Residents announce flood suit

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

It was standing room only at the City Council meeting Tuesday night when a group of Jones Valley residents announced its intention to sue the city over flooding problems.

Chuck Cawthon, owner of Chuck's Surplus, said this morning that about seven property owners intend to join the suit, and about 20 more have said they will sue if the city doesn't act on the problem.

Cawthon gave the Council the required 30 days notice Tuesday night that the group intends to sue. "This is one of the saddest days of my life, that I have to come before the city with the threat of a lawsuit to get something done," he said. "We have to do something. We are fighting for our survival."

Cawthon contends the floods that have plagued the area recently and last fall were not caused by heavy rains but are the result of water released from Natural Dam Lake into Beals Creek about 10 days after a heavy rain.

He said he is engaged in a suit against the Colorado River Municipal Water District in the matter, but "in the meantime we may not survive" without the city's help.

His building is 32 years old and has never been flooded until recently, he said.

Howard Walker, owner of the Harley-Davidson dealership nearby, said floods last October "almost annihilated me," and he lost 90 percent of his stock.

Now the problem is worse and he doesn't know if his business will survive, he said.

"I need some help and need it bad," Walker said. He indicated his family was forced to return to their home before the flood waters had dissipated because he couldn't find another place to stay with adequate facilities for his son, Bruce, who is in a wheelchair.

"I just wanted to speak my piece," he said. Lucy DeMerville, 1100 W. Second St., told the Council she and her husband, John, "have lost everything we have."

"Something has to be done" about the flooding, she said.

Mike Hughes, co-owner of Hughes Rental and Sales, said his business loss wasn't as severe as some of the others, but he was forced to close until the floods receded.

"The west end has been neglected forever," he said, citing poor road repairs and neglect of the area.

Reunion and Rodeo opens today

The Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, one of the longest continuous rodeos in the country, opens its 54th showing today at the Howard County Rodeo Bowl.

Activities continue through Saturday. The four-day event begins with the traditional rodeo parade at 4 p.m. at 10th and Main, traveling Main Street to Second, and then back to Scurry Street and to 10th Street.

A barbecue will be served by the Kiwanis Club at the Howard County Fair Barn following the parade; the charge is $4 per plate.

The rodeo will open each night at 8:30, beginning today and concluding Saturday. There will be competition in the bull riding, saddle bronc, bareback bronc, calf roping, steer wrestling, team roping and women's barrel racing. Admission cost is $3 for children and $5 for adults.

Jody Nix and his Texas Playboys will entertain at the fair barn for those who like to dance, after Friday and Saturday night rodeo performances. The cost of admission is $3 per person and $5 per couple.

As one of the oldest and most prestigious rodeos, Big Spring's summer event has never been short of top name rodeo talent. This year's total purse in excess of $34,000 is expected to again draw top name performers. The Adolph Coors Company is donating $500 to each event.

Some of the big names in rodeo who will compete include bull riders Ted Nunce, Lane Frost, Jim Sharp and Bobby Del Vecchio. Frost is currently leading the world standings in the event, followed by Nunce and Sharp. Del Vecchio is ranked eighth in the bull riding. Among local favorites will be Coahoma bull rider Wacey Cathey.

Also competing will be the defending World Champion team roping duo of Clay O'Brien Cooper and Jake Barnes. Other locals competing will be calf roper Brandon Luce, team ropers Rick Furlong and Kenneth Casbeer; Monte Smith and John Anderson and Bill Romine and Bill Romaine Jr.

For the fourth straight year, the livestock for this year's rodeo will be provided by Mack Altizer and Bad Company Rodeo of Sonora. Altizer is considered one of the finest stock contractors in the country. At 30, he's also one of the youngest in the business.

Entertaining the crowds will be Coahoma clown Quail Dobbs, who will unveil some new acts for the home crowd. For the past two seasons Dobbs has been voted the top barrelman in the world.

Also scheduled to entertain the crowd will be Smurf, who delighted audiences last year. Also appearing will be rodeo clown and bull fighter Tony Johnston and Texas Charro Champion Jerry Diaz.

Coahoma superintendent resigns

By EDDIE CURRAN

COAHOMA — The man credited with bringing the Coahoma school district through tough financial times has resigned.

Superintendent Jerry Doyle, 45, told the School Board Tuesday night that he is resigning to take a similar position with the Lampasas school district.

Doyle, whose resignation is effective July 10, has been Coahoma superintendent since 1983.

Applications for the position will be taken immediately, the board decided.

It was not unhappiness with his current position that prompted the decision, Doyle said.

"It's just a much bigger situation and they just made me an offer I feel like I can't refuse," he said.

"I'm not unhappy with anything or anybody. The board and I have been through a lot together, and with the community behind us we've brought this school from the brink of financial collapse to a positive cash position.

"Because of the oil, things are still a little tough, but we can see the light at the end of the tunnel. This is an excellent school with a bright future," Doyle said.

Board President Jim Wright and Board Member Stanley Phillips both said that Doyle would be missed. "The Coahoma School District deeply feels the loss of a man with the financial background that he has," Wright said. "Without his expertise, the tax rate could have been even higher."

"The people of Coahoma need to know what a fine job he did. He deserves all the credit for guiding us through this difficult financial

Telephone tax to net $20,000

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

An extension of the one percent telephone service sales tax approved by the City Council at Tuesday night's meeting will yield about $20,000 to city coffers, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

The Council also approved increases in public health service fees.

The phone tax ordinance passed Tuesday taxes all phone services equally, rather than taxing just certain services, Wofford explained. He said the former ordinance was a carry-over from the days before AT&T deregulation.

Previously exempt from taxation were intra-state long distance calls and telegraphs, optional services such as call waiting, call forwarding, paging and mobile phones, and coin-operated phone service not furnished by the telephone company, he said.

The city would receive ¾ of the tax income, and the remaining ¼ would go to the state comptroller, he said.

The tax burden on the individual customer has not been calculated, Wofford said, but he estimated that it would be slight.

The tax takes effect at the beginning of the new fiscal year, Oct. 1, he said.

Increases in public health service fees are: immunization from $2 to $4; prenatal from $35 to $75; tuberculosis test from $3 to $5; and newborn infant screening from $5 to $10, according to city records. A $2 fee for blood pressure checks was added.

The ordinance states that services will not be denied to anyone who cannot pay.

The increase was recommended by the Big Spring-Howard County Public Health District in an effort to recover more of the actual cost of the service, Wofford said.

Senate budget

$6.6 billion new revenue sought

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a two-year state budget Tuesday that totals $39.56 billion and would require new revenue of over $6.6 billion.

Even though the measure is approximately $1.3 billion higher than a House proposal, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby described it as a "very bare-bones budget" and "a good bill."

The Senate bill was sent to the House, 26-3, after an hour's debate that focused on spending enough money to stop the flight of college faculty members from state institutions in recent years.

The Senate bill is higher than the House version because "we don't want to cut AFDC (state child welfare) or turn people out of nursing homes or cripple higher education — that's where the differences are," Hobby said.

But there are some human-services reductions in child protective services, he said.

"There is a reduction to the level where not even all life-threatening cases can be investigated," Hobby said. "That's tragic, but that's the situation we're in."

Three Republican senators — John Leedom of Dallas, Don Henderson of Houston and J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson — voted against the bill.

Republican Gov. Bill Clements has said he would veto any budget that requires more than $2.9 billion in new or increased taxes. Extending sales and motor vehicle taxes scheduled to expire Sept. 1 would raise the $2.9 billion.

The House has scheduled its budget debate for next Tuesday, following debate over what kind of tax plan to adopt. House Speaker Gib Lewis said he has told Clements the House might pass a tax bill that the governor will not like.

Clements told reporters Tuesday he has not changed his position on vetoing any tax bill over $2.9 billion, and said he would not consider any tax other proposal other than extending both the sales and motor fuels tax.

He also said financing highways through bonds, which would free general revenue money, and a state lottery are being discussed.

Hobby said of highway bonds, "It's not a very good idea, no," and he called a lottery "unrealistic."

The final legislative version of the appropriations bill almost certainly will be written by a House-Senate conference committee. A two-thirds vote of each house would be needed to override a gubernatorial veto.

Sen. Grant Jones, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the Senate proposal would restore higher education spending to 1985 levels, plus 2 percent per-year increases for four years to account for inflation.

"Texas had built up some wonderful momentum in the area of higher education," said Jones, D-Temple. "Professors from across the country were interested in coming to Texas because there appeared to be a major dedication to higher education."

"Unfortunately, in the cuts that we've made in previous years, particularly in the late-lamented special session ... Texas has a perception problem of having lost its dedication" to higher education.

Clements said restoring the funding to 1985 levels is a "dream somebody's got that's not going to happen. You can forget that."

Cotton industry faces competition

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Cotton farmers in West Texas and the U.S. are facing stiffer competition from China and other countries for export markets, according to Don Richardson, county agricultural extension agent.

"We used to sell cotton to China," he said. "Now we're buying shirts from Taiwan made with Chinese cotton." He added that Chinese cotton is cheaper than American, and the quality is almost as good.

Richardson said that the U.S. is also losing markets to countries that until recently didn't export cotton. India, Egypt, Israel and Pakistan are now providing stiff competition to American producers for the export market.

To maintain prominence in the field, the U.S. must adapt new technology to the world marketplace, National Cotton Council economist Dean Ethridge said. He added that an unworkable trade policy would undermine those efforts.

West Texas farmers currently export approximately 750,000 bales of cotton annually, or 50 percent of their crop, Richardson said. The cotton is sent primarily to Taiwan and South Korea, with Great Britain, Hong Kong and Japan also receiving shipments.

The cotton is used mostly in denim jeans and shirts, Richardson said. The outlook for American exports is still good though, according to National Cotton Council officials.

Council vice president Earl Sears said surging exports, improved price competitiveness and increases in market share are making U.S. cotton's future brighter than in many years.

Improved bale packaging, according to Richardson, is helping U.S. efforts.

He explained that under the old baling procedure, the bale was wrapped in polyurethane. The disadvantage of that, he said, was that fibers from the material would mix with the cotton, causing problems for mill operators.

He said that the solution was to use West Texas cotton as the packaging material. If any of those fibers mixed with the bale, it would not cause a problem.

Another advantage Richardson sees to the new material is the increased demand it will have for cotton grown in this area. He said that West Texas cotton is ideally suited for the job.

Richardson said he doesn't blame the city for the flooding problems, but is turning to the Council for help.

Council members and city officials did not comment on the matter.

In other business, the Council passed on first reading an ordinance requiring beekeepers to have a permit and limiting the number of hives to three.

Councilmen Johnny Rutherford and Gary Don Carey voted no.

The two said they objected because the motion deleted the section allowing the Council to revoke a permit if the bees were determined to be a nuisance, or are causing a public disturbance in the area.

Councilmen D.W. Overman and Russ McEwen said they disagreed with the revocation clause, stating beekeepers shouldn't be penalized by a neighbor's bee phobia.

Beekeepers shouldn't be in danger of permit revocation if they meet the ordinance requirements, McEwen said.

In other action, the Council:

situation," he said.

Phillips also credited Doyle with helping the school district to recover from its financial difficulties.

"He did a bang up job and we hate to see him go," Phillips said.

The Board decided to begin taking applications for the open superintendent's position. Deadline for applications is July 14, and interviews will begin July 20. The Board hopes to have a new superintendent by July 27.

Doyle came to Coahoma from the Kress I.S.D. The Eldorado native said he would travel between Coahoma and Lampasas in the next three weeks.

"We've made a lot of friends here," he said. "Both my kids graduated from here and my wife has thoroughly enjoyed her mathematics teaching position here."

"But the Lampasas offer offers both of us the opportunity to grow professionally, and we feel like it's an offer we'd like to take," he said.

Doyle said Lampasas is a 3A school of 2,400 students with close to 700 students in the high school.

Coahoma school board OKs tentative budget

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The Coahoma Independent School District Board of Trustees approved a tentative budget for the 1987-88 school year last night in special session.

The Board also accepted the resignation of Superintendent Jerry Doyle, who is taking a similar position with the Lampasas school district.

The tentative budget of $4,200,000 is $437,000 less than last year, and reflects cuts in almost all areas of the district. The biggest reduction comes in the area of salaries and employee benefits, according to Doyle.

The tentative budget sets salaries and benefits at $2.64 million, down almost $300,000 from last year. Doyle said this is a result of staff reductions and the 5 percent salary cut for teachers and administrators, along with the 10 percent pay cut for non-degreed personnel.

Other aspects of the budget include $855,105 for general operational expenses, down from $1,000,000 last year, and $704,000 allocated for interest and sinking funds, up $2,000 from 1986-87.

Doyle indicated revenue for the budget will reflect an increase in the tax rate.

The school district hopes to raise $2.99 million in local property tax using a rate of $1.50 per thousand, up from $1.32 last school year. Doyle said the district will collect $145,724 less in property taxes this school year due to losses in the tax rolls, despite the higher rate.

Other revenue projected by the district include $1.1 million in state money and $99,000 in federal aid. Miscellaneous revenue from the lunch room, athletic events, and interest should bring in $111,000. Added to the $140,000 balance from last year, Doyle said that total revenues should be $4,450,000 for the school year.

He added that if his figures are correct, the district would have a balance of $250,000 as of August 31, 1988.

In other action Tuesday, the Board:

- Hired Tom Nelson Jr. as a biology teacher, and accepted the resignations of teachers Heavilla Doyle, Nancy Wood, Ken Kelso and Kim Kelso.

- Agreed to qualify Sharon Justice's tutorial services as summer school credit.

