

Coates said Americans have received $8 worth of technological benefits from each dollar spent sending astronauts to the moon.

The Challenger disaster set back the U.S. space program two to three years, but NASA is preparing for renewed space flights, perhaps in a year to 15 months, he said.

Coates is scheduled for his second space flight on about the third or fourth space flight, ASTRONAUT page 2A

State hospital still seeking applicants

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

The deadline to apply for the Big Spring State Hospital superintendent position has been extended to allow for more national advertising, a state mental health official said Tuesday.

Deputy Commissioner Frankie Williams extended the March 30 deadline in order to post the position in national medical journals, said Duwane Robinson, director of information services in at the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in Austin.

Williams, who is at a state-wide mental health planning conference in Corpus Christi, has not set a deadline for applications, Robinson said.

"It often takes a month and a half to get a posting in the journals," Robinson explained.

Big Spring Hospital's Acting Superintendent Robert von Rosenberg has applied for the position.

Physicians with administrative experience as well as non-physicians with hospital administrative experience are eligible for the position.

Von Rosenberg, who is not a physician, has held various positions at the Big Spring State Hospital including assistant superintendent under former superintendent A K Smith who retired in December.

ROBERT VON ROSENBERG

The state board first posted the job opening Feb. 12, Robinson said.

When the position is closed to applicants, officials at Austin's center offices will screen applicants and begin interviewing, Robinson said.

Deputy Williams will make a recommendation to the Board of Trustees who will make the final decision, but all qualified applications will be sent to the board, Robinson said.

1985 Cosden fire prompts lawsuit

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Attorneys are taking depositions in a lawsuit filed by Cosden Refinery relating to the mammoth fire there in March 1985, said Cosden attorney Jack Little.

Cosden is suing C&S Meter Service Co. of Midland, owners John W. Smith and John Mendenhall, Goodall Rubber Co., Smith Meter Inc., Moorco Inc., Geosource Inc., Xomox Corp., and Shaw Wellhead & Supply Inc.

Cosden's petition contends that a flexible hose used in the refinery caused the fire. It was purchased by C&S through Shaw, and manufactured by Goodall, according to the petition.

Cosden accuses the defendants of products liability, negligence, breach of contract and breaches of warranty.

Little, of the Big Spring firm Little, Palmer & Williams, said this morning that a deposition is a sworn statement by a party involved, whom opposing attorneys are allowed to cross-examine.

A deposition is admissible in court, he said, if a witness were to die before the trial, for example.

The fire started during meter tests at the refinery being performed by Smith and Mendenhall, the suit says.

The lawsuit, filed in 118th District Court January 12, does not state a monetary amount of damages sought. However, it asks for actual damages from the fire, interest, attorneys and court fees, and for further relief "as the Court may deem just and proper."

The defendants answer that they are not liable because the product in question was misused.

Cosden officials said at the time that the March 26, 1985, fire destroyed instrumentation and electrical wiring in the crude oil processing unit, including a con-

Senators' incomes disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Phil Gramm listed income of at least $131,911 for 1986, while Democrat Lloyd Bentsen claimed at least $322,968 in financial disclosure statements released Tuesday.

Gramm, an economist and former college professor who is in the middle of his first term in the U.S. Senate, said his income range last year topped out at $178,100, compared to the income range of $114,304 and $145,800 during 1985.

Members of Congress are required only to report ranges of income, assets and liabilities.

Included in Gramm's income was $30,000 for speeches to a variety of groups, mostly in Washington. They included the National Association of Credit Unions, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Institute for Research on the Economics of Taxation.

Bentsen, a three-term senator who chairs the Finance Committee, placed his income at between $322,968 and $542,459. Much of that was attributed to a qualified blind trust, which brought in more than $100,000.

That's down substantially from 1985, in which Bentsen listed income of between $491,666 and $862,247, including his $75,100 annual Senate salary. This year's disclosure forms do not include salaries.

Bentsen, who keeps homes in

SEN. PHIL GRAMM

SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN

Washington, D.C., Starr County, Texas, and a 130-acre farm in Virginia, also listed income from rental property, interest, dividends and capital gains.

He earned $19,806 from the sale of some cattle from his Virginia farm and $20,690 as a partner in Crane Equipment Rental in Houston.

Total assets for Bentsen were placed at between $1,848,021 and $2,780,000 against liabilities of $100,001 to $250,000 — which represents a 25-year mortgage on the Virginia farm.

Included in the assets was a Cadillac automobile valued at between $15,000 and $50,000, mineral deeds at between $1,001 and $5,000, stock in Bentsen Financial Corp. at $15,000 to $50,000 and notes receivable at $100,000 to $250,000.

The bulk of Gramm's income came from rental property in Bryan-College Station with smaller amounts from dividends and retirement plans. Assets came to between $272,018 and $770,000 against liabilities of $45,003 to $150,000 — all tied to three mortgages.

The co-author of the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing act also listed receiving three gifts worth $100 or more, including a Cotton Bowl watch from his former employer, Texas A&M in January 1986.

Bentsen listed no gifts or honoraria in his disclosure form. He did show $24,750 in director's fees earned by his wife, B.A. Bentsen. Mrs. Bentsen is a director of Criterion Inc. of Houston, an umbrella mutual fund that oversees 13 other investment funds.

Gramm's wife, Wendy, earned a salary of $77,500 in her position as administrator in the Office of Management and Budget.

The Republican senator also listed 41 reimbursements for travel, most of which were trips to speak on behalf of fellow GOP members running for re-election. Gramm made 10 such trips in support of Gov. Bill Clements.

Bentsen listed five reimbursable trips for the past year.

Gramm was an officer of nine organizations in 1986, including the Texas A&M University Free Enterprise Center in College Station, The Coalition of Peace Through Strength in Washington, and the Intercollegiate Studies Institute in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Astronaut

he said. "It's a lot of fun. I'm looking forward to it," he said.

He was pilot on the STS-4 "Discovery" mission in 1984, which launched a solar cell wing experiment, deployed three satellites and conducted experiments in crystal growth and photography.

It takes about 48 hours for one's body to adjust to no-gravity conditions, he said. The stomach stops digesting, balance is confused and blood from the legs redistributes itself to the head, making astronauts feel as if they had a cold, he said.

Sometimes, Coates explained, vertibrates begin to separate. If someone were to remain in space several months, they would grow 1 to 1 1/2 inches, he said, but that growth would be lost upon re-entering gravity.

There are other affects as well. Astronauts' taste changes in space, he said — foods taste bland, and chocolate doesn't taste good. Because the stomach floats inside the body, hunger is greatly reduced, and astronauts typically lose four or five pounds in a week.

Astronauts usually wear shorts and T-shirts on space missions, for comfort, and only wear space suits to journey outside the shuttle, as in launching satellites, he said.

However, they wear pressure-sealed helmets during the launch, in case of an accident, he said.

Launches are exciting, he said. They take about 8 1/2 minutes, during which participants are pressed into their seats with about three times the normal force of gravity.

Gravity is also greatly felt when astronauts land, he said.

"Suddenly you weigh about 800 pounds," he said. "One of the hardest things was getting up out of my seat."

Coates showed a NASA film of astronauts in space, and objects affected by the lack of gravity, including a floating ball of coffee, a gyroscope spinning in the air, and a spinning banana launched toward a waiting astronaut.

Clouds roll in Tuesday's storm clouds head toward Big Spring, following the vehicles that were traveling east on Interstate 20 west of Big Spring. In the city, Elton Martin, 203 N. Nolan, received .20 inches of rain, with Boyce Hale of Sterling City Route recording .17 inches.

