

Councilman argues for fund repayment

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The City Council should consider a property tax increase to repay money used from the capital improvements fund, Russ McEwen suggested Monday.

The rest of the Council did not appear to support the suggestion.

Councilman Russ McEwen said he fears the city will use all the money in the revolving capital fund and have nothing left for future expenses.

The Council borrowed about $950,000 from the fund to finance the trash baler project in about 1984, anticipating scheduled repayments, said Tom Ferguson, city finance director. A single repayment was made in 1985-86. However, when the oil bust hit and tax revenues plummeted, no additional payments were made, he said.

The fund originally amounted to $1 million, and now has about $212,000, Ferguson said.

"I'm very extremely concerned," McEwen said. "We're running the city out of gas. We're going to do something that some council in the future" will have to pay for.

A future council will be forced to resort to a bond election to replace worn out, costly equipment if the fund is depleted, he said.

Although the 1987-88 budget is balanced, McEwen indicated he would vote against it unless provision is made to repay part of the money.

Although Councilman Johnny Rutherford agreed "we're not doing what we need to do" to repay the fund, he did not appear to support a tax increase.

"Every single time I've heard the issue raised, it's been 'We just can't do it right now,'" he said.

McEwen suggested raising property taxes from 68 to 78 cents per $100 value, which Ferguson said would raise about $320,000 a year.

McEwen noted the last tax increase was six years ago.

Mayor Cotton Mize said citizens are making less money than they did six years ago and can less afford a tax increase. If taxes go too high, property owners will move to nearby communities, he said.

Mize said he wouldn't hesitate to recommend such a measure if economic times were better, but he agreed that a tax increase cannot be postponed for long.

McEwen asked whether taxpayers would be more burdened with a tax increase now or with a lack of funds for capital projects later.

He admitted advocating a tax increase would be difficult in the face of inevitable citizen opposition.

Councilman D.W. Overman noted the city is owed about $500,000 in delinquent taxes, but said he doesn't anticipate being able to collect most of it.

If taxes are not raised, the Council should cut capital expenses and use the Victims: 'Ignored by system'

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles focusing on Big Spring victims of violent crimes.

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Ask any Big Spring crime victim. They likely will agree that they feel largely ignored or forgotten by our justice system — a system that focuses on the criminal.

It appears that all the laws were written to protect the rights of criminals rather than the rights of those who are victimized, one local crime victim said recently.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said he understands how victims might feel forgotten by the criminal justice system.

Victims often are ignored — except for their role as witnesses, he said.

"They get caught up in the system; I don't think it was intended to be that way," Standard said.

"Many times, because of the nature of our work, we (police) don't have the luxury of considering victims as much as they deserve," Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook said.

Standard stressed the importance of reporting crimes — especially sexual crimes, which often go unreported.

"Heinous crimes need to be investigated," he said.

When a violent crime occurs, the Big Spring Rape Crisis/Victim Service office is notified, Standard said.

That was the agreement, approved about two months ago, between the sheriff's office and Victim Services Assistant Director Lisa Brooks — so victims are better informed of their rights, the sheriff explained.

The Big Spring Police Department has a similar policy of notifying the Rape Crisis/Victim Services office.

"Most of us are not aware of what's going on around us ...; I don't think the general public realizes the potential for crime," Standard said.

Other area crime victims were quick to criticize the system.

"It took months to get him in prison," a local rape victim said of her assailant.

"I asked many questions and many times I was told, 'Oh, that's against his rights,'" she said.

"I thought when someone was a criminal, he didn't have any rights; but I guess it's the victim who doesn't have any rights," she added.

The man, who pled bargained and received a 15-year sentence, could be released on parole in a short time, she said.

"Plea bargaining is like saying: Do you want ham for Christmas or do you want turkey?" she said.

The woman said she lives in fear that her assailant may soon freely walk the streets again. After the initial assault, he returned to her home and held her hostage for five hours, threatening to kill her because she reported the first assault, she reported.

Now she said she receives threatening phone calls in the middle of the night — warning her

Firefighters' suit decision within 10 days

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A decision is expected in about 10 days in the lawsuit pitting the firefighters against the city involving retirement benefits.

The case came to trial this morning in 118th District Court.

District Judge Jim Gregg said he will review the case and make a decision on summary judgment in that time, said Craig Deats, attorney for the firefighters.

Firefighters contend in the class action suit that the city violated state statutes when it cut their salaries to increase retirement benefits.

State law requires the city match firefighters contributions to the retirement fund, up to nine percent.

Deats compared the action to cutting salaries to meet a state-mandated unemployment tax increase.

Drew Mouton, attorney for the city, contends the city's actions did not violate the law.

He presented a statement by Finance Director Tom Ferguson that the city's an-

TODAY

• Big Spring Art Association will meet at 7 p.m. in the Art Building at Howard College. Mary Nicholas of Midland will demonstrate portrait drawing.

• Howard County Jaycees will have a "get acquainted" party from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Old Settlers Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park. There will be free snow cones for the children.

FRIDAY

• The College Park Church of God teenagers will have a car wash at Cousin's Convenience Store, at the corner of Gregg and W. Fourth streets from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. The cost is $5 per car and proceeds will go to pay for the group's planned trip to Six Flags over Texas.

Coahoma selects West Texan to head district

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Gary Rotan, San Angelo, is the new superintendent of the Coahoma Independent School District.

The Board of Trustees selected the San Angelo school district's director of special projects after the Board's executive session Monday, Board President Jim Wright announced.

Rotan — chosen over Eula School Superintendent Bill Daughtery — is to assume his responsibilities with the district July 27. He will be paid $47,506, Wright added.

A "very strong background in financial matters" was the major reason the Board selected Rotan, according to Wright. He said that Rotan's personnel experience also was a major consideration.

"His management skills are right at the top," Wright said.

The 39-year old native of Nolan has 18 years of educational experience, Wright said. Rotan began his career teaching in Sweetwater in 1969, becoming a career counselor in 1971.

From 1974-78 he was responsible for student job placement for Nolan, Mitchell and Taylor Counties, and became summer school principal for a Sweetwater elementary school in 1978, Rotan said.

From 1978-85, he also was director of supplementary vocational programs for the district, and was the director of the evening extension program at Western Texas College's Sweetwater campus, the superintendent-select said.

For the past two years he directed San Angelo special projects and staff development, he added.

"I'm very elated at the confidence the Board showed in me," Rotan said of his appointment. "I know this will be a working superintendency, so it's time for me to roll up my sleeves and get to it."

He and his wife Rita have two children. Wayne, 18, is a recent graduate of San Angelo High School and plans to attend Texas Tech University in the fall. Their daughter Rachelle, 16, will be a junior at Coahoma High School this September.

In other business, the Board:

• Tabled hiring of teachers until its July 27 meeting and further discussion on teacher's salaries until its August 17 meeting.

• Accepted the resignation of Deedra Burke, a junior high teacher.

Area unemployment rates climb slightly during June

Herald staff report

More residents of Big Spring and Howard County were unemployed in June than in the previous month, according to a five-county report released today.

Big Spring's June jobless rate remained in double digits as it climbed one percent from May — from 10.3 percent to 11.3.

The county's jobless rate, meanwhile, is listed at just under the double-digit mark as it rose from 9 percent in May to 9.8 percent in June, according to the monthly report from the Big Spring office of the Texas Employment Commission.

The report also gives figures for Borden, Dawson, Gaines and Glasscock counties, and noted that only Glasscock had a jobless rate of less than 9 percent — listed at 3.6 percent for June.

The TEC release states 1,562 Howard County residents were without jobs in June, compared with 1,433 jobless residents in May, and 2,296 in June of last year when the county's unemployment rate was 14.4 percent.

Big Spring TEC Office Supervisor John Eckley said the figures surprised him.

Because schools are closed, Eckley said he had expected the total Howard County labor force to rise, instead it dropped by 86, from 15,997 in May to 15,911 in June.

A labor analyst in Austin described the change as an adjustment in the figures, Eckley said.

More claims were filed last month than in May, Eckley said, explaining that some had expired and those residents had to file new claims.

Dawson County had the highest June unemployment rate — 13.2 percent, a climb from 12.8 in May. A year ago, 19.7 percent of the county's work force was unemployed.

Area unemployment remains well above the 6.3 national rate and the 9.6 Texas rate.

Of the five counties, only Glasscock, with a total labor force of 975, can beat the national average. Glasscock statistics show that 35 people were unemployed in the county in June.

Borden County had a 12.8 percent June jobless rate, compared with 15.7 percent a year ago, and Gaines County recorded a 9.9 percent June rate, down from a rate of 18.2 last year.

Because of the July 18 closing of the Big Spring K mart store, Eckley said he doesn't expect any improvement in the unemployment rate next month.

House tax bill, budget push falter

AUSTIN (AP) — A new bid to complete work on the state budget and a tax increase failed in the House today, continuing to deadlock action on the special session's final day.

After repeatedly failing on Monday to find enough votes to immediately enact the largest tax increase in state history, House leaders today sought to soften a "doomsday" plan that had raised the ire of Republicans and some conservative Democrats.

But that tactic angered other Democrats who insisted that lawmakers whose districts benefit from higher taxes should be required to vote for them. The House rejected the amendment plan on a 106-36 vote.

If action isn't completed on the $38.3 billion budget and a $5.7 billion tax increase by midnight, lawmakers would be forced into HOUSE page 2A

Employers hampering amnesty process

From staff and wire reports
Local employers fearing that they will be charged back taxes for assisting undocumented workers applying for amnesty are hampering area aliens, a local volunteer said.

Teresa Rocha, coordinator of volunteers assisting area aliens apply for legalization, said several employers have refused to write letters stating that aliens have been in their employ.

The aliens are paid in cash, live on the ranches and, without an employer's statement, have no documentation to prove they have been in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982, she said.

The problem is one of several that have some saying the new immigration act is not working. In El Paso increased arrests of undocumented aliens in the region and fewer applications for amnesty under the immigration reform law show that recent changes aren't working, the law's critics say.

Approximately 30 aliens have been assisted with the application process in Big Spring. Others have applied on their own. Rocha said she knows of about a dozen local residents who have received temporary residence status under the law. "They're watching to see what happens," Rocha said of aliens who are eligible for amnesty under the law, but who haven't applied.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officials claim that opponents of immigration reform are twisting statistics to fit their biases.

The Immigration and Reform Act imposes fines on undocumented workers' employees and allows aliens who have lived in the country since Jan. 1, 1982, to obtain permanent residency status.

The idea is to lower demand in the United States for undocumented workers by punishing their employers.

Opponents of the immigration law point out that 16,777 undocumented aliens were arrested in the El Paso region in May and that the number jumped to 19,046 last month.

In the first half of this month, 10,806 aliens have been arrested by the Border Patrol, despite the widely publicized deaths of 18 aliens who suffocated in a locked boxcar they boarded in El Paso.

"They will risk everything to work," said

Jose Rodriguez, chairman of the El Concilio de El Paso organization, which helps aliens in their amnesty applications. "The bill does not address the reason people come over, and that's why it won't work."

But Jim Glasgow, chief of the INS Legalization Center, said a more accurate picture of whether the law is working is to compare this year's arrests with last year's.

Border Patrol statistics show that 27,865 aliens were arrested in May 1986 and about 25,000 were arrested in June of last year — much higher than this year's figures of 16,777 for May and 19,046 in June.

Al Giugni, INS district director, said illegal border crossings in the El Paso area are rising now because the employee sanctions are not being levied yet.

