

An aerial photograph of Jones Valley Thursday afternoon shows a view toward the southeast of the flooding in that area, as a result of runoff from Natural Dam Lake west of Big Spring. The area shown in the photograph includes Second and San Jacinto streets in the lower center, and the back side of Chuck's Surplus and the Harley-Davidson Shop. At the upper center of the photograph is the new Salvation Army building, Fifth and San Antonio.

Water level stabilizing

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

City, highway department and water district officials say that flooding in the Jones Valley area appears to be stabilizing, and without additional rains, water levels in that area should soon recede.

Joe Pickle, secretary/treasurer of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said that the level of Natural Dam Lake stood at 2250.06 feet this morning, a decrease of approximately one quarter of a foot from Thursday.

Pickle added that the rate of discharge from the lake was 500 cubic feet per second, a decrease from previous readings. He said that inflow to the lake was virtually non-existent.

He also pointed out that the outflow from Beals Creek east of town was about the same as Natural Dam Lake, and barring any more rain, levels should decrease even more.

City Public Works Director Tom Decell echoed Pickle's comments, noting that the situation appears to be stabilizing.

He said that there has been no increase in the level of Beals Creek within the past 24 hours, and that any further increases in the Jones Valley area would depend on the rate of discharge from Natural Dam Lake.

Mike Chetty, an engineer with the Texas Highway Department, said that the situation appears to be stabilizing. STABILIZING page 2A

Two facilities closed today by bomb scare

The Salvation Army headquarters and thrift store was to be closed from noon to 1 p.m. today after officials received threat of a bomb due to explode at 12:30 p.m.

Liz Smith, thrift store manager and youth programs coordinator, said police checked but found no bomb at the new center.

The Army fed the Westside Community Center youth early, in anticipation of the evacuation, she said.

Although the threat involved the building on Aylford Street, Smith said she was going to close the thrift store also, as an extra precaution.

Officials discuss removing structures

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

City, county and CRMWD officials today discussed removing three railroad structures to reduce Jones Valley area flooding.

Three U.S. Army Corps of Engineers representatives who attended the meeting said the governor must declare the area a disaster area before the Corps can take any action other than emergency diking procedures.

Today's meeting was the first of a committee formed approximately five weeks ago to study concerns about Natural Dam Lake.

Two city, county and Colorado River Municipal Water officials are represented on the committee. No representative from the Railroad was present.

Councilman D.D. Johnston offered to talk to railroad officials about removing the structures.

Officials agreed, however, that nothing can be done until current flooding subsides. "It's physically impossible to do anything until the creek gets back into its banks," Public Works Director Tom Decell said.

Decell said a trestle bridge, concrete structures and a sunken railroad bridge near Owen Street are obstructing the flow of water through Beals Creek.

The structures were the responsibility of the railroad company, but are no longer used, Decell said.

Officials also discussed problems with water stacking by Midway Road and silting in the creek bed near Farm-to-Market Road 700.

County Commissioner Paul Allen said brush along Beals Creek should be cleared. "It looks like a little African jungle," Allen said.

Decell and Water District Assistant

Manager Rod Lewis said water levels measured at One-mile Lake have remained stable for the past 24 hours.

In addition, Lewis reported that levels at Natural Dam Lake have begun to decline.

Lewis presented committee members with several issues to consider, including who should decide when releases from Natural Dam Lake are made and how to decide when to halt the releases.

Johnston suggested that city and county officials discuss the issues with their governing bodies before commenting.

Custody bill gives guidelines

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Everybody stands to suffer in a divorce case, but no one as much as children, says G.W. Jordy, local chapter president of Children's Rights through Informed Effort.

Jordy said the rights of children are often overlooked and the major emphasis is on which parent should get custody. As a result, the child is often "forced to choose between parents he loves equally."

"If they fight over stupid little things like a couch or a chair, how much do you think they'll fight over a child," Jordy asked.

To put more emphasis on the child's rights in a custody case, CRIE and other organizations have supported passage of House Bill 617, which now awaits Gov. Bill Clement's signature.

The legislation will give a judge more specific guidelines in taking the child's well-being into consideration when awarding custody, and would make it easier for the judge to award joint custody, the bill explains.

Rep. Shaw, who voted for the bill, said he hopes the bill will alleviate concerns of non-custodial parents.

"There's a lot of folks — male and female — who felt that the old law was unfair, and I hope this bill reassures them," he said. "This situation will be much more healthy for the child and the parents."

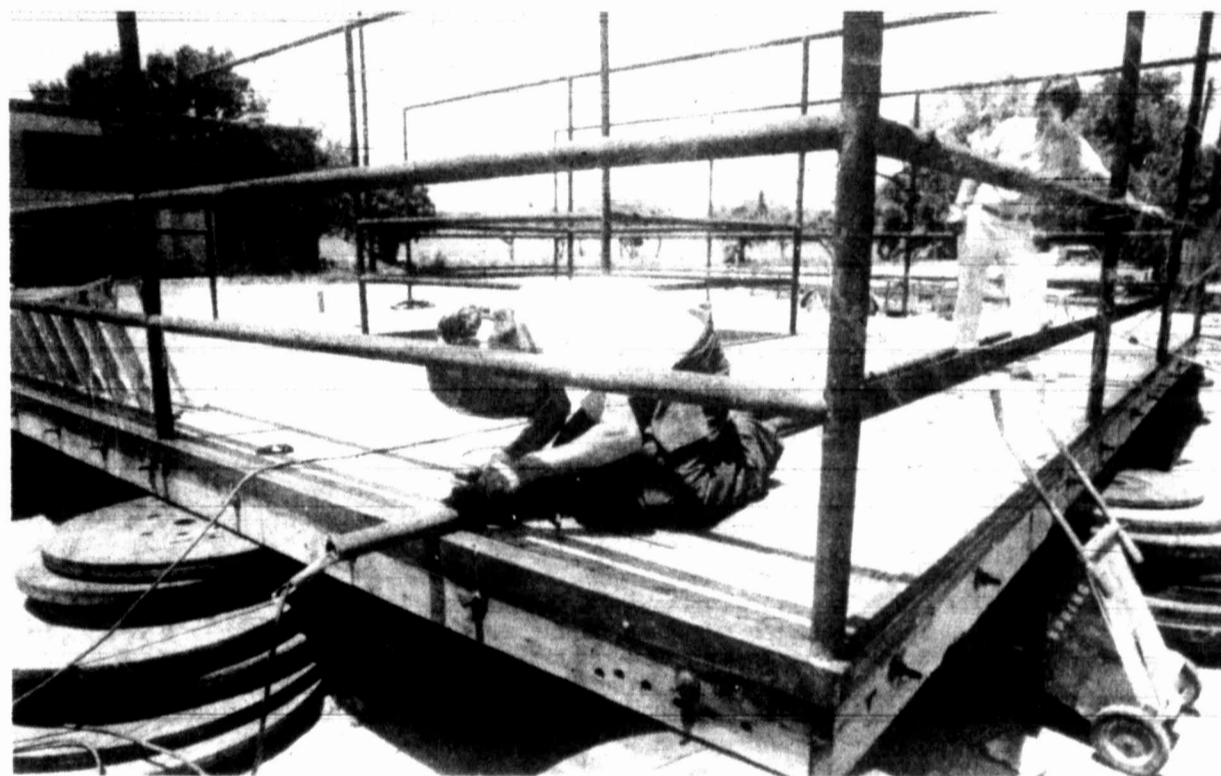

Rep. Charles Evans of Hurst, who co-sponsored the bill, saw it as an opportunity to "... get the children out of the courtroom."

"In the past, parents would go into court and would start calling each other names," Evans said. "Now they have to be careful if they want a chance at joint custody."

District Clerk statistics indicate that 150 divorce cases have been filed in 118th District Court between January and May of this year.

Custody cases currently are governed by the Tender Years Act, which awarded custody "in the best interest of the child" without setting specific guidelines for judges to follow in determining those interests, Jordy said.

Another problem with the current law, Jordy said, is that the CUSTODY page 2A

Ed Garrett, left, welds pipes that will serve as the roof of a fishing dock being built for use at the lake at Comanche Trail Park. The dock, being constructed with money from the Permian Basin Chapter Ex-Prisoners of War, the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Jaycees and the City of Big Spring, was specifically designed for wheelchair use, but will be available for all, officials report. Council Bees and ambulance on agenda

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

City Council will discuss ordinances limiting or banning bees and features of an ambulance service contract at a work session at 3 p.m. Monday at the Big Spring Airpark meeting room.

The session will be followed by a called meeting, in which the Council is expected to act on the ambulance resolution. If passed on first reading, it could be passed on second and final reading at the regular Council meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson is developing sample ordinances on the bee question, ranging from banning bees outright and declaring them a public nuisance, to limiting the number and size of hives per area.

One sample ordinance calls for a property line barrier that will prevent bees from flying through it, if hives are within 50 feet of the property line.

Wilkerson said the barrier could be a screen, shrubs or a fence.

The ordinance also requires fresh, clean water facilities nearby, so the bees won't have to fly elsewhere for water, he said.

Council had discussed banning bees last month after citizens complained of a beekeeping neighbor's bees swarming and stinging.

However, they considered merely limiting the number of hives per area after others spoke in favor of bees and indicated that action would suffice.

A contract with Rural/Metro ambulance company the Council will scrutinize is generally the same as the one with Lee Ambulance, City Manager Mack Wofford said. Council may make changes, however, he said.

Differences in the proposed contract are the number of vehicles, staffing, the subsidy and reporting information.

The company is to provide one ambulance unit 24 hours daily, one 10 hours, five days a week, and one on call full-time, plus an additional ambulance to be staffed by city firefighters trained as emergency medical technicians.

Lee Ambulance provides one unit on duty 24 hours daily and one on call full-time, Wofford has said.

The city will pay 55 percent of the $101,000 subsidy to Rural/Metro and the county pay 45 percent, officials agreed earlier this week.

Previously the city paid 60 percent and the county 40 percent, and the subsidy was about $98,000 in cash and services.

The proposed contract would require the company to report financial information, the number of calls within and outside the city, the number of emergencies, response times, charges to consumers, collections and the ratio of billings to collections, Wofford said.

Visit turns into a job for victim

AUSTIN (AP) — Joey Herrera arrived at the governor's office to deliver a message and left with a new job — Gov. Bill Clement's liaison to the Saragosa tornado relief effort.

Herrera, who lost his wife and infant child in the May 22 disaster, headed home to Pecos with the governor's orders: "Go to work."

"I think it will serve a great purpose. He has a lot of friends out there. He's been on the school board out there. He's been with the Department of Human Services. He understands the circumstances," Clements said after a half-hour meeting Thursday with Herrera.

Herrera has been a DHS employee in the region for nearly seven years. He was a speaker at the Head Start graduation ceremony in the Saragosa community center that was hit by the tornado, and his wife and infant child were killed there.

Herrera said he had asked to meet with the governor to counter some negative publicity he believed Clements received immediately after the disaster.

"I had just come down here to thank him and show him we do have support for him," Herrera said. "When he went to Pecos and the Saragosa area the last time ... he got some very negative press. Emotions were running real high."

"I asked him not to forget the people after two or three or four months. People are so afraid that two or three months from now, all this abundance of help is just going to cease. They don't realize that people are going to be there (helping) for years," he said.

Herrera was a student at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls when that city was hit by a tornado in April 1979.

"I don't have a family anymore. I lost my wife and my only child in this accident," he said. "I still want to stay in that community. This is the place I'd like to be, helping these people."

JUN 5 1987

Hispanic event attracting candidates

AUSTIN (AP) — The national League of United Latin American Citizens convention in Corpus Christi June 24-28 will play a key role in the 1988 presidential primaries, its chairman says.

Ruben Bonilla, also chairman of Mexican American Democrats, told a news conference Thursday the convention speakers would include seven announced or possible contenders in the 1988 presidential campaigns.