Court upholds policy Lake Thomas victim's body found by officials

AUSTIN (AP) — The practice of postponing court cases when a lawyer involved also serves as a member of the Legislature was upheld today by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Although the issue has caused friction between lawmakers and judges for years, the court said Texas law allows for such extensions. "The broad public policy behind such legislation in Texas and other states should be easily understood," the court said in an opinion written by Presiding Judge John F. Onion Jr.

The ruling came in a case where state Rep. Debra Danburg, D-Houston, was one of the lawyers representing a man charged with attempted murder and aggravated assault.

The man was indicted on Oct. 10, 1986. Trial was set for Jan. 5, 1987, On Dec. 23, Ms. Danburg and another lawyer, David Bires, sought a continuance.

The body of Richard Garcia, 15, Lamesa was recovered Tuesday evening in Lake Thomas by the Colorado River Municipal Water District Lake Patrol and Scurry County and local officials.

Hilarrio Ortiz, 19, also of Lamesa, and the drowning victim apparently took a boat without permission late Thursday evening, according to Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier.

CRMWD officials said today that the body was recovered near the location where he was reported to have gone under water.

Collier said that Garcia and Ortiz apparently drifted from shore in the boat. Without a key in the ignition, and apparently without oars, according to Joe Pickle, secretary/treasurer of the CRMWD which holds jurisdiction over the lake, the pair attempted to return to shore by swimming.

Collier reported that Ortiz said he did not see his companion again, once he went under water.

No charges have been filed, the sheriff said. The investigation is continuing.

The incident occurred near the southeast end of the lake about 2 a.m. Friday.

Officials had searched for the man's body since Friday evening, before it was located about 8 p.m. Tuesday, according to Pickle.

Halliburton services lifts furloughs

DUNCAN, Okla. — Company officials believe enough business will return that Halliburton Services has decided to stop its employee furlough system for at least the next four months.

Company president A.A. "Al" Baker said Tuesday that the suspension was a "reaction to the needs of both our people and the company."

"We see signs that business could pick up, and we are entering our busy season," Baker said.

Under the furlough system, which has been in place since June 22, most company employees have taken one week off without pay in each eight-week period.

Baker said business conditions would determine whether the suspension would continue once the next two eight-week periods elapse. The lifting of the furloughs is effective Sunday, a day after the current eight-week period ends.

"Bill Taylor (in charge of Halliburton Co.'s oilfield services division) and Halliburton Services are sticking our necks out. We think we can hold costs down, increase our revenues and make a profit," Baker said.

Phone deregulation bill opposed

AUSTIN — Consumer groups are urging the House to defeat two bills that would deregulate a long-distance telephone company and partially deregulate local phone companies.

The consumer organizations said Tuesday they believe that both AT&T Communications and local telephone companies have enough leeway under current regulatory laws.

"If these bills are passed, be assured that phone service will become a necessity that is priced like a luxury," Carol Barger, Southwest director of the Consumers Union, told a news conference.

Anti-abortionists to debut new film

AUSTIN — Anti-abortionists say they hope a film showing doctors dismembering a 4½-month-old fetus will refocus attention on the abortion issue and away from the battle over the issue in the Legislature.

The film made its Texas debut Tuesday, the same day the House gave final approval to a bill which would prohibit abortion of a fetus able to survive outside the mother's womb.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure is pending.

Mark Fury, spokesman for the

"In a state where consumers are already behind, it would be a mistake to grant the phone companies more regulatory freedom than they have in almost any other state in the union," added Stewart Henderson of the Campaign for Affordable Phones.

At issue are two bills scheduled for debate by the House today. Similar measures have passed the Senate.

One would free AT&T from state regulation of long-distance phone calls within Texas.

Backers of the measure say US Sprint, MCI and other companies are free to set their own rates and pick whom they serve and what services are offered.

Texas Right to Life Committee, said the film "Eclipse of Reason" was released in an attempt to "shift the focus from individuals in the House and Senate to the issue at hand."

The 26-minute film will be shown in New Orleans at the National Right to Life Committee convention during mid-June, Fury said.

Several senators have threatened to filibuster against the House bill when it reaches the Senate floor. Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said he plans to "talk for two days" if the House version is brought up for a vote in the Senate.

Clements orders flags at half staff

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements ordered flags flown at half staff at the Capitol in honor of the 37 victims of the USS Stark attack, a American naval vessel hit by Iraqi jets in the Persian Gulf.

Clements signed a proclamation Tuesday ordering the flags be flown at half staff from Wednesday through Monday, which is Memorial Day, "so that Texans may better express their grief at such a loss of life in defense of our nation."

Clements also urged state agencies across Texas to do the same.

"Texans join with others across the nation in expressing our sympathy to those who lost family members and loved ones in this incident," Clements said in the proclamation. "The military presence in our state is felt in communities from the Panhandle to the Gulf Coast, so the gravity and feeling of loss in such instances is particularly severe."

Police to conduct probe of death

DALLAS — The fatal police shooting this week of a crime prevention volunteer — just 10 days after a congressional hearing on the police department's deadly force policy — reinforces why the policy should be scuttled, a city councilwoman says.

The incident is the third fatal police shooting of 1987 and the first since a congressional subcommittee met in Dallas on May 8 on the police department's use of deadly force and its relationship with the minority community.

Councilwoman Diane Ragsdale, who is black, said the shooting Monday night of 81-year-old David Horton "reinforces the need to dismantle and totally overhaul the existing system" and added that she would inform the congressional subcommittee about the shooting.

House guns down concealed weapon bill

AUSTIN — Lawmakers concerned about the state's image and the safety of law enforcement officials combined in the House to kill a measure that would have allowed Texans to carry concealed weapons.

"Don't you think if this bill was to pass that the news would go out all over the country that we're a bunch of wild Indians here in this state?" said Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-LaMarque.

"I've attended too doggone many funerals of police officers and deputy sheriffs and highway patrol members who were killed in the line of duty. If we allow this bill to become enacted into law there will be an awful lot more members of the law enforcement community in the state of Texas killed," said Rep. Dick Burnett, D-San Angelo, and a former FBI agent.

But Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said criminals would think twice before striking a victim that might be packing a pistol.

"Quite frankly, if it comes down to us deciding who is going to be inflicted with some kind of bodily harm in those instances, I'd much rather it be the criminal than the law-abiding person," Wilson said Tuesday before his bill was killed by a 79-48 margin.

place of worship or meeting of a government body.

"You're not going to stop criminals from having guns. If somebody assaults someone with a economic development.

"If you had a corporation in another state and you were planning to come to Texas, if you knew we were all ready and armed for you would you want to bring your new business in Texas," he said.

Wilson, D-Houston, stuck to his guns despite the verbal fire.

"There is a problem out there," he said, referring to crime statistics and calls and letters he has received from people who want to carry concealed weapons for protection.

"This is not a bill for wimps. If you've got some courage members, let's go," he told the House before the bill was killed.

After the vote, he said it is up to Texans to tell their lawmakers they want to carry guns.

"Victims of crime have yet to communicate their frustration to the members of the Legislature. Once that starts happening you are going to see a change of attitude. We have to start being concerned about the victims in this society," Wilson said.

"If we allow this bill to become enacted into law there will be an awful lot more members of the law enforcement community in the state of Texas killed."

His bill would have allowed people of sound mind and no criminal record to pay a $100 license fee to carry a concealed weapon. The weapon could not be carried in places such as a bank, airport, gun I want that potential victim, that vulnerable one, to be able to speak up and be able to stand up for themselves for a change," Wilson said.

Opinion

Sooner sub link a 'coincidence'

We are indebted to Charles Peters, editor in chief of The Washington Monthly, for calling our attention to a Navy story of some interest.

