How's That? Stop signs

Q. If two cars stop at a stop sign at the same time, who has the right-of-way?

Youth, family survive plane crash

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

For Trena Sneed, 12, a day at the races turned into a day few people experience — and even fewer survive.

Trena, her mother Reene and step-father Monroe Casey had flown to El Paso to enjoy the dog races Saturday. Trena became sick, however, and the family decided to return to Big Spring earlier than planned.

About 1 p.m. that day, the Caseys took off from El Paso International Airport in Monroe's Piper Comanche. It was a trip that quickly ended in near-disaster.

Trena said that almost immediately after takeoff, thick smoke began filling the cockpit.

"The smoke was so thick I couldn't breathe, so I stuck my head down in my shirt," she said, in an effort to screen her oxygen.

During an interview she recalled that her mother was "being cool" for her sake, because of Trena's fear of flying. "Monroe flies a lot, but I'm really not high on it," she explained.

She said that Monroe — a veteran of several years of flight — struggled to keep the craft under control. Immediately calling the control tower, he sought permission for an emergency return to the airport.

The tower informed him that there was an airplane on the runway and requested he make a U-turn and land behind it, Trena said.

It was during the U-turn that the airplane began its descent. Trena remembers it falling at a slant, giving her an unenviable view of the ground rushing toward her.

Thoughts of dying occurred to her, but "Something told me I wasn't going to die."

That premonition proved accurate.

Hospital officials told her later that the plane, fell about 200 feet before crashing and flipped over on impact.

She doesn't remember that happening.

What she recalls was getting hit in the head by a can of root beer. "It was a can of A & W, and I remember thinking, 'I want that root beer'."

Most pressing at the moment, however, was concern about her mother and step-father — although she was given the can at the hospital.

"As soon as it crashed, I got up and got myself and my mom out of there."

Trena estimated that the entire episode, from takeoff to crash, lasted about ninety seconds.

Her mother was walking about, although incoherent, Trena remembers. "She kept asking 'How's Monroe?', 'How's Trena?'" the youngster recalled.

"My mom's always in control," Trena said, "so it scared me to see her that way."

Monroe was most seriously injured. Trena said that he was not speaking or moving, and neither she nor her mother could move

Saragosa fund nearing $8,000

Herald staff report

The Saragosa Relief Fund, established by the Herald with State National Bank and area churches, had reached $7,618.37 as of the close of business Monday, bank secretary Anette White said.

Of that amount, $3,000 has been given directly to the El Paso diocese, and $2,250 has been used to buy air conditioners for the resident's temporary housing, Herald advertising manager Richard White said.

White added that the Herald and Highland Lanes will sponsor a Bowl for Saragosa event July 25-26. The fee will be $5, including shoes, and a portion of that will go to the Relief Fund.

Highland Lanes also will have a scratch tournament July 25, White said. There will be a $20 entry fee for each four-person team, and a trophy will be awarded to the winning team.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the relief fund, White said.

Survivors of the May 22 tornado are now receiving legal aid, according to Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., Weslaco.

The South Texas law firm is providing free legal services through its branch office in Del Rio. Attorneys began seeing eligible clients in Saragosa June 18.

The legal project is a joint effort by Texas Rural and private attorneys in West Texas. Elisa Vasquez, an associate with the Odessa law firm of Warren Burnett, Inc., is coordinating efforts in the area.

"Attorneys from as far away as El Paso and Midland/Odessa have volunteered their services. They are really pulling together to help," said Vasquez, who lost family members in the tornado.

Members of the community have formed the Saragosa Rebuilding Committee to review the problems of rebuilding and restructuring the community. Some of Texas Rural's efforts will be coordinated through this committee, she added.

Attorneys from Texas Rural will continue to see clients at the disaster site during the next several months as the rebuilding project proceeds, Vasquez said.

Goliad Street work

Gonzalo Lujan, an employee with Strickland & Knight, does a balancing act at right on a concrete form that will support a corrugated iron pipe. The pipe will run beneath Goliad Street just south of FM 700. Water from the Aug. 30, 1986 flooding had destroyed the water access and undermined the road. The project is expected to be completed within approximately 10 weeks, according to Big Spring Public Works Director Tom Decell.

Rumors rampant as state talks prison construction

From staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — Prison officials say Gov. Bill Clements' proposed, $408 million prison construction plan could help solve the overcrowding problems that have closed Texas prisons to new admissions 13 times this year.

Clements' staff unveiled the proposal to build 19,000 new prison beds over the next four years to help ease crowding caused by court orders on prison population and increased convictions.

Rumors that a state penitentiary is targeted for Big Spring are unfounded, Rep. Larry Don Shaw said during a telephone interview this morning.

"It's a pretty common rumor," he said, adding that he's heard similar rumors from several areas in his district.

"At this stage everyone will give you denials because money hasn't been appropriated," for new prisons, he said.

"I would not think Big Spring would be a good site for a penitentiary because most of the land is privately held — it would be more expensive," to build it in Big Spring, Shaw said.

Land west of Big Spring, between Pecos and El Paso, however, is state owned, he said.

The prison construction plan "meets the objectives that we feel are absolutely necessary," said Jim Lynaugh, director of the Texas Department of Corrections.

"We must have additional capacity to house the inmates, and we must have the funds to comply with (court-ordered) construction. Both of these items are included in the plan," Lynaugh said.

Rider Scott, the governor's general counsel, said Clements' four-year plan should alleviate the prison crowding crisis.

"The Texas Department of Corrections was closed yesterday for the 13th time this year. We have received certification from the attorney general that we must declare an overcrowding crisis today and credit 'good time' to inmates. This situation must end," Scott said.

