Council budget work unfinished

Herald staff report

Big Spring City Council will continue to review its preliminary 1987-88 budget at a workshop tentatively planned for Monday, Finance Director Tom Ferguson said today.

The Council has asked that $300,000 in additional funding be added to the budget, and Ferguson said departmental heads would meet to discuss options.

He said he didn't know how the additional funding would be provided, but said, "I don't think we'll recommend any tax increases."

The proposed 1987-88 budget is $12.3 million, compared with the current budget of $12.4 million, Ferguson said.

Several capital outlays that departments need have not been accounted for in the proposed budget, he said.

The items cover two to three pages of the budget and include approximately eight new police cars and new fire trucks, Ferguson said.

Independence Day activities on tap

A fireworks display from South Mountain will climax Fourth of July activities in Big Spring — which include a parade, music, patriotic programs, and a fund-raising competition at Comanche Trail Park.

The fireworks begin at 9:45 p.m. from South Mountain, under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors. The display will follow the conclusion of the Summerfest games.

The games will raise money for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, which is sponsoring the event.

The fourth annual event begins at 9 a.m. in the Trail Park.

Final Approach band from Midland will play throughout the day, and Caution, a rock band composed of local high school students, will play from noon to 2 p.m.

So far, $5,000 has been raised, said John Richard Sparks, head of the center's fund raising committee. $11,000 was raised last year.

The money goes to the center's endowment fund, he said. Interest generated by the fund goes toward operations and for patients who can't afford treatment.

Teams of four men and four women participate in games, including an obstacle course, volleyball, tennis, horseshoes, washers, a wheelbarrow race, exercise stations, tug-of-war and three surprises, he said.

So far, about six teams have registered, he said. Last year, 21 participated, and nearly all of them signed up "at the last minute."

Sparks said 12 booths will sell food, including fajitas, barbecue, hot dogs, ice cream and mouth-watering watermelon. The children's carnival will feature a bake sale.

The YMCA Day Care Youth will perform a program celebrating America's birthday at the recreation hall of the Veteran's Administration Medical Center Thursday at 2 p.m., rehabilitation coordinator Sammy Dennard said.

The youth, under the direction of Hannah Coleman, will sing patriotic songs, march, have a drill team routine and a picture card

Group 'overwhelmed' by success

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

With pledges exceeding $20,000, area March of Dimes officials were "absolutely overwhelmed" by the results of their Jail and Bail benefit arrest program last week.

The program, in which about 100 local residents were "voluntarily arrested" and encouraged to collect pledges for their bail, raised $20,505.87 for the March's fight against birth defects.

"I am absolutely overwhelmed," said Leanne Wilson, division director for the Permian Basin MOD. "This was beyond our wildest dreams."

"This is wonderful," said Pam Welch, of the local March's board of directors. "... especially with times the way they are."

Wilson said the figure was even more amazing when compared to similar efforts in Midland and Lubbock. Midland's Jail and Bail program netted $10,000, while Lubbock raised approximately $5,000, Wilson said.

Local March of Dimes officials had varying explanations for Big Spring's success compared to neighboring cities.

"Big Spring is a closer-knit community," Welch said. "We have more community support than Midland or Lubbock. They are a little too large."

Vicki Slaton, another board member, thought the originality of the approach helped. She said that the fact it was "a first-time event" helped the effort, and described the results as "fantastic."

Wilson said that half of the money raised would be sent to the organization's national research center, while the remainder money will stay in the West Texas area. Those funds will be used to help educate pregnant women on the risks of low birth weight — a major factor in birth defects, she said.

One such program is called Good Health and Good Business.

Little sleep

Patrick Scott sleeps at a Port Arthur school gymnasium following the evacuation of a four block area after a gasoline spill at the Fina Tank Farm Tuesday evening. Fumes from the spill forced the hospitalization of four residents and the evacuation of approximately 150 others. Port Arthur city officials said the spill was contained to the area by a system of protective levees, and that the fumes were "not anywhere near an explosive range".

Robbers depend on fear and weaponry

By BERNARD GAVZER For The Associated Press (Fourth in a series)

The presence of a weapon — or the belief there is a weapon — is one of the key characteristics of a robbery.

It doesn't have to be a gun or a knife. Fists can be weapons. Or the threats of a gang.

The key is that force or the threat of force is being used to steal your property. And the property doesn't have to be in your immediate possession. It could be near you or within what's called your conscious presence.

The fear is what makes the robbery work.

Once, parked in a romantic setting with a young woman in Chicago's Jackson Park, I was a victim of such a robbery. Two gunmen forced their way into the car and demanded our money and car keys. I complied.

What I did was precisely police (and crooks) recommend: Just hand over your money, create as little a problem or delay as you can. You may lose your life if you resist.

However, what I could have

Chase, heat end five years of quiet life for buffalo

Dallas Times Herald Bureau DE SOTO — Buffy, a 2,000-pound buffalo from the wilds of Wyoming, led a quiet life the past five years as an object of curiosity at the Buffalo Bill's Western World feed and tack store.

But on Sunday night, someone police do not know who — set off roman candles in her corral. She and her corral mate, Missy, who suffered burns on her back side, jumped over the fence and ran.

Missy was found Monday, grazing with a herd of beef and cattle in a pasture not far from the store at Hampton and Parkerville roads, and was expected to be returned to the store today. Buffy, however, died Tuesday afternoon after a frenzied five-hour chase in 90-degree heat.

Buffy was brought down in a Cedar Hill pasture by DeSoto Police Lt. Dennis Kruse, who hit the animal with four tranquilizer darts from his rifle. As animal control officers and Buffalo Bill's employees waited for a truck to take the animal home, Buffy closed her eyes and stopped breathing. Animal control officers said they suspected she was a victim of heat exhaustion.

Buffy had led a horse, two helicopters, an airplane, five police cruisers, a dozen pickups and an untold number of trail bikes and all-terrain vehicles on a chase through four towns in southern Dallas County.

Buffalo Bill's store manager, Teri Wright, said the tragedy didn't have to happen. Buffy, like her corral mate, was a docile creature. "You'd run around, too," Wright said. "If they were chasing you with guns, horses, cars and helicopters."

She said authorities should have kept their distance and allowed Buffy to graze, like Missy, and

Nuke site would bring millions to state

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada has a new county named Bullfrog, a small, uninhabited patch of land set aside so the state can make millions from Uncle Sam if the federal government puts a nuclear waste dump there.

Gov. Richard Bryan on Tuesday signed into law the bill creating Bullfrog County, a 12-square-mile area in southern Nevada that will be run by the state and is its 18th county.

Supporters of the legislation said it is intended to milk the federal government of any financial windfall from putting a high-level nuclear waste dump at Yucca Mountain, 110 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Yucca Mountain is one of three dump sites being considered by the U.S. Department of Energy. The other two are in Texas and Washington state.

The state law puts Yucca Mountain, now a part of Nye County, into a county of its own. If the site is chosen for the dump, the federal government would now have to compensate the state-run county, not Nye County, for taxes it would have received had the dump been a private project.

Under the bill, the money would go to a three-member county commission appointed by the governor, with the commission then distributing the money to Nevada cities and counties.

The tax rate in the new county would be $5 per $100 of assessed valuation, the maximum under state law.

The state-run county could be expected to receive anywhere from $8 million to $25 million in annual federal revenues if the Nevada site is selected.

Nye County, which stands to lose considerable federal revenues, has threatened to take legal action against the state.

The creation of Bullfrog County was "a pure case of greed" on the part of Las Vegas lawmakers who pushed for the bill, said Nye County Deputy District Attorney George Deuel. "We're not too happy," he said.

Bryan shrugged off the criticism, saying the state doesn't intend to discriminate against Nye County in distributing revenues from any dump.

"Nye County is certainly entitled to a reasonable and fair sum," the governor said. "I think the suggestion that this was some kind of legislative hijinks is wrong."

Bullfrog County is named after a Nye County mining district that failed in its first effort to become a county 78 years ago.

The accident occurred at 7:39 p.m. on Randolph near the intersection with 2500 block of Langley Street.

done, a Chicago cop told me, was be smart enough to stay out of a high-risk situation like that lover's lane.

Here's the sort of thinking that goes on in the minds of various robbers:

"I guess you could say I've always been in the robbery business," one New York man recalls. "As everybody'll tell you, it's usually very quick and very easy."

"When I was younger, the easiest job was holding up bus drivers. You knew there was always cash. I used to carry a knife or a gun. It always worked."

"Then I started doing small street jobs. Hang out near a theater or restaurant or even a swank shop, and follow someone on the street. Come alongside some guy and push a gun into his side and tell him to hand over his money, and there are people all over the street, and he hands it over."

He was asked how he picked his victims.

"It's like a feeling. There are certain people who look at you and you know that they're ripe. They look frightened, so that makes it easy. I remember one guy, though, who didn't even stop. He just kept walking, real brisk, and acted like he didn't hear me or didn't understand what I was saying, and sort of brushed me off like you'd do if someone bumped into you. I never got him."

If you're on a street and spot someone who arouses your suspicion, change your course, go into the middle of the street, turn back. When you are moving along, know where you are going and move with a sense of determination.

Here are some other strategies that can be helpful to avoid becoming a victim of a robbery:

- When walking on a street, stay to the center of the walk rather than close to any buildings. In dark or dusk, walk in the lighted areas.

- If shopping, try to go back and forth with others rather than alone. After shopping, or on returning to a parked car, check to be sure no one is hiding in the rear seat.

- Older people often are attacked by younger people, so try to steer clear of any groups of youths, especially those who seem to be hanging and who you sense are or may be in gangs.

