2-year-old wins $1,000

Two-year-old Courtney Gaitan, 900 E. 12th St., is $1,000 richer after winning the St Thomas Catholic Church drawing grand prize, said the Rev Robert Vreteau of the church.

Gaitan's grandfather, Juan Gaitan, same address, won the $25 prize for selling the winning ticket, Vreteau said. The elder Gaitan said the money will go into a fund towards Courtney's education, he priest reported.

Henry Guzman, 12, 506 N.W Sixth St., won the $300 second prize; Mrs. Nicolasa Molina, 86 100 N.W. Fourth St., won the $100 third prize; and Daniel Arguelle, 1603 Canary St., wan the $100 fourth prize, Vreteau

The drawing was part of the church's Mid-Summer Festival. The festival raised about $14,500 for the church's effort to renovate the basement into a meeting hall, Vreteau said.

He said that $5,350 came from the raffle. Last year's raised $4,542, he noted.

Final vote near on Texas taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - With the finishing touches in place on the largest tax increase in Texas history, legislative leaders said a final vote on the $5.7 billion plan was near.

Both House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said they hoped the House and Senate could vote today on the legislation to raise the state sales tax to 6 percent and boost a variety of other Lawmakers end their current special session by Tuesday.

"If everything works the way I would like for it to work, we will vote on this tomorrow," Lewis said Sunday night.

The tax agreement was reached Sunday, after several days of closed-door talks, and some members of of the House-Senate conference committee said they weren't completely satisfied with the final result. But they insisted it was the best that could be done and predicted it would pass.

"It's not great. I don't like it. Nobody likes $6 billion tax bills.

Nobody wants to pass them. But I equitable package that can be regular session failed to write a think we did the best job we could do," said Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth.

The chief House negotiator, Rep. Dan Morales, voiced hope that taxpayers will realize the complicated plan is the fairest way to raise money to pay for the 1988-89 state

"I think the public is going to be satisfied that the Legislature has done what is necessary in the least painful fashion," said Morales, D-San Antonio. "It is the fairest, most fashioned under the state budget for the first time since circumstances.

Jim Kaster, Gov. Bill Clements' legislative liaison, indicated the governor probably would sign it. "I think he will," Kaster said. "Based on what was being talked about before, I don't see that there are any deal-busters in there."

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, a House negotiator, said he thinks his colleagues will accept the tax hike and end the special session that began after the Legislature's

"I think just about anything that got sent out (by the conference committee) would receive a majority vote at this point. People want to go home," Wilson said.

The biggest piece of the plan would raise the sales tax rate from 51/4 percent to 6 percent, and expand that tax to include a variety of items including garbage collection, private club fees, janitorial ser-

Hawks 'dive-bomb' passers-by who go too near to their young

With a sound of rushing air and beating wings, the hawk swooped from the sky toward Bebe McCasland. It missed her head only because she ducked at the last moment.

Bebe expected the attack attempt from the Mississippi kite — also called the mosquito hawk. She explained it's that particular bird's instinct to protect her young.

It was a less casual experience when the bird first swooped at Lavara Mitchell, 402 N.W. Third St., about two weeks ago. Mitchell was in a panic.

"It hit me so hard it's a wonder he didn't knock my glasses off," she said. "I was so upset."

The incident occurred as she was visiting her mailbox near the front-vard tree — the tree where the hawk built its nest, she reported.

Regional group will meet Wednesday in Big Spring

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will have its semi-annual general membership and board of directors meetings Wednesday at the Big Spring Country Club.

A luncheon will begin at noon and the board meeting will be conducted afterward. The speaker will be former state senator John Sharp, now a member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Members will review the Regional Development Review Committee recommendations regarding West Texas Opportunities Inc.'s application for funding and service expansion of the Section 18 rural public transportation systeme

The system serves Howard, Dawson, Gaines, Martin and Upton counties. The proposal calls for expansion into Andrews County.

West Texas Opportunities Inc. provides rural transportation services to the public and targets help to the handicapped and mobility impaired. The application requests $312,007 from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, $237,267 of local funds and $1,500 in fares.

Members also are scheduled to consider nominations and elect a small cities' representative to serve on the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission's board of directors.

It's 'one day at a time,' crime victims say

"The emergency room doctor has just told me my son is dead. I am very calm.

"I asked to see him, but was told that I could not.

"I asked to speak to someone with authority. A nurse came to me and said that I appeared to be a very strong person and that I could go in the room and see my son. "It was a very cold place."

Romona Rutledge, mother of Marc Rutledge, who was fatally stabbed Feb. 13, wrote those words shortly after her son's death.

President explains Howard staff cuts

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Howard College President Bob Riley replied "yes and no" to recent charges from a former instructor that the college is dismissing staff members as cost-cutting measures.

Riley said that the college had dismissed two instructors, but has hired two instructors in other areas of the school.

