Customs finds record cocaine cache in truck

EL PASO (AP) — Customs agents who did a double-take at a truck whose trailer didn't measure up found $6,000 and a hidden compartment containing a cocaine cache valued at nearly $1 billion.

The seizure at an international bridge in El Paso was the largest ever on the U.S.-Mexican border, U.S. Customs Service spokesman Charles Conroy said Tuesday.

Agents arrested the driver of the tractor-trailer — identified as Eduardo Pinto Chavira, 22, of Juarez — and charged him with cocaine-smuggling. U.S. Magistrate Philip Cole denied bond for Pinto and scheduled a Friday detention hearing, where he will make his formal plea.

Conroy said a conservative estimate of the cocaine's value is $80 million, but regional Customs Commissioner James C. Piatt said he estimated the value to be nearly $1 billion retail after its dilution.

"My guess is that this was to have gone all across the country," Piatt said. He said tests had not yet been performed to determine the purity of the rock cocaine.

Customs agents Monday were stopping and closely inspecting all empty trailers entering El Paso from Mexico, Piatt said. He explained that agents decide daily which types of cargo will receive intensive inspections, and that empty trailers were Monday's target.

Agents measured the Juarez-registered trailer and discovered that the inside length was about three feet shorter than the outside dimension.

They began questioning the driver and searched the truck's cab. When they found $6,000 in cash, the driver tried to flee and was arrested a few feet short of the Ysleta Bridge, Piatt said.

The inspectors later found a false wall at the trailer's front, and inside were 63 white plastic bales weighing about 55 pounds apiece, Piatt said. The bales were stacked about 10 feet high, according to Jack Flynn, Customs assistant district director.

Flynn and Piatt said markings on the bales indicated the cocaine was packed in the Medellin province of Colombia and shipped through Mexico. Medellin has been called the biggest cocaine-producing region in the world.

The district director said luck had little to do with the seizure.

"Our agents made a good job of making the driver nervous," he said. "That's pretty much an admission of guilt when you start running back for Mexico."

Heightened enforcement of the Gulf Coast likely has pushed smuggling efforts west, Flynn said.

Piatt said El Paso is a logical distribution point because of its proximity to interstate highways leading to Los Angeles, New Orleans and the Fort Worth-Dallas area.

Piatt said the markings on the bales were similar to those on a 1,660-pound shipment seized in June in Brownsville. The purity of that shipment was higher than 90 percent, Piatt said, speculating that the cocaine seized Monday was of similar purity.

He stopped short, however, of speculating that the two shipments originated from the same manufacturer.

Officer suspended for cocking gun

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
DALLAS — A police officer accused of holding a cocked, loaded gun to a man's head during a June 28 patrol call was ordered suspended without pay for five days Monday by Police Chief Billy Prince.

John Trower, 24, who joined the force in January 1986, was suspended after the Internal Affairs Division investigated Daniel Holuba's complaint that the officer had unnecessarily pointed a cocked weapon at him.

Internal Affairs Cpl. Jim Chandler said Trower and another officer in a separate patrol car were responding June 28 to reports of shots being fired when they drew their guns and approached six men sitting on the front porch of a residence.

The men were ordered to stand up and raise their hands, but Holuba remained sitting and appeared to be looking toward a paper bag on the ground. Trower then pointed his gun at the man's head and cocked the weapon.

Chandler said Trower admitted cocking the gun but said he was about two and a half feet from the Holuba. Holuba and witnesses, however, said the gun was two inches from Holuba's head.

The officers found only fireworks in the sack and that the reported gunshots were only firecrackers discharging, Chandler said. The six men were cited for illegal possession of fireworks in the city, a misdemeanor offense.

Department regulations forbid placing suspects in greater danger than is necessary, Chandler said. Officers are permitted to cock their weapons only if they or someone else is in danger.

Student copies Constitution by hand

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
A 21-year-old college student who skipped jury duty in favor of a fishing trip got off the hook Tuesday after completing a hand-written copy of the United States Constitution for U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders.

When Michael G. Bobkoff, a North Texas State University student, failed to show up for jury duty last month, the judge ordered him to spend 24 hours in jail or write out the document — containing almost 7,000 words — longhand.

Bobkoff accepted the written assignment Sept. 2 and was given a little less than two weeks to complete the task. On Tuesday, two days before the United States celebrates the 200th anniversary of the document, Sanders suspended the jail sentence after the copy of Bobkoff's constitution — 12 pages of white notebook paper, lined front and back with the historical words in blue ballpoint ink. Bobkoff's errancy also cost him a $100 fine.

Four killed in plane crash on beach

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The propeller of a single-engine plane was not turning before it nosedived and crashed on a Padre Island Beach killing four men, witnesses said.

The Gruman aircraft crashed Tuesday night about five miles south of Bob Hall Pier on the southern edge of the city limits. The four men, believed to be in their early to middle 20s, were found dead in the cockpit of the plane, which Federal Aviation Administration officials said crashed about 7:30 p.m.

"Apparently they were trying to pull out of a dive," said Padre Island National Seashore Park Ranger Mark Arsenault.

Two eyewitnesses told Arsenault the plane was flying about 200 feet from the ground.

Hill gives recommendations to Clements

AUSTIN — Retiring Texas Supreme Court Justice John Hill on Tuesday gave Gov. Bill Clements the names of two people to consider as his replacement and during an hour-long lunch meeting stressed the role of qualifications over politics in the selection.

"He simply was interested in who in my view would be qualified to be chief justice. I suggested two people but there were others that were discussed," said Hill, who would not reveal his choices. "I think his mind is open."

Hill declined to say whether the two discussed the possible appointment of former Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Loeffler, who met with Clements recently to discuss the position. While he is an attorney, Loeffler, a former congressman, has never served as a judge.

"I'd rather not get into personalities except to say that my focus in this conversation was that I thought it was extremely important that the appointment be viewed by the public as one where merit as a jurist and in the legal field was at the center of the decision and politics did not play any heavy role in it," said Hill, a Democrat. "I think he feels that way."

In announcing several weeks ago he intends to resign Jan. 1, Hill urged Clements to name a statewide committee to screen candidates for Clements to find the best-qualified replacement. While Clements declined to name a committee, Hill said he was convinced the governor is conducting an intense search.

"It's the second-best thing to actually having a formal committee," said Hill. "His approach has been one of soliciting views and obtaining recommendations and letting lawyers and judges and the people of Texas know that he has an open mind and he is seriously seeking to render decision on a merit basis."

Hill said the governor promised "that he would talk with me further... I'm very pleased with the approach that he is taking."

The chief justice startled the legal community when he announced recently he would step down to campaign for a "merit selection" system, in which judges are appointed based on qualifications instead of the current method of electing judges.

Hill said he and Clements discussed proposed merit selection legislation for the 1989 session of the Legislature.

Hill said Clements supported merit selection for the Texas Supreme Court, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, and was considering his position on the state's 14 intermediate courts of appeals.

Act of gallantry ends in tragedy

The stabbing of a New York teen-ager described as an all-American boy is a sobering reminder of what can happen in any violent situation. But sad as it is, the boy's death ought not to be seen as a consequence of "good Samaritan" behavior.

The young man died avenging an act that occurred earlier in the day. A girl had been slapped by another boy. She was no longer in danger when she asked her friend to intervene.

His was an act of gallantry that afforded a wider range of options than those available to people who would ordinarily be considered "good Samaritans." People who protect others by putting themselves in danger generally do so as a matter of impulse, not calculation.

He could have offered the girl words of comfort or helped her call the police. Instead he sought out the assailant and confronted him, with tragic results.

This is not to scorn the ancient notion of gallantry; it still has a place in the volatile 1980s for those heroic enough to take the risks.

It would be a mistake, however, to withdraw from the pool of potential good Samaritans on the basis of this sad situation. Coming to another's aid in times of imminent danger doesn't require heroics, just simple humanity.

Lewis Grizzard How to alter pit bull dog mean streak

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
Pit bull dogs frighten us, and they should. They attack other dogs, they attack small children. They kill and they maim.

I don't know if pit bulls are that ferocious by nature or if their owners train them to be aggressive, for the purpose of protection or fighting in the pit for the pleasure of a group of sickies.

Then, we come to Black Labs. I have one. He nearly chewed my house to its foundation when he was a puppy, but I've never known a more loving and loyal pet.

He is constantly by my side, especially if I happen to be eating. He sleeps at the foot of my bed and always lets me know, with a barrage of loud barks, at six in the morning, that the garbage man has arrived on time. He wouldn't hurt anything but an old shoe.

But this isn't about my Lab. This is about my friend's, a male named Deuce. I should begin by telling you that Deuce is a lover.

"We don't have any idea how many puppies he has fathered over the years," said my friend, "but it may be reaching three figures."

The wife in this instance has considered having Deuce's lover days ended, but the husband holds out. "I just couldn't do that to old Deuce," he said. "He's got a reputation to uphold."

There's the man across town who happens to be a collector for the IRS and he has a female pit bull.

When his pit bull got into the mood recently, the man locked his dog inside a fence, figuring male dogs couldn't get over the fence — and what male dog in his right mind would go after a female pit bull in the first place.

Although my friend lives several miles from the man with the pit bull, old Deuce came calling.

The male of any species will go to unusual lengths to satisfy nature's beckoning. Deuce, unafraid, despite the many recent reports of pit bull attacks, scaled a 6-foot-high fence and had his way with the pit bull.

My friends got a call from the pit bull's owner. He was quite angry.

"I told the man," the husband explained, "that as mean as pit bulls are, if she hadn't wanted Deuce as a lover, she certainly would have let him know."

The man took his pit bull to the vet, who put off the possibility of any more of Deuce's offspring for the time being.

He also built a higher fence. It wasn't long, however, until Deuce came calling again, scaled that fence and the rest will be history in a few weeks.

The pit bull's owner gave up, figuring Deuce's courage, cunning and drive would overcome any subsequent method he used to protect his dog.

"Last thing you want to be involved with," said my friend, "is an IRS collector with a pit bull, but we're anxious to see what you can get when you cross a pit bull with a Black lab."

Maybe you get a pit bull that would much prefer to chew on an old shoe and make love than kill and maim other dogs and people.

If that is the case, just remember we have old Deuce to thank for it.

Says God can help couples be happy in their marriages

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think the love between a husband and wife should grow and become stronger as the years go by? I've heard people say that, but it hasn't been our experience. In fact, I feel like we're drifting farther and farther apart. How can we reverse that? — Mrs. E.Y.

DEAR MRS. E.Y.: Unfortunately your experience is the case with millions of husbands and wives, but it shouldn't be that way. And with God's help it can be different.

Marriages go stale for a number of reasons. Often a husband and wife, for example, start to take each other for granted and begin drifting apart; sometimes a spouse becomes preoccupied with other things that drain away time and energy, such as a job; frequently a husband and wife fail to communicate with each other — and my list could go on and on.

But whatever the reason seems to be on the surface, there's always a deeper cause — and that is a failure (by one or both partners) to take the time and energy to keep the spark of love alive and growing.

A fire will die down and eventually go out if more fuel is not put on it, and in the same manner love will cool and die if it's not fed. The Bible says, "And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good deeds" (Hebrews 10:24).

Give attention to the little things (as well as the bigger things) you can do to show you love your spouse: the little acts of thoughtfulness, the unexpected gift, the leisurely opportunity to talk.

But more than that, you and your husband need to build your marriage on a spiritual foundation — the foundation of Christ's will for your lives.

God gave marriage to us, and He alone can help us fulfill His plan for our marriage. Commit your life to Jesus Christ, then ask Him to help you rebuild your marriage on His Word and His love.

Hear ye, chocolate lovers: your favorite has returned

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
I thought everybody knew.

There are some things in life you figure it's possible to take for granted — when it's thundering and raining outside, you don't figure you need to tell anybody who's halfway observant. And, when the price of oil goes zooming toward the $30 a barrel mark, everybody's going to know.

That's the way I thought it was with M&M's.

Apparently not. A favorite little candy among chocolate lovers recently made history — of sorts, let's keep this in perspective — and I figured it would be merely redundant if I attempted to tell the world about it.

A colleague, whose skills of observation have impressed me, surprised me last week when she learned the good news.

So, for all of you who have neglected the candy aisles of your local store, let it be known: The red M&M is live and well once again.

Although it has been a long and stressful delay for those of us who prefer this medium-grade chocolate treat, the favorite of favorites has returned.

I like M&M's greatly, despite the revelation by a nutritionist friend that they are "empty calories" — the best kind, I silently hoped, since they should take less space in my body.

Which tells you I'm more interested in rationalization than nutrition when it comes to chocolate.

It was March 1976 when the Mars, Inc. in Hackettstown, N.J.

Just My Type

decided that a scare among society was strong enough to withdraw production of its most popular M.

It was a scare that Red Dye No. 2 possibly caused cancer that buried the reds for more than a decade — a scare that was unfounded, M&M officials said then and now.

Red M&M's were not created with Red Dye No. 2.

Hans Fiuzyzski, an external relations director for the company, told me recently that the concern about the red dye was isolated to this country alone — "no other country in the world took such action."

It was all the result of "misplaced concern" by consumers, he says.

In fact, other red treats continued to be consumed — Lifesavers, Jellos and various fruit drinks. But the folks at Hackettstown made the decision to sweep the reds from the lives of M&M eaters' lives in reaction to the "social temperature as read at the time."

Iran flirts with bankruptcy

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — As Iran's minister of heavy industries, Behzad Nabavi is the proverbial steward rearranging the deck chairs on the sinking Titanic. The Khomeini regime is foundering on the icebergs of fundamentalist inefficiency, corruption and, most of all, the war with Iraq.

Though Nabavi makes numerous speeches and grants interviews to the kept Iranian press, he is generally closed-mouthed about the devastating effect the war has had on Iran's industrial base — a key indicator of the Iranian economy's slide into bankruptcy.

But even his cheerleading public statements sometimes contain revealing nuggets of information. And secret conversations he has had with confidants, the gist of which has been slipped to us by Tehran sources, are even more candid. First the public revelations:

- In a speech at Tehran's Melli University, Nabavi complained that his ministry "should be capable of building factories, but it lacks the capacity to create a fan-making unit." As a result, he said, the ministry has inherited "a bunch of little, inefficient vehicle and engine assembly plants."

- In an interview with the newspaper Jomhuri Islami, Nabavi disclosed that he had closed the Iranian Mazda factory. "Of course, in reality, I did not shut it down," he said. "The lack of foreign currency did. If foreign currency were available, I would not have done this. We would have had to come up with $45 million to keep Mazda from closing, which we could not do."

- In a speech reported by the government newspaper Kayhan, Nabavi said: "Planning for heavy industries is a difficult job. For example, although we have not made our plants dependent on foreign currency, they are dependent on electricity. In the wake of frequent blackouts, our production projects are at a standstill."

- In a speech at Tehran University's school of economics, Nabavi voiced this pitiful plaint: "Some people say, 'Change the line of products; don't shut down industry.' But how can we miraculously change our product line? To do so, we need foreign currency."

At a hush-hush meeting with newspaper executives, Nabavi gave an astonishingly frank appraisal of Iran's desperate economic situation, so that the editors could do a better job of censoring and keep hints of trouble

Bork defends firing

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork today denied that he acted illegally in firing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox 14 years ago, and said that he "did my utmost" to make sure the investigation into the Nixon administration went forward.

Bork stiffly turned aside a suggestion from Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, that he had acted illegally in firing Cox in what became known as the Saturday Night Massacre. "No, I don't think it was, senator," Bork said in the opening moments of the second day of his confirmation hearings.

Arms accord on table

WASHINGTON — U.S. and Soviet officials meeting in pre-summit talks are making muted claims of progress toward a landmark treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

The unfinished accord was back on the table today in a second round of talks between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Their goal was to pare down their differences over a schedule for phasing out the missiles and over U.S. warheads on West German rockets, so the treaty could be in shape for signing at a superpower summit in Washington by year's end.

Shuttle crew selected

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The space agency has selected five military astronauts to fly a secret Defense Department mission on the second post-Challenger space shuttle flight.

Navy Cmdr. Robert L. Gibson, a veteran of two shuttle flights, was named by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Tuesday to command the crew.

The others are Air Force Lt. Col. Guy S. Gardner, Air Force Col. Richard M. Mullane, Air Force Lt. Col. Jerry L. Ross and Navy Cmdr. William M. Shepard. Gardner will be the pilot, the others will be mission specialists, working with the payload.

USA Today celebrates

ROSSLYN, Va. — President Reagan congratulated USA Today on its fifth birthday, saying the colorful nationwide daily "has created a turning point in the news business."

Joining a reception Tuesday night at the newspaper's skyscraper office across the Potomac River from Washington, Reagan traded jokes with USA Today founder Allen C. Neuharth and tweaked the newspaper about the brevity of some of its writing.

Pope

Indulgent teacher with youth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For 90 unforgettable minutes, John Paul II did not seem to be bishop of Rome, vicar of Jesus Christ, successor of the prince of the apostles, supreme pontiff of the universal church, patriarch of the West, primate of Italy, archbishop and metropolitan of the province of Rome, sovereign of the Vatican city-state, servant of the servants of God.

He was simply an indulgent teacher.

Before an audience of 12,000 young people, who saw him in person or via television, the pope joked, admonished, mugged, lectured and plainly enjoyed himself.

And he was so overcome by the guitar music played barefoot by an armless man that he came off the stage to bestow a hug and a kiss.

The live teleconference had been billed as a media first, a "Papal Spacebridge" to allow young people to question the pope. Six thousand were in the hall with him, six thousand more were linked by satellite from St. Louis, Denver and Portland, Ore.

"What motivated you to come to the United States at this time?" asked Chris Johnson in St. Louis.

"Perhaps it means I should not have come to the United States," said the pope. In Los Angeles, a cry went up: "No."

With a twinkle in his eyes, the pope noted that "Christ himself was not everywhere and not every time invited to come, but he went where he wanted." But like Christ, he added, the successors to the apostles must proclaim the Gospel to the world.

Gene Moreland asked from Portland how he could continue to make sense of his life when friends have given up on life.

"It seems to me the answer is pretty simple," said the pope. "It is not to accept they're giving up of life, not to accept, to resist."

As he answered, looking at the television split screen as questions came from the other cities, the pontiff sometimes frowned.

When he stumbled over an answer, the pope explained "I'm not so perfect in your language." He turned once to the camera and said, "Your parents say to me several times that small children ask the most difficult questions. You are not small children."

Participants in each city offered a gift.

St. Louis gave "acts of fasting and self denial" and alms to the poor.

The pope said that was precisely the gift he wanted.

Portland gave service, with the young people spending a day helping the poor.

Denver gave the gift of song. During the music, the pope clapped along, and repeatedly said, "Wonderful, wonderful."

Los Angeles gave the gift of courage, a song played by Tony Melendez, an armless 25-year-old from Chino, who plucked the strings of a guitar with a pick between his toes.

John Paul came off the stage, hugged Melendez and kissed his bearded cheek.

"You are truly a courageous young man," the pope said. "You give hope to us. My wish to you is to continue giving hope to other people."

Melendez, the choir director of Our Lady of Guadalupe Parish in Chino, was born without arms. He had tears in his eyes when the pope climbed back on the stage and the pope, too, appeared to be blinking back tears.

"It was the highlight of my life," Melendez said afterward.

When it was over, the cheers continued. In Portland, 15-year-old Jeff Renner was asked what he thought.

"The pope was a little long on his answers," he said, "but, hey, he's the pontiff."

Laurel refuses Aquino

MANILA, Philippines — Vice President Salvador Laurel announced today he would not continue as foreign affairs secretary because of "fundamental differences" with President Corazon Aquino.

Mrs. Aquino later told a nationwide television audience she had accepted Laurel's resignation "with regret." He remains vice president, and said he would not align himself with the opposition.

Laurel and the rest of the 25-member Cabinet resigned Sept. 9, saying they wanted to give Mrs. Aquino a free hand to reorganize the government after a failed coup attempt. It had been expected Laurel would be renominated to his post.

Laurel accused Mrs. Aquino of renegeing on promises made to him during the 1986 election campaign against ousted President Ferdinand Marcos.

Iran shells Iraqi city

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq today said Iranian forces shelled the southern Iraqi city of Basra after U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar concluded a peace mission to the warring nations.

Iraq, which said it pounded Iranian positions near Basra, threatened to raze Iranian cities if the firing was repeated.

An Iranian frigate, meanwhile, reportedly has been harassing vessels heading for the Persian Gulf. Shipping officials said they feared Iran and Iraq would resume attacking ships in the waterway.

68,000 face starvation

BANGKOK, Thailand — About 68,000 people are facing starvation in a Cambodian province suffering a severe drought, the official Cambodian news agency reported.

An SPK agency report seen in Bangkok today said the Communist government was delivering emergency relief, including 100 tons of rice, to Kompongseu province, 30 miles west of Phnom Penh.

The government says the drought is the worst in a decade, and the United Nations World Food Program has appealed to Western countries to provide relief.