Employers still are being taught what the law requires, he said. The "education phase" will not be completed until next June, Giugni said, adding that he expects border crossings to decline after that month because employers who hire illegal aliens will face fines and jail sentences.

that he is returning to kill her.

"If I have a violent offender, I make it a habit to notify the victim when the subject will be released," Big Spring District Parole Officer David Harman said.

Harman supervises parolees in a six-county area from his Big Spring office.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles will notify victims if they completed a victim impact statement and requested notification, Information Officer Barbara Slaughter said from the board's Austin offices.

Victims can request an impact statement form from the district attorney in their area or write directly to the board, she said.

"Victims are not notified unless they request it; some don't want to be notified," Slaughter said.

"This state doesn't need prisons; they (the prisons) have revolving doors. They (court authorities) put them in and let them right back out," the rape victim said.

Another crime victim agrees.

"People should wake up and realize what kind of justice we have in Big Spring," said Alicia Yanez, whose son Jimmy was fatally shot in November 1985.

Preston Crawford received 10-years probation in connection with the shooting.

"Don't the people care about human lives?" she asks. "Didn't my son mean anything to them?"

It's as though the justice system is saying: "Go kill someone because you can get away with it, but steal from the 7-Eleven and you'll get put in jail," Eva Rutledge said. Her husband, Marc, was fatally stabbed in February.

Raymond Calderon, who was blinded permanently by a gunshot blast in the face on Easter Sunday, 1986, is quick to point a finger at the local system.

"Everyone in Austin thinks there is something wrong in this town," said Calderon, who attends a school for the blind in the state capital.

Workers at the school think punishments for violent crimes have been too lenient in Big Spring, he said.

"This man destroyed my life and destroyed my home," Calderon said.

The man Calderon spoke of is Pedro Cantu, 1511 Johnson St., who received 10 years probation for the shooting that blinded Calderon.

Cantu was sentenced May 18 and is required to pay $100 a month restitution into the state crime victims' fund, according to the District Clerk's office.

Money from the fund is used to compensate victims and their families for personal injuries or financial debt incurred as a result of a violent crime.

The criminal justice system is bent over backward to assure the accused of his rights, said Lisa Brooks, assistant director of the Rape Crisis/Victim Services office.

Meanwhile, victims of violent crimes often are left to fend for themselves, she said.

another special session.

"I don't know what went wrong," House Speaker Gib Lewis said Monday night after a chaotic day in which the House failed repeatedly to ratify a compromise tax plan to pay for the $38.3 billion budget compromise.

"I think its down for the session," Lewis said. "I don't see how we can ... vote this Tuesday (today)."

Senators voted 26-5 in favor of a $4.8 billion increase in the state sales tax, which would rise from 5 1/2 percent to 6 percent, and other levies.

Both the House and Senate also had approved an $889 million increase in the gas tax, which would remain at 15 cents a gallon instead of rolling back to 10 cents on Sept. 1 as currently scheduled.

But 100 of the 150 House members were required to vote for the big tax bill so it could take im-anticipated revenues were less than anticipated expenses at the time.

"The ultimate question is, 'What do you do if you don't have the money?'" Mouton said.

An audit after the fact shows expenses were about $6,200 less than revenues, he said.

Mouton added that meeting both the retirement benefits and the pay raise for firefighters would have cost approximately $14,000.

He cited the Supreme Court case Wichita County vs Griffin, 1955, in which an entity not participating in the budgetary process was responsible for instituting pay raises for court reporters.

The entity raised court reporters' pay after the budget had been passed, he said.

The court ruled that when funds are available the pay raise cannot be denied, Mouton said.

The firefighters' pay raise already was in effect and the budget already had been passed on second and final reading when the firefighters' union voted to increase the retirement benefits, he said.

mediate effect. That was the catch.

The closest the House came on a series of ballots was 91, as Republicans and some conservative Democrats balked.

Rep. Mike Toomey, R-Houston, said many of those lawmakers were upset by a so-called "doomsday" clause Democrats put in the state budget that would strip away spending increases for universities in the conservatives' districts if the 100 vote total wasn't reached.

"If they're going to rape us ... we're going to fight," Toomey said. "The whole process is being stalemated by some other members trying to get 10 more conservatives to vote for a tax bill that their districts don't want them to vote for."

Lewis, the House speaker, said the failure to act could mean lawmakers will be summoned into another special session when the current one ends tonight.

"... I don't see any effort for anybody to change their vote. So therefore, I don't see where we can progress any further," Lewis said.

Failure to pass an immediate tax hike, Lewis said, would reduce the total tax haul by $313 million and keep the budget from balancing, as required by the Texas Constitution. That means the sales tax that would take effect later in the year would have to be 6 1/4 percent, he added.

"Those people who have voted against putting it into immediate effect have, in reality, voted for a (even larger) tax increase," Lewis said.

The doomsday plan so angered Gov. Bill Clements that he vowed to withhold his promised support for the tax and spending bills until it was removed.

"It's punitive. It's discriminatory. It's inappropriate and it's in very poor taste. That's wrong," Clements said.

Fire marshal post still in debate

Applicants for the city fire marshal position are seeking considerably more pay than the city planned for, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

He told the Council Monday at its budget work session that an alternative should be considered.

Fire department employees should assume responsibility for the fire safety duties, and the city should hire an employee to enforce codes governing weedy lots and abandoned buildings, he said.

The fire marshal previously was responsible for both duties.

Wofford had been reviewing applicants for the fire marshal position, recently vacated when Jim Ryals retired.

Officials say city politics reason for raise denials

Internal politics is the reason three utilities employees' positions were not upgraded several years ago, when similar positions received a raise, city officials said.

The discussion occurred during the Council's budget work session Monday.

Two cashiers and a customer service supervisor may receive a raise, totaling $2,400, under the new budget.

Finance Director Tom Ferguson said that under the city's pay plan, the positions should have been upgraded several years ago when the computer was added.

The item has been on budgets the past few years but has been vetoed, he said.

West Texas - Scattered showers and few thunderstorms in the far west through Wednesday, otherwise sunny days and fair at night in much of the area. Lows tonight will be in the 60s, and near 70 in most of the south. Highs Wednesday will be in the 90s.

State

An upper-level storm system over the northern Gulf of Mexico triggered showers and thundershowers on Monday along the Texas coastal plains, while daytime heating brought scattered rainfall in northeast sections.

The storms continued to move along the upper Texas coast. A high-pressure mass over the eastern states as well as Texas brought warm, humid air across the state, keeping skies generally partly cloudy.

Patches of haze dotted Central and North Central Texas. High temperatures warmed into the 80s and 90s across the state. Extremes were 75 degrees at Kingsville, which had registered 92 before a thunderstorm moved through the area, and 97 at Cotulla.

money instead to repay the revolving capital fund, McEwen said.

Council member Pat DeAnda said the number of police personnel has increased despite population decreases in the past 10 years.

McEwen said the increase has been in mid-management, from one to two captains and from one to four lieutenants.

Police Chief Joe Cook said the proposed 1987-88 budget eliminates 3 1/2 positions within the police department. The department could not function with a second personnel decrease, he said.

"I'm not trying to pad that department," he said. Cook said the increased crime rate, rather than the decreased population, has more to do with the number of officers needed.

The Council agreed to cut a proposed $140,000 expense from the Airport budget by not constructing 10 T-hangers.

City Manager Mack Wofford said he anticipates a citizens' appeal to fence off the runway on which a 19-year-old Big Spring girl was killed Friday. Katie Mings of Big Spring was in a fatal motorcycle accident on an airport runway.

The $140,000 may be needed for that purpose, he said.

MONAHANS — The seventh annual Monahans Quarter Horse Show will be held July 25-26 at Curly's Roping Arena and the Ward County Fair Grounds.

Roping events (heading and heeling) will be held at Curly's beginning at 7 a.m. each day. The county arena will feature halter classes following the roping.

Other classes offered will be halter, buggy driving, English riding, western, speed, barrel racing and pole bending.

Competition will be divided into four categories: two youth divisions, 13 and under and 14 through 18; amateur and professional.

In addition to American Quarter Horse Association points, those riding in the professional classes also will be going for $1,350 in payback monies, according to show manager Frank Krhut.

Police find body of Austin woman

SAN ANTONIO - The body of a woman whose blood-spattered truck was found in the surf off Mustang Island has been found in a San Antonio apartment, police say.

The woman's truck was found June 26 in the surf off Mustang Island near Port Aransas.

The body of Diana Cordova, 25, was found in the bathroom of a friend's apartment Sunday, police said.

Ms. Cordova's body had no signs of traumatic injuries, said Kellye Norris, a spokeswoman for the Austin Police Department. Ms. Cordova had been seen alive Sunday morning, so she had been dead only a few hours, authorities said.

A spokesman with the Bexar

County Medical Examiner's office said authorities will await the results of toxicology tests, expected in six to 10 weeks, before ruling on a cause of death.

Ms. Norris said Austin police will continue investigating the case, because several questions remain unanswered, including whose blood was in the truck.

Blood was found splattered on the windshield, seat and dashboard inside the 1986 GMC truck, which was found about 50 feet out in the surf near Port Aransas.

Authorities did not know Ms. Cordova's blood type yesterday and, therefore, didn't know if it matches that found in the truck, Ms. Norris said.

Sheriff takes blame for shooting

ANDERSON — Grimes County Sheriff Bob Foster says he is to blame for his spare gun being used by a jail trusty to shoot a deputy to death during an escape.

An emotional Foster made the statement a few hours before a large contingent of law enforcement officers cornered James Herbert Mann in an area a few miles southeast of Anderson and captured him without incident.

Foster said Mann, 26, who had been convicted on two robbery charges, shot deputy Wesley Alford to death during the Sunday night escape from the county jail.

Mann was arrested after he confronted a rural Grimes County family and demanded car keys and cigarettes. He was shot once in the leg with a shotgun during the confrontation with the family, but managed to escape from that area.

Mann was taken to a local hospital, but Foster said Mann's wounds were from shotgun pellets and that Mann was not seriously injured.

Coast Guard tracks oil slick in gulf

SABINE PASS — U.S. Coast Guard crews are using a helicopter and beach patrols to track a 6-mile-long oil slick in the Gulf of Mexico, a Coast Guard spokesman says.

The oil slick was drifting toward shore late Monday between High Island and Rollover Pass, according to John Holmes, a spokesman at the Coast Guard Marine Safety Squadron office in Port Arthur.

The slick, which includes at least 100 barrels of light crude oil, began about 6 a.m. Monday when a tank overflowed at an offshore rig owned by Energy Exploration Co. of High Island, Holmes said.

The rig is about five to eight miles offshore of Sabine Pass.

"The sheen is 20 yards by six miles," Holmes said. "We have crews patrolling the beach between High Island and Rollover Pass with cleanup operations ready to begin at the beach."

The slick was about five miles offshore at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Holmes said.

Volunteers enlisted in body search

COMFORT — Fatigued searchers pleaded for more volunteers today in what could be a futile hunt for the only teen-ager still missing after a rain-swollen river engulfed a church bus and van.

The Texas Department of Public Safety asked farmers and ranchers along the Guadalupe River to search its banks today for John Bankston Jr., 17. Nine other youths died Friday when the vehicles from the Seagoville Road Baptist Church were swept away in the river's worst flooding in 55 years.

But it's possible that Bankston may never be found, said Lt. Bill Robinson of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Kerrville.