Unless new beds are added, he said, court-ordered reforms over the next two years actually would reduce the number of inmates the 38,000-prisoner system can hold.

"During the next two years, there may not be room for almost 10,000 felons who have been duly, legally convicted and sentenced by the courts because of a shortage of beds," Scott said.

The proposal offers several financing options, Scott said.

The construction program could be carried out with proceeds of bond sales, lease-purchase arrangements with county governments, contracts with private firms and from the state's general revenue fund.

The plan calls for building 10,950 beds over the next two years, with another 8,396 to be added in 1990-91.

Included would be four 500-bed private facilities, five trusty camps, two 2,250-bed prisons, four regional "reintegration centers" in urban areas, six shock probation centers and other facilities.

The Legislature's current special session would need to act on some phases of the proposal, Scott said. Lawmakers would have to approve legislation to allow counties to construct prisons, then lease them back to the state. Clements added that subject to the session's agenda last week.

About $67.7 million more in operating funds would be needed in 1988-89, but Scott said lawmakers already have approved $30 million of that total.

Lynaugh said the crowding crisis has had widespread effects, both on county jails which can't quickly send convicts to state prisons and on rehabilitation efforts with inmates won't be confined long.

Elderly considered easy targets

EDITOR'S NOTE: The author, a former Associated Press writer and investigative producer of NBC-TV, is a veteran crime reporter. This is the last in his series on crime.

By BERNARD GAVZER
For The Associated Press

There's no question that certain robbers and muggers zero in on elderly people as quick and easy targets.

There's little doubt that many elderly people believe they are the most frequent crime victims, even though far more young people are victims.

Still, this strong belief about being prime crime targets creates a fortress mentality among the elderly. It diminishes their lives, and in some ways makes them more vulnerable. It may be true that some elderly have little choice. They may live alone. They may live in low-rent areas. They may be locked into inner-city areas where there are limited police services. They often have to use public transportation, or walk.

Very often, they carry all the money they have, or at least what they have after cashing a pension or Social Security check. Because of their loneliness, they can often be taken by clever con artists.

This is all reflected by a look at a checklist of crimes committed against senior citizens. The information is based on studies by the International Association of Elderly page 8A

Angelo State fund gets boost

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Angelo State University's endowed scholarship fund received a big boost when the will of the late Nona Kathryn Falk Carr was probated.

Mrs. Carr, matching the donation her husband made nine years ago upon his death, gave future royalties generated from her half of mineral interests owned by the Carrs to the school.

Mrs. Carr died June 17 at age 94. Her husband, who died in 1978, was an oilman-philanthropist who became partners with Preston G. Northrup in 1926 as sole agents for the Texas Pacific Land Trust.

"There are no other public universities in Texas with this large a scholarship endowment per student," Angelo State University President Dr. Lloyd D. Vincent said Tuesday. "This is possibly one of the largest gifts given by an individual to endow academic scholarships."

The trust left by Mr. Carr in 1978 has generated $17 million in a royalty income endowment and $8.7 million in scholarship funds in the nine years since its establishment, Vincent said.

"Seventeen million dollars might not shake the educational world," Vincent said. "But that was generated in nine years from one-half of the trust."

Mrs. Carr's will, like her husband's, does not bequeath any money to the university. Instead, it leaves future royalty income from Mrs. Carr's oil, gas and mineral interests to the Texas State University Board of Regents, which governs Angelo State University.

Those funds will then be invested, and the resulting investment income will be used for academic, need-based scholarships to Angelo State students.

AIDS-infected soldier faces 10 years

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Fort Sam Houston soldier accused of having sex with a woman without telling her that he carries the AIDS virus may face more than 10 years in confinement after being charged with violating four counts of the military code, authorities said.

Sgt. Richard Sargeant, 27, of the Academy of Health Sciences at Fort Sam Houston is charged with sodomy, aggravated assault, adultery, and reckless endangerment under the U.S. Code of Military Justice, Lt. Col. Tom Taylor, public affairs officer of Army Health Services, said Tuesday.

Officials said they could not find out late Tuesday what the maximum punishment would be if Sargeant were convicted of all the charges, but legal sources told the San Antonio Light it would be in excess of 10 years' confinement.

Taylor verified that the charges were being forwarded through command channels, leaving Sargeant open to a possible court-martial.

A pretrial investigation into the matter recommended that the soldier be court-martialed, earlier newspaper reports said.

Tests on the woman with whom Sargeant allegedly had sexual relations indicated she had not been infected with the AIDS virus.

Two prison escapees are behind bars again

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Two convicted robbers who escaped by crashing through prison gates in a stolen truck are behind bars today.

One was arrested during a restaurant robbery at Vidor after a day-long crime spree that spanned several Southeast Texas counties and the second surrendered to authorities about a mile from the prison unit.

Carl Lang, 44, turned himself in to law enforcement authorities at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday about a mile from the prison unit.

Jerry Wayne Ables, 28, was arrested earlier in the day in Vidor after he allegedly abducted three people and robbed a restaurant, authorities said.

The two men broke out of the Texas Department of Corrections' Wynne Unit Monday night. Ables then launched a crime spree that spanned several southeast Texas counties, authorities said.

Ables broke into a Huntsville home, stole a shirt, called a taxi and at knifepoint forced the driver to drive aimlessly for about four hours, Huntsville police spokesman Robert Reese said.

He then fled on foot, abducted a Huntsville woman and ordered her to drive him to Lumberton, Orange County Sheriff's Capt. Wayne Dial said. He abducted another woman at knifepoint in Hardin County and made her drive him to Vidor.

Neither the cab driver nor the two women was injured, Dial said.

