

Buyers beware: Taxes increase Thursday

AUSTIN (AP) — Record numbers of Texans are calling the state tax collector with questions and complaints about the sales tax increase that takes effect Thursday.

"It appears that nobody is happy," Claudia Stravato, deputy comptroller for enforcement, said Tuesday.

On Thursday, the state sales tax will increase to 6 percent from the current 5 1/4 percent. The sales tax also will be expanded to cover many services and some goods that had been exempt.

For Dallas, Austin and Houston residents, the increase means a total sales tax of 8 percent because of the 1 percent city sales tax and 1 percent transit sales tax.

Lawmakers approved the state sales tax increase during a special session called this year to balance the budget.

Stravato, who oversees the tax assistance telephone bank, said the 50 tax specialists there have been handling 5,000 to 8,000 calls a day since mid-August.

The number of tax-related calls to the toll-free line (1-800-252-5555) has been as high as 10,000 per day, she said.

Most of the calls are from businesses, Ms. Stravato said.

The 420,000 merchants now on the tax rolls must adjust cash registers or obtain new cards that show the increased state sales tax.

In addition, more than 64,000 businesses are expected to be collecting the sales tax for the first time.

Among the items that will fall under the sales tax beginning Thursday are garbage collection, landscaping, pest control, private

Tax change highlights

AUSTIN (AP) — Here are highlights of the state tax changes that go into effect Thursday:

- State sales tax rate increases from the current 5 1/4 percent to 6 percent. Many cities also collect a 1 percent city sales tax and some areas collect a local transit tax of up to 1 percent.

- Sales tax is expanded to cover some goods and services that had been exempt, including telephone service, real property services, yard maintenance, landscaping, janitorial services, private club memberships, building maintenance, garbage collection, pest control services, property surveying and soft drinks and diluted juices in all forms.

- New exemptions from sales tax granted to newspapers sold by subscription or copy, magazines sold for subscriptions of six months or more, ice purchased for commercial fishing boats for storage of catch, coins designated as official state coins.

- Cigarette tax increases from the current 20.5 cents per pack to 26 cents per pack.

club memberships and insurance damage appraisals.

"A lot of (the callers) are confused" because the $5.7 billion tax bill approved by lawmakers contains different effective dates for different tax increases, Stravato said.

The sales tax increase and base-broadening that take effect Thursday will together raise an estimated $3.6 billion over the next two years. Other increases took effect Sept. 1 or will take effect Jan. 1.

With the increase, Texas is tied with six other states in having the third-highest state sales tax rate in the nation.

Some of the merchants who are calling are irate because they must pay a new $25 fee for a permit to collect the sales tax, Ms. Stravato said. The fee became effective Sept. 1.

The state's motor vehicle sales tax and hotel/motel room taxes also went up Sept. 1.

Starting Thursday, the so-called Doughnut Rule, which applies the sales tax to ready-to-eat foods only if they are purchased for immediate consumption, will fall by the wayside.

The abolition of the rule, which got its nickname because the sales tax has not been charged on purchases of six doughnuts or more, means the sales tax will be charged on all food and drink purchases from such businesses as restaurants, hotels and drug stores.

Smokers also will pay a higher price beginning Thursday, when the cigarette tax will go from 20.5 cents to 26 cents a pack.

Terence Drown remains critical

Herald staff report
A Big Spring resident, injured Friday when his motorcycle collided with an automobile, remains in critical condition in a Lubbock hospital.

Terence Lee Drown, 31, 2911 West Highway 80 Apt. 61, was critically injured in a Friday night accident in the 1100 block of West FM 700.

Drown collided with a car making a left-hand turn onto 11th Place.

A spokesman from the surgical intensive care unit of Lubbock Methodist Hospital said today Drown is in critical but stable condition in ICU.

He reportedly sustained head injuries in the accident. Drown wasn't wearing a helmet, according to police records.

He was transferred to the Lubbock hospital at 2:45 a.m. Saturday, about four hours after the accident occurred.

The driver of the car, Gavina Chavez Nunez, 44, 608 N.E. Ninth St., was charged with failure to yield the right of way. She was not injured, according to police reports.

Nunez reportedly misjudged Drown's speed and turned in front of him as he was traveling north on FM 700.

Regional PTA conference here Thursday

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

A district Parent-Teacher Association workshop here Thursday is expected to attract 150 participants from throughout West Texas.

The Big Spring City Council PTA will host the event at the First United Methodist Church, according to President Doug Morris. It is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. with registration.

"This workshop is designed with parents in mind," he said, explaining that the public is invited to attend. "We will try to give them some practical help."

It is an annual conference, rotating among Big Spring, Midland and Odessa, Morris said.

A variety of topics, ranging from reinforcing personal responsibility in children to AIDS, will be discussed at the workshop. Guest speakers will be Johnny Lou Avery, president of Avery and Associates; Cecilia McKenzie, director of Rape Crisis/Victim Services; Junita Dodson, president of District 17 PTA; Jimmy Anderson, pharmacist and school board member; and Bill McQueary, superintendent.

"It will be a time for PTA people to get together," Morris said. "We'll have practical information that people can take home with them."

At 9 a.m., Mayor Cotton Mize is scheduled to proclaim Oct. 4-11 PTA membership week in Big Spring, Morris said. The local chapter will be taking the opportunity to increase parental participation in their child's education, he added.

The Big Spring PTA's membership drive has been successful so far, he said, although Morris didn't have any enlistment figures available.

Morris would like to have at least one parent per student in the PTA, but stressed numbers are not as important as participation.

Morris said anyone interested in joining the organization can inquire at their neighborhood school or contact him at 267-6268. Membership dues are $2 annually, and go toward the purchase of school equipment — such as playground equipment, copiers and computer components, he added.

At right, Floyd Earls, left, and Victor Sedinger install one of the many American flags that adorn the area. The Wall will be displayed 24 hours daily through Oct. 6.

About 100 people, from as far away as Seattle, Wash., visited the Wall Tuesday. An official opening ceremony will be conducted at the site at 5:30 p.m. today. The ceremony will be coordinated by Conrad Alexander, director of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Center and will include a ribbon cutting ceremony, the placing of a memorial wreath and the signing interpretation of a poem by SWCID students.

Guardianship

Gloomy outlook, but some alternatives

Editor's note — This is the tenth in a series on the nation's guardianship system. As the population grays, experts say the outlook for effective guardianship darkens. This, the final part of "Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System," looks at the future.

By FRED BAYLES and
SCOTT McCARTNEY

Associated Press Writers
MIAMI (AP) — Judge Moie Tendrich picks up the telephone in his chambers to conclude guardianship proceedings on a 101-year-old man, bed-ridden and diagnosed as senile and chronically ill.

"Frank," the judge says to Frank Repensek, executive director of the Guardianship Program of Dade County Inc., "can you take somebody for us?"

With a quick phone call and a "hearing" in which he was the only participant, the judge has decided the fate of another senior citizen.

It happens almost every day here. With its booming elderly population, Florida, some say, reflects the demographic future of the nation, a glimpse of what the aging population will look like in 20 years.

And so in this state rich in retirees, the future of the nation's guardianship system may also be found.

Nowhere is the need for quality care greater for the elderly, yet almost nowhere, experts say, are the probate courts more overburdened with guardianship, the quality of justice so variant, the oversight and due process, in some counties, so suspect.

"The problem is the courts were never set up and never intended to deal with the volume," said Repensek, who added Tendrich's case to his 270 other wards.

"As people get older, there's going to have to be some system for dealing with the legal and personal needs of these people. Guardianship is not the best alternative. But what we're faced with right now is that it's what's available," he said.

What the probate courts are faced with are numbers. The government predicts that in the next 15 years, the number of older people in the United States will jump 22 percent to nearly 35 million.

The group older than 75, those most likely to face guardianship, according to an Associated Press study, will grow from about 12 million to 30 million by the year 2030, and the group over 85 will triple to 8.6 million people.

Today, those who deal with guardianships, probate courts and the elderly predict that the need for greater oversight and tools such as

Beals creek committee will meet

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Members of the Beals Creek flood committee will meet Thursday to discuss the latest developments in its efforts to prevent Big Spring flooding.

The committee will meet at 10 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex board room.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the meeting was called to get reports from each entity on what has been accomplished and what remains to be done.

The committee, formed this spring, consists of city, county and Colorado River Municipal Water District representatives. Representatives from Union Pacific Railroad and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers also have attended previous meetings.

The approval of a $75,000 grant by a U.S. Senate subcommittee to fund a Jones Valley flood relief study hasn't yet been considered by the full Senate, Chris Peacock, a spokesman for U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, said today.

The funds were included in the Energy and Water Development's budget, as part of the Senate Appropriations bill, he said.

When the bill has been considered by the full Senate, it must then go to a House-Senate conference to resolve any differences in the budget, he said.

The bill could go before the Senate within the next two weeks, Peacock said.

Since the flood committee first met in June, railroad crew reportedly have removed debris the banks of Beals Creek west of Birdwell lane into the railroad yards.

Howard County commissioners in July approved the purchase of three culverts to be placed in the creek bed at the 11th Place extension.

The culverts will replace four smaller ones and will carry more water, County Engineer Bill Mims has said.

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said today that he didn't think the culverts had been installed. He expects them to be installed in a few weeks, after the Road and Bridge Department finishes its paving program.

Technology crucial to oil field future

DALLAS (AP) — Technological advances must remain a top priority if mature U.S. oil fields are still to be major producers for the energy industry, experts say.

The oil and gas industry's "rededication to technology" is just as necessary as the industry's consolidation and retrenchment, said Robert C. Mills, vice president and general manager of Mobil Exploration and Producing Services Inc. at the annual meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers Tuesday.

"As we've picked over the obvious places to drill, we've had to move into more remote places — deeper waters and more difficult areas," Mills said. "We have to concentrate on technology to reduce those higher costs of drilling."

A huge potential exists in the United States, Mills said. Current technology is available to recover 33 percent of the 500 billion barrels of known reserves, he said.

"If we can just raise only 10 percent of the 500 barrels of known reserves, that's 50 billion barrels. That is a huge amount," Mills said. The proven reserves in the United States now is only 28 billion barrels.

Sam Varnado, general manager of Titan Technologies, said the industry's downturn in the U.S. has caused technological development to stall.

"A lot of technological leadership will switch to the North Sea, and we stand to risk not being able to compete with them," Varnado said. "Small companies will have a hard time competing."

During the boom times, "no one needed to do it better," said Frank Schuh, president of Drilling Technology Inc.

"The problem is that 80 percent of all the wells drilled in the world have been drilled in this country," Schuh said. "We've found it all."

If the industry is going to "survive on these crummy fields," several new methods of drilling will have to be explored, he said. Advances in drilling technologies "are the kinds of things that can change the profits equations."

Fiddler results released

Marilyn Trotter and Weldon Turpin were winners of the two divisions in the Fiddler's Contest at the 15th annual Howard County Fair last week.

In the 44 and under division, Trotter placed first, followed by former state champion Ricky Boen. Current national champion Bart Trotter was third, with Sheronna Kingston, Mike Henderson and Brian Fowler placing fourth through sixth, respectively.

Weldon Turpin won the 45 and over division, with Robert Weeks placing second. D.A. Penny was third, followed by Chester Derrick and Armond Taylor.

Marilyn Trotter and Turpin won $125 for their efforts. Second-place winners were awarded $95 and third-place fiddlers won $45.

The youngest fiddler, Brian Fowler, and the oldest fiddler, Taylor, were awarded $15. Chester Derrick received the Hoyle Nix Outstanding Fiddler Award. The latter award is based on the dedication to the art, showmanship and performance.

Judges for the event were Don Tolle, chairman, Jody Nix, Ricky Boen, 45 and over, and Weldon Turpin, 44 and under.

House fire may be arson

Fire department officials are investigating an early morning fire on North Scurry Street they believe was deliberately set.

The fire occurred at a house under construction at 810 N. Scurry St. Firefighters received the call at 2:40 a.m. and were at the scene within five minutes, according to a fire department report.

The house was engulfed by flames, and fire fighters spent about 30 minutes extinguishing the blaze. Loss was estimated at $10,000, the report stated.

Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles Jr. said this morning he believes the fire was deliberately set.

He explained no utilities had been connected at the house, such as gas or electricity, that could have contributed to the fire. The owner of the house, Julian Ramirez, told officials that he has reason to believe the fire was deliberately set, also, Settles added.

Women, math — phony notion

Odd, how the phony notion that women are none too good at math has persisted. Women have perpetuated it, too. In fact, though, women — whether they hold outside jobs or not — still balance the checkbooks in two out of three American homes, most often because they're better at it.

The word "ketchup" comes from an Oriental word, but not one that had anything to do with tomatoes. Ketchup's primary ingredient. Oriental cooking doesn't call for tomatoes — never has.

Q. What kind of milk — I mean like cow's milk and goat's milk — is drunk by the most people worldwide?

A. Human's milk, that's No. 1. No. 2, goat's milk. No. 3, cow's milk.

The ad brochures from the car makers now use the term "cigarette lighters" instead of "cigarette lighters."