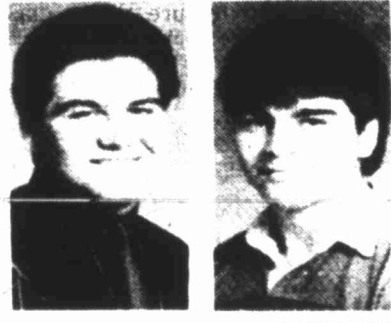

About 50 National Guardsmen and 100 state and area law enforcement officials and volunteers used horses, helicopters and rubber rafts Monday in the search along 18 miles of the river before stopping about 8:30 p.m.

"We won't stop until after we've done everything humanly possible," said Charles Seale, DPS area supervisor.

as far as we are concerned," said Leo Soto, a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officer in charge of four INS legalization centers in Central and South Texas. The centers opened May 5 to process amnesty applications for illegal aliens who have lived in the United States since before Jan. 1, 1982, and meet other qualifications.

Aliens convicted of more than three misdemeanors or one felony are not eligible for amnesty. The INS defines a felony as any crime that carries a maximum of more than one year confinement in jail or prison.

MIKE LANE JOHN BANKSTON

Lawyer says INS unfair to aliens

AUSTIN — Austin immigration lawyer Paul Parsons says aliens with DWI records are being treated unfairly when they apply for amnesty in Texas.

Parsons said Monday that amnesty applicants with drunken driving convictions in Texas are being recommended for denial by immigration authorities because Texas law provides for longer jail sentences than other states.

Although first-offense drunken driving is a misdemeanor in Texas, it meets the immigration definition of a felony because offenders could be sentenced for more than a year in jail.

"That's the definition of a felony

as far as we are concerned," said Leo Soto, a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officer in charge of four INS legalization centers in Central and South Texas. The centers opened May 5 to process amnesty applications for illegal aliens who have lived in the United States since before Jan. 1, 1982, and meet other qualifications.

Aliens convicted of more than three misdemeanors or one felony are not eligible for amnesty. The INS defines a felony as any crime that carries a maximum of more than one year confinement in jail or prison.

Guards spattered with AIDS blood

HUNTSVILLE — Four state prison guards were spattered with the blood and urine of an inmate diagnosed with AIDS, but none of them has yet tested positive for exposure to the deadly disease, officials say.

Three guards and a prison nurse at the Beto I Unit in Anderson County were dispensing medicine to inmates at the prison infirmary on June 23 when they opened the door to the cell of a 19-year-old inmate and saw him slicing his wrist with a razor blade, according to prison reports.

The guards wrestled the razor away from the inmate and put him in restraints, but not before being covered with the inmate's blood, the reports said. The inmate is serving a life sentence for a Dallas County aggravated sexual assault.

Two of the three guards had breaks in their skin on their hands and could possibly contract the disease, said Jerry Taylor, a representative of the Texas State Employees Unions.

A preliminary investigation showed that the guards were warned that the inmate had an infectious disease, but Taylor said they were not told that the disease was AIDS, or acquired immunodeficiency syndrome.

Woman pleads guilty to murder plot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A lawyer says he'll seek probation for a Texas woman who pleaded guilty to federal charges that she used interstate telephone lines to hire someone to murder her husband.

At the request of her husband, U.S. District Judge A.J. McNamara Monday let Carolyn Sue Huebner, 29, of San Antonio, remain free on $5,000 bond until her Aug. 26 sentencing. She faces a maximum punishment of 7½ years' imprisonment.

Larry Huebner and his wife, Carolyn, of San Antonio, stand together outside a federal courthouse Monday after Mrs. Huebner pled guilty to charges stemming from an alleged plot to hire someone to kill her husband in New Orleans, La.

Standing with his arm around his sobbing wife's waist, Larry Huebner told the judge: "I stand behind her... Both I and our (5-year-old) daughter need her now. I do not fear for my life from Carolyn."

"To a great extent, it's you, Mr. Huebner, who are making the decision," McNamara said.

Her lawyer, George Simno III, said he would ask McNamara for probation on grounds that Mrs. Huebner was confused and overcome by stress as a result of her work with sexually abused children in Texas.

"I never thought I'd be driven emotionally to do what I did. For many reasons, I was confused," she said after Monday's proceedings.

"The reason I pleaded guilty was basically to get this thing behind me, to protect my family from a very lengthy trial.

"I'm glad today's over. I'm tired," said Mrs. Huebner, a nominee for 1987 Woman of the Year in San Antonio and president of Texas Child Search.

The FBI said Mrs. Huebner gave a suburban Gretna man a $500 downpayment on $10,000 contract to kill her husband, a San Antonio oil company executive, when the couple arrived May 23 on a visit to

New Orleans.

The plan was to kill Huebner the next day as the couple walked in the French Quarter, the FBI said. No motive was ever disclosed.

The Gretna man, who has not been identified, was operating as an FBI informant when he allegedly received the money, authorities said.

The payment, in travelers' checks, was made with money Mrs. Huebner withdrew from the Texas Child Search bank account in San Antonio, the FBI said.

Simno has said the Gretna man contacted Mrs. Huebner a year ago and volunteered to do private investigative work for Texas Child Search.

"My husband never did anything to deserve my actions," Mrs. Huebner said after Monday's proceedings.

JULY 21 1987

Law depends on employers

The time has come for employers to do their part in enforcing the new immigration reform law. As of July 1, they must be prepared to prove that anyone they hired after Nov. 6, the date President Reagan signed the immigration bill into law, is legally entitled to work in this country. And, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization officers will be making the rounds to make sure they comply.

But even though the new rules mark a historic milestone — the first time the U.S. government has held employers legally liable for hiring undocumented laborers — there is no cause for panic.

The INS, which was painfully slow in informing employers of the new rules and getting them the forms they need, is not launching any sudden crackdown. In fact, the agency at this point is more interested in educating the business community. Except in instances of flagrant, repeated violations, the INS will issue only warnings and citations until May 31, 1988.

This initial leniency is a must if the INS is to fairly enforce the new sanctions against employers. In fact, the entire reform effort will founder if employers start firing workers needlessly. That would only fan the fears of undocumented workers, who've already exhibited reluctance to ask their bosses to help them legalize.

The INS is granting workers temporary work papers until Sept. 1, while their amnesty applications are being processed. After that, workers must prove their legal residency to the employer.

Employers won't be penalized for keeping them on the payroll unless the INS denies their amnesty applications. Nor do employers need to fire an undocumented alien who may not have lived in the United States long enough to meet the amnesty requirements but was hired before Nov. 6. The employer isn't responsible for checking the legal status of any worker hired before Nov. 6.

Most important, the new law must not result in discrimination against Hispanics or anyone who sounds foreign. That is why the INS requires employers to demand documents from all new employees, even if they know they are U.S. citizens. And that is why they've assigned INS officers to investigate discrimination complaints.

The immigration law places a new burden on employers, and its success may well depend on whether they are willing to help make it work.

Alcoholic seeks God's help

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am in an alcoholic rehabilitation center right now. It is my third trip here after almost a lifelong battle with alcohol. I am doing all right, but down inside I fear what will happen when I am released because I know I don't have strength to resist temptation. Can God somehow help me? — H.T.

DEAR H.T.: Yes, He can help you — and He wants to help you because He loves you and does not want you to be destroyed by alcohol.

Don't be afraid, therefore, of turning to Christ and asking Him for help. Right now you are carrying a heavy burden, and Christ invites you to give Him your burden and let Him help you.

"Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls" (Matthew 11:28-29). He will never fail you or reject you, and He will help you if you will let Him. Open your heart to Christ today.

God may help you in several ways. For example, He will give you a new purpose for living — a new desire to live for Him. He also will help you by giving you a new set of friends — other Christians who can encourage you and help you when temptation comes.

He also can help you face the deeper problems that may be troubling you. As you probably discovered, many people turn to alcohol because they are trying to "solve" a problem in their lives. They may be escaping from some responsibility or attempting to hide from a personal emotional problem. But whatever the reason, Christ can help you face your problems and deal with them.

Never forget that God loves you. You may feel you are unworthy of His love, but God does not love us just when we are good. He loves us all the time. Accept His love by accepting Christ, and then seek His help to live for Him every day.

AP Quotes

"Bork is a staunch conservative, a strict constructionist who will make the court more representative of the values of the founding fathers and the majority of Americans." — L. Brent Bozell, president of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, referring to President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

"Mr. Bork's record on constitutional and civil liberties suggests that he would move us into the next century by repealing many of the gains in rights and liberties won in this century." — John H. Buchanan, president of People for the American Way, a liberal lobbying group, on Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court.

White House aides bristle at 'pig-piling' by the press

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan appears to have weathered the Iran/Contra storm, unruffled by the howling voices on Capitol Hill and the scowling reporters who dog him. I visited him in the Oval Office on the day Lt. Col. Oliver North began his testimony.

The president seemed unperturbed by the mini-furors exploding around him, and was still a conciliatory figure, with the same infectious amiability.

The same appeal was at work in his voice, an instrument made pleasing to the ear by the affections, enthusiasms and sorrows that played through it. But I thought I detected a slight shrillness, just a hint of acrimony, in his tone when he spoke about the press' coverage of the Iran/Contra scandal.

The president said he had been too busy to watch Col. North's appearance, except for 10 minutes of highlights during lunch. He understood that the colonel's testimony confirmed his own statement that he had not been told about the illegal diversion of funds to the Contras. Yet none of the television reporters had mentioned this, he complained, in their summaries of the testimony.

Reagan reiterated that he had no advance knowledge of the illegal use of excess profits from the arms sales to Iran, that he wasn't even told the Iranians paid an above-market price for the American arms. The U.S. government, he said, collected the full market price — $12 million. "I'm still trying to find out who raised the price," he said.

For his first six years in the White House, Reagan floated cheerfully above such squalls as mere reporters could stir, secure in the esteem of a majority of Americans. Try as they did, reporters could not find a story that would shatter the Reagan imagery. Not until the Iran/Contra scandal exploded upon the front pages were they able to crack the shell of immunity that surrounded Reagan.

Yet he feels he has been a victim of press scourging that has illuminated every mishap in his administration. The process is described inside the White House as "pig piling." Accusation after accusation against the Reagan administration has been highlighted in the media.

Most charges have been ill-founded, overblown or oversimplified, the president feels. But as they have piled up, they have created an atmosphere around Reagan that stifles his ability to govern.

I heard these complaints less from the president than from his assistants. He merely made a kidding remark about the "tough time" this column occasionally has given him.

But his embattled aides are deadly serious about the media assault upon the president. I have had access to some of their internal memos on the subject. Here are a few bristling excerpts:

"We should accept the fact that the Washington media are what they are. Their interpretational program is never going to be supportive no matter how hard we try to woo them."

"The press will remain allies of (the) Democratic Party because of two simple facts: We have a left-center working press and, frankly, (scandals) make news."

"Press and media judgments are like personal judgments — frequently self-fulfilling."

"(The media's) anti-administration cant will not stop. There is absolutely nothing the Republicans can do about it."

All President Reagan wants is the kind of neutrality asked of the Lord in the story about the country boy who was running along a railroad track inside a long, narrow tunnel while a train bore down on him from behind. As hope of escape withered, he cried out, "Lord, if you can't help ME, for God's sake don't help the train!"

PHYSICIAN, DIAGNOSE YOURSELF — The Army appears to need some diagnostic systems for its diagnostic systems. The sophisticated systems — multimillion-dollar military versions of the electronic diagnostic machines used by your up-to-date neighborhood garage mechanic — are not doing their job, according to congressional investigators.

They are supposed to pinpoint mechanical and other problems in such weapons as Pershing, Patriot and Hawk missiles automatically for quick and easy maintenance.