- If you are attacked, sink to the ground. That way you can avoid getting hurt by being knocked over or pushed to the ground. A whistle or a device that blasts out like a siren can get help or frighten the thief into running away.

- If you carry a purse or a satchel, turn the side that opens toward your body, and keep it close to your body.

Most robbers don't like light or noise, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said.

He recommends that stores be equipped with silent alarms and cameras.

Stores in remote areas with only one clerk in the store are especially prone to being robbed, he said, and if possible, the owner should try to have more than one employee working.

And, most important, figure that any gun you see is real and that it can be used to hurt you. Don't forget that the gunman will use it if he is resisted. That's what robbers do. They become robbers because that kind of quick crime appeals to them. A robbery usually lasts only seconds.

Heat, chase

sneaked up on her with a tranquilizer gun.

Kruse intended to approach the animal quietly, just as he did with a circus lion that escaped a few years back. But events soon were beyond his control.

After tracking Buffy on foot for several miles, Kruse was able to corner her in a field. As he walked toward Buffy, the driver of a dump truck, apparently unhappy about the vehicles blocking Bear Creek Road, leaned on his horn. Buffy charged toward Kruse, who was able to fire a single shot, which missed.

"She scared the you know what out of me," Kruse said.

But he continued his pursuit, often through thick grass as much as 8 feet tall. "I can handle it," he boasted. "I live in the woods."

As he pursued Buffy, he sought help from startled residents. E.L. Cheshier, a retired farmer on Westmoreland Road in Glen Heights, was on the front porch stringing a pail of fresh-picked green beans when Buffy ran past. "It went back yonder," Cheshier shouted, motioning Kruse toward the back pasture, where Buffy grazed with a herd of cattle for a few moments until a WFAA-Channel 8 helicopter flew over.

"She went over the back fence like it wasn't even there," said DeSoto police officer Len Chadwick.

Buffy was next seen in Ovilla, and soon she was in Cedar Hill. By this time, Kruse had had enough of the chase on foot and motioned for a helicopter from radio station KVIL to land in a pasture.

Kruse took to the air and was set down near a pond where Buffy was catching her breath. He took aim and fired twice, hitting her both times. Nevertheless, Buffy took off running.

Thanks to the KVIL helicopter, Kruse quickly caught up with her. Back on the ground, he hit her with two more tranquilizer darts. And she was finished.

Plane search continues

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mont. — Air Force Helicopters joined the search today for a plane missing since Sunday with four prominent Texas men aboard.

Barbra Proulx of the Montana Aeronautics Division said the helicopters left Malmstrom Air Force Base early this morning, as the search for the missing twin-engine Cessna 421 entered its third day.

Mike Ferguson, chief of the Montana Aeronautics Division, said investigators have speculated that Schoellkopf put the wrong grade of airplane fuel into the craft before taking off, which could have caused the engine's pistons to melt.

The plane was piloted by Hugo W. Schoellkopf III, 43, the owner of a guest ranch north of White Sulphur Springs where the four men attended a religious retreat last week. It was found from White Sulphur Springs for the Dallas suburb of Addison but never arrived.

Army probes accident

FORT HOOD — A U.S. Army board investigating the crash of a helicopter that killed 10 people at this Central Texas military installation is examining maintenance records of the 20-year-old helicopter, Army spokesmen say.

Spokesmen for the 5th U.S. Army at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio and the U.S. Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga., denied a request Tuesday from the Austin American-Statesman newspaper to examine the records.

Army officials say the maintenance records are evidence in the investigation of the June 22 crash of the UH-1 Huey helicopter.

The spokesmen did not exclude the possibility the records would be available to the public after the findings of the investigation are released.

Weather delays search

GALVESTON — Soggy weather and equipment delays held up a search for the body of a 19-year-old waitress missing for more than a year, officials said.

The search was planned after two men told deputies of abducting Shelley Sikes, and burying her body in the Bacliff area, said Galveston County Sheriff Joe Max Taylor.

Sensitive electronics gear designed to locate buried remains was being brought to Galveston, but inclement weather prevented its use until later in the week, he said.

"They advised us that as long as it is raining and wet, we can't do anything," said Taylor. "We anticipate that we will start this search sometime Thursday."

John Robert King, 29, of Bacliff and Gerald Zwarst, 32, of Seabrook were charged with abducting Miss Sikes as she drove home from her waitress job in Galveston in May 1986. She has not been seen since. The men were held on $100,000 bond each and murder charges against the two are pending, said Taylor.

Weather grounds aviator

HEBRON, Ky. — The 11-year-old Texas boy attempting a coast-to-coast flight was grounded by rain today before he could take off on the last leg of his trip.

John Kevin Hill had been scheduled to land this afternoon at Dulles International Airport near Washington, D.C. However, foul weather enveloped the Greater Cincinnati International Airport, across the Ohio River from Cincinnati in northern Kentucky.

Because of the clouds and rain, only pilots certified to fly under instrument flight rules were being granted permission to take off, according to the Federal Aviation Administration's flight services manager at the airport.

Hundreds of people gather on the lawn of the State Capitol in Austin Tuesday to support funding of education in Texas. Several lawmakers spoke to the crowd, telling them the commitment to education does not come cheap. In the Texas House, a bill to cut education funding was restored, prompting the protest.

Lawmakers restore cut in education

Dallas Times Herald Bureau AUSTIN — The Texas House began work on the 1988-89 state budget Tuesday by restoring an unpopular cut in funding for public education and creating a political predicament for lawmakers who oppose higher taxes.

While legislators debated dozens of proposed changes in the spending plan, the House tax-writing panel voted in a nearby room to hike the sales tax, extend permanently the current 15-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax rate and establish a 6 percent sales tax on insurance premiums.

Speaker Gib Lewis, who earlier in the day endorsed the three revenue increases, stood vigil as the Ways and Means Committee voted 7-6 to increase the sales tax from 5 percent to 6 percent.

The panel's approval of the tax measures was the second step in ushering a $5.8 billion tax bill through a reluctant House, which is being pushed by Gov. Bill Clements to hold the line on increased revenues.

The first step was a surprise maneuver devised by moderate Democrats to put pressure on Republicans and conservative Democrats to vote for the controversial tax plan needed to finance a $38.4 billion budget supported by the House leadership.

The moderates proposed nearly $6 billion in "contingency cuts," including closing 12 state colleges, eliminating 41 state boards and agencies and slashing funding for the public schools, that would take place if no tax bill is approved.

Expert criticizes schools

Dallas Times Herald Bureau Mentally retarded residents of the Fort Worth State School who misbehave are tied by their wrists and ankles to beds, a technique labeled "dangerous and unwarranted" by an expert witness who testified Tuesday in a contempt of court hearing.

Kenneth Keith, a Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, and a witness for the Association for Retarded Citizens who toured the school on June 11, described it as "dehumanizing, dangerous and regressive for clients." He said he has not seen such use of restraints "since the late 1960s" and called other behavior modification programs at the school "laughable."

The use of physical restraints at the school apparently occurs "more frequently than at any other institution I am familiar with in this country," he said.

Judge issues S&L order

Dallas Times Herald Bureau A federal judge in Dallas has issued an order in the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.'s $350 million suit against some former shareholders and officers of failed Vernon Savings and Loan, forbidding six defendants from disposing of much of their property and limiting the money they can spend.

The order issued Monday by U.S. District Judge A. Joe Fish affects only those assets held by the defendants as of April 28 — the day after the FSLIC accused them of "looting" the thrift.

Fish's order allows the defendants to spend up to $3,500 a month for personal matters and to make other expenditures for the routine upkeep of their businesses without court approval. Any transaction beyond routine business can be objected to by the FSLIC and must be approved by the court.

Time to settle on Iran policy

President Reagan's policies towards the troublesome nation of Iran have been marked by inconsistencies and sudden reversals. It is not surprising, then, that the Defense Department should be feuding with the Departments of State and Commerce over the wisdom of continuing to trade with that Islamic nation.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger makes a rational argument that there is little sense in selling material to the Iranians — such as the $900,000 computers approved by the president last March — which can be used by the military that may someday be fighting Americans.

President Reagan justifies his position on the grounds that Iran is strategically important to American interests — primarily because of its proximity to the Soviet Union — and some level of relationship should be maintained. That is a rational argument.

But the President's wish to protect Kuwaiti oil tankers against Iranian attack has made his balancing act even more precarious than before.

Meanwhile, throughout these policy shifts, American businesses have continued to import about $600 million annually in Iranian products — ranging from oil that Iran has shipped through the Persian Gulf to pistachio nuts.

If the current state of near hostilities is to become the firm American policy, then Secretary Weinberger should be heeded and all trade with Iran severed. If not, then the heat should be turned down in the gulf and trade continued.

The President must settle on a policy and then make sure all other governmental actions are consistent. We've been flummoxed long enough by Iran.

Fourth of July recalls time of an itch for making noise

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
Observance of the Fourth of July is always a special time, and this weekend in Big Spring should be no exception.

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center Summerfest activities and fireworks from South Mountain promise a weekend worth observing — and remembering.

I can just imagine that a youngster or two around here will have a story to tell as a result of this year's celebration of our country's declaration of independence.

Memories of past occasions are typical of such events. Personally, there has never been a more eventful July 4th celebration for me than 1964 — it's one I never forgot.

A light rain began to fall and we were in a hurry to get home and cause some noise, but with no plans of getting wet. I think it was the moisture that contributed to my troubles, as the Black Cats in my possession also got wet. In turn, the gunpowder apparently began to spread — and made me itch.

