Court rules pretrial bail not required

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court, in an important victory for law enforcement officials and the Reagan administration, ruled today that people accused of crimes may be denied bail before trial if deemed dangerous to the community.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices reinstated a federal preventive detention law in the case of two reputed Mafia leaders in New York

The court said the government's interest in community safety can in some circumstances outweigh the rights of a criminal defendant even one accused of a non-violent crime — to remain free pending

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, in his opinion for the court, said, "Congress did not formulate the pre-trial detention provisions as punishment for dangerous individuals.

"Congress instead perceived pre-trial detention as a potential solution to a pressing societal problem. There is no doubt that preventing danger to the community is a legitimate regulatory goal,"

Congress, over an outcry from civil libertarians, enacted the preventive detention law in 1984. It received strong backing from the Reagan administration and law enforcement authorities.

Before the new law, bail general ly would be denied — at least in theory — only if a judge determined the defendant was likely to flee.

In practice, judges could get around the old law by setting very high bail, ostensibly aimed at guaranteeing the defendant's appearance in court but with the effect of keeping the accused behind bars awaiting trial.

Lowest ambulance bid is choice

Staff Writer

A proposal by Rural Metro ambulance company of Scottsdale, Ariz., was chosen as the best among several bids submitted for city/county consideration.

The Ambulance Advisory Committee named Rural Metro its first choice and Texas EMS Co. of Houston second at a meeting this morning Rural Metro was the low bidder. calling for an annual subsidy of $101,000. Texas EMS was the third lowest, at $204,000.

A City Council, County Commissioners joint meeting tentatively has been set for 10 a.m. Friday in the commissioners courtroom to formally decide the matter.

The company proposes a plan in which customers can pay an annual fee. They then would not be charged for ambulance services used. Wofford has said the plan works very well elsewhere. Members noted Rural Metro's

Member Richard Atkins said the plan is beneficial to high-risk patients, such as those in poor health or in a nursing home.

The company's information also indicates federal government programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid, and some insurance companies, pay for ambulance services for qualified customers. Rural Metro is proposing basically the same service the city has now from Lee Ambulance - with an advanced life support ambulance on

The members questioned whether the company is proposing the backup ambulance be advanced or basic life support. Dorton said he will clarify the matter with company would charge customers. The committee recommended the city and county allow free

The committee briefly considered a proposal by First Responder of Sanger to establish a service the city and county would own. But Green said a problem would be financing the service at the proposed $263,000 a year for the first three years. The fee would then be reduced by $50,000 a year.

Green said the bid by Lee Ambulance, which currently provides the service in Howard County, was the highest from a private company, at $360,000 a year. The highest bid was $467,000, and would entail the city establishing its own,

No immediate danger posed by lake's level

By KERRY HAGLUND Staff Writer

Although water levels at Natural Dam Lake have risen 212 feet since rains began last week, a Water District official said today the lake poses no immediate problem.

Colorado River Municipal Water District Secretary/Treasurer Joe Pickle said inflow measured this morning by District officials was negligible.

"I don't see any cause for immediate concern," he said, explaining that the water level remains 61/2 feet from the top of Water has been released at a slow pace in recent days, Pickle said, through a spillway cut last summer to help protect the integrity of the dam. The lake is 2248.8 feet above sea level, Pickle said.

Lakes Thomas and Spence have caught some of the runoff, and water levels in those lakes have risen, he said. Lake Spence rose 1.37 feet to 1885.22 feet and is at 69 percent capacity, Pickle said, explaining that the level is higher than

Rains during the past week brought good and bad news to area

Although moisture is nearly always welcome, area cotton farmers who have recently planted may have to replant, Don Richardson, county agriculture extension agent predicted.

'It's kind of a mixed situation," Richardson said. "Those who didn't plant are in good shape. They'll just have to wait a few more days," for the soil to dry, he Richardson said, however, that farmers who recently planted will probably have to do it again.

'We're concerned about whether or not the crops will have to be replanted." It is too early to make a definite judgment, he said.

Richardson also pointed out that farmers whose plants had already broken the topsoil were simple.

"...probably in good shape.

Mike Mauldin, Mitchell County extension agent, said that "Overall, we're not hurting that bad," adding that the recent rains would force replanting on few Mitchell area farms.

"Except for those who planted, we're fine," Mauldin said. He added that the ground in his area had been too cold to plant anyway, so the damage from the rain was limited to delaying planting for a few more days.

For those farmers who do have to replant, Richardson said the expense would be significant.

"It costs about three dollars an acre to replant," he said. Explaining that an average farm includes 600 acres, he estimated a cost of approximately $2,000 to replant.

The farmers don' have any choice in the matter, he said. "They have to replant, it's that Both sites were selected earlier this month from a field of 14 prospects offered to the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission.

The supercollider is expected to create several thousand construction jobs and up to 3,000 permanent jobs when completed. The Department of Energy will begin reviewing the state entries on Aug. 3, and it is expected to name finalists by December and a winning state by 1989.

• Russell Smith, 1405 S. Runnels St., told police that at 1:15 a.m. today, someone he knows entered his residence while he and his family were asleep.

• Gene Lamar Parks, 58, whose address is listed as the Homestead Inn, was arrested at 2500 Wasson Road Monday night on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $1,000 bond.

From staff and wire reports State officials are working on an emergency declaration that could speed assistance to victims of the Saragosa tornado that killed 29 people, Gov. Bill Clements said

"We're going to declare an emergency. We're working on that right now. We're contacting Washington," Clements said during a brief interview when he arrived at the Capitol

Monday in Austin.