It concerns the E-6, a new Navy plane that will fly over the ocean to provide a communications link with submarines.

The E-6, we learn, will not be based in San Diego, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or somewhere on the Atlantic coast. The E-6 will fly out of Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma City.

Peters quotes a disgruntled Navy official: "Basing those planes in Oklahoma will make sense as soon as we start basing the submarines in Nebraska."

Why was that city by the sea, a bit north of the Gulf of Mexico, chosen?

Tinker was not on the original list of bases to be considered. It was added to be considered. It was added at the suggestion of Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla.

On June 25 of last year, Edwards led the fight in the House to restore military aid to the Contras. Seven days later, Edwards announced that the Navy had selected Tinker as the base for the E-6.

Purely a coincidence, of course.

Anti-apartheid actions backfire

Results of the recent parliamentary election in South Africa are encouraging those on the far right to seek tougher enforcement of apartheid, or racial separation, laws.

Many blacks, who were not permitted to vote, are alarmed that the right gained strength in the elections.

White liberals who hope to eliminate apartheid also view the elections as a setback.

It must be hoped that moderation will prevail in South Africa, but American liberals who forced this country to distance itself economically and otherwise from that troubled nation will be partially to blame if conditions get worse rather than better.

President P.W. Botha — whose government had made significant progress toward scrapping apartheid — said the election results should convey to the country's foreign critics that "they cannot dictate to South Africa."

It already has been demonstrated that as U.S. companies leave South Africa, equal opportunity hiring and other progressive policies are leaving with them.

The turn of events are showing that by slapping sanctions on South Africa instead of sticking around to encourage progress toward racial harmony, the United States has reinforced racism.

Says education key to SSC loss

To the editor:

I have followed with avid interest the effort of the West Texas group working on the SSC project. After reading the lead story in the Big Spring Herald Wednesday, May 13, I felt a sense of sorrow for the fine group of people who attempted to locate this project in this area.

They all are to be commended for their dedication, imagination, time, effort and money that were directed to this program.

However, I feel the reason given for the rejection of the Garden City site — politics is only a partial piece of a complex puzzle. One of the other pieces is e-d-u-c-a-t-i-o-n.

As all of us know, a plant will not grow until a seed is planted, fertilized, cared for, and weeded frequently. Only then will it grow to maturity and provide either a beautiful flower or a bountiful harvest.

West Texas must realize that until we make a strong, dedicated and long-term commitment to education, beginning with kindergarten and continuing through graduate school — the same commitment as some local areas have made to football — we will continue to be dependent upon the uncertainty of oil, farming and ranching to support our economy. We have all seen in the last five years the results of this lack of economic diversity.

Come on, you people of vision and foresight, let us uncompromisingly direct our dedication, imagination, time, effort and money to our children's education. Neither you nor I will live long enough to see the fruits of our labors. But with 95 percent hard work and five percent luck, our children and their children will reap the benefits of the seed that we sow.

Vacation bothersome in Bermuda

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
HAMILTON, Bermuda — Here I am in paradise. The water is blue as the sky and the temperature is perfect. Spring has colored the island with its glorious reds, pinks, yellows and whites and people sit on ocean overlooks and sip drinks made stout with rum.

I should be thankful a bit of business has landed me here.

I'm not, however. I usually can get along with just about everybody, even liberal Democrats and chiropractors, but I am having a difficult time dealing with Bermudans.

You've heard about it in Jamaica, and maybe you've experienced it in the Bahamas. Add Bermuda to the list.

Many of the locals, most of whom make their living off the tourist trade, have no use for tourists.

I'm supposed to play golf at the Mid-Ocean Club. Very British. Lots of portraits of scowling old men on the walls. I walked into the starter's office.

"Hello," I began. "I'm supposed to play golf with..."

"You're not playing golf here in those shorts," the starter interrupted me.

"What's wrong with my shorts?" I asked.

"Too short," said the starter. "Don't you tourists know anything?"

To avoid an ugly scene, I went to the pro shop and bought shorts with the proper length. They were quite ugly and cost me 40 bucks.

Back to the starter. A companion had joined me.

"I'd like to have two carts," he said to Mr. Sunshine.

"You don't tell me what you want to have," the starter snapped. "I tell you what I will allow you to have."

We got even. Neither of us replaced our divots during our golf round. I can make divots — holes in the ground — in which a small boy could get lost.

Cab driver. One berates our group because we try to get into his cab bearing cups.

"You're not getting into my cab with those cups," he says with the distinct aroma of admonishment. "You might spill something on my seats."

"Forget it, Heloise," I said, "we'll walk."

Walking in Bermuda is dangerous. They drive on the wrong side of the road, for one thing, and if you are a Bermudian and you run over a tourist, you get a free ticket to the cricket matches or some other valuable premium.

The night doorman at the front of the Sonesta Beach Hotel. I walk out and say, "Taxi."

"You don't say 'taxi,'" he spits at me. "I say, 'taxi.'"

I'm stupid enough to argue with the guy, and he says he'll have me put in the "jug" — Bermudian for jail.

He never did tell me what the charge would be. Saying "taxi" when it wasn't my turn, I suppose.

I'm leaving Bermuda today. When my flight is safely airborne, I am going to turn back and give Bermuda a well-known gesture.

The beauty here just ain't worth the bother.

George's bush-league tactics aimed at Hispanic Republicans

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush's political minions inside the Minority Business Development Agency are eagerly courting influential Hispanic Republicans. One has even been accused of breaking the law in his ardent pursuit of support for Bush's 1988 presidential race.

As a stronghold of Hispanic political appointees, the agency is in the thick of the battle between Bush and Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., for Hispanic support that could be important in their quest for the GOP nomination. Last month we reported on allegations that MBDA director James Richardson Gonzales tailored agency grants in the Southwest to win support for Republicans, most notably Bush. He has denied the allegations.

Now the Commerce Department's inspector general is investigating charges against another political appointee, Ernest Olivas, who is accused of trying to drum up support for Bush on official time using his government phone.

The 1939 Hatch Act forbids government employees from political fund-raising or campaigning, and federal regulations prohibit the use of office phones for anything but official business.

Two Hispanic businessmen, both Republicans, told our associate Stewart Harris that Olivas telephoned them last winter asking for their support of Bush and Cathi Villalpando, a candidate for chairman of the Republican National Hispanic Assembly. Both businessmen said the inspector general interviewed them about the calls.

A spokesman for the inspector general would neither confirm nor deny that Olivas is under investigation.

Olivas branded the allegations "absolute falsehoods" and suggested that they were prompted by the intense struggle between Bush and Dole for Hispanic support. The current chairman of the Republican National Hispanic Assembly, Fernando DeBaca, confirmed that the organization is wracked by political disagreement, but he refused further comment.

Bush desperately needs help from minorities — especially

Jack Anderson

Hispanics — in his race for the nomination. If Villalpando does become head of the assembly, she is expected to swing its influence to the vice president.

Before he joined the minority agency about a year ago, Olivas was a part-time speechwriter for Bush. A Hispanic Republican source told us that Olivas got his agency job with the help of Villalpando, who was working for the White House at the time. Olivas confirmed that he is friends with Villalpando.

One of the businessmen, Francisco Vega of Grand Rapids, Mich., said he remembers two or three calls from Olivas. Vega said that when Olivas first called in December or January, he left his Washington telephone number. Vega said he recognized the agency prefix, and asked Olivas if he was calling from work the next time they spoke. Olivas said he was, Vega said.

Olivas urged Vega to support Villalpando in her bid to head the Hispanic assembly, but did not mention Bush, Vega said.

The other businessman, William Wallace of Hallettsville, Texas, told us that when Olivas called him last winter he asked outright for Wallace's support of Bush. He also asked him to back Villalpando, Wallace said.