Q. How come it's the pit bull — instead of, say, St. Bernards — that have been bred over the ages for ferocity?

A. Size. Pit bulls are small enough to be controlled by strong trainers. If St. Bernards were bred that way, they'd be too dangerous to handle. That's what happened to the ancient war mastiffs. They became so deadly, they had to be killed.

Clients ask if some people inherently have warmer hands than others. Indeed. Scientists say the size and arrangements of blood vessels in the hands of the Eskimos are not precisely the same as those of people elsewhere. They get better circulation, so their hands stay warmer.

Why smoking is blamed for 83 percent of lung cancers in men but only 43 percent in women is another medical mystery.

Howard County commissioners have appointed Jerry Worthy as the property appraiser for the U.S. Highway 87 project.

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby said Worthy, a state certified appraiser, will appraise a 2½-mile stretch of land from Hearn Street to the Garden City cutoff at Highway 33.

Schools paying kids not to miss class

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Going to school every day next month could pay off — literally — for students who are being offered incentives such as cash prizes to attend classes.

Each of the district's 57 schools will be offering a chance to win money, gift certificates or special activities — whatever it takes to increase student attendance during October, associate superintendent Abe Saavedra said.

October is the month when the state tallies the average daily attendance, which in turn determines how much state money each school district gets.

The incentives are a response to the Corpus Christi Independent School District's enrollment dearth. Because enrollment is about 550 students below projections, the district stands to lose about $1.2 million in state funding it had figured into its budget.

Every school has received $300 to create its own student attendance incentive program, Saavedra said.

"Each principal will determine what kind of incentive program to set up," Saavedra said Monday. "Some are giving cash prizes, others pizza parties."

W.B. Ray High School students with perfect attendance each week will draw for cash prizes of $50, $25, $15 and $10, said principal Bill Hamrick.

At the end of October, the names of six King High School students who haven't missed a day of school that month will be drawn to receive $50 each, said assistant principal Ed Martin.

Students at Cunningham Junior High School will be encouraged not to miss school during October with a drawing for a special prize every week, principal Arnold Saavedra said.

A similar incentive program has been instituted in the Marble Falls Independent School District, about 30 miles northwest of Austin.

Students with perfect attendance there will be eligible for a drawing to win a trip for two to Disney World's Epcot Center on American Airlines, said Assistant Superintendent Jay Watson.

Other drawings will award prizes of money, bicycles, radios and pizzas, he said.

"It's not costing the local district any money," said Watson, adding that local businesses contributed the prizes. He said all students with perfect attendance would win something.

The district is trying to compensate for $750,000 in state funding that was cut this year.

Corpus Christi Superintendent Charles Benson said many schools around the country are taking similar approaches to improving attendance. He said the district receives about $2,000 for every student in attendance during October.

Posters at Miller High School in Corpus Christi urge students not to cut classes. Each of the 57 schools will be offering cash prizes, gift certificates, special activities and whatever it takes to increase student attendance during the month of October. The incentives are a response to the district's dearth.

Judge OKs schools' tuition

FORT WORTH (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the Arlington Independent School District can collect tuition from students of foreign parents.

U.S. District Judge David Belew's ruling Tuesday came in response to a lawsuit challenging the tuition filed earlier this month by the Fort Worth chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of 10 parents and their children.

The students are the children of foreign college students who are in the country on student visas. Most of the affected parents attend the University of Texas at Arlington. "We thought we had a legal right to charge tuition to non-residents," Supt. Donald Wright said. "I guess the judge confirmed that."

The ruling will affect 63 students, Wright said. He said the district will collect $270 per month for elementary students and $300 per month for secondary students.

The district will collect an estimated $189,000 in tuition this year, Wright said.

"At this point, we're not going to force a kid out of school," Morgan said. "We will work with them on tuition."

Bomb bays provided exit

LA JUNTA, Colo. — Three of six crew members who died in the fiery crash of a B-1B bomber on a ranch near this southeastern Colorado community could have exited through the plane's bomb bays, the Air Force said.

Why they didn't is one of the answers investigators of the crash are trying to determine.

Three crew members used ejection seats to blow themselves free of the stricken bomber and parachute to safety. They suffered cuts and bruises in landing on the prairie 3 miles east of the crash site Monday morning.

The three were reported in good condition at the Air Force Academy Hospital where they were being kept from news reporters.

Capt. Jeff Mielke, a public affairs officer for the Strategic Air Command, said the B-1B normally has a four-man crew and four ejection seats.

Mielke said two crew members had jump seats in the cockpit, a usual practice when instructors are flying a mission. These jump seats are not equipped with ejection devices.

Liberalism torch must not go out

The flame of liberalism no longer burns brightly in America. It sputters and flickers, the victim not only of its enemies, but also of its torch bearers.

Liberalism lost its champions to the bullets of assassins, to the tragedy of the Vietnam War and the debacle of the Great Society. Liberalism, a tradition reaching back into the roots of our history, became confused in the public mind with largesse.

Liberal methods may have tried to save the disenfranchised, the poor, the alienated, the elderly, the disabled. But the poor are still among us. Our cities still are blighted with ghettos of violence and suffering. People go without jobs. Families are broken by a welfare system designed to help them.

The liberal constituency remains in need of a champion who can unite public caring with modern economic and political pragmatism.

In this year's political maneuvering, two fallen candidates claimed to champion the liberal cause. The first was Colorado Sen. Gary Hart. He spoke of new ideas. He thrust his hands, thumbs out, into the pockets of his suits, John F. Kennedy style.

His syntax was Kennedyesque. But something was missing in Hart. The ideas soared high, but they never came down to earth, perhaps because he was off sailing with Donna Rice in Bimini. He was brought down by a flaw in his own character.

Delaware Sen. Joe Biden picked up the torch. Young, brash, original — or so it appeared — he moved the Democratic faithful with his stirring oratory.

But those who listened carefully heard familiar quotations mingled with Biden's bravado, which he did not attribute to their authors. Now Biden has fallen — the victim of his plagiarism of speeches.

The liberal torch is tarnished. But America needs its liberal tradition, as it needs conservatism, to bring a balance of conscience and perspective to the issues of our time.

Liberalism may have foundered in its search for solutions, though big government, for social, economic and racial injustices.

But the need remains to bring equality and social justice to all Americans, to heal our racial divisions, to give a chance to children and caring to the elderly.

In his withdrawal speech, Biden spoke with conviction. "I still believe it's time to rekindle the spirit of idealism in this country," he said.

As America searches for that spirit, the flame of liberalism must not go out.

College costs prompt suggestions to parents

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
Everyone worries about how much it costs to go to college.

I read a figure that said the cost of one year of schooling at prestigious institutions such as Yale and Harvard and other places, where the football teams never go to a bowl game, was $17,000.

One female student interviewed on the Yale campus said, "I think it's worth it."

A Porsche is worth it at $50,000, too, if Daddy's check is coming in each month.

It's been 20 years since I was in college, but I still feel I am qualified to offer a few suggestions to parents as to how to cut the price of educating their little spoiled darlings.

If you can't finance $17,000 a year on what you make in annual salary down at the plant, and your kid wants to go to Harvard because that's the best place to go if you want to meet, and perhaps later marry, a Kennedy, suggest alternatives.

"How about good Ol' State U?" you might ask.

Your kid's eyes will roll back in his or her head, the classic teenage expression that means you have been completely out of touch with what's happening since the year Rome was sacked.

Then say, "OK, I can't afford Harvard and you don't want to go to State U, but I can get you on the third shift at the plant." That should work. You wouldn't want your kid to meet and marry a Kennedy anyway. Those people prob-bably wear ties at dinner. Speaking of work, here's another way to cut what it costs to put your child through college.

Suggest he or she get a parttime job to help pay for some of the expenses. This suggestion likely will send your child into a fainting spell.

"But how," your daughter will ask, when she is revived, "can I work and still have time to be on the Homecoming Float Committee at the sorority house?"

Explain how you had to sell magazines door-to-door to put yourself through college and if she doesn't get a job, there won't be enough money for sorority dues.

Your daughter will hate you but only until her own children reach college age.

Here are some other ideas of how to cut the high cost of college:

1. Never send your children off to school with a convertible sports car or a credit card. The sports car will break down and you will have to pay for it to be repaired.

A college-age individual with a credit card will wear the writing off the plastic before Christmas break.

2. Don't allow your child to do anything because one of his or her friends is doing it — you sell used cars, the friend's dad is a television evangelist.

3. As soon as your child leaves for college, move to a new address and get an unlisted phone number so you won't be getting any letters or phone calls begging for money.

Some of these suggestions may seem cruel, but it's either use them or spend a fortune on your kid's education and have him or her marry a Kennedy and when they come over dinner you won't be able to eat in your shorts.

It's your decision.

Customs was on trail of Iran arms deal

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — A year before the Iran/Contra scandal rocked the Reagan administration, the U.S. Customs Service developed information on one of the early secret arms shipments to Iran by the White House. But Customs did not pursue the matter after it was assured by the CIA that the United States was not involved.

The near-exposure of the secret Iranian arms operation in the fall of 1985 was touched off by an occurrence as trivial as the taped door latch of Watergate: The plane that carried the weapons to Iran overflew Turkish territory on its way back to Israel — and peeved Turkish officials publicly identified the DC-8 and its secret route. But the press never picked up on the Turks' disclosure.

This bizarre might-have-been element in the Iran/Contra scandal was gleaned from two confidential Customs documents we have seen.

The first document was written on Sept. 20, 1985, by the chief of the Customs Service's office of intelligence, George D. Heavey.

It reported that two days earlier, "the Office of Intelligence received fragmentary information ... that a U.S.-registered DC-8 aircraft (with a crew of three) had landed for emergency repairs in Israel directly from Iran and was en route to an unknown destination."

The internal memo went on to say that even though Customs had the tail number of the DC-8, the Israeli defense ministry maintained a "blackout on information on the aircraft."

As a result, the memo added, the U.S. ambassador to Bahrain could say little when the Iraqi ambassador there "made discreet inquiries about (this and other) flights and arms smuggling to Iran." The stated U.S. policy at the time was to discourage arms sales to Iraq's enemy in the Persian Gulf war.

Based on his sketchy information, the Customs intelligence chief came to this conclusion: "Israelis have been caught 'red-handed' supplying Iran with war material, even though they tried to hide the operation by using aircraft owned by a Nigerian airline, based in Brussels and registered in the United States."

In fact, of course, the secret sale of arms to Iran was a White House operation with Israeli cooperation.

Customs had no way of knowing it, but its puzzling intelligence information involved the U.S.-approved Israeli shipment of 408 TOW anti-tank missiles to Iran on Sept. 14, 1985, as part of an arms-for-hostages deal. The same day, Rev. Benjamin Weir was released after 16 months' captivity in Lebanon.

Customs intelligence analysts were able to provide more details on the mystery flight in a memo to Commissioner William Von Raab written on Oct. 30, 1985.

The U.S.-registered DC-8 had "departed Tabriz, Iran, with a crew of three" on Sept. 16, the memo noted, adding: "The plane disappeared over Turkish air space, then arrived at Tel Aviv Ben Gurion Airport for an 'emergency' landing (due to an 'equipment malfunction'). The plane remained in Tel Aviv for about 48 hours."

The memo said the incident first broke when "Turkish authorities broadcast information concerning the DC-8, its origin and landing in Israel." The memo added that the information "probably was made public by the Turkish government as officials were displeased by the failure of the DC-8's owners to pay the overflight fees."

Noting that despite the Turks' disclosure, "U.S. press coverage was minimal," the Customs analyst suggested:

"The lack of press coverage may possibly be attributed to pressure by the State Department. Officials ... have advised the Federal Aviation Administration and Customs personnel to forget the whole incident."

Then, in a remarkably prescient observation, the analyst added: "It appears the State Department may have been suppressing this information in order to keep a controversial incident from causing the U.S. and Israeli governments major embarrassment."

Finally, the memo stated, "a check with CIA officials on U.S. involvement was negative." Customs' dangerously suspicious intelligence analysts were lied to.

In fact, Commissioner Von Raab was never let in on the secret operation his intelligence people had almost figured out. On July 11, 1986, Dale Van Atta told Von Raab the White House was smuggling arms to Iran. Von Raab replied that Van Atta's information was wrong.

APPRAISING THE FRAMERS — President Reagan's view of the Founding Fathers, expressed to us privately, illustrates his talent for simple eloquence.

"The world has never seen their like at a key point in history," he said. "The American Revolution was more than the kind of revolutions we've seen in other countries and looked back at. That was a philosophical revolution."

"They just weren't rebelling against a king. They sat down and these men, some of them from the professions, some of them from trades, some of them farmers — but between them, they said, for the first time in the history of mankind, 'Government is the servant of the people.'"

MINI-EDITORIAL — At last: a modern version of the lad who murdered his parents and appealed for mercy on grounds that he was an orphan. John Fedders, former enforcement chief at the Securities and Exchange Commission, has asked for a share in the proceeds from his wife's new book, "Shattered Dreams."

