Prison plan in officials' hands

From staff and wire reports
The Big Spring proposal to bring a new prison to Howard County — which includes more than 3,900 signatures of residents supporting the effort — is now in the hands of state officials.

They are expected to make a final decision on the matter by Nov. 15, city councilman Johnny Rutherford said today, although prison spokesman Charles Brown said the group submitting the selected bid will be notified by Oct. 15.

Prison officials have 33 proposals from which to choose sites for the construction of two prisons, including a plan which would have inmates operating in a plastics-manufacturing plant.

Rutherford said the proposals will be reviewed by the officials, and he expects the list of candidates to be reduced by Oct. 15, with a final decision due a month later.

Petitions distributed locally garnered 3,943 signatures in support of the prison, according to petition chairman Corky Harr. Although the drive didn't reach its goal of 5,000, Harris said he was pleased with the results.

"We got a lot more than we were looking for," Harris said, explaining that although the drive's stated goal was 5,000, drive officials were expecting about 2,000 signatures.

"The drive was a tremendous success," he added.

The Borger Chamber of Commerce's plan, sent to meet the Monday afternoon deadline, suggests building the plastics operation that would be run with the corporation of Phillips Petroleum Co. in Hutchinson County.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, said that because the state buys large quantities of items such as plastic trash bags, trash cans, trays and cups, the plastics plant would be "a big asset to the state as a means of saving the state some money, as well as providing some training (to inmates)."

Big Spring's proposal included two work projects at an unspecified local company that would include prison labor, Rutherford said.

One proposal is for the manufacture of fiberglass posts for highway signs, and the other is for development of fiberglass fuel lines for aircraft, he said.

Site packets were sent Aug. 25 to about 120 communities that expressed an interest in having the regional 2,250-bed maximum security prison and a 2,250-bed reintegration medium security unit. Guidelines for the proposals also included a 300-acre site.

The state is in need of new prisons to help ease overcrowding in the 27-unit system, the nation's third-largest behind California and New York.

The prison system remains closed today with 38,891 inmates, or 96.06 percent — 433 over a state-mandated 95 percent capacity.

Texas Department of Corrections Director Jim Lynaugh said he would like the prison board to select a site at its Oct. 15 meeting.

Speeders target of police effort

Herald staff report
Speeders in residential and school areas, beware.

The Big Spring police department Monday launched a campaign of radar speed detectors in unmarked vehicles, Police Chief Joe Cook said.

Police issued 15 tickets in one area this morning, he said.

The unmarked cars will be positioned randomly at different times and locations, he said.

The campaign was prompted by officers' observations and citizens' complaints of speeding in residential and school areas, Cook said.

"We've stopped people going as high as 60 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone," he said.

SSC chairman cites far-reaching potential

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Many people don't understand the far-reaching possibilities of the superconducting supercollider, said GARDEN CITY SSC Commission Chairman Ralph McLaughlin.

McLaughlin issued that observation while noting his confidence in the Garden City site after it made the first cut.

"We just have too good a site to pass up," McLaughlin said today. He said he was pleased the proposal made the cut, adding, "but we already knew that."

Seven bids were dismissed by the Department of Energy during the past week — including three independent Texas proposals.

The first cuts leave 36 sites under consideration.

McLaughlin said a short list of finalists is expected to be developed in December, but no one knows how many sites the list will include.

The Garden City Maverick bid is among four Texas sites to be retained in the DOE's first cut.

Two state-sponsored sites, one near Dallas and one near Amarillo, and an independent bid from the El Paso area also were retained.

In a related matter, McLaughlin said an editorial from the Toledo, Ohio, Blade, partially reprinted Sept. 17 in the Herald, was misleading.

The editorial, printed in a weekly feature "Views of papers across the U.S.," said the SSC project would cost $6 billion or more and would cause the rest of science research to suffer because limited research dollars would be targeted for the supercollider.

"First, there is no reason to spend the $6 billion they cited when the SSC could be built at Garden City for $2.3 billion," McLaughlin said.

"Secondly, they asked if the money should be spent on science," SSC page 2A

Few tickets result from drinking ban

From staff and wire reports
AUSTIN — Only a handful of citations have been handed out for violations of the state's new ban on drinking alcoholic beverages while driving — and none in Howard County — because the wording of the statute makes enforcement difficult, law enforcement authorities say.

No citations have been issued in Howard County, said Police Chief Joe Cook and Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Standard said he doesn't expect many such citations because drinking drivers have not been prevalent in the county.

However, he said, the law "gives officers an added tool to give probable cause" for stopping a suspected drunken driver.

Cook said the open container law is difficult to enforce because an officer must observe a driver actually drinking alcohol before a citation can be issued.

In addition, cellophane wrappers to disguise beer cans as soft drinks are being manufactured, he said.

"We observed that even before the law went into effect, it would be difficult to enforce," David Wells, a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety in Austin, said Monday.

"In order to issue a ticket, we have to actually see someone putting an alcoholic beverage to his lips and taking a drink," Wells told the Austin American-Statesman. "If someone wants to drink an alcoholic beverage, they can put a cover over it to conceal it. And the law is difficult to enforce at night."

Troopers in Travis and Hays counties have issued four citations since the law went into effect Sept. 1, DPS officials say.

Austin police and Travis County officers say they know of only one ticket that has been issued.

Throughout the state, law officers in San Antonio, Houston and Dallas say they have issued less than 25 citations combined.

The law mandates a maximum $200 fine for persons caught drinking while driving.

DPS Trooper Tom Mobley said the four citations "are maybe a little better than we expected because of the way the law is written."

"It's a less-than-favorable situation," Mobley said. "Our troopers could say that they have seen someone drink a beer, and the driver could say it's a Coke, and he could have a Coke can in his car."

Santa Gertrudis Bred for West Texas climate

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Farmers were busy washing, combing and feeding cattle Monday at the Howard County fairbarns, in preparation for this morning's show.

Most of the bovines appeared docile, although their huge frames dwarfed the jeans-clad men and women spraying them with hoses.

The cattle then chomped idly on their feed while farmers combed the water from their red-colored fur.

The red cattle are Santa Gertrudis breed, explained Carl Finke, field director of the Santa Gertrudis Association.

Weighing about 1,700 pounds each, they are larger than average, he said.

"There's more meat to them; they're a little more quality cattle," Finke said.

Santa Gertrudis also are better adapted to the West Texas climate, he said.

"The Santa Gertrudis was developed specifically to produce high quality beef under adverse conditions," explains literature from Santa Gertrudis Breeders International.

Crossbreeding Santa Gertrudis with other breeds results in calves that are more tolerant to heat, cold and insects, use feed more efficiently and produce maximum quantities of quality beef under a variety of range and climactic conditions, the literature states.

Cattle also "need a little bit of Brahman influence" to thrive in the West Texas area, Finke said, adding that exotic and English breeds don't have enough resistance to heat.

The Santa Gertrudis breed are quite gentle, said Derlin Hennig of Odessa, patting Heather, a year-old heifer.

Hennig said he has been working with his cattle about two months in preparation for the show — brushing them and tying them to the fence, so they'll know how to act during the show.

He will position each animal so that it looks its best for the judges, who look for straight legs and back, and big bones, he said.

Pearl Hennig, Derlin's mother, also works with cattle for the show.

