By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer
Area officials hope Beals Creek improvements started this week will help prevent further Big Spring flooding.

Union Pacific Railroad officials began maintenance work on the creek Monday, Big Spring Public Works Director Tom Decell said today.

The work includes clearing debris from the creek banks west of Birdwell Lane and removing several railroad structures that have fallen into the creek and are obstructing water flow, he said.

Howard County Commissioners approved Monday the purchase of three 71-inch by 47-inch culverts to be placed in the creek bed at the 11th Place extension.

The culverts, expected to cost $6,900, will replace four smaller ones and will carry more water, County Engineer Bill Mims said.

A committee consisting of city, county, railroad and Colorado River Municipal Water District officials met Friday to discuss details of the improvement plan.

The committee was formed in May as water levels at Natural Dam Lake continued to creep upwards from excessive rains.

Members have met on several occasions to study Big Spring flooding and Natural Dam Lake concerns.

Decell said the city will remove a water line that crosses Beals Creek near the Birdwell Lane bridge.

A computer analysis of city water lines indicates the removal will not have any effect on the city water system, he said.

The line will be cut and blocked south of the railroad and north of the creek, Decell said. He expects work to begin in approximately two weeks.

City officials have asked GSW & Associates of Big Spring to study the possibility of upgrading the Birdwell Lane crossing over Beals Creek in the event of future flooding, he added.

Decell said reconstruction of the bridge was a possibility.

He also is waiting for news from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers after sending an outline July 1 of Big Spring flooding problems.

The report "requests immediate assistance in developing a reasonable and prudent resolution to our flood problems," he said.

The outline includes photographs, newspaper clippings and a list of flood damages incurred the past 18 months amounting to $2.75 million.

Rod Lewis, assistant manager of the CRMWD, said today the District has presented city and county officials with a five-point proposal to curb Natural Dam Lake high water concerns.

Under the proposal, the Water District will build, operate and maintain a structure designed to control Natural Dam Lake releases.

CRMWD officials have designed a wall with gates that can be opened or closed to regulate water releases, Lewis said.

The structure will cost approximately $3,000 to $4,000 to build and will allow vehicles to cross over the spillway, he explained.

It also will allow officials to control the water level from an elevation of 2,445 feet to 2,449 feet, Lewis said.

When water surpasses 2,449 feet, the structure could be removed to increase the amount of water exiting the spillway, Lewis said.

The Water District proposal also requires city and county notification when CRMWD officials plan to release water and at what rate.

"We'll give as much notice as possible ... we've found it takes 48 to 72 hours for the water to show up downtown," Lewis said.

Prison plans 400-inmate increase

About 400 inmates and at least 34 jobs will be added to the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp as it expands to 27 acres, J.D. Williams, Regional Director of the Bureau of Prisons, announced today.

The expansion will represent about a 57 percent increase in the current prison population, according to the announcement was made at a reception honoring new Camp Superintendent Joe Crabtree.

Former Superintendent Anthony Belaski and his wife, Bobbie, also were honored at the reception. Belaski has been transferred to the federal prison at Englewood, Colo.

The prison expansion will bring the Big Spring Camp inmate population to nearly 1,100, making the Big Spring facility the largest minimum security federal prison camp in the country, Williams said.

The federal prison system has a total of 16 minimum security prisons, he said.

Williams added that the Big Spring prison staff would increase to an all-time high 160 employees.

Belaski said the staff positions will be filled locally. Of the 34 new positions, 15 will be correctional officers. May of the rest will be food service, maintenance, administration and medical jobs, according to the announcement issued by Williams.

Belaski added that positions in education and recreation areas also will be filled locally.

After the expansion is complete, the camp should have approximately one correctional officer per 10 inmates, Belaski said.

He stressed that the current minimum security status of the camp would not change.

"Although this is a major expansion, we will still have the same profile and caliber of inmates," Belaski said.

He said construction and renovation of facilities would add $1.5 million to the local economy.

In addition, Williams said money approved in the new federal budget would allow construction of a new dormitory, bringing more money to the local economy.

Until construction of the new dormitory begins, inmate room occupancy would increase from three to four men in some rooms, and from four to six in others, Belaski said.

Even with the occupancy increase, the prison will not be overcrowded, he said, noting the maximum population has been set at 1,200.

The camp will acquire several buildings from the city, he said. The list will include the former Webb Air Force Base bowling lanes, a former gas station, post office and washateria.

Williams said the camp can't begin preliminary work on the new dormitory until the next fiscal year begins in October.

He said the population will begin increasing in 90 days, with no target set for completion of the expansion. The camp's ability to handle the increase will be the primary factor in determining the rate of growth, Williams added.

The acquisitions also will include two wooden barracks in the vicinity, which will be demolished to allow adequate work and leisure space for the inmates.

Assistant Superintendent Lloyd McMillan said the expansion isn't a reflection of prison increases throughout the federal prison system.

Although the bureau's 47 prisons constantly increase their populations according to need, the Big Spring project is "major and significant" compared to others, he said.

McMillan added that job applications are available at the prison camp.

City Council approves plan to reduce employee benefits

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

City Council members expressed approval of a plan reducing vacation and sick leave time for future city employees at the Council's four-hour budget work session Monday afternoon.

Council members Pat DeAnda, D.D. Johnston, D.W. Overman and Johnny Rutherford, and Mayor Cotton Mize, were present in addition to city staff.

The plan was presented by Personnel Director Emily Bogard. The Council is to vote at a future meeting on an ordinance to put the plan into effect.

Finance Director Tom Ferguson said the plan will save the city $28,400 during the 1987-88 fiscal year.

The city has about 200 employees, 55 to 60 percent of whom have been in the city's employ less than five years, Bogard said.

The reductions will affect employees hired after Oct. 1, and other aspects of the plan will affect all city employees, City Manager Mack Wofford indicated.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford asked city staff to develop figures for employee pay raises, in compensation for the changes.

The Council agreed at last week's budget work session to raise pay and decrease employee time off.

Employees receive 10 paid holidays, 15 vacation days, 15 sick leave days and three emergency days per year, and they can exchange unused time off for pay when they leave the city's employment, Bogard has said.

Those figures change under the new plan:

Future employees will receive five days sick leave a year during the first two years service, 10 days a year during the third and fourth years, 12 days annually for five to 10 years service, and 15 days a year after 10 years service, the Council decided.

Employees won't be paid for accumulated sick leave until after 10 years service, and then with a 90-day limit. However, sick leave could be accumulated for future use.

Although Councilman Overman agreed to the plan, he said he believes employees should not be compensated for sick leave not used. Instead, it could be credited to retirement benefits, received only if an employee retires, he suggested.

Sick leave taken in conjunction with other time off will be charged to an employee's vacation unless a doctor's excuse is provided, the Council decided. Doctor's excuses will be required after three days sick leave, and at other times at a supervisor's discretion.

Wofford said that policy is designed to curb the "Friday-Monday syndrome," of employees seeking a three-day weekend when they are not really ill.

The Council approved the plan to allow three sick leave days for COUNCIL page 2A

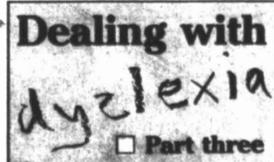

Schools wait for dyslexia guidelines

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles concerning identification and treatment of problems related to dyslexia.

Officials with the Big Spring school district say they are awaiting more specific guidelines from the Texas Board of Education before developing a program to help students with dyslexia and related disorders.

The state board has established a four-part program for local educators to use, and Helen Glad-state (for more guidelines)," she said.

The state program calls for a four-stage effort in treating possible dyslexic students. Phase one is data gathering.

Teachers are asked to gather data to identify students having problems in academic achievement. The purpose is to discover how many students have learning disorders of this type, explained Lorna Simmons, who operates the Big Spring Language Retraining Program.

That's why Simmons spent the past school year testing Big Spring kindergarten and first grade students. Those who qualify for a closer look are referred to the second phase of the program.

Phase 2 involves remedial programs already existing in the district. Students who aren't making progress, despite appropriate program modifications in their regular classroom, will be further assessed in reading and placed in an appropriate remedial program.