We're talking serious itching, folks. It turned out to be my first and only major experience with hives. Ugly red blotches covered my body.

matter. I've always believed my mother secretly enjoyed applying that stuff, although I admit it worked.

In fact, I recovered enough to visit the ballpark in our small community that was home to ballgames all summer. Independence Day meant fireworks would be going off as soon as the lights went off.

There is a distinct memory of carefully walking in the darkness, attempting to find a good place for watching fireworks, when I came upon two beverage cans on the ground.

As kids we always smashed down hard on such a can, caving in the side and wrapping it around the foot. The result was a smashed can and a novel sound if you could wear it any distance — kids will be kids, right?

You can imagine, perhaps, a youngster with such things in mind, to come upon two cans just about a stride apart. Perfect for landing on, with one mighty effort.

I'm not sure what impressed me most: The sudden realization that I had made a mistake, or the sound that came from the man lying on the ground, whose ankles had just been attacked.

It was nothing personal — but in the darkness, I'm still convinced his white socks resembled soda pop cans.

Report confirms attack plan

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — A missing key has been found to a story that won't go away — a story that we wrote during the 1980 presidential campaign but that then-President Jimmy Carter swore never happened, a story nevertheless that won't give up the ghost.

We reported, and Carter angrily denied, that he was planning a military attack on Iran as an "October surprise" on the eve of the election.

The missing evidence has been uncovered by the distinguished journalist John Barron, a former intelligence officer specializing in Soviet affairs, who now is a senior editor for Reader's Digest.

Barron revealed the evidence as part of his investigation of the John Walker spy case. After digging through exhaustive files and interviewing Walker at length, Barron wrote a book about the Walker espionage ring.

From Barron's book, "Breaking the Ring," and other sources now available, here are the bare bones of the Carter caper:

The story began in April 1980, with the bolded attempt to rescue American hostages from Iran.

"Humiliated and seemingly impotent, the Carter administration laid plans to redeem itself in the eyes of the electorate by mounting a much larger attack upon Iran," relates Barron.

This has been confirmed by no less than Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski. The day after the disaster in the desert, Brzezinski states, "I convened a meeting in my office, on the instruction of the president, to plan another rescue mission."

Brzezinski argued not only for a rescue raid but for a larger, punitive military assault.

"The actions that made the most sense to me," he recalls, "involved seizing Kharg Island, Iran's main oil-export facility, and imposing a naval blockade, possibly combined with air strikes."

Barron reports that "preparations proceeded in unprecedented secrecy." Yet the Soviets were fully aware of Carter's moves. Our National Security Agency intercepted some secret Soviet intelligence cables.

It was clear from those messages that the Kremlin knew what was happening. They even had knowledge of the timing — some cables referred to the impending U.S. action in Iran as an "October coup."

How in the world did the Kremlin know about Carter's super-secret preparations? Barron has learned the answer; he reports that the Walker spy ring delivered the Pentagon's secret codes to the Soviet Union.

So in 1980, the Soviets were able to decipher the Pentagon's most secret messages, which provided them, in advance, with the details of Carter's October surprise.

The National Security Agency had the ability, in turn, to intercept Soviet messages. With its high-speed computers, NSA also could crack most of their codes. So we reported on Sept. 22, 1980:

"Heavily coded cables from Russia to its Warsaw Pact allies have warned them to be prepared for a military confrontation in Iran in October. The KGB's 'best estimate,' according to the cables, was that the United States was getting ready for military action, and the Soviets would have to meet force with force."

Barron reports that the Soviet Union rushed 22 full divisions to the Iranian border. He concludes tersely: "American reconnaissance detected the poised Soviet formations. With their discovery, a horrendous specter immediately became apparent:

"The moment the U.S. raiders land... Soviet airborne troops quickly surround the Americans, while Soviet armored divisions hurtle across the border. President Carter now must choose. He can let the vastly outnumbered American force surrender or be annihilated. Or he can resort to nuclear weapons and risk precipitating World War III.

"Prudently, Carter canceled the raid."

Too many idiots play pack mules

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
I haven't missed very many days this year without flying on somebody's airplane. I have more frequent flier points than Peter Pan.

I hate delays like everybody else does, and I worry if the federal government doesn't fork over some money for the air traffic controller system, airplanes are going to start running into one another.

But there's something else that also bothers me about air travel. Doesn't anybody check their bags anymore?

Carry-on luggage has gotten terribly out of hand. Each time I fly, I see at least one idiot walk onto the plane with enough baggage to send a fully grown mule to its knees under the weight.

I see people with huge hang-up bags, suitcases, briefcases and their company's entire computer system attempt to walk down a crowded airliner aisle without hitting somebody in the head with all that equipment and giving them a concussion.

Others attempt to put what wouldn't fit into a Ryder truck into one of those tiny compartments over their seats.

You had to do that sort of thing back when you had to ride the bus or train. On the way to college, you lugged your suitcase to your seat and put it into the rack above your head.

That's also where you put your guitar and the box lunch your mother prepared for your trip.

You don't have to do that anymore. You can give your bags to an occasionally friendly person at the airline ticket gate and your bags will be stashed in the bottom of the airplane and you won't have to fool with them again until you land in Peoria.

True, from time to time airlines do lose checked baggage. Better to risk that, however, than to risk a hernia hauling all those bags onto and off the plane.

"Passengers seem to think they can save a great deal of time by carrying on their luggage and not having to wait for it at the baggage claim," a Delta employee was telling me.

I fully expect somebody will get on an airplane one of these days with a crate full of live chickens and a goat on a rope.

It can't be safe to have all that luggage and whatever else people bring onto airplanes stacked all over the passenger compartment.

I don't want the plane to hit sudden turbulence and a lugs-and-bolts salesman's sample case fall on my head.

Airlines are crowded enough with human beings to bring all that stuff into the passenger compartment. I get on airplanes today and I feel like I'm riding on the back of Jed Clampett's truck with Jethro Bodine.

I think some of the delays could be cut if we didn't have 80 percent of the passengers abroad a flight taking 15 minutes to find a place for all their junk before sitting down.

On second thought, it's OK to bring aboard a box lunch your mother prepared for your trip, airline food being bland as it is. Just leave the chickens and goats at home or put them on Greyhound or Amtrak.

More than likely, they'll be waiting for you when you get off the plane.

Cargo plane crashes

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — A C-130 cargo plane with six crewmen aboard crashed and burned on a runway at Fort Bragg during a training exercise today, narrowly missing a grandstand full of spectators, officials and a witness said.

Col. Jim Jannett, an Air Force spokesman at the Pentagon, said the plane from adjacent Pope Air Force Base crashed at about 10 a.m.

Officials at the air base said the conditions of the six crewmen were not immediately known. The statement said the plane was taking part in a joint Army-Air Force exercise when it crashed.

Janet Hundley, a reporter for WRAL-TV who witnessed the crash, said the plane was using a technique in which a parachute pulls a tank or other vehicle out the rear cargo door when the plane is just a few feet above the ground.

PTL case to be heard

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The U.S. Justice Department will impanel a grand jury here to hear allegations of tax fraud against the PTL ministry under former leader Jim Bakker, a department source said.

The department is expected to announce before Friday the specific allegations to be presented to the grand jury, the list of defendants and the dates the panel will meet.

"They (tax attorneys) are still tying up loose ends," the source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Tuesday.

Federal officials decided to begin a formal criminal investigation and impanel a grand jury because of the number of allegations about the PTL under Bakker and questions about its tax-exempt status, the source said.

Top managers resign

WASHINGTON — Congress moved to punish foreign companies for selling secret technology to help Soviet submarines evade detection, and reaction from a Japanese company involved was swift with today's resignations of its two top officers.

The Senate voted Tuesday night to ban Toshiba and Kongsberg Vaapenfabrikk from selling products in the United States for at least two years.

"The issue is crime based on greed," said Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa.

Arms accord reached

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached an agreement in principle to eliminate all Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe and Asia, but a senator said today that verification procedures have yet to be determined.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said he is encouraged by reports that an arms pact could be sealed when Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets in mid-July with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Demonstrators try to overturn a bus during a riot in Rio de Janeiro. Thousands of people protesting the fare hike rioted in downtown Rio, battling police, looting stores and setting 20 buses afire.

Thousands protest bus fare hike

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Police fired tear gas and concussion grenades in downtown Rio de Janeiro to break up a demonstration by tens of thousands of people protesting an increase in bus fares.

At least 30 people were hurt Tuesday as protesters fought police with chunks of sidewalk and cobblestones. Some demonstrators stopped buses, shattering their windows and setting them ablaze, while others looted shops. Police spokesman Geovanni Azevedo said 80 people were arrested in the melee.

Later Tuesday, the government announced it was suspending the bus increase, which would have raised the fare from 11 to 17 cents.

The bus fare increase was announced three weeks after the government froze wages in an effort to curb inflation that was approaching 1,000 percent a year.

The demonstration began peacefully Tuesday morning when people gathered to protest the fare hike. Sergio Moura, a leader of the socialist Workers Party who was at the scene, said that at about noon 1,000 people moved into the main downtown thoroughfare, Rio Banco Avenue, blocking traffic.

"The police came and threw noisy dispersal bombs to break up the group," Moura said. "It was a provocation." The group returned and began to stop and van-dalize buses." About 500 helmeted police struck protesters with clubs and fired tear gas to break up the crowd. Demonstrators responded by ripping up cobblestones and pieces of sidewalk and hurling them at police. Office workers leaned from windows and dropped light bulbs on the officers.

Buses provide basic transportation for about 4 million people in this seaside city, with a metropolitan area population of 10.2 million.

