Drug bust at complex successful

Herald staff report

Howard County Sheriff's deputies and the Big Spring Police Department used a search warrant at a local apartment complex Friday to confiscate what is believed to be a controlled substance, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.

Officers confiscated three bags of a white powdery substance, hypodermic needles and other drug paraphernalia from Apt. 21 of the Ponderosa Apartments, 1425 E. Sixth St., according to sheriff's records.

Two females, both 23, were read their Miranda rights, but were not taken into custody, Standard said, adding that the office is awaiting the results of lab tests of the substance before filing charges.

The substance has been sent to the Department of Public Safety lab in Midland for testing.

Information for the search was provided by a confidential informant, Standard said.

The information is believed to be connected with the Sept. 11 arrests of two people at a Route 2 residence on drug charges and the Sept. 15 seizure at the residence of a chemical lab that is believed to have been used in the manufacture of drugs, Standard said.

TDC ruling may change prison plan

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Big Spring could be the site of a 1,000-inmate state prison rather than a proposed 2,250-inmate prison, as a result of new Texas Department of Corrections guidelines.

Councilman Johnny Rutherford told Howard County commissioners today that TDC modified its requirements for three new state prisons.

Commissioners discussed the prison proposal during today's meeting of the Howard County Commissioners Court. Commissioners also discussed appointing an appraiser for U.S. Highway 87 right-of-way purchases, approved construction of a road into the Big Spring Industrial Park and approved two contracts.

Big Spring officials submitted a proposal Sept. 21 for a 2,250-inmate maximum security facility. It is one of 33 site proposals received by the state.

Rutherford said the department has changed a requirement that called for the construction of two 1,250-inmate medium security prisons within 100 miles of Houston or Dallas.

The new guidelines call for the construction of four 1,000-bed facilities that later could be expanded, Rutherford said, adding that there are no location

County fair Stabbing mars success

Herald staff report

Although the last night's activities were marred by violence, the 15th annual Howard County fair is considered a success, according to Fair President R.G. Click.

Saul Sanchez, 446B Armstrong Drive was reportedly stabbed during a scuffle at the Howard County Fairgrounds Saturday night, according to police reports.

Sanchez was taken to the hospital by private vehicle and is in stable condition, according to a hospital spokesman. No arrests have been made, although police have interviewed several suspects in the case, police Lt. Troy Hogue said.

Fair department directors had not submitted their final reports, but Click said attendance appeared to be down by about 100 from last year, Click said.

Participation in several events increased over 1986, however. Click said there were more entries in the art, cattle and sheep divisions, and that other divisions "held their own" compared to the previous year.

"Considering the economy, it was a very successful fair," he said. "Everything ran smoothly."

The fair president praised the efforts of the musical group "Two for the Show" and local entertainer Jody Nix. Attendance was good at the events despite the Saturday rains, Click added.

Two events new to the fair also received recognition from Click. The Saturday night mule show and the gunfight organized by Wood's Boot Shop, Colorado City, were particular crowd-pleasers, he noted.

Even though it is a year away, plans are being made for the 1988 edition of the fair, Click said.

"We're already booking concessions and booths for next year," he said. "We're going to do our best to have a bigger and better fair in 1988."

Mitchell fair to open

COLORADO CITY — The annual Mitchell County Fair will open Thursday at 6 p.m. for a three-day run. The fairgrounds are located on Highway 80 West at the agricultural barn and rodeo grounds.

The fair will be open evenings until 10 p.m. and from 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. on Saturday.

Jest Amusement will provide the carnival which will open on Tuesday evening, two days prior to the fair. The carnival will be open nightly from 7-10.

New prison plan launched locally

From staff and wire reports

Howard County already has complied with a new plan by Gov. Bill Clements to end overcrowding problems in the state prison system, said Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

About 150 inmates will be released from state prisons daily to make room for incoming criminals, Clements announced last week.

Clements, along with members of the prison board and the Board of Pardons and Paroles, said the new "management plan" should end overcrowding problems that have closed the state prison system to new admissions more than 20 times this year.

"We're trying to hit a steady flow, a steady rate, of about 150 that are coming in and 150 that are going out," he said of the program scheduled to begin today.

The new program requires counties to call in advance when they have prisoners to be transferred to TDC, Standard said today.

TDC officials will allot each county a certain number of transfers and make arrangements for delivery on a certain date, Standard said.

Howard County made arrangements Friday for today's transfer of six inmates, he said.

Community shares lessons after suicides

BERGENFIELD, N.J. (AP) — In the six months since four teen-agers made a suicide pact and died in an exhaust-filled car, community leaders in this middle-class New York City suburb say they have learned two lessons.

First, that they will never know why the four made the pact or if the tragedy could have been prevented.

And second, that just as communities prepare for physical disasters, so must they prepare for emotional ones.

It was on March 11 that Thomas Olton, 19,

Thomas Rizzo, 18, and sisters Cheryl and Lisa Burress, ages 17 and 16, were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in Olton's idling car in a locked garage.

In the days that followed, students and parents alike gathered to explore their emotions.

Counseling was offered at the high school the day the bodies were found. And more discussions followed the next night when parents and students gathered to talk with mental health workers about the tragedy. Police set up a 24-hour hot line.

"It was a seat-of-the-pants operation," said Borough Administrator Louis Goetting IV. "In retrospect, we did a lot of things right. We also made some mistakes."

Now, members of the borough's Community Response Team, formed the day after the deaths, hope to share their experiences in a lecture tour, beginning Oct. 7 at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Rutherford, N.J.

"We've lived through a traumatic time and learned lessons that we feel are valuable for others to be exposed to," said Goetting, a member of the team.

Initially, police and volunteers handled the hot line. Mental health professionals now staff the telephones, which still are located at police headquarters.

When autopsies showed the four teen-agers had used cocaine before they died and that the two young men had also been drinking, a counselor specializing in substance abuse was hired for students in grades seven through 12. Another psychologist has been added to the school's guidance staff. Goetting said.

Veterans Administration monitors 124,000 wards

By GEORGE ESPER

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — He is a pathetic man, a Vietnam war hero who stood in the line of fire to save his buddies more than 20 years ago and came home unable to distinguish between his Army commendation medal and the G.I. Joe military toys he spends his money on today.

At age 44, he has been a recluse in his mother's home, only recently beginning to venture outside his room. She has taken care of him for 21 years even though he sometimes threatens her when he has flashbacks of the Viet Cong. She has been keeping his medal because he would throw it away.

He is one of the Veterans Administration's 124,000 wards, the incompetent, the physically disabled, the frightened and the forgotten, the shells of what they once were, controlled by medication that keeps them calm. Some have stayed in mental hospitals for up to 20 years, others live in small rooms or nursing homes. Some have estates in the six figures.

The VA has no judicial powers. But it serves as a watchdog for the state courts to ensure that benefits to incompetent and disabled veterans and their dependents are used for their welfare and that their legal custodians, just a step below guardians, do not take advantage of them. About 60 percent of the VA wards are veterans, the rest are their widows and children.

"The state court system can enact penalties against a fiduciary for mishandling funds. The VA cannot do that," said William Saliski, who helps run the VA's benefits program in Washington. "Most state courts do not have the capabilities to continually monitor the management of an incompetent's estate. That's what we do."

To do this, an army of 260 VA field examiners is on the road five days a week visiting the wards and their custodians. They look at the conditions of the homes in which

McLaughlin named to SSC committee

A privately funded effort to win voter approval of a supercollider financing package recently named Ralph McLaughlin a county representative.

McLaughlin was chairman for the Garden City SSC site committee.

Several other prominent leaders from West Texas Friday also joined the "Yes on Prop. 19 Committee," including former Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins as vice chairman.

Passage of the proposition at the Nov. 3 polls would allow the state to issue $500 million in general obligation bonds for site improvements to help Texas win the superconducting supercollider, according to a release.

Governor Bill Clements, Speaker Gib Lewis and chairman of the "Yes on Prop. 19 Committee" Jack Blanton, will conduct a press conference Tuesday in Austin to discuss Proposition 19 and the supercollider, according to a release.

"Passage of Proposition 19," said Blanton, "is a critical step toward bringing the supercollider to Texas, and I'm delighted by the growing support for the effort throughout the state."

Blanton said he feels that Texas has submitted the leading proposals — including one from the Garden City area — among the 25 states competing for the science center.

Three other West Texas leaders who will serve as county chairmen for the committee are: Deanna Mayfield, San Angelo; Mayor Carroll Thomas, Midland; and Mayor Don Carter, Odessa.

Akins is an independent petroleum engineering consultant who served as Midland's mayor from 1980 to 1986. He is on the Board of Trustees of Abilene Christian University. Akins has also served on the Board of the Texas Municipal League and on Governor William P. Clements' Mayors Advisory Committee during the Governor's first term.

Result of the fear of wives

Consider certain polygamous countries where a man can divorce his wife just by walking out on her.

Birth rates there tend to be exceedingly high — for no other reason than that many wives have children as quickly as possible in the hope it will keep their husbands from abandoning them.

Do you speak with a nasal tone? Pinch your nostrils together and say, "Brenda and Barbara brought bread." Unpinch, and say it again. Should be no difference.

Seven out of every 10 grownups in this country know how to jump-start a car — far more than know how to read a sales contract to buy a car. Some who know how to jump-start a car don't need to read a sales contract, true.

What we call "Canadian bacon" is known as "back bacon" in Canada. Most produced up there is sold to Japan. So Canada buys a lot of Canadian bacon from the United States and retails it at home as back bacon. Got that?

The counselors themselves were helped by 19-year-old Debbie Clark, who volunteered in June to be their link to the group of mostly unemployed dropouts who hang around in town, congregating most nights at a convenience store.

"I seen a lot of the streets and drugs and all that," Ms. Clark said. It was Ms. Clark who put the word out that counselors were looking for a teen-age boy living for several weeks on the streets. When she finally caught up with him, she recalled, "I told him there are alternatives to what he was doing."

The boy eventually returned home and has sought counseling.

A $100,000 state grant covered the costs of the hot line, extra school personnel, counselors and other services stemming from the suicides, but it has been exhausted now. Getting said all the programs will continue and be paid for out of the borough's coffers.

Proposed programs, such as workshops for teachers on how to handle crises in the schools, have been postponed pending more state or federal grants, he added. In the months after the suicides, legislation was introduced in Congress to establish and fund suicide programs, but none has been acted upon.

The tragedies were not the first for Bergenfield.

