Negotiators recommend Rural/Metro

A city and county committee decided this morning to recommend Rural/Metro ambulance company to replace Lee Ambulance. A report will go to City Council and County Commissioners for final approval, although no date was set. Included in the motion is a plan to use trained firefighters as backup in case of emergency and to have an additional ambulance at the downtown fire station for that purpose The officials also agreed the city would pay 55 percent of the subsidy

A committee organized Monday to negotiate with Rural/Metro and Texas EMS ambulance companies met at the courthouse with the company representatives and the ambulance advisory committee. City Councilmen Johnny Ruther-

The officials expressed interest in having firefighters trained as basic life support backup personnel in case of a disaster. City Manager Mack Wofford said

Both companies' representatives expressed concern that another company not be allowed to operate a transfer service in Big Spring. Skeen said it's difficult for an ambulance company to make a profit without transfer business.

Shaw: District stands to lose in budget war

By KERRY HAGLUND Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School District could lose $544,322 in state aid next year for public education if Gov. Bill Clements' budget proposal is adopted, says 69th District Rep. Larry Don Shaw.

Legislators failed to adopt Clements' budget and will meet in special session June 22 to continue to hammer out a state budget. Shaw said he's warning superintendents, school board members and county officials that Gov. Bill Clements' budget could result in higher local property

Shaw sent letters to officials along with figures estimating the reduction in state aid for public schools under governor's proposed

The governor "has embarked upon a media program to convince Texans that his budget will not require cuts in existing state services, and that no increase in local property taxes will result should his budget proposal be adopted,'

Shaw said. "These statements by the gover nor are inaccurate," Shaw said. The governor, he said, has understated current expenses by more than $1.5 billion, which could result in some $551.5 million in reduced state aid for public education

"After much deliberation and with the solid recommendations of the lieutenant governor and the speaker, we will meet again in the morning at 11 o'clock to consider tort reform. So there you are,' Clements announced about 1:20 a.m.

Clements said legislative leaders had told him the tort reform issue could be settled in one or two days, and that is all this special session will deal with.

However, still facing a 1988-89 deficit projected at $5.8 billion, lawmakers also will meet in special session on June 22 for more budget work, the governor

But the measure never received House consideration. Another major fight was waged over finance

ing both public schools and state colleges and universities

To Ms. Delco, reluctance to make severe cuts meant lawmakers appreciated the importance of education

"When it came right down to voting, the irreconcilable difference was that we could not say in all good conscience that we ought to take the amount out of education that it would take to balance the budget," Ms. Delco said.

"This is one session where we still are living under the cloud of the efforts to take money out. But we're also looking at the successes that have come out of both these houses and now are sitting on the governor's desk," she said.

Ms. Delco counted among the victories a bill that would abolish undergraduate education degrees for prospective teachers

Sen. Carl Parker, who carried that teacher education bill in the Senate, said it was a "step forward in the quality we will see in people that are choosing teaching as a career.

If the bill gets the governor's OK, prospective teachers would have to possess a bachelor's degree in an academic subject major rather than education.

But Parker, D-Port Arthur, said legislators let teachers down when they failed to pass a bill to add more funding to the career ladder system the state uses to reward top teachers.

The bill died in the House when freshman Rep. Kent Grusendorf, R-Arlington, pointed out a clerical error. "I'm just disappointed they didn't think it important enough to be debated on," Parker said

A package of legislation aimed at curbing the state's dropout rate also received the Legislature's endorsement.

business now. We're going to focus sharply on what the problem is with the budget process," Clements

The House and Senate adjourned Monday night after their 140-day session. But for the first time since 1961, the final gavel fell without passage of a spending plan for state government. "Nobody likes to end a legislative session with unfinished business, particularly when the unfinished business is as important as the state budget. It is a disappointing failure. No one can whitewash that," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. House Speaker Gib Lewis was more upbeat.

"I don't consider this session a failure at all," Lewis said. "If you go back and really just try to find something besides the budget to discuss, you'll find that this has been one of the most productive" sessions, he said. Lewis predicted that the special session would produce a balanced budget.

"I think we'll do what has to be done. Unfortunately, we were not able to do it in the regular session,' he said.

Clements, whose threat to veto any tax increase greater than $2.9 billion helped deadlock budget action, said he thinks the special session will agree to a spending and tax package he can approve.

But that means no more than the $2.9 billion to be raised by making last year's temporary sales and motor fuel tax increases permanent, he said. "Make permanent the temporary taxes. And I'm not going to go beyond that. That's all there is to it. That is plain English," Clements said. However, the govenor left open the possibility he might also approve a plan to have voters decide on a 3/4-cent sales tax increase dedicated to prisons and on creeating a state-run lottery. "I think all the pieces are there if we could just get our heads together and all start talking about the same thing," Clements said.

Clements' budget proposal totaled $36.9 billion for two years, while the House budget totaled $39.4 billion and the Senate favored a $40 billion plan that would have required nearly a $6 billion tax hike. "I blame the Senate," Clements said. "I don't blame the Legislature, I blame the Senate. I have no problems with the House.

Group wants alcoholic

SAN ANTONIO — The Fire and Police Civil Service Commission wants to bend the rules to let an admitted recovering alcoholic back on the police force, but city officials don't want the officer back in a police car.

Patrolman Guadalupe Diaz admitted to the commission Monday that he was intoxicated and almost unconscious when he was found slumped over in his patrol car last Dec.1.

The incident led to his eighth suspension in his 17-year career on the San Antonio police force. Previous offenses included pulling a weapon on a fellow officer, speeding and driving while intoxicated, officials said.