"The creatures are big but not hard to handle, she said.

"You have to never let them get the best of you," she said, adding that if an animal gets loose, "you have a hard time letting them know who's boss."

However, the farmers have the advantage because the animals know they depend on the farmers for food, she said, adding that "it's a little easier to control them that way."

A Santa Gertrudis cow bows its head as Phillip Couch washes the animal with a hose. Couch and other farmers spent most of Monday preparing their cattle for this morning's Howard County Fair show. Early fair results on page 5-B.

Opening day attendance climbs

Herald staff report
Attendance at opening day of the 15th annual Howard County Fair was about 11 percent higher than the past year, Fair Director John Key said today.

Key said 1,625 people attended the fair Monday and 1,283 tickets were sold. People working at the fair are not required to buy a ticket, he noted.

Fair Director Ruth Mitchell said "we had quite a good crowd" for Monday's opening day activities.

Monday's festivities included the crowning of the Howard County queen, Rebecca Read, 17, a senior at Big Spring High School, took the honors. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Read, 2600 E. 24th St. Tonya Rock, 16, a junior at Forsan High School, was named runner-up. Rock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rock, 4007 Wesson Drive. Fourteen girls participated in the contest.

Incompetency issue doesn't always involve expert rulings

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of stories on the guardianship system in the United States, and Texas in particular. It was produced after an investigation by a team of Associated Press reporters.

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A urologist's statement helped convince a judge a Tyler woman should be declared incompetent, and a second doctor's statement also backed up claims by the woman's brother-in-law that she was incapable of handling her affairs and needed a guardian.

But in case after case across Texas, particularly in rural counties, a probate judge is likely to declare an elderly person incompetent based solely on the claims of whoever is seeking to become a guardian, a five-month investigation by The Associated Press found.

The judge's ruling establishing most guardianships strips the ward of most adult privileges — to marry or divorce, to decide where to live, to buy or sell land, to approve medical treatment or to invest money. Most people who serve as guardians control all the ward's assets.

A ward becomes "like a minor child — with no legal status to enter into the transactions most of us take for granted," says Tom Featherston, a law professor at Baylor University who heads a committee of the State Bar of Texas studying the state's guardianship laws.

The Associated Press examined more than 75 files concerning elderly wards in courthouses across Texas and found that, in almost half, guardianships were established without medical statements of any kind.

And in the majority of the cases surveyed in rural areas, elderly people were declared incompetent without representation.

Probate judges in Dallas County routinely appoint an attorney to represent a proposed ward in permanent guardianship cases, but the practice, optional under the law, is rare or non-existent in the smaller counties.

Petitions filed in Dallas and some of the other larger counties, such as Tarrant, invariably include a medical doctor's statement.

A survey of nine guardianship cases opened in Dallas County in 1980 found all petitions contained medical statements, and six of seven Tarrant County cases included doctor's statements. The seventh involved a veteran, and the incompetency petition contained statements from a rating committee of a Veterans Administration Hospital and a VA attorney.

But in 30 files surveyed randomly in six rural counties, only three wards had court-appointed attorneys.

Policemen seek grant to fight drugs

MIDLAND (AP) — West Texas law enforcement officers are attempting to persuade federal authorities that they need $870,000 to start a task force to battle drug traffic. These lawmen are seeking part of $9.5 million in federal funds which will be allocated to law enforcement agencies by Gov. Bill Clements' office.

"I feel pretty good about this," Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook said about the task force. "They are attempting to look at problem areas, and let's face it, one of the first stops made when narcotics comes across the border is our area," said Cook, who chairs the task force board of directors.

The officers are from a 17-county area and would use the grant to fund a coordinator, five investigators and office support for a year. Ideally, the investigators would be able to cover the West Texas area and keep an eye on the border, Cook said.

The plan is to develop intelligence, identify problem areas in the area and act, officials said.

The West Texas federal grant application submitted to the governor's office late last week from the officers is one of dozens expected by law enforcement agencies statewide. The board should learn by Nov. 1 if the grant has been approved.

The most useful benefit of the task force, if the federal grant is received, will be the centralization of information from across West Texas, said an undercover narcotics detective in the Midland Police Department.

"Right now, there is not much intelligence that is shared," said the officer who asked not to be identified.

"Cocaine, marijuana and heroin are coming across the border. There is an influx from other areas, but we believe the majority is coming from the border," he told the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

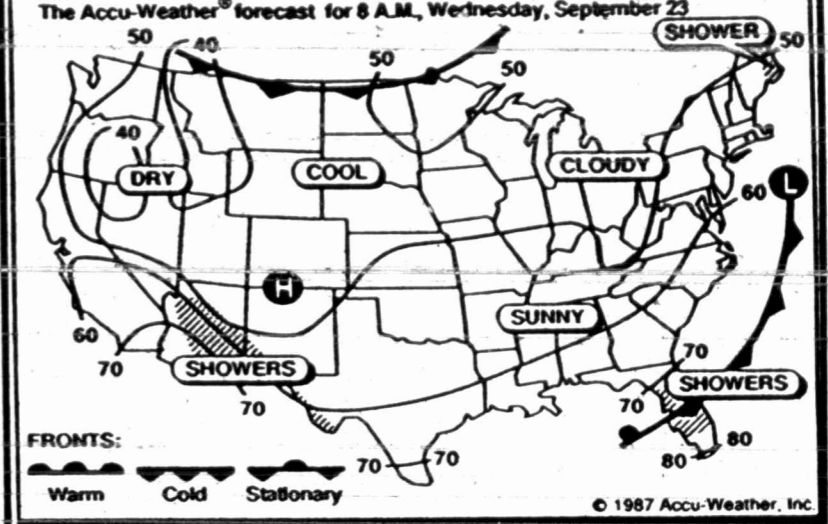

Another beneficial factor would be the additional manpower, said Capt. Clayton McKinney, who heads the Criminal Investigation Division of the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

"Ninety percent of our crimes — they go back to drugs, with the exception of some paper crimes," McKinney said. "I just hope with the five people they can get done what they need to."

There aren't any firm plans for operation of the task force, but Cook said the organization would be a roving group able to move quickly through the area.

"We're going to go to where the action is," he said. "We may be talking about roadblocks or something like that. If we get information that a load is coming up from the Big Bend area, we're not going to wait until the stuff gets to a populated area."

Weather

Forecast

West Texas - Widely scattered evening thunderstorms southwest through Wednesday. Fair tonight and sunny Wednesday. Warmer Wednesday. Lows tonight 50s except mid 60s Big Bend valleys. Highs Wednesday in the 80s except low 90s Big Bend.

MIAMI (AP) — Hispaniola was bracing for Hurricane Emily's 85 mph winds today as forecasters predicted the season's second hurricane would strengthen as it churned toward the Caribbean island shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

At 6 a.m. EDT, a hurricane warning was issued for the island nations to give residents time to prepare before the brunt of the hurricane reached landfall tonight, said National Hurricane meteorologist Joel Cline.

"It looks like it will roughly skirt along the southern coast of Hispaniola and then on the extreme eastern edge of Cuba. The current thinking is that it will then go up through the Bahamas," he said.

From 3 a.m. to 6 a.m. Emily's sustained winds increased from 75 to 85 mph. Air Force reconnaissance planes flying into the storm over six hours plotted the 6 a.m. position of the hurricane at latitude 15.5 north and longitude 67.5 west, or about 250 miles southeast of Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, and moving west-northwest at 20 mph.