The reason a book publisher was interested in Charlotte Fedders' story — and the reason he quit his SEC post — was her allegations that he repeatedly beat her during their marriage.

Packing may be easier than farewells

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Two of the things I dread most in life loom large in the very near future — packing and saying goodbye.

Packing is a pain for the obvious reasons. It's work without pay, while requiring organizational skills to get the most into limited space.

My U-Haul will have limited space and I am not a good packer. I suspect I'll have to leave a few things behind.

Packing, however, will be a pleasure compared to the torment of saying goodbye to this town and area. As a matter of fact, I gave my leave notice in July, and it's taken this long for me to finally make my return home.

Home is Mobile, Alabama, where I grew up and where my parents live. My grandmother's home on Mobile Bay is still in the family. I'm moving there and will take a month or two off before working again.

Since I've saved some money, and I will likely be married some day, this may be my best and last chance to be lazy for an extended period of time.

We have a wharf that extends out into the bay, and it's a perfect place to watch sunsets. It's great to lay on the hammock, watch the sun set, and think about things big and small.

I'll spend much of the time thinking about Big Spring and wondering how the Steers are doing. I'll wonder what's going on at the Herald, and I'll wonder how my friends here are doing.

I've wondered about these things nearly every day for the past 17 months, so it's unlikely I'll stop now.

Here's some of what I'll be remembering as the sun goes down.

• Before arriving here, it had been about six years since I'd been to a high school football game, and then I played in them. I learned quickly that a West Texas football game is a spectacle.

I can't imagine fans being more passionate about their sports, and that passion for sports made my job that much better. Luckily, I got here at just the right time.

Supposedly the Steers used to lose a lot of football games, but I didn't see much of it. I saw them clinch the district crown, and I saw them play their first playoff game in over 30 years. I'm not about to forget that — ever.

There's an unwritten rule that I didn't know: Sportswriters aren't supposed to cheer their team in the pressbox. Even when I learned it, I found it hard to follow. More than once during those first games did I get a disapproving stare from an angry writer from another paper.

• In addition to sports, I had the pleasure of covering the Forsan school board and the Coahoma school board and city council. I enjoyed my relationships with all three, and couldn't help but sympathize with their plights.

Times are not easy for governing bodies with plummeting oil revenues, and the Coahoma School Board members knows this better than anyone. They had one particularly difficult night last year, but I imagine it was one of the most important nights in the school's history.

It was rumored that the school might close and an open meeting was called. While all meetings are open, it's rare to see even ten people at a school board meeting.

This night, however, over 500 people attended. They let it be known in no uncertain terms that Coahoma would always have a high school. It's the most school pride I've ever witnessed, including what's displayed at football games.

• Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings Steve Belvin, myself and usually ten others play basketball at 6 a.m. at the YMCA. We play to 40 by ones, full court, and rarely is the outcome decided by more than the minimum two point margin.

I won't miss the alarm clock at 5:40 a.m., but I'll miss the basketball and the guys who played.

I just hope I don't get fatter without my early morning hoops.

• Growing up in Alabama, I know about Southern hospitality. Nowhere is it more evident than in Big Spring. There is one particular example of it that I'll always remember.

I get my water by the bottles, and I have about 10 bottles that I fill at the water store when they're empty. As those who get water know, you lay your bottles on the little shelf, and fill them with the help of the person working there.

I can't swear it's true, but at the same time I know it is. Whoever was working always tried to fill more bottles than I could. As we chatted about the weather or the Steers, our hands moved feverishly to fill the most bottles.

I never did win this little game, but I enjoyed trying.

• I'll never forget learning to be a reporter by trial and error. I was a history major without prior journalism experience, and am forever grateful for the opportunity to work here. Also, I'll never forget the people I've worked with at the Herald. I will miss every one of them.

• There's a sense of community, of togetherness, that I felt in Big Spring. When a store closed, there was a sense that the whole town felt the pain. People talked about it and worried about it together.

For the first time, I felt like I was part of a community. Mobile is big, and its problems have never seemed my own. I hope the next place I live generates the same strong feelings I have about Big Spring.

It will be one heckuva place if it does.

Economy climbing

WASHINGTON — The government's chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity climbed 0.6 percent in August, the seventh consecutive increase and the longest string of advances since the economic recovery began in late 1982.

The Commerce Department said the August increase followed a revised July advance of 0.3 percent.

Analysts said the string of gains in the index was pointing the way to continued moderate economic growth for the rest of this year and through the 1988 presidential election, something bound to cheer Republicans hoping to hold onto the White House.

Researcher criticized

NEW YORK — A federal agency has disciplined a distinguished cardiologist for exaggerations and misstatements in published research and has criticized his university for failing to investigate the matter properly.

Dr. Jeffrey Borer of the Cornell University Medical College in New York City was asked to issue an immediate clarification of one scientific paper dealing with methods of diagnosing heart ailments, according to a report released Monday of an investigation by the National Institutes of Health.

The agency's investigators recommended that for a period of three years a copy of their report be given to anyone at the institutes who is considering appointing Borer to a research committee or providing him with research funds.

Robertson resigns

WASHINGTON — Republican presidential hopeful Pat Robertson, in a move to soften his identity as a television evangelist, says he is resigning as a Southern Baptist minister and severing ties to his broadcast ministry.

Robertson's announcement came Tuesday, just two days before he formally enters the GOP race.

"The call of God on my life for service has never diminished. It has shifted, however, from service within the church body to service to the nation," he said in a statement from his campaign headquarters in Chesapeake, Va.

Bakkers accuse Falwell

NEW YORK — Jim and Tammy Bakker claimed today that the Rev. Jerry Falwell snatched their PTL ministry away after warning them about a hostile takeover by rival televangelist Jimmy Swaggart, and promised pay callers in a recorded message that "we'll talk more about it tomorrow."

House fire

10 children, two adults perish

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A fire early today swept through a two-story house where 15 people lived, killing 10 children and two adults who were trapped on the second floor by the soaring flames.

The fire broke out only hours before a woman who lived in the house was to go to court to fight an eviction notice, according to the woman's mother. The woman survived the fire, along with two other adults.

The wood and brick house on the city's North Side was gutted by the flames, which also spread to an adjacent building.

The dead youngsters were 11 months to 8 years old, according to fire battalion chief James Rechlitz, but he did not know the relationship among them.

Willie Cross, one of the survivors, said the fire woke him up and he and Annie Phillips, who also survived, ran outside.

Cross said he tried to climb up to a second-floor window using a front porch so he could help those trapped by the flames.

"I got up to the top window, but the smoke knocked me down," Cross said.

"It sounded like someone was breaking in the house," Phillips said. "Fire started shooting up."

Rosella Ramthun, the mother of the third survivor, Jill Schreck, said her daughter had been served with an eviction notice and was due in court today to fight it.

"They had everything packed. They were going to move," said Ramthun, who lives down the street from the ruined house.

Ramthun said someone pounded on her door about 5 a.m. and told her of the fire.

When she arrived at the scene "most of the fire was out, but the babies were still in the house," she said.

Cross and Phillips were not injured and remained at the scene. Schreck, who escaped the fire by jumping from a second-floor window, was injured, but her condition was not known immediately.

Fire officials said the home was engulfed in flames when they arrived. They said the stairway to the second floor was burned away, preventing firefighters from quickly getting to the victims there.

Rescue Workers remove the body of one of 12 victims of an early fire on Milwaukee's north side Wednesday. Ten children were among the victims. They ranged in age from 11 months to 8 years old.

The blaze, reported at 4:42 a.m., started in the first floor of the two-story house, apparently in the kitchen, said Rechlitz. The cause was not immediately determined, but a state fire marshal was at the scene to aid in the investigation.

"It was so freaky," said Dottie Brewster, who lived in the adjacent building. "I was asleep. Who would have thought flames would have come in on your bed when you're sleeping." "The children were so friendly," she added. "they were happy all the time."

Firefighters started removing bodies from the house on stretchers about 8 a.m. Firefighters, police and Red Cross volunteers had to form a human barricade to keep relatives and friends from running to the bodies.

Bush meets with Kohl

BONN, West Germany — Vice President George Bush met today with West German officials, including Chancellor Helmut Kohl, and said he found unified support for the prospective arms treaty banning U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

Kohl said he hoped a formal treaty could be concluded before the end of the year.

He also expressed the hope that talks would continue soon on long-range nuclear weapons and on chemical weapons, as well as conventional forces.

200 dead in mudslide

MEDELLIN, Colombia — The death toll from a mudslide that rumbled down a mountain and devastated a poor Medellin neighborhood rose to 200, and the mayor said 300 other people may have died.

Since the disaster Sunday, no survivors have been found.

Pedro Nel Correa, the Fire Department chief, said emergency crews had pulled 200 bodies — nearly half of them children — from the tons of rubble, mud and rocks by late Tuesday. He estimated that 300 people died in the disaster, but Mayor William Jaramillo Gomez said the figure might be too low.

Group criticizes U.S.

LONDON — Amnesty International, issuing its annual report on human rights today, accused the Soviet Union of harsh treatment of political prisoners and criticized the United States for permitting the death penalty.

The Nobel Prize-winning group said it had received reports of human rights abuses in 129 nations last year.

The London-based group, which opposes the death penalty, said 18 people were executed in U.S. prisons in 1986, bringing the number killed since the 1976 reinstatement of the death penalty to 68. A record 1,838 prisoners were on death row as of Dec. 20 last year, it said.

Canadian postmen strike

OTTAWA — The 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers went on strike early Wednesday over job security issues in the second major Canadian postal walkout in three months.

State-owned Canada Post and the union bargained until the midnight strike deadline, but neither side was optimistic about reaching a quick settlement.

The union planned rotating walkouts across the country. But about 2,000 Montreal-area workers defied the national union with a nearly unanimous vote to launch an all-out strike.

Bork

Cranston says votes are in: Bork out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senator who counts votes for the Democrats says Robert H. Bork is "licked" as a Supreme Court nominee, but President Reagan and Bork aren't buying the prediction.

Senate Majority Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., told reporters Tuesday that his latest head-count shows 49 senators likely to oppose Bork, 40 likely to support him and 11 undecided.

"This reflects a loss of five potential votes for Bork since September 15," the day Bork's confirmation hearings began before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Cranston said. The hearings are expected to conclude today.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday the administration has launched a new drive to woo votes. Bork has been meeting with individual senators.

Fitzwater said Reagan is not even considering whom he might nominate if Bork is rejected and "gets angry at the very thought of even mentioning a replacement."

At Bork's confirmation hearing Tuesday, held in the same Senate Caucus Room where the Watergate hearings were held, the Judiciary Committee heard different accounts of Bork's role in the "Saturday Night Massacre."

On Oct. 20, 1973, former Attorney General Elliot Richardson resigned rather than carry out President Nixon's order to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, Bork, then solicitor general, ultimately handled the dismissal.

Richardson told senators Tuesday that he resigned because he promised the Senate and Cox that he would not fire the prosecutor, Bork, he said, had made no such commitment and did the right thing. He then saved the prosecution team by keeping it together, Richardson testified.

Bork testified two weeks ago that after Cox was gone, he immediately tried to find a strong new prosecutor to replace him and make sure the investigation would proceed.

But Henry Ruth and George Frampton, members of Cox's prosecution team, challenged those accounts in their testimony Tuesday.

ROBERT H. BORK

Hearing developments at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are developments in the confirmation hearings on Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court:

BORK SUPPORT SLIPPING?
Sen. Alan Cranston, the Senate's second-ranking Democrat, says support for Bork's confirmation has slipped so much that "I think he's licked."

Cranston, who keeps vote counts on major issues for the Democrats, said Tuesday that his latest head count showed 49 senators likely to vote against Bork and just 40 likely to vote for him. That would mean Bork needs to gain the support of at least 10 of the 11 still undecided or unknown.

Vice President George Bush, as president of the Senate, would cast the tie-breaking vote in the event of a 50-50 tie.

WATERGATE
Former Attorney General Elliot Richardson defended Bork's conduct in the firing of the Watergate special prosecutor 14 years ago.

Richardson resigned rather than obey President Nixon's order to fire Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Richardson's top deputy then was fired for refusing to fire Cox. Bork, the third-ranking Justice Department official at the time, finally carried out Nixon's command.

Richardson said he had promised Congress he would not interfere with Cox, but that Bork had made no such promise. He said that since Bork made sure that the investigation continued, even after Cox was gone, "the nation owes Robert Bork a substantial debt."

But Henry Ruth and George Frampton, members of Cox's prosecution team, challenged that account. They said Bork displayed a belief that the president should have virtually unlimited power, a belief that would be unsuitable for a Supreme Court justice.

TO RECOMMEND OR NOT
Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said the Judiciary Committee would be ducking its responsibility if it sent Bork's nomination to the full Senate without a recommendation to confirm or reject him.

"I want to vote on it, vote up or down. Every senator knows he will have a large segment of the state opposed to the way he votes," said Leahy, a committee member.

Leahy disagreed with a suggestion by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., that the committee should conclude its deliberations on Bork without taking a position on whether he should be approved.