Fire Chief Flavio Fagundes said 20 buses were set on fire and two federal government cars were overturned and burned. Rioters threw stones at firefighters who tried to extinguish the flames, injuring four, he added.

Police said they had no figures on the overall number injured, but the Souza Aguiar Hospital said it treated 30 people for cuts or for inhaled smoke and gas fumes.

Army troops were stationed outside the city's main train station to keep order during rush hour.

Late in the afternoon, state police reinforcements arrived in three armored personnel carriers. Protesters who tried to hide in office buildings or in the historic St. Anthony's convent were chased and dragged out.

Leader seeks accord

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Haiti's military leader appealed for negotiations to end two days of protest that, according to witnesses, left seven people killed by police gunfire.

The demonstrations came in response to a June 23 decree taking control of upcoming elections away from a constitutionally established independent committee and transferring it to the government.

Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, head of the provisional government, said Tuesday night in a televised speech that "the tolerance of the government has been pushed to a limit, but we will not let ourselves be radicalized. The return to democracy requires a dialogue, a national consensus."

Bearing caused crash

WARSAW, Poland — An engine explosion resulting from a faulty roller bearing caused the crash of a Polish airliner last month that killed all 183 people aboard, a government commission said Tuesday.

The Soviet-built Ilyushin 62 went down May 9 near Warsaw's Okęcie airport, to which it was trying to return after reporting trouble on a flight to New York. Among the victims were 17 U.S. citizens and at least eight with dual Polish-American citizenship.

In its report, the commission also said the crew initially requested permission to land at a military airfield but decided to try for Okęcie instead, according to a dispatch from the official news agency PAP.

Carters visit Kremlin

MOSCOW — Former President Jimmy Carter and his wife Rosalynn met today with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in the Kremlin.

Communist Party International Affairs Secretary Anatoly F. Dobrynin, former ambassador to the United States, also participated in the talks. He was greeted warmly by Carter.

The former president and Gorbachev joked about their rural roots and superpower leaders' tendencies to criticize each other. "Two farmers can't be antagonistic toward each other," Carter told Gorbachev.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Carter arrived Tuesday for an official visit at the invitation of the Soviet government.

Iraq raids large ship

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq said its jet fighters raided a large ship off Iran's coast today, a day after an Iranian gunboat rocketed a Kuwaiti freighter in the Persian Gulf.

The Iraqi state radio, monitored in Bahrain, said the warplanes "scored an accurate and effective hit on a large maritime target," an Iraqi military term for a large vessel, often an oil tanker.

Chun agrees to demands of opposition

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Bowing to the will of the people, President Chun Doo-hwan today announced his agreement to opposition demands for direct presidential elections and sweeping democratic reform.

The changes are intended to end decades of authoritarian government.

Chun, looking tired and grim, made the announcement on national television three weeks after the opposition launched an anti-government campaign that triggered huge demonstrations for 18 straight days.

"Because social stability and national harmony were being undermined by the recent continuing demonstrations and strife ... I believe that you, my fellow countrymen, not only experienced serious inconvenience and anxiety but were also worried that catastrophe might befall the nation," Chun said.

The president and former army general, who said he had "spent many sleepless nights," announced he would accept demands for direct presidential elections, electoral reform, press freedom, release of political prisoners, curbing of central government power and other measures.

"Now is a crucial moment in the destiny of the nation," he said.

Chun repeated his pledge to step down when his seven-year term expires Feb. 25 and transfer power to a president elected by direct popular vote. The electoral college system to be scrapped had virtually guaranteed victory for the governing party.

He promised an extensive amnesty for political prisoners, but did not mention specifically Kim Dae-jung, a veteran dissident under a suspended 20-year prison sentence from a 1980 sedition conviction that stripped him of his civil rights and barred him from politics.

Roh Tae-woo, the head of the governing party, on Monday cited Kim Dae-jung's case as one for amnesty.

Koreans greeted Chun's announcement with happiness, excitedly discussing the planned changes.

Quick and delicious ideas for pasta

Some people picture pasta as a culprit waiting to wrap its calories around their hips, thighs and waists. But pasta doesn't deserve that reputation. A five-ounce serving of cooked pasta contains only 210 calories.

This inexpensive food is a budget helper. American pastas range in price from about 60 cents to 90 cents per pound while imported pastas cost as much as $1.75 per pound.

This week's recipe exchange includes some delicious pasta recipes from the National Pasta Association.

Add the wine, then reduce heat and add chiles, salt and pepper to taste, and cook uncovered for 10-15 minutes. Add the cheese; when it begins to melt, stir in the cream and cook just long enough to heat through. Pour over ziti, serve immediately.

Fast food can be nutritious

COLLEGE STATION — "It's too hot to cook," is heard more and more as summer temperatures climb, and people turn to convenient fast food restaurants. Fortunately, smart consumers can find good nutritional values in their quest to beat the heat.

"The restaurant industry is responding to the consumer demand for more nutritional and lower calorie meals," says Dr.

Dymple Cooksey, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. "Fast food chains are especially making an effort to attract health conscious people."

Many fast food chains are trying to improve the nutritional value of their products by cutting back on sodium and fat. A few chains have even switched to using polyunsaturated fats in their deep fryers in efforts to gain public approval and patronage, Cooksey points out.

"One of the most popular trends in fast food nutrition is the salad bar," says the specialist. "Salad bars are featured in many chains to compliment the existing menu and to attract the health conscious. These salads can be an excellent source of nutrition, and contain few calories, if you go easy on the croutons, cheese and dressing."

"Pizza also is a good choice. Its combination of cheese, tomato sauce, and crust make it a low-fat source of carbohydrates, vitamins, calcium, and protein. But be careful, you can run up the calories here too by adding sausage, pepperoni, and other high calorie toppings," remarks Cooksey.

Ethnic fast foods can add variety and nutrition, the specialist says. Those types of Mexican food which aren't deep fried and feature lettuce, tomatoes, small mounts of meat, and beans are a good fast food choice.

Chinese food also offers nutritional entrees based mainly on vegetables and rice, providing vitamins, protein and fiber.

According to Cooksey, "Eating fast food doesn't have to be a high-calorie, fatty experience."

There are many readily available alternatives to deep fried, high fat-content foods. Fast food can be nutritious food if you make smart choices."

Words hurt as much as sticks and stones

DEAR READERS: Have you ever abused your child? Perhaps without realizing it, you have. Words can hit as hard as a fist. For example:

"You disgust me. Just shut up!"
 "Get out of here. I'm sick of looking at your face!"
 "You're pathetic. Can't you do anything right?"
 "You're more trouble than you're worth."

"Why don't you go and find some other place to live?"
 "I wish you were never born."
 Children believe whatever their parents tell them. Next time you lose your temper, stop for a moment, and listen to what you're saying. You might not believe your words.

Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.

Here are 12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid:

1. Put your hands over your mouth. Count to 10. Or better yet, 20.
2. Stop in your tracks. Press your lips together and breathe deeply.
3. Phone a friend.
4. Phone the pre-recorded weather information number.
5. Say the alphabet out loud.
6. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a leisurely walk.
7. Splash cold water on your face, or take a warm bath.
8. Pick up a pencil and write down your thoughts.
9. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child hears.
10. Turn on the radio or TV.
11. Hug a pillow.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, Ill. 60690. You'll be glad you did.

This is a non-profit organization. The information is free for the asking, but if you are able to send even a small donation, it will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced many years ago and I was left to raise our two children with no help from him. They are now 11 and 13 years old. My mom took care of my kids all the years I worked.

I am going with a gentleman who loves me. He is 49, divorced and has two teen-age children who live with his wife, but he supports them in style. He is well-off financially and just came into some inherited money.

He has offered to marry me and buy me a home — on one condition: My children cannot live with us. My mother practically raised my kids, so he thinks they should live with her. Abby, my mother is 72 and she has worked her butt off looking after my kids, and I just can't lay that on her after all she's done for me.

I love this man and he treats me very well, but we fight about this all the time. My kids are good kids, and they come first with me. Please tell me what to do. He has given me an Aug. 15 deadline.

ALL TORN UP
 DEAR TORN: Tell the gentleman if he wants to marry you, it's a package deal — triple or nothing. If he says, "Nothing," don't eat your heart out. Would you really want a man who asked you to abandon your children?

DEAR READERS: There has been a great deal of information and misinformation concerning AIDS. Here are the facts, directly from the mouth of C. Everett Koop, the surgeon general:

"How to protect yourself against AIDS — as far as it's humanly possible:

"Don't have sex with someone who already has AIDS or who indulges in high-risk behavior. Such a person might be a prostitute or an intravenous drug user who borrows used needles. It would also include any sexually promiscuous person — whether homosexual or heterosexual.

"And if you do decide to have sex with such an individual — a profoundly serious health decision — then, if you're a man, use a condom from start to finish. If you're a woman, make sure your male partner uses a condom.

"A condom won't provide 100 percent protection — few things in life do. But, short of monogamy and abstinence, condoms seem to offer the best barrier to the transmission of AIDS.

"If we are truly concerned about teen-agers' lives and the future life of our society, this is the kind of information we need to get across to those members of our teen-age population who, each year, are sufficiently sexually active to produce over a million unwanted pregnancies each year."

DEAR READERS: I need your cooperation for an important survey.

Question: Have you ever cheated on your mate? How long have you been together?

You need not sign your name, but please state your age and indicate whether you are male or female.

Please send your letter or postcard to: Abby's Survey, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

University of Texas to sell historic landmark

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas has decided to sell a 134-year-old landmark house that was donated five years ago to serve as an official residence for the university president.