"We're going through all those steps to get it declared an emergency and get all the assets and resources that are available under those circumstances to play here, to help them all we can. That's already under way," he

Although Clements has not visited the West Texas town that was wiped out by the Friday night twister, he said his executive assistant, George Bayoud, spent the weekend working in Saragosa.

Six volunteers of the Big Spring Salvation Army also were in Saragosa - from Friday to Sunday, Salvation Army Captain Carroll Braun said today.

No more clothing or food is required, Braun said, adding that excess materials were sent because of an enormous national effort to aid the victims

He reported the need for money.

"The people have no money and they're going to have to build a new town." he said.

A special capitol relief fund was established Monday to raise money to assist the tornado victims, according to Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring.

At the same time, the governor's division of emergency management said state, local and federal officials had conducted a damage assessment in Saragosa Sunday in anticipation of a request for a major disaster declaration.

Robert Lansford, state coordinator for the emergency management division, said Reeves County officials likely would forward the request to the state today or Wednesday.

"The damage assessment Sunday allowed those involved in the declaration process to have a firsthand look at the extent of the damage and collect data, which is necessary when making a recommendation to the governor or president," Landsford said.

His office said a local official must begin the disaster declaration process by contacting the governor's emergency division. That office makes a recommendation to sponsor of the no-pass, no-play revision, said he thinks the sixweek period of ineligibility has increased the school dropout rate because it takes away the incentive of certain students to stay in school

Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, said failure rates for students in extracurricular activities declined by 38 percent since no-pass, no-play went into effect in the spring of 1985. Sarpalius' original bill would have reduced the suspension period to three weeks. On Monday, he offered a compromise for a pilot program that would be followed by Board of Education adoption of a rule for three weeks, six weeks or a combination of both Then he agreed to the pilot program with a report to the Legislature, which would make the final decision whether to change the current six-week suspension.

Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said in defense of no-pass, no-play, "We don't send Johnny to school to play pool or basketball. We send Johnny to school to learn.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said, "The facts are the number of children dropping out of urban public school districts has increased." He send in Dallas the dropout rate has risen from 32 percent to 50 percent.

'Maybe we made a mistake three years ago" in adopting the no-pass, no-play proposal, Leedom Sen. Richard Anderson, D-

Marshall, said he had envisioned the board taking a sampling of schools, but agreed it could select an entire division, such as Class A, and entire season, such as basketball, for a pilot program. It was argued that a school operating under a three-week suspension period would have an advantage in athletics over a school whose students had to sit out for six weeks. "I can't say that all situations would be remedied," Anderson Also, the House on Monday tentatively approved a plan to revise the required student-teacher ratio set up by HB72. The law now requires no more than 22 students per teacher in kindergarten through fourth grade. Rep. Bill Haley's bill, which faces another House vote that would send it to the Senate, allows up to 25 students in those classes if a full-time teaching assistant is in the room. House debate on the class size revision centered on whether Haley's plan was a step back. "This student ratio has been the most progressive feature of HB72. It is not a matter of finance. HB72 carried with it increased taxation so these things would be financed. The direction of this bill is a reversed direction from HB72," said Rep. Gregory Luna, D-San Antonio. Speaker Gib Lewis defended the Special session agenda urged

AUSTIN (AP) — If lawmakers are unable to enact a state budget before the Legislature ends, Gov. Bill Clements said Monday that he of action before any special session

"In talking with some of the senators, and also the House members, I really don't have a sense of optimism about it," Clements said of the tax-andspending stalemate.

"I'm not surprised. Until the Senate decides that they're going to get something done, why nothing's going to happen," the governor said. The House and Senate have approved budgets that would require more new tax money than the $2.9 billion Clements has said he will allow. The Senate's plan called for more spending that does the House

Although a House-Senate conference committee continued budget negotiations throughout the weekend, several members said and legislative leaders need a plan they weren't sure they could enact a plan that would meet with the governor's approval during the egislature's last week

> If no balanced budget is enacted by the mandatory June 1 adjournment, the governor would summon lawmakers back into a special session this summer. The state's budget year ends Aug. 31.

> Clements said that before he calls a special session, a plan for lawmakers to follow is needed. He said agreement between himself, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis "would be

Numbers game unfair to public

Many television viewers of the Iran-Contra hearings understandably are confused when committee members and witnesses refer to countries by numbers instead of names. But calling Israel "Country 1," for example, was a compromise made to ensure that the hearings would remain

The use of these numbers is a diplomatic nicety — an attempt to avoid embarrassing friends and allies, some of whom assist the United States on sensitive projects with the proviso that their involvement not be disclosed.

Reagan administration officials complained that naming other nations in public hearings would offend them and make them reluctant to assist the United States in the future. Thus, names of countries have been replaced by numbers.

The failure to identify countries by name may satisfy the diplomats, but it confuses viewers, who need a scorecard to tell one country from another.

Fortunately, The New York Times has provided the scorecard. We repeat it here as a public service. According to The Times:

Country 1 is Israel.

Country 2 is Saudi Arabia.

Country 3 is Taiwan.

Country 4 is China.

Countries 5 and 6 are believed to be South Korea and Singapore, but The Times has yet to determine which is which. Stay tuned.

Crooked diesel fuel sellers cheating IRS out of millions

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON - Crooked diesel-fuel retailers have pocketed billions of dollars in excise taxes they should have given to Uncle Sam, according to federal officials estimates.