Only one is Republican, U.S. Sen. Jack Kemp of New York.

Bonilla said President Reagan, Vice President George Bush and other GOP presidential contenders had previous commitments for the date, and "we didn't ask Gov. Bill Clements."

The Democratic presidential possibilities scheduled to speak are U.S. Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, former Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona and U.S. Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is the keynote speaker on Thursday, June 25. Other guest speakers include U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros.

Bonilla said LULAC is the oldest and largest Hispanic organization.

"Basically this agenda provides our country with the largest single gathering of presidential candidates or contenders before any Hispanic organization in America," Bonilla said.

"There never has been such an array of presidential contenders of both parties, which underscores the importance of the Hispanic as a pivotal vote in the presidential primaries in America," he said.

He noted, however, that the 3,500 delegates expected to attend would not make any formal endorsement of any contender.

"This is more a public forum than anything else," he said. "There is a great deal of unfamiliarity with many of these candidates."

Bonilla said the main convention costs, estimated at about $200,000, would be underwritten by various corporations who would have exhibits at the convention.

The guest speakers included Jere W. Thompson, president of Southland Corp., honorary convention chairman, and Jim Adams, president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Jones Valley

Jones Valley is shown flooded with runoff from Natural Dam Lake, looking towards the southwest. Below, the railroad tracks are covered with water. To the far right is the portion of Third Street that has been blocked off. Officials stated that the situation appeared to be stabilizing, and barring any more rainfall should begin receding soon.

Group dedicated to children's rights

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Backed by a belief that children are overlooked by state family laws, a group of Texans founded Children's Rights through Informed Effort a little more than six months ago.

"We got tired of people talking about men's rights and women's rights," G.W. Jordy, local chapter president said. "It's time someone looked after the child's rights."

To that end, Jordy and others founded the organization that concerns itself with all facets of Texas family law affecting children.

It has grown, Jordy explained, to nine regional offices and 30 to 35 local groups in Texas — including the Big Spring chapter. It is composed of 23 men and women who meet on the second and fourth Thursday each month, he said.

Jordy feels that, for the most part, the state's family laws are "grossly inadequate" because there are not enough specific guidelines to protect the best interest of children.

A particular area concerning the group is that the child's wishes are often not considered in divorce cases. He explained that a child's preference does not have legal impact until he is 14, and even then his wishes may not be granted.

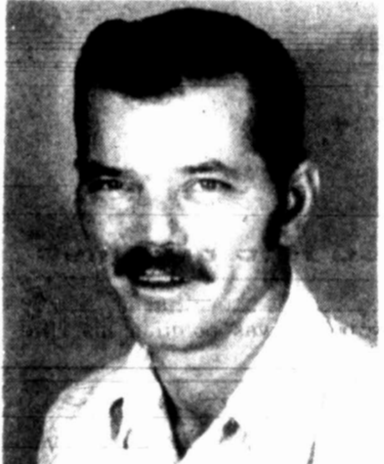

Child abuse also concerns the group.

The organization's concerns are two-fold. They condemn any form of abuse — sexual, psychological and physical. "I realize that many times (child abuse) is a mental shortcoming on the parent's part," Jordy said. "But I still see no use for it."

The group also concerns itself with the issue of false allegations of abuse. Jordy sees it as a tool that some parents use in custody battles. He considers the problem widespread and believes it damages the child by dragging him through a nasty custody fight, and brands the wrongly-accused parent, sometimes for life.

The organization is planning its next state convention, with the major focus on the false allegation issue and the new alimony bill that recently passed the Legislature.

parent "with the biggest wallet" and money to be spent on litigation, had the best chance of winning a custody battle.

The new law addresses those problems. The bill states that in determining the best interest of the child, the judge should first consider "... whether the physical, psychological, or emotional needs and development of the child will benefit from the appointment of joint managing conservators."

The law also instructs the judge to take into consideration the ability of the parents to give first priority to the welfare of the child, the past participation of both parents in child rearing, the proximity of both parents' homes, and, if the child is over 14, his preference for or against joint custody.

In Evan's estimation, another important aspect of the law protects one party from "frivolous or harassing" litigation of the other.

Under the old law, he said, "An inmate at Texas Department of Corrections could sue for custody, and the court had to consider it."

The new law states that if the judge deems the litigation "... is filed frivolously or ... to harass a party," the judge shall force the offending party to pay both attorneys' fees and court costs.

The bill also gives the court authority to suggest that parents settle any future arguments through a mediator, a dispute resolution method.

The major argument against the bill, Jordy said, was that child support payments to the custodial parent would be reduced.

However, Evans noted, the law does not specifically reduce child support payments, nor does it abolish sole or predominant custody.

The bill states that the awarding of joint custody doesn't limit "... the authority of the court to order support of the child, including payments," from one parent to another.

"What the bill does is give the judge more authority to decide what's best for the child, be it sole or joint custody," Jordy said.

Evans noted that it will give the divorced parents an equal chance to mold the child's character.

Snyder boy bitten by dog

An 11-year-old Snyder boy received medical attention after he was bitten by a dog Thursday afternoon.

Cody Lewis was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center for minor wounds on his arms, torso and legs, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Lewis was in a group playing with the dog, a white spitz of about 20 pounds, when it bit him, police spokesman Lonnie Smith said. The incident occurred outdoors on the dog-owner's property. The owner is Wendell Camel, 2006 S. Runnels St., Smith said.

Although the dog has been vaccinated, it is being quarantined, a normal procedure, he said.

A man who suffered stab wounds to the lower torso refused to tell police where, when, why or who did it, Lt. Jerry Edwards said. The man gave his name as Wesley Davenport, but would not reveal his age, address or occupation, Edwards said. Police responded to the call at 2:57 a.m. today at 1000 E. 20th St.

Delorez Garza Cantu of Ackery told police someone stole her purse from the coat rack at Golden Corral restaurant, 503 E. FM 700, between 4:30 and 5 p.m. Thursday. Also taken were approximately $30 cash, cosmetics, a $68 women's watch and a $135 pair of eyeglasses.

Vandals kicked in the door of a shed at Westside Community Center between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday, causing an estimated $60 damage.

Tony Vega, 22, 3206 W. Eighth St., was arrested at 405 S. Benton St. Thursday night on a charge of criminal trespass. He was transferred to the county jail and released this morning on a $500 bond.

Department in Big Spring, said that there have been no new road closures in the city since Thursday.

Those closures were Third Street between Presidio and San Antonio streets and the intersections of North Second and Runnels Streets and of North Second and Main Streets.

Aaron Combs, of Tate Plumbing, 1003 West Third Street, whose business has remained open despite the flooding, said today that the water level in the area appeared to be receding at a slow rate.

Charles Vieregge, owner of Flo-Rite Sign Company, 819 W. Third, said that high water is not his only problem.

He said that four-wheel drive trucks splashing through the water were causing "tidal waves" to come crashing into his store, soaking his supplies and merchandise. He said that he was erecting barricades in an attempt to keep the water out.

In related news, Randall Dillard of the Highway Department in Lubbock said that details had not been finalized, but the department hoped to have at least one lane open on Highway 87 between Lamesa and O'Donnell each way in approximately two and a half weeks.

Two residents choose to stay in flooded Jones Valley area

An elderly man and woman trapped inside their houses by flood waters had refused to leave despite pleas by Salvation Army officials and the Fire Department, said Liz Smith, Salvation Army youth programs coordinator.

"They don't want to leave their place," she said.

The Army brought food to the woman, identified as Mrs. Morran, living in a trailer at 911 W. Third St., after being notified by the Meals on Wheels program, she said.

The other individual was identified as an elderly man living in a house on Second Street. Smith said she believes he agreed this morning to leave.

The man, affected by flooding last year, stayed in Salvation Army housing for a day, she said.

Although flood waters in that area are said to have receded somewhat in some places since Thursday, some danger may still exist, Smith said.

"I'm thinking about the electricity" if water comes into their homes, and about snakes, she said.

Smith said she planned to visit the woman this afternoon, in an attempt to persuade her to leave the flooded area.

"Maybe a woman can get her out of there," she said.

Lemonade stand loophole found

FORT WORTH — City officials who put the squeeze on three young brothers' lemonade stand relented after finding a citrus-sized loophole in the zoning code.

In a statement, city officials Thursday said the three could reopen their stand today. The all-American enterprise had been shut down last week.

"We just got word," Gina Merrick said after learning her sons' stand is legal after all. "We are going to open (this) morning."

The business run by the Merrick brothers — Chip, 14, J.J., 7, and Ty, 5, — had become a familiar sight to neighborhood residents, offering lemonade, other drinks and homemade cookies.

The brothers used the proceeds to contribute to their church and its mission work, buy a home computer and help pay for a family vacation in Florida.

But last week, city code-enforcement officers informed them the stand constituted a commercial enterprise on residential property, a zoning violation. An anonymous caller had complained to city officials.

Chip and J.J. slapped up a sign across the lemonade stand that read, "Closed by city order." The closing prompted a flood of phone calls from residents to city officials protesting the move.

On Thursday, the Merricks got a call from Kay Granger, head of the city's zoning commission. Ms. Granger said she had discovered a provision in the law that allows businesses such as lemonade stands.

The Merrick brothers, left to right, Chip, J.J., and Ty pose with their lemonade stand in Fort Worth. The stand was closed by a city inspector because it violated city zoning laws, but will reopen today after the city found a loophole.

Soldier plunges to death

SAN ANTONIO — A Turkish soldier apparently used a hammer to break out a window of a high-rise building before plunging 26 floors to his death, authorities say.

An autopsy was scheduled today for Kadri Bulhaz, 25, who plummeted through the window in the 28-story InterFirst Plaza downtown building just before 11 a.m. Thursday.

Bulhaz was a Turkish national who was currently unemployed but had applied for United States citizenship, said police.

The man apparently broke through a two-pane window on the 26th floor and then jumped off a ledge, said Detective Jimmy Holguin. Bulhaz was pronounced dead at the scene. Police were still investigating the death.

Neighbors reject report

HOUSTON — Police statements that neighbors failed to heed the dying screams of a stabbing victim are being angrily rejected by some residents.

Houston police say at least three neighbors said they heard the screams of Terri Lynn Parker Haywood, 27, who was found dead by police at her Houston home early Tuesday with 18 stab wounds in her body.

The woman's husband, Calvin Haywood, 24, has been charged with the slaying, police spokesman J.C. Mosier said.

"I'm concerned about my neighbor," said Jo Ann Crosby, who lives on the street where the slaying occurred. "But if you look out your window and don't see anything, you can't do anything. I would call the police if I had a phone."

Transcript release denied

LUBBOCK — A magistrate declined to release transcripts in the case of a Honduran man accused of selling cocaine after attorneys said unsealing documents would harm national security and could endanger the man.

Federal Magistrate J.Q. Warnick partially agreed to a KLBK-TV request to unseal the transcript by ordering release of an edited version. He reversed himself last week, however, and decided to unseal the entire transcript Thursday unless attorneys objected.

Prosecutor Dick Baker, in a motion filed Thursday, claimed that releasing the transcript of Eugenio O. Molina's April detention hearing would harm national security.

AIDS bill to be signed

AUSTIN — Texas Gov. Bill Clements says he will sign into law controversial legislation requiring couples seeking a marriage license to be tested for AIDS when the deadly disease reaches a critical level in the state.

The governor said Thursday that, in connection with the measure, he asked state health officials to present to him a series of options for dealing with AIDS in Texas.

"It's a serious problem," said Clements, "and we're going to do something about it."

He said the measure he intends to sign is a comprehensive bill to control communicable disease and the marriage license provision is only part of it.

Victim aimed rifle at police

DALLAS — Autopsy results show that an elderly man fatally shot by police was pointing his rifle toward two officers when they fired at him.