Justice approached the Board on behalf of parents of a child who was having to retake an elementary grade. Since no other summer elementary school is available, she asked the Board to approve her services as the equivalent of summer school. The Board agreed on the condition that the student successfully test out of his grade.

- After lengthy debate, took no action on teacher Stanley Blackwell's proposal to go to half time for the coming school year, while the Board hired a full-time Vocational Agriculture teacher to eventually replace him.

The proposal was tabled during last week's meeting.

Board members Ronnie Wood and Jimmy Sterling were in favor of the proposal, saying that money saved from Blackwell's salary could pay for a new teacher. Members Stanley Phillips, Jim Wright and Marvin Keenan said, however, that the budget situation was too uncertain to justify the plan.

Seeing that the Board was obviously split, Blackwell withdrew the proposal.

- Agreed to advertise for cost-plus bids for fuel and oil.

- Agreed to advertise for depository bids, as well as bids for meat, milk and bread.

- Amended the policy for student insurance to read: "Effective July 1, 1987, the Coahoma Independent School District will no longer provide or pay for student and/or athletic insurance. Furthermore, the district will no longer allow an insurance company to sell student and/or athletic insurance under the sponsorship of the District."

Sexual assault suspect pleads guilty

A Big Spring man arrested June 16 and charged with aggravated sexual assault pleaded guilty in 118th District Court Tuesday.

Salvador Calvio Sr., 41, 1208 Lindbergh St., pleaded guilty to sexual assault and was sentenced to 10 years deferred adjudication, according to sheriff records.

Deferred adjudication allows a criminal's record to be cleared if he successfully fulfills adjudication terms, Assistant District Attorney William Dupree said.

On the flip side, Calvio could receive as many as 20 years in the penitentiary if he violates the terms of his adjudication, Dupree said.

"If the judge hears there are problems, all he has to do is sentence him," Dupree said.

May unemployment down

Unemployment in Howard County dropped from 12.6 to 9 percent in May from last year, said Joe Wallis, director of the local Texas Employment Commission.

The unemployment rate for April was 9.1 percent, he said. The change is not attributed to one factor, but a combination of rising oil prices, agricultural conditions and a general improvement in the economy are responsible, Wallis said.

The numbers in the labor force have increased, he said. The figures were 16,039 for May, 15,573 for April, and 15,765 for May 1986, he said. The number of unemployed was 14,600 for May, 14,319 for April and 13,783 for May 1986. The number of unemployed was 1,439 for May, 1,434 for April and 1,982 for May 1986, he said.

Wallis reminded job seekers that they must prove they are U.S. citizens or are in the country legally. A driver's license and Social Security card or birth certificate are suggested for U.S. citizens, and legal immigrants should bring Immigration and Naturalization Service documents, he said.

Operator was fired unlawfully

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computer operator in the Houston constable's office who said she hoped someone would assassinate President Reagan was unlawfully fired, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-4 vote, the justices said the woman's free-speech rights were violated.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, writing for the court, said, "Vigilance is necessary to ensure that public employers do not use authority over employees to silence discourse, not because it hampers public functions but simply because superiors disagree with the content of employees' speech."

Marshall said a threat to kill the president would be grounds for firing a public employee. But he said the comment by computer operator Ardith McPherson was not intended as a threat.

"While McPherson's statement was made at the workplace, there is no evidence that it interfered with the efficient function of the office," he said. "Where, as here, an employee serves no confidential, policy-making or public contact role."

Briefs

Charges filed on driver

MONROE, La. — Additional charges of negligent homicide and negligent injury have been filed against a truck driver in Monday's collision of his 18-wheeler and a Trailways bus on Interstate 20, Louisiana State Police said today.

Two women bus passengers died and at least 16 people were injured when the bus plowed into the back of the slower moving truck, which was traveling with two flat tires, said state police.

The bus was traveling from Shreveport to Meridian, Miss., at the time of the accident which killed Lenora Harris Bean, 53, of Guntersville, Ala., and Juanita E. Barton 67, of Troop, Texas, said state police.

State police booked the truck driver, William Keltner, 34, of Tampa, Fla., with two counts of negligent homicide and 15 counts of negligent injury, said Troop F spokesman, Lt. Wendell Lewis.

Texas inmate executed

HUNTSVILLE — Elliott Rod Johnson, a 10th grade dropout who blamed drug use for his problems with the law, was executed early Wednesday for killing a jeweler during a 1982 robbery.

ELLIOTT JOHNSON

Johnson, 28, died at 12:55 a.m., Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

"First of all, I would like to say I'm very sorry for bringing all the hurt and pain to everyone who loved me so much. I hope all my friends find it in their heart to forgive me," said Johnson. "Mom, don't worry about me too much because I'm on my way home now. Just remember one thing, I love you, Mom."

Johnson was convicted for the shooting death of Joseph Granado, Granado, 67, and a fellow employee at his downtown Beaumont store, Arturo Melendez, 45, were gunned down during a daylight robbery.

John Connally, Cisneros call for tax hikes

AUSTIN — Former Gov. John Connally, who presided over a few tax hikes during his tenure, says lawmakers should not be scared to raise taxes to pay for better education.

"It is the one thing you can support without any fear of retribution so far as the taxpayers are concerned," Connally said.

The ex-governor and San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros stopped at the Capitol Tuesday on their tax tour of Texas. Without a tax increase public and higher education will suffer, they said.

"Texas is at a fork in the road," Cisneros said. "I really do believe the choices that face the Legislature and the leaders of our state over the next several weeks will determine not just the future of Texas for the next two years. It's not just a budget issue. It really is a question of Texas' image and Texas' identity and Texas' perception across the rest of the nation."

The Legislature is meeting in special session to try to write a state budget in the face of a projected budget shortfall of up to $5.8 billion.

"What we need to do is screw up our courage to pass a tax bill," Connally said.

Connally said lawmakers will find that there can be political life after a tax bill.

He recalled that lawmakers approved several tax bills during his 1963-69 tenure.

"I don't think a single member of the House or the Senate was ever defeated for voting for a tax bill. The people of Texas will understand, will appreciate and will applaud those who have the courage to stand up to their duties and their responsibilities and pass a tax bill if indeed they understand why they are doing it," Connally said.

He said a tax increase of about $3.6 billion, in addition to the $2.9 billion that could be raised by continuing the temporary sales and fuels levies now in effect, would be needed.

tients, say lawyers for plaintiffs in the lawsuit. The motion, filed Tuesday, asked U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas to appoint a special master with authority to manage MHMR assets and improve care. The master, or coordinator of a special three-member panel, also would have the power to rule on all transfers, discharges and furloughs and appeals concerning patients.

LULAC convention opens

CORPUS CHRISTI — Nine candidates will heat up the 1988 presidential race as they converge on the League of United Latin American Citizens national convention.

Convention organizers say the number of prominent contenders shows the importance of Texas and its Hispanic vote in the March 8, 1988, "Super Tuesday" primary.

The convention, beginning today, could be seen as the point where the 1988 campaign gets rolling, said Ruben Bonilla, convention chairman.

The convention schedule includes all of the top contenders from the Democratic Party, but only one Republican.

"The Republican Party is remiss in conceding the Hispanic vote to the Democratic Party," said Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney and former LULAC president.

Judicial resolution filed

AUSTIN — A legislator who led an investigation of possible improprieties on the Texas Supreme Court has filed a resolution to create a House-Senate committee to determine whether there is "reasonable cause" to remove Justice C.L. Ray from the court.

Ray was cited recently by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct for seven instances of improper conduct following an investigation of allegations that he had contacts about pending cases with lawyers outside the courtroom and not in the presence of all parties involved.

At the same time, the commission issued a less-severe public admonishment of Justice William Kilgarlin on two points.

Sen. Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio, filed a resolution Tuesday for a 10-member committee to study whether the Legislature — by two-thirds vote of each house — should "address" the governor to remove Ray from office.

Bentsen says oil import 'dangerous'

Dallas Times Herald Bureau WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Tuesday a new study on oil imports indicates that by 1995, the United States will be increasingly dependent on OPEC for its imported oil, with imports from the troubled Persian Gulf alone increasing four-fold.

In a letter to his Senate colleagues, Bentsen said the Congressional Research Service study forecast a "dangerous future of rising oil imports and greatly increased dependence on the Persian Gulf."

"That is a dire prospect," Bentsen said. "It virtually guarantees a repetition of the 1973 embargo, with long lines at service stations, gasoline rationing and an explosion in price that would cut real GNP by more than 4,700 billion over five years, send inflation into double digits and throw two million people out of work."

Bentsen, chairman of the Senate

Finance Committee, sent the study to other senators as part of his campaign to preserve a controversial provision relating to oil imports in the trade bill that is expected to come before the Senate in the next week.

The amendment, sponsored by Bentsen and included in the Finance Committee's version of the trade bill, would force the president to put in place one or more programs — including an oil import fee — to ensure that the United States does not import more than 50 percent of its oil.

Other options available to the president would be a conservation program, an outright limit on imports, incentives to increase production and greater use of the petroleum reserves.

Goodbye lauds Volcker career

As he tendered his resignation to President Reagan, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker spoke of "a natural time" to return to private life.

Few will begrudge Volcker the respite he has earned by eight years at the head of the U.S. central bank. But few here or abroad will find it "natural" for Volcker to be absent from shaping U.S. financial policy.

Long service is just part of the reason. Before becoming Fed chairman, Volcker headed the Federal Reserve Bank of New York — with key responsibility for managing Fed policy in domestic and foreign financial markets. Earlier he dealt with those issues as Treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs.

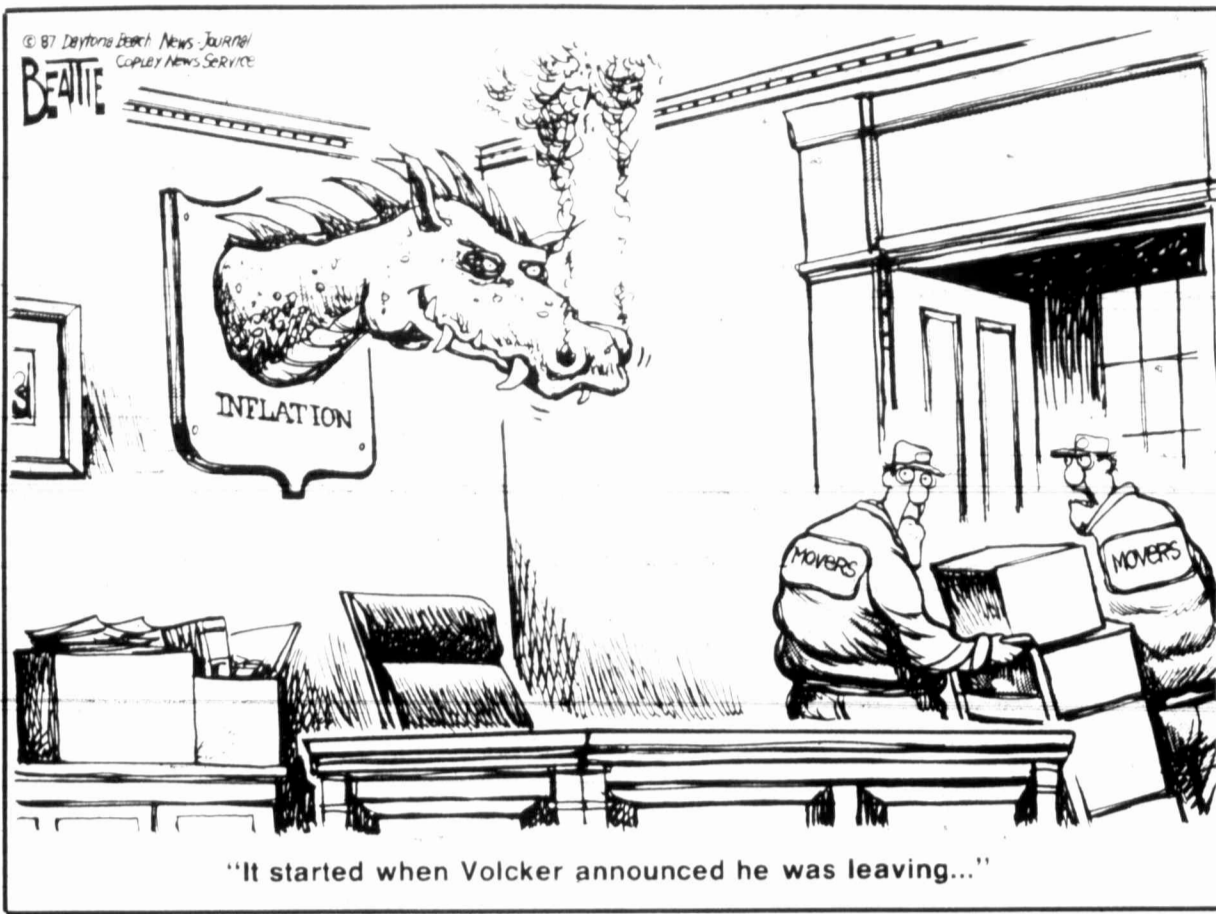

Volcker earned the respect he commands today by striving in those jobs to make real his vision of government's prime economic role.

In Volcker's view, the essence of that role for a central bank is to maintain a monetary environment that people can count on with reasonable confidence. Reliable money is a prerequisite to the development of the products, services and jobs needed by a growing world population.

Volcker consistently has accepted the implication that inflation is the enemy most to be feared by democracies seeking prosperity and growth. And he acted on that belief by leading the Fed to squeeze U.S. inflation down from double digits in 1979 and 1980 to 1.1 percent last year.