"Further strengthening is likely," forecaster Joseph Pelissier. A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when its sustained winds reach 74 mph.

The governments of the Dominican Republic and Haiti issued hurricane warnings this morning when it became clear a hurricane was imminent, Cline said. Rains from the hurricane were falling on Puerto Rico this morning, he added.

It appeared unlikely that Emily would hit the United States, said Noel Rishnychok, a meteorologist at the hurricane center.

"Given where it is, right now the greatest threat and the greatest concern is to the people of the Greater Antilles," he said.

Police beat

Station cash stolen

Thieves broke into Diamond Shamrock, 2600 S. Gregg St., between 10 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday and stole $96 in cash and checks, police reports said.

Police arrested Brenda Kay Thompson, 32, of Sand Springs, at the Howard County fairgrounds Monday evening, after her bondsmen went off his bond on a felony charge of possession of controlled substance, police reports said.

Woodrow Isaac Burton, 36, 1401 Settles St., was arrested at Texas Taco, 1501 S. Gregg St., Monday night on Department of Public Safety warrants from Lampasas, police reports said. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $400 bond.

Don Michael Adams, 25, HC Road, was arrested Monday afternoon on a warrant for driving without liability insurance, police reports said.

instead of physics, cancer, heart disease, AIDS or other problems. "They have missed the point entirely. The SSC will be seeking scientific breakthroughs to the very heart of matter itself."

And those breakthroughs could lead to the cure of cancer and AIDS, or to new sources of energy or new materials, McLaughlin said.

He estimated that fewer than two people in a hundred understand the possibilities the supercollider provides.

"Just to grasp the basic concept is mind staggering," he said.

McLaughlin noted the Japanese have 15,000 patents for things they think will be discovered through SSC research and said other countries also are developing patents for possible supercollider discoveries.

"The SSC is not just what we know, but what actually is," he said.

"It's to understand the nature of the universe."

Incompetency

— all in Smith County. In those same 30 files, only nine contained a medical doctor's statement. One contained a psychologist's evaluation.

Texas' probate code does not require expert testimony to establish a permanent adult guardianship, Featherston said.

The judge has the option of appointing an attorney to represent the proposed ward in those proceedings. A physician's statement, based on an exam within 90 days of the court hearing, is required in limited guardianships, which grant the guardian only restricted powers.

The only requirement to prove incompetence in permanent guardianships is that the petitioner satisfy the court that the proposed ward isn't capable of handling his affairs or making decisions on his own behalf, Featherston said.

"In most situations, it works fine," Featherston said. "In most situations, a guardian is really needed and it (the law) just tries to expedite it and keep down the costs for the family. Sure, there are cases where the system is abused."

Texas law gives preference to spouses and the next nearest of kin, but also allows banks, attorneys, volunteers and friends not disqualified by a variety of reasons to serve. A guardian cannot be a minor, someone whose conduct is notoriously bad, an incompetent, someone involved in a lawsuit that may affect the proposed ward, someone indebted to the proposed ward, or someone with a claim on the proposed ward's estate or property.

Court officials say finding a ward for someone with an estate isn't the problem — it's finding someone to represent an elderly person with neither assets nor family.

A majority of cases surveyed by the AP found family members serving as guardians, with a few wards represented by banks or a longtime friend.

In Gregg County in November 1980, an Oklahoma woman was appointed guardian of a Longview resident's $163,000 estate, without a medical statement and despite the fact that the petition did not state her relationship to the proposed ward, who had a son living in Dallas.

The guardian resigned in June 1983 and was replaced by the cashier of Kilgore First National Bank.

In October 1983, the judge approved a $3,000 expenditure for the son to buy a car so he could travel from Dallas to Longview to visit his mother, who was in a nursing home. In July 1984, the son was authorized to buy another car for $4,500, and another $4,500 was authorized for car repairs and insurance the following September. Another car purchase of $4,500 was authorized in October 1985.

Nothing in the file indicated the court questioned the frequency of the car purchases. The court also authorized monthly payments, initially $200 and then upped to $300, to cover the son's costs in supervising his mother's nursing home care.

In Tarrant County, a judge asked a proposed ward's court-appointed attorney to be the man's guardian, so someone could approve emergency surgery to treat gangrene on the man's feet.

The man had been found wandering on the grounds of a Fort Worth hospital, and medical statements in his file indicated he did not understand the seriousness of the gangrene and the life-threatening consequences of not undergoing surgery.

In another Tarrant County case, a longtime friend of a French-born woman who never learned to speak English was appointed the woman's guardian in 1980. She had Parkinson's disease, was in a nursing home, and he had taken care of her since her daughter's death two years before.

She received just $1,500 a year from a French pension, and he spent her money and some of his own for her care and to have a French-speaking woman visit her in the nursing home. He paid for her burial and the case was closed after he drowned in the Caribbean.

C-City school district accredited

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado Independent School District has received word from the Texas Education Agency that it is being maintained as fully accredited.

Supt. Charlie Uselton said a TEA monitoring team visited the school district on May 11-12, but just recently received results of the visit. Uselton said he is pleased with the report.

More science laboratory space at the high school and the need for an additional foreign language teacher at the high school are two areas of concern which the report cited, but which are not critical issues at the present time, he said.

Uselton said that attendance for the new school year has reached 1,404, about 35 less than the same time last year. Kelley Elementary has 32 students, Hutchinson has 351, the middle school has 297 and the high school has 404.

Buses will leave at 9 a.m. for the six agricultural demonstration stops and will return at 11:30 a.m. for a barbecue luncheon. Luncheon speaker will be Pat Porter from Veal Moor.

Abilene officials searching for woman

ABILENE — Police here said this morning that their investigation into the disappearance of a Hawley school teacher has turned up no clues as to her whereabouts.

LORI BARRETT

Lori Michelle Barrett, 27, of 1734 Avenue D in Abilene, was reported missing by Hawley School Superintendent Cecil Davis when Barrett didn't appear Friday to teach her fifth grade class.

Barrett was last seen by a co-worker Thursday night driving away from the parking lot of Dillard's in the Mall of Abilene, where she works part-time.

Police said they are unsure if she ever made it home. Officers said they found her home locked and no evidence of a struggle, according to an Abilene Reporter-News report.

Friends and family members told police that Barrett has never before left the area without telling anyone. She was described as "very responsible."

Mark Leavell, a friend who has known Barrett since they attended Texas A&M University together in 1979, said she had been in good spirits and was looking forward to a camping trip with college friends scheduled for November.

Barrett moved to Abilene in January from College Station, where she taught for several years. She worked as a substitute teacher in spring until she began her job at Hawley Elementary earlier this month.

She was last seen driving her metallic blue Nissan Sentra, license plate number 083 CGN. Barrett is 5-foot-3, 140 pounds with short brown hair and blue eyes.

Anyone with information on her whereabouts should call the Abilene Police Department at 687-8311 or 676-6331.

Essay winners

Essays on the U.S. Constitution by two Big Spring students were among 58 state entries submitted to the U.S. Department of Education for national consideration. The winners are Sterling Cave, 4th grader at Bauer Elementary School, and Stephanie Moss, 5th grader at Moss Elementary School.