He added that one maintenance worker's position had been deleted, and that there were no plans to fill that position at the present time. The college Board of Trustees will consider hiring an assistant basketball coach and coordinator for the Learning Assistance Center during their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, Riley said.

Riley said that the instructors - in the cosmetology and nursing departments - were not renewed because of declining enrollment in those departments, and will be re-hired as soon as enrollment increased.

He said that the decision not to renew the teacher's contract — made at the April Board meeting — is part of a constant evaluation program at the college.

He explained that in times of large enrollment, the college has a corresponding number of teachers. In times of lower enrollment, however, teachers are re-assigned to other areas of the college if possible, or are not renewed. Riley added.

The two instructors hired recently will be with the college's Adult Reading Centers — one at Big Spring and one at the San Angelo campus — he said.

In a letter printed in Sunday's Herald, William Sprinkle — a former instructor at the college - questioned the need for dismissing employees and, at the same time, hiring additional staff.

Sprinkle said that positions such as assistant coaches were " ... non-essential when money is short," and asked why the college didn't leave those positions vacant and retain the nowdismissed staff.

Riley responded by saying that a basketball assistant was needed to insure that the students received the individual attention that they deserved.

"One man can't coach 18 men by himself," he said, adding that other departments beside athletics had assistants, and nobody complained about them.

He further defended the basketball program. "It is one of our best public-relation programs," he said. "It brings a large number of students here, and helps to create a collegiate atmosphere.

"If we didn't have programs like that, we wouldn't have as large an enrollment as we have," he added.

ted, she said she never did shoot at the birds - resorting instead to a call to police for help.

Police, in turn, called bird rehabilitator Mc-Casland, who advised the Mitchells to carry an open umbrella when they venture into the yard. The birds are afraid of umbrellas and won't dive if one is near, she said.

The strategy worked.

These days, passers-by can see Lavara Mitchell walking under a clear blue West Texas sky, black umbrella in hand.

She also telephoned friends, who, armed with their own umbrellas, visited to observe the bird family. Lavara also uses the umbrella to escort customers to her home beauty shop — to and from their cars, she said. Mississippi kites, with their sharp talons and beaks and a three-foot wingspan, can be frightening when they swoop, McCasland said. But they usually only come within about 18 inches of a person, she added. The parent birds often will dive at humans who come too near the nest while the baby birds are too young to fly, she explained. That period lasts about three or four weeks, McCasland noted. The danger is nearly over at the Mitchell house, she said, as the young ones prepare to leave the nest.

The fledgling hawks are beginning to spread their wings. This reporter watched one of the two babies as it recently flew from its home tree to a nearby tree, with Mama close behind.

Instead of seeking to rid their property of the feathered guests, the Mitchells decided to live with them until the babies leave the nest. Then McCasland promised she'd remove the empty nest to discourage

"I'll sure appreciate it," Lavara said. McCasland understands.

Her husband, Chon, rarely talks over the painful emptiness she feels.

"It takes quite a bit to put up with them," she said, calling Lavara's efforts with the birds exemplary. "I admire her for being willing to carry the umbrella, coexist and be a part of nature.'

Huey Mitchell likes to sit on the porch and watch the birds carry food to their young, Lavara said.

"It's like the song 'Take your burdens to the Lord ... Remember how he feeds the little birds,' " she said.

When Lavara enters the yard with her open umbrella. the parent birds will watch from the branches of a nearby tree. When they prepare to dive, they pull their wings close to their bodies, she observed.

"They knocked the yard man's cap off." Lavara said, adding that an unsuspecting insurance agent also became a victim. The birds summer here and winter in Argentina and Paraguay, McCasland said. They have a gray body, ash-gray head, black tail and deep red eyes, she said. Their call is a distinct "Kee-eeee

The hawks actually are a beneficial bird, because they control the locust population, McCasland explained. They also eat grasshoppers, beetles, small snakes, lizards, frogs — even bats.

They like to live in elm, mulberry and pecan trees because of the abundance of leaves for hiding, Mc-Casland added.

She stressed that it is a felony to burt one of the hawks and a crime for people to remove the babies from the nest.

If anyone is having problems with the hawks, Mc-Casland can be contacted at 267-6536 or 263-0203, or a message can be sent to the game warden through the sheriff's office, she said.

AUSTIN (AP) - Secretary of vices, landscaping and lawn ser-State Jack Rains said Monday he vices, interstate long distance phone service and custom computer software. All that would raise about $3.7 billion.

The negotiators dumped a plan to collect in advance part of future the 1988 presidential primary date corporate franchise taxes after that came under fire from the governor and others.

"Super Tuesday," to coincide with They approved an occupation tax on doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, real estate brokers and some other licensed professionals. That fee would raise about $50 million, lawmakers said.

"They are the professions, by and large, which are most able to pay," Hobby said.

The new taxes would fund a $38.3 billion state government budget finished by another House-Senate ference committee on Friday.

Rejecting suggestions that voters might be angry over the size of the tax hike, Morales said the state needs the money for vital services. "I think we have a much more sophisticated citizenry than many people give us credit for having," he said.