Vidor police were dispatched a short time later to a fast-food restaurant on a robbery call.

"When responding units pulled into the fast-food restaurant parking lot, the guy broke and ran," Dial said. "A short manhunt started, and a few minutes later some plainclothes detectives from the Vidor police department apprehended Ables."

Ables was transferred to the Orange County Jail in Orange because Vidor does not have a jail, a dispatcher said.

Lang was being held in the Walker County jail.

AIDS No. 1 killer

NEW YORK — Acquired immune deficiency syndrome has replaced cancer as the leading cause of death for women 25 to 34 years old in New York City, according to city Health Commissioner Dr. Stephen C. Joseph. AIDS was the No. 1 killer of men aged 24 to 44 in 1986, as it was the previous year, Joseph said Tuesday. The fatal disease destroys the body's immune system, leaving it vulnerable to infections and cancers.

AIDS, most often transmitted through sexual contact, also is passed on via the sharing of contaminated hypodermic needles or syringes by drug abusers, and by transfusions of tainted blood or blood products.

Joseph said in a news release that of the 1,100 women diagnosed with AIDS in the city, 80 percent have been intravenous drug users or the sex partners of such drug users.

"The increase we are seeing in the number of women who contract, and die of, AIDS is directly attributable to the connection between intravenous drug use — 'shooting up' with shared needles — and AIDS," Joseph said.

Woman fights escapee

SANTA FE, N.M. — A quick-thinking woman hid her niece and nephew under a bed, then traded punches with a bearded intruder she identified as one of six inmates still on the run today, four days after an escape from the Penitentiary of New Mexico.

Yvonne Garcia, 19, told police a man carrying a pocketknife kicked in the door of the home in an area south of Santa Fe where she was babysitting her 3-year-old niece and 5-year-old nephew Tuesday.

"He broke down the door and asked for food. I told him, 'There's the refrigerator.' Then he came to me, grabbed me by the arm and stabbed me. So then I punched him in the mouth," said Ms. Garcia. "I was mad."

Ms. Garcia said the man kicked her in the stomach, grabbed a piece of bread and fled into a nearby canyon. She identified the man as David Gallegos, 33, a convicted armed robber serving a term of 118 years.

LaRouche blames North

BOSTON — Political extremist Lyndon H. LaRouche said today that covert operations by Lt. Col. Oliver North contributed to LaRouche's indictment on charges of plotting to block an investigation of his 1984 presidential campaign finances.

North and the National Security Council were "involved in operations against me," LaRouche said at a news conference, alleging that the council was working with the Justice Department in seeking the indictment against him.

LaRouche also said that unidentified "friends" were approached by North after North was fired from the council. LaRouche said North wanted advice on what he should do about the Iran-Contra scandal.

This photograph taken from a fire ladder shows the destruction after a tanker containing 36,000 liters of gasoline crashed into a Herborn, West Germany ice cream parlor Tuesday night. The explosion triggered a series of blasts believed to have killed 25 people.

Gas explosion

Tanker crashes into ice cream parlor

HERBORN, West Germany (AP) — A tanker truck loaded with gasoline crashed into an ice cream parlor and blew up, triggering a series of explosions and raging fires that killed up to 24 people, authorities said.

Another 36 people were injured in the Tuesday evening crash, which turned downtown Herborn into an inferno.

Explosions from the truck and a severed gas main leveled three buildings and gutted another nine. The downtown area was evacuated and rescue efforts, hampered by the extreme heat, continued today.

"Everything just blew up like a war was starting," Joerg Kessler, 23, of Herborn, an ice cream parlor customer told The Associated Press. Kessler managed to escape with only bruises.

The bodies of two victims were pulled from the rubble. Up to 22 others are missing and feared dead, authorities said. Most of the victims were believed to have been young people who had sought refreshment on the warm summer night.

Gerhard Boekel, a town spokesman, told a news conference today that one of the bodies belonged to an 18-year-old woman. He gave no details about other victims.

Of the 36 injured, 26 are still in the hospital, and the other 10 were treated and released, Boekel said at the news conference at a Herborn hotel. Authorities earlier had reported 39 people were injured.

Boekel said the death toll was uncertain because it was unknown how many people were in the cafe or nearby buildings when the accident occurred. Tuesday night, police said they feared 30 to 50 people were dead.

"We are checking with families," he said. "But it's a very confused situation."

Boekel said the 48-year-old truck driver was in the hospital in Siegen and "is not in a condition to be interviewed" by police. He did not elaborate on the driver's condition.

Police said earlier that the driver had told them his brakes had failed.

Boekel said the driver had left the expressway near Herborn and come down a very long hill leading to the town "at an extremely high rate of speed." He said it was unknown whether the accident had been caused by technical defects or an error of the driver.

Boekel said police planned to try to talk with the driver on Thursday.

Boekel said that in 1983, three people were killed when a truck sped down the incline and crashed into a car waiting at a light at the same corner where the ice cream parlor is located.

Officials considered at the time whether to divert truck traffic, but concluded that it wasn't possible because of the way the town is laid out, he said.

"But in any case, we have several signs on the route down from the expressway to shift gear and slow down," he said.

Spilled gasoline carried the blaze briefly into the town's water main and sewer, and flames leaped from a small river, the Dill. It took 600 firemen five hours to bring the flames under control.

Herborn, with 21,600 people, is 35 miles northwest of Frankfurt.

Tanker war escalating

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A string of Iraqi attacks on Iranian ships has escalated the Persian Gulf "tanker war" and increased the possibility of danger to American warships in the waterway.

The spate of Iraqi raids has come as the United States prepares to protect Kuwaiti tankers from Iranian attacks, which in the past have been carried out in retaliation for Iraqi sorties.

