Citizens have budget say Tuesday

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Citizens have an opportunity to participate in the city budget process at a City Council hearing on the proposed 1987-88 budget at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall.
The general fund begins with a $96,560 balance left over from the current fiscal year, plus $6,073,125 in projected revenues. Revenues are anticipated to be $715,370 less than this year.

With $6,039,870 in projected expenses, the fund should be left with slightly more than it began: $129,815, city records show. The expense figure is $792,760 less than for this year.
Among significant expense reductions are about $319,000 less funding for the Municipal Auditorium renovation. The renovation is proceeding with the last of about $300,000 in grants from the Dora Roberts Foundation, Public Works Director Tom Decell has said.

In addition, officials have planned reductions of about $84,000 in general non-departmental expenses, $62,000 for the golf course, and $30,000 each for public works administration and streets.

No funding is listed for Crime Prevention, which received about $59,000 last year, nor for Civil Defense, which received no funding last year, and about $36,000 in 1985.
The largest capital expenses are $100,000 for street sealcoating and $25,000 for five used police vehicles. Police Chief Joe Cook has said although the vehicles are used, he is satisfied with their condition. The vehicles, for detectives' use, won't be subject to the sustained use of patrol units, he said.

In addition, the city is to spend $13,000 on copy machines and $9,000 for fire department air packs.
Among unfinanced needs are

Saragosa fund tops $8,000 as bowling slated

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer
Highland Lanes, Highland Mall, will be the host for a bowling event for Saragosa Saturday and Sunday. Proceeds will go to the relief fund established at State National Bank.

The fund has received $8,053.37 as of Thursday afternoon, according to Annette White, a secretary at the bank.

The bowling event will consist of two stages, said Richard White, Herald advertising manager and a member of the relief fund board. The first stage will consist of open bowling both days, with a portion of the fees going to the fund.

In addition, a tournament will begin at 6 p.m. Saturday. Four-person teams will compete for trophies, with a $20 entry fee required. All proceeds will go to the fund, and White added that Highland Lanes will provide bowling balls and shoes at no cost to those that need them.

He added that contributions to the fund would be accepted at the bowling alley, and that a free bowling ball drawing will be a part of the event.

White reported the Saragosa fund-raising activities will end July 31, but that contributions will be accepted after then.

In a related event, Texas Baptist Men have begun construction on model homes for residents of the tornado-stricken town, according to Robert Dixon, executive director of the organization.

Dixon said that one home is nearly complete, and that the group has plans to construct 23 more. He added that between 350 and 400 Baptist men are involved in the project.

Mike Couch, program coordinator at First Baptist Church in Big Spring, was unsure if any local men are involved.

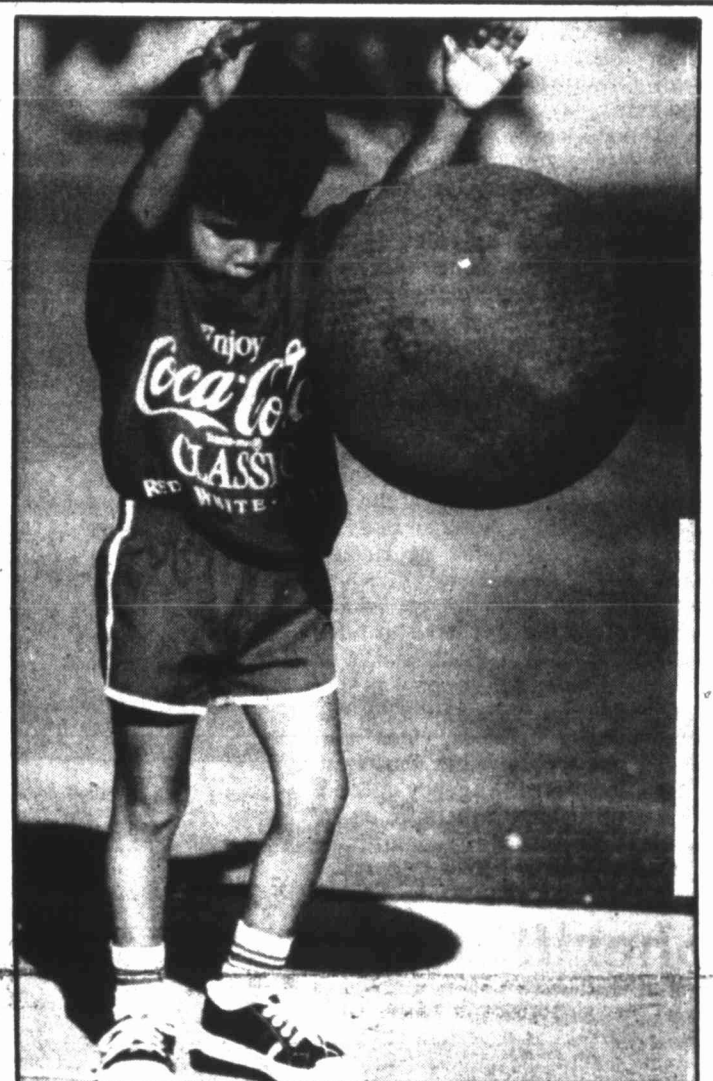

Residents of Saragosa are in temporary housing, and rebuilding efforts should begin by the end of July, said Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez.

Florez added that the sheriff's office will close its temporary station at Saragosa July 30.

Fun in the sun

Children know the morning hours are perfect for outside play, because the sun is shining and the temperatures are still mild. This morning was a perfect time for a kickball game at Jack and Jill Day Care Center. In the photo at left, Nickole Matthews, 7, daughter of Rick and Gail Matthews, puts her foot into action, driving the ball into play. At right, David Flores, 4, son of Antonio and Teri Flores, dribbles the ball before pitching to the next kicker.

McLaughlin among three honored by West Texans

From staff and wire reports
WICHITA FALLS — Three Texans, including Ralph McLaughlin of Big Spring, have been named the first Outstanding West Texan Award recipients by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Also honored at the organization's annual mid-year meeting Thursday were state Sen. Ray Farabee, Wichita Falls and John Ben Shepperd, Odessa, former Texas secretary of state and attorney general.

McLaughlin, president of the Saunders Co. of Big Spring, in 1977 chaired the Free Enterprise Committee of the WTCC, which won the George Washington Freedom Foundation Award. He chaired the same committee in 1978. He was chosen Man of the Year in 1983 by Rotary International.

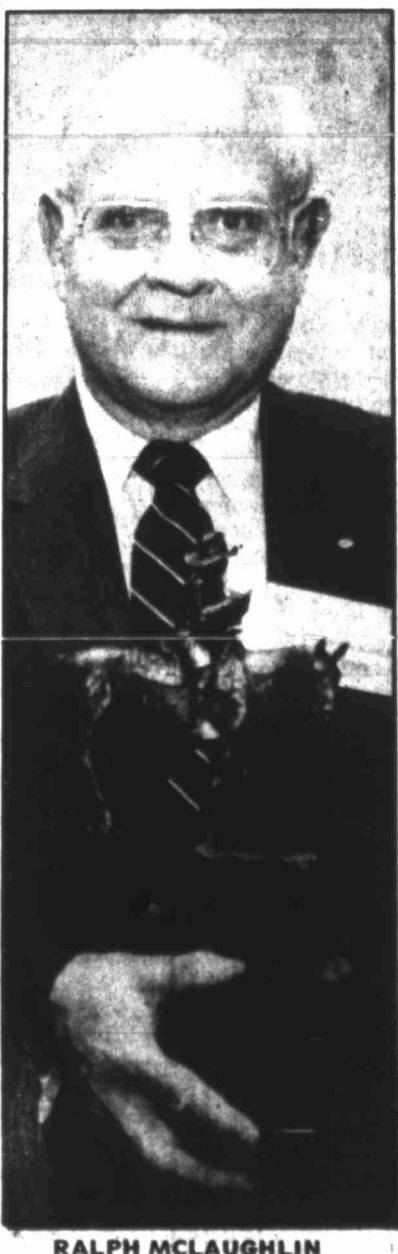

He has also been active in the efforts to lure the superconducting, supercollider to the West Texas Garden City site.

More than two dozen Big Spring residents were on hand when McLaughlin received his award and recognized his wife and son.

He was praised as "a premier salesman for West Texas... he has been described as a man who can work without props because he knows every aspect of the business at hand."

Farabee, a Wichita Falls Democrat, has been a member of the Texas Senate since 1975. He has been listed four times as one of the 10 best Texas legislators by Texas Monthly magazine.

Shepperd was named Outstanding Citizen of 1977 by the Texas Exchange Clubs and was named Texan of the Year by the Texas Legislative Conference in 1984. He was awarded the first life membership in the Texas Jaycees and has served as president of the Texas Historical Commission.

Victims

Young and old served by center

Editor's note: This is the final in a series of articles focusing on Big Spring victims of violent crimes.

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Since the office opened in August 1984, Rape Crisis/Victim Services has assisted sexual assault victims as young as 2 and as old as 85, says Executive Director Cecelia McKenzie.

One out of three women are sexually assaulted in their lifetime and one out of seven males are assaulted by the time they are 16, according to FBI figures.

McKenzie added that rape is more prevalent from May to October, perhaps because of warmer weather and a summertime care-free attitude that encourages people go out more often with less clothing.

Her job as director of rape and victim services involves administrative, educational and counseling aspects.

The position requires a person who can listen to people, she said.
"We make victims feel comfortable through the long, horrible ordeal."

McKenzie said she became involved with the center when she was asked to help write a grant request.

Her interest continued to grow after she became a volunteer.

"There's something about learning about rape crisis that hooks you," she said.

"You feel like you can make a change." The mother of three children, McKenzie admits she also has a selfish reason for assisting victims and educating the public about sexual assault.

"I don't want my children growing up in a violent world," she explains.

Since its inception in 1984, the Rape Crisis Services office has assisted 206 rape victims in a four-county area. The office provides services for Howard, Martin, Borden and Glasscock counties.

Assistant Director Lisa Brooks assists victims of crimes other than sexual assault; a part-time office manager helps with the paper work, and 22 volunteers help keep the services in operation.

Brooks eventually will handle the entire case load, and McKenzie will concentrate on administration and educational aspects.

VICTIMS: Their rights and anguish

Part six

Dallas scam rings second victim

DALLAS — The sobbing doctor on the phone had bad news: He had lost his expensive gold ring at the convenience store.

The good news was that the store clerk found the ring right where the doctor said he had left it — next to the pay phone.

The doctor was more than willing to pay a reward for the ring's return.

Bad news for the clerk, though: In the phone booth, hanging onto the ring, was another man who said he'd found the ring first, liked it and didn't want to turn it over.

The doctor on the phone, now sobbing with joy, had good news: If the clerk would simply reward the other man with $100, he said, he would come over to the store, retrieve his ring and pay the clerk $500.