Simmons said Big Spring hasn't progressed to Phase 2 yet. Educators are awaiting the specific guidelines, Mrs. Gladden SCHOOLS WAIT page 2A

County sales drop 52 percent in year

Herald staff report
Howard County had $424.4 million in gross sales for all industries in 1986, a drop of 52 percent from 1985 figures, according to data released from the state comptroller's office. Those figures represented the largest drop of all counties in the area. For 1986, Texas had $307 billion in gross sales, a drop of 9 percent from the previous year, according to the comptroller's figures. In retail sales, Howard County had sales of $206.3 million in 1986, a 9 percent drop from 1985. Frances Lawson of the state comptroller's office said that the majority of the county's overall decrease last year came from agricultural, wholesale and construction sales figures. Borden County had the smallest overall sales drop in the area, with a 1.1 percent drop from 1985 to 1986. Its retail sales figures showed a 11 percent drop from 1985 to 1986. Sales figures for area counties in 1986 and percentage of decrease from 1985 to 1986 were:

Gross Sales
● Dawson County — $129.2 million, 24 percent.
● Glasscock County — $2.6 million, 36 percent.

● Martin County — $55.1 million, 15 percent.
● Mitchell County — $59.5 million, 12 percent.
● Scurry County — $204.2 million, 39 percent.
● Sterling County — $8.0 million, 27 percent.
Retail Sales
● Dawson County — $67 million, 24 percent.
● Glasscock County — $2.2 million, 42 percent.
● Martin County — $17.9 million, 8 percent.
● Mitchell County — $38.2 million, 14 percent.
● Scurry County — $101.6 million, 19 percent.
● Sterling County — $4.6 million, 18 percent.

Study explains reading problems

BOSTON (AP) — People with dyslexia have unusually good peripheral vision but cannot see well straight ahead, a discovery that appears to explain their reading trouble and suggest a simple way to overcome it, researchers say.

Vision experts who found the difference believe it underlies the reading and learning difficulties of dyslexics. They devised a method using only a piece of paper with a hole in it, that allows people with extreme dyslexia to learn to read well within a few months.

People with dyslexia, estimated at 5 percent to 10 percent of the population, have normal intelligence but have trouble distinguishing words and often transpose letters.

The disability runs in families, and scientists have found abnormalities in the brains of dyslexics.

The new research suggests that dyslexics have learned to look at the world differently from normal readers. Instead of zeroing in on what's directly in front of their noses, they take a wide-angle view. That means trouble when they try to focus on just one word on a printed page.

"The ordinary reader looks at a word that's not very long and sees it clearly," said Gad Geiger. "However, for the dyslexic, the next word to the right or left is clearer."

The researchers studied five college students with dyslexia who had learned to read and compared them with five ordinary readers.

Essentially, the researchers found that normal readers focus on a very narrow point on the page in front of them. Their ability to distinguish letters to either side of that point drops off rapidly.

Dyslexics, on the other hand, find it hard to distinguish the word directly in their center of vision, but can see words off to the sides.

Peripheral vision was even better in those with severe dyslexia. They described a man who could only read at a third-grade level despite many attempts to learn. The researchers came up with a method that enabled him to read with his sharp peripheral vision.

First, he practiced tasks requiring detailed hand-eye coordination. Next, he put a dot on a sheet of paper. To the right of the dot, he cut out a rectangle that allowed him to see eight or nine letters. Then he practiced moving the paper over a page, looking at the dot but reading the words as they appeared in the window.

After four months of practice, he could read at a 10th-grade level, and he now has a job as a supervisor in a hotel.

Letvin said the researchers have helped three dyslexics learn to read this way.

In an editorial published with the study, Drs. Bennett A. Shaywitz and Stephen G. Waxman of Yale said the research "provides a novel and interesting theory," but added that "it also emphasizes how much we still do not know" about dyslexia.

explained. Programs available at the local level include Chapter 1 programs — basically intensive reading programs. Students who are not sufficiently helped at this level then are referred to the third phase.

Phase 3 outlines a program for moderate or mild dyslexics. Students are placed in an instructional program designed for their specific needs, Simmons said. If a student has severe dyslexia or related disorders, and can't be helped by third-phase instruction, he is placed in special education, the fourth and final phase of the state outline, she said.

Simmons added she would be hesitant to assign a student to Phase 4 unless there was no way she could help the student. Although the local district is awaiting guidelines before further implementing the state plan, Gladden said the district has been busy preparing teachers to identify potential dyslexic students.

Aside from the screening already done, she said that first grade teachers have attended a series of workshops in Midland to identify dyslexia characteristics, to understand state requirements and become acquainted with available learning materials. Gladden said that kindergarten through fifth-grade teachers also attended a half-day workshop on the state program.

The additional guidelines are expected by next school year, she said.

funerals, or five days if the death is a family member living in the employee's household. Additional time needed will be charged to the employee's vacation time or allowed off without pay.

In addition, employees will be allowed to use sick leave for family illness.

The Council vetoed a suggestion to charge the first day leave for family illness to an employee's vacation time.

"I'd hate to work for the city (under that policy), because a lot of my sick time is for my family," Council member Pat DeAnda said.

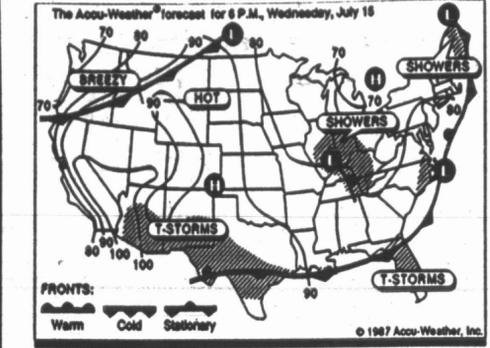

Rutherford agreed. "I hate to rob the mothers" of time off when their children are ill, he said.

Employees will receive five days vacation a year for 1-2 years service, 10 days for 3-4 years, and 15 days a year for five years or more

DWI offender sentenced to prison

ANAHUAC (AP) — A man with 18 drunk driving convictions was sentenced to five years in prison after pleading no contest to a felony driving while intoxicated charge stemming from a 25-vehicle crash that killed five family members.

Samuel LaRoy Hargrave, 60, of Anahuac, also was fined $500 Monday by State District Judge Carroll E. Wilborn Jr.

"I think that somehow the system is deficient as regards to Samuel LaRoy Hargrave Jr. ... Wilborn said. "You have been convicted more times than I can count, of felony offenses. But for the peculiar quirk that does not allow you to be indicted as a repeat felony or habitual felon, the maximum punishment this court can allow is five years in TDC (Texas Department of Corrections)."

Wilborn, as the former district attorney for Chambers and Liberty counties, prosecuted Hargrave for drunken driving four times.

"You have shown to this court ... absolutely no desire to rehabilitate, to quit drinking or even not to drive a vehicle when you are unlicensed," Wilborn said.

Hargrave, who has not had a valid license since 1966, admitted he continues to drive although the state will not issue him a license.

Texas Department of Public Safety troopers have said Hargrave was the driver of a station wagon that stalled on Interstate 10 in the middle of the fog-shrouded Old River and Lost River Bridge.

Fog and his stalled car triggered the chain-reaction pile-up Jan. 28 that killed five members of a Rockport family and injured six other people, officials said.

Hargrave had 0.11 percent of alcohol in his blood at the time of the 9 a.m. accident, a blood sample showed. A person is considered intoxicated in Texas if his blood-alcohol content is 0.10 percent.

District Attorney Mike Little said prosecutors allowed Hargrave to plead no contest to the Chambers County DWI charge, as part of a plea bargain that called for Hargrave to plead guilty to a Feb. 10 drunken driving charge in Liberty County.

The Senate subcommittee on taxes listens to testimony Monday in the Senate chamber. The group approved a $4 billion tax increase Monday, after removing a provision that would have levied Texas' first corporate profits tax.

Clements pushes education cuts

Dallas Times Herald Bureau

AUSTIN — Progress toward a state budget compromise stopped abruptly Monday when Gov. Bill Clements insisted on $650 million more in cuts that lawmakers said would undermine significant sections of Texas' landmark education reforms of 1984.

Emerging from a private meeting with the governor, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he and House Speaker Gib Lewis refused to meet Clements' demands to freeze a merit pay plan for teachers and eliminate funding for full-day kindergarten for all but disadvantaged students.

Angry lawmakers said the governor's latest demand is unrealistic, hamstringing budget negotiations and jeopardizes the state's financial stability.

Meanwhile, the Senate's tax panel set the stage for a floor fight today over the largest tax increase in Texas history, recommending passage of a $6 billion tax bill after rejecting a measure that would have levied the state's first tax on corporate profits.