But the investigators found that in six out of six tests, the diagnostic systems failed to perform. And the corrections — to the diagnostic systems, not the missiles — can be expensive. Fixing the Patriot diagnostic machine cost $94 million, for example.

The Army has admitted problems with the diagnostic systems for existing weapons, and says it plans to avoid future difficulties by being more specific with the Contractors — and running early tests.

MINI-EDITORIAL: There are those who sneer at Mikhail Gorbachev's "glasnost" policy. But we're not so sure it doesn't have advantages for the West, if properly exploited.

Applicants seek North's job

By ART BUCHWALD
Ollie North's recent job in the White House has been one of the most sought after in the country. Every lieutenant colonel in the United States wants it, and intensive interviews are being conducted by the NSC to fill Ollie's shoes.

"OK, who's next?"
"I am, sir. I love my country and will do anything legally to protect it, even if it turns out later that it's illegal. I'll go up the hill and down with anyone in the Executive Branch of government."

"Now, colonel, this job requires somebody who is brave, strong, unrelenting and willing to be the fall guy on television. How does that grab you?"

"Who do I have to be a fall guy for?"
"Anybody who ranks over you or under you. We expect you to follow orders or not follow them, whichever is most convenient to the President."

"Does this mean I should consider myself a loose cannon on the deck of the ship?"

"That is one of the most important parts of the job."

"I can do that, sir. When do you want me to go to Tehran?"

"Tehran is off limits since we sold them arms which they now have announced they would shoot at our ships."

"Selling arms to Iran was a dumb thing to do. Who is the jerk who thought of that one?"

"We have to assume it came from the top."

"You mean Bill Casey?"

"Of course. He's dead, so he now can be blamed for everything."

"What about the Gipper?"

"Don't expect him to remember anything if you get caught."

"If I can't go to Tehran, where do you want me to go?"

"We want you to go to Country

No. 2 and pick up money for Country No. 1, but don't talk to Country 3 unless it's absolutely necessary. When you deliver the money to a bank in Switzerland, be sure to use Gen. Secord's number. But don't touch Albert Hakim's account or that of the Ayatollah's."

"Who gets the money?"

"Everybody, but it has to be kept secret from the Israeli Chamber of Commerce."

"I get it — you want me to lie like an officer and a gentleman."

"We don't want you to lie, but that is the only way to run the country. Don't worry about the consequences. Ollie lied and he's now in clover."

"I know I'll never be another Ollie North, but I pray I can keep my traveler's checks in as good an order as he did."

"Now, colonel, let's get down to the serious business. How good are you at shredding classified documents?"

"I won my letter in it at the Naval Academy."

"Here's a shredder. Sit down over there and start shredding. Don't quit until I tell you to stop."

"Hey, this is fun. What do I do besides shred?"

"In case you get subpoenaed by Congress, take this poison pill."

The ultimate in tall tales: Junk mail

By CARMINA DANINI
Laredo Morning Times

LAREDO (AP) — Junk mail. I love it because it offers the recipient such a variety of what can only be described as Tall Tales. Some are promotional gems, offering this or that; others provide a good laugh or two while others are insults to the reader's intelligence.

Recently, I received a letter from an outfit called the North American Notification Center. Because the envelope is the same color as the stationery used by the Internal Revenue Service and because of my recent problems with the agency, my heart started racing.

Not to worry; the letter stated that I was receiving "positive official notification" that I have been selected to receive at least one gift from Category A listed elsewhere in the letter.

The letter also assures that YOU ARE NOT OBLIGATED TO PURCHASE ANYTHING. (I thank the North American Notification Center for including those words in capital letters; obviously someone there knows I have trouble seeing something unless it is sitting on my nose.)

The Category A gifts are His 'N Hers 1987 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supremes, a set of Gloria Vanderbilt Designer Luggage and a five-inch portable color television.

According to the letter, all I have to do is meet the simple conditions of eligibility listed on the reverse of the letter. If I redeem the gift certificate by July 30, "YOU WILL DEFINITELY RECEIVE ONE OF THE VALUABLE GIFTS IN CATEGORY A."

Not only that, but if the words "Two Gifts" has been marked in the gift assignment code box at the top of the form, an additional gift from Category B or C will also be mine.

Lucky me. It happens the "Two Gifts" box is so marked. The gifts listed in Category B are a 1987 Fleetwood Tioga motorhome, an RCA 45-inch color TV with videocassette recorder and a code-a-phone telephone answering machine.

The Category C gifts are a 1987 Ford 4X4 Bronco II, a Grillmaster gas-fired BBQ grill and a Magnavox 4-inch TV with AM-FM radio.

Now all I have to do is to take the attached "Gift Guarantee Certificate" to the Thousand Trails Information Center at Medina Lake any Thursday through Monday between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Those good folks even included a map and driving directions on the back of the letters. They must also know my sense of direction is atrocious. If I'm going for an interview to a location unknown to me, I always make it a point to leave 45 minutes to an hour earlier than the appointed hour to compensate for my getting lost and finding the correct address.

Also on the reverse are the conditions of eligibility but I needed a magnifying glass to read them. Aha! I am assured I am being given the "opportunity" to participate in the special Thousand Trails introductory offer, without obligation to purchase anything.

Still, all those who are eligible will have to listen to a 1½-hour sales presentation. That's OK with me. According to the conditions of eligibility, all those who sit through the sales pitch will be awarded a gift(s). It's not much to ask. It would be rude to grab a prize and dash off without listening to them.

However, I am worried by the following: "This promotion is specifically designed for credit-worthy people with household incomes over $25,000 per year or retired individuals with a steady source of income. To qualify for this promotion, you (or your spouse) must be at least 25 years of age, and be currently working full-time (or have a steady source of income). If married, you and your spouse must listen to the sales presentation together."

Clearly, I don't qualify because my household income is not in the $25,000 per year range. Then too, I don't like the odds for winning: for the cars, the odds are 1:100,000; for the luggage, 99,996:100,000 and for the portable TV, 3:100,000.

The odds are far, far less than this letter is going to be ditched in the trash can.

Donors file PTL suit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim and Tammy Bakker have been accused of fraud and racketeering in a lawsuit filed by a West Virginia couple who said they contributed $1,000 to the PTL television ministry.

David and Sarah Combs sued Monday in U.S. District Court here, claiming that PTL, under the Bakkers and former executive director Richard Dortch, misled the public about hotel benefits contributors would receive.

The couple said they paid $1,000 in May 1984 for a lifetime partnership that they were told would give them a free three-night stay each year for life at the Heritage Grand Hotel. The hotel is located at Heritage USA, the Christian theme park and PTL headquarters in Fort Mill, S.C.

737 jet has near miss

SACRAMENTO — A Delta Air Lines Boeing 737 passenger jet making its final landing approach was forced to turn sharply to avoid a small single-engine aircraft, federal officials said Monday.

Delta Flight 1943 from Los Angeles made a 35-degree bank at 10,500 feet to avoid a Cessna that came to within a quarter mile of the larger plane, said Russell Park, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

There were no injuries and the Delta plane landed safely, Park said, adding that he did not know how many passengers were on board.

Sculpture shattered

TRENTON, N.J. — "Birds of Peace," a priceless, life-size porcelain sculpture of swans loaned by the White House for a Moscow exhibit, sits in pieces in a studio after being smashed on the return trip.

The sculpture was one of only three copies made from plaster molds weighing 10 tons that were destroyed in 1974, said Helen Boehm, owner of Boehm Studios, where the sculpture was cast.

"I've been crying for two days," Mrs. Boehm said Monday as the shards of broken porcelain lay spread out on a table before her at the studio.

The sculpture took two years to create, Mrs. Boehm said. About 60,000 sculpted lines make up the swans' feathers.

NBC, union resume talks

NEW YORK — Negotiations in the NBC strike resumed for the first time since the 23-day-old walkout began, but both sides offered little hope the 2,800 strikers would be back on the job anytime soon.

The network and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians met Monday, and agreed to continue bargaining today, said federal mediator Timothy Germany.

Gulf war U.S. flags hoisted on tankers

FUJAIRAH, United Arab Emirates (AP) — The Stars and Stripes were hoisted on the masts of two Kuwaiti tankers today as U.S. warships prepared to escort the first convoy of reflagged vessels into the perilous waters of the Persian Gulf.

Pentagon officials said the 600-mile trip to Kuwait's oil loading terminals was tentatively scheduled to begin tonight, local time.

Maritime shipping officials said the flags were hoisted without ceremony on the supertanker Bridgeton, formerly the al-Rekkah, and the oil products carrier Gas Prince, formerly the Gas al-Minagish. "The flags are up," said the Fujairah-based agent of a Western shipping company.

The reflagging was confirmed by Anthony Quainton, U.S. ambassador to Kuwait, in a telephone interview from Kuwait with ABC's Good Morning America.

"There is ... a sense of hope here in Kuwait with the Security Council resolution having gone forward yesterday, the first reflagging having taken place this morning and a lot of activity," he said, referring to the passage Monday of a resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war.

"I can't confirm the exact time of departure or arrival, but the movement of the tankers will take place in the very near future," Quainton said.

Both ships were lying at anchor two miles apart in international waters in the Arabian Sea south of the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow gateway to the gulf. The American missile cruiser USS Fox, the missile destroyer USS Kidd and two frigates were moored nearby.

In Washington, Pentagon officials said Monday the reflagged tankers would set out for Kuwait and pick up Navy escorts tonight or early Wednesday local time. The Persian Gulf is eight hours ahead of Eastern Daylight Time.

The American flags were hoisted on the vessels shortly after the U.N. Security Council unanimously voted for a U.S.-sponsored resolution demanding an end to the nearly 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Iran, which has targeted Kuwaiti vessels in recent months, has said it will not be deterred from attacking the tankers despite the U.S. presence. Today, the revolutionary government led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said it considered the Security Council resolution unjust.

Exact timing for the first escort has been left to Rear Adm. Harold J. Bersen, commander of the Mideast Task Force, "but everything is ready," said one official.

A shipping company official at Fujairah said Kuwaiti ships usually depart their anchorage in midafternoon and travel the strait at night to reduce the risk of an Iranian attack. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Car bomb
A limpet mine exploded damaging three cars in Cape Town, South Africa, just before 9 p.m. Monday. One car was totally wrecked and the two others were burnt. Windows of the surrounding block of apartments were shattered by the blast. No injuries were reported, but two people were treated for shock. The blast scene is a few minutes walk from police headquarters at Caledon Square.

Gulf war capsulized

By The Associated Press
Here is a review of developments in the Persian Gulf war:

● FUJAIRAH, United Arab Emirates — The Stars and Stripes were hoisted on the masts of two Kuwaiti tankers as U.S. warships prepared to escort the first convoy of reflagged vessels into the perilous waters of the Persian Gulf.

● UNITED NATIONS — A cease-fire resolution approved unanimously by the Security Council got a cool reception from Iran, but the Reagan administration held out hope for a positive response. "We want both countries to sit down with the secretary-general and take this seriously," Secretary of State George P. Shultz said after the 15 council members voted Monday for a halt to the nearly 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

● NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran's Foreign Ministry described the U.N. resolution as unjust. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, earlier quoted President Ali Khamenei of Iran as saying Iran would retaliate if the United States attacks its ships in the gulf.

● BAGHDAD, Iraq — President Saddam Hussein called an emergency session of the National Assembly to discuss the resolution, a government spokesman said. Iraq repeatedly has called for a cease-fire and peace talks.