Iraqi warplanes have attacked at least five Iranian tankers since June 20, when Baghdad ended a 34-day lull in the tanker war, an offshoot of the nearly 7-year-old Iran-Iraq conflict.

Iraq has claimed three other attacks that have not yet been independently confirmed.

Iran has hit five ships in retaliation so far. Tehran has warned it will not be deterred from attacking reflagged Kuwaiti ships escorted by the U.S. Navy — and it may even strike at the warships themselves.

Violence anticipated

CHANDIGARH, India — Authorities today called off army troops and prohibited public assemblies in an effort to prevent Hindu mobs from seeking vengeance after Sikh terrorists massacred 72 Hindu bus passengers in two days.

Officials feared a Hindu backlash to the killing Tuesday night of 34 Hindus and the previous day's slaughter of 38 in a similar attack.

Sikh terrorists vowed hundredfold retaliation for any casualties they suffer in a crackdown.

Scattered Hindu violence against Sikhs was reported in Haryana state, where army troops were called out.

Authorities imposed a ban on public assembling in New Delhi.

All-India Radio said a number of suspected Sikh terrorists were arrested outside Chandigarh, the joint capital of Punjab and Haryana.

Security forces sealed the border of the two states, the newscast said.

357 prisoners freed

SEOUL, South Korea — The government today freed 357 political prisoners, some of them jailed for years, in the second major release of detainees since President Chun Doo-hwan agreed to broad democratic reforms.

Officials said the government was expected to announce Thursday a plan to grant amnesty to some 2,000 dissidents stripped of their civil rights.

Meanwhile, the National Coalition for a Democratic Constitution, which sponsored widespread demonstrations against the government last month, announced it would hold memorial rallies in Seoul and 10 other cities Thursday to protest the death of a student mortally wounded during a protest.

Senators: North acted on orders from above

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two ranking senators on the Iran-Contra committee said in interviews broadcast today that they believe Lt. Col. Oliver North acted on orders from above, and said more attention should be focused on his former boss, John Poindexter.

"There has been an effort on the part of some to give this figure of Col. North some mysterious kind of a capacity that he was making policy and he was a private secretary of state. I've never believed it," said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. "I think it's very convenient for people higher up in the government to try to hang this fellow out to dry."

Both Rudman and Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said they believe Poindexter, former national security adviser to President Reagan, would be the key witness in the hearings. The two spoke in interviews taped Tuesday and broadcast today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., said today that while the trail appears to lead to people above North, it does not go all the way to the Oval Office.

"We've heard now from Oliver North, the principal player in all these activities, and there's absolutely no evidence of wrongdoing on the part of the president," Trible said on NBC's "Today" show.

"The question of who authorized Colonel North to do what still remains, I think, largely unanswered," Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House Iran-Contra investigating committee, said late Tuesday.

Hamilton said that question, and others raised by North during his first six hours of testimony, may have to wait for next week's scheduled appearance by Poindexter and the testimony of Cabinet members still to be heard from.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said North's testimony had "kicked the ball upstairs" and raised questions for higher administration officials.

Nunn said he was impressed by the intensity of North's belief that he was acting only on higher authority. In North's view, "he was extraordinary memos, intended for the president's eyes and written on orders from Poindexter. The Iran-Contra committees previously had known of only one such memo.

The nationally televised hearings quickly became a fixation in Washington, where many of North's Pentagon colleagues were glued to TV sets. But at the White House, officials made a determined show of indifference to the hearings and tried to maintain a business-as-usual atmosphere.

North, the long-awaited witness who has been at the center of the Iran-Contra storm, was to appear today for further questioning by House committee counsel John Nields. He still faces days of tough questions about his role in the affair.

Among questions yet to be posed are those dealing with whether he stood to profit from his dealings and how the resupply operation for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels evolved during the time of a congressional ban on such aid.

In free-wheeling opening-day testimony that, unlike that of previous witnesses, had been largely unreviewed by the committee, North dropped several new revelations:

• While the committees and other government investigators had discovered only one memorandum in National Security Council files outlining the plans to divert money from the Iran arms sales to aid the Contras, North disclosed that he had written five.

North said he composed the memos each time a potential arms-for-hostages deal neared fruition, beginning in January or February of last year.

Houston police seeking gloves in battling AIDS

HOUSTON (AP) — City police officers have asked their chief to provide them with gloves in an effort to combat the spread of AIDS, a police union official said.

Mark Clark, president of the Houston Police Officers Association, sent a letter to Chief Lee Brown on Monday asking that disposable gloves be issued for every patrol car.

The union letter said the gloves were necessary for "high risk" situations where officers might handle someone with an infectious disease.

"We don't want to embarrass, defame or humiliate anyone. But if the occasion calls for it, we should have them," Clark said.

Clark said officers provide first aid to people who are bleeding and sometimes are exposed to blood during a struggle. Gloves already are used during prisoner searches at the jail.

But city Health Director Dr. James Haughton said the only way police officers are going to get AIDS is by having sex or sharing needles with someone who has the virus.

"Therefore the equipment needed to protect the police is not rubber gloves," Haughton said.

He suggested that Brown "issue needles to those who use intravenous drugs and condoms to those who might have sex with carriers of the virus" if he is serious about combating acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus within police ranks.

Tommy Britt, president of the Houston Police Patrolman's Union, said the union has not officially asked for gloves.

He said disposable gloves are available to officers at the jail free of charge and that he knew of officers who took them on patrol with them.

Britt agreed with Clark, saying officers should be protected.

"People might be offended, but quite frankly, I don't care if they're offended if the police are overly cautious," he said.