The house, known as Sweetbrush and designated a Texas historic landmark, originally was designed by pioneer Austin architect and builder Abner Cook in 1853.

It was given to UT in 1982 by Sallie Lee Scott, widow of Dr. Zachary Scott and a long-time patron of the arts in Austin.

The university had planned a $1.1 million renovation and expansion of the house for use as a president's residence. But UT president William Cunningham said he has decided against the project because of its cost.

"The current cost estimates on the renovation of Sweetbrush were substantially greater than the university anticipated when it accepted Mrs. Scott's very generous gift," Cunningham said.

"This fact, along with the need to use all available resources to support the fundamental mission of the university, made it impossible to renovate Sweetbrush."

Cunningham said Mrs. Scott's daughter, Mary Lewis Kleberg of Kingsville, "understands the problems the university faces and supports the university's decision."

The house has been vacant since it was transferred to UT after Mrs. Scott died in 1983. UT has not decided what to do with money from the sale.

Cunningham said he plans to continue living in the West Lake Hills house he and his wife bought before he became university president in 1985.

North turns over documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, the central figure in the Iran-Contra affair, turned over personal notes, telephone logs and other documents Tuesday to congressional investigators after being granted limited immunity from prosecution.

North's papers, long sought by the House and Senate investigating panels, were contained in a set of seven black loose-leaf binders turned over to each committee during a 15-minute closed session on Capitol Hill.

The papers included North's telephone logs, correspondence, personal calendars and copies of the contents of 21 spiral notebooks he kept during the time the Iran arms sales and Contra resupply efforts were going on, a committee aide said. Sensitive intelligence information had been removed.

North also answered a string of questions designed to establish that he has knowledge of the affair and to lay the groundwork for later interrogation, said the aide, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Marine officer, wearing his ribbon-bedecked uniform, was brought into the meeting under tight security and was shielded from reporters as he came and left through a garage entrance in a House office building.

The fired National Security Council aide was to return late Wednesday for questioning that will focus on what North knows, if anything, about any knowledge President Reagan might have about the diversion of Iran arms-sale proceeds to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels. Reagan has denied knowing anything of such a diversion before it was disclosed by Attorney General Edwin Meese III last November.

Tuesday's giving up of documents, Wednesday's scheduled private questioning session and North's public testimony, expected to begin July 7, were arranged last week as part of an understanding between lawyers for the congressional panels and North's attorney, Brendan Sullivan.

North also was being given access to relevant documents in the committees' possession to prepare for his testimony, and there is an understanding that the length of his questioning, both private and public, will be limited.

House committee chairman Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., called the session with North and his lawyers routine and "very congenial." He said, "We were really carrying out a script" written by attorneys for the two sides.

LT. COL. OLIVER L. NORTH ... breaks silence

LAWRENCE WALSH ... subject of challenge

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said North "was cooperative, he responded to questions. I would describe the atmosphere as friendly, polite and businesslike."

North entered a meeting room with his lawyers and shook hands with committee members, then invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination in response to eight questions from Senate committee counsel Arthur L. Liman.

The committees then granted North limited immunity from prosecution under a previous agreement with the panels. That grant provides that nothing North says or provides to the congressional investigators can be used against him in any criminal proceeding.

North is believed to be a primary target of a criminal investigation being conducted by Lawrence Walsh, the government's independent counsel in the case.

According to a transcript of the session released later in the day, North told the committees that he has knowledge of U.S. efforts to secure release of American hostages in Lebanon, the arms sales to Iran, the use of the proceeds from those sales and government support given the Contras beginning in 1984.

He then described the papers he was turning over to the committees, saying they include a code book and some photographs and "miscellaneous items." North was not asked for any details, and gave none.

When he returns on Wednesday, North will be questioned primarily by lawyers for the House and Senate committees. Also likely to attend the session are the members who will be principal questioners during the public sessions — Reps. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., and Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., and Sens. George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Paul Trible, R-Va. — along with Senate panel chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, vice chairman Rudman, and House chairman Hamilton.

"It will not be an extended session, but on the other hand, it will not be real brief," Hamilton said. He said staff members would be examining the documents North provided in preparation for Wednesday's questioning.

Also on Wednesday, Chief U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. is to conduct a hearing on North's challenge to independent counsel Walsh's authority to investigate the Iran-Contra affair.

North contends the Ethics in Government Act, under which Walsh was appointed by a special court, is unconstitutional. He argues that judicial appointment of prosecutors violates the separation-of-powers doctrine.

The former White House aide is also challenging the Justice Department's March 5 back-up appointment of Walsh, an appointment designed to blunt North's challenge to the independent counsel law.

The dispute before Robinson stems from North's refusal to obey a grand jury subpoena to supply a sample of his handwriting.

Robinson cited North for contempt, but a federal appeals court instructed the judge to consider North's challenge to the independent counsel law.

EDWIN MEESE III
... Arrangement 'outside the law'

Investigator: Meese action 'outside the law'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin Meese III's lawyer says none of the attorney general's money in a blind trust was invested in scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp., but the head of a congressional subcommittee says the entire arrangement was "outside the law."

"Just because Ed Meese said that his arrangements with Wedtech officials were 'blind' did not make them so," said Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., who plans to conduct a hearing on the matter later this month.

Sikorski on Tuesday released a letter from the Office of Government Ethics, in which ethics chief David Martin said blind trusts must be approved by the office but Meese's was not. Since Meese's did not have the approval of the ethics office, Martin said, the attorney general was required to list the investments made with the money on his financial disclosure form.

James Rocap, who represents Meese in the criminal investigation of his involvement with Wedtech, said Tuesday that the attorney general made a profit on his $80,000 limited blind partnership investment with San Francisco businessman W. Franklyn Chinn. Chinn also is under criminal investigation for ties to Wedtech, a New York City defense contractor accused of bribing public officials.

But Rocap, in an interview, said "we have determined that none of the money that Mr. Meese invested through Mr. Chinn was invested in Wedtech stock." He said Meese received no money in any fashion from Wedtech.

The lawyer declined to say how much profit Meese made or the exact nature of the investment except that some of it was in stocks.

Independent counsel James McKay is conducting a criminal investigation of Meese's ties to Wedtech. Among other things, he is looking into the possibility of conflict of interest. Meese has acknowledged interceding on Wedtech's behalf in 1982 when he was White House counselor and the company was seeking a $32 million government contract.

Meese officially pulled his money out of the partnership with Chinn on Tuesday.

The Office of Government Ethics says Meese should have listed the details of his investments with Chinn on his financial disclosure form.

In the letter released by Sikorski, Martin said arrangements like the one Meese had with Chinn fail to shield the attorney general from the requirement of disclosing outside financial interests on his annual disclosure form.

Sikorski, chairman of the House Civil Service subcommittee on human rights, said Meese "created a significant financial arrangement that was unapproved and outside the law."

Carhenge creator considers ultimatum

ALLIANCE, Neb. (AP) — Alliance City Manager Wolfgang Bauer has given Carhenge creator and owner James Reinders of Houston 180 days to either remove the cars he buried in the ground north of Alliance or apply for a special use permit.

Bauer said Monday he met with Reinders last week for about 20 minutes in hopes of finding an equitable solution for Reinders and the City of Alliance.

City officials said early last week that Reinders was in violation of a city land use zoning ordinance. The land, according to Bob Carr, city building and zoning administrator, is zoned agricultural and Carhenge violates the intended purpose of agricultural land.

Reinders and several family members spent a week in Alliance constructing Carhenge on 120 acres of property he owns. Carhenge was erected according to the pattern of the famous Stonehenge, a mysterious ancient monument in England, using old automobiles instead of large stones.

"The decision on the 180 days was a joint solution between the two parties involved," Bauer said.

Reinders, in a telephone interview with The Alliance Times-Herald, said he is leaning toward applying for a special use permit. "I asked for 360 days to comply but we came up with 180 days," he said.

"I was completely surprised to find out that I was within the jurisdiction of the city. I thought the worse thing that could happen was that I would have to apply for a junk yard license at $50."

Reinders said he has no regrets about spending a week in Alliance constructing Carhenge. He used 22 vehicles to make the replica of Stonehenge and said he spent about $5,000 on the project.

Reinders has also offered to deed Carhenge over to the City of Alliance, Box Butte County or the State of Nebraska as a possible park, but there have been no takers.

Reinders returned to Houston Sunday and said he has received some favorable comments concerning Carhenge. He received a letter from a friend who said he heard about it while traveling between Wisconsin and Colorado and stopped to see it. Another letter came from a man in Florida who plans to stop in Alliance on his next vacation, just to see Carhenge.

Moses is still going strong

I was both glad and sad to hear that Danny Harris had defeated Edwin Moses in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles. It's something no one's done to Moses in almost a decade.

Sad, because in my heart, I wished Moses' streak could go on until he retired. Glad, because the United States has a 400-meter hurdler worthy of following in Moses' footsteps.

Like I said, for nearly 10 years Moses has been invincible in the 400 hurdles. He won Olympic gold medals in the event in the '76 and '84 Games. He's broken the world record four times and had a 122-meet winning streak, including 107 wins in finals.

But on June 4 in Madrid, Spain — nine years, nine months and nine days after 'The Streak' began — it ended. It was ended by a 21-year-old who is the second ranked hurdler in the world. Harris, a student at Iowa State, was in the sixth grade when 'The Streak' began. Little did he know he would be the one to end a living legend's chain of victories.

Harris certainly earned it when he defeated Moses in Spain. His winning time of 47.56 is one of the best ever, and the fastest in the world this year. Moses ran a 47.69 in the race, not too far from his world record time of 47.02 in '83.