Describing Olivas as an "acquaintance," Wallace said the early-afternoon call from Washington was "a friendly call with the intent to find out if I could be persuaded" to support Bush and Villalpando. "He was talking mainly about Bush," Wallace said.

Olivas said he had "no reason on earth to ever talk to the man (Wallace)," and said he may have called Vega once but not to drum up political support.

He characterized himself as a victim of the internecine struggle among Hispanic Republicans over whom to support for the presidential nomination. Declining to comment further on Vega and Wallace, Olivas told us, "I don't want to stoop to their level."

IN THE WINGS: One of the few Democratic members of the Senate with presidential ambitions who is not running for the 1988 nomination is freshman Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia.

He's biding his time and laying plans for a 1992 run for the White House. Young Rocky's most prominent political counselor is his West Virginia country-boy colleague, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

It was Byrd who advised Rockefeller not to come out too early for any 1988 Democratic candidate, lest he alienate potential 1992 supporters. After initially backing Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who decided not to run, Rockefeller is taking Byrd's advice.

REPORT CONFIRMED: We reported a year ago that the Stelth bomber program was costing far more than the Air Force had been telling Congress. Our disclosures were met with crashing silence at the Pentagon. Now the Air Force has acknowledged that costs have been running high — so high that production funds have been "borrowed" to meet development costs.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In an over-size mailing that looks about as much like official business as the law allows, James Roosevelt invokes the name of his father, President Franklin Roosevelt, to beg for contributions from Social Security recipients.

He's asking the elderly for $10 contributions "to save Social Security and Medicare" by supporting the National Committee to Preserve Social Security, which he heads.

The cover of the mailing refers to "Official National Committee Documents" and has a scary red-and-blue rubric saying, "Urgent! Important Social Security and Medicare Information Enclosed." This shameful pitch must have FDR turning in his grave.

Jack Anderson's investigative report from Washington is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Murderer executed

PARCHMAN, Miss. — Professing his innocence and urging officials to hurry, convicted murderer Edward Earl Johnson died in the gas chamber early today, the first inmate to be executed in Mississippi in nearly four years.

"I guess nobody is going to call, I guess nobody is going to call," witnesses heard Johnson say minutes before his death.

Authorities dropped sodium cyanide crystals into a sulfuric acid solution at 12:06 a.m., releasing poisonous fumes into the chamber.

Witnesses said that seconds before the pellets were dropped, Johnson said, "Let's go with it. Let's go with it."

Johnson, 26, was pronounced dead at 12:21 a.m., said state Corrections Department spokesman Ken Jones.

Judge OKs dismissal

NEW YORK — A federal judge Tuesday granted a government motion requesting dismissal of insider-trading charges against three prominent Wall Street brokers so that prosecutors can later bring a broader indictment.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Louis L. Stanton to dismiss the charges without prejudice means the trial won't proceed as had been scheduled next week and the U.S. Attorney's office is free to reinstate the trio on the same charges as well as others.

At a hearing before a crowded courtroom, Stanton brushed aside defense arguments that the government was using the dismissal strategy as a ploy to gain more time in its trial preparation and deny the defendants their right to a speedy trial.

Goetz victim testifies

NEW YORK — James Ramseur, alternately smirking and scowling, told a courtroom he is certain Bernhard Goetz will be acquitted on charges of shooting him and three friends on a subway train 2½ years ago.

"He's gonna be found not guilty anyway. I know what time it is," Ramseur said Tuesday, after defense attorney Barry Slotnick suggested he was tailoring his testimony to convict Goetz and win a $9.5 million civil suit.

Ramseur corroborated testimony from another of Goetz's victims, Troy Canty, that the four teen-agers Goetz shot on Dec. 22, 1984 were on their way downtown to break into video games and that only Canty approached Goetz on the train.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will fly to Florida on Friday to attend a memorial service for the 37 American servicemen killed in the Iraqi missile attack on the guided missile frigate Stark. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said today.

A service will be held at the Stark's homeport of Mayport Naval Station, near Jacksonville, Fla.

Police and emergency medical officials examine two polar bears, shot dead at New York's Prospect Park Zoo Tuesday after a boy was mauled and partially eaten by one or two polar bears. The 11-year-old and two other children had entered the zoo after hours.

Zoo tragedy

Polar bears maul, kill child

NEW YORK (AP) — Two polar bears killed and partially ate an 11-year-old boy who went with two playmates to their lair for a swim, and police shot to death the half-ton animals as they fought over the remains, authorities said.

"It's too gory, too horrendous to describe," said Mayor Edward I. Koch.

"It's awful, awful. The lower part of the body had been chewed up."

Police initially thought the bears had devoured the other playmates, whose clothes were found inside the fenced-in compound Tuesday night at Brooklyn's Prospect Park Zoo. The boys had returned home safely, police said.

Police needed 20 blasts from four shotguns and six rounds from a .38-caliber pistol to kill the animals, one of which had dragged the boy, Juan Perez, into its lair, said police spokesman Officer Peter O'Donnell.

The boy and two other 11-year-olds had decided to take an after-hour dip in the moat inside the fence, he said.

They took off their clothes, but the two lost their nerve, O'Donnell said. Perez then threw everyone's clothes into the cage, and he and a playmate squeezed through the fence to fetch them, O'Donnell said.

At about that point the bears woke up, O'Donnell said. "The first one comes down and does nothing, just looks at the kids. Then the second one comes down and grabs Juan and drags him up the rocks into the cave." Officers responding to a report of screams from the cage had to wait for the groundskeeper to open the zoo's bolted gates, police said.

"They saw two bears actually devouring a child," said First Deputy Police Commissioner Richard Condon. He added that the animals were fighting over the body.

Autopsies done immediately on the bears found remains of only one human, said Dr. Elliot Gross, the city's chief medical examiner. The other children had returned home without clothes and were brought to police by their parents.

An investigation was to begin today by the Parks Department's inspector general to determine how the children got in and how to prevent such occurrences, said city Parks Commissioner Henry J. Stern.

The park closes at 5 p.m. and a sweep of the area had found no one inside the zoo, said Gary Zaar, a Parks Department spokesman. Zarr said the children had either sneaked in after hours or had hidden inside.

Children interviewed after the mauling told reporters it is easy to slip into the park after hours.

Stern said the two animals had been at the zoo for about 30 years without incident but that polar bears in general are vicious. The bear compound is ringed by a 10-foot wrought iron fence and a moat up to 2 feet deep.

Two bombs kill three

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Two bombs exploded today outside a Johannesburg courthouse, killing three policemen and wounding several other people.

It was the highest number of security officers killed in a single incident in South Africa in at least a year.

Two explosions — a smaller blast at the courthouse entrance followed by a more powerful one in a car a minute later — occurred about 12:30 p.m. at the magistrate's court building at the edge of the financial district.

The car that blew up was parked on a narrow street across from a side entrance to the court building, and witnesses said police ran through the corridors shouting, "Bomb, bomb, get out."

Ship warning unheard

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz said the fighter pilot who attacked the USS Stark believed he was firing on an Iranian vessel and did not receive warnings from the U.S. frigate.

American officials have said the USS Stark twice warned the Iraqi Mirage by radio that it was approaching a U.S. Navy vessel.

But Aziz said at a news conference Tuesday night that the Iraqi pilot did not receive any signals from the frigate Sunday night before firing missiles that punched a hole in the ship's port side and triggered a devastating blaze.

Fijian youths rampage

SUVA, Fiji — Fijian youths rampaged through this capital today, beating up ethnic Indians in the first violence since last week's coup.