The bad news was that the ring, the doctor and the story were false.

The trusting clerk had become the second victim in two days of a recurring scam that police have dubbed the "found-ring scheme." Monday, a clerk at a Preston Road gas station was the victim, for $200. The convenience store clerk was out $100 in the same scam Tuesday.

"It's like an $8 ring," swindle investigator S.M. Haines said. "You can buy 'em all day long."

The ring in one scam was fake gold with fake diamonds, police said. The other was a fake gold nugget ring.

Each year, up to a half dozen people are cheated out of several hundred dollars in the ring deal, Haines said. He said police believe the confidence artists are not local but travel through towns conducting the scam.

Part of the reason the scheme works, he said, is the clerk's willingness to help a person in distress.

"It's not just greed," Haines said. "These people think they're going to help somebody recover somebody's ring and are getting a little reward as a bonus."

In the two instances this week, the sobbing man on the phone identified himself as Dr. Philip Donaldson.

"It is very near and dear to me and very valuable," the so-called doctor said of the ring both times, according to police reports.

But to the victims, the rings were worth only trouble.

"They don't even get to keep the ring," Haines said. "It goes to the police property room as evidence."

Ranchers struggle to rebuild livestock

From staff and wire reports
 Record rains have coaxed lush pastures from land that was parched by drought in the early 1960s, but West Texas ranchers are still struggling to bring herds up to pre-drought levels.
 Howard County Extension Agent Don Richardson said livestock herds in Howard County appear to be increasing.
 "People are rebuilding from the drought and diversifying farm operations to include livestock," he said.
 "Everyone sold cattle during the drought," said Pecos rancher Mike Harrison, partner and general manager of the sprawling Anderson Ranch near Poyote. "Now they're trying to get them back."
 During the drought, many West Texas counties became eligible for drought aid, including emergency loans and low-grade feed corn at reduced prices.
 By the time rains began falling again in early 1984, many ranchers had been forced from the land. Those left faced shrunken herds, barren grasslands and economic woes.

 "A drought in these times is so much more severe than it was in the '30s and '40s because of the economy," said Harrison's manager, Gary Loftin, who at one time saw his own herd disappear as a casualty of hard times.
 Now pastures are better than ever, Ector County Extension Agent Tommy Perkins said Wednesday. "A lot of regeneration occurred (and) a number of ranchers went in to reseed. There are some really good stands of grass now."
 Richardson said the Howard County cotton crop is growing well except for some that was damaged during recent hail storms.
 "Prospects for prices are better than the last several years and livestock prices are excellent," he said.
 Perkins said he fears the turnaround may prompt some ranchers to overstock, but many ranchers won't be able to buy too heavily because of current livestock prices.

 Fort Stockton rancher Gerald Porter cut his sheep flock back to a bare minimum to survive, he said.
 "People are just a little bit leery of (buying in) after years of drought," he told the Odessa American.
 The dry spell devastated Pecos County, and even now some areas still wait for the rain that saved other parts, said Loyce Ward, executive director of the Pecos County Agricultural and Stabilization Conservation Service.
 Local ranchers remain cautious and are slowly restocking.
 "We know (it) is uncommon to have this much moisture," she said. "To be a farmer or a rancher you've just got to be optimistic — period."

Weather

Forecast

West Texas: Widely scattered late afternoon and evening rain-showers with a few thunderstorms through Saturday. Otherwise, fair to partly cloudy. Lows tonight will be in the mid 60s in the north to around 70 in the south. Highs mainly in the 90s except around 100 along the Rio Grande.

State

Very strong thunderstorms roared over the Gulf of Mexico south of Galveston early today and forecasts called for showers and thunderstorms over much of the state through Saturday.
 The National Weather Service said the very strong thunderstorms just south of Galveston were accompanied by strong, gusty winds, very heavy rainfall, dangerous lightning and rough seas.
 Forecasters warned small craft operators to stay clear of the storm in the Galveston Bay area or stay in port until the storm passed.
 High pressure over the Eastern United States brought moist southeast winds flowing into Texas from the Gulf of Mexico.

 McKenzie said.
 A main portion of Brooks' job is informing crime victims of their rights.
 She said she sends victims and families of victims a letter explaining their rights.
 Her job combines educating victims about the law and helping them through the grieving process, she said.
 "The system is so complicated; it's a good system, it's just that it's bent over backwards for the accused," she said.
 Volunteers go in pairs to the hospital when the office receives a call from law enforcement agencies, she said.
 Police and sheriff officers usually call the Rape Crisis/Victim Services office when someone reports a sexual assault, but some people call the office directly and often don't file charges, McKenzie said.
 Slightly more than half of the victims reported crimes to law enforcement officials, McKenzie said.
 "We're not here to tell people what to do. We are here to offer support."
 Alicia Yanez, whose son was shot and killed in 1985, said she had never heard of the services until the agency called her husband, Chon soon after the agency opened.
 "Lisa Brooks was there for us the whole time during the trial; she stood by us like she really cared," Yanez said.

Son recalls father's murder by violence

By KERRY HAGLUND
 Staff Writer
 He was robbed, beaten and left for dead.
 He didn't die until five weeks later, however, and was able to identify his attackers who later were sentenced to life in prison for the brutal murder.
 George Benz, father of Big Spring resident Chuck Benz, was tortured by his attackers — one, a former employee in Benz's Carlsbad, N.M., grocery store, had been fired for stealing.
 The elder Benz's skull was smashed, his throat cut, and his chest beaten with a hammer, his son recalls.
 He was conscious, however, when the oldest daughter found him in his bed. She collapsed from the shock, her brother recalls, and two ambulances had to be called to the scene.
 The incident happened in 1957 when Benz's father was 77. Benz was 31.
 The tragic death still grieves him.
 "My dad deserved to die better," he said.
 The older Benz recovered enough from his injuries to leave the hospital, but about five weeks later died from a large blood clot on his brain — a direct result of the beating, Benz said.

 After the youths beat Benz's father, they cleaned out his safe and stole savings bonds, old coins, property, deeds and even his father's marriage license, Benz said.
 They fled to Mexico where they were apprehended by Mexican authorities, he said.
 Because they were Mexican nationals, they could not be extradited to the United States, but a U.S. district attorney went to Mexico and the youths, one who was only 16, were tried in Ojinaga, Mexico, and sentenced to life, Benz said.
 With time the pain has faded somewhat, but Benz said he never will forget how his life was touched by crime.
 He also recounted how his father had been devastated when a favorite nephew, a banker, was killed in Illinois during a bank robbery.
 "My dad read a lot of detective magazines, and (after the nephew's death) he said 'it's something you read about, but never think of it happening to your own family.'"

Arson case set for fall

Herald staff report
 Assistant District Attorney William Dupree said a possible arson case will be taken to the grand jury in late August or early September.
 Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles reported Wednesday that a massive fire that destroyed Moffatt Carpet and Furniture June 21 is believed to be the result of arson.
 He brought the case to the district attorney's office Wednesday.
 "The case definitely has merit," Dupree said.
 Evidence suggests one primary suspect is involved, he said.
 He did say, however, there are pros and cons to the case, but did not elaborate.
 Settles said there is a suspect, but no arrests have been made and probably won't be unless the grand jury hands down an indictment.
 Moffatt Carpet and Furniture, 200 Main St., was destroyed in an early morning blaze that firefighters battled until after dawn.
 City Pawn Shop, located directly south of the carpet store, suffered smoke and water damage.

Sheriff's log

Billy Sullivan, Coahoma, reported the theft of two bicycles taken from his front porch between 8 p.m. Wednesday and 6:30 p.m. Thursday. One #110 3-speed men's 26-inch black and white Avocet bicycle and one #135 12-speed men's 27-inch black and white bicycle were reported stolen from 705 Culp.
 ● Michael Dean Holbrook, 29, Monahans, was arrested Thursday on charges of driving while intoxicated and Texas Highway Patrol warrants. He was released on bonds totaling $1,600.
 ● Wyatt Lynn Overton, 32, Midland, was arrested on a Howard County warrant at the Midland County Sheriff's Office. He paid $196 owed and was released.
 ● Terry Douglas Stacey Sr., 31, Sherman, was arrested on a Denton County warrant on a charge of theft by check. He was released on a $1,000 bond.

School board plans workshop

The Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees will hold a series of budget workshops Monday through Wednesday at the superintendent's office, Superintendent Bill McQueary said.
 The workshops will begin at 7 p.m. each day, and if more space is needed, will be held in the board room at the high school.

Armed suspect robs gas station

Herald staff report.
 Police are searching for a suspect that robbed the Fina Gas Station, 1106 N. Lamesa Hwy, at gunpoint Thursday afternoon.
 Joe Laijas, a station employee, reported to police that, at 1:35 p.m., a black male entered the store, displayed a handgun of unknown caliber and demanded money. The suspect then left with an unknown amount of money, the report stated.

 ● Timothy Threats, 17, 511 Goliad St., was arrested on a warrant charging him with attempted burglary. He was transferred to the sheriff's office and released on $2,000 bond.
 ● Barbara Cooper, 2705 Carol Dr., reported to police that, between 6:15 p.m. Wednesday and 6:50 a.m. Thursday, someone stole $271,730 in fire department expenses, including a $150,000 pumper truck, an $80,000 tanker and two autos.

 City Manager Mack Wofford said unfunded needs are items considered essential but unbudgeted because of a lack of funds.
 Also included are $12,675 in miscellaneous police equipment and $12,000 for Dora Roberts Community Center air conditioning.
 Among new programs — those considered desirable to improve ci-

 Also under new programs: $43,000 in police equipment, including shotguns and revolvers, microfilm equipment and building remodeling, and $37,000 for a computer and computer programmer.
 The utility fund begins with a $375,000 anticipated balance left from this year, plus $4.5 million in revenues — $9,000 less than this year's projected revenue figure.

City manager injured in two-car accident

Herald staff report.
 City Manager Mack Wofford sustained possible neck injuries when the car he was driving was struck from behind by another vehicle Thursday afternoon.
 According to a police report, Wofford's vehicle, a 1983 Chevrolet owned by the City, was stopped at the intersection of Hearn St. and U.S. Hwy 87, with a 1985 Buick driven by Ethelene Montgomery, P.O. Box 2012, stopped behind him.
 Wofford moved forward slightly to better observe approaching traffic, and stopped again. Montgomery failed to observe this se-

State oil production down

AUSTIN (AP) — Daily oil production in Texas has dropped below 2 million barrels a day for the first time since 1944, according to Railroad Commissioner James Nugent.
 Nugent said preliminary May production figures show statewide production averaged 1.97 million barrels a day during the month.
 "Oil prices in the $20-$22 range will help our stripper well operators hang on, but they won't come close to revitalizing the industry," Nugent said in a statement.
 Striper wells are low-producing wells.
 Nugent said the Railroad Commission is reviewing its own regulations and has invited comments from the oil industry on what changes could be made to stimulate exploration.