In Lebanon, an estimated 5,000 Iranian Revolutionary Guards and pro-Iranian Lebanese Shiite Moslem radicals burned American and French flags and stoned effigies of President Reagan to protest the resolution.

● MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has sent President Reagan a letter endorsing joint superpower action to end the Iran-Iraq war and agreeing to discussions in "any format," said deputy Foreign Ministry spokesman Boris Pyadyshv. But he said Gorbachev also criticized the growing U.S. naval buildup in the Persian Gulf as one of the chief causes of tension in the region. The White House did not immediately respond.

● NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran and France each strengthened police cordons around each other's embassies, and Iran said it will not allow French diplomats to leave without concessions.

U.S. to study proposal

GENEVA — A sixth round of nuclear testing talks between U.S. and Soviet negotiators ended with the United States saying the two sides had failed to agree on an agenda for negotiations.

But a U.S. communique issued at the end of the one-week meeting Monday said Washington would study a Soviet proposal for joint experiments at each country's test sites aimed at improving verification measures.

A date for the next round of talks was not set, U.S. spokesman Christopher Henze said.

The two sides have been at odds over the priorities for negotiations since the talks began after the November 1985 U.S.-Soviet summit in Geneva.

Alpine towns mourn

TARTANO, Italy — Roberto Gusmeroli was sitting with his family debating politics when a wall of mud and water crashed through the front door and windows of the hotel they called home.

"One minute I was with my father trying to move out our clients," said 21-year-old Gusmeroli. "Then I saw a huge black mass coming toward us. My father ran back to get my mother ... I later found him dead in the hallway."

Gusmeroli's mother and two teen-age sisters were among 20 people killed in northern Italy when four days of pounding rain touched off floods and mudslides in the northern Italian Alps.

Thousands protest

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — About 7,000 students marched outside the National Palace and the U.S. Consulate, denouncing the military-dominated government and criticizing the United States for supporting it.

Demonstrators spray-painted anti-government slogans on walls and waved placards in Monday's protest. Heavily armed troops drove by the demonstrators in trucks but did not intervene, and the march later ended peacefully.

"Down, Down, Down with the CNG (National Governing Council)," students chanted. "We don't need the Americans."

Indian doctors strike

NEW DELHI, India — Thousands of sick people crowded into makeshift tent clinics today and at least two people seeking emergency treatment died as a strike by 8,000 government doctors entered its second day, officials said.

The strike nearly shut down the capital's 10 major hospitals. Outpatient services were closed and only major emergency cases were accepted. Many patients had been removed from the facilities before the strike.

At least two people seeking emergency treatment died, allegedly from neglect, since the strike for higher wages and improved benefits began, according to police, eyewitnesses and news reports.

Meatpacking plant given record fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration today proposed a record $2.59 million fine against the nation's largest meatpacker for what it called the worst case of underreporting injuries and illnesses in the agency's 16-year history.

The penalty against IBP Inc. for violations at its Dakota City, Neb., plant, is the largest ever imposed on an employer by the federal agency, which issues and enforces job safety and health standards.

The citations accuse IBP of failing to record 1,038 job-related injuries and illnesses from January 1985 through December 1986.

"This case is the worst example of underreporting injuries and illnesses to workers ever encountered by OSHA in its 16-year history," Assistant Secretary of Labor John A. Pendergrass said in announcing the enforcement action.

IBP has 15 working days to contest the citation and proposed penalties.

A secretary at the Dakota City plant said the company had no immediate comment but was working on a statement about the proposed fine.

Some of the injuries and illnesses cited by OSHA include knife cuts, concussions, burns, hernias, fractures and carpal tunnel syndrome, a painful and crippling disease often caused by repetitive motion, the agencwcd.

The largest penalty imposed by OSHA until now was a $1.57 million fine against Chrysler Corp. earlier this month for 811 infractions at its Newark, Del., plant.

IBP, an Occidental Petroleum Co. subsidiary with 18,000 employees in eight states, came under fire earlier this year at several congressional hearings, with workers testifying about treacherous on-the-job conditions.

Robert L. Peterson, chairman and chief executive officer of IBP, told a House panel in May that his company was committed to worker safety and displayed some of the equipment it used.

OSHA began looking into IBP's safety standards in January, following a complaint by the United Food and Commercial Workers union that the company was violating federal job injury recordkeeping requirements at the Dakota City packinghouse.

Among the other violations found during the inspection, OSHA cited one instance of failure to provide employee medical records to a worker representative.

Pendergrass said the company also altered its illness and injury logs for 1985 and 1986 after denying federal inspectors access to the plant's records in December 1986.

Evidence indicates that in mid-January, one week before the OSHA inspectors subpoenaed employee records, the company assembled a task force of 50 people to revise the injury and illness logs, Pendergrass said.

Once in the plant, OSHA discovered that 832 of the 1,038 injuries and illnesses not recorded during 1985 and 1986 had been added to the logs in the days before the inspection began, he said.

Federal regulations and guidelines require employers to keep an accurate log of injuries and illnesses that occur at the work sites and make them available to employees and to OSHA upon request.

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day of opportunities. Be ingenious in studying every possible angle of new projects before beginning. Gain support for these matters from an important person.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Consult experts and check all available data before making career decisions. Keep busy today — idle hands...

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Seek out ways of making your possessions more valuable. A little repair can go a long way. Be careful driving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get together with a social group this evening and enjoy yourself, but be cautious of slips of the tongue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) For best results, start at the top and get some action. Take a trip with your mate to an interesting place.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make contact with a person whose lifestyle you admire. This person can be of immense assistance to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) More modern methods will be required to succeed in new interests. Leave entertainment decisions to your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan that trip with an associate immediately. Delaying here could cause you much frustration and anger.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be innovative at your job today. Don't accept your routines as unchangeable. Be creative and use your talents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be very frugal and cautious in spending money today. An outing with your mate could be beneficial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A fine day to invite an individual to your home who is important to you. Your kin have much respect for this person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Consult with an expert to make a talent of yours more successful. Be extremely cautious driving today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you're entertaining this evening, spend more time attending to your guests. Consider the results of your actions.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she is in need of a fine academic education to be successful. An ability to combine speed with manual efficiency should be encouraged, but teach him or her to finish projects one at a time, since there is a tendency to jump from one thing to another.

Edens slams down Nationals

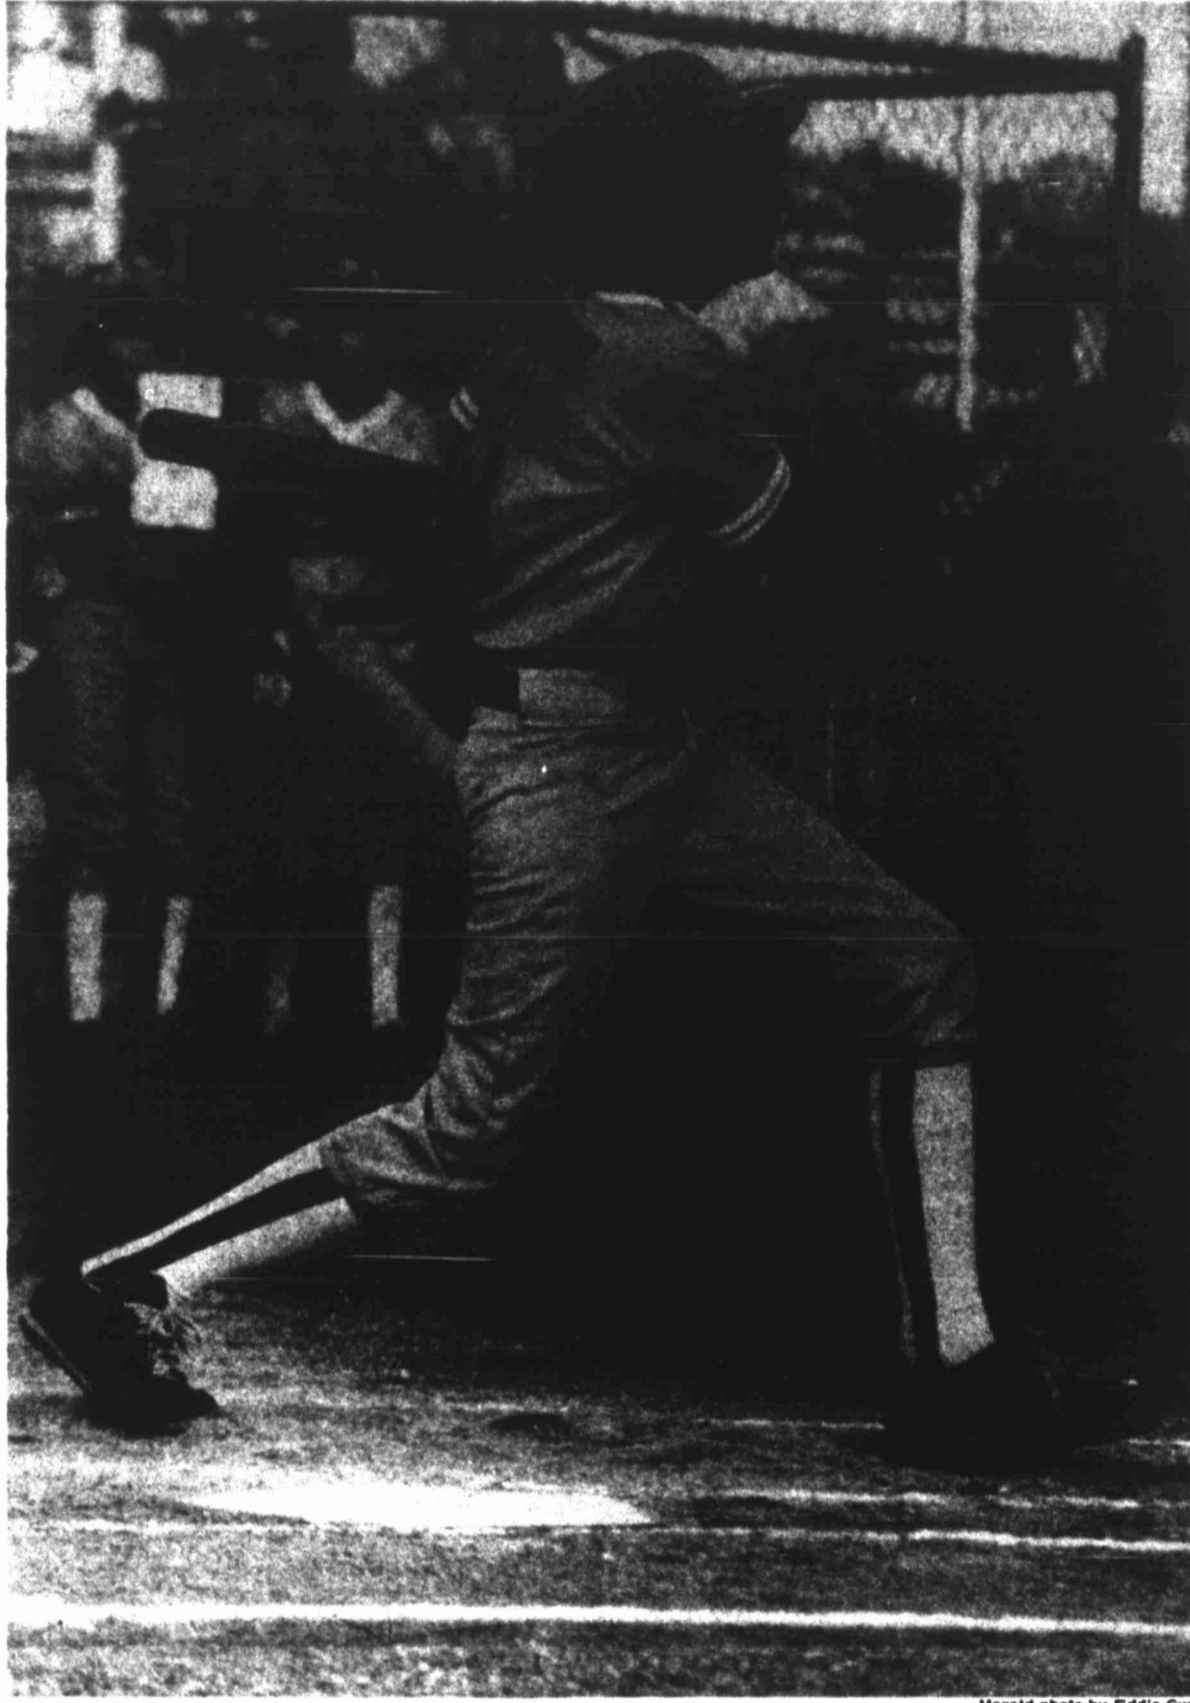

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Jeremy Edens smashed a grand slam that propelled the Big Spring American League All-Stars to an eight-run second inning and a 9-4 win over the Big Spring National League All-Stars Monday night at International League Park.