The Senate package, unanimously recommended Monday by its subcommittee on tax policy, would raise the state sales tax rate to 6 percent and apply that tax to many services now exempt — including automobile repairs, cable television services and out-of-state telephone calls billed to a Texas number.

It also would increase a host of other state fees and levies, including those for cigarettes, motor vehicle inspections, driver's licenses and state licenses required of such professionals as doctors and lawyers.

As drafted, the bill would have changed the formula for determining corporate-franchise taxes — essentially, taxes paid for the privilege of doing business in Texas — to take corporate profits into account. Proponents of the change, led by Sen. Hugh Farmer, D-Fort Worth, said it was more equitable than a competing proposal to merely raise the franchise tax rate.

"Raising the tax on capital will simply have the effect of discouraging investment in Texas in the middle of a recession," Farmer said. "All I'd suggest is that we try to figure out what works best for the Texas economy."

However, fearing the new formula would be construed as an income tax and face rejection by the House and governor, the panel dropped it in favor of a 40 percent increase in the franchise tax rate.

As expected, the Senate bill avoids the controversial sales tax on insurance policies passed earlier by the House. Instead, it imposes a surtax on premium taxes already paid to the state by insurance companies.

The Senate panel concurred with the House in recommending indefinite extension of the 15-cent-per-gallon motor fuels tax approved by the Legislature in a special session last summer.

"We turned out the best bill that we can," said Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, chairman of subcommittee.

Group says English bill 'racist'

AUSTIN — The founder of a Hispanic veterans organization is charging that efforts to designate English as the state's official language are racist and "neo-Nazi."

"This is a neo-Nazi philosophy brought into Texas from outside the state," said Dr. Hector P. Garcia of Corpus Christi, founder of the American G.I. Forum.

"I am greatly concerned and worried," he said of lobbying efforts to get the Legislature to take such action. "I'm deeply concerned and disturbed about the situation."

Legislation was introduced — but died — during the regular session to designate English as the official language. Similar legislation also has been introduced in Congress, Garcia said.

At a news conference Monday, Garcia said an official language move would threaten bilingual education and bilingual ballots. He said it would be an assault on the free-speech rights guaranteed under the U.S. Constitution.

Court ruling puts Cave trial on hold

FORT WORTH — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling that narrowed the definition of the mail fraud statute has caused federal officials to put the pre-sentencing investigation of former District Judge Tom Cave on hold.

Cave, who had been accused of trading sex for leniency for female probationers, was found innocent of those charges, but was convicted on three federal charges of mail fraud.

A federal probation official says they will not finish a pre-sentencing report on Cave until a federal judge decides whether to drop the charges against the longtime state judge.

"Everything's on hold," said Claude E. Roach, head of the U.S. Probation office in Fort Worth. "Until some decision is made, it won't be completed."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Terry Hart cited the Supreme Court decision last Friday in requesting that the charges be dropped.

McFadden deliberations to begin

BELTON — Deliberations got under way today in the capital murder trial of Jerry "Animal" McFadden in the slaying of an East Texas woman.

Closing arguments ended at 12:10 a.m. today. Jurors retired to the jury room, elected a foreman and voted to begin deliberations at 9 a.m.

Defense lawyers claimed in closing arguments that prosecutors haven't presented any direct evidence linking McFadden to Suzanne Harrison, the woman he is accused of killing.

"Mr. McFadden is on trial for capital murder and the state can't show you that Mr. McFadden did what they say he did, so they are trying to have to convict him on other matters," said defense lawyer Vernard Solomon.

Prosecutor Arthur Eads told jurors they should look at the whole case.

"There is horror in this courtroom, there is death in this courtroom," he said.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors rested their cases in the month-long capital murder trial Monday.

Jurors earlier heard a taped statement from a jailer who testified she was abducted at gunpoint by McFadden last summer.

Opinion

Court's decision didn't meet test

Good laws meet two tests: Equity for the individual and protection for society. Ideally, most laws strike a careful balance.

Inevitably, however, there are instances in which laws lean fairly far in one direction or the other.

When the United States Supreme Court decided the recently that servicemen could not sue the government or their supervising officers for damages, it was upholding an established doctrine.

The precedent, first set by the Supreme Court in a 1950 case, held that military discipline and authority preclude permitting servicemen to sue their supervisors, even when the damages sought result from injury illegally inflicted.

That last qualification is what bothers us.

Clearly, an effective military cannot be maintained if servicemen harmed in the line of duty could sue those who ordered them into harm's way. This limitation on the rights of those in uniform is part of the price that must be paid for an effective military. And, to be sure, an effective military is essential for the protection of society and all its members.

But what if the injury does result from illegal actions on the part of a supervising officer? The case decided by the Supreme Court arose from a particularly egregious example.

The plaintiff, former Army Sgt. James B. Stanley, volunteered in 1958 for what he was told would be a chemical-warfare test involving gas masks and protective clothing.

Instead, he was given doses of the hallucinogenic LSD in his drinking water. It was part of a joint Army-CIA program to determine the military potential of hallucinogenics.

In Stanley's case, the reaction was extreme and tragic. He suffered personality disorders and violent behavior that eventually led to the breakup of his marriage and his discharge from the Army.

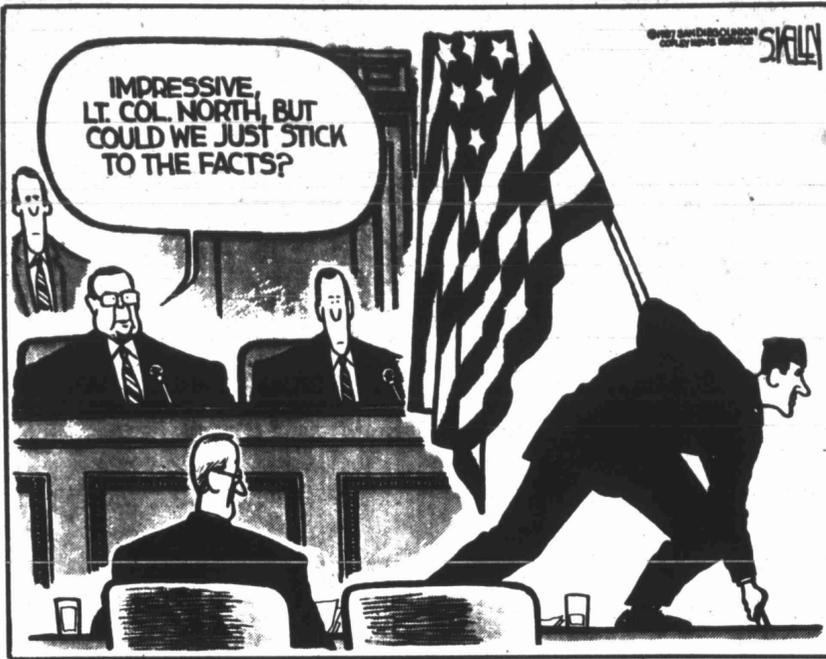

When Stanley discovered in 1975 that he had been administered LSD without his knowledge, he sued for damages.

Five members of the Supreme Court decided that Stanley has no recourse in law, no way to recover damages for the grievous harm done to him in such a callous and dishonest manner.

We believe a better law and better precedent would distinguish between injuries incurred as a result of lawful orders and those suffered because of illegal actions. Subjecting servicemen to dangerous drug tests without their knowledge and against their will should be illegal. It certainly is unethical and immoral.

The case law narrowly established by the Supreme Court no doubt sought to protect society. Regrettably, it sacrificed more than we think was necessary of individual rights.

Stanley deserved better. So do the millions of other Americans who sacrifice some, but by no means all, of their rights in order to serve their country in uniform.

Nuclear power plant fires whistleblower; NRC silent

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Whistleblowers at nuclear power plants are supposed to be a specially protected species, because Congress doesn't want unreported safety lapses causing a Three Mile Island accident — or a Chernobyl disaster.

But when Alan Young, a welder at the Philadelphia Electric Co.'s Peach Bottom nuclear plant in southeastern Pennsylvania, told the Nuclear Regulatory Commission about workers' overexposure to radiation, he was fired. The NRC has done nothing for Young, beyond confirming his complaints, and the Labor Department appears to have grown tired of defending him.