The contest was designed to encourage students to learn about America's early history and basic founding principles, and to promote good writing skills, said Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction at the Big Spring school district.

"The Constitution means much to Americans because it gives justice and security. The Constitution gives me a good, free feeling. It gives me the right to be a woman U.S. president in the year 2023," Cave wrote.

"The Constitution promises protection, treatment the same for all people, equality for everyone, and fairness for all people in this country. That includes blacks, whites, orientals, Spanish and all others. The Constitution guarantees our futures," Moss wrote.

Complete essays were printed in the March 29 issue of the Herald.

Jordan decries Bork 'justice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Describing the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court as a heavy blow against civil rights, former Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan declared that under his brand of justice, she would never have been elected to office.

"My opposition to this nomination is really the result of living 51 years as a black American born in the South and determined to be heard by the majority community," Ms. Jordan said in testimony Monday before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Ms. Jordan, a former congresswoman from Houston, now teaches at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

She said her initial election to the Texas Legislature in 1966 was possible only after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled Texas had to reapportion its voting districts to more accurately reflect the general population.

"When you experience the frustration of being in the minority position and watching foreclosure of your last appeal ... and then you are suddenly rescued by the Supreme Court of the United States, that is tantamount to being born again," she said.

Ms. Jordan said that in her view, the court must act as guardian of the rights of minorities and the poor, a view with which she says Bork disagrees.

According to Ms. Jordan, Bork dismissed the court's reapportionment decision, saying the idea of one man, one vote is too restrictive, that there is no theoretical basis for it, and that while he agrees with the results of reapportionment cases, he would rather let democratically elected bodies make such decisions.

Welfare system could cause Texas losses

DALLAS (AP) — Texas could lose at least $17 million under a federal program because of its decentralized welfare system, which does not accurately reflect the number of illegal aliens in the state, officials say.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services plans to award grants to states to help lessen the strain on their welfare systems from newly legalized immigrants under the nation's first immigration amnesty law.

The amount to be received by each state is figured by a complicated formula partly determined by the number of legalized immigrants and the amount of social services provided them by the states, the Dallas Times Herald reported Monday.

Under the plan, Texas would receive the third-largest grant although it is expected to have the second-largest population of legalized immigrants, about 307,000, according to the preliminary disbursement calculations by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

New York, which is predicted to have the third-biggest number of immigrants — 258,000 — would get the second-biggest grant. California, with as many as 50 percent of the nation's illegal immigrants, would receive the largest sum.

Gov. Bill Clements and most of Texas' congressional delegation say the proposed federal formula unfairly penalizes Texas for its decentralized welfare system, which fails to accurately reflect the number of illegal aliens in the state.

A congressional plan created last fall includes a four-year, $4 billion federal pot to help states with welfare costs, but is awaiting public comment before it can become final.

Newly legalized applicants will be barred from receiving most of the federal aid for five years, causing them to continually turn to state and local programs for help.

Hearing moved away from Conroe

CONROE (AP) — A hearing that could lead to a new trial for controversial death row inmate Clarence Brandley is being moved 90 miles away by a judge who said he was troubled by an atmosphere of fear in Brandley's home county.

In a rare action, attorneys for Brandley won a change of venue Monday for an evidentiary hearing for their client, who already has had two trials on charges he raped and killed a 16-year-old girl in 1980.

"There exists here a volatile explosive situation, not conducive to the fair administration of justice," visiting State District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland said after hearing testimony from five witnesses who said Brandley could not get a fair hearing in Montgomery County.

Galveston, site of the Sept. 28 hearing, is about 90 miles to the south.

Brandley, who turns 36 this week, is hoping new evidence will earn him a third trial on charges stemming from the rape-slaying of Cheryl Ferguson.

City's cab drivers must be bilingual

MALLEN (AP) — The McAllen City Commission voted Monday to require its cab drivers to be bilingual enough to converse with passengers in either English or Spanish.

Monday's vote alters an ordinance passed earlier this summer that made no reference to required competency in Spanish. It required drivers to know English before they could renew their cab licenses in McAllen, which is 10 miles north of the Mexican border.

"Some of the commissioners thought since we are on the border, we should require the Spanish," said Mayor Othel Brand.

"It's just a reasonable request, given the number of Spanish-speaking people we have here."

The city receives many Mexican tourists, as well.

Brand said the ordinance does not require complete fluency in either language, but drivers must be able to understand simple instructions and read street signs.

All of the city's licensed cab drivers know English and Spanish, he said, but occasional problems have occurred with drivers from the border city of Reynosa, Mexico, picking up fares in McAllen.

Abilene woman will take state post

AUSTIN (AP) — Abilene businesswoman Dian Owen has been named a director of the Texas Department of Commerce by Gov. Bill Clements.

Ms. Owen, 47, is chairwoman of Owen Healthcare Inc., a hospital pharmacy management firm. Her term, which was announced Monday by Clements, will expire Feb.

Ms. Owen is a director of the First National Bank of Abilene, Abilene Chamber of Commerce and Hospice of Abilene, and a trustee of McMurray College.

She is the fifth department director to be appointed by Clements, who will name one more director to fill the board.

Device increases gas mileage by 22%

With the oil glut worse than ever and OPEC wringing its hands, on July 11th, the government awarded National FuelSaver Corp. $22,000 for developing a simple automotive accessory that increases gas mileage by 22 percent.

Called the Platinum GasSaver, it injects microscopic quantities of platinum into the airstream entering the engine.

The Injector itself takes only minutes to install, while the platinum entering the engine increases the percentage of each gallon burning in the engine, from the normal 68 percent to 90 percent.

Normally, that 22 percent would only burn when it came in contact with the platinum-coated surfaces of the catalytic converter. But with the GasSaver introducing the platinum into the engine, platinum catalysis can now burn that fuel in the engine where the release of that heat and energy is harnessed to drive that vehicle.

With 22 percent more of each gallon burning in the engine, 22 percent fewer gallons are required.

The process works on both leaded and unleaded gasoline, and meets EPA and California standards.

Federal Judge Walter Jay Skinner concluded the five-year administrative procedure studying the GasSaver by stating, "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the GasSaver than the 22 percent claimed by its developer, National FuelSaver Corp."

In another study concluded recently, the government confirmed that the Platinum GasSaver raises the octane of gasoline, eliminating the need for premium gasoline.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented, "We've already sold over 70,000 GasSavers. Ironically, we find more people buying the GasSaver for its third benefit of extending engine life, than buy it for fuel savings or octane boosting. Ever since our economy became battered by OPEC in 1973, we were convinced it would be a small company like ourselves that would reverse the trend of higher fuel costs."

Testing fabric of crossroads

Pope John Paul II may have raised a few eyebrows in San Antonio when he implicitly endorsed the work of Catholics in the Sanctuary movement.

His observations about the significance of this nation's borderland, however, are worth noting, regardless of how one feels about sanctuary for illegal immigrants fleeing Central American conflicts.

The pontiff's words about the border region are as relevant to Tucson, San Diego and Los Angeles as they are to San Antonio, a majority-Hispanic city with close and enduring ties to a Latin American neighbor 150 miles away.

The history of the church in Texas and the Southwest, the pontiff noted, "registers a meeting of cultures, indigenous and immigrant, sometimes marked by tensions and conflicts, yet constantly moving toward reconciliation and harmony."