Despite the riot, the governmental crisis that began when the army stormed Parliament on Thursday and arrested the Cabinet appeared headed for resolution. Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra — freed from detention Tuesday — indicated he would not insist on continuing as head of government or on punishing those involved in the military takeover. He said new elections could come in "a couple of months."

Man tries to kill Barbie

LYON, France — A man carrying false documents and a pistol attempted to enter St. Joseph's Prison here Tuesday to kill former Lyon Gestapo chief Klaus Barbie, said a prosecutor in Barbie's trial.

Barbie, 73, has remained in his cell since May 13 when he announced he would no longer attend court sessions where he is being tried on charges of crimes against humanity. He claims he had been kidnapped in Bolivia and illegally brought back to France on Feb. 5, 1983.

Authorities identified the would-be assailant as Christian Didier, 43, and said he was carrying a loaded pistol.

Specialists say prepared baby foods OK

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER
In recent years, many parents have voiced concern over the content of prepared baby foods, especially the "three S's" — sodium, sugar, and starch. Most of these worries are needless for healthy infants, according to specialists at New York University Medical Center.

"There are widespread misconceptions concerning these ingredients," said Dr. Selma E. Snyderman, professor of pediatrics at the medical center. "A notable example is the assumption that salt — or, more specifically, sodium — is necessarily harmful. In fact, only people with a genetic predisposition to hypertension (high blood pressure), must avoid excessive sodium intake, which can aggravate the condition. There is no evidence that sodium will cause or aggravate hypertension in normal children."

"When solid foods are introduced slowly at four to six months of age — a feeding practice advocated by pediatricians and nutritionists — concerns about the current levels of sodium, sugar, and starch in baby foods are needless," said Teresita Pia-Geronomo, R.D., chief nutritionist of University Hospital.

Snyderman concurred that worries about sugar and starch are exaggerated, noting that starch is generally included in baby fruits to achieve smoother consistency. While these carbohydrates increase caloric content to some degree, this is not usually a valid concern.

In fact, Snyderman noted that the obsession with slimness and the dread of fat have led some parents to underfeed their infants. "Babies require calories for growth and development," she said, "and the caloric intake is as important as other dietary components." She added that whole milk, rather than skim milk, should be given to babies who have graduated from formula, a switch which generally takes place at about 7 or 12 months of age, when the baby has begun to take a substantial quantity of solid food.

"Skim milk offers too few calories per ounce for a growing baby's nutritional needs," said Snyderman.

Pia-Geronomo added that recent studies suggest that the higher levels of fat and cholesterol available from whole milk may be needed by children under two years of age.

Money binds wife to boring marriage

DEAR ABBY: I am a small-town minister's daughter who married a very nice but boring man. When I first met "Steve," he was a young lawyer who had just lost his license to practice and was building houses at the time. I taught school. We did all kinds of crazy and fun things, and after a while we were married, much to the displeasure of my parents. A year later we had a beautiful daughter. I continued to teach because being home with a small child was not my idea of fun. Steve got his license back and continued to practice law, spending long hours at the office. He has gained a lot of weight and now looks like the late W.C. Fields — bulbous nose and all.

Dear Abby

I want out of this marriage, but the money is really rolling in right now, and I hate to walk away from it. I can't talk to a lawyer because the only ones I know are friends of Steve's.

I need to know a few things: If I retain custody of our daughter, will Steve be responsible for the you divorce this "nice but boring" man. As long as the money is "really rolling in," spend a little, and take a trip to another Texas town and consult a lawyer who doesn't know your W.C. Fields lookalike, my little chickadee. Only a lawyer can answer your questions.

DEAR ABBY: I am an ordinary guy and a corporate accountant. A major part of my job is hearing complaints from employees who perceive that errors were made in the area of accounting.

More and more, as I listen to these complainers, I fantasize smashing them with my fists, knocking them to the ground and stomping them to death!

Of course I would never do such a thing in real life, but I enjoy these daydreams so much, I'm becoming concerned about my mental health.

Am I in trouble?
CONCERNED IN HOUSTON

DEAR CONCERNED: Not necessarily. "Fantasizing" acts as a safety valve, allowing us to blow off the steam of suppressed desires without actually acting out anti-social behavior for which we would become accountable.

However, if you are genuinely concerned about "enjoying" these violent fantasies too much, I think you should consult a mental health professional — if only to put your mind at ease.

DEAR ABBY: On behalf of all hearing-impaired people like me who have to read lips, will you please remind professional such as doctors, lawyers, actors, lecturers, clergymen, etc., to trim their mustaches and beards? In order to read their lips, we must see them.

State meets and changing the name of an award

Last week I missed the state track and tennis meets because my job wouldn't allow me to get away for the weekend. I know I missed a treat judging from the times, distances and matches recorded by Texas athletes.

Crossroads Country athletes battled .333 in Austin. Of the 15 area athletes that competed, five came away with medals.

In tennis the area excelled the strongest. Two area athletes competed, and both won medals. Danette Holdamph of Garden City won a silver medal and Borden County's Kelli Williams won the bronze. Last year Williams won the gold. That gives the Crossroads Country area the first, second and third places winners over the past two years in Class A tennis.

The area wasn't as successful on the track, with a gold, a silver and a bronze medal won.

Grady's Shelli Terrell proved that she stood head and shoulders above the competition. How many hurdlers are there that can almost fall in a race, lose at least a full second off their time, and still win? That's what Terrell did, and she rightly deserves the gold.

The bronze medal went to Sands high jumper Jay Fryar, who tied his career best with a leap of 6-8. After all, that's what state meets are made for, your best performance.

Another runner that saved his best for last was Big Spring sophomore distance runner Ben Gonzales, who finished third in the 1600 meters. Gonzales ran a career-best and school record 4:25.2, on his way to the bronze medal.

One group that didn't save their best for last was the Steers 1600 meter relay team which had run a 3:19.73 going into the meet. Coach Randy Britton had it figured out before the meet. "Either we'll do real good or we'll do real bad, because we've never been there before," he said.

Evidently, the state meet jitters got to the Steers, as they ran a 3:21.2 for seventh place. Rodney Bailey started the relay off by running a 50.5 out of the blocks. Brian Mayfield followed with a 49.7 and Cedric Banks ran a 49.5 on the third leg. Phillip Mathews, who had run in the mid 49's before, anchored the relay in a dismal 51.4.

Bailey summed it up a few days later. "We just didn't know how to react to competing at the state meet. We were all too nervous."

Now that the Steers know how it feels to compete at the state meet, the second time around will be easier.

I said earlier that the Region I-AA track meet in Big Spring was one of the best AA regions in the state. Here's backing my statement.

At the state meet, 10 region champions from the Region I-AA meet won state championships in Austin. Pretty good track record, wouldn't you say?

Big Spring High School Spring Sports Banquet officials may have to change to Obie Bristow Award to the Brian Mayfield Award.

The award, given to the top male athlete of the year, has been won by Mayfield three consecutive years. Not to say Mayfield doesn't deserve the award — because athletes of this junior's caliber don't come around very often. By the time he leaves Big Spring High School, Mayfield may be the only athlete in school history to make All-State in three sports, football, basketball and track.

Other athletes that had to be in the running for the award were Banks, who played a mean inside hoop game for a six-footer, and could run the daylight out of the 400 meters. Also there is Aaron Allen, who had a spicy tennis game and was a holy terror on the baseball diamond, whether hurling a no-hitter or batting his usual .500.

Togetherness is a part of winning and that theory was showcased by Steers distance runners Ben Gonzales and Mario Gonzales at the state track meet.

In the 3200 meter run, Ben, who had been beaten by Mario in every two mile race this season, was about 100 meters ahead of his senior teammate going down the final straightaway.