Police Chief William O. Gibson recommended in December that Diaz be fired.

Commission Chairman Mayo Galindo suggested a legal agreement be drawn up allowing the commission to postpone its decision, but letting Diaz return to work. Under such an agreement, if Diaz went into a relapse, he would be fired.

Texan electrocuted at job

KELLOGG, Idaho - A Texas man who was electrocuted as he helped load pipe onto a truck at the closed Bunker Hill smelter apparently tried to jump off the truck to avoid falling power lines, Kellogg

Eric A. Anderson, 31, of Irving, Texas, was killed Friday night when the power lines fell onto the truck, police said.

He was one of three men clearing pipe from the property. The power lines apparently fell after they were struck by the boom of a crane used to pick up the pipe, police said.

State park motel in use

AUSTIN - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Depart-

Mike Henderson, Balmorhea park ranger, said everyone contacted at the San Solomon Springs Courts motel so far has been "very cooperative and "We are refunding their reservation fee or rescheduling the room for a later date. Most people say, 'I wouldn't want to put one of those families ' Henderson said.

The Balmorhea park is about 12 miles from Saragosa, where 29 people died and more than 100 were injured in the tornado last month.

The San Solomon Springs Court has 18 rooms, and officials said as soon as the rooms were vacated by guests, the rooms were used to house victims and

Man charged in stabbing

FORT WORTH — A parolee charged with capital murder in the hijacking of a city bus and stabbing death of a passenger will face attempted murder charges in the wounding of the driver, police said.

Murder charges were filed Monday against Emanuel Kemp Jr., 21, of Fort Worth, who had been on parole for about two weeks, said Homicide Detective Curt Brannan, investigator in charge of the case

Kemp was in Tarrant County Jail Monday night under $750,000 bond, Brannan said.

Late Wednesday, a passenger armed with a knife forced the bus driver, David Jeanfreau, to drive to a. park near downtown.

At the park the man told the bus driver to get out of the bus. He then sexually assaulted Johnnie Gray, 34, the only remaining passenger. The woman later died of stab wounds.

Lawmakers OK AIDS bill

AUSTIN - Legislation to allow quarantining of AIDS patients who pose a public health threat is on its way to Gov. Bill Clements for his signature or

The House and Senate approved the bill shortly before adjourning their regular session Monday. But the compromise adopted stripped the bill of an earlier proposal to require couples to take an AIDS test to get a marriage license.

The bill does require a premarital AIDS test if the statewide overall positive rate on AIDS tests hits 0.87 percent. It is now 0.01 percent.

The House, in a 108-37 vote, wrapped up legislative work on the bill less than three hours before the regular session was to adjourn at midnight. Senators approved the bill, which now goes to Gov. Bill Clements, earlier in the day

Defense rests case in sex-for-leniency

FORT WORTH - Defense attorneys wrapped up their case in the federal sex-for-leniency trial of a state judge and two court officials without calling any of the men to testify

Attorneys were scheduled to begin preparing instructions for the jury today and closing arguments could be heard as soon as Wednesday.

Defense attorneys for State District Judge Tom Cave, 57, attorney Ronald Aultman, 70, and bail bondsman Dorsey Adams, 80, did not call the three defendants to the stand before resting their case Monday

The three are on trial on charges accusing them of violating the civil rights of women defendants by attempting to coerce them into having sex with Cave in exchange for leniency in his court.

In testimony Monday, Cave's son Paul testified he drove a woman to an Arlington motel to meet his father. He said that after his father entered the room he drank a glass of water, smoked a cigarette and then left for an hour or two.

The younger Cave was called by the prosecution to supplement testimony he gave last week. He was accompanied by a court-appointed attorney and testified under a special grant of immunity from the prosecution. U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson signed an order Monday requiring him to testify.

The son said the encounter occurred in approximately 1981. He said he couldn't recall the woman's name, where he picked her up, how he got to the hotel, the name of the hotel or what time of year it was. He also said he didn't remember what his father and the woman were doing when he left the room.

Judge Cave's attorneys rested their case after calling 28 witnesses to the stand. Adams' attorneys did not call any witnesses. Aultman's attorneys had planned to call him as a witness but changed their minds because, said attorney Jerry Loftin, "we're just

Skeptics hurt amnesty work

What if America threw an amnesty party and nobody

The turnout at legalization centers across the United States on the first day of amnesty, May 5, was closer to a trickle

For those who expected thousands of people to rush in for freedom, it was a disappointment.

For those who predicted a melee, it was a relief.

Many more people came to get forms than to deliver them. Thousands already have preregistered. But the low turnout can't be explained away, It should be taken seriously

Are undocumented families afraid to come into the offices? Do they know about the amnesty? Are people telling them to beware — it's a ploy to deport them?

Some Chicano leaders are advocating that the undocumented not legalize. One leader said, "In my opinion there is no amnesty; just a massive ripoff." He claims amnesty is a way for government, lawyers and doctors to fleece poor undocumented people of "from $2 billion to $7 billion" and then to deport them.

Dan Munoz, publisher of the Spanish-language newspaper, La Prensa San Diego, says his newspaper won't encourage the undocumented to come out of hiding and register, because he suspects they will be rounded up and deported.

In Los Angeles, the Spanish language newspaper La Opinion and the Los Angeles Times printed a joint guide for legalization.

Chicano leaders' views are sincere. They show the deep distrust of the Immigration and Naturalization Service among some Hispanics.

The anger comes from a bitter history, dating back, in the view of some, to the conquest of Mexico City by American troops, which resulted in the incorporation of one-third of Mexico's territory into the United States.