The 81-year-old man, David Horton, had a vision problem that would have impaired his ability to "see all of what he was trying to observe or identify," the Dallas County medical examiner's office said Thursday.

Autopsy results indicated Horton had consumed some alcohol but was not legally drunk at the time of the shooting.

"We consider it (the autopsy) a significant piece of evidence as to the condition of Mr. Horton and the position of Mr. Horton and his weapon at the time he was shot," said police Capt. John Holt.

Minority leaders have criticized the two officers for approaching Horton on foot May 18, without using lights or sirens. The police department's deadly force guidelines have been under scrutiny.

Rule keeps top students from graduation honors

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two black honor students with their class' best grade-point averages would have given traditional valedictory and salutatory addresses — but only if they were graduating next year instead of now.

Eric Fisher and Eureka People, who were knocked out of the top two spots because Scholastic Aptitude Test scores were used as tie-breakers, lost a federal court challenge that charged the SAT discriminated against minorities.

Fisher and Miss People led their classmates with respective GPAs of 4.3 and 4.2 at Dunbar Magnet

School of Science and Engineering. But they were passed over for valedictorian and salutatorian because the school district doesn't recognize averages above 4.0, counting all students at or above 4.0 as equal.

To break the tie, officials used the SAT. Fisher and Miss People lost their honors to two white students who had lower grade-point averages but higher scores on the SAT.

"I think it's kind of unfair," Fisher said. "They offer a 5.0 grading scale, but then they stop at 4.0."

SSC panel has tough decision

Members of the Garden City SSC Commission are facing a difficult decision.

It's an all-or-nothing decision. It's a choice of continuing against long-shot odds, or giving up a chance to attract a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Whatever the choice, the Garden City SSC Commission already has our support.

To make its decision, the SSC Commission has requested the participation of citizens and businesses throughout the Permian Basin, all of whom stand to gain or lose as a result of the decision.

We're being asked to indicate whether we favor submitting an independent or direct Garden City site proposal to the U.S. Department of Energy and, if so, whether we're willing to commit funds to support an independent proposal.

We've been told an enhanced, well-done proposal could cost an additional $100,000 to $500,000 to prepare.

Obviously, then, a statement of support should carry with it a commitment to contribute toward the cost.

Commission Chairman Ralph McLaughlin has been indicating for many weeks that the Garden City proposal may be the least expensive — yet highly feasible — option for the federal government.

We know the commission is reviewing how realistic that assessment is.

If the commission determines that assessment is correct, then we believe the commission deserves both our statements and cash pledges of support.

Naturally, the question is being asked: Can we afford it?

One appropriate response is another question: Can we afford not to continue after having invested so much already?

The commission has said it will make the decision in an executive session in Midland on Monday afternoon.

Between then and now, we think phones should be ringing as a result of citizens and businesses registering opinions for or against continuing the effort — with an appropriate cash pledge if that opinion favors submitting a direct proposal.

Members may register their opinion by contacting members of the SSC Commission directly or officers of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Critical letter prompts response

To the editor:

This is an answer to the letter in the paper on May 29 by Cynthia Reitzer — concerning the emergency run on the man who jumped from a moving bus on FM 700.

As an employee of the ambulance service, my partner and I responded to that call. I would like to share with you the facts.

My partner and I had just left the gas pumps of a filling station on Gregg Street enroute back to our station on Fourth Street. We always have a radio monitoring the police channel and heard the police report come in to the dispatcher.

My partner and I were enroute before the police dispatcher even called the ambulance office on our "hot line." As soon as the call was verified we turned on our siren and emergency lights, which is a state requirement when enroute to the scene of any emergency.

I have below the official times of this emergency call, so recorded by the police department and kept in their records.

Those times are: 4:18 p.m. — called to service; also 4:18 p.m. — amb. officially enroute; 4:22 p.m. — arrived at scene; 4:37 p.m. — enroute to hospital; 4:45 p.m. arrived at hospital; and 4:49 p.m. available for service.

I believe those times speak for themselves. And to Cynthia Reitzer, if you have any questions and/or would like to visit our station and talk to any of us, please feel free to do so.

Veterans reprove officials' absence

To the editor:

We, the veterans of the Big Spring area, wish to thank most heartily all city officials and representatives — from the mayor to the lowliest councilperson — for their support of the Memorial Day observance at the VA Medical Center on Saturday, May 30.

The mayor and his cohorts were conspicuous by their absence. Not to be outdone, the fire marshal and chief of police also were outstanding no-shows. And no officials from the Chamber of Commerce appeared to ruin the perfect record on non-attendance.

No doubt there is an excellent explanation. They were all at church — but no, the observance was 10 a.m. on Saturday. Critical golf games perhaps or the heart-rendering rescue of kittens from trees? Was there a beautiful baby contest the mayor attended?

While the civic leaders were not mailed engraved invitations, 30 to 40 people in Big Spring attended the ceremony without special invitation.

Do the city fathers read the Big Spring Herald? Guess not, or they would have read the article in the paper on Monday, May 25th. Oh well, they probably won't read this either, so no damage done.

It is odd that the keynote speaker, Lt. Robert West, managed to find his way from Abilene. The Honor Guard made it from San Angelo. But then, these people are veterans and so are trained, dedicated people.

It may be just as well our city fathers didn't come. The Honor Guard may have been tempted to use live ammo. When elected officials fail to show support and respect for their constituency, the danger of a coup exists.

If nothing else, vets vote. So get with it, officials, or watch out next election.

Best wishes for the remainder of your terms.

Soviets open career doors for special espionage units

By JACK ANDERSON

and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Americans of a certain age grew up with stories of the crafty, camera-toting Japanese tourists before World War II, whose snapshots included Pearl Harbor or other military targets in the background. Now it's the sly Soviet tourists in Western Europe that America and its allies must beware of. They could be "Spetsnaz" — spies with a difference.

The Soviet Spetsnaz (special forces) who reportedly travel abroad disguised as tourists or truck drivers are gathering more than snapshots.

They are familiarizing themselves with the geography of NATO countries they may be called upon to infiltrate in the final hours before an East-West war — to assassinate Western leaders, carry out sabotage and otherwise create confusion and chaos.

Behind the smile of Mikhail Gorbachev and the sunshine of his glasnost (openness) policy, our intelligence sources say, is the dark fact that the Soviets have been increasing their special forces rapidly over the last two years. There are at least 30,000 of these intensively trained experts in behind-the-lines disruption, poised in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe for rapid deployment into the West.

"Evidence of this being a growth industry is both recent and convincing," warns a secret briefing document we've seen. "For example, new units have been created and others are increasing in size."

Dedicated training facilities are receiving new training aids and equipment, including mockups of U.S. and NATO military systems. Numbers of personnel attending certain training programs have significantly increased.

"This trend appears to extend to the non-Soviet Warsaw Pact special-purpose forces also. Upgraded equipment and refined operational techniques have been added to Spetsnaz units. Collectively, these factors show the threat to NATO's rear area is growing."

The briefing paper adds that the KGB, with Gorbachev's blessing, has been charting "new roles and missions" for Spetsnaz, and that there are "new facilities under construction (while) existing facilities

Jack Anderson

(are) improved." Warsaw Pact Spetsnaz units have been expanding in Moscow's orders.

The briefing presentation, which includes nearly three dozen slides, is being used to convince NATO members' leaders that the Spetsnaz forces are a real threat that must be countered.

"These (Spetsnaz) troops are recognized as posing a significant threat to NATO Europe, the United Kingdom and North America in wartime," the briefing paper warns, "and represent an important instrument of Soviet power projection in the Third World."

The Soviet Spetsnaz troops don't lounge around in the barracks just because there's no war threatening. "Peacetime missions include political security and internal political control," the briefing document explains, "and political action and power projection abroad."

But if war breaks out, the Spetsnaz really go to work. "In wartime, certain of the special-purpose forces are designed to operate behind enemy lines, independent of regular Soviet forces for extended periods of time," the briefing paper explains. "What will they be doing? 'Conducting assassination, sabotage, reconnaissance and direct attack of a wide variety of key political, military and economic targets.'"

These jacks-of-all-trades are elite by definition. "Political reliability is a fundamental criterion for their selection," the briefing document points out. "Special-purpose forces include Ministry of Internal Affairs internal troops of special designation, KGB Department 8 assassination and sabotage teams and (military intelligence) special-purpose troops."

SPOOK STORIES: The CIA sent a contra hit team into Managua, Nicaragua, in 1984 to kill the nine-member Sandinista ruling council, according to a timely book to be published soon: "The CIA, A Forgotten History" by journalist William Blum.

The assassination squad's mission was scrubbed, according to Blum, when its explosives failed to show up. An earlier anecdote involved President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan.

They agreed on a plan to "liquidate" Indonesian President Sukarno, Blum writes. But the CIA official passing along this information in a memo confessed that he didn't know whether "liquidate" meant "murder or overthrow." Sukarno died in bed years later.

SEMPER FIDEL: The Cuban economy continues to deteriorate, and President Fidel Castro thinks he has found the right scapegoat: profiteers.

"Prices in maintenance, construction and transport, to name just a few sectors, are scandalously high, covering up for inefficiency, overstaffing and overspending," he complained in a recent speech.

But abandonment of Marxism is not under consideration. "Becoming the sorcerer's apprentice," that is the apprentice of capitalism, is not the answer," quoth Castro.

MINI-EDITORIAL: President Reagan's defenders, professing reverence for the Constitution, keep insisting that it gives the chief executive sole power to conduct foreign policy.

But does it? The single relevant sentence, giving him the power to make treaties and appoint ambassadors, includes "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate" as an integral part of the wording.

Congress, on the other hand, is given explicit power to declare war, provide for the common defense and regulate commerce with foreign nations.

The 200th anniversary year of the Constitution might be a good time for those who claim its support to sit down and actually read it.

Explanation not enough

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

We were watching live television coverage of the memorial service for the men killed on the USS Stark

President Reagan got up and explained to the friends and relatives of the 37 who died what they were doing in the Persian Gulf in the first place.

The president said, in essence, if the United States didn't keep a military presence in the area then our enemies might take it over and cut off the oil that is precious to the economies of the free world.

That might be true, but if one of mine had been killed abroad the Stark that wouldn't have given me much consolation.

The cameras moved across the faces in the audience. An older couple who had lost a son held each other against the grief. A young widow fanned the heat away from the child in her lap. They had lost a husband and a father.

The person watching the television with me said, "I can't stand watching things like this. They always make me cry."

She walked into the kitchen. We've known each other for less than a year. She laughs at my jokes and has a spirit of forgiveness about her.

She was a military brat. Her father married a German lady and they moved back to the States. She was born on an army base.

Later her father flew helicopters in Vietnam. Not many helicopter pilots came back alive, but her father was lucky. He came back.

After returning home, when she was still a small child, her father was instructing other pilots and there was an accident. He was killed.

She had come back from the kitchen and had sat down in front of the television again. President and Mrs. Reagan were on the screen consoling the friends and relatives who had come to the service.

"I remember," she said, "when the man came to our house to tell my mother about my father. I kicked him in the shins because he made my mother cry. I'd never seen her cry before."

And then she went back into another room and brought out something for me to see. It was a picture of her father.

He was a handsome man in his uniform. She said had he lived he would have been 52.

I could sense she had a very good notion of how those at the memorial service felt. Certainly, she had a better notion than most of us.

Those who have grieved in anguish for those who have fallen on a million battlefields forever are entwined.

When they played taps for the dead of the Stark, I couldn't tell if there were tears in her eyes, but she watched in intense silence listening to the sobs and screams wishing, I think, she was there to comfort as only one who has suffered the same loss can comfort.

The Iraqi government says the firing on the Stark was a mistake.

It certainly was, and those responsible ought to be made to pay dearly for it.

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

After a clear and pleasant morning there was an evening shower.