Four other Bergenfield youths died in the year before the suicide pact. Two of those deaths were ruled alcohol-related accidents, another was deemed accidental and the fourth a suicide.

Many in Bergenfield believe all the deaths were suicides and that if something had been done sooner, Olton, Rizzo and the Burress sisters might not have died. Four days before they killed themselves, Olton told an ambulance crew that he had slit his wrists in a suicide attempt.

Ms. Riske said the counselors still have much to learn about the teen-agers.

"All these kids want is someone to talk to," she said. "That is what we're trying to do and that's what we all should try to do."

requirements. The 1,000-inmate facilities would have a $500,000 monthly payroll and would involve construction costs of about $30 million, he said.

"We may be the front runner for the 2,250-bed (prison) — we have no way of knowing," Rutherford said, adding the change gives Big Spring and other communities more of a chance in attracting one of the prisons.

A TDC representative called late Friday afternoon asking if the city and county would continue to support a modified plan, Rutherford told commissioners.

Commissioners agreed to support either a 1,000-inmate facility or the earlier proposed 2,250-inmate facility. They will send a representative to Huntsville Oct. 15, when Rutherford said he expects the list of proposals to be reduced.

Also at today's meeting, commissioners discussed appointment of Jerry Worthy as property appraiser to establish values on land for U.S. Highway 87 right-of-way purchases, although no decision was reached by presstime.

Land appraisal is the next step toward a 2½-mile expansion of U.S. Highway 87 into four lanes from Hearn Street to the Glasscock County line, County Judge Milton Kirby said.

After the land is appraised, the county will enter into negotiations to purchase the seven parcels, he said.

Commissioners agreed to the construction of another road during this morning's meeting.

Commissioners approved construction of a 600- to 900-foot county road from the Interstate 20 south access road into the west portion of the Industrial Park.

The road will provide improved truck access to the park. No estimate on the cost was given, but Commissioner Paul Allen said the cost to the county would be minimal.

Commissioners also approved the renewal of contracts with the Big Spring Independent School District and Taylor County.

The county leases the former Lakeview YMCA, located at the county park, 1005 N.W. Fourth St., from the school district.

The county has agreed to pay the district $120 a month for site im-

Mission visit, serenades for royalty

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sophia of Spain toured missions and were serenaded by mariachis during their visit to Texas, a Spanish-influenced state the king called prosperous and beautiful.

The king and queen were scheduled to tour the Texas Medical Center in Houston today and to meet with noted heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey.

In San Antonio on Sunday, the royal couple received cowboy hats and were greeted by crowds waving miniature Spanish flags and by musicians playing country tunes and mariachi music.

The couple took a boat ride along the San Antonio River, attended Mass at San Jose Mission and spent 10 minutes inside the Alamo, a Spanish mission that sparked Texas' independence from Mexico after a battle between Texan and Mexican troops in 1836.

The king and queen made their first stop at the Institute of Texan Cultures.

Juan Carlos said his stop at the institute was appropriate because of the diverse cultures, including Spanish, that helped create Texas.

"Spain is also very happy to have contributed in the passage to forge that identity as you today contribute to make this state one of the most prosperous, beautiful ... in the United States," he said.

San Antonio was founded in 1691 by Spanish explorers who named the city after St. Anthony.

Mayor Henry Cisneros and his wife, Mary Alice, greeted the royal couple and accompanied them on the tour of San Antonio.

Cisneros, speaking in English and Spanish at the institute, told how Spanish settlers arrived in the area and how they began building missions and other buildings.

"We welcome the king and queen of Spain to a very unique city, a city that has built on that initial Spanish heritage and has welcome people from all nations," Cisneros said.

King Juan Carlos I of Spain hugs a well-wisher Sunday at San Jose Mission in San Antonio, with his wife, Queen Sophia, and San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros at his side. The king and queen stopped for about six hours in San Antonio during their week-long trek throughout the Southwest.

Cisneros presented the royal couple with several gifts, including a pair of white cowboy hats. They also received other gifts, including flowers, paintings and a foot-high bronze statue of St. Anthony.

Juan Carlos, Spain's king since 1975, returned the country to democracy shortly after he began his reign. The queen is the daughter of King Paul I and Queen Fredericka of Greece.

The royal couple also will visit Santa Fe and Albuquerque, New Mexico and Los Angeles and San Francisco before returning to Spain on Oct. 4.

City calm over nuke dump prospect

FORT HANCOCK (AP) — A proposed low-level radioactive waste dump caused a furor when it was first introduced. These days the plan draws mostly ambivalent reactions from residents in this community an hour southeast of El Paso.

More than a year ago, when geologists were drilling test holes to see if the desert 11 miles northeast of town was suitable for the site, townspeople talked about little else.

But now, concern seems to be fading in the community of 500.

"I haven't been hearing anything about it much," said Mickey Threadgill, a retiree who volunteers as an ambulance driver and emergency medical technician in Fort Hancock.

"If they decide to put it out there on this state land, there's not anything we can do about it, I don't think."

Dan Barton, who owns a grocery store near the exit on Interstate 10, agreed.

"Everybody's pretty much accepted that."

Yet Barton says residents remain opposed to the dump.

"It's very unpopular to be for it," he told the El Paso Times. "If that thing would provide 20 jobs, I'd be for it. I think we'd be lucky to get one job out of it."

The state Low-level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority estimates the dump would provide 35 to 40 jobs and a $1.7 million annual payroll. State law requires the authority to give preference to local people when hiring.

"It's a very labor-intensive proposition," said Tom Blackburn, director of special programs for the authority. "They're common jobs that could be filled by the kids that come out of Fort Hancock High School or Sierra Blanca High School."

The dump operation will require heavy equipment operators, mechanics, security guards, secretaries, concrete workers, warehouse employees and others.

New evidence could free Brandley

GALVESTON (AP) — Condemned inmate Clarence Brandley, fresh from a victory that moved his hearing from the county where he was convicted, hopes new evidence will keep him from being executed.

Brandley, 36, was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to die by injection for the 1980 rape-slaying of a teen-age girl. He won a change of venue last week that moved his evidentiary hearing from Conroe in Montgomery County to Galveston, about 90 miles south.

Visiting Judge Perry Pickett agreed with defense attorneys who contended witnesses for Brandley would feel intimidated if the hearing remained in Conroe, where Brandley once worked as a high school janitor.

Brandley insists he did not kill 16-year-old Cheryl Ferguson. His supporters, many of whom camped overnight outside the Conroe courtroom before cramming into the courtroom, claim the only reason he was convicted and sentenced to death was because he is black and the victim was white.

Mike DeGeurin, Brandley's attorney, said he would call about 30 witnesses during the evidentiary hearing in Galveston, which is expected to take at least a week.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in July granted this week's hearing, saying issues raised by defense attorneys three months earlier should be reviewed in court. A key issue is a claim that statements from two former janitors — fellow workers — should clear Brandley.

An inquiry by the Texas attorney general's office determined any new evidence was inconclusive.

"We have some evidence outside the attorney general's report," DeGeurin said.

"I have no idea what they're referring to," Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said. "I'm just not sure what they are characterizing as new evidence. I am familiar with what they have."

Speers said his witness list would depend on who defense attorneys called to testify.

Brandley was one of several janitors working at Conroe High School Aug. 23, 1980 when Miss Ferguson was found raped and strangled. He was the only black man among them, however, and his attorneys contend he was singled out because of his race.

Miss Ferguson was manager of the Belleville High School volleyball team, which traveled 60 miles to Conroe for a Saturday morning scrimmage. She was noticed missing shortly after the team arrived.

Ex-convict argues for death penalty

HOUSTON (AP) — An ex-convict jailed on charges of kidnapping and sexually assaulting a doctor says he would have gone on committing crimes if he had not been captured. The Houston Post reports.

In a copyright story published Sunday, Thomas Patrick Monaghan told the Post he wants the death penalty and has no wish to be free again.

"To be honest, no. I just didn't fit in," he said.

Monaghan, charged in the Sept. 17 kidnapping, said if he had not been arrested, he would have continued to commit "the most heinous crimes I could come up with."

"It would have progressed to murder," he said.

Peering through a metal grid at the Harris County Jail, Monaghan, 37, said he had never wanted his July 18 release from the Texas Department of Corrections, where he had served 15 years of a 40-year sentence for raping two Houston women in 1971.

Monaghan is charged with the kidnapping of a 32-year-old doctor, who was forced from her burning home while her husband was left bound in the living room. The husband, also a doctor, escaped unharmed from the blaze.

The woman, a former medical supervisor at the TDC, was able to free herself after 11 hours of captivity.

Monaghan said Saturday he did not initially plan to rape his captive, but massive doses of narcotics and alcohol eventually led him to believe it was "one final thing that had to be done."

"I wanted to break every law that there was — murder, kidnapping, arson, rape, everything. There was no rhyme or reason."

Denied bail, Monaghan is charged in Houston with aggravated kidnapping, attempted capital murder, two counts of aggravated robbery and two counts of auto theft. He also is charged with aggravated sexual assault and is a suspect in two arson fires.

Experts agree on crash victim's remains

AMARILLO (AP) — Two dentists and a forensic expert agreed after a four-hour autopsy that the victim of a Nov. 5 crash of a private plane in Kansas was indeed Glen E. Lemon, a banker in the Texas Panhandle town of Booker.

Dr. William A. Bass, a forensic anthropologist specializing in the identification of plane crash victims, said late Sunday, "There's no question about who he is."

Lemon, 54, a former president of the Texas Bankers Association, was chief executive officer and part-owner of his family-run First Bank and Trust of Booker, which was declared insolvent Dec. 18 — about six weeks after the plane crash — because of bad loans in energy and agriculture.

Lemon's remains were exhumed Friday from a cemetery at Booker, flown to Dallas and underwent a four-hour autopsy Saturday.

Before Friday's exhumation at least four companies were balking on paying off Lemon's $12.2 million in life insurance, more than $8 million of which was purchased during the nine months prior to his death. They asked for an exhumation and an autopsy to determine if he might have committed suicide.

Lemon's widow, Helaine W. Lemon, agreed Aug. 3 to have his body exhumed in order to "lay at rest forever" allegations by Iowa-based American Mutual Insurance Co. that Lemon's fiery plane crash may have been staged.

The company had filed a motion in U.S. District Court alleging Lemon's plane could have been pre-set to take off and crash without a living person at the controls.

Bass, head of anthropology at the University of Tennessee, said the identification was made from dental configurations.