As a result, Young has been blacklisted by the utility company and cannot work at the Peach Bottom plant. At last count, he had been fired by four Peach Bottom contractors because of his whistleblowing and Philadelphia Electric's refusal to give him a security clearance.

Young's depressing saga began in June 1983, when he went to the NRC with information that workers welding pipes at Peach Bottom were inadequately protected from excessive radiation. The welders were putting Band-Aid-like strips around the pipes to keep radioactive water from leaking. Each hour they were exposed to the equivalent of five chest X-rays, and in eight days they were "burned out" — having soaked up so much radiation that they could not legally be exposed to any more for a few months, Young reported.

Arms talks are still up in the air

By ART BUCHWALD
You might now know it, but the United States and the Soviet Union still are deeply involved in arms negotiations.

Senko, the attache at the Russian Embassy, told me they have hit a new snag.

"Gorbachev is demanding a Cessna-free Europe," he said.

"That's unfair," I told him. "There is no way we can promise that. We can control missiles, but Cessnas fly anywhere they want to. It wasn't our fault a light plane took off from Helsinki and landed on Red Square."

"Comrade Gorbachev thinks the U.S. did it to embarrass him and cause trouble between himself and Raisa Gorbachev."

"How could we do that?"

"The pilot flew so close to the Kremlin he could see Raisa taking a sauna. Raisa wants Gorbachev to keep small planes out of her bathroom."

"If it makes him so unhappy why didn't Gorbachev shoot down the Cessna?" I asked.

"He would have if he could," Senko said. "The Russians are experts against a Stealth bomber, but our air defense is like Swiss cheese when it comes to bringing down private planes."

"Then Gorbachev has a problem," I said.

"No, it's America who has a problem. We had the whole arms package tied up. Both sides agreed to give up middle-range missiles in Europe. We put testing on the table. We were ready to meet

Jack Anderson

The contractor fired Young after his complaint to the NRC, but a Labor Department review board found in his favor. He was given $11,000 in back pay and a promise that there would be no future discrimination against him. An NRC report stated, "Several deficiencies were identified and commitments were made by (Philadelphia Electric) management to improve practices."

Young was hired by another Peach Bottom contractor in 1984, but again found that welders were getting too much radiation. Again he was fired, and again the Labor Department found that he was right.

In August 1985, Young was hired by a third Peach Bottom contractor — and fired two hours later because Philadelphia Electric refused to grant him security clearance. The Labor Department hasn't even investigated that incident, although it has been ordered to do so by an administrative law judge.

Young was refused security clearance again last October to work at Peach Bottom, even though he had meanwhile obtained clearance to work at Three Mile Island.

This time the Labor Department sent out an investigator, Scott Royer. But shortly after he began nosing around Peach Bottom asking questions, a plant official kicked Royer out because he didn't have a subpoena. Royer did learn that Young had been effectively blacklisted by plant management, however. "Whistleblower complaints Young made created a lot of problems," the plant security official told Royer, according to his report.

The Labor Department ordered Philadelphia Electric to give Young his job back and to pay him back wages and compensatory damages. The company was ordered further to expunge from its records "any references or indications characterizing Mr. Young's action or behavior as being inappropriate in this matter."

Philadelphia Electric has appealed the Labor Department decision, but the case has been stalled for more than six months. Meanwhile, Young was hired by yet another Peach Bottom contractor — and apparently laid off because Philadelphia Electric refused him security clearance.

Footnote: Philadelphia Electric spokesman Neil McDermott denied that Young was laid off the last time because of no security clearance. Young was part of a "reduction in force" that included 38 employees, McDermott said.

Chernobyl. And several Soviet marshals have now been assigned to waiting on U.S. Marines in the GUM department store.

"Gorbachev has taken all the necessary steps. What more does he want?"

"The general secretary will not make an arms deal with the U.S. until you promise to keep Cessnas from using Red Square as a landing strip."

"Tell Gorbachev that we have no control over what our NATO friends do with their light planes," I said.

"He doesn't believe you. The comrade leader says the German Cessna could never have made it unless it had sophisticated American guidance equipment. Gorbachev believes you intend to violate the arms treaty with Piper Cubs."

"If he thinks that, where does that leave the talks?"

"Up in the air. The Soviet position has always been that we're willing to give up everything, except we will not permit small aircraft to land on Lenin's tomb. If we don't have guarantees we will break up the talks."

"But why?"

"If you don't guarantee us a Cessna-free Europe how can we be sure you won't build Star Wars?"

"Would you believe it if I told you that the landing of the Cessna worried Americans no end?"

"I wouldn't believe it," Senko said.

"It was just a shot in the dark."

Newcomer sees Texas differences

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

I called my folks the other night. Mom and Dad live in Green Bay, Wis. — where I lived until recently.

After a few minutes of conversation, Dad observed, "You haven't picked up a Texas accent, yet."

"Actually," I told him, "I find myself speaking with somewhat of a southern accent when around Texans — because they understand me better."

I never realized a Midwestern accent — if such an accent exists — was so difficult to understand, but I continue to be amazed at the number of people who ask me to repeat myself.

Maybe, as one friend said, they just want to make fun of the way I talk.

Someone once looked at me strangely when I asked where the nearest bubbler was. I had to explain that, where I'm from, a bubbler is a water fountain.

I no longer ask for bubblers. But I can't blame Texans if my speech amuses them because southern accents and phrases I'd never heard before amuse me. The frequent use of "fixin' to" is one that immediately comes to mind.

I laughed at a friend a month ago for waving to people as they pass on the highway. It seems so silly now. I remember at some guy that whizzes by at 65 mile per hour — so fast you can barely make out a person in the car. "What's the point?" I wondered.

I'm used to watching the road as I drive and didn't even notice people were waving at me until one day someone asked why I didn't wave back.

Now I wave — when I think of it. I even initiated some waves to see what reaction I would get. Most reciprocated, and it was a neat feeling to see the friendliness of the passers-by.

That leads to another subject: Speaking to strangers on the street.

Just the other day, while walking at the state park, my friend greeted another pedestrian.

"Who's that?" I asked after the man had passed.

"I don't know," he said matter-of-factly.

The way he said, "Hi, how's it going?" with such enthusiasm, I thought for sure he was greeting a long-lost friend.

When I first moved to Big Spring, the friendliness of strangers on the street amazed me.

The first few times a person greeted me on the street, I was too shocked to return a greeting. The person already was a block away, and I was wondering how he knew me — when in reality he didn't.

Although greeting strangers was rare in Green Bay, I do think it's more common in smaller towns nationwide.

I've decided I miss my Wisconsin license plates.

They really were great conversation pieces.

Cute gas station attendants would notice the bright yellow plates and initiate conversations; little kids would stop and stare ...

I still show my Wisconsin license when I write checks, however.

Funny, but many store clerks have been shocked by the 14-digit number. The number is too long, in fact, to punch into the computerized system at The Box.

Why do people drive on the shoulder of the highway?

I've traveled fairly extensively in the United States and Mexico and never noticed such unusual behavior until moving to West Texas.

I've always considered the shoulder a place to pull over if you're having car problems, if a child is sick, if you want to change drivers or if a patrolman doesn't like the way you drive.

I haven't figured out why some people choose to drive along the road shoulder at 55 or 65 miles an hour rather than drive on the road itself.

Guild reaches accord

HOLLYWOOD — Shortly after an accord was reached with NBC, producers and directors today tentatively settled a dispute that had threatened to cripple the film and television industry.

"We have reached a settlement that will avert the first strike in the guild's 51-year history," Chuck Warn, spokesman for the Directors Guild of America, announced as pickets were to go up at two studios.

Neither Warn nor Carol Akiyama, spokeswoman for the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers, would disclose details of the settlement hammered out after 10½ hours of negotiations that began at 8 p.m. Monday and continued through dawn today.

Barrier to stop bees

SAN ANTONIO — The United States and Mexico will sign an agreement this summer to create a program that could delay by a decade the arrival in Texas of African "killer" honeybees, an official says.

Don Husnik of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said Monday that without such a program, the bees could reach Brownsville, in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, as early as 1989 or 1990.

The agreement would set up a biological barrier at Mexico's narrowest point, the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, said Husnik, associate deputy administrator for the Plant Protection and Quarantine division of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Near-collision probed

WASHINGTON — Officials are examining recorded radio exchanges among four airliners over the North Atlantic to determine whether a pilot tried to have a near-collision hushed up, government sources said Monday.