Pennsylvania Chief Justice Thomas McKean, having "been credibly informed, by an affirmation solemnly made before him, that Thomas Truxton and John Green, both of the City of Philadelphia Mariners, and Master of ships, intend to break our peace, by fighting each other in single combat with swords, pistols or other dangerous weapons," issued a writ for their arrest.

Both men were just back from a voyage to Canton, China. Green had captured the first American ship to make that voyage. The incident did not terribly damage Truxton's career. After distinguished service as a captain and squadron commander in the conflict with France, he was elected sheriff of Philadelphia in 1816.

CONFEDERATION TODAY
Only New York, New Jersey, Virginia and North Carolina had the required two delegates present, so Congress again lacked a quorum.

CONVENTION TODAY
Gov. William Livingston of New Jersey took his seat.

The Convention, in committee of the whole, considered the proposal that the judiciary be appointed by the national legislature. James Wilson (Pa.) favored their appointment by the executive; he argued intrigue, partiality and concealment would be the consequence of selection by the legislature.

John Rutledge (S.C.) was against any national court system except a single supreme one; the state courts could be used. Benjamin Franklin, perhaps sensing tension, suggested the Scots' method: Let the lawyers choose; they'd choose the best of the bar so they could share the largest possible vacated practice. Wilson and James Madison moved to leave the method of appointment blank for a while, which passed.

The delegates then agreed that the judiciary should have tenure during good behavior and a fixed salary. They also resolved to make provision for admitting new states to the union.

Several other proposals were taken up, and the committee then rose for the day.

DELEGATES TODAY
William Samuel Johnson (Conn.) was not feeling well while he attended at the state House. His expenses, including "Bark" (quinine), were 6 shillings and 10 pence.

George Washington dined with a large company at the Robert Morris, and spent the evening there.

LOOKING BACK
State of the Nation
This day's Massachusetts

Gazette printed "extracts of a letter from a gentleman of character in New York" (Nathan Dane?) to his friend in this town (Boston), dated May 26.

The gentleman of character's first sentence is an excellent summary of this day's Convention debate, and the remainder is an insightful summary of one widely-held view of the state of the nation:

"The convention opens the great field of political speculation; and there seems to be at present an astonishing variety in the opinion even of respectable men concerning the alterations which ought to be made in our federal system."

It ever has been, and ever will be, the effect of letting men loose in that field — and I shall think it a fortunate event if a tolerable majority can, in the course of a year or two, be brought to think alike of our national character and condition, and to adopt alterations in the forms of government suitable to them.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa — A man who shot and killed the mayor of Mount Pleasant and wounded two city council members at a meeting after complaining about his backed-up sewer was found guilty Thursday of murder.

Ralph Orin Davis showed no emotion as the jury's verdict was read.

The panel deliberated two hours before finding Davis, 69, guilty of first-degree murder in the death of Mayor Edward King and two counts of attempted murder in the wounding of council members Joann Sankey and Ronald Dupree on Dec. 10.

First-degree murder carries a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment.

Cable drops PTL club

DENVER — Telecommunications Inc., the nation's largest multiple-system cable TV operator, says it has dropped the "PTL Club" as part of a plan to consolidate all religious programming on one channel.

The decision to remove the PTL cable program from TCI's system has nothing to do with the recent controversy over the Rev. Jim Bakker, who resigned as head of the ministry. Scott Hiegel, vice president of the Denver-based company's central division, said Wednesday.

"We're in negotiations to provide a channel that would combine all religious programming," Hiegel said. "We will have a channel that will appeal to all different interests."

New NASA policy set

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A space shuttle worker who feels something in the program is unsafe may report it confidentially to an independent group under a new NASA policy instituted in response to the Challenger disaster.

Had the policy been in effect at the time of the 1986 explosion that killed the seven Challenger crew members, it might have prevented the tragedy, NASA administrator James Fletcher said Thursday.

Teen sex rates rising

NEW YORK — The proportion of sexually active girls 16 and under has increased through the early 1980s, but only one in four began using birth control within a month of having sex, a study shows.

The percentage of teen-age girls who were sexually active by age 20 had stabilized at 65 percent for whites and 88 percent for blacks, the study said. But the proportions increased for those who became sexually experienced at the ages of 14 and 15.

The report said a 1982 survey found that 23 percent of the girls who were under 15 when they first had intercourse started using some form of contraception within the month. But 53 percent of women 18-to-19 started using birth control within a month of their first sexual intercourse.

Crippled boy gets big welcome

NEW YORK (AP) — A crippled Amerasian boy who lived and begged for years on Vietnamese streets arrived in the United States to a hero's welcome from schoolchildren who gave him a stuffed lion to symbolize his courage.

A smiling Le Van Minh, who began wearing shoes just weeks ago, entered a news conference at Kennedy Airport in the arms of U.S. Rep. Robert Mrazek, D-N.Y., who promised the boy would be the first in a wave of Amerasian children to come to the United States.

"This is the Big Apple," Mrazek told the 15-year-old as he was mobbed by photographers Thursday.

The 70-pound teen-ager was carried because he suffers from a twisted spine and deformed legs, which along with his American features subjected him to ridicule and beatings as he wandered the streets of Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh City, which was once known as Saigon.

"He is in culture shock," Mrazek said. "He's a very brave, gentle little boy, which is hard to believe for someone who has lived a difficult life since he was 10, when his mother told him he could no longer live at home."

"Sadly and incredibly, he does not miss his mother," he added. "He does miss Ti (a street friend), who carried him for four years on his back and helped him to survive."

Posters and banners, some written in Vietnamese, greeted Minh along with more than 150 Huntington High School students.

Mrazek went to Hanoi after the students obtained 27,000 signatures from people in 27 states and three foreign countries to show support for bringing the boy to the United States.

Minh also was accompanied by Newsday photographer Audrey Tiernan, whose photograph of him begging in Ho Chi Minh City two years ago stirred the Huntington campaign. In the picture, a hunched-over Minh was seen holding one of the paper flowers he made to draw donations.

Mrazek credited Ms. Tiernan and the students with saving Minh, who was fathered by an unknown American and speaks little English, although he can count to 100.

David Zach, 17, Huntington's student government president, said the students gave Minh a stuffed lion at the airport to represent the boy's courage "for surviving in the streets of Ho Chi Minh City."

"I've never been so happy in my whole life," shouted Marlo Sandra, a high school student who wept with joy along with many of her classmates.

The boy will be examined at Huntington Hospital, Mrazek said. "Occasionally, he's in pain. We don't even know what kind of physical problems he has," Mrazek said.

After several days with the congressman, the boy will join his new foster parents, Eugene and Nancy Kinney of Centerport.

"We'll get him into heavy metal music and all kinds of things he's missed out on," Kinney said. Mrs. Kinney said the family planned to "get him on the beach, some food, some sun and a lot of fun — nothing complicated."

Nguyen Dang Quang, first secretary of the Vietnamese mission to the United Nations, said Minh will be the first of many Amerasian children to come to the United States.

The Vietnamese government gave Minh an exit visa and waived all procedural requirements which would have slowed his trip, Mrazek said.

Mrazek said he hoped that Minh's case would contribute to the eventual departure of the remaining 8,000 to 12,000 children in Vietnam who were fathered by U.S. servicemen and civilians during the Vietnam War.

By Associated Press 'Dirty war' law passed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — The House of Deputies early today gave final approval to a bill that would end prosecution of most military officers accused of rights abuses during Argentina's 1970s "dirty war."

After seven hours of debate, the deputies approved by a 125-54 margin controversial Senate amendments further limiting prosecution, and sent the bill to President Raul Alfonsin for his signature.

The bill would absolve military men from the rank of brigadier general down from prosecution on human rights abuse charges on the presumption they were following orders of superiors.

Lebanese leader resigns

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Parliament Speaker Hussein Husseini resigned today, compounding the government crisis sparked by the assassination this week of Prime Minister Rashid Karami.

Husseini, a Shiite Moslem and close ally of Syria, implicitly blamed right-wing Christians for the murder of Karami, a Sunni Moslem. He said the assassination was engineered through "the penetration of the army establishment."

He also charged Maronite Catholic President Amin Gemayel with "hesitancy and incapacity" in dealing with the crisis.

Husseini, 50, announced his resignation at a hastily arranged news conference at his residence in Moslem west Beirut.

Nuclear explosion noted

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Monitors here today recorded a strong underground nuclear explosion in the People's Republic of China, the Hagfors military observatory reported.

China's last nuclear explosion took place Dec. 19, 1984, the Swedish domestic news agency TT reported.

The institute measured seismic signals from the explosion that registered 6.8 on the Richter scale. It occurred in the Lop Nor area in western Sinkiang at 5 a.m. GMT (1 a.m. EDT), the observatory said.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. An earthquake measuring 6 on the scale can cause severe damage.

Siblings left, Mark, Nate, David and Lydia will perform a piano recital June 7 at West Texas Bible Center at Industrial Park at 3 p.m. The recital is open to the public.

Siblings to perform recital

It's unusual for a piano teacher to have four pupils from the same family, according to local piano teacher Emilee Beckham.

But not for the Sprinkle family. Mr. and Mrs. William Sprinkle Jr.'s four children will be presented in a piano recital Sunday. They are twins Mark, David, 17; Nate, 16; and Lydia, 14.

The four siblings will perform at the West Texas Bible Center at the Industrial Park, 444 Simber at Avenue D, on June 7 at 3 p.m. They will perform a varied program including Baroque, Classic, Romantic, Jazz and Boogie and sacred numbers.

Since 1982, the Sprinkles have studied piano with Mrs. Beckham and in 1986 each received a special award for playing 10 pieces for five years in the National Piano Playing Auditions.

Beckham is a member of the American College of Musicians and is an adjudicator for the National Guild. As a judge, she travels to other cities to hear students audition.

"Not only do they all go to school and take piano lessons, but they also work at jobs."

The recital is open to the public.

Sarcastics have group to help control habit

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Virginia Tooper is serious about sarcasm, but she's not averse to people having some fun with it.

"Without it, Don Rickles and Joan Rivers would be on food stamps," she says in a reference to two comedians who make it a staple of their acts.

But on the serious side, the Pleasanton, Calif., expert says, "I learned in working with handicapped people how deeply sarcasm can hurt, especially during the formative years. It can be dangerous on the job and harmful to children. Too many put-downs can lower self-esteem."

Those who employ sarcasm typically see it as harmless teasing, but targets may see it as cruel and hostile, Ms. Tooper said.

"I tried to teach them defenses," she said of working with the handicapped. "One of the best is self-deprecating humor, or self-sarcasm. If you can laugh at yourself, others laugh with you, rather than at you."

That's what she was doing when, as a fat child, she used sarcasm to fight the taunts of her classmates and to hide her own insecurity, she said.

"I lost the weight but not the sarcasm," she said. "I also lost a lot of friends. I walked home from a lot of dates. Men don't lust after funny women."

Ms. Tooper, who has a doctor of education degree, lectures on humor and sarcasm throughout the University of California system and at workshops, meetings and conventions across the country. She also has taught classes on special education at San Jose State University.

And, as president and founder of Sarcastics Anonymous, she describes herself as "a recovering sarcastic."

"I was so sarcastic that I was down to one friend, and he didn't call," she said with a smile. "Now I'm back up to four friends, but one of them has me on probation."

"Just one husband, though, after 25 years," she added. "He's as bad as I was. Neither of us could find anyone else."

Sarcastics Anonymous "is for those who realize they are sarcastic and want to get it under control," she said. It's also for those who employ sarcasm and want to get better at it while accepting the consequences.

And it's for those who must live or work with sarcastics. Her advice to targets: "In the first place, lighten up. If you react indignantly, you've lost."

"You can play dumb, deflect the sarcasm or attack back," she went on. "Attacking back is dangerous unless you're sure you'll have the last laugh."

Smokers use more energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette smoking appears to increase overall energy expenditure which may partially explain why smokers generally weigh less than non-smokers, reports Family Practice News.