Bass said his findings were confirmed by two dentists; one a representative of the Lemon family and the other a representative of the American Mutual Life Insurance Co. which is handling the matter. Bass said both dentists were in complete agreement as to the results of the findings.

"There was a crown on one tooth and a filling on another tooth, both of which were identical to before-death X-rays," Bass said.

The most convincing piece of dental evidence, Bass said, was the lack of a filling in the molar, known as the six-year molar.

"He had no fillings in it," Bass said, "and for somebody in our culture today to have no fillings in the first molar ... that's a very significant identification point."

Bass said a battery of scientific tests besides the dental examination were performed Saturday in Dallas to try to determine the cause of Lemon's death, but speculated that the results of those tests would not be ready for at least two weeks.

Jim Lamb, a director of Boxwell Brothers Funeral Directors in Perryton, accompanied Lemon's remains from the exhumation site at Heart Cemetery in Booker on Friday to the Dallas County Institute of Forensic Sciences.

Lamb, who was present throughout the testing, accompanied Lemon's remains back to Booker and supervised the reburial Sunday afternoon. He agreed with the scientists on the identification of Lemon.

According to a corner's report filed in Seward County, Kan., where the plane crashed, the body found in the plane wreckage was burned beyond recognition and was identified only by a billfold and a ring with Glen Lemon's initials on it.

The report stated that part of the skull and legs were missing from the body found at the crash site.

Lemon was flying a twin engine Cessna 310 that exploded and burned on impact shortly after takeoff, authorities said.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Clements and planes still at issue

How awkward it is for Gov. Bill Clements on this matter of state airplanes. Clements made a major campaign issue of Democratic Gov. Mark White's purchase of a $3 million jet for use by the governor's office. Between Jan. 23 and Aug. 20, Clements flew to Dallas 23 of 31 weekends at a cost to taxpayers of almost $30,000. No doubt Clements does some state business in Dallas. Attorney General Jim Mattox says Clements' trips probably are legal. Clements said he intends to continue doing it. However, the governor is at best inconsistent and, at worst, appears hypocritical. San Antonio Express-News

Visit accents Hispanic influence

Pope John Paul II's American tour has underscored a fact already well known to residents of Texas, California and Florida — the growing influence of Hispanic Americans. Most of his time in this country was spent in areas with large numbers of people of Hispanic heritage. The vast majority are Catholic. It is estimated that Hispanics currently account for 25 to 30 percent of the U.S. Catholic population. By some projections, they will constitute 50 percent by the end of the century. The U.S. Census Bureau reported Sept. 10 that the number of Hispanics has grown by 30 percent, to 18.8 million, since 1980. The trend presents American business with a potentially lucrative opportunity. Writing in American Demographics magazine, Joe Schwartz described Hispanics as "a brand-conscious, brand-loyal market — and they prefer American-made products made by companies that recognize Hispanic needs." Victoria Advocate

Clements leaves plane unexplained

In politics no less than in other walks of life, the old game of Ins vs. Outs can certainly do some entertaining things with your perspective. A case in point is Texas Gov. Bill Clements. While he was on the campaign trail pressing his successful bid to unseat Mark White, Clements railed at the Democrat for White's purported extravagance in having authorized the purchase of a $3 million jet for use by the governor's office. It has, however, been interesting to note that in the months since he took office, Clements has billed the state for some $20,000 in expenses for round trips to his

Dallas home aboard a private plane. It is necessary for him to wing off to Dallas, he told The Associated Press, because "a lot of times there is state business there and a lot of times the business has to do with just getting away from down here (Austin) and getting away from the press, that's an important part of it, too." Rather than confront an inconvenient question head-on, the governor waved it off — and managed to take a swipe at the press in the process — but no one can claim Texas voters didn't know what to expect. Corpus Christi Caller-Times

Tourism important industry to state

Once again tourism has set a record in Texas, and the figures are an indication of how much the industry means to the state. A survey by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas at Austin showed tourism brought $17.29 billion to Texas in 1986, breaking the record set the year before. The bureau estimated the state attracted 39.4 million visitors.

The bureau also estimated that travel-related employment rose 5.9 percent during the year, an important factor considering the state's economic problems. Harris County's stake in the tourism bonanza was estimated at $3.9 billion, which underscores the importance of keeping those tourists coming to Texas — and to the Houston area. Houston Chronicle

Lauds Reagan's UN performance

President Reagan played to a tough audience at the United Nations Monday, and although he didn't get a standing ovation, his words were important and constructive. In the United Nations, where anti-U.S. rhetoric is too often on the agenda, a respectful, listening audience and moderate applause is about all one can hope for. And that's what Reagan got. Reagan spoke cautiously about recent moves toward "democratization" in Nicaragua. But he again warned that unless political reforms occur, this country will continue to support the Contra rebels. He spoke warmly of "agreement in principle" between the Soviet Union and the United States to eliminate short- and medium-range nuclear missiles, and he promised to press on toward an agreement on testing and long-range missiles. But again he warned that the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative would not be part of the bargaining. El Paso Times

Says fans may one day get last say

It's hard to have total sympathy for the football union's demands for more money, more benefits and unlimited free agency after four years. The idea of a strike doesn't sit well with fans in the workaday real world whose paychecks buy the tickets. However, the players do have their points. A young man is signed to a four-year contract. He has no choice; he can sign with the team that drafted him, or not play. He turns out to be a rookie sensation, then turns into a super sophomore. He asks to renegotiate his contract, to be paid what he's worth before an injury ends his career. The team says a "deal is a deal." Meanwhile, the owners divide a national television pie equally; it's hard to lose money under that scheme. The strike shows a callous disregard for the fan who foots the bill. Competition is the rule on and off the field. Eventually, that may mean free agency has to go, and even an end to the draft. But if fans could have their way, it would not mean astronomically higher salaries and higher ticket prices in the meantime. The Dallas Morning News

Documents show possible cover up of VA accusation

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Veterans Administration documents indicate that Administrator Thomas Turnage was urged by subordinates last November to contact his friend Attorney General Edwin Meese about a potentially embarrassing FBI investigation of alleged police brutality at the VA medical center in Cincinnati. A month later, Turnage wrote to Meese's associates attorney general, Stephen Trott, saying the VA hoped that the FBI probe would be wrapped up quickly because it was hurting worker morale at the hospital. Trott's response came two weeks later. The FBI had discovered new leads, and once they were investigated, Justice Department attorneys would decide quickly whether the case would go to court. In March, the Justice Department announced that it would not seek prosecution of the hospital's police chief, Daniel Wilson. In testimony before Congress, police officers at the medical center had accused Wilson of hurling racial epithets at blacks as he beat them bloody for such transgressions as begging on the premises and parking in unauthorized places. A spokesman for Turnage said he never contacted Meese. And, we have found no further communication with the Department of Justice other than Turnage's letter to Trott. Nevertheless, that letter has fueled speculation that the case is being covered up. We can't say with certainty that a coverup is afoot, but our associate Stewart Harris has found additional evidence that, in our opinion, tends to support the theory. At a recent hearing, Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., waved a secret FBI report that he said does not exonerate Wilson. The Justice Department is resisting efforts to make the report public, although normally such reports are released with deletions of the portions protected by privacy laws. The Government Accountability Project, a public-interest group, filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain a copy of the FBI report. Even though some of the witnesses interviewed by the FBI have signed affidavits supporting the GAP's access to their testimony, the FBI is stalling release of the report. VA officials considered prosecution of two officers who blew the whistle on Wilson. According to VA records, agency officials met with the U.S. attorney in Cincinnati on Nov. 18, 1986, and asked that Paul Headley and John Berter be prosecuted for making "false statements." The meeting was conducted before the FBI concluded its investigation of the allegations against Wilson. Cathy Brinkman, the assistant U.S. attorney who worked on the case in Cincinnati, declined comment. Headley and Berter have not been prosecuted. The day after the Cincinnati meeting, a regional VA official in Chicago wrote a memo recommending that Turnage "make the appropriate contacts at the Department of Justice to facilitate an end to the FBI's investigative activities." It was another official's memo that suggested that Turnage could raise the issue with his good friend Meese. In Senate testimony, VA center police officer Harold Hipple said Wilson had bragged about being sent in to "clean up" the Cincinnati hospital. He said Wilson claimed that James Fasone, chief of security for the VA, and the director of the Cincinnati hospital were "completely behind him." Fasone did not return our calls.

PRODUCTION GENIUS — The Iranians may have been sharp businessmen when they were conniving to get out of Ollie North for empty promises of hostage releases. But they're pretty hopeless when it comes to the automobile trade.

In a secret meeting with Iranian news executives, the head of Iran's heavy industry revealed that the Saipa car factory, which makes Renaults, exports them for $3,000 apiece — though the production cost is $2,900 each. Why does the factory keep turning out cars at such a ridiculous profit margin? Because, the minister said, the factory is run by the Revolutionary Guards, who use it to produce cartridge shells also. The Renaults are just "busy work for us," he explained.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE — A joint study by U.S. and Japanese intelligence analysts had a candid — and hair-raising — estimate of Soviet capabilities in the event of a conventional war in the Far East. It would take the Soviets a mere three months to take the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido. And within six months, the Kremlin would control the strategically critical sea lanes around all of Japan.

Cashing in on pope's visit

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Leave it to Americans to commercialize just about anything, including the pope's visit. I don't know if you heard about pope hats — the ones that look like the Cisco Kid used to wear — being on sale in Florida when his holiness hit Miami, but they were. Sales were reported as brisk. I have a friend in Miami who is Catholic and I called to see if he had purchased a pope hat or knew anybody who had. "My neighbor got one for his kid," my friend said. "They were going for 40 bucks apiece when the pope first came to town, but he waited until the pope left and got one marked down for five." Pope hats weren't the only thing that had been on sale during the papal visit. I have another friend in Chicago who was telling me about his cousin's idea. "She invented something called a 'pope scope,'" he explained. "Do what?" I asked. "You remember those things they used to sell at golf matches and parades with the mirrors?" he began. "They were sort of L-shaped and you looked in the short end and the image of what you were looking at was sent down from a mirror in the tail end. You could see over people's heads with those things. "My cousin found some of those things in a warehouse and bought them and called them pope scopes and she's been selling them all over the country." Another report came in on somebody who had heard of an item called "pope on a rope." It's a statue of the pope with a rope tied around it. The idea, it seems, is to tie the rope to your belt buckle and have the pope with you at all times. "For good luck?" I asked. "For 30 bucks," I was told. A guy who runs a bar in Atlanta was telling me he had a special drink to honor the pope's visit. "I'm calling it 'papal punch.' It's gin, vodka, rum, orange juice and three shots of holy water." I suppose some might be outraged by the attempts to make a few bucks off the pope's visit, but money and religion do have a powerful bond. I visited the Vatican once. What I remember most were the countless shops in the area where people were shelling out cash for various items with religious themes. And on the Protestant scene, I saw television minister Dr. Robert Schuller the other morning. He was pushing holy letter openers, and let us not forget Jim and Tammy's waterslide for Jesus. But back to the pope's hat. It's the subject of one of my favorite stories that must be repeated at least once during the papal visit: Two Americans, one Catholic and one Protestant, are visiting the Vatican. The pope appears on the balcony in full regalia. "Where did he get that hat?" the Protestant asked. "The cardinals gave it to him," answers the Catholic, to which the Protestant replies: "Looks like the Giants would do something like that for Willie Mays."

