City bondsmen to meet in dispute

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A meeting is scheduled Wednesday for Big Spring bail bondsmen with Police Chief Joe Cook and City Manager Mack Wofford to resolve a dispute between the bail bond companies.

The bondsmen disagree on whether a rotating list of bondsmen should be used at the police department.

Capt. Lonnie Smith noted that in past months, when someone in jail asked for the name of a bond company, the names were distributed from a list that was rotated monthly with different companies at the top.

Several bail bondsmen complained the list wasn't fair, stating bondsman Bob Smith was listed three times under three different company names, and so was at the top of the list more often, explained Lonnie Smith and bondsman Mary Thomas.

Bob Smith denies that he was listed more than once.

Smith said he owns A-Bob's Bail Bonds only. A second company, AAA bail bonds, which is listed in a joint Yellow Pages ad with his company, actually is owned by his wife, Margaret Smith, he said.

Smith also was the owner of Alias Smith and Jones bail bond company, but said this morning that he sold that company to his son last week. It will operate in Midland and Odessa, he said.

Smith said the new phone book, due to be issued next month, will list AAA and A-Bob's separately.

AAA and A-Bob's are located in the same building, 110 E. Third St., but have separate offices and phone lines, he said.

Smith said he disagrees with posting a rotating list.

"I don't think it's a fair system. The free enterprise system is the only way any kind of system ought to work," he said.

He said posting a rotating list negates the advantages of advertising, for which his business pays about $10,000 a year.

Smith said the disagreement between bail bondsmen began when several Big Spring companies did not pay their Yellow Pages advertising bill, and Southwestern Bell refuses to list them in the new book.

Lonnie Smith said the rotating list of bondsmen was eliminated at the police department last month.

The new policy allows jailed persons to use the telephone book and Yellow Pages without providing a separate list, he said. Smith added that those in jail always have been free to call any company they wish.

Bondsman Mary Thomas said she complained to Police Chief Joe

Cook about the rotating list system. But since the list was removed, she's been having problems with competitors posting bond for customers about whom she had been contacted.

Often she will be called to post bond for someone, only to arrive at the municipal jail to find that person already released by another bondsman, she said.

Some bondsmen receive information through the police scanner, she said. In addition, sometimes a jailed person will call one bondsman and his or her family call another, she said.

Bob Smith said he has experienced similar problems.

Few apply to man city ambulance

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Pay incentives aren't high enough to interest local firefighters in additional training to man a fourth city ambulance, Fire Chief Carl Dorton said today.

Only six of the city's 46 firefighters have said they definitely are interested in manning the ambulance, while another three to four have expressed tentative interest, Dorton said.

Firefighters would receive $50 a month incentive pay for being certified as an emergency medical technician and helping to operate the ambulance.

Dorton said at least nine are needed to work three-man shifts.

One captain has yet to poll about 14 firefighters to see if they are interested, Dorton said, adding that he expects to report the total number this afternoon to City Manager Mack Wofford and City Council members.

"There's been a very light turnout," Dorton said.

"We don't have very many people that want to do it. The guys don't feel like there is enough money there to expand their skills."

Under an agreement with Rural/Metro Corp., the corporation would provide the ambulance to be used as an auxiliary unit to the company's three ambulances. It would be housed in one of the city's fire stations and manned by local firefighters.

Rural/Metro has provided ambulance service to Big Spring and Howard County since July 16.

Dorton said the ambulance probably would be located at the downtown station or the Eleventh Street and Birdwell Lane station.

If enough firefighters express interest in manning the ambulance, they will receive EMT training at Howard College this fall, and the top nine students in the class will be chosen to man the vehicle.

Firefighters will be reimbursed by the city for the cost of the course, insurance and class supplies, Dorton said.

If the back-up ambulance plan is instituted, it will be reviewed after six months to determine its necessity, he said.

"If we only have one run then we know we don't need it, but if we have 12 we probably do," Dorton said.

Alien reforms cause work trouble for refugees

By DAVID PASZTOR
Dallas Times Herald Bureau

DALLAS — The typed note at the bottom of Ghaffar Sharif's resume only hints at the 37-year-old unemployed engineer's frustration. "I am a newly arrived legal immigrant looking for my first job in the U.S.," it says. "I have a permanent visa and am allowed to work."

But like many other refugees in Dallas, Sharif is finding that permission to work and finding a job are two different things.

Although immigration reform should have made it easier for legal immigrants to find work, and while some employers around Dallas are reporting that they don't have enough workers now that they face penalties for hiring illegal labor, many refugees say they have yet to see how the new law will translate into a steady paycheck.

Some fear, in fact, that the reforms may actually be hurting their chances of landing jobs as employers shun all foreign labor, legal or not, because they are fearful of violating the law and unfamiliar with the documents that refugees are presenting to prove they are legal.

"I've applied many places but I cannot find a job," says Sharif, who fled to the United States from his native Afghanistan five months ago, escaping the war-torn country with his wife and two children.

Educated at the University of Kabul, Sharif said he worked for the Afghan government for nine years, supervising road construction and designing bridges. Now, his family is living on help from a federal refugee assistance program and the generosity of family members.

"This is a crying shame," says Polly Miller, who is jobs developer at Catholic Charities' Job Placement Program, which assists unemployed refugees. "This man has excellent credentials, but he can't find work."

From her third-floor office at the Multicultural Center on North Munger Avenue, Miller sees a parade of such cases. Their stories begin in such faraway places as Cambodia, Ethiopia, Vietnam, Iran and many others. They have been allowed into the United States in flight from poverty, persecution or unrest.

Some are professionals, others recent college graduates or housewives. They arrive in all ages, coming to Dallas because local churches or other family members living here sponsor them.

When they reach Dallas, they often end up seeking help from programs like Catholic Charities. The promise that immigration reform seemed to hold for helping the refugees find work, Miller says, has yet to materialize.

Because employers now face sanctions for hiring illegal workers, she says, she was "tremendously hopeful that a vacuum would open up and there would be jobs for my people. I have not seen that turnabout."

Part of the problem, says Miller and several refugees, is that for the first year they are here legally, refugees are issued a document — the I-94 — that does not include a photograph. Many employers, wary of running afoul of sanctions, are apparently unwilling to accept the paper as proof that a worker is legal.

"They ask that there be an ID card with a photograph on it," says Sharif, like the resident alien, or "green card," that refugees receive after about one year.

Miller says she and other workers at the office "are working ourselves crazy," trying to explain to employers that they can and should accept the I-94 forms as proof that someone can legally work.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, employers may not refuse or terminate employment or services to anyone on the basis of citizenship or national origin, including refugees legally admitted to the country. If the refugees have valid residency permits, they are entitled to hold jobs.

Still, she says, placements by the office have gone down between 15 and 20 percent since the reforms began taking effect, while there has been a slight increase in the number of refugees seeking the program's help.

At any given time, she says, the office has files on approximately 1,000 refugees who have come seeking help. Some return regularly, hoping with each trip that there will be good news waiting — a call or letter from an employer who might want their services. REFUGEES page 2A

New SMU president reports to work

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University's athletic teams should stay in Division I and the Southwest Conference — at least for now, new President A. Kenneth Pye said this morning as he reported for his first day on the job.

But the former Duke University chancellor also said the school must put its athletic department scandals behind it and get about its primary business — teaching and research. "The principal attack on intercollegiate activities today is that they are out of proportion," Pye told a news conference.

Pye, 55, said that no matter where he goes, he is confronted by athletic questions. "There's a stadium over there, but if you look around you'll see a lot of other buildings around campus."

Pye said he had not consulted with the Methodist bishops who prepared a report on the SMU pay-for-play scandal that cost the school its 1987 football season.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association slapped SMU with its strictest sanction, the "death penalty," for paying football players out of a booster slush fund while the university was on probation for similar violations. The NCAA Division I school voluntarily dropped football in 1988.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox is seeking the bishops' files gathered during their investigation into the scandal, but a spokesman for the group said members would not release the information.

Pye said SMU would be open and straightforward in the attorney general's probe and any other inquiries.

"Our basic position is that we'd like to put the matter to rest," Pye said. "We have absolutely nothing to hide."

Pye said his first task will be determining the private university's problems, putting them in priority and then solving them individually.

Local student has winning poem

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Shannon Korell, a fifth grade student in Karen Adams' class at College Height Elementary, wrote one of 10 winning entries in the 17th Congressional District's "Freedom Competition."

Shannon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Chavez, 701 Lorilla.

Fifth and sixth graders throughout the 17th District were asked to submit an essay, poem or drawing based on the theme, "This year we celebrate the 200th birthday of the American Constitution. As an American citizen, I can give the Constitution its best birthday present by..."

Shannon's poem "Our Constitutional Freedoms," stated, "Americans are happy with the Constitution today. For 200 years it has helped America's people live the democratic way."

In another verse, Shannon stated, "The Constitution reminds us of the freedoms we now know. Freedom of speech, press, religion, should never go."

Each year the competition is judged by four summer interns that work in Congressman Stenholm's Washington D.C. office.

Congressman Stenholm said, "It was encouraging to review the entries because they show how bright and creative young West Texans are."

Shannon Korell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Chavez, gives a winning smile as she admires a certificate signed by U.S. Representative Charles Stenholm for her poem on the Constitution.