Oil companies warn about foreign reliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kerr McGee Corp. of Oklahoma City is one of 11 oil companies launching a public relations campaign that warns of the dangers associated with increased dependence on foreign oil.
 The campaign was launched yesterday, and focuses on states outside the oil-patch.
 "The perception in Peoria is energy is not a problem," said Joe B. Foster, executive vice president of Tenneco, Inc., noting that the campaign would be an uphill battle.
 The campaign is backed by the newly formed National Energy Policy Council, which plans to ask oil executives to tell Americans that another energy crisis looms in the foreground. The council provided figures showing problems that saddled the United States during oil embargoes in 1973 and 1979 could happen again because of the recent events in the Persian Gulf.
 Foster said the council is urging increased leasing on public lands for drilling, improving tax incentives and working toward stabilizing prices.

Western Emergency Service officials prepare to clean up a spill of nitric acid in Azle. A truck leaked nitric acid along a five-mile stretch of highway Thursday, triggering a frantic cleanup effort after five people were overcome by the corrosive chemical's fumes, officials said.

Acid spill prompts city evacuation

AZLE — Almost one-fifth of Azle's 7,800 residents were evacuated and more than 50 were treated for breathing problems after a truck leaked thousands of gallons of nitric acid along a five-mile stretch of highway from Lake Worth to Azle.

Thursday were "so thick that after awhile, you couldn't even see through the cloud. We put on breathing apparatus because it was just pouring out in a red cloud," Azle firefighter Robert Webb said.

The fumes around the truck their cars or along the highway, four were admitted to Harris Memorial Hospital in Azle. The rest were released after treatment for chemical burns and inhalation of the acid fumes, said hospital administrator Dick Belanger.

Of those exposed to acid fumes in No one was seriously hurt.

Mayor owes county taxes

ODESSA — The city mayor owes more than $30,000 in unpaid local property taxes from his defunct sporting goods stores, and a suit is pending against him to collect some of it, officials say.

Ector County attorneys filed suit in January against Mayor Don Carter for almost $5,000 in back taxes, including penalties and interest, according to court documents.

The first-term mayor said Wednesday that he was president of the corporation responsible for the accrued debt, but "the bank took the assets of the corporation and we haven't done anything since."

Carter said he has discussed his former company's local tax dilemma with the various entities, but a payment plan has not been established.

Woman attacked by dog

SAN ANTONIO — A Sabinal woman was in the intensive care unit of a San Antonio hospital today after being attacked by one of her three pet Doberman pinschers, police say.

Alice Caskey, 65, underwent surgery and was in serious condition Thursday night at Methodist Hospital, a hospital spokesman says.

Sabinal Police Chief Speck Nelson said the dog that attacked the woman earlier this week was shot and had to be destroyed.

Nelson said the woman was attempting to place her three dogs in separate rooms when she was attacked by one of them because "one of them got jealous."

Owners oppose dog ban

SAN ANTONIO — A group of pit bull terrier owners have promised a court fight if the San Antonio City Council approves a proposed ban on the controversial dogs.

"We won't sit back and take it," Rebecca Shaw, president of the Austin-San Antonio Pit Bull Club, said Thursday.

A number of citizens and elected officials have asked for an ordinance barring pit bull terriers at San Antonio, according to Dr. Katharine Rathbun, director of the Metropolitan Health District.

A proposal drafted by Rathbun's staff concludes that American pit bull terriers and similar breeds originally were bred for fighting larger animals, such as bears and bulls, and are therefore dangerous to man.

Airlines choose Texas Air

DALLAS — System One Corp., Texas Air's technology subsidiary, has been selected by a consortium of major European airlines to provide the software and technical support for what will be one of the world's largest computerized travel distribution networks, the company confirmed Thursday.

In choosing System One, the European carriers rejected similar proposals by American Airlines' Sabre system and Trans World Airlines' Pars system. American has said it is contemplating other strategies to break into the European travel reservation and information processing market. It already has sold its Sabre system to 140 travel agencies in Europe.

Huggies wins diaper suit

DALLAS — At least for now, consumers will still be able to buy Huggies disposable diapers with elastic waistbands. A jury on Thursday cleared Dallas-based Kimberly-Clark Corp. in a patent infringement lawsuit brought by competitor Procter & Gamble Co., but attorneys for Procter & Gamble said they expect the decision to be appealed.

The trial, which lasted two weeks in U.S. District Judge Joe Fish's court in Dallas, involved a dispute over a heat-shrinkable material used to elasticize the waistbands of disposable diapers. If found guilty of infringement, Kimberly-Clark would have been forced to pull its Huggies disposable diapers from store shelves.

Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble, maker of Pampers and Luvs, charged Dallas-based Kimberly-Clark with knowingly violating a patent that it said protected the elasticizing process.

Opinion

Babbitt making Mexico an issue

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt sensed he was getting a question that would show him to best advantage at a recent press conference. A reporter had asked him how, as a Democratic presidential hopeful, he thought he stacked up against his opponents in his knowledge of Mexican affairs?

Babbitt respectfully declined to single out any one candidate for criticism. But he acknowledged the obvious: Babbitt is the only presidential contender — either Democratic or Republican — who has tried to make Mexico a major issue in his presidential campaign.

While the Central American country of Nicaragua (population 3 million) gets plenty of public attention, Babbitt complains that the U.S. government deals with Mexico, a neighboring country with about 83 million people, in an "episodic and crisis-driven" way.

A more consistent, better-informed U.S. policy toward Mexico may not be as controversial, but Babbitt correctly believes that it is vital to American interests.

Why should the United States worry about the state of Mexico?

Because the Mexican economy is stagnant and ailing — a condition that could eventually cause political unrest. The country's foreign debt is about $100 billion. Its peso steadily is devaluing, shrinking the government's tax revenues and the buying power of Mexican workers.

Mexico also must cope with the still unknown effects of the United States' new immigration reform bill, aimed at staunching the flow of undocumented aliens across the U.S.-Mexico border.

In addition, Americans who live near the border have a visceral awareness that Mexican problems can be our problems. They live with the reality of sewage that flows into the United States. They have a keener understanding of the benefits from U.S.-Mexican trade and of the Mexican twin assembly plants that help fuel the border economy.

Babbitt, as a former governor of a border state, is well-versed and knowledgeable about those issues, too. He is calling for a "reverse Marshall Plan" in which the United States would help relieve Mexico of the staggering $10 billion in annual interest it owes on its foreign debt.

We hope Babbitt's thoughtful comments and proposals encourage other presidential candidates of both parties to broaden their knowledge of Mexico and jump into the debate.

As a matter of foreign policy, we can't afford to ignore a neighbor so intricately involved in the economy and politics of our own country.

Teen regrets decision to run away from home

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I ran away from home a couple of months ago. I am 16, and the only thing I could think about was how great it would be to be free and away from my parents' restrictions. Well, I admit I was stupid. I have wandered from one homeless shelter to another, and it isn't any fun. But I know my parents will punish me if I try to go back home. Where can I turn? — P.H.

DEAR P.H.: I strongly suspect your parents would give almost anything to have you back home. After all, did you ever ask yourself why they gave you restrictions in the first place?

It was because they loved you, and wanted to guard you from things they knew would only hurt you in the long run. They cared about you enough to want to keep you away from trouble.

Don't stay on the streets any longer, but make contact with them right away. Write them or call them collect, or if you still are afraid of being rejected by them call a relative or someone else you can trust (such as your family's pastor, if they have one) who will act as an intermediary.

Don't be afraid or ashamed to admit you were wrong; it is far better to face it now than to go on living without any hope. Both you and your parents have much to learn from this experience, and the time to begin is now.

Jesus once told about a young man who was much like you. (You can read of him in Luke 15:11-32). He decided he was tired of living at home and left, much to his father's sorrow. Eventually he ran out of money and friends and reached the bottom.

Then he decided to return to his father — who welcomed him warmly. I believe this is what will happen with you. But Jesus also told this story to remind us of God's love for us.

You need to return home — but you also need to give your life to Christ and discover the life He alone can give. He will welcome you and help you if you will receive Him.

Document links junta leader to dictator's special fund

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — A member of the three-man military junta that has ruled Haiti since the flight of dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier last year was apparently paid $10,000 from a Duvalier-controlled "development fund" during the dictator's heyday.

The payment to Gen. Williams Regala, currently minister of defense and interior, appears in a document from Haitian government files. There had long been rumors that Regala, 50, a career military man, had links to Duvalier and to the Ton-Tons Macoutes, the dictator's murderous security force.

But until now there has been no documentary evidence to support the rumors of the Duvalier association.

The disbursement record we obtained is among more than 24,000 documents the Haitian government turned over to American lawyers. The files are for use in lawsuits Haiti has filed against Duvalier and his cronies to regain millions in cash and artworks allegedly taken out of the country when the regime collapsed in February 1986.

One of the defendants is Auguste

Jack Anderson

Douyon, Duvalier's longtime personal secretary. According to a Bank of the Republic of Haiti debit statement dated Feb. 21, 1980, Douyon authorized the payment of $10,000 to Regala from an account titled, "Cpte Spec de Developpement Gvt d'Haiti." The other expenditures listed suggest the account was used for travel and lodging.

In a telephone interview, Regala denied any knowledge of the disbursement. "There is nothing in my mind that I received any cash or check or anything," he told our reporter Michael Rosenfelt. "I've not received any money from anyone. Maybe it had to do with my profession. I never dealt with him (Douyon). We didn't used to deal together."

There is indeed no way of determining from the documents whether Regala ever actually received the $10,000.

The Haitian government is trying to regain some $120 million with which Duvalier and his satraps absconded. Part of this effort is a suit in the District of Columbia Superior Court to recover 56 Haitian paintings that Douyon allegedly bought with money stolen from the Haitian government.

The paintings, valued at more than $1.3 million, were discovered in a Washington warehouse where Douyon allegedly stashed them.

Disclosure that Regala was apparently the recipient of a cash payment from a special Duvalier-controlled bank account comes at a time when the Haitian military junta is trying to deal with the country's worst political crisis since Duvalier fled for his life 17 months ago.

At least two dozen Haitians have been killed in the recent wave of anti-government protests, strikes and riots.

Many flee death for new life

By KERRY HAGLUND Staff Writer

A rolling coffin.

That's how a recent El Paso Times editorial described a railroad boxcar that on July 2 became a tomb for 18 illegal aliens trying to sneak across the state.

On July 8, another 19 aliens nearly met the same fate.

The incidents are proof that illegal immigration is still with us despite the new law.