Instead of immigration reform, Munoz wants the government to honor the rights of the conquered Mexicans living in U.S. territory, as stated by the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo

History is bitter for conquered people. Past injustice also is a convenient way to hide from a more complicated present reality. But, in our view, immigration reform is about the future, not the past.

The people who could benefit from amnesty are not vocal. Until now, illegal aliens haven't had freedom of speech, because by speaking out they would have identified themselves for deportation.

Nevertheless, they do write letters to congressmen and do call the newspaper. They earnestly want amnesty.

If responsible people tell aliens that the government is only out to catch and deport them, then they will not apply Representatives from Catholic Community Services viewed the initial legalization process and were impressed that the Immigration and Naturalization Service truly is committed to amnesty. That is our view.

Skeptics about amnesty should go to the legalization centers and check them before urging the undocumented not

and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON Jesse Jackson has become the front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination since Gary Hart's untimely undoing, but the political pundits have generally dismissed the Baptist preacher's new status. There's no way Jackson can win the nomination.

This is probably true, but the fact remains that Jackson's rivals for the nomination are taking his frontrunner status very seriously - not to say fearfully. Like the media heavies, they're convinced that Jackson won't get the nomination. But they figure — with good reason — that he might be the Democratic convention's kingmaker, able to pick the ultimate candidate. What worries Jackson's rivals in the crowded Democratic field is the price he would demand to deliver the nomination. The vice presidential nomination would not be outside the realm of possibility. Here's the way some astute Democratic strategists interviewed by our associate Les Whitten appraise the Jackson influence:

Jackson may bomb out in the Iowa caucus and/or the New Hampshire primary early next year, though there are some signs that he'll do well. But his showing in these warmup contests won't matter anyway, these sources say.

The reason is simple: Super Tuesday, March 8, when 13 Southern states hold their primaries. All 13 have large black populations, and Jackson already has dedicated, powerful campaign organizations in place. He can also count on winning substantial numbers of delegates in the later primaries in big states with many black voters: Illinois, New York, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California.

What this all boils down to is that Jackson is likely to arrive at the convention with 20 percent or more of the delegates. If, as also seems likely, two other candidates come to the convention shy of a delegate majority but close to it, Jackson is the man they'll have to deal with if they want the nomination.

It would be naive to think that any leading candidate would relinguish his chance at the nomination in favor of a back-in-the-pack rival or the draft of someone like New York Gov. Mario Cuomo or Sen Sam Nunn, Ga., who didn't deign to sweat their way through the grueling primary campaign.

Anyone with an eye on the pie in the sky would rather horse-trade with Jackson, as long as his price wasn't too high.

At this point, only Jackson and his campaign staff profess to believe that he can actually win the presidential nomination for

One thing cannot be denied: Jesse Jackson has advantages that his rivals don't have. For one thing, allegations and innuendoes that would sink them make little or no impression on Jackson's black constituency.

For decades, black leaders have been the target of FBI leaks and politically inspired allegations that were never documented, and many black voters now ignore or at least discount accusations that they view as initiated by the white establishment.

We reported as far back as 1975 that Jackson, along with Dr. Martin Luther King, had been a victim of FBI snoops. Later charges that Jackson had mismanaged federal funds awarded to PUSH, his black self-help organization in Chicago never withstood scrutiny, and blacks understandably resented the media hubbub they prompted.

Jackson's flair for the dramatic, politically shrewd gesture, which his rivals can't match, was attested by a fundraiser for another Democrat. Recalling Jackson's 1984 trip to Syria, where he won release of a black Navy pilot shot down over Lebanon, one political pro grumped: "I wouldn't be surprised to see the (bleeping) Iranians telling their puppets in Lebanon to turn over two or three of our hostages to Jackson during the primaries.

A top Jackson staffer acknowledged with some relish tions business that this thought had crossed his EYE ON THE ECONOMY: Conbusiness. gressional proposals to slap a $10-a-barrel tax on imported oil faces stiff opposition from members of Congress from the Midwest and Northeast. They argue that consumers would pay $3 in added fuel costs for every dollar of revenue. They point to a study that shows only Alaska, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas would benefit from the import fee, which would raise an estimated $10 billion in revenue. A study by the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland concluded that "the tax would not come close to solving the budget deficit (and) when weighed against the loss of economic activity and higher prices, the tax would seem too high a price to pay.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: China is quietly establishing mutually beneficial military deals with Latin American countries, according to our sources. The two top Chinese markets - for both buying and selling - are Argentina and Brazil. In Argentina, the Chinese want to buy special metals and sell tank guidance equipment. In Brazil, they're buying jet trainers and selling missile technology.

Man claims no regret

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa — A man who walked into a city council meeting, shot the mayor dead and wounded two council members testified his only regret about the shooting was that he didn't have a better gun.

'No feeling of shame. No feeling of regret," Ralph Orin Davis said Monday as he described his decision to kill Mount Pleasant city officials in a dispute over $350 in damage to his basement caused by a backed-up sewer line.

"That isn't much of a price to put on a man's life, is it, $350?" said Davis, 69, of Mount Pleasant.

The defense is trying to prove to the jury that Davis was legally insane or had diminished responsibility at the time of the shootings; in part because of his experience as a prisoner of war during World War II.

Wiesel testifies at Barbie trial

By CHARLES CAMPBELL Associated Press Writer

LYON, France (AP) - Preserving the memory of the Nazi Holocaust is crucial to building a better world, Nobel Peace laureate Elie Wiesel, a Holocaust survivor. testified today at the trial of Klaus Barbie.