Lewis Lafas takes a close look at the mechanism of a wooden clock he built at his home recently in Preston Bend. Lafas, 34, plans to study electrical engineering at Grayson County College this fall and is building and selling the clocks to help pay the way.

Clockmaking takes Texan to the past for the future

By RICK SMITH
Sherman Democrat

PRESTON BEND (AP) — To find the future, Lewis Lafas reached back to the past.

Lafas, 34, plans to study electrical engineering at Grayson County College this fall. In order to help pay his way through school, he is building and selling clocks that are made entirely of wood.

"I like woodworking and wanted to make some money on the side. So, I jumped into one of the most difficult woodworking projects there is."

The art of building all-wood clocks wound down about a century ago with the development of brass gears, he said.

Re-inventing the all-wood clock meant two years of hair-pulling problems, interspersed with jump-up-and-down joy.

Problems ranged from developing a design for an all-wood clock to finding a way to turn three-quarters-inch thick chunks of maple into precise, long-lasting gears.

It was not a project without complications. Lafas works as a freelance plumber-electrician-repairman, and investing $2,000 in tools and material for the project took a large chunk out of his family's finances.

Plus, he commandeered one of their mobile home's two bedrooms for a workshop, squeezing wife Ann, daughter Amy, 3, and son Phillip, 8 months, into less space.

"It was frustrating," he said, "the close quarters. The crowding."

Other frustrations resulted from trying to find ways to cut precision teeth into rock-hard maple wood.

"Clock building teaches you patience. Everything is to such close tolerance. Each tooth has to be filed in as you rotate the gear train. A lot of craftsmanship goes into something like this."

Lefas' timepiece is about the size of a traditional grandfather clock, but without a case. The inner works are open to view.

"In most clocks, you can see the hands move and that's it."

"But here, this clock actually shows you how time is measured; the interaction of the timekeeping machinery."

A 20-pound weight provides the pull that swings a wooden pendulum connected to a wooden escape mechanism that regulates wooden gears that turn wooden hands that point to wooden numbers.

With his prototype perfected, Lefas is taking orders for clocks, which he said he can build in about two weeks to a month.

His clocks sell for $490.

"These clocks aren't necessities for people," he said. "They are collector's items," he said.

"It's a functional artwork. I'd like to see one of my clocks in a museum, someday."

For now, Lefas hopes the sale of clocks will help pay his way to an associate's degree from GCC and, later, a BA in electrical engineering from the University of Texas at Dallas.

He would like to eventually design and build biomedical devices, state of the art machinery used in hospitals.

But he said he will always have time for clock building.

"I'll be doing this until I'm an old man. Clock building is such a sense of accomplishment. It's not a job you just do for money. When you're finished, you have something you can actually see. Something that can be passed down from generation to generation."

Bodies of aliens return to Mexico

EL PASO (AP) — The bodies of eight aliens who perished in an air-tight boxcar while trying to sneak into Texas were flown home Tuesday aboard a jet provided by the Mexican government.

Only one of the 18 men who died in the boxcar's stifling heat remained behind in the United States Tuesday as authorities worked to determine his identity and nationality.

"We can't take him from the United States without being completely sure he was a Mexican," said Heriberto Spindola of the Mexican consulate in El Paso. "If he is not identified, he will be buried in El Paso. We will try again today, to see if anybody knows him."

About two dozen people protested Tuesday in front of the county and federal courthouses, carrying placards blaming the boxcar deaths on U.S. immigration policies.

"What people really need to know is that this kind of thing, to a lesser degree, happens on the border every day — increasing numbers of drownings, serious injuries on trains," said Debbie Nathan of the League for Immigration and Border Rights Education.

The new immigration legislation that bars employers from hiring undocumented workers will only drive more Mexicans underground but won't keep them from seeking a better life in the United States, Ms. Nathan said.

Another protester, Jim Lasalandra of El Paso, wore a bag on his head and carried a potato sack painted with a skull and 18 crosses for each of the boxcar dead. He said the grocery bag symbolized the crops aliens pick in U.S. fields and the produce U.S. consumers take for granted.

The bag said "commute safely." All 18 bodies had been embalmed, and the remaining nine to be flown to the state of Zacatecas today were to remain in the border city of Ciudad Juarez overnight, Spindola said.

Twelve of the bodies were taken across the border to Juarez late Monday, said Jim Weatherly of the El Paso Mortuary. The others, except the unidentified man, were transported to that city Tuesday.

Spindola said the first flight would land in Aguascaliente at 4 p.m. local time, and vehicles would be used to take six of the men's remains to their hometown in Pabellon de Arteaga.

One of the men on Tuesday's flight was from the Aguascaliente city of Tepezala and another was from Zacatecas state, Spindola said.

Today's flight was expected to leave Juarez this morning for El Saucito, Spindola said. Five of the victims were from El Saucito and five others were from the Zacatecas city of Ojo Caliente.

The men's remains were put in donated caskets sheathed in government-bought cages and flown at Mexican government expense because the families of the men could not afford the costs, authorities said.

Two of the men who died were said to be smugglers who lured the men north from their hometowns and onto the boxcar, which they boarded last Wednesday in an El Paso freight yard.

Dallas woman killed, three children hurt during blaze

DALLAS (AP) — A woman was killed and five other people, including her three young children, were injured Tuesday in an apartment fire, officials said.

Katie Tucker, 21, was pronounced dead at Parkland Memorial Hospital early Tuesday, officials said.

The fire in a second-story South Dallas apartment broke out at 4:25 a.m., said William Jernigan, spokesman for the Dallas Fire Department.

Four people who shared the apartment were treated for burns and smoke inhalation. They included three children, Kiesha, 3, LaShonda, 20 months old, and Willie, 4 months old.