After Harris' historic victory, there was talk that Moses was over-the-hill at 31. For most track athletes, especially runners, that holds true. But Moses is no ordinary runner.

He is a skilled technician in this race. He has set the standard of excellence in the event. With the Olympic Games less than one year away, Moses is planning on becoming the first hurdler to win three Olympic gold medals in the event.

He would already have that distinction if the U.S. hadn't boycotted the '80 games.

So how can they say the man is nearing the end of his career?

Some of the experts evidently don't know that Moses is not only a great athlete, but a great competitor. He's had to fend off strong challenges throughout his track career. I've seen Moses unseat Trinidad's John Akka-Bau in the mid-'70's as the top 400 hurdler in the world. Then I've seen him turn back Germany's Harold Wolfgang Smith in the late '70's.

Now the challenge is young Danny Harris.

So what does Moses do? Three weeks after 'The Streak' ended, he defeats Harris in the prestigious USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships in San Jose, Calif. Moses' time of 47.87 was good enough to defeat the second place Harris by 10 meters.

I guess that throws the over-the-hill baloney out the window. Moses never had his doubts. Before the race he said: "I want to start another streak, I don't know how long it will last, but I don't think I'll be running for another 10 years."

And retirement is out of the picture. "They say Kareem Abdul Jabbar (LA Lakers 40-year-old center) should have retired five years ago. I don't know if I'll still be going strong at 40, but I'm still going strong at 31."

After all, who can argue with a 123-1 record over the last 10 years?

Big inning lifts Astros

Sets up rematch with Tigers

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

One inning was enough for the American League Astros as they defeated the National League Ponys 6-1 in semifinal action of the city Little League tournament Tuesday night at the National League field.

In that one inning the Astros interrupted a pitcher's duel and advanced to the championship round of the double elimination tourney. They will play the undefeated Texas League Tigers tonight at the Texas League Park at 8 p.m.

The Ponys finished the 17 team tournament in third place, winning five and losing two. Their other loss was a 10-5 decision to the Tigers.

The big inning for the Astros came in the bottom of the third. With pitchers' duel brewing between the Astros' Jeromaine Gonzales and the Ponys' Wes Hughes, and with the score tied 1-1, the Astros rallied for five runs on six hits. It would be the last time anyone would score in the game.

After that inning, the game settled back down to a pitchers' duel. But the damage was done and the Astros were on their way to the finals.

Both Gonzales and Hughes pitched solid games. Both threw very few breaking pitches — the name of the game was 'heat', and both pitchers possessed reliable fast balls.

Gonzales, a big lefty, was in control all the way. He fanned 10 Ponys and walked three. He allowed three singles, two of which were by Pony second baseman Brian Sledge. The Ponys only run was unearned.

Hughes was in control except for two innings. In the first and third innings, the Astros got all nine of their hits. Hughes walked one and fanned five.

The Astros got off to a fast start when they scored a run off three hits in the first inning. Leadoff man Patrick Martinez, who played a good defensive game at shortstop, hit a hard single to left field. He went to second on a passed ball and scored on second batter Clark Field's single.

Fields was thrown out when he tried to go from first to third on a single by Gonzales. But the Astros had drawn blood first.

In the top of the second inning, Ponys' catcher Torbin Lancaster, who also played outstanding defense, led off the inning. He then created the most exciting action of the night, thanks to a couple of Astros' errors.

Lancaster hit a little dribbler that rolled in front of the pitcher's mound. Gonzales fielded the ball cleanly but overthrew first baseman Brandon Rodgers. The ball hit off the fence and caromed to center field.

Texas League Ponys center fielder Steven Cantu takes a swing at a Jeromaine Gonzales fastball during first inning action of the city Little League tournament Tuesday night the National League field. The American League Astros defeated the Ponys 6-1.

By this time Lancaster was heading to third. The relay throw from the infield went over the third baseman Field's head. Lancaster promptly headed for home and scored easily, tying the game 1-1.

This set the stage for the big Astros' third.

With one out, Martinez got an infield hit. Then Fields followed with a deep shot that hit the bottom of the center field fence. With runners on second and third, Rodgers singled, scoring Martinez. The daring Fields was thrown out at home by a fine relay throw by shortstop Clint Kemper.

Leading 2-1 with two outs, the Astros went to work on Hughes.

Gonzales followed with a triple down the first base line, scoring Rodgers with the Astros' third run. Next, Ryan Hamby played long ball and socked a double that bounced against the left field fence. This scored Gonzales, making the score 4-1, Astros.

But the American League champs weren't through. Adrian Calvio walked. Both Hamby and Calvio moved up on a passed ball, and Astros' catcher Jason Ogle came to the plate. Ogle proceeded to score Hamby and Calvio with a long single to right center. When it was all over, the Astros had batted around while scoring five runs and securing a victory.

The Astros are now 5-1 in tournament play. The only loss was a 7-6 decision to the Tigers.

Swede closer to eight-foot barrier

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's Patrik Sjöberg smashed the world high jump record Tuesday by clearing 7 feet, 11 1/4 inches on his third and final attempt at the DN Galan IAAF Mobil Grand Prix track and field meet.

The tall Swede, who improved Soviet Igor Paklin's old record by one-half inch, had barely missed his first two tries. Sjöberg, the world indoor record holder, had cleared 7-10 in a meet at Goteborg, Sweden, last Saturday.

Paklin had set the record of 7-10 3/4 at the World University Games in Kobe, Japan Sept. 4, 1985.

"I don't know what I would have done had I failed on my final attempt today. The two first were awfully close," Sjöberg said.

The hometown favorite ran a lap of honor afterwards and several hundred fans spilled into the grounds, waving Swedish flags. Most of the 19,999 fans still were on hand for the final event of the day.

It was 67th world record set at the Olympic Stadium, more than any other site in the world.

Jan Zvara of Czechoslovakia leaped 7-5 3/4 for second. American Jerome Carter, who cleared the same height, was third. Jake Jacoby, another American, was sixth at 7-4 1/4.

Francesco Panetta of Italy, running solo in the last 2 1/2 miles earlier clocked the fastest time of the year in the 10,000 meters.

Panetta, who has showed excellent form recently, won the race in 27 minutes, 26.95 seconds. It was almost 18 seconds faster than his personal record and a national record. The old one was 27:31.5.

Queens ink guard, now eye centers

By EDDIE CURRAN

Angela Legras, a 5-1 guard from Louisiana, recently became the Howard College Hawk-Queens ninth signee, Queens' coach Don Stevens announced Tuesday.

Legras averaged 16 points, four assists and six steals per game for Peabody Magnet High in Alexandria, La. last season. Her team finished with a 28-3 record her senior year, and 27-6 her junior year.

Stevens said Legras is an excellent shooter with good quickness. The Queens coach added that he'll continue recruiting in hopes of signing some post players.

"I know we'll be good (next year), but I don't know how good, because there are so many of these kids I haven't seen play. I don't normally do that, but it's just not a very good year in Texas," he said.

Americans dig deep for Wimbledon wins

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — They were two of Wimbledon's great comebacks.

First, there was Pam Shriver, down 1-4 in the final set to Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and facing two match points.

Then, even more remarkably, there was 34-year-old Jimmy Connors, down two sets and 1-4 in the third to Mikael Pernfors of Sweden, his hopes of a quarterfinal berth all but dashed.

But with America's chances in the 101st Wimbledon championships fading badly Tuesday, Shriver and Connors dug deep into their reserves of strength and stamina and somehow pulled out both matches to reach the round of eight.

Both were eliminated last year in the first round. Both brought their victories Tuesday down to one thing: Guts.

"For a change, when the chips were on the table, I came up with some good stuff," Shriver said after her 6-7, 7-5, 10-8 defeat of Hanika. "It was as tough as heck."

Connors, who has failed to reach the quarterfinals here only three times in 17 attempts, said after his 1-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Pernfors: "The best thing I did out there was grind and fight."

Connors and Shriver were to try to continue their advance today on Court No. 1. Shriver, the No. 5 seed, was to play No. 4 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia in a women's quarterfinal, while Connors, No. 7 in the men's draw, was to meet unseeded Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia.

To make up for last week's backlog of matches caused by the rain, organizers scheduled the entire quarterfinal round for this afternoon.

Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova was to open on Court No. 1 against Diane Balestrat of Australia.

Ivan Lendl, the world's No. 1 men's player, continued his bid for a first Wimbledon crown against Henri Leconte of France in the opening match on Centre Court. They were to be followed by Steffi Graf against Gabriela Sabatini, the game's two leading teen-agers, in a repeat of the French Open semifinal last month, which Graf won in three sets.

Then Mats Wilander of Sweden, the No. 3 seed, was to go against No. 11 Pat Cash of Australia.

The match-ups were being completed on Court No. 2 where Stefan Edberg was to play Anders Jarryd in an all-Swedish match and Chris Evert took on Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

Lendl, who struggled in earlier rounds on a surface he says never makes him feel entirely comfortable, won in straight sets for the first time, beating Johan Kriek of the United States, 6-3, 7-6, 6-2.

Leconte also won in straight sets over Andres Gomez of Ecuador, as did Cash over another Frenchman, Guy Forget, and Zivojinovic over Australia's Peter Doohan, the second-round conqueror of two-time defending champion Boris Becker.

Doohan's Wimbledon dream ended abruptly as he was wiped out 6-2, 6-4, 7-6.

West leaders beat Astros in 10 innings

By The Associated Press
For 24 seasons, Pete Rose used hustle to amass 4,256 hits. Kurt Stillwell and Tracy Jones used it to give their manager an important victory.