Swiss documents give

BERN, Switzerland — Officials have given U.S. authorities the first Swiss documents in the Iran-Contra affair, but the transfer of most of the requested papers remains locked up in court, the justice ministry said today.

Documents from two bank accounts at a Geneva branch of Credit Suisse were given to U.S. officials on Monday, said a communique from the ministry.

Church Women United share their favorite recipes

By LYNN HAYES
Staff writer

Church Women United conducted a "Tasting Tea" fund-raising event Sept. 13 at the First United Methodist Church.

The women make a yearly pledge to the Westside Community Center, as well as conducting special fund-raising projects.

This year the women sold their recipes at the tea for 10 cents each. "We raised approximately $300 and still have money coming in," said Goldye Moad, reporter for the group.

This week's Recipe Exchange features recipes from members of Church Women United.

TEXAS SHEET CAKE

Jacque Mauch, Wesley United Methodist Church
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. soda

Boil together in a saucepan: 2 sticks margarine, 4 tbs. unsweetened cocoa and 1 cup water.

Add boiled liquid ingredients to dry ingredients. Mix well. Pour into a greased and floured jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 F. for 20 minutes. Frost with Brownie Frosting.

BROWNIE FROSTING

2 sticks margarine
1 tbs. unsweetened cocoa
1/2 cup milk
1 cup chopped nuts
1 pound powdered sugar

Bring first four ingredients to a boil. Add powdered sugar, beat until smooth. Pour on Texas Sheet Cake while cake and frosting are still hot.

Variation: Bake a Texas Sheet Cake as directed. Cool. Make a simple butter cream frosting with powdered sugar, butter and milk. Flavor with peppermint extract and add a drop of green food color to make a light flavored mint layer.

You will only need a thin layer to cover the cake. Spread on cake and cool in freezer until almost firm. Melt 2 — 12 ounce packages of milk chocolate chips and stir until smooth. Pour quickly on chilled cake and spread to cover mint layer. You have to be quick — the chocolate sets up fast.

Lifestyle

Hiccup cure occupies man's life

DEAR ABBY: There's a man in Anthon, Iowa, who's had the hiccups since 1922. His name is Charlie and he's about 95 years old by now.

I don't have all the details, but he's a very famous character in Anthon. A lot of folks have sent him remedies on how to cure his hiccups, but so far none of them has worked. Maybe a Dear Abby reader will see this and send Charlie a cure.

SIoux CITY READER
DEAR READER: I followed your lead and called the Anthon Herald. According to Shirley Nelson, who works at the newspaper, Charlie Osborne got the hiccups in 1922 when he tried to lift a 350-pound hog to butcher it.

It seems that Charlie is already a major celebrity, having appeared on the Johnny Carson and David Letterman shows. He's even hiccupped himself into the "Guinness Book of World Records." With that kind of exposure, he has received hundreds of letters from people offering suggestions on how to get rid of his hiccups. (None worked.) Charlie is willing to try anything. So if you have a sure cure for the hiccups, send it to Charlie Osborne in Anthon, Iowa. Although, after 65 years, he's learned to live with his hiccups, he would still appreciate a cure so he can get a good night's sleep.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, a woman wrote to you saying that she had had an abortion, which she knew to be a terrible sin because she was Catholic. She said she didn't have the courage to confess her sin to the priest, so she turned to you. (She signed herself "Tormented Soul.") Your answer to her helped me.

Dear Abby

Although my problem was not the same as hers, I was also a "tormented soul" — and a Catholic.

Please print that answer. It may help others.

CONNECTICUT CATHOLIC
DEAR CATHOLIC: Here's the answer — let's hope it works the miracle for someone else:

Dear Tormented Soul: Go to confession. The priest will not throw you out. A Catholic is forgiven the sin when he or she truly repents. If you lack the courage to face your own parish priest, go to another parish.

DEAR ABBY: When I listened to the messages on my answering machine, I heard one that went like this: "Susan, it's Mom. Please call me right away. I am very sick. I need help!" Click.

Abby, some poor woman had dialed a wrong number and I had no way of letting her know.

Please warn your readers to always leave their telephone number on an answering machine — especially in an emergency.

IN SAN FRANCISCO
DEAR MISDIALED: Consider it done. And thank you for a very important suggestion that would not have occurred to most people, including me.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married and we gave her a lovely wedding and reception. The dinner was buffet style. We have some cousins whom we invite to all the family celebrations. They are not poor by any means, but they have a peculiar habit of bringing small plastic bags to take home.

At our daughter's wedding, several people, including the caterers, came to me aghast, suggesting that we had uninvited guests at the buffet table. On noting they were our cousins, I verified that they had been invited. I chose not to say anything to them as I did not want to create a scene or make anyone feel uncomfortable.

The problem: Our son is getting married this summer and the bride's family is having a similar wedding reception, including a buffet, to which these cousins will be invited. How can I tactfully discourage them from a repeat of their usual buffet raiding? When we were the hosts it was bad enough, but to have this occur at our son's wedding, when we are not the hosts, would be humiliating. We'd like to prevent this from happening. Any suggestions from you or your readers would be most appreciated.

PERPLEXED IN WASHINGTON STATE
DEAR PERPLEXED: Phone your "toting" cousins in advance and tell them that they are welcome to eat as much as they wish at your son's reception, but please leave the plastic bags at home.

DEAR ABBY: This is a minister's response to the problem created by small children who disrupt wedding ceremonies by becoming restless, talkative and whining. The parents you wrote about pushed past the ushers who politely asked them to leave the child in the church nursery, which was staffed with licensed attendants.

You were asked, "How can a situation like this be prevented?" Your reply: "It can't, unless bouncers are enlisted!"

I have a better solution: When planning the wedding with the bride and groom, I ask their permission to make an announcement before the wedding. If they agree (and so far they all have), I walk out in front of the guests, the organist lowers the volume to almost nothing, then I say, "My name is Pastor Paul, and I have two very important requests to make on behalf of the bride and groom: The first: Please do not take any flash pictures during the ceremony. The second: If you have a small child who begins to cry, please do not wait, hoping the child will stop, but take the child out immediately so that others will be able to enjoy the ceremony."

The above has worked very well underscoring an old adage: An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

THE REV. PAUL MCKOWEN, FREMONT, CALIF.

Mary Jane Club elects officers

The Mary Jane Club of Coahoma met Sept. 10 at the home of Janie Phinney, with Darlene Hipp and Darla Choate as hostesses.

A brunch consisting of a sausage bake, fresh fruit cup and assorted breads was served on the patio. Each table was centered with a replica of an old town business building, which were made by Phinney's son, Ronald.

The officer slate for the 1987-88 club year includes: Pat Nash, president; Janie Phinney, vice president; Bobbie Nix, secretary; Ethel Hart, treasurer; and Roselle Choate, reporter.

Nash distributed yearbooks and explained the programs scheduled for the year. Roll call was answered by 16 members with "A Summer Thrill."

A letter from the Big Spring Rotary Club was read, which thanked the club for its support of the Christie Proctor Fund, and outlining the progress of the search.

The next meeting will be Oct. 8 at the home of Ethel Hart.

Commercial banks suffer worst quarter in 50 years

By Dave Skidmore
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's commercial banks suffered their worst quarter in more than half a century after writing off billions of dollars in Third World loans as uncollectible, the government said Tuesday.

The 13,937 banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. added $21.2 billion to reserves for bad loans in the second quarter of 1987, causing a $10.6 billion loss, the first reported since the Depression.

"It was clearly the worst quarter in the history of the industry since the FDIC began operating in 1934," FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman said.

The second quarter loss more than wiped out a record first quarter net income of $5.3 billion, posted after banks added $4.1 billion to loan loss reserves. The net loss for the first six months was $5.3 billion.

Seidman said he expected bank performance would turn around in the second half of the year. He predicted net income for the full year would be between $4.5 billion and $6 billion.

Because of the loss reserves taken now, we would expect some improvement in the second half," he said. "This quarter, hopefully, is the worst report we're likely to see."

The huge loss in the second quarter had been expected. Major banks — including Citicorp, Chase Manhattan Corp., Security Pacific Corp. and BankAmerica Corp. — had all announced in May that they were adding to reserves to cover Third World loans, particularly to Brazil which is refusing to pay on its $23.6 billion debt.

Seidman said he believed the reserves were the banks' best estimate of future loss, but some analysts say they should be even higher.

"I think we're going to see some more horrendous quarters in the next year or so," said Paul Getman, senior financial analyst with Wharton Econometrics, a Philadelphia forecasting firm.

The selling price on the market for the loans indicates they are worth far less than the value which is listed on the banks' books, even with the writedowns, he said.

"Interest rates continue to rise — these loans are going to be worth even less," he said.

Seidman said the loss for the second quarter was a little higher than he had expected. He said he believed banks set aside reserves for a broad range of loans in addition to foreign loans.

"This is kind of a variation of the big bath theory," said Bert Ely, a private financial industry analyst in Alexandria, Va. "What they decide is that if you're going to take a hit, you might as well take it all at once and get it all behind you."

According to the FDIC's quarterly banking profile, 2,354, or 17 percent, of the nation's commercial banks were unprofitable for the three months ending June 30. That compares with 2,019, or 14 percent, in the first quarter.

Although 83 percent of the banks showed a second quarter profit, the industry as a whole was dragged down by the 10 largest banks, which all lost money and account for nearly a quarter of all the banks' assets.

Banks continue to fail at a post-Depression record rate. As of Monday, 126 banks had failed this year and 16 would have failed without assistance from the FDIC. The agency said 144 banks failed last year.

Constitution

Parade, pageantry mark bicentennial

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Their task complete after a long, hot summer, framers of the U.S. Constitution retired to a tavern to toast their work. Today, two centuries later, the party begins in earnest.

The 39 thirsty men who affixed their signatures to the four-page parchment on Sept. 17, 1787, were among 55 delegates to the constitutional convention. The rest thought the document was flawed or had gone home early.

That their work was done was "little short of a miracle," said George Washington, the war hero who oversaw the debate and would become the fledgling nation's first president.

Washington's 39th successor, Ronald Reagan, was scheduled to lead a nationally televised Pledge of Allegiance this afternoon from Washington, D.C., to children in 105,000 public and private schools.

"I view the Constitution as the last great secular hope of mankind," said Walker Fry Rucker of a Greensboro, N.C., a descendant of Washington's sister and one of about 500 descendants of the signers to be feted late this afternoon at a reception.

Other festivities scheduled for today included a wreath-laying ceremony at Philadelphia's tomb of the unknown soldier in memory of those who died in the Revolutionary War, and a gathering of judges from the highest courts of the first 13 states.

The jurists were to hear seven citizens speak on the importance of the Constitution in their lives.

The yearlong 200th anniversary celebration reaches "a rousing crescendo" on Thursday, says Willard Rouse III, chairman of the We The People 200 organization that planned the city's bash.

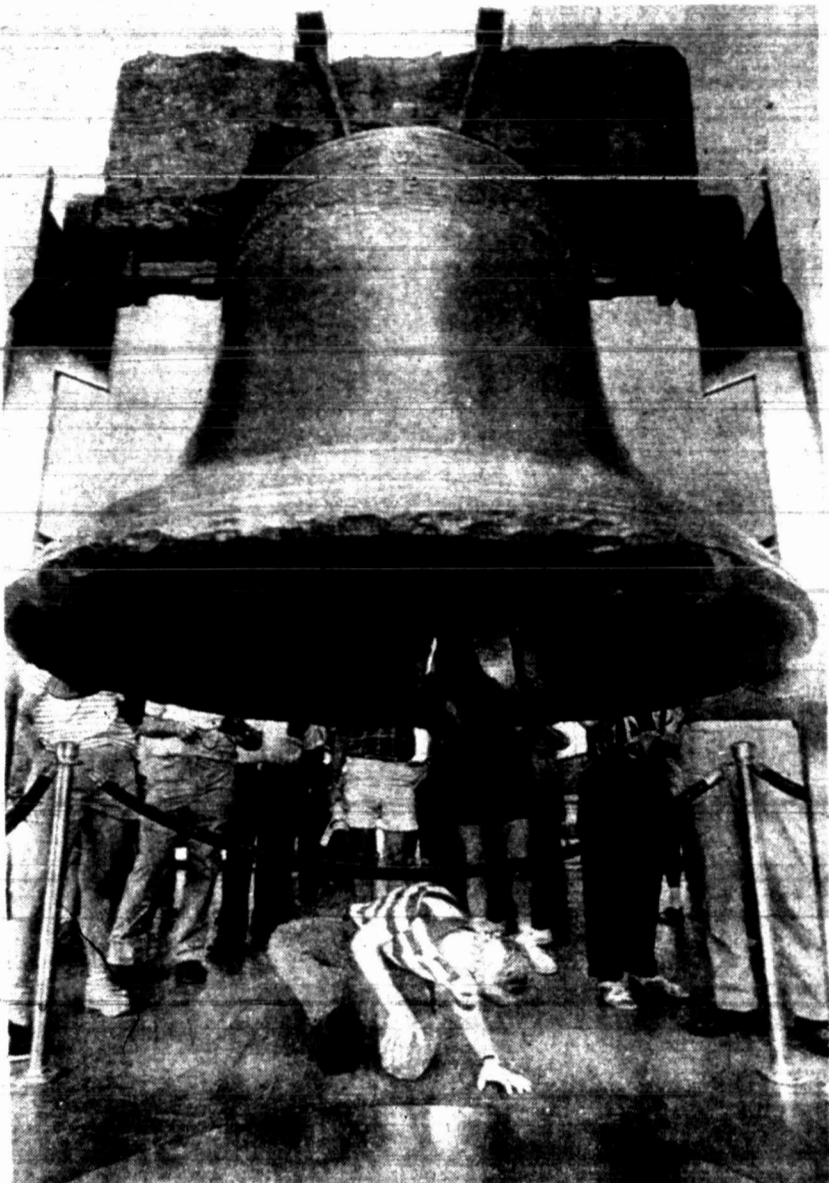

Officials expect about 800,000 people to attend, and hotel rooms within 30 miles are sold out.

Thursday's celebration opens with a $3.5 million, six-hour parade with 30 floats, 1,500 white doves and 20,000 marchers, recalling the Grand Federal Procession of 1788 that marked ratification of the Constitution and the centennial parade of 1887.

At least one descendant of each signer will march. The youngest will be fifth-grader Elizabeth Warwick, 9, a descendant of John Langdon of New Hampshire.

Reagan will view the parade and speak outside Independence Hall, where delegates secretly debated the founding of a government on a stuffy second floor.

Baseball fans at Thursday's Philadelphia Phillies game will see the largest hand-held American flag ever made, 247 feet by 122 feet, unfurled while one of 200 new citizens leads the Pledge of Allegiance at a pregame

George Campbell, 12, of Nashville, Tenn., finds the best angle for viewing the underside of the Liberty Bell during a family visit to Philadelphia recently. Tomorrow is the bicentennial celebration of the U.S. Constitution, and today schoolchildren and others across the country will join the President in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance.

ceremony.

At 4 p.m., the exact hour the delegates signed the document, former U.S. Chief Justice Warren Burger, head of the Federal Commission on the Bicentennial, will ring a replica of the long-silent Liberty Bell and set off an international pealing of bells for 200 seconds.

In the evening, a black-tie gala will be held, with the finale a $150,000, 30-minute burst of fireworks above the Delaware River.

All the hoopla surrounds the 4,453-word document that is the mortar cementing the United States together through 200 years of strife and success.

The colonies had declared themselves free from England 11 years before the Constitution was written. The freedom was earned in a war for independence, but the union was failing under the 6-year-old Articles of Confederation.

Faced with a $42 million war debt and no way to collect federal taxes, the nation's leaders gathered in Philadelphia. Of the 55 delegates, eight had signed the Declaration of Independence, 41 served in Congress and 29 attended full-time.

Twelve of the 13 states sent delegates. Rhode Island boycotted the debate, earning the derisive nickname "Rogue Island." It was the last of the states to join the union, giving in May 29, 1790.

After it was signed, the Constitution cleared the Congress on Sept. 28 and Delaware ratified it in December. New Hampshire accepted it on June 21, 1788, becoming the ninth and deciding state for ratification. It made the Constitution the law of the land.

Washington gives day-early tribute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Constitution received a day-early birthday party in Washington as Warren Burger paying tribute to the 200-year-old document.

The celebration got under way on the west steps of the Capitol with music from a variety of bands and choirs and a short speech by Education Secretary William E. Bennett. But the formal salute actually began in the afternoon with Reagan reciting the Pledge of Allegiance and Burger reading the preamble to the Constitution.

The tribute, formally dubbed "A Celebration of Citizenship," was held a day before the anniversary of the Sept. 17, 1787, signing of the Constitution.

John Peschong, a spokesman for the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, said organizers didn't want to take away from the celebration on the anniversary date in Philadelphia, where the Founding Fathers conceived and wrote the Constitution.

"By holding our celebration a day early, Americans can reflect on what the Constitution means to them," he added.

Anti-litter program working

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' tough-talking advertising program to stop littering along its roadways is paying off, the state highway department said Tuesday.

The $2 million-a-year "Don't mess with Texas" campaign began two years ago, and the department released results of a survey Tuesday that showed visible litter in Texas has decreased by 54 percent since 1985.

"I don't know if it was Stevie Ray Vaughan's growl, Randy White's menacing threat, Mike Scott's explosive pitching or volunteer efforts by thousands of Texans, but Texas is no longer losing the war against trash on our roadsides," said Don Clark, director of the highway department's travel and information division.

Vaughan, a rock musician, White, a Dallas Cowboy lineman, and Scott, a Houston Astro, are featured in the anti-litter advertising.

The survey by the Institute for Applied Research in Sacramento, Calif., also showed soft drink and beer container littering had declined by 66 percent during the past two years.

Clark said state cleanup efforts cost nearly $50 million in 1985-86 but the annual cost increase has declined from 15-20 percent a year to 6.5 percent.

He said the campaign was started after the highway department found that traditional efforts such as "pitch-in" and "don't be a litterbug" simply didn't work.

About the same time, the department began the "Adopt-a-Highway" program in which volunteers remove trash from two-mile sections of roadways. In July, 4,700 miles, or 6 percent of state-maintained roads, were being cleaned by volunteers.

Institute Director Daniel Syrek said in areas where volunteers had adopted highways, litter has decreased by 65 percent since 1985.

In July, Syrek said, Texas had 11 percent less visible litter than the average of states with seven to 13 years of litter-control experience.

"The key thing, it appears to us, is the introduction of hard-hitting advertising," Syrek said. Most other states use polite, general advertising asking people not to litter, he said.

"In Texas we are making litter an unacceptable behavior with a tough message that, while it has had its moments of controversy, is now a popular battle cry that rivals 'Remember the Alamo,'" Clark said.

Lady Steers fall in two to Snyder

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

SNYDER — For two games the Big Spring Lady Steers went to war on the volleyball court with the Snyder Tigers in Snyder gym Tuesday night.

When it was all over, it was the Tigers' play down the stretch that paved the way for a 15-10, 15-9 match win over Big Spring.

Coach Vicki Nelms' Tigers proved to be a scrappy bunch, both times rallying to wins after it seemed Big Spring had them on the verge of defeat.

In the first game the Tigers rallied for the last four points of the game after a furious Big Spring comeback. In the second game the Tigers turned a 9-5 deficit into victory.

"After the first game the girls said it wasn't going three. So they were bound and determined for it not to go three," said Snyder coach Nelms.

"This is really good for this team because we were not playing well early in the season. We just started playing well once we started district. Our goal is to get into the playoffs, and we have a good chance," she said after her team earned its third district win in four tries. Big Spring coach Elaine Stone said her team's play was much better than it was in Saturday's loss to Fort Stockton.

"The way we played, it was a 360-degree turnaround from the way we played in Fort Stockton," said Stone. "We did some really good things out there, things we haven't been doing in practice. There were some questionable calls by the officials which shifted the momentum to the other side," she said.

In the first game Snyder vaulted to a 9-2 lead before the Lady Steers came alive. Big Spring whittled away at the margin. Cary Brooks served two aces and the lead was cut to 10-5. Melissa Martinez served two more points to cut the lead to three.

Snyder scored a point, giving the Tigers an 11-7 advantage. Then Big Spring's Michelle LeGrand served three points, cutting the margin to 11-10. Two of the points came when Angie Dees downed spikes via sets from Debbie Pulver and Melanie Payne.

From that point it was all Snyder. With Lafon Williams serving, the Tigers reeled off the next five points. Williams served two aces and Big Spring was called for two hitting violations during the rally.

In the first match Snyder spiker Melody Pickering and LeGrand proved to be the top spikers on the court. Pickering, a 6-0 junior, downed five of six kills while LeGrand converted three of five kills. Alvarez entered the match for the first time and served two points, including an ace.

Snyder tied the game at 5-5, but Big Spring regained the lead at 9-5 when Martinez served an ace and LeGrand followed suit with another ace. LeGrand served two more points. One came when Martinez socked a hard spike from the backcourt.