Senate negotiators had insisted that businesses shoulder a part of the tax hike, which resulted in the occupational tax on professionals and an increase in the general corporate franchise tax rate. That would rise from $5.25 per $1,000 of taxable capital and surplus in Texas to $6.70.

Parmer said he is satisifed a balance was struck, saying, "The bill represents a reasonable balance between taxes on consumers and taxes on business.' Among other items included in the tax increases are: • Continuing the motor fuels tax at 15 cents a gallon, rather than allowing it to roll back to 10 cents per gallon on Sept. 1, as scheduled. That raises about $889 million. • Increasing the cigarette tax from the current 20.5 cents per pack to 26 cents, raising about $126.3 million. • Increasing the hotel-motel tax from the current 4 percent to 6 percent, raising $50.6 million. Boosting the sales tax on motor vehicle sales from 5 percent to 6 percent, raising 317 million.

• Imposing a 20 percent insurance company surtax, raising $88 million.

The tax conference committee's negotiations — mostly behind closed doors - went on for more than three days.

Not everyone approved of the way the negotiations were carried out — in private meetings rather than in public.

The Saturday amd Sunday sessions were conducted with negotiators shuttling between offices behind the Senate chamber.

Pennzoil to settle for $4.1 billion

NEW YORK — Pennzoil Co. has prepared a reorganization plan for Texaco Inc. that would allow Texaco to pay Pennzoil $4.1 billion of the more than $10 billion judgment it lost in a lawsuit, reports published said today.

The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal reported in Monday's editions that Pennzoil would make its proposal known in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in White Plains, where on April 12 Texaco filed for Chapter 11 protection.

That filing stemmed from a judgment, now valued at $10.3 billion, that was awarded to Pennzoil after a Houston jury found that Texaco had improperly acquired Getty Oil while Getty was engaged in a merger with Pennzoil.

Search continues for last teen-ager of bus accident

COMFORT (AP) — National Guardsmen and volunteers returned to the banks of the Guadalupe River again today to search for the body of a teen-ager who sacrificed his life to save friends after a church bus and van were swept away by floodwaters, authorities

An all-day search was halted at dark Sunday, and the guardsmen, along with state and local law enforcement officers and volunteers, were asked to resume their search beginning at dawn today for John Bankston, 17, of Dallas.

Department of Public Safety area supervisor Charles Seale said teams were sent out around 7 a.m. Heavy equipment was being used along a mile or two stretch where searchers believe the body may be, based on odor and the location where four other victims were found, he said.

About 200 people were expected to take part in the search today, according to Seale.

Bankston is the last of 10 teenagers who drowned Friday when the two church vehicles, carrying

The 6-foot-2-inch Bankston helped to save other teens from the Seagoville Road Baptist Church caught in the raging floodwaters before he himself was swept away, witnesses told authorities.

"He could have survived, but from witness reports, the last time he was seen, he was going underwater," said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Tom Mobley

About 400 people participated in the search Sunday while at the Seagoville Road Baptist Church in Balch Springs, a southeast Dallas suburb, mourners grieved for the dead and missing.

Officials said today's search would be concentrated in a twomile area where four bodies were recovered

"We'll keep going as long as it takes. There's no time limit," Seale said Sunday.

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinions from around the state

Recommends study of tax system

Attention has focused on the sales tax in Texas because it apparently will play a key role in any legislative effort to unravel the state's current financial crisis.

In the midst of this discussion, State Comptroller Bob Bullock is issuing warnings that Texas is headed toward having one of the most complicated and confusing sales tax structures in the nation.

Among the 10 largest states, Texas has by far the most complicated sales tax structure.

It is important that our system not be made more complicated.

In addition, it indicates the importance of studying other solid means of getting revenue for state and local governments. San Antonio Light

The industry is missing out on a great revenue enhancing endeavor. Maybe they can't see the dollars for the smoke.

Retarded care needs more money

Whatever else comes of the week-long contempt trial on care of mentally retarded Texans by the state, it seems indisputable that, as U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders said, more money and resources should be devoted to that

The Legislature should see to it that improvements are made in the level of funding and in the treatment accorded retarded citizens.

The Legislature ought to meet its obligations to adequately fund mental retardation programs, and it should insist that court orders be carried out to the letter. If the programs are adequately funded and the orders still aren't carried out, some people at the top of the state mental health and retardation agency need to be replaced with people who can do the job.

Reagan administration duped journalists for more than year

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON - Forgotten amid all the Iran/Contra hearings and headlines is the fact that, for more than a year, the Reagan administration duped reporters with a campaign of disinformation.

The administration set up Libya's erratic Moammar Gadhafi as a scapegoat, portraying him as the chief terrorist menace, at the same time that it was selling arms to the real menace, Iran's implacable Ayatollah Khomeini. While posturing in public against terrorism, the White House was making overtures behind the scenes to the Iranian mullahs, who had instigated most terrorist attacks on Americans.