The price for that squeeze was a tough recession, for which Volcker got more blame than he deserved. The price for letting inflation continue would have been still tougher — without the rewards of renewed world confidence in the U.S. economy and years-long growth in U.S. employment and production.

As he looks forward to leaving office in August, Volcker can savor the praise he's getting now from people and governments grateful that inflation was tamed.

Is there safety in Loving with numbers like these?

By ROBERT WERNSMAN

The subject today is numbers. They fascinate me. When in grade school, they fascinated me only to the extent of my efforts to avoid them. Although not very successful in avoiding them, persistence was in my favor.

My grades reflected this dislike for the subject. A decade or two later numbers are more of a game to me — probably the result of no longer facing fifth grade story problems.

Now, I enjoy working with numbers. Adding purchases at the checkout line and doing it quicker than the clerk punches them in is a challenge that I relish.

I discovered recently that I'm not alone in playing such games.

Susan P. Baker, head of the Injury Prevention Center at Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, also enjoys playing numbers games.

She recently released her findings in a study using numbers to indicate that drivers in the hinterlands are at least 100 times more likely than city dwellers to die in car crashes.

That sounds serious. It sounds even more serious when you realize where the hinterlands are located — we are in them, according to the report.

The difference is that her games were published as news and mine remain little more than mental gymnastics.

Her analysis of certain numbers prompted her to say: "People are going to be surprised that the death rates are highest not where there's the most traffic but basically where there's the least traffic."

Not only would they be surprised, dear Susan, but I think they would be somewhat misinformed if they believe you.

Just My Type

vehicles (which overturn easily, she noted). Baker was making a pretty strong case for herself. It then explained that the report based the number of highway deaths per 100,000 residents in each county. Looked at this way, the most dangerous place to be on the road during the three years studied was sparsely settled Loving County, right here in Texas. The safest was the Manhattan section of New York City.

That seemed mighty strange to me and I've never conducted any studies for Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. From 1979 to 1981, four people died on Loving County roads. Since the county had just 91 residents, that's an annual highway death rate of 1,465 per 100,000 people.

It's the calculation per 100,000 that throws all this askew. Such figures may look great on your computer, but do they really add up? We might have to wait a decade or more before 100,000 people even consider passing through Loving County, much less stick around long enough to involve themselves in any study.

I'll grant Ms. Baker the latitude of suggesting rural counties need to give greater attention to such things as enforcing the speed limit, improving the roads and enforcing seat belt use.

When it comes to driving a stretch of highway however, where would you feel safer — cruising around Manhattan or tripping along County Road 652 near Red Bluff in Loving County?

I rest my case — and suggest we remove the batteries from Susan Baker's calculator.

Woman feels need of God, seeking truth in religion

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My parents were sort of half-hearted church members, and took us along from time to time — mainly Christmas and Easter. When I left home I left behind the little religion I had learned, and decided I could get along without God. But now I am beginning to wonder, and down inside I feel a need of God. Where can I turn to find out if there is any truth to religion? — Mrs. W.G.

Billy Graham

DEAR MRS. W.G.: You probably already realized that if God is real and He is concerned about our lives, then He deserves much more than the occasional bit of casual attention which your parents gave Him. He is worthy of our complete commitment.

And God is real, and not only that but He wants to enter into a personal relationship with you. How do I know that is true? I know it because God has taken the initiative to make Himself known to us and to remove the barriers between God and man.

God is not some vague, distant, impersonal "force" — He is the One who created us in His image, and He has revealed Himself to us because He wants us to know Him.

He has done this, the Bible says, in a way that almost staggers our imagination. God loves us so much that He took upon Himself human form in the person of Jesus Christ so we could know what He is like. As the Bible says, "No one has ever seen God, but God the only Son, who is at the Father's side, has made him known" (John 1:18). When we look at Christ we see God's love, God's purity and holiness, and God's desire to forgive our sins and make us His children forever. No, you may not understand everything about God right now. But don't let that keep us from Him. By faith ask Christ to come into your heart, and commit your life to Him. Then grow in your understanding through His Word, the Bible.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

By The Associated Press
"Any tax hike bill that makes it into the Oval Office won't make it out alive." — President Reagan.

"I was a little taken aback by the president's comments about bashing the Congress, solely, for the huge deficits, when, in fact, the president has never sent the balanced budget to the Congress." — Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., after President Reagan visited his home district.

"We're going into our normal mode in these things, which is holding hearings and debating, but I have to believe nothing concrete will happen in terms of blocking the policy." — Rep. "If there was ever a situation in which the battleship would be useful, it's defending our interests in the Persian Gulf." — Sen. John Glenn, saying the Navy is considering sending the battleship Missouri to the Gulf.

"What do you do when you're president, your popularity is plummeting, the Senate has gone to the other party, the Irangate hearings grind on day after day? You try to create a smokescreen with your favorite issue, the budget." — Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., during House budget debate.

Volcker quit before dumped

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Paul Volcker, who will soon vacate the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board, assured the White House press corps that he had no feeling of being pushed out. If so, it must be because his dorsal nerve endings have atrophied during his 7½ years in the seat of government financial power.

The plain truth is that Volcker quit before he was given the bum's rush. According to insiders, Volcker realized he was on a collision course with his Reagan-appointed colleagues on the board. He confided to associates at the Fed that he would have had to resign within a year anyway over policy differences.

Thanks to an unusually high number of retirements and resignations in the past seven years, President Reagan has been able to stack the Federal Reserve Board to a degree not seen since Franklin Delano Roosevelt's presidency.

With Volcker's resignation, Reagan will have chosen all seven members of the board, ensuring a half-life of Reaganism well past his departure from the Oval Office in January 1989. The term of Volcker's successor, Alan Greenspan, doesn't run out until 1991.

Though Volcker was often called the second most powerful man in the United States because of his influence on the economy, his power had in fact been severely diluted by the new, Reaganite makeup of the Fed. The new members are generally gung-ho deregulators of the financial system, more sympathetic to easy money and willing to let the dollar's value shrink in hopes of restoring a favorable trade balance.

Volcker, on the other hand, still clings stubbornly to the idea that inflation is the mortal enemy and must be kept in check by a tight rein on the money supply. He is convinced that healthy economic progress is impossible when prices soar out of control.

The Reagan administration went along with Volcker in 1981, cynically letting him slay the inflation dragon — and take the blame for the high interest rates and recession that resulted.

Soviet wall inspires patriotism

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

President Reagan was standing at the Berlin Wall recently when he said, "Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall."

On that wall are wreaths in remembrance of people who tried to get over it and were killed as a result of their attempts to embrace the sweet arms of freedom.

A couple of years ago, I spent two weeks in the Soviet Union. I thought that experience would enlighten me as to what it is like to be locked out of the rest of the world.

In some ways, it did. The only news I could get had been tampered with by the government. Guards went through my luggage and took away a football media guide I was carrying as reading material. They thought it had to do with politics, and I wasn't allowed to bring it into the country.

I couldn't get into my hotel unless I showed a guard my pass. Citizens of the Soviet Union are not allowed inside hotels where tourists are staying.

I was warned not to smile when my picture was taken for my visa. I asked why not.

"The Soviets," I was told, "are suspicious of smiles."

But all that gave me only a brief hint of life from behind a wall, a barbed wire fence, a curtain of iron.

All the time I was in the Soviet Union, I knew I would be leaving soon.

Those millions of other poor souls would have to stay.

Something I tried to get answered during those two weeks is why there aren't more protests by Soviet citizens against the tyranny of the government.

Americans wouldn't stand for such a thing, of course. We would march, riot, and die to remove our shackles. We have done it many times before.

I did manage to come away with a few reasons why people of the Soviet Union continue to take whatever the government wants to dish out for them.

The Soviet people are patriotic. For centuries they have had to guard against invasions of countless hordes and armies. There remain the markings of German shells on buildings in Leningrad where the Soviets held on against the Nazi siege in World War II.

There is a legacy of oneness and safety in numbers that binds the Soviet masses.

The Soviet people don't compare their lives to others who live in freedom because they know little of what else is beyond their guarded boundaries and the government wants to keep it that way. How are you going to keep 'em down on the farm, etc.?

We constantly tell ourselves how precious our freedom is, but most of us still take it for granted and I am as gully as any.

But there is this one thing: I can tell you when the Lufthansa flight from Moscow to Frankfurt lifted its wheels off Soviet turf, the group of Americans with whom I was travelling broke out into a spontaneous cheer.

Some even cried.

One dies in accident

FORT HOOD — A tank taking part in a military exercise was hit by artillery fire from another tank and exploded, and one National Guardsman was killed, officials said today.

At least five people were reported injured in the accident, the second at the Starburst '87 maneuvers this week.

Sgt. Roger Allen of the Fort Hood Public Affairs Office said an M-60 tank blew up just before midnight Tuesday, killing a member of the Texas National Guard's 49th Armored Division.

One of the injured guardsmen was hospitalized in serious condition, but the other four guardsmen were released after treatment, he said.

Earlier this week, 10 reservists and National Guardsmen were killed in a helicopter crash during the exercises.

Paperboy recovering

TULSA, Okla. — A 17-year-old violinist wounded by a shotgun blast as he delivered newspapers may be well enough to travel to Britain next month with the Tulsa Youth Symphony, doctors say.

Honor student Keith Edward Hurn was shot in the head Sunday while working as a substitute paper carrier to earn money for the trip. A shotgun pellet lodged in his brain, doctors said.

Hurn, who underwent surgery Sunday, was moved Tuesday from St. Francis Hospital's pediatric intensive care unit to a private room, and his condition was upgraded from critical to serious.

He could be discharged in about a week and, if there are no complications, should be sufficiently recovered to travel to England next month, a hospital spokesman said.

Vandal schizophrenic

NEW ORLEANS — A man accused of vandalizing the city's famous St. Louis Cathedral and destroying some of its treasures was described by his mother as schizophrenic and out of touch with reality.

Police said former mental patient Joe Wayne Reno, 35, of suburban Gretna, remained in jail today on charges of criminal damage in excess of $10,000, aggravated assault and resisting arrest by refusing to identify himself to arresting officers.

Sexton John Frenz said Reno babbled "I am the Holy Spirit! Burn all the Bibles!" when he entered the French Quarter cathedral early Tuesday and began shattering statues, throwing candles and heavy marble fonts, overturning the archbishop's wooden throne and throwing books of Scripture.

Douglas Beane is welcomed home by his mother, Christine, right, and his father Donald, left, in West Rutland, Vt. Tuesday after Beane was released by the Marines. Beane, who went AWOL from the Marines during the Vietnam War, had been living in Australia and returned home to visit his ailing father.

Deserter

Home again after 17 years on run

WEST RUTLAND, Vt. — A Vietnam War deserter who returned to the United States "expecting the worst" after 17 years in exile embraced his ailing father a free man, and said others who went AWOL should come home, too.

"Come back and face them. It is not worth it," Douglas G. Beane, 40, said of his years on the run, after his release Tuesday from Quantico Marine Base, Va. The Marine Corps on Monday decided against a court-martial.

Beane, who surrendered June 9 at the urging of his Australian wife in hopes of seeing his ill father, arrived at his parents' home Tuesday night and walked across the lawn into the arms of his mother, Christine, and father, Donald.

The elder Beane, walking stiffly because of circulatory problems, said that he at first was angry at his son for deserting two weeks before his tour of duty in Vietnam was to end. But, he added, "I've forgiven him."

"I used to dream about Rutland and the Green Mountains for years and years," Douglas Beane said.

"Then they turned into nightmares" because of fear he would never again return to his native state.

Standing in front of the home, he said: "It looks all the same, the same as my dreams, except it's real now."

Beane was discharged under an other-than-honorable classification after the Marines decided against a court-martial on desertion and other charges, sparing him a possible 18 years' hard labor, said his lawyer, Maj. David Henderson.

Beane faced charges of dealing in the black market and threatening to kill a fellow Marine when he deserted, and has admitted the offenses, said a spokesman for Quantico, where Beane had been held since his return.

Henderson said the decision not to prosecute apparently resulted from a belief that Beane had suffered enough and "the Marine Corps has other things to do."

Sgt. Dean Chamberlain, the Quantico spokesman, said Beane was discharged "for the good of the service."

Kidnappers free two

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Kidnappers released the son of Lebanon's defense minister and his driver today but kept captive American journalist Charles Glass, who was abducted with them a week ago.

Defense Minister Adel Osseiran told reporters after his son's release: "Charles Glass is still alive. Efforts are continuing to obtain his release."

Asked if he thought Glass would be released soon, Osseiran said: "I hope so."

Ali Osseiran appeared briefly on the balcony of the family home. Asked where Glass was, he paused and then replied sadly, "I don't know."

Protest talks collapse

SEOUL, South Korea — Opposition leaders denounced President Chun Doo-hwan today after the collapse of talks on ending nationwide protests that have plunged the country into crisis. The opposition vowed to step up its campaign to oust the government.

The Reunification Democratic Party issued a tough statement after party chief Kim Young-sam met for three hours with Chun, their first meeting in the 7 1/2 years of Chun's presidency. The talks were a concession by Chun after two weeks of the worst political violence since he took power in 1980.

Opposition leaders said they would go ahead with plans for major protests against the government on Friday. Radical students have vowed to march on the presidential palace.

Waldheim flies to Italy

VATICAN CITY — Kurt Waldheim makes his first foreign trip as the Austrian head of state today, flying to Italy for a papal audience that has been criticized by Israel and Jewish groups.