"If you want to save the world, it can only be done by opening the secret and sorrowful door that is our common memory," Wiesel told a hushed courtroom.

Wiesel, 58, an author who now lives in New York, said he never before was a witness at a trial stemming from the crimes of Nazi Germany. He said, however, he felt the role of witness to the Holocaust was thrust upon him as soon as he left the Auschwitz extermination camp in occupied Poland.

"I saw myself as a witness, because the role of a survivor is to bear witness," Wiesel said, speaking in lightly accented French. "One must speak. One must bear witness. That is why this trial is so important to me.

Barbie, 73, the former Gestapo chief in Lyon, refused to attend today's court session, as he has since the third day of his trial on charges of crimes against humanity. The trial opened May 11.

Barbie is accused of arresting and torturing Jews and Resistance workers, and deporting them to Nazi death camps. He escaped prosecution after the war, working for U.S. Army intelligence, then fleeing with American help to South America. He was expelled from Bolivia in 1983 and brought to France for trial Wiesel won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986. He wrote 26 books of fiction and non-fiction, including "Night," a fictionalized account of his death camp experiences.

He was never in France until after World War II, and never encountered Barbie. Lawyers representing the Lyon Jewish community at the trial called Wiesel to testify as an expert who could tell the three judges and nine jurors about the Holocaust in general.

"The problem is where to begin," he said, facing judges and jurors ranged along a bench at the front of the courtroom in the Palais de Justice.

"How do you recount the night? I don't know."

Nachama Shiller, 8, and her sister Rivka, 11, view a Holocaust monument defaced by spray-paint-wielding vandals a day after it was unveiled near the Skokie, III. village hall Monday. The paint will be left on the statue pending the outcome of a city council meeting. Today in France, Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel said preserving the memory of the Nazi Holocaust is crucial to building a better world.

Tamils kill 33 in bus

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Tamil separatist guerrillas ambushed a bus in eastern Sri Lanka and fatally shot 33 people, including 29 saffron-robed Buddhist monks, the government said today.

More than 50 assailants dressed in military uniforms and armed with automatic weapons stopped the bus near a village about 125 miles east of Colombo on Monday night, a military official said. The attackers ordered the monks and four others out of the bus and shot them to death, he said.

At least 11 other bus passengers were wounded, the official said, speaking on condition he not be identified. He did not say if they were monks or lay people.

We arrived in Panama in January from upstate New York, and we weren't ready for the hot and humid climate here. We have no 'white Christmas' here," said

"Most of the people are very nice, especially if you can speak Spanish, but the people that really go out of their way to make you feel welcome are in the interior of the country. The city people are proud, and it seems they are only nice when Americans are doing something for them.

"Most of the area here is jungle. and it is nice seeing so many wild animals. One nice thing about Panama is the miles and miles of beaches on both sides of the country. Swimming, boating and fishing are available all year long, however, many times you have to plan your activities around the rainy season and the dry season," explained Rivera.

Woman finds her single lover leads double life

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old woman who recently fell in love with a 25-year-old guy. We met at work and discovered a strong mutual attraction on both our parts. Abby, I was never so happy in my life when he told me he loved me and wanted me to be his wife. After spending almost every night together for three months, I get a phone call from his wife who is pregnant and has a 3-year-old daughter by this man.

I don't have to tell you that I was in shock. Now the question, Abby: How does a single girl know for sure if a man is lying or telling the truth when he says he is not

DEAR USED: A single man will introduce you to some of his friends and relatives. A married man will not. A single man will probably invite you to see his house or apartment. A married man will not. A single man will give you his home telephone number and address. A married man will not.

There's a lesson to be learned here: Don't be so quick to give your love to a stranger. Too fast doesn't

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I bought my mother a beautiful jewelry box. Yesterday I visited my niece to see her new bedroom set when lo and behold, what do you think I saw on her dressing table? My jewelry box! I asked "Betsy" where she got it and she said it was a birthday present from Grandma

Am I wrong to feel this way? HURTING IN BROOKLYN

DEAR HURTING: I can understand your feelings, but please let go of your resentment. Once a gift is given, it's the property of the recipient to do with what he/she pleases. No gift is worth a family rift. Forgive — and try to forget.

What would you do if loved ones (relatives, friends and neighbors) were killed or injured, and you had little or nothing to give toward funeral and hospital expenses?

If your home was destroyed and you had no insurance or savings to rebuild, how would you deal with the situation?

That's the situation in Saragosa!

It will be difficult for most of the victims to qualify for government aid, and those that might can't afford to repay the loans even at low interest rates.

Saragosa's victims have no charity or service organizations to turn to for help. So all of us who can, should help.

Please help by giving your dollars to SARAGOSA RELIEF FUND established at State National Bank 901 Main St., Big Spring. Contributions may be mailed to P.O. Box 1271, Big Spring, Texas 79721

taking Celts lightly

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) With all the experts ready to hand them their third NBA title in five years, the Los Angeles Lakers are concentrating on one thing.

Tired or not, injured or not. these are the defending champion Boston Celtics the Lakers have to play in the NBA Championship Series. Game 1 of the best-of-seven series is Tuesday night at the Forum.

The Lakers, who have won 11 of their 12 games during these playoffs, have been waiting since May 25 for the Celtics to get past the Detroit Pistons. The Celtics defeated the Pistons 117-114 Saturday in the NBA Eastern Conference Channel 7 8 p.m.

"Their fatigue and our layoff are meaningless, Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "It's time for both of us to go for it.