Government may cut feed grain price aid five percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will see cuts of up to 5 percent in the government's 1988 price supports for corn and other feed grains, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng announced Tuesday.

The price support loan rate for 1988 corn will be $1.74 per bushel, down from $1.82 this year. Lyng said. Sorghum loans will be reduced to $1.65 per bushel from $1.74 in 1987; barley, $1.42 from $1.49 per bushel; oats, 89 cents from 94 cents per bushel; and rye, $1.48 from $1.55 per bushel.

Loan rates are how much farmers can borrow from the Agriculture Department using commodities for collateral. If market prices are significantly higher later on, producers usually repay the loans and sell their commodities for cash. If they do not, the crops are taken over by the government and the loan canceled.

Lyng said no marketing loan provisions will be available under the 1988 feed grain program. Those would enable farmers to repay loans at less than face value, depending on market prices.

Target prices for 1988 were reduced about 2 percent, including: corn, $2.97 per bushel from $3.03 this year; sorghum, $2.82 per bushel from $2.88; barley $2.55 per bushel from $2.60; and oats, $1.57 per bushel from $1.60. There are no target prices for rye.

Pit bull fears may make dog show to move

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A pit bull terrier dog show planned this weekend in Seguin may have to be moved because of the stigma caused by reports of vicious pit bull attacks, owners of the dogs say.

The show may have to be switched from the Guadalupe County Fairgrounds to private property in Schertz if a general liability insurance policy does not arrive by Friday.

The president of the Heart of Texas Pit Bull Club, Rebecca Shaw, said the fairgrounds had not required an insurance policy before this year and may have been influenced by recent reports about pit bull attacks. The group had to ask several companies at the last minute to get a $500-a-day policy.

Only one insurance company would offer a policy for the pit bull show, the San Antonio Light reported, but did not name the company.

"We're supposed to be getting the (insurance) policy in the mail," she said. "We could possibly show up Saturday and be turned away."

The group has had seven successful shows at the fairgrounds with no insurance required, Ms. Shaw said. The last show was in April.

"If we should be canceled (at the fairgrounds), there will be someone there to direct traffic to another place," Ms. Shaw said.

Abuse in retaliation is poor answer to family strife

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a mother being sued for mental cruelty? Mom has carried tales back and forth among her seven children for years. She has twisted stories and created dissension among all members of this family and deliberately turned brothers and sisters against each other. She is now 84.

She now mails out copies of her will to her children and grandchildren — all grown listing who is to get how much, and who will be cut off without a dollar!

Abby, we're talking about an estate that is less than $100,000. She had better save her money because she will need it for a nursing home, as there is not one among us who can stand to be around her for any length of time.

Sad, isn't it? We were all abused as children, and she still abuses us. Every time I hear the plight of some old folks who are ignored, I can't help but wonder if some of them earned it — like my mother.

BEEN THERE
IN SAN BERNARDINO

DEAR BEEN THERE: There is nothing you can do to change your mother, but abusing her in retaliation will not improve the quality of life for anyone.

Abused children usually abuse their own children. Just make sure you don't perpetuate the sins of your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my problem: I have been living with "Fred" for 12 years without benefit of clergy. Until recently, he has resisted the idea of marriage, and I haven't pushed it.

Fred is Canadian, and a year ago when I took a job in Worcester, Mass., I sponsored him for a "green card" so he could work in the USA. (I'm a U.S. citizen.) In the process of getting a green card, the courts affirmed our "marriage" on the basis of long cohabitation.

Now, Fred wants to get married, but honestly, Abby, I feel the time is past. I think it would be embarrassing to have a wedding now. On the other hand, I don't want to discourage him from his new-found urge to make a real commitment.

What do you advise?

WONDERING IN WORCESTER

DEAR WONDERING: Go for the ring on your finger. It's not necessary to have an extravaganza with a lot of hoopla — a quiet but meaningful marriage ceremony with a few close friends and family members will officially reaffirm your commitment. You'll be glad you did. I wish you joy.

DEAR ABBY: When seven of us were dining at an expensive restaurant (I call $50 a person expensive), five people in our party finished with their main courses, but two were still eating. The busboy came along and started to clear the table.

Although I had finished eating, I felt that the two who were still eating were made to feel uncomfortable and somewhat rushed.

When the busboy went to pick up my dinner plate, I gently placed my hand on my plate in order to prevent him from removing it.

My son really jumped on me. He said I should not have stopped the busboy from taking my plate.

Did I commit a cardinal sin?

ENCINO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: No. The process of clearing the table should not begin until everyone has finished eating.

Perhaps the busboy did not know better, or he may have been instructed to clear the table in order to hurry the party out of the place.

Sleeping troubles treated at Center

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — You probably spend more uninterrupted time sleeping than in any other daily activity. Unless you have chronic problems nodding off or staying there, you probably don't think much about it, either.

But a Charlotte neurologist who heads the first accredited center for sleep disorders in North Carolina and South Carolina says almost everyone has at least occasional problems sleeping. And he says many sleep disorders go undetected for decades, while the people who have them are unfairly labeled lazy.

"It's not normal to be sleepy during the day," said Dr. Dennis Hill of the Sleep Disorders Center at Charlotte Memorial Hospital and Medical Center. "If you are, there's something going on, except that everyone gets sleepy after lunch. Many people don't even realize when something is wrong."

Hill says the most common problem he encounters is sleep apnea syndrome, which usually strikes middle-aged, overweight men who snore loudly. A normal reflex that usually opens up the airway so a person can breathe while sleeping is blocked by a fatty muscle, and the sufferer can breathe only by waking up for five to 10 seconds every 30 to 40 seconds.

The awakening is so brief that the sufferer does not even realize that he has awakened, Hill said.

"So the guy is very sleepy all the next day," he said. "His performance at work suffers. He can fall asleep at a red light, or in church. And he doesn't know why he's tired."

"Most of those patients are brought in here by their spouses," Hill said. "They're worried by the loud snoring, and by the fact that their husband seems to stop breathing."

Treatment of the malady can include weight loss, or the use of a dental implant that can keep the tongue from blocking the air passageway.

"We've had patients who just turn into new people once the problem is fixed," Hill said.

Spring-flowering bulbs are both easy and compact

From MIDWEST LIVING, A Meredith Magazine

Spring-flowering bulbs are easy to grow and they don't require much space to put on a spectacular show.

A 3-foot square can house 100 big bulbs or up to 400 smaller ones. Plant bulbs in mid-October and a springtime parade of blossoms will flourish when the first crocus peeks through the snow.

Follow these helpful tips:

Sunny spots are best for bulb beds but a little shade won't hurt.

Spade the bed 12 inches deep, and then plant bulbs at the recommended depths.

Sprinkle bone meal in the bottom of each hole to give roots a healthy start.

Pile on a mulch of shredded bark or other organic matter when planting bulbs. As the mulch decays, add more to maintain a 4- to 6-inch depth.

When plant tips emerge in spring, fertilize with a liquid houseplant food.

Cut off spring blooms as soon as they fade.

Elizabeth Taylor enjoys single life

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, who has been married seven times to six men, says she now enjoys being alone and is not anxious to get married again.

Despite rumors of blossoming romances with actor George Hamilton and publisher Malcolm Forbes, she says she's unhitched and happy since her last marriage, to Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

"This is the longest I've been single in my adult life," she said in an interview in the October issue of Vogue magazine. "But I'm not looking to get married. That's a difference; I always needed a man in my life. Now, I enjoy time alone, the quiet moments."

"I'm learning to leave myself open and be receptive to new things. ... I'm sort of beginning to grow up," said Miss Taylor, 55.

A star at age 12, she says she didn't have much of a childhood. "I didn't see my first baseball game till last year. I never went to a senior prom. ... I wasn't a normal teen-ager. I wasn't doing the things my brother was doing or the girl across the street."

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Two southeastern Virginia television stations have rejected overtures from talent agents seeking a TV reporting job for Fawn Hall, the Iran-Contra affair secretary, but a third said it will interview her.

Hal Levenson, news director of NBC affiliate WAVY-TV in Portsmouth, said he plans to interview the former National Security Council secretary to gauge her commitment to journalism.

News directors at WAVY, CBS affiliate WTKR-TV in Norfolk and ABC affiliate WVEC-TV in Hampton received calls last week from the William Morris talent agency inquiring if they would hire Miss Hall as a reporter. The area is close to Miss Hall's parents' home in Annandale.

Stuart Zanger, news director at WVEC, said, "I told them I would call back if I was interested. I'm not interested. I'm not running a school of journalism here."

Carol Rueppel, WTKR news director, said she "told them if I had an interest I would call them back. If I call them back, I will say, 'Thanks, but no thanks.'"

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Former astronaut Richard F. Gordon Jr., the command module pilot for the Apollo 12 moon mission, says America's space program needs new goals and leadership.

Gordon said the space program used to be very dynamic and was exciting, but now needs new goals, such as a Mars mission or a return to the moon.

"There's no purpose ... goals have not been established," he said Monday.

Gordon, here to dedicate a new gymnasium at Green Fields Country Day School, was also the pilot of Gemini 11, an orbital rendezvous mission in 1966.

Gordon, now president of an engineering consulting firm in Glendale, Calif., also said there is a lack of strong support from the Reagan administration.

"A lack of goals and definition for a space station has put it in a bad light with Congress and the budgetary process," he said.

DETROIT (AP) — The City Council chamber was packed, not with citizens complaining about services but with admirers of singer Ray Parker Jr., who was honored by the Council during a visit to his home town.

Councilwoman Barbara Rose-Collins pinned a Spirit of Detroit pin on the soft-voiced pop singer who recorded the "Ghostbusters" movie theme and presented him with a testimonial resolution.

Parker was in town Monday to promote his new single, "I Don't Think A Man Should Sleep Alone."

Council President Pro Tem Nicholas Hood ordered a 10-minute recess so Parker and others could have pictures taken, and requested "that after Mr. Parker leaves, would all the secretaries go back to work."

On Jan. 1, 1935, the flick of a switch heralded a historic milestone in world journalism — the transmission of pictures directly to newspapers.

Before, most news photos were delivered by train, 85 hours across the continent, or 24 hours by frail aircraft, barring weather delays. Editors fumed at having to use photos long after the story was over. They dreamed of a system that would deliver photos with the news.

Eyewitnesses recalled the historic morning. It was almost 3 a.m. in New York. The bedlam of bells had long since quieted. Chicago was tapering off. San Francisco was poised waiting. Would they succeed where others had tried and failed?

When the moment came for the first transmission — a news photo of an airplane crash in the Adirondack mountains of New York — the nervous technician in New York pressed a switch, a cylinder on a machine began to rotate, emitting a high-pitched electronic whistle.

Cylinders on machines in Chicago, San Francisco, Atlanta, Kansas City, Boston, Syracuse, Philadelphia and other cities — some 45 papers in 25 cities — began to rotate in unison.

It took 17 minutes to transmit the original 11-by-17-inch picture. Then all the cylinders stopped rotating and technicians rushed into darkrooms to process the negative and make a print. It was successful. Other photos followed of New Year's Eve revelries in cities across the country. The Associated Press Wirephoto system was born.

Essentially, this is how photos are transmitted to newspapers today.

court investigators will become more critical, and legislatures will be called on to change state laws to improve due process and court care of the elderly.

Already, volunteer programs and alternatives to guardianship are cropping up.

In South Bend, Ind., for example, the task of looking after many of the community's elderly has fallen on tough-minded, cigar-smoking county prosecutor Mike Barnes.

Under Indiana's Adult Protective Service Act, prosecutors like Barnes must minister to abused and neglected old people, prosecuting their tormentors and, more frequently, assisting them to carry on with their lives.

Barnes can get them help to do their shopping, clean their homes and keep track of utility bills.

Of all his tools, the last choice is guardianship.

"That is the least preferable alternative as far as we're concerned," Barnes says. "The whole thrust of this program is that there be reliance and self-reliance."

The prosecutor echoes the thoughts of a variety of nonprofit groups, churches and charities across the country that offer alternatives to guardianship, a process that strips people of all rights and puts their lives in the hands of others.

Advocating options such as power of attorney and social service help like Meals on Wheels, these programs strive to keep the elderly in their homes with rights and dignity intact.

The Cathedral Foundation, a Jacksonville, Fla., church charity, has provided services, including money management, to 1,000 old people since 1978. Only 40 ended up in guardianships.

"Guardianship is totally, philosophically the opposite of what we try to do," said Teresa Barton, the foundation's community services director. "The system's way of dealing with it was to remove the person from their home. We said, 'Let's create a support system that lets them stay at home.'"

In some cases, the elderly have found their own solutions; even creating programs to blunt guardianship petitions within retirement communities.

"Guardianship-conservatorship is a very impersonal and costly service," said Ralph Raymond, an 84-year-old Tempe, Ariz., retiree who set up a volunteer program for his neighbors. "It's a completely unsatisfactory last resort."

Barnes' office and Cathedral use tools common to other alternative programs, such as durable power of attorney, where specific decision-making powers are assigned to another person, and representative payee, where a person is given limited authority over another's financial matters.