The near-collision, which involving a Delta Air Lines Lockheed L-1011 and a Continental Airlines Boeing 747, is being investigated by both U.S. and Canadian authorities.

David Owen, an investigator for the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, said in an interview that the flight crews "discussed the reporting requirements" after the incident. He said, however, he could not reveal details of the radio exchanges.

But Owen acknowledged that a near-collision report was not obtained by air traffic controllers at Gander, Newfoundland, until more than three hours after the incident took place and controllers never received a report from the Delta pilot that he had strayed 60 nautical miles off course.

Taiwan

38 years of martial law end

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — President Chiang Ching-kuo today decreed the end of martial law imposed by his Nationalist Party 38 years ago when it fled to this island after Communists took over mainland China.

The official Central News Agency quoted Chiang as saying in a decree that martial law would be replaced at midnight (noon EDT) by new security measures approved by the Legislative Yuan, Taiwan's highest lawmaking body.

"We are looking at the government's next move cautiously," dissident leader Kang Ning-hsiang told The Associated Press. "The political environment is still largely unclear now."

Martial law was imposed in 1949 when the Nationalist government and about 2 million supporters fled to Taiwan after losing a civil war to the Communists on the Chinese mainland. Martial law has been a mainstay of the Nationalist's authoritarian rule.

Chiang first announced last October that he would lift martial law, which barred the formation of new political parties and allowed civilians to be tried by military courts on sedition and other charges.

However, it remained in effect while replacement security measures were drafted.

Enforcement of martial law has not been strict in recent years. In September, dissidents formed the Democratic Progressive Party, which went on to receive 21.6 percent of the vote in December legislative elections.

Under the new security measures passed by the Legislative Yuan last month, new political parties are permitted, but they must be anti-communist and back the unification of Taiwan and China. The provision is aimed at discouraging the independence movement supported by many native Taiwanese, who comprise 85 percent of the island's 19.5 million people.

Both the Nationalists and Communists maintain they are the sole legitimate government of China. The Democratic Progressive Party has proposed a plebiscite to let Taiwanese determine their future.

Kang, a Democratic Progressive Party legislator, said the new security stipulations might restrict the growth of the opposition party and their enactment "demonstrated the Kuomintang's lack of commitment to democracy."

Robbers steal millions

LONDON — Armed robbers, posing as businessmen, bluffed their way into a high-security safe deposit vault in London and stole cash, jewels and other valuables worth up to $32 million, news reports said today.

The robbery at the Knightsbridge Safe Deposit Center opposite Harrods department store in London's exclusive Knightsbridge district occurred Sunday but was only disclosed by police Monday night.

The center claimed when it opened in 1983 that it was the most secure safe deposit center in the world.

A Scotland Yard spokesman, who in accordance with British practice spoke on condition of anonymity, said the value of the robbery "certainly runs into several million and could be up to 10 million pounds ($16 million)."

However, the British Broadcasting Corp., the Times of London and other news organizations said the robbers' haul could be worth up to $32 million.

Union strike outlawed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government today outlawed a strike by tens of thousands of black metal workers 2½ hours after it began and agreed to give legal backing to the industry's unilaterally imposed wage package.

The National Union of Metalworkers of South Africa said its attorneys were preparing a court challenge of the government action.

"We're living in a mad situation here in South Africa. Negotiations mean nothing," said Peter Dantjie, the union's national organizer.

But Piet van der Merwe, director-general of the Department of Manpower, said of the government action, "It's the normal thing. We do that all the time."

Coalition to protest

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — A coalition of civil, political and religious groups has called for a 24-hour strike Wednesday to press its demands for the resignation of the governing military-civilian council.

The coalition, which announced the new strike in a communique Monday, organized a nationwide stayaway that paralyzed Haiti for seven days early this month. Violence from the general strike that began June 29 left at least 20 people dead and more than 100 wounded.

The union of 57 civic, political, trade and religious groups said it would launch an effort today to inform Haitians about its proposed alternative government and the reasons it is demanding that the council of two generals and a civilian lawyer step down.

Third Farm Aid concert planned

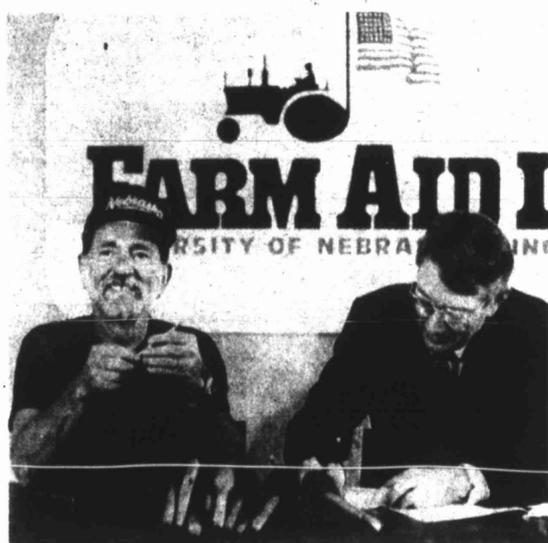

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Hoping Nebraska's financially hard hit farm sector will tug at the nation's conscience and purse strings, singer Willie Nelson signed a contract to bring Farm Aid III to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln on Sept. 19.

The bearded country-western singer, wearing a red "Nebraska Cornhuskers" cap, signed the contract Monday at Memorial Stadium, where the concert will be staged. UNL Chancellor Martin Massengale signed the contract for the university.

It was important to bring the concert to Lincoln, Nelson said, because Nebraska "is right in the heart of the problem."

"The people here are very aware of the state of Nebraska is one of the hardest hit ... and I thought it was important to do it in an area not only where the concert would be appreciated, but also it would draw attention to the areas where the problem is worst," Nelson said.

Nelson said other entertainers scheduled for the show included John Cougar Mellencamp, Bon Jovi, Neil Young, Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson, Merle Haggard and Emmylou Harris. Nelson said he was sure other acts would be added.

The 560-foot submarine's reduction gear was removed for adjustments and reinstalled incorrectly by a subcontractor at the Newport News Shipbuilding in Newport News, Va., between February and April, when the ship was in for maintenance. The Day of New London reported today.

The nuclear-powered ship returned to port last week after undergoing some repairs at sea, the newspaper said. The Navy had said last week only that it had a serious equipment failure at sea and was "continuing its operations," and that no crew members were injured.

A ship's reduction gear reduces the rotational speed of the main steam turbine so the propeller turns at a considerably reduced speed.

The Nevada, completed last year, is undergoing repairs at the Trident Naval Submarine Base at Bangor, Wash., the newspaper said.

Tridents are the Navy's largest submarines and cost about $1 billion each. They are designed to carry 24 Trident 1 missiles, each capable of carrying up to eight nuclear warheads.

The newspaper quoted sources who spoke on condition they not be identified, and said the source declined to name the subcontractor involved in the maintenance work.

But a Navy spokesman said General Electric Co. technical representatives supervised the gear's installation. GE builds the turbines for submarines built at Newport News and the Electric Boat Shipyard in Groton, Conn.

Jack T. Batty, a GE spokesman in Fairfield, said GE is participating in a Navy investigation.

58th All-Star tilt has long list of sluggers

This could be a hitter's game

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In the year of the hitter, with both All-Star lineups studded with modern versions of Murderers Row...

average and Mattingly with his .336 average, in the same lineup. The game also is a stage for young phenoms like McGwire...

Scott, the National League starter in tonight's 58th All-Star Game, will test his split-fingered fastball against an American League squad packed with New York Yankee power.

One had to laugh a little Monday watching the 23-year-old McGwire, looking like a wide-eyed overgrown kid, talking with the full-bearded Boggs and politely turning down the offer of a plug of tobacco.

If Rickey Henderson, Don Mattingly or Dave Winfield don't get to Scott, George Bell, Cal Ripken and Wade Boggs may.

A sellout crowd of almost 50,000 and clear skies were forecast for the 5:30 p.m. PDT game as the AL tries to win consecutive All-Star Games for the first time since 1957-58.

And waiting for his turn will be the crowd favorite, Oakland rookie slugger Mark McGwire, a redhead built like a lumberjack, whose 33 homers lead the majors.

Despite a 3-2 loss last year, the NL has won 13 of the last 15 along with 21 of the previous 24.