But it would be the last point the Lady Steers would get as Snyder rallied back behind the service of Pickering. With Big Spring leading 9-8, Pickering served the final seven points of the game. Four of her serves were aces and two points came from Big Spring mishaps.

"I'm glad the girls stayed after it and hung tough," said Stone of her Lady Steers. "I made some changes and put Ida (Montez) and Lisa (Alvarez) on the backrow and our play improved. That and the setting of Melanie (Payne) contributed a great deal to the team. The girls are just now maturing in their attitudes and playing," said Stone.

For the match Big Spring downed 15 of 37 kills for 41 percent.

LeGrand finished the match with six kills in 13 attempts. She and Brooks had four blocks each. Brooks had four kills and Dees and Martinez had two kills each.

The Tigers downed 17 of 42 kill attempts for 40 percent. Pickering finished the contest with seven kills in 20 tries. Rhonda Echols downed five of seven attempts.

Snyder improves its overall record to 10-6 while Big Spring falls to 0-4 in district play and 4-9 overall.

Their next game will be Saturday at 3 p.m. in Steer Gym versus Lamesa. Junior varsity action begins at 2 p.m.

In other games played at Snyder gym, the Snyder freshmen downed Big Spring 16-14, 15-12, and the Snyder JV defeated Big Spring 15-2, 15-12.

Cowboys having wrong kind of streak

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
IRVING — They were known as the winningest NFL team of the 1980s until last season.

Now, the Dallas Cowboys have the distinction of having the losing streak in the NFL at six consecutive games. Perhaps they should start planning for the 1990s.

In losing to St. Louis on Sunday, the Cowboys passed Tampa Bay as the losingest team of the past two seasons. The Bucs' streak stood at seven until their shocking 48-10 defeat of Atlanta.

Dallas lost its final five games of the 1986 season. Since Oct. 26 of last year, when Dallas defeated the injury-depleted Cardinals on Monday night, they have won only one game, against the San Diego Chargers.

Did Sunday's 24-13 loss to St. Louis decrease coach Tom Landry's expectations of the 1987 Cowboys?

"I still think that we have the excellent potential," Landry said. "It goes back to the same old thing. If you have everybody healthy, and everybody's out there, you've still got a pretty good team."

Of the offense, though, Landry said, "They are about somewhere at training camp."

A team that scored 30 points or more in six of its first eight games last season couldn't even get a first down in the final nine minutes of a sad Sunday.

If the Cowboys had made one first down on their final two possessions, they probably would have won.

The offense deserved its share of the blame for three St. Louis touchdowns in a period of 1:58. But Landry also blamed the coaches, including himself, for not having Herschel Walker carry a heavier load in the final minutes.

"The last few minutes, everybody could have performed better," Landry said. "The offense, the defense, coaching and everybody could have done better."

Pass coordinator Paul Hackett said it was because of "missed communications" that Todd Fowler replaced Walker on third down with slightly less than four minutes left. White overthrew Fowler on the play.

"I think Herschel might have caught the pass," White said. "But I still overthrew Todd."

White overthrew Fowler by inches, but the Cowboys probably should have been running to kill the clock.

"It didn't matter who we had in there," Landry said. "Fowler was still open on the route. All we had to do was hit him. We over hrew him."

The strange series of events in St. Louis may be a prelude to a long season. For one, White proved that his wrist will not always allow him to complete critical passes. White jammed his wrist in the third quarter when his hand struck the chest of an onrushing lineman. It may become a familiar scene this season.

Secondly, the offensive line couldn't protect White when he really needed it. Rushing only three linemen, the Cardinals sacked White on two consecutive plays when the Cowboys were behind 17-13.

On the second sack by Curtis Greer, White fumbled.

"I don't think the pass protection is as good as it has been," White said. "But it's still an improvement over last year."

"The most critical sacks came at the end when they were in the prevent defense and only three guys were rushing. Still, it takes a while for those plays to develop. I think it ended up looking worse than it really was. But I think that five traps is more than coach (Jim) Erkenbeck expected us to have."

Even though White is considered

"probable" for the Giants game Sunday, he left St. Louis with a jammed wrist, neck and sprained right shoulder.

White, who left St. Louis with a jammed wrist, neck and sprained right shoulder, is listed as probable for Sunday's game against the Giants.

He again showed that he can't throw on the run and that he can't throw with much velocity. The Dallas offense had about as much zip as White's passes. Again, the coaches showed they don't truly know what to do with Walker. He gained 68 yards in the first 18 minutes of the game, and promptly disappeared for 10 minutes.

The game plan was to play conservatively and let St. Louis make the mistakes. It worked. White's fumble was the only Dallas turnover.

But unlike the Cowboys teams of the 1970s, the offense didn't respond at the most critical time.

"It was Herschel's first game all year," Landry said. "(Tom) Rafferty was just coming back. He hadn't played yet. We played the type of game that we needed to play. But we did it for only 56 minutes, not 60."

Will the offense ever score 30 points again? The average in the past eight games has been 15 points.

"If you score more than 30 points a game, it usually means that you're getting interceptions, or you are getting great field position, or you are getting great punt returns that are putting you near mid-field," White said. "Every time we have gotten inside the 20, we have scored points lately. What we've got to do is sustain drives for 10 or 15 plays, or to hit the big plays."

Remarkably, the Cowboys still have the NFL's fourth-best record of the 1980s with 68 victories. Miami is first with 72, followed by Washington and the Los Angeles Raiders with 69 each.

But with three years remaining in this decade, much damage can be done to the won-loss record. The Cowboys may have more work to do than Landry had anticipated.

Chili cooking as Giants burn Padres

By The Associated Press
Chili Davis was literally all over the place and all over the plate for the San Francisco Giants.

Davis not only played all three outfield positions, but hit home runs from both sides of the plate in a National League record performance to lead the Giants to a 13-3 victory over the San Diego Padres Tuesday night.

Davis went 4-for-4 with four RBI and four runs scored. He hit his first homer batting right-handed in the fourth and the second batting left-handed in the sixth. He established a league record by hitting homers from both sides of the plate for the third time in his career. Mickey Mantle holds the American League record with 10.

Reds 21, Braves 6
Dave Parker drove in a career-high eight runs with two singles, a double and two home runs and Terry McGriff hit a grand slam as Cincinnati unleashed a seven-homer, 19-hit attack to bury Atlanta.

Pirates 5, Expos 1
Mike Bielecki pitched 6 1-3 perfect innings and finished with a three-hitter as Pittsburgh beat Montreal.

Bielecki retired the first 19 batters he faced before Mitch Webster doubled. Bielecki, 2-2, did not walk a batter and struck out six, allowing the Expos their only run when third baseman Bobby Bonilla made a two-out throwing error in the ninth.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 3
Vince Coleman hit an RBI double in a four-run second inning, and rookie pitcher Scott Terry contributed a clutch piece of relief as St. Louis held on to beat Philadelphia.

Mets 12, Cubs 4
Keith Hernandez reached the 2,000-hit plateau with three hits and Sid Fernandez and two relievers combined to pitch a seven-hitter as New York beat Chicago.

The Mets used a pair of five-run innings, in the sixth and eighth, to bury the Cubs.

Dodgers 3, Astros 2
Mike Devereaux singled home the tie-breaking run with his second of three hits and fellow rookie Tim Belcher pitched a five-hitter for seven innings as Los Angeles overcame a triple play by Houston to beat the Astros.

Steve Sax doubled in the fifth inning, stole third and scored on Devereaux's single off Bob Knepper, 8-15.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 2
Ernie Whitt lost his home run swing in the seventh inning. "A lousy double," the Toronto catcher joked after of his two-base hit Tuesday night in the Blue Jays' 6-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

In the fifth inning, Whitt hit a solo homer — his 18th of the season — to extend a remarkable streak. Until his double, his previous six hits had all been home runs.

Tigers 9, Red Sox 8
Darrell Evans hit a three-run homer and Kirk Gibson added a 5-0 Boston shot as Detroit erased a 5-0 two-run lead and defeated the visiting Red Sox. Boston's Todd Benizinger had seven RBI, including his first major-league grand slam.

Yankees 4, Brewers 3
Rickey Henderson's home run began a three-run fourth inning and left-hander Al Leiter won his first major league start as the New York Yankees edged visiting Milwaukee. Leiter, 1-0, held the Brewers to only four hits and four walks while striking out eight over the first six innings.

White Sox 6, Twins 2
Making his major league debut, rookie right-hander Jack McDowell, got hitting support from Donnie Hill and Harold Baines to pitch the White Sox over Minnesota 6-2 at Chicago's Comiskey Park. McDowell became the first White Sox pitcher to win his major league debut since Joel Davis beat Milwaukee on Aug. 11, 1985. The 21-year-old McDowell, the team's top draft choice this past June, gave up just four hits in seven innings and did not walk a batter in outdueling 42-year-old Joe Niekro, 6-12.

Athletics 6, Rangers 5
Jose Canseco's three-run homer in the top of the ninth and Mark McGwire's two home runs gave Oakland a victory over the Rangers at Arlington Stadium. Canseco's 29th home run came off reliever Dale Mohoric, 7-5. Eric Plunk, 4-4, won in relief of starter Curt Young. Dennis Eckersley hurled the ninth inning for his 12th save.

McGwire's 44th and 45th home runs of the season tied him with Toronto's George Bell for the AL lead. Terry Steinbach added a pinch-hit homer for Oakland in the eighth, his 14th, as the Athletics snapped the Rangers' four-game winning streak.

Major Leagues

Reserve catcher Don Slaught hit two home runs for Texas.

Angels 7, Royals 1
RBI triples by Tony Armas and Jack Howell in a four-run fifth inning carried visiting California over Kansas City. Willie Fraser, 10-9, pitched his fifth complete game, allowing eight hits with four strikeouts and three walks. Royals starter Danny Jackson, 8-17, lasted just 4 2-3 innings.

Indians 4, Mariners 2
Pinch-hitter Pat Tabler's sacrifice fly broke a 2-2 tie as visiting Cleveland scored three runs in the ninth inning to defeat Seattle.

Texas Rangers fined $250,000 by commissioner

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers will appeal a reported fine of $250,000 levied by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth for promoting pitcher Steve Howe without Ueberroth's approval, team officials said.

The major league players union will conduct an inquiry into the Howe fine, union official Donald Fehr said.

Howe, a former rookie of the year who was released by Los Angeles and Minnesota and then was suspended from the minor leagues because of drug problems, was brought up from the Rangers' Oklahoma City farm club three weeks after he was signed to a minor league contract.

The fine reportedly was levied because the Rangers violated Ueberroth's unwritten "60-90 day" rule, which calls for players with drug histories to spend 60 to 90 days in the minor leagues to prove they are drug-free.

Ueberroth has had no official comment on the fine, which was confirmed by Rangers owner Eddie Giles last week. Giles would not reveal the amount, but officials who declined to be identified gave the $250,000 figure.

"We will appeal," Rangers president Tom Stone said Tuesday. "I imagine we will go up there sometime in the fall."

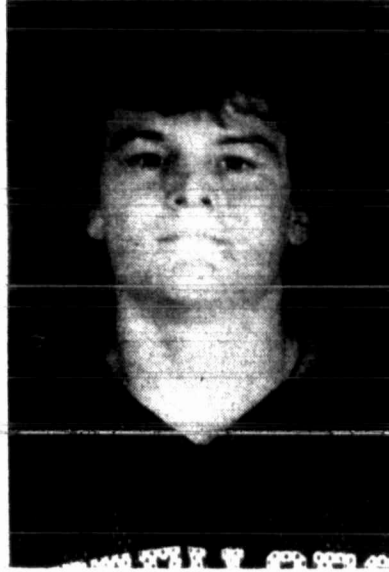

Rangers officials have said they were not given specific guidelines regarding Howe when they signed him to a minor league contract July 12. Their appeal can go only to Ueberroth under the major league agreement.

Sands' safety, C-City back head list of top area players

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

A pair of juniors stole the show in the second week of Crossroads Country football action. The performances of Colorado City running back Beau Rees and Sands' safety Damien Zarate earned them the top offensive and defensive awards.

Rees, a 195-pound fullback, ran through the Seminole defense in Colorado City's 21-7 victory. The big bruiser finished the game with a career-high 133 yards in 24 carries, including two four-yard touchdown runs. It was the second consecutive 100-yard game for Rees.

His performances earned him the Offensive Player of the Week award.

Zarate, a 135-pound safety, was the leader of the Sands' defense that held Borden County to three touchdowns in the Mustangs' 34-18 six-man football win.

Zarate was in on eight tackles and picked off three Borden County passes. He killed two fourth quarter B-County scoring threats by returning the thefts 25 and 42 yards.

His efforts earned him the Defensive Player of the Week award.

There were many sparkling offensive performances last Friday, including a running back duel between Borden County's Shannon Bond and Sands' Jay Fryar.

Bond gained 197 yards on 23 carries while scoring on runs of 56 and 79 yards. Fryar scored on runs of three, 24, 48 and 65 yards, while rushing for 215 yards on 24 carries. The Sands' workhorse also completed five of 11 passes for 117 yards, including a 48-yard TD to Chad Nichols.

Forsan got good production from the offensive front of Ruben Holguin, Brandy Bryan, Mike Averett, Hugh Raney, Michael Self, Billy Massingill, Shay Howard and Matt Evans as the Buffaloes romped to a 28-14 win over Plains.

Forsan halfback Stacy Munoz rushed for 134 yards on 17 carries and fullback John Roman added 133 yards on 20 carries, career-highs for both players.

The Stanton offensive line, led by center Robert Schoolcraft and tackle Billy Don Cox, paved the way for running back Steve Scurlark to gain 100 yards in 17 carries in the Buffaloes win over Coahoma. Robert Jones gained 85 yards and Kevin Barnes added 70 more for Stanton.

Garden City running back Juan Morales rushed for 81 yards in five carries in Garden City's win over Grandfalls. Morales' big run was a 55-yard TD jaunt. Fellow running back Mike Kenyon added 78 yards on 19 carries and receiver Tony Sanchez snagged five passes for 34 yards.

Defensively, Forsan reserve tackle Jerry Sutton came off the bench and did a good job against the explosive Plains' offense. Forsan coach Jan East said Sutton made "one big play" and ended the game with five tackles.

Garden City defensive tackle Bobby Medrano continues to be the Barkats' top defensive player. Medrano made 12 tackles and got two quarterback sacks against Grandfalls.

Stanton defensive end Rusty White was a key figure in the Buffaloes' defense, which limited Coahoma to 25 yards rushing. White made nine tackles. Linebacker Schoolcraft added eight.

Klondike defensive end Ron Davis had a good game against highly regarded Jayton. Davis was in on 10 tackles.

Linebacker Victor Luera and cornerback Chris Perkin had banner games for Colorado City against Seminole. Luera was credited with 12 tackles and one quarterback sack while Perkin made eight tackles and intercepted a pass.

Rounding out the defensive stars is Grady safety Julian Valle, who made nine tackles in Grady's loss to Blackwell.

Steers Spotlight

'Two-Way Zone' conquered

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Boldly, Kyle Carroll went where he had never gone before last Thursday.

Carroll advanced, perilously, into 'The Two-Way Zone' The Big Spring Steers' brain trust decided they needed Carroll's size, strength and experience on offense and defense. They then asked — or more likely, told — the big senior to play both ways against Lubbock Estacado.

"I was a little apprehensive," says Carroll, "because I wanted to concentrate one way. But it turned out real well. They've really got us in shape."

So you didn't get tired? "I've never been that tired in my life. In fact, remember that play when there were 12 men on the punting team? That was me, I totally blanked."

"But I held out. After a while I kind of got used to it," says the good-natured Carroll.

At 6-4, 250-pounds, and with a 400-pound bench press, Carroll's going to make an impact even when he's tired. Steers' coach Quinn Eudy said Carroll will continue to start at the offensive and defensive tackle spots, so the biggest Steer will be accustomed to 'The Two-Way Zone' before the year's over.

Though he remains apprehensive about playing both ways, he likes the opportunity to play offense and defense.

"I like defense better, but if I had the choice I'd play offense, so I could go to college. But there's nothing like hitting."

"On offense you have assignments and on defense it's kind of like controlled abandon. But I'm too slow for defense. I'm not kidding anybody. I can do the job, but I run about as fast as Belvin (Herald sports editor Steve Belvin) does," says Carroll, with tongue firmly implanted in cheek.

When Carroll says he's too slow for playing defense, he means playing defense in college. He's not too slow for high school defense, as he demonstrated in the big win against Estacado.

In the fourth quarter,

KYLE CARROL

Estacado was threatening to take the lead. The Matadors had the ball on the Steers' 15, and Carroll busted through the line for a four-yard loss. That put the Matadors in a passing situation, and effectively stopped the drive.

"That was one of the biggest plays in the game," said Eudy.

"That was a play where he read what he was supposed to do and busted his can getting it done. It was time to make a play then, and if you're good you do that."

Eudy praises Carroll's size and strength, and also his intelligence.

"He has the ability to learn quickly. He's got the potential ability to be a really great football player. He has the mental and physical ability. He'll be as good as he wants to be."

"I'm real pleased with him. We pushed him hard in the second game and he held up well," Eudy said.

If Carroll's progress continues, he could find himself at playing football for a major college next year. He's gotten letters from, among others, UCLA, Texas A&M, Iowa, TCU and Stanford. He has a B average, and would love the chance to attend Stanford, with its strong academic reputation.

Carroll also says he wouldn't mind Navy, because he'd like to be a pilot. He may be a little too big though — with Carroll in the cockpit, there might not be room for a co-pilot.

"I've gotten a bunch of letters. It's real flattering. All these colleges send me letters, but Coach (Scott) Knippa sends me back to earth," Carroll says.

"Coach Knippa is one of the main reasons I've improved. If it weren't for Coach Knippa I'd be just another player."

"Boy, he really gets on me in practice. It seems like when we're watching films, there's a 100 percent for everybody else and a Kyle Carroll 100 percent for me," Carroll says with a grin.

Knippa says his star pupil is "doing a super job."

"He's the leader on offense and he's learning he can go both ways and still perform. I think it's helped him, because he has to concentrate and keep his head in the game the whole time. He's finding out that, hey, he's mentally tough," Knippa says.

Unlike Sampson, Carroll's strength does not derive from a full head of hair. Though it's grown out some, Carroll started the season with a flat-top.

When asked about it, he laughs.

"It was kind of a McMahon-Boz thing. The coaches loved it. My barber tells me it started off a rash of crew cuts. A lot more people liked it than I thought they would," Carroll says.

He says there's a good possibility he'll give his barber the "take it all off" directive in the near future.

Bald or not, Carroll has one main goal for the year.

"First, I want a district championship. If I had a goal, it would be to not lose to a 2-4 team."

To achieve that goal, Carroll and the defense will have to play more like they did against Estacado than in their opening season 48-21 loss to El Paso Riverside.

"That will not happen again," Carroll says emphatically.

He looks like a big, happy football player. He has a right to be. He no longer has to fear 'The Two-Way Zone.' That's been conquered.

Canada wins hockey championship

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — After the "muckers and grinders" set the stage, Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux worked their magic one last time in the Canada Cup hockey tournament. The champagne corks soon were ricocheting off the dressing room ceiling, the juke box screaming rock 'n' roll and Canada once again was claiming universal hockey superiority following its 6-5 victory Tuesday night over the Soviet Union in the decisive game of the championship series.

Trailing 3-0 after eight minutes, Team Canada fought back with a determination that put the finishing touches to a three-week stint that will rate this tournament on a level close to the drama of the 1972 Summit Series, won by Canada on Paul Henderson's late-goal heroics in Moscow.

"It was a great goal," Henderson said of Lemieux's winning shot. "Even (former Soviet goaltending star Vladislav) Tretiak could not have stopped that one."

Dale Hawerchuk, cited as the Player of the Game, won a faceoff in the Canadian zone and got the puck ahead to Lemieux, who passed to Gretzky at center ice. Gretzky carried the puck into the Soviet zone on a 3-on-1 breakaway. He looked over and saw Lemieux and Murphy and put the puck on Lemieux's stick.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today presents some excellent opportunities for making solid and reasonable plans for the near future. If you don't seize these opportunities, you'll miss out on some considerable fortune.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use your talents to plan some valuable improvements to your property. Try not to be demanding with your family, but establish more harmony there instead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do some research which will help you to become more efficient. After running around all day, try not to drive tonight. This evening is best spent quietly at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Arrange your financial situation so that you can save more money for needed recreation, and try to be financially helpful to your mate. Be considerate and kind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Invite some interesting people into your home, but only those who you truly like. Be courteous and kind, and you can reap some really big rewards.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you would simply take the time to plan things out, some intimate desires can become realities. Plan your schedule so that cocktail time can be spent with a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) By spending just a little more money, you can gain that personal aim quite easily with the help of a family friend. Be generous at a group meeting for a charity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use your charm and magnetism to get some fine results and added prestige in the business world. Some introductions by a superior could be rewarding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get the OK of an expert, or a new plan could lose you a good deal of money. Listen, also, to your mate's advice, and turn possible failure into a big success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you enlist the aid of a good friend, a promise can be kept easily. Do something in the evening which will please your mate even though it may bore you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get a credit difficulty nicely settled by using tact and a little flattery. Get some advice from an associate which can help you get a public project moving rapidly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Some new business methods can help you improve profits and shine in the eyes of superiors. Although you feel that a trip should be cancelled, it needn't be.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Accept an invitation, but only if it includes your mate, and have a wonderful evening together. Be very careful in any motion today, driving or walking.