Willie Burks, 27, who repeatedly tried to rescue Ms. Tucker and her children, was in serious condition at Parkland, officials said.

A neighbor, Curtis Wheeler, 22, who joined in rescue efforts, was also treated for burns and smoke inhalation, said Dallas Fire Capt. Randy Sanders. He was listed in fair condition.

Sanders said a passerby who suffered a seizure also was taken to hospital.

He said the fire apparently started from an electrical short and blocked the door.

"The man woke up, came to the front room, discovered the fire and jumped out a back window," Sanders said. "He and two neighbors broke out a front door, went in and were repulsed by smoke."

Lawmakers Rally promotes taxes to cutting services continue budgeting

AUSTIN (AP) — Spurred by Gov. Bill Clements' hint that another special legislative session could be needed, lawmakers are continuing work on what could be the largest tax and spending bills in Texas history.

Clements said Tuesday his goal of holding 1988-89 tax increases to $2.9 billion "is not standing up too well" as senators considered a House-passed increase $2.3 billion over his bottom line.

"We may have to have another session. There's always that possibility," Clements said. "I'm not planning on it. I'm hoping it will not happen."

With only two weeks left in the Legislature's 30-day special session, the Senate Subcommittee on Tax Policy opened hearings Tuesday on the House tax package to raise $5.2 billion.

At the same time, a conference committee began adjusting differences in state budgets adopted by the House and Senate. The Senate appropriations bill would spend over $39.5 billion, the House about $1.1 billion less.

"We may have to have another session. There's always that possibility," Clements said. "I'm not planning on it. I'm hoping it will not happen."

Outside the Capitol, some 3,000 demonstrators urged lawmakers to pass a tax increase. "We want them to be courageous. We're willing for them to tax us," said Barry Jackson of Austin.

Clements, who returned to the Capitol for the first time after a long weekend, said, "I think the Senate is getting disturbed about what the situation is on the revenue side, and I think there's more of a meeting of the minds indicated at this point than we have had in the past."

Noting that the state's economy remains shaky, he said, "Under those circumstances, I think a lot of the (legislators), both in the House and Senate, are having some second thoughts about these increases in spending."

In the Senate subcommittee hearing on a House proposal to place a first-time 6 percent levy on insurance premiums, much of the discussion focused on whether the tax could cause other states to impose "retaliatory" taxes on Texas companies operating in their states.

State insurance commissioner Doyce Lee said the proposed Texas tax is directed at the policyholder — not the company or agent — "for the sole purpose of trying to avoid any successful retaliation against our domestic industry in other states."

John Melton, president of Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Texas, said more than 2½ million Texans have no health insurance coverage, and the 6 percent tax would cause many employers "to discontinue providing health benefits for their employees altogether."

Melton suggested that the subcommittee consider deleting health insurance and health maintenance organizations — HMOs — from the tax bill.

Jewell Davis Lemons, a Houston lawyer representing herself, said, "I believe that we have now reached the position in Texas that the power to tax is the power to destroy. And I think these bills ... will destroy Texas."

She said a 10 percent pay cut, including legislators' salaries, would cure Texas' financial problems.

Sen. Gene Green, D-Houston, said he would volunteer to take a 10 percent monthly legislative salary reduction, which would amount to $60 a month.

"God bless you, senator," Ms. Lemons responded, and those in the crowded committee room applauded.

Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, predicted the Senate would "come up with something that's as politically as acceptable as they can get to avoid taking any heat."

"They will try to come up with a bill that renders the least number of negative phone calls, and it will probably be something that is unacceptable to the House," he said.

Speaker Gib Lewis, however, remained optimistic that lawmakers would get their work done by the end of the special session on July 31.

"I don't think we're headed for doom," Lewis said. "Let's just say (senators) have come to the realization of what it is going to take to fund the appropriations bill. It's not as easy as people would like to think it is."

AUSTIN (AP) — Hundreds of demonstrators who flocked to the Capitol are telling lawmakers they prefer higher taxes to reductions in vital state services.

A rally, organized by the Texas Industrial Areas Foundation and other community groups, drew a crowd estimated by organizers at 3,000 to the Capitol on Tuesday. "The legacy that you leave should be greater than the heritage you receive," said

Barry Jackson, a leader of Austin Interfaith. "We want them to be courageous. We're willing for them to tax us."

Speaker after speaker urged lawmakers to pass, and Gov. Bill Clements to sign, a state budget that wouldn't cut public education, higher education, indigent health care programs, child protective services and human service programs.

"Thank God you're here because the cause is important," San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros told the crowd. "The next 10 days will decide whether we go backward or forward. I say 'Let's go forward.'"

"If there's enough money to buy foreign cars and Gucci shoes and apartment complexes, there's enough money to pay for the education of the children," Cisneros said.

"We want a future for these children," said Hector Rodriguez of Valley Interfaith.

"We're here to do one thing — that's to make sure 150 representatives and 31 senators get the job done."

Also speaking to the rally were members of the Legislature, along with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"It's time to help the needy, not the greedy," said Rep. Larry Evans, D-Houston, chairman of the Legislative Black Caucus.

Another family member earns CPA

Gardener shares planting tips

Neva Joyce Green raised her right hand and smiled to herself, "Finally, it's my turn now." The chairman of the Texas State Board of Public Accountancy conducted the brief swearing-in of a new Certified Public Accountant in Austin on May 16.

Ironically, Neva got her CPA designation just two months before the family business celebrates its 20th anniversary.

She became a full partner and corporate officer when the anniversary was celebrated July 1.