Saberhagen, the lanky 15-3 right-hander starting for the American League, has no less a chore against Eric Davis, Andre Dawson, Mike Schmidt, Darryl Strawberry and Jack Clark, who have a total of 118 homers this season.

The American League squad, with three rookies, is a little younger, averaging about 28 years, compared to the NL's average of 30. Eleven American Leaguers are making their first All-Star appearance, while all but four of the National Leaguers have been at the game before.

The original Murderers Row of the 1927 Yankees featured Babe

And as it has been all season, the 22 percent jump in home runs has been hotly debated. To help settle the question of whether the balls are any livelier, American League President Dr. Bobby Brown said both leagues would begin laboratory testing on the balls.

Ruth, Lou Gehrig and company. Nostalgia aside, the new generation of sluggers could stand in the lineup with the best of them at the pace they're going.

"We're going to repeat tests we conducted in 1984 when we awarded the ball contract to Rawlings," Brown said. "We don't expect any difference."

It is the special joy of baseball's All-Star Game that it allows fans to fulfill a fantasy of bringing so many top players together, to see, for example, Boggs with his .375

Chicago Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg is the center of attention as he signs autographs for fans during Monday's workout for baseball's 58th All-Star game in Oakland. The All-Star games comes on channel 13 at 7 p.m. The game will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Americans convert for 5-2 win over Midland Eastern

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor The Big Spring American League All-Stars were a very opportunistic team in their 5-2 win over the Midland Eastern All-Stars in the opening round of the District III All-Star Tournament Monday night.

had a rocky start, walking the first four batters, and giving the Americans a 1-0 lead. He only threw one strike to the first four hitters. The Americans took the lead when shortstop Partick Martinez scored after Watson walked Gonzales.

Americans a commanding 4-1 lead. The Americans added an insurance run in the bottom of the fifth. Ryan Hamby got on base on an interference call when he hit the catcher's mitt while swinging. Hamby advanced to third on wild pitches. He scored when reserve left fielder Jeremy Edens hit a line drive to left field for a single.

The Americans converted five runs off only two hits. But they took advantage of 10 walks issued by Eastern pitchers, and numerous passed balls and wild pitches.

The second American run scored when center-fielder John Kennedy's grounder was booted by shortstop Rodriguez, scoring Tom Blankenship.

The only other American hit was a single by Blankenship in the second inning.

Another key to the win was big lefty Jeromaine Gonzales. The American League starter went the distance, firing a five-hitter and fanning 11 Easterners.

Eastern pulled to within one by scoring in the top of the fourth. With two outs, Rodriguez doubled against the center field fence. He scored when American first baseman Clark Fields couldn't handle Watson's grounder.

Eastern tried to rally in the sixth, but managed only a run, despite two hits.

While Gonzales showed steady control, walking only two, Eastern starter Cory Watson and reliever Mario Rodriguez didn't fare as well.

But the Americans went back to their opportunistic ways in the bottom of the inning.

Noel Romero singled to lead off the inning. Romero was replaced by pinch runner David Holguin. Holguin eventually scored on an infield hit by Watson, but it would be too little, too late for the Midland Eastern All-Stars.

Watson lasted one-and-two-thirds innings. He surrendered two runs on one hit and five walks. Rodriguez pitched the remaining three-and-a-third innings. He allowed three runs off one hit and five walks.

Rodriguez walked Martinez and Blankenship to lead off the inning. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Fields then grounded out to second base, but Martinez scored on the play.

The Big Spring Americans will play the Midland Mid-City All-Stars Saturday at 8 p.m. at the National League park.

The Americans took a 2-0 lead after one inning of play. Watson

Rodriguez fanned Gonzales for the second out, bringing Kennedy to the plate. Again Rodriguez fired a wild pitch, and the alert Blankenship scored from third, giving the

Hughes just misses no-hitter; Nationals whitewash Coahoma

By CONRAD MEZICK Special Correspondent In all-star tourney action Monday night at the International League park, the Big Spring Nationals whipped Coahoma 13-0.

first out, Cervantes drove a 2-1 pitch over the left field fence, making it 3-0.

The Nationals added four more runs over the last two innings, and took a 13-0 lead into the bottom of the sixth.

Wes Hughes went the distance for the Nationals, allowing only one hit while striking out four and walking two. The game was never in doubt as the defense didn't commit an error and turned two double plays. Coahoma's only hit was a single by Juan Ruiz. Only two balls left the infield.

In Coahoma's first, they put a runner on when Jay Bingham walked, but Guy Zant hit a grounder to the second baseman Sledge. He tagged the runner going to second, then threw to first for the inning ending double play.

In Coahoma's last at-bat, Hughes retired the first batter he faced, bringing Ruiz to the plate. Ruiz hit a 2-2 pitch pass the second baseman's glove, breaking up the no-hitter. But Sledge stopped the next hit ball and doubled up Ruiz for the inning ending double play and the game.

The key to the Nationals' win was defense. But the hitting wasn't so shabby either as they banged out 13 hits, five going for extra bases. Oscar Cervantes led the attack with two homers in four trips to the plate.

Big Spring added six more runs in the next three innings, with most of that damage coming in the fourth. In that inning, the Nationals batted around and five runs crossed the plate. Cervantes belted his second homer with one on making the score 9-0.

Coahoma's Jason Harmon also went the distance while striking out six and walking three.

In the first inning the Nationals got all the offense they needed when Tony Taylor singled and stole second. Bryan Sledge singled, driving in Taylor. After Danny Wilson flied to center for the Outdoor trails Starting the season a bit early

By H. BOYCE HALE

In the early 60s, my friends Leon Goswick and Sam Reeves from Sweetwater invited me and a guest for a few days of mule deer hunting.

Their 15-section spread was directly south of Sierra Blanca in Hudspeith County. From the mountains on the ranch, you could look directly upon the town.

Sgt. Ron Brooks of the Air Force, now retired and living in Big Spring, and I arrived around noon the day before the season opened.

Within the hour, Leon, Sam and 12 others arrived, and they immediately began to erect tents. Four tents were set for sleeping quarters and one for the mess hall.

As soon as camp was completed, Leon asked if I would like to go to Juarez along with the others.

As if I didn't know, I asked, "What for?"

"Aw, I guess we'll take in the night life," he answered.

I explained that Ron and I wanted to stay at camp, so he asked if I would be interested in getting "camp meat." I told him that we might just do that.

Later, Ron and I took my station wagon and our rifles and began driving the ranch roads. It wasn't long before we saw two fine bucks ambling up a draw, but we rejected them because we wanted to kill a doe — save the buck for the hunt.

So we drove until almost dusk without seeing another deer, and then decided to return to the area where we had seen the bucks. We split and began working through that canyon.

My experience told me that the two bucks would not walk very far, so I asked Ron to take the left side and I went along the right side of the canyon.

After we had walked about 500 yards, I spotted a deer standing on the hillside above. Instinctively I raised my rifle and looked through the scope. I saw a nice six-point buck.

I glanced for Ron, but he wasn't in sight, so I started stalking the deer. When I was within about 200 yards, I shot him from a prone position.

Ron heard the shot, came over, and we field dressed the buck.

Pulling the deer by the horns, we began our descent to the station wagon. Because darkness was approaching, we rushed so much we were exhausted by the time we got him to the wagon.

At camp, we hung the buck in the windmill where we began to remove the skin. It was then that I detected a set of headlights approaching our camp.

"Game warden," Ron whispered.

"He ... I hope not," I answered.

As quickly as we could, we lowered the carcass, wrapped the hide around the body, and began dragging the deer into the bushes.

In the rush, I backed into a Spanish dagger and pierced my right leg. But because of the approaching vehicle, I didn't feel a thing — until the next day.

As soon as we had the deer cached, we dashed to the watering trough. Literally diving into the water, we cleaned away the blood and walked to the nearest tent.

None too soon, either, because within two seconds the car was there.

"What a hell of a way to start the season," Ron observed.

"Yeah; let's go face the music," I muttered.

As we approached the car, we were relieved somewhat because it didn't look like a state vehicle. But we weren't sure until a man stepped from the car and asked, "Is this the Jeff White ranch?"

Oldtimers remember the election of W. Lee O'Daniel. When the hillbilly biscuit radio salesman was voter governor, one journalist announced he was going to write a history of Texas — entitled "Under Six Flags — and a Flour Sack."