Stillwell scored from second base on Jones' infield single in the 10th inning Tuesday night as Cincinnati beat Houston 5-4 in a showdown for first place in the National League West.

Jones beat out a grounder to shortstop Dickie Thon and Stillwell kept running, easily beating the relay home with a head-first slide.

Hander Mike Scott struggled in the first four innings. But the Astros used Billy Hatcher's single and consecutive sixth-inning homers by Jose Cruz and Alan Ashby off Bill Gullickson to tie the score 4-4.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2
Howard Johnson singled home pinch-runner Len Dykstra from second base with one out in the ninth inning to make a winner of Dwight Gooden.

Gary Carter led off the ninth by drawing starter Greg Mathews' second walk of the game. Kevin McReynolds sacrificed against reliever Bill Dawley, moving Dykstra to second. After Ricky Horton intentionally walked Lee Mazzilli, Johnson lined a single into the left-field corner.

Houston Astros first baseman Glenn Davis loses the ball as he falls over the rolled tarp chasing a foul ball by Cincinnati Reds batter Ron Oester.

National League

lifting Cincinnati 1 1/2 games ahead of second-place Houston.

"We stole the game," Rose said. "You don't see many games end that way. It's a great way to win a game — two walks and an infield hit. It was just good, aggressive play."

Stillwell and Kal Daniels drew one-out walks from Larry Andersen, 5-4. Terry Francona fouled out before Jones hit his high-hop grounder to Thon.

Umpire Dutch Rennert called Jones safe at first on a close play, and first baseman Glenn Davis didn't have a chance to make a good throw home to get Stillwell.

Reds 5, Astros 4
The Reds took a 4-1 lead as right-

Expos 5, Cubs 4
Dennis Martinez continued his successful return to the majors with a seven-hitter for 8 1-3 innings to help host Montreal snap a three-game losing streak. Martinez won his third straight decision without a loss since being called up from Class AAA Indianapolis on June 8.

Chicago reliever Dickie Noles hit Andres Galarraga with a pitch in the eighth. Galarraga charged the mound and took a swing at Noles and players from both benches charged onto the field. Both Noles and Galarraga were ejected.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4
Steve Bedrosian extended his major-league record with his 13th save in 13 straight appearances by getting pinch-hitter Sid Bream to hit into a double play and end the game.

Dodgers 4, Padres 0
Orel Hershiser pitched a seven-hitter and ended the month of June with a record of 4-0 and a 0.90 earned run average.

Hershiser, 9-7, struck out seven and walked one in winning for the fifth time in his last six decisions. The right-hander's 11th career shutout tied him with teammate Fernando Valenzuela and Pittsburgh's Rick Reuschel for the National League lead in complete games with six.

Tony Gwynn extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a third-inning double for visiting San Diego.

Giants 5, Braves 2
Eddie Milner and Joel Youngblood homered at Candlestick Park.

Right-hander Jeff Robinson, 5-6, pitched two innings in relief of starter Mike Krukow and Scott Garrelts got his ninth save.

Krukow, who has been hampered by arm problems this year after winning 20 games in 1986, left after five innings, with a "tired shoulder."

Veteran pitcher gets first win of season

By The Associated Press
At the age of 36, Ron Guidry still is trying to make lightning strike twice.

"One good game doesn't make a season, but I feel good," Guidry said Tuesday night after winning his first game of the year in the New York Yankees' 4-0 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 0
In his previous four starts, Guidry had not lasted more than six innings and his last victory was Schmidt in the sixth.

White Sox 12, A's 3
Ivan Calderon's two-run single capped a five-run fourth inning for Chicago. It was the White Sox' second straight victory over the A's and marked the first time since May 29-30 they have won two games in a row.

Scott Nielsen, 1-2, in his third start for the White Sox, allowed six hits in eight innings. Jim Winn pitched the ninth.

Mark McGwire had a two-run homer for the A's in the first inning. It was McGwire's sixth homer in the last four games and 28th of the season, breaking a tie with Toronto's George Bell for the major league lead.

American League

Sept. 20, 1986. In Guidry's Cy Young-winning year, he was 25-3. He also won 22 games in 1985 before his career took a down turn.

Indians 2, Angels 1
Phil Niekro gained his 317th career victory as the Indians ended an eight-game losing streak for themselves and an eight-game winning streak for California.

Red Sox 13, Orioles 9
Dwight Evans, Wade Boggs and Mike Greenwell keyed a 17-hit attack with home runs as Boston rallied to beat Baltimore.

Evans hit a three-run homer, his 13th, off starter Mark Williamson, 2-6, in the first inning. Then, after Bill Buckner put Boston ahead 8-7 with a two-run single in the fifth, Boggs hit a two-run homer, his 13th, and Greenwell followed with his ninth homer off reliever Dave

Mariners 5, Rangers 2
Mark Langston threw a six-hitter while striking out 11 and John Moses drove in three runs as Seattle snapped a five-game Rangers winning streak.

Langston, 10-6, went the distance for the eighth time in 17 starts and increased his AL-leading strikeout total to 137.

Twins 3, Royals 1
Bert Blyleven pitched a six-hitter for 8 2-3 innings and Kirby Puckett hit his 14th home run, ending the Twins' five-game losing streak.

Blyleven, 7-6, allowed one run, six singles, struck out two and walked one.

Tigers 8, Brewers 5
Darrell Evans capped a four-run third inning with a bases-loaded double and Bill Madlock and Matt Nokes homered as Detroit got its 30th victory in the last 43 games.

Athletic directors don't agree with NCAA commission

DALLAS (AP) — It was a showdown in Dallas, and the clear loser was the once-powerful NCAA Presidents Commission.

Not only did the commission fail in its stated purpose to cut the costs of intercollegiate athletics at its special convention, it left town without some of its prestige. There also was a sense that the NCAA's athletic directors were becoming impatient with the commission's "ivory tower" approach to sports.

"The way it turned out, it was evidently very poorly orchestrated and definitely a waste of time, money and effort," Texas A&M

Athletic Director and head football Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "There ought to have been more out of it after you spend six months writing tons of legislative proposals."

The Presidents Commission had never lost a big fight. The 3-year-old commission ushered in Proposition 48, establishing minimum academic requirements for the eligibility of incoming freshmen, and instituted the so-called death penalty, which allowed the NCAA to abolish athletic programs at schools that cheated repeatedly.

This time, the commission called a special convention for two primary pieces of cost-cutting legislation: one that would have cut scholarships in almost every sport except football and basketball, and another to trim football coaching staffs.

The scholarship cuts, opposed by women's groups as sexist, were tabled. Another measure, sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference, to cut football scholarships also was defeated.

The convention also voted to table discussion of a measure to cut an assistant coach from football staffs in Division I-A until further study could be completed.

After a motion to reconsider, Division I-AA schools voted in the afternoon to eliminate one assistant football coach after voting in the morning against the measure. Although they voted to cut yearly scholarship limits from 30 to 25, I-AA schools rejected a total scholarship reduction from 70-65.

"I haven't run the tape, but I don't think you could argue that the resolutions adopted today will affect any budgets in a major way," the NCAA's outgoing executive director, Walter Byers, said at a news conference.

ed five players from Louisiana, two from Texas, and one each from Montana and California.

Those nine players and whoever else Stevens recruits will join returning sophomores Trena Jackson and Stefanie Massie. The three other freshman from last year's team will not return.

Stevens said point guard Leslie Gooch transferred to San Angelo St.; Chandra Todd transferred to Concordia Lutheran College in Austin; and Risa Willard told Stevens she wasn't good enough to continue playing competitive basketball. Of the three, only Gooch played regularly for the Queens last season.

Stevens said Jackson and Massie will be the nucleus of the team. Jackson is a 5-6 guard from Abilene who can play the point, and is a very good shooter and defensive player. Massie, a 5-11 post player from Houston, led the Queens in rebounding and showed dramatic improvement in her scoring in the latter half of last season.

"I'm looking for them to have a super year," Stevens said, and then talked about his incoming freshmen.

"We do have several good guards, but we're thin at the post position. We have two (including Massie), but that's all. We can't afford to have any injuries. We've got to pick up some more post people," he said.

Stevens said he's going to an AAU tournament in Clovis, N.M. this weekend to do just that. He said teams from throughout the country will be at the tournament, and that he already has several prospects in mind.

The three Swedes left in the men's draw each dropped a set in their fourth-round matches, Wilander against Emilio Sanchez of Spain, Edberg against Jacob Hlasek of Switzerland and Jarryd Haste against Soviet qualifier Alexandr Volkov.

Navratilova, looking invincible on her favorite grass surface, had another quick victory, 6-3, 6-1 over Gigi Fernandez of Puerto Rico.

Evert, still struggling to find her best form, wasted three match points on her serve before reaching the quarterfinals for the 15th time in 16 appearances, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5 over Ros Fairbank of South Africa.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Due to a confusing situation at home, you should not do any entertaining. Maintain a good attitude.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make a friend of a new acquaintance — the brush-off would be a mistake. Don't let worries distract you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Follow through on some plans you have made with your mate. Don't let an outsider distract you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Something turns up which will disatisfy you with an associate. Ignore this and try to remain objective.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have an easy life, so don't hesitate to give your child duties to perform which will teach him or her to work. Teach your progeny not to be too critical of others, so that he or she will learn to be more cooperative and gentle. A well-rounded diet is a must.

City flooding nothing new

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Flooding in Big Spring is nothing new. It has been an occasional problem almost since the town was founded in the early 1880s, records show.