The money was collected -15cents per gallon — from truckers and others who use diesel fuel in their motor vehicles.

Federal Highway Administration officials estmate that the filling-station tax cheaters keep $500 million or more each year that should be turned over to the Internal Revenue Service. The money would have gone into the Highway Trust Fund, which is the sole support of the federal government's highway-aid program.

The main reason for this gigantic ripoff is the huge number of diesel fuel retailers in the country, according to Tony McMahon, the highway agency's chief counsel.

About 100,000-plus service station owners sell diesel fuel, and McMahon estimated that 40,000 of them don't pass along to the government the excise taxes they collect from their customers. The IRS doesn't have the staff to police 100,000 outlets, and must rey instead on an honor system.

An internal highway agency memo obtained by our reporter Karen Talley explains how easy it is for dishonorable diesel fuel sellers to keep the taxes they

"The primary source of information for the IRS oversight of compliance is the list of those who file. If a taxpayer (sic) does not file, he isn't on the list and the IRS doesn't know he exists.

Evasion is widespread because the incentives for cheating "are practically irresistible," the memo states, adding: "The payoff is large, the risk small, and your competitor is doing it. As one frustrated highway agency official said in disgust, retailers "would have to be crazy to file" when anonymity is so simple and the chances of getting caught are

The Highway Trust Fund received $2.6 billion last year in diesel fuel taxes from law-abiding retailers. McMahon and Federal Highway Administrator Ray Barnhart believe the solution to the tax-evasion problem would be to shift accountability for turning in the excise tax from the 100,000-plus. service station operators to the 8,000 distributors who supply them.

Moving tax collection "away from the fuel pump and over to the distributor is logical and more practical," Barnhart said, and the IRS has not opposed this suggestion. Barnhart emphasized that he does not fault the IRS for failing to collect the diesel excise tax. "With upward of 100,000 businesses throughout the nation collecting diesel taxes from truckers and motorists, the IRS simply hasn't a fighting chance to collect the monies due," he said.

Investigations by both federal and state authorities have revealed some astounding examples of chicanery. One retailer, for example, had pocketed the federal excise tax on 20 million gallons of diesel fuel before he was caught.

A common method of evasion is to claim that the diesel fuel is being sold for home heating. Some oil burners use diesel fuel, but home heating fuel is tax-exempt.

"The impossibility of identifying the fuel with the purpose for which it is sold creates a potential for widespread bootlegging of what is alleged to be home heating fuel to truck stops, trucking companies and other retail stations, where it is sold or used as motor vehicle fuel," a highway agency memo states.

Another technique is to falsify invoices to claim the diesel fuel was sold to boat owners, farmers, industry users and other tax-exempt customers, and to dummy distributors, the agency document

Secret contingency plans have been prepared to nationalize the big banks if one of them goes under a distinct possibility if Latin America defaults on the $400 billion if owes to U.S. banks.

'Traditional methods of handling bank failures are probably unworkable" in such a crisis, one interagency document warns. To keep the American public from panicking, Federal Reserve banks would give massive transfusions of unissued currency to threatened banks

Hart creates hell at home for husbands

By ART BUCHWALD

The worst thing about the Gary Hart affair is that husbands in bedrooms all over America are catching hell for Hart's bad judgment

"I really don't care what Gary Hart did," my wife said the other

"When you say you don't care that means you care a lot. She shook her head, "He is a grown-up candidate and he probably thought at the time what he did would help his election."

"Gary didn't do anything. "Of course he didn't do anything," she answered. "He was running a day-care center for 'Miami Vice.'

"Women always think the worst when a married man goes out with a single woman.

"Not me. I say when the wife is away, what are friends for? Let me ask you a question. If you were home alone for the weekend, what would you do?

"I'd paint the kitchen," I replied.

"I love a free weekend because it gives me a chance to get all my household chores done. "I expected you to say something like that. Suppose it got in the newspapers that you went out with a beautiful semi-movie actress?' I would deny it. The question is not what I'd say but what you'd say," I told her. 'I would say that whatever you said was good enough for me. And if it's good enough for me then it should be good enough for everybody.

'You're a trouper,'' I said. "Then I'd find the girl and scratch her eyes out. "What happened to your 'stiff

'I'm saving that to bite your arm

"I don't like where this conversation is going. Gary Hart was the one who got into a jam. Why do I have to take the flak?'

"Because you two have a lot in common. It would be just like you to take a boat ride to Bimini and stay overnight.

"Not true. I hate Bimini. Besides, I don't like to sleep away from home.

"What puzzles me is that with Gary Hart's enormous political campaign debt he could find a free Saturday in Washington.

"There is no law saying a person in a tough presidential campaign can't relax for a few days in his home. "Yes, but he should have changed his name before he made his phone calls. I protested, "That's excessive and terribly unfair. Besides, you can't judge everybody by the former Democratic front runner. The difference between Hart and myself is if anyone called me in Washington I would put her on hold for the entire weekend."

"I'm sure. What about all your boyfriends? Would they behave the same way?

"Certainly. I don't have one friend who doesn't find philandering ugly and unseembly and something that must be avoided at

'Then I suppose none of them is having this conversation tonight with their wives?" "I hope not. Are you finished with this congressional hearing?"

'Yes," my wife said. "But I think you ought to be warned that if you so much as open the front door for an Avon lady, I'll throw all your clothes out in the street.'