C-City school tax rate hike on agenda

2By CARLEEN EVERETT-HALEY

Lifestyle Editor

COLORADO CITY — In an emergency meeting tonight at 7, the Colorado City School District will increase the tax rate "anywhere from five to ten cents," said Charlie Uelton, Colorado City school district superintendent.

"It hasn't been decided upon but there will be an increase. We lost $49 million in valuation."

Last year's tax rate was 89 cents, so the new rate will be anywhere from 94 to 99 cents, he explained.

The 1987-88 budget will be discussed and is expected to change from last year's $5.4 million to $5.3 million, he added.

In other business, a resignation has been submitted from Jill Lowe, fifth grade teacher; and two appointments have been recommended for Carolyn Nitsche to serve as a fifth grade teacher and Bill Jeffries to serve as the Hutchison School principal.

Gasoline bids were accepted last week and they will be discussed tonight, Uelton reported.

Federal inmate escapes

Herald staff report

An inmate that escaped from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Saturday is still missing, according to a local prison official.

Rodolfo Inocencio, 29, of Falfurrias reportedly walked away from the camp at 7 p.m. Saturday, said Lloyd McMillan, assistant superintendent and public information officer at the prison.

Local law enforcement agencies and the U.S. Marshal's Office in

"He is not considered to be dangerous," he added.

Inocencio is described as a 5-foot, 8-inch Hispanic with black hair and brown eyes.

McMillan speculated that he may be headed to his hometown.

Refugees

Many others don't come back after their initial visits.

Most often, says Mike Wierzbinski, the program's director, employers who do call with jobs offer only low-paying, unskilled positions such as factory or hotel work.

Mimi Chow, director of the Dallas-Fort Worth Refugee Interagency, said her office, which also does some job placement for refugees, has seen a small increase in the number of employers calling with unskilled, low-paying jobs. "When a tortilla factory calls and says they need 15 workers quickly, you can tell those people used to hire illegals," Chow says.

To some refugees, the jobs fall far short of the opportunity they sought in this country. "My Indonesian will not do hotel and restaurant work because they consider it demeaning," Miller says.

But better-paying jobs seldom seem to be available, Chow and Miller agree.

Particularly difficult, Miller says, is finding work for white-collar professionals like Sharifie, or Mebrathu Mekonnen, a 41-year-old accountant who was once supervised a staff of 30 accountants as financial controller for Ethiopia's second-largest tax-tile mill, and who now works sporadically driving a friend's taxi.

Disappointed that his more than 17 years of experience have not landed him a job in his chosen field, Mekonnen has set his sights on a simpler goal. "The thing I'm looking for now is to be employed eight hours a day," he says.

Says Chow: "A refugee who is white collar, chances are for the first few years he won't find anything in his field."

Both offices said they do receive calls frequently for one type of worker they can rarely provide — live-in housekeepers. "We don't have any single women available to do live-in housekeeping," says Miller.

Instead, she says, "we're fighting for our lives here," trying to find jobs for all the refugees seeking work and trying to get a simple message out to employers. "We are offering an alternative with our people, who are legally authorized to work," she says.

Authorized, and willing, Sharifie says. "I am very willing to work and learn and be active," he says. "I don't like welfare. It is not my habit."

Legal aid fund tops $1 million

AUSTIN (AP) — A new program that raises money for legal aid to the poor has passed the $1 million mark.

Texas Supreme Court Justice Franklin Spears said the money "comes at a time when federal funds are increasingly in short supply for these types of services."

The money is generated through the Interest On Lawyers Trust Account Program, which was set up in 1985 by a foundation created by the state Supreme Court. Funds are raised through interest earned on money that is temporarily held by lawyers for their clients.

Patricia Moran, executive director of the program, said such funds used to sit in accounts that paid no interest because they were either too small or not in the lawyer's hands long enough to earn much interest.

Ms. Moran said she hopes the program can raise up to $3 million a year by 1990.

Police seek theft suspect

Police have a suspect but no arrests have yet been made in the strong-arm robbery of a 7-11 store early Sunday, said Lt. Troy Hogue.

Richard Lopez, clerk at the 401 S. Birdwell Lane store, told police that a man threatened him with bodily injury unless Lopez gave him $20, Hogue said.

The clerk gave the thief the money, and the thief left by car, Hogue said. Police reports state the crime occurred at 12:45 a.m. Sunday.

Hogue said police have no evidence to connect the robbery with any other crime.

Thieves broke into P&P Stereo at Highland Mall between 9 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 p.m. Sunday, stealing $1,543 in television and stereo equipment, and a $1,000 air conditioning unit, owner Terry Jenkins told police.

Someone stole a red 1979 Datsun 280-ZX, valued at $4,500, from 1425 E. Sixth St. between 1:10 and 2:40 a.m. Sunday, owner Joe Buendia, 704 Willia St., told police.

Karen Hyden, 619 Caylor St., Saturday reported the theft of a $1,120 diamond ring and $70 cash from her home between 12:01 p.m. Tuesday and 7 p.m. Thursday, police reports said.

Thieves attempting to break into Dreyer Music Co., 1609 E. Third St., at 12:25 a.m. today caused $50 damage to the wood frame door and glass, according to police reports.

Scott Allen Goodblanket, 29, 3707 Calvin St., was arrested at 3:35 a.m. today on a charge of criminal trespass at 3705 Calvin St., the home of Patrick Kline, police reports said.

Joe Earl Hataway, 33, of Lamesa was arrested at Coronado Hills Apartments, 801 W. Marcy Drive, at 4:23 a.m. today on warrants for driving without liability insurance and failure to appear in court, police reports said.

Kathryn Applebee Adams, 38, Knott Route Box 91, was arrested at Chaparral Trailer Park, Highway 350 and Interstate 20, at 8:51 p.m. Saturday on a charge of failure to drive within a single, marked lane, police reports said.

Travis Wade Collins, 20, 1905 Wason Road Apt. 3B10, was arrested at his home at 2:20 p.m. Saturday on a warrant for simple assault, police reports said. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $200 bond.

Slain man unidentified

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
DALLAS — The man whose concrete-encased body was found this week in a 55-gallon drum on the bottom of a Montague County lake had been shot in the head and may have been dead nine months, authorities said Friday.
 However, an autopsy has provided Montague County Sheriff Glen Whatley with few clues about who the dead man might be. No identification was found with the body.
 Perhaps the best lead so far, Whatley said, is that the dead man's T-shirt bore the name of Don's Paint and Body Shop.
 The victim, 25 to 30 years old, was 5-feet-7, weighed 125 to 145 pounds and had brown hair and a brown beard. The autopsy revealed he had had extensive dental work, including a partial upper plate.
 He was wearing the T-shirt, a green and brown plaid shirt, a vest, blue jeans and ankle-high lace-up boots. The boots, Texas Steer brand, were size 8.

Domestic drugs increase

HOUSTON — The problem of domestic drug production in Texas is as large as that of drugs being smuggled into the country, narcotics officials say.
 "If we stopped every ounce of marijuana, cocaine and heroin coming across the border we would still have enough (domestic drugs produced) here to keep everyone quite happy for a very long time," a federal narcotics agent said.
 It is a paradox that increased emphasis on international smugglers has fueled the growth of domestic producers, said Cmdr. Mike Scott of the Texas Department of Public Safety's narcotics division.
 Nearly 40 percent of the total amphetamine and methamphetamine labs seized by federal agents nationwide in 1986 were in Texas. Of the 395 speed labs seized, 156 were in Texas, with California's 131 in second place, a Drug Enforcement Administration report shows.

Concert benefits victims

MANOR — There were fewer music fans than expected, but organizers said that didn't dampen the spirit of a concert to benefit victims of the May 22 Saragosa tornado.
 When Johnny Cash appeared to begin the concert at 10 a.m. Sunday, there were barely 200 people on the grass in front of the stage at the Manor Downs racetrack. When John Anderson started his set at 1:30 p.m., the crowd was around 500.
 By the end of the day, there had been a total of about 700 paid spectators and approximately $5,000 was raised for Saragosa, said Cynthia Spencer, a publicist for Waylon Jennings, who helped organize the benefit.
 "Waylon will probably have to come up with some of the expenses. We didn't make all of the expenses," she said.
 "Something had to be done and if we didn't do it, nobody would have. It might work and it might not, but I would do it again," Jennings said.

RRC chairman resigns

AUSTIN — Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace announced his resignation today, saying the time had come to pursue private endeavors and spend more time with his family.
 Wallace told the regular weekly meeting of the commission that the Texas law firm of Hughes and Luce had invited him to join its Austin office.
 Wallace, a commissioner on the oil and gas regulatory panel since 1973, said he would discuss his plans with Gov. Bill Clements, "and I will work with him to assure the most effective transition possible."
 "The time has come for me to pursue private endeavors and to attend to my family, who have supported me for so many years with their faith and their patience," he said.
 No date was set for Wallace's resignation to take effect. Clements will appoint his successor.

S&L probe launched

DALLAS — Records of at least 290 Texas developers and savings and loan executives have been subpoenaed by federal officials investigating the state's troubled thrift industry.
 One Dallas executive said he expects to be driven into bankruptcy by the investigation.
 "I'm turning over 30,000 pages of documents to the FHLB and the Justice Department every month," said the executive, who asked not to be identified.
 "If certain people are scared, they may have a reason to be scared," said Stephen Learned, the U.S. Justice Department attorney overseeing the massive investigation from Washington.
 "We're looking at a two-year commitment just to bring cases into some manageable form," said Anthony Adamski, chief of the FBI financial crimes unit. "The initial phase of the investigation is a dragnet."