That doesn't surprise me. Nor was I surprised by insensitive comments about the situation made by a Dallas talk show host.

But the man's comments angered me.

Radio talk show host David Gold of KLIF-AM in Dallas said the illegal aliens who suffocated "got what they deserved."

On his afternoon show, Gold said: "I know I'm going to really stir it up again ... but you know the 18 illegal aliens tragically killed in a railroad car? That's a tragic thing. But I don't know if your mind works like mine, but those people got what they deserved ... I have no sympathy for people trying to get in this country illegally."

Perhaps Gold would have had a better understanding of why people risk their lives to come to the land of plenty if he had personally talked with some illegal aliens.

I would venture to guess he has never seen the slums of Mexico City filled with dirty, shoeless children, pregnant mothers, and toothless elderly begging in the streets.

Perhaps if he had met someone like Brenda Sanchez-Galan, an illegal alien from El Salvador, Gold never would have made those comments for which he later apologized.

I met Brenda in 1984 in Eau Claire, Wis. during the height of the sanctuary movement.

Against the wishes of the federal government, Wisconsin's leaders declared the state a sanctuary for

Around the rim

Central Americans fleeing war and persecution in their countries.

An Eau Claire church congregation provided a temporary haven for 20-year-old Brenda and her infant daughter.

I spoke with Brenda and told her tragic story in the college newspaper.

She cried as she told it, and I cried as I listened.

In her native tongue, Galan told of many experiences — from her work at a church-sponsored refugee camp near San Salvador to her flight from her war-torn country.

The stories were riveting. She told of a soldier who came to her sister's house seeking medical aid.

"My sister agreed to help him because she was a Christian; she didn't want to know anything about what happened to him or what he did because she didn't want any trouble," Galan said.

That night some people came and took Galan's sister away. She was found a week later — in a garbage can.

"My entire family went to identify her," Galan said; tears flowed as she recounted the horror.

"She had been tortured by electric shocks to her head, her finger nails were pulled out and she was cut in three pieces," Galan said.

Lewis Grizzard

Speculates why North wins support

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

It took me about six seconds of watching Lt. Col. Oliver North as he testified before the select committees investigating the Iran hanky-panky arms deal to decide whose side I was on.

Ollie's, of course, and I obviously am not alone. Each day the Marine testified, his public support grew and I am here to tell you, in my view, some of the reasons why:

- Most everybody, at one time or the other, has been in a similar situation as Oliver North. We have been called before our parents, our teachers, the board or some other such powerful and frightening bodies to explain what we did and why we did it.

It's never fair. Guilty or not, you sit there like you've got a bull's-eye painted on your forehead and they come at you like piranha.

When I was in high school I lost a library book. I was called before the head librarian and her staff.

I didn't have a chance.

"You vil find this book and vil find it fast or this vil go on your permanent record and you vil never get into college or find a job or father children," I was told by the high tribunal.

Oliver North is going through the same sort of thing, although he would have known what to do if he had found the book. Put it in the shredder.

- Nobody likes a smart-alecky, pushy lawyer. First, North went before House committee counsel John Nields, who had that smirk on his face as he asked North the same question over and over again.

(At one bar, it was reported they switched the channels and watched a baseball game when Nields' questions became so repetitious.)

Lawyer Nields, who is half-baldheaded, not only smirked, he seemed to be making faces at North by pooching his lips from side to side. Nothing worse than a half-baldheaded, poochy-lipped lawyer.

Then, North went before Senate counsel Arthur Liman, who looked like a big toad frog eyeing a fly from his lily pad. Liman wore a sneer, too, one I've seen before in divorce court.

- Lt. Col. North has testified that he didn't trust the Congress. That's something else most of us have in common with him.

- The uniform. The closely-cropped hair. The intensity in the eyes. If you were in a bar or a war and a fight broke out, who would you rather have on your side — Ollie North or Arthur Liman?

- Whereas the committee's counselors seemed heartless and downright mean, North's attorney, Brendan Sullivan, came off as one against many, much like his client.

If you were casting a movie based on all this, you'd want Wally Cox to play Brendan Sullivan.

I realize Wally Cox is dead, but let's not get bogged down by details here.

Imagine, if you will, Mr. Peepers vs. Assassin #1 (Nields) and Assassin #2 (Liman). Think what a wrestling promoter could do with that.

- And this in relation to all that: You like Lt. Col. North because he sort of reminds you of a young Jimmy Stewart, doesn't he?

Whether he's telling the truth or not he's got that same sort of Jimmy Stewart gosh-darn sincerity about him — and only perverts and pompous liberals could pull against Jimmy Stewart.

If I were Col. North's attorney, I'd find June Allyson and seat her directly behind the lieutenant colonel.

Then, you could call in the dogs and douse the fire. The witch hunt would be over.

By Associated Press Homosexual on panel

WASHINGTON — A homosexual geneticist who is among 13 people appointed by President Reagan to a new panel that will study how to stop the spread of AIDS said today the disease is a "a horror scene for the gay community."

"We all have long lists of friends that we have lost," said Dr. Frank Lilly, speaking on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program.

The 13 appointees, whom Reagan introduced Thursday at the National Institutes of Health, range from Lilly, an activist homosexual, to a Roman Catholic cardinal who has denounced homosexuality as a sin.

L.A. officers model

LOS ANGELES — A dozen Los Angeles police officers are doing their share to increase the department's visibility by showing what's beneath those uniforms and badges.

Officers from police stations across the city flexed their muscles for "L.A. Blue," a 1988 pinup calendar marketed by unemployed actor Mark Sample.

Each was paid $100 for the modeling work, most giving the money to charities. Sample said he is giving some of the proceeds from the calendars, which retail for $8.95, to the department's drug abuse education program.

Gang threatens DEA

SAN DIEGO — Associates of a reputed Mexican drug trafficker charged in the murder of a U.S. drug-enforcement agent are threatening federal agents in this country and following their families, authorities say.

"We take the threats very seriously because DEA has hurt the (Rafael) Caro Quintero drug trafficking enterprise in recent months," said Ronald J. D'Ulisse, Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman in National City, five miles south of San Diego.

Caro Quintero has offered to pay $25,000 to anyone who brings a DEA agent, dead or alive, to his chief lieutenants in Baja California, according to unidentified DEA sources cited in a San Diego Union story today.

Tornado hits suburb

MINNEAPOLIS — Tornadoes and high winds damaged as many as 300 houses in a Twin Cities suburb as torrential rains from a fierce summer storm killed two people, turned streets into rivers and left parts of the metropolitan area paralyzed today.

An elderly man drowned in a basement when a wall caved in and another man was swept away after he removed a barricade and drove onto a street flooded by Thursday night's storm, officials said.

Hostages

Police kill gunmen, rescue family

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Police rescued a mother and her 12-year-old daughter and shot to death three gunmen who tried to flee after taking the two hostage during a robbery of their home, officials said Thursday.

The gunmen entered the house of businessman Marcos Ramos on Governor's Island, on Rio's north side, late Wednesday and took his family hostage, police said.

The three gunmen ate and drank wine and whiskey and threatened to kill the mother, Adna Ramos, her three children — the girl and two boys, ages 10 and 15 — and a 16-year-old neighbor, who was visiting, police said.

A suspicious neighbor called police, and 100 state and municipal police led by Brazil's best-known manhunter, police chief Helio Vigio, surrounded the house.

Secretary of Police Marco Heusi negotiated with the gunmen for two hours and convinced them their demand for a helicopter was impossible because the craft could not land in the neighborhood.

The assailants then took Mrs. Ramos and her daughter, Renata, hostage and tried to escape in the family's car. But police trapped them on the bridge leading from the island, pulled the hostages out during a traffic jam and killed the assailants after a shoot-out in which about 100 shots were fired.

Heusi acknowledged it was a risky operation but defended the action.

Gun wielding would-be burglars threaten Mrs. Adna Ramos and her daughter Renata, 12, in a stand-off with police Wednesday in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Three gunmen entered the house bent on burglary. All three were killed by police as they attempted to flee with their hostages. Mother and daughter were unharmed.

"They (gunmen) only had two chances; one, to turn the guns away from the victims' heads, and two, to shoot at us. In the interim, we aimed and were right on target," Heusi said.

The dead gunmen were identified as Ezequiel Batista, 20, Fernando Da Silva, 18, and a third man only known as "Quito."

Crew overpowers hijacker

Security police had ringed the jumbo jet and were planning to storm it, Zweigert said. The hijacker later was seen being dragged down a stairway from the green-striped plane.

The dead passenger, who was shot in the head, was identified as Xavier Beaulieu, a French citizen, according to officials in Paris. Artizzi said a PLO representative at the airport talked the hijacker out of killing a second passenger.

The hijacker selected Beaulieu after demanding the passports of the passengers, took him to the first-class section that had been cleared of witnesses, and shot him, Artizzi said. Three crewmen were ordered to take Beaulieu to an ambulance, where he died.

He died in an ambulance that the hijacker had allowed to pick him up, said Robert Ducret, head of the Swiss Crisis Unit at the Geneva airport.

By Associated Press Soviets see obstacle

GENEVA — The chief Soviet negotiator on medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles claimed today that the United States wants complicated and unfair anti-cheating measures that could block an agreement.

Alexei Obukhov spoke at a news conference a day after the Soviet Union made a formal proposal at the U.S.-Soviet arms talks to eliminate medium and shorter-range nuclear missiles worldwide.

On anti-cheating measures, or verification, Obukhov said the two sides have reached agreement on inspections, notifications and exchange of data.

386 dead in massacre

INHAMBANE, Mozambique — Attackers killed bedridden hospital patients and chanted political slogans while killing children in what the government said was a rebel massacre of 386 villagers, wounded survivors said.

"About 5:30 in the morning the armed bandits appeared," said Nizar Moussa, who was shot in the chest in Saturday's attack. "They began to spread out throughout the town. They tried to attack the police headquarters. They did not succeed so they went to the hospital. They went house to house massacring people."

Tanker hits gulf mine

KUWAIT — One of the two Kuwaiti tankers sailing under an American flag and U.S. Navy escort hit a mine today in the Persian Gulf about 120 miles from its destination.

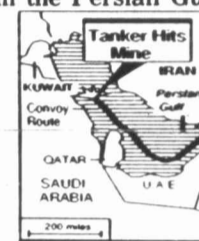

There were no injuries reported among the 26 people on board, but the giant tanker Bridgeton began taking on water. Even so, it was able to proceed, said Navy Lt. Richard Vogel, who was aboard the stricken vessel.

The tanker hit the mine shortly before 7 a.m. local time (midnight EDT), as it was steaming about 120 miles southeast of Kuwait.