Quakes rattle Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. - A mild earthquake and an aftershock shook the East Bay area today, setting off calls to police and radio stations from residents jittery from a larger temblor that struck in the area earlier this month.

Today's first earthquake struck at 12:01 a.m. and had a 3.4 reading on the Richter scale of ground motion, said Anthony Lomax of the University of California seismographic station in Berkeley. An aftershock measuring 3 on the Richter scale came at 12:59 a.m.

The quake and aftershock were centered in the San Leandro Hills about 10 miles southeast of Berkeley and two miles north of Lake

Rental building drops

NEW YORK — Residential building, hobbled by a continued decline in apartment construction, slipped 3 percent in the first quarter of 1987, a national construction information group said Monday.

Although single-family building remained steady during he period, multifamily construction continued the retreat precipitated by tax reform, said F.W. Dodge, a division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

"Strong demand for single-family homes supported a generally high level of total housing starts through 1987's first quarter, even though the rental building market softened," said George A. Christie, F.W. Dodge's chief economist

Rapist protest

Angry crowd forces his removal

RODEO, Calif. (AP) — An impromptu demonstration by hundreds of angry residents forced a newly paroled mutilation-rapist to don a bulletproof vest and flee his apartment under guard of police officers in riot

Paroled rapist Lawrence Singleton was removed from an apartment Monday after about 500 residents surrounded the building to protest a decision to place him there permanently.

Singleton was shielded by police officers as he was taken from the rear of the building about 3:40 p.m. to a waiting patrol car. Police would not say where he was taken, but some protesters said they would remain nearby to make certain he didn't return.

The demonstration had built throughout the day after residents learned late Sunday that Singleton had been moved into the apartment building, said Contra Costa County sheriff's department officials.

"They were a pretty good crowd," said police Sgt Larry Aulich. "They threw a few rocks, but they were a pretty good crowd.

The residents circulated a petition asking that Singleton be removed, and they carried signs saying, 'Get Singleton Out." Parker Avenue, the main thoroughfare through the western Contra Costa County town, was blocked by the demonstration.

A sign posted near the town line gave the street address of the house and said, "Singleton here ... Come join us." One man drove through town announcing out leaflets at supermarkets.

Audrey Anaya, 34, who lives near the apartment complex, said she joined the protest after hearing the announcements over the speaker.

'Nobody wants him here," she said. "Nobody wants him anywhere.

Apartment manager Arlene Baldridge said she rented the unit May 19 to a couple who said they wanted it for "a cantankerous old grandfather who was coming home from the hospital.

Mrs. Baldridge said she became suspicious Sunday when police wouldn't allow her to enter the apartment, and notified local media.

Corrections Department officials have refused to specify the location of Singleton, who gained notoriety in 1979 when he was convicted of raping a 15-year-old runaway and using an ax to cut off her arms at the Department officials had said earlier Singleton would be moved if his location was discovered.

Singleton, 59, was paroled April 25 after serving about eight years of a 14-year sentence.

Since his release, Singleton had been shuttled around northern California by armed parole officers while a ourt battle raged.

Several counties have gone to court to keep him out of their jurisdictions, but the California Supreme Court upheld appeals court rulings that said the counties couldn't prevent officials from locating a parolee

Diplomats in ambush

CAIRO, Egypt - Unknown gunmen ambushed a station wagon on a busy highway south of Cairo today, slightly injured two American diplomats riding inside and then sped away, U.S. Embassy officials said.

A third American in the vehicle was unhurt. One embassy security official at the scene said the attackers used a shotgun. Egyptian security sources said about 10 to 15 shots may have been fired but did not say what kind of weapon or how many firearms were involved.

The Interior Ministry said the two men were hit by flying glass from car windows in the shooting on the edge of the residential suburb of Maadi.

An embassy spokesman identified the wounded as Dennis L. Williams, the mission's acting security chief, and his assistant, John

He said the attackers fired after failing in their efforts to force the Americans' station wagon to the side of the road.

Ministers quit in crisis

SEOUL, South Korea - President Chun Doo-hwan dismissed his prime minister and seven other Cabinet members today in an effort to defuse a crisis over the death of a dissident student tortured by police.

Thousands of students demonstrated nationwide for a second day today to demand action in the case, and on at least two campuses the protesters fought police with firebombs and rocks

Chun said he accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Lho Shin-yong and other key ministers after the entire 26-member Cabinet offered to quit to atone for the student's death. Official sources indicated the Cabinet members had been asked to submit their resignations

The president quickly appointed replacements, all Chun loyalists, and the shake-up was expected to have little effect on

The razing of a Big Spring landmark home recently stirred some forty-year-old memories for me. The home was the Nat Shick residence at Sixth and Gregg Streets.

I was never in the home. I didn't know the residents personally, although I knew they were the postmaster, Nat Shick and his wife, Holly. Their daughter, Lillian still lives in Big Spring

Mr. Schick always had a neat yard. He had a totem pole and some unusual stumps and rocks at the side and back of the house. His house was always freshly painted, the yard mowed, and the trees and shrubs well kept, but Christmastime in Mr. Shick's yard was something special

He decorated. I'm not talking just colored lights, and certainly not any plastic Santas or manger scenes that went up in the vard year after year

To a nine-year-old in the late 1940s during the weeks before December 25, the excitement and anticipation were unbearable as we drove closer and closer up Gregg to the Shick house. I could hardly wait to see what Mr. Shick was "doing for Christmas this year." Although I now realize that he worked on the decorations for months, the displays seemed to magically appear overnight.

