Furr's, FTC, Safeway in agreement

LUBBOCK — Furr's Inc., Safeway and the Federal Trade Commission have agreed to a proposed consent order that would permit Furr's to acquire Safeway's El Paso Division. The consent order agreement was announced Monday. In it, Furr's agreed to divest of 12 stores in 12 Texas and New Mexico towns. Furr's anticipates the Safeway purchase will be consummated on or before Oct. 31 — subject to an agreement to hold separate certain assets of the El Paso Division until the 12 stores have been sold. Furr's chief executive officer Jan Friedrich said, "We intend to sell the 12 stores as quickly as possible." Friedrich reported stores to be divested are located in Alamogordo, Artesia, Clovis, Espanola, Hobbs, Las Vegas, Lovington, Portales, Roswell and Silver City, in New Mexico, plus Fort Stockton and Pecos in Texas. "Furr's is very pleased to have reached this satisfactory agreement with Safeway and the Federal Trade Commission," Friedrich added, "and we are dedicated to accomplishing the transition as conveniently as possible for our customers, employees, and the communities involved." The acquisition of Safeway's 59 stores and the subsequent divestiture of the 12 stores leaves Furr's a net gain of 47 stores. Furr's now operates 165 stores in West Texas and New Mexico.

Farmers market Project considered successful

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer
Vegetables have not been a major cash crop for area farmers, but that may change if the Farmers Market at Highland South Shopping Center is a success. Farmers have always grown vegetables for personal use, but are taking advantage of the gross market potential for the first time, according to county 4-H extension agent Mike Bragg. Begun in June, the Farmers Market is an attempt by area growers to supplement their income and, judging by the results so far, has been successful, Bragg said. "It's been doing real well," he said. "I'm pleased with the amount of customers we've had, and the amount of produce being sold." "The farmers are having difficult times. This is to help them and the consumers," Bragg added. "In his estimation, the market helps the local economy as well as the farmers. "It brings more money into town," he said. "We have growers come in from Glasscock, Martin, Midland and other counties — as well as Howard — and stay all day. They end up spending money here." Bragg said the market was averaging between four and five growers a day, and added that both the quantity and quality of produce offered was superior. "There's some awful nice produce out there, and there's a bunch of it," he said. "And they're selling it at competitive prices, too." Asked if other area farmers might be enticed to grow vegetables for sale at the market, Bragg said they are taking a wait-and-see attitude. "A lot of them are looking at it pretty close, hoping it will work out," he said. The market is open to anyone wishing to buy or sell produce, he noted. Persons who want to sell their vegetables can pay a fee of $10 every time, or they can become a member of the Farmers Market Association for $30, Bragg said. Either Joe Hollenshead, president of the association, or another member of the group will be at the market during operating hours, he added.

Forsan school tax rate jumps by 23 percent

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer
FORSAN — The Forsan School Board Monday cut $67,854 from last year's budget, but raised taxes by 23 percent to pay for the smaller budget. The reason: declines in property values caused by drops in oil revenues. The Board passed a 1987-88 budget of $3,421,972, which was the same as the tentative budget passed in June. To pay for that, the Board passed a tax rate of 95 cents per $100 property valuation. Forsan taxpayers paid 77 cents per $100 last year. Such a tax rate will mean an increased tax bill from $385 to $475 — $90 more — for the owner of a Forsan home valued at $50,000. Forsan Superintendent J.F. Poynor explained that the 95-cent rate is one cent above the effective rate of 94 cents — the effective rate is the rate that would generate the same revenues as the previous year. Usually, if a rate at or above the effective rate is passed, then the budget will be at or above the previous year's level. This isn't the case this year at Forsan, Poynor explained, because last year the Board budgeted for a $475,000 deficit. "Last year we budgeted for a $475,000 deficit. In other words, we were going in the hole $475,000," he said, explaining that the district's reserves paid for the deficit. Poynor said cuts in spending last year cut that deficit, and that it will only be approximately $200,000. He said, however, that the district can't afford to budget that large a deficit this year.

"We can't just keep doing that," he said, explaining why Board Member Bill Mims voted against the 95-cent rate, preferring a higher rate of 96.5 cents. "We cut the budget and we're trying to raise a little more money, but it will still be a deficit budget," Poynor said. He said the Board budgeted for a $113,000 deficit. "That's all speculation though, because you're looking at anticipated figures. We're anticipating a 95 percent collection rate, and if we spend exactly what we have budgeted, then we'll have a $113,000 deficit." Poynor added that he thinks collections may be higher than 95 percent, and that all the money budgeted might not be spent. He said it's possible the district won't have a deficit at all. "That's what we're hoping for," he said. Poynor said the drop in oil revenues forced the Board to raise taxes. "The cause of the big increase was the big drop in values — we

College will deny suit's allegations

Howard College will deny allegations in a lawsuit filed against the college district by a former student who alleges she was sexually assaulted in a district dormitory. A lawsuit against the college district, former Dean of Students Dominick V. Bonura and Thomas Bonilla was filed Monday in 118th District Court. The suit alleges that a former SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf student, Catherine Marie Saenz, Corpus Christi, was sexually assaulted while living in a campus dormitory. Howard College President Bob Riley said "What she alleges occurred and what actually occurred is not the same." He said this morning the matter has been referred to lawyers representing the college. On Sept. 29, 1985 Saenz was allegedly assaulted by Bonilla, who had entered the female complex, according to the suit. Although Saenz reported the assault to the Howard College administration and specifically to Dean of Students Bonura, the college and Bonura failed to report the incident to the police, Saenz's parents, or seek medical attention for Saenz, the suit states. Saenz is seeking an undisclosed amount of punitive and exemplary damages. The petition states that the attack occurred because of negligence of Howard College and Bonura for failure to provide adequate measures of security and failure to provide adequate numbers of patrols and security personnel. It also states the dormitories lacked adequate locks and the college failed to adequately train and supervise security personnel. In addition, the suit states students were not provided with rules or regulations to prevent intruders from entering the dormitory area. It alleges she has suffered mental and physical trauma as a result of the assault.

Officials will visit facilities

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Developers of a proposed privately-operated detention center in Big Spring and a city council member will tour similar facilities this week in Nashville, Tenn. and Columbia, S.C. Partners in the prison plan, Roy Burnes and Ed Davenport, and councilman Johnny Rutherford are expected to leave today to visit the two prisons and meet with architects of Tricore Inc., a Nashville firm designing the Big Spring center, Burnes said. The design of the center is expected to be quite different from the Eden Detention Center where Burnes is president, Burnes said during a telephone interview Monday. He described the Big Spring design as "more sophisticated" and similar to a college campus — unlike Eden's warehouse style. City Council in June unanimously authorized negotiations with the developers to build the prison at the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark. Prison operators will contract with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to house illegal aliens at the 512-bed medium security facility. The prison is expected to house immigration law violators, such as people who repeatedly enter the country illegally, or who are convicted of smuggling aliens into the United States. Under the plan, the INS will pay the city a certain amount of money per prisoner per day, and the city will pay the contractor. Rutherford has estimated that the city would receive about $180,000 a year if the center is at capacity level. Burnes said Monday that they also are pursuing federal inmates from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. "All inmates will be federal prisoners," he said. Rutherford added that a letter of intent from the INS is "in the mail." Burnes had no estimate of when construction of the 100,000-square-foot building will begin. "We are apologizing for the delays," he said. Officials estimate the prison could provide 150 to 175 jobs.

House debate video featured

Herald staff report
Residents will see something different at Rep. Larry Don Shaw's town hall meeting Thursday. Shaw will show a half-hour tape of floor debate from the 70th Legislative session featuring him in debate with other Texas legislators. The video shows Shaw debating issues ranging from the budget to the supercollider to hazing in college fraternities. Shaw said he will complete his town hall meeting tour that began last Wednesday in Big Spring, having conducted meetings in about 20 cities. He is scheduled to speak at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in the District Courtroom of the Howard County Courthouse. The public is invited and urged to attend. It will be an informative hour that will allow residents to see the representative in actual debate and ask questions about the legislative session, Shaw said from Van Horn Monday afternoon where he was conducting one of the scheduled meetings. He said he expected the tax bill and budget to be main topics of discussion at Thursday's meeting. "It's not just another politician flapping his lips, but some actual floor debate," Shaw said, adding that he thinks area residents will find the video interesting. Showing the video and speaking with area residents also will allow him to get some feedback on his performance as a state representative, Shaw added. Shaw also has conducted a series of town hall meetings in Crane, Rankin, McCamey, Kermit, Monahans, Fort Davis, Van Horn, Sierra Blanca, Fort Hancock and Dell City, according to a spokeswoman at his Austin office. He planned a meeting in Pecos this afternoon followed by a news conference in Saragosa, and a town hall meeting in Big Lake Thursday, before ending the series of meetings in Big Spring, the spokeswoman said.

Card store files lawsuit for damages

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Joy and Hal Boyd, of Joy's Hallmark in the Highland Mall, have filed a lawsuit against the mall's leasing company for water damages their store sustained last year.

The suit alleges Strathnaver Properties Inc., based in Fort Worth, reneged on contract agreements and has refused to reimburse them for damages exceeding $40,000.

On or about June 21, 1986, a storm caused water leakage through the store's light fixtures, ceiling and sliding glass doors, according to the suit, which adds that leakage problems had been reported earlier, but weren't repaired.

Employees under the supervision of the mall manager Mica Goza went to the top of the building to check the drainage system after the June storm, the suit states.