If Your Child Is Born Today
He or she will have much love for home and kin, and will do best when operating from that sphere. Much success can be wrought in such professions as home management, real estate, etc. Teach your progeny while young to keep the business and personal aspects of life well separated. Ethical and moral training are a must here.

Tax rate boosted

Martin County Commissioners raised tax rates Monday to make up for a decline in property values brought on by lower oil prices.

The Commissioners raised the tax rate 11 percent, from 27 cents per $100 in property value to 30 cents.

The Court was in its fourth all day session before hammering out the total budget for 1988. The 1988 budget will be $57,264 less than the current budget.

"We're happy it's over," Judge Bob Deavenport said, of the budget making process. "There were some tedious hours and a lot of head scratching over this."

Deavenport pointed out that the County is continuing to experience road maintenance problems due to heavy rains in 1986 and early 1987. Commissioners budgeted limited pay raises for some county personnel and voted county wide officials an increase of $100 per month.

In other action, the Court awarded bids for Sheriff's Department cars and a Road and Bridge pickup to Bevers Chevrolet of Stanton. Eiland and Associates of Stanton were awarded bids for County vehicle and property insurance. A bid for $5,600 from Waukesha-Pierce, Inc. for an emulsion heater tank was accepted.

In other action the court approved Sheriff and Constable fees and authorized advertising for bids for Law Enforcement and Public Officials Insurance.

Silver Haired Legislature foundation fund started

The Texas Silver Haired Legislature is launching a state-wide effort to implement the trust fund of the Silver Haired Legislature Foundation.

The first TSHL was created by an act of the 69th Texas Legislature in 1985. However, no State funding was provided for its operation so it has served as a strictly volunteer organization.

This group of 116 senior citizens of Texas was elected by its senior peers to bring the priority needs of elderly Texans to the attention of the Texas Legislature.

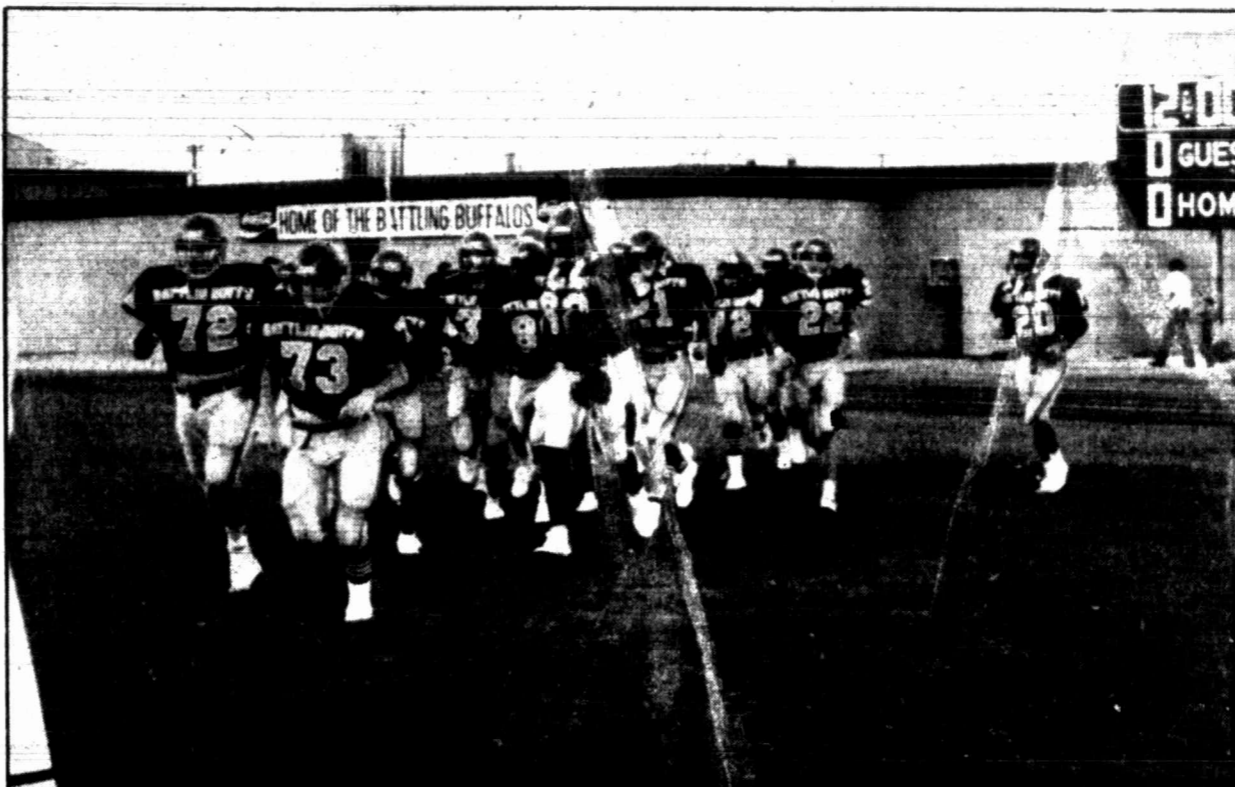

As the need for the funding of its operation became apparent, a tax-exempt foundation was created. The income from the Foundation's trust fund would then defray the operational costs of the Legislature in the future. The individual legislators would, however, continue to serve on a voluntary basis.

The constituency of the TSHL consists of an estimated 2.5 million citizens over the age of 60. It has been suggested that a donation of one dollar, or more, from each of these seniors would produce a trust fund of over $2.5 million dollars.

In an effort to achieve this goal, the TSHL is establishing temporary depository accounts in the name of the Silver Haired Legislature Foundation at local cooperating banks across the State where donations from all the citizens of Texas may be conveniently deposited. As funds accumulate in these accounts they will be forwarded to the Foundation Trust Fund in Austin.

The local depository accounts are located at First National Bank of Stanton. You are advised to contact your TSHL representative for any further information. He is Forest Scott, 1302 NW 8th Pl., Andrews, Tex., or call 915-523-2576.

STANTON 'STARS' — Here come the Buffalos led by Reggie Franklin (72) and Billy Don Cox (73) Friday night in Stanton. Buffs defeated Coahoma, 10-0.

TOUCHDOWN — A pitch from quarterback Skip Hopkins to Richard Jones, who scooted around end and over the goal from 17 yards out.

Buffalos blank Bulldogs, 10-0

To head Rangers off at pass?

Stanton fans will be whooping and hollering when the Buffalos rumble on the field to challenge the Greenwood Rangers Friday night in Greenwood. The game starts at 8 p.m.

The Rangers return three offensive and seven offensive starters from a 3-7 team last year.

The Buffalins' Buffs will be heavily favored to win the non-district contest.

The Reagan County Owls winged past the Rangers, 50-12. The slippery Owls, last year's 12-1-1 Class 2A semifinal team, looked awesome in Big Lake Friday night.

"Greenwood will be a tough game," said Stanton Head Coach Dale Ruth. "The two losses they have are deceiving, because they have good offensive and defensive units."

"They are very big, with six players weighing over 200 pounds and they are quick."

Ruth pointed out that Randy Donnell of the Rangers surprised the Owls by returning the opening kickoff 97 yards for a touchdown.

The quote of the season was voiced by Ruth following Stanton's clobbering of the Coahoma Bulldogs Friday night in Stanton.

"We've got a lot of football folks out here and it's good to win in front of them," he said. "We've got a good tradition and we've got to keep it going."

Billy Don Cox had it backwards. Cox, who played the entire game on the offensive and defensive lines, was one of the main reasons Stanton outrushed Coahoma 316 yards to 25 yards on the way to a 10-0 blanking of the Bulldogs Friday night in Stanton.

Cox, his face flushed and drooping with exhaustion, was asked for the key to his team's domination of the trenches.

He gave the wrong answer. "We couldn't have done it without the backs. It was all teamwork," Cox said.

Teammate Robert Schoolcraft, who started at center and middle-linebacker, corrected Cox. "They couldn't have done it without us," Schoolcraft blurted, laughing.

"In the first quarter we were down, but we came back and started dominating. They started started where they'd left off after the previous week's win over Seminole. Matt Rowell and Carlos Cervantes each had 13-yard runs, and the Bulldogs knocked off four first downs to reach first and goal on the Stanton nine.

The Bulldogs missed on two pass attempts and gained little on one run, forcing a field goal attempt. The kick was wide, and Coahoma never threatened again.

The Bulldogs would make only three more first downs the rest of the game, and one came on a Buffalos' penalty. Another came on the last play of the first half, and didn't help the Bulldogs' cause.

The Buffalos, meanwhile, did not start well. They lost a fumble on their first possession, but the Bulldogs coughed it right back up. The teams traded punts, and the quarter ended soon after the Buffalos' made their first first down.

From then on, it was all Stanton. Buffalos' quarterback Skip Hopkins, though he missed on all five pass attempts, directed the offense like the veteran that he is.

Hopkins ran for 13 yards on a naked bootleg to start the quarter, and speedy Steve Scurlark, who would finish with 100 yards rushing, had gains of 15 and 19 yards on the drive.

A good hit by Carlos Cervantes and an eight-yard sack by Scott Thomas halted the march, but the Bulldogs took over deep in their territory, on the four.

to get mad and that helped us a lot. I think we were in better shape than they were," Schoolcraft said. Maybe, maybe not. Certainly, though, the Buffalos did dominate after a quick Coahoma start.

The Bulldogs took the opening kickoff to their 41 yard line, and

Cap Rock incumbents re-elected

Three incumbents were re-elected to the Cap Rock Electric Cooperative board of directors at the co-op's 48th annual meeting Saturday night in Midland.

A total of 2,250 member-owners of the organization and their guests attended a barbecue dinner and business meeting in the Holiday Inn Convention Center. The event set an attendance record.

Re-elected to the Stanton-based co-op board were Robert Lange and Alfred Schwartz, both St. Lawrence farmers, and Sammie Buchanan, a Coahoma farmer.

Following the co-op business meeting, co-op member Douglas Lowe of Midland won a 1983 GMC S15 pickup truck in a random drawing. Lowe has been a member of the co-op 21 years.

The 1939-founded co-op, which buys its power from the investor-owned TU Electric, supplies electric power to about 8,000 member-customers, in a 13-county area in rural and suburban West Texas.

Rusty Jones, president of the board of directors, told members that new emphasis was being placed on the members' opinions and desires concerning the cooperative's services.

He stressed the need for improved communication with members and greater member involvement in cooperative plans, programs, and decisions.

Improved reliability and continuity of members' electric service was cited by Jones, as well as stability in the future price of electric service.

"The cooperative will consider providing some additional needed services for members, provided such services will not increase the members' electric bills," Jones said. He is a Midland and Martin County farmer.

General Manager David Pruitt told the crowd that electric service reliability has to take the highest priority.

"Members of the Cooperative are demanding and deserving of the highest quality service available," Pruitt said.

He promised the members improvement in problem areas, such as blinking problems, as well as improved performance in meter reading and billing services.

Pruitt further outlined a new priority on employee use of the old-fashioned golden rule when dealing with members and outlined plans for the development of advisory committees for the coming year to enable members to become a viable part of the cooperative and to participate in the workings and management of the co-op.

New bridge construction

The State Highway Commission has awarded a contract to Strickland and Knight of Big Spring for construction of the new bridge on FM 846 at the Sulphur Draw crossing.

Work on the project should start within 30 to 60 days. The contractor is currently waiting on materials. Total cost of the project is $218,725.

AN EXCITING EXPERIENCE OF A LIFETIME — Robert Jeffcoat, Energas manager in Stanton, and his charming wife, Wanda, recently completed a 3,500 miles tour on a motorcycle. The scenery was breathtaking. They participated in the national cycle rally in Knoxville, Tenn., attended the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, and talked with friendly people in Sevierville, Pigeon Forge and Gatlinburg, Tenn., toured parts of the Smokey Mountains, Ozarks and wheeled along sections of Kentucky, North Carolina, Missouri, Arkansas, and Oklahoma. They dined at many fine restaurants including "Po Folks" in Knoxville. The Stantonites also viewed the homes of western music stars "old and new"

On the second play, Rowell and Bulldogs' quarterback Curtis Hudson fumbled a pitch, and the Buffalos fell on Rowell in the end zone for a safety.

The Buffalos got two points and the Bulldogs punted to them, which is the greatest indignity about a safety. The Buffalos returned the punt to midfield, where the only scoring drive of the night began.

The speedy Scurllark ran for 15 yards to the 35, and four plays later, on fourth and six, he gained seven.

The score came on a perfectly timed pitch from Hopkins to Robert Jones, who raced around end and over the goal line from 17 yards out. The Buffalos went for two, and Hopkins took it in on a keeper. With 3:14 remaining in the half, the Buffalos led 10-0 — there would be no more scoring by either team.

The second half, like the second quarter, was all Stanton. The Bulldogs managed two first downs in the half, one on a Buffaloes' penalty, the other on a 23-yard halfback pass from Rowell to Darrel Hunt.

Bulldog fans, of which there were many, had one big moment to cheer. After Stanton punted on their first possession of the second half, the Bulldogs took over on their 25.

Hudson passed short to Donnie Paige near the middle of the field, and Paige made a great move towards the sideline where his blockers made a shield. Two blocks sent two Buffalos down, freeing Paige, who raced to the ten where he was brought down from behind. One of those blocks was a clip, however, and the ball came back to the 20.

Though Stanton didn't score in the half, the Buffalos moved the ball almost at will. Three Stanton runners finished with over 70 yards — Scurllark had 100; Jones had 85; and Kevin Barnes had 70.

Hopkins — as well as the offensive line — deserved much of the credit for those yards. The Bulldogs stopped the Buffalos early, and Hopkins started keeping the ball on the option. He kept the Bulldogs honest, and as a result his backs gained more and more on their runs.

Hopkins finished with 33 yards, despite a sack. His total was one yard less than that of Coahoma's leading runner, Rowell. The senior Bulldog had 34 yards, far less than his 193 yards of the week before.

"We were afraid of Coahoma," said Stanton coach Dale Ruth. "He (Rowell) was the man we had to stop and our defense did a super job. We felt like the key to the game was stopping him."

The only other back to gain for Coahoma was Cervantes, who finished with 15 yards. The Bulldogs gained 50 yards on the ground, but lost 25 on quarterback sacks.

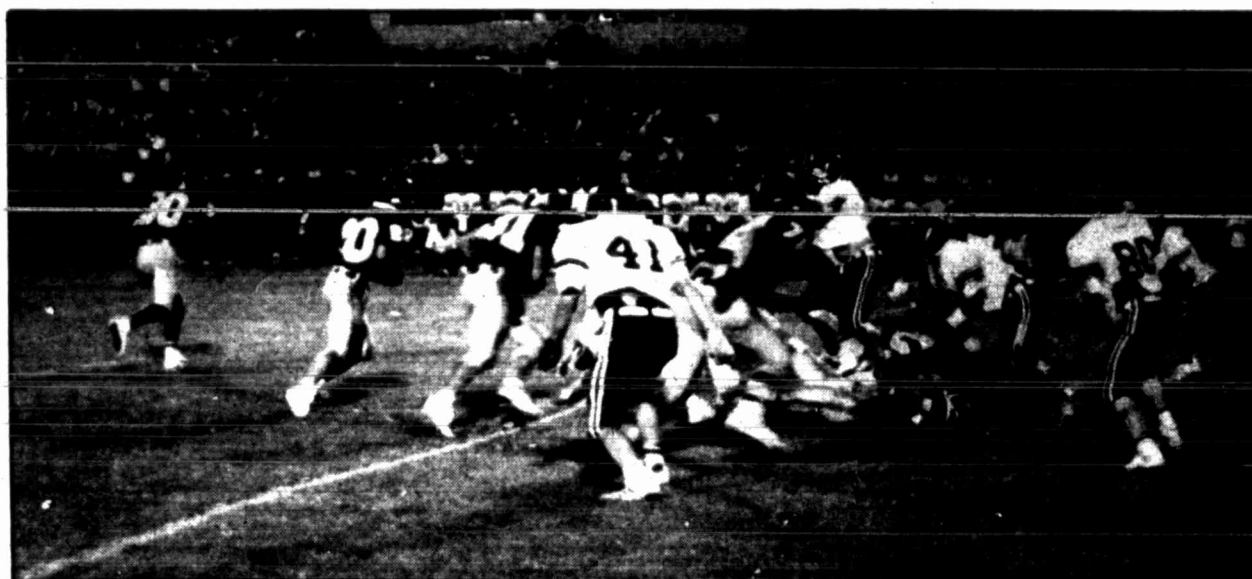

First year Coahoma coach Steve Park, who used to coach at Stanton, said the Bulldogs may have had a let-down after the win over Seminole. He also said the Buffalos were "too good all the way around."

"Monday we didn't practice too good — we were still kind of celebrating the win last week. We just didn't do a very good job getting ready for it," Park said.

For his part, Ruth said the Buffalos were "a completely different ballclub" from the one that beat Seagraves 12-7 last week in the final moments.

"Our line worked real hard this last week and did a super job. I was real pleased," Ruth said.

The Buffalos improved to 2-0 heading into next week's game at Greenwood. Coahoma fell to 1-1, and will play at home against Forsan next week.

HANDOFF — Stanton quarterback Skip Shopkins fakes pitchout to Robert Jones and hands off to Kevin Barnes. The play netted two yards.

New book helps kids

BY KATHRYN BURCH
County Extension Agent, H.E.
Martin-Glasscock Counties

On My Own is a new book at the County Extension Office by Lynette Long, Ph.D. The book has 125 activities to prepare children to take care of themselves when parents aren't home. You may check the book out of my office or you may want to get your own copy. There are a lot of fun ideas that will help your child be more responsible for himself whether he stays at home alone or not.

Young children who need to get dressed early each morning might try laying their clothes out on the floor beside their bed. Lay them out like a person so the child can easily see if any parts are missing.

If your child carries a key to the house, it should be worn around the neck, pinned to an inside of a pocket or attached to a chain or a belt loop and put in a pocket. Wherever it is kept, it should be out of sight. If you have a garage door opener, you might consider installing a touch pad opener. Then a key would not need to be carried.

After school snacks are certainly a part of latch key children's schedule. After you have considered all the "don'ts" — don't fry, don't cut with a sharp knife, don't cook in the oven, don't eat foods high in sugar — the list of what can be done that is like by kids is small. Peanut butter probably heads the list. Fresh fruit is a good choice. Yogurt, ice milk and cheese make good snacks. Probably the safest way for children to add to their snack menu is to learn to use the microwave. You could make a list of foods he wants to eat, the setting and time. Then teach him about steam burns from opening things that have been heated.

Good luck to you and your child. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Reunion sparks memories of James Madison Stacy

The descendants of William Lee and Willie Stacy Baugh met for a family reunion at Bronte, Texas, on Aug. 22.

Lee and Willie Baugh had 12 children and the late Edgar A. Baugh of Stanton was her oldest son. Their youngest son, Dick Stacy Baugh of Santa Anna, Texas, was in attendance. The two living daughters, Ruth Hibbits of Santa Anna, and Eula Bigham of California were not able to attend.

Several grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren were in attendance, including their oldest grandchild, Ona Baugh Hughes of Bronte and their youngest grandchild, Nancy Baugh Lowery of Bangs.

Those attending from Stanton were Inez Baugh Gilmore, Ruby Payne, Mike, Lance and Rory Payne and Celia Burrow.

One of the topics of the reunion was the Stacy Dam under construction near Paint Rock and Winters.

The name of Stacy has been familiar around here for sometime since we began to read about the proposed Stacy Dam, but in 1983 an ugly little snake raised its head and caused a commotion among the Environmentalists. This obstacle was overcome when the wiggly little creature was provided a high rise apartment for his protection.

But who was Stacy, the pioneer whose name is being spread throughout the land from maps to newspapers and magazines; and will ring in halls of the legislature forever more?

He was Morgan Stacy, born in Tennessee, son of Jesse and Carolyn Stacy, who left for Texas with their family in 1852, in the train of wagons with other relatives was James Madison Stacy, nephew of Jesse and first cousin of Morgan.

Now hereby hangs my story, Morgan and all of his children have been lost trace of but James Madison Stacy left a whole crew of descendants in Winters.