The win placed the American stars in Wednesday night's winners' bracket finals of the District III Little League All-Star Tournament. They'll play the winner of tonight's Lamesa-Odessa Salinas game at National League Park. The National stars will play the winner of tonight's Midland North Central-Odessa Jim Parker game on Wednesday.

In the other games Monday night, Midland Mid-City eliminated Odessa Alamo 3-1; and North East Odessa eliminated Midland Tower by a 17-1 score.

The big crowd — which packed both stands, stood by the fence and

Big Spring American League batter Jeremy Edens follows the flight of his second inning, bases loaded home run that gave his team a 4-1 lead in Monday night's battle against the Big Spring National League All-Stars. The American stars won the game 9-5 to remain undefeated in the tourney.

no outs. That set up Edens' grand slam blast to left, and gave the Americans a 4-1 advantage. Unfortunately for the Nationals, who appeared a bit shaken by the slam, the disastrous second inning was a long way from over.

Todd Parrish followed with a grounder to the third baseman, who threw the ball over the first baseman. With Parrish safe at first, Jason Ogle and Patrick Martinez drew walks to load the bases. Tom Blankenship followed with a high blast to right field — the runners held, but the right fielder dropped the ball. Parrish tagged and scored.

The Nationals got their first out when Ogle was forced out at the plate after an infield grounder by Clark Fields. With the bases loaded, Gonzales came to bat. He received his second big compliment of the inning from the National coaches — an intentional walk to force in a run.

With the score now 6-1, Kennedy scored Blankenship with a deep sacrifice fly. Fields finished the inning's scoring a moment later when he came in on a passed ball. Sledge gained a little revenge when he struck out Edens to end the inning, but the damage was done — two hits, three errors and eight runs. In Sledge's defense, four of those runs were unearned.

With an 8-1 cushion and Gonzales pitching, hope seemed dim for the Nationals. Were it not for two base running errors and a great catch by an American outfielder, they might have come back.

David Park took over pitching duties for Sledge in the third, and neither team scored in that inning.

Wes Hughes led off the Nationals' half of the fourth with a single to left. Klint Kemper followed with a smash to the right field fence. American right fielder Todd Parrish, racing to his right, leaped and stabbed the ball to steal what would have been at least a double from Kemper.

Instead of one run in, one man on and no outs, the Nationals had to settle for one man on with one out: After a Gonzales' strike out, Ross Roberts tagged one of the lefty's fastballs for a two-run homer to right center. Gonzales struck out the next batter, but the margin was narrowed to 8-3.

Seniors in finals tonight

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Senior League All-Stars failed in their bid to win the District Tournament championship Monday night as they dropped a 5-3 decision to the San Angelo All-Stars.

The loss forces a championship game tonight between Big Spring and San Angelo at Roy Anderson Complex at 7:30 p.m. Each team now has one loss in the double elimination tournament. San Angelo's loss was a 9-8 decision to Big Spring.

Sambo Rodriguez was the losing pitcher for Big Spring in Monday's game. The winner of tonight's game will advance to sub-sectional play Thursday. The winner will play a team from either the Abilene or Lubbock area.

Highway 80 to draw many entrants

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Junior Highway 80 Tennis Tournament, scheduled for this weekend at Figure 7 Tennis Center, is expected to draw at least 150 participants, said Figure 7 Director, Charleen Sparling.

"Last year we had about 150 to 200 people entered. We are expecting about that many this year," said Sparling. The tournament, for young ladies and men, ages 12-18, was resumed last year by Sparling.

"We wanted to get it started again because it's a fun weekend. It will draw 400-600 people to Big Spring, which means money for our merchants," said Sparling.

Sparling said this year's tournament which will begin Friday and end Sunday, is an open tournament. This means that players don't have to have a United States Tennis Association card to play. If the tourney were a sanctioned USTA event, each participant not having a card, would have to pay $8 to get one. For adults, USTA cards cost $20.

"Because of the economic situation, we decided to have an open tourney. But we will play by USTA guidelines," said Sparling.

The entry deadline has been moved to Thursday at noon. Competition will be age divisions 12-18 in boys and girls singles and doubles.

One of the local favorites will be Rocky Tubbs in the 14-year-old division.

For more information on the tournament, call Sparling at 267-7777.

Highland Park may drop to AAAA

HIGHLAND PARK (AP) — Declining enrollment may force Highland Park High School to drop out of the UIL's largest classification, where it has competed for more than half a century, school officials say.

Beginning with the 1988-89 school year, the Dallas suburban city may be competing in 4A, Athletic Director Bo Snowden said Monday.

The school's enrollment is expected to drop this fall to about 1,385 students, below the 1,440 cutoff the University Interscholastic League used for 5A classification in 1985-86 and 1986-87.

"We feel like we're definitely going to 4A," Snowden said. "We're going and we're going to be excited about it. We feel like the 4A schools in the area have some excellent athletic programs, something more in line with our school."

Highland Park, which has competed in 5A since 1928, won the state football championship in 1957 and tied for the state title in 1945. Highland Park also played in the state finals in 1944 and 1947.

It reached the state semifinals in 1980 and 1984 and the quarterfinals last season. Highland Park has produced high school players such as Bobby Layne and Doak Walker, both Pro Football Hall of Famers.

The UIL will announce in January the reclassifications, which are determined by October enrollment figures.

Bryan Sledge, batting second in the bottom half of the first, tagged the first pitch from American pitcher Jeromaine Gonzales over the left-field fence.

The homer seemed important from a morale standpoint — Gonzales has hardly been challenged in either the city championship or the All-Star tournament; and because of the big lefty, the Americans had to be seen as the favorite in last night's battle. Sledge's homer pierced that armor quickly.

Meanwhile, Sledge, who started on the mound for the Nationals, sat them down three-up, three-down in the first. That meant Gonzales, batting clean-up, would lead off the second.

The National coaches, issuing what may be the ultimate compliment to a batter, ordered Sledge to walk Gonzales. John Kennedy followed with a hard single to left. The next batter, Ryan Hamby, hit the ball sharply to the Nationals' third baseman.

He handled the ball, but chose to tag Gonzales coming into third, and dropped the ball. Bases loaded,

When the New York Mets were rolling through the National League East with 108 victories last year, there was no room on the roster for a pitcher like Don Schulze.

Schulze, with an 11-21 record in parts of four seasons with the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians, is getting a chance this season because injuries have taken their toll on a pitching staff that led the majors in earned run average in 1986.

Schulze was called up from Tidewater after compiling a 9-1 record, and he took advantage of the opportunity by allowing three hits in 6 1/3 innings Monday night as the Mets defeated the Atlanta Braves 9-2.

Schulze was also credited with the game-winning RBI when he walked with the bases loaded, breaking a 1-1 tie in the second. Dykstra followed with his two-run double, and a sacrifice fly by Wally Backman made it 5-1.

Reds 10, Phillies 6

Cincinnati rallied from a 6-0 deficit for the fifth time this season and beat Philadelphia with four runs in the 11th inning.

Kurt Stillwell's double and a throwing error by right fielder Glenn Wilson allowed Nick Esasky to score from first base for the go-ahead run against Mike Jackson, 3-8. Eric Davis had a two-run double and Dave Concepcion an RBI single to complete the four-run inning.

Expos 4, Astros 1

Montreal won its eighth straight game and handed Houston its ninth loss in 11 games as Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster hit a two-run homer.

Martinez, 5-1, struck out four and walked two as he pitched his second complete game of the season. It was the eighth time in the last 11 games that the Astros failed to score more than two runs.

Jim Deshaies, 8-4, gave up eight hits in six innings as Houston lost its fourth straight game and for the ninth time in 11 outings.

Alan Ashby gave Houston a 1-0 lead with an RBI single in the fourth inning, but Martinez allowed only two hits in the last five innings.

The Expos took a 2-1 lead in their half of the fourth on RBI singles by Vance Law and Mike Fitzgerald and they added two more runs on Webster's homer in the fifth.

Pirates 7, Giants 6

Pittsburgh got three-run homers from Al Pedrique and Andy Van Slyke, offsetting three San Francisco homers and a two-run double in the ninth inning by Robby Thompson.

Mike LaValliere's RBI single off Mike LaCoss, 7-6, gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the first and Pedrique, who had five homers in nine minor-league seasons, hit his first major-league homer in the fourth. Van Slyke's homer made it 7-3 in the seventh.

Padres 7, Cubs 4

Carmelo Martinez knocked in two runs and keyed a four-run seventh inning with an RBI single for San Diego against Chicago.

Bob Tewksbury was the loser in his first NL start after being traded by the New York Yankees to the Cubs. He allowed eight hits and five runs in six innings.

With Chicago leading 4-3, Frank DiPino relieved Tewksbury with two on and no outs in the seventh. DiPino tried to get Tim Flannery at third when Stan Jefferson bunted, but the throw was late, loading the bases.

Tony Gwynn's grounder scored Flannery, tying the score 4-4, and Martinez followed with his RBI single. John Kruk's suicide squeeze brought in another run and Randy Ready singled to make it 7-4.

Andre Dawson of the Cubs, visiting the Padres for the first time since the two teams brawled and Dawson was hit in the face by a pitch in Chicago on July 7, was taunted by San Diego fans, who also hurled litter at him in the outfield.

Mattingly ties record

By The Associated Press

As soon as Don Mattingly stopped tying records with his bat, he started matching major-league marks with his glove.

Mattingly tied the record for putouts by a first baseman with 22 Monday night as Tommy John and the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 7-1.

"Another record. Just what I need," Mattingly joked. "With two outs in the ninth, I saw it on the board and I couldn't believe it."

"I'm really not doing anything on those, just catching the ball," he said. "The credit goes to Tommy."

Mattingly's night, however, was not all good. He went 0-for-4 and ended his American League streak of extra-base hits in 10 straight games. Moreover, he aggravated an injury to his right wrist and "may have to miss a few games," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said.

On Saturday night, Mattingly tied a major-league record with a home run in his eighth straight game.

John, 9-3, pitched a seven-hitter in the matchup of AL division leaders at the Metrodome. It was his first complete-game victory since July 8, 1984.

John walked one, struck out one and had Minnesota hitting groundballs, the way he usually wins. John won his 273rd major-league game and tied Red Ruffing for 24th place on the all-time list.