The Austrian Embassy said Waldheim will arrive in Italy today and stay until Friday. But, apparently for security reasons, neither Austrian nor Italian authorities have given details of Waldheim's plans. He is to meet with Pope John Paul II on Thursday.

Waldheim, who served in the German army in the Balkans during World War II, has been accused of aiding in the deportation of thousands of Jews and partisans who later died in Nazi death camps. The U.S. Justice Department has barred him from official visits to the United States because of his wartime activities. Waldheim has denied any wrongdoing.

Jewish groups have assailed the pope's decision to agree to meet with Waldheim.

Teleconference discusses illiteracy consequences

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

In the future, illiteracy will have graver consequences than most of us imagine, said Tommy Tune, the Howard College librarian and the executive director of the Literacy Council.

Tune and approximately 20 other Howard County educators participated in a nationwide video teleconference on adult illiteracy Tuesday night at Howard College. About 1,000 communities, including the group at Howard College, tuned in via satellite for Tuesday night's conference.

The program, titled "The American Seminar: Literacy, Your Community and its Workforce," lasted about three hours, Tune said. The program included a roster of distinguished panelists and speakers from education, government, business and industry, said Howard College President Bob Riley.

Riley said the purpose of the program was to bring together leaders of literacy action programs with other leaders from business, government and community groups to develop a coordinated, comprehensive literacy education action program for their community.

Tune said the program focused primarily on the economic consequences of illiteracy. Panel members included Massachusetts senator Ted Kennedy, Nebraska governor Kay Orr, Atlanta mayor Andrew Young and moderator Hugh Downs.

"I felt like the basic thrust of this conference was that business and everyone needs to get involved because by the year 2000 there will be a lot more technical demands on the work force than today.

TOMMY TUNE
... discusses illiteracy

"Our economic future depends on it as much as just the pride of being an educational forerunner in the world," he said.

Tune explained that the growing complexity of the working world will change the definition of literacy — someone classified as literate now may not be literate enough for the increased demands of the 21st century.

Tune said the program attempted to broaden the consequences of illiteracy. He said the problem is more than an attitude of "Gee, it's terrible that people can't read."

"The economic picture demands that we have to raise our standards of literacy," he said.

The social ills wrought by illiteracy were also discussed, Tune said. Panel members attributed illiteracy as a major cause of the crime rate and the large portion of the population on welfare.

Child-proofing home is important Military

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter in your column from "Kiki's Mom" who said that her 2-year-old daughter received a frightening shock when she stuck her mother's keys into an electrical outlet. She was indeed lucky her daughter was not more seriously injured — or killed.

"Mom" should go to the nearest hardware store and buy some plugged discs that fit into these outlets. Her child may not have her keys to play with, but there are other objects such as hairpins that could be stuck into outlets with the same results. Mothers should not attempt to cover electrical outlets with tape — a child will quickly learn how to pull it off.

"Mom" should go through her entire house to ensure that no safety hazards exist. Safety latches for cabinets are a good idea. All household cleaners should be stored out of reach — never under a kitchen sink. The best way to spot a problem is to get down on the floor and view a room the way a child sees it.

Grandparents who frequently have little guests should also child-proof their homes. Most grandparents have forgotten what it was like to have an inquisitive, exploring child in the house.

DEAR EVELYN: Thank you for some valuable suggestions. And, readers, wouldn't a half-dozen of these "outlet pluggers" make a fine gift for a baby shower?

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are both married. We decided to take a weekend trip together — just the two of us. Just as our plans were coming together, she comes up with a "proposition" — if I lose 10 pounds before we leave, she will buy me a new outfit while we're out of town. Mind you, I am 5 foot 6 and weigh 125 pounds. I am by no means "fat," but she would like to make me think I am. She's always telling me that if there is something I want, she'll give it to me if I "tone up" or lose weight.

I am tired of her finding fault with me when she is just one size smaller than I am. Is there some way I can tell her how I feel without hurting her feelings, although she has hurt mine more than once?

UP TO HERE IN CHARLOTTE, N.C.

DEAR UP: Why do you think it would hurt your sister's feelings if you were to tell her truthfully that she hurts your feelings when she suggests that you are overweight when you're not? That's the only way to get her off your back. Try it. You'll like it. And don't worry about whether she likes it or not. The "weight" you'll lose will be the burden of your sister's hostility. And telling her will "tone up" your self-esteem like no other exercise.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter in your column from a woman who wanted suggestions as to what to do about her husband's scraggly beard, short of shaving it off, which he refused to do.

Our residents here at the Good Samaritan Village in Albuquerque, N.M., enjoy having "Dear Abby" read to them, and they had a very lively discussion about that letter. One of the residents suggested that the woman give her husband a permanent, which would curl the ends under and make the beard less scraggly. What do you think of the idea?

MARY A. JOHNSON, ACTIVITIES COORDINATOR. DEAR MARY: Tell that resident that she rates with the professionals. That suggestion was offered by several top-notch barbers and hairdressers.

Low blood pressure may affect memory in elderly

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

When it comes to mental sharpness, the effects of low blood pressure may be just as harmful for the elderly as high blood pressure.

That's according to a study from the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Baylor College of Medicine, and the University of Houston, reports Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

This surprising finding has led to a new recommendation that holds promise for older people who suffer severe memory deficits, fuzzy thinking and personality changes due to decreased blood flow to the brain. This type of dementia affects about five percent of all people over age 65 and 20 percent of those 85 and older.

The key is to keep systolic blood pressure (the upper number on a blood pressure reading) within the upper limits of normal — between 135 mm Hg and 150 mm Hg — reported Dr. John Stirling Meyer and his colleagues. Lowering blood pressure further worsened these patients' symptoms.

About one in eight of these victims of dementia may benefit from this special form of blood pressure control, according to the researchers.

For persons with dementia due to multiple strokes who have normal blood pressure, abstinence from cigarette smoking brought about improvement. Smoking, the researchers note, reduces the flow of blood within the brain and leads to reduced thinking abilities in some individuals.

Taking daily doses of aspirin and limiting alcohol ingestion also contribute to improved cognition.

Existing on a bachelor's favorite easy recipes

Editor's note: Recipe exchange editor Carleen Everett is on vacation and bachelor Eddie Curran offered to step in and share some of his favorites. He warns: "These recipes do not come highly recommended, as they are the result of necessity and may not be considered the most tasty."

"A family might rebel if some of the dishes were served to them," he said. "Should a host serve them to a guest, that guest would have every right to apologize and say, 'I've already eaten.' Also, that guest would be excused for never returning to that home during mealtime. They do, however, serve the purposes of a hungry bachelor."

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

A bachelor who lives alone can have high standards and low standards when it comes to food — he can be picky, or he can be willing to eat most anything. Once he's decided to eat almost anything, as he invariably does, there are two more options: He can eat out or he can eat in.

Eating out can be expensive if done daily. Also, it loses its charm and becomes routine. To save money and protect the special joy of eating out, I recommend eating in five times out of six.

But there are problems we bachelors — and bachelorettes, presumably — have that families do not have.

A big problem is the trouble with cooking a balanced meal; asking someone as lazy as a bachelor often seems to prepare foods from each of the four food groups may be too much.

Also, bachelors can only disappoint themselves, and they can handle that. The person responsible for a family's meals risks disappointing the whole family. It's probably less painful to cook than to put up with a dining room full of angry children who just look at the plate in disbelief.

Still, something has to be cooked. The following are recipes I have either devised myself, or come across in my travels throughout Western Texas and Southern Alabama.

If some of them appear too simplistic or obvious, please remember that bachelors don't always know how to boil water. Also, don't hesitate to replace something here or there — these aren't set in stone by any means. Also, none of these recipes require a pinch of anything, though it probably wouldn't hurt.

A BAKED POTATO

One potato
Lots of margarine, or butter if you avoid doctors' proclamations
Two slices Kraft American Cheese
Salt and pepper
Aluminum foil
Sour cream (optional)

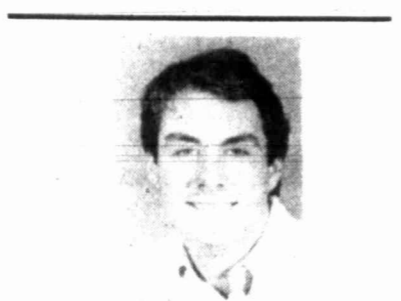

Though Mrs. Eleanor Curran originally gave instructions to cook a baked potato at 450 degrees for an hour, it has been discovered that 70 minutes is more like it. The potato should be wrapped with aluminum foil, and no skin should show through. Once the timer has gone off, halve the potato, placing one slice of cheese in each half. Apply margarine and/or butter and/or sour cream to suit taste. Do the same with the salt and pepper. Mash ingredients forcefully with fork or knife, otherwise the bottom of the potato will be without fixings, and won't taste good. Remember, a potato is just a stage on which butter, salt and other ingredients play their roles.

PASTA EDWINO
One package, coiled vermicelli
Two boneless chicken breasts
Two slices Kraft American Cheese
Mayonnaise
Mustard
Salt and pepper

Boil vermicelli as package directs, meanwhile grilling chicken breasts and cutting them into bite-sized pieces. For best results, coordinate chicken and vermicelli to be finished at exactly the same time. Dump cooked vermicelli into strainer, and replace vermicelli in pot with chicken, cheese, and mayonnaise and mustard to taste. Dump steaming vermicelli back into pot. Stir vigorously. Don't look — eat.

CHEESE FRIED RICE

Rice
Margarine
Pepper
Soy sauce
One slice, Kraft American Cheese

Boil rice as directed and refrigerate. Melt small amount of margarine in frying pan, spread rice on pan, and fry at a high temperature, adding pepper to taste. When rice is just about fried, add cheese. Once cheese is added, make sure to stir rice. This has two purposes: To mix the cheese throughout the rice and to keep cheese from burning on skillet. It's crucial that the rice be refrigerated. I'm not sure why, but the refrigeration makes all the difference as far as texture is concerned. Don't hesitate to add onions, chicken, pork, shrimp, or anything else that won't spoil the general idea. One suggestion — cook rice without the cheese, but add the cheese later after putting rice in a bowl. Top with steaming black eyed peas — the brand that comes with jalapenos.

MR. CURRAN'S SPAM SANDWICH SUPREME

One can Spam
Your favorite kind of sandwich bread
Swiss cheese
An onion
Mayonnaise
Mustard

My father introduced me to this sandwich, hence the name. It's important, as he told me, to cut the Spam to the correct thickness — too thin, and it's just crispy without being meaty; too thick and it tastes like Spam. If you err, do so on the thin side. Fry Spam and onions in the same skillet, while toasting bread. When Spam is just about well done, add Swiss cheese. By now you should have spread mayonnaise and mustard on toast. Three parts mayonnaise to one part mustard is recommended, but your ratio may differ. Just don't add ketchup. Put toasted onions on toasted Swiss and Spam, and place on toast. This one you can serve to guests, though it goes over better at short pants affairs than at the black tie kind. Also, bologna can be substituted for Spam. However, don't be alarmed if the bologna rises up in a dome. Calm down, and make a slice in the bologna. It too will relax.

MAMA'S BAKED CHICKEN

Chicken parts
Salt and pepper

The genius of this recipe is in its simplicity. My mother told me to put salt and pepper on the chicken, and bake it one hour at 350 degrees. This time, she was right. She also said that the chicken cooks in its own juices, and doesn't need much seasoning. Again, on the mark. Mama's Baked Chicken is so easy and delicious — Mama's Baked Chicken is too good to be true. The best part is the skin, which comes out crisp and tasty with the salt and pepper. It's known in some circles as Mama's Baked Chicken Skins.

This recipe is so easy that you have time to heat some Del Monte Green Beans on the stove.

I think that's about it, except for a few recipes like tossed salad and tuna salad (tuna and mayonnaise and salt and pepper) that are too easy to require further explanation. But I would like to mention one more thing.

Frozen foods. We are, as you may already know, entering into the Golden Age of Frozen Foods. I'm sure historians will remember it that way. Banquet Hungry Man Pot Pies are delicious, as is just about anything with Stouffers on it.

But too much frozen food takes the mystery out of life, so avoid relying on them excessively.

Let's talk Little League

Since it's that time of the year, let's talk baseball. Not just any baseball, but local little league baseball. First of all, I'm grateful for the cooperation we at the Herald sports desk were given by league presidents, coaches and managers. I said I'm grateful, not satisfied. Grateful, because I know league personnel don't have to take the time to get us the results. Dissatisfied, because we only received good cooperation from about half of the league. For the last three years, we at the Herald have done everything we can to improve our Little League coverage. It has gotten better, but 50 percent coverage is not what we're shooting for. But I must issue thanks to members of the National Little League. For the past two years you've provided results on approximately 75 percent of your games. At times I've felt like calling the 'local baseball roundup', the 'local National League roundup.'

As far as cooperating with the media, the American Little League finished second. It turned in about half of its results.

I was really disappointed with the Texas and International Leagues' cooperation. If I had to make a guess, I'd say the two turned in about 10 percent of their results.

Switching from Little League, let's address the cooperation we've gotten from the United Girls Softball Association. Sorry Little League, but it put you to shame.

This is really the second year we made it a point to get UGSA results. Last year we received about one-third of the results from all four leagues. This year the league presidents must have gotten their collective point across because we've received no less than 75 percent of local UGSA results.

I tip my hat to the ladies of the UGSA.

*****

Now, switching back to Little League.

The current Little League city tournament is in full swing, and the double-elimination affair is shaping up to be something special.