One or more of the employees attempted to clear what was thought to be a drain pipe, but was actually an air conditioning duct. The duct broke and a pipe and crowbar crashed through the ceiling into the shop, the suit alleges.

Water that had been on the roof came through the hole and drained into the shop for about three hours, virtually destroying the store and its contents, the petition states.

The shop was closed eight weeks for repairs. The suit alleges that Strathnaver Properties Inc. failed to maintain a proper drainage system within the mall, failed to properly repair the roof in a timely manner, failed to properly supervise its employees while they were working on the roof and failed to commence repairs on the premises at its expense after the June damages were incurred.

The suit also states that the company failed to complete repairs with reasonable diligence as required in the lease agreement.

As a result, property damage from stock destroyed exceeded $7,500, repairs exceeded $15,000 and lost profits exceeded $17,500, according to the lawsuit.

Total damages were said to be more than $40,000.

Big Spring Kiwanis member elected regional governor

Herald staff report

Billy T. Smith, Big Spring, has been elected Governor-elect of the Texas-Oklahoma District of the Kiwanis International.

Smith, a retired accountant, was elected governor Saturday at the organization's annual convention at Beaumont. It marked the first time that Big Spring has had a governor elected on the district level in the local organization's 59-year history, Smith said.

BILLY T. SMITH

During the business session it was announced that the Big Spring club won fourth place in the interclub contest. They had a total of 20,556 man miles of interclub travel.

The Texas-Oklahoma District covers the two-state area and has 475 active Kiwanis clubs, whose membership totals 17,500 Kiwanians. The District office is located in Arlington. Bob Cowles, Spencer, Okla., is the current governor.

Smith will be elected the district's new governor, without opposition, at the annual convention next August at Lubbock. His term as governor will be from October 1, 1988 through September 30, 1989.

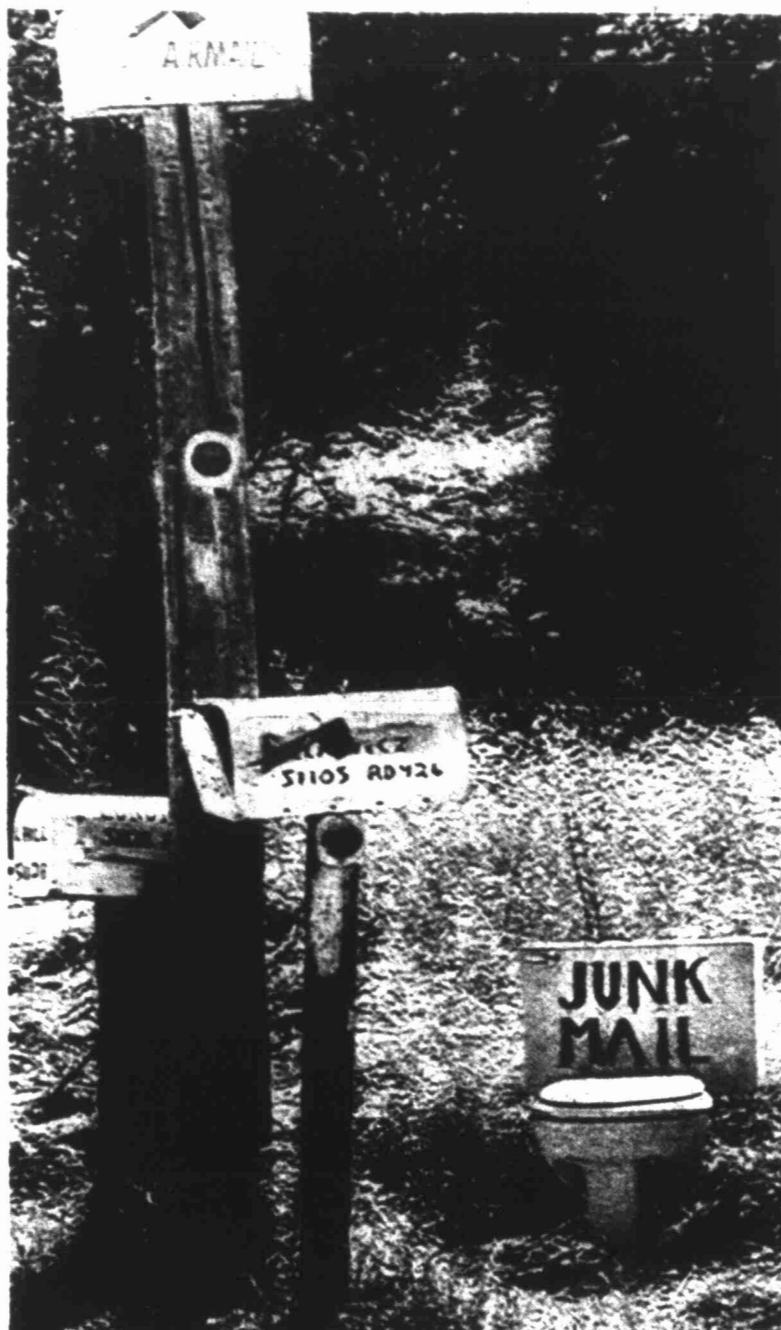

Smith's responsibilities will keep him busy for the next year, making committee assignments and conducting training conferences. Part of his duties as governor will be to make one visit to each of the 41 divisions in the district.

Big Spring was well represented at the district's annual convention. Big Spring Kiwanians attending the convention were Bob Crowell, Lieutenant-Governor elect; Gene Gresham, president elect; and Bobby Hill, the club's interclub chairman, in addition to Smith.

Smith joined the Big Spring Kiwanis Club February 16, 1968, he said, and has 19 years of perfect attendance.

He was selected by the local club as Kiwanian of the year in 1979 and 1985.

Sands School District to discuss new budget

Herald staff report

ACKERLY — The Sands Consolidated School District will have a public hearing tonight at 7 p.m. in the Board Room to discuss the budget for the coming school year, according to Superintendent James Blake.

The Board of Trustees set a tentative budget of $1,642,046 during its budget workshop Monday evening, Blake said. An effective tax rate of $1.193 also was agreed upon, he added.

He noted the actual tax rate should be between $1.06 and $1.09 per $100 valuation.

In other business tonight, the board will:

- Approve resignations and appointments.
- Consider dairy bids.
- Review TEAMS test results for the 1986-87 school year.
- Consider a proposal for annexation.
- Hear the superintendent's report.

had a 16 percent decrease in total district values, therefore the rate had to increase to make up for the loss in value."

Sam Westin, the tax agent for Conoco, attended the meeting, but had no complaints about the budget, Poyner said. Conoco will pay approximately $500,000 in taxes in Forsan, and is the district's biggest taxpayer, Poyner said.

Mims was the only board member to vote against the 96 cent rate.

In other business, the Board:

- Called a special meeting for 7 p.m. on Aug. 31 to consider amending the 1986-87 budget and to consider formulating an AIDS policy.
- Poyner said law requires an amended, year-end budget.
- "Basically it's an ending financial statement that shows what actually did happen," he said.
- The 1986-87 school year ends Aug. 31. Poyner said the amended budget will be filed with the Texas Education Agency and the Howard County Clerk.
- The Board will discuss an AIDS policy because Poyner said Forsan should have a policy prior to being confronted with the problem.
- Awarded the district's property, vehicle liability and legal liability insurance to the low bidder

State

Cisneros not to run for statewide office

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Saying he wants to devote more time to his sick child and civic projects, Mayor Henry Cisneros announced he would not seek the governorship or any statewide office in 1990.

Cisneros, who announced his decision Monday, had been considered a Democratic front-runner for governor after Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby decided last month not to enter the gubernatorial race.

Cisneros said he made his decision so supporters could commit to other candidates. Attorney General Jim Mattox welcomed the news, saying it was "a tremendous boost for me."

Cisneros, 40, is in his fourth term as mayor. He is one of the state's top Hispanic leaders and a rising national leader who was interviewed as a possible vice presidential running mate in 1984.

"Today I wish to state that I will not be a candidate for the office of governor, senator or any other statewide position in 1990," Cisneros said. "This decision having been reached, I believe it is best to set it forth clearly for family, friends and fellow public officials."

"It will allow me to tackle some very challenging issues in San Antonio ... without opponents damaging those efforts for reasons of wanting to cripple a campaign for higher office," he said. "No one can truthfully say that these initiatives are being pursued to advance my political ambitions."

Another factor in Cisneros' decision is the health of his 2-month-old son, John Paul Anthony, who was born with a congenital heart defect and an abnormal digestive system.

"The family stresses associated with John Paul's care require attention that is not compatible with gearing up for a major statewide effort," Cisneros said.

Cisneros called several state officials, including Mattox and Treasurer Ann Richards, to tell them he would not be running for governor in 1990. Both Democrats are prospective candidates for that office.

Mattox said Cisneros told him "he felt it was not fair to me nor our mutual friends for him to not make a decision because he knew there are people who would be torn between the two of us."

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, another Democrat, said Monday, "I'm a lot closer to running for governor in 1990 today than I was yesterday." Mauro said he would not have wanted to run against Cisneros.

Judge to decide Crystal Beach vote

GALVESTON (AP) — A state district judge is considering whether a vote that abolished the tiny coastal town of Crystal Beach should stand.

The town was officially abolished April 27 after residents of the small community of retirees and beachgoers voted April 4 to disincorporate the city.

State District Judge Arthur Leshner Jr. heard testimony and oral arguments Monday from attorneys representing pro- and anti-city factions, said Richard Crowther Jr., an attorney representing the pro-city group known as "Save Our City."

After the city was abolished, supporters of the former government then filed suit, seeking to have the vote declared invalid over alleged irregularities.