Indians 9, Royals 5

Brook Jacoby went 4-for-4 and Cleveland beat Bret Saberhagen and slumping Kansas City.

Saberhagen, 15-4, was tagged for six runs on 10 hits in 3 1/3 innings in his shortest outing of the season. The Royals have lost six straight games and 11 of their last 12.

Orioles 4, White Sox 1

Ken Gerhart hit a two-run single during a four-run fifth inning and Baltimore won its sixth straight game by winning in rainy Chicago.

The game was called in the top of the sixth. It had been delayed twice in the fifth for a total of 77 minutes.

Brewers 13, Mariners 11

Robin Yount and Glenn Braggs each drove home three runs as Milwaukee won a wild one against visiting Seattle.

The start of the game was delayed two hours, 38 minutes by rain, and it took 3:20 to play.

Jim Presley homered for Seattle.

Tigers 5, Athletics 4

Pinch-runner Jim Walewander scored from first base during a collision in the Oakland outfield in the eighth inning, giving Detroit its victory at Tiger Stadium.

Bill Madlock opened the eighth with a single and was replaced by Walewander. With two outs, Darrell Bums hit a routine fly ball that either right fielder Mike Davis or center fielder Luis Polonia could have caught. But they bumped and the ball went off Davis' glove for an error that enabled Walewander to score easily. Gene Nelson, 4-2, took the loss.

Blue Jays 5, Rangers 3

Garth Iorg homered twice and doubled as Toronto beat Texas for the ninth time in 10 games this season.

Iorg's solo shots his were first home runs of the season. He led off the second inning with a homer and connected again in the fourth following a two-run homer by Fred McGriff.

John Cerutti, 6-2, gave up three runs on five hits in 6 2/3 innings. Tom Henke pitched the final two innings for his 19th save. Charlie Hough, 10-6, took the loss. Larry Parrish homered for the host Rangers.

Angels 3, Red Sox 2

Devon White's infield single scored Brian Downing with the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning, leading California over Boston.

Downing led off the eighth with his third single and was sacrificed to second base. White hit a line drive that second baseman Ed Romero gloved but could not hold, and Downing scored.

Reid leads South hoopsters to win over East

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dante Muse and J.R. Reid didn't let the pressure bother them as they continued their U.S. Olympic Festival heroics.

Muse, a 20-year-old roller speed-skater from Des Moines, Iowa, won three gold medals Monday, bringing his festival haul this year to five, the same number he won in 1986. Reid, the 6-foot-9 sophomore center from the University of North Carolina, hit five free throws down the stretch, including the decisive point, as the South moved into Wednesday's gold medal basketball game with a 77-76 victory over the East.

Reid's team will meet the North, even though that team lost a 109-103 shootout to the West in the other game. In women's play, the South and West will tangle. The West won 64-50 over the North behind 13 points and 12 rebounds from Pauline Jordan. The South got 14 points from Carla Green in an 85-66 victory over the East.

The hockey competition begins today in Greensboro. Approximately 30 players will be selected for the tournament for the U.S. Olympic team's training camp at Lake Placid, N.Y. Tennis and boxing finals also were on the schedule.

Ticket sales were on a record pace, organizers said, having reached $2.35 million with a week to go.

"I would never have expected you to be at this point," Hill Carrow, president and executive director of the festival, said. "We have gone beyond all expectations."

The record for ticket sales was set in Houston last year. This year's event was only $50,000 shy of the mark with one week remaining.

Muse completed his performances at Dorton Arena in Raleigh with a sizzling show. He won the 500 in the afternoon, the 3,000 at night and then helped the East win the 4,000 relay in a record time of 7 minutes, 9.44 seconds.

On Sunday, he won the 1,000- and 1,500-meter races.

"I really did feel the pressure," Muse said. "People kept asking me if I could win five golds again this year and that causes some pressure."

Reid is accustomed to pressure, having started as a freshman at North Carolina, which was ranked No. 1 for much of the season. But he calmly made his free throws in the final 3:52 and finished with 14 points and eight rebounds.

JULY 21 1987

Fem hurler got best of Reggie

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Six years ago, during the U.S. Olympic Festival at Syracuse, N.Y., women's softball pitcher Kathy Arendsen got one of the biggest shocks of her life.

She was told she was going to pitch against baseball slugger Reggie Jackson.

The confrontation, scheduled to be held outdoors after the final game of the women's softball tournament, was postponed by rain and held the following day at 7 a.m. in the Carrier Dome.

Only Jackson, Arendsen, catcher Doreen Denmon and a group of ABC-TV cameramen were on hand. "Reggie was intimidating, he was very muscular," Arendsen recalled. "He made the ball look like a toothpick. I knew if he hit the ball, he would kill me."

Arendsen was working from the softball pitching distance, only 40 feet from home plate. After her follow-through, she was only about 33 feet from the plate.

But Jackson, a powerful, left-handed slugger who has hit 559 home runs, sixth-best in baseball history, was no match for Arendsen, a hard-throwing right-hander whose rising 90 mph fastball has produced 35 no-hitters. He struck out swinging three times, managing only one foul ball in about 15 pitches.

"I tried to back him off with my riser," Arendsen said.

"He was a real sport about it," she said. "He was very complimentary. He also was very impressed. He gave us some credibility."

Arendsen, who did not allow an earned run in compiling a 23-0 record last year and began this year with a career record of 22-20, sympathized with Jackson.

"The difference between baseball and softball pitchers is very huge," she said.

"They (baseball hitters) are used to seeing the ball released from here," Arendsen said, pointing above her shoulder. "We're used to pitching in windmill style," she said, lowering her hand.

Since then, the Jackson-Arendsen confrontation has been shown often on national television by ABC, and women's softball — like Arendsen's best pitch — has been on the rise. It is expected to be approved as an Olympic sport for the 1992 Barcelona Games.

Edens

Continued from page 1B fourth to help keep the Americans scoreless in that stanza. Gonzales received his third intentional walk to lead off the inning, but was out at second one batter later on a fielder's choice.

An error on the second baseman put men at first and second. After a passed ball, Kennedy tried to steal third but was caught on a throw from Kemper to Fields. Edens followed with a single to left. Hamby tried to take third on the play, but Fields blocked the bag, took the throw and held on for the third out.

With the Nationals chipping away and Gonzales no longer seeming unhittable, no one was leaving the park. Tony Taylor led off the top of the fifth with a single, and Sledge followed with a single up the middle. The American center-fielder through the ball back to Gonzales, who threw the ball to shortstop Patrick Martinez at second.

Martinez pretended to throw the ball back, and when he did, Taylor sagged off the bag. Martinez wheeled and tagged Taylor for the first out of the inning.

An error on second baseman Tom Blankenship put men on the corners, and Sledge scored moments later on a wild pitch. Blankenship atoned for his miscue when he caught a rocket from Kemper to end the inning.

The Americans added their last run in the fifth after a single by Ogle and an error by the pitcher that allowed an infield pop to hit the ground. Martinez scored from third after a passed ball.

Down 9-4 and with two out in the sixth, the Nationals made one last stab. Michael Elliot reached first after a catcher interference call, and then Taylor took every bit of a Gonzales' fastball on the inside of his arm. With Ricky Hamby pinching-running for Taylor, the Nationals had men on first and second.

Both advanced on a balk call with Sledge at the plate. Sledge, who already had a homer and a single to his credit, brought the National League fans to their feet with a blast that rolled to the center-field fence.

Elliot crossed the plate, and Sledge tried to turn his single into a double. The relay throw beat him, though, and Blankenship tagged him as he ran along the basepath's outside boundaries. Sledge landed on the ground face down, and stayed that way for a few moments, a symbol of the National stars' disappointment.

Sledge, who took the loss, led all batters with three hits. The National stars finished with five runs on seven hits. They made five errors and left five men on.

Edens led the American stars with two hits and four runs batted in. The American League team finished with nine runs on five hits. They made three errors and left six men on. Gonzales got the win, his second in the tourney.

A memorable fishing trip to Devil's River

By H. BOYCE HALE

Then as now, fishing trips are planned well in advance, and 1937 was no different.

Dad had talked about and planned to take my cousin Hale Foster of Strawn and I with him for a few days fishing on Devil's River in Val Verde County.

As soon as school was out, Hale rode the Texas and Pacific train to Big Spring where Dad and I met him. We drove to Forsan where we lived on the Royal Oil & Gas lease.

In those days, almost all of the oil companies had oil field camps and it was not until the mid-50s that these camps began to disappear.

Early on the morning of June 3, we departed for our fishing hole about 12 miles northwest of Del Rio. The trip was a long, hot drive.

However, we arrived as planned and made camp near the west end of the old Devil's River bridge on U.S. 90.

Hale and I could hardly wait to get our lines into the water, but Dad said, "No, not until you seine minnows."

We used a 20-foot minnow seine, and made what seemed to be a couple hundred drags before Dad was satisfied that we had enough. Then we rigged our cane poles and took to the river. It was about 800 feet wide but only 6 inches deep.

The river bed was solid rock with many crevasses on its bottom. In some places, the cracks would be a few inches deep, and in others several feet deep. Strewed about the river were large boulders.

We dropped our lines in the eddy behind these boulders, where we found good fishing. By sundown we had caught about 20 channel catfish.

BOYCE HALE

In the meantime, Dad walked upstream to Lake Walk. There he enjoyed fishing for black bass in the discharge waters below the dam.

When he returned to camp, Hale and I were skipping rocks on the water and he asked, "I thought you boys wanted to fish?"

We told him that we already had caught a good mess of fish. But he was skeptical until we pulled the two full stringers from the water.

Dad asked us to select a few good ones for supper and directed us to clean them — work that we hadn't bargained for.

By the time we were finished, Dad had the grease hot, and in a short while, we sat down to a meal of fish, potatoes, sliced onions and iced tea.

After the meal and the dishes were washed, we took a bath in the river and soon were asleep.

We arose before light, eager to fish, but Dad had no ideas for us. "Fix the breakfast," he said.

Neither of us had much experience cooking, but we managed to fry bacon and scramble eggs. With Dad's strong coffee, we had a good meal.

We fished most of the morning, but caught only two small fish. So we had sandwiches for lunch.

Later, we went to Lake Walk and there found Dad fishing in the spillway. He showed us three nice black bass — just enough to agitate our fishing fever.

We had been fishing about 10 minutes when a game warden approached. He checked Dad's license and then drifted over to see what we were doing.

"You boys got a license?" he asked.

"No sir," we replied. "You know that if you are 17 or over, you need a license," the game man warned.

"I'm only 16," I told him. But Hale couldn't wait to tell the warden that he became 17 that very day. It was his birthday.

Very quickly he was informed that he needed a license.

"Where can I get one?" Hale asked.

The warden told him that he could take care of it. When he finished writing the license, he told Hale that it would cost him 25 cents.

"But I don't have a quarter," Hale responded. So he asked his Uncle Raymond, and Dad had to dig out the money, then continued fishing.

Voting Rights Amendments Amendment 15

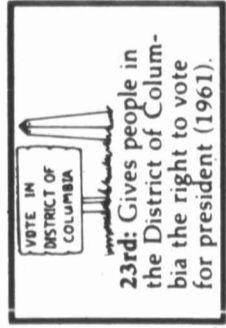

This amendment was one of those passed after the Civil War. It gave black males the right to vote. Today it protects the voting rights of all citizens regardless of race.

Amendment 19

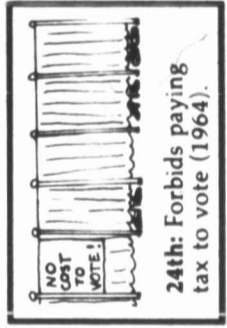

In the early 1900s, some Western states had already given women the vote.