Instead of finishing out his kick, Ben ran in place until Mario caught him 30 meters from the finish line. Together they crossed the line hand-in-hand and Mario got fifth place and Ben finished sixth, though both are clocked in the same time.

Isn't that what togetherness is all about?

Five Hawks All-Region

The "Brooklyn Connection", the trio that helped power the Howard College Hawks to a 36-13 record and a berth in the state playoffs, led a contingent of five Howard College players that were named to the All-Region V baseball team.

Sophomore shortstop Joel Chimelis and freshman first baseman Juan Rodriguez were among the four all-region infielders, and Ernesto Castro was named as one of the outfield standouts. Chimelis, Rodriguez and Castro are all from Brooklyn N.Y., where they played together on a summer league team.

Other Hawks named to the squad were power hitting catcher Randy Deal and power throwing pitcher Howard Landry.

Deal, a freshman from Denver, set a Howard College season record for RBI's with 78. Deal also batted .418, and was second on the team in home runs with 15. He was second on the team in hits with 69.

Landry, a sophomore hurler from Abbeville, La., led the Hawks in strike outs with 102 on his way to posting an 11-3 record. Landry had an earned run average of 3.62.

Chimelis, the Hawks' captain, hit .351, batted in 48 runs and was fourth on the team in hits with 65.

Castro led Howard in hitting with a .442 average. He was third on the team in hits with 68, third in homers with 13, and tied for second in RBI's with 59.

Rodriguez, like Castro a freshman, led the Hawks with 16 homers and tied with Castro for second in runs batted in. The big first baseman led the team in hits with 71.

Other members of the All-Region team were Steve Taylor, a pitcher for McClennan; Marcelino Candelari, an outfielder for McClennan; Juan Benoit, and infielder for Northwood; Reggie Duhon, and outfielder for Ranger; Jackie Tepper, a designated hitter from Ranger; and infielder Pat Listach from McClennan.

Robert Parish (00) of the Boston Celtics gets in the way of a shot by Detroit's Isiah Thomas in the second quarter of Boston's 104-91 win.

Celtics take ugly win over Pistons

BOSTON (AP) — It was an unbelievable game, but not because it was well played.

How could two of basketball's best players, Isiah Thomas and Larry Bird, miss 33 of 46 field-goal attempts?

How could two of basketball's best teams, the Detroit Pistons and Boston Celtics, perform with such mediocrity in the playoffs?

And how could the NBA's defending champions be as banged up as they say they are?

"All that stuff about injuries is a lot of hogwash," Thomas said after Boston beat the Pistons 104-91 in Tuesday night's opener of their Eastern Conference final series. "I think they are lying, flat out lying."

Center Robert Parish, who is recovering from a sprained left ankle, had 31 points and nine rebounds. Forward Kevin McHale, who has a broken bone in his right foot and is getting over a sprained right ankle, had 21 points.

And Bird, who is relatively healthy, hopes his shooting touch will get well after he made just seven of 22 shots. But he finished with a triple-double of 18 points, 16 rebounds and 11 assists.

He wasn't the only superstar who couldn't find the hoop. Thomas had two points in the first half, when he made just one of 12 shots. He ended up leading Detroit with 18 points, but connected on only six of his 24 shots.

Joe Dumars' seven-foot shot from the lane gave Detroit a 16-11 lead. But two baskets by Dennis Johnson and one by Jerry Sichting put Boston on top 17-16 with 3:30 left in the first quarter. Detroit never caught up.

The Pistons did cut a 44-40 halftime deficit to 48-47 on a basket by Adrian Dantley, who had 17 points. But a dunk by Parish on a pass from Bird launched a 26-14 run. Parish had 13 points in that stretch, which gave Boston a 74-61 advantage.

The lead was 75-68 after three quarters and 90-83 when Detroit's Vinnie Johnson made a layup with 6:23 left in the game.

But after Vinnie Johnson's basket, Detroit didn't score for 3:25 and by that time Boston's lead was up to 98-83 with less than three minutes remaining.

The Celtics played without guard Danny Ainge, who has a sprained right knee and is questionable for Game 2. Sichting scored 12 points in his place.

The Pistons sank just 39 percent of their shots through three quarters and couldn't get closer than seven in the final period although their shooting improved.

Magic saves best show for last

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (P) — Magic Johnson saved his best for what he calls winnin' time as the Los Angeles Lakers took a 2-0 lead over the Seattle SuperSonics in the NBA's Western Conference finals.

Tom Chambers, on the other hand, saved his best for the post-game interviews.

Johnson, selected Monday as the NBA's Most Valuable Player, scored 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to lead the Lakers to a 112-104 victory over the Sonics.

"We've been there so many times before and we know what to do and who to look for," Johnson said of the game's final minutes. "They were doubling me all the time, but I don't worry about scoring, just winning."

"When I was finally able to break through at the end, the scoring just came into place."

Chambers, Seattle's high-scoring forward, was held to eight points, all in the first half. He made only four of his 12 field goal attempts.

Afterward, he was livid concerning the game's officiating.

"It was discouraging because I didn't play as well as I could have," Chambers said. "I think (referee) Eddie Middleton had a wager on the game. He stunk."

The best-of-seven series now moves to Seattle for the third and fourth games Saturday and Monday.

The Lakers did just that thanks mainly to Johnson and forward James Worthy, who had 25 of his 30 points in the first half.

The Lakers went ahead for good 60-59 on a sky hook by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar just 1 1/2 minutes into the third quarter. But two free throws by Dale Ellis with 3:06 left in the game pulled Seattle as close as 101-99 after Los Angeles led by as many as eight points early in the fourth quarter.

But a 3-point field goal by Michael Cooper with 2:42 left extended the Lakers' lead to 104-99, and the Sonics got no closer than four points after that.

After Ellis made two free throws with 1:03 left to make it 107-102, Johnson drove the lane for a layup with 48 seconds remaining to clinch the victory.

Abdul-Jabbar and Byron Scott added 16 points each for the Lakers. A.C. Green had 15 points and a game-high 14 rebounds for Los Angeles, which outrebounded Seattle 42-29.

Ellis led the Sonics with 22 points. Xavier McDaniel added 18 points and eight rebounds and Nate McMillan and Eddie Johnson had 15 points each for Seattle.

Los Angeles extended a 56-55 halftime advantage to 83-77 after three quarters. Green had 11 of his points in the third period.

The Lakers outscored the Sonics 16-6 in the final 5:35 of the second quarter to take their one-point halftime advantage.

Los Angeles went ahead 15-8 after 4 1/2 minutes of play almost entirely due to Worthy, who had all but two of the Lakers' points to that stage.

Voice of Cubs returns to broadcast booth

CHICAGO (AP) — Harry Caray led the cheering Wrigley Field crowd in a raucous rendition of "Take Me Out To The Ballgame" and heard from President Reagan when he returned to the Chicago Cubs' broadcast booth.

"It's great to be back, just great," Caray said Tuesday, his first day back on the job after he suffered a stroke in Palm Springs, Calif., last February.

During the first inning of the Cubs game, Caray received a phone call from President Reagan, who said America was glad to have Caray back.

Before the stroke, Caray, 70, had never missed an inning through a major-league broadcasting career of more than 40 years. But the stroke left him bedridden in a Palm Springs, Calif., hospital, unable to control his right side and unable to speak.

Caray taped his pregame radio show with Cubs Manager Gene Michael and then remained in the television booth during ceremonies before the start of the game.

For many of the Wrigley Field faithful, a high point of the game came during the seventh-inning stretch when Caray launched into his renowned version of "Take Me Out To The Ball Game."