Leshner said Monday he would consider evidence in the case before ruling, possibly on Tuesday.

Officials search for alien smuggler

EL PASO — A man accused of locking 19 undocumented aliens inside an airtight boxcar in which all but one suffocated has not been found, but authorities say they haven't given up.

"We're not discouraged about it," said James Selby, associate chief patrol agent for the Border Patrol's El Paso sector. "It's not unusual for us to search for months or a year or so."

Authorities are looking for a man known as "El Chapulin," or "The Grasshopper."

"As you can imagine, we've had leads from all over the country and Mexico," Selby said Monday. "I think he'll eventually pop up, but we don't have any idea where."

The 18 men suffocated in the foam-insulated car, which was left standing in the desert sun. They had been locked in the steel-walled compartment for 14 hours and temperatures climbed as high as 130 degrees.

Gramm readying bill for Rio Grande

WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm plans to introduce legislation calling for a cleanup of the Rio Grande, saying the Valley's source of drinking water is threatened by raw sewage being poured into the river.

"If eventually forced to abandon the Rio Grande, a city like Brownsville would have to reach more than 100 miles overland to find the nearest supply of clean water at enormous expense to the people of the Valley," Gramm said.

"Some border cities are routinely forced to take drinking water upstream from the major pollution points, but, increasingly, there simply is no escape from contamination," the Texas Republican said in a statement Monday.

His bill would authorize the U.S. secretary of state to negotiate with the Mexican Ministry of Foreign Relations a set of agreements to include a long-term examination of the river's water quality and the joint creation of water treatment facilities.

Foreigners own 39 percent of offices

HOUSTON — Foreign investors own 39 percent of the office buildings in downtown Houston, according to a study by a national real estate firm.

The Coldwell Banker and Co. study found that other American cities had comparable percentages of foreign office ownership, including 46 percent in Los Angeles and 21 percent in New York.

"The prominent skyscrapers (in Houston) are now owned mostly by West Germans and by Saudi Arabians and others from the Middle East," said Edward Cappel, downtown Houston manager for Coldwell Banker.

The study says foreign investors now own a small but significant share of the prime buildings in the United States. While Japanese investors apparently have not yet purchased any major shares of downtown Houston skyscrapers, the study says the Japanese will soon become a dominant force in the U.S. commercial real estate market.

Officials say pedophile not infected

DALLAS — Fears that an insurance salesman had spread the AIDS virus to dozens of children were laid to rest with a pathologist's findings that the man never was exposed to the fatal disease.

"The original test produced a false positive," said Dr. Charles Petty, the Dallas County medical examiner who did an autopsy on Jimmy Glenn Etheridge. "We have run every available test and have concluded Etheridge had not been exposed to the virus," he said Monday.

While the news was a relief to officials in the Central Texas town of Marlin, authorities said the investigation would continue.

After Etheridge, 37, was shot to death June 29, police searching his home found computer diskettes containing records of sexual contacts with young males. Snapshots of boys and pornographic magazines and videocassettes were found in Etheridge's home.

The first autopsy findings prompted authorities to investigate the scope of Etheridge's sexual contacts. At first, it was feared he had exposed up to 54 youths to the AIDS virus.

Dr. Charles Webb of Temple, regional director of public health for the Texas Health Department, said Monday's findings would not necessarily change the state's investigation.

"There are a certain number of children and young adults out there who were engaged in behavior that is very pathological," he said.

Probe of state S&Ls overdue

The FBI's unprecedented probe of the Texas savings and loan industry is necessary and overdue. The agency has seized the records of about 90 of the state's most prominent developers, S&L officials, their attorneys and accountants.

While there is good reason to worry that the federal net may be cast too widely and innocent people may be damaged, few would argue that the Texas S&L industry has been abused. The light of this investigation may be necessary to restore the system to health.

The Texas financial industry has been operating under an international cloud. Suspicion is widespread that it has been dominated by quick-buck artists and small-time thieves whose greed has helped damage the state and nearly wrecked the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Banks and savings and loans now pay a premium for their funds — because Texas has been red-lined by the rest of the nation's investors.

That fear is exaggerated, but not groundless. The Dallas Times Herald this past weekend disclosed examples of manipulations and schemes that contributed to the bankruptcy of some institutions, a depression in real estate values and a bad reputation for the state.

Federal officials estimate it will take as much as $6 billion to restore the Texas thrift industry to health, and acting FSLIC director Brian Newberger said half that damage is attributable to fraud, insider abuse and gross mismanagement.

Texas isn't likely to regain the trust of honest investors, developers and depositors until there is some assurance that the scoundrels have been rooted out and punished.

Only the FBI is in a position to conduct a thorough investigation. It should proceed with care and professionalism. If handled properly, the Texas financial community can only benefit.

Woman concerned about husband's alcohol abuse

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My whole married life I've struggled to put up with an alcoholic husband. At first I didn't realize he had this problem, but as the years have gone by it has gotten harder and harder to cope with.

All I do is cover for him, such as call his boss and say he is sick, etc. He refuses to admit he has a problem with alcohol even, and our families don't know; but I don't know where to turn. — Mrs. S.M.

DEAR MRS. S.M.: If you love your husband — and your letter assures me that you do — you want to do what is best for him. You cannot, therefore, stand idly by and allow him to destroy himself — which is what he is going to do in the long run if you continue to stand back and shield him from the consequences of his problem.

There is no shortcut, therefore; you must do whatever is necessary to get him to face up to his problem and seek the help he needs. As long as he can get by with his habit and escape any painful consequences, he probably will never admit he needs to change.

Therefore — although it will not be easy — you need to tell him that he has a problem, whether he admits it or not, and unless he gets help you will refuse to cover for him any longer.

Let him know that you are not acting out of anger, but because you love him and don't want him to destroy himself. Enlist the help of your pastor; don't be ashamed to reveal your problem to him, for he can help you and suggest treatment programs in your community.

In addition, pray for your husband. God wants to help him deal with his problems, and He will if your husband will realize his need of God's strength and turn in faith to Christ.

And let this be a time also when you realize your own need of Christ's help and turn to Him every day for strength and wisdom. "Cast your cares on the Lord and he will sustain you" (Psalm 55:22).

Lawmaker's private safaris and AIDS concern overlap

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, likes animals. He has the body parts of more than a dozen exotic African species scattered about his office and hanging on his walls.

A ghoulish-looking wart hog's head with protruding white tusks hangs over the door to his inner sanctum.

Fields, a conservative from the Houston suburb of Humble and a member of the Houston Safari Club, took his guns to southern Africa in the summer of 1985.

In remote areas of Zimbabwe, he bagged, among other species, a lion, a zebra, an elephant, a buffalo, a reedbeek, a kudu, an impala — and, of course, the wart hog whose Styrofoam-crammed cranium now has the honor of guarding the congressman's door.

When the stuffed parts arrived on Capitol Hill, some members of Fields's flabbergasted staff took to calling him "Bwana."

As a member of the House subcommittee on health and the environment, Fields is also deeply concerned about AIDS. He has warned his constituents about the dread disease, alerting them that, as he put it in one newsletter, "AIDS is a threat to the public at large," and not just "intravenous drug users and gay and bisexual men."

As it happens, Fields now wants to take another hunting trip to southern Africa, the continent on which the AIDS epidemic began and where it currently runs rampant. It is strictly a private trip for himself and a few friends, and it will be paid for with personal funds.

But it has occurred to Fields that hunters could have accidents requiring emergency treatment, including blood transfusions. So he contacted the State Department for help.

In a recent newsletter to his constituents about U.S.-Soviet relations, Fields had written: "I never cease to be amazed at how many wimps inhabit the State Department." His request for assistance, as reproduced in a State Department telex to its southern African embassies, also addressed, indirectly, the issue of fortitude.

He would soon be traveling "with a delegation" to southern Africa, Fields wrote, and the party would be doing "some hunting ... in fairly remote sections of Zimbabwe and Namibia." The congressman continued:

"Given the high incidence of AIDS in Africa and the potential for a hunter needing a blood transfusion, all of us in the delegation have been gravely concerned ... I understand there is a process for assisting Americans with a severe medical emergency.

"What I need from your office is a list of hospitals in Wankie, Bulawayo and Harare, all in Zimbabwe, and in Windhoek, Namibia. I would also require their exact locations, contact names and phone numbers for emergency use. It would also be helpful to know their hours of operation.

"Additionally, I understand our embassy in Zimbabwe, in cooperation with local military personnel, will provide a (military aircraft) for a medical emergency. I need to know precisely how to arrange this in advance. ...

Voodoo may be stress solution

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

The unrelieved August heat seems to make people irritable.

At times like this I wish I had a voodoo doll to stick pins in and wreak vengeance for annoying misdemeanors.

My doll would be generic, effective on any target. Or perhaps it would be like a Mister Potatohead, with interchangeable noses, moustaches and hats to represent a particular victim.

The pins wouldn't cause death or debilitating injury — just enough penalty to fit the crime.

The people in question would itch. Their cars would mysteriously refuse to start. They would forget speeches before crowds of spectators.

Their car horns would honk by themselves and continue to sound as they followed groups of Hell's Angels down the freeway.

At the top of the list of victims would be people who refuse to be quoted — but are willing to tell half the county the information they'll only tell reporters "off the record."

These people apparently watch too many melodramatic movies, in which anonymous informers provide valuable information that allows Our Hero to win in the end.

Around the rim

Other major offenders who will suffer if I ever find my voodoo doll are drivers of 18-wheelers who follow too closely and honk if one doesn't get out of their path quickly enough — only to spray mud and rocks behind as they pass by.