One year, he made at least 20 fluffy cotton snowmen with black top hats. Some were scattered across the lawn, some were climbing the shrubs and a ladder up to the roof, while others appeared to be cavorting on the roof

Another year, only the attic window was lighted, spotlighting a model of Mary and Baby Jesus.

Probably the most impressive in my memory was the year Mr. Shick cut down a large mesquite tree, "planted" it in his front yard and covered every inch of branch with tin can lids. So many lids on that tree, you could hear it "singing" like a wind chime for a block.

Bob Moore, local attorney, was the last owner of the Shick house. He said he hated to see it

Bob said he had tried to give the house away to anyone who would move it from the lot. But he had no takers. He said he had offered the house rent-free to someone who would fix it up, but still no takers.

So the house came down, and Gregg Street is free of one more eyesore. Gone forever, though is the chance and my secret wish that someone would buy the house, fix it up, and one more time, decorate.

Doctor claims there's no blood like your own blood

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see a etter concerning self-blood donating, since this is an important topic few people know much about.

Many patients are nervous about contracting AIDS should they require a transfusion during surgery. Blood bankers worry more about patients contracting certain forms of hepatitis from blood transfusions than they do about AIDS because the sophsiticated bloodscreening techniques used today have greatly reduced the likelihood of AIDS transmission.

There are other good reasons for self-donation that you might like to let your readers know about. Your own blood is the safest blood you can receive during transfusion. It cannot transmit an illness to you. will not cause allergic or other transfusion reactions, and compatability testing is not necessary. Even if you have been turned down as a donor in the past, you may still qualify for self-donation since ordinary donor standards don't apply in this case

Readers facing an operation should consult with their surgeon ahead of time as to whether selfdonation is recommended. Blood can be stored for 35 days, so plans for self-donation should be made with this in mind. Blood may be drawn up to five days before surgery, leaving ample time to ensure that more than one unit can be collected from most patients. Ob-

McEnroe returned to Paris with the threat of a fine and possible suspension based on his actions last Sunday in West Germany.

Lakers

Cooper can't remember the Los Angeles Lakers ever playing

A devastating 22-5 blitz in the second quarter of Monday's 133-102 victory over Seattle gave the Lakers a sweep of the NBA Western Conference finals and sent a strong message to the Detroit Pistons and the Boston Celtics, who are tied 2-2 in the Eastern Conference finals.

"That was about the best I've ever seen us play," Cooper said. "This is about the quickest team, man for man, that I've ever played

"They've got so much more energy than they had last season. said Seattle's Maurice Lucas, who was with the Lakers last season. "They're at least two steps better.

The Lakers led 46-40 with 6:51 left in the second quarter after a 10-3 run by Seattle. Then came the Lakers' spurt in a 5:48 span that put the Sonics away.

The Lakers made nine of 10 field goal attempts during the run, including seven layups, a dunk by James Worthy and a 3-point field goal by Byron Scott for a 68-45 lead with 1:03 left in the half. The Sonics could get no closer than 17 points in the second half.

Worthy, who led the Lakers with 26 points, scored five points as did Scott. Magic Johnson, 40-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and A.C. Green each had four points in the back-breaking spurt.

'We tried everything we could,' Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said. "But they had an answer for everything we tried to do. The Lakers are the best team in professional basketball.

Johnson had 21 points and 12 assists while Green and Scott each finished with 19 points. Tom Chambers led Seattle with 20 points, 15 in the first half.

By winning their 11th of 12 playoff games this season, the Lakers advanced to the championship series. The finals will start on whether the Celtics-Pistons series goes six or seven games. "I don't really care who we meet," Riley said. "I'm just happy that we're going to be there.

It makes a difference to Cooper who wins the Detroit-Boston series, though. He wants to meet archrival Boston, led by nemesis Larry Bird.

Lould lie to you but, yes, I want to go back and play Boston," he

The Lakers did an outstanding defensive job on Sonics' playoff hero Dale Ellis. He had only two points at halftime and finished with 12 in Game 4. But Ellis and the Sonics were happy to get to the conference final after the team won 39 regular-season games, 26 fewer than the Lakers.

Braves' romp

AP Baseball Writer

The Atlanta Braves got the help of two first baseman in their biggest scoring binge in two years.

Atlanta's Gerald Perry drove in two runs, including a go-ahead single in the fifth inning, as the Braves routed St. Louis 14-5 Monday night.

St. Louis' Jack Clark, meanwhile, tied a major-league record for first baseman by making three errors in the second inning — helping Atlanta score five runs.

The Braves ripped a season-high 17 hits. They had six doubles, including two by Glenn Hubbard, a triple by Ken Oberkfell and Ozzie Virgil's solo home run, his 15th. Hubbard, who had three hits, and Albert Hall each drove in two runs in Atlanta's highest-scoring game since beating Cincinnati 17-9 on May 1, 1985.

"I've been able to stay in there, even when I went 7-for-60 earlier this year," said Perry, who has taken over for Bob Horner at first base for Atlanta. "When you get that kind of support, you have to produce eventually.

Perry had two hits and drew two walks, raising his average 14 points

There's a lot at Pleasure Lake

By H. BOYCE HALE

Wind surfing is sailing on water with a surfboard, and there's a place near Big Spring that's ideal for that type of recreation.

I visited the lake on a recent Sunday afternoon. I had known this lake as Red Lake, but after I arrived, I saw a sign indicating that it was re-named. It now is called Pleasure Lake.