During the regular season, inside experts told me the power was in the National and American Leagues, although there were a couple of dark horses in the Texas and International Leagues.

My inside informants apparently knew what they were talking about because the Nationals and Americans seem to be in the driver's seat during the early going.

The Nationals won five of six games in the opening round, while the Americans won three of four contests.

Both leagues appear to be well-balanced. For instance, the AL's number three seeded team, the Colts, trounced the International's top-seed Indians, by a 17-2 margin. Or how about the NL's lowest seeded team, the Lions, rolling to wins over the International's No. 4 team and the AL's No. 2 team?

In the first two rounds, NL teams are outscoring their opponents 10-6. AL teams are outscoring their opponents 8-2. The AL totals include no-hitters by Jeromaine Gonzales and Tom Blankenship. However, Blankenship lost in a 1-0 decision to the NL Cardinals and Oscar Cervantes, who hurled a one-hitter.

There is still one week left in the city playoffs and anything can happen. But anyone wanting to wager a bet against the Americans or Nationals, give me a call.

Tigers move into third round Oliva pitches gem

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Behind a superb offensive and defensive performance by Michael Oliva, the Texas League Tigers cruised into the third round of the city Little League tourney, drubbing the American League Hawks 13-0 Tuesday night at the Texas League field.

Oliva was definitely the 'Man of the Hour', hurling a no-hitter and going two-for-four at the plate, driving in four runs and scoring twice himself.

On the mound, he fanned nine Hawks, though the contest was called after five innings because of the ten run rule. Only twice did Hawks' hitters get the ball out of the infield. The 12-year-old righty showed good control — walking just four — while keeping the Hawks off balance with a mixture of curves and fastballs.

At the plate he doubled and tripled while worrying Hawk defenders with his boldness on the base paths. In fact, all the Tigers ran the bases Tigers' relentless attack. He went one-and-two-thirds innings, allowed seven runs and five hits. He was replaced by Salvador Ramirez, who finished the game.

In all fairness to Robertson and Ramirez, they didn't get the best of help from their defense. The Hawks committed eight errors as opposed to one by the Tigers.

The Tigers scored two runs in the first inning. John Oliva's single scored brother Michael with the first run. Orlando Olague's single scored John Oliva with the second run.

The Tigers batted around and scored five runs in the second inning off three hits and four walks. Michael Oliva's double scored Roger Eldington and Chris Yanez, and Gonzales' triple scored Orlando Leos and John Oliva. Gonzales scored run number seven on a passed ball.

In the next inning the Tigers batted around again, scoring six runs on three hits and four errors. The hits in the inning were a triple by Michael Oliva and singles by John Oliva and Yanez. Gonzales also stole home in the inning.

By that time the score was 13-0, and in the final two innings Michael Oliva and Company mopped up on the Hawks.

The win gives the Tigers a 2-0 mark in the tourney and moves them into the third round against the National League Ponies at 8 p.m. tonight. The Hawks, 1-1 in tourney play, will play Thursday.

Defending Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova slams down a Wimbledon Wednesday. Navratilova started defense of her title by serve to West Germany's Claudia Porwick, on Centre Court at defeating Porwick, 6-1, 6-0.

Martina takes West German fast

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova, seeking a record sixth consecutive Wimbledon title and an end to a disappointing year, took just 32 minutes to defeat Claudia Porwick of West Germany 6-1, 6-0 in a first-round match on Centre Court today.

Second-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany, fresh from beating

Narratilova for her first Grand Slam title in the French Open, kept her 1987 record unbeaten, defeating Adriana Villagran of Argentina 6-0, 6-2. Graf won the last five games after trailing 2-1 in the second set.

The last woman to win Wimbledon besides Navratilova, Chris Evert of the United States, took 42 minutes to eliminate Britain's Sara Gomer 6-1, 6-0, in another first-round match on a sunny Centre Court.

Also winning easily were Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, the women's fourth seed, who defeated Jo Louis of Britain 6-1, 6-4; fifth-seeded Pam Shriver of the United States, who downed Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union 6-2, 6-1; ninth-seeded Bettina Bunge of West Germany, who beat Claire Wood of Britain 6-3, 6-1; and No. 11 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, who beat Kathy Jordan of the United States 6-2, 6-2.

Among the men's seeds were three American winners. No. 7 Jimmy Connors beat Mike Davis of the United States 6-1, 7-6, 7-6. Tenth seed Tim Mayotte beat Jean MARTINA page 2B

Under cover

Spectators brave the rain for the second day running to keep their positions in the hope of play between West German Boris Becker and Czechoslovakian Karel Novacek at Wimbledon's Centre Court in London Tuesday. Monday's play and some of Tuesday's action was wiped out by inclement weather. When the rains finally stopped, Becker easily defeated Novacek. The fans finally got to see the match and Becker got to play in his favorite place.

Rangers outslug Colts in city Little League action

By CONRAD MEZICK
Staff Writer

In a slugfest at the National League field Tuesday night, the National League Rangers defeated the American League Colts 13-10 in city Little League tournament action.

The Colts, who had just come off a 17-2 romp of the International League Indians Monday night, looked like they would continue their hot hitting ways as they began the first inning just that way.

With one out and nobody on, John Kennedy, the catcher, hit a single and advanced to second on a passed ball and took third on an errant throw by the catcher. After the next batter struck out, Trey Terrazas doubled in Kennedy. That was followed by Timothy Rigdon's single, that scored Terrazas and gave the Colts a 2-0 advantage.

But the Rangers, who finished second in the National League, retaliated with some hot hitting of their own in their first at-bat.

After the opening batter struck out, Micheal Elliot walked, and Clay Klatt cranked a 2-0 pitch off the left field wall for an RBI double. That brought Danny Wilson to the plate. He tripled off the right field fence to score Klatt and tie the game at 2-2. David Park sacrificed Wilson on third to give the Rangers a 3-2 lead.

After Klatt struck out the side in the top of the second, the Rangers decided to get things going. Colts' pitcher Greg Biddison struck out the first two batters he faced, only to have the next two walk, setting the stage for what would turn out to be a four run inning.

After the walks, Klatt singled in the runner from second base. Wilson then tagged a 1-0 pitch deep to right for an inside-the-park home run and three RBI's. Park ended the inning as he grounded to the pitcher, but the Rangers had a 7-3 lead after two innings.

After the second inning, the Colts decided it was their turn to show what they could do. Michael Jones led off with a walk, only to be forced out at second base. But the throw to first was not in time and once again the Colts had a man on base and were on their way to producing some runs.

Following Jones' out, Laughner doubled to send in Kennedy. Terrazas singled, putting runners on the corners with only one out. That put Rigdon at the plate, and he got his second hit for a two run double, and Robert Sizenbach singled him in to close within 7-6. Biddison popped to short and Andy Stewart struck out to end the inning.

But teams were scoring well, but the Rangers were doing it a little better. They erupted for six more runs in the bottom of the third, taking a 13-6 lead.

The Colts added a run in the fourth. Both teams went through a scoreless fifth, and the Rangers led 13-7.

The Colts started strong in the top of the sixth. The first two pitches were hit for triples as Jones crossed via Kennedy's three-bagger. On the very next pitch, Terrazas singled sharply to right, scoring Kennedy. After a strike out of Rigdon, substitute Richard Thompson walked, but was forced out at second when Biddison grounded to short. This scored Terrazas, cutting the margin to 13-10. The game ended when Stewart popped out to the second baseman.

Klatt went the distance to earn the win. He struck out 12, walked two and allowed ten hits.

Biddison worked three innings, striking out six and walking two. Terrazas came in on relief to work the final two-and-one-half innings, striking out two and walking one.

Top hitters for the Rangers were Klatt with two doubles, a single and 2 RBI's. Wilson hit a homer, a triple, and a single, and drove in four runs.

For the Colts, Jones had a triple and a double, and Rigdon collected four hits and drove in four RBI's.

Whitson's best game beats Astros

By The Associated Press
The last few years have taught Ed Whitson to proceed with caution from coast to coast.

Whitson pitched the first two-hitter of his 10-year career Tuesday night as San Diego beat visiting Houston and Nolan Ryan, 4-1.

Whitson, 32, improved his record to 8-6. Not too bad on a club that has a record of 23-48.

"I'm superstitious," Whitson said. "I don't look at the scoreboard, because when I do the very next inning I get roped."

After finishing 14-8 and helping San Diego win the NL pennant in 1984, Whitson took the free-agent route and signed for about $800,000 with the New York Yankees.

Whitson had his problems on and off the field in New York. After a slow start in 1985, he was booted in Yankee Stadium and eventually had to pitch only on the road.

Near the end of that season, Whitson was in a barroom brawl with Manager Billy Martin — a development that did not help his cause in New York.

After a slow start this year, Whitson is now the ace of the Padres' staff.

"He's out to prove to everyone that the way he pitched in New York doesn't mean he's over the hill," Padres Manager Larry Bowa said. "He's relaxed. He knows I'm going to give him the ball no matter what he does out there. He's as good a competitor as I've ever watched. I didn't know he was that competitive when I played against him."

Ryan, 4-7, pitched six innings, allowing four hits and four runs, two unearned. He struck out four, giving him 109 in 91 2-3 innings.

Cubs 4, Mets 1
Rick Sutcliffe, coming off a 5-14 season, improved his record to 10-3 and Chicago rookies Paul Noce and Mike Brumley drove in two runs each to beat New York.

Ron Darling fell to 2-5 and remained winless in 12 starts since April 22. His personal losing string reached a career-high five.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 1

Shane Rawley pitched a four-hitter over eight innings and Steve Bedrosian earned his 17th save as Philadelphia snapped a six-game losing streak to give Lee Elia his first victory as manager of the Phillies.

Elia took over for the fired John Felske last Thursday and had lost four straight games.

St. Louis outfielder Vince Coleman, who had reached base in 50 straight games, fouled out, grounded out twice and struck out to end the streak.

Expos 8, Pirates 2
Neal Heaton pitched five innings, before spraining his right knee, to improve to 10-3.

Heaton, won for the seventh time in his last eight decisions by limiting the Pirates to a run and five hits. After Heaton left, Andy McGaffigan came on and pitched two innings before yielding to Jeff Parrett. Parrett pitched the final two innings for his first major league save.

Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said Heaton is doubtful for his scheduled start this weekend against St. Louis, but Heaton didn't think he would have to miss a turn.

Reid Nichols and Mike Fitzgerald homered for the Expos.

Dodgers 3, Braves 2
Fernando Valenzuela pitched a five-hitter for his first victory since May 27 and Franklin Stubbs hit a three-run homer for Los Angeles.

Valenzuela, 6-5, struck out four and walked four en route to his fifth complete game, tying him with Pittsburgh's Rick Reuschel for the NL lead.

The victory snapped a personal three-game losing streak for Valenzuela and a three-game skid by the Dodgers. The left-hander improved his career record against the Braves at Dodger Stadium to 7-0.

"I threw hard and my arm feels good," Valenzuela said. "The most important thing is that I feel OK."

Reds 4, Giants 1
Ron Robinson allowed four hits in 6 1/3 innings, and then got some help from his bullpen buddies as Cincinnati beat San Francisco.

Orioles' woes continue with late Yankee homer

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Talk about a hitter owning a pitcher, Gary Ward seems to have Doug Corbett in his hip pocket.

"I think the only time I've ever gotten him out was when he hit a double and I picked him off second base," the Baltimore pitcher said after giving up Ward's tie-breaking homer Tuesday in a 2-1 loss to the New York Yankees.

Ward's homer gave him five hits in as many career at-bats against Corbett, who signed with the Orioles as a free agent just hours before the game.

Ward's dramatic homer came with two out in the eighth inning as the Yankees won their ninth game in 12 and handed the Orioles their 22nd loss in the last 25 games.

Blue Jays 8, Tigers 7
Willie Upshaw hit a grand slam and Fred McGriff and George Bell also homered to spark Toronto.

Toronto reliever Tom Henke gave up two Detroit runs, on Alan Trammell's 13th homer in the ninth, before recording his 13th save.

Red Sox 9, Brewers 5
Rookie Ellis Burks keyed a six-run sixth inning with a three-run, two-out homer as Boston rallied from a five-run deficit to beat Milwaukee.

Wade Boggs extended his hitting streak to 24 games, tops in the major leagues this year, with an RBI single for Boston's first run in the fifth.

White Sox 13, Mariners 3
Carlton Fisk and Harold Baines keyed a season-high 18-hit attack with home runs to lead Chicago.

Fisk hit a solo homer in the third inning and added an RBI single in the eighth, when Baines hit a two-run shot for the White Sox. The homer was the seventh for Fisk and the ninth for Baines.

Bill Long, 4-3, was the winner but needed help in the seventh inning. Scott Bankhead, 7-5, took the loss.

The White Sox trailed 2-1 before scoring three times in the second to take a lead they never lost. Kenny Williams singled in two runs and scored on a suicide squeeze by Ozzie Guillen.

Angels 8, Rangers 6
California's Devon White broke up Charlie Hough's no-hitter with a two-out homer in the sixth inning, his first of two in the game.

Wally Joyner had a solo homer in the sixth and a game-winning two-run double in the seventh for the Angels. Joyner broke a 4-4 tie with his double and Doug DeCinces followed with an RBI single to give the Angels a 7-4 lead.

Royals 4, Athletics 0
Mark Gubicza allowed only three hits and George Brett knocked in three runs, two with a homer, for Kansas City.

Gubicza, 5-8, outdueled Oakland's Jose Rijo, 0-3. Gubicza retired the last 16 batters, matching his career best with the three-hitter and posting his fifth career shutout and first of the season.