San Antonio itself reflects those tensions and conflicts, as well as an impetus toward reconciliation and harmony. For example, when the pope addressed a crowd of about 300,000 people, he did so in a field donated by a San Antonio businessman who is Jewish.

Later, John Paul spoke to a group on San Antonio's West Side, a teeming, vital neighborhood where Mexican exiles at the turn of the century plotted revolution back home. Many stayed to make a life for themselves in this country; among them were ancestors of the current mayor.

Also on San Antonio's West Side, an activist group called Communities Organized for Public Service, or COPS, began about a decade ago to change the face of San Antonio — with backing from the Roman Catholic Bishops of the United States and the local archdiocese.

COPS not only brought paved streets and adequate drainage to the West Side, the grassroots organization also carved out a measure of political power and influence long denied West Side residents.

The pope also spoke at San Fernando Cathedral, in downtown San Antonio. San Fernando's pastor, Father Virgilio Elizondo, is a writer and scholar who espouses a theology of liberation, a view of the gospel that has sparked controversy within the church establishment.

Elizondo and other liberation theologians see their work as one of reconciliation — an effort to reconcile the church's timeless mission with the immediate needs of the poor and dispossessed.

"This land is a crossroads, standing at the border of two great nations and experiencing both the enrichment and the complications which arise from this circumstance," the pope reminded his San Antonio listeners. "You are thus a symbol and a kind of laboratory testing America's commitment to her founding moral principles and human values."

In San Antonio, he was speaking to all Americans — "about justice and freedom, and about the acceptance of diversity within a fundamental unity — a unity arising from a shared vision of the dignity of every human person, and a shared responsibility for the welfare of all, especially of the needy and the persecuted."

As we celebrate the bicentennial of the signing of the Constitution, the words of a distinguished visitor remind us of that document's significance — for Americans old and new.

To the editor:
I'm taking this opportunity to give my sincere thanks to the many people who made our Diez y Seis de Septiembre Fiesta possible.

Special thanks goes to Coors Distributing for cosponsoring the Fiesta; also to ALSA Car Club for handling the washer tournament; to Louie Brown, our Precinct One commissioner; to Pat Deanda, our Precinct One councilwoman; and our City Mayor Cotton Mize.

Thank you also to the Howard County Boxing Club, which helped us get ready and throughout the Fiesta. The members really kept the area clean.

A very special thanks to each member of LULAC Council 4375, who, despite every possible setback imaginable, kept "hanging in" there with us, working long and hard hours — most spent in preparation for the parade — to see that the Fiesta was a success.

Most importantly, thank you people of Big Spring and all the surrounding areas for your participating in attending and helping us celebrate. We can do nothing without you. For those who missed, I personally extend an invitation to our next function.

I hope that we all had a great time. Our scholarship fund got a big boost and is growing. And you still may make individual or group donations — to help your kids in your college.

Hart to face scandal of Rice's jeans

By ART BUCHWALD

What makes America a great country is that it forgives people for their indiscretions on television. A couple of weeks ago Gary Hart was given permission to go on the Ted Koppel show to put his political scandal behind him.

At the same time Donna Rice, his ex-friend, was given a TV press conference to promote a product called "No Excuses Jeans."

"What does this mean to the Democratic Party?" I asked Sampson Overbite, the leading pundit for "Donkey Business."

"I don't think it will affect the party one way or the other," he replied.

"You're talking about Mr. Hart's apology?"

"No, I'm talking about Donna Rice's jeans. They may look attractive but they won't do anything for you in the voting booth."

"Would it have been better if Hart had put on the jeans and Donna had publicly apologized on 'Nightline'?"

"I don't think so. Women voters get very upset when a model who sails off with one of their more attractive presidential candidates makes money out of it."

"I'm not saying that you shouldn't cash in on a political scandal, but if you take it too far something like this could hurt the jeans business."

I asked, "Was Hart consulted by the manufacturers about 'No Excuses Jeans'?"

"I'm certain he wasn't or he would have apologized for them too. This is one they can't blame on Gary. The worst part of a model getting mixed up with hanky-panky in the Bahamas is there is always a ladies clothing manufacturer waiting on the docks in Miami to sign her up."

"It's lucky that Gary didn't announce he was getting back in the race. He would not only have had to defend his behavior in Washington, but the quality of Donna's jeans as well."

"That's true, particularly when the pants go under the name of 'No Excuses.'"

"Politics sure makes strange publicity stunts," I said.

Sampson growled, "I think there is too much being made of Donna's jeans contract. I know of no case where a female friend of a presidential candidate who dressed in pants affected what happened in Iowa."

"Is it possible that the Jeans manufacturers selected Donna for her notoriety?"

"There is always that possibility. But the next question is why would Donna's friendship with Gary sell jeans?"

"Perhaps because many women feel if they are wearing Donna's jeans they will be closer to Gary."

"We must keep this on a serious level," Sampson replied. "What I'm trying to figure out is whether Hart means it when he says he's out of the race. Suppose Donna's britches sold awfully well. That would be the nearest thing to a grass roots draft."

"They would look great on a poster together," I said.

"At the same time we can't avoid the possibility that Gary might try to distance himself from Donna. Suppose he told all his supporters not to buy 'No Excuses Jeans.' It could be the straw that broke the camel's back."

"Gary's trying to get his own scandal behind him. He can't do that if he makes Donna's jeans an issue. What he should do when asked about the modeling contract is say he is very happy for Donna, although he doesn't ever plan to see her again."

"I don't think that's convincing enough. I believe Gary is finally going to have to tell the truth and say that his sole interest in Donna Rice was to put her in the garment business."

Prisoner pays for donation of kidney with another year

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Sighs of relief and sighs of sadness will be heard when former Rep. George Hansen is released from prison next month. Elated will be the prison officials he has been censuring for over a year; dejected will be his fellow inmates, for whom he has acted as an ardent ombudsman.

The Idaho Republican is finishing his second stint at the Petersburg (Va.) federal prison camp. After his 1984 conviction for filing false financial disclosure statements, he served six months last year.

When he ventured too far from Washington and refused to disclose details about his personal finances, he was cited for parole violations and tossed in the can again in April of this year.

Always the maverick, the 6-foot-6-inch arch-conservative has bombarded the press and his former colleagues on Capitol Hill with complaints about prison food, safety and sanitation problems, waste of government property, and the arbitrary treatment of inmates.

The Petersburg prison camp is a minimum-security facility that holds about 200 inmates, including former public officials, businessmen, brokers, lawyers, and judges. Hansen's impassioned and fearless defense of the interests of these new and otherwise voiceless friends has earned him their heartfelt gratitude. As one example, take the case of Tom Williams, an inmate from Mechanicsville, Va.

A management consultant, Williams is serving a five-year sentence for tax evasion. He is husky, healthy and during the first two years of his incarceration, never missed a day of work in the compound.

This past spring, his 18-year-old, Joseph, suffered severe kidney failure, and Williams offered to donate one of his to his son. He obtained permission from the camp director, he told us, to take a month supervised leave of about a month for medical tests and the operation.

The transplant was performed by Dr. Vernon Smith of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond on June 24. When Tom Williams was allowed to leave the hospital, he went home — five minutes away — for a short period of recuperation. This was done — with the verbal concurrence of the camp director, according to Williams — to facilitate post-operative hospital visits and to avoid the physical exertions he would have had to endure at the camp.