Located along the north side of I-20 near the Martin County Line, about 12 miles west of Big Spring, it provides an excellent place for water skiing, wind surfing and jet skiing.

Owned in part by Bob Harmonson of Odessa, the lake now has quickly once you arrive at the limited facilities for swimming and lake," James related.

picknicking, although water sports is the dominant recreation.

Glenda Chivers of Midland, one of Harmonson's employees, noted that two boat ramps had been constructed. But the lake level had risen and the water is too high to launch boats from them

"Is there a fee to use these facilities?" I asked.

'Yes, for $5 a carload, you can use the lake for one day," she said. "If I am not here to take the money, a permit can be purchased at the nearby Double "D" Water Hole convenience store," she

A short time later, Tim Glynn, a friend from Midland, approached and asked what I was doing.

"I was hoping to see a few surfboard riders, but it looks like there isn't enough wind," I explained.

"Yeah, that's true, but some are trying anyway," he added.

Tim introduced James Welty, president of the Permian Basin Wind Riders Club, an organization dedicated to perpetuating wind

Welty explained that the club has 115 members, and claimed its the fastest growing club of its kind in

"Tell me about the rig," I said. "It consists of four main parts: the board, sail, boom, and mast. And it can be assembled rather

"Where can a person buy one, and how much does it cost?" I wanted to know.

James said the cost ranges from $500 to $1000, depending on h ow much someone is willing to invest. He added they are available at Ski Skeller Sports Store in Midland.

Then James invited me to observe his instructions to novice Jim Kite of Hobbs. I watched as they assembled the rig. In a few minutes they are ready for Jim to try his first trip on a sailing surfboard. It was necessary for Jim to stand on one side of the board, then pull the mast and sail up with a rope. When the wind caught the sail, he was on his way. He glanced behind and gave us a thumbs up sign — just as a large power boat passed nearby. The wake dumped him into the water, and he was struggling to raise the sail again. I asked James if he could get back on the board. "If he can't, he will have to paddle to shore," he said.

Not to be discouraged, Jim reached shore, and immediately raised his sail. Once more he was gone with the wind.

While my attention was on the surfboarders, I kept seeing and hearing another water craft. So I left the wind sailors and beckonedd to a jet ski operator.

Magic, Akeem head All-NBA team

NEW YORK (AP) — Guard Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers, who last week was named the NBA's Most Valuable Player, was the only unanimous choice on the 1987 All-NBA team announced today.

Joining Johnson on the team were guard Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls, center Akeem Olajuwon of the Houston Rockets and forwards Larry Bird and Kevin McHale of the Boston Celtics.

Johnson, who averaged a career-high 23.9 points and league-leading 12.2 assists per game, received 156 points in voting by a nationwide panel of 78 reporters who cover the NBA. He led the Lakers to the best regular-season record in the NBA, 65-17.

Jordan, who led the league in scoring with a 37. average, was the runner-up in the voting with 154 points. Two voters left Jordan off their first team. Bird received 151 points and was named to the first team by 73 voters. Olajuwon had 130 points and McHale 125

Johnson and Bird were the only repeaters from last year's first team.

Voted to the second-team were forwards Dominique Wilkins of Atlanta and Charles Barkley of Philadelphia, center Moses Malone of Washington, and guards Isiah Thomas of Detroit and Lafayette

Cowboys edge Aggies for Series berth

-Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward says his team has never had to fight so hard to gain a berth in ched a complete game against next week's College World Series Texas A&M Sunday night, leading at Omaha, Neb.

The Cowboys gained entrance to the series by downing Texas A&M 11-9 Monday in the championship game of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Mideast Regional baseball tournament at Starkville.

'We're exhausted and extremely pleased, Of our seven trips (to the College World Series), this has been the most difficult and tedious. It seems as if we have done what we had to do. I think we will be as good as anybody going to Omaha,"

Ward said after Monday's victory. Pat Hope pitched to two batters in the bottom of the ninth inning to halt a Texas A&M rally and give State defense didn't allow anyone STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) the Cowboys the win. His Monday appearance on the mound came less than 24 hours after he had pitthe Cowboys to a 7-4 win and sending the tournament into a game 11 showdown.

> Sunday was Hope's second complete game of the tournament and that combined with Monday's save earned the Oklahoma State sophomore the tournament's mostvaluable-player honors.

> Hope entered Monday's game with one on and the tying run at the plate, and after giving up a single, Don Wren forced Ever Magallanes to pop up, clinching the victory for the Cowboys.

In both the seventh and eighth innings Monday, the Aggies loaded the bases, but a strong Oklahoma

"I'm pleased our guys kept fighting. They could have given up. We left a lot of men on base, but we hit the ball hard and that's all you can ask. When you hit the ball, sometimes it goes and sometimes it doesn't. Oklahoma State put the ball in play, and you have to give them a lot of credit," Texas A&M coach Mark Johnson said.

The Cowbovs used the 16-hit attack to take the win and only trailed once in the game.

Robin Ventura opened the scoring with a solo home run in the top of the first inning. Ventura's homer extended an NCAA record hitting streak to 56 consecutive games, tying Hall-of-Famer Joe DiMaggio's 1941 record.

Oklahoma State improves to 56-11, while Texas A&M ends its season at 44-22-1.