Brian Smiles Sun and Carrie Loss-Cutler of Dallas hug during ending harmonic convergence ceremonies at White Rock Lake in Dallas Sunday morning. About 75 people participated in chanting, prayer and meditation at the event, which is supposed to be the first time in 23,412 years that the planets are so aligned as to produce a cleansing energy focus for humanity to seize.

Thousands observe convergence

Daybreak ceremonies at Enchanted Rock and other Texas locations meant the dawning of a new age for some and a focus on peace for others who helped send a message worldwide.
 A "harmonic convergence" that drew thousands to Enchanted Rock in Central Texas and other locations across the state continues today. At the granite hills, now a state park near Fredericksburg, meditation and dances were scheduled.

"It's an Earth event," said David Knoll of Austin, the firekeeper for a ceremonial fire atop Enchanted Rock Sunday morning. "It's a step up in the consciousness. The Earth is going through a shift. That harmonious shift is a shift in its developmental phases. Everything, every human being, is part of that shift. There's no personal glory involved."
 The two-day worldwide ritual includes gatherings at sites sacred to ancient cultures, state parks and other sites. Celebrants meditate to cause a planetary shift in attitude about peace and the environment. For some, it is a planetary alignment that signifies the dawning of the Age of Aquarius.
 Devotees say that, for the first time in 23,412 years, the alignment of the planets will produce a cleansing energy focus. If humanity does not seize that focus, then harmonic convergence will fail and a period of catastrophe awaits, cosmic say.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Lauds return of video interviews

Gov. Bill Clements made the right decision last week in signing into law a measure that will reinstate the use of videotaped interviews in physical and sexual abuse trials that involve children as the victims. This measure is intended to replace a similar law declared unconstitutional last month. The bill addresses the defendant's constitutional right to face an accuser by requiring an additional cross-examination tape of the child being questioned by a defense attorney or child abuse expert. Most importantly, the measure will shield abuse victims under 12 from the trauma of testifying in open court. The Houston Post

Drug traffic called a 'serious flaw'

The General Accounting Office now tells us what South Texas narcotics authorities have known for a long time: The amount of drugs entering the United States from Mexico has skyrocketed. The GAO found that, despite increased spending on drug enforcement and eradication programs, the amount of Mexican heroin entering the United States has increased since 1980 by at least 200 percent, and the flow of marijuana is up by 600 percent. Some say increased vigilance along the Florida drug routes has shifted trafficking to the Southwest border. But members of a House narcotics committee blame the White House, the State Department and their counterparts in Mexico. We would like to see both governments at their highest levels — meaning Presidents Reagan and de la Madrid — address this serious flaw in U.S.-Mexico relations. San Antonio Express-News

Says Reagan's jest is also warning

President Reagan speaks about his nose in jest, which is typical of him. The president speaks with a definite purpose in mind, however. A skin cancer was removed from his nose recently, and doctors say he is doing fine. The president appeared this week with a bandage on the tip of his nose. He told visitors: "I know you're all admiring my suntan. You, too, can look like this. Just sit in the sun as long as I did." The president's warning is important. Protect yourself. Houston Chronicle

Arias plan promotes needed peace

The peace plan for Nicaragua which President Reagan floated last week may never attain full realization, but already it has achieved something of value. It almost certainly nudged the five Central American presidents meeting in Guatemala City to agree on a regional peace plan. The so-called "Arias Plan," named after Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez, diverges from the Reagan plan in a number of respects, particularly in that it includes no requirement for the Sandinista government in Nicaragua to negotiate with the Contra guerrillas. However, as Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo said, it does represent "an act of faith, an act of confidence in our capacity to build peace." The Arias Plan could serve as the point of departure for negotiation ... which could lead to a gradual scaling-down of the violence in Nicaragua. Corpus Christi Caller-Times

Peace negotiations worth pursuing

Yes, the new American proposal to bring peace — or at least meaningful negotiation — to Central America is open to suspicion. The Reagan administration's historic lack of enthusiasm for a negotiated settlement guarantees suspicion. But the proposal should be pursued wholeheartedly. Domestically, it offers an alternative to the continuing argument about the Contras and a chance to refocus American policy. Internationally, it provides a test of Sandinista willingness to behave responsibly and return to the promises of the Nicaraguan revolution. Speaker Jim Wright deserves credit, rather than the knee-jerk cynicism of liberal Democrats, for sticking his neck out to give negotiation a real chance. Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Welcomes Maynard home as a hero

It took three tries, but the committee selecting inductees for the National Football League Hall of Fame finally got it right. El Pasoan Don Maynard was one of seven inducted Saturday in ceremonies in Canton, Ohio. The prominent El Paso businessman was a state champion hurdler in high school in Colorado City when he was recruited to play for Texas Western college (now the University of Texas at El Paso). His outstanding performance here led him to the New York Giants, a year in the Canadian Football League, to the New York Jets — and to complete his career, the St. Louis Cardinals. During his 15-year career as a pass receiver, especially those years with the Jets, Maynard set many professional records. Maynard, returning to El Paso, has been an outstanding supporter of athletics and role model for young players. He honors this city, and El Paso honors him. El Paso Times

AP Quotes

"It is not an overstatement to say that compared to other states, New York is a much friendlier place to corrupt politicians, crooked businessmen and organized criminals." — U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, after an undercover FBI agent's payoffs were accepted 105 times in 106 offers, in a sting that netted 44 past and present officials in 15 New York counties.

Murdered Filipino official was tough anti-communist

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The assassination of a key member of Philippine President Corazon Aquino's cabinet two weeks ago — believed to be the work of a communist hit team — may finally have pulled the blinders off the president on the dangers of dealing with the communists.

It is a tragic irony that the murdered secretary, Jaime Ferrer, privately considered his president native in her attempts to win over the communist rebels by negotiations. He confided this to Dale Van Atta during an interview in his Manila office last December. Ferrer didn't want to be quoted publicly on his opinion — and he certainly had no desire to have his own violent death to be the possible proof of his belief. At the time, Aquino was negotiating a ceasefire with the communists. Ferrer, 70, had been an anti-Japanese guerrilla in World War II; he thought Aquino's release of communist leaders from jail in February 1986, and her subsequent negotiations with them were a fatally flawed policy.

Ferrer had the kind of rock-solid integrity that no president wants to be deprived of. The overriding principle of his politics was free and honest elections — an often quixotic pole star for a politician in the Philippines.

Initially a supporter of fellow wartime guerrilla leader Ferdinand Marcos, Ferrer became a Cabinet aide in 1966, during the first Marcos administration, and then served as chairman of the elections commission from 1968 to 1972.

He told us he and Marcos had many arguments over the issue of clean elections, and these confrontations led to his disenchantment with Marcos. Ferrer finally quit in 1972, despairing of ever getting the president's support for an honest electoral process.

Ferrer's dedication to democracy goes back a long time. In 1949, he was dismayed when Jose Laurel (father of the current vice president, Salvador Laurel) lost the presidency in a blatantly corrupt election. "It was a time when they said the birds and the bees voted," Ferrer recalled in the interview. "I thought something must be done about the election."

So he and other honored World War II veterans spearheaded the formation of the National Movement for Free Elections (NAMFREL), and Ferrer was elected the first national coordinator. The result was encouraging: a clean election in November 1951. "We had won," Ferrer said. "We had maintained that there could not be any democracy without clean elections."

In NAMFREL's early stages, and continuing into the 1960s, Ferrer was aided by two successive U.S. embassy officers. Both were later identified as CIA agents, which Ferrer told us he had not known when he was dealing with them. But Philippine leftists later used his unwitting CIA connection to try to discredit him.

In 1984, 12 years after his break with Marcos, Ferrer finally joined the official opposition, winning a parliamentary seat as a member of the Democratic Party. He remained a party official until his death.

It was the descendant of Ferrer's old NAMFREL organization that exposed the widespread fraud in the 1986 election and ignited the popular movement that eventually brought Cory Aquino to power.

Last November, he was appointed secretary of local governments, and embarked on a program to purge incompetent and corrupt local officials. That was his "primary concern," he told us.

His secondary concern — and the one that may have triggered his assassination — was his espousal of a network of anti-communist militias in areas where the communist New People's Army operated. His murder will surely incline President Aquino to take tougher measures against the communists. The old soldier would have approved.

JUDGMENT OF HIS PEERS — The Democratic "rat pack" of presidential contenders is rejoicing over what they view as a major goof by one of their better-known members, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del.

His announcement before any confirmation hearing that he would oppose the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork not only broke with the tradition of at least seeming openmindedness, but upset some well-to-do conservative Democrats who like Biden and have contributed to his campaign.

Guest columnist Oil patch improving but knock on wood

By KEN BRODNAX
The Odessa American
ODESSA (AP) — Tentative smiles, nervous giggles and crossed fingers — a few favorite West Texas mannerisms these days. The rest of the world will have to forgive the Permian Basin. It is feeling a bit giddy, but nobody's quite ready to celebrate. Maybe prayer is a better course. Now, just what is the mood? Not confident, not by a long shot. Not cocky. Not yet. Not relieved, that's reserved for later.