Tom Williams' stitches were removed on Monday, July 6. He reported to the prison the same day and learned that the previous camp director had left. There was no written record of approval for his stay at home, and he was therefore absent without permission.

He was given an "incident report" (a "shot" in prison parlance) and placed in solitary confinement.

"It was well over 100 degrees in 'the hole' in July, Williams told us. The sink was full of fecal matter. The thin foam mattress was soaked through with the sweat of the previous occupant.

And Tom Williams had a recently healed wound in his side, but that apparently mattered little to the prison authorities. He remained in the hole for 13 days. He was examined by his doctor nine days after he got out and learned that he had somehow avoided infection.

Williams was expecting to have his sentence reduced by eight months and to spend four months in a halfway house. After the "incident," however, he was hauled before a parole board in shackles and his early departure was canceled.

Since we started asking questions about the Williams case, the "shot" has been expunged from his record, but his sentence adjustments have not been restored. As far as he knows at this point, in short, donating a kidney to his son cost him another year behind bars.

Footnote: A prison spokesman said that Williams was supposed to report back to the institution upon his release from the hospital, failed to do so, and was placed in "administrative detention" upon his arrival at the facility.

OIL RIGHT! — Alpha Environmental Inc. of Austin is causing a stir of hope among small businessmen who own low-production "stripper wells." Alpha has developed a unique system to recover additional oil from these wells, by injecting microorganisms into them to increase the viscosity of the underground oil.

An Energy Department test has confirmed the effectiveness of the "bugs," citing one oil field where production increased 30 percent after the microorganisms went to work.

Alpha is headed by Eugene Douglas, a respected former diplomat who was chief of the State Department's refugee programs.

In refreshing contrast to government officials who walk through the revolving door and take cushy jobs with contractors they used to regulate Douglas started his promising new enterprise on his own. With more than 5,000 stripper wells in the United States, Alpha could be good news for the hard-hit oil industry.

Daybook

Saturday, Sept. 22, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Jacob Hiltzheimer reported the work of the Pennsylvania Assembly today. The focus of attention was a bill to regulate auctions. Thomas Fitzsimons and George Clymer argued on one side of the issue and George Logan and Robert Whitehall the other. The bill was postponed without a decision.

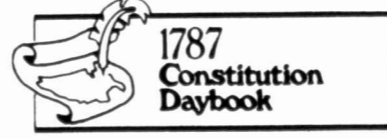

The Columbian Magazine reported that the grand jury was annoyed with the general "intercourse" between the criminals of different sexes in jail. The jurors further sought to correct another problem of that of mixing debtors with criminals in the section intended only for debtors.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

John Nourse, a citizen of Mercer County, Va., (later Kentucky) informed Joseph Chapline that a convention was in session to determine whether or not Kentucky would become an independent state. Nourse said two parties had emerged — one for and the other against separation — and he had not yet determined which side would have its way.

RATIFICATION TODAY

In Baltimore, Thomas and Samuel Hollingsworth noted in a letter to Lewis Hollingsworth that

The Constitution had been read by most people in Baltimore and generally was accepted by the populace.

In Philadelphia, John McCullough, a Philadelphia scholar, published a book titled "Introduction to the History of America." Although other American history books had appeared before 1787, McCullough's work almost certainly was the first to include a copy of the Constitution. In less than a week, the new plan of government was part of a textbook.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington ate breakfast at Blandenburgh, passed through George Town, dined in Alexandria and arrived at Mount Vernon at sunset after an absence of four months and 14 days.

LOOKING BACK

Kentucky was one of the earliest western areas settled under British rule. In 1775, Judge Richard Henderson illegally purchased land from the Indians to create the Transylvania Company. That same year, Daniel Boone and other pioneers ventured into the area and established several small towns or stations such as Boonesborough.

The British unsuccessfully had tried to restrict migration, but with independence, individual states encouraged new settlement. In 1780 Virginia opened a land office in Kentucky and land calls were so brisk, the term "land office business" was coined.

Kentucky residents were disgusted with the Jay Treaty which agreed to close the Mississippi River to navigation, and they were even more angry when they discovered that seven Northern states actually supported the agreement.

Revolutionary War officer James Wilkinson tried to take advantage of the situation by conspiring with Spain to separate Kentucky from the United States for a price. Most Kentucky residents were unaware of Wilkinson's actions, but they were no less unhappy with the perceived unfair treatment they were receiving from Congress.

In 1788 the Spanish reopened navigation on the Mississippi, although charging heavy duties on American goods. Kentucky was admitted to the union as the 15th state in 1792.

Two die in explosion

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — A homemade hand grenade accidentally exploded, killing two men, authorities said.

Jack Dau, 32, and Timothy McIntire, 46, of Rock Island, died Sunday, Rock Island County Coroner Richard Verbeck said. A hand grenade pin was found near one of the bodies.

"At this point, we're leaning toward it being accidental," said Sheriff Gordy Powell. "We don't believe there was a third party involved."

The two were neighbors who hunted and fished together, the sheriff said.

'Long shot' for AIDS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — An AIDS vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk and based on his polio prevention work may be ready for human tests in four months, but researchers said they didn't want to offer false hopes to AIDS victims.

"This is a very long shot," said Dr. Neil Flynn, head of the AIDS unit of the University of California-Davis Medical Center in Sacramento. "What we hope for is a little bit of information."

Salk's AIDS vaccine is based on his work that resulted in the first polio vaccine, using whole killed viruses.

Flynn, accompanied at a news conference Monday by medical assistants and university officials, said they were looking for volunteers to participate in the tests, in which a dead AIDS virus cell is injected into the patient's muscle, probably in the arm.

Stassen trying again

MINNEAPOLIS — Harold Stassen, the boy wonder of the Republican party 49 years ago who became the grand old loser of the GOP, is launching his eighth bid for the White House. The 80-year-old Stassen, who waged only token campaigns his last few outings, said Monday he decided to enter the race because the other candidates are not discussing what he considers to be the important issues.

Presidential politics' perennial also-ran, a lawyer and former three-term Minnesota governor, made his first bid for the White House 40 years ago.

Stassen indicated he doesn't have a chance of winning, saying any delegates he may win "will not be tied or committed to me personally but will free at all times to individually or jointly have an impact on the final choice for the Republican nomination and the election."

"We will not attack personally any other candidates, but will endeavor to move all of them, of both parties, on the four issues in which we believe so deeply," he said in remarks prepared for delivery today.

The Liberian freighter Pac Baroness sinks into the Pacific Ocean off Point Conception, Calif., Monday hours after it collided with the Panamanian freighter Atlantic Wing. The Atlantic Wing also suffered extensive damage but no injuries were reported. The Atlantic Wing rescued all of the 25 crew members from the Pac Baroness.

Collision

Sunk ship stirs pollution fears

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Environmental officials and fishermen worried that metals aboard a freighter that sank after a collision with another ship could spew into the ocean, threatening rich fishing areas.

The 564-foot Liberian-registered Pac Baroness sank Monday, 10 hours after hitting the 494-foot Atlantic Wing, a Panamanian carrier loaded with automobiles.