The Celtics, despite having Robert Parish and Kevin McHale slowed by ankle in juries and Danny Ainge hobbled by an injured knee, have advanced to the NBA finals for the fourth straight year.

"We don't know anything about their injuries. That's irrelevant," Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said. "Whichever five guys step out on the court will want to beat us. With those five guys, they've beaten everybody else except us. A lot has been made of the number of minutes the Celtics starters have been forced to play during the playoffs. Larry Bird has averaged 45 minutes per game in the 17 postseason games. He played all 48 minutes against the

Pistons on Saturday Dennis Johnson has averaged 43 minutes, McHale 40 minutes, Ainge 38 and Parish 37 during the stretch. "They've got a lot of guts, no quit. They're real champions," reserve center Mychal Thompson said. "They've got a lot of intensity and character and they've shown it.

Riley said the Lakers' layoff, during which the team went to Santa Barbara, Calif. to practice, will be evaluated by how the series unfolds.

"If we play well, they'll say we were rested. If we play lousy, they'll say we were rusty," Riley said. "It doesn't make a difference.

"We practiced hard," Worthy said. "I'd say more so than during the regular season — a couple of practices were really strenuous, where we simulated game situations."

The Lakers, who recorded their best record (65-17) since 1971-72, when they won 33 straight en route to a 69-13 mark, have been made heavy favorites to regain the NBA championship.

The Lakers swept Denver in the opening round, won four of five from Golden State in the conference semifinals and then swept Seattle to reach the finals. "That doesn't put any pressure on us. We're not saying that," James Worthy, who averaged 30.5 points per game against the SuperSonics, said of being the favorites. "We have to stay away from taking it for granted. It's time to plug in mentally and just go out and play. Worthy, who will draw the defensive assignment of guarding Bird, said the opening quarter of Tuesday night's game will be particularly important for the Lakers.

"We've got to come out ready to play hard the first 7-8 minutes." Worthy said. "We have to make sure that we're in the game as far as effort and tempo are concerned."

Rangers slam Chisox in 12th; Niekros make pitching history

By The Associated Press

The harder the Chicago White Sox try to protect a lead, the faster they seem to lose.

Oddibe McDowell's grand slam in the bottom of the 12th inning Monday night rallied the Texas Rangers over the White Sox 11-9, marking the second straight game Chicago's bullpen had blown a big

On Sunday, the White Sox led Boston 9-1 in the second inning before the Red Sox struck for a 10-9 victory. Against Texas, the White Sox took a 7-2 margin into the ninth before the Rangers came back against starter Richard Dotson and four relievers to tie the night, the White Sox collapsed. McDowell hit his first career slam after the Rangers loaded the bases with one out against Joel Davis, 1-5. Ruben Sierra led off with a double and Pete O'Brien and Larry Parrish drew one-out walks.

"Davis was struggling with his control," McDowell said. "He had already walked two guys and threw two bad pitches to me. I figured he'd come in with something I could hit."

The Rangers rallied in the ninth when doubles by Sierra and O'Brien and a two-run homer by Parrish made it 7-5 with one out to knock out Dotson. Relievers Ray Searage and Neil Allen each walked the only batters they faced before Joel McKeon got the second out.

But Jerry Browne hit an RBI single against McKeon and reliever Jim Winn yielded a game-tying single to Scott Fletcher.

Indians 9, Tigers 6 Phil Niekro survived 5 2-3 shaky innings as host Cleveland beat Detroit, enabling the Niekro brothers to set a major-league record of 530 combined

Phil and Joe Niekro, who pitches for the Yankees, had been tied with Gaylord and Jim Perry with 529 victories since May 23. Phil, who stopped his five-game losing string, and Joe each lost their previous starts in attempts to break the record.

Niekro, 3-5, beat the Tigers despite almost blowing an early 7-1 lead. He gave up six runs, five of them earned, on nine hits in 52-3 innings, and left with a 7-6 lead. Scott Bailes wound up getting his third save.

Angels 9. Vankees 2 Doug DeCinces homered for the third straight game and Mike Witt pitched a five-hitter and struck out 11 as California ended its nine-game losing streak by beating New York. Wally Joyner hit a two-run homer, his 12th, in the Angels' ninth.

Twins 9. Red Sox 5

Tom Brunansky hit two home runs and Dan Gladden and Gary Gaetti also homered as Minnesota beat Boston's Roger Clemens for the first time in nine career decisions

Dwight Evans hit his 300th career homer for the host Red Sox and Mike Greenwell also homered. Athletics 9. Orioles 6 Mike Davis and Tony Phillips drove in three runs each as Oakland rapped 18 hits and withstood Baltimore's continuing home run binge. Mariners 2, Blue Jays 0

Scott Bankhead and Bill Wilkinson teamed on a four-hitter that led Seattle over Toronto. Brewers 3, Royals 2

Bill Wegman pitched 7 1-3 strong innings and Dale Sveum hit a solo home run as Milwaukee beat visiting Kansas City.

Lendl, Evert move into semis Outdoor trails

Teens also advance to women's semifinals

PARIS (AP) — Defending champions Ivan Lendl and Chris Evert moved easily into the semifinals of the French Open today, Lendl for the fourth year in a row and Evert for the ninth. Lendl recovered from early problems to defeat 10-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador 5-7, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1, while Evert beat 14th-seeded Raffaella Reggi of Italy 6-2, 6-2.

Lendl lost just three of the last 15 games, while Evert dropped only eight points after Reggi won the first two games of the second set. Their next opponents were being decided later in the day. Top-seeded, Martina Navratilova was meeting eighth-seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch on the women's side, while fifth-seeded Miloslav Mecir was going against another Czechoslovak, Karel Novacek.