James Madison Stacy was drafted in the Confederate Army, leaving a wife and three small children at home to struggle for a living. He received no pay from the service and had to furnish all of his own clothes. He didn't come home during his three years of service but his wife Emily Ellen, visited him once. She had the complete responsibility for the farm. At night when the children were asleep, she spun cotton and wool and made all the clothing for her children, herself and her husband. After securing a certain tree bark for the dye, she dyed, cut and sewed the cloth into a beautiful brown suit and sent it to her husband in the Army; an officer insisted that Stacy sell him the suit, thinking his wife needed the money, he sold the suit and sent it to her. She was so deeply hurt that she cried and said she made the suit for her husband and no one else.

When the war was over, Stacy like all the men in the Army, walked home to La Grange, Texas. The later part of 1865 they moved to Old Moulton. Nine more children were born to them. October 23, 1892 they moved near Trickham, just as the big ranches began cutting up their land into 160 acre blocks for farm land. James Madison bought 160 acres of the vast Brooksmith Ranch. They lived there until he died in 1913. His wife died the following year. They raised 12 children and in 1956 there were over 400 descendants.

The children remembered visiting their grandparents when they lived just outside of Trickham. They had to cross a creek by walking over a swinging bridge and having dinner in their kitchen — which had a dirt floor. The floor was always swept clean and was as hard as a rock.

The Jesse Stacy family sold their farm in Fayette County and moved to the Trickham area where they bought five sections of land. They later sold this land and moved west of Rockwood to buy land on both sides of the Colorado River. The town of Stacy was established on this property by his son Malcom.

Reaching his twenties, Morgan Stacy was intrigued by the profits and excitement of the little village. Teamsters' wagons came almost every day, bringing the plows, the shoes and coal oil, the white sugar and calico, all necessities. He had the largest business, selling everything the growing prosperity of the valley might name. For awhile, the post office, name Stacy, was in a corner of this store, though later it was in a small house to the north.

Morgan Stacy's home was one of the finest, with gables, a porch rail and touches of wooden lace. For almost a generation there was prosperity but as hard times came the town declined until there was only a post office and cemetery remaining. The well kept Stacy Cemetery is around a curve. Not a Stacy gravestone is found. The Stacys have scattered so that not a one of their descendants has been discovered.

The dam being built there will be hundreds of yards long and three hundred foot high, made of rock, concrete and steel, a fabulous memorial carved in stone for Morgan Stacy.

A far greater memorial marks the life of James Madison Stacy — a living memorial that stand to bless the lives of others in his memory. Winters is fortunate to have so many of his descendants living there.

Stacy descendants who live in Stanton are Inez Baugh Gilmore, Ruby Gilmore Payne, Michael Payne, Lance Payne and Rory Payne. Other relatives living in Stanton are Doyleene Baugh and Lora Bell Tom.

VICTORY OVER CANCER, ARTHRITIS, ALZHEIMER'S & COLDS

GOLD STAKE USER'S REPORT

The story of GOLD STAKE, a trade named mineral nutritional supplement, started with Robert E. Craig who was suffering from throat cancer beyond the reach of surgery. He had a short time to live according to his doctors. Craig, a chemist, had heard that some minerals were effective in treating skin cancer and otherwise beneficial to health when taken internally.

I reduced my dosage to only two capsules and improvements remained. I am ecstatic over my greatly improved quality of life. Since I have taken no other medication, I credit Gold Stake as the sole reason.

— Jim Frankman, San Francisco, California. (415) 878-8936

A biopsy by a pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, Calif. showed Craig had a carcinoma on December 17, 1969. Craig returned to the lab and formulated the mineral supplement which is presently being marketed. On January 13, 1970 he returned to the same hospital for a repeat biopsy. This time the verdict was, "No evidence of malignancy." (Please note the short period between surgeries.) The only thing he had done in the interval was to take four capsules a day of the mineral supplement.

REMISSIONS NOTED

A Ph.D. physician working with the Department of Laboratory Medicine at the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Maryland said: "With our affiliation with the National Cancer Institute we have seen a wide variety of cancer patients and therapeutic approaches. I have spoken to, and have copies of letters from, physicians who have given Gold Stake to terminal ill cancer patients and noted remissions."

"The low toxicity and high therapeutic index makes this preparation — a highly useful adjunct in chemotherapeutic regimens."

The physician's name is withheld for discretionary reasons.

C. ALLEN JENSEN, owner of GOLD STAKE, said,

"We are pleased Gold Stake is helping people, but we insist it is to correct dietary mineral deficiencies only, not to treat or manage specific diseases.

Without the right minerals, plants become stunted, diseased and die. With them they flourish. People are the same.

Many health problems are caused by mineral deficiencies. If the problem goes away, we believe Gold Stake treated the cause — a mineral deficiency — not a disease which is the symptom caused by the deficiency. Every cell in our body needs minerals to be healthy. Gold Stake is the answer."

The compound contains ammonium sulfate, magnesium oxide, sodium hydroxide, potassium hydroxide, iron hydroxide, silicon dioxide, aluminum oxide hydrate, small amounts of zinc, copper and calcium, and various other minerals in trace quantities, below labeling requirements.

This distributor's own unequivocal statement is: "Senior citizens and those people desiring a higher quality of life would do well to take this mineral supplement to balance out our mineral deficient foods currently available today." The only side effects I have noted are increased energy, stabilized blood pressure and hair returning to natural color.

Additional user testimonials claim relief or remission from Lupus, Asthma, Spastic Colitis, Abnormal Blood, liver cancer, hemorrhoids, skin cancer, multiple myeloma, diabetes mellitus, AIDS, Epilepsy, Shingles, and lastly, some male users claim sexual potency being restored.

For sixteen years the product was tested and incidentally, Craig has used the product continuously with no harmful side effects.

Testimonials are the opinions of those who make them and not of Gold Stake.

DR. PAUL MONSLER, MORAGA, CALIFORNIA,

"We have found the Gold Stake elements to be extremely efficacious in catalyzing all nutrient assimilation and bypassing toxic blockages, rendering many of man's decadent afflictions harmless. Gold Stake is the most important supplement to come along in the past 75 years. It is a gift from God."

He has severe mental and physical damage yet but he knows all his family members and can answer most "common sense" questions. He can feed himself, say when he needs to go to the bathroom and has been up from bed most of the day, every day, since approximately two days after taking Gold Stake. I didn't think I would ever be able to write this.

— Charles W. Hannon, Sr., Columbus, Ohio, (614) 274-1034

FREEDOM FROM BACK PAIN, ARTHRITIS AND COLDS

Had excruciating pain in my lower back down both legs to my ankles. Examinations indicated a disc was ready to rupture. Prior to entering the hospital I started taking two Gold Stake Dietary Mineral Supplement capsules and started to feel much better. Pain in my back subsided and no more pain in my legs. In the hospital, tests showed my condition was reverting back to normal. No surgery was performed. I improved daily with an increased level of energy.

LAWRENCE H. TAYLOR, M.D. OF SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA

"Having reviewed the medical records and testimonial letters from the terminal cancer patients who have taken the dietary mineral supplement with excellent results, plus my observations of positive results experienced by my own patients, I believe anyone who has cancer would greatly benefit if they took the Gold Stake mineral supplement. My 72 year old patient with terminal multiple sclerosis, unable to work, has gone back to work and says every time she sees me, 'Praise the Lord for Gold Stake.'"

Last winter, the arthritis in my right hand was very painful. This winter, no pain. My Dad, 78 years old, had painful arthritis in his hands and hips. After Gold Stake he improved 90%. My 73 year old Mother with arthritis experienced the same. Both have an increase in energy and are happy with the results. The three of us have not had the flu or a cold this year. Everyone around us was ill, we remained intact.

Dr. Taylor said he has seen a number of critically ill patients, some with only days to live, improve or recover after taking the minerals.

ALZHEIMER'S VICTIM IMPROVES DRAMATICALLY

My brother, Paul, became bed-fast, didn't know his family and couldn't walk or stand up by himself. He lost weight and could not say when he had to go to the bathroom. He had to be fed and it was difficult to get him to eat. On February 5, 1987, in only two days on four capsules of Gold Stake per day, with help he could stand and walk.

CHRONIC LEUKEMIA SYMPTOMS GO COMPLETELY AWAY

I suffered poor health, mental depression, allergies, intestinal instability, diarrhea, bruises all over my arms, legs and chest, bad skin color and if I drank coffee, soft drinks or wine, I suffered weakness and trembling for as much as two weeks.

— Dorothy Stevens, Fraser, Michigan, (313) 296-7268.

August 2, 1985, I started 4 capsules a day. In 3 days I experienced a tremendous increase in energy. My mental outlook and faculties improved 100%. My skin color became normal, no more bruises and the intestinal instability and diarrhea stopped. If I drank coffee, soft drinks or wine, no more trembling or weakness.

Additional general and specific testimonial information is available for $1.00 by mail.

Odorous house ants information

By RICHARD MINZENMAYER Extension Agent-Entomology (PM) Martin, Midland & Howard Counties

Ants are social insects that are easily distinguished from other insects because their body regions are distinctly defined by very narrow attachments.

The abdomen is attached to the thorax (segments bearing the legs) by a one or two segmented slender attachment called a petiole.

Ants may have one or two bumps or nodes on their petioles, depending on the species. They have large distinct heads with elbowed antennae, easily seen eyes, and chewing mouthparts.

The first antennal segment is long and is attached at right angles to the rest of the antenna which is segmented and may end in a club.

Ants use their chewing mouthparts for constructing nests, gathering food or defending the colony, but they feed solely on liquid foods.

Odorous house ant workers are brown to black and 1/8-inch long. The thorax does not have spines and the petiole has only one segment. The petiole has a very small node that is hidden by the rest of the abdomen. The best identifying characteristic is the "rancid butter" smell these ants produce when they are crushed, thus their name.

Odorous house ants are native ants that often nest outdoors under stones or logs. They can also nest indoors in wall or floor voids, especially around head sources. These ants are much like Pharaoh ants in that they seldom swarm, mating in the nest and forming new colonies by "budding" off the original colony. Each nest will have several females, each of which lays one egg a day. The eggs hatch in 11 to 26 days, the larval stage takes 13 to 29 days and the pupal stage lasts eight to 25 days.

Odorous house ants are like Argentine ants in that they travel in trails and prefer sweets although they will eat almost any household food. They usually invade homes during rainy periods when honeydew on plants has been washed off.

Odorous house ants prefer sweets but they are not easily controlled using sweetened baits. They most effective control is accomplished when ant trails are followed to find the nest. The nest can be treated with residual insecticide sprays or dusts. Bendiocarb, carbaryl, chlorpyrifos, diazinon, fenitrothion, malathion, propetamphos, propoxur, pyrethrins plus diatomaceous silica gel, and resmethrin can be used to control odorous house ants.

Ninth Wonder-er of World

"Nobody knows the trouble I've seen" the past week. I bought a new camera that didn't perform as advertised. I drove my car over curbing and smashed out glass in front door of the Stanton Herald. I will furnish details on request.

"Get a horse" and "how stupid" were some of the remarks sparked by the mishap. Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport provided the topper with "Walt, I see you had your grand opening."

WALT FINLEY

A news story Friday listed the Eight Wonders of the World. Actually there are nine, and one of them is in the Herald newsroom.

The ninth is my publisher, John What's-His-Name, he says "I wonder what it is that you do around here."

Lee Evans, who digs fishin' and fiddlin', once dreamt something which was so astounding while snoozin' near Red River he decided to get up and write it down.

He did, and the next morning when he looked at the pad, he found he had written:

I must write that down.

Smiling, the new golfer replied "Oh, I shot a 13."

The old-timer scratched his head and asked "What do you mean?"

"Well, I'm new at this game," he said, "and I always buy a bucket of balls, and before today the most I've ever made it was to the 9th hole."

"But today before I ran out of balls, I made it to the 13th hole."

It's called "Love me or leave me."

You say you love me but sometimes you don't show it. In the beginning, you couldn't do enough for me.

Now you seem to take me for granted...some days I even wonder if I mean anything to you at all.

Maybe when I'm gone you'll appreciate me and all the things I do for you. I'm responsible for getting food on your table, for your clean dress, for the welfare of your relatives...a thousand and one things you want and need.

Why, if it weren't for me, you wouldn't even have a car. I've kept quiet and waited to see how long it would take for you to realize how much you really need me.

Cherish me...take care of me, and I'll continue to take good care of you.

Who am I? I am your job.

Stopping buck easier said

By ART BUCHWALD

When President Reagan told the country that the buck stops in his office, he wasn't kidding.

"Mr. President, the five countries in Central America have just signed a peace plan to make the Nicaraguans and the Contras stop fighting."

"Did I know anything about it?"

"No, sir, you didn't."

"Well, that's where you are wrong. Everything that happens winds up here on this desk."

"Yes, sir, I almost forgot."

"Can we still supply the Contras under the plan?"

"No, sir, and the Soviets and Cubans can't supply the Sandinistas. The five countries want everybody out of Central America."

"What kind of peace treaty is that?"

"It's a terrible one. That's why I brought it to you — because the buck on this one stops with you."

"Of course, it does. This is a presidential decision that only the elected leader of all the people can deal with."

"You're right as rain, sir. What do you want to do now?"

"Think it through. When the buck stops on my desk I don't just throw it back without thinking about it. I want to know how we can abide by the terms of the treaty and also supply the Contras with weapons and non-military support."

"We can always sell snowmobiles to Iran."

"We did that once and it didn't work. Do you know why? Because the buck stopped with Admiral Poindexter instead of with me. Had I been in charge of the buck I would have never let Colonel North do so many good, bad and ugly things. I didn't know what was going on, but I should have because that's what Presidents are for."

"Yes, sir, Mr. President. Do you want to send our people to Central America to find out what is going on there?"

"I do if it's clearly understood that it is my decision to do so. If there is anything I hate it's people thinking I don't know what is going on. What's this buck doing on my desk?"

"It's the trillion-dollar budget you're offering the country."

"That isn't my budget. I won't take the blame for it."

"You're going to have to, sir. You've insisted that the buck halts here and that includes the finances of the country."

"The free-spending Democrats are responsible for this budget. How many times have I said fiscal matters don't stop with me?"

"If you insist, sir, you can say that, but it looks bad after announcing that you make all the decisions in the White House."

"Couldn't we arrange to have the budget presented as a covert operation through a bank in Switzerland with a presidential finding?"

Trade bills create potential barriers

Illinois Democrat Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of a joint House-Senate conference committee attempting to reconcile separate trade bills from each chamber, has told committee members that "it's time to put partisanship and political grandstanding aside."

But if congressmen were really interested in putting partisanship and grandstanding aside, neither trade bill would have passed in the first place. Both bills create new trade barriers that could trigger retaliation from other countries and start a trade war.

'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free'

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Over the door of our public library are the words, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Someone told me they thought these words came from the Bible. Is that true? If so, what do you think they really mean? — K.R.

DEAR K.R.: Yes, these words were spoken by Jesus Christ; you can find them in John 8:32. The version you quote is from the King James translation of the Bible.

Although these words are frequently used as a general statement about truth of any kind, Jesus actually was referring to His own message. Just before the words you quoted He declares to His followers, "If you hold to my teaching, you are really my disciples."

Then He says, "Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free" (John 8:31-32). In other words He is claiming that His words are truth, and if we follow Him we can be set free.

Free from what? The rest of the Bible makes it clear that we're not only bound by ignorance, but also enslaved by our own selfishness and sin. Christ claimed He can set us free from these. Elsewhere He boldly stated, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me" (John 14:6).

These claims are far too serious to dismiss without a thought. They deal with the most crucial issues of life and death — the questions of why we are here, how we should live, and where we will go when we die.

But did Jesus have any right to make such claims? Certainly! He was God's only Son, sent from Heaven to make it possible for us to be forgiven and reconciled to God. He proved it by rising from the dead.

Perhaps you've never thought much about the claims of Jesus Christ in your own life. Don't neglect Him any longer, but by faith ask Him to come into your life and commit yourself to Him and His truth.

Frank Gonzales, alias "Coahoma Kid," just came in with the name of the ultimate deodorant for bull fighters:

Right Gored

Nathan Poss, back from touring the country, suggests:

"If you get up Alaska way to see the pipeline, be sure to stop in at a Derrick Queen and ask the polar bartender for a Frozen Tundra. One and you're oiled, two and the northern lights go out."

Unfortunately, he adds a question:

"If Mrs. Olsen lived in Switzerland and was pushing margarine would she be called 'the oleo lady?'"

COAL WEEKEND DUE FOR STATE

—Headline

That could be what we call a "standing headline" which we could use much of the fall.

So backshop Bob Rogers, maybe you guys in the composing room might want to put it in a handy place and each weekend you can get the head out.

A Texas teacher speaking on the radio regarding reports that some teachers are drawing unemployment checks during the summer vacation split an infinitive.

My banking aunt, Leona Daniels, reports:

"Congress, with an unusual burst of speed after four years of investigation, found the herd of caribou that had been using the right-of-way of the Alyeska pipeline for sleeping and other purposes would not be hindered by the project."

"We will yet have North Slope oil — four years later than we should have."

That has a hint of an idea for Frank Sinatra's next big hit: "I Don't Caribou for a Caribou, All I Care About Is You."

J.D. Harris, who keeps swinging for a hole-in-one, notes:

Novice golfers are a dime a dozen, though some are not as bad as others. One newcomer to the game was exuberant over a recent score.

"What did you shoot?" an oldtimer asked:

Taxpayers 'sold down the bayou'

Whether or not they are football fans, when Houstonians analyze the Oilers' threat to move to Jacksonville, Fla., next season, the whole issue boils down to business deals.

Bud Adams and his football team want a better lease agreement from the Houston Sports Association, which controls Astrodome wheeling and dealing.

The HSA, in turn, has an unbelievable agreement with Harris County that gives it more control over the Oilers' fate than it rightly deserves. Indeed, the contract that county commissioners handed HSA on a silver platter rules out the firm hand of our elected officials having any effective influence whatsoever in the efforts to keep the Oilers in Houston.

Taxpayers supposedly own the Astrodome and are prevailed upon to pay most or all of the cost of new seats and various other improvements.

Yet Commissioners Court sold the interest of taxpayers down the bayou when it approved such a generous contract with HSA. This ranks as one of the worst good-ol'-boy deals since the Allen brothers hit town 151 years ago. ...

The Houston Post

Calls for glasnost with young pilot

For once, it is possible to agree with a Soviet prosecutor: The defense claim that young Mathias Rust flew his puddle-jumper plane into Red Square in the cause of "world peace" was desperate hokey — the feat had all the ideological and diplomatic content of a 1950s panty raid.

But now that the West German youth has been convicted and sentenced, there should be sufficient outcry from the world community to shame the Kremlin for punishing what was obviously a prank with a four-year sentence at hard labor.

Perhaps the four-year sentence was seen as the only way for the Soviet Union to save face. ...

Now that Rust has been sentenced and put on hold, he may prove more useful for a benevolent propaganda gesture that would win more points for glasnost.

Such as, for instance, a holiday pardon from kindly old Uncle Mitya. "Now that you've learned your lesson, Matt, go home to your family, young fellow. Peace on earth, good will toward men. ..."

Dallas Morning News

Says border towns can't ignore law

It was hardly to be expected that the new Texas law requiring that Mexican citizens driving vehicles in the state carry liability insurance would be received without complaint in Mexico: Thus, a threat last week from officials of the ruling Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI) to stage a boycott to protest the law was less than surprising.

What is surprising is the report that police in two Texas border cities are not enforcing the law:

According to The Associated Press, Brownsville and McAllen are simply issuing warning tickets to Mexican motorists who are found to lack insurance coverage.

Granted, any regulation which makes it more difficult for Mexican citizens to visit this country will have an adverse impact on merchants in border communities. The mandatory-insurance law is now on the books, however, and the communities in question have no business overlooking it.

Corpus Christi Caller-Times

Says Texans are getting message

Included in the encouraging development over the Labor Day weekend is that Texans appeared to have received "the message."

The message is that speeding, drinking alcoholic beverages while on the highway and failure to wear seat belts are major contributing factors to road deaths.

The Department of Public Safety reported citizens of this state by and large heeded warnings about highway safety. Twenty-four people died on Texas highways (during the Labor Day weekend), 18 fewer than predicted.

May this lower-than-expected death toll set a downward trend. Let the message continue to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and far beyond.

BE SURE YOUR CHILDREN'S VOCABULARY INCLUDES THE WORD "NO"

It's time to send your children off to school again, to prepare them for the world they must one day confront. The school will do a good job of this, but your cooperation is also needed in order to make sure that they don't learn the wrong things. As everyone knows, we are living in an era where drug abuse is rampant, and the children are being lured into this trap at a shockingly early age. Don't fail to warn them about this, as a part of their preparation for the new school year, for it can be vastly more important than their clothes or books. Moreover, you can reinforce your efforts by enrolling them in the Sunday school at your House of Worship. With all this, you can rest assured that the vocabulary your children develop in school will include the proper use of the word "NO", as the password to a happier, healthier and longer life.