Hopeful? Always. Wary? That's for sure. The oil industry is in much the same shape as a gambler coming off a long losing streak. A few winning bets don't mean a lot. He has to hit a big score before being convinced that the storm has passed. Folks in the Basin have spent considerable time peering into the future looking for that light at the end of the tunnel. By now, their eyes are so weary they don't know if the latest upsurge is a mirage or a miracle.

A few months ago, most people in the oil patch thought they would have been singing "Happy Days Are Here Again" if crude prices would only reach the $20-a-barrel mark.

Well, that's happened. But most of the party caps and noisemakers remain in storage.

Everyone is being tight-lipped. They're listening intently in case the other shoe drops, and they're a tiny bit superstitious — perhaps feeling that talking about the upswing would jinx the whole deal.

Has the bust ended? That's the $64 million question. The whippersound encouraging. The voices say people are being called back to their jobs in the oil fields.

The hardy business people who endured when many others were giving up the ghost may get their reward. ("May," of course, being the operative word.)

Listening to the economists virtually is useless.

One claim is a shutdown of the Persian Gulf could send oil prices to the $50 mark. Should that unlikely turn of events come to pass, Odessa would be burning and turning again.

Meanwhile, others are claiming that it could be years before communities like this recover from the devastation.

A majority of the so-called experts say years could pass before the economy reaches the heady levels of the early 1980s.

History indicates that residents will never be able to pinpoint the time when things turned around. Right now, most people would be hard pressed to pick the month when the plague descended. That's because hard times struck different people at different times.

Permian Basin residents must be a bit selfish. As a general rule, high oil prices create troubles in most of the other portions of the nation.

So pardon the denizens of this sandy piece of America for wishing inflation on everyone else. Self-preservation overcomes good will for fellow man every time.

In the past weeks, the average West Texan suddenly has become very conscious of foreign affairs.

Last year, he might not have even known where South America was located. He might have figured the Strait of Hormuz was a kind of hand you could get in pinochle.

Today, he's an expert in Mideast dealings. And he's rooting like hell for a few of those countries — who can remember all those names? — to stage a free-for-all that would stop shipping for a few months.

Forget the jinx. Superstitions be damned. Somebody just needs to come out and say it. The situation is improving in the oil patch — knock on wood.

Woman shoots at altar

CHICAGO — A 61-year-old woman pulled out a handgun during a church service Sunday and fired five shots toward the altar, wounding a member of the choir, police said.

Rosie Eaton of Chicago was charged with aggravated battery, and arraignment was scheduled for Monday morning. She opened fire during a service at the Liberty Baptist Church on the city's South Side, hitting one man in the chest, said police Sgt. Larry Hargrove.

Joseph Ross, 59, was listed in fair condition Sunday afternoon at Provident Medical Center, said Evelyn Susada, hospital spokeswoman.

Ross was the only person shot but was possibly not the target, Hargrove said. "The investigation is going under the assumption that she was firing at the minister," he said.

Execution poll taken

SALT LAKE CITY — For 13 years, public outrage over the torture-slayings of three people and the maiming of two others in a stereo shop has been behind a relentless state effort to execute the convicted killers.

That indignation appears to be building as the Utah Board of Pardons deliberates convicted "Hi-Fi killer" Pierre Dale Selby's plea for commutation of his execution, scheduled Aug. 28. It would be the first in the state since a firing squad killed Gary Gilmore in 1977, ending a 10-year national moratorium on executions.

Illness hits West Point

NEW YORK — A mysterious flu-like illness has struck nearly 250 first-year cadets at West Point, all of whom had just returned from a week of training at a nearby military camp, it was reported today.

Col. John Yeagley, a West Point spokesman, told the New York Post that doctors have ruled out food poisoning and believe the illness was caused by a stomach virus that lasted from 12 to 36 hours.

Plan to be resubmitted

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's plan to sell 1,600 Maverick anti-tank missiles to Saudi Arabia, withdrawn earlier this year in the face of congressional opposition, will be resubmitted to lawmakers when they return from their summer recess, The Washington Post reported today.

The missiles will be included in a proposed $1 billion arms sale to the Saudis, the newspaper said, quoting sources familiar with the plan.

Rescue personnel surround fuselage of a Northwest Airlines jet that crashed Sunday shortly after takeoff at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, killing more than 150 people. Sheet-covered bodies and wreckage lay strewn across Middlebelt Road in Romulus, Mich., Monday.

Flight 255

Witnesses describe air crash

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — Horrified motorists who saw the crash of Northwest Airlines Flight 255 say they were turned away by heat and flames, unable to help victims of the nation's second-deadliest air crash.

"You could see people jumping out of the windows and on fire and falling back down," said Gordon Atkins, 26, an airport employee who was driving to work when the plane lost power and plummeted after takeoff Sunday night from Detroit Metropolitan Airport. "There was not much we could do."

At dawn today, investigators shuttled in and out of the floodlit site where the MD-80 bound for Phoenix, Ariz., and suburban Los Angeles crashed, killing at least 152 of 153 people on board, and two more on the ground.

"We have a long day's work out here documenting things before any bodies are moved," Wayne County Undersheriff Warren Evans said.

Wreckage was strewn a half-mile along a road, under a railroad trestle and two highway overpasses, and police arrested six people allegedly for looting the site.

"I thought it was lightning and thunder at first. Then we heard a crash and the whole building shook. I got out just as the plane was exploding," said Pam Galvin, a waitress. "We were serving a Northwest pilot and his family dinner and when it happened, he ran out screaming."

Atkins' companion, Carlos Valasquez, 19, said he tried to help a crash victim whose clothes were on fire.

"He was running, so I threw my jacket on him," Valasquez said. "I turned around and went back to the truck, because it was just too hot."

"You ever seen one of those gory movies?" Valasquez asked. "That was it. It was sick."

Atkins said there was little they could do. "There were a lot of bodies lying around," he said. "I was checking on people, but I'm not a medical examiner. But it's better than nothing."

The men said the plane hit the ground about 50 feet behind their truck.

Atkins said he was treated at a hospital for a burn on his hand caused by a piece of debris from the plane.

"There was nothing but a total ball of fire under the bridge," Joel Taylor, another motorist, told Cable News Network. "Flames were coming up from both sides as I drove over the top of the bridge."

"When it hit the ground it just crumbled like a piece of paper," he said.

Karen Pointon, 22, of Romulus said she and her fiance watched the plane crash about 1,500 feet from the yard of her home.

Workers, police clash

SEOUL, South Korea — Thousands of workers clashed with riot police today at South Korea's largest shipyard after six companies locked out striking employees, news reports said.

In Seoul, meanwhile, about a dozen bus drivers were reportedly injured when they clashed with union leaders wielding steel pipes. Scores of bus drivers have been on strike in the capital.

And at least 10 striking workers were injured, some seriously, when they were attacked by office workers at the nation's largest textile company 85 miles south of Seoul, news reports said.

Thousands deployed

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The government ordered thousands of extra police and soldiers to patrol the capital today during a nationwide general strike demanding the ouster of the country's top military commander.

It was the fourth work stoppage in two months aimed at strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, considered the power behind President Eric Arturo Delvalle's administration.

The one-day strike was called by the National Civic Crusade, a coalition of more than 100 business, professional, student and political groups that has led the anti-Noriega movement since early June.

Victims offered millions

BHOPAL, India — Union Carbide Corp. offered in court today to give more than $4.6 million in interim relief "on humanitarian grounds" to victims of the toxic gas leak at its plant that left at least 2,300 people dead.

Indian Attorney General K. Parasaran called the amount "absolutely insignificant" but did not rule out further negotiations.

The Union Carbide offer would include $1.6 million in dividends of Union Carbide India Ltd. since the leak of methyl isocyanate gas in 1984.

Pope sends condolences

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Pope II today expressed his "deepest sorrow" for the victims of the Northwest Airlines jetliner crash outside Detroit.

The pope sent his condolences in a telegram to the archbishop of Detroit, Monsignor Edmund Szoka, the Vatican said.

The pope told Szoka that the victims of Sunday night's disaster — which claimed more than 150 lives — were remembered in his prayers. He also offered a special blessing for the victims' relatives.

Howard County adult leaders to be honored

Two Howard County 4-H adult leaders will be honored in Ft. Stockton on Sept. 12 for outstanding leadership in 4-H club program work.

Bob Nichols of Big Spring and Hannah Coleman of Coahoma will be the recipients of these awards to be presented by the District 6 4-H Adult Leader's Association, according to a release from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Extension Service District is comprised of 20 counties of an area bounded by Big Spring on the east to El Paso on the west.

Nichols serves as president of the Howard County 4-H Adult Leader's Association and is involved as a county 4-H beef cattle adult leader assisting more than 20 youngsters with their beef cattle projects in Howard County.

He assisted in developing the Annual Invitational Junior Livestock Judging Contest in Big Spring into one of the most prestigious contests in Texas, according to the release.

Nichols also is involved in conducting the annual junior rodeo sponsored by the county 4-H Adult Leader's Association, now one of the oldest such rodeos in Texas, which just completed its 42nd show.

He and his wife, Pam, are the parents of two boys, Jim Bob and John Paul, both active in the 4-H program.

The other award recipient is one of the organizational leaders of the Coahoma 4-H Club and is active in all 4-H activities in the county.