Steffi Graf of West Germany and Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, a pair of 17-year-olds advanced to the women's semifinals Monday.

Playing for the second time in 24 hours on Center Court, Lendl looked groggy in the opening set against Gomez, who had been taken to five sets in each of his previous two matches.

The world's top-ranked player squandered three break points for a 5-2 lead in the first set. Gomez held and won four of the next five games, breaking for the set on a forehand

In the second set, Lendl got the only break he needed in the seventh game on an overhead backhand volley, held for 5-3 in a game that went to deuce seven times and took the set at 15 on a service winner.

He raced to a 4-0 lead in the third set, winning two of the games at love. Gomez was hitting long on his groundstrokes and missing volleys in increasing numbers, and Lendl broke for the set with a stinging backhand passing shot down

In the fourth set, Lendl broke in the fourth game and held for a 4-1 edge. He then allowed sixth-seeded Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-4, Gomez just two points in the final two games. with the South American getting so frustrated on one error that, when Lendl returned the ball, Gomez kicked it into the stands.

Lendl won the match as he had won the previous set, with a backhand pass, and pumped his fist in victory

Evert and Reggi started the match as if neither was ready to win. But, while Reggi stayed ragged, Evert improved dramatically as the match went on, helped by a long game in the first set that went to deuce seven times.

"It took me a while to get warmed up, and she's out there jumping up and down and ready to go," Evert said. "After that marathon game I was warmed up.

Reggi held her serve just once in eight tries, none at all in the first set. After building a 2-0 lead in the second set with the help of a first game break, she won just eight points the rest of the way, as the American reached the semifinals for the 47th time in her last 48 Grand Slam tournaments

She started the second-set run by holding serve on an overhead smash and followed with her fifth break when Reggi netted a forehand.

A forehand winner gave Evert a 3-2 lead, and a backhand winner down the line made it 4-2 on a sixth break. Evert held for 5-2 on a backhand crosscourt winner and moved to double match point on Reggi's serve with a lob at which the Italian, stranded at the net, could only wave her racket and shout.

The final point was delivered when Reggi double-faulted

Evert, at 32, and Navratilova, at 30, represent the senior division of the women's draw. Graf and Sabatini, combined age 34, are in the junior

On Monday, Graf, the second seed, beat

Sabatini, the seventh seed, overcame a shaky start to defeat 15-year-old Arantxa Sanchez of Spain 6-4, 6-0.

In the men' draw, the quarterfinal matchups were completed.

Lendl was overwhelming as he beat Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 2-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-0, 6-2 in a match suspended in the fourth set Sunday because of darkness.

Second-seeded Boris Becker of West Germany, seeking his first title on clay, rallied to defeat American Jimmy Arias 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 6-0 on Monday

Next, Becker plays eighth-seeded Jimmy Connors, the oldest survivor at 34 and the lone American man left from the 29 who started the tournament a week ago.

Connors reached his seventh French Open quarterfinal with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-0, 6-3 victory over West Germany's unseeded Ricki Osterthun on Monday

Fourth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden, bidding for his third French Open crown, beat Tarik Benhabiles of France, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. In the quarterfinals, Wilander meets another French player — perhaps THE French player on Center Court. Yannick Noah, the sixth seed, held off two set points in the fourth set to beat Sweden's 11th-seeded Kent Carlsson 7-6, 6-3, 6-7, 7-5. Graf's victory was her 37th in a row and her string of six tournament championships coming into Paris has made her a favorite to dethrone Evert.

Graf came here last spring with a 23-match winning streak and was beaten in the quarterfinals by Hana Mandlikova.

New hunting regulations cited

By H. BOYCE HALE The addition of 80 Texas counties to the either-sex system of anterless deer harvest and a longer spring turkey gobbler season were among hunting changes authorized by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission recently.

The commission also voted to eliminate the requirement of anterless deer hunting permits or tags from landowners in the Edwards Plateau, South Texas and most of the Trans-Pecos.

Hunters would be required only to attach the appropriate tag from their license to any whitetailed deer killed

Landowners will still have the power to stipulate numbers and type of game killed off their The anterless deer permit system will remain in effect for mule deer and doe white-tails in counties not under the eithersex system. The general hunting season has been set from Nov. 14 through Jan. 3, 1988. Archery season will be Oct. 3 through Mule deer may be taken in the Panhandle counties from Nov 21 through Nov. 29, and in the Trans-Pecos from Nov. 28 through Dec. 6.

During the deer season, hunters will be required to retain the head of any deer taken until the carcass reaches its destination. It need not be attached to the carcass.

Elk has been designated a game animal in six Panhandle counties where elk may be harvested by permit only.

Closer to home, the commission is opening a pronghorn antelope season by permit in Tom Green County. The season will be Oct. 3 through Oct. 11.

For the details on the 1987-1988 hunting season, please consult the Texas Hunting Guide that will be available sometime in

In a major step to provide more public hunting lands in Texas, the Parks and Wildlife Commission also announced the establishment of a new public hunting lands permit that may open as much as 350,000 additional acres for the 1987-1988 season.

The Wildlife Department is proceeding with the "Type II" permit through agreements with the State General Land Office, paper product companies and other landowners.

Type I is the long-standing permit that allows hunters to hunt on state-owned land. An application must be submitted each year to be eligible for a drawing.

BOYCE HALE

Successful applicants then are allowed to hunt on public land at a time and place designated.