A U.S. Geological Survey indicates flooding in the 1890s. Before that, no surveys had been taken, said Joe Pickle, secretary/treasurer of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Heritage Museum photographs show the lower portion of Main Street under water in 1902. They show water reaches almost to the windows of the Ranch Saloon, and apparently seeping into the nearby Texas and Pacific Hotel and the railroad cars.

Water flooded the yard of the old YMCA building, reaching almost to the top of the staircase in another 1902 photograph.

That flood, and ones in 1923 and 1938, were much more severe than the Jones Valley flooding recently and last year, Pickle said.

"We had to ferry across town in a boat," he recalled.

Basically, the same areas of town were flooded in all three incidents, fewer people and fewer buildings were here then, Pickle said.

Big Spring's population was about 3,000 in 1902. It grew to about 3,500 in 1923, he said — before the oil boom hit Howard County in 1926, when Fred Hyer discovered oil on the H.R. Clay Ranch. The population eventually reached about 30,000 in the city's heyday, the local historian said.

In addition to Jones Valley, other areas of Big Spring historically have experienced flooding, but not as severe, said Pickle.

The area of East First at Nolan Streets — where the old railroad depot was located — frequently was under water, he said. Flood waters coming from Jones Valley would back up against the old highway overpass there, he added.

The original Cosden Lake, near Goliad Street and FM 700, flooded the area after extraordinarily heavy rains in 1938 and 1957, he recalled. After rains washed away the lake's earthen dam, Cosden Lake was moved to its current location in Comanche Trail Park, Pickle said.

The YMCA and Texas and Pacific Hotel, built by the Texas and Pacific Railroad, are shown during the flood of July 1902. The picture was provided by the Heritage Museum.

Pickle, born in 1910, moved to Big Spring in 1920. He is the author of "Gettin' Started: Howard County's First 25 Years."

Flooding confounded the railroad in early years, because the company "abandoned the more rugged highlands to follow the easier grade of Sulphur Draw through Big Spring, inviting washouts," he wrote, adding:

Roadbeds were narrow and uncompact so that wind and rain chewed so relentlessly at them that track walkers — like their cowboy counterparts, the "fence-riders" — were obliged to patrol the tracks constantly. For a time, train crews dared not take the trains out at night.

The old steam locomotives could operate until the water rose to the firebox-level — about waist-high, Pickle said. Modern diesel engines are lower, however, and can't function in high water, he said.

Wayne Burleson, owner of Burleson Machine & Welding, 1102 W. Third St., said his property has never really been flooded, although the ground in back has gotten a bit soggy at times.

His family has owned that lot since about 1917, he said, and in past years, the family had problems with runoff from South Mountain.

The flood of "1902 was a bad one, according to my dad," Burleson said.

Jones Valley always has had flooding, "but nothing like the last two years," he said.

Burleson attributes the recent Jones Valley flooding to sediment collected over the years in Beals Creek.

"It's not something that happened overnight," he said. "Like the roof on a house: When it's raining you can't fix it, and when it's dry you don't need to."

Years ago the creek bed was regularly dredged, Burleson said. City officials disagree with that theory, citing a Corps of Engineers study that recommends lowering the creek's level about 18 feet.

Pickle explained that Beals Creek runs east, fed by Sulphur Draw to the northwest, Mustang Draw to the southwest, and Elbow Draw to the south. Natural Dam lake is west of Beals Creek, fed by Sulphur Draw.

When heavy rains hit the draws, the water reaches Big Spring after several days, traveling toward the low ground at a high velocity, he said. Natural Dam Lake and several playa lakes serve as shock absorbers.

The trouble hits Big Spring when the shock absorbers aren't enough.

Big Spring is relatively flat from One Mile Lake west of town to the sewer plant on the eastern outskirts, Pickle said. Therefore, the water loses velocity and takes longer to drain.

'The Untouchables' — a heavyweight knockout

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

There are small movies and there are big movies.

"Hoosiers," the story of an Indiana high school basketball team, is a recent example of a very good small movie. "The Untouchables," showing again this week at the Ritz, is an example of a very good big one.

And everything about "The Untouchables" is big.

The subject matter — Al Capone and Prohibition Era Chicago — is legendary. The actors — Sean Connery and Robert DeNiro — are big time.

The director — Brian DePalma, whose past credits include "Scarface" and "Dressed to Kill" — has a big reputation as a flamboyant director who makes big movies — big bloody movies. And the screenwriter, playwright David Mamet, has won a Pulitzer Prize.

With all this bigness, much was expected from "The Untouchables." Unlike many a failed blockbuster, "The Untouchables" doesn't disappoint.

In Prohibition Era Chicago, the mob was making millions selling bootleg alcohol. That doesn't sound like such a crime now, and the public and police didn't think it was then either. As the movie makes clear, corrupt Chicago law enforcement officials, including judges, were getting their pockets lined with mob payoffs.

There were two problems, however: Selling bootleg liquor was against the law, and the mob was hurting people. In one early scene, a little girl is killed when a mobster bombs a bar because the bar owner refuses to buy the mob's beer.

Into lawless Chicago comes Elliot Ness, sent by the federal government to reform the town. The naive Ness soon discovers that the Chicago police force is too corrupt to help him, so he recruits three partners he can trust. They can't be bought — they are 'untouchable.'

And at first, the four 'untouchables' wouldn't seem to have a chance. Their own police force is against them, and the might of the mobsters is awesome.

Capone's army starts off with one big edge — they don't need to follow the law. They kill anyone who gets in their way. If the government gets a witness to testify against the mob, the mob doesn't hesitate. They kill the witness.

One early scene establishes Capone's vicious nature with graphic power. Ness and his men have just made their first big bust, and Capone and his henchmen men are eating a fancy meal around a huge round table.

DeNiro, as Capone, appears to be in a jovial mood as he walks around the table, holding a baseball bat as he makes an analogy between baseball and teamwork. He's smiling, so his men are smiling. Suddenly, a raging Capone whacks one of his men on the head, and doesn't stop until blood spills across the lily-white tablecloth.

Nobody's smiling any more. His henchmen look sick, because they know it could have been either of them. The moviegoer is stunned. From here on out, it's obvious that anything might happen in this movie.

In the old good guy-bad guy westerns, you were almost assured the good guys wouldn't get killed. There's no such assurance here — as the characters grow on you, so does your concern for them.

At the beginning, Ness plans to fight Capone without breaking the law. One of his recruits, Irish cop Jimmy Malone, tells him differently.

Sean Connery plays Malone, and it's a great performance. Connery's character tells Ness that to beat Capone, you have to kill when he kills. Although all of the 'untouchables' are heroic, Malone is the true hero of this movie. He's a real man who won't back down from Capone and the threat of almost certain death.

The movie makes clear that the mob's greatest tool is fear. People do what they're told, because they fear the mob. And the mob is consistent — when someone doesn't do as he's told, he's killed.

The point is made so clearly in this movie, in fact, that while sitting in the theater, you can't help but put yourself in the shoes of the 'untouchables.' And when you've done that, you think it's time to change your name and move to a small town in Idaho.

The 'untouchables' stay and fight, however, and their courage leaves you awestruck.

The action in this movie is non-stop and somewhat exhausting. You go up and down and round and round on an emotional roller-coaster — it scares you, it shocks you, it lifts you up, and it brings you down. Half the time you've got butterflies from worrying.

The camera work and the scenery have to be seen. If you appreciate good action scenes, this is the one movie in the last few years you shouldn't miss.

Although the squeamish might avoid "The Untouchables," it's not as graphic as past DePalma efforts, like "Scarface." But the violence, which is to be expected in a movie about Al Capone, isn't gratuitous.

A message to movie lovers — "The Untouchables" is a can't miss. It'll have you bouncing on your toes outside the theater. And you'll probably tell your partner the magic words: "That was great!"

"The Untouchables" is rated R. Showtimes at the Ritz are 2, 7 and 9:15 p.m.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Treat your carpet to steam cleaning

If you feel you have "just about had it" with your old carpet, maybe you should call Action Carpet Care, Inc.
Eric Watkins, owner, says the carpet cleaning method he uses can literally revive your dingy, matted-down carpet. Action Carpet Care features a unique deep-cleaning steam method.

"Many people have hesitated to use steam cleaning because of fears that too much moisture would be left in the carpet, possibly causing it to shrink," says Eric.

"Actually just the reverse is true. Our 10-horsepower equipment features suction three times as great as other methods. We can affect a great deal more cleaning action, because we can get all the water and sludge out, carrying with it a lot more soil. It leaves your carpet cleaner, and it will dry quicker than when you use other methods."

In addition to wall-to-wall carpet, Action Carpet cleans area rugs, furniture upholstery and auto interiors.

Eric uses the same system of steam cleaning as used on carpet. "We just switch to our upholstery tool", Eric says.
The firm offers both residential and commercial carpet and upholstery cleaning. The system works equally well for wool, all blends and synthetic fabrics.

Especially troublesome problems — gum, sticky candy, oil, grease, and pet stains or odors — can be satisfactorily treated.

"Steam cleaning can actually remove substances left from previous cleanings, often rendering your carpet brighter, fluffier and softer," according to Eric.

Another important service is water damage calls, where it's necessary to extract water from floors and carpet after broken pipes or appliance leaks. Action Carpet Care is available 24 hours a day to handle these emergencies.

Eric offers free estimates on all cleaning work. The owner emphasizes that there is "now no need to go out of town for first rate carpet cleaning." The phone number is 263-1188.

READY TO GO — Action Carpet Service offers 24-hour, round-the-clock service for water extraction emergencies, in addition to its unique deep-down steam cleaning service for carpet, rugs, upholstery and auto interiors. Eric Watkins, pictured, is owner of this new local company.