On Dec. 27, 1985, for example, terrorists gunned down 18 innocent passengers, including five Americans, at the Vienna and Rome airports. The administration tion's word. The White House had immediately isolated Moammar grown very knowing about the Gadhafi as the culprit behind the attacks.

Yet trusted intelligence sources told us, as we reported, that "the airport terrorists had been trained in Iran" and that their leader, Abu Nidal, has been on Khomeini's

After the attack, an administration task force, headed by Vice President George Bush, issued a report condemning terrorists. Secretary of State George Shultz followed up with a scathing denunciation of terrorism, offering no quarter to nations that supported it. He neglected to mention that, even as he spoke, the United States was offering arms to Khomeini's terrorist regime.

President Reagan, meanwhile, turned up the heat on Libya. He charged in a public speech that he had "irrefutable evidence" that Gadhafi had "engaged in armed aggression against the United States.'

He imposed economic sanctions on Libya and ordered all Americans to leave the country.

Jack Anderson

This was accompanied by a wave of official statements and leaks depicting Gadhafi as the abominable terrorist.

Most reporters were in the position the government likes to have them in: They took the administrapress — about its limited resources, its short attention span, its difficulty in portraying complex issues, its inability to function when information is cut off.

So angry Americans, conditioned by the press assault, cheered when in late March a U.S. task force defied Libyan warnings and steamed into disputed waters off the Libyan coast. Then on April 5, a bomb exploded in a West Berlin discotheque killing two people. President Reagan lashed back on April 9, calling Gadhafi "this mad dog of the Middle East" and ordering an air raid on "terroristrelated" targets in Libya.

The president stood proud and tall, the scourge of terrorists, upholding American honor. Yet all the while, he was secretly doing business with the terrorist most in need of scourging, Ayatollah Khomeini. For Gadhafi is merely the tail of the terrorist rattlesnake; Khomeini is its head.

Our own role in this tumultuous drama is dubitable. As it happened, we were the only reporters who knew all along that the White

But his most important qualification is, his confirmation fight will be ugly enough to distract attention from the Iran-contra scandal."

House was engaged in backchannel negotiations with Iran. We knew the negotiators included some subterranean figures whom we had previously linked to the CIA renegade Edwin Wilson.

In testimony at the Iran/Contra hearings, former Pentagon official Noel Koch said Dale Van Atta had confronted him with the hushed-up details in early December 1985. "He had it cold," Koch testified. Had we rushed into print with all we knew, it might have blown the sordid negotiations sky-high. It could have halted the arms shipments to Iran. It might have prevented the illegal diversion of profits to the Contras. In short, it might have stopped the blunders and crimes that produced the Iran/Contra scandal and rocked the Reagan administration.

But we listened to the entreaties of high administration officials, including the president himself, who begged us to hold back the story until the hostages were released. Some officials pleaded with us; others screamed at us.

They warned that the hostages would be killed if we wrote about the secret negotiations. We thought about those hostages, particularly our colleague Terry Anderson of the Associated Press, in the evil clutches of Khomeini's terrorists. There are seasons when it is a close call, but we agreed to withhold the arms-for-hostage story.

Not until the bombing off Libya did we change our minds and start to tell the story — as delicately as possible, still withholding some sensitive details to avoid reprisals against the hostages.

THE PLASTIC TRAIL: The State Department, for reasons of its own, recently began making moves to keep Soviet diplomats from getting American credit cards. The FBI got wind of the plan and lodged a venement objection. Credit cards, the G-men pointed out, are one of the best ways they have to keep track of their Soviet targets' habits and whereabouts. The FBI won the argument.

Rapist-slayer executed

ANGOLA, La. — Willie Lawrence Celestine was executed in Louisiana's electric chair early Monday after asking forgiveness from the family of the 81-yearold woman he beat, raped and strangled six years Celestine, 30, was put to death at Louisiana State Penitentiary for the brutal 1981 murder of Marceliane Richard of Lafayette Parish.

In a four-minute WILLIE CELESTINE recorded confession, played during his trial, Celestine said he was drunk and "full of speed" when he strangled Mrs. Richard and broke seven of her ribs and a vertebra in her neck after raping her.

These apartment buildings were cut in half when a mudslide crashed against them after torrential rains Saturday. The consequent wall of mud swept a hotel away, leaving at least 12 people dead in the Valtellina village. Approximately 5,000 were left homeless in the wake of the downpours.

Thousands of Italians abandon homes

SONDRIO, Italy (AP) - Rescue workers today searched through acres of mud in the Italian Alps for victims of flooding and landslides triggered by heavy rains. Officials said the death toll rose to 19.

Eight other people were missing, 50 were hospitalized and thousands were left homeless after a four-day downpour flooded mountain streams and rivers and sent mud cascading down wooded slopes. One landslide destroyed a resort hotel.

Heavy rain in southern Switzerland also caused flooding that forced the evacuation of hundreds of homes. Police said three people died in a car accident on a rain-slick road.