Amendment 23

Now citizens of Washington, D.C., have a voice in the vote.

Amendment 24

Some states used to charge a tax to vote that kept poor people from voting.

Amendment 26

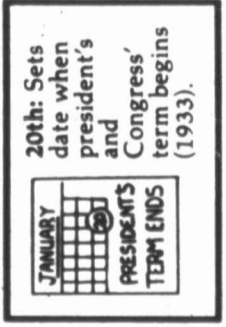

Most states used to require voters to be 21 years old.

Amendment 17

According to the original Constitution, U.S. senators were elected by state legislatures. This amendment says that senators are to be elected by the vote of the people.

Amendment 20

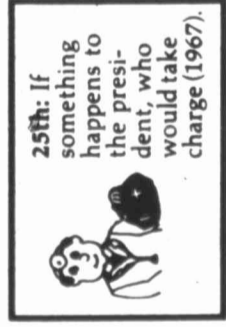

This amendment sets January as the month that the terms of the president, vice president, senators and representatives begin. Congress begins in that month, too.

Amendment 22

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the only president to serve more than two terms. He served four.

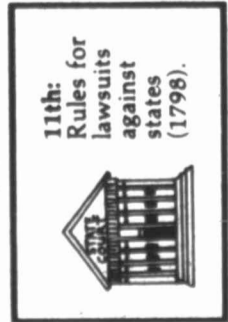

Amendment 25

This amendment prevents a break in the office of the presidency.

These amendments set up laws about how the government is to run.

Amendment 11

A citizen in one state cannot sue a citizen in another state in a federal court.

Amendment 12

When a problem arose from the way the Constitution had arranged for the president and vice president to be elected, this amendment was added. It states that voters vote for one person for the office of president and for another person for the office of vice president.

Amendment 16

This amendment gives Congress the power to collect taxes on all kinds of incomes. The government gets more money from this source than from any other.

The Mini Page would like to thank Wynell Burroughs and Jean Mueller, education specialists at the National Archives, for help with this story.

After the Bill of Rights

Amendments 11 through 26

By BETTY DEBNAM

Our Constitution is the oldest in the world. It has been changed only 26 times in 200 years.

The first 10 amendments to the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, were adopted in 1791.

Only 16 amendments have been added since then.

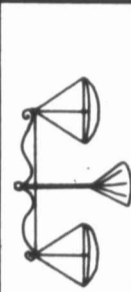

Two of these 16 canceled each other out. The 18th, passed in 1919, brought in Prohibition, or a ban on the sale of alcoholic drinks. This was not a popular amendment. It was repealed, or canceled, by the 21st amendment in 1933, 14 years later.

A group of new U.S. citizens pledge allegiance to our flag at special ceremonies. When a citizen of one country has taken legal steps to become a citizen of another country, we say he or she is "naturalized." Congress has the power to set up these legal steps for new U.S. citizens.

The 14th Amendment

The 14th Amendment was passed in 1868 to protect the rights of freed slaves after the Civil War.

14th: Guarantees citizenship, due process and equal protection under the law (1868).

The idea was to make blacks citizens and to prevent states from taking away their rights. Today, all Americans, regardless of race, are protected by this amendment.

Next to the Bill of Rights, this is the most important amendment in protecting the rights of all citizens. Amendment 14 defines who is a U.S. citizen. It says that all

This is the 18th in a monthly series about the Constitution.

The Bill of Rights and Amendments 13 and 14 state our civil rights. Civil rights are those guaranteed to all citizens by the Constitution.

The 13th Amendment

13th: Slavery abolished (1865).

Not all slaves were freed at the end of the Civil War. This makes any form of slavery illegal.

persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens of the United States.

It also says that states cannot limit the rights of its citizens.

The amendment says: "nor shall any state deprive (deny) any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny any person . . . the equal protection of the laws."

The Supreme Court has used this amendment as the basis for a lot of its decisions granting equal rights.

For example, the court ruled that forcing children to go to all-black or all-white public schools (segregation) was unlawful.

MINI FACT-A-ROOMIES

C is for Cactus

The cactus is in trouble. Many types are endangered. People called "cactus rustlers" steal cacti from the desert and sell them. Cacti are also becoming extinct because the land where they grow is being used for roads and buildings.

E is for Elevator

The average elevator travels about 10,000 miles a year. The first elevator was built in 1850 in a mill shop in New York City. It was a platform used to lift barrels upstairs in the mill.

Meet the Cast of 'ALF'

1. Alf; 2. Andrea Elson, who plays Lynn; 3. Anne Schedeen, who plays Kate; 4. Max Wright, who plays Willie; 5. Benji Gregory, who plays Brian.

"ALF" is a popular new show about a lovable alien being who comes to live with the Tanner family. The name ALF stands for Alien Life Form.

1. ALF is from the planet Melmac. He came to the United States when his spaceship crashed on the Tanners' roof. ALF, who is 230 years old, graduated from college and worked as an orbit guard and a model.

2. Andrea Elson, 18, plays Lynn. Andrea was born in New York City. She traveled a lot because her father's advertising job took him around the country. Her first acting role was in a sixth-grade school play. Soon she was in commercials, then TV shows, including "Silver Spoons." Andrea, who lives in Los Angeles, wants to study theater in college.

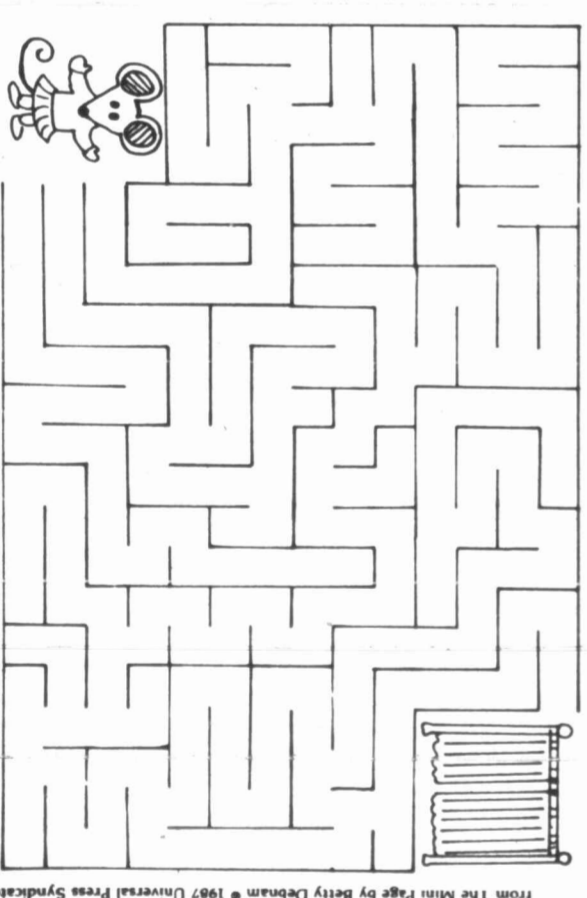

3. Anne Schedeen plays the mother, Kate. Anne is from Portland, Ore. She began acting lessons at age 6. She studied theater, speech and art in college. She then moved to New York City to work in theater. Anne has been in several TV shows, including "Magnum, P.I." She is married and lives in Los Angeles.

4. Max Wright plays the father, Willie. Max is from Detroit. As a child, he loved reading and music. He started off studying medicine in college but switched to drama. He moved to New York and starred on Broadway. In 1979, he began working in films and TV. Max, his wife and their two children have homes in New York City and Los Angeles.

5. Benji Gregory, 9, plays Brian. Benji grew up in Encino, Calif., with his brother and sister. Both his parents are actors. Benji began by acting in commercials. Soon he got parts on TV, including "The A Team." He lives in Los Angeles. He enjoys collecting rocks and shells and playing with his animals.

Neighbor objects to man's whistling while he works

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a beautiful home along side another beautiful home. The elderly gentleman and his wife who own it work on their yard all year around, and it looks wonderful. The problem? The man whistles! Oh, my God, how he whistles! From early morning until late at night that insidious sound comes through closed windows, doors and walls. The sound is nerve-racking. When he stops for a few minutes, we hold our breaths and say a silent prayer. But luck is not with us because he starts to whistle again.

Dear Abby

We had a cookout for friends on our patio last week and our neighbor started whistling again. By the time the food was served, everybody was snapping at each other. Abby, this walking tea kettle is making our lives miserable.

My husband says there is no way we can stop a person from whistling. Can you help us?

BJ DuBIEL, WELCHES, ORE.
DEAR BJ: Your neighbor whistles! What a joyful sound! Would you prefer neighbors who yelled, screamed, fought and threw things all night? Or neighbors whose kids played rock music from dawn until dark? Some folks have neighbors whose kids practice the tuba in the daytime and drums at night.

And you're complaining about a neighbor who whistles! Halleujah and praise the Lord, lady. Send him a case of something to wet his whistle, and count your blessings.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can settle an argument between my husband and me. He says now that we are married he has the right to know all about everything I have ever done — every boyfriend I ever had, everything we did, every place we went, etc. He says a wife has no right to privacy as far as her husband is concerned. He is driving me crazy with his pestering to tell him "everything."

I say that what I did before we got married is none of his business. What are your thoughts on the subject?

PESTERED
DEAR PESTERED: Same as yours, and it's not a case of one woman supporting another woman. A man is entitled to the same right to privacy. I refer to past "romances" — prison records and children born out of wedlock excepted.

DEAR ABBY: An article in a recent issue of Reader's Digest lays practically all the blame for impoliteness in America on the young. This is nothing new. The older generation has always criticized the younger generation. I would like to defend today's youth:

I have witnessed several instances where an older person showed no consideration for a younger person. For example: An older gentleman pushed ahead of me to pay at a gas station. When I informed him that I was also waiting in line, he said, "I just have to give the cashier my $20."
"And I just have to give the cashier my $10," I replied.
"Then give it to him!" he said curtly.

Abby, I'm 24, but many people mistake me for a teen-ager because I look like one. Consequently, I am treated like a kid and know first hand that most adults are very rude to kids. They either think that kids have no rights, or they lump them together as "troublemakers."

The problem of rudeness in this country is not the fault of the young people; it's the fault of the older generation who are responsible for teaching courtesy and setting a good example for the younger generation to follow.

SETTING MY OWN EXAMPLE
DEAR SETTING: Hear, hear!

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "Pro-Grammer of Keane, N.Y.," I submit the following:

"Pro-Grammer" of Keane, Noo Hamshah, with huh mimiquay of Southern pnunciation, appears to be unable to distinguish between coveet gwammah and pwopah pnunciation, unless it happens to be huh own Nawthen dialect, the only thing she considahs pwopah.

"What does this got" and "we is" ah examples of incoveet gram-mah, but "we ah" is not. It is the pwopah expwession of English, as it is spoken south of the Mason-Dixon line, as extended.

"Pro" would probably tell us blithely about a place called "Bouston," and would likely swell with pwide at such Kennedyesque speech as "Cuber" and "Aficker." If she would like to learn about Dixieland phonetics, I suggest she study Mock Twain.

Let us all lowah ouah pwoboscises. (1) It might wain (rain), and (2) the militahy phase of the Wah between the States was ovah in 1865! Remembah?

JOHNNY, WINNEMUCCA, NEV.
DEAR JOHNNY: The New Hampshire reader was attempting to write in Northeastern dialect — not Southern. However, your letter was entertaining, and you-ah sense of humah is stellah, fellah!