IN STANTON — The Sawday family packed all of their belongings in Van Horn and headed for Russellville, Ark., to stay with relatives while seeking jobs. The transmission of their van went out near Stanton. They parked in the parking lot of C and C Grocery near SH 137. "We sold enough of our property to buy a used transmission," said Roy Sawdy. "The people in Stanton were very nice and many offered to help. We are thankful." Left to right, are Floyd Sawdy, Dorothy Sawdy and Roy Sawdy.

Ex-Round Rock legislator will seek TRC position

Former State Rep. Ed Emmett of Round Rock announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for Texas Railroad Commissioner, vying for the seat currently held by Democratic incumbent Jim Nugent.

Vowing to put Texas on the right track, Emmett told reporters at a news conference at Midland Regional Airport that the commission, which regulates the state's energy and transportation industries, should play an active role in revitalizing the energy industry in Texas.

"At this time, when the Texas energy industry is in a critical condition, the Railroad Commission must exercise real leadership in getting drilling rigs working again," Emmett said in a prepared statement. Emmett, who served as Chairman of the House Committee on Energy during the 69th legislative session, said he agrees with newly appointed Commissioner Kent Hance that the commission can play a vital role in proposing and developing a national energy policy.

"Too frequently, in recent years, the commission has failed to act decisively and with foresight, thereby creating major problems. Natural gas prices have been artificially driven down because the commission has not taken a strong stand to protect the rights of mineral owners and producers," Emmett said.

As a legislator and private citizen, Emmett has worked for economic deregulation of the Texas trucking industry as well as for stronger truck safety standards.

He lost in the 1986 primary election for the spot on the commission and currently is the executive director of the Texas Association to Improve Distribution, a statewide organization dedicated to economic deregulation of the trucking industry.

Emmett contends that local businesses are at a disadvantage because of high intrastate trucking rates in comparison to out-of-state firms. And, he says the high interstate trucking rates have seriously hampered economic development.

"Businesses have moved out of Texas or refused to locate here because our intrastate trucking rates set by the Railroad Commission are so much higher than the interstate rates which are set by free market competition," Emmett said.

"Even though business and consumer groups from all across the state have called for economic deregulation of Texas trucking, the incumbent has scornfully opposed all changes," he added. "Texas must be made into a competitive business location again. That will happen only through leadership, not narrow mindedness."

Chamber Chatter

By GERRY YARDLEY
Go, Wildcats! Yea, Buffs! Say, we enjoyed that first home-game of this season... especially since it was a winner. The fans were many and so enthusiastic. Let's all go to Greenwood next Friday and boost the Buffs on to another victory; or let's go to Grady and boost those Wildcats to victory over Highland.

And say, how about that supper served in the SHS cafeteria before the game Friday evening? I believe some local, deserving organization will be preparing suppers before each home game and we need to support these groups. The weekend of our Fair next month Grady and Stanton both will be playing at home and the Chamber will be fixing the supper. Please plan now to come up and eat with us before going on to the game you want to watch. NEED AND APPRECIATE YOUR SUPPORT.

Now I was just a bit surprised at the usual great crowd at the annual Cap Rock meeting last Saturday night. I guess because it meant going to the city meetin' place for us country folks from Martin, Howard and Glasscock counties that I thought many of us would just stay home. But, WOW, the people came in droves (and cars and pickups) and the food was dee-licious! Thanks, Cap Rock!

Have you been driving down a Stanton street very recently and noticed something new and nice? I noticed right away that several vacant lots that had grown up in weeds have been mowed and the businesses and entire neighborhoods look just great. Maybe next summer we can get this done before Old Settlers weekend. Thanks...whoever.

Some of the barrel planters that the Chamber placed in downtown last year are still blooming and pretty, thanks to the merchants.

Some of them have sorta fallen by the wayside due to neglect. But what is so disheartening is how some folks use them as trash containers. Even if the plants once planted in them have died and dried none should discard old paper cups or soft-drink cans and/or paper in them.

CALLING ALL STUDENTS: Maybe you boys and girls in elementary and Jr. High would sorta form a Volunteer Barrel Patrol and if you see someone — especially near your own age — throwing trash in a barrel you would ask them to use a proper container. There is a trash container near the drug store provided by the city — Let's use it. Thanks, everyone, who helps keep downtown Stanton attractive and clean.

Say, have you heard our Local sponsor of the Baylor Bear football games on radio? Would you ever guess that it is Paige Eiland of Eiland and Associates. Thanks, Paige, for those hours of entertainment each weekend.

We have over a dozen new members from the push and letters by Larry Elliott and his committee recently. If you are not a member of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce we would welcome you, the joining fee for the remainder of 1987 is not much, and we even provide you with a membership plaque. JOIN US.

It was love at first sight in Martin County cotton patch

Chalmer Wren and Marguerite Shippey fell in love while pickin' cotton in Martin County. It was love at first sight. Nearly 50 years later they still have that same feeling.

The Wrens were married on Sunday, Sept. 19, 1937 in Monahans. However, since their three sons are scheduled to work on this date, the golden wedding anniversary celebration was held in Stanton on Sept. 6.

Chalmer was born and raised on the farm on which he now resides. Marguerite was born in Water Valley, Miss. Her family moved to Port Lavaca when she was three-years-old. She later moved to West Texas.

"We met while pullin' cotton," Chalmer recalls. "You know the old fashion way, hooked up to cotton sack. There was only 40-inches between me and my future wife."

"It was love at first sight. The love is still the same. We have spent many happy years together."

After marriage the Wrens worked at different jobs. Chalmer remembers working on a ranch near Mertzon for $1 a day. Marguerite worked at the ranch for the same pay.

World War II caused some changes to be made in the Wren family, as it did with most Americans. Chalmer served in the Army for three years. When he received his discharge he decided to return to farming. He farmed in Martin County until his retirement in 1970.

The three sons of the Wrens served in the military. Chalmer Jr. was in the U.S. Air Force and carried the rank of captain. Bobby Lewis was in the Marines and served as corporal. Glenn Allen was in the Army as corporal.

Chalmer and Marguerite have four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

"We have worked hard," Chalmer said, "but we have no regrets. We hope to celebrate our 60th anniversary and still be able to ride my mules."

'What do we have to sell as a community?'

Dear Editor:
 About four years ago I moved back to Stanton. Since that time I have heard the desire of a few people to see Stanton grow or have listened to the complaints of how the town is dying.

If you will think about it, down-town Stanton has a few new businesses that have opened up in the last two years. I grant you that some are barely making it, but with a little growth they will make it happen. This brings up the question: "What do we have to sell as a community?" After living in ten different towns outside of Stanton (six since 1969), I think I am able to mention a few selling points for Stanton.

Stanton is on a major rail system, on an interstate highway and just 20 miles from another to be completed in the near future. Stanton is 30 miles from a national air terminal that has potential to become an international terminal. Within 40 miles there are three commercial-size trade areas. The fishing is a little farther away, but can reach about seven different lakes within 100 miles.

One of the good points is that Stanton is one of the cleanest small towns I have ever seen. This comparison is made with towns all across Texas, most of Oklahoma, Western Kansas and Eastern New Mexico. Stanton has summer recreation for youth, and you will have to look a long way to find a small town with a skating rink like we have here and the quality of management it has had.

The school facilities are very good with a quality organization. The safety factor for the citizens is excellent. This can be attributed to the efficient law enforcement organization for the county and city. Don't laugh — how many bank robbers ever got away! Martin County has one of the best "Peace Officers" in the state. The layout of the city itself is good and is kept clean. Credit here can be given to the city and the citizens as a whole. The cotton gins are out of town, which helps keep it clean and provides a healthier atmosphere through the year.

Stanton has at least nine churches in the community. There is a church to every three to four hundred people. This should reflect a community with high moral and ethical standards.

The next question is "who cares?" besides the people in Stanton. How about the people who are looking for a quiet, clean, small town for retirement. They tell me there is a top-notch Senior Citizens Center in town. Senior Citizens, when you go on your excursions, "sell Stanton." "Chamber of Commerce," put ads in AARP publications and test the response.

How about Stanton for a "bedroom" community for those people that work in Big Spring, Midland and Odessa that care about the safety, schools, and clean social order for their children. Greenwood is built on that aspect. You may say that Stanton is too far away. Try living around Oklahoma City, Dallas, Austin and others and see how long it takes to get to work. Did you know there are people in Lubbock that drive 15 to 20 miles a day to work.

When an article is published in the Midland or Odessa paper about a company coming back into this area, how about a contact with that company or placing an ad in that city's paper advertising Stanton.

This letter is just to promote a few thoughts on what we have to sell and maybe an idea on how to start selling.

One might ask: "How about our own business community? Well, there is a phenomena about business and economics theory that is a mystery to some; that is, that business grows on population and population grows from business. The catalyst is the people."

Stanton Bandits grab softball championship

The Stanton Bandits seized the men's softball tournament championship in Big Spring and Wally Hazelwood captured the most valuable player award. Other Bandits making the all-tournament team were Kevin Glaspie, Darren Sorley and Joe Kropp. The Stanton Cajuns ended up in second place. To earn the right to tangle with the Bandits, Todd Smith of the Cajuns belted an inside the park homer with the bases loaded and the score tied at 7-7 with a Big Spring team in the sixth inning. Dennis Tofano, Manuel Rodriguez and Steve Herm of the Cajuns team were selected for all-tournament honors. The Big Spring Astros nabbed third place. Two members of the team, Rudy Hilario and Rodney Murphy, were named all-tournament. Filling out the all-tournament picks were Craig Neighbors from the Big Spring Saints, who placed fourth and Ronnie Schornie of the Big Spring Sandstormers, a fifth place finisher.

Blackwell stings Grady

BLACKWELL — The Blackwell Hornets outweighed the Grady Wildcats by approximately 30 pounds per man, and the size difference was too much as the Hornets beat the Wildcats 37-13. "The whole defense played pretty good; Blackwell just outweighed us by 30 or 40 pounds per man. They weren't that special; they just ran over us," Grady coach Mike Mathis said.

The Wildcats, almost all of whom are sophomores, got touchdowns from Tim Stone on a three-yard run; and an 11-yard pass from Scott Glaze to Scott Terrell. "Our kids played real well on defense — we had some good hitters. If we had played as good on offense as we did last week we would have beat them," Mathis said.

Last week, Grady lost 51-37 to Trent. For Blackwell, Shawn Murphy ran for 140 yards and three touchdowns, including a 47-yard score. Grady, which plays Highland at home next week, fell to 0-2. Blackwell improved to 2-0.

Rees rushes for 193; Wolves scalp Indians

SEMINOLE — Beau Rees ran for 193 yards and the Colorado City defense stifled the Seminole offense as the Wolves pounded out a 21-7 win Friday night in Seminole. Rees scored on a four-yard plunge in the second quarter. The PAT missed, and the Wolves took a 6-0 lead into the half.

Seminole scored its touchdown with under a minute remaining. Chris Perkin intercepted for the Wolves, who improved their record to 2-0 heading into next week's battle against Post at home. Seminole, which lost to Coahoma last week, dropped to 0-2.

"WE FIND THE JOY IN LIVING IS NOT IN KEEPING, BUT IN GIVING."

Stanton Chapter #409, Order of the Eastern Star would like to take this opportunity of expressing our sincere THANKS to each and everyone who helped in any way, by donations of time, money, food, but most of all, for your presence Saturday night at the Cap Rock Auditorium for our Barbeque; for without each of you taking a part, our project would not have been such a success.

We would like to offer SPECIAL THANKS to Michael Payne and his band for donating their time and talent for a very successful project. Also, for Michael's talent in helping us auction off our cakes (made from scratch) by the ladies of our Order.

To Cap Rock Electric, for the use of their beautiful facilities. We're all looking forward to next year and hope each of you will come again for another great time of fun and fellowship. Two win chili cook-off honors; Terlingua next

Two employees of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative in Stanton were top-place winners in the Roadrunner Chili Cook-Off in Fort Stockton Labor Day.

Ken Large, Cap Rock engineer, won first-place in the event and J. A. Luxton, Cap Rock lineman, took second-place.

The men took top honors in a field of 36 cooks.

The Championship Chili Cook-Off takes place in November in Terlingua. To be eligible for this event, each cook must have earned 12 points at local cook-offs during the year.

First-place chili gives the cook four points toward the championship event and second-place awards three points. Being placed third earns a cook two points and places four through 10 is awarded one point.

The points earned in the Fort Stockton Cook-off gave both Large and Luxton the points needed for eligibility in the championship event.

Dr. Phil's pet advice

Dear Stanton,

I want to thank everyone who has shown me a "warm welcome" here in Stanton.

I'm excited and anxious to get "Stanton Veterinary Clinic" off and running.

I admire Dr. Nancy Adkins for being somewhat of a "pioneer" and starting a practice where there has definitely been a need for many a year. I am willing to continue that effort. I hope to expand though, in a full time "mixed" practice.

As we approach the Fall season, there are certain preventative health measures to consider.

With cool weather approaching, all animals are prone to respiratory infections, if they are immunologically deficient. They should be in good flesh, free of internal and external parasites, and have adequate shelter.

Annual vaccinations are always important this time of year, if they are not up to date.

The on-going problem of rabies still creates "scares" from time to time. The wild animals carrying this virus will tend to be out and about as it gets cooler. All dogs, cats and horses should be boosted for this disease annually.

A disease that has surfaced in the last few years, more so than before, is Equine Encephalitis. This can easily be prevented by vaccination.

Mosquitoes serve as the transmitting agent for this disease and with the recent rains, we have had some cases reported.

Remember, there is a high mortality with the disease.

Signs include fever, dizziness, nervous twitching, circling, listlessness, paralysis, incoordination and death.

The incubation period is four to six weeks with the course of the disease lasting one to three weeks.

Other diseases that can be confused with Equine Encephalitis are tetanus, fungal toxicosis, poisoning (plant and chemical), hepatitis and rabies.

Distemper in dogs is still a disease that must be reckoned with. To most people's surprise, it can affect the old as well as the young. The disease is viral in origin and highly contagious.

Signs can include fever, depression, diarrhea, nervous system complications, sneezing, coughing, runny eyes and cracked pads on the bottom of the feet. The signs will vary from mild to severe. The treatment is non-specific, so prevention through annual vaccination is recommended.

Finally, gastrointestinal viruses can still cause a good number of losses in Texas.

The most common virus that is dealt with over the last few years is Parvo Virus. It causes a severe intestinal upset with vomiting and djarrhea (usually hemorrhagic).

The treatment is strictly supportive with IV fluids and antibiotics and can become quite expensive. Again this disease is easily prevented with an annual vaccination. This disease is highly contagious. It is also spread by such items as your clothing, food and water bowls and bedding.

This is only the tip of the iceberg as far as health problems in West Texas. These are some of the more important disease entities this time of the year.

Remember, you need not worry about any of these diseases if your animals are kept free of internal and external parasites. All animals should be de-worked routinely, especially those confined to small areas. Keeping the environment clean and free of parasites is just as important as treating the animal.

That's all for this time. If you have any questions or problems, give me a holler or come by. I'm in the office every day except Sundays.

Thanks again for your support! Dr. Phil.

Classifieds were around when the Constitution was written.

The first newspaper ads were small listings very much like today's Classifieds. They were effective 200 years ago and they are even more effective today. Classified advertising has been an integral part of newspapers for hundreds of years.

Superconductor info must remain open

President Reagan personally addressed 2,000 businessmen, engineers and scientists who gathered in Washington to discuss commercial applications of a newly discovered class of superconductors.

These are materials that lose all resistance to the flow of electrical current when cooled below a "critical temperature."

The president's presence symbolized the government's determination to slug it out with the Japanese in the commercialization of this dazzling new technology.

But the president began with a line he has used before: "I have to confess that I am one of those people who, when the government offers to help, get very nervous."

I had exactly the same reaction when he described the "help" the administration had in mind. There was much to praise in the speech, but three things troubled me.

It ignored the international nature of superconductor development. It proposed to funnel much of the government's research effort through the Department of Defense. And it raised the specter of increased government secrecy.

First of all, superconductor research has been an international effort from its very inception. It is a modern parable of the progress that can be made in the absence of nationalistic barriers.

A new superconducting material was discovered by scientists in Zurich a little over a year ago. Unlike previously known superconductors, which are metals, it was a ceramic — and its critical temperature was the highest ever seen.

The Swiss team published the full details of their work in an international journal. Among those who read their paper were scientists in Tokyo and Beijing. Within a few months, both groups had confirmed the Zurich results. The race was on.

The next big breakthrough came a few weeks later from the University of Houston. A group of Chinese and Chinese-American scientists in Houston discovered a change in composition that raised the critical temperature higher still.

People began to talk seriously about the prospect of superconductivity at room temperature. The commercial and scientific implications are staggering. The critical temperature continues to rise as important discoveries come from Berkeley, Paris, Karlsruhe and dozens of other sites around the world.

Even before the president spoke, however, a tiny cloud had already appeared over this scene of international cooperation. The president's science adviser made the decision to exclude foreign officials from the Washington meeting — though the foreign press was allowed to cover it in detail.

The gloom deepened when the president announced that DOD would lead a $150-million R&D effort in superconductors. It is no secret that this conference was motivated by the fear that the Japanese would get to the marketplace first with commercial applications. But it is thoroughly wrong-headed to rely on DOD to counter that threat.

The Japanese, after all, have no military research or development worth mentioning — and yet they've been eating our lunch in high-technology sales.

And what about the Soviet Union, our No. 1 military competitor? The "evil empire" is a pussycat in the world's high-tech markets. There is simply no correlation to be found between a nation's spending on military research and its strength in private-sector markets.

Moreover, the president's own Commission on Industrial Competitiveness in its 1985 report concluded that DOD is a "net consumer" of new technologies. What they're saying is that military development relies on spin-offs from civilian research — and not the other way around!

Our high-tech edge over the Soviets, the real basis of our national security, stems from the creative energies of IBM, Bell Labs, Texas Instruments and scores of other companies striving to make a profit in a ruthlessly competitive private-sector economy — not from coddled government contractors with their cost over-runs and $600 toilet seats.

Finally, military developments, even if they have the potential to benefit the private sector, are necessarily cloaked in secrecy, delaying their use for civilian purposes beyond the period in which they might confer some advantage.

Yet the president wants more secrecy. "We must also move to protect intellectual property," Reagan said July 28, "and write protections into the Freedom of Information Act for scientific and technical information generated by government laboratories."

Government secrecy could strangle this infant technology in its crib.

By all means, let's take on the Japanese. There is plenty the government can do.

We should, as the president proposed, reform our patent and antitrust laws to reflect the profound changes in technology and the rise of a world economy.

The president reiterated his proposal to double the budget of the National Science Foundation. He might consider taking the funds from the bloated R&D budget of the Defense Department, which now controls about three-fourths of all federal R&D.

But let's keep the process open. We don't do secrecy very well in this country anyway — the Soviets are much better at it. And that is why they are dead last in the superconductor race.

Sorority hears artist

Xi Theta Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held their first meeting of the year Tuesday, Sept. 8. The meeting was held in The Needle in the Haystack, courtesy of Mrs. Mildred Haggard.

The program was presented by Mrs. Jean Hildreth, an artist in Martin County. Mrs. Hildreth explained the techniques used in oil painting while painting a beautiful snow scene.

President Marsha Todd presided over the business meeting and reports from standing committees were given. Carolyn Schoolcraft, Social Chairman, reminded members about the Pre-game supper to be held at Terry and Bonnie Franklin's Friday night.

Hostess Marilyn Wheeler served refreshments to members: Bonnie Franklin, Judy Brandenberger, Gracie Hanson, Carolyn Schoolcraft, Dixie Brooks, Kay Simpson, Marsha Todd, Latrell Welch, Jojon Cox, and Marilyn Wheeler.

The next meeting will be held at Cap Rock Electric Cooperative Auditorium, Sept. 22.

Jerry Anderson wins Herald football contest

Jerry Anderson, who won second place last week, won first place in the Stanton Herald Football Contest this week. He won $25.

Anderson hit the tie-breaker on the nose with a point spread guess of 37 points in the St. Louis Cardinals-Dallas Cowboy disaster. St. Louis staged a comeback in the final two minutes Sunday for a 24-13 victory over the surprised Cowboys. He missed one game, the Colorado City-Seminole battle. C-City won.

Stanton's new vet, Dr. Phil Whisnand, just missed one game, but his tie-breaker guess totaled 41 points. The good doctor collects $15.

Franky Barnhill nabbed third place and $10. His point spread guess totaled 42.

Also missing one game were Marilyn Carr and Paul Kosh. Marilyn's guess totaled 47 and Paul's guess totaled 45 spread.

A total of 107 entries were received at the Herald office in the second week's contest.

Winners will be announced in each week's edition of the Stanton Herald.

To enter all a person has to do is to mark your game selections on an entry blank published weekly in the Stanton Herald, print your name and address, then deposit the entry at the Stanton Herald, 203 N. St. Peter Street, by noon Friday. No Xerox entries, please.

Paint blisters can be evaded with few steps

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent
It's maddening to see paint blisters forming on a newly-painted house, but don't automatically blame the paint manufacturer. The culprit is probably the sun.