Twins 9, Indians 4
Minnesota's Gary Gaetti drove in four runs with a homer and double, and Mike Smithson won his first game since April 20.

OTHER RESULTS

AL Astros 8, NL Cardinals 2
The American League Astros continued to roll behind the 11-strikeout performance of Clark Fields. Chris Alexander took the loss for the National League Cards.

The Astros jumped to a 4-0 first inning lead and were never headed. The big blows in that inning were a two-run homer by Jermaine Gonzalez and a double by Michael Hartsfield.

Other top hitters for the Astros were Ryan Hamby, who singled twice, Pat Martinez and Gonzales doubled and Adrian Calvio singled.

Ross Roberts' single drove in a run for the Cards in the first inning. The Cards' last run in the fifth came when Chris Lewis singled and scored on a sacrifice by Alexander.

NL Ponies 7, NL Lions 4
The Brian Sledge-led National League Ponies defeated the National League Lions.

Sledge hurled a four-hitter and aided his cause by getting two hits, including a two-run homer. Clint Kemper also got two hits for the winners. Torlin Lancaster, Felix Rodriguez and Danny Ybarra added one hit each in the winning cause.

Dennis Paulette took the loss for the Lions. Oscar Cervantes led the Lions with two hits. Jeremy Miller, Lucas Lopez and Bobby Bryan had one hit each.

AL Pirates 5, TL Cubs 0
Jeremy Edens fanned seven and pitched a two-hitter, leading the American League Pirates to a win over the Texas League Cubs. Michael Phillips took the loss for the Cubs.

The Pirates scored three runs with a two out rally in the first inning. Edens doubled and scored when David Akin singled. James Stehli's single scored Akin and a bases loaded walk to Drew McEwen scored T.L. Rogers, who had walked.

The Pirates added a run in the third and another in the fifth. Closing out tournament action, the Texas League Red Sox defeated the International League Royals 9-7.

Martina

Fleurian of France 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. And No. 15 David Pate beat Sergio Casal of Spain 6-4, 7-6, 7-5.

Fifth-seeded Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia also advanced to the second round with a 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 victory over American Mike DePalmer.

On Tuesday, defending champion Boris Becker opened the tournament with a victory at his favorite spot.

The third day of the two-week-long grass-court Grand Slam tournament opened under the best weather conditions thus far, attracting a large crowd that included the Duchess of York, wife of Britain's Prince Andrew. After 1 1/2 days of rain, brighter skies and even some sunshine were the order.

The London Weather Center said there was a chance of showers later in the day.

Navratilova, ranked No. 1 but struggling without a tournament victory this year, never had any trouble against Porwik.

All of the American left-hander's shots were working, and she allowed her West German opponent just 13 points in the last 11 games.

Navratilova had singled out Porwik last year as a possible future star in women's tennis, but on Wednesday she was only a very overmatched 18-year-old.

Porwik's final point gave her a 15-0 lead in the fourth game of the second set. From there, Navratilova ripped off the last 12 points of the match, breaking Porwik at love for the victory with a forehand crosscourt return.

Navratilova said the frustration of losing in the semifinals and finals of tournaments this year, including the championship matches of both the Australian and French Opens, was getting to her.

Graf won her 40th match in a row with the help of a streak of sensational tennis in the second set. Mayotte had trouble with the wind on Court No. 1, overhitting groundstrokes, but beat Fleurian at the net. He lost serve just once in the 1 1/2-hour match.

Becker has called Center Court at Wimbledon his tennis birthplace, since it was there that he made his mark by becoming the youngest men's champion of the tournament two years ago at the age of 17.

Under still gloomy skies, Stefan Edberg of Sweden made sure he got into the second round fast, posting a 6-0, 6-0, 6-0 rout of countryman Stefan Eriksson in one hour.

Edberg became only the third player in Wimbledon's history known to have scored a triple-love success at the grass-court Grand Slam event.

The world's top-ranked player, Ivan Lendl, also beat the rain but struggled on his least-favorite surface, losing a set against Christian Saccanu, a qualifier, before prevailing 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Other seeded men to post first-round victories Monday were No. 11 Pat Cash of Australia, No. 12 Brad Gilbert of the United States and No. 13 Joakim Nystrom of Sweden.

11-year-old Texan embarks on record aviation flight

ARLINGTON (AP) — John Kevin Hill is not old enough to be a licensed pilot.

But that doesn't stop the 11-year-old from trying to set an aviation record.

Perched atop three seat cushions, the sixth-grader was ready to fly across the Sierra Madres at the controls of a turbo-charged Cessna today trying to become the youngest pilot to complete a cross-country flight.

Two years after beginning flying lessons, John was to fly from Los Angeles to Cedar City, Utah, in the first leg of his journey.

"I'm a little nervous," said Hill, who has had 150 hours of flying experience and needs the pillows to help him see out the cockpit. "Well, I guess I'm excited and nervous."

Because he's not old enough to obtain a pilot's license, John will be accompanied on the week-long, 3,500-mile trip by his instructor, Mike Fields. Fields will take over the controls in an emergency.

They will fly to Loveland, Colo. for a stopover Friday. Then, it's on to Kansas City, Mo. and St. Louis for a stop on Sunday. On July 1, John is scheduled to reach Washington, D.C.

The journey could get the boy's name etched in the Guinness Book of World Records. The book lists a 9-year-old for setting a record in 1983 with a solo flight over Mexico. But the book has no entry for the youngest pilot to fly across the United States.

But his plans don't end there.

"In two years, he's going to fly around the world," said his father, Johnny Hill. "It's already set. And he wants NASA to let him ride on the next shuttle. Heck, he has more flying time than those senators they sent up."

John started flying at age 9, when his father bought him a $20 introductory flight. Soon, he began asking his parents for more lessons.

The boy's mother, Patsy Hill, didn't want him to fly but gave in after seeing his dedication. She thought he would lose interest, but now predicts he'll probably stick with it into adulthood.

John's longest previous flight was a 7,000-mile trek with Fields across the northwest United States and Canada last year.

At a sendoff for him in Arlington

Monday, about 200 well-wishers gathered to see the boy off. The Texas Rangers gave him an autographed baseball and the Dallas Cowboys gave him an autographed football.

Along the way, Hill will get a chance to play celebrity. He'll be presented with keys to city by Loveland Mayor Don Riedell, who will proclaim Friday as John Kevin Hill Day.

John Kevin Hill, 11, sits at the controls of the plane Monday as two well wishers look on before he sets out to make aviation history by becoming the youngest person to fly across the continental United States. He left today and the trip is expected to last eight days and cover nearly 3,500 miles.

Incubator offices

New businesses get beginning boost

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Just as an incubator nurtures new-born chickens, Pat Porter hopes her incubator will give a helping hand to new businesses in Big Spring.

Porter saw two major problems a few years ago: Start-up capital was restrictive to several people hoping to open their own business, and Big Spring's downtown area was gradually being deserted.

"A problem a lot of people who are just starting off in business face is having the capital available to pay for overhead expenses," Porter said. "Things like rent, insurance, furniture and salaries can get expensive."

To aid the first-time businessperson, she is currently renovating the Sparenburg Building, 305 Main St., to provide office space and services designed to ease the newcomer's financial burden. Begun in May, the renovation should be complete by the first of July.

Porter began formulating the incubator idea a few years ago.

"There are a lot of bright young people who grew up here and don't come back because there's no place for them to start," she said.

She said the inspiration for the project came from similar incubators in Denver and Boulder, Colo. Those cities have been utilizing incubators for several years, and Porter said it has been quite successful.

After looking around Big Spring for a suitable building, she bought the Sparenburg Building last year. The spacious confines of the building — which formerly housed the C.R. Anthony's clothing store — were ideal for Porter's plans.

When completed, the structure will house 10 offices, a conference room and a receptionist's station. Porter said the last two features would be for use by all tenants.

The building's location is also a drawing point, according to Porter.

It is located across the street from the County Courthouse and is within two blocks of the post office and two local banks.

"I think it's great that it (the incubator) is finally happening," Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones said, adding that Porter's project is the first of many she hopes will be developed in the downtown area.

"The more we get private property owners involved with renovation, the better it'll be," she said. "Private owners will have to carry the brunt of the renovation."

Porter says the location should appeal to accountants, lawyers, architects, insurance agents or ... any type of professional who needs quick access to government records." There are also some more possibilities for the building, she said.

She said that she has been contacted by people interested in converting the vacant rear portion of the building to a restaurant. That — plus the Pocket Park next door — should add to the attraction value of the building, Porter projects.

She stresses that the incubator is not designed as a permanent office site.

"Hopefully, the new businesses will grow to another level. We're restricted on how big we can expand," Porter explained.

Still, the project is being seen as not only as a helping hand to neophyte professionals, but also a much-needed shot in the arm for the downtown area.

Over 400 enrolled in program

The "Animal Antics" Summer Reading Program at the Howard County Library is in its fourth week with over 400 children enrolled.

The program ends Saturday, July 11 and participants have until then to read 10 books to complete requirements for their certificates, according to Children's Librarian Donna Jackson.

Activity Day programs still on the schedule include Jane Lusk and her horse on July 2, and Tina Barnett and her monkey on July 9.

A pet show will be conducted June 25. All animals must be leashed, caged or restrained in some way. Donna Jackson, librarian, said. No large livestock such as horses, pigs, goats, or cattle will be included. The pet show will be outside in the library parking lot.

A coloring contest also is planned for the readers. The winners will be announced at the July 2 Activity Day program.

Certificates and prizes will be awarded at the closing party July 16. To be eligible to attend, participants must have read 10 books. The closing party will feature a costume contest with prizes awarded for most original, unusual, interesting, best looking, funniest, and most authentic costumes, Jackson said.

She wished to thank the following merchants for their support of the program: the Rodeo Association, McDonald's, Ritz/Cinema Theaters, Gale's Bakery, Big Spring Athletics, and Aladdin's Castle.

Carrier Route Presort Postal Customer

Merchant to bring flood suit

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The City of Big Spring may be facing another lawsuit — this time over recent Jones Valley flooding.

Chuck Cawthon, owner of Chuck's Surplus on Third Street in the flood plane area, has requested to be scheduled on the City Council agenda for this week's meeting.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Big Spring Airpark meeting room. The Council will conduct a work session there at 3 p.m. Monday, and a special meeting at 4 p.m. Monday to consider a resolution authorizing the city to act as contracting agent to pursue the construction of a detention facility here.

The Tuesday agenda item states Cawthon is to notify the city of a lawsuit.

Cawthon has said he intended to sue the city for damages he suffered during recent floods, not quite a year after he lost $187,000 during floods last August.

Cawthon is angry about what he maintains is city negligence regarding Beals Creek.

When they're not working for us, these — and many more electric company employees — put in overtime as volunteers. They do it because they want to help. And because they care. And that's something we think deserves a little recognition. So, to everyone who gives a helping hand, we'd like to offer our words of thanks.

50 years as the Big Spring Chevron jobber

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

H.W. "Hack" Wright came to Big Spring in 1937 to establish his business as Chevron oil jobber. This year he celebrates 50 years in local business.

Wright began working for Chevron in El Paso in 1930, before the days of oil booms and OPEC troubles. He was 20 years old, said Michael Russell, his grandson, who now manages the business.

The Depression had just begun and "things were really tough," Wright said. "I made $100 a month, and no deductions. That was pretty good then."

Chevron was called Pas-Tex Petroleum Co. then, he said.

When company officials decided to establish a West Texas business territory, they chose Wright for the job, Russell said.

He opened the Abilene area first, around 1936, then came to Big Spring and decided to stay.

"It was new," Wright said. "There wasn't any Standard Oil Co. here then. It was pretty tough going for a long time."

"When you bring a new company to town, people don't know much about it," he added.

Big Spring's population was 10,000 in 1937, he estimated.

Wright purchased several Gulf service stations and opened H.W. Wright Oil Co., a wholesale distributing company for Chevron oil, Russell said. The company covers Howard, Glasscock, Borden and Mitchell Counties, he said.

He started "nice and slow, in debt and working hard to keep going," Russell said.

Today, the company owns three gasoline outlets: on Wasson Road, at East Fourth Street and Birdwell Lane, and in Westbrook.