The Italian Civil Defense Ministery said the few bodies that had been identified by today were Italian, but did not say how many were identified.

Two rescue workers on a mission to bring out a heart attack victim were injured when their helicopter hit electricity lines and crashed as it was preparing to land north of Bergamo.

The sun came out today and floodwaters began receding from the region, a tourist mecca and a leading producer of fine wines, cheese and smoked meat.

Officials said damage was estimated at $800 million in the stricken area, stretching over a 150-mile-wide area from Bergamo, east of Milan, up to the Swiss border and to Bolzano to the east.

Thousands of troops and civilian rescue workers waded today through lakes of mud to reach isolated villages. Helicopters and heavy trucks ferried food and water to evacuees, while helicopters plucked survivors from rooftops of houses and hotels.

Hardest hit was the Valtellina Valley, near the Swiss border, where a mudslide slammed into the Hotel Gran Baita and a three-story apartment building in the tiny village of Tartano.

The Civil Defense Ministry said 12 people were killed in that landslide and two reported missing. At least 20 people were injured and taken to hospitals

An official from Sondrio said the hotel was 'completely destroyed, covered by mud and rocks." State-run RAI television said 10,000 people in the Valtellina area were forced to abandon their homes. One survivor of the landslide, Vittoria Piobellini, said: "I was watching television with my husband when I saw him carried away by the mud. The bodies of four young men were found today in a car submerged in the mud in Sant' Antonio Morigone, just south of Bormio near the Swiss border. Three other people were killed when they were swept into raging streams in the Alto Adige region, officials

Demjanjuk fires lawyer

JERUSALEM - Retired U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk fired the chief defense attorney in his Nazi war crimes trial today despite the refusal of the Israeli judges to grant a delay in the proceedings.

Presiding Judge Dov Levine accepted Demjanjuk's decision at a special hearing but denied a defense request to postpone the trial beyond a month-long recess already granted Demjanjuk's attorneys.

The trial will resume July 27 when Demjanjuk takes the stand.

DEAR ABBY: I am originally from Texas. Four years ago, I had a brief affair with a married man. The result was our 31/2-year-old son. Shortly after his birth, I moved to Oregon. My son's father (I'll call him Bob) is an attorney in Texas. He pays child support faithfully. We used to talk long distance occasionally, and I sent him pictures of our son regularly. He never told his wife about me and the baby.

Four months ago Bob's wife found out, and although she can't stop the child support, she has forbidden any further communication. He's not allowed to ever see, speak or write to me or our son. Birthday and Christmas gifts are forbidden. Bob and his wife have two little boys — one is $2\frac{1}{2}$ and the other is 8 months old. His wife doesn't want their sons to ever know they have a half-brother in

How can I explain this to our son? He knows his father's name and has recently started asking when "Daddy" is coming to see him. I don't want our son to feel reiected. I won't make derogatory remarks about his father because he is a good man.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you suggested a portable cordless telephone for people who work in their yards a lot and rush back into the house to answer the phone but seem to get there too

As one with 13 years of professional experience in electronics, I believe the public should be warned about the lack of privacy when using these devices. Cordless telephones transmit conversations using short-wave radio signals. Many users are under the false impression that because the unit operates only within a limited range, the signal travels no farther. Not so. With a very cheap receiver, I have overheard conversations from cordless telephones from over a mile away, and this experience is not uncommon.

Another warning: Certain types of cordless telephones are vulnerable to "hackers" who could electronically break into your telephone line and charge their toll calls to your bill.

The public has a short memory. In 1972, the Watergate burglars were caught trying to place a transmitter in the telephone of the political opposition. Had cordless telephones been available at that time, they could have merely presented their target with one as a "gift," and listened to their heart's RAYMOND F. GAWRYLA.

DEAR ABBY: I am a junior at Carl Brablec High School in Roseville, Mich. Recently, a police officer from the local police station came to our school to put on a program for the juniors and seniors. The purpose of the program was to explain in full detail the dangers of reckless and drunk driving.

The name of the program was "Scared Stiff," and some of us were really scared stiff when we saw the slides of some terrible accidents, and he told us the tragic stories about each one.

The majority of accidents had to do with drunk driving, but that letter from your column titled "Please God, I'm Only 17" was the most impressive part of the program. It was the last thing on the program, so everyone left much more somber than when they went in. It really gave us something to think about before going to the prom that night.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) -It was a game Nick Faldo had played many times before, and that Paul Azinger was playing for the first time.

Both golfers may play it many times again before they retire, with one big difference.

Faldo will do it as a player who won the British Open. Azinger will do it as a player who gave it away.

Three shots up with nine holes to go, the 27-year-old American bogeyed four times on the homeward run as Faldo completed a rare round of nothing but pars to win the 116th edition of the world's tunate to have done it."

It was a putt that Azi oldest golf tournament by one stroke on Sunday. He had a final 279, five under par.