But there is resistance to such alternatives. Milton Bix, a Minneapolis probate attorney, worries that plans without the court supervision mandated under guardianship open the door to financial abuses.

In Tucson, Ariz., Superior Court Judge Alice Truman took it upon herself to require guardians to report on the welfare of their wards. "After all," the judge said,

The nation's guardianship system, a crucial last line of protection for the ailing elderly, is failing many of those it is designed to protect. In thousands of courts around the nation every week, a few minutes of routine and the stroke of a judge's pen are all that it takes to strip an old man or woman of basic rights. This illustration is by AP artist Nancy Carpenter.

"the guardian is responsible for the person's life and well-being."

"I'm scared to death of it," Bix said of durable power of attorney. "It means less guardianship, so while their civil rights are being protected, their assets are not."

Some states and judges, too, have tried their own mini-reform movements.

In 1981, Minnesota made guardianship hearings mandatory, improved notice sent to proposed wards, changed the standard required for proof of incompetence to "clear and convincing" evidence, instead of the weaker "preponderance of the evidence," and required courts to check on each guardianship annually.

The changes followed the Minneapolis Tribune's exposing of misdeals by a company appointed guardian of more than 300 people.

Probate Judge W.F. Spicer has hired two court investigators in Summit County, Ohio, set up a public guardian's office and developed a review process, none of which is required by law.

"If you take your job seriously, and you look at all the responsibilities you have, (guardianship is) probably the greatest responsibility of any of the functions of probate court," said Spicer.

Said Hank Hudson, Montana's state legal services developer for the elderly: "It's not a question of doing away with guardianship. It's a question of finding someone who is willing to do the job well."

A group of judges last year published recommendations for overhauling guardianship, arguing the system needs investigators and auditors to prevent abuse and attorneys dedicated to protecting elderly clients against unwarranted guardianships.

The changes, they say, should be similar to those made in mental commitment procedures in the 1970s, and not unlike safeguards built into the adversarial system in criminal courts.

"It's like deja vu," said Probate Judge Victor S. Pfau of Indianapolis. "This is the same process we eventually went through on the changes in civil commitment procedures. We were far too quick to commit someone to a mental institution, but we fought those changes like crazy, and we used the same arguments."

"And now, you know what? It works."

But with few prospects for a major overhaul of the guardianship system on the horizon, experts on elderly affairs paint a gloomy portrait of the future.

"I fear we'll end up with a caretaker class of people, reduced to the status of children, herded together as 'protected' people and placed into camps," said Justin Clouser, a Las Vegas, Nev., legal aide attorney who has worked with guardianship in Florida and Nevada.

Some say the judges' own reform effort is too late. "It's dragging the process of guardianship kicking and screaming into the 1950s," said David Grant, director of the Guardianship Diversion Project in Los Angeles, which advocates less restrictive alternatives to guardianship.

George Alexander, a probate law expert at Santa Clara University in California, led a commission that overhauled state guardianship laws. The changes included a state-funded program of court investigators who visit wards and check-up on guardians.

Yet Alexander's experience has now made him leery that any reform can make the system work.

"I fear that people keep saying, 'Let's throw a little more due process at it and forget about it.' It's dangerous," Alexander said. "Each bit of tinkering has the outcome of helping a few people and also getting people moving on and saying, 'We dealt with that.'"

Alexander recommends individuals draft a durable power of attorney so they can designate their caretakers and financial advisers, even forming a committee to insure against wrongdoing.

All this, he hopes, will offer alternatives to guardianship.

"I believe," he said, "it's an institution so dangerous and so capable of abuse that we just ought to abolish it."

Forgotten prisoner settles suit

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A woman who was placed in a police holding cell and left there over a weekend without food or water has agreed to an out-of-court settlement of her $6 million lawsuit.

Police said Cassandra Jones, 25, of Fort Washington, Va., was inadvertently left in the cell by a sheriff's deputy. Her lawyers said she was forced to drink from a toilet during a 69-hour ordeal in which she passed out several times.

Neither side would disclose how much money Tuesday's settlement was worth, but Jones did say she was happy with the amount of money she received.

Jones had sued Alexandria Sheriff James H. Dunning for violation of her civil and constitutional rights, false imprisonment, negligence, and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

She had been arrested in February 1986 after an altercation with an Alexandria police officer, pleaded guilty in April of that year to a misdemeanor charge of impeding a police officer, and was given a 3½-hour sentence.

According to her lawsuit, she was put in a holding cell on a Friday in a building that is locked and unused on weekends. She was found Monday morning when the building was reopened.

Jones' attorney, Amy R. Goldson, said a water fountain in the cell did not work. As a result of the experience, she said, Jones had to seek medical care for loss of appetite and psychological stress.

"Powerball" Parental Warning "Powerballs" Packed in General Mills' Cheerios

Please be advised that if you have purchased packages of Cheerios containing a free rubber "powerball," this toy should be kept away from children approximately three years of age or under, or should be discarded.

The ball, which is similar to other balls sold in retail outlets, is non-toxic and comes sealed in heavy plastic that cannot easily be opened by children. The ball meets all federal safety standards and exceeds the minimum size standard for toys for children under three.

However, General Mills has learned that the ball, if placed in the mouth, represents a choking hazard for infants and toddlers.

General Mills has voluntarily halted shipments and has taken steps to remove Cheerios packages containing the "powerball" from grocery store shelves. Cheerios cereal continues to be available in packages not containing the "powerball."

Consumers with questions on this parental warning may contact General Mills at 1-800-328-1144 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Central Daylight Time.

Two accused of tampering with OU records

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A former University of Oklahoma admissions director and a former Norman resident have been accused in district court of conspiring to falsify scholastic and attendance records, accepting bribes and falsifying records, officials said Tuesday.

"It would appear they were selling degrees," Assistant District Attorney Irby Taylor of Cleveland County said.

Taylor said the university's police department began investigations after receiving tips that transcripts were being purchased and a report of an alleged attempt to bribe the director's successor.

"Although the investigation is still under way we believe the situation is limited to a very few individuals," said Joan Wadlow, the Norman campus provost.

Taylor said the police investigation showed cases where people had obtained degrees through false records. "Their scholastic records do not match OU's official attendance records," Taylor said.

Taylor said Barbara Cousins, 47, and Vernon Ray Heavin, 45, were charged Monday with 11 criminal counts. They each are charged with two counts of conspiracy, six counts of falsification of records and three counts of a state employee accepting a bribe.

HENRY FORD II

Ford operations to go silent in memory

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. operations worldwide will go silent for three minutes in memory of Henry Ford II, who rescued the company from near ruin by his doddering grandfather and ran it for four decades in autocratic fashion.

Ford, who wrested control of company at age 28 in a boardroom power-play carried out with help from his mother, died Tuesday at age 70.

Ford, who suffered from heart and kidney problems complicated by pneumonia, fell ill in London on Sept. 1. Dr. Louis Saravolatz, who helped treat Ford at Henry Ford Hospital, said Legionnaires' disease contributed to the death.

Ford's successes included the Mustang in the 1960s, and recruiting a young management team dubbed the "Whiz Kids" that returned the company to profitability and a position as an industrial giant after World II.

Among his failures was the biggest dud in automotive history, the Edsel, named for his late father.

A boss who jealously guarded his power as much as his grandfather, company founder Henry Ford, before him, Ford fired Lee Iacocca, the darling of the auto industry, as president in 1978. "Well, sometimes you just don't like somebody," he explained.

Divorced twice and married three times, Ford lived a jetset lifestyle during the 1960s and 1970s and was fond of boisterous parties. At one point, he began drinking heavily and was charged with drunken driving.

"He always loved ending up in the pool with his clothes on," said his daughter Charlotte.

Although generally polite and gracious, he could also be outspoken and sometimes cruel in his dealings with subordinates. "My name is on the building," he would say to settle arguments.

His personal fortune was estimated at $250 million by Forbes magazine in 1986, when his Ford stock was half its current value.

The death prompted the company to cancel Tuesday's national introduction to the press of its 1988 models.

Flags will fly at half-staff for the next month at all Ford plants in the United States and "we have asked all Ford locations overseas to follow the appropriate local custom," said company spokeswoman Judith Muhlberg.

On Oct. 8, Ford operations around the world will shut down for three minutes in Ford's memory.

Ford won recognition for his advocacy of corporate contributions to social causes and was credited with wiping bigotry against Jews and blacks from Ford's image.

Civil rights leader Coretta Scott King called Ford "one of the nation's most visionary and progressive business leaders."

In Detroit, he was recognized as an employer, philanthropist, builder and social activist.

Before a Detroit Tigers game Tuesday night, baseball fans stood in Tiger Stadium for a moment of silence while the scoreboard lit up with a picture of Ford and the words: "A good friend and a good sport."

"He was one of a kind — a great among greats in the history of our city. His dream of, and insistence on, building the Renaissance Center was the key to the survival of our city some 15 years ago," said Mayor Coleman Young.

The Renaissance Center, a high-rise downtown office, retail and hotel complex backed by a Ford Motor subsidiary, was completed in 1977.

Philip Caldwell, who took over as chief executive officer in 1979, called Ford "one of the greatest industrial leaders in the postwar period."

Ford, the oldest of four children, attended Yale University but did not graduate.

Pilot shortage forces Army to park copters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has been forced to park dozens of new AH-64 Apache helicopter gunships costing $11.5 million each because it doesn't have enough trained pilots to fly them, officials say.

The Army said Tuesday that disruptions in pilot-training schedules are not unusual when a new type of aircraft is introduced. A spokesman also asserted that the service would "rather have the machines sitting there waiting than have excess pilots trained with no aircraft to fly."

But the spokesman, Maj. Phil Soucy, also acknowledged that 20 percent of the Apaches built for the Army thus far are now sitting on the tarmac outside the McDonnell Douglas Helicopter Co.'s production plant in Mesa, Ariz.

As of Aug. 31, the Army had 55 of the sophisticated aircraft parked at the Mesa facility, Soucy said.

"Pilot training has fallen behind schedule, thus delaying unit activations and increasing the number of aircraft remaining at Mesa," the spokesman said.

The Army, without publicity, has twice revised its original "fielding plan" to activate Apache combat battalions.

It is now activating its fifth Apache battalion, Soucy said. Two years ago, however, when the original fielding plan was developed, "we had hoped to have nine battalions activated at this point," he continued.

"We're not going to catch up completely until fiscal 1991," Soucy said.

Each aviation battalion consists of 18 Apaches.

Soucy agreed to discuss the matter Tuesday following a report on the program published by the trade magazine, "Armed Forces Journal." That publication criticized the service for allowing more than $600 million worth of new helicopters "to sit baking in the Arizona sun."

The Apache is a two-seat helicopter gunship that is replacing the Vietnam War-era Cobra as the Army's primary attack helicopter. Designed to knock out enemy tanks, the Apache is powered by two engines and carries Hellfire and Hydra 7 missiles and a 30mm cannon. Each AH-64 costs about $11.5 million, and the Army plans to buy a total of 573.

Soucy, in reviewing the program Tuesday, said the Apaches parked at Mesa are not suffering any wear or tear in the dry desert heat.

Steve's Stuff

By Steve Belvin

How the west was won

As far as sports goes, Tuesday was one of my happiest days — all because of the San Francisco Giants, the new West champions of the National League.

I've watched Super Bowl titles being won by the Cowboys and NBA championships by the Lakers. For me Tuesday night, when the Giants clinched the title by defeating San Diego, ranks with them for a couple of reasons.

First, because I've always been an avid Giants' fan. Second because this year's Giants team was given very little chance of winning the west, myself included.

Steve's stuff

It's been 16 years since the boys on the bay won their division. In '71 San Francisco posted a 90-72 record and finished one game ahead of the Dodgers.

Their manager was Charley Fox. That team was mixed with crafty veterans and good young talent.

Willie Mays, the "Say Hey Kid" was still roaming the outfield. "Old Stretch" Willie McCovey was still at first base, as were infielders Jim Hart and Ron Hunt; outfielder Ken Henderson, catcher Dick Dietz, and veteran pitchers Ron Bryant, Juan Marichal and Jim Willouby.

There was a young Puerto Rican at second base named Tito Fuentes and a speedy young outfielder named Bobby Bonds, whose son Barry now plays for the Pirates.

The Giants also had a banner squad of rookies that season. Try these names on for size: Dave Kingman, Garry Maddox, Gary Mathews and Chris Spier. Spier has been around the league a few times. Ironically, he's back on the Giants' squad, and at age 37, has contributed greatly.

But the biggest factor in the Giants' climb has been Manager Roger Craig. Like Fox back in '71, Craig is not a household name.

The ex-major league pitcher is known as the father of the split-fingered fastball and has taught the majority of his pitchers how to throw it.

It's one big reason the Giants' pitching staff doesn't get a lot of strikeouts — but it does get outs, ground ball outs. Obviously, the staff has learned the pitch well. The Giants have the lowest earn run average in the majors.

Until now, Craig had gotten most of his notoriety from being the pitching coach of the '84 world champion Detroit Tigers. The Tigers had the best pitching staff in baseball that season.