Around the rim Childhood values give promising foundation

By ALISHA GOLDMAN Copy editor

It was a surprise to hear my childhood described in connection with a healthy home by Joe Ruley, teenage suicide seminar speaker. I began to realize why I find it difficult sometimes to relate to someone who wants to commit suicide. My only contact with teenage suicide came during my missionary tour in Chile in 1981. I had just moved into an apartment to live with two Chilean women my age. The second day after I had arrived, I came home to an empty apartment. Since two brothers had been visiting the girls, the silence conveyed a foreboding. I felt something was wrong, but had no evidence to support it. It wasn't until later I found the note. "Our sister has passed away and we have gone home," it simply said. The lack of specifics about her death had its own foreboding. A week later, living alone for the first time in my life, I woke at early hours of the morning — someone beating on my front door and my name being shouted in Spanish.

One of the sisters had arrived and I learned that my apartment mates' 16-year-old sister had committed suicide. It would be months before I began to realize the reasons for the girl's death. The family wouldn't accept it initially. She had been a perfect person, they said. She had good looks, as did most of the 10 children in the family, and wasn't failing school. She had a test that morning and told her sister to leave for school and she would catch up. She then went into the dining room of their huge, decaying house, found her grandfather's antique gun, and shot herself in the head once. Her 17-year-old sister found her a few minutes later. Suicide is almost unheard of in a primarily Catholic society. Although the term is often applied in the deaths of people involved with politics, seldom is it a cause of death among their teenagers.

As I came to know the parents of my roommates in the year I lived with them, I learned some of the reasons the girl killed herself. Meanwhile, I often was awakened at night to the sobs of her sisters. They eventually faced the problems their parents had and the effects on all of them, especially their sister. In retrospect, they could see warnings she had given and had to deal with their guilt. Although they vowed never to hurt their loved ones with the same act, some of the siblings later contemplated suicide as they were plagued by unemployment. Six years later, almost to the day, I sat in the auditorium at Howard College and learned even more about the girl I never knew. And I learned more about myself and gained an appreciation of my parents and my home. No community is immune to the problems that lead teenagers to take their lives, but the religious atmosphere and conservative values of a community such as Big Spring produce healthy children, said Ruley. The traditional roles of a working father and a mother at home are now seen as the ideal for a healthy home. Parents who show concern and love for their children, who are lavish with praise, but who also discipline, probably will never suffer the pain of a teenager who commits suicide, he said. Now, when I ask why I have never seriously considered suicide, I must thank my parents who provided the environment and religious foundation I needed to deal with life — and death.

By Associated Press B-1 bomber crashes

LA JUNTA, Colo. — A B-1 bomber crashed today near this eastern Colorado community, authorities said.

There was no immediate report on casualties, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The plane crashed about 9:40 a.m. today on the prairie four miles east of La Junta, where the Strategic Air Command has a bomber training run.

Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs has personnel en route to the crash scene, a spokesman said.

The B-1, a strategic bomber and missile platform, normally carries a crew of four, but can carry more on training missions.

Manufactured by Rockwell International's North American Aerospace Operations in El Segundo, Calif., it has a maximum speed of about 1,000 mph and a range of more than 7,000 mph when fully fueled. Its lengthy development included a halt by the Carter administration, but a modified version was put into production in the early 1980s.

Congress wants limits

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats plan to push again this week for approval of a pair of measures restricting President Reagan's policies on nuclear arms control and the Persian Gulf, despite his threat to veto any bills containing such provisions.

The Democratic-controlled chamber's effort to write a Pentagon budget bill for fiscal 1988, which begins Thursday, is now in its third week, and the two restrictions are the only major unresolved fights.

After two weeks, there were 38 amendments still left, mostly minor changes in the $302 billion spending package. Democratic leaders plan to have all of them done by Tuesday night, when the chamber will turn to the two big fights.

Eagleton blasts Bork

WASHINGTON — Former Sen. Thomas Eagleton urged his onetime colleagues today to reject the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, saying Bork would close the courthouse door to Congress in any clash with the president.

Eagleton, a Missouri Democrat, told the Senate Judiciary Committee that in disputes over the use of military forces, foreign intelligence surveillance, and investigations by special prosecutor, Bork believes, "It's all up to the president."

"Judge Bork's views are vintage George III," Eagleton said, referring to the British king whose heavy-handed treatment of his American subjects triggered the U.S. revolution.

Unidentified survivors of a mudslide react to the tragic incident in Medellin, Columbia Sunday. The landslide in Columbia's second-largest city killed at least 100, authorities reported.

100 dead, 500 missing in Columbia

MEDELLIN, Colombia (AP) — A river of mud and rocks cascaded down a mountain in Columbia's second-largest city, entombing a neighborhood and leaving at least 100 people dead and 500 missing, authorities said.

The mud, 10 feet deep in some areas, covered more than 60 houses in Villa Tina, a poor neighborhood at the foot of Sugar Loaf Mountain, authorities said.

"We heard the noise that sounded like an explosion and soon afterward a huge mass of rocks and mud descended upon us," said Mary Mosquera, who lost three daughters in the avalanche. "They were trapped by huge rocks and we couldn't do anything to rescue them."

The disaster occurred at 2:30 p.m. Sunday following several days of heavy rains. Medellin Mayor William Jaramillo Gomez told Radio Caracol, Columbia's largest radio network. He said 100 bodies had been recovered, 200 people were injured and 500 were missing.

The city morgue said it had received 86 bodies and area hospitals reported 14 other people died of their injuries, according to Colombian news reports.

Thirty children celebrating their first Holy Communion were among the victims, said Sister Luz Maria, member of a Roman Catholic order that provides social and religious services in Villa Tina.

Hospitals said they had treated more than 150 people, most of them children with multiple fractures and lacerations.

The mayor said the casualty figures were expected to rise. Despite the danger of new landslides, rescue workers dug under spotlights through the night, looking for any survivors trapped in the mud.

Survivors said about 1,000 people lived in the neighborhood.

The mayor said the avalanche occurred when mountain creeks burst their banks following heavy rains and sent a river of mud and rocks down Sugar Loaf mountain.

By Associated Press Mines close sea lanes

MANAMA, Bahrain — A major sea lane in the southern Persian Gulf was closed to commercial shipping today after several mines were spotted in the area, shipping executives reported.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London meanwhile confirmed that Iraqi warplanes hit four shuttle tankers over the weekend, killing a crewman aboard an Iranian government-owned tanker.

In Cairo, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger called for a speedy United Nations arms embargo against Iran.

The shipping executives, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the deepwater channel 20 miles off the busy United Arab Emirates port of Dubai would remain closed to navigation until the U.S. Navy and British warships swept for mines in the area.

Bush walks tightrope

WARSAW, Poland — Several thousand Poles cheered Vice President George Bush today as he stood shoulder to shoulder with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and flashed the V-sign used by supporters of the outlawed trade union movement.

In the most dramatic appearance of his four-day visit to Poland, Bush laid a wreath at the churchyard grave of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, a pro-Solidarity priest murdered by government police.

"Here at the church where he lived, worked, and prayed, let us pledge to carry on his quest to overcome evil with good," Bush said. "We promise," shouted back the crowd that gathered outside the church in the presence of uniformed Polish police.

Sri Lanka sides agree

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — India and the major Tamil separatist movement agreed today to set up an interim government over Tamil-dominated areas in northern and eastern Sri Lanka, a Tamil source said.

The reported agreement between India and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam comes after three visits by Jyotindra Nath Dixit, India's ambassador to Sri Lanka, to the Tamil-dominated Jaffna peninsula in the north.

There was no immediate announcement from the Indian Embassy or from the Sri Lankan government.

The predominantly Hindu Tamils make up about 18 percent of Sri Lanka's 16 million people. They claim discrimination from the majority Buddhist Sinhalese, who control the government.

Tamil guerrillas have been fighting for four years to establish a separate Tamil state in the north and east.

Game shows look for quality players

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lured by the sparkle of spotlights and the promise of wealth, some 650,000 Americans are applying every year to become contestants on television game shows.

Yet despite the ever-growing number of applicants, game show producers are complaining they lack qualified players who combine poise with an outgoing personality, and skill with speed.

Some of the 25 game shows broadcast almost daily on U.S. television stations have even begun to look farther afield for qualified contestants. For example, "Jeopardy" is going to West Germany this year to look for English-speaking contestants.

"The lack of qualified applicants is the biggest frustration of game show producers," says Gregg Silverman, a media buff who co-authored a new "how to" book which takes star-struck and stage-frightened enthusiasts by the hand from their living rooms to the studio stage.

Only 11,000 of those who apply get on the air, according to the new book with a title that says it all: "How To Become a Game Show Contestant — an Insider's Guide."

Another 100 million Americans watch along at home, says Greg Muntean, Silverman's co-writer who, as contestant coordinator for "Jeopardy," has interviewed more than 75,000 applicants.

Some shows conduct contestant searches around the country, while others pick applicants from among their audiences. One can also apply for an audition by writing or calling some shows.

Step No. 1, the authors prescribe, is to target the game you know best and feel best suited for. Then play along at home. Some of the programs even have inspired board games that can be played in the living room.

One committed applicant got a buzzer system to practice speeding up her response time; another invited friends over every night to practice with them.

The authors also provide tips on how to walk, talk and dress (as you would for a job interview) during your interview and, if you make it, on the show.

Prizes vary from $25 gift certificate consolation for the losers to $1 million for the biggest winners. But don't get too excited; the big prize doesn't come in a lump sum. It's divided into annual payments, sometimes over 30 years.