Played in thickening mist on the moors of Muirfield, it was a childhood dream come true for Faldo, an Englishman who turned 30 a day before his biggest celebration.

'When I started playing golf as a kid, on the putting green, it was always, "This putt's to win the Open," he said. "Now, I'm so for-

It was a putt that Azinger failed to make that gave Faldo, in his seventh try, the title no Englishman had owned since Tony Jacklin in 1969.

The collapse by Azinger, among the greatest in the history of golf's major tournaments, kept the United States winless in the championship since Tom Watson's fifth victory in 1983.

Playing outside the United States for the first time, the 27-year-old Holyoke, Mass., native looked ready to join the notable list of golfers who won the Open on their first try. Since World War II, only three have done it: Ben Hogan, Tony Lema and Watson.

Azinger had built a one-shot lead to three through the first nine

While Faldo, armed with a retuned swing, kept missing birdie putts and staved off bogeys with strong iron play, Azinger was storming to birdies on Nos. 4, 5 and 8.

"I came out of the box playing like a trouper," Azinger said. "But it was not my turn to win." He bogeyed the 10th and 11th to fall to even par for the round.

Faldo kept making par. Azinger missed a seven-foot putt for a birdie on 12, starting five par holes in a row, ending that string with another blown birdie chance by leaving a 10-foot putt short on 16.

Faldo kept making par. On the 17th, Azinger misclubbed and sent his tee shot into a fairway

"That cost me the golf tournament," he said.

Azinger took three more shots to get to the green, then left a 20-foot putt for par just short.

Faldo kept making par, right through the last hole, where he stroked a 15-foot birdie putt past the flag and needed to make a tough four-footer to stay even.

The putt rolled up a small hill, quivered for a minute, then suddenly gathered second wind and plopped in the cup.

Mattingly has developed an aura of a baseball immortal, and this past weekend in Texas he tied the kind of record that proves it.

Mattingly homered in eight consecutive games, tying the record set in 1956 by Pittsburgh's Dale

On Sunday, under a blazing Texas sun and the glare from TV camera crews from around the country, Mattingly tried to make it nine straight.

He didn't do it, but he had a single and double in four times at bat to raise his average .342.

"I'm not disappointed it's over." Mattingly said. "I knew it was over tonight one way or the other."

Mattingly was more concerned that the Yankees were routed 20-3 by the Texas Rangers, as a game that dreams are made on turned into a nightmare.

The first baseman says individual records are nice. But he already owns a batting title and a MVP Award, and he yearns to be a champion like Gehrig, Ruth, DiMaggio, Mantle and Maris.

"I've really never looked at it for myself," said Mattingly, who has 73 hits in his last 176 at-bats, a .414

"I just want to help the club. It doesn't help them if I try for homers. I call baseball an individual-team game. You do what you can, but you do it for the club.

Mattingly has done a lot for his club.

He was the AL MVP in 1985 and the runner-up last season. His 238 hits in 1986 broke the Yankees' alltime record for one season and his 53 doubles broke Gehrig's club record of 52, set in 1927.

It seems every week his name is popping up in the Yankees' record book with the club's all-time ed to left-center on an 0-2 pitch. Again on an 0-2 pitch in the fifth, Mattingly lined out to first baseman Mike Stanley.

In his final at-bat in the eighth against Jeff Russell, he doubled to

'There was one pitch I think I could've hit for a home run," Mattingly said. "It was the second pitch I got from Harris. It was a fastball.

After tying the record on Saturday night and saying he might intentionally try for the record, Mattingly reverted Sunday to his team concept of baseball.

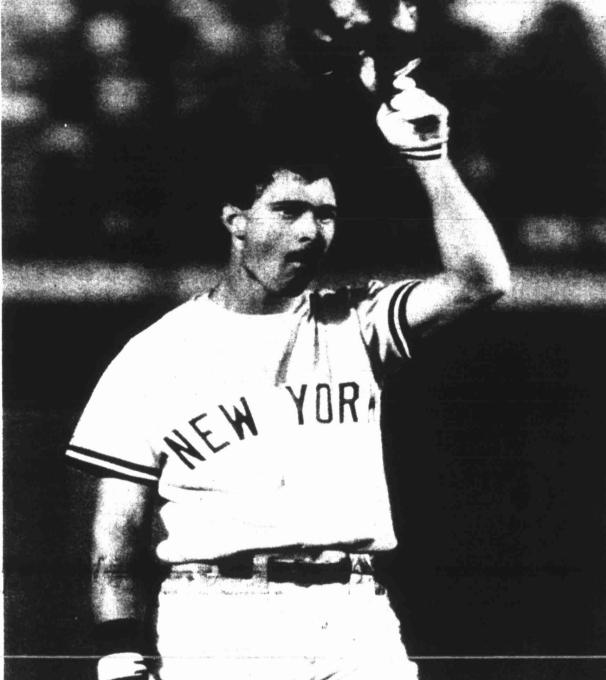

"If I break the record, do we get two extra wins?" he asked rhetorically before the game.