Craig showed shades of being able to build a team into a winner in his first managerial job at San Diego. He was fired after two years, despite leading the Padres to a 84-78 record in '78, the franchise's best record ever.

Two years ago the Giants asked the 55-year-old skipper to turn around a sagging club. Craig arrived at the end of the Giants' second consecutive 100-loss season.

He made immediate changes in their game plan. He got younger players and taught his pitchers the split-fingered fast ball, and the team got more aggressive on the basepaths.

The Giants finished third with a 83-79 record, 13 games behind the division-winning Astros and three behind the second-place Reds. San Francisco became a confident team, as their league-leading 40 come-from-behind wins last season indicates.

That confidence grew this season, even through the bad times.

"Roger preaches a positive, winning attitude," said Giants' pitcher Atlee Hammaker, who was with the Giants in '84 and '85 when San Francisco lost 196 games. "Thanks to him, this team has believed it could win, right from the start of spring training," said Hammaker.

This season the Giants' defense improved, stolen base production rose, and management made some good deals — including transactions like getting third baseman Kevin Mitchell and pitcher Rick Ruechell.

San Francisco survived early season injuries to power hitters Jeff Leonard and Candy Maldonado and three-quarters of the team's starting infield.

The Giants slumped to a 22-31 record for May and June, falling six games out of first.

But during the dog days of August and September, the Giants showed their stuff, winning 29 of 40 games and taking control of the division. Meanwhile, last year's leaders, the Astros and Reds, struggled.

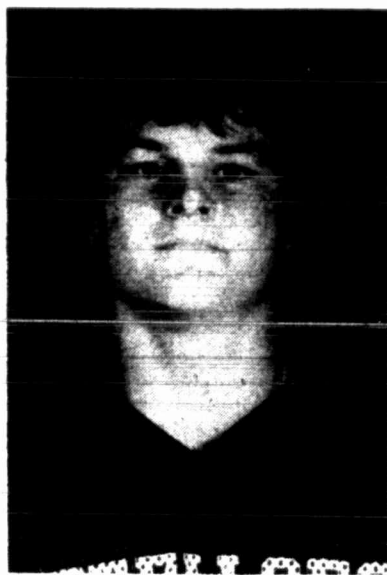

Perhaps the best thing about this team is that there's no superstars. There are no 20-game winners, no .300 hitters and no one with 40 homers.

But they're the champs.

And that, my friends, is how the west was won.

Honor Roll

Forsan duo, Sands' sophomore defender area's top players

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

A Sands' defender and two Forsan running backs top the Crossroads Country Honor Roll after week four of the '87 season.

Albert Franco, a 125-pound sophomore, made two interceptions, recovered a fumble and was in on 12 tackles as the Mustangs' whipped Dawson 48-20. Franco, a second team running back, also carried the ball eight times for 76 yards.

For his efforts, Franco is the Defensive Player of the Week.

Forsan lost a great running back, Wayne Wright, to graduation, but the Buffaloes' running attack hasn't lost a thing. Now it's senior running backs John Roman and Stacey Munoz who are gaining the yards for the Buffaloes.

After a slow start in the first game, both Forsan backs have been in the 100-yard neighborhood in the last three games. Munoz, who played guard last year, is fast for his 210 pounds. Roman, though smaller at 160, is the fullback.

In the win over Greenwood, Munoz gained 92 yards and a touchdown on 17 carries; and Roman had 86 yards and two touchdowns on 16 carries. They are this week's Offensive Player(s) of the Week.

Garden City runner Mike Kenyon had a strong game in a losing effort, as the Bearkats fell 14-3 to Robert Lee. Kenyon gained a career high 111 yards on 21 carries.

In Sands' win, Jay Fryar ran the ball six times for 160 yards and four TDs. The only thing stopping Fryar Friday night was the goal line. Chad Nichols of Sands caught two passes for 59 yards and a score, and also blocked a punt.

In Klondike's win over Borden County, Steve Cope ran for 131 yards and a score. Teammate Kirk Tidwell completed 10 of 15 passes for 128 yards. Five of the catches, 86 yards and two touchdowns went to Wesley O'Brien. Cope was also the Coogs' leading tackler, and O'Brien had an interception.

Colorado City lost 14-7, but it was to highly touted Ballinger. The Wolves surprised a lot of people with the closeness of the score.

Coach Tom Ramsey said Pat Tillis had 70 yards running, and offensive linemen Cory Flanagan and Derrick Ramsey both had good games.

Coahoma's Matt Rowell turned in another strong offensive effort. The Bulldogs' workhorse ran 21 times for 75 yards.

Another Bulldog, Anthony Hernandez, had an excellent game. Hernandez was made two sacks, had an interception, and was in on 22 tackles. He must have been everywhere.

The entire Colorado City defense must have had a good game to limit Ballinger to 14 points. Steve Smith led the attack with 10 tackles, and Mark Russell had an interception. Ramsey said Ricky Arispe, Jerry Hulme, Reese Moore, Vic Lara and Kerry Richie also had fine games.

Bobby Medrano was in on 12 tackles for the Bearkats, including two sacks and two others for losses. Medrano has played every snap this season, and has led the Bearkats in tackles in all four games. Medrano has been in on 48 stops for the season.

Several other area defenders had notable performances.

Damien Zarate made 12 tackles in Sands' win; Roman led the Buffaloes with 15 tackles to go with his 86 yards.

Linebacker Hector Ramirez had 12 tackles in Stanton's loss to Greenwood, and Jimmy Rios and Brian Bond both had good games in the Coyotes' loss to Klondike. Rios intercepted a pass in the end zone and made 12 stops; and Bond was in on nine tackles.

Cardinals double-dip Expos

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals' strong pitching and opportunistic offense were never more in evidence.

The Cardinals took full advantage of a total of six hits in the doubleheader and held Montreal to seven as they swept the Expos 1-0 and 3-0 Tuesday night.

The sweep, combined with Philadelphia's 3-0 victory over New York, gave the Cardinals a 3½-game lead over the second-place Mets in the National League East race. The Cardinals have five games remaining and the Mets four, including three at St. Louis to close the season.

"It's not always how many (hits) you total, it's when you hit them," said Ozzie Smith, whose hit-and-run single through a vacant shortstop hole set up Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning of the opener. "It hasn't been easy. We are short our big hitter (Jack Clark). The ballclub's just responded."

Joe Magrane, 9-7, pitched a three-hitter in the opener and Greg Mathews, 11-11, and Todd Worrell combined on a four-hitter in the second game.

Worrell, who allowed one hit in the last three innings, earned his 33rd save after taking over for Mathews with no outs and runners on second and third in the seventh inning. Worrell got Hubie Brooks on a pop foul and struck out Tim Wallach and Andres Galarraga.

The Cardinals got their three runs and all three of their second-game hits in the sixth against Bryn Smith, 10-9, but two of them were bunts after Tony Pena's bloop double.

In the opener, Vince Coleman walked in the sixth inning, advanced to third on Smith's hit-and-run single and scored on Herr's fly ball off Dennis Martinez, 11-4, who allowed three hits in eight innings.

St. Louis Cardinals' Tony Pena heads for the plate to score while Montreal Expos' catcher Mike Fitzgerald looks for the baseball during sixth inning action Tuesday night in St. Louis.

With the two victories, combined with the Mets' loss, St. Louis reduced its magic number to two for the divisional crown. Any combination of two Cardinals victories or New York defeats will win for St. Louis.

Phillies 3, Mets 0
Philadelphia left-hander Don Carman thwarted New York's title hopes with a near-perfect game and said he was happy to help the Cardinals.

Carman allowed only one baserunner — an infield single by Mookie Wilson in the fourth inning — and Mike Schmidt drove in two runs for the Phillies.
Shortstop Steve Jeltz cut off Wilson's grounder toward the hole to the left of second base, and just missed throwing him out at first.

Juan Samuel and Milt Thompson singled in the first off David Cone, 5-6, and both runners advanced on Chris James' sacrifice before Samuel scored on Schmidt's groundout.

In the third, Philadelphia made it 2-0 on Schmidt's RBI single.

Giants 5, Padres 3

San Francisco, which has clinched the West Division title, handed San Diego its sixth consecutive loss although Benito Santiago extended his rookie record hitting streak to '31 with an eighth-inning homer.

Francisco Melendez went 4-for-4 and Jesse Reid hit a home run in his first major league at-bat for the Giants.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1
Los Angeles got a two-run homer from Franklin Stubbs in the first inning and rookie Shawn Hillegas held Houston to three hits in six innings.

Reds 5, Braves 4
Cincinnati defeated Atlanta in a rain-delayed afternoon game on Buddy Bell's RBI single in the ninth inning.

Paul O'Neill drew a one-out walk from Jim Acker, 4-7, and went to second on Dave Parker's single. Bell then pulled a single down the third base line for the tiebreaking run.

Lady Steers fall

SWEETWATER — The Big Spring Lady Steers completed their first round of district play Tuesday night by losing to the Sweetwater Mustangs 7-15, 15-12, 12-15 in 2-4A volleyball play.

The loss completes a dismal first round for coach Elaine Stone's spikers, as they are still searching for their first league win. Big Spring falls to 0-8 and 4-13 for the season.

It marked the third consecutive game the Lady Steers have fallen in the last game by two or three points.

"It's the same thing everytime, we just fall short," said Lady Steers coach Elaine Stone. "We need to get that first district win under our belt," said Stone. Melanie Payne was top server for Big Spring, scoring 10 points in the last two games. Cary Brooks led Big Spring with 23 good spikes. Michelle LeGrand followed with 11 good spikes.

In freshmen action, Sweetwater defeated Big Spring 15-7, 15-9. Lana Dower served five points for the Lady Steers.

Sweetwater made it a sweep by winning the junior varsity contest, 15-5, 15-5.

The Lady Steers will be in action Tuesday in Pecos against the first place Pecos Eagles. Freshmen B action starts at 5:30 p.m. and Freshmen A and junior varsity action begins at 6:30. Varsity play starts at 7:30.

There's one race left in the American League, and the Detroit Tigers are doing their best to make it interesting.

"We've got to do this the rest of the way," Bill Madlock said after his home run triggered the Tigers to a 10-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night and back in to the thick of the American League East race.

Coupled with Toronto's 5-3 loss to Milwaukee, the Tigers' victory moved them within 1½ games of the front-running Blue Jays. Detroit and Toronto close out the season with a three-game series this weekend in Tiger Stadium.

"If the Blue Jays lose one more, they'll for sure have to beat us here," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "I think everybody will feel the heat if it gets down to the last three, which will be wonderful."

Along with Madlock's first-inning solo homer, the Tigers also got a three-run shot from Chet Lemon in the fourth and a splendid pitching performance from Frank Tanana, who hurled three-hit ball over eight innings.

Tanana, 14-10, who had been winless and was 0-3 in his previous eight starts, picked up his first victory since Aug. 11. He struck out three and walked one.

The only run off Tanana came on Lee Lacy's seventh home run, in the fifth.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3
Glenn Braggs knocked in two runs with a pair of singles and B.J. Surhoff homered as Milwaukee defeated Toronto.

The loss was the Blue Jays' third straight and marked the first time

School penalized for stabbings

DALLAS (AP) — The University Interscholastic League barred five Dallas-area junior varsity football players and a high school student involved in a post-game stabbing melee from attending or participating in any extracurricular activities for three years.

In addition, Dallas high school principals serving on an executive district committee of the UIL, the governing body of high school activities, on Tuesday placed the Carter and Roosevelt high school football programs on probation for the remainder of the season.

The probation will not affect possible participation in playoff games but could be upgraded to a suspension if violence occurs at any of their remaining games this year.

The school district will not appeal the probations, said Supt. Linus Wright although the students could ask the state UIL board to reduce the three-year bans.

The sanctions against the schools and the students stem from a fight in a stadium parking lot following a 17-17 tie between Carter and Roosevelt on Friday night.

Five of the six students involved in the fight played in the Roosevelt-Carter junior varsity game earlier in the week and a dispute in that game apparently carried over to the high school game, school officials said.

Cowboys' QB crosses picket line

IRVING (AP) — Dallas quarterback Danny White crossed the picket line of striking Cowboys players early today, saying his reasons for doing so "are strictly private."

White, who lost $45,000 last week when he honored the players' strike, slipped across the picket line at 7:50 a.m. as it was formed by late-arriving strikers.

White joined veterans Randy White and Don Smerek. Also in the Cowboys' camp are two players off the injured reserve, Chris Dulin and Johnny "Lam" Jones.

Also expected to cross the picket lines this week were running back Tony Dorsett, one of the most outspoken pro-union members of the team, and defensive end Ed Jones. Both received letters from Cowboys management saying they would jeopardize their annuities if they didn't show up.

White informed the rest of the team during a meeting on Monday that because of financial problems he would have to cross the picket line later in the week and return to work.

Dorsett said he received a letter from Cowboys President Tex Schramm on Tuesday that informed him he stands to lose a portion of his $6 million annuity if he doesn't return soon.

On Sunday, the Cowboys are scheduled to play Jets in East Rutherford, N.J., their first game since the National Football League Players Association announced the strike Sept. 21.