Guardianship

Program offers services, but only as last resort

By RON WORD

Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Cathedral Foundation provides guardianship services, but officials of the private social services agency consider them only a last resort.

Take, for example, Laura Buckley, a 95-year-old legally blind woman with a love of Jim Beam whiskey, chocolate and beer.

Elderly Floridians in similar circumstances often wind up under guardianships, but, through the Cathedral Foundation, Mrs. Buckley was able to continue to live alone and retain all her civil rights.

Foundation social worker Bobby Krawiec visits Mrs. Buckley about three times a week and hires a sitter for her on other days. The foundation's Protective Counseling Services program helped avoid a guardianship by handling her finances and making sure she gets hot meals.

Mrs. Buckley, who went dancing on her 90th birthday, says of Krawiec: "He's marvelous. I don't know what I'd do without him. When you get to be my age, you need someone to come in, even for a couple of hours."

The Cathedral Foundation was formed in 1962 by parishioners at St. Johns Episcopal Cathedral as an outreach ministry, with several programs for the elderly.

Its Protective Counseling Program, which is financed through contracts with the state using federal funds, began in 1978 as an outgrowth of needs identified by workers in the Meals on Wheels program.

Costs for handling each client run about $1,198 a year, compared with $18,000 annually in a top nursing facility under Medicaid, and the services are provided at no charge to the foundation's clients.

The counseling services program is designed to help keep people out of guardianships, through advice on finances, housing, nutrition and public benefits.

"All these people need is someone to look after them, help them manage their money or provide them with hot meals daily," said Teresa Barton, director of community services for the foundation.

"What they were finding out with the Meals on Wheels program, dealing with the homebound elderly, was that, in addition to needing meals, there were all kinds of problems that were associated with being homebound — things like getting down to pay taxes, understanding Social Security benefits," Ms. Barton said.

"We were dealing with elderly, low-income in many cases, very uneducated individuals who didn't understand the system and they really didn't have anyone to advocate for them," she said.

In managing the lives of elderly people, "a very delicate balance of individual liberty versus governmental intrusion is necessary," according to a publication from the foundation, which has about 12 guardianship wards and 80 to 100 voluntary clients.

"Guardianship in the state of Florida has more to do with laws of property than laws of people," Ms. Barton said. "Guardianship is a way of protecting assets and property. It is not necessarily the best vehicle to deal with people problems."

The Cathedral Foundation does not initiate guardianship action but agrees to it when no other alternative is available, such as when someone is needed to authorize medical care.

"What do you expect to obtain from the guardianship that you couldn't without it? That's the criteria I evaluate it with. It has to have a goal," Ms. Barton said. When the word "guardian" is mentioned, "it conjures up visions of guardian angels and protective people who are helping you. ... But the guardianship statute, as it is today in Florida, is a very punitive kind of statute," she said. "It strips you of your individual rights. They can't make a contract. They can't get married. They can't drive. They lose all of their civil liberties entirely."

"Having a guardian doesn't mean a person is not going to be a problem any more. Mr. Smith is suddenly going to be well? He's not going to be going through garbage cans anymore because he has a guardian?"

Elderly people have a right to be individuals, and to make mistakes, just as young people do, Ms. Barton said.

"It's like a 70-year-old man who runs around with a 20-year-old girl and he's blowing all his money," she said. "Immediately, his family wants him declared incompetent. 'Dad has lost his mind.'"

"You have the right to make mistakes whether you're 14, you are 40, or if you are 94."

Veterans

they live, investigate whether they are fed and clothed properly and check that they are given enough spending money for what they can handle.

Back in the regional offices, 110 auditors called estate analysts make sure that custodians and guardians who are required to do so file annual financial statements. Then the auditors go through them looking at each expenditure. Once the VA approves an accounting, the probate court generally follows suit.

Field examiners are required to make an initial visit, then a second one within a year. After that, they are required to visit wards within every five years depending on the amount of benefits they receive and other circumstances. But the field examiners usually don't wait that long.

One of them, Bill Gaudreau, a 52-year-old white-haired attorney who works out of the Providence, R.I., regional office covering southeastern Massachusetts, has logged nearly a half-million miles in 17 years on the job. Gaudreau says he generally sees his wards every 2 to 3 years.

One day recently he stopped by the Vietnam war hero's house, accompanied by a reporter who was permitted to go along on the condition the veteran's name not be used. The veteran had just returned from the store with a can of motor oil even though he doesn't have a car.

"Why are you buying motor oil?" Gaudreau asked him, wanting to know how he was handling his spending money.

"I don't need it," the veteran yelled.

"Do you receive spending money?"

"Five dollars (a day)."

"What do you do with it?"

"I ... buy soda and cigarettes."

"Any objection to your mother handling your benefits?"

"My mother should handle them because my father ain't here anymore."

The veteran has a 100 percent service connected disability and receives the maximum benefit of $1,355 which is paid to his mother, his custodian.

Gaudreau questioned his mother about how this money is spent, about his medication and what he does all day. He asked her about an expenditure of more than $500 for new furniture, some of which he accidentally burned with his cigarettes. His mother said he spends $400 a month on cigarettes, usually takes a few puffs and puts them out.

"Do you have a savings account for him?" Gaudreau asked the mother. "May I see the account?"

"The mother has saved more than $20,000 for him."

"My son will be taken care of if something happens to me," she said.

"Guardianship is the last approach we take," Gaudreau said after the visit in explaining why the mother was designated legal custodian, which does not require court approval. "Some people consider it a stigma. We prefer to take the least cumbersome approach."

Gaudreau files a report that is followed up by a colleague, Rita Allen, whose official title is estate analyst but who is surrogate mother to many veterans.

The Knuckleballer bids farewell

Niekro closes out 23-year career wearing beloved Braves' uniform

Owners, union still way apart

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro has thrown his last knuckleball in major league competition, ending a 23-year career the way he always desired — wearing an Atlanta Braves uniform.

"I couldn't think of a better way to retire than with an 'A' on my cap," Niekro said Sunday after pitching into the fourth inning of San Francisco's 15-6 victory over the Braves, a triumph that nailed down at least a share of the National League West title for the Giants.

Niekro made it official at a packed news conference following the game.

"I'm officially announcing my retirement today," he said. "I've been thinking about this for three or four months, not just the last few days. It wasn't a tough decision to make."

Niekro, one of the most popular sports figures in Atlanta history, received seven standing ovations from a crowd of 26,019, the last a prolonged four-minute salute when he was removed from the game by Manager Chuck Tanner after the first five Giants reached base in the fourth inning.

Pearl Sandow, who has attended every Braves home game since the team arrived in Atlanta in 1966, said, "I'm emotional like everybody else. I'm so glad that he came back, even if it's just for one day."

Niekro had originally turned down an offer from the Braves to pitch one last time in Atlanta but reconsidered and started against the Giants.

Niekro departed with a 5-2 lead and the bases loaded, but reliever Chuck Cary was greeted by Candy Maldonado's pinch grand slam that put the Giants ahead to stay.

Niekro got out of bases-loaded jams in the first and third innings, but showed the effects of a long layoff, being out of the game since he was released by the Toronto Blue Jays on Aug. 31. He gave up five runs, six hits and walked six in the three-plus innings he worked.

He spent 18 seasons in Atlanta before he was released by the Braves following the 1983 season. He pitched two years with the New York Yankees and then went to Cleveland, staying with the Indians until he was traded to Toronto on Aug. 9.

"The Atlanta Braves have been the foundation of the Niekros in Georgia," the 48-year-old pitcher

Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro signals to the fans Sunday after being relieved in the fourth inning against the San Francisco Giants. It was Niekro's final game in the major leagues.

said. "Other than Lansing (Ohio, his childhood home), Atlanta has always been No. 1 in my heart."

His wife, Nancy, and two sons, John and Michael, were by his side when he announced his retirement.

He bowed out of the game ranked 12th on the all-time victory list with a 318-274 record. He finished with 3,342 strikeouts and a 3.35 career earned run average.

Niekro said he would have liked to have gone out with a victory, but it was good enough just to go out wearing his familiar No. 35, a number the Braves retired when he was released four years ago.

"I was not embarrassed because I got beat around out there," Niekro said. "I've done that before."

Tanner was loudly booed when he went to the mound to remove Niekro, but the pitcher wasn't upset about that.

"I told Chuck before the ball game to manage like he would any other game," Niekro said. "I was struggling from the first inning on."

"I was hoping he would go five (innings) and get the win," Tanner said. "My heart was set on not letting him get the loss. ... I couldn't see him going out with a loss against his name."

Tanner kept Niekro on the mound until Cary arrived, and then the two strolled toward the dugout.

Tanner sent Niekro to the first base coaching box to watch a two-minute video of his career highlights being shown on the center field scoreboard.

The fans stood and cheered throughout, and kept cheering when Niekro returned to the dugout, getting him to come out one last time for a wave to the crowd.

"It was probably the best feeling I ever had," Niekro said. "I wanted to get up and applaud the fans."

Niekro said he didn't want to slow the progress of the game.

"I didn't want to mess up the flow of the Giants' batting order," Niekro said. "It didn't seem to do that."

Niekro, who has one no-hitter to his credit, said he still considered the biggest thrill of his career the day he signed his first professional contract at his home in Lansing.

He also ranked high giving his ailing father the game ball from his 300th career victory and also combining with his brother Joe for the 530th victory of their careers, the most by brothers in baseball history.

Niekro will go to West Palm Beach, Fla., to help young players in the Braves organization and will fill an as yet undetermined front office position with the team.

Mets' manager not sure what to expect next

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets' season has been full of turmoil. It's ending that way, too.

Manager Davey Johnson spent 40 minutes telling reporters he thought he might be fired after a published report quoted him as asking for his contract to be renegotiated.

"I figured I was fired. Frank would have been right in firing me," Johnson said of general manager Frank Cashen Sunday after the Mets beat Pittsburgh 12-3. "I was looking for (pink) slips."

According to Johnson, Cashen told him in an Aug. 26 meeting that his contract would not be renegotiated without the manager bringing up the subject.

However, in a column in Sunday's New York Times, Johnson was quoted as saying: "Frank said flat out, 'I'm not extending your contract.' That tells me he didn't like the job I did this season."

Johnson claimed the report was inaccurate and called a team meeting before Sunday's game to tell that to his players.

"I had a little meeting today to clarify some things with the ballclub. Some of the things that were printed were not factual," Johnson said. "I wanted to apologize to them."