Temperature blisters are caused when the sun's rays dry a thin layer of surface paint and heat the still wet paint underneath. The vapors from this wet paint and thinner expand and cause the paint to bubble.

Oil-based paint in thick coats and darker heat-absorbing colors are more likely to blister than other types of paints and lighter colors.

Prevention of these temperature blisters simply requires good timing. Spring and fall are the best seasons to paint a house because the temperature isn't extreme. It's also better to wait for any dew or excess moisture on the ground to evaporate before painting.

If the paint is allowed to dry out of direct sunlight for at least 2 hours, blistering should not occur. Follow the sun while painting and do the north side in the morning, the east side a little later, the south side in the afternoon, and finish with the west side.

Moisture blisters on the other hand, are caused by water vapor getting out of the house through the wood or outside moisture getting into the wood. Because this moisture is in the wood, the blistering includes every layer of paint.

Like temperature blisters, moisture blisters are more likely to occur in oil-based paints, usually in thin coatings of new paint.

Thick layers of paint tend to crack and peel instead of blister. Moisture blisters and possible wood decay can be avoided by using vapor barriers and controlling interior moisture problems by using proper ventilation. These paint blisters can be repaired by scraping them off, sanding the edges, and spot painting.

PREVENT PEELING HOUSE PAINT

You just painted your house less than a year ago, and the paint is already beginning to peel. What caused this to happen?

A common reason for this occurrence is called intercoat peeling. This means that the bond between the new and old paint is weak, so the new paint peels away from the old.

Three steps should be taken before painting to prevent intercoat peeling.

1. Wash your house with soap and water and rinse to remove any dirt or residue.

2. If the old paint feels chalky or is cracked and peeling, scrape it off to the wood.

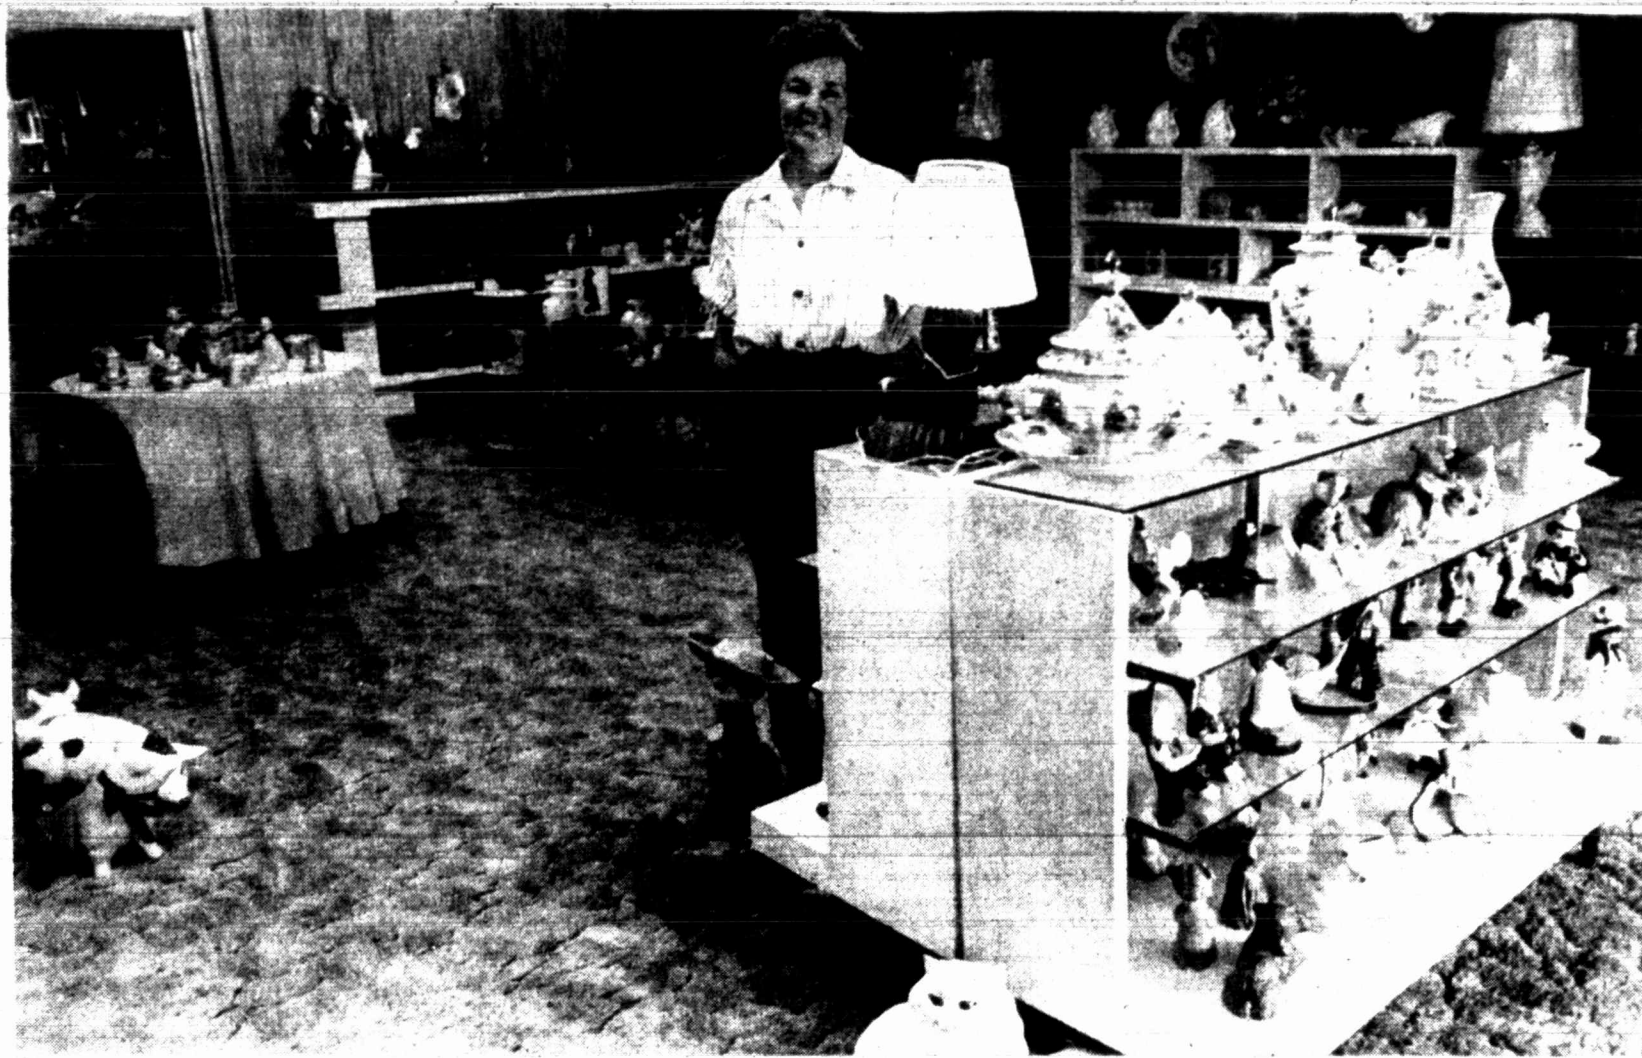

3. Apply a wood primer.

Don't allow too much time to elapse between applying the primer and the top coat of paint, or it may cause intercoat peeling. Too much time gives dirt and residue a chance to build on the primer, which hinders the bonding of the layers.

If more than two weeks go by after the application of the primer, scrub the house before applying the top coat.

United Way drive opens within 31% of goal

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Before it officially began, the 1987 United Way campaign had collected nearly a third of its $215,000 goal, organizers said Friday afternoon.

United Way chairman Tommy Welch announced at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce community luncheon Friday that more than 31 percent of this year's goal has been collected.

The luncheon officially initiated the campaign.

United Way Director Sherrie Bordofski, who emceed the luncheon with Pat Porter, and a colleague wore yellow and red chicken costumes to promote Saturday's Second Annual Chicken Fried Steak World Championship.

Porter joked that "this shows Sherrie will do practically anything for the United Way."

The luncheon was sponsored by TU Electric, Energas and Southwestern Bell, and hosted by the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club.

Also announced at the luncheon:

- The Howard County Fair begins Sept. 21 and continues through Sept. 26 at the fair barns. Fiddler Jody Nix will play that Saturday night, and "Two for the Show" will run Wednesday through Friday nights, said Liz Taylor, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

- The annual agriculture appreciation barbecue will be Sept. 23 at the fair, "around dinnertime," said Karl Schoenfeld. Free tickets are available at the Chamber office.

- The agriculture appreciation tours will begin at 8:30 a.m. and after lunch, and will leave from the Chamber, he said.

- This year's Leadership Big Spring class will kick off with a seminar at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Wednesday evening, said Craig Bailey. Twenty-seven have registered so far, he said, adding that residents are encouraged to become involved.

- This year's Big Spring High School volleyball team is rebuilding itself after losing two starters to knee injuries and three other veteran players moved, said Coach Elaine Stone.

- The sixth annual Health Fair will be Nov. 14 at Big Spring Mall, with free screenings and educational materials, said Dr. Alice Haynes.

- Volunteers are needed to participate in the Christmas in April program to help repair the homes of the handicapped and elderly, sponsored by the Leadership Alumni, said Debbie Reid.

- This year's ArtsFest will begin Oct. 8 with a Neil Simon play at Howard College, followed by a reception, said Lea Whitehead.

- The highlight of the six-week fest will be a costume bash Halloween night at the Big Spring Country Club, she said, adding that the Cultural Affairs Committee is looking for sponsors for the event.

- The fest will end Nov. 21 with a Big Spring Symphony concert at the high school auditorium, she said.

- The Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra will perform "Classics at the Cinema" at the Howard College auditorium Jan. 8, Suzanne Haney said.

She encouraged patrons to support the symphony performances by purchasing advertising in this year's programs.

- Drew Mouton, John Brown, Scott McLaughlin, Sandra Waggoner and Carl Bradley are this year's new chamber officers, Johnnie Lou Avery said. They replace John Beddow, J.D. Nelson, Joe Pickle, Myra Robinson and Johnny Rutherford, whose terms are expiring.

Sands wins round one

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

ACKERLY — The anticipated duel between running backs Jay Fryar of Sands and Shannon Bond of Borden County was everything it was built up to be.

Both senior runners were superb, but it was Fryar who had the best supporting cast as the Mustangs defeated the Coyotes 34-18 in non-district six-man football action Friday night.

The game was a preview of their district game, which will take place October 2 in Borden County. After the game, both Borden County head coach John Bond and Sands' coach Sid McCowan admitted they didn't like playing each other twice in a season, and would try to change the schedule next year.

But with Fryar and Bond (Coach Bond's son), the matchup had two of the best running backs in District 4-A Six-Man West Zone. And they put on a show for the crowd.

Fryar, who only played a few offensive plays in the last quarter, figured in on each of Sands' five touchdowns. The 185-pounder scored on touchdowns runs of 24, 65, 48 and three yards, and threw a 58-yard TD pass to Chad Nichols.

Fryar ended the contest with 215 yards in 24 carries, while completing five of 11 passes for 117 yards.

Bond, a 165-pounder, got off to a slow start, gaining just 10 yards in his first 13 carries. But he finished strong, scoring on runs of 56 and 79 yards, gaining 197 yards on 23 carries.

Ironically, both Fryar and Bond had touchdown passes dropped.

Not to be outdone was Sands' quarterback and safety Damien Zarate. Not only did he run the Sands' offense well, the junior picked off three Borden County passes, returning two of the thefts for 25 and 42 yards.

Sands scored just before the first quarter ended when Fryar went 24 yards. The two-point kick failed.

Borden County tied the game in the second quarter when quarterback Brian Bond (Shannon's sophomore brother) hit Kerry Fryar (Jay's cousin) with a 12-yard scoring pass.

The play was set up when Sands' punter Jay Fryar tried a fourth down pass in punt formation from the Sands' 15-yard line.

"It wasn't a called play," admitted Sands coach McCowan. "One of their men was rushing in free and the man that was supposed to block him was running downfield," he said.

Sands took a 20-6 lead when Fryar scored on runs of 65 and three yards. The three-yard plunge capped off an eight play, 69-yard drive.

But Shannon Bond brought Borden County closer on the last play of the first half. He took a pitch, reversed his field and sped 56 yards for the score, cutting the Sands' lead to 20-12 at the half.

Fryar put Sands up 28-12 when he galloped 48 yards for a score in Sands' opening drive of the second half. Then it was Shannon Bond's turn. Following a goal-line stand that left Sands short at the one-yard line, Bond again hurt the Mustangs with the big play.

Taking a pitch from his brother, he went to the middle of the line, where he appeared to be stopped. But he burst out of the pack and ran 79 yards to paydirt, cutting the Sands' lead to 28-18 with 2:02 left in the third quarter.

On the next possession, Sands put the game away when Jay Fryar hooked up with Nichols for a 58-yard scoring play.

Neither team scored in the final quarter, but two Borden County threats were killed by Zarate interceptions.

Borden County coach John Bond was optimistic after the loss.

"One good thing is, this one didn't count in district," he said. "I hope the kids learned from this and do better the next time around. We realize this isn't the team we had last year. But the kids are responding and playing hard."

Bond added that Harold Barnes, who was injured in the second quarter, "had his bell rung" and will be okay.

Sands' McCowan, with three players injured, only suited up 11 players.

"The kids held on, but as you can tell we were a little short on the sidelines. The kids all gave 100 percent. The big play killed us though. We didn't tackle. But you've got to give credit to Shannon Bond — he's a good running back."

Jessie the Java

Couple discovers joy of raising monkey

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Jessie the Java monkey grasped the toy ball in his hands and feet, concentrating intently to pry out the stopper with his teeth.

With his bearded face, he resembled a little old man.

When the stopper finally came loose with a whoosh, he pressed his face into the ball, forcing the air out.

He grunted with what owner Tina Barnett called his "happy sound," glad to be enjoying the sunshine.

Jessie likes to play with toys, especially balls and rattles — "just like the story, 'Curious George,'" — and with neighborhood children, Barnett said.

The monkey has a tiny tricycle, which he rides as Barnett pulls it — his legs are too short to reach the pedals, she said.

Tina and Jerry Barnett, 1800 Duquoin St., received Jessie three years ago, when he was eight months old.

"I told my husband it would be neat to have a monkey," she said. After the couple received City Council's permission to keep him within the city limits, they purchased Jessie from a Cincinnati, Ohio, establishment called Monkeys Unlimited.

Establishing trust was not a quick process. Jessie would avoid the Barnetts petting him, Tina said, explaining that it took six months before he would venture to hug her.

"He's a real good hugger," she said. "We broke the barrier by doing monkey things," imitating Jessie's sounds and actions.

Now Jessie acts much like a two- or three-year-old child, she said. He constantly imitates the couple, and loves to have a manicure and wear cosmetics in imitation of Tina, she said.

He sleeps in a crib and, like a toddler, must be watched, she said. Jessie goes to sleep at sunset and wakes at sunrise — which is fine during the short daylight hours of winter but a different story on summer weekends, when the couple would like to sleep late, she said.

Jessie, who has his own bedroom, begins his day by banging on the door to be let out. He is fed fruit for breakfast, often while seated in a highchair. Peaches are his favorite fruit, but of course he also eats a lot of bananas, Tina said.

The monkey takes baths daily and has his teeth brushed. He is housebroken but usually wears a diaper when out visiting, she said.

Tina dresses Jessie in Cabbage Patch doll clothes on special occasions, although he doesn't like to wear clothes, she said. When away from home he wears a leash around his waist.

Peanut butter sandwiches are his favorite for lunch, and — also like some children — he prefers to throw away the crust. Sometimes, when Jessie has been especially good, she puts jelly on the sandwich as a reward, she said.

He also likes candy, sweet pickles and insects, Barnett said.

"During the locust season, (his climbing trees to get the insects) drives us crazy," she said.

The long-legged gray monkey has hands that resemble miniature human hands. He is right-handed. His feet, with elongated toes and thumbs, also can grasp objects, although his tail cannot.

Jessie has small, pointed ears like a tiny Spook, and white-ringed eyes. His cheeks have pockets, like a chipmunk.

Unlike a dog, Jessie can look from the corner of his eyes, Barnett said. He likes to watch Wild Kingdom on television, and tries to communicate with the televised monkeys — although commercials do not keep his interest, she said.

Jessie is shy of people and strange animals. When threatened, he bares his teeth and slaps — not too hard — to appear fierce.

"I'm really attached to him," Barnett said. If he died, "it would be like my kid dying."

Although monkeys cannot infect others with rabies and thus receive no vaccinations, they often die from pneumonia after changes in the weather cause colds, she said. When Jessie gets a cold, Tina treats him with infant-dosage Tylenol.

The monkey has a 40-year lifespan, she said.

Jessie the Java monkey perches on the shoulder of owner Tina Barnett. The pet of three years is treated similarly to a child — sleeping in a crib, fed in a high chair and sometimes dressed in doll clothes.

Christopher bankruptcy, prison prospect tops news

Two companies of Big Spring businessman Charles "Chris" Christopher are named in a Chapter 11 bankruptcy claim filed in the Texas Northern District U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Lubbock.

The claim, filed Wednesday, names Christopher Companies and Omega Leasing/Housing.

Under Chapter 11, a company obtains a federal court order that frees it from the threat of creditors' lawsuits until it can develop a financial plan to pay debts.

A financial plan has not yet been submitted, according to court records.

Estimated assets and liabilities are listed as more than $1 million and the bankruptcy form states 100 to 999 creditors.

Week in review

The prospect of two additional prisons in Big Spring could spawn a $5.25 million project to extend water and wastewater services to the western part of the Industrial Park.

Public Works Director Tom Decell detailed costs of the plan at the City Council meeting Tuesday evening.

The council passed a resolution responding favorably to a Texas Department of Corrections request for a medium to maximum security prison proposal for Big Spring.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford said the legislation enables the city to bid for the prison project if the situation occurs.

The city would spend $2.25 million in water line and $2.15 million in wastewater line improvements in the Industrial Park if it receives a contract for the prison, Decell said, adding that the balance of the $5.25 million figure would be spent on engineering and other fees.

Tough economic conditions are at least partially responsible for increased enrollment figures at Howard College and some Texas universities, officials say.

Enrollment has increased 15 percent at Howard, according to Linda Conway of the registrar's office.

As of Tuesday, 1,474 students have enrolled at the college, compared to 1,281 enrollees last year. The figure includes SWCID and the Lamesa and San Angelo campuses, Conway added.

SWCID has experienced a 21 percent jump in enrollment, she said. The school has 108 currently enrolled, 19 more than last year.

Howard College President Bob Riley cited two reasons for the figures: increased efforts by school officials and the economic decline.

A claim filed April 13 against the city of Big Spring for the death of Marc Rutledge is now a lawsuit in 118th District Court.

The lawsuit was filed by Rutledge's mother, Ramona, and his widow, Eva, individually and as next friends for Anthony Miles Rutledge, a minor child.

Rutledge, 24, was stabbed fatally Feb. 13 while entertaining friends in his back yard. He was pronounced dead on arrival to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, according to published reports.

Michael Viera, 15, pleaded guilty May 1 to voluntary manslaughter in connection with the death and was sentenced to 10 years probation.

The lawsuit alleges the attack and injury resulting in Rutledge's death were the result of negligence of police officers and city employees.

Rodents may have a cute Mickey Mouse image as a result of cartoons, but the small creatures are unpleasant to most people and should be avoided.

Brook Daylong, 6, tried to help a mouse in distress this past week, and it showed its gratitude by biting her.

She was playing in front of her home, 1509 Avion St., Wednesday when she noticed a cat had the mouse in its mouth. Attempting to save it from the cat's clutches, she was rewarded with a bite on the thumb, according to police reports.

Brook was treated for a puncture wound at Scenic Mountain Medical Center and released, a hospital spokesman said.

The incident illustrates the health threat posed by the creatures. Mice and rats are potential carriers of rabies and other diseases, according to city and county officials.

Big Spring residents raised

$5,200 this past weekend for the Jerry Lewis Telethon to fight muscular dystrophy. That total is $200 more than this year's goal, said Bryan Touchstone, manager of Big Spring Mall.

The local event, conducted at the mall, included a dance-a-thon, rock-a-thon and walk-a-thon, he said, adding that volunteers collected pledges by phone and door-to-door.

The money is more than double the approximately $2,300 collected last year, he said.

Touchstone, who remained awake the full 22 hours of the event — from 8 p.m. Sunday to 6 p.m. Monday — said volunteers raised $4,339 in phone pledges, and the rest from the other activities.

Lightning apparently struck two local houses within hours of each other during a weekend storm, causing minor damage, but no injuries, according to fire department reports.

Firefighters also responded to a report of someone throwing gasoline on vacant Second Street houses.