People who use two parking spaces in a crowded lot also would be on my hit list, along with those who park in handicapped spaces unauthorized.

And after a tough day at work, what could be more therapeutic than bringing out the ol' voodoo baby and tormenting the boss long-distance? That's even more fun

Art Buchwald

New status unimportant at reunions

By ART BUCHWALD (While on vacation Art Buchwald received limited immunity, and the special prosecutor has allowed him to reprint some of his favorite columns.)

News Item — Dr. Jack Sparacino, a psychologist, says the difference between people who attend school reunions and those who do not isn't based on the status they hold today, but the status they held while in school.

"Herman, darling, are you going to your high school's 30-year reunion?"

"Why should I? They'll only start calling me 'Inky Squid.'"

"Is that what they called you in school?"

"Yeah, except for George Hankoff. He called me 'Squishy Squid.'"

"But that was years ago. You now own the largest land development company in the United States."

"That won't cut any ice with Billy Mahler. He'll still step on my foot and say it was an accident."

"You know you're exaggerating. I'm sure they'd love to see you. After all, you're the chairman of the board of a Hollywood motion picture company, and you're probably the only one who married a movie star."

"Maybe so, but I'll bet you Audrey Zoeller still won't dance with me."

"Who is Audrey Zoeller?"

"She was our high school's leading pompadour girl. She used to stand on Jack Minderman's shoulders and yell 'DEEEEEEE-FENSE!' whenever the other team was threatening to score. One time I asked her to go to a prom with me and she said, 'I don't dance with Inky Squids.'"

"Maybe she'll change her tune when you arrive at the airport in your private Lear jet."

"Milton Stevens will just laugh and say, 'Who would have thought that stupid Inky, with his shirttail always out, would own his own airplane? It shows you what a mess this country is really in!'"

"You're making those things up, Herman. After all, I'm sure you are the only one in your class who has a university library named after him."

"Milton never forgave me for dropping a fly ball in the ninth inning to rob him of a no-hit game."

"I never knew you played baseball on the high school team."

"I didn't. It was a sandlot game in Hollis Woods, around the corner from where I lived."

"But now you own a national league baseball team. Milton will certainly be impressed with that."

"It won't give him back his no-hit ball game."

"Well, it's no big deal to me if you go or not. I won't know anybody anyway."

"You're lucky — you don't know what they're really like."

"Isn't there someone in the class that was nice?"

"Fern Haggerty never called me Squid."

"Well, you'll be glad to see her."

"Yeah, but she was built like the Goodyear blimp."

"Maybe Fern went to Weight Watchers. She may be a very beautiful woman now."

"If she is, she won't talk to me, and if she does, she'll probably call me Squid."

"So I take it you're not going to the reunion."

"Not if Arnie Krasner is there."

"All right, what was your relationship with Arnie Krasner?"

"He was my best friend until he told everyone in class I slept on a rubber sheet."

Today's highlight in history: Four hundred years ago, on Aug. 18, 1587, Virginia Dare became the first child of English parents to be born on American soil, on what is now Roanoke Island, N.C. A relief expedition four years later found none of the colonists.

On this date: In 1227, the Mongol conqueror Genghis Khan died.

LOS ANGELES — The U.S. Secret Service may file criminal charges against an AWOL soldier who flew a private plane too close to President Reagan's helicopter.

"We are investigating the incident and criminal charges are being considered" against Pvt. Ralph William Myers, Secret Service Agent Neil Goodman said Monday.

Goodman declined to elaborate on what charges might be brought against Myers, 32, who is being held indefinitely at the Long Beach Naval Station.

Criminal charges would be filed by the U.S. attorney's office, which also is considering civil charges that could include reckless flying and violating restricted airspace. Each charge carries a minimum $1,000 fine.

Handyman confesses

PHILADELPHIA — An unemployed handyman has confessed to strangling seven women whose decomposed bodies were found at his apartment house, police said.

Harrison "Marty" Graham, 28, said he lured the women to his north Philadelphia row house apartment with promises of drugs, authorities said.

"He made a confession," Detective Frank McGuirk said Monday. "He admitted to killing all seven."

Graham said he strangled all seven women with his hands while having sex with them, after consuming prescription stimulants, painkillers and alcohol, according to unidentified police sources quoted in today's editions of The Philadelphia Inquirer.

Manuscripts found

WASHINGTON — The FBI is examining another cache of rare Civil War documents allegedly stashed in a safe-deposit box by a writer accused of taking valuable letters from two government manuscript collections.

The trove of 191 documents, many believed to have been stolen from the National Archives, was found Monday during a search of the safe-deposit box rented under an assumed name by writer Charles Merrill Mount, the FBI said.

The search also turned up $18,400 in cash, a loaded handgun and 926 capsules of a drug tentatively identified by the FBI as a tranquilizer, the bureau said.

Also Monday, a Lancaster school bus driver reported that a "man in a light brown two-door 1967 Oldsmobile fired two shots at her vehicle as she drove the children home from school in the community 60 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

As death toll rises, girl survives

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — A computer warned Northwest Flight 255's pilots the jet was going too slowly just before it crashed, a newspaper reported, and a 4-year-old girl fought for life today as the sole survivor among as many as 162 people killed.

Investigators said they found no indication the pilots reported problems to the control tower, and The New York Times reported today that the crew had no indication of trouble until a computer voice declaring, "Stall! Stall!" told them they were flying too slowly. Government reports also surfaced of repeated engine malfunctions on that jet.

Authorities were reluctant to discuss a possible cause of Sunday night's crash, the nation's second-deadliest, but said preliminary work showed no evidence of failure of either of the two engines on the plane, a McDonnell Douglas MD-80.

Cecilia Cichan, who was in critical condition today with third-degree burns over 29 percent of her body, was identified as a passenger on Flight 255 by her grandfather, who recognized her chipped tooth and purple nail polish, officials said.

"Her mother shielded her, and that is what saved her," said the grandfather, Anthony Cichan of Maple Glen, Pa.

The girl's parents and 6-year-old brother were killed in the crash just after takeoff from Detroit Metropolitan Airport on a flight to Phoenix, Ariz., and suburban Los Angeles.

Authorities have yet to establish an official death count in the crash in clear weather.

John Lauber, a National Transportation Safety Board member, said 152 people aboard the plane died. Northwest spokesman Kevin Whalen said 155 people might have been aboard, and at least 154 people died.

"The infant count is going up," he said. Infants generally are not ticketed on commercial airline flights if they are carried by adults.

Wayne County officials reported that two people died on the ground: Late Monday, County Medical Examiner Werner Spitz said five or six bodies were pulled from three vehicles destroyed when the plane smashed into them or showered them with blazing fuel and debris.

Spitz said the bodies were too charred to determine the number, and it wasn't immediately clear whether he included the two earlier ground fatalities.

Calls to his home early today were not answered, and the temporary morgue set up in a hangar a short distance from the crash site was closed.

Her parents and brother perished in the crash.

At least six people who had been on the ground were treated at hospitals for injuries in the crash.

Northwest Airlines on Monday began bringing family members here to help identify victims, but an official passenger list wasn't released.

A team of 100 investigators, including experts from the federal government and the companies that made the plane and engines, walked the flight path and examined the remains of the jet's two Pratt & Whitney JT8D-217 engines.

Federal Aviation Administration records showed that the plane had engine failures on takeoff twice in 1986 and once in 1985. As recently as January 1987, the plane was forced to return to the airport in Memphis, Tenn., after takeoff because of low oil pressure, said Bobby Mardis of the FAA's Aeronautics Center in Oklahoma City.

The aircraft landed safely in Minneapolis on Jan. 6, 1986, after flying 18 minutes on only its right engine, according to FAA records cited by WCCO-TV in Minneapolis and The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer. Republic Airlines, which merged with Northwest last year, discovered defective T-3 turbine blades, the report said.

Northwest spokesman Redmond Tyler called that report misleading, saying the problem engine was replaced.

Investigators found no indication the plane reported problems to the control tower, he added.

By Associated Press Attack kills lawmaker

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Attackers hurled hand grenades at the president today, but he escaped the assassination attempt. The assault inside Parliament killed one legislator and wounded four Cabinet ministers and nine lawmakers.

President Junius R. Jayewardene blamed Sinhalese terrorists for the attack, which came just before the governing party was to discuss a new Tamil peace plan.

Witnesses said the wounded legislators were rushed to two Colombo hospitals.

One of the grenades exploded 30 feet from Jayewardene, but he was not injured, witnesses said.

One or more attackers threw the grenades at Jayewardene through an open door of a conference room where he was chairing a meeting, witnesses said. The attackers slipped away in the ensuing confusion.

40,000 workers march

SEOUL, South Korea — About 300 striking miners hurled rocks at police in southwestern Daechon today, and more than 40,000 workers marched near the nation's largest shipyard in southeastern Ulsan, police said.

News reports said at least 21 people were injured when the miners clashed with police in Daechon.

In Seoul, President Chun Doo-hwan called for an end to nearly four weeks of widespread labor unrest in South Korea. Chun, after meeting with members of his Cabinet, urged labor and management negotiate to avoid further damage to South Korea's export-driven economy.

Although no precise figures were available, more than 300 companies remained affected by strikes today.

67 dead from typhoon

MANILA, Philippines — Typhoon Cary slashed the northern Philippines early Tuesday with winds up to 87 mph. Storm warnings were issued from Manila northward over most of Luzon, the country's main island.

The storm hit as authorities upped to 67 the death toll from a typhoon that struck the islands last week.