Gov. James Thompson of Illinois attended the game and proclaimed Tuesday "Harry Caray Day." Thompson was joined by former Cub great, Ernie Banks, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame.

Banks was one of 32 different guest announcers who filled in for Caray during his absence on the WGN telecasts.

Others included sportscasters Brent Musburger, Bob Costas, Pat Summerall and Dick Enberg as well as comedians and actors.

"They all did a great job," said Caray, who watched all of the telecasts and admitted he enjoyed comedian Bill Murray's job the most. Caray, earned the title of "Mayor of Rush Street" for his late night activities.

But Caray has lost 40 pounds since the stroke and says "moderation" is now his watchword.

Caray received a standing ovation before the game and another when he led the singing chorus.

During the game, Caray worked the first three and last three innings on television and the middle three on radio.

He sounded calm and seemed in complete control of the situation.

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you have anything of particular importance to be attended to, it should be done now to avoid the delays and obstacles on the horizon. Don't do anything drastic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can handle a private affair very wisely. Roll up your sleeves and get to work with a vengeance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to the views of a good friend. Your mate may be disturbed, but keep poised and take this in stride.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can handle an outside matter with alacrity. Don't try to get the aid of others with your projects.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You get an inspiring idea today, so get it in motion. Use tact and tenacity for best results.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Settle an account wisely. Should your mate be moody, blame it on the planets. Show that you can be patient.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An outside associate has good ideas for your mutual advancement. Don't invite guests into your home now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It's a good day to listen to what an outside partner has to advise. Much care in driving is needed today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try a new tact with the tasks before you and get good results. Try not to commit yourself now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get out to fun places and forget your worries, but don't try to force your ideas on others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Place your efforts on home and family today. A close tie may be upset, but take this in stride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Place more effort on your regular duties. Forget the social life all together. Get your wardrobe in order.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think about how to handle your material affairs in a better way. Don't try to gain favors from bigwigs.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he, or she, will be one of those charming young people who should be taught to think along more conventional lines. By not completing things, your progeny could find much trouble, especially in school. Add psychology courses to help curb this child's spunk.

Bentsen decrys policies

... threat underlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen declared that the threat brought on by the lack of a Reagan administration energy policy were underlined this week by the Iraqi missile attack on a U.S. frigate in the Persian Gulf.

"Look what just happened in the Persian Gulf the other day," the Texas Democrat said, referring to the air attack on the USS Stark in which 37 sailors died. "Doesn't that give you a sense of vulnerability?"

The Democratic Finance Committee chairman, in a speech at the National Press Club Tuesday, called for development of a policy that would reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and bolster domestic production.

Foreign oil accounts for 39 percent of that consumed by Americans and estimates are that figure will reach 50 percent before 1995.

The Senate trade bill, reported out of Bentsen's committee earlier this month, contains a provision to restrict oil imports to 50 percent or less and require the president to closely monitor the country's intake of foreign oil.

"This administration had a free hand on trade for years — and they sat on it. They talked free trade rhetoric and turned the other cheek while markets were closed to American products," Bentsen said. "The days of free hands and unlimited White House discretion on trade are over."

He predicted that Congress will have a comprehensive trade bill on the president's desk by August and that supporters of the bill would fight a presidential veto if one is handed down.

"I hope the president signs the bill, but we're already hearing dark whispers about a veto," Bentsen said. "If the president wants to throw down the gauntlet on trade, then we'll fight to override his veto."

... If we miss this moment, if we fail to enact a trade bill this year, it could be mid-1989 before we get another shot at legislation."

The Senate trade bill, sponsored by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., ranking minority member on the Finance Committee, was voted out of committee earlier this month by 19-1 and enjoys broad bipartisan support in the Senate.

The White House said the bill is an improvement over the House version, but is still unacceptable to President Reagan.

San Antonio facility to treat Stark victims

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Brooke Army Medical Center, home of the military's burn treatment unit, will receive some injured servicemen from the USS Stark, officials said.

The Army Burn Center, which is operated by the U.S. Army Institute of Surgical Research at Fort Sam Houston, has a long history of helping troops with burns.

The injured servicemen were aboard the Stark, a missile frigate that was attacked Sunday night by an Iraqi warplane in the Persian Gulf.

"It could be Thursday or Friday. We just don't know for sure yet," fort spokesman Ray Dery said Tuesday.

The 40-bed burn unit has a staff of 240 and has treated numerous military burn victims.

Thirty-seven Marines were treated at Brooke after they were injured in a barracks' fire in Japan in 1979, Dery said.

Four servicemen who were injured in the failed rescue attempt of the American hostages in Iran in 1980 also received treatment at Brooke.

Four sailors who were hurt during an airplane crash on the USS Nimitz in 1981 were transported to Brooke, Dery said. Civilian burn victims also are brought to the burn center, where physicians treat and research burn trauma simultaneously.

Doctors also have treated Honduran Air Force burn victims, Dery said.

"They're used to getting large numbers of people at one time," Dery said. "If we got a large influx of people BAMC would free up more wards."

The burn center was established in 1943 in New York and moved to Brooke in 1946 and in 1949 was given permission to study burn trauma, Dery said.

The 700-bed hospital, however, is embroiled in controversy between elected officials and the Pentagon, which wants to build a 200-bed replacement hospital that could be expanded to 450 beds in times of emergency.

Some elected officials and retired military officers want the Pentagon to build a 450-bed hospital.

They say the smaller core facility would jeopardize the military's medical plans during wartime.

Odessa secretary claiming forced resignation

ODESSA (AP) — A former Odessa city secretary claims in a federal age discrimination lawsuit that she was forced to resign her post more than two years ago.

Tena Walker, 60, seeks reinstatement to her job; close to $67,000 in lost wages and benefits and unspecified exemplary damages from the City Council.

The suit, filed last week in Abilene by Amarillo attorney John Judge, contends that Walker was pressured to resign because she "exercised her constitutional right of free speech" by criticizing some of the city's policies in public and closed meetings of the Odessa City Council.

Walker's resignation was motivated at least in part by a desire to retaliate against her, the suit claimed.

City Attorney Joel Roberts said Monday that "we obviously can't respond to the matters contained in the petition at this time." He did say the city would probably file a denial to the allegations.

Walker was asked to resign May 14, 1985, ostensibly as a money saving move. Her yearly salary at the time of her resignation was $26,700. Fringe benefits boosted that to about $33,400.

Decision against local SSC site top news

Some of the losers in the state Superconducting Super Collider site contest are charging that the final choices were arranged before the hearings this week in Austin and were politically motivated.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission selected a site near Dallas and one near Amarillo as the state's entries in the potentially lucrative SSC site contest in Washington.

"You could hear the freight train whistle before you got to the conference room," said Jim Heath of the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce.

Others were not quite so graphic. "It did appear, and this was something that was noticed by a lot of people in different areas independently, but it seemed like Dallas was the pre-selected site," Thane Akins of Midland said.

Akins, former mayor of Midland and project manager for the Garden City SSC Commission, recalled that Gov. Bill Clements, who is from Dallas, had said earlier this year that the SSC must be near an international airport.

That statement limited potential sites to those near Dallas, Austin, Houston and San Antonio.

A state panel's decision favoring Dallas and Amarillo area sites for the superconducting supercollider may yield an appeal by local supporters of the Garden City site.

The Garden City SSC Commission also will consider submitting its proposal independently to the U.S. Department of Energy. Garden City SSC Commission Chairman Ralph McLaughlin said today.

Week in review

The Garden City proposal was eliminated Tuesday when the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission announced it had selected the Dallas-Fort Worth and Amarillo sites.