Arthur Olague, 1303 Lamar St., said he was in bed but not quite asleep a little before midnight Sunday when he heard "a big boom come over the house" and saw light coming from the living room.

Lightning apparently had struck the television cable outlet outside the house, and the current traveled through the wiring to ignite the living room curtains, he said.

Black burn marks adorn his house inside and out where the cable is, Olague said, adding that the lightning ruined his television and videocassette recorder.

A funnel cloud was sighted near Big Spring but apparently never touched ground, and winds were clocked up to 59 miles per hour in Wednesday night storms that brought rain and hail to some areas of Howard County.

New county budget at $6.9 million Youth suicide Saturday seminar planned

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

The proposed $6.9 million 1987-88 Howard County budget — which commissioners may approve Monday — is less than the current budget. However, it may require an increased tax rate because of declining valuations.

A public hearing on the budget will be conducted at 10 a.m. in the Commissioners Courtroom of the Howard County Courthouse. A regular meeting of the commissioners is scheduled at 9 a.m. Monday.

The $6,885,957 proposed budget actually is nearly $1.3 million less than last year's $8,147,384 budget. The county last year budgeted $1.5 million for the Courthouse Annex renovation, Olson said, explaining the major reason for the budget's approximate $1.3 million decrease from 1986-87 figures.

The Annex opened in March and houses the tax assessor/collector's office, the tax appraisal district offices, and the adult and juvenile probation offices.

Before the renovations were made, the county paid about $17,000 during 1985 and 1986 to rent several offices in the Permian Building, she said.

According to the proposed budget, 59 percent of the revenue will be collected through a proposed ad valorem tax rate of 31 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Youth suicide is the topic of a seminar Saturday in the Howard College Auditorium, sponsored jointly by the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp and two regional treatment centers.

The seminar — scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon — is titled "Teenage Suicide: Symptoms, assessment and treatment."

Luan Kessler, development specialist at the prison, said the joint sponsors are LaHacienda Treatment Center of Hunt and Horizon Hospital of San Antonio.

Area mental health professionals seemed to welcome the seminar, which focus on a topic that has grown in national significance recently.

"If we can educate people who work with teens to be more aware of the signs of depression, like grades dropping, sudden behavioral changes, (it will help the problem)," said Big Spring State Hospital clinical psychologist Dr. Lorie Hsu. Her enthusiasm toward the seminar was obvious.

Jake Glickman, local social worker, said some people may not want the subject discussed openly.

"I think a lot of times that Big Springers pretend that child abuse, family violence ... doesn't happen," he said.

But, the problem recently was discussed by employees at the prison who indicated they wanted more information, said Chief Chaplain Burl "Buff" Graham.

Personnel of the LaHacienda Treatment Center already had contacted the prison about a seminar on depression when the topic of youth suicide was introduced, Graham said.

"We figured if our staff was concerned about the problem, then others might be as well," Graham explained.

"It's significant enough of a problem elsewhere that we don't want it to become a problem here," he said. "The sessions are designed to address parents and their children as well as professionals."

Seminar speaker will be Dr. Joe Ruley, administrator at Horizon Hospital in San Antonio.

He will address topics including depression disorders in children, children's concept of death, suicide in the family, assessment of suicidal risk, psychiatric hospital treatment, and the environmental support team.

Ruley has served as a legislative analyst on child/youth issues for the California Child/Youth Coalition and as a consultant to the Los Angeles County School Attendance Review Board.

He also was consultant to the Los Angeles County on Probation and is past vice chairman of the Orange County Coalition Against Domestic Violence, and past member of the volunteers of probation in Orange County.

He is a member of San Antonio Cares and serves on the board of the Texas Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. He specializes in child/adolescents with learning, behavioral, emotional and chemical-dependency problems, according to information he provided.

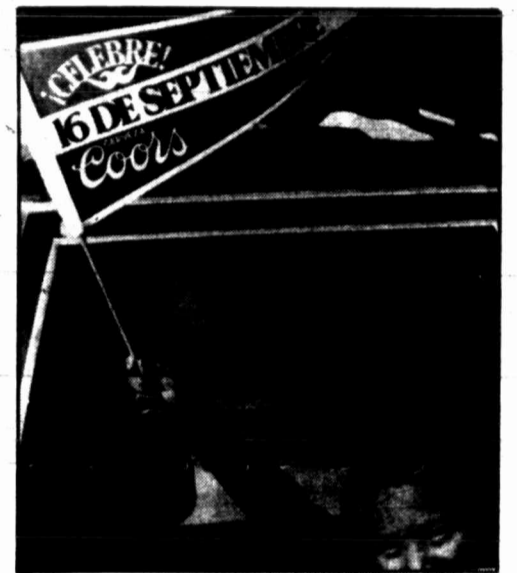

Members of the mental health profession will receive three hours of continuing education credit for attending the seminar, Kessler said.

Dan Wise, social worker at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, said, "Suicide is a terrible thing. It affects friends, and family. I think if you have one suicide, you have a problem."

Prison training program studies vegetable plants

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

What is the status of the vegetable project I understand is going on at the local prison?

We are extremely proud of the work Gary Tabor, horticultural instructor at our local prison, and his inmates in his training program are doing.

Gary and his class are cooperating on a tomato, pepper, and cantaloupe variety trial result demonstrations at the prison to study the yields and disease resistance of tomatoes grown under Howard County conditions.

Gary also is a member of our County Extension Horticultural Program Area committee, who plan and implement all our Extension Educational Programs conducted in the county each year.

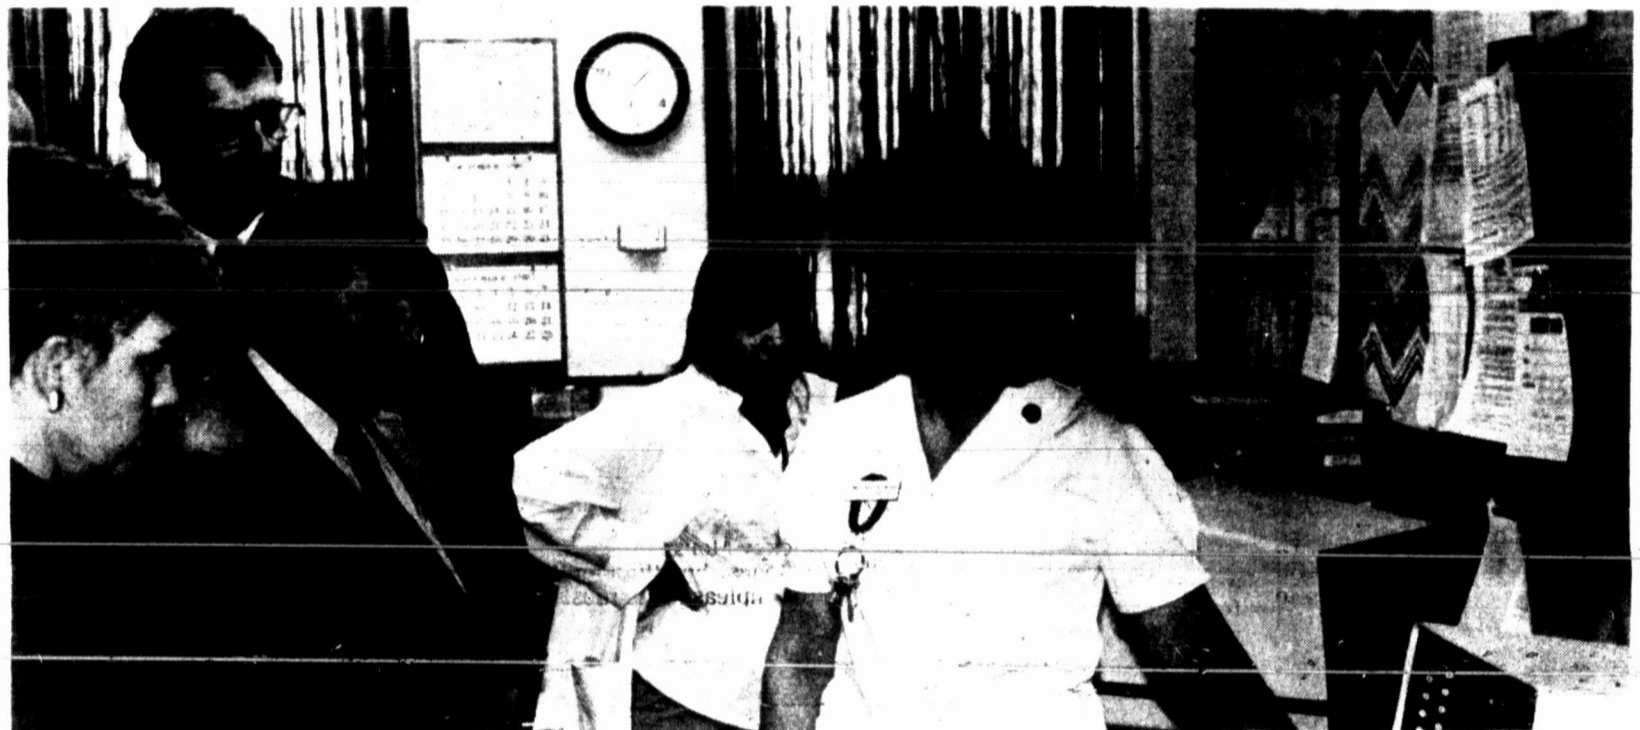

Seeds were obtained early last spring and planted in the prison systems' greenhouse and later transplanted on the prison land under what we considered typical garden conditions and watered with city water through a drip irrigation system.

A late season report on these varieties is not available at our office. We hope the results of this demonstration will assist local gardeners and farmers' market producers selecting varieties most suitable for our conditions.

Americans should avoid 'the complexity trap'

By TOM PETERS

Most Aug. 12 newspapers carried two particularly troublesome stories. One, about the hazards of oil tankers trying to traverse the Persian Gulf, reported that our high-tech Navy was having fits over Iranian speedboats. Our craft are too big, too slow and too cumbersome to counter Iran's commercial-variety speedboats, with machine guns and recoilless rifles mounted on them.

The other article revealed that the deployment of the Soviet SS-24 missile promised to significantly blunt our strategic retaliatory capacity. It turns out that the missile is a simple retooling of an old model, but this one is mounted on railroad cars. Its ability to evade our strategic forces is based upon 93,000 miles of railroad tracks — not sophisticated electronics.

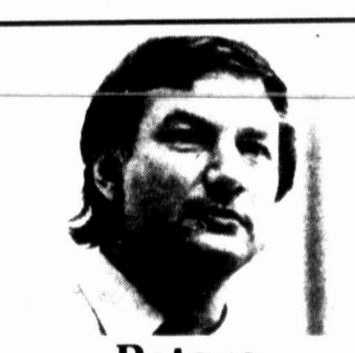

A third tale coincidentally appeared at the same time, in Newsweek magazine's Special Report on NASA. Titled "Big, Dumb Rockets," it chronicled our space program's continued attachment to only the most elaborate systems, and our repeated rejection of simpler systems that might have driven down the cost of space transport enough to allow rapid commercial and scientific exploration of space.

We are rightfully proud of "big science" and the raft of Nobel Prizes that go to Americans each year. Yet we are frequently stymied by those who favor the practical over the possible — e.g., the Russians in space and war-making capacity, the Japanese in the marketplace.

The problems are many. For instance, the congressional budget process leads us to favor highly visible, major programs over less sexy, routine improvements that don't lure widespread support. The defense-university-big-contractor combine is enamored with the bold leaps, not day-to-day improvements. The activities of these bellwether organizations color our approach to commercial markets also.

We continually seek to "leap frog" the Japanese, rather than pound away at constant, small improvements that provide the host of "little features" that please the ultimate end user (rather than the

Peters on excellence

"design science fraternity"). Furthermore, the Japanese exploit small niches where they can try new technologies in mundane settings.

Industry Week recently reported, "U.S. firms have a tendency to shoot for the best technology or massive markets while ignoring less glamorous products for which there is a market demand." The article quoted Dr. Lee Rivers, director of corporate planning at Allied-Signal, "You can't get the CEO of a $5 billion American company excited about a $100,000 market, like ceramic scissor blades or razor blades. We shoot right from the start for the ceramic auto engine. We don't want to go through the learning process in smaller markets."

But the problem runs deeper still. In the late 1940s, General Electric led the charge in developing overly complex automation systems. Ironically, GE's chief scientist, Dr. Roland Schmitt, is now singing a different tune: "There's ... the issue of effective execution — of strong performance all the way to the finish line. Here research is not the answer ... The vast majority of today's engineers need to be trained less like researchers and more like the practicing, dirt-under-the-fingernails engineers of yesteryear. By treating everything as a research problem, we tend to devise elegant, inventive solutions without adequate attention to cost, manufacturability, and quality. ... Our educational system imparts mostly academic values, which emphasize optimum solutions, while putting little emphasis on such considerations as speed, cost, and customer satisfaction — the values of the marketplace."

White our defense mire seems intractable, at least a few enlightened organizations are succeeding in the commercial arena, by taking a contrarian approach. Chaparral Steel of Midlothian, Texas, is a pioneer in minimill technology. It has the lowest costs among its U.S., and even its Asian, competitors. For instance, it can produce steel at one-half what it costs the typical Japanese mill.

Founder Gordon Forward is a technologist, and a technology edge is the essence of Chaparral's success. Yet surprisingly, Forward brags that he has no research department.

He explains, "Our largest challenge is to cut the time it takes to get technology out of the lab and into operations ... so we've tried to bring research right into the factory and make it a line function."

"We make the people who are producing the steel responsible for keeping their process on the leading edge of technology worldwide ... they go out and find the places where people are doing interesting things. They visit other companies. They work with universities. ... The lab is the plant ... we don't stop operations to try crazy things, but we do try to do our research and development right on the factory floor. ...

"If you put a production fellow and a maintenance fellow and an engineer together, you're going to find out pretty quickly whether something has a chance of getting off the ground."

The impact of our love affair with complexity is monumental, runs deep and threatens our international security and economic well-being alike.

Dr. Schmitt of GE quotes a 19th-century American civil engineer by the name of Wellington, who defines engineering as "the ability to do for $1 what any damn fool can do for $2."

Right now, American engineers only seem to be able to do for $5 what the Soviets and Japanese — and Iranians — can do for a few pennies. The valuing of hands-on, practical engineering is urgently called for, from building missiles to ceramic scissor blades.

Six-sided Stop N Gos in store for future

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
A Houston company is betting that the traditional rectangular convenience store — the kind 7-Eleven and other companies operate — will give way to a six-sided larger store that customers will feel safer entering at night.
Based on its belief that customers are shying away from typical units, National Convenience Stores has spent $110 million to build 125 hexagonal stores the company says are 30 percent larger than the older stores, have a larger selection of food items and have brighter lights inside and outside.

The stores, counting land, cost $880,000 to open, and within three years each is expected to generate $900,000 in annual sales, excluding gasoline.
Kris Brewster, Stop N Go vice president, says the company has 140 stores in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with about 20 of them being the new "hex" stores. The company will build 50 "hex" stores within the next year, with several of them being located in the Dallas area.

Whatever the Houston company is doing, a spokesman for 7-Eleven in Dallas says that as far as he knows, no changes in the company's traditional store format are planned.

The "hex" program should prove so successful, says retail consumer analyst Kevin Skislock of Rotan Mosie, that — when combined with an expected improvement of the Texas economy — earnings for National Convenience should double to 70 cents a share by fiscal 1989. The company operates 950 stores, most under the Stop N Go name.

The analyst said the six-sided, brightly lighted stores with windows on three sides are located on corner lots "so that women can see what they are walking into at 11 o'clock at night."
A main reason Skislock is recommending purchase of the stock is the company's belief that traditional convenience store properties will become obsolete within five years.

Check older garage doors this fall, says Reinert

There's a hint of fall in the air ... school has started ... the talk is all about football: can home improvement projects be far behind?

Yes, it's that time of the year to take a good look at your home and assess repairs.

Ralph Reinert, owner of Reinert Welding & Steel Construction, recommends that homeowners inspect older garage doors when organizing home improvement projects. Attending to repairs now may add to the life of the doors.

If your home is 10 to 15 years old, chances are your garage door is beginning to sag or deteriorate, says Reinert. "That's about the life of a door before it needs major repair or replacement."

Reinert's company, specialists in fabrication of metal buildings for commercial use and for residential storage, has expanded its business to include overhead door sales and service.

"We have doors to accommodate all needs," Reinert says, "from single car residential garage door to multi-door warehouse installation."

"We install commercial and residential overhead doors and electric operators," says Reinert. Doors are available in two styles, the rolling and the folding sectional. The latter is available in wood, fiberglass or steel. Rolling doors are constructed of steel.

Reinert repairs and services all brands or types of overhead doors, including torsion springs, guide rollers, lift cables or damaged door sections.

Ralph Reinert has 25 years of experience in the construction business and has been in the steel erection business since 1978.

The firm designs and builds to fit the job requirements, fabricating metal buildings and component structural steel for commercial buildings, such as reinforcing steel, columns, beams, bar joists, roof decking and miscellaneous steel items.

Cost estimates are available on request from Reinert Welding & Steel Construction. Phone 267-1550.

OVERHEAD DOORS — Reinert Welding & Steel Construction recently installed overhead doors for a storage building for the Big Spring Herald. Ralph Reinert, owner, is overseeing the installation.

Just good home cooking

Everything is cooked to order at Jack & Mattie's Cafe, 901 West 3rd St. No frozen entrees. No fillers added. No pre-prepared foods. Just good old-fashioned home cooking and plenty of it.

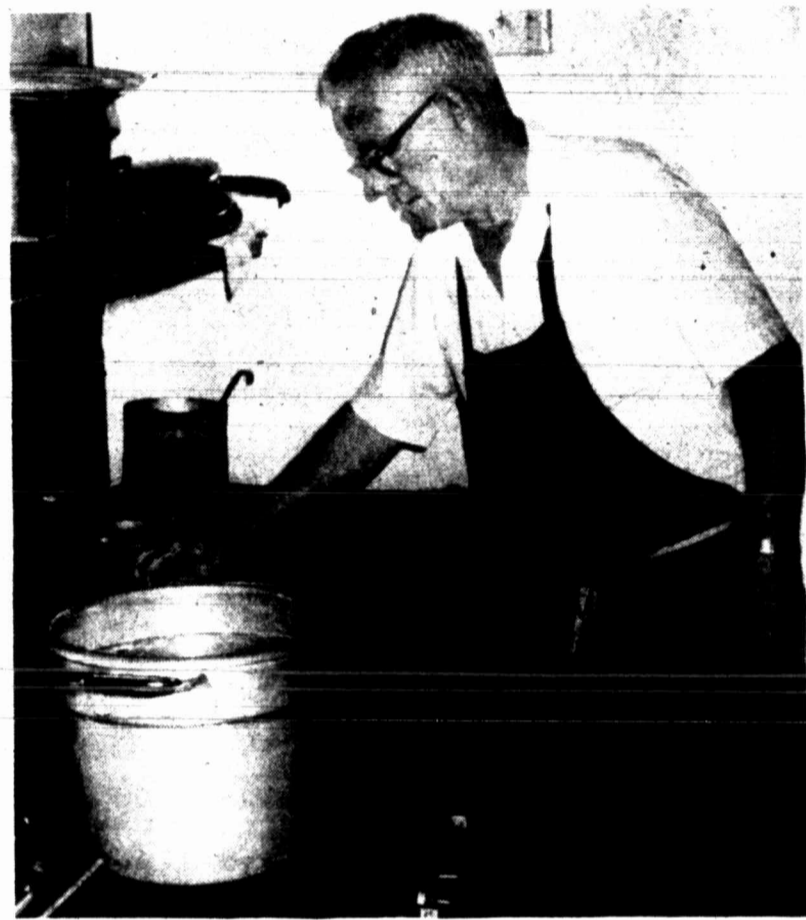

Mattie Taylor says they've been in the food business "all our lives." Jack was chef at the Holiday Inn here for about 10 years, and the Taylors operated the Permian Snack Bar for over 8 years.

Jack & Mattie's Cafe is open for breakfast and lunch — from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. — Monday through Friday. They close at 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

Jack & Mattie's serves breakfast all day. And customers rave about the homemade buttermilk biscuits and the giant homemade cinnamon rolls. (Better come early; these run out quickly.) One egg with choice of meat, hash browns, biscuits, gravy and coffee is $3.00.

The daily luncheon plate is priced at $3.95. You get soup, salad, homemade rolls, potatoes and two vegetables, choice of at least six entrees, drink and dessert. Entrees change daily, but include chicken fried steak, grilled beef liver, breaded veal cutlet or roast beef. Dessert is different every day.

There are a lot of "regulars" at Jack & Mattie's, and the atmosphere is relaxed and friendly.

COOKED TO ORDER — The secret of the fine flavor of food served at Jack & Mattie's Cafe is the chef — Jack Taylor himself. He prepares everything from scratch with the style and confidence that only can come from experience.

Anything on the menu can be prepared to go. You can phone ahead at 267-9611 to place your order.