Mattingly's record-tying streak started on July 8 against Minnesota 9, he homered against the Chicago White Sox's Rich Dotson and the following day he hit a grand slam off Chicago's Joel McKeon.

He hit solo home runs off Chicago on July 11 and 12. After the All-Star break, Mattingly hit two homers against Texas on July 16, including a grand slam, his fourth of the season, tying the Yankees' club season record set by Gehrig and tied by Tommy Henrich.

On Friday, he established an AL record when he homered in his seventh consecutive game, connecting against Texas' Paul Kilgus.

Clark blasts out of slump; Astros' woes continue

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer As far as the San Diego Padres are concerned, Jack Clark's slump ended one day too soon.

"I didn't like the way things were going," said Clark, who broke out of a slump with two home runs Sunday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the

Before his long-ball breakout in the last meeting between the two teams this season, Padres' pitchers had held Clark to only one hit in 11 at-bats and struck him out eight times in the three previous games of the series. But on Sunday, Clark hit a two-run homer in the sixth and then the game-winner in the 10th to to give him a careerhigh 28 homers and boost his RBI total to 89, both tops in the National League.

"It was the worst series I've had all year at the plate," Clark said. "I wanted to pick things up where they left off at the end off the first half. But I got a slow start. I'm just glad I was able to pick myself up, and pick up the team.

Just before the game, Padres Manager Larry Bowa had made a prophetic statement about Clark's Nolan Ryan, 4-11, was the loser, going 2 1-3 innings and giving up one run on two hits before leaving the game with a strained muscle in his right hip. The loss was the sixth straight for Ryan, who has not won since June 12.

"This is probably the best I've pitched this season," Ruffin said. Other than the home run pitch, I was ahead of the batters all day. I was making them hit first and second pitches for ground balls. That's what I've been striving for."

Expos 2, Braves 1 Herm Winningham's RBI single with two outs in the 11th inning gave Montreal a four-game sweep over visiting Atlanta.

Hubie Brooks hit a one-out double off Jim Acker, 0-5, before Winningham bounced a ball up the middle for his game-winning hit.

Andy McGaffigan, 1-1, pitched one inning for the victory, which extended the Expos' winning streak to seven games.

Both starters, Rick Mahler for the Braves, and the Expos' Neal Heaton had shutouts until Ted Simmons hit an RBI single for Atlanta in the seventh. Montreal tied the game in the eighth on Casey Candaele's first major-league home

Mets 6, Reds 5 Kevin McReynolds' bases-loaded single with one out in the 11th inning gave New York a rain-delayed victory over Cincinnati.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: People are apt to have poor judgment today, so plan to be alone in your endeavors. Keep your diplomatic attitude, and avoid taking any chances now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to worry over letters you get from afar. Accept the conditions as they are and work around them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You could be led into some practical situation which you do not like, so study it well and come out on top.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't argue with partners today or there could be a severance of connections very easily, and unfortunately.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't let a private anxiety interfere with your work. Be sure to keep business life and social life separate.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Try to keep a friend away from your mate, as he or she is not feeling up to par.

Plan your time intelligently.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some new situation appeals to you very much, but finish what you've started before you get into it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you carry through with some promise you have made. Don't downgrade your security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure of your facts and figures when dealing with money. Be more willing to do what your mate desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You will find it difficult to get an associate to agree to a fine plan. Avoid any confrontation in public.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are tired and want to break up the present situation, but don't do anything foolish you will regret.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid that friend who likes to criticize. Put your family first. Schedule your time wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan time to rearrange the conditions at home. Don't permit a personal wish to cause you to neglect your mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will skip from the past to the future and should have a fine education. One who may seem slow in learning, this one will actually be ahead of the others because everything learned will be retained. Teach him or her to be consistent, though, and to avoid stress.

Texas schoolchildren seek support for ladybug

Frances Adamson and her fifth grade class look over the letters they have received from Gov. Bill Clements and Texas legislators during their campaign on behalf of making the ladybug the official in-

McLEAN (AP) — If ladybug, ladybug decides to heed the old nursery rhyme and fly away home, a group of McLean fifth-graders hopes the insect will choose Texas for its official residence.

The youngsters are lobbying to have the ladybug proclaimed official state insect, and so far have put a bug in the ear of about 115 state officials.

Texas has a state shell, gem, stone, bird, flower and tree, but no state insect.

The class already has had some success in its quest. McLean City Council members voted unanimously June 23 to proclaim the ladybug as official city insect, and Gray County commissioners on July 1 proclaimed it the official county insect and sent a resolution to area legislators and Gov. Bill Clements endorsing the ladybug for state insect.

"Because it's friendly and 'cause it helps crops and stuff," class member Jeremy Thomas explained when asked why the ladybug was chosen for special

"It helps farmers by eating aphids and helps the wheat crop," added Tommy Pennington. Erin McCracken, whose letter to the state of Pennsylvania as part of a class project started McLean's ladybug movement, said the little ladybug's appetite for aphids helped California fruit-growers save their crops in the early 1900s.