Cary plowed ashore at 5 a.m. near Casiguran, 135 miles northeast of Manila, said Jun de la Chica of the government weather service.

Injured diplomat dies

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — A Saudi Arabian diplomat has died at a Tehran hospital of injuries suffered in a mob attack on the Saudi Embassy, the government announced today.

A Foreign Ministry statement said that political attache Mousaad al-Ghamdi died Monday night "as a result of injuries inflicted upon him during the vile aggression on the (Saudi) embassy by demagogic elements in Tehran."

It also blamed "the inhuman attitude" of Iranian authorities, who it said prevented him from being flown to a Saudi hospital.

American hostage in Lebanon escapes captors

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. journalist Charles Glass, who was kidnapped in West Beirut two months ago, escaped before dawn Tuesday while his captors were asleep and was "safe in Syrian hands," police said.

A barefoot, bearded Glass walked into the seaside Summerland Hotel in West Beirut at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday (7:30 p.m. EDT Monday), and told the hotel receptionist, "I am Charlie Glass. I need a place to hide," a police spokesman said.

Glass, 37, was pronounced fit by a doctor who examined him while awaiting Syrian troops to take him to Damascus.

The police spokesman said Glass told the receptionist that he escaped through the window of a 10th floor room where he was being held.

"My captors were asleep. I slipped through the window and climbed down the staircase to freedom," the spokesman quoted Glass as telling the receptionist.

Glass, who was clad in a blue track suit, also told the receptionist: "I want a force to protect me," said the police spokesman, who cannot be identified under standing regulations.

The receptionist, whose name was withheld, called in Syrian troops, who arrived an hour later in a truck, a Jeep and a sedan, the spokesman said.

Three Syrian officers walked into the hotel as their troops took up positions at the entrances. They talked to Glass through an interpreter and then took him away, the police spokesman said.

He probably was on his way to Syria by a land route, a journey that usually takes four hours, the spokesman said.

Glass is the second U.S. journalist and the fifth foreigner to escape from captivity in Lebanon.

American Jeremy Levin, 55, Beirut bureau chief of Cable News

Network who was kidnapped

March 7, 1984, escaped his captors in east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley 11 months later. Two other British journalists and a free-lance French photographer also said they escaped their captors in Lebanon.

In California, the journalist's father called his son's escape "wonderful news."

Last of Hitler's inner circle, Hess dies

Rudolph Hess stands without a hat as he greets Adolph Hitler at a Nazi Congress in Nuremberg, West Germany. Hess, the 93-year-old former Nazi deputy fuehrer who was serving a life prison term in Spandau prison, died Monday, the family lawyer said.

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, the last imprisoned member of Adolf Hitler's inner circle, will be buried in a remote Bavarian village, and the jail he occupied alone for 21 years will be destroyed to prevent rallies by Nazi sympathizers, Allied authorities said.

A West German radio station reported that Hess was to be buried secretly today, with only a few family members present. It was not possible to immediately confirm the report, and an Allied official said this morning that the body was still in Berlin.

Officials at several state police agencies said the Bonn Interior Ministry had issued a warning to be on guard for possible right-wing violence by admirers of Hess, who died Monday at the age of 93.

Hess rose to power at the side of Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler, eventually becoming deputy fuehrer of the Third Reich.

He was said to have been responsible for the Nazis' "Lebensraum" (living space) ideology, the idea that Germany needed more territory for all Germans. However, he was less powerful than other Hitler lieutenants.

The gaunt, stoop-shouldered Hess never renounced Hitler or the Holocaust. His cause of death was not given.

West Germany's ZDF television network predicted news of Hess' death would bring a "certain relief" to many elderly Germans.

Allied authorities said Spandau prison, the Allied penitentiary where Hess was sent after being convicted of war crimes at the Nuremberg trials, would be demolished to make way for a British military shopping center. They did not say when it would be turned down.

Hessischer Rundfunk radio, without citing sources, said the burial was to be held near Munich as soon as possible, in an effort to prevent demonstrations by extremists.

Hess is survived by his 87-year-old wife, Ilse, and his son, Munich businessman Wolf-Ruediger.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1946 and sent to Spandau.

Hess was kept largely cut off from the outside world throughout the years, and allowed only one visit a month from a family member.

Toward the end of his life, Hess had lung, heart and stomach ailments. He was nearly blind, increasingly depressed and attempted suicide three times while in prison. He was hospitalized in March for 16 days after developing bronchitis.

The United States, Britain and France repeatedly asked that Hess be freed on humanitarian grounds, but the Soviet Union — the fourth Ally administering Spandau — refused.

Hess had been in prison since 1941, when he parachuted into Scotland in a self-proclaimed bid to end World War II.

Six other Nazi leaders also served time at Spandau, designed to hold up to 600 inmates, but by 1966 Hess was the only prisoner left.

Pan Am officials differ on drug testing

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Pan Am officials said they would try to clarify the question of exactly who is tested for drugs at the games following a dispute that arose with the announcement of six banned athletes.

Mario Vazquez Rana, president of the Pan American Sports Organization, said Monday that all medalists were being tested. But Dr. Eduardo De Rose, acting president of PASO's medical commission, repeated earlier statements that all medalists were not being tested.

Under PASO's announced testing policy, all medal winners plus one athlete selected at random in each sport are to be tested, but De Rose said the actual policy varies by sport.

Pressed to explain the confusion, Vazquez Rana insisted: "It is impossible for any medalist not to be tested."

He said he planned to meet with De Rose to get a clarification of the policy.

De Rose cited swimming and shooting as examples of sports where testing varies. The international federations in those sports determine who is tested and who is not, he said.

However, Bernardo Ocampo, a Venezuela shooter, was one of the six athletes disqualified Monday for using banned substances. Ocampo, who won a silver and a bronze medal, was accused of using beta blockers, drugs which lower the heart beat and steady a shooter's aim.

At the 1983 Pan Am Games in Caracas, Venezuela, 19 athletes from 10 nations were disciplined after testing positive for banned substances. Eleven athletes from six nations were stripped of medals.

Eight competitors in weightlifting were stripped of their 1983 medals for use of banned steroids.

De Rose said Monday that all medalists and one competitor chosen at random were tested in each weightlifting class and every track and field event.

However, last week at the track and field competition, heptathlon gold medalist Cindy Greiner said she was not tested. Dr. Richard Thomas, the Canadian team physician, said no heptathletes were tested.

Weightlifting and track and field, along with cycling, were targeted for more testing than other sports because the three sports have histories of drug abuse, De Rose said.

De Rose said medical officials intend to administer tests to 1,070 competitors in the 16-day competition.

Based on past experience at other international events, he estimated that 1.5 percent to 2 percent would test positive.

Vazquez and De Rose defended the integrity of the testing program, which was criticized after a series of problems was reported during the screening of marathoners on the first day of competition.

Dr. Ronald Blankenbaker, co-chairman of medical services for the games' local organizing committee, called the first-day experience "a comedy of errors." He said the problems, which included no fluids for the athletes to drink and inadequate facilities for taking samples, were quickly remedied.

Cubans get best of Americans in ring

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Cuban boxers swept three matches from Americans, including a first-round knockout of world champion Darin Allen by Angel Espinosa.

Espinosa, the world champion at 156 pounds, knocked Allen cold with a devastating right hand midway through the first round at 165 pounds. It was the second time in eight months Espinosa has won against the American.

Lofton.

"I was a little concerned," said Cuban Coach Fidencio Escalona. "The Americans have very strong fencers. What changed was our tactics because we were concentrating more on defense than offense. We decided to change it around and start attacking instead of being defensive."

The other Cuban victories came at 112 pounds, where Adalberto Regalado won a disputed 3-2 decision over Arthur Johnson, and at 132 pounds, where Julio Gonzalez scored a 5-0 decision over Patrick Byrd.

SOFTBALL

Michele Granger threw her second one-hitter as the United States defeated Canada 1-0. The U.S. women, 7-0, did not give up a run in the round-robin competition.

Granger, a 17-year-old left-hander from Placentia, Calif., struck out 15 and had a no-hitter until Tracey Hucklak singled off Granger's glove with two out in the final inning. The same thing happened in her earlier one-hitter.

The U.S. men won, too, beating Canada 7-4 in 11 innings. The game was played under an International Softball Federation tiebreaker rule whereby teams begin each extra inning with a runner on second.

"We don't want to kill the American fighters, we just want to win," Regalado said.

VOLLEYBALL

The United States defeated Argentina 15-5, 15-8, 15-11 as Karch Kiraly, the 1986 player of the year, made his first start of the games for the Americans. He had played only sparingly earlier because of a broken bone in his left hand.

Cuba boosted its record to 4-0 with a marathon 15-2, 15-12, 11-15, 15-13 victory over Brazil, which earlier beat the world champion Americans.

Welterweight Kenneth Gould was the only American fighter to win Monday night, a 5-0 decision over Osvaldo Checao of Panama.

"It's two down and two to go," said Gould, who advanced to the semifinals. "That's what I'm out for — the gold."

Cuba is 12-1 after sweeping the Americans. The United States is 9-3.