PARIS (AP) — John McEnroe, his serve-and-volley game in a shambles on the slow clay of Center Court, was eliminated in the first round of the French Open today by Argentina's Horacio de la Pena 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2. It was the second consecutive Grand Slam tournament in which McEnroe was a first-round loser. He lost to Paul Annacone in the opening round at the U.S. Open last August.

"He came up with some great shots, but I beat myself," McEnroe

Another American seed also lost today. Melissa Gurney, the 16thranked woman, fell to Nicole Provis of Australia 6-4, 6-2.

Chris Evert, the women's champion here for the past two years, started toward a record eighth French open title with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Eva Pfaff of West Germany. Winning also was Stefan Edberg of Sweden, the men's third seed, who defeated Mike Leach of the United Sates 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. Andres Gomez, Mary Joe Fernandez, Manuela Maleeva, Raffaella Reggi and Miloslav Mecir were among other seeds winning first-round matches.

Following McEnroe and Evert onto Center Court were top-seeded Martina Navratilova against Catherine Tanvier of France and eighth-seeded Jimmy Connors against Todd Nelson of the United States.

McEnroe, the men's seventh seed, was given a lesson in claycourt tennis by de la Pena; the world's 49th-ranked player, who ran down shots and returned stinging crosscourt groundstrokes throughout the three-hour match on a warm Paris afternoon.

The booming serve and strong net play that made McEnroe No. 1 in the world up until late 1985 never was evident. His volleys usually landed in the net or far past the baseline, and the quickness that characterized his championship form also was missing.

"Physically, I was not up to it," said McEnroe, who has complained recently of problems with his calf muscles. "I tried to do something extra to get ready and perhaps I overdid it.

De la Pena had lost to McEnroe 6-2, 6-4, in the second round of the Italian Open two weeks ago. That, too, was on clay, but the surface was about the only similarity between the two matches.

"I don't think he played so well. He was a bit disconsolate, but I played much better than in Rome. Today I passed him very well and reached all his volleys.

McEnroe said he probably would pass up the men's doubles tournament and had asked partner Robert Seguso to find someone to take his place.

Fernandez, a 16-year-old from Miami, Fla., who reached the quarterfinals here in 1986, rallied to beat another American, Kathy Horvath, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2. Fernandez is seeded 13th.

Gomez, the 10th men's seed from Ecuador and winner of the recent Tournament of Champions in New York, defeated Roland Stadler of Switzerland 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

Mavs ready to start coach search

DALLAS (AP) - General manager Norm Sonju said the search for a new coach of the Dallas Mavericks would begin in earnest today

Don Nelson, coach of the Milwaukee Bucks, appeared to be the leading candidate in the process of tabbing a successor for Dick Motta, who resigned last week After Motta announced his unexpected decision on Wednesday, Mayericks owner Don Carter said he wanted to give himself and others a few days to let things settle before beginning the quest for a new coach. He asked Sonju to meet with him today to begin discussion about a new coach, and Sonju said Monday hat he is ready to get on with the process.

If Carter gives his approval, the Mavericks could make official contact with the Milwaukee Bucks as early as today to request permission to interview Nelson.

Baltimore's Ken Dixon produced the day's top relief performance, striking out the side with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to preserve the Orioles' 4-3 victory over Oakland

In winning for the 16th time in 21 games and opening a 41/2-game lead over Seattle in the AL West, Kansas City took the lead with two runs in the fourth off Joel Davis. Jorge Orta hit his second home run of the year with one out and Frank White and Steve Balboni followed with successive doubles. Willie Wilson chased Davis with a tworun triple in the seventh and Balboni hit a two-run homer off Bobby Thigpen in the eighth, his sixth.

The White Sox loaded the bases against Saberhagen with one out in the third on a bunt single and a pair of walks but he struck out Greg Walker and Carlton Fisk to end the

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds it possible for you to finish up a series of conditions that need to be out of the way before you can intelligently proceed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can now handle correspondence that has been neglected. Contact those you want as allies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Apply yourself seriously and handle practical matters. Find the right method to expedite things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your present position and eliminate whatever is outdated. Enjoy the company of friends tonight.

MOQN CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Handle the tasks that can clear the path to greater progress. Save some time for your mate. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can gain an aim now that has long eluded you since you have greater enthusiasm than before. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your position at home and try to gain some prestige there. A bigwig can give you backing. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Something turns up today that can help you advance and make the future

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Keep busy at completing the work that's undone. Small tasks can be done for your mate, also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get outside tasks finished before you delve into some new civic affair that can be of help-to you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show fellow workers that you finish one job before going on to the

Hispanic dropouts

Educators battle 45 percent dropout rate million of the state's 3.1 million students are Hispanic, and studies show that about 45 percent of Texas Hispanic students drop out before graduation. In the second installment of a six-part series, The Associated Press examines that problem.

ELGIN (AP) - His new classmates went about the sometimes-noisy business of being first graders, but Cirilo Sanchez sat quietly, isolated by barriers likely to hamper his progress toward high school graduation in

It was Cirilo's first week at Elgin Elementary School, where Chencho Flores' job is to teach the 8-year-old boy, just up from Mexico, how to learn and to speak

'He's almost old enough to be in the second grade," Flores said. "As far as academics, he probably belongs in kindergarten.

As a bilingual teacher, Flores is a front-line warrior against a Hispanic dropout rate called "America's Time Bomb" in a Southwestern Bell film about the problem

Studies show about 45 percent of Hispanic students in Texas drop out before graduation, and about one-third do not make it through ninth grade.