According to the medical journal, this also may explain why smokers tend to gain weight when they stop smoking.

The report was based on a study of energy expenditure by eight habitual smokers on two occasions at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. On one occasion, they smoked 24 cigarettes at fixed intervals; on the other they did not smoke.

Energy expenditure was determined over a 24-hour period by indirect measurement of heat, which showed cigarettes caused about a 10 percent increase in energy expended — not only during the day when smoking occurred but also in the night.

Investigators said this finding helps explain why people gain weight when they quit smoking without reducing their caloric intake.

'Spruce Goose' on display

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The famed "Spruce Goose," the legendary all-wood flying boat designed and produced by the late Howard Hughes, is now a popular Long Beach tourist attraction, notes Travel Agent magazine.

The gargantuan flying boat — with a 319-foot, 11-inch wingspan — was designed to transport World War II troops across the Atlantic safely above menacing Nazi U-boats but made only one test flight at about 70 feet for some 1,000 yards. The aircraft now sits in a 700-foot diameter structure described as the world's largest clearspan aluminum dome, according to the publication.

A special viewing platform adjacent to the plane allows visitors to view the entire flight deck, cockpit and huge cargo hold. Audio-visual presentations depict the aircraft's construction, test flight and highlights of Hughes' aviation and movie careers.

Ministers need the gospel when visiting parishioners

DEAR ABBY: Our minister and his assistant minister make it a practice to visit their parishioners at different times during the year. They are both very pleasant company. However, they never call ahead of time to say they are coming. Once the minister arrived just as we were leaving to attend a prior commitment. I explained politely that we were just leaving. He said, "This will only take a minute." After 30 minutes, I managed to ease him out the door, but I felt guilty. (We were 30 minutes late for our destination.)

A while ago, the assistant minister rang our bell. It was a rainy day, the children had been playing inside and the house was a mess. I had not been feeling well and had been stretched out on the couch, resting. (Luckily I was dressed.) Not wanting to be rude, I shoved the toys aside, and asked him to be seated. He stayed for an hour and a half — just making small talk.

I was taught that you don't just drop in on people; you call ahead to ask if it will be convenient. Are men of the cloth exempt from this courtesy? Or are they afraid if they call ahead, their parishioners will make up some excuse for them not to visit?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE
DEAR NO NAME: Not all men of the cloth drop in as yours do. And after this hits print, yours may not. Ministers are people. And some people are more mannerly and considerate than others. Amen.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old female flight attendant who, while on vacation in Los Angeles, went to dinner with some friends. After being seated at the restaurant, the cocktail waitress came by and asked if we wanted something from the bar. My friends ordered cocktails and I ordered my usual non-alcoholic "virgin" strawberry daiquiri. The waitress gave me a strange look, then asked, "What? Are you pregnant? Or are you a Mormon — or a recovering alcoholic?" I was so stunned, I just answered, "No, I'm just a health nut who chooses not to pollute my body with alcohol."

Abby, where does this woman get off questioning me because I didn't order liquor? By the time I left the restaurant, I was furious!

These days when drunk-driving deaths are increasing, cocktail waitresses should not be pushing liquor on those of who who don't drink. How would you have handled it?

SHARI

DEAR SHARI: I would have reported the insolent waitress to the manager.

DER ABBY: How can couples living together and acquiring assets or real estate and securities protect themselves, especially when one has an ex-wife and children?

An attorney friend advised my roommate that no legal document or will was necessary for our personal property or real estate partnership. He says I should "trust" him.

NON-TRUSTING ANTI-BIMBO IN FLORIDA

DEAR NON: If you don't trust him, you shouldn't be (a) in business with him or (b) living with him.

The legal document may not be necessary for your personal property or real estate partnership — but I'd advise you to consult another attorney for your peace of mind and ultimate protection.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, published reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69410, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Spock believes birthdays are important to children

By REDBOOK
A Hearst Magazine

Dr. Benjamin Spock believes birthdays are very important to children — and Spock, celebrating his 84th birthday, still remembers fondly the presents and parties of his childhood.

Not only does the birthday child enjoy being the center of attention, Spock wrote in a recent issue of Redbook, but even more the child enjoys getting presents.

"Children are materialistic — even more so than adults are," Spock wrote. "They love to own a possession for its own sake, especially if another child already has the same thing."

He said children also view presents as a sign of love from parents — and when siblings suspiciously compare each other's gifts it is part of their rivalry for their parents' love.

Parties were another source of fun in his family. Spock wrote, "I learned when I had a family of my own that such festivities can be difficult times for parents."

One frequent crisis occurs when a little guest grabs one of the birthday child's gifts over the child's screams of protest — something especially apt to happen with 2- or 3-year-olds.

"It's useless — even counterproductive — to try to lecture a child of this age about generosity and sharing; that comes in later years," he said. "It's best for the hostess to move in, gently but firmly take over the possession and return it to its owner."

It helps to have parents of guests and the birthday child's father on hand to help with emergencies.

Most embarrassing is when the birthday child acts up, fighting or demanding a gift from a child who didn't bring one.

"The hostess feels like spanking her child, but this would only increase the turmoil."

Instead the parent should apologize to the guest and smooth over any hurt feelings. She can lecture her child on better manners after the guests have gone.

Spock said the best way to control a party is to limit the number of children invited. He said by the ages of 4, 5 or 6, children have definite ideas on who they want to invite, and their wishes should be respected — within reason.

"But I advise parents to try to hold down the number of invited guests to six if they can," Spock wrote. "A small group is much easier to handle and is less likely to get overexcited."

If the birthday child wants to have a same-sex party, honor the request.

"The activities you plan for the party will make a big difference in the ease with which you can keep things under control," Spock wrote.

He warned that hide-and-seek, musical chairs, hunting for pennies, tug-of-war, blind man's bluff and similar games tend to get boys in the 6- to 10-year-old age group wildly excited.

Reminiscing about his own childhood, Spock wrote in Redbook that he used to judge presents by weight — which worked well when he was given a complete camping outfit, less so when the weighty gift was an unappreciated set of encyclopedias.

Man carries cross 270 miles

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Learning to rely on God is the result of Larry Mileur's 270-mile walk.

The 13-day trek from Arlington to Big Spring was a tough one for Larry, especially since he carried a 6-foot by 12-foot wooden cross that weighs 60 pounds. As if that was not enough, a 50-pound pack containing water, goodies and Bibles attached to it nearly doubles the load.

"Some people think I'm crazy and others are just blown away at what I was doing. But the Lord wanted me to do it."

Larry admits he had second thoughts about his journey to Big Spring to serve as youth minister at East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

In an interview this week, the 25-year-old said he gave away his remodeling business and a pick-up truck to follow the Lord's command.

It might seem like an unusual move for a graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington who holds a bachelor of science degree in architecture.

"After graduating, I started my business and then got the feeling that architecture wasn't going to be my career."

"The Lord told me to carry the cross. I told Him to let me know — give me a sign — blow up my truck or cut off my work."

The sign came vividly, when his business closed.

"I always had a lot of customers and then He just cut off my work."

He also spoke to me through another man I was praying with the minister of education at my church (Parkview Baptist Church in Arlington) and he said he thought the Lord wanted me to take a cross to Big Spring. "I heard teenagers hang out in Arlington."

"I didn't tell anyone. I didn't want anyone to think I was crazy. I felt fear. I cried out to the Lord. I knew the rejection, misunderstanding and ramifications of this. I thought, 'No Lord, you don't really want me to do this.'"

"I didn't understand and I didn't know if my family would. After praying and seeking the answers through Scripture, Larry said the Lord showed him not to lean on his own understanding."

"I knew my last chance to get out of it was my parents. I just knew that they wouldn't understand — but, they did. Everyone did."

From February to May, Larry carried the cross at the University of Texas at Arlington, sharing the word with college students.

On May 18, he set out on his long journey to Big Spring with all of $7 in his pocket.

He said he wasn't worried about his lack of funds, because he knew "the Lord would provide."

Within the next day he had $100 in donations and after tabulating all gifts, Larry said that more than $500 was provided for him along the way.

Larry Mileur, above, carried a 6-foot by 12-foot cross that weighs 60 pounds with a 50-pound pack containing water, goodies and Bibles from Arlington to Big Spring. The 270-mile journey took 13 days to complete.

Although the Lord provided for him, food was scarce at times.

"One day I had a dime in my pocket. I walked from Baird, 15-20 miles east of Abilene, to Tye, about 7 miles west of Abilene. I had three candy bars and gummy bears to eat — and 10-15 miles ahead of me before my next resting place in Trent. I talked to the Lord and said 'I sure am gettin' thin Lord. Sure would like somethin' to eat.'"

He walked into a convenience store that had 99-cent special submarine sandwiches.

"I kept thinking, 'Lord, you could provide one of those sandwiches if you wanted to.'"

Larry left the store — without a sandwich. Instead, he had purchased a few pieces of gum and the clerk gave him an entire bag.

He decided to call his parents and let them know how he was doing. When he used the phone, his culinary prayers were answered, and $1.75 fell from the coin return.

"The Lord had provided that submarine sandwich for me. And the guy inside gave me a free root beer."

About 10-15 miles later, Larry arrived at a truck stop that was advertising chicken-fried steak. His hunger was so intense he said he could taste it.

Although he didn't have the money for the dinner, he walked over to the truck stop and — to his surprise — a lady bought his dinner, and another gave him $30 for a motel room.

Larry said he camped on the side of the road through most of his 13-day trip, in rest areas or pastures — "out in the middle of nowhere."

Some people invited him to stay in their homes.

His journey began each day at 7 a.m. and he averaged 22 miles daily, walking until midnight.

Although he admits that he would "rest every couple of miles," it did him little good during the early stages — his feet were covered with blisters after his second day.

There was variety in his trip. He walked through wind and rain storms and the heat of the day, but occasionally walked during the late night and early mornings to avoid the intense heat.

"The Lord taught me that he is a powerful God. We must walk in obedience. As long as we seek after his kingdom, his righteousness, he'll provide all of our needs. I learned reliance — simple reliance and not allowing circumstances to affect my testimony."

One day's journey found him feeling down about the walk and, he said, it affected his attitude and his witness. Larry added that it was a time when he was feeling very hungry and tired.

"After He dealt with me and got my attitude straight He provided for me."

After the attitude adjustment, Larry met a man in Trent who came to him and said the Lord had laid it on his heart for Larry to stay with him.

Among his acquaintances along the way was a "Christian guy who was hitchhiking his way to L.A." He figures he spoke to at least 400 people on the way here.

The 6-foot 7-inch, dark-haired, dark-eyed young man weighed about 155 pounds before his journey. He now weighs about 160 pounds and feels a lot better, he said.

"I was in bad shape — I was the pits, physically. I had respiratory problems and intestinal problems. As I walked my problems went away."

He began his journey with white, tender feet and wouldn't have had good walking shoes if a friend hadn't provided them for him.

"I went to the shoe store, picked out the ones I knew I'd need and I prayed about them. Right before my trip, my friend told me he was going to buy some shoes for me."

Larry says the Lord is to credit for his $75 walking shoes.

"I knew he'd provide them for me," he said with a smile. As he approached his destination at 9 p.m. on May 31, he said his feet were so covered with blisters that they felt numb.

Emotionally, he was filled with joy and tears.

"The Lord gave me incredible strength. The closer I got I realized the faithfulness of God. I used to think that walking a mile was difficult."

About his work at East Fourth Street Baptist, Larry said, "The Lord wants me to reach out to the youth of this town — to build a few lives and to teach me a few things."

"I think the Lord wanted me to do it for those along the way. He wanted to exhibit His power. He's there all the time. When He tells you to do something, you don't need all the details — just step out in faith."

Lavaca County residents evacuated

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Heavy thunderstorms caused more flooding in rain-soaked Southeast Texas Thursday, forcing authorities to evacuate about 65 residents and the jail in Lavaca County.