CONTOVERSY

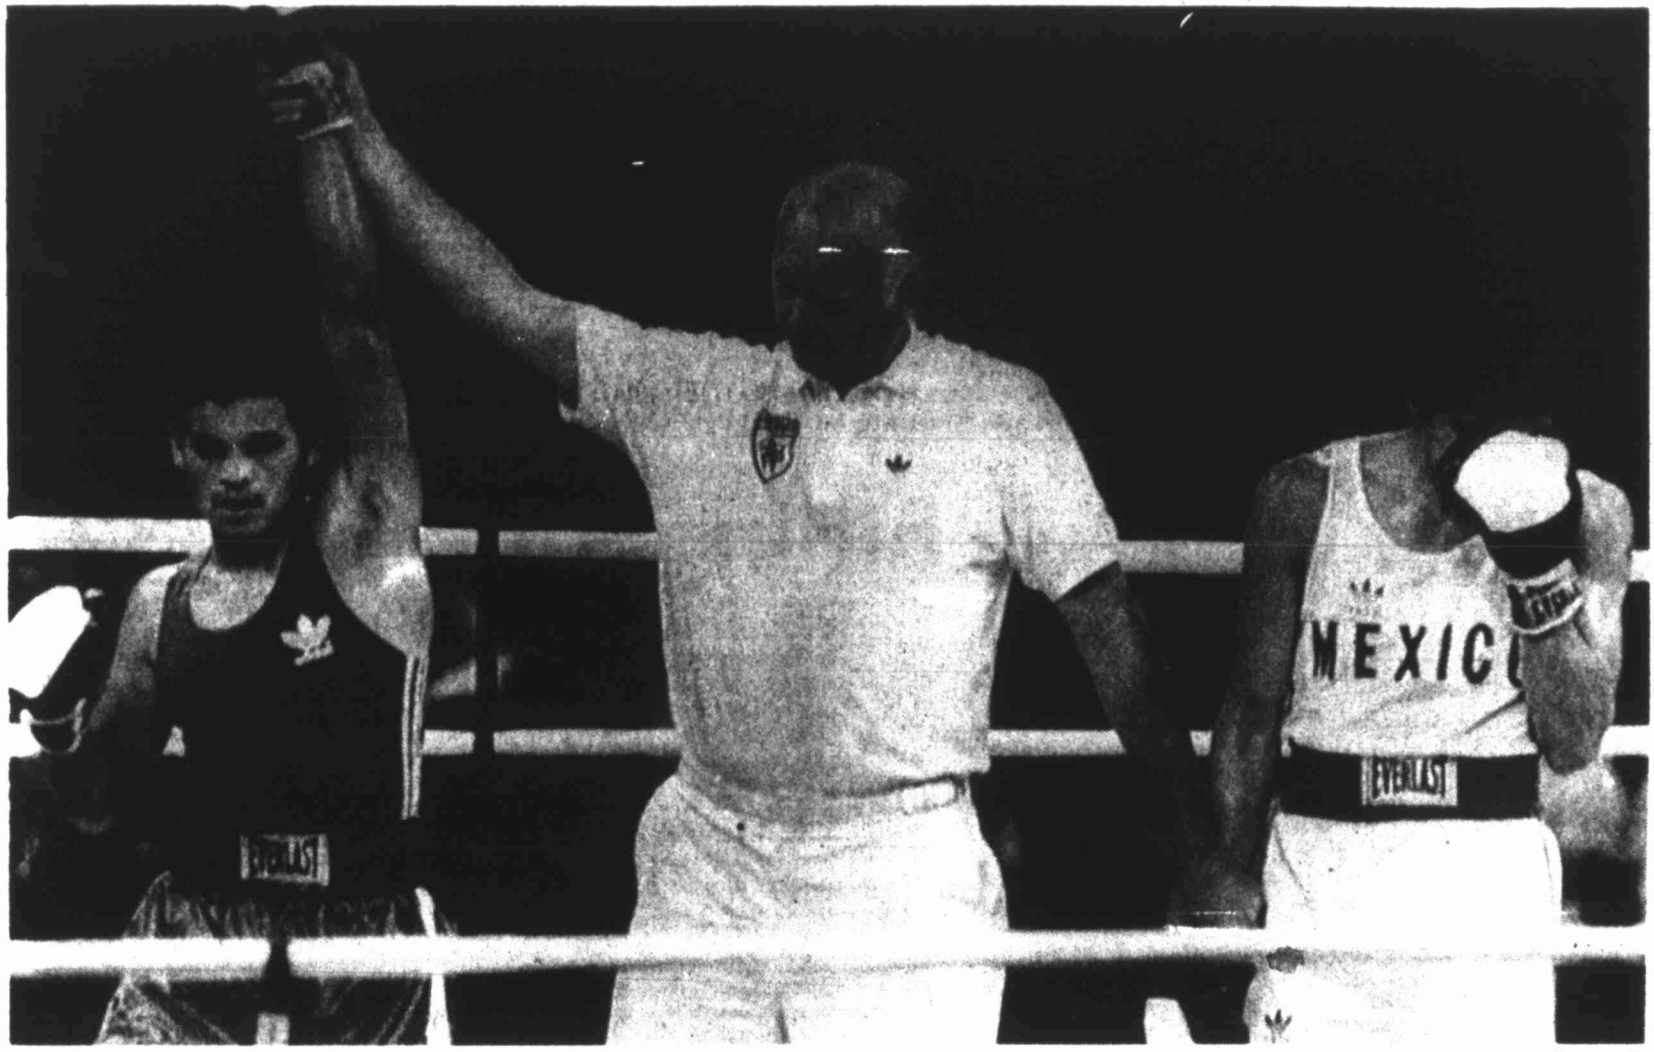

The Cuban delegation asked for tighter security for its athletes following confrontations with anti-Castro protesters.

"We simply wish that our athletes be treated as the athletes of other countries are treated," said Manuel Guerra, president of the Cuban Olympic Committee.

FENCING

For the fifth straight time in Pan Am competition, Cuba defeated the United States in team sabre. The United States jumped to a 5-2 lead, but the Cubans came back to win 9-7.

The Americans trailed 8-7, but Jesus Ortiz clinched the Cuban win with a 5-3 victory over Michael

Bodybuilder in a class by himself

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

HOUSTON — Torrinn Caffrey has added a new dimension to the sport of bodybuilding.

In just two years, the 29-year-old New Orleans native has burst onto the bodybuilding scene and is now becoming one of the most talked about competitors in the sport.

He has a style all his own, and it's a style a lot of bodybuilders

In contrast to most bodybuilders that just flex and strike-a-pose, Caffrey combines upbeat music and dance to go along with his routine.

It's nothing unusual to see him give a pulsating performance to golden hits by Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Chuck Berry or Little Richard. And when he finishes the crowd is usually moving to the beat and clapping.

Torrinn Caffrey, a 29-year-old bodybuilder from Houston, will be one of the guest posers at the Spring City Bodybuilding Championships in Big Spring this weekend. Caffrey recently won the Houston Cup.

years. At that time, he was 6-5 and weighed 180 pounds.

"I had just gotten out of the service and I was repositioned back in Houston. I didn't lift CLASS page 2B will be trying to portray in the near future.

Caffrey will give West Texans a taste of his unique style when he guest poses at the Spring City Bodybuilding Level II Championships Saturday, August 22 at the Big Spring High School Auditorium.

Caffrey, a Level I competitor himself, is coming off a win at the Houston Cup two weeks ago. He was third at the Galveston bodybuilding championships previous to that.

As one spectator at the Houston Cup commented, "It was his style that won it for him."

"I don't just pose for the people, I entertain them," said Caffrey. "I love entertaining. When I see the people jumping, clapping and singing, what can be more important than that?"

"That's why I don't get mad if I don't win the contest. As long as I put on a good show for the people I'm happy."

Caffrey says he's gotten good response from his new style.

"The people have been eating it up. I think I'm really bringing something to Texas bodybuilding. After the show people want my autograph and they tell me how much they enjoyed my performance."

One would think that a muscular 6-5, 245-pounder wouldn't have enough grace to be so light on his feet. But Caffrey has the grace of a cat. He credits a lot of that to his background.

"As I grew up I was always into dance, band and theatre. This is where my talents were developed. I just combined those talents with bodybuilding."

Oddly enough, Caffrey has only been in the sport of bodybuilding two-and-half

Rangers' pitcher may return soon

ARLINGTON (AP) — Rangers reliever Dale Mohorcic's intestinal bleeding has stopped and he could return to Texas from a Milwaukee hospital Wednesday if his condition remains stable, doctors said.

Mohorcic has been moved from the intensive care unit of Milwaukee's Mount Sinai Hospital, but doctors say the cause of his disorder remains a mystery.

"No serious source of bleeding has been found," said Rangers team physician Mike Mycoskie after conferring Monday with Milwaukee doctors.

Mohorcic's blood count has also increased to normal after receiving several units of blood. Gastro-intestinal specialist Dr. David Langdon said Mohorcic could return to the Dallas area Wednesday.

Mohorcic was hospitalized in Milwaukee last week.

Phoenix center killed in air crash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Nick Vanos, a third-year center for the NBA's Phoenix Suns, died along with his fiancée in the crash of Northwest Airlines flight 255, family members say.

Vanos, 24, and 25-year-old Carolyn Cohen had flown to Michigan so Vanos could meet her parents, according to her sister.

The sister, Susan Orth, of Mesa, said Monday that her sister started dating Vanos six months ago, after Ms. Cohen's first marriage ended in divorce.

Ms. Orth said Vanos wanted to meet his fiancée's parents after she had met his parents a couple of weeks earlier in California.

Oilers and number one draft pick miles apart

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers and first round draft pick Alonzo Highsmith are about $1 million apart on reaching a contract agreement, Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog says.

Highsmith and his agent, Robert Fraley, are seeking a 4-year package that includes a $1.4 signing bonus and $1.6 million in salary, Herzog said Monday.

Fraley said Herzog's figures were outdated.