Neva had waited a long time for that moment. Finally, at the age of 54, it was her turn. She had made several strange twists on her way to becoming Neva Green, CPA.

Raised in a traditional farm home, she and her brother were encouraged to go to college, but she was expected to become an elementary or English teacher. Graduated from Hardin-Simmons University in August 1962, she married Max Green, a USDA County Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation officer in Seminole, less than a week later.

Despite not being appointed to a high school math teaching position she sought, she was offered and accepted the job as the school system's assistant business manager.

She and Max began to dream about becoming accountants and she encouraged Max to go for his dream. They moved to Odessa where she was hired by an accounting firm, but fired 15 minutes later when they learned that Max was going to school to become a CPA.

They fired her to hire Max — but they did help her get a bookkeeping job with Acme Bookkeeping Company.

In 1968, she had her first child, Dane, and then Cassandra was born two years later just about the time Max completed his CPA exams.

At that time, the company who had been Max's employer wanted to open a branch office in Big Spring and put Max at its head.

Neva began a bookkeeping service from her home while raising the two pre-schoolers and giving support to her husband in his career.

... it was her turn

The next Green milestone came July 1, 1967 when Max opened his own accounting firm — a two-room office — with Neva as the office manager. And it was Neva's clients from her home bookkeeping service that formed the nucleus of the young firm's business base.

The firm flourished and they moved several times to bigger quarters, hiring more staff along the way.

Meanwhile, the children were growing up. Dane graduated from college with a degree in computer science and came back to the family business to set up a computerized office, designing accounting software and choosing expandable hardware.

Cassandra was getting her degree in accounting and Neva said, "All of a sudden, it wasn't strange anymore for a female to choose the goal of a CPA," and remembers, "I had to fight just to become a math teacher instead of elementary or English."

It was while the children were in college that the Greens bought their own building in 1981 and remodeled it with a layout designed to fit their needs and future plans, which included welcoming home their daughter and her husband, both new CPAs. The two joined the family business on July 1, 1984.

On the 17th anniversary of the founding of the firm, the name changed to Green and Fillingim Professional Corporation. The hitch was that Neva couldn't be a stockholder or corporate officer because she wasn't a CPA. "This is stupid," Neva decided. "I've done all the same work, know as much as the rest of the family, and have as many college credits, but without the CPA designation, I have the official status as general flunky."

She began studying, made sacrifices, gave up lots of activities while continuing to work full time managing the business. During the next three years, she was off work only long enough to take her CPA exams. She passed two parts in November 1984, passed the third part in May 1985, and passed the theory section in November 1986. And on May 16, she was sworn in as a CPA.

"I always knew I wanted to be an accountant, but in those days, very few women were CPAs; so I put my dreams on the shelf to help Max. Then I pushed them further back to raise our children, then help them meet their educational goals, and now ... I felt goooooo!"

She acknowledges that having that piece of paper on the wall doesn't really change anything at the office. She still does the same things she did before.

Beautiful and versatile, shrubs planted along your house foundation not only beautify your home and enhance its value, they provide privacy, hide unsightly views and help insulate against heat and cold, said Howard Trivelpiece, world champion gardener.

When you plant your shrubs, take their ultimate size into consideration so they don't block windows when they're fully grown.

"I've always felt that evergreen shrubs create the most beautiful setting for a home," said Trivelpiece. But evergreens have needs that are different from other plants. They usually require acid soil and they may suffer from the winter's wind and cold.

In the spring it's important to give them special attention with a special plant food such as Miracid. This formula not only feeds the shrub, it ironizes and acidifies to create a favorable soil condition. It can restore full vigor in a short time.

"In the yard and especially on property borders for privacy, I like forsythia and lilac," Trivelpiece said. Both are hardy and adaptable and provide a breathtaking floral show in the spring.

Rain, hail blast Howard County Newcomers

Rain, wind, hail and lightning blasted parts of Howard County early Tuesday morning, damaging crops and structures, area residents said.

Knott apparently suffered the most extensive damage.

Debra Lancaster said that cyclone-type winds blew over the chimney of her home this morning. She added that a neighbor, Fred Phillips, lost his barn to the high winds.

Larry Shaw, a Knott farmer, reported that he received 2.9 inches of rain, and that winds caused several cotton trailers to tip over at his farm.

In Big Spring, lightning struck power lines at two places, according to police reports.

Power lines in the 500 block of West Third St. were struck at 8:24 p.m., and lines at East 18th and Virginia streets were hit 27 minutes later. Fire department units were sent to Virginia Street, where the lines were arcing, police reports said.

• With pledges exceeding $20,000, area March of Dimes officials said they were "absolutely overwhelmed" by the results of their Jail and Bail benefit arrest program a week ago.

The program, in which about 100 local residents were voluntarily arrested and encouraged to collect pledges for their bail, raised $20,505.87 for the March's fight against birth defects.

Leanne Wilson, division director for the Permian Basin March of Dimes, said the amount pledged was amazing when compared to similar efforts in Midland and Lubbock.

Midland's Jail and Bail program netted $10,000, while Lubbock raised approximately $5,000, Wilson said.

• The former Colonial Acres office complex at 600 FM 700 will house Big Spring's ambulance service, and a local physician will be selected as the service's medical director within a week, Rural/Metro officials reported Wednesday.

EMS Manager Malcolm Swinney said the company obtained a six-month lease and will continue to search for a facility more centrally located.

The office has dormitory space and showers, but lacks enclosed parking, he said. It does provide covered parking, however, Swinney said.

Swinney and Division Manager Chris Black were in Big Spring Wednesday to decide where to locate the service. In addition to the Colonial Acres building, the two had considered the former Bidco building located at Gregg and Edwards streets.