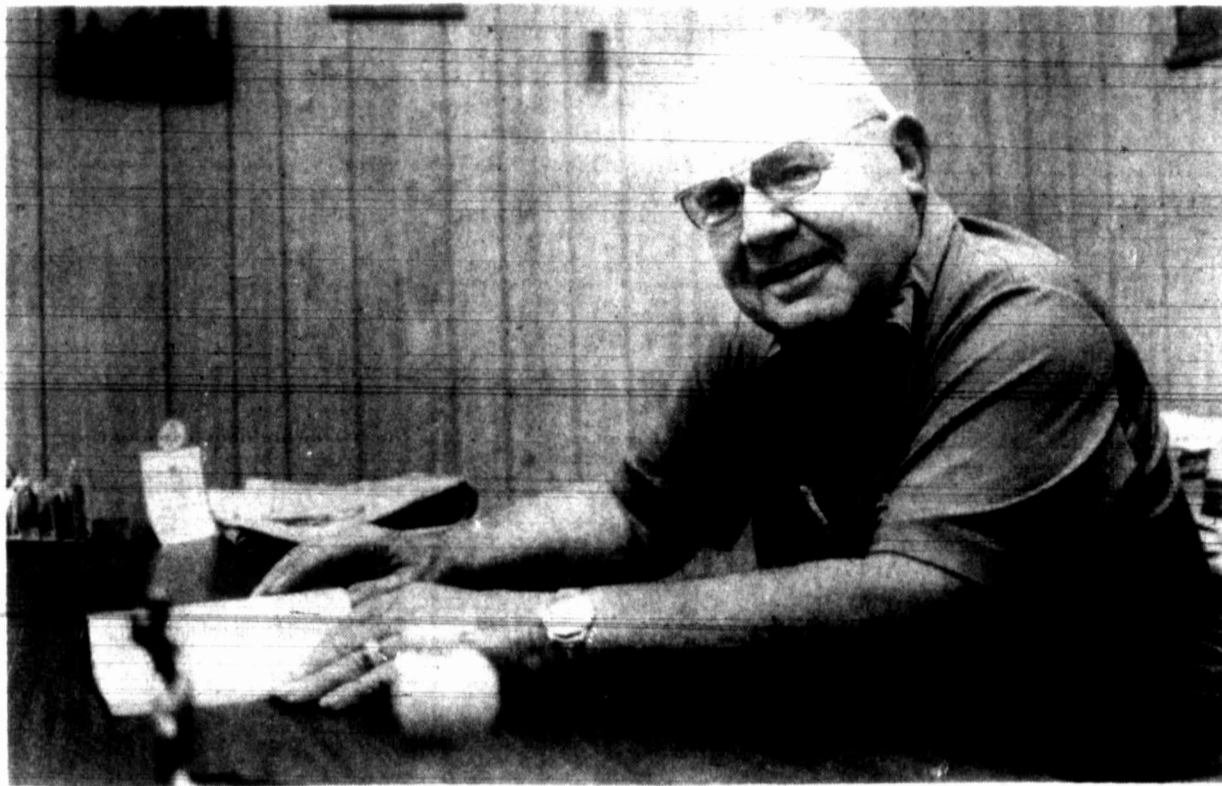

When World War II came Wright, then 31, joined the Navy.

"I shouldn't have (enlisted), because I had a wife and three kids and was in an essential business," he said. "But I had five younger brothers in the Navy," and felt an obligation to serve.

He was in the Navy 19 months and participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima.

His family operated the business while he was away and helped through the chaotic years afterward, he said.

Wright said he served three terms on the City Council after the war, and served 19 years on the

Water sales continue pattern

May figures from the Colorado River Municipal Water District continued the pattern of steady revenues, reduced operating costs and diminished water sales, officials said.

Because water rates are based largely on fixed charges, revenues were steady, although the water sales volume was down 28 percent. Income through the first five months of 1987 totalled $5,000,014, or 0.16 percent lower than budget estimates.

Expenses were $2,055,226 for the five months, or 23.78 percent less than projected. Electric energy costs were $572,445 less than estimated, of which $101,409 was in fuel rebates. Aside from electricity, operating costs were 20.02 percent under projections.

Net income through May was $2,920,688, which was 28.34 percent more than anticipated.

Water sales totaled 5,752,594,030 gallons, compared to 8,172,680,660 gallons for the same interval in 1986. A sluggish economy played a part in the development, but the chief reason was unusually wet and cool weather, officials said.

Lakes furnished 81.96 percent of the potable water through May, and wells 6.6 percent. Unpotable water diverted from low flow of streams and sold to oil companies amounted to 11.44 percent of production.

At the end of May, Lake E.V. Spence was at elevation 1886.2' and with 347,190 acre feet was 71.03 percent of capacity. Lake J.B. Thomas was at elevation 2240.18' highest in 19 years, and contained 96,628 acre feet, 45.9 percent of capacity. Net gain for Spence for May was 30,768 acre feet and for Thomas was 36,071 acre feet.

No shortcuts to business success

By TOM PETERS
There are no shortcuts to success. This is especially true for the business world's favorite shortcut: mergers. That's the story behind Coniston Partners' May 26 announcement that it now owns 13 percent of Allegis' (parent of United Airlines) stock and plans to make a run at buying the rest of that firm.

Its unequivocal objective, to sell off units of the corporation (probably Hertz and Westin Hotel), demonstrates once again that the "break-up value" of a conglomerated firm usually is much higher than the value of the ill-conceived whole.

But merging rather than working at the basics is just one of five popular, but futile, business quick-fix strategies, says renowned Harvard Business School Professor Michael Porter, in a trenchant May 23 commentary in The Economist.

Porter's list squares precisely with my own observations:

1. — Restructuring as strategy. Cutting staff, closing plants, selling misfitting business units and deintegration in general surely have been necessary for old-line firms. Moreover, they frequently have led to improved bottom-line results in the short term. However, these frenetic actions amount only to a first step — atoning for past sins, such as general slovenliness.

"But restructuring is not a strategy," claims Porter. "...too few companies have made the transition from restructuring to building." That is, after all the pruning, companies must focus on new, basic skills necessary to compete today, such as making a total commitment to achieve world-class quality and heretofore unheard-of flexibility. Without such long-term capability building, "it is only a matter of time before recently restructured firms will be restructuring again."

2. — Buying competitors instead of beating them. It goes without saying that the easiest way to gain market share in the short term is to buy the competition! The problem, once more, is that this ignores the basic capabilities that lead to a sustainable competitive advantage.

History suggests that when the attention of management is diverted to problems associated with buying and selling businesses and then post-merger integration, the firm becomes clumsy and increasingly vulnerable to the numerous, more focused competitors that attack by chipping away profitable niches.

Porter notes the long-term winners, such as Toyota, Procter & Gamble and British retailer Marks & Spencer, "have beaten their competitors through focused innovation and dynamism. Buying competitors is a drug which makes managers feel good in the short term, but ultimately saps the energy and creativity of an organization."

3. — Alliances. Despite the current rage, "alliances are never the solution to a company's strategic dilemmas," Porter flatly asserts. (Allegis' principal defense against would-be suitors such as Coniston Partners and its pilots' union has been a questionable alliance with Boeing, which gives the aircraft builder a potential major ownership stake in Allegis.)

Such alliances will fail if they are used as a substitute for working at correcting skill shortcomings. Any and all deficiencies that these alliances are intended to remedy, such as impatience at turning a profit in a major foreign market, will, if anything, become more pronounced when the odd couples attempt to achieve the (on paper) services.

The only alliances that become successful tend to be those that combine well-cared-for strategic skills of superb firms, such as the long-term arrangement between computer maker Amdahl and Fujitsu.

4. — Imitation instead of innovation. Copycat strategies are no way to achieve long-term advantage, says Porter. Most firms, he adds, "lack the conviction to set themselves apart." He cites such industries as banking, in which everyone seems to enter the same types of product lines. Companies such as McDonald's, Citicorp, Federal Express and The Limited fundamentally have altered the basis of competition in their industries.

5. — Diversification for growth's sake. Porter's recent empirical work on the fate of acquisitions is damning indeed, and consistent, with numerous (albeit mainly ignored) previous studies.

Yet Porter sadly concludes, "The allure of diversification is as strong as ever ... most companies are making the same strategic mistakes that have been prevalent for decades

VICTORY OVER CANCER, ARTHRITIS, ALZHEIMER'S & COLDS

GOLD STAKE USER'S REPORT

The story of GOLD STAKE, a trade named mineral nutritional supplement, started with Robert E. Craig who was suffering from throat cancer beyond the reach of surgery. He had a short time to live according to his doctors. Craig, a chemist, had heard that some minerals were effective in treating skin cancer and otherwise beneficial to health when taken internally.

A biopsy by a pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, Calif. showed Craig had a carcinoma on December 17, 1969. Craig returned to the lab and formulated the mineral supplement which is presently being marketed. On January 13, 1970 he returned to the same hospital for a repeat biopsy. This time the verdict was, "No evidence of malignancy." (Please note the short period between surgeries.) The only thing he had done in the interval was to take four capsules a day of the mineral supplement.

For sixteen years the product was tested and incidentally, Craig has used the product continuously with no harmful side effects.

Testimonials are the opinions of those who make them and not of Gold Stake

DR. PAUL MONSLER, MORAGA, CALIFORNIA,

"We have found the Gold Stake elements to be extremely efficacious in catalyzing all nutrient assimilation and bypassing toxic blockages, rendering many of man's decadent afflictions harmless. Gold Stake is the most important supplement to come along in the past 75 years. It is a gift from God."

FREEDOM FROM BACK PAIN, ARTHRITIS AND COLDS

Had excruciating pain in my lower back down both legs to my ankles. Examinations indicated a disc was ready to rupture. Prior to entering the hospital I started taking two Gold Stake Dietary Mineral Supplement capsules and started to feel much better. Pain in my back subsided and no more pain in my legs. In the hospital, tests showed my condition was reverting back to normal. No surgery was performed. I improved daily with an increased level of energy.

Last winter, the arthritis in my right hand was very painful. This winter, no pain. My Dad, 78 years old, had painful arthritis in his hands and hips. After Gold Stake he improved 90%. My 73 year old Mother with arthritis experienced the same. Both have an increase in energy and are happy with the results. The three of us have not had the flu or a cold this year. Everyone around us was ill, we remained intact.

— Dorothy Stevens, Fraser, Michigan (313) 296-7268

ALZHEIMER'S VICTIM IMPROVES DRAMATICALLY

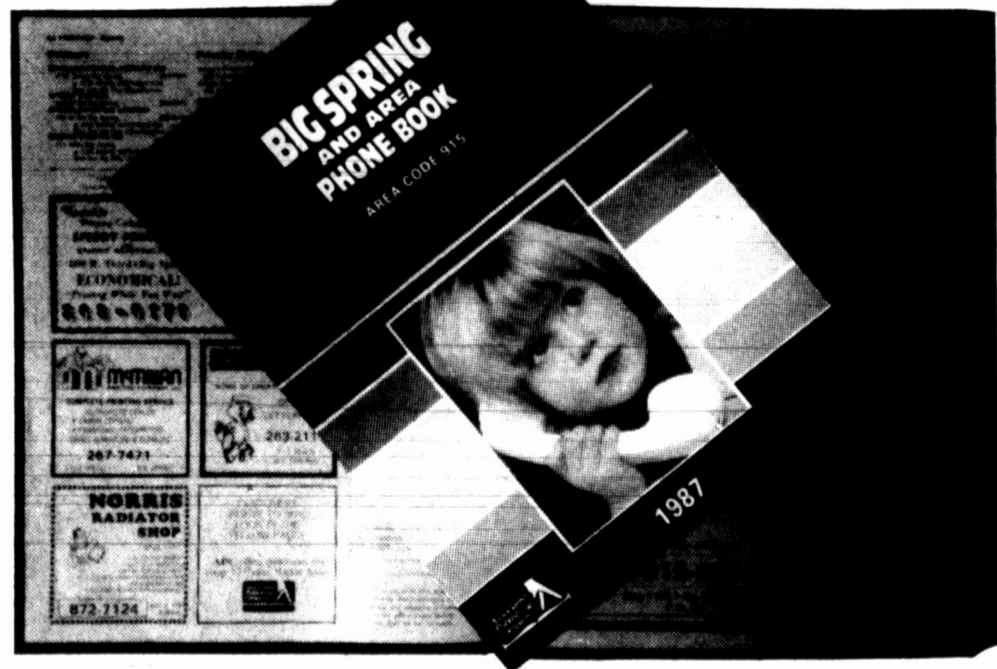

My brother, Paul, became bed-fast, didn't know his family and couldn't walk or stand up by himself. He lost weight and could not say when he had to go to the bathroom. He had to be fed and it was difficult to get him to eat. On February 5, 1987, in only two days on four capsules of Gold Stake per day, with help he could stand and walk.

Suggested price: 60 capsule bottle $40.00 + $2.50 tax — 125 capsule bottle $80.00 + $5.00 tax 231.2 mg. per capsule. (By mail add $1.00 Postage and Handling)

High humidity increases fungi growth

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

I have a whitish-gray powder affecting my rose bush. What is it? Your plant is affected by Powdery Mildew, a fungus more noticeable this year in West Texas than usual probably because of the high humidity we have been experiencing. I would suspect your rose to be a climber and one that has grown from root stock of a grafted variety that has long since died off. These are the roses that seem most affected this year.

The root stock most roses are grafted on are ted climbers and though very hearty are very susceptible to powdery mildew. This fungus can be treated with Bayleton (25% wettable powder) Benomyl (Benlate) or with excellent new product, Funginex, which also controls Blackspot in roses.

Probably the best thing to do in the long-run, however, is to replace the plant with one of the never hybrid rose varieties now on the market which are mildew resistant. Although it is a little late for best results from planting roses, it can be done — but be sure and keep them well-watered as our daytime temperatures become hotter and drier.

Ask the agent

My lawn is becoming infected with small to medium areas of dead spots. What could be my problem?

Most likely it is Brown Patch, a fungus we have been noticing showing up in bermudagrass lawns more than usual this year. We suspect the extra amounts of rainfall and resultant high humidity to be partially responsible for this increase. Regardless, check your yard and look to see if these patches seem to have a small lighter green colored area near the center of each dead area. This "doughnut" effect is the tell-tale symptom of this fungus. Brown-patch can be successfully treated with Terrachlor or Benlate fungicides.

Remember, as with any pesticide, be sure and read the label carefully and follow instructions to the letter for best results. Chemical control of pests is an excellent means of assistance to homeowners but they must be applied carefully and exactly as they are intended for unsatisfactory results will be obtained, or worse!

My yard seems to be severely infested with hundreds of tiny grasshoppers. Can I control them?