Teacher Frances Adamson said the project began in May, after she decided to try something different to teach letter-writing in English class. "Every year we write the letters, and this is a pretend letter, and the kids hate it," she said. "They don't pay any attention to it." But this year, Ms. Adamson said, she decided to combine English letter-writing with what the class was learning about U.S. history and geography in social studies. Each classmate picked out a state to write to for information, Ms. Adamson explained. Erin's response from Pennsylvania officials included a few sentences explaining how the Keystone State got the firefly proclaimed its state insect after a third-grader wrote to the governor about it.

Ms. Adamson said the class wanted to do the same thing in Texas, and after researching books and encyclopedias at McLean's Lovett Library, decided that the ladybug's value to Texas farmers made it the logical choice.

"I said, 'Are you serious about it?' "Ms. Adamson recalled. "They said 'Yeah!' They all just chimed

She said their enthusiasm has not let up even though school is out for the summer.

Indeed, the city of McLean has been decorated with posters everywhere, urging citizens to support the ladybug as official city, county and state insect. A display has been set up at the library.

Ms. Adamson said the city has gotten behind the class, too, donating stamps for their numerous letters to state officials.

"I had no idea when we started this that this thing was going to snowball," Ms. Adamson said. "They're excited because maybe they're going to get something done, and a lot of it's that adults are pay-

Attention has come in the form of about 30 letters received from the likes of Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, state Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, and area Reps. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, and Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian. The students also received responses from legislators as far away as Corsicana

With a few exceptions, most of the letters supported the idea, but said it would have to wait until the 71st Legislature meets in 1989.

At last report, Clements hadn't added the ladybug proposal to the agenda of topics for the current special session.

Tips shared on traveling with kids and living to tell

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — It's every parent's vacation really be amazed at?" nightmare: Trapped in a car 200 miles from home with 200 miles to go and the kids are in the back seat, fighting over who gets to sit by the window.

 But Gwynne Scholz has a secret weapon. Stick-on dots. Hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of multicolored, varied size stick-on

"If you want them to have visions of peace when they get there, you have to give them visions of peace along the way," she said. That's where the dots come in.

The same age children who become absorbed with building blocks — ages 2½ to about 12 also become absorbed with the stick-on dots found in office supply stores to color-code file folders.

"You can put two dots on a paper and ask the child to draw a line to connect them," Ms. Scholz said. "You can draw an airplane and say to the child, make the dots into wheels or windows.' ... They will make rainbows, whole herds of people, complete bestiaries out of dots ... Parents have told me, "Thank god for dots."

Pipecleaners can be used in much the same way, she said. She said, however, neither should be given to children who haven't stopped stuffing everything in their Parents must remain aware that cars, buses and planes place unnatural physical restraints on a child, Ms. Scholz said.

"There's a vacancy of the brain that takes place with the window," she said. "After X number of miles, the brain shuts down and can't process anything more airplane), family faces.

visually. How many clouds can you

It occurred to her, while watching a frantic mother try to keep a toddler calm on a long airplane flight, that no one ever gives parents tips on how to travel with kids, she said

Ms. Scholz, owner of Trespassers William children's bookstore in Albuquerque, since has printed up 12 pages of tips for parents and has offered workshops on traveling with small children and living to tell about it.

'When kids are whining and crying, they are probably bored and understimulated. They need to have their brains engaged because their bodies are immobilized," she

Books come in handy as long as a parent's vocal cords hold out, Ms.

She suggests reading a book that's a little above the child's level "Trouble for Trumpets," a picture book "so incredibly full of wonderful, wonderful pictures, hundreds of secret messages, as well as a plot of good guys vs. bad guys."

For ages 2 to 4, she recommends a pop-up book "that is going to give its life to the cause of travel. When you get where you're going, the pop-up will deserve a decent

Ms. Scholz also recommends a photo album for 2-year-olds. Parents should take a mini album that holds one picture per page and fill it with pictures of familiar things: the child's house, the family car (if they are traveling by

Dog owners, pets team up i for contest

AUSTIN (AP) - This was a contest where having a dog face was an advantage. Six people sought to play up physical similarities with their Pizza inn. dogs Saturday in a pet look-alike contest. The contest benefited the Austin Robin L. Buckridge said that both she and her mother see the similarity between Robin and Tanner, a canine described by its owner as a cocker-hound mix.

"I just think we're both kind of frumpy," Ms. Buckridge said.

Christine Hudson had to maneuver her shy 10-year-old Lhaso Apso, Misty, into position to show what she thinks makes them alike.

"I guess in the eyes, maybe the hair," said Hudson.

The judges named Ms. Hudson and Misty the best look-alike pair, but since every dog has its day, Misty got to pick the prize.

She chose an extra-large rawhide newle over an etched mirror with a picture of a dog on it.