The Garden City proposal had been one of six final sites considered by the state panel. The Commission, however, unanimously chose the Dallas proposal and voted 5-3 in favor of the Amarillo site over an Austin proposal.

"Everybody is shell-shocked" by the decision, McLaughlin said.

"We never even considered the Amarillo site to be a factor; we never considered the Dallas site to be a factor," McLaughlin said.

"Both sites have flaws; we don't have any flaws," he said.

In a departure from tradition, a Big Spring industrialist — rather than a retail merchant — was named Small Businessman of the Year. John Freeman, 44, owner of Freecom Inc., became the fourth recipient of the award at the Chamber of Commerce community luncheon Thursday.

A Big Spring native, Freeman helped found Fiberflex and was its president until 1984, when the business was sold. He established Freecom the next year.

"He's an inventor," said Freecom Operations Manager and lifetime friend Ronnie Clanton. "He can sit down and draw things on a napkin in 30 minutes that would take me a year."

Freeman invented a ceramic coating that extends the life of oilfield and other equipment, Clanton said.

Repairs to Goliad Street were authorized at the City Council meeting Tuesday evening, when Councilman Russ McEwen was elected Mayor Pro Tem.

McEwen replaces former Councilman Harold Hall as Mayor Pro Tem. Hall was defeated by D.D. Johnston in the Council election last month.

Goliad Street, damaged by floods Aug. 30, will be repaired to its former condition, with the addition of a head wall and wing walls to protect the road and underlying pipe from floods, Public Works Director Tom Decell explained.

The repairs will cost $142,001.50, he said — slightly above the engineers' estimate of $139,365.

Councilmen chose the plan from among five that the Parkhill, Smith & Cooper engineering firm presented earlier this year.

Coahoma and Sterling City High Schools recently announced their valedictorians and salutatorians for the class of 1987.

Karen McCoy has been named valedictorian at Coahoma High School and Greg McDonald is valedictorian for Sterling City.

Salutatorians will be Tina Robertson and Heath Hughes, respectively.

Coahoma High School graduation will be 8 p.m. May 29 in the high school auditorium.

The Sterling City graduating class of 1987 will conduct its commencement exercises 8 p.m., May 29 in the O.T. Jones Auditorium.

The city will not appeal a jury's water bill judgment, and plans to limit, rather than ban, beekeeping, the City Council decided at a work session Monday.

The Council decided in closed session not to appeal a jury's $148 award to Paul and Jerri Winn for high water bills, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

No vote was taken not to appeal, but that was the Council's general consensus, Wofford said, adding that the matter was discussed thoroughly.

He said he wouldn't be surprised if additional lawsuits were filed by disgruntled citizens attempting to obtain compensation for perceived unfair water bills.

In the bee matter, Council members indicated they would favor an ordinance regulating hive owners by requiring a permit, which would be granted under similar conditions as temporary mobile home or livestock permits.

A permit would be granted for a limited number of hives within a given area, if neighbors don't object and "if there are no problems," Councilman Johnny Rutherford said.

Boy chosen as Dillard's model

Al Correa, 6, son of Adelina and Albert Correa of Canyon was chosen for the second consecutive year to model for Dillard's department store in Amarillo.

He was one of 35 children selected from a field of more than 100 children who participated in the tryouts.

Correa is the grandson of Rosalia Billalba, 4210 Dixon, the late Ruben Billalba Sr. and Eliza and Pedro Correa, formerly of Big Spring, now of Del Rio.

Defending champion falls

AUSTIN — Garden City's Danette Holdampf dethroned the defending state singles champion and earned a spot in the Class A singles finals today against Stacy Shanks of Baird at the state tennis tournament.

Holdampf, a senior, defeated defending state champion Kelli Williams of Borden County 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Williams, just coming off a state shorthand championship last week, was competing in her fourth state tennis tournament while this makes the second trip for Holdampf.

Garden City tennis coach Terry Burelsmith said it was perhaps Holdampf's brightest moment so far. "Overall, it was probably the best she's played. I'm proud the way she kept coming back," he said. "Shanks beat us in regional so it's probably an advantage for us having played her before. We know what to expect, we didn't the first time."

Shanks defeated Holdampf in the Region II-A finals 6-0, 6-4.

Shanks, the defending Class AA state runner-up, defeated Stacy Bessire of O'Donnell 6-3, 6-4, to reach the finals. Bessire won the Class A state championship in 1985 and finished runner-up to Williams last year.

Borden County coach Bill May said Holdampf and Williams have been playing against each other since the seventh grade and this is the first time Holdampf has won.

"Danette's a good player and I think that's the best I've seen her play," said May. "They played each other four times but Danette won the one that counted the most. I'm not disappointed because Kelli played a pretty good game herself."

Holdampf defeated Lisa Ingleke of Chilton 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 to advance to the semifinals.

Borden County senior Kelli Williams was defeated in the Class A state singles semifinals by Garden City's Danette Holdampf. Williams is the defending state champion.

Williams defeated Stacy Norrell of Martin's Mill 6-1, 6-0 in the opening round.

The J.O. Huitts

Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Huitt, H.C. 77 Box 203-B, will celebrate their 50th anniversary May 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Elbow School Cafe.

Hosts of the event are Becky Huitt, daughter-in-law of the couple, and grandsons of the couple: Mr. and Mrs. Quert Huitt and Mr. and Mrs. Terry D. Huitt.

Huitt was born in Eastling and Mrs. Huitt, the former Vera Mae McCarty, was born in Cooper.

The couple met in 1935 through a mutual friend at Mrs. Huitt's home. They married in Big Spring May 22, 1937 with Rev. Homer Sheats, officiating.

The couple has one son, the late Kenneth O Dell Huitt, and two grandsons.

During their marriage, they've lived in Howard County.

Huitt is retired from Cosden Refinery where he worked for 35 years. Mrs. Huitt was a housewife.

They attend Elbow Central Baptist Church. Huitt enjoys hunting and fishing and Mrs. Huitt likes doing this for others and reading.

When asked to comment about their marriage, they said: "It's give and take, more give than take. One kind word will get you everything and one hateful word or griping gets you nothing. When you learn to give, your marriage will work."

Friends and relatives of the couple are invited.

Oh, but don't forget your forefathers' fight

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Check older garage doors regularly, says Reinert

If your home is 10 to 15 years old, chances are your garage door is beginning to sag or deteriorate, says Ralph Reinert, owner of Reinert Welding & Steel Construction.

"That's about the life of a door before it needs major repair or replacement."

Reinert recommends that homeowners inspect older garage doors regularly; attending to repairs may add to the life of the doors. Spring is a logical time to do this when homeowners are usually undertaking home improvement projects, he said.

Reinert's company, specialists in fabrication of metal buildings for commercial use and for residential storage, has expanded its business to include overhead door sales and service.

"We have doors to accommodate all needs," Reinert says, "from single car residential garage door to multi-door warehouse installation."

"We install commercial and residential overhead doors and electric operators," says Reinert. Doors are available in two styles, the rolling and the folding sectional. The latter is available in wood, fiberglass or steel. Rolling doors are constructed of steel.

Reinert repairs and services all brands or types of overhead doors, including torsion springs, guide rollers, lift cables or damaged door sections.

Ralph Reinert has 25 years of experience in the construction business and has been in the steel erection business since 1978.

The firm designs and builds to fit the job requirements, fabricating metal buildings and component structural steel for commercial buildings, such as reinforcing steel, columns, beams, bar joists, roof decking and miscellaneous steel items.

An example of their work may be seen in the 5,000 sq. ft. preengineered, all metal building constructed recently for Cosden Pipeline for an office and maintenance building.

Cost estimates are available on request from Reinert Welding & Steel Construction. Phone 267-1550.