Woman reaches Fiji top

MOUNT FUJI, Japan — Hulda Crooks, a 91-year-old mountaineer from Loma Linda, Calif., reached the top of Japan's tallest peak at dawn Friday after a difficult three-day climb. She is the oldest woman to conquer Mount Fuji.

Mrs. Crooks stepped through a special gate marking the top of the sacred 12,385-foot dormant volcano at 3:45 a.m. as a pink sun rose over the horizon and waved an American flag tied to her walking stick.

REMEMBER THAT THE SEASON OF FAITH IS ALL THE YEAR 'ROUND

It's the hottest part of the year, known as the summer doldrums; a time when we are mainly preoccupied with just trying to keep cool, and otherwise doing as little as possible. However, this is not the time to neglect your faith, but rather to seek a little spiritual refreshment. In fact, your House of Worship is likely to be as cool inside as any place you could go; and with so many people away on vacation, your presence there will be appreciated more than ever. If you have friends or relatives visiting you, or even some friendly neighbors, take them along; it will undoubtedly be a very enjoyable and worthwhile experience for them. Just remember that faith is never out of season, and that God is there all year 'round, to offer the helping hand of His wisdom and guidance. You have only to reach out for it, no matter what it may say on the calendar or the thermometer.

Religion roundup

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The Loyola Foundation has made a grant of $500,000 to help provide for retirement needs of elderly members of Roman Catholic religious orders, critically lacking funds for pensions.

Recent surveys found a shortfall of $2.5 billion to meet such needs among religious orders, particularly of women, with some aged nuns in severe straits or on welfare.

The grant was made to a national organization called Support Our Aging Religious (SOAR), formed last fall by lay Catholics to help respond to the crisis among older religious order members.

"The problem remains grave," said Rita Hofbauer, SOAR's executive director. "More contributions are needed if we are to adequately respond to this critical reality."

The U.S. Catholic Conference has set up a retirement project, directed by Sister Mary Oliver Hudson, to coordinate efforts on the problem.

Lilly Endowment, Inc., of Indianapolis recently provided a $400,000 grant as part of the project for a service to help religious orders plan retirement programs.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — The Christian Broadcasting Network has reduced its work force by 22.3 percent, laying off 500 regular and part-time personnel, and also made a $25-million budget cut because of falling revenues.

CBN's chief executive Pat Robertson blames the drop in revenues on a spill-over, "guilt by association" effect of activities of Jim and Tammy Bakker, who left their PTL network in a scandal over sex and high spending.

NEW YORK — "Albricias," a Spanish word meaning "good news," is the title of a new book of 38 Spanish hymns published by the Episcopal Church for use in Hispanic congregations in the United States.

RICHMOND, Va. — Christians of China "have as much to offer us as we have to offer them," says the Rev. R. Keith Parks, president of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, after a two-week visit there.

VA chaplain

He found his niche in the ministry

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

LeNier Emerson has always had the urge to serve in the ministry and the new chaplain at the Veterans Administration Medical Center says he has found his niche.

Emerson began working at the local hospital on July 5, replacing Richard Roney, who transferred to the VA Center in Marion, Ill.

The 57-year-old native Iowan says the biggest advantage of being a hospital chaplain, as opposed to a parish pastor, is that the people he comes in contact with are "more receptive of his ministry."

He explains that patients in the hospital are in a crisis setting and are more attentive to his preaching. He likened it to the old Army saying: "There aren't any atheists in foxholes."

Emerson has Army experiences to draw from, having served during the Korean War. In 1953, he was stationed along the 38th Parallel, referred to as "no man's land."

His major memory from that time is patrolling along the Demilitarized Zone in three-to-four-foot snowdrifts during the bitter Korean winter. He said, however, that patrolling in the snow was preferable to actual combat, which he was fortunate enough to avoid.

LENIER EMERSON
...new VA chaplain

"It was a place I didn't want to be, but I realized that I had a duty to perform, so I did it," he said of his wartime experiences. After being transferred home, he decided to enroll at the University of Iowa as a business administration major and planned on becoming an accountant.

It was during the last semester of his senior year in college, that a friendly pastor changed Emerson's mind — and his career goals.

In 1957, he became involved with the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist student center at the university. He and other members would work on projects such as helping remodel elderly people's homes.

An area pastor who was active with the Methodist students felt that Emerson would make a good pastor, and continually urged him to do so.

Emerson wanted to serve in some area of the church, and when the pastor's church offered to pay his seminary tuition, it was the deciding factor he needed.

He entered Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary in 1957 and graduated with a divinity degree four years later. It was during this time that he decided to become a chaplain. The major difference between being a chaplain and pastor, he says, is the setting.

Compared to a pastor's parish, which may be a wide area, a hospital chaplain's ministry is much more centralized. One thing that this allows is a greater amount of one-to-one ministry — one of the best advantages of his job, he added.

Aside from those differences, he said his job was very similar to a pastor's.

He performs many functions that a regular pastor does, such as conducting services, officiating at funerals and even performing weddings — on occasions.

He and his wife, Fran, are house-hunting in Big Spring. He says that his reception here has been excellent and complimented local residents on their friendliness.

The Emersons have two children: Gilbert is a roofer in Libertyville, Ill., where the family lived before moving here; and Anna is a case manager in Kenosha, Wis.

Church briefs

Baptists to host crusade Aug. 2-5

Large crowds are expected Aug. 2-5 when Freddie Gage, one of the nation's most exciting evangelists leads a short, intensive "Go Tell Crusade" at the First Baptist Church.

Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, urges everyone to hear Dr. Gage, regardless of whatever — if any — denomination persuasion.

"While we are sponsoring and bearing expense of the crusade, we hope that members of every congregation will come and bring an unchurched friend. We will be as pleased if those making decisions make another church commitment as our own. We want people to hear."

More than three-score individuals have been training as counselors to be available on a one-on-one basis to help those who respond, he said.

About 50 people will be in the choir, directed by Tim Thornton in support of the crusade.

All first through sixth grade children will be treated with a free hot dog supper on Aug. 3 in the fellowship hall and youths from sixth through 12 grade will be treated to a pizza supper on Aug. 5.

Teacher, prophet is guest speaker

Living Water Christian Fellowship, 11th Place and FM 700, will feature guest speaker Rev. Michael O'Shields July 25 at 7:30 p.m. and July 26 at 10:30 a.m.

O'Shields is an anointed teacher, prophet and published songwriter, according to church officials. He has traveled throughout the Southwest since 1972.

Christian concert artists performs

Brian Hanson, one of the most exciting Christian concert artists, will be in concert at the Church of the Nazarene on July 29 at 7 p.m., according to Gary Smith, pastor at the church.

For more than a decade, Hanson has traveled coast-to-coast performing Christian concerts to thrilling audiences, not only with his piano virtuosity, but with a warmth and sense of humor seldom found in a traditional piano setting, Smith said.

Unity House open on Day of Prayer

Christians around the world will unite in prayer on August 2 for Day of Prayer for World Peace. Unity House of Prayer, 1104 S. Benton, will be open for prayer and meditation between 6 and 8 a.m.

UT system discontinues Bible courses

From staff and wire reports

University of Texas campuses will drop any official connection with Bible courses taught by instructors who are selected or paid by religious groups, officials said.

Local religious leaders feel the change is detrimental.

Billy Patton, minister at Birdwell Lane Church of Christ, says he thinks "it's the prayer in the classroom deal. It seems like to me that it's not the issue, separation of church and state, it's merely an effort to eliminate the influence of God in daily life from our society. I feel like they're riding an issue that's mislabeled. The constitution's intent was based on a free religion and they're reversing that."

Father Stephen White from Immaculate Heart of Mary Church doesn't think it will affect the Catholic students because most don't participate in the Bible study courses in the universities.

"However, I am sad that this step has been taken by the university. I believe that the knowledge of the Bible taught by an ordained minister is beneficial to the students and the country."

Bob Brown, pastor at Airport Baptist Church, agrees.

"I think it's a victory for Madeline O'Hara and I think it's a loss to the people on campus."

The change stems from a legal opinion Attorney General Jim Mattox issued last May, and UT presidents were notified of the policy this week, said James Duncan, executive vice chancellor for academic affairs.

The Bible courses were being offered at three UT campuses — Austin, Arlington and El Paso — when the UT system asked for Mattox's opinion. Now, transfer credit will be limited to religious studies courses offered by accredited institutions, Duncan said.

William Hilgers, an Austin attorney for Friends of the Biblical Tradition, a group that supports continuing the courses, said he thinks the UT system has misinterpreted Mattox's opinion.

Under procedures dating to 1919, UT-Austin has offered credit for courses taught by instructors who hold Bible chairs affiliated with the Biblical Studies Association, an off-campus, interdenominational group.

Chair-holders have been approved by UT-Austin, but paid by denominations that belong to the BSA. The instructors aren't considered faculty members, but are listed in the campus directory and have faculty identification cards.

Similar Bible courses have been offered at UT-El Paso and UT-Arlington, as well as at a dozen or more other state universities, but how the courses are administered varies at each campus.

The attorney general's opinion said state universities may continue to give credit for religion courses offered by religious organizations if the universities "operate within constitutional guidelines."

The opinion said those guidelines include requirements that the courses be secular in nature, do not "advance or inhibit religion," and "be offered in a manner that avoids excessive entanglement between government and religion."

"It would be unfortunate if controversy over the professional status of these outside religious studies instructors were placed above the value of the programs to students," Mattox wrote.

Duncan's letter to the UT presidents rules out the option of giving credit for the courses after they have been separated from the universities.

"While we appreciate the alternatives detailed by the attorney general as legally permissible, one of the preferred solutions, the grant of transfer credit for a course offered by a religious organization, is not available to components of the University of Texas System," Duncan wrote.

"As is the case with most institutions of higher education, the university does not accept academic credit from non-accredited institutions," he added.

Hilgers said he could not understand how the UT system arrived at its decision.

"This goes far beyond the attorney general's ruling," Hilgers said. "I'm sure this will come as a complete shock to supporters of the courses. This is going to bring major changes, and I don't understand how the university draws these conclusions from the ruling."

An estimated 250 students participated in 19 classes offered last year.

Dallas pastor reaches out to AIDS patients

DALLAS — There are no stained-glass windows where the Rev. A. Oliver Vannorsdall works, and he rarely wears a collar.

He is unencumbered by church meetings and social teas. He preaches few sermons.

But each day, "Van" Vannorsdall works to stretch the boundaries of pastoral care. He is chaplain to patients at Parkland Memorial Hospital who suffer from acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and his job is to bring hope to the dying and a sense of control to those whose choices are fading.

"My patients are angry, and they have a lot to be angry about," said Vannorsdall, 50, an Episcopal priest whose job as the only full-time AIDS chaplain in Dallas began in April.

"My goal is to help them get the anger out and move on."