Coleman has encouraged 4-H members to expand their participation in all areas of 4-H work in the county and never fails to express her support for the county program, according to the release.

She has served as a project leader in Foods and Nutrition, clothing, photography and as host of several activities. She has served as a judge on numerous occasions at many district events.

She was married to the late Fred Coleman of Big Spring and is the mother of Lee and Dianna Coleman, both active 4-H'ers.

Richard Dysart to marry

By the Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Richard Dysart, who plays lawyer Leland McKenzie on NBC's "L.A. Law," plans to marry California artist Kathryn Jacobi on Sept. 5, and his character may start a TV romance, according to a published report.

The 58-year-old actor and Ms. Jacobi, 40, met two years ago, according to Tuesday's USA Today.

NBC spokesman Brian Robinette refused to confirm plans for an on-screen romance, but said it was possible.

"I like the idea of (McKenzie) having a woman friend because it's going to explore a relationship of non-yuppies," said Dysart. Most romances on the show involve young professionals.

Dysart's Broadway credits include roles in "The Little Foxes," and the Pulitzer Prize-winning "That Championship Season." His films include "Mask," "The Falcon and the Snowman," and "Wall Street," filmed during a break from "L.A. Law."

Outcry over rape case changes California law

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter in your column from "Outraged in California," concerning Lawrence Singleton, who was found guilty of raping a teen-age girl, chopping off her arms with an ax and leaving her for dead in a ditch.

He was sentenced to 14 years in prison, served eight years, and then, because of a "flawed law," was released for good behavior." You rightly suggested that the "flawed law" be changed.

I want you and your readers to know that the Singleton case contributed to the passage of subsequent legislation that imposed full consecutive sentences for violent sex offenses. If Singleton were sentenced today, he would receive a sentence of 31 years, plus a life term!

Dear Abby

the cost of $1,350 a day to ensure his safety. My readers are irate that their tax money is being spent to protect this man. And frankly, so am I. Read on for a sample of reader mail:

DEAR ABBY: "Outraged" wrote that California officials are paying $1,350 a day of taxpayers' money to protect Singleton, the rapist; $1,350 times 365 days equals $492,750! That's a cool half-million dollars a year!

Who authorized this tremendous expenditure, and on what legal grounds? Is there a law that authorizes this protection? And if so, why aren't the same amenities provided for all prisoners released? Many of them face a hostile and unfriendly reception from the community after release, too.

Personally, I think the ideal place for Singleton is in the same culvert where he left that poor girl — minus his arms — but, if course, our system of "justice" doesn't provide for anything as inhumane as that. Instead they spend a half-million dollars a year to house, feed, clothe and protect him!

I will never be able to understand that kind of justice!

CZECH IT OUT
Prague, Czechoslovakia, is a city for walkers. This Eastern European city is an architectural treasure house that uses the Utlava River to create islands of splendor. Bridges link various parts of the city, and one, the Charles, is virtually a gallery of fine sculpture. Castles, baroque ornamentation, cathedrals, museums, and concert halls lend an almost inexhaustible amount of cultural material to the visitor. In Prague, art co-mingles with music. Concerts are held frequently in most of the galleries, and the concert halls and opera houses are themselves works of art. Prague may not be bursting at the seams with consumer goods, but it offers an incredible richness of cultural experience. That is the stuff of cherished remembrance.

There are many treasures to be found in a European vacation ranging from consumer goods to intellectual gains. Lady Steers optimistic

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The season hasn't started and bad luck has already struck coach Elaine Stone's Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team. But Stone is very optimistic.

Listening to her talk about her team's chances of being a legitimate contender in tough District 2-4A, it would be hard to tell she lost four possible starters from this year's team.

"We lost all four girls before practice began," said Stone. "So the girls knew the circumstances they were facing. The girls have been more serious, knowing what they are up against," said the second year coach.

The Lady Steers are competing in the toughest district in class AAAA volleyball. Last year Lamesa won the state championship, after finishing second to Pecos in district play. It marked the sixth straight year that the state champion has come from District 2-4A.

"We've been working harder this season, the girls are more serious," said Stone. We're working a great deal on defense because we're not as tall as we were last year. We're going to pick up everything hit to us. I must say that our junior high coaches, Peggy Calhoun, Traci Pierce and Lois Cunningham have been doing a great job with the girls."

Stone and the Lady Steers' bad luck first began when senior hitter, three-year letterwoman and all-district player Katrina Thompson decided to forego her final year of volleyball in favor of basketball.

The Lady Steers' next two losses were to physical injuries. Senior spiker Nikki Rodriguez went for simple arthroscopic surgery and ended up having major surgery, putting her out for the season.

Junior center blocker Kathryn Burrow, who was recovering from knee surgery last season, had to have artificial ligaments put in her knee, thus putting her out of service.

The final Lady Steers loss came when junior hitter Michelle Chapoy moved out of town.

Now Stone finds herself with an inexperienced team with three returning letterwomen.

Senior center blockers Cary

Brooks (5-10) and Michelle LeGrande (5-9) and back row specialist Ida Montez return from last year's team. All three were part-time starters last season. Stone says she's really been impressed the net play of Brooks and LeGrande so far in practice. "Michelle has been spiking some down in the 10-foot line and Cary has been getting some good spikes lately. Ida should be very consistent this season and all three has come on as leaders for the others." It's very likely LeGrande, Brooks and Montez will be on the starting unit, but the other three spots are wide open. The remaining seven players all played on the junior varsity last season.

All are juniors except for Lisa Alvarez, who's a senior back row specialist. Setters Melanie Payne and Tracey Schaffner will be counted on to provide the hitters with some artillery. Rounding out the squad are hitters Angie Dees, Melissa Martinez, Debbie Pulver and Irena Jara.

Stone is grateful for some setters this season.

"Last year we didn't have any setters. We had to make a setter. This year we've got Melanie (Payne) and Tracey (Schaffner). They've been setters since junior high," said Stone.

After a week of two-a-days the '87 Lady Steers will be put to the test right away. Today in San Angelo they'll scrimmage against Central, Lamesa and Bronte. All three teams have won state titles over the past three years.

Tuesday afternoon the actual season will begin on the road against Water Valley at 2. Water Valley is the defending class A state champion. The Lady Steers will have their home opener Thursday versus Abilene High at 3 p.m. in Steer Gym.

"It's good we're going against such good teams early in the year," Stone said. "We have a lot of maturing to do and we need to do it as quickly as possible."

Stone says the district championship could go to anybody this season. "This district has always been close. Last year Pecos was the only team that didn't have at least two losses. Pecos and Lamesa lost outstanding hitters."

It will be close and I'm not counting ourselves out," she said matter-of-factly. "I know the experience and confidence will come. We have a new motto, 'No guts, no glory'. And the girls are giving their guts so they can have that glory."

Here is the Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball roster:
Cary Brooks, 5-10 sr. center blocker
Ida Montez, 5-5 sr. back row
Michelle LeGrande, 5-9 sr. center blocker
Lisa Alvarez, 5-3 sr. back row
Angie Dees, 5-6 jr. hitter
Melissa Martinez, 5-5 jr. hitter
Melanie Payne, 5-3 jr. setter
Debbie Pulver, 5-6 jr. hitter
Irena Jara, 5-6 jr. hitter
Tracey Schaffner, 5-5 jr. setter

Lewis' world record bid falls short

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Carl Lewis still needs a perfect day. Greg Louganis had the perfect dive and imperfect judging mired men's gymnastics at the Pan American Games.

The United States, meanwhile, could give away half of its medals and still be No. 1.

Americans had 325 medals through Sunday, 40 more than they had Saturday, for a Pan Am record. The previous high was 284, produced by the U.S. team at the 1984 games in Caracas.

Pan Am Games

With a week left, the U.S. take included 150 gold, 104 silver and 71 bronze medals — enough to open its own little jeweler's row.

Cuba reclaimed its runner-up spot in the standings with 143 medals, 58 gold, but Canada was only one medal behind.

In track, Lewis strung together a sensational series of jumps — five of them over 28 feet — but the wind blew away his chance of breaking Bob Beamon's long jump world record of 29 feet, 2 1/2 inches.

But Lewis promised this: When the weather is right, the record will fall.

"When the perfect day comes along, I'll be ready," he said, after winning the gold medal with a leap of 28-8 1/2.

By winning, Lewis extended his streak in the event to 51.

"I'm just trying to stretch it out to where I can jump consistently. Then, when the day is there, it happens," he said.

It happened for Louganis. After nine of 10 dives, he had such a huge lead that he didn't need his final dive to clinch a double-gold medal sweep in springboard and platform events.

Scott Johnson won six medals for the United States — two gold and four silver — and Olympic teammate Tim Daggett added one.

As week one of the games end, so do a number of events — track and field, wrestling, weightlifting, cycling, swimming and diving. Among those continuing are baseball, basketball, boxing and gymnastics.

The games end next Sunday.

TRACK AND FIELD

After a weak 22-7 1/4 effort on which he misstepped, Lewis went 28-8 1/2, 28-0, 28-8 1/2, and 28-5 1/4 twice. The second, fifth and sixth efforts were wind-aided.

Larry Myricks, the last man to beat Lewis, went 28-1 3/4 for the silver.

Lewis also ran he anchor leg as the United States won the 400-meter relay.