Authorities used fire trucks and dump trucks to evacuate the people from waist-deep floodwaters in Shiner, Lavaca County Sheriff Robert Wurm said. They spent the day Thursday at the Shiner High School gymnasium, then returned to their homes.

He said rising waters in the Lavaca River forced the evacuation of eight prisoners from the county jail in Hallettsville. They were taken to the Yoakum city jail, about 15 miles west.

Wurm said the river also flooded in 1981, putting the jail under about 10 feet of water.

"We moved all of the furnishings out of the sheriff's department because we didn't want to get caught in that again," Wurm said, adding that about 7 inches of rain fell Thursday in Moulton and Shiner, and 3 to 4 inches fell in Hallettsville. Meanwhile, Lower Colorado River Authority officials took special flood procedures to deal with this week's heavy rains, which have resulted in record water levels in the Highland Lakes.

The LCRA opened the third of 24 floodgates Wednesday at the Mansfield Dam, which releases water from Lake Travis to Lake Austin.

Lake Travis was projected to rise to 687 feet Thursday, which is six feet above normal. The lake will overflow at 714 feet.

The slow-moving thunderstorm system has been blamed for two deaths in San Antonio and forced about 150 people to flee their homes Wednesday night in D'Hanis in Medina County.

Most of the evacuees returned to their homes Thursday, said Army Sgt. Ruben Ramirez at the National Guard Armory in Hondo, where the people spent the night.

McLaughlin chosen for honor

Ralph McLaughlin of Big Spring will be one of three men named "Outstanding West Texan of the Year" by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the organization's banquet July 23 at the Wichita Falls Hilton.

Also receiving the award will be state Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls and John Ben Shepperd of Odessa.

"I can't think of three men more deserving of the Outstanding West Texan award than Ray, John Ben and Ralph," said F.L. Stephens, president of the West Texas Chamber. "We're proud to honor these men at our midyear banquet."

Individual chambers sent in nominations for the award to the West Texas chapter earlier this year, and the three men were selected by a panel of judges last month, according to Adolph Janca of the West Texas chamber.

The three men were selected over a field of approximately 30 nominees, Janca added.

"We're extremely pleased and honored for a Big Spring resident to be selected for this award," said F. LeRoy Tillery, executive vice-president of the local chamber.

McLaughlin has been active in civic and public affairs for many years, according to the West Texas chapter.

He served two terms on the Big Spring Independent School Board and the Big Spring City Council. He currently is District Six Director for the West Texas chamber and chairman of the Garden City SSC commission.

Witness: Davis fits profile

FORT WORTH — A former FBI agent testified Thursday that millionaire defendant Cullen Davis fits the psychological profile of the gunman who killed two and wounded two in a 1976 shooting spree at the Davis mansion.

Russell Vorpapel, a surprise witness, said the intruder in black killed neither for money nor sex but out of "vengeance, anger and hate and the need to dominate a person."

The Loomis, Calif., "psychological profiler" said the primary target was not 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn, the first to die, but Priscilla Davis, the child's mother and the defendant's ex-wife.

Mrs. Davis was wounded and her live-in boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, was killed. Bubba Gavrel, then 22, was critically wounded.

Mrs. Davis, 45, and her second husband, Jack Wilborn, 66, are seeking millions of dollars in damages in civil suits accusing Davis of killing Andrea, their daughter.

The killer chased or dragged the child down a flight of stairs and shot her to death in a basement utility room. He then lay in wait for Mrs. Davis and her boyfriend to return.

Cullen and Priscilla were locked in a bitter divorce battle and Mrs. Davis was living at the mansion with Farr, a 6-foot-9 former basketball player at Texas Christian University.

Vorpapel took the stand late Thursday and underwent only brief cross-examination before court adjourned for the day. He will undergo additional questioning by the defendant's lawyer Friday.

Vorpapel said he formulated his opinions on crime scene reports, photographs of the injured parties, depositions, grand jury transcripts, police reports and particularly psychiatric and psychological reports on Davis from which he quoted.

Quadruplets still 'serious'

TEMPLE — Quadruplets born to a couple from the Netherlands were expected to remain in a hospital's neonatal intensive care unit for about three months, doctors say.

The four boys, born 13 weeks premature, were in serious but stable condition today at Scott and White Hospital, said a nursing supervisor who declined to give her name.

The quadruplets were delivered by Cesarean section at Scott and White just before 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Peter and Cora den Harder said they have been trying to have a child for five years.

Peter den Harder said he learned several months ago that his wife was pregnant with quadruplets.

"I was both excited and afraid," he said. "The idea of it is very exciting, but I knew that it would be a very high-risk pregnancy."

The first week is the most critical for premature babies.

Moses' streak comes to halt

MADRID, Spain (AP) — It had been 10 years since Edwin Moses lost a 400-meter hurdles event, and although he may have been upset at having his 122-race winning streak snapped, he wasn't upset at himself.

"I ran a good race and the guy that beat me is 10 years younger and ran the race of his life," Moses said Thursday night after fellow American Danny Harris beat the world record holder.

"It's very early in the season for me to be running in Europe. I'm not as sharp as I would be normally. This is one of my best times for so early in the season. I'm not disappointed at all with the race I ran."

Moses' streak was the longest in the history of a running event. The two-time Olympic gold-medal winner last lost when West Germany's Harald Schmid beat him on Aug. 26, 1977 in West Berlin.

Iolanda Balas of Romania holds the record for most consecutive victories in track and field history. She won 180 times in a row in high-jumping competition in the 1950s and 60s.

The 21-year-old Harris won in a career-best 47.56 seconds, .13 ahead of the 31-year-old Moses. Another American, Nat Page, finished third in 50.12.

"This doesn't detract from what Edwin has done. He's still a great hurdler," Steve Lynn, Harris' coach said. "When Edwin won it (gold medal) in 1976, Danny was in third grade. It's phenomenal that he's competed at that level for so long."

Moses led after the second hurdle, but

Harris gained the lead by the fifth and stayed there.

"I hit the tenth hurdle and that really cost me the race," Moses said. "I expect to do much better. He was very lucky to win the race. He built up an early lead. There's probably no other person in the world who could run this time."

Moses, who holds the record at 47.02, had won 107 consecutive finals and 15 preliminaries since losing to Schmid. He had won all three of his previous races this year, in Columbus, Ohio; Princeton, N.J. and Turin, Italy.

The last time Moses faced Harris was the 1984 Olympics when they ran 1-2.

Harris, born in Torrance, Calif., was a three-time NCAA champion at Iowa State. He won the 400-meter titles at the NCAA outdoor championships in 1984, 1985 and 1986 and was rated third in the world behind fellow Americans Moses and Andre Phillips in the most recent world rankings.

Lakers take second game

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Virtually everyone may be conceding the NBA title to the Los Angeles Lakers, but Coach Pat Riley definitely isn't.

"I've been around this game too long and remember last year when we whipped Houston in the first game (of their Western Conference playoff series) and then we got beat four straight ... period," Riley said when asked if he thought his Lakers would continue to have an easy time with the defending champion Boston Celtics.

But Riley may have trouble convincing others that the Lakers, who took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with a 141-122 romp over the Celtics Thursday night, aren't unstoppable.

"If you take the attitude where you think it's over with, you're going to get whipped," he said. "I'm not cautious about that. I firmly believe that."

The series now switches to Boston for the third game Sunday, the fourth on Tuesday and the fifth, if necessary, on Thursday.

But Riley had to admit that the Lakers, who beat Boston 129-113 in Tuesday night's opening game at the Forum, are playing great basketball.

"Sure, I'm elated, ecstatic. We're playing championship basketball," he said, adding that the Lakers were playing their best at the most timely of times.