Yes, but with some difficulty. Grasshoppers are chewing insects and must ingest pesticides for best results in their control. At present, for home use, the product, Sevin, is still the most satisfactory insecticide we can recommend. Again, be sure and follow all label instructions and observe its limitations and warnings.

My tree's leaves are turning yellow and appear drying. What could be my problem?

These are symptoms of several problems. The most common one in Howard County is Iron chlorosis (lack of iron). Without sufficient iron in the plant's system to keep the chlorophyll (green color) production up, additional fertilizer will only complicate the problem. Nitrogen deficiency is also a symptom of light colored leaves. Treating with nitrogen heavy fertilizers should help (about a pound of 20-0-0 or 20-10-10, or similar amounts of nitrogen, per inch of trunk diameter, should help your problem).

Persistent light coloring then would most likely indicate a lack of iron, in which case, chelated iron compounds should be applied. (Iron Sulfate sprayed on the tree late in the afternoon gives the quickest results). Chemical injury can also cause yellowing of leaves in some instances. Check your leaves and determine if the light color is found in the tissues between the veins or in the veins. Yellow leaf veins usually indicated chemical injury. Yellowing between the veins usually shows up as a nutritional deficiency.

Cooking tips to avoid salmonella on poultry

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Proper handling and cooking are the keys to avoiding salmonella poisoning from poultry, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service official.

Dr. James Denton, a poultry marketing specialist, says a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture report "pointing the finger" at salmonella bacteria in chickens states a situation that is not unusual. The report noted that almost four of every 10 chickens sold to the consumers are contaminated with salmonella, bacteria that cause flu-like symptoms of fever, diarrhea and vomiting for two to seven days and may even cause death.

Denton points out that the poultry industry is aware of the problem and that proper processing eliminates 95 percent of the bacteria on a live bird. Total decontamination would be prohibitively expensive and virtually impossible.

Focus on family

Salmonella can be killed by heat during proper cooking. Thorough washings of hands after handling uncooked meat can help prevent contamination.

Denton recommends that consumers follow the "three Cs" to avoid potential salmonella problems with chickens: Maintain "clean" working areas for handling poultry, "cook" poultry thoroughly to kill bacteria, "chill" meat as quickly as possible following cooking and serving.

All animal food products contain bacteria of one form or another and most of these are removed by proper cleaning and sanitation. To grow and multiply, bacteria must have proper nutrients, adequate moisture, proper temperature and adequate time. Removing any of these ingredients will keep bacteria counts in check.

If poultry is to be stored under refrigeration, keep it at 40 degrees F. or less. When keeping poultry warm for serving, hold it at 140 degrees F. or greater. Keep the holding time of poultry between 40 and 140 degrees F. to an absolute minimum.

The work area for handling both raw and cooked poultry should be kept as clean as possible. Also, every effort should be made to prevent cross-contaminations or recontamination of fully cooked poultry meat with raw meat or bacteria from raw meat.

Never use cutting board, platter, knife or other utensils or container that has been previously used for raw poultry meat without completely cleaning with soap and hot water prior to using them to handle or store cooked poultry meat.

FRANCE'S NEWEST MUSEUM

Any trip to France this year would be incomplete without a visit to its newest cultural attraction. The Musee d'Orsay is the culmination of a $200 million restoration of the Belle Epoque Gare d'Orsay railway station into an extraordinary museum. This turn-of-the-century landmark building now holds on display works by Cezanne, Gauguin, Manet, Monet, Pissarro, Renoir, Sisley, and Van Gogh, as well as sculptures and photographs. Virtually no other museum in the world offers such a majestic setting of towering steel and glass as a backdrop to art. The Musee d'Orsay exhibits works that are representative of the last half of the 19th and the first decade of the 20th century. It forms a time bridge between the older exhibits at the Louvre and the newer exhibits of the Centre Pompidou.

From the museums of France to the wilds of Africa, your dreams and fantasies can become a reality when you come to BIG SPRING SKIPPER TRAVEL, 612 S. Gregg. We are the shortest distance between two points... where you are now and where your dreams can take you. # Family shuns son and daughter-in-law

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a lovely woman I'll call Carole. My mother did not approve of her because she was a divorcee with two children. (We are both in our late 20s) My brother was my best man. My family came to the church but did not go to the reception. In fact, they walked out the side door immediately following the ceremony.

Dear Abby

My brother is getting married soon and I had already agreed to be his best man. When the wedding invitation arrived, I was shocked to see that it was addressed to me only! I asked my brother if it was some kind of oversight and he said no, Carole was not invited because Mother didn't want her there.

I sat down and wrote my brother a letter because I couldn't tell him face to face how hurt I was. I also told him that unless my wife was invited, I could not be his best man. I asked him to please come to see me so we could talk things over. I heard nothing from him, so I called and asked if he wanted to talk, and he hung up on me. I haven't heard from him since.

The last line of my letter was: "When Carole and I took our marriage vows, we two were made one, and I cannot send half of me to your wedding."

Was I wrong? Should I have gone and left my wife at home? (She told me it was my decision.)

HURT IN LYNN, MASS.

DEAR HURT: You were not wrong. I applaud your loyalty.

Sign me...

YUM

DEAR YUM: Just common sense and good manners. A gentleman never keeps a lady waiting.

***

DEAR ABBY: How right you are to point out that constant tickling of a person is cruelty and should not be tolerated. My Irish mother told me at least 50 years ago of a situation that took place near her hometown in Ireland.

A neighbor had at least two wives pass away before anyone paid much attention to it. Then another neighbor reported hearing hysterical laughter coming from that house. Well, it was later learned that the man had been tying his wives to the bedpost, and tickling the soles of their bare feet with a feather? He continued until the hysteria did them in. In truth, they were tickled to death.

PAT HOLLINGSWORTH, BRITISH COLUMBIA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your advice to "Indiana Mother" who objected to giving condoms to teenagers. You were right to remind her that sex with the wrong partner just once could be a death sentence — and better safe than sorry.

But more important, what kind of moral values have these children been taught at home if they can be ignored just because someone hands them a free condom?

Does "Indiana Mother" think that her children are so ignorant they didn't know that condoms existed, and could be bought at the local drug or grocery store? Or does she think that one free condom will cause them to rush out and find a sex partner?

Teaching teen-agers to say "no" to sex is like teaching them to say "no" to food. It'll work until they get hungry.

TYLER SARLOW, FORT WORTH, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man (I'll call him "Tex") who was hospitalized many years ago for a mental illness. I am really afraid to marry him without knowing more about his mental illness. Tex told me it included depression and some kind of schizophrenia, which he managed to overcome with treatment.

I wrote to my fiancé's psychiatrist asking if I could talk to him about my fiancé's history of mental illness. My fiancé not only approved of my doing this — he encouraged me. I stated this in my letter. The psychiatrist ignored my letter.

What do you advise?
NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: Ask Tex to arrange a consultation for both of you with his psychiatrist. Of course the doctor is entitled to be paid for the time he spends to answer your questions. And by the way, ignoring your letter was inexcusable.

Local rodeo event promises big doin's

This year's rodeo promises to be a big event for Big Spring.

More than 350 cowboys have registered to ride in the four-day rodeo. With this rodeo being the 54th year for the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion & Rodeo we can certainly see that the rodeo events and the celebration is a part of Big Spring's heritage.

Businesses will be observing rodeo week and the entire community will be treated to a spectacular show. The dates are June 24-27, shows start at 8:30 p.m. daily. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children, under 6 are free. Tickets are available at First National Bank, First Federal Savings, Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop, and Driver Insurance.

The Colorado City Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring a seminar on Tourism, Thursday beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Villa Inn in Colorado City. Phil Davis, with the Texas Tourist Development Agency, will be the speaker.

Citizens from all area cities have been invited to attend, as well as area media, chamber representatives and volunteers. The area's prospects for increasing tourism will be the main focus of the seminar. For more information contact Liz Taylor at the Chamber office, 263-7641. The seminar is free.

Speaking of seminars, the Texas Agriculture Extension Service and the Downtown Steering Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring a Customer Relations Seminar on Monday, June 22 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the conference room at Avery & Associates in the Permian Building.

This will be an excellent seminar for all merchants, and/or for your employees. Video presentations will be shown regarding the "Care & Feeding of Customers" and "Turning Lookers Into Buyers" and Kay Harvey Mosley from the Texas Main Street Project will present a session on Visual Merchandising and will also conduct on-site individual merchant appraisals for visual merchandising. Each merchant, motel, restaurant and other related businesses should try to send at least one representative to take part in this very beneficial seminar.

Do you ever wonder who calls the Chamber of Commerce and how many people call for information? During a 22-day period this spring the Chamber staff monitored the number of phone calls received, number placed, number of walk-in visitors and number of hours worked.

During this time 1,031 telephone calls were received, 763 were placed as outgoing calls, approximately 280 walk-in visitors were received and out of 495 hours scheduled, 513 hours were actually worked. The Chamber is always working for you. Your investment in the Chamber allows the Chamber to do more for you and for the whole community.

The local March of Dimes chapter will be sponsoring a Jail & Bail Benefit June 24, 25 & 26. Representatives from the March of Dimes will be "arresting" Big Spring "Celebrities" and putting them into a mock jail at the Highland Mall. Bail will have to be arranged and all proceeds will go to the March of Dimes. Watch for these crazy goings-on next week.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Try Bogie's first for boot repairs

Boot repair is a specialty at Bogie's Boot & Shoe repair, 604 East Third Street.

And not just your everyday repairs, but also custom repairs, such as "bottoming" (replacing a boot's heel and sole with custom parts.)

Owner Stanley "Bogie" Bogard says many customers like crepe soles put on their new boots. Crepe soles are especially popular on work boots, such as those worn by roofers and welders, he says.

Other customers come to Bogie's to have him build new heels. He frequently replaces the manufacturer's boot heel with the more wearable "shoe heel."

Bogie's workmanship is that of a true artisan; many of his repairs are difficult to detect.

More ordinary repairs are, of course, a big part of the work day. The shop offers complete service and repairs for men's and women's shoes, including heels, half soles, stretching and polishing.

Bogie does all kinds of leather work, including repairs to rips and holes on shoes and leather jackets; replacement (or addition) of zippers in boots, purses and chaps; stamping names on leather belts.

The shop builds up shoes for orthopaedic prescriptions, including the Thompson sole.

The shelves are stocked with a wide array of shoe findings, such as laces, polishes, insoles, saddle soap, brushes and arch supports.

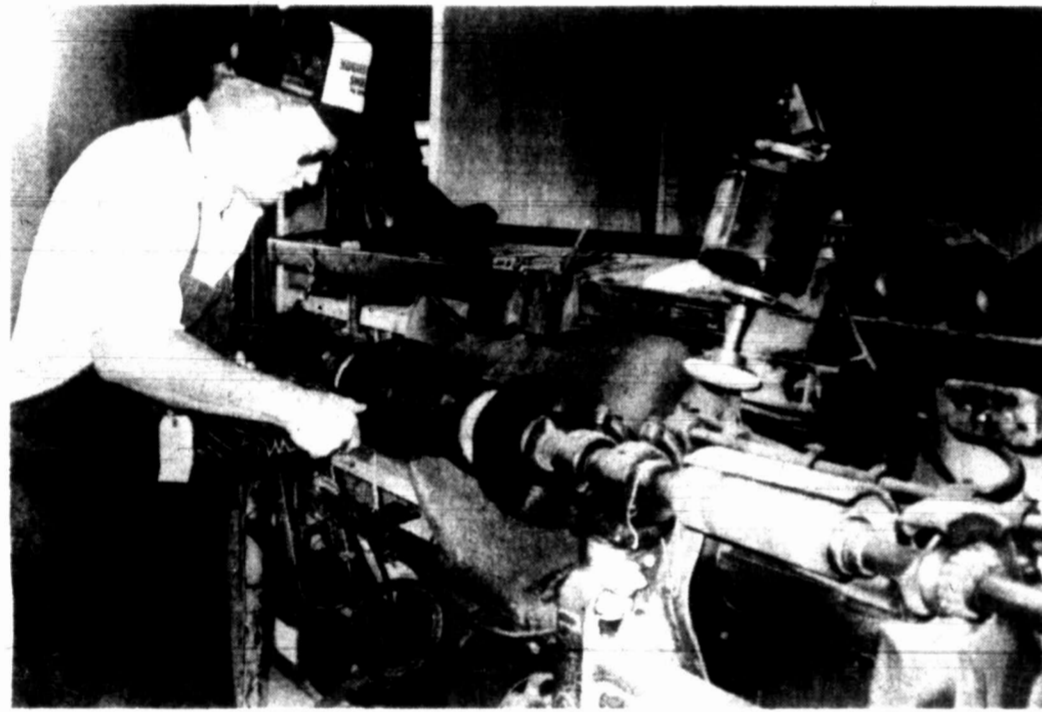

Bogie learned his craft as an apprentice to the late E.G. Christenson, a Big Spring bootmaker, in the late 1940's.

He then moved into a different profession when he joined the Big Spring police department. His career there lasted 27 years, and he retired in 1980 as chief of police.

During his years as a police officer, he kept his hand in the shoe repair business bottoming boots in his spare time. And after his retirement, he opened his own repair shop in 1981.

Bogie's has loyal customers from throughout the area, including Snyder, Lamesa, Garden City, St. Lawrence and Colorado City.

All the work is done personally by Bogie and his associate Terry Vigus.

BEST FOOT FORWARD — Bogie's Boot & Shoe Repair draws loyal customers from Snyder, Lamesa, Garden City, St. Lawrence and Colorado City for his expertise in custom boot repairs as well as the more common boot and shoe mending.