The U.S. swept the relays, also winning the men's and women's 1,600 and women's 400 in taking seven of the 10 gold medals on the final day of track and field.

Other U.S. winners were Johnny Gray, who led all the way in the men's 800, and Mary Knisely, who took the women's 3,000. Cuba's Ana Quirot, who had won the women's 400, added the 800 gold; Cuba's Ivonne Leal won the women's javelin; and Chile's Gert Weil got the gold in the men's shot put.

DIVING

Louganis, a five-time world champion, won by nearly 100 points over Matt Scoggin of Austin, Texas. Canada's David Bedard was third.

The United States also won both women's diving events — Kelly McCormick of Columbus, Ohio, on the springboard; Michele Mitchell of Boca Raton, Fla., on the platform.

GYMNASTICS

In winning six medals, Johnson broke two Pan Am records. Daggett broke one.

Johnson won the gold in rings with a 19.45 and in parallel bars with a record 19.575. He also became the first gymnast in Pan Am Games history to compete in the finals for all six apparatus.

He lost in vault to Casimir Suarez of Cuba, who came from behind by scoring two 9.80s. Suarez also beat Johnson for the gold in the floor exercise.

Daggett scored a 9.70 on the pommel horse and finished with a 19.50 overall, breaking the 19.45 record set by John Beckner of the

Chargers whitewash Cowboys

By The Associated Press
Chargers 29, Cowboys 0

Mark Herrmann, starting for Dan Fouts, threw a 17-yard touchdown to Lionel James to open scoring as the Chargers shut out the Cowboys for the second straight year.

Fouts is nursing a sore back and is disgruntled by contract talks with the Chargers.

The game was marked by two reversals by the officials after instant replay reviews, both in favor of the Cowboys, and a 74-yard touchdown run with 1:45 left by free-agent Kevin Scott.

The injury-ravaged Cowboys, playing without both Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett, were held to just 208 total yards.

Bengals 31, Bucs 30

The Tampa Bay Bucs were trailing the Cincinnati Bengals 31-10 with 11 minutes left in the game, and fans started to leave Tampa Stadium, grousing about the same old Bucs. Then Vinny Testaverde took over, insuring that the victory-starved Bucs fans will return.

"I saw the fans starting to leave the stadium and in the back of my mind I said to myself, 'They're going to miss a lot of action,'" said the Heisman Trophy winner and No. 1 pick in the NFL draft, who had just thrown an interception that linebacker Emanuel King returned 10 yards for a touchdown.

What they missed was three touchdown passes by Testaverde, albeit against what was primarily a Cincinnati scrub team. Only Brian Brady of the extra-point try on the second of those TD passes kept the game from going into overtime and salvaged a 31-30 Bengals win.

Testaverde's pro debut was the highlight of a nine-game Saturday night schedule.

The first full week of the NFL exhibition season began Thursday night with Kansas City beating Houston 32-20 and the Los Angeles Rams topping Seattle 23-14. Washington beat Pittsburgh 23-14 Friday night.

Bears 10, Dolphins 3

Rookie Jim Harbaugh threw a 65-yard touchdown pass to Ron Morris with 10:49 to play for the Bears. The game was marred by Dolphins' quarterback Dan Marino's dislocated finger that could sideline him for four weeks.

Broncos 20, Packers 14

John Elway threw two first-half touchdown passes and Rich Karlis and Mike Clendenen each kicked fourth-quarter field goals for the Broncos, who are 1-1 after losing their opener in London last week.

Green Bay botched a chance in the opening quarter as rookie Brent Fullwood, on his first professional play, returned a kickoff 98 yards only to fumble at the 2-yard line. The ball rolled out of bounds in the end zone.

49ers 42, Raiders 16

Steve Young, obtained from Tampa Bay in the off-season, passed for 247 yards and one touchdown to lead the 49ers.

Young, starting in place of an injured Joe Montana, completed 20 of 27 passes, including a 23-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Rice in the first quarter. He also led the 49ers in rushing with 61 yards on six carries.

Browns 31, Cardinals 16

Gerald McNeil returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown and caught a 7-yard scoring pass from Mike Pagel for the go-ahead during a 10-minute span in the third quarter.

Falcons 19, Bills 14

Turk Schonert came off the bench to throw a 37-yard touchdown pass to Stacey Bailey in the fourth quarter and Mick Luckhurst added four field goals.

Schonert hit four passes without a miss for 60 yards in the winning drive, capping it with the TD pass to Bailey with 9:23 left.

Saints 23, Vikings 17

Dalton Hilliard ran for a two second-half touchdowns, and Barry Word ran 11 yards for the game-winner with 2:57 to play as New Orleans overcame a 14-point deficit.

Minnesota built a 17-3 halftime advantage on two touchdown passes by Wade Wilson and a 27-yard field goal by Dale Dawson.

Miami Dolphins Vernice Smith (71) tries to get a piece of Chicago Bears running back Neal Anderson (35) in action in Miami Sunday night at the first game of the new Joe Robbie Stadium.

Colts 22, Lions 19

Jack Trudeau capped an eight-play, 75-yard drive with a 13-yard touchdown pass to Roy Banks to give the Colts their win.

Trudeau completed 11 of 16 passes for 112 yards after replacing starter Gary Hogeboom, who played less than two quarters.

Jets 13, Eagles 10

George Radachowsky intercepted a pass to set up Pat

Leahy's 29-yard field goal with 29 seconds left, giving the Jets a late victory over Philadelphia.

Radachowsky's interception came with just over two minutes to go in the fourth quarter of the raggedly played contest. After a scoreless second half, Radachowsky intercepted a pass from Philadelphia quarterback Ken Lambotte that put the ball at the Eagles 44.

Cook gets first tournament win in four years

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Castle Pines Golf Club's par-5 17th hole, 492 yards long and uphill, is reachable in two for most pros at the club's 6,200-foot elevation, making an eagle a realistic score.

In fact, an eagle is encouraged by the unorthodox scoring system used at The International tournament, and John Cook showed just how advantageous a 3 on that hole can be.

Standing 210 yards away, Cook ripped a 4-iron second shot to within 12 feet of the cup, then sank the eagle putt and captured The International title on Sunday.

The eagle was worth five points under the modified Stableford scoring system, vaulting Cook from seven to 12 points. A bogey at No. 18 left Cook with 11 points and gave him his first tournament victory since the 1983 Canadian Open.

Green, playing ahead of Cook, had birdied the 17th hole to move to nine points. "After my birdie at 17, I figured I could do no worse than tie," said Green. "I thought there might be a playoff, but I guess John didn't want to make it exciting."

The 14th on Sunday almost cost him the tournament. Cook drove into trees and nearly whiffed his second shot, which he managed to get back in the fairway. He took a bogey, which counted minus-1 point, but avoided the double bogey, which counts for minus-3.

Standing in the middle of the 17th fairway, Cook said, "I figured the best I could do was a birdie and a playoff. I wasn't thinking eagle."

His second shot sailed straight at the flag, clearing the yawning bunker just in front of the green.

The victory was worth $180,000 and gave Cook $1,148,394 in career earnings, making him the 81st player to earn over $1 million on the tour.

Had the tournament been played under the traditional stroke-play format, Cook would have finished in a tie for fourth. Chip Beck, who wound up tied for third with six Lloyd Moseby and Alan Trammell came through in the clutch. Gary Ward and Don Mattingly did not.

The results left the Toronto Blue Jays and Detroit Tigers close in the American League East and the New York Yankees frustrated.

Moseby broke a seventh-inning tie with a two-out, two-run homer as the Blue Jays beat Chicago 6-4. That left Toronto one-half game ahead of Detroit, which beat Kansas City 10-6 when Trammell's double drove in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning.

New York fell three games off the pace by losing to Cleveland 1-0. The Yankees blew their biggest chance in the eighth inning when they loaded the bases with one out before Indians reliever Doug Jones struck out Ward and retired Mattingly on a fly ball to left.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 4
Moseby drove in three runs with three hits, including a two-run homer in the seventh that broke a 4-4 tie and led Toronto over Chicago.

Moseby's 20th homer came with two outs against Ray Searage, 2-3. Toronto's George Bell hit a run-scoring single in the third and became the first AL player with 100 RBI.

Tigers 10, Royals 6
Lou Whitaker hit three doubles, Jim Morrison homered and drove in three runs and Trammell's RBI double broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning as Detroit won in Kansas City.

Minnesota Twins pitcher Frank Viola winds up in action against the Seattle Mariners Sunday as he went on to post his 14th win of the season with a 5-1 victory over the Mariners.

each hit two of Minnesota's six doubles, helping Frank Viola beat Seattle at the Metrodome.

Viola, 14-7, gave up five hits in eight-plus innings. He struck out five and walked one.

Brewers 6, Orioles 2
Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 31 games and Ernest Riles and Glenn Braggs each drove in three runs that led Milwaukee over Baltimore.

Molitor's hitting streak tied him with Ken Landreaux (1980) for the longest in the majors since Pete Rose set a National League record by hitting in 44 straight games in 1978.

Athletics 9, Angels 6
Jose Canseco hit his 25th home run and two doubles, leading Oakland over California.

The Athletics rallied for three runs in the sixth for a 7-5 lead. Reggie Jackson led off with a double against Chuck Finley, 2-5, and scored the tying run on shortstop Dick Schofield's error. Mike Davis had a run-scoring grounder and Canseco hit an RBI double.