"We did ask for the $3 million deal, but that was in June," Fraley said. "On Sunday, though, we made a new proposal with a present value of $2.82 million with no incentive bonuses."

Regardless of which proposal is on the table, the two sides are between $800,000 and $1 million apart.

Herzog said the Oilers are offering a 4-year deal worth $2 million that includes an $800,000 signing bonus.

Herzog believes Highsmith's contract should be in the range of Green Bay running back Brent Fullwood, who signed a 3-year deal worth $1.476 million.

"We want to be fair, and I think we've bent over backward, but we're not going to be ridiculous," Herzog said.

Oiler starting left tackle Bruce Matthews also remains a holdout. Matthews is represented by Howard Slusher, who also held his client out of camp four years ago when Matthews was the Oilers' No. 1 draft pick.

Astros beat up on Braves

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Hatcher and the scuffed ball controversy heated up as the Houston Astros completed a four-game sweep of Atlanta, prompting Braves Manager Chuck Tanner to say his team's playoff hopes may have ended.

Hatcher, the Astros left fielder, had four hits, including his 10th homer, and scored three runs to lead the Astros an 11-2 victory over the Braves in the only National League game Monday night.

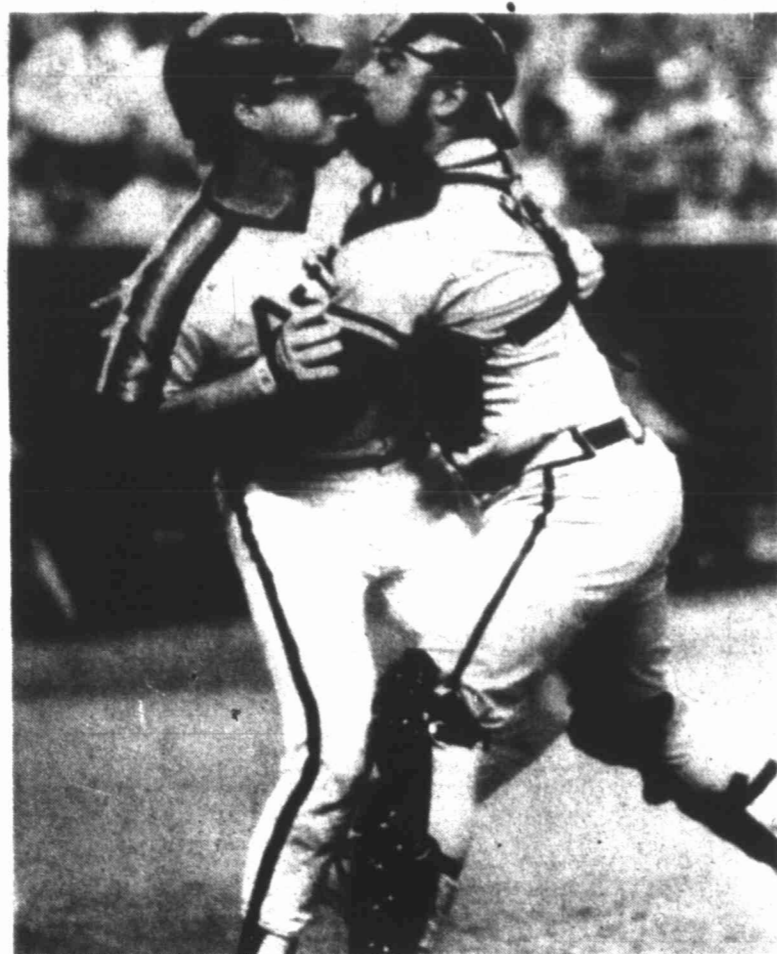

"They sure pounded our heads in," Tanner said after the Astros outscored the Braves 33-8 in the four-game series. "This probably knocked us out of it."

The scuffed ball controversy began when both benches cleared after Rick Mahler, pitching in a rare relief role, hit batters Kevin Bass and Glenn Davis to start the Houston sixth inning.

The pitch to Davis was a fastball up and in that hit him in the neck. "I was not throwing at him," Mahler said. "I'd never try to hit anyone in the head. The pitch just got away because it was one of the scuffed balls (Astros pitcher Mike) Scott had used the inning before."

In the top of the sixth, the Braves asked home plate umpire Bob Davidson to check Astros starting pitcher Scott's baseball.

"It was definitely the same ball Scott had used," Atlanta catcher Ozzie Virgil said. "It was scuffed."

Houston Astros batter Glen Davis is held back by Atlanta Braves catcher Ozzie Virgil after Davis was hit by a Rick Mahler pitch in the sixth inning.

Tanner added, "I think he was scuffing it, at least early on, but he's an excellent pitcher and he had to do what he had to do."

Scott, who defeated the Braves for only the third time in 13 previous decisions, ran his record to 13-9 with a six-hit, 10-strikeout performance over eight innings. He last defeated the Braves on April 29, 1984.

"I don't care what they say," Scott said. "I have no control over it and it doesn't bother me."

Hatcher was 11-for-17 with six RBI and eight runs scored in the four-game series. He raised his average to .311.

"Look at the numbers we had when Billy was on the disabled list and look now that he's back," Bill Doran said. "You just can't replace him."

The Astros jumped on Braves pitcher Tom Glavine, making his first major-league start, for two runs each in the first, third and fourth innings to take a 6-0 lead.

Eight Astros batted in each of the innings and they left the bases loaded all three times. In all, Houston left 14 men on, collected 16 hits and had eight walks. Bass and Davis had two RBI each and Doran collected three hits.

"All of a sudden, we've hit a good notch and we have to sustain it," Doran said. "We've still got ground to make up and we can't afford to sputter."

Remembering the fort

By H. BOYCE HALE

On a recent visit to an old West Texas fort, I sat under a large live oak tree and let my thoughts drift back in time.

I could hear the booming voice of the drill sergeant, and the clippity-clop of the horses as they went through the formations.

I envisioned "Buffalo Soldiers" going through their paces as I sat there at Fort McKavett.

In response to the pressure of westward expansion, the U.S. Army replaced the line of military posts established in 1849 with a new line of posts farther west.

Stretching from the Rio Grande to the Red River, the new line included Fort McKavett.

Located on a hill overlooking the San Saba River, five companies of the Eighth Infantry under the command of Col. Thomas Staniford arrived and camped at the San Saba on March 14, 1852.

By October of that year the post officially was named Fort McKavett in honor of Capt. Henry McKavett, Eighth Infantry, who had been killed in the Battle of Monterrey during the war with Mexico.

Native limestone, oak and pecan trees provided basic building materials. And because of rich soil along the river, large gardens were cultivated.

To the delight of hunters, there were deer, turkey and bear to supplement the routine army diet of beans and salt pork.

When Col. J.K.F. Mansfield inspected the fort in 1856, substantial construction had been completed. He reported that quarters for the troops were in order, and added that the fort was an important post in the chain and should be maintained.

But a decline in Indian activity in the area and a corresponding increase along the frontier to the north led to the sudden abandonment of Fort McKavett in the spring of 1859.

During the Civil War, Indian raids increased. After the federal reconquest of Texas, public outcries for frontier protection were ignored until 1867.

It was not until March 30, 1868 that Fort McKavett was reestablished by a detachment of the Fourth Cavalry under the command of Capt. Eugene B. Beaumont.

Beaumont found the fort in shambles and began reconstruction immediately. Soon the Fourth was replaced by black troops of the 38th Infantry.

Four regiments of black troops, called "Buffalo Soldiers" by the Indians, served the area for the next 15 years, protecting the civilians along the western frontier.

During this post-war period, Col. Abner Doubleday served at the fort. Doubleday is credited with the invention of "America's game" — baseball. Although not documented, he probably had the soldiers playing the game on or near the level parade ground.

During the 1870s, Fort McKavett's importance waned along with the decline in Indian troubles. In the early 1880s, rumors circulated that the fort was to be closed.

In the fall of 1882, the main body of troops departed for reassignment, leaving a small detachment to dispose of the government property.

On June 30, 1883, Company D, 16th Infantry, completed its duties and it, too, marched away.

The fort remained unused except for squatters who occupied the buildings from time to time. Some of the structures deteriorated and their roofs fell — others burned.

Because of the efforts of a few interested people, Fort McKavett was designated a State Historic Site on May 17, 1968. Today, the site consists of 14 restored buildings that include officers' quarters, barracks, a hospital, a school house, a bakery and post headquarters.

The site is open to the public each day during the daylight hours and visitors are welcome to roam about the fort on provided trails. Souvenir taking is prohibited.

By traveling south from San Angelo on U.S. 277 to Eldorado, then 34 miles east on U.S. 190 east, visitors will come to FM-864. The entrance to the fort is several miles south on FM-864.

A parking area, picnic tables and rest rooms are provided. There is no entry fee.

Any visit to Fort McKavett should include a stop at the only store — The Trading Post. A step through the front door is a step back 100 years. In your mind, you become a part of history until your ears detect that unmistakable sound in the back room — a television set.

Molitor extends hitting streak to 32

CLEVELAND (AP) — Paul Molitor said that having the longest hitting streak of the 1980s might be worth remembering someday if it holds up for the next three years.

Molitor's third-inning bunt single was his only hit in three official at-bats Monday night in the Milwaukee Brewers' 5-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The hit since 1949 when Dom Dimaggio hit in 34 straight for Boston, dropped a perfect bunt toward third base and easily beat pitcher Scott Bailes' throw to first. It was Molitor's first bunt hit during the streak.