Wrestling heads Olympic Festival

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Wrestling was the opening event for this year's U.S. Olympic Festival, and American Coach Jim Humphrey wants it clear that this sport bears no resemblance to the one that some might be more familiar with.

This wrestling occurs on a mat and not in a ring and Humphrey is hoping the festival exposure will enlighten some prospective fans.

"They'll see that this is a pure sport, it's not a lot of showtime and it's not solely entertainment," Humphrey, wrestling coach at Indiana, said after the preliminary round of competition at North Carolina Central University.

"They see guys in the finest condition, you see some tremendous wrestling and you might get some new fans," he added. "The thing I find is that if you get somebody out to a wrestling match once, they come back."

Before a heat-drained audience in the Walker Center, Rico Chiapparelli, this year's NCAA champion in the 177-pound class, won in the 180.5-pound class to lead a group of 10 freestyle wrestlers through the preliminary round.

The wrestlers were the only athletes competing on the first day of the two-week festival, which for the first time is being conducted in five different cities in North Carolina.

Swimming was to start today at Koury Natatorium at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Chiapparelli, of Iowa City, Iowa, pinned Mike Sheets of Stillwater, Okla., in 1:52 in the first of three elimination rounds. The freestyle competition continues through Friday and the Greco-Roman wrestling also begins on Friday.

Among the winners was Karl Glover of Fullerton, Calif., who pinned Glen Frank of Quantico, Va., in 11 seconds in the 125.5-pound class in a second-round match.

Others winners were Paul Wiederman of Boston, at 105.5; Jack Cuvo of Easton, Pa., at 114.5; and John Smith of Stillwater, in the 136.5-pound class.

Also advancing to the next round were Pete Yozzo of Sayville, N.Y., at 149.5; Jim Heffernan of Iowa City at 163; Mike Foy of Minneapolis at 198; Kirk Trost of Ann Arbor, Mich., at 220 and Craig Pittman of Freeport, N.Y., at 286.

Italians prove to be fast walkers

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Raffaello Ducceschi once sought the money to pay for his architecture studies by chalking Madonnas and saints on the sidewalks outside the Milan Cathedral.

Eight years later, the 26-year-old Italian student collected some different gold, dominating the men's 20-kilometer walk, the opening track and field event at the World University Games on Monday.

"I needed the money. So I went in front of the Cathedral with a friend and as he played his guitar I chalked the religious figures," Ducceschi said after his grueling feat. "It wasn't very remunerative, but it surely helped."

He came a long way from Sesto San Giovanni, an industrial suburb of Milan, to win the gold medal in the walk, clocking 1 hour, 25 minutes, 2 seconds through the streets of Zagreb under a scorching sun.

It was a clean sweep for Italy, with teammates Giacomo Poggi and Pierluigi Fiorella taking second and third, respectively.

The second track gold of the day went to Bulgarian veteran Zvetanka Christova, who won the women's discus with a throw of 222 feet, 11 inches.

The track events were to get into full swing today with five gold medals at stake. Competition was centered on the men's 100 meters with Bruno Marie Rose of France, the fastest in the heats at 10.30 seconds, meetings Lee McRae of Pittsburgh, who stood up and eased past the finish in his heat in 10.41.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union kept its solid grip on the medal count, leading with 15 golds, to 12 for a surprising Romanian team and seven for the United States.

The Americans collected two more golds on Monday from swimming, with Ann Drolsom of Madison, Wis. winning the 50-meter freestyle in 26.24, and the men's 800-meters freestyle relay team clocking a 7:29.30 to edge The Netherlands by 56 hundredths of a second.

The victories softened the team's disappointment for its swimming performance here, as they managed just two individual golds in five days.

Swimming was to wrap up today with the last five gold medals at stake.

Competition also was to continue in the diving with the final of the women's springboard, which was led by Lin Xiaoni of China after the preliminaries; the tennis finals in men's, women's and mixed doubles; and the men's team epee gold in fencing.

Hitter's

"juiced." National League President A. Bartlett Giamatti, the former president of Yale University, quipped, "No more than I am, sir."

Scott and Saberhagen each have allowed 12 home runs this season but are split on the reasons.

Scott said he thinks the ball is livelier, although he has no proof.

"But when a guy hits a fly ball, it seems like I have to hold my breath," he said.

Saberhagen attributed the increased homers to three factors.

"Players are stronger, the ball is a little juiced-up and the wood for bats is a little better," he said.

Rick Sutcliffe, who is likely to follow Scott for the NL, scoffed at the idea of livelier balls.

"I think pitchers needed an excuse. Every now and then, you have to give the hitters credit," Sutcliffe said. "I pitch in Wrigley Field. You could hit a tomato out of there."

Either way, Saberhagen, Scott and the rest of the pitchers must cope with power-packed lineups.

Davis, who leads the NL with 27 homers, will bat leadoff and be followed by Ryne Sandberg, Dawson, Schmidt, Clark, Strawberry, Gary Carter, Ozzie Smith and Scott.

Henderson will lead off for the AL and be followed by Mattingly, Boggs, Bell, Winfield, Ripken, Terry Kennedy, Willie Randolph and Saberhagen.

"Basically, when I pitch, I don't look at the hitters that much," said Scott, the 1986 Cy Young winner who is 10-5 with a 2.76 earned run average for Houston this year. "I think it's tougher on the hitters to pick up the ball at twilight, so you go with more fastballs."

Saberhagen, the 1985 Cy Young winner, leads the AL with a 2.47 ERA and 11 complete games. He is coming off one of his most impressive outings, a three-hi victory over Toronto Saturday in which he struck out a season-high 10.

AL Manager John McNamara said Jack Morris probably would follow Saberhagen and the rest of the rotation will be determined by game conditions.

Words About the Constitution

The United States Constitution

● elastic clause: a part of Article I that gives Congress the power to make all laws that would be "necessary and proper" for carrying out its duties. It gives Congress the power to deal with many matters not mentioned in the Constitution.

● executive branch: the part of government that carries out the laws. It is headed by the president. The White House is often used as a symbol of the executive branch.

● federalism: a system of government that divides the powers between a national government and state governments.

● Federalists: the people who worked for the acceptance of the Constitution.

● full faith and credit: a part of Article 4 that says that each state must accept the legal papers and records of other states.

● grand jury: a group of people who decide if there is enough evidence to bring an accused person to trial. This is the 31st in a mini series about the Constitution.

Summertime Tips for Birds, Fish, Cats and Sitters!

Birds
Keep birds away from air conditioners and open windows. They can easily catch cold.

Cats
Keep your cat indoors even in warm weather. Most experts feel that cats can live healthy, happy lives indoors all their lives.

Fish
Keep fish away from direct sunlight, which can cause algae to grow and the water temperature to rise.

Stray cats are more likely to pick up diseases from wild animals than dogs. Keeping cats in protects them from accidents, poisoning, fights, loss, theft and the weather.

Sitters
If you hire a sitter for your pet, be sure to:
● leave a careful list of instructions.
● tour your home, showing where the pet sleeps, eats and the "no no" places.
● leave important names and addresses such as where you are visiting and how to reach your vet.

Tips for Traveling With Your Dog

Visit a vet to make sure your dog is in good shape. Make certain her shots are up to date.

- Take along . . .
- an invitation. Call ahead to make certain your motel or friend would like for your pet to visit.
 - a bottle of fresh water so she can have a drink anytime.
 - a supply of her favorite food.
 - food and water dishes.
 - favorite toys.

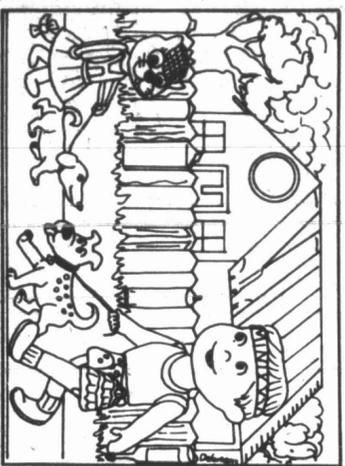

- Attach a piece of tape on your pet's collar tag. On it, write the local address and phone number of where you will be visiting.
- a photograph in case she gets lost.
- a health vaccination card and a dog license receipt.
- a leash to use anytime your dog gets out of the car.

Keep them happy in warm weather Cool Tips for Hot Dogs

Editor's note: We asked Basset Brown to cover this story since he is a Mini Page News Hound.