Darrell Miller, Mark McLemore and Jack Howell hit home runs in the second inning that gave the host Angels a 5-1 lead.

Greg Cadaret, 2-0, got the victory and Dennis Eckersley got his ninth save.

Red Sox 12, Rangers 2
Rookie John Marzano hit a pair of two-run homers and doubled and Ellis Burks and Spike Owen also hit two-run homers as Boston shelled Texas.

Wade Boggs got his fourth four-hit game of the season in the Red Sox rout at Fenway Park. Marzano's first career three-hit game highlighted a 15-hit attack.

Bob Stanley, 4-12, ended his five-game losing streak with his first victory since June 8. He gave up nine hits in his third complete game. Greg Harris, 5-9, took the loss.

Phillies cash in on Cards

By The Associated Press
The St. Louis Cardinals, who appeared ready a month ago to run away with the National League East, are keeping things interesting — particularly for the Philadelphia Phillies.

"We just ain't hitting, Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said Sunday after the Cards lost to

Lee Elia added:
Expos 10, Pirates 7
The Expos gave Manager Buck Rodgers a 49th birthday present by rallying from a 7-4 deficit with six runs in their final two at-bats. It gave the Expos a four-game sweep of their series with the visiting Pirates.

The Expos were trailing 7-4 in the seventh when they began their fourth straight late-inning rally against the Pirates.

Raines doubled and scored on Mitch Webster's single. Herm Wingham then drew a walk and one out later, Andres Galarraga hit a grounder through second baseman Johnny Ray's legs to score Webster.

Tom Foley followed by hitting the first pitch from Brad Gideon, 1-4, for a three-run homer to give Montreal the lead.

Mets 23, Cubs 10
The Mets, who blew a 5-0 lead to Chicago on Friday and 1-0 and 2-0 leads the next two days, broke a five-game losing streak against the Cubs. And Strawberry, who had the biggest role, almost didn't play because of a sore hip. But he said

"no way" when Manager Davey Johnson asked him if he wanted the day off.

Strawberry's biggest blow was his 29th homer, tying a career high, that gave the Mets a 7-0 lead in the fourth. After the Cubs scored five in the fourth off Ron Darling, 10-7, the Mets came back with 10 in the next two innings off Drew Hall.

New York, in fact, finished with five three-run innings and one for seven. Strawberry finished with his homer along with a triple and two doubles; Lenny Dykstra had four hits including a homer and Howard Johnson had his 28th homer.

Giants 1, Dodgers 0
Mike LaCoss allowed just three hits over 10 innings to improve his record to 11-7 and extend the Dodgers' scoreless streak against the Giants to 22 innings.

The only run came with two out in the 10th when Chili Davis, pinch hitting for LaCoss, singled off Tim Leary and Eddie Milner lined a double into the left-field corner to drive him home. That capped a 9-2 homestand for the Giants.

Bob Welch shut out the Giants on four hits for the first eight innings.

Reds 2, Padres 0
Nick Esasky hit solo homers for the only Cincinnati runs and Ron Robinson and John Franco combined on a three-hitter at San Diego. Robinson, a former reliever, went seven innings and had a career-high eight strikeouts.

Astros 6, Braves 2
Billy Hatcher drove in a career-high four runs with a double and a single and Jim Deshaies won in his first appearance since being activated from the disabled list because of tendinitis in his left shoulder. The victory kept Houston just three games back of the Giants and Reds.

Deshaies, 10-4, went six innings, giving up two runs on six hits while striking out two and walking two.

It was the first win for the host Astros since June 21 against a left-handed starter, against whom they were 0-10. It was also the first loss after five straight wins for Zane Smith, 12-7.

Hatcher singled home two runs in a three-run second, and doubled home two more in the seventh after the Braves cut the deficit to 3-2.

National League

Philadelphia 4-3, their third loss in the four-game series to the Phillies.

That left the team that led the division by 9½ games on July 23 with just a four-game lead over the Montreal Expos with the defending champion New York Mets 4½ back. And even Philadelphia, now nine games behind, is beginning to get pennant visions.

"I think we're still in this thing," said Juan Samuel, whose two-run single in the seventh inning put the Phillies ahead to stay and Manager

Local wins Lajet tournament

ABILENE (AP) — Bob Estes of Abilene and the University of Texas took a birdie on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the LaJet National Amateur championship Sunday.

The win over Brian Watts of Carrollton and Oklahoma State University broke the hold OSU has held on the tournament since it started in 1981.

Play was over the Fairway Oaks Golf & Racquet Club layout, site of Southwest Golf Classic next month. The winner receives a sponsor's exemption to the PGA Tour event, but Estes may have a conflict with his Longhorn team invited to play in a tournament in Japan about the same time in September.

"It's a problem I'll have to talk over with Coach (Jimmy Clayton)," Estes said.

Estes scored 37-34-71 for a 279 total, tying him with Watts, who fired a 33-37-69 as he defended his championship from last year. Watts started with a hot hand on the front, carding birdies on holes three, four, five, seven and nine.

Estes bogeyed both par 3s on the front nine and birdied nine, 10 and 15 on the back. Watts bogeyed 16 and 18. He missed a 6-foot birdie on 17.

Both players were on the green on the sudden-death hole, Estes at 15 feet and Watts at 20 feet. Estes said he really didn't expect to make the curling putt and was playing for par, but the ball went in giving him the victory.

joining the LPGA Tour in 1983.

"The turning point was probably the 15th hole," said Skinner, who this year failed to win any of the four previous tournaments in which she led going into the final round. "When that happened to Shelley, I knew I was back in the tournament, even though I did nothing to deserve it."

It was Hamlin who gave Skinner the opportunity, hooking her drive on the par-5, 512-yard 15th hole. The ball landed in twigs and leaves and lodged under a tree stem.

"I took an unplayable lie and went back to the tee for a second shot," said Hamlin, who won the Patty Berg Classic in 1978 for her lone victory since turning pro in 1972.

Steffi Graf of West Germany takes a swing at the ball during tennis action at the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Los Angeles tournament at Manhattan Beach Sunday.

West German teen on top in women's tennis

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Steffi Graf of West Germany has reached the top of women's tennis a little earlier than she expected.

"I knew I had the ability, but not this soon," the 18-year-old Graf said Sunday after defeating Chris Evert 6-3, 6-4 in the finals of the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Los Angeles women's tennis tournament.

Evert, however, thought Graf's promotion was a little overdue.

"She's had the best year of anyone," Evert said. "She's now won eight tournaments. I'm surprised the computer took this long to recognize that."

"She'll stay No. 1 as long as she wants to. She works hard. She's the best of all the newcomers."

The only match Graf has lost this year was in the finals of Wimbledon to Navratilova. Still, her promotion took her by surprise.

"It feels great," Graf said of the top ranking. "My father said it was impossible. I had no idea. I was very surprised."

"Being No. 1 means everything. I've had a good year. It's important to get to be No. 1 before the U.S. Open. I can really relax."

Navratilova, who teamed with Pam Shriver to win the tournament's doubles title, declined to comment when asked about falling to No. 2.

In Sunday's final, Graf and Evert traded breaks in four straight games beginning in the second game of the first set. After Evert held service to pull even at 3-3, Graf then won the next three games.

In the ninth game, Evert dumped a service return into the net at deuce and then Graf took the game and the set with a forehand volley for a winner.

The two then traded breaks in the first two games of the second set and again in the seventh and eighth games, leaving the set even at 4-4.

Graf then broke Evert's serve and then held at love to take the match and the No. 1 ranking.

"This is a good match," Graf said. "We had long rallies. Chris is really playing well. ... She's hitting the ball harder than before and not making as many errors."

Evert agreed. "I'm playing better now than when I was No. 1. ... The standards just keep going up and up," she said.

Evert's improved play made the finals more of a match. "I expected her to be tough," Evert said. "She hit well. She sliced well. The last couple of times she beat me badly. Today, I was in the match the whole way."

BOXING

World champion Keltie Banks of Chicago was knocked down in the first round, but rallied to beat Arnaldo Mesa in the first U.S.-Cuba matchup. Banks scored well with combinations in the final two rounds for a 3-2 decision in the 125-pound division.

Todd Foster, a 139-pounder from Great Falls, Mont., knocked down George Kellman of Antigua in the second round and the referee stopped the fight.

Michael Carbajal of Phoenix scored a unanimous decision over Colin Moore of Guyana at 106 pounds.

BASKETBALL

The U.S. team was tested a bit by Uruguay, but still won 105-81. It was the closest of the five lopsided victories for the Americans, who have an average of wins by a margin of 29.2 points.

Willie Anderson of Georgia and Jerome "Pooh" Richardson of UCLA had 13 points each.

Orthodontist urges self-prevention

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

As fearful as most people are of a visit to an orthodontist's office may be to some people, the alternatives — like gum disease — are even worse, according to a Big Spring practitioner.

Doug Smith has seen a variety of dental problems in his 16 years of practice and says that simple preventative techniques can prevent most of them.

Orthodontics should not be confused with regular dentistry, he said.

Smith said members of his profession must complete two continuous years of training after they complete dental school. And — unlike dentists — orthodontists deal with facial irregularities as well as tooth problems.

He graduated from College, Abilene, in 1950, a stint in the Air Force and decided to enter the University of Texas Dental College in Houston.