Almost 1 million of the state's 3.1 million students are Hispanic. The Texas Education Agency predicts Hispanic enrollment will increase 16 percent by 1990, making it the fastest growing ethnic group in the Flores, a bilingual teacher for 11 years, does not have to see the numbers to see the problem.

"It's like laundry and it's like washing dishes. You've always got a new one when you think you've got everything going," he said.

There was a time when Texas made little effort to help students who spoke no English. A 1918 state law, born of wartime anti-German sentiment, made English the only legal in-class language.

For decades, that law prevented hundreds of thousands of Hispanics

EDITOR'S NOTE - Almost 1 from getting an education but in cent to 24 percent by 1990 1969, the law was changed with the approval of a bilingual education

> It was not until 1974, after a healthy nudge from a federal judge, that Texas required bilingual education in early grades.

> 'We had an 80 percent dropout rate when I first came down here in 1968," said Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, the padre of bilingual education law in Texas.

> Without bilingual education, it was sink or swim for Spanishspeaking students.

'Mostly they sank. We lost a lot of kids that way," said Delia Pompa, the TEA's assistant commissioner for program development. Ms. Pompa, 36, saw the education fallout first-hand: Only six of her first-grade classmates in San Antonio graduated from high school.

Truan, who was paddled for speaking Spanish at his Kingsville elementary school, said the bilingual program has helped but suffers from a lack of support in some

But gauging the program's success is difficult, Ms. Pompa said. "It's hard to say what we've done wrong when we haven't had the ability to do it right because we've never had enough teachers to carry it out right," she said.

Texas has 179,000 public school teachers, 12.5 percent of which are Hispanic. Only 7,062 are certified to teach in bilingual programs. In 1985, 321 certificates were issued to teach in those programs. In 1986, it fell to 154

Three hundred more per year are needed to make a dent in the shortage, TEA spokeswoman Terri Anderson said.

Elgin's bilingual teachers get an $800 annual bonus, but school officials say that isn't enough to keep the teachers from moving to bigger schools where the pay is better.

In 1972-73, the state spent $700,000 on bilingual education. Texas is spending $37 million for it this year, and the Texas Education Agency says more is needed if it is to meet its goal of cutting the statewide dropout rate for all students from the current 35 per-

Rep. Pete Patterson, D-Brookston, said bilingual education might be a waste of money and could be producing, not preventing,

"I feel like we're continuing to teach Spanish longer than we should," said Patterson, who favors "total immersion" in English before other subject matters are taught.

Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen, spoke Spanish at home and learned English in school during the sinkor-swim years. It worked for him

Hinojosa is a graduate of Georgetown University's law school — but he saw many students

"I think they really do not understand what we're trying to accomplish through bilingual education," he said of the program's critics.

Recently, officials in the Tornillo school district near El Paso asked Hispanic parents to punish their children at home for speaking Spanish at school, as a way of helping them learn English.

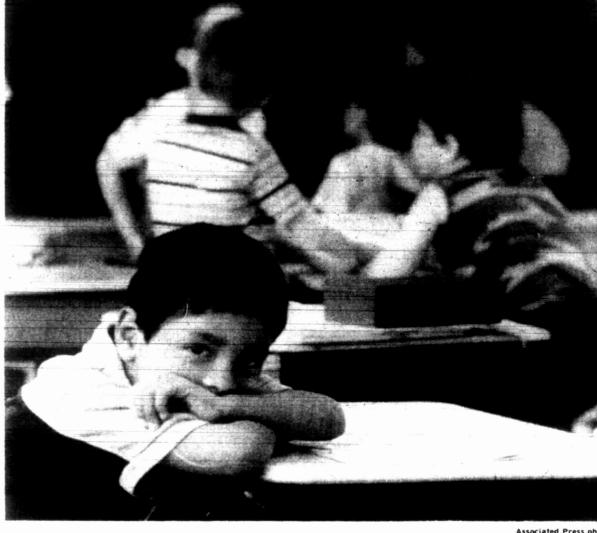

The officials claimed good intentions, but backed off after TEA and U.S. Justice Department officials warned they could be violating civil rights.

While experts say bilingual education has helped, the next steps in cutting the Hispanic dropout rate will be more subtle and complex. Even without the language barrier, Hispanics face education obstacles that are a sampler of society's ills.

When the family is at the survival level, there is not a great deal of time for the mother or the father to read to the children," said Mario Benitez, chairman of the University of Texas at Austin's department of eurriculum and instruction. "Sometimes they don't even have money for books

"There are a lot of Hispanic adults who cannot understand how to help their children," Truan said. Without home support, classroom education is jeopardized. Luis Cano, founder of a Houston dropout program, hits on that point in "Helping Your Child Learn," a bilingual guide offering the most assign a small space to each of basic information for Hispanic

Cano tells parents what days are school days, how to get required immunizations and how to lend nome support to classroom efforts.

He also offers advice that provides stark insight into the daily problems of poverty.

"If there are two to five children sleeping in the same room, then your children," he advises.

Such conditions feed the longtime bias felt in many corners of the state.

'You know the problem," a West Texan told a state official at a recent hearing on dropout prevention. "We've got these Spanish Their parents are melonpickers and they're always going to be melon-pickers

It is such prejudices that make solutions that much harder to achieve.

'We are a little bit ethnocentric in this country," said Benitez, a Cuban native educated in Latin America and Europe

"This was expressed to me beautifully once by a teacher who said her children didn't have any problem with languages. They only knew one," he said