"He (White) figured that it was time for him to go in," Dorsett said. "He has an economic situation where he needs to go back to work."

Though teammates said White's decision to break ranks with the striking players was not a surprise, Dorsett's departure would be.

Dorsett has been a regular member of the Cowboys' picket line and last week was bitter toward fellow Cowboys captain Randy White for crossing the line and joining the replacement players for workouts.

Dorsett, however, told teammates on the picket line Tuesday that he had little choice after receiving a letter from Schramm that apparently indicated Dorsett stood to lose a portion of his annuity, in addition to some land also promised him in his contract, teammates said.

the team has lost more than two games in a row since an eight-game slide that ended July 7.

Lloyd Moseby hit two homers to account for all three Toronto runs.

Rangers 7, Twins 5

Pete O'Brien and Geno Petralli homered in the eighth inning and Charlie Hough pitched a seven-hitter for Texas.

O'Brien's homer, his 23rd, came off reliever Keith Atherton, 7-5, and broke a 5-5 tie. Petralli followed with his second of the game and seventh of the year.

Yankees 6, Red Sox 0

Don Mattingly's major league record sixth grand slam home run of the season backed the four-hit pitching of Charles Hudson.

Mattingly's home run in the third inning gave the Yankees a 4-0 lead off Bruce Hurst, 15-13, and a fifth run scored on Bobby Meacham's groundout in the same inning.

Mattingly broke a record set in 1955 by the Chicago Cubs' Ernie Banks and matched by Baltimore's Jim Gentile in 1961.

White Sox 1, Angels 0

Floyd Bannister, backed by Steve Lyons' run-scoring double in the fifth, hurled a four-hitter through seven innings for Chicago.

Bannister, 15-11, allowed only one California batter to reach second base as he won for the 12th time in the last 16 starts. He walked one and struck out two before needing relief help from Bobby Thigpen, who pitched the last two innings for his 14th save.

Royals 6, Mariners 3

Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer and Kansas City took advantage of three Seattle errors to score six unearned runs off Mark Langston.

Jackson hit his 22nd home run in the second inning as Bud Black raised his record to 8-6. Langston, 18-13, had two of the errors but had eight strikeouts to raise his American League-leading total to 252 and erase his own club record of 245.

Athletics 5, Indians 4

Mike Davis hit a two-out single off Cleveland reliever Doug Jones to break an eighth-inning tie and Mark McGwire hit his 49th homer for Oakland.

Steve Ontiveros, 10-8, survived early-inning problems to get the victory, allowing nine hits in eight innings. Dennis Eckersley pitched the final inning for his 15th save.

McGwire, the major league leader in home runs, became the first American Leaguer to hit 49 home runs since Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in 1969. The rookie first baseman drove in his 116th run with the homer, one short of the Oakland record.

Forsan Study Club shares 'best of the best' recipes

By LYNN HAYES
Staff writer

The General Federation Women's Clubs, Forsan Study Club will sell community cookbooks that feature recipes compiled from 1966 through 1986.

Recipes are from residents of Forsan and surrounding areas.

"This cookbook is the best of the best," said Susan Alexander, recording secretary and reporter.

The club will conduct a smorgasbord Oct. 2 in the Forsan High School cafeteria from 6 to 8 p.m. The smorgasbord is the club's annual fund-raising event to raise money for a scholarship to be given to a senior from Forsan High School.

Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students, and $2 for children under 12.

In this week's Recipe Exchange I've included recipes from the "Cooking With Love" cookbook to be sold by the club.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day will bring you a considerable amount of cleverness and ability to achieve, but later you may have trouble with some flaws in your plans. You should get plenty of rest this evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure your abilities are noticed by superiors, but don't take any crazy risks. Get into community affairs, and drive very carefully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you operate in a more modern fashion, you can add considerably to your success. Be very practical where investments are concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Enjoy sports with a friend this evening, but be sure you do something to please your mate first and avoid arguments at all costs.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be factual and succinct when dealing in business matters today. Avoid getting into a situation which will attract attention.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Take some time to come to an agreement with your co-workers. Pay some needed attention to your health this evening and get some rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care of appointments for entertainment early, then dive into your work and be efficient. Be sure to dress well this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't do anything which will irritate your family. Handle conditions at home more seriously, and they will soon improve immensely all around.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend to important out-of-town communications. Avoid any people who are very critical this evening. Handle business at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Stay well within your budget tonight. Show that you are wise, and listen to the valuable advice of an expert. Be practical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take the time to meet with an old friend you haven't seen for some time. This person, just like old times, will cheer you up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There are many private matters which need to be handled, so get to it. Help your loved one by organizing his or her finances.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get in touch with as many friends as possible who always work well together and make plans for recreation during the weekend.

If Your Child Is Born Today
He or she will be governed by common sense and will have a knack for business from a very early age. Be sure to encourage any successes, and to help him or her get up after any falls. Your progeny has the potential for great success, and will spend the later years in many philanthropic pursuits. A healthy diet is essential.

Stanton Buffs to test Golden Cranes

"We've got to regroup if we beat Crane," said dejected Stanton High School Head Coach Dale Ruth Friday night shortly after the Plains Cowboys defeated the Buffalos, 28-0. Stanton is 2-2 overall, but district play has not started. Crane Golden cranes is now 1-3 for year after being bombed by powerful Monahans Loboes, 42-0, in Monahans. As far as a majority of the Stanton fans are concerned the Homecoming events highlighted the Stanton-Plains contest. Stanton senior Julie Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Wheeler was selected Homecoming Queen. Other nominees included Kody Newman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Newman; Jill Todd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hughlyn Todd and Kristi Fryar, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Danny Fryar. Mrs. Frankie (Leonard) Schuelke, a 1947 graduate of Stanton High School, was selected "Coming Home" Queen. Other nominees included Mrs. Becky (Lambert) Dickenson and Mrs. Anita (Overby) Cox. All Stanton-Courtney Exes were invited to attend the pre-game activities.

Plains Quarterback Shane McMinn rushed for 15-yards around left end to end a drive following the Cowboys first possession of the game. This set the stage for a no-suspense football game. The clobbering Cowboys scored on drives of 63 and 62 yards in the first half, then tacked on a pair of late third quarter touchdowns, one after a 93-yard drive. "We need to go in and regroup now," Coach Ruth said. "These kids aren't far from being a winning team. And in this district, you can go 0-5 to start the season and still win it." Asked if the Plains players were playing "dirty," he replied. "No, they were very tough and aggressive." The Cowboys were penalized 200 yards. In an interview in the locker room, Coach Ruth said Plains has a real good team. They have talent in all the skill positions. We couldn't stop the big play and they're a big play team. "They were hooking our ends and two speedy backs were gaining ground," he added. Stanton tailback Robert Jones had 13 carries for 53 yards before leaving the game with injuries.

STANTON SWEEP — Stanton junior running back Steve Scurlark (41) turns the corner against the Plains Cowboys' defense during action Friday night in Stanton homecoming clash against Plains. The Cowboys defeated the Buffalos 28-0.

FUMBLE HURTS — Stanton's leading ground gainer, Robert Jones, fumbles the football in the second half of the Buffalos game with the Plains Cowboys. Shortly afterwards, Jones was injured. Plains won the non-district tilt, 28-0 at Friday's Homecoming at Stanton High School.

County Judge issues proclamation

Farm Safety makes Good $en$e

County Judge Bob Deavenport proclaimed Sept. 20-26 as Farm and Ranch Safety Week in Martin County, at the request of John Calvin Jones, Martin County Farm Bureau president.

This year marks the 44th annual observance of National Farm Safety Week, with the theme, "Farm Safety Makes Good Sense."

This year, the American Farm Bureau and all state Farm Bureaus are being recognized as co-sponsors with the National Safety Council and the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to Jim Mersberger, AFBF Director of Safety and Health, Farm Bureau Women's Committees and Young Farmers and Ranchers Committees across the nation have agreed to assume a leadership role in the effort during National Farm Safety Week.

In the proclamation, Judge Deavenport said, "Most accidents and work illnesses can be prevented, often by simple and inexpensive or no-cost measures."

He added, "Protective equipment, used in many industries to help assure worker safety and health, equally useful on farms and ranches if always used when jobs or working conditions call for it."

The Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute has provided the FSW poster which emphasizes safe tractor starting procedures as follows:

Start engine only from the operator's seat! Some tractor operators have disregarded recommended starting procedures by using a metal object (screwdriver) to short across electrical contact points on the starting motor. This is a dangerous practice.

If the operator attempts a bypass start with the transmission in gear, the tractor drive wheel could roll over him, causing serious injury or death.

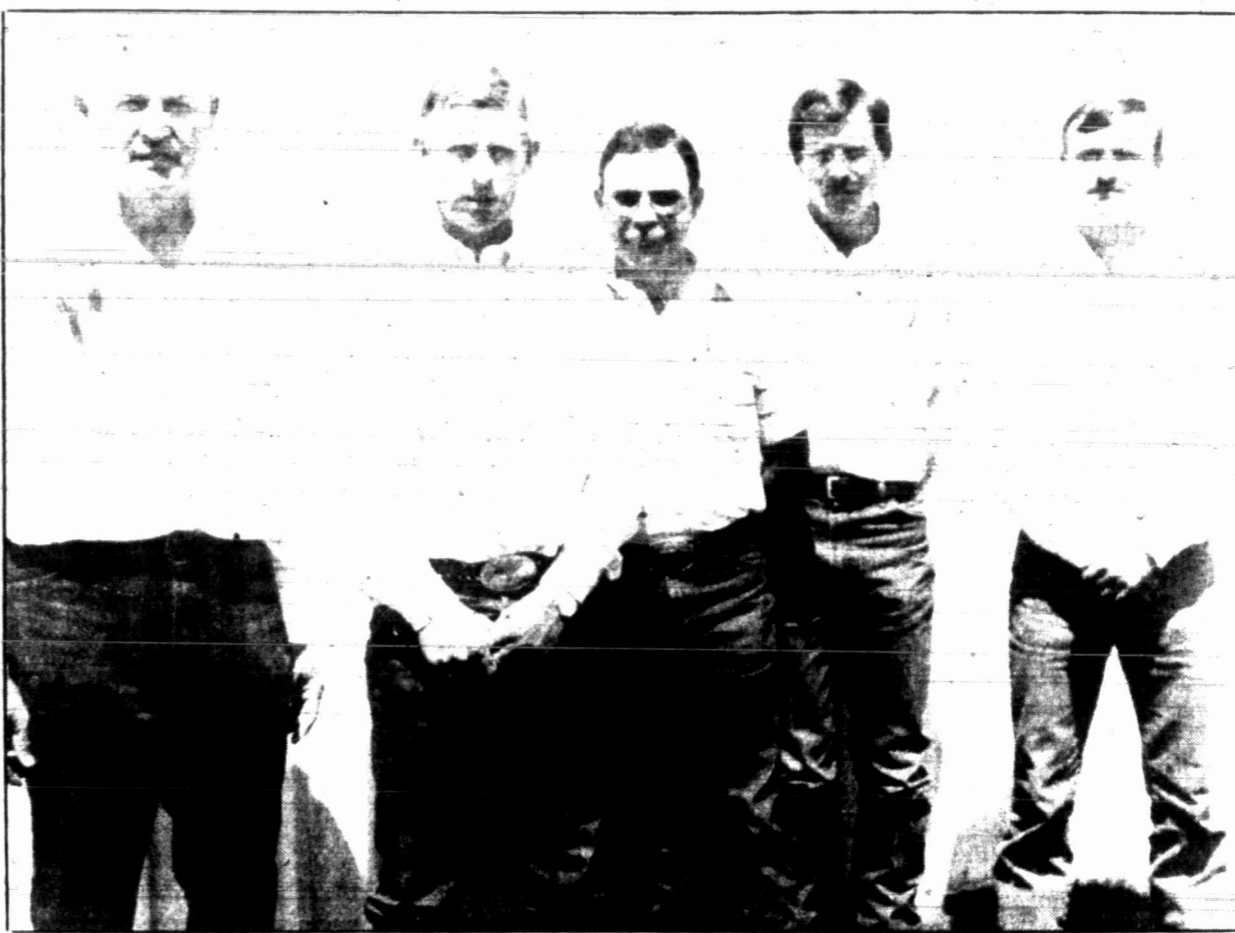

Avoid possible injury or death from a machine runaway by practicing these two no-cost safety rules: (1) Do not start engine by shorting across starting terminals. Machine will start in gear and move if normal starting circuitry is bypassed. (2) Start engine only from operator's seat with transmission in neutral or park. NEVER start engine while standing on ground.

It's no secret that these are difficult times for many in agriculture. And it's no secret that accidents and work-related illnesses impose steep human and economic losses that farmers and ranchers surely can't afford.

Considering how little it costs to prevent accidents compared to how much it costs to have them, farm safety does indeed make good sense!