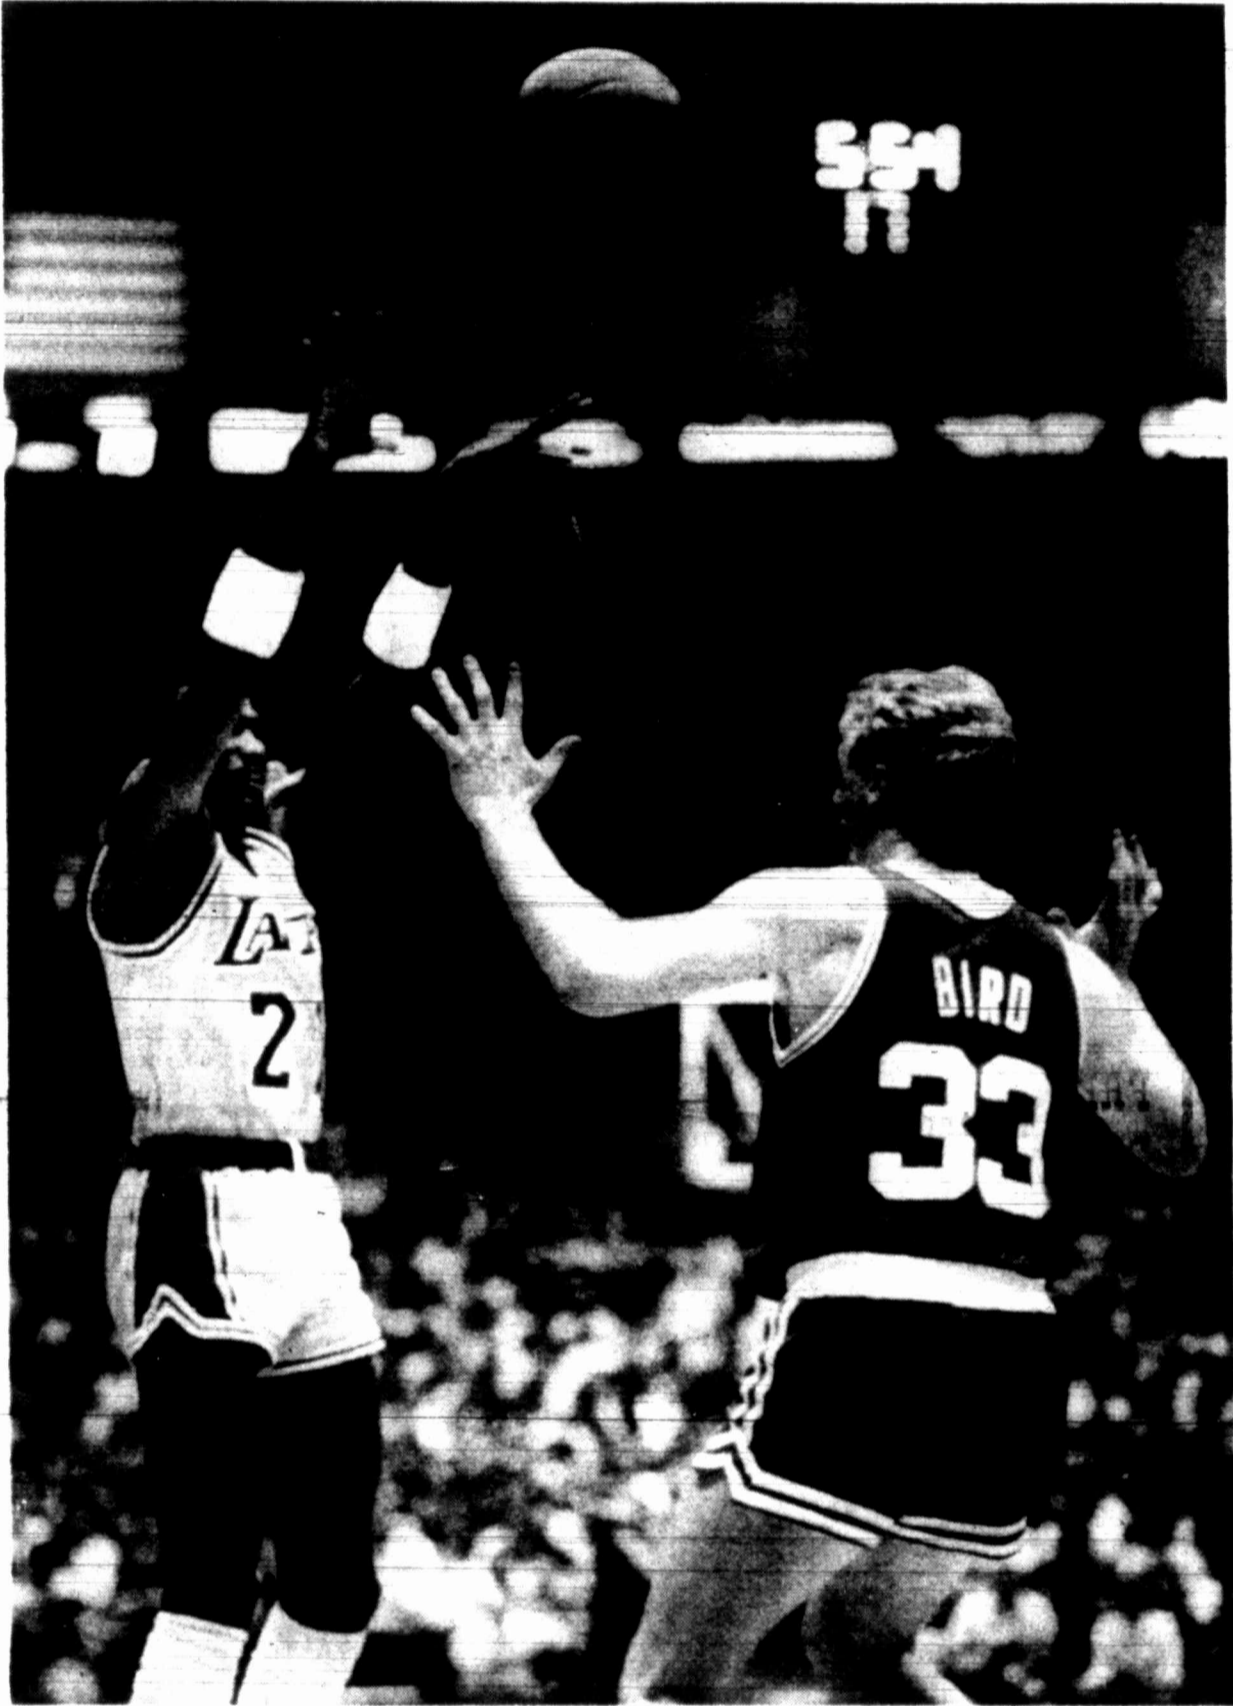

Celtics Coach K.C. Jones seemed to agree.

"I can't remember a team that uses the fast break as well as they do," he said. "They have 12 different ways to come at you with the fast break."

Michael Cooper, the Los Angeles reserve who was voted the NBA's top defensive player this year, continued to spark the Lakers with his offense. As he has often in this year's playoffs, he started them rolling when the game was tight.

This time, Cooper came off the bench to ignite a rally that began late in the first quarter and continued through the second. The Celtics had held a five-point lead, but Cooper's shooting helped the Lakers pull out to a 75-56 lead by halftime.

He finished the game with 21 points in 26 minutes, including an NBA finals record of six three-point baskets, on just seven long-range tries. He also matched the finals record for assists in a

Mavericks hire coach

DALLAS (AP) — Just 14 weeks after being fired by the Phoenix Suns, John MacLeod has rebounded to win one of the NBA's plum jobs — head coach of the Dallas Mavericks.

MacLeod, who took his team to the NBA playoffs nine times but never won the title, was named Thursday night to replace Dick Motta as coach of the seven-year-old Mavericks franchise, owner Don Carter said.

Terms of the contract between MacLeod and Carter were not announced, although general manager Norm Sonju said it is "a similar ongoing handshake contract like the one that Motta had with Mr. Carter."

Motta, whose unwritten contract was renewed each year by a handshake with Carter, stunned team officials May 20 when he resigned after seven seasons with the NBA team.

"We were just delighted that John MacLeod was available at this time. We're very fortunate to have him join us. He is the correct person for the franchise at this time," Sonju said.

"We want to give Dick Motta credit for helping establish the framework for the growth of our franchise to a 55-victory team. But now, there is a new challenge and that is to chart new waters in the playoffs," Sonju said.

The Mavericks have never advanced beyond the second round of the NBA playoffs. They were eliminated by the Seattle SuperSonics in the first round this year after winning the Midwest Division title.

Under MacLeod, the Suns went

to the playoffs nine times and made it to the finals in 1976, when they lost to the Boston Celtics. He was fired when team officials said they needed new leadership.

MacLeod, 49, said he was "thrilled" to get the Mavericks job.

"I feel like a healthy tradition has just been started. I hope we can take this team to the brass ring someday," he said.

"I'm thrilled about joining the Mavericks. It's a great organization with a good young ball club that's going to mature and get better, and it's in a good city with great fan support. So John MacLeod is a very fortunate man today," MacLeod said.

The Dallas Times Herald reported that MacLeod is expected to earn about the same salary he received in Phoenix — estimated to have been about $350,000.

OSU defeats Stanford

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Oklahoma State pitcher Pat Hope has provided a surprise to College World Series opponents who thought the third-ranked Cowboys were nothing more than heavy hitters.

Hope, 13-2, pitched his second complete game of the NCAA Division I baseball championships Thursday night, struck out 11, walked none and scattered seven hits to down No. 2 Stanford 6-2 in the winners bracket finals.

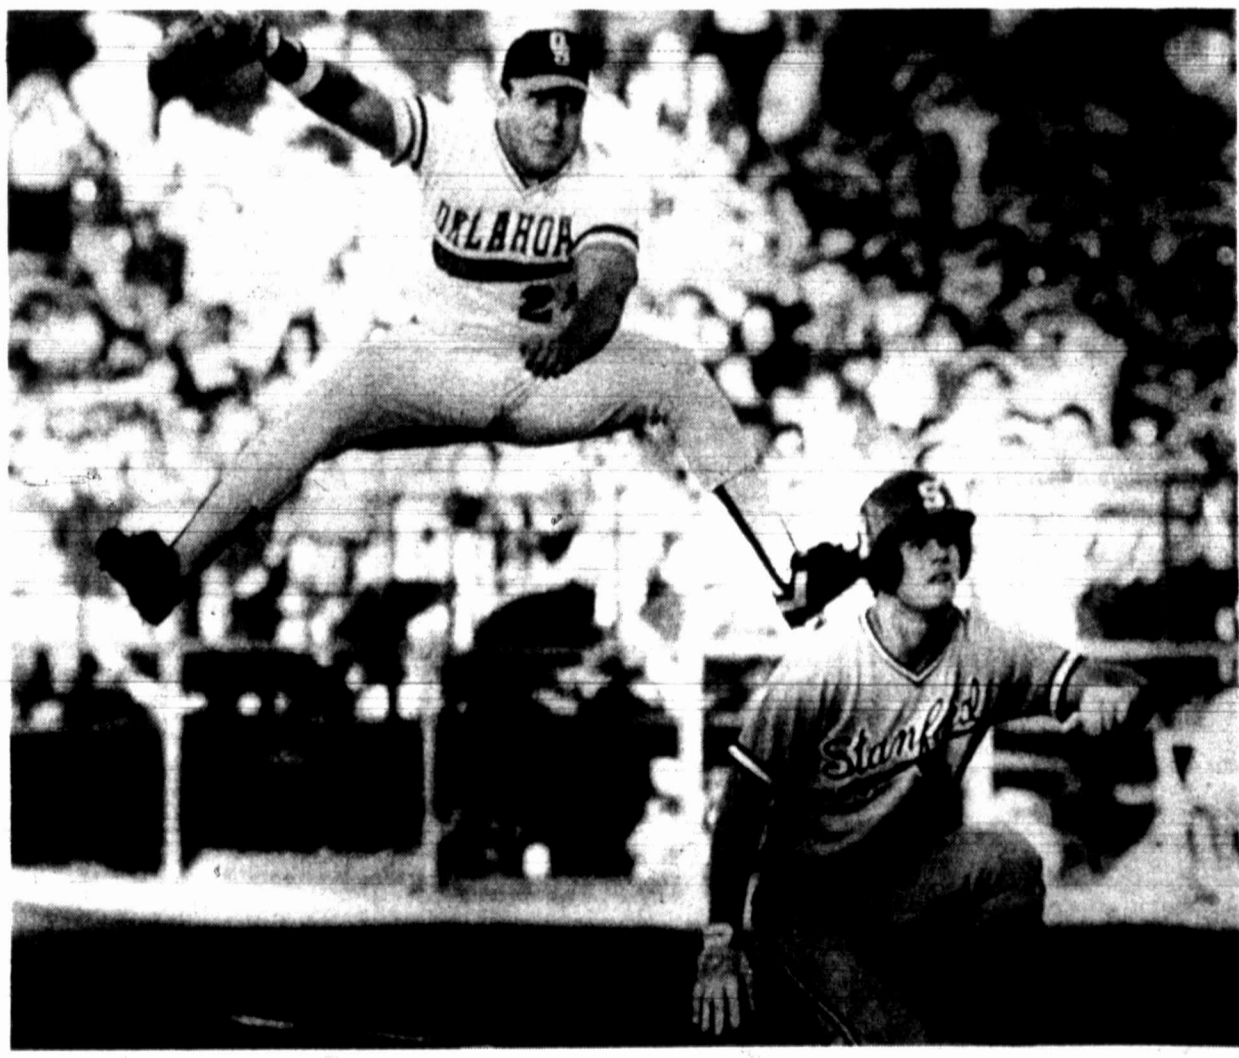

"I felt strong tonight," Hope said. "I knew what I had to do to win and set up the finals. I had to keep it close and then we'd put a big inning together sometime tonight."

And, a six-run sixth inning proved to be all the offense Oklahoma State needed.

Adam Smith singled home two runs on only the fourth hit allowed by Stanford loser Jack McDowell, 12-5. Benny Castillo singled in the game-winning run after Smith's hit, then Brad Beanblossom hit a triple and scored on Anthony Blackmon's sacrifice fly.

"They got those ground balls up the middle," McDowell said. "I was being a little fine. I was pitching behind the whole game. They do explode, and I needed to shut them down. I didn't do that."

The only Cowboy McDowell and Oklahoma State first baseman Jimmy Barragan leaps high after a throw from the outfield got past him as Stanford's Paul Carney watches in the bottom of the fourth inning of the College World Series.

Stanford reliever Al Osuna did shut down was All-American third baseman Robin Ventura. Ventura's NCAA-record 58-game hitting streak was snapped by an 0-for-5 night at the plate. He did reach base in the top of the ninth when his one-hop smash was mishandled by Stanford second baseman Frank Carey.

"It was an error," Ventura said.

"I knew right then it wasn't a hit." While the end of Ventura's streak drew a round of applause from 14,408 fans in attendance, Hope deserved the attention for the night, his coach said.

Braves jump on Pirates early

By The Associated Press
Dale Murphy got the Atlanta Braves out of their scoring slump in a hurry. Murphy and Andres Thomas homered during a four-run first inning Thursday and the Braves went on to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-3.

"We just happened to get some runs early, and that helped," Murphy said after his two-run homer, his 15th of the season.

The Braves had totaled just four runs in their last three games.

"It was just a matter of time until the guys broke out," said winning pitcher Zane Smith.

In other National League games, Montreal beat San Diego 8-5 and St. Louis defeated Chicago 3-1.

Albert Hall led off the first inning for the host Braves with a single and then stole second base. Dion James followed with an RBI double.

One out later, Murphy homered over the center-field fence against Brian Fisher, 2-2. With two outs, Thomas hit his second home run over the fence in left-center.