Molitor walked leading off the game and later scored when Indians center fielder Joe Carter dropped a fly ball. The Brewers scored three runs in the sixth off Bailes, 6-5, on RBI singles by Dale Sveum and Ernest Riles and a throwing error by right fielder Cory Snyder.

Twins 4, Mariners 2
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Brunansky hit a two-run homer to cap a three-run first inning, leading the Minnesota Twins to a 4-2 victory over Seattle and a sweep of the four-game series over the Mariners.

Les Straker, 6-7, allowed five hits in 6 1-3 innings for his first victory since July 9. Reliever Jeff Reardon got the last four outs for his 24th save.

Minnesota's victory was its ninth in 11 games, all during the homestand that ended Monday, and gave the Twins a 42-18 home record, best in the majors.

Mark Langston, 13-10, had his personal three-game winning streak snapped although he struck out seven to increase his major league-leading total to 195.

White Sox 2, Red Sox 1
CHICAGO (AP) — Dave LaPoint pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and Greg Walker and Ron Hassey each drove in a run, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

LaPoint, 2-0 since being acquired from St. Louis July 30, took a four-hit shutout into the seventh when Dwight Evans singled, went to second on a double by Mike Greenwell, and scored on Todd Benzing's groundout. Bobby Thigpen pitched the final two innings for his sixth save.

Royals 7, Rangers 6
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Pinch-hitter Thad Bosley's run-scoring single with two outs in the ninth inning rallied the Kansas City Royals to a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Trailing 6-5, the Royals tied the score off reliever Jeff Russell, 4-3, after there were two outs and nobody on. Consecutive doubles by Danny Tartabull and Frank White, who went 4-for-4, tied the score before Bosley, batting for Bo Jackson, who struck out four times, singled off reliever Steve Howe's first pitch to score White with the winning run.

John Davis, 2-0, pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for the victory.

Texas, which led 4-0 after five innings, got homers from Larry Parrish and Mike Stanley. Danny Tartabull homered for the Royals.

Angels 6, Athletics 4
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Devon White hit a grand slam in the seventh inning, lifting the California Angels to a 6-4 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

White's homer off reliever Dave Leiper, 2-1, upstaged Reggie Jackson, who, in what could be his final Anaheim Stadium appearance, had given the A's a 4-2 lead with a two-run homer in the top of the seventh.

extended his streak to 32 games, breaking a tie with Ken Landreaux, then of Minnesota, for the longest streak of the 1980s.

For use with issue: Keeping the Constitution Safe

Main idea: This issue talks about where the Constitution is today. The following is a list of activities to be used with this issue. They are listed in order of difficulty, with the easier pre-reader assignments listed first. Ask the children to do the following:

1. Pretend you are a guard at the National Archives. Draw a picture of yourself guarding the Constitution. How would you feel about having this important job?
2. What are the Charters of Freedom? Why are they so important to our country? How do you think the signers of the Constitution would feel about the way the Charters of Freedom are kept today? Have you ever visited the National Archives? If so, what did you see?
3. Underline all the places where the Constitution and Declaration of Independence have been stored. Find each place on a U.S. map. Where are they kept today?
4. Write a pretend letter to the signers of the Constitution telling them about the Constitution today and why it is so important to our country.
5. Answer the following questions:
 - a. Where were the Declaration and Constitution kept during World War II?
 - b. What are the pages of the Constitution made of?
 - c. How many pages are in the Constitution? How many in the Declaration of Independence?
6. Find the following words: parchment, archives, display, vault, analyze, exhibit, tinted. Define and make up a new sentence for each one.

Where Have We Kept the Constitution?

The display case at the National Archives for the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. These are called the Charters of Freedom. Two guards are on duty to protect them at all times.

After the Constitution was signed in 1787, the secretary of the convention, William Jackson, carried it to New York. He delivered it to the Continental Congress that was meeting there.

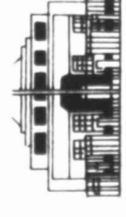

In 1790, it was turned over to the State Department for safekeeping.

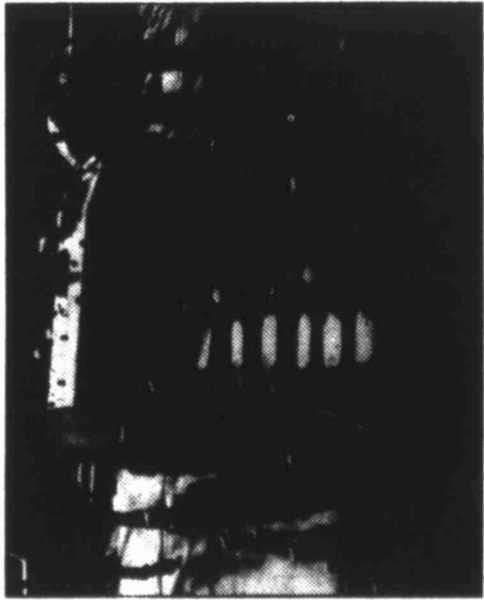

The Constitution is not nearly as faded as the Declaration of Independence. It has received better care over the years. One reason is the number of pages. The Declaration of Independence has only one page and is easier to display than the Constitution, which has four.

In 1814, we were at war with the British and their troops were headed to Washington. State Department clerks placed the Constitution and the Declaration in linen bags and carted them by wagon to safety outside the city.

In 1941, during World War II, the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence were moved to Fort Knox, Ky. They were returned to the Library of Congress in 1944.

In 1952, the Constitution and Declaration of Independence were moved to the National Archives. They were placed on mattresses and carried in an armored troop carrier. They had been on display at the Library of Congress.

Kenneth E. Harris, director of preservation, cleans the glass of one of the cases holding a page of the Constitution. The pages are never removed from the cases.

The National Archives has a new camera that will photograph the Constitution while it is still in its glass cases. A computer will analyze the photographs and compare them with photos taken earlier. In this way, experts can discover any damage they might not see with the naked eye.

The Building

The original Constitution is kept in the National Archives in Washington, D.C. An archive is a place where records are stored. This building has 72 columns and the largest brass doors in the world.

The Pages

The first page of the Constitution begins with the words "We the People." There are four pages. Pages 1 through 4 contain the preamble and text. The signatures are on page 4. There is also a fifth page. It is a resolution from the convention sending the Constitution to the Congress.

This is the 19th in a monthly series about the Constitution.

The Exhibit Hall

The Constitution is displayed in a big marble exhibit hall shaped like a half-circle. Marble steps lead up to the display case. A huge painting hangs on either side. Visitors are quiet when they enter the darkened hall. No flash photographs are allowed.

The Display Cases

Information about the Declaration and the Constitution

Two pages of the Constitution, 1 and 4, are usually displayed in cases alongside the Bill of Rights. The Declaration of Independence hangs above. The pages are of parchment or animal skin. They are in separate airtight cases filled with helium gas. Special protective glass helps keep them from fading.

The Vault

Every night and in emergencies, the cases are lowered to a 55-ton concrete and steel vault 22 feet below the display. The mechanical jack that raises and lowers the cases is operated by electricity with back-up batteries.

Dear Abby

Gigglers met with many frowns

DEAR ABBY: Last week my closest friend and I decided to take a day off just to have fun. We are both married women in our 30s and hold responsible jobs. We are not crazy, and we're not on drugs or alcohol — we just love to laugh.

We drove to Solvang, a small Danish community, for a day of sightseeing and relaxation. While browsing through one of the many shops, we came upon a lamp. It can't describe it, but it was the ugliest thing either of us had ever seen. We started to giggle, then laugh, then roared at the thought of anyone spending $850 for that monstrosity! We hastily left the shop lest we offend the owner, and collapsed on a bench outside. We were both in one of those moods when everything was hilarious, and we spent the entire day in stitches.

Passers-by made comments, indicating that they thought we were either drunk or high on drugs. A waitress in one restaurant said she couldn't serve us "anything more" to drink! Of course, this made us laugh all the harder.

Abby, when did it become a crime to laugh heartily? We were not obnoxious — just a little noisy perhaps. We left every store when we felt the urge to break up, and by the time we got outside tears were running down our faces. But, so what? Laughter is good for the soul.

This is probably too long for your column, but it's important to remind people that it's OK to laugh. So if you see someone laughing loudly (even hysterically), don't condemn him — join him.

Somehow I think you will understand, Abby. And yes, you may use my name.

CATHLEEN KALBREIER, WESTMINSTER, CALIF.

DEAR CATHLEEN: You bet I understand. A friend with whom you can enjoy a hearty laugh is a treasure. Cherish that person and unleash your laughter to the max. And if others misread your natural exhilaration, it's their problem.

DEAR ABBY: I see by your column that bowed legs can be corrected by surgery. They've certainly come a long way in modern medicine, haven't they?

I also heard that it's possible for very tall people to reduce their height by having four inches of bone surgically removed from their legs. But then their arms would hang down to their knees. Wouldn't that look worse than being four inches too tall?

G.B. IN L.A.

DEAR G.B.: No ethical orthopedic surgeon would undertake to surgically remove bone from the leg for cosmetic reasons only. Somebody must have been pulling yours.

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to "Hurting in Brooklyn," who had given her mother a jewelry box and was angry with her for giving it to one of her grandchildren. You said, "Once a gift is given, it is the property of the recipient to do with as he/she pleases." I agree with you 100 percent.

I would like to add that once a gift is given it should never be mentioned by the giver again, as in, "How come I never see you wearing the sweater I gave you? Was it the wrong size?"

The answer may be, "No. I just didn't like it, so I sold it at the flea market."

MICHAEL TYLER SARLOW, FORT WORTH, TEXAS