The lanky Vannorsdall looks like an aging preppie. His hair is flecked with gray, and his bedside manner is calm. He was raised on a farm in southwest Ohio, and he spent much of his adulthood teaching Bible and religion in Midwestern colleges.

Several years ago, he decided to work with the elderly and enrolled in a pastoral care program at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston. A friend told him about the job at Parkland.

"For me it was the right job at the right time," Vannorsdall said, sitting serenely in the chaplain's office at the hospital.

"And I was at the right place."

Vannorsdall cannot fully explain why he chose a ministry that many shun or which reservoirs he taps to renew himself amid ever-present death. But he says he gets strength from his patients.

"When I see the strength and courage they find, I think we receive a lot," Vannorsdall said. "Even though it's painful to see people die, we're getting something in return. We get a lot of love."

The Rev. Benjamin Breikreuz, Parkland's chief chaplain, said the hospital provides medical care to about a third of Dallas' AIDS patients, about 350 outpatients and 10 who are hospitalized. Breikreuz estimates there is one new AIDS diagnosis every day in Dallas and about three or four AIDS-related deaths weekly.

What makes the deaths so devastating is that many of the patients are young.

"Dying is almost always hard, but it is harder during the prime of life, when one's investment in procession, material things, family and relationship are at their highest levels," Breikreuz said. "It's easier for a child to die than a 20-year-old. And it's easier for a 90-year-old than a 35-year-old."

Many AIDS patients at Parkland are between 20 and 50, Vannorsdall said. He meets with them informally, greeting them in the clinic's antiseptically clean waiting room or stopping by when they are being treated.

"He is very comforting to talk to," said a patient who asked not to be named. "I can come in here, fall apart, and he won't get upset."

"At first I thought I had to go and have an agenda and have all the answers," he said. "I thought if I just went and sat, I wasn't accomplishing anything at all."

"Now, I just go and sit and hold a patient's hand or hug them. I don't need to give answers."

Vannorsdall said he isn't afraid he will catch AIDS if he touches the patients. Latest medical reports say the AIDS virus most times is

Hesitation to host full house tempts card cronies to fold

DEAR ABBY: I love to play the card game Pan. In our game, one of the eight players has turned out to be a freeloader. The last eight times when it was her turn to host, she was either "sick," or her husband was "entertaining a relative," or her maid missed coming this week and her house was a mess. However, she has not missed a game in a year!

Now she says her hands hurt (arthritis) so she can't shuffle the cards, but she has no trouble reaching for the chips or reaching for the cards.

Abby, you once wrote: "Nobody can take advantage of you without your permission."

The other women in our group are just as fed up with this woman as I am, but nobody has the nerve to call her on it. I told the others that I was going to drop out. So since I am always quoting you, they said, "Write to Dear Abby and see what she has to say." So I am writing. Should I stay with the group and ignore this woman's faults, or drop out and try to organize another game without her? The other women said they would all go along with your decision.

E.G. IN L.A.

DEAR E.G.: Freeloading is inexcusable, but arthritic hands can be painful, so give the offending woman a break. Confront her and state your complaint, and if she doesn't have the game at her house in the very near future, you would be justified to "reorganize" — and deal her out.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My very good friend (I'll call her Terry) just found out that she is expecting twins. She gave me a baby shower last year, so now I'm going to have one for her.

Do you think I should mention on the invitations that Terry is expecting twins? It will mean that the guests will have to buy two gifts instead of one, which may make it kind of expensive for those who are on a rather tight budget.

DOUBLE TROUBLE
DEAR DOUBLE: Of course you should mention the double blessing in your invitations. Obviously it will mean bringing two gifts instead of one, but everyone knows that one pair of booties will not cover four little feet.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a beef I don't recall seeing in your column: Why does every young twit in a medical/legal office, from the doctor/lawyer down to the receptionist, call me by my first name?

I always introduce myself as "Mrs. Smith." I'm 43, mother of five, a professional person with more life experience than any three of them put together. Yet they're always Dr. X or Mr. X. I find it disrespectful and an unwarranted familiarity. I'm sure every self-respecting woman has at some time resented this condescension.

What is a firm but polite response to nip this habit in the bud?

MRS. SMITH, VANCOUVER, B.C.

DEAR MRS. SMITH: I recommend that you firmly, but politely, ask the offending young twerps, doctors, lawyers, receptionists, etc. to address you as "Mrs. Smith." And should they fall back into their old first-name habits, firmly but politely repeat the request.

Entrepreneur puts protection in the bag

FORT WORTH (AP) — An entrepreneur and reserve sheriff's officer has devised a purse with a secret gun compartment for women law enforcement officers who have to carry a gun while in plain clothes.

Improving on a borrowed invention, Sarah LePere, a Dallas County reserve sheriff's officer manufactures a purse that can be pulled open quickly, revealing the weapon.

"A lot of law officers are required to carry a weapon when they're off duty," LePere said this week at the Sheriff's Association of Texas conference, where she has a booth.

"If they needed it quickly, they have to dig for it. If they find it in time, will it have cracker crumbs or M&Ms in the barrel? Will it be ready to use?"

All of LePere's bags, which cost from $30 to $150, have their gun compartments in the center, with easy access from a Velcro-sealed end. They also come equipped with compartments for handcuffs, identification and "speed-loaders" — a device for rapid reloading.

Big Spring juniors, bigs grab victories

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Junior All-Stars unleashed a 15-hit attack and took advantage of 15 walks issued by Abilene pitchers to take a 18-10 win Thursday night in sub-sectional tournament play.

The win puts the Big Spring 13-year olds one victory away from the championship game in the three team, double elimination tournament. Big Spring plays Lubbock Dixie today at 3 p.m.

Abilene had a big first inning, scoring six runs. Big Spring starter Mark Arguello was lifted after pitching to two batters. Gerald Cobos took his place and picked up the win.

Big Spring scratched for a run in their half of the first, then took control of the contest in the second. Big Spring exploded for 10 runs in the stanza. They were never down after that.

The top half of Big Spring's lineup was murder on the five Abilene pitchers. John Downey, Cort Petterson, Kevin Rodgers and Cobos combined to drive in 11 runs. Rodgers and Joey Conaway homered for Big Spring.

Steven Robles led Big Spring with four hits. Cobos added three hits, while Rodgers and Abel Hilario had two hits apiece.

If Big Spring defeats Lubbock Dixie, they will be in the finals, scheduled for Sunday at 3 p.m. If they lose, they'll play Saturday at 3 p.m.

Big Spring 6, San Angelo 4

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Big League All-Stars, age 16-18, won their opener in sub-sectional tournament play Thursday night, defeating San Angelo 6-4.

Raymon Ontiveros led the way as he fired a four-hitter. Jim Childress was the loser for San Angelo.

Ontiveros also had a good game at the plate, hitting a double and a single, driving in two runs. Another top Big Spring hitter was Chad Wash, who doubled twice, driving in two RBIs.

Eric Thompson singled and drove in a run and Paul Bacon also singled.

Big Spring will play Abilene tonight at 8:30 p.m.

Lamesa denies hope for all-Big Spring final

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring National League All-Stars ran up against a brick wall by the name of Wesley Diaz and were eliminated from the District III Little League All-Star Tournament Thursday night at National League Park.

Diaz pitched a three-hitter to lead the Lamesa stars to 3-0 win and a berth in tonight's losers' bracket finals against Odessa Salinas at American League Park. The winner of tonight's game will face the American League stars in Saturday night's championship game at National League Park.

The Nationals stayed close with good pitching and fielding of their own, but Diaz got in a groove early and seemed to get stronger as the game progressed.

Lamesa scored one run on two hits in the first off starter Oscar Cervantes, and the damage would have been worse were it not for a great play by National stars' shortstop Danny Wilson. Lamesa's Marty Martinez opened the game with a chest level blast between short and second, and Wilson went horizontal to make the grab.

The next batter, Cole Adams, singled, and came in two batters later on a stand-up double by Michael Garcia.

The Big Spring team almost tied the score in the bottom of the first with their best inning of the game. With one out, Bryan Sledge — one of the hottest hitters in the tourney — cracked a hard single to left.

After one more out, Cervantes blasted a stand-up double that thudded against a billboard on the left field fence. The National stars Lamesa's Wesley Diaz grimaces as he looks for the umpire's call at first during second inning action in the Lamesa-Big Spring National League game Thursday night at National League Park. David Park, right, made the catch of the throw from third baseman Wes Hughes, and Diaz was out by a nose.

had men on second and third, but a pop-out ended the threat. The National's David Park drew a walk in the second, and was the only batter on either team to take a base in that inning. National League third baseman Wes Hughes made the play of the inning when he blocked a hot grounder by Wesley Diaz, picked the ball up and gunned Diaz out at first.

Lamesa added another in the third on one hit and two National errors. Louis Macias led off with a grounder that went through the third baseman's legs, and Martinez followed with a single to right, putting men on first and third.

After a pop out, Jonathon Contreras hit the ball to second, and Macias scored on the second error of the inning. The National stars made a pitching change, moving Cervantes to left and bringing Sledge to the mound from first.

Sledge got the next two batters out on a pop out and a ground out, but the home team trailed 2-0.

Meanwhile, Diaz, mixing a blazing fastball and a wicked curve, was getting stronger. Sledge reached base in the third after the Lamesa left-fielder dropped his fly ball, but Diaz got the next two batters out to end the inning.

Lamesa added their final run in the fourth on a solo homer by Nathaniel Scott, their whiplike right-fielder. The tall, thin Scott hit the ball just far enough — it hit the top of the fence in center and bounced over.

Scott added to his heroics in the bottom of the fourth when he caught a deep fly from Park. Clint Kemper, who had walked, must have decided that the way Diaz was pitching, something drastic had to be done. Kemper tagged and raced to second, but Scott displayed a great arm in gunning him out to end the inning.

Lamesa's Martinez opened the fifth with a single to right, but Sledge responded by striking out. LAMESA page 2B

Red Sox go with youth; waive 'aging' Buckner

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Buckner is waiting to be picked up by a major-league team. The Boston Red Sox are waiting till next year.

Mired in fifth place in the East Division, last year's American League champions intensified their youth movement Thursday by waiving the 37-year-old Buckner and promoting 23-year-old Sam Horn from the International League.

Buckner, an 18-year veteran who has more than 2,500 hits and one unforgettable World Series error, said he expected the move.

"The club was not winning and I was the easiest guy to get rid of," the first baseman said. "They made the decision to go with younger players and that left me out."

"It hasn't been much fun this year. It's been like every day you have to play well because if you don't, you'll be out of the lineup the next day. My ankle is pretty sound now and I'm swinging the bat as well as I have all year. I told the Red Sox that if the situation came up and I couldn't play, they could release me and I could go somewhere else."