He then practiced general dentistry in Big Spring for seven years before returning to the dental college for his orthodontical degree.

Smith cites three categories of major difficulties he treats: Tooth crowding, bad bite and skeletal problems.

As the name suggests, tooth crowding occurs when there's more tooth structure than the jaw allows. Aside from the unattractive appearance that results, Smith said several other problems can occur.

He said crowded teeth are difficult to maintain, leading to other problems — such as tooth decay, gum disease and loss of teeth.

Bad bite is one of the most common problems he faces. The major cause of bad bites is temporal mandibular joint problems.

TMJ problems occur when one jaw grows more than the other. Smith said problems in this area range from the mild: joint popping and clicks, to the serious: severe pain and dysfunction.

If not treated, such problems can lead to arthritis, displacement of the joint capsule, or erosion of the joint, he added.

The reason the jaw joint is more susceptible to problems is that it is unique in its functions, Smith said. It not only works up and down, but also in a circular manner. It is used more often than any other joint — making it more likely to suffer from erosion, he added.

Smith warned that — depending on the cause — orthodontists may not be able to help TMJ sufferers. If a person is afflicted with it, he will have some degree of pain permanently, he said.

Skeletal difficulties usually fall into two categories: Cleft palate and congenital malformations. Smith said these are the most difficult of orthodontic problems to treat, and the sufferer often must be treated by more than one doctor.

To deal with these problems, Smith urges regular examinations and common-sense preventive measures, such as keeping the teeth clean, avoiding sweets and watching for gum disease.

He said there is a psychological advantage to facial attractiveness. A person with good dental features will have more self-confidence and greater self-esteem, often translating into a greater chance at success, Smith said.

Above all, he urges anyone who is unhappy with their teeth to contact a dentist or an orthodontist.

Varicose vein relief tips offered

LUBBOCK — One in four women and one in 10 men in America suffer from varicose veins, according to information released from Methodist Hospital.

Injury and infection account for some varicose veins, but the vast majority stem from unknown causes.

Symptoms of varicose veins may include heaviness or dull aching in the legs, fatigue, pressure, pain or swelling at the ankle, poor circulation and night cramps, the report states.

The report adds some self-help procedures may alleviate pain from this condition:

- Elevate your feet above heart level. This allows blood to drain easily back to the heart.

- Exercise your legs as often as possible. Because leg muscles support veins and massage blood upward to the heart, use of these muscles improves circulation and eliminates pooled blood.

- Evaluate clothing to see that it fits without constricting circulation.

- Eliminate extra weight. Additional weight places pressure on veins and restricts circulation.

- Include fiber in your diet. Fiber — in the form of whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables — relieves constipation, a possible factor in the formation of varicose veins.

- Never scratch skin on the legs or ankles that itches because of varicose veins.

- See your physician. Only a physician can tell you whether the symptoms you have are the direct result of varicose veins.

Other conditions such as diabetes mellitus, infection, blockage because of blood clots or hardening of the arteries can cause side effects similar to varicose veins.

Thousands suffer from Tourette

AUSTIN — Tourette syndrome is a complex neurological disorder that disrupts an otherwise normal, healthy life and has no known cause or cure, according to information released from the Texas Medical Association.

The syndrome causes people to unintentionally make abrupt body movements, such as tics and jerks, produce unusual sounds and shout inappropriate words, the report states.

The disease dates back to the Middle Ages, and affects about 100,000 Americans. Three-fourths of those afflicted are male.

Symptoms usually emerge in childhood, around age seven, and typically begin with excessive eye-blinking and involuntary muscle contractions in the shoulders. The vocal symptoms include barks, whistles, hisses, snorts, and other bizarre noises, the report adds.

Frustrating to the patient is that symptoms come and go unpredictably. Haloperidol is one medication that is effective in controlling the tics and jerks, but the side effects, including depression, loss of concentration, and development of phobias, can be more difficult to deal with than the symptoms, according to the report.

For more information about Tourette syndrome or to locate the Tourette syndrome organization nearest you, write the National Organization for Tourette Syndrome, 41-02 Bell Blvd., Bayside, N.Y. 11361 or call (718) 224-2999.

Dry feet key to preventing fungus

Americans spend more than $150 million each year for the treatment of athlete's foot, when a bit of simple prevention could save most people's itchy feet and relieve their pocketbook, says the Texas Medical Association.

Athlete's foot usually begins in the area between the fourth and fifth toes because it is the tightest, and warmest, web-space of the foot. It then spreads to adjacent toes, where affected skin begins to crack, scale, and itch.

Sometimes the sole and side of the foot are affected and become leathery in texture and chalk-like in color. This form of athlete's foot may resist treatment and linger for years, the association states.

The key to preventing athlete's foot is keeping the feet dry.

Choice of shoes has much to do with this, the report adds. Wear leather shoes instead of shoes made from synthetic materials like vinyl, which does not allow the feet to breathe.

Select shoes that are well-ventilated, and do not wear the same shoes every day, the report states.

New drug could be safe treatment for MS

BOSTON (AP) — An experimental drug could become the first safe treatment for early cases of multiple sclerosis, scientists said today, although experts cautioned it probably will not help people already crippled by the disease.

A study in today's New England Journal of Medicine said daily shots of Cop 1 significantly reduced the symptoms and progression of the disease in people with relatively mild cases.

Other drugs have been shown to slow the disease but are so toxic they cannot be used routinely. Cop 1's only common side effect was soreness and itching at the spot where the daily injections were given, scientists said.

"It's very encouraging at the moment," said Dr. Murray B. Bornstein, who directed the study at New York's Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

"Surely it is not at the level where anybody can say this will significantly alter the course of the illness in a safe and effective way. It's very promising, but we still have work to do."

Doctors said they are not convinced Cop 1 will become a part of MS therapy, and even if it does, its uses will be limited.

"It offers hope for early cases, but there is no evidence that it helps people with more severe disease," said Dr. Howard L. Weiner of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. "Clearly it is not the cure for MS."

Cop 1 is available only in very small quantities for research purposes. Experts predicted that it will be years before the medicine is approved for general use, even if testing goes smoothly.

"It is not going to be good for people who already have significant disability, so people who are using canes or wheelchairs shouldn't think this is going to help them," Weiner said.

About 250,000 people in the United States have MS. The disease destroys the myelin that sheathes and protects the nerves, disrupting messages sent along them.

Symptoms can include muscle weakness, dizziness, tremors and blurred vision. Many victims have trouble walking.

Clinic owner accused of scamming AIDS patients

HOUSTON (AP) — Injection of purified urine can boost the bodily immune systems of AIDS patients, a Houston-area clinic owner testified in a state court suit seeking to shut his clinics down.

Testifying in state district court on Thursday, William Hitt acknowledged the practice is controversial and not recognized by many experts.

"I don't think many experts have evaluated the treatment," he said.

Hitt is part-owner of three clinics, two in Houston and one in Dallas, where patients receive weekly injections of their own filtered urine.

The state is seeking to halt the injections and stop Hitt from claiming his treatment can prevent opportunistic infections from affecting vulnerable AIDS patients and allergy sufferers.

The three clinics are currently treating 205 patients.

During Thursday's first day of hearings, Assistant State Attorney General Rose Ann Reeser contended Hitt's patients were not receiving the injections on instruction of licensed physicians, one practice the state is seeking to end.

Hitt contends all patients are seen by physicians and have standing orders for the injections, but said it was possible some patients may have obtained the injections without seeing a physician.

Ms. Reeser also contended Hitt is not making any systematic study of the treatment's effectiveness. Hitt said a study is under way has found that two patients died while under the treatment, and "six or seven" have died since May after halting the treatment.

Hitt said he developed the treatment based upon work done by a California doctor. He said he first used the treatment on allergy sufferers, but began offering it to AIDS patients in 1983 after an allergy patient with AIDS showed improvement after receiving urine injections.

The state wants the injections stopped until evaluated and approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the state Health Department.

Ms. Reeser earlier was granted a temporary court order to stop Hitt from inaccurately calling himself a doctor. Hitt admitted Thursday he acquired his diploma from Walden University, which he called "essentially a paper mill," in order to federal Medicare regulations for his clinics.

Father of dwarf involved with support group

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The day his son Christopher was born, Steve Pers wondered when the boy would become a first-round draft pick for the Philadelphia Eagles.

A few hours later, a doctor told him never.

"He said, 'I just want you to know he's a dwarf,'" Pers recalled Tuesday. "And then he started to go away. I grabbed him and asked, 'But is his mind OK?'"

The way the doctor announced the news 12 years ago hurt Pers, but he said he realizes now it was not unusual. Today he's involved with a local branch of Little People of America Inc., which not only learns about the medical aspects of dwarfism but also spreads information among parents and physicians.

"It's been not infrequent that doctors simply won't deal with dwarfs," said geneticist Charles I. Scott, chairman of the national group's medical advisory board. "That's changing."

A quarter-century ago, experts thought just three types of dwarf-ism existed, Scott said. Today, more than 100 types have been identified and possibly another 100 have been found in isolated cases, he said.

The increased knowledge has brought sweeping change to the medical treatment available to alleviate complications associated with dwarfism, said Scott, one of several medical experts speaking and giving workshops here Tuesday during the Little People of America's 29th annual convention.

The convention, which drew more than 850 people, many of whom are dwarfs, continues through Saturday.