Johnson said he initiated the Aug. 26 discussion with Cashen to apologize for unspecified actions of his earlier in the year when the Mets struggled after injuries to key pitchers and Dwight Gooden's admission of cocaine use.

"I wanted to apologize for some things," Johnson said. "I was trying to give him a blanket apology. He made a few statements that kind of shook me."

Johnson said Cashen's remark about renegotiation did startle him.

"At the time, when it was volunteered, it did shake me," Johnson said. "I certainly don't think I deserve (an extension) with the year we've had," Johnson said. "I would have to qualify for the Looney Tunes after this year if I wanted three or four more like it."

Cashen said he was "disappointed in the timing" of Johnson's discussion of their meeting.

Johnson is making $325,000 this year, the second season of his three-year contract. He upset Cashen last year when he invoked an oral agreement and demanded that his salary be raised above that of New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella.

"If I'm coming in in second place and asking for an extension, I don't think very much of myself," Johnson said.

Americans falter in Ryder Cup

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — The intimidation factor is gone and with it the American domination of the biennial Ryder Cup Matches, golf's premier international team event.

"The significant thing is that they aren't frightened anymore," European captain Tony Jacklin said of his players Sunday after they scored a 15-13 victory. "We know we can win now."

The defeat marked the first time the Americans lost the Ryder Cup in consecutive matches and the first time they were beaten on American soil in the series that began in 1927.

The Americans, 21-5-1 in the series, held the cup for 28 years before the Europeans regained it in England in 1985.

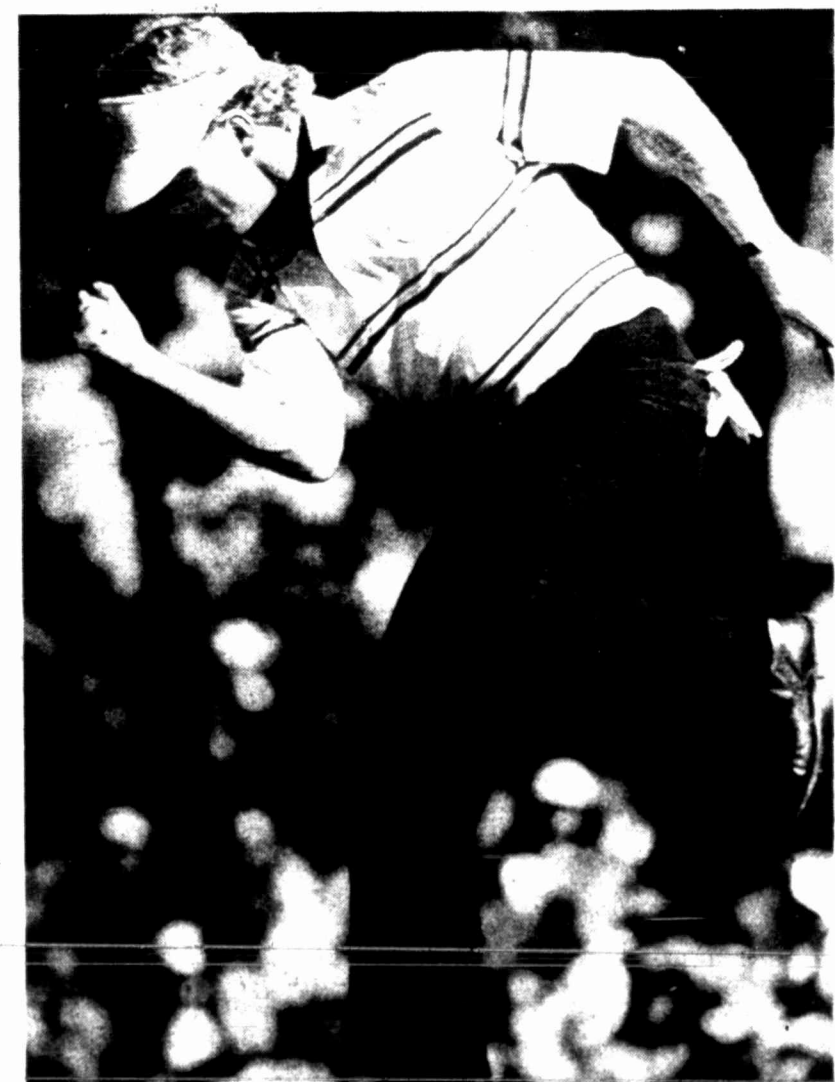

"After you learn to hit the ball, golf is 95 percent between the ears. Either you handle it or you don't," Jacklin said.

American captain Jack Nicklaus seemed to agree after a last-ditch American rally fell just short.

"The difference was the 18th (hole)," he said. "I don't think we won the hole all day. That's where I expected our guys to win it. It didn't work out that way. ... Our guys just weren't quite as tough as their guys."

Nicklaus declined to single out the critical matches or individuals — "I'd prefer to think they got beat instead of thinking they lost," — but it was there on the scoreboard for all to see.

Dan Pohl, Masters champion Larry Mize and Ben Crenshaw each lost the 18th hole, and with it each lost one-half point.

U.S. golfer Payne Stewart dances in celebration after his birdie putt on the 9th green of Saturday's four-ball match against the European Ryder Cup team at the Muirfield Village Golf Club.

NFL Roundup

Aguirre says he's skinnier

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Aguirre said he will report in his best shape ever when Dallas Mavericks camp opens next month.

The 27-year-old forward has shed 20 pounds, his Mercedes, and his tonsils, and says NBA fans have not yet seen him at his best.

With his occasional rival, Dick Motta, gone as head coach and a stepped-up offense, Aguirre hopes people may soon see him as a help to the Mavs instead of a hindrance.

"Coach Motta and I had our problems, but a lot of it was really taken as a sideshow, as a means of adding excitement to the Mavericks' organization," Aguirre said.

"Now, people will actually take me seriously, instead of waiting breathlessly for something to happen."

Disappointed like his teammates by Dallas' early exit from last season's NBA playoffs, Aguirre has dropped from 235 pounds to somewhere in the 215-220 range since the season ended. His training has included not only running, but an aerobics program at a Dallas sports clinic.

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL strike will claim its 14th game tonight when the Denver Broncos won't play the Browns in Cleveland, and a top NFL executive says it's unlikely any of the games will be made up.

While picketing lost steam over the weekend, striking players for many teams expected to be back on the lines this morning when the strike enters its seventh day. Some players, attending a West Coast meeting with union boss Gene Upshaw, said they expected a long strike.

With little hope of a quick settlement, owners said they planned to go ahead with preparations for replacement games, using non-striking rookies and free agents. These games will begin Sunday and will count in the standings, the NFL said.

"We will proceed with these games, and they must count," Pittsburgh Steelers President Dan Rooney said. "We've told everybody they will count, and they will."

So far, the NFL has received only one commitment, from CBS, to televise the replacement games. NBC and ABC have not confirmed their plans yet.

In Tampa, Fla., Buccaneers President Hugh Culverhouse, chairman of the NFL's executive committee, said chances were remote that any of the missed games from Sunday or tonight would be rescheduled. The executive committee meets in New York Tuesday to decide the issue.

Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, met for 2½ hours Sunday in Los Angeles with representatives from six West Coast teams — the Los Angeles Rams and Raiders, San Francisco 49ers, San Diego Chargers, Seattle Seahawks and Denver Broncos.

Initially it was thought Upshaw had gone to Los Angeles to try to quell a reported player revolt among the Raiders, but it later was learned the meeting had been scheduled well ahead of time. The Daily Breeze of Torrance, Calif., reported Sunday that four to six prominent Raiders may join other players in crossing picket lines today.

Upshaw said he didn't believe the newspaper report, adding: "I have players from the Raiders here. I don't think we have to discuss our solidarity. It's there. We are on strike and will remain on strike until we sign a collective bargaining agreement."

Raiders backup quarterback Marc Wilson crossed picket lines last Tuesday along with three injured-reserve linemen, Mickey Marvin, Chris Riehm and Curt Marsh.

A similar regional meeting was scheduled in Chicago today with other meetings in Atlanta and East Rutherford, N.J., on Upshaw's schedule later in the week.

In San Francisco, 49ers starting quarterback Joe Montana, who was critical of the 1982 players strike, also indicated he might consider crossing picket lines. Appearing on KFOG radio, Montana was asked if he would play in replacement games, and he replied: "There's always that possibility."

"Maybe as this thing drags on, players will cross," Raiders defensive end Sean Jones said at the Los Angeles meeting. "That was never an issue here, though. We're one of the stronger teams in the league as far as the strike is concerned. I'm anticipating a long strike. That's what I've said all along."

Some union players hinted there could be a price to pay for defying the strike.

Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton was asked on CBS-TV what would happen if the striking players scrimmaged against non-strikers. He said "... they'd have to use a lot of body bags."

The union and management have not negotiated since Friday, and the NFL Management Council said it did not expect talks to resume before Thursday, if then. Management has characterized free agency as the lone remaining stumbling block, while the union says other issues are just as important.

The regularly scheduled games that were not played Sunday were: Atlanta at New Orleans, Buffalo at Dallas, Chicago at Detroit, Green Bay at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis at St. Louis, Los Angeles Raiders at Houston, Minnesota at Kansas City, New England at Washington, New York Giants at Miami, Cincinnati at Los Angeles Rams, New York Jets at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia at San Francisco and Seattle at San Diego.

It's Crunch Time in the NL East

By The Associated Press
The four-game series the Montreal Expos have been thinking about for weeks is one day away. They will meet the Cardinals in St. Louis with first-place on the line.

The Expos have won 10 of 14 games with the Cardinals this season and all they wanted to do was arrive at Busch Stadium with a chance in the National League East.

The Cardinals gave the third-place Expos that opportunity Sunday by dropping a 7-3 decision to Chicago while Montreal beat Philadelphia 5-3 to move within three games.

The second-place New York Mets start a three-game series in Philadelphia tonight, trailing the Cards by 2½ games. The Mets and Cardinals finish the season with three games in St. Louis, and the Expos close out the year with three games against Chicago at home.

In the NL West, San Francisco has just about finished off its competition. The Giants beat Atlanta 15-6 Sunday to clinch a tie. Second-place Cincinnati staved off elimination for at least another day by beating Houston 4-2. In the basement battle, fourth-place Los Angeles took a five-game lead over last-place San Diego with a 4-3 victory.

"Ideally I would like to have been two down going into St. Louis," Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. "But the bottom line is that we've got to win (in St. Louis). The brass ring is out there. We got to grab it."