Type II, which will begin Sept. 1, creates a $35 annual permit and will entitle purchasers to hunt during the open seasons on any or all of the Type II hunting

Charles Allen, director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Wildlife Division, advised the Commission that the Type II permit system will increase low-cost hunting opportunities to hunters and their families. He said that less than 10 percent of Texas lands are open to the public.

Allen said that many Texans have been denied the hunting experience because they have been priced out of the traditional lease system. He added that the state received more than 29,000 applications for 1986 deer hunts on wildlife management areas, but there are only 6,800 permits available.

Later announcements will say when the Type II permits will go on sale at the Parks and Wildlife Department headquarters in Austin and at field offices.

Hunting regulations for this type of hunt will be consistent with regulations for the county where the area is located. Some exceptions, however, are: Deer hunting with dogs prohibited. And, persons under age 13 may hunt without purchasing a Type II permit, but those and anyone under the age of 17 must hunt under the immediate supervision of a permitted parent or guardian.

Hunting from a vehicle is not allowed, and all guns must be unloaded while being carried in a vehicle on the Type II lands Also, each hunter is required to wear something that is fluorescent orange.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can be unusually productive now. Decide what your true ambitions in life are and then you can work out the details for such ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make those plans definite that you have long been contemplating. Get started on the legwork needed.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever will make your home more charming. Try to improve your creativity and get better results. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) It's a good morning for talking over with partners the course you want to follow in the future. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You know how to add to your holdings now. Gain the assistance of those who know about finances. LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Plan the good times you want to have in the near future and get more pleasure out of life. Contact your good friends. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact those you know who can give you the support you need to put across some new venture. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The one you love has fine ideas for your mutual betterment, so go along with them. Be cautious in new ventures. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever will bring you closer to gaining your personal wishes. The evening can be happy with your mate. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do whatever can enhance your prestige. An influential person can give you the backing you need. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A newcomer gives you good ideas for greater development and growth. Be looking for opportunities. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) This is a good day to keep a promise you have made. You can delight your mate with a new activity. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have a long discussion with a partner and cement better relations. Show your gratitude in some way IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have many fine ideas and clever aspirations and should do well in school, so plan now for a very good academic education. The right profession will be chosen while at college. This one will be good at sports and will be family oriented.

Legislature

Closing day: Visitors and some foolishness

AUSTIN (AP) — Typical of a few minutes. closing day of the Legislature, the Capitol was a visiting ground Monday for politicians past and present and some foolishness

Former Gov. Preston Smith was an early visitor in the Senate chamber, and later Secretary of State Jack Rains, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros and Bill and congressman, stopped by for a secretary of state and railroad

The late Ben Ramsey, whose 38-year career of public service included over 10 years as lieutenant governor, was honored in the presence of family members with a resolution designating a room in the East Wing of the Capitol as the Ben Ramsey Conference Room.

Ramsey, also a former state Patman, a former state senator representative, state senator,

Silliness surfaced with the distribution of a "Loco and Dissent Calendar," mocking the local and uncontested calendar by which non-controversial proposals are approved without debate and usually only one senator — who presides — in the chamber.

One fictitious resolution rescindformer presidential candidate Legislature, and instead invited Donna Rice.

"Could I be on that escort committee?" joked Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville.

Another fake resolution called for a constitutional amendment "to establish Spanish as the second official language of Texas, German ed a previous resolution inviting as the third official language of Texas, French as the fourth, and that all must be spoken with a thick Texas accent.

In honor of the last day, one Senate aide wore a rubber chicken around her neck, presumably as a reminder of Gov. Bill Clements' labeling of liberal senators as "prairie chickens.

Debate included such comments as Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, Rcommissioner, died March 27, 1985. Gary Hart to address the 'Pig Latin' as the fifth, providing Lake Jackson, saying in Nixon-like fashion, "I want to make one thing perfectly clear," to which Sen. Gene Green, D-Houston, responded. "When I have I heard that

> "It's been a while," Brown said. Capitol offices were stocked with food and drink for parties, which started before the mandatory midnight adjournment.

Prison numbers

reduction sought

AUSTIN (AP) — Under the threat of $24 million in monthly fines, lawmakers focused on reducing the prison population during the 1987 Legislative session. In early March, Texas lawmakers drafted the Prison Managment Act during and the governor signed the measure the same month. Since its passage, prison officials have used the act about a dozen

The act allows the state to release non-violent inmates to halfway houses when the prison population reaches 95 percent of its capacity. The plan was key in helping the state win a suspension of the court

"We made a long-range committment ... that if we have to parole we will parole the best of parolees as opposed to indiscriminately paroling when we're overcrowded," said Rep. Allen Hightower, D-

Huntsville, House Corrections Committee chairman.

authorizes the sale of bonds for state projects, including prison construction, also was approved this

"Within the bounds we're operating on, especially with the bonding program, I think the state made a good effort to give the people of the state of Texas

what they expect their prisons to be ... one where

Lt. Gov Bill Hobby's "Build Texas" plan, which

Despite trouble, session proved to be productive

AUSTIN (AP) — While many major problems of January are still problems in June, lawmakers made progress on several important issues. The Legislature voted to ban late-term abortions, take beer cans out of drivers' hands, partially deregulate the trucking industry, crack down on campus hazing, allow quarantining of some AIDS patients and make it tougher for government officials to do the public's business in private. We've had a good session. It's been a very productive session," Speaker Gib Lewis said.