The Pac Baroness, carrying 23,000 tons of powdered copper, iron and sulfur concentrates and 386,000 gallons of bunker fuel, went down in 3,000 feet of water 125 miles northwest of Los Angeles, according to the Coast Guard.

Its 25-member crew escaped unharmed. No injuries were reported among the Atlantic Wing's crew.

"There's excellent fishing just north and south of there," said Zeke Grader, executive director of the Pacific Coast Federation of Fishermen's Associations. "Depending on where the currents are, it could be a real problem. I'm very concerned about contamination."

The freighter's contents could cause significant environmental problems if released into the ocean, said Philip Oshida, an oceanographer for the federal Environmental Protection Agency in San Francisco.

Copper, the most dangerous of the compounds, can be deadly to marine life, he said.

Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Charles Crosby said officials would watch for any pollution. He said it was unlikely the Pac Baroness could be salvaged.

"It's in too deep of water," he said. "I believe it's just going to stay down there."

Fog probably contributed to the crash, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Leo Kay.

Crewmen on the Pac Baroness pumped the bilges and tried to start the engines during the afternoon as its stern sank at a rate of about 15 feet an hour.

U.S. to cut Bolivia aid

LA PAZ, Bolivia — A U.S. decision to cut $8.5 million in aid to Bolivia because it has not eliminated enough coca plants will disrupt the country's anti-drug campaign, officials say.

Bolivia will lose the aid because it has destroyed only about 30 of the roughly 600 acres of coca plants the United States had demanded be eradicated by the end of September, U.S. and Bolivian officials said Monday.

Coca is a shrub whose dried leaves are the source of cocaine.

"Bolivia is not guilty, and drugs are not only our problem but that of the U.S. administration," said Foreign Minister Guillermo Bedregal. "A cutoff in aid would only hurt future drug efforts."

For the $7.5 million in economic support and $1 million in military aid to continue, Bolivia had to prove to the United States that it had a plan for coca eradication and had made substantial progress toward meeting its eradication goals, said a U.S. Embassy spokesman in La Paz.

Shipyard strike ends

SEOUL, South Korea — One of the largest strikes in a nearly three-month wave of labor unrest ended today as thousands of workers returned to South Korea's largest shipyard after winning a 14 percent wage increase.

Company officials said about 96 percent of the Hyundai Heavy Industry Co. shipyard's 24,000 workers were back on the job today as the facility reopened after two months of lost production.

The shipyard, in the southeastern port of Ulsan, has been the site of violent confrontations between police and militant strikers.

Titanic items shown

PARIS — A silver ladle, gold spectacles, and a cracked whiskey bottle pulled from the Titanic were unveiled today at the first public showing of artifacts salvaged from the sunken luxury liner.

About 100 reporters were on hand for the opening of the container holding 800 items plucked by salvagers from the Titanic, which sank 75 years ago on its maiden voyage.

The five pieces displayed today included a pale green whiskey bottle, with a small crack in its side, and filled with murky water; a silver ladle, its engraved handle covered in a tar-like substance; a pair of gold spectacles in mint condition, inside the leather case still bearing the name of the Paris optician who made them; an elaborate bronze grill used to cover a duct on the ship; and a fluted serving bowl.

NRC lacks nuclear closing policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission lacks guidelines on closing nuclear power plants for safety violations, and some have operated for years with significant problems, according to a federal report released today.

The report, by the General Accounting Office, recommends that the NRC "provide utilities clear signals on the types of safety and management problems that could result in a shutdown."

"Nuclear Regulation: Efforts To Ensure Nuclear Power Plant Safety Can Be Strengthened" was written in response to a request from Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-N.Y., who released the report.

Victor Stello, the NRC's executive director for operations, responded to some of the report's criticisms in a telephone interview Monday, although he said he had not yet seen the document.

Stello said the NRC explains what violations would lead to a closing in a "technical specifications" document each plant receives upon licensing.

"To suggest that a comprehensive set of criteria beyond what we already have ought to be developed, I'm at a loss because we really have a fairly comprehensive system right now," he said.

While the NRC has ordered closures at five operating plants in the past 25 years, "its decisions to close these plants or allow continued operations look inconsistent because it did not take the same action for other plants with similar problems," the report said.

Some plants with chronic safety violations that were allowed to stay open wound up shut down anyway because of equipment failures, the report noted.

D'Amato called on the NRC to stop licensing any more nuclear plants until it adopts the GAO recommendations and improves enforcement of safety regulations.

The two plants that would be directly affected by D'Amato's demand are Shoreham in New York and Seabrook in New Hampshire. Both plants have been thwarted in their efforts to obtain full-power licenses because neither has an approved emergency evacuation plan.

Five die in gulf ship attack; Iran denies mines planting

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iran acknowledged today that a ship attacked by a U.S. helicopter gunship in the Persian Gulf was part of its navy, but denied the vessel was sowing mines in the waterway.

State-run Tehran radio said five sailors were killed and demanded that the U.S. Navy hand over surviving members of the crew. Iran vowed to avenge the attack.

In Washington, the Pentagon said three Iranians were confirmed dead and two were missing. A Pentagon statement said a Navy boarding party found 10 mines aboard the vessel, the Iran Ajr, and that 26 crewmen — four of them wounded — were either rescued in a lifeboat or removed from the water.

"The ship belonged to the shipping company of the Islamic Republic of Iran and had been placed at the disposal of the country's navy," Tehran radio said in its main broadcast at 2 p.m.

The report came only a few hours after Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani insisted the United States had attacked an unarmed cargo vessel.

Rafsanjani "categorically denied" the Iran Ajr was laying mines, according to Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency.

"Those who have entered the region by force and embarked on wicked acts will soon regret their actions," Rafsanjani told the Iranian Parliament today, according to an IRNA reported monitored in Cyprus. He said the raid "will not go unanswered."

Rafsanjani said the Americans fired on the ship "to overshadow" Iranian President Ali Khamenei's speech to the United Nations General Assembly today. Khamenei was expected to outline his country's stand on a U.N. cease-fire resolution aimed at ending the 7-year-old war Iran-Iraq war.

Searching for runners

By EDDIE CURRAN Staff Writer

Randy Britton has every reason to be the most frustrated coach at Big Spring High School.

Big Spring High School track and cross-country coach Randy Britton says his cross-country teams have a good chance to do well in district.

The Steers' track and cross-country coach has seen so many talented runners stop running that he's gotten used to it.

In high school. He's got the leg speed; he just needs the maturity," Britton said.

All of the times were run by underclasspeople — there are no seniors on the board.

Gonzales didn't run cross-country last year, but in spring track season he was third in the state in the mile and sixth in the two-mile.

The big reason is junior Ben Gonzales. "There's nothing that kid can't do in running.

The only returning letterman is sophomore James McMillan, who is the Steers' number two runner.

Jets rout Patriots 43-24

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — If the New York Jets are an accurate measure of the solidarity of NFL players concerning a strike, the walkout may be in trouble as it begins.

New England Patriots quarterback Tony Eason is sacked by New York Jets Barry Bennett and Bob Crabie (50) in Monday night football action in East Rutherford, N.J.

Hamilton did not say he would play during a strike, but would help train replacements.

England 35, broke Clayborn's tackle and sped into the end zone, giving the Jets a 13-3 lead.

The Jets certainly looked like a playoff team Monday night. Their defense was dominant in the first three quarters, allowing the Patriots just 57 total yards and sacking Tony Eason five times.

doesn't have a lot of speed, but he has desire. He wants to be good."