HELLO, BOYS AND GIRLS! DID YOU KNOW THAT WE DOGS ARE MORE AFFECTED BY HEAT THAN YOU ARE? OUR COOLING SYSTEM IS IN OUR LUNGS. THAT'S WHY WE PANT.

Caution:
Don't walk us on hot pavements or beaches. The pads on our paws are very sensitive.

Leave your pets at home.
Don't leave your dog in a parked car on a warm summer day, even with the windows down. He can suffer brain damage or even die if he is left to breathe hot air. The temperature can reach 120 degrees or higher in only a few minutes!

Be careful swimming with us. Never leave us unattended in a pool where we might not be able to climb out.

Fleas and ticks are especially bad in the summertime. Please use special soaps, a collar or spray.

Exercise: It's best that we exercise in the cool of the evening or in the early morning. But don't exercise us a lot in hot weather, please. Remember, we don't sweat the way you humans do.

Here are some hot-weather pointers about the important things we dogs need:

Food: Don't feed us outdoors where our leftover food might attract raccoons and other animals that could carry rabies.

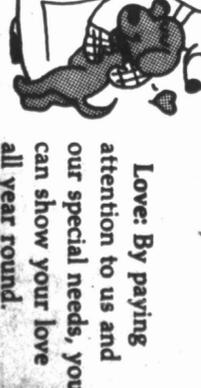

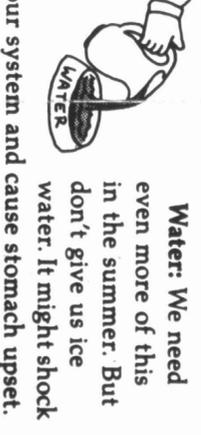

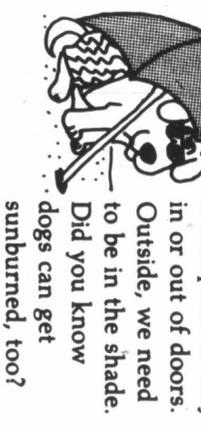

Grooming: Our coat acts like insulation in warm or cold weather. Regular brushing really helps. Be on the lookout for ticks and fleas. Some of us could get a short haircut — but not too short, please.

Love: By paying attention to us and our special needs, you can show your love all year round.

Shelter: We need a cool place to stay in or out of doors. Outside, we need to be in the shade. Did you know dogs can get sunburned, too?

Water: We need even more of this in the summer. But don't give us ice water. It might shock our system and cause stomach upset.

Summer Tips for Birds, Fish, Cats and Sitters!

Welcome mat not always out for clergymen who 'drop in' on parishioners

DEAR ABBY: If you are of the opinion that clergymen should phone first, you are off base. Too much precious time would be spent in making phone calls to set up appointments.

I am aware that there are housewives who would rather have their homes (and themselves) all spruced up to impress the minister, but, Abby, we clergy do not visit to check up on our parishioners' housekeeping skills. We don't care if the woman and her family are not all spruced up either. We prefer to see the family in a relaxed and natural setting.

I've been pushing doorbells for nearly 50 years, and I know whereof I speak.

Dear Abby

DROP-IN MINISTER IN ALABAMA

DEAR DROP-IN: Now, a word from a housewife:

DEAR ABBY: I am glad you finally addressed the problem of clergymen who call on members of their congregation without calling first to give us at least an hour's notice.

I'm as God-fearing as the next person, but I don't want any unexpected company — and I consider the clergy "company."

When my doorbell rings, I peek out from behind my living room curtain to see who's there. And if it's someone I'm not in the mood to see, I don't answer the door. I don't care if my TV is blaring away and our car is in the driveway. I'm just "not home" to unexpected visitors.

ME IN VICTORIA, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: In regard to pastors making surprise calls upon church members: I always telephone for an appointment to make sure the husband will be home. This prevents any possibility of gossip when a man visits a woman alone in her home.

"REV. BOB," TEMPLE HILLS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am an intern pastor, and as one of the new breed, I disagree with the pastor of my church who believes it's better to just drop in without calling first.

Abby, I have seen the embarrassment on the faces of many housewives when I have accompanied the pastor on these surprise visits, and I'm sure they would have appreciated a phone call first.

INTERN PASTOR, NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR PASTOR: Read on for a letter from a clergyman who also prefers the "unannounced" visit — but for a different reason:

DEAR ABBY: I am a minister who prefers to call on my parishioners with no prior notice. My reason: If calls are made ahead of time, the women feel they have to have a little something to serve with coffee or tea, so they go to the trouble of baking something. Naturally when the goodies are served, the minister feels obligated to eat them. Not that it's difficult — these homemade cakes, pies and cookies are usually very tasty. But after making three or four stops in one afternoon, can you imagine what the minister will look like in a few years?

25 POUNDS OVERWEIGHT

DEAR OVERWEIGHT: I vote with giving the housewives prior notice, and I think most women would agree, but I am not about to take another poll. (I'm still inundated with: "Have you ever cheated on your mate?" Incidentally, the faithful women are ahead of the unfaithful, and the cheating men outnumber the faithful men 2-to-1. Stay tuned.)

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (30 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Trexler Designs, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Lies can lead to trouble at the office and home

CARSON, Calif. (AP) — To a greater or lesser degree, everyone lies. Most of the lies we tell are small ones, on the level of "I'm feeling fine, thanks," an expert says.

But, for some people, lying becomes a way of life. Lying at high levels of business and government is often self-destructive, and, once revealed, can have serious consequences, says Dr. Beverly Palmer, a professor of psychology at California State University here.

Lying ranges from complimenting a friend's new — but ugly — dress to political scandals, such as the recent Iran-contra arms sale controversy, Palmer says.

Sometimes lies — especially pathological ones — can be convincing but their deceptions can be detected. Palmer says there are ways to tell when someone is lying:

- Absence of typical non-verbal gestures during speech. For example, someone who uses a lot of spontaneous gestures will normally keep his hands still or behind his back when lying.
- A discrepancy between the face and other parts of the body. "If you're trying to hide anger and you're being Mr. Nice-Guy, the anger is exposed because you may have a calm look but your fists are clenched."
- A discrepancy in the total facial expression, such as smiling through tightly closed lips. "Or the liar has a wide smile plastered on his face while he is looking away from you," Palmer says.
- "You don't really know all the specific clues. You may just have a feeling that something isn't quite right," she says. "What isn't quite right is that the verbal message doesn't quite match the non-verbal message."

Lying falls into two categories. The first, Palmer says, is falsifying information, such as inventing excuses: "Uh, I forgot." "It's in the mail." "Oh, it's only my dentist's office on the phone, honey."

Or, she says, an adult may answer a child's question of "Why do I have to do that?" with the answer, "Because it builds character," rather than telling the child the truth, which is that the parent doesn't want to do it.

The second kind of lying is known as concealment.

"Much of what we try to conceal are our real emotions, some flaw or information," Palmer says.

An example of concealment is smiling when you are actually feeling sad or angry, she says.

"There is a saying, 'True honesty in human relations means saying what you mean and meaning what you say,'" she says. "With the two types of lying, the concealment is not saying what you mean and the falsification is not meaning what you say," Palmer says.

Why do people lie? Palmer says lying is predominantly a defense mechanism.

"We lie when we feel insecure, scared or we're trying to escape the consequences of our actions," she says.

But, she adds, untruths do more than just harm relationships. Individuals can wind up believing their own falsifications, especially those involving concealment.

"We can spend so much time concealing and falsifying that we can't remember the truth anymore ourselves," she says.

She says pathological liars have no control over their devious behavior. "They're not deciding one time to lie and another time not to lie. It's all part of their fundamental personality."

Such compulsive liars are driven by a combination of inherent manipulateness and a lack of empathy for the emotions of others. Having no feelings for anyone allows them to use people as objects in a controlling way, Palmer says.

"They're lying for the same reasons other people do, they're scared and anxious. But they're unable to be in a relationship in any way other than to be manipulative and deceitful," she explains.

How do you stop someone from lying to you? Palmer has these suggestions:

First identify the emotions the lie is trying to mask — such as a feeling of being frightened of the consequences of telling the truth.

Then change the conditions that provoke these feelings.

Even subtle lies have the capacity to weaken trust in relationships. "It's worth the effort to try to re-establish the trust that has been broken, both for the deceiver and the deceived," she says.