He admitted to a few major disappointments, such as the budget impasse that has forced a special session that begins June 22. The abortion bill was a significant, if less than o total, victory for the pro-life forces. The bill bars physicians from aborting a fetus that could live outside the womb, with or without life-sustaining technology The bill would have made it a crime to perform late-term abortions, but the negotiating process resulted in a bill that makes it an offense punishable by loss of medical license or other Board of Medical Examiners sanction.

Pro-choice forces fear the bill will lead to more stringent anti-abortion legislation in coming years.

Gov. Bill Clements has said he would sign the abortion bill, which would give Texas its first abortion regulations since the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 ruling that struck down state abortion restrictions. Also headed to Clements' desk is a bill to permit quarantining of AIDS patients who pose a public health threat, although lawmakers at the last minute stripped that bill of a requirement for a pre-marital AIDS test

Clements already has signed the bill that bars drivers from drinking alcoholic beverages while behind the wheel. The legislative battle centered on whether Texans have a right to drink — as long as they are not drunk — while driving. The trucking deregulation measure, which ended years of squabbling, was a compromise bill that won approval with little floor debate. The bill, which is awaiting action by Clements, provides pricing leeway for some haulers. Under the current system, the Texas Railroad Commission tightly controls those rates

Deregulation backers have argued for years that commission regulation has been anti-competitive and prevented shippers from getting better deals.

Deregulation also was sought by AT&T on intrastate long-distance phone calls. Instead, the Legislature approved a bill to make their case to the Public Utility Commission.

The anti-hazing bill passed in the wake of the death of a University of Texas freshman who died of an alcohol overdose after consuming a fatal amount of rum during a fraternity activity. Grand jurors who reviewed the case issued a scathing report about the incident, but said no state law was broken.

The bill that is on Clements' desk makes it easier to bring criminal prosecutions for hazing offenses.

The open meetings bill that won approval is viewed as a victory for reporters. For many years, news organizations have complained that public bodies particularly on the local level — abuse the executive session portion of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

That act requires government boards to meet in public, but grants exceptions for consideration of personnel matters, land transactions and litigation. Reporters have long suspected that some officials cannot resist the opportunity to talk about other matters behind closed doors.

AUCTION

It's time

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby checks his watch as he, Gov. Clements, and Speaker Gib Lewis, left, announce a special session for today — only hours after the conclusion of the regular legislative session.

Dram-shop bill draws approval courts hold bars liable for serving alcoholic drinks to intoxicated customers who become drunken drivers and cause death and damage on the highway.

The so-caffed "dram-shop" measure was approved by the Senate 29-2 and the House 140-1.

The bill would take immediate effect if signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements.

House-Senate conferees came up with a compromise version of the bill Monday, the last day of the regular legislative session. The conferees scrapped a section of the bill that would have allowed party hosts to be held responsible if a drunken guest became a drunken driver

"Party host is a gray area," said Rep. Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth and House sponsor of the bill. "We are basically after someone that took your money in return for alcohol and let you go out onto the highway obviously intoxicated. That's the problem, not coming by (a friend's house) and having a toddy on the way home.

Under the bill, the survivors of someone who is killed by a drunken driver could collect damages from a business that sold drinks to the driver, if it was clear the patron was sold drinks after he or she was drunk.

The Texas Supreme Court is currently reviewing a Houston lawsuit filed by survivors of a man killed in a wreck caused by a man who drank margaritas at an

There was plenty legislators couldn't, wouldn't, didn't do

AUSTIN (AP) — When it ended, — not enough taxes to pay for them. the 70th Legislature couldn't, wouldn't and didn't do quite a lot including pass the one bill that must be enacted to keep government's doors open.

The budget issue dominated the session from its opening gavel on Jan. 13 until final adjournment Monday night.

But despite all the attention and hundreds of hours of work, the House, Senate and governor failed 40 agree on a 1988-89 spending blueprint.

So lawmakers will return to Austin for a special session on June 22 to try, try again to write a budget for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1.

Gov. Bill Clements proposed spending a total of $36.9 billion, which would have required $2.9 billion in new taxes. After campaigning on a "no-new-taxes" theme, he agreed to the extra $2.9

billion, but not a penny more. His threat to veto higher taxes helped stop the budget process in its tracks as the House and Senate approved bigger spending bills but While tax-and-spend issues topped the Legislature's list of failures, several other big issues fell by the wayside as well. Among

Lottery

When the session convened, many lawmakers said the financial crunch meant Texas finally might join the more than two dozen states that run lottery games: Texas needed money, and opinion polls showed 70 percent of the public in

Don't place those bets. A proposed constitutional amendment to create a lottery couldn't find a winning number in the House.

Appointed Judges Chief Justice John L. Hill of the Texas Supreme Court came to lawmakers early in the session with a plan he said would improve the quality of justice. Hill urged passage of legislation to have state judges appointed to the bench rather than elected.

Lawmakers decided that idea was out of order, and the bill never got out of committee.

Texaco-Pennzoil

In a high-profile assault that saw dozens of lobbyists signing on with the two principals, a bill was introduced to help Texaco Inc. with its legal dilemma.

Under state law, Texaco was required to post an $11 billion bond to appeal the loss of its legal battle with Pennzoil. Texaco backed a bill that would have put a $1 billion lid on such bonds, but the bill ran out of gas. Instead, lawmakers passed a resolution to study the question.

Handguns

National Rifle Association members and others urged lawmakers to pass a law to enable Texans to be licensed to carry handguns. Lawmakers shot down that Budget Authority The governor lost, too.

Clements had demanded 'budget execution authority'' legislative talk for increased power for a governor to control state agency spending. He didn't get it but may have the last laugh: He says he will place the item on the special session agenda