Sophomore John Garza: "He definitely has ability; he's just not in condition yet."

Other Steer harriers include sophomores Martin Baldwin and Jean Poulette and freshmen Mario Flores, Shawn Daylong and Tony Jones.

"Basically, we're very inexperienced this year. I expect us to improve from meet to meet, and hopefully we'll improve enough by district to beat Andrews — that's our goal," Britton said.

Despite the problem of keeping girls active in cross country, Britton thinks this year's group, though also inexperienced, will compete for a district title.

The lone returnee is sophomore Rocky Alviar, who will be one of the top Lady Steers. Sophomore Evette Regalado, who Britton says will be "darn good," and junior Susan Garza are the other top Lady Steers.

Regalado's sister Mimi is a freshman. "She may be the best runner, potential-wise, I've ever had. She looks good for a freshman," Britton said.

The three other Lady Steers are sophomore Trisha Barnes and freshmen Lillian Trevino and Zenaida Morin.

"I think the girls have a good chance. I know we have four people that can run and it takes five to make a team. I just need to find that fifth runner," Britton said.

Britton says he understands that cross country is not a glory sport, and he doesn't hold it against his athletes when they quit.

"We have so many kids walking the halls here that could excel in cross country but don't. I'm constantly talking to kids.

"It's not a matter of them coming to me — I'm always trying to get kids in the program. We are the only sport that you don't have to have a lot of talent. If you have the desire you're going to have success.

"If I had the answer to it, I'd be selling books to coaches and making a million dollars," Britton says.

It's a good bet he'll keep looking for the answer. Until he finds it, it's a good bet he'll be looking in the halls for Steers who can run and don't mind doing it.

Dog Training Tips from Benji's Trainer

In the movie "Benji the Hunted," Benji cares for four cougar cubs. There are only 12 minutes of humans talking. The rest is Benji acting. Eleven years of training have made him a star.

Benji has been sitting on command for 11 years.

Co-trainer Bryan Renfro and Benji show us how to train your dog to sit. Notice how Bryan holds the leash and pushes Benji down.

"You should do the training in an enclosed area with a leash. In this way you can bring the dog to you and then reward him with a pat or bite of food. Once he starts coming to you, keep him in the enclosed area but take the leash off and call him.

"If he doesn't come, don't get angry. Just put the leash on, give him a little tug and tell him to come to you.

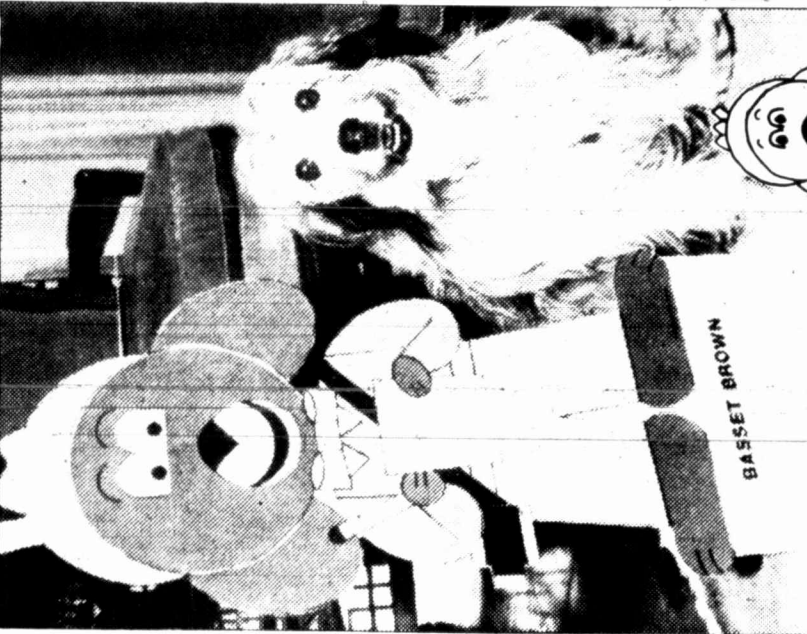

On command, Benji gives Alpha Betty a pat on a recent visit to The Mini Page studio.

"To train a dog to lie down (or sit), push him into the lying (or sitting) position. At the same time, tell him what to do. Also use your hands (to give a signal). In that way, the dog is learning word commands and hand signs."

A Mini Page Interview

Benji the Superstar

By BETTY DEBNAM

Today's Benji is the second dog to play the Benji role.

At age 11, Benji I appeared in the first Benji movie.

After he died, his daughter, Benji II, took over the role. Benji II has starred in three movies and several TV shows. He began acting at 11 months old.

Benji II is a female, but is usually called "he."

To find out about this superstar, The Mini Page talked with his co-trainer, Bryan Renfro. He told us:

"Benji came out of retirement to do his new movie, 'Benji the Hunted.' He is 11½ years old."

"Benji knows when the camera is rolling. He knows when they say 'cut.'"

"Benji has a lot of heart. He is an intelligent dog and a great worker. When the days get long, he will still work for you." (A worker from the American Humane Society is always on the set when filming is going on.)

"Benji knows he is special. On the other hand, he is a normal house dog. He runs around the yard and barks at the mailman."

"Benji lives with another dog and cat. They all just lie around together."

Benji with his owner and trainer, Frank Inn, Benji and Frank live in Sylmar, Calif. Inn has trained many animal stars.

"Benji has two nephews, Benny and Bonnie. They appear in about two shots in the movie."

"Benji has been doing this (acting) for 11 years, so he understands so many things. He can be talked through about anything." (He also responds to hand signals.)

When Benji travels, he goes first class. He rides in a special suitcase that fits under the seat. Sometimes his trainer brings him out and puts on a little in-flight entertainment!

That's what people do at the Jules Undersea Lodge offshore from Key Largo, Fla.

The Jules Undersea Lodge is only 50 feet by 20 feet. It is 30 feet below the surface in a lagoon (a shallow body of water). Six people can stay there at a time.

Can you imagine being in a hotel, looking out your window and seeing a school of fish swim by?

Let's Visit an Underwater Hotel

A diagram of the lodge on the ocean's floor. 1. bedroom; 2. wetroom entry (divers enter from below); 3. entertainment room for TV watching and dining; 4. air hoses for the guests.

It has large glass windows so guests can look at fish, lobsters and other sea life outside. Guests can also go scuba-diving. Cables attached to buildings on land feed air, fresh water and power to the lodge.

The lodge was first built in the '70s as the world's largest underwater lab. It was designed by the U.S. Naval Academy. It was changed to a hotel last year.

Guests must be certified scuba divers to stay there. Children under 12 aren't allowed since they can't be certified until that age.

Save Those Pumpkin Seeds!

Fall is here. So are pumpkins. If you save their seeds, you can plant them and raise pumpkins for next Halloween.

Here's how:

1. Scoop out the seeds. Spread them on a paper towel to dry for a week. Store them in a cool, dry place.
2. If you want to harvest pumpkins at Halloween, plant the seeds sometime in June.
3. Plant your seeds about 1/2 inch deep in rich soil.
4. If you live in an apartment, you can plant the seeds in a pot. The plants will come up but will not grow any fruit. When they get bigger, transplant them outside so your pumpkins will grow.