Atlanta scored two unearned runs in the fourth and Ken Oberkfell delivered a two-run single in the eighth.

"The last few games we hadn't hit the ball well," Oberkfell said. "We got to Fisher early and it gave us a lot of confidence."

Smith, 6-3, gave up three runs on six hits in seven innings. Jeff Dedmon worked the final two innings for his third save. Junior Ortiz singled home Pittsburgh's first run in the second. Jim Morrison had an RBI groundout in the third and Mike Diaz hit his seventh homer in the sixth.

Expos 8, Padres 5
Tim Wallach hit a three-run homer and Hubie Brooks connected for a two-run shot that helped Montreal sweep a three-game series from San Diego and win for the ninth time in its last 11 games.

The host Expos broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning on Vance Law's sacrifice fly. Wallach hit his seventh homer in the seventh against Storm Davis, 1-6.

Floyd Youmans, 4-3, allowed four runs on 10 hits in 7 1/3 innings. He struck out nine and walked three.

Randy St. Claire relieved with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth. He gave up Benito Santiago's RBI groundout before getting his sixth save.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 1
Jack Clark hit a two-run homer and St. Louis' Danny Cox and Todd Worrell combined to cool off Chicago.

Cox, 6-2, gave up six hits in 7 1/3 innings and Worrell allowed one hit the rest of the way for his 12th save. The Cubs had scored 38 runs in their last two games.

Clark hit his 16th home run in the first inning off Greg Maddux, 4-5.

Shawon Dunston hit an RBI single in the second for Chicago and Vince Coleman had a run-scoring single in the seventh for the visiting Cardinals.

Royals hurler first to win 10 games

By The Associated Press
Everyone wondered which Bret Saberhagen would pitch for the Kansas City Royals this season.

So far, the answer is clear. He's the flashy guy who won the Cy Young Award in 1985, not the impostor who flopped through 1986.

Saberhagen became the first 10-game winner in the major leagues this year, allowing seven hits in a 10-1 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Thursday night at the Kansas City Royals stadium.

Saberhagen struck out five, walked four and lowered his ERA to 2.20.

Danny Tartabull, Steve Balboni and Kevin Seitzer hit home runs that backed Saberhagen. Tartabull, playing his first game in Seattle since the Mariners traded him to Kansas City during the winter, broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Tartabull connected for his eighth home run of the season against Mike Morgan, 6-5, after a one-out error by Seattle shortstop

Rey Quinones.

A single by Phil Bradley, a walk to Scott Bradley and Alvin Davis' two-out single put Seattle ahead in the first inning. Balboni tied the score in the fifth with his eighth homer.

An run-scoring single by Balboni and Frank White's RBI grounder made it 5-1 in the eighth. Seitzer hit his third homer in the ninth off reliever Jerry Reed.

Brewers 9, Yankees 3
Rob Deer hit two solo homers and Milwaukee scored seven runs in the fifth inning to beat New York.

Teddy Higuera, 5-5, stopped his five-game losing streak with his first victory since April 24. He gave up three runs on seven hits in eight innings, and the host Brewers backed him with four double plays.

AL
singles Thursday night as the Kansas City Royals beat the Seattle Mariners 6-1.

Saberhagen, 10-1, overcame a shaky start in which he gave up a run on two hits and a walk in the first inning and went on to pitch a wonderful game at the Kingdome.

Red Sox 8, Tigers 5
Wade Boggs, a three-time AL batting champion, hit an RBI triple and two singles that led Boston past visiting Detroit.

Bill Madlock, a four-time National League batting champion signed earlier in the day by Detroit, had a two-run homer and two singles.

Angels 3, White Sox 2
Wally Joyner's RBI single snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning and lifted California over Chicago.

Jose DeLeon, 4-4, checked the Angels on just one hit for seven innings before Gary Pettis led off the eighth with an infield single. Pettis stole second, took third on an infield hit by Devon White and scored on Joyner's sharp single off reliever Ray Searage.

State drops charges against Tribble

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The state said Thursday it would drop its case against Brian Lee Tribble, who was acquitted of all charges of supplying the cocaine that killed former Maryland basketball star Len Bias.

Robert Bonsib, an assistant state attorney, said an obstruction of justice charge will be dropped against Tribble, 24, who was cleared of cocaine possession and distribution charges by a jury Wednesday night. The obstruction charge stemmed from the alleged cleanup of Bias' dormitory room following his death on June 19.

Jury foreman Douglas Wilson Jr. said the state "just didn't prove the case, not to this 12 anyway."

"The whole package just didn't fit together tight enough."

He said the testimony of the state's star witness, 17-year-old Terrence Moore, was "not fully believable."

The state's other key witnesses were former Maryland basketball players Terry Long and David Gregg.

"I'm just overwhelmed," Tribble said late Wednesday night after the Prince George's County Circuit Court jury acquitted him after seven hours of deliberations. "I'm glad to know the system works."

Bias' mother, Louise, was unavailable for comment Thursday. A woman who answered the door at her Hyattsville, Md., home said she was not there and would have no comment.

However, Wayne Curry, the family's attorney, said the verdict exonerated Bias, who died two days after being drafted by the NBA's Boston Celtics.

"It represents an acquittal of Len Bias with respect to the scandalous allegations made against him," Curry said.

Asked if he was surprised by the verdict, Judge James M. Rea said, "No, not really."

Former Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell said he hopes the verdict shows Bias wasn't a drug addict.

"He was an outstanding person, but like a lot of other people in our society, he messed with drugs and it cost him his life," Driesell said. "I loved Leonard. He was a great kid. He progressed in class, and as a man."

Driesell, the Terrapins' coach for 17 seasons, resigned under pressure following Bias' death. He has since become an assistant athletic director at the school.

During the trial, Driesell testified he was told several hours after Bias died that the player had used drugs. However, immediately after Bias' death, Driesell said he didn't believe drugs were involved.

Asked Thursday about that statement, Driesell said, "That's been almost a year ago. I don't remember what I told them. But at the time, I didn't know Leonard had died from drugs. The players had said he had used drugs, but I didn't know that drugs killed him and I wasn't going to say that unless I was positive. The autopsy wasn't done for days."

quarter with eight in the second period rally. Laker teammate Magic Johnson also matched that mark, in the third quarter.

"Cooper came in and broke our backs with those three-pointers," said Celtics forward Larry Bird, who led Boston with 23 points and 10 rebounds.

Cooper was one of five Lakers to score more than 20 points. Byron Scott had 24, Worthy and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 23 each, and Johnson had 22 points and 20 assists.

After their second lopsided loss to the Lakers, the Celtics found themselves hoping the return to Boston Garden, where they've won a remarkable 84 of their last 86 games, will change their fortunes.

Asked what mysterious aura their home arena seems to have for the Celtics, Jones replied, "I don't know what it is. I just hope it's still there when we get back."

Jones, who said he thought the Celtics would simply feel more comfortable back home, joked that he was reminded Thursday night that he was a visitor at the Forum.

"I went in at halftime and started talking about how they were killing us with the fast break," Jones said, "and I heard a lot of noise and looked up and discovered I was in the Lakers' locker room. So I went down to our locker room and told 'em the same thing."

Martina ousts Chrissy; will face Graf in finals

PARIS (AP) — Martina Navratilova had just won her way into her 24th Grand Slam singles championship match yet she felt a little sad.

Because the player she beat 6-2, 6-2 in the semifinals of the French Open Thursday was her long-time rival and friend, Chris Evert.

"I felt bad even before we started because I knew I would feel sorry for her if she lost," Navratilova said.

"Of course, I'd have felt sorrier for myself. But I'll be back next year and I don't know if she will."

Evert has hinted this week that she may soon retire.

"When I was about to win the match, it was ridiculous," Navratilova said. "I was asking myself whether Chris would be here again. We've both been there and back and there again so many times. It made me think."

Victory was nevertheless sweet for Navratilova, the world's No. 1 player, who had been struggling with her form before Paris and has not won a tournament in six months.

"I was very nervous today and wanted to win it very badly. I'm excited about being in the final. I think I can win," she said.

In Saturday's championship match, Navratilova plays the world's No. 2 player, Steffi Graf of West Germany, who is unbeaten for the same six-month period but is making her first appearance in a Grand Slam final.

Graf, 17 — almost half Navratilova's age — beat Argentina's Gabriela Sabatini 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 in Thursday's other semifinal, rallying from 3-5, 0-15 in a thrilling, high quality final. She is the youngest finalist at Roland Garros.

Attention today was to center on the men's semifinals, with defending champion and No. 1 seed Ivan Lendl meeting fellow Czechoslovak Miloslav Mecir and West Germany's Boris Becker facing Mats Wilander of Sweden.

Lendl is appearing in his fourth semifinal in Paris and holds a 3-1 lead in head-to-head matches with Mecir, including last year's U.S. Open final and in Hamburg last month. But Mecir has been in fine form in Paris, and is the only one of Friday's semifinalists not to have lost a set.

Becker, two-time defending Wimbledon champion, is seeking his first clay-court title against Wilander, the champion here in 1982 and 1985.

The Swede's only victory over Becker in five meetings was in the second round of 1985 French Open when he was an emphatic 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 winner.

Navratilova's victory over Evert was her 38th in 72 meetings between the rivals, and one of the most one-sided, lasting just one hour, 14 minutes.

Evert, who had won her last three tournaments, took too many risks as she tried to play deep and keep Navratilova in the back court.

She missed a stream of groundstrokes and netted countless approach shots as Navratilova pressured her and gave nothing away.

Trying for her third consecutive French title and her eighth overall, Evert could not hold serve until the sixth game of the second set. By then, Navratilova had opened up a 6-2, 5-0 lead.

In that game, Evert saved two match points and a second set whitewash and managed to break Navratilova for 5-2. But the next game produced two more match points and only one was needed as Evert put a cross-court backhand narrowly wide.

Evert now has only two tournaments left, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, to extend her record of winning at least one Grand Slam title every year since 1974.

Clay is her favorite surface but she said: "Maybe this will take the pressure off Wimbledon. In previous years, I've won here and lost there."

Evert said she was beaten "fair and square" but added: "I've had bigger letdowns. Perhaps Martina had more to prove than I did. She was really pumped up."

Evert said she probably made the mistake of going for too many winners.

"That's not the smartest thing to do on clay. She just ran down every ball," Evert said. "She's definitely more eager than I've seen her in a long time."

Saturday's championship match will be worth $180,000 to the winner, but Graf very nearly blew her chance in a rain-interrupted, tense struggle against Sabatini.

The teen-agers split the first two sets and after a lengthy rain delay, it was Sabatini who played the steadier, more aggressive tennis.

Only when she was in danger of losing did Graf turn on the style that has won 38 successive matches and six tournaments.

"I thought I still had a chance to win," Graf said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today can be full of arguments and confrontations with others unless you make a conscientious effort to sidestep them and maintain harmony.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use tact at your home during the daytime and avoid a possible argument there. Get out for fun and recreation tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be most careful in motion of all kinds since much danger is lurking about. Thoughtless words could bring trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You could have quite an argument over finances with good friends, but tonight all is well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do nothing that will disturb the harmony between you and kin today.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be careful not to argue with a partner if you have a private worry. Do whatever will rid you of the anxiety.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is better to go out alone and not be with individuals who may be looking to pick a fight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't get into an argument with another in public. The evening is good for making new friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) After an argument with a pal, be concerned with the romantic side of life. Show your gratitude to those who are loyal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try not to argue over some monetary affair that may be of little consequence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid a possible argument between a higher-up and a partner. Plan your time well so you can keep promises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A co-worker and one from afar may be having an argument, so keep out of it or you could become the scapegoat.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You had better stay at home with your mate and avoid an argument with one who wants to come between you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be one of those charming young persons who will find it hard to decide between the mental and emotional, so teach this one to keep the two separate. Upon reaching maturity your progeny will gain the good will of others and be quite successful.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