At the start of the season, the only thing the Expos were expected to grab were top draft choices as they were picked to finish last.

But a strong offense led by Tim Lincecum, Tim Lincecum, Hubie Brooks and Andres Galarraga, and unexpected pitching contributions from Dennis Martinez and Pascual Perez, have the Expos poised to win the division.

"It's an opportunity to leave there ahead of them," Raines said. "We have to win at least three. If we can win four, the momentum will definitely be with us. We've done all year against them. But it's different circumstances this time."

The Cardinals again will be without home run and RBI leader Jack Clark, who is sidelined with an ankle injury.

"I thought we'd be 40 games out now with all the injuries," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said.

The Mets, who beat Pittsburgh 12-3 Sunday, also have had injuries, but they have also had plenty of chances to catch the Cards.

"We've been in the hangman's noose for a week now," Mets first

Chicago Cubs' baserunner Bob Dernier slides safely into second as St. Louis Cardinals' second baseman Tom Herr ducks to clear the path for shortstop Ozzie Smith's throw to first. The Cubs won the game 7-3.

baseman Keith Hernandez said, "only nobody yet has kicked the horse."

Cubs 7, Cardinals 3
Bob Dernier, a last-minute replacement in the starting lineup, had a home run and scored twice to lead host Chicago over St. Louis as the Cardinals' magic number for clinching the East remained at five.

Homers by Dernier, Rafael Palmeiro, Keith Moreland and Andre Dawson gave last-place Chicago a league-leading 203 homers this season. It marked the first time in major-league history that four teams hit 200 or more in the same year. Baltimore, Detroit and Toronto reached the mark earlier in the American League.

Expos 5, Phillies 3
Tim Raines hit a bloop double that was lost in the sun and scored on a wild pitch to break an eighth-inning tie, and Montreal went on to beat Philadelphia at Veterans Stadium.

The score was tied 3-3 when Raines led off the eighth against Mike Jackson, 3-9, with a routine fly to center field that Mitt Thompson lost in the sun and Raines wound up at second base.

Mitch Webster beat out a bunt single, advancing Raines to third, and Raines scored when reliever Kent Tekulve's 0-1 pitch sailed past catcher Lance Parrish to give Montreal a 4-3 lead. Hubie Brooks, who had four runs batted in, then singled to left-center field, scoring Webster.

Mets 12, Pirates 3
Bob Ojeda won his first start since coming off the disabled list on Sept. 1 after missing three months, and Kevin McReynolds hit a three-run homer as New York defeated Pittsburgh.

A sellout crowd of 48,588 for the season's home finale at Shea Stadium gave the Mets their single-season record attendance of 3,027,121. New York is only the second team to draw three million

Los Angeles has topped the three-million mark on seven occasions. Ojeda, 3-5, who went on the disabled list May 9 and underwent surgery on his left elbow on May 23, gave up three runs, two earned, on six hits over six innings. Jesse Orosco pitched the last three innings for his 16th save.

Giants 15, Braves 6
San Francisco spoiled the farewell of Phil Niekro at Atlanta Stadium as the Giants chased the 48-year-old knuckleballer with a six-run fourth inning.

Reds 4, Astros 2
Buddy Bell's two-run triple highlighted a four-run eighth inning that carried Cincinnati past Houston at Riverfront Stadium.

Dodgers 4, Padres 3
John Shelby hit a bases-loaded double with two outs in the eighth inning to lift Los Angeles over visiting San Diego. The Padres' Benito Santiago extended his rookie record hitting streak to 29 consecutive games.

Sparky gets bubbly after Tigers nip Jays in 13th

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer
Win or lose, Sparky Anderson is proud to be manager of the Detroit Tigers.

"I don't know what will happen now and I don't care," Anderson said after the Tigers pulled within 2½ games of first-place Toronto in the American League East by beating the Blue Jays 3-2 in 13 innings Sunday. "These men have showed me all I ever want to see."

Anderson was impressed with the way the Tigers, after losing each of the first three games of the four-game series by one run, came back from a 1-0 deficit in the ninth.

"You have never witnessed a club that has stood up to more pressure than this club here, and no club showed more character," Anderson said. "These guys had their behinds nailed to the wall and they won this game."

The Tigers forced extra innings when Kirk Gibson homered off Toronto relief ace Tom Henke in the ninth. Detroit, which led 2-1 in the 11th on Darrell Evans' 33rd homer only to see Jesse Barfield's RBI single tie it again, finally won in the 13th on a bloop single by Gibson.

In another AL game with pennant-race importance, Minnesota clinched a tie in the West with an 8-1 victory over Kansas City.

Although he didn't win his ninth straight decision since coming to Detroit from Atlanta on Aug. 12, Doyle Alexander played a key role for the Tigers.

Alexander allowed one earned run and six hits in 10 2-3 innings. Barfield's game-tying single came after an error by Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell.

"I was going until they knocked me out or he took me out, whatever came first," said Alexander, who had never trailed in any previous game he pitched for Detroit.

"He had no business being out there that last inning," Anderson said, "but we haven't had a lot of success (with the Detroit bullpen)."

Gibson's game-winning single in the 13th scored Jim Walewander, who was walked by Jose Nunez, 5-2, and went to second on Lou Whitaker's sacrifice.

Mike Henneman, 10-3, pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory and Dickie Noles got the last out for his second save.

Toronto starter Jim Clancy, shut out Detroit on five hits in seven innings and did not allow a runner past second base. But Henke, trying for his 35th save, couldn't hold the slim lead. Alexander surrendered George Bell's RBI single in the first inning, then retired the next 13 batters.

Twins 8, Royals 1
Minnesota clinched a tie for their first West Division title since 1970 as Bert Blyleven pitched a five-hitter and Kirby Puckett, Gary Gaetti and Kent Hrbek homered in a five-run first against Kansas City.

The Twins' first-inning outburst followed second baseman Al Newman's stellar defensive play in the top of the inning.

With runners on first and third with no outs, George Brett grounded sharply to Gaetti at third, who to Newman at second. Newman quickly fired a strike to the plate, nailing Wilson for the unusual double play.

The only run Blyleven, 15-11, allowed was Danny Tartabull's 32nd homer in the fourth.

Royals starter Charlie Leibrandt, 15-11, lasted 19 pitches in the first inning. The Twins just missed a fourth homer when Newman doubled just inches from the top of the left field wall.

Orioles 9, Yankees 5
Baltimore snapped an eight-game losing streak and finished with a 31-51 home record, worst in the majors, by rallying for five runs in the seventh inning against New York.

Brewers 9, Red Sox 6
Milwaukee came back from a 6-1 deficit to defeat Boston as Robin Yount capped a four-run sixth inning with a two-run single.

The victory went to Milwaukee reliever Ray Burris, 2-2, who took over in the fifth for starter Teddy Higuera, who was trying for his 19th victory but was replaced after giving up eight hits and six runs.

White Sox 5, Athletics 0
Dave LaPoint pitched a two-hitter for his first shutout since 1985 and Ivan Calderon hit two homers as the White Sox completed a four-game sweep of Oakland.

Mariners 5, Rangers 3
Seattle completed a three-game series sweep and handed Texas its sixth consecutive loss on pinch-hitter Dave Hengel's three-run homer in the eighth inning.

Angels 11, Indians 8
California outslugged Cleveland as Mark McLemore drove in four runs with a pair of bases-loaded singles and Don Sutton earned his 320th career victory in his first relief appearance since 1980.

Sutton, 10-11, who is in 11th place on the all-time victory list, gave up three runs and four hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Hatfield sleepless after rout

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ken Hatfield's Sunday routine starts with church. Then, he does his television show and watches game films.

Sunday was different. Hatfield couldn't sleep. By 5:15 a.m., he was grading the Arkansas-Miami film.

"The main thing I was looking for was our effort," he said.

It wasn't the kind of game where you look for big plays, missed assignments on key plays.

Fifth-ranked Miami blew away 10th-ranked Arkansas, 51-7.

Miami had big-time people and they could all run. Plus, they had been in big games.

Remember late in the first quarter when it was 7-0 and Miami's Cleveland Gary had just punted when it was 7-0 and Miami's Cleveland Gary had just pulled a stupid stunt — he backed into the end zone to field a 58-yard punt and only got back to his 5.

The fans in the north end zone could sense a Miami dilemma and they were doing their best to contribute.

The Hurricanes bothered? Pshaw.

Jimmy Johnson's team has not lost on the road since 14-22 at Ann Arbor, Mich., in 1984. Since then, they have won at Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Florida State, South Carolina, Florida, Maryland, Boston College, and Pittsburgh, among other places.

The opening minutes offered no insight.

Miami ran three plays and punted 25 yards. Arkansas made two first downs and Kendall Trainer missed a 42-yard field goal attempt.

Miami never punted again. Arkansas did not make two first downs on a series again until the score was 41-0.

Take a gander at Miami, starting with its second possession:

—75 yards, 15 plays, touchdown.
—95 yards, three plays, touchdown.

—57 yards, eight plays, touchdown.
—1 yard, one play, touchdown.

—58 yards, four plays, touchdown.
—49 yards, seven plays, field goal.

—43 yards, 12 plays, field goal.
—49 yards, 11 plays, field goal.

After the game, Johnson said he still expected Arkansas to win the Southwest Conference and be in the Cotton Bowl. That was a UA alum talking, Hatfield said.

The Razorbacks open conference play Saturday night against Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The major difficulty you'll face today is a tendency to believe you must force issues or engage in confrontations in order to achieve your aims. Actually, a diplomatic attitude and tact would be more effective.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You'll have some fine new ideas, but don't get bogged down by details and forget the main points. Avoid any boring routines today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't waste your time investigating pleasures which you know are too expensive. Show your mate your devotion — vocally.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Leave the house early and see the prominent people who can help you to become more affluent. Public work can be very beneficial.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) This is a fine day to handle some important activities which you've been putting off. Handle your correspondence tonight.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Think about some amusements you've enjoyed in the past and get into them again now. Take your mate out for a good time tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to help some family friends attain their ambitions, and put aside your own wishes for now. Invite an interesting guest into your home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) This is a fine day for accomplishing much in the business world. Be more positive when dealing with others. Enjoy a hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Focus your attention on increasing your income by forgetting pleasure for a while. Steer clear of friends who may distract you today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) This is not the day to ask a favor of a superior. Try to be more self-reliant, and don't depend on friends to pull you out of a jam.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of a new contact who could easily get you into some very big trouble. Your greatest happiness can come from your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The company of a long-time friend and some relatives will help you forget your worries. Avoid an argument with your mate tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Tend to your credit affairs which have some hidden problems. A superior will be quite receptive to granting you a needed favor today.