He feels he can still play. "I'd like to go to a club with a chance of winning. I think I can help. I prefer to stay in the American League where I know the pitchers but it's no big deal if I go to a National League club."

Buckner has been a productive hitter this season, batting .273 with two homers and 42 RBI in 75 games. Horn also has been productive as a designated hitter with the Pawtucket Red Sox.

The left-handed hitting Horn leads the IL with 30 homers and 84 RBI, is third with a .322 batting average and has a .658 slugging percentage.

"We've already brought up some young kids," Boston General Manager Lou Gorman said. "We're not giving up at all and I still think we can be a factor in the second part of the season. But I also have to be realistic about it."

"If we're one or two games out, we wouldn't have made this move."

Unable to trade Buckner and his big contract, the Red Sox freed him to join another club. Gorman expects a pennant contender to sign him, primarily as a pinch-hitter.

Had the Red Sox traded Buckner, his new team would have had to pick up his reported $800,000 salary this season. No team was expected to claim him during the 72-hour waiver period.

If he is not claimed, he could make a deal with any club, which would have to pay him only the minimum salary of $62,500, prorated for the rest of the season. The Red Sox still would be obligated for the difference between that and his contract amount.

Buckner is under contract to the Red Sox for a reported $850,000 next season. The Red Sox can buy that out for $100,000.

"I talked to every single club. There were a couple of clubs that expressed interest in a trade and then thought about it and backed off," Gorman said. "If I was sitting in the same position, why would I want to pick up the contract?"

Buckner, whose error let in the New York Mets' winning run in the sixth game of last year's World Series, has a .292 career batting average with 2,542 hits in 8,710 at-bats in 2,251 games.

But the lingering image of him may be the ball that went through his legs nine months ago.

Boston was leading 3-2 in games and was ahead 5-3 going into the bottom of the 10th inning of the sixth game of last year's World Series. The Mets tied the score 5-5, then won it when Ray Knight scored from second as Mookie Wilson's two-out grounder skipped through Buckner's leg.

The Mets went on to win the World Series with an 8-5 victory in the seventh game.

"He did a great job" last season, Gorman said of Buckner. "He drove in 102 runs last year and if he wasn't playing first base for us we wouldn't have been in the World Series. He could be in the World Series again. I hope he is."

"He has been one of the most competitive people I've ever been associated with," Red Sox Manager John McNamara said. "There have been days when he's had to force himself to get ready. He has a high pain tolerance and he did a hell of a job for us. A lot of sentiment was involved in making the decision. I wish him well."

The Red Sox probably will use right fielder Dwight Evans at first base, a position he has played occasionally this season. That would open right field for 24-year-old Mike Greenwell, who is batting .295 with 10 homers and 43 RBI in 66 games.

Skinny 'Kitchen'

Oiler officials visit Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A tour of Gator Bowl facilities by Houston Oilers' officials Thursday was described by Mayor Tommy Hazouri's office as a "courtesy visit."

Oilers' General Manager Ladd Herzog and Thomas Smith, executive assistant to the president, were escorted on the tour by Rick Catlett, a member of Jacksonville's NFL Task Force.

Oilers President Bud Adams planned to make the trip but was forced to remain in Houston on last-minute business. Mayor Hazouri also was forced to cancel plans to visit with Oilers' officials because of scheduling conflicts, his office said.

Hazouri and other city officials visited Adams last week in Houston to urge him to move the National Football League team to the 81,000-seat Gator Bowl.

The visit came two days after Houston's Harris County Commissioners Court approved a $50 million renovation of the Astrodome to expand football seating to 65,579.

The Astrodome improvements are contingent on the Oilers signing a new 10-year lease, plus a five-year option. The Oilers lease with the Astrodome expires after the upcoming season.

"I hope it's nothing more than a courtesy visit. We have done all we can do," said Judge Jon Lindsay in Houston.

The Oilers are the only National Football League team whose lease expires at the end of the upcoming season. They are the second team to respond to Jacksonville's open invitation to all NFL owners to come and visit the Gator Bowl.

Atlanta Falcons' Owner Rankin Smith visited in April and listened to the city's pitch that moving to the Gator Bowl could increase the team's annual revenue by $4 million to $7 million.

Taylor says his drug use no secret

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL says it never watched Lawrence Taylor. The New York Giants have no comment.

But Taylor says "pretty nearly everybody," including police, knew or suspected he used drugs for three years and nobody did anything about it.

Taylor's allegations and his description of a three-year bout with cocaine are contained in a forthcoming book, "LT: Living on the Edge," excerpts of which were published in the September edition of Sport magazine, due out early next month.

In the excerpt, the NFL's Most Valuable Player wrote that he started using cocaine in October 1982 and continued until just before entering a drug rehabilitation facility early last year under the name of Paul Davis, his best friend. In 1985, he said, he started using crack, the powerful cocaine derivative "because the high was much more intense."

"From very early on, the Giants knew who on the team was into drugs," he said. "They certainly knew I was because they let me know..."

"Cops and NFL security people, people I knew, would follow me. This wasn't paranoia, this was surveillance — and it was a joke. If they wanted to bust me, fine. But I knew they weren't going to do that, not as long as I was who I was and my game was intact," the All-Pro linebacker wrote.

"If I were Joe Blow, OK, there'd be the slammer or some midnight trip to Betty Ford's farm. ... It was almost a thrill in itself knowing that people knew what I was doing and wouldn't do a thing to stop me."

But the people Taylor said were aware of the problem denied any knowledge.

"This office has never had Lawrence Taylor under surveillance," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said. "Any future dealings with Taylor and the Giants regarding this matter will be handled on a confidential basis."

Giants' general manager George Young had no comment and compared Taylor's account with the Japanese play "Rashomon," in which people see the same event from different perspectives and added:

"We're told all the time about confidentiality in dealing with players. We're also in the rehabilitation business, not the punitive business."

Taylor, who lives in Upper Saddle River, N.J., did not specify what police agency followed him. The New Jersey State police and Upper Saddle River police both denied any knowledge and Prosecutor Larry McClure of Bergen County, where Giants Stadium and Taylor's home are located, said:

"If either myself or my staff knew he was taking drugs he would have been arrested. I could care less if he was Lawrence Taylor, Mahatma Gandhi or Oliver North."

Taylor, who led the NFL with 20½ sacks last year as the Giants won their first Super Bowl, had shunted aside all questions about his drug problem after it became known he had undergone rehabilitation in Houston last March.

But in the excerpt in Sport, he went into detail, crediting his wife Linda with convincing him to get off drugs. At one point, he said, she forced her way into the back room of an apartment where he was "totally out of it," and forced him to go home with her.

Taylor said most of his teammates were aware he used cocaine. "The Giants, like every other team in the NFL, had guys who did drugs and guys who didn't. I knew some of them. I didn't know others. Pretty nearly everybody knew about me." TAYLOR page 2B

Parker blasts Expos

By The Associated Press
Some extra batting practice earlier this week by Cincinnati's Dave Parker resulted in an almost perfect performance against the Montreal Expos.

Parker drove in six runs with a homer, double and single in five at-bats as the Reds defeated the Expos 8-4 Thursday night at Olympic Stadium.
The six runs batted in, tied Parker's career high for a game.

National League

set against Los Angeles on May 9, 1975, while a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I took a lot of batting practice on Monday and Tuesday and it paid off tonight," Parker said.

The Expos scored four runs off Ted Power, 8-5, in the first inning, but he settled down and pitched eight innings, allowing eight hits. John Franco pitched the ninth inning for the Reds.

The Expos sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs — three unearned — in the first inning on four hits. Tim Wallach's double accounted for two runs before Andres Galarraga and Mike Fitzgerald each drove in one with singles.
Montreal starter Bryn Smith, 6-4, allowed eight hits and six earned runs in 4 1-3 innings as the Expos lost their third straight.

The Reds scored five runs on four hits to take the lead in the third.
Kurt Stillwell led off the third and reached on third baseman Wallach's two-base error, went to third on Power's sacrifice, and scored the Reds' first run on Barry Larkin's single.
Larkin went to second on Buddy Bell's single and scored on the first of two singles by Eric Davis before Parker hit a three-run homer to put the Reds ahead 5-4. It was Parker's 20th homer of the season.

Phillies 5, Braves 1
Don Carman pitched five-hit ball over seven innings and drove in a run with a single as Philadelphia beat Atlanta at Veterans Stadium.
Carman, 6-7, struck out six and walked five. Mike Jackson pitched the final two innings for the Phillies allowing no hits.
With the score tied 1-1, the Phillies took a 3-1 lead in the fifth with the help of Carman's single.
Padres 2, Pirates 1
Eric Show pitched six-hit ball for 8 2-3 innings and Randy Ready hit a home run as host San Diego beat Pittsburgh.
Show, 5-11, struck out eight and walked two before leaving with two outs and two on in the ninth inning. Rich Gossage got the last out for his seventh save.
Cardinals 9, Dodgers 6
Vince Coleman snapped a 6-6 tie with a run-scoring single in the ninth inning and Ozzie Smith added a two-run double as St. Louis won its fourth straight, taking a 9 1/2-game lead over second-place Montreal in the NL East.

Orioles nip Royals, 2-1

By The Associated Press
The Baltimore Orioles are playing like a "family" these days, in more ways than one.

"It's a lot of fun in the clubhouse now," pitcher Eric Bell said after leading the Orioles to a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals Thursday night for their ninth straight victory. "We're nice and loose and we're joking around a lot. It feels like we're one big family right now."

That can be also taken literally, of course, since the recent callup of Billy Ripken gave the career-high 12 for his first complete game in the major leagues as he improved his record to 8-7. Bell had also pitched well against the Royals last Friday night in a 3-1 victory.

Danny Jackson, 4-12, suffered the loss.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 3
An RBI single by Lloyd Moseby with two outs in the bottom of the ninth and the five-hit pitching of Dave Stieb led Toronto over visiting Minnesota.

Garth Iorg singled with two outs in the ninth off reliever George Frazier, 5-5, moved to second on Tony Fernandez's single off Keith Atherton, and scored on Moseby's base hit.
Minnesota's Gary Gaetti hit a solo home run in the sixth, his 18th of the season, to tie the score 3-3 against Stieb.
Stieb, 9-5, struck out eight to win his third straight game.
Indians 4, Rangers 2
Tom Candiotti pitched a four-hitter and Brook Jacoby and Pat Tabler homered as host Cleveland defeated Texas.
Candiotti, 3-10, walked one and struck out seven en route to his first win since June 5 and his second complete game of the season.

American League

Orioles three family members on the same team with Manager Cal Ripken, Sr., and shortstop Cal Ripken, Jr.

The youngest Ripken has chipped in with some timely hits while hitting in eight straight games and solid defense. On Thursday night, Cal Jr., knocked in the Orioles' two runs with a fifth-inning single.