Swinney said two local physicians were interviewed for the position of medical director and a third will be interviewed Wednesday when the firm expects to make a final decision.

• Representatives of a Chicago firm that has expressed interest in financing and building a superconducting supercollider in the Permian Basin were expected to meet local supporters Friday.

Garden City supercollider site supporters sent a copy of the proposal Wednesday to the firm, SSC Commission Project Manager Thane Akins said Thursday.

He has spoken with the firm's representatives on a daily basis since it was announced last week that the company is interested in buying the necessary 16,000 acres of land and building the billion-dollar project, after securing a lease-back agreement with the U.S. Department of Energy, Akins said.

The Garden City site was eliminated as a state-sanctioned site during May meetings of the Texas National Research Commission, which selected Dallas and Amarillo sites.

Garden City supporters decided at a June 24 meeting to submit the maverick bid independently.

"If they're impressed with the report ... they may come visit us tomorrow," Akins said.

The firm's name will not be released until the company announces its decision whether to support the Garden City site, he said.

Veterans Administration Medical Center on Big Spring and Howard County was recognized by city officials Thursday.

More than $24 million was expended in Howard County by the Veterans Administration in 1986, according to Conrad Alexander, director of the VA Medical Center.

Mayor Cotton Mize was scheduled to express appreciation to the VA's contributions to Big Spring during Thursday ceremonies.

• A slick brochure announcing plans for Big Spring's downtown will be sent to area and national companies that might consider locating in the city's center.

Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones said Tuesday the Downtown Steering Committee was to meet to discuss marketing the brochures.

"We'd like to target people we know are interested in this type of project," Quinones said.

Hyden's Fina: "We aim to please"

COMPLETE CAR CARE CENTER — Just about anything your car needs can be provided by Hyden's Fina & Auto Repair on Wasson Road. A full service station is complemented with a large four-bay garage offering all repairs short of a major engine overhaul. The owner does most of the work.

"We aim to please." That's what the sign says at Hyden's Fina & Auto Repair, 2709 Wasson Road. It's an accurate motto, judging from the variety of services offered and the quality of work rendered.

"We like to provide our customers with complete car care," says J.D. Hyden, owner. The station offers full service and self service facilities. The four-bay garage features two lifts, providing plenty of room for cars needing attention. Expert repairs for foreign and domestic cars include air conditioners, transmission, brakes, starters and alternators ... everything short of "major engine overhaul."

"We have our own brake drum lathe and build our own transmissions. This gives us complete control over the job," says Hyden.

"Tune-ups are a specialty," he adds. Hyden's Fina & Auto Repair stocks a good inventory of parts, which often saves time on the job, enabling the customer to have his car sooner. Parts in stock are available retail or wholesale. For customer convenience, the station stocks Interstate batteries, Lee Tires, plus auto accessories.

The owner does most of the repair work himself or will personally oversee the work being done, a situation many car owners appreciate. Hyden has been repairing the cars of Big Spring residents since 1948. He worked many years for major car dealerships here until he opened his own station and garage. He has been at the Wasson Road location for 10 years.

"Most of my customers have been with me for many years," the owner says. "I know them — and their cars — quite well, including one customer who will drive a 1957 Chevrolet."

But he welcomes "first-time" customers. Hyden Fina & Auto Repair is open from 7 a.m. til 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Family atmosphere stressed at Bowl-A-Rama Bowling Center

Employees at Bowl-A-Rama stress the family atmosphere at the Center. Here is what they say: "We pride ourselves on having a friendly staff."

"We're like a big family here. When newcomers come in, we introduce them around and make them feel at home."

"We take pride in keeping our place clean. We mop, dust and clean every day."

"And we have the best hamburgers in town at our snack bar!" The 24-lane center, located on the south feeder of Interstate 20 East, features fully automatic AMF Magic Scores automatic scorekeepers, video machines and pool tables, nursery service for ages 6 and under (during league bowling) and a full service snack bar.

They take party reservations for birthday and other occasions. For large parties, the lanes can be booked after-hours.

Bowl-A-Rama has a pro shop, stocking balls and bags; they'll order shoes and other equipment.

And because bowling and bowlers are important to them, they teach bowling to beginners, and they'll help experienced bowlers locate a spot in a league if you want to bowl regularly.

Bowl-A-Rama is owned by Janie and J.M. Ringener. J.M. bought the snack bar in 1965 and operated it until he purchased the center in 1973. The pair also operated Webb Lanes for a time.

Others on the staff are Barbara Vieira, desk clerk; Mark Dobek, part-time desk clerk; Eloisa Gonzales, snack bar manager; Sam Gonzales, mechanic; Joe Rodriguez, janitor; Walter Little, mechanic.

Also Lupe Martinez, Delia Mendez, Barbara Grant and Joann Gomez, snack bar attendants; Tom Cruz, pin chaser; and Lanora Hauser and Josie Cruz, nursery attendants.

A total of 18 leagues, many of them longtime, bowl at the center, including Ladies Majors, Pin Poppers, Men's Majors, Men's Industrial, Mixed Leagues, Tuesday Couples, VA League and Guys & Dolls (seniors).

Junior Bowlers (7-18) come on Saturdays. There's Casino Colored Pins bowling on Saturdays, Scotch Doubles on Sundays. On Sundays from 10:30 to 1 p.m. bowlers can Rent-A-Lane and the party can bowl for two hours for $10.

Besides the famous hamburgers, the snack bar offers steak sandwiches, shrimp, hot roast beef sandwiches and a variety of other sandwiches. They serve beer (including beer on tap) and wine.

Bowl-A-Rama is open from 8 a.m. to 12 midnight 7 days a week for league and open bowling.