If Your Child Is Born Today
He or she will be a serious and disciplined student who could do quite well at teaching, lecturing, etc. Teach your progeny early to smile more and develop a lighter spirit which will increase his or her popularity. Your child is apt to be a favorite of older people who will appreciate the serious and sensible approach to life.

AIDS patients may create new need for guardians

FORT WORTH (AP) — A teacher hospitalized with AIDS quickly developed brain problems that affected his ability to speak, but didn't require intensive medical care.

The hospital contacted his family in Kansas, but they didn't want to bring him home. His elderly mother refused to come to Texas and care for the terminally ill man at his trailer home, and nursing homes wouldn't accept him either.

So the hospital, needing someone who could approve medical treatment for the 44-year-old man and handle his financial affairs, turned to the Tarrant County probate court to find a guardian.

Decisions about the care of abandoned AIDS sufferers may increasingly fall to probate courts, especially since dementia has been included in the list of the disease's symptoms, said Tarrant County

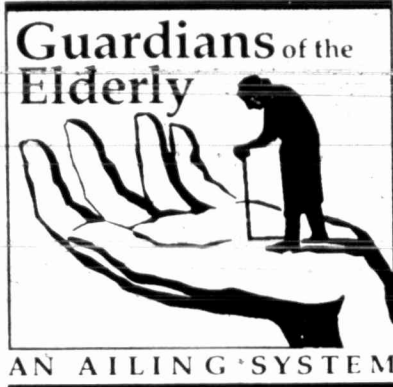

Probate Judge Pat Ferchill.

"This is the modern-day leprosy," said Steven Sotman of Fort Worth, a doctor certified in internal medicine and infectious diseases.

Guardianships in Texas traditionally have been established for juveniles, mentally retarded or mentally ill adults, and the mentally incompetent elderly, but Ferchill says he believes AIDS could create another dimension of guardianship.

The federal Centers for Disease Control added dementia and emaciation to pneumocystis carinii pneumonia and Kaposi's sarcoma as indicator symptoms for AIDS, effective Sept. 1.

Studies indicate about 80 percent of AIDS patients have some degree of brain abnormality before death, but in only one of about 20 cases is dementia the main problem, Sotman said.

AN AILING SYSTEM

Ferchill learned of the teacher's plight when the hospital's manager of social services notified the court the man needed someone to handle his financial affairs and asked that a guardian be appointed.

According to court documents filed in Tarrant County, the patient's checks from the Fort Worth Independent School District were being deposited directly into his bank, but his salary would run only through September.

"His family lives in Emporia, Kan., and does not want the responsibility of caring for his financial needs," a letter from the social services manager said. "I feel strongly that (the patient) needs a guardian appointed to care for these needs."

Ferchill said he filed a petition seeking a suitable guardian because he believes it's his responsibility under the Texas probate code when the needs of an alleged incompetent are brought to the court's attention.

The attorney Ferchill appointed to represent the teacher in legal proceedings located a potential guardian this summer, but the man died before a hearing could be held.

The judge foresees special responsibilities for the guardian of an AIDS sufferer.

"I imagine guardians will have a difficult time finding a placement for them in a health care facility or whatever it may be," he said. "I believe there is a point in time when they do not need hospital services, but they do need care services. I think a guardian might meet up with some difficulty placing wards who do not need intensive medical care that a hospital can offer, and in paying the enormous cost of this disease."

"I imagine guardians will also have to do some negotiating, advocating with insurance companies ... to make sure they (AIDS patients) do obtain the maximum benefits for whatever coverage they do have."

An AIDS patient's medical bills can reach $40,000 to $50,000 from the time of diagnosis until death — a span of usually a year, Sotman said. Most AIDS patients must be hospitalized once or twice between diagnosis and death, but otherwise can be cared for elsewhere, he said.

Under the Texas probate code, residents can designate who they would want appointed guardian in case of incapacitation and also list those they would not want named. A designation against someone prohibits a judge from ever appointing that person, Ferchill said.

Should an AIDS patient not designate who he wants as guardian, a judge would go through statutory priorities — the spouse first, and then next nearest of kin — before neighbors and friends were considered.

Reagan blames doctor rates for rising Medicare payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration blames skyrocketing doctor bills for a projected 38.5 percent increase next year in the premiums paid by the nation's 31 million Medicare recipients.

"We're looking at an increase of that magnitude, given the cost of doctor bills to the program," said Chuck Kline, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Human Services.

The premium increase in the Medicare "Part B" program is calculated each year by HHS under a formula set by Congress, Kline said Monday.

The calculated increase has not been approved formally by the department secretary, Otis R. Bowen, or the Office of Management and Budget, but the projected figure "is probably very close to what the final one will be, if not the final one," Kline said.

Kline said the final figure will be published in the Federal Register by Sept. 30.

The Medicare program was created in 1965 and now provides insurance for about 31 million people, most of them elderly.

Their monthly premiums would increase more than a third, from $17.80 to $24.80, beginning in January unless Congress alters the formula or makes an exception, Kline said. The annual cost to each individual would go from $214.80 to $297.60.

Bob Hardy, a spokesman for the Health Care Financing Administration, an arm of HHS, said the administration has no leeway in calculating the figure, which is based on the claims experience of the program.

"These are tentative figures; they still have to go through OMB," Hardy said. "But under the Medicare law, we must take a look at what should be charged."

Medicare recipients do not pay premiums under the other portion of Medicare, Part A, which pays for hospitalization, but they do pay a deductible for the first day of hospitalization. That amount is now $520 and Kline said he expects that to go up "a little bit."

The Washington Post said in today's editions the department planned to announce a $20 increase in the deductible.

Kline said the Part A increase will not be close to the magnitude of the Part B premium hike.

'Weekend athletes' need to be careful exercising

AUSTIN — More than 20 million Americans are "weekend athletes."

They sit quietly at their desks during the week, then suddenly become active Saturday and Sunday. But part-time athletes have to be particularly careful, according to a report released by the Texas Beef Industry Council.

A recent Gallup survey found that the majority of doctors see three times as many sports injuries among weekend athletes as among participants of organized sports.

Injuries occur because people plunge into their exercise programs without taking the proper precautions, according to sports medicine consultant Paul Saltman, University of California at San Diego.

"Don't try to achieve your optimum performance on the first day," he advises. "You want to take a nice, gradual warm-up and take it easy the first time out."

Bicycling is a favorite sport of many part-time athletes. Thomas Prehn, 1986 U.S. professional cycling champion, has his own warm-up and cool-down system.

"To warm up for a race or a training ride, I start out slowly, gradually increasing the pace until I start to sweat," he said. "Then I ease off, do a few harder, real short sprints."

In addition, a weekend athlete should prepare for an active Saturday by maintaining a balanced diet during the week, according to Lisa Bellini Ergley, sports and cardiovascular nutritionist for New York's Executive Health Center.

"To maximize your performance on the weekend, you have to build your energy reserves by eating the right foods during the week," she said. "All machines need fuel. For the human machine, that fuel is food."

"I have to watch my caloric intake and eat a proper balanced diet," Houston Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan said. "Normally, I'll eat my biggest meal the night before I pitch and that usually consists of a steak, usually a sirloin."

A free booklet featuring diet and exercise tips for the weekend athlete is available from the Texas Beef Industry Council. To order, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to The Weekend Athlete, Texas Beef Industry Council, 6504 Bridgepoint Parkway, Suite 400, Austin, Texas 78730.

Basin health fair opens October 10

ODESSA — The fourth annual Permian Basin Health Fair will be held Oct. 10, at Building G of the Ector County Coliseum, from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m., according to Dee Money of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Over 100 displays and testing centers dealing with health will be featured at this year's fair. Special events include demonstrations by the Lubbock Medivac helicopter and the Odessa Fire Department, Money said.

The event is free and the public is invited to attend.

VA sponsors critical care course

A Critical Care Course, sponsored by the Southwest Regional Medical Education Center of the Veterans Administration, is being held at the Big Spring VA Medical Center, according to Conrad Alexander, director.

The course is being held Sept. 28-30, and two instructors from the Dallas VA Medical Center will teach the course, Alexander said.

Judy Burnette, a Cardiovascular Clinical Specialist, and Karen Moser, a Pulmonary Clinical Specialist, will be the instructors, he added.

The course is designed to prepare VA nurses to function in an intensive care unit and to expand existing skills of registered nurses, Alexander noted.

If registered nurses in the area want additional information regarding the course, they may contact Janet Sabbe, associate chief of nursing services, at 263-7361, extension 304.

VA employees receive tuition aid

Seventeen employees of the VA Medical Center have received funds for continued study from the VA's Tuition Support Program, according to Conrad Alexander, director.

Funding was received at the Big Spring center for the nursing category. Employees who received continuing education awards are: Lola Ardoin, Tony Barrera, Lori Baldwin, Ardelia Clark, Janice Davis, Betty Drew and Connie Gatliff.

Also Janice Huff, Jan Jackson, Brenda McKnight, Janice Meek, Julie Moreno, Polly Newton, Frances Sherman, Les White, Abel Wrightsil, and Angela Yarbrough, Alexander said.

Education programs for the recipients are provided by a community college; university; national, regional or state professional association; hospital, rehabilitation center or any other agency recognized as a continuing education provider, the director added.

Choose child care centers carefully

LUBBOCK — As more mothers enter the workforce, the need for quality child care increases. When parents are selecting a child care facility, Marge Hooper, assistant director of the Methodist Hospital Child Care Center, said the following factors are important considerations:

- Make sure there is ample indoor and outdoor space. About 35 square feet of free space per child indoors and 100 square feet of space per child outdoors is suggested.
- Be sure safe, sanitary and healthy conditions will be maintained.

- Check to see if the child's health is protected and promoted.
  - A good center stresses the importance of continuity in the lives of young children.
  - It should provide appropriate and sufficient equipment and play materials that are readily available.
  - Center employees should have a positive outlook on life.
  - Make sure there are enough adults to attend to the needs of the individual children.
- Distinguishing a good child care program ensures that the child will receive skilled guidance.

Underground hospital

Patients play chess and read at the speleotherapeutic department of the republican pulmonary center, located underground in a salt mine in Yerevan, U.S.S.R. The new medical establishment is unique for patients who suffer bronchial asthma and chronic bronchitis. Part of the thirty-day treatment includes breathing salty air.