The Orioles got a strong performance from Bell, who pitched a five-hitter and struck out a Joquin Andujar, 3-3, balked with the bases loaded, forcing in Milwaukee's first run in the third. Brock then followed with a three-run homer, his 10th, to give the Brewers a 4-2 lead.

The Athletics got a run back in the fourth on Alfredo Griffin's RBI double off starter Chris Bosio, 6-2. But in the bottom half of the fourth, singles by Glenn Braggs, Bill Schroeder and Steve Keifer accounted for one run, another scored on Dave Sveinun's grounder and Molitor's two-run homer made it 8-3 and chased Andujar.
The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the third against Jose Guzman, 8-9, when Brett Butler walked, took second on Tommy Hinzo's sacrifice and scored on Joe Carter's base hit.
Cleveland made it 3-0 in the fourth on Jacoby's 18th homer — one more than he had all of last season — after Cory Snyder led off the inning with a double. And, Pat Tabler accounted for the Indians' final run with a homer in the seventh.
Brewers 12, Athletics 5
Greg Brock and Paul Molitor homered to key consecutive four-run innings, leading Milwaukee over Oakland at County Stadium.
St. Pierre, whose UCLA team won the NCAA crown this year, tried to concentrate only on his own routines.

Palmer wins gymnastic title

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — At Nebraska, where football is king, Neil Palmer has made some headlines in gymnastics.

Not that Palmer, who won the U.S. Olympic Festival all-around title Thursday night, doesn't think about being on the Cornhuskers' football team.

"I love the sport of football and Nebraska has a great tradition," the muscular 5-foot-10, 165-pound Palmer said. "I think a gymnast has strength and flexibility which would help him crossover."
"I start thinking about it when gymnastics isn't going well. Right now, it's going well."

No kidding?
Palmer earned the highest score of the competition on the horizontal bar in the final round, and his 9.75 lifted him past UCLA's David St. Pierre for the gold medal. The North, helped by a 2-3-4 finish, won the team gold.

Today, track and field was to get under way as the festival approached an overall attendance record. The eighth festival, being held in five North Carolina cities, already is the most successful in ticket sales, having surpassed Houston's total of $2.4 million in 1986.

Organizers said a $3 million total was possible. Attendance was at 303,614, a little over 43,000 short of Houston's mark with three days remaining.

The gymnastics at Dean Smith Center drew 6,919 but already is sold out for the women's finals on Sunday. Much larger crowds are expected there tonight for the women's all-around and Saturday night for the men's individual competition.

Palmer, who finished third in this year's NCAA all-around, trailed St. Pierre by .05 points going into the final event. But his 9.75 and a 9.60 for Pierre in floor exercise gave Palmer the victory.

The North's Lance Ringnald of Albuquerque, N.M., took the bronze and was mobbed by his gold-medal winning teammates after finishing his floor routine.

"I don't do any extra giant swings," Palmer said about his horizontal bar performance. "I get my requirements over and get off the bar. The longer you stay on, the more chances you have of making mistakes."

St. Pierre, whose UCLA team won the NCAA crown this year, tried to concentrate only on his own routines.

"I wasn't trying to think about his performance," he said. "I notice the crowd's reaction (when Palmer finished) but it was in the back of my mind."

"I thought it was one of my best meets of the year."

Lawrence Hom had one of the best volleyball tournaments of his life. Hom led the North to the gold with 19 kills, giving him a festival-high 88. The North beat the West 6-15, 15-5, 15-4.

"I had to prove to myself that I could do it on this level," said Hom, of Torrance, Calif., and a junior at Southern California. "I had the confidence I could do it. This festival has really boosted me."

The festival also might boost Brad Ryan, Brad Jones, Tom Chorske and Jon Morris onto the 1988 Olympic hockey team. Approximately 30 of the 80 players here will be invited to next month's Olympic training camp in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Ryan staked his first claim by stopping 29 shots as the North routed the West 8-0. The West has not scored in two games here.

"I don't think there is a No. 1 goalie out there," Ryan, of Illinois-Chicago, said. "I don't think there's a No. 8 out there. There are eight good goalies."

The North set a festival record by scoring three goals in 54 seconds — John Messuri of Princeton on a power play at 3:13; Skeeter Moore of Minnesota-Duluth 18 seconds later; and Ed Lowney of Boston University at 4:07 on a backhand tip-in.

Jones scored three goals and set up two by linemate Morris, of Lowell, in the third period, while Chorske, of Minnesota, had a goal and four assists in the East's 9-5 romp over the South.

"I had hat tricks three times last year, in successive games," said Jones, of Michigan. "I'm just happy the puck started going in. Everybody runs hot and cold scoring. When the breaks go your way, you're hot."

The weather also has been extremely hot all week, with temperatures in the high 90s. But that hasn't stopped the fans from boosting attendance.

"We were using $1.5 million as a conservative figure," Hill Carrow, president and executive director of the local organizing committee, said. "I thought we could go a little over that. But I never expected we would go more than a million dollars over it."

The U.S. Olympic Committee announced the establishment of a performance enhancement program of up to $5 million. The monies will be available to American athletes in Olympic sports.

"We want to make sure that our athletes can prepare for the Games in Calgary and Seoul and not worry all the time about living conditions and financial burdens," Robert Helms, president of the USOC, said.

Former athlete loses composure

CHICAGO (AP) — A former college basketball player, whose disclosure of near-illiteracy forced a re-examination of academic standards for student-athletes, was freed in a priest's custody after barricading himself in a hotel.

Kevin Ross, 28, told police he had a gun and held 40 officers at bay for three hours Thursday while shouting obscenities and throwing furniture, clothing and other items from an eighth-floor balcony, Deputy Police Superintendent Joseph Mayo said.

The 6-foot-9, 250-pound Ross, who was captain of his Creighton University basketball team, was arrested after noted educator Marva Collins was brought to the scene — the balcony across from the room — to help with negotiations.

"I said 'Kevin, I believe in you."

... We've come too far now. Please don't do this to yourself, to me, to the children," said Collins, whose Westside Preparatory School taught Ross to read and write after he had spent nearly four years in college.

No weapon was found when police searched the room at the Quality Inn Downtown on the city's Near West Side, Mayo said.

Ross, who has acknowledged an alcohol problem, was said to be depressed over not finding a full-time job and not becoming a pro basketball player.

He was charged with criminal damage to property, aggravated assault and criminal trespass because he wasn't in the room he had rented, Detective Leonard Ficht said.

"We used to call him the gentle giant in class," Collins said. "The other side of Kevin just split, I guess."

Ross was freed late Thursday on a $5,000 recognizance bond by Cook County Circuit Judge Stuart A. Nudelman, after the Rev. George Clements, a Roman Catholic priest known for his adoption of teen-age children, said he would take responsibility for the ex-athlete.

Ross told the judge he had been beaten by police. But his lawyer, Dan Wolff, did not file police brutality charges.

Ross had been taken from the hotel to Cook County Hospital but refused treatment there, said a hospital spokesman who asked not to be identified.

In a telephone interview from the Monroe District police station where he had been held, Ross said he suffered bruises inflicted by arresting officers.

"Talk about rough; I'm just happy I got this 6-9 frame," he said.

Capt. Ivan Rittenberg confirmed there had been a scuffle, but said officers didn't use unnecessary force. "Policemen do not get their jollies from fighting a big guy like this," he said.

Ross graduated from Kansas City's Wyandotte High School with just over a C average.

Taylor

He said that through a friend, whose brother worked closely with law enforcement officials, "I had word passed — from the police — that they knew what I was doing. I used to get followed — to bars, to parties, to and from practices and games."

Taylor, who has been an All-Pro in all six of his NFL seasons, had his worst year in 1985, something he acknowledged in print.

"My body began to tell me that I could not continue as I was," he said. "But I also knew that my 75 percent was better than most other guys' 100 percent."

Taylor said he tested positive for drugs once — in a minicamp in the spring of 1985.

After that, he said, he worked out a way to smuggle another player's urine into the bathroom when he was asked to give a sample. Even when the team forced him to take a test under observation, he said he managed to surreptitiously squeeze "clean" urine from a small bottle into a test tube.

"The way I beat urine testing was simple," he said. "I never used my own."

Browne said Taylor's account of bypassing the Giants' drug testing system "only reinforces the need for the improved league-wide testing procedures."

Taylor said his therapy — "not recommended for anyone else" — was mainly to enjoy himself. "The golf course was my detox tank," he said.

Lamesa

Continued from page 1B the next three batters. Diaz equalled the feat when he walked one and struck out three in the National's half of the fifth.

Lamesa loaded the bases in the sixth on a single by Jimmy Rodriguez and two walks, but Sledge bore down and struck out three Lamesa batters, including Scott, to survive the inning unscathed.

The Nationals had one last hope in the sixth, and they had a chance. After a lead-off pop-out, pinch-hitter Chris Alexander came to the plate. Alexander, with two strikes and plenty of pressure against him, hit a single up the middle for the first National hit since the first. Hughes followed by drawing a walk, and the National stars had men on first and second with one out and the tying run at the plate.

Klint Kemper came to the plate, but his grounder went right at the shortstop. The Lamesa shortstop tagged the runner going to third and threw out Hughes going to second for the game ending — and for the National stars, season ending — double play.

Diaz finished with eight strike outs, four walks and the win. Cervantes took the loss, though he allowed just one earned run. He struck out two, and Sledge struck out six, all in the final two innings.

The National stars had three hits and left five on base. Lamesa had six hits and left seven on. Lamesa made one error; the National stars made two.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take no unnecessary risks and avoid starting a new course of action. Your judgment is not apt to be up to par, and adverse results would be likely. Finish old work.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you finish any shopping early today. Don't try to clear up the situation with your mate right now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be firm in solving that annoying problem at home. This is definitely a bad day to have guests into your home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Drive very carefully and avoid heavy traffic. An accident could be very expensive, to say the least.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Make overdue collections and then pay your own bills. Watch out for faulty financial advice.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Do more listening and less talking when with friends today. Keep important new ideas to yourself, or risk losing them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Tried and true methods will work well in handling private affairs, but don't be sarcastic. Demonstrate your loyalty.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid a "friend" who has been consistently unreliable, or you can expect further disappointments from this person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid upsetting a person in a place of power or position, or you'll regret it later. Take no risks with credit matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may be eager for some frivolous activities, but it would be best to attend to your duties at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give your full attention to getting some obligations out of the way. Don't start any arguments over trivial matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to keep a promise to an outside contact or this person will oppose you later. Get some recreation this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get small tasks out of the way now and prepare for bigger and more important activities just down the road.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be talented in areas such as saving failing businesses. Teach him or her to understand the motives of others, and not to judge simply by outward appearances. Adding psychology to the academic curriculum would be very helpful. Also, make sure ethics are understood.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