- Buy safe products and take good care of them. Inspect all equipment and the facilities periodically, correcting any hazards and making needed repairs to help avoid subpar performance, breakdowns or accidents.
- Take needed precautions before starting the job. Check machinery shielding and put on the personal protective equipment appropriate for the job or working conditions. PPE is a worthy investment that could help you avoid injury or illness, also chronic health problems later on.
- Be ready for medical, accident, fire and weather emergencies.

—Dr. Phil's animal advice—

There has been a "nip" in the air the past few mornings which means Fall is upon us.

The snakes are already crawling and it won't be long before that old roping horse will be standing in the pen with a bushy winter coat.

The changing of the seasons, especially summer to fall, has always interested me. We don't totally understand it, but we know it's just a small piece of the Good Lord's plans.

In the wild, mother nature has a way of preparing things for the next season, including animals. Typically, the strong survive and the weak pass on.

We, as human beings, have intervened and for the most part made life a better place for the majority of animals. We have fed many that would have starved, provided medicine for the sick and gave shelter to many that would have wandered to inevitable death.

All of our domestic (and some wild) animals probably would thank us dearly for "taking them in." Unfortunately, not all of us have created the environment for them that is suitable to abundant life.

In the "helter-skelter" life that we live, we either don't have the money or don't have the time. The end result is that our animals suffer because of it. Sure, we provide food or water usually, and we almost feel like we've done them a favor instead of a responsible act.

Running livestock is usually a method of making a living. Because of this type thinking, we almost always do what's best for the animal. Recently, because of the economic downturn, we try to do some things a little cheaper by treating with "home remedies" or feeding a little less, or sometimes just flat neglecting them.

As I recall one old gentleman saying, "Our dogs and cats are still eating okay, but the fleas and ticks just won't stay away. They seem to not be as bad after I put garlic on them and their bedding. But that doesn't even seem to work now since I've been through three bottles of garlic.

A woman remarked, Mama Kitty is pregnant again. I wish she wouldn't have kittens all the time; but she is in better flesh since she got pregnant again. I guess that's not all bad for her... I just wish I could say I had less than 20 cats.

We all rationalize during hard times and unfortunately our animals suffer because of it.

Typically, our dogs and cats are our companions and we need them — some more than others. By altering the intact dogs and cats that aren't breeders, we will have less neglected and unwanted animals, and more "companions."

Most people don't realize that altering a pet is actually putting years on that animal's life.

I see some unwanted, unfortunate happenings to intact pets, including skin disease, cancer, uterine disease, prostrate tumors kidney disease and many more.

The process of altering a female dog is known as ovariohysterectomy. This involves removing the entire reproductive tract including the ovaries. By removing the ovaries, the heat cycle (Estrus) is unable to occur. Therefore, the spayed female will not attract males and even if bred, will not conceive. This surgical procedure is fairly short and simple, but is performed under general anesthesia.

The altering of a male involves removing both testicles in their entirety. This is known as a neuter or castration. As with the spay, the neuter will end all sexual drives because hormones are no longer being produced. Again, this is a relatively short procedure performed under general anesthesia.

By altering your pet, not only have you possibly prevented disease, but you also have created a better companion. When all sexual drives have been eliminated, your pet will be easier to train, more attentive and yearn for your companionship.

An old wife's tale still exists about pets getting fat after they're altered. This can happen — but it is not because of the surgery. Usually, the loss of reproductive hormones will cut down on exercise. That is where you come in. A pet must be exercised daily if they become inactive, to avoid obesity.

So now you see, there are little, if any negative aspects to spaying or neutering your pet. From the pet's standpoint, there are none!

If you have any particular topics you would like me to address in the future, give the Stanton Herald or myself a call. See you next time, Phil.

Local man shot in neck

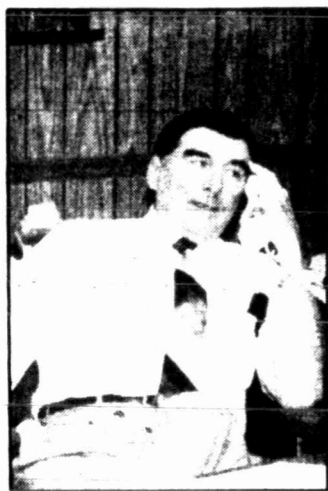

Juan Castillo, 27, was shot in the neck at 10:56 p.m. Friday while at 704 W. Broadway which is the victims brother's residence.

The victim was shot with a .22 caliber rifle during a scuffle that resulted from a domestic quarrel.

Castillo was taken by private vehicle to the Martin County Hospital where he was treated and then transferred to Midland Memorial Hospital. He was last reported to be in critical but stable condition.

The incident is still under investigation. No charges have been filed at this time.

BANK NOTES With Interest Joe Hodges Stanton National Bank

Joe Hodges

We've read and heard a lot in recent days about the Bicentennial of the Constitution... and this reminds me that I've been remiss in not making more information available about the Constitution coins we have available at Stanton National.

There's a silver dollar proof coin and a five-dollar gold coin... you can purchase the silver dollar individually or paired with the gold coin in a distinctive two-coin set. We also have the 1987 proof set featuring a half-dollar, quarter, dime, nickel and one cent coin of the Constitution Bicentennial year.

The gold piece and silver dollar are the only U.S. legal tender keepsakes of the Bicentennial. The government established price of $28.00 for the silver dollar and $250.00 for the two-coin set is a bit on the high side in my opinion, but legislation providing for the minting also dictates that a portion of the purchase price of each coin will go directly toward reducing the national debt.

Original speculation by mint officials is that the program will contribute in excess of $50 million to deficit reduction.

Under any circumstance, if you want 'em we got 'em! And if you're a coin buff, you'll agree that they are striking. By the way, the 1987 proof set sells for $11.00.

See Cleta Barber or Cindy Lloyd. They'll be delighted to give you a look-see. When you come in, be sure to take a look at the marvelous foreign coin collection of R.S. & Kathleen Lewis. They'll be picking it up soon.

The Fair season is in full swing... Recently took in the Permian Basin doings in Odessa and then traveled to Abilene for the West Texas Fair windup... Driving home heard radio reports about Big Spring and Snyder's annual events, so this serves as a reminder about our own Martin County Fair scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 9 and 10.

My guess is that there will be extra good attendance with happier faces than in the past few years.

Our primary reason for the trip to Abilene was to see Jeff Moore, erstwhile Stanton eighth-grader and son of Jack and Sharon Moore (Jack being our executive vee-pee). Jeff was there to show his club steer in competition with several hundred other prized calves (actually 403 head).

Judging was long and tedious, but when it was all over, Jeff's walked out of the ring as reserve champion. That's two shows and two top prizes for young Jeff... Three or four weeks ago, he came back to Stanton with the grand championship award from a major show at College Station.

Congratulations, Jeff!

I wouldn't want him to know I think so, but that young'n has a bubbling prize-winning personality of his own... Bound to take after one of his parents' Sorry, Jack.

Shortly after joining the Stanton National team last December 1, we did two or three open letters calling attention to what was happening to the banking situation in the State of Texas. Among other things, we bemoaned the proliferation of the big-bank holding company movement, and pointed out the growing insignificance of the small businessman and individual in the eyes of the so-called "giants" headquartered in Dallas and Houston.

We also noted that all was not well with those institutions, and that if anyone thought the standing of the little man was in decline at the time, he hadn't seen anything yet.

How Prophetic!
I'm wondering now if there is a bank-group in Texas today that can offer proof of home-grown ownership. We all know what the advertising campaigns proclaim, but I have to wonder what the facts are.

If you saw the six-column headline in a recent issue of the Midland Reporter, you have a good idea. It read — "Shuffling Texas' Bank Deck a Good Deal." The article, datelined Houston, went on to read — in part —

"The capital of Texas banks was badly depleted by the problems of the energy business and the real estate down-turn — It's fortunate that capital was able to come from the outside, because it was not possible to generate it internally."

The writer goes on to discuss the bailout of First City; Republic's buyout of Interfirst; Chemical of New York's purchase of Texas Bancshares; First Interstate of California's deal to buy Allied Bancshares; the bailout of the Banc Texas Group by fed regulators and a New York investment firm; NCNB of North Carolina's purchase of a major interest in Houston's Charter Bancshares — and on and on — in ad finitum.

Guess we can't argue that these goings on have provided a "quick fix" to these former giants of Texas banking, but the damage has already been done to banking on the local level in non-metro areas across the state.

And, of course, we can't help but wonder what the story is going to be in the years ahead. Somehow, these quick-fixes have a way of creating complete and utter dependence down the line.

All of this by way of saying that in the final analysis, you just can't beat a small, home-town bank, geared to meet the needs of home-folks with decisions made on the local level and generally "on-the-spot."

Didn't intend to get on the soap-box, but that's the way I feel.

We'll wind up this week with a few more, "quickness" from the next-to-the-last of the old time bank examiners, Preacher Knight.

As you grow older, temptation is easier to resist and harder to find.

If thy friend taketh thee the first time, shame on thy friend. If thy friend taketh thee the second time, shame on thee.

- If something goes wrong, it's more important to talk about who is going to fix it than who is to blame.

A man can't no more do what he ain't prepared for than he can come back from where he ain't been.

Sometimes it takes a lot of scratching to get out of a situation you were itching to get into.

If you think you have someone eating out of your hand, it's a good thing to count your fingers.

Veterans Wall will move you

A moving experience. That is what West Texans have to look forward to during the next several days.

The visit to Big Spring of the Moving Wall, a replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington D.C., salutes more than simply the 58,022 who died in Southeast Asia. It salutes also the thousands more who returned — to a country many felt was indifferent to what had occurred thousands of miles away.

Twenty-three Howard County residents gave their lives during the U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and they will be specially honored during ceremonies planned for the week-long event.

Our salute to them is appropriate. To say that this is a once-in-a-lifetime experience is no exaggeration. It is unlikely that the half-scale replica will ever again be hosted in Big Spring. This is an exclusive for West Texas and the final visit to this state during 1987.

Pastor Keith Gibbons is deserving of a pat on the back for his leadership in guiding the Moving Wall's committee to its success in preparation for the visit. He and the entire committee have covered considerable ground — much on a first time basis — since its first meeting Nov. 19.

Well done.

Now, with the planning virtually complete, all that remains is for the community to play host to the event.

Numerous volunteers have responded to the even more numerous opportunities for their services. They are tasks that seem likely to pay off handsomely to the volunteers willing to give of their time.

Whether you are a Vietnam veteran, a relative of one who served, a volunteer, or simply an observer to this chapter of our country's history, you are sure to long remember this salute to those who have fallen.

True fathers of our country

My calculatin' cousin, Jim Ladd says the problems we have in the United States are the result of the loose immigration policies of the American Indian.

There's a sign in a store at Midland which reads: We reserve the right To sell to anyone

The more I look at politics — and I've looked at gobs of it in my years as a newsman — the more I think it may be the only job easier than mine.

The trouble with the designation "chairperson" is that it eliminates sex entirely, and what a terrible situation that would be.

Nothing personal: Ann Landers is a very interesting woman, I concluded when she visited Tulsa several years ago and we spent a couple of hours visiting in the Tulsa Press Club. But I wouldn't want to be married to her.

Seriously, group therapy via newspapers, magazines and TV is tenuous, at best.

Tenuous, anyone?

Do you suppose Ann will write for advice from her twin sister, Abigail Van Buren, who also gives public advice?

Today's quotation is "Ambition Is Hard Work."

Who said that? Anonymous. Who else?

Curvaceous Carla Walker Harold, photo whiz, has more definitions: Baseball bat — a fly swatter. Miser — dough nut. Nuisist festival — bare feet.

I know a Big Spring policeman who leaves a tip at a cafe only when he has asparagus.

Joltin' Joe Garogliola described one baseball player as "so mean if he bit his tongue he'd die of blood poisoning."

Mayor Beame of New York City laid off 37,000 employees during the Big Apple's financial crisis.

That's like firing the entire population of Howard County.

A thought while drinking coffee: If you're a good talker, you've got it half made. However, making the other half depends on being a good listener.

A bi-sin flash: Only two of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence were bachelors. Sixteen married twice. At least two and possibly six were childless. But the remaining signers fathered 325 children.

Carter Braxton, a signer from Virginia had 18 children; William Ellery, Rhode Island 17, and Roger Sherman, Connecticut 15.

They, in truth, were among the fathers of our country.

Boxing is in its obsolescent phase. Unfortunately, civilization may be too.

WALT FINLEY

Some day I hope a talking dog will sneak into a dog food commercial and stray from the script:

"Yes, it is a bore, but it's a living. And it sure beats those scraps she feeds me after the family gets through eating. I'm the canine Euell Gibbons. I hate living this mercenary life but mankind has forced it upon me.

"Man likes to call me his best friend, but he spends more time with that woman in there. And he doesn't eat with me, but the way the economy is going he may in a few more years."

Cashing in on pope's visit

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Leave it to Americans to commercialize just about anything, including the pope's visit.

I don't know if you heard about pope hats — the ones that look like the Cisco Kid used to wear — being on sale in Florida when his holiness hit Miami, but they were.

Sales were reported as brisk.

I have a friend in Miami who is Catholic and I called to see if he had purchased a pope hat or knew anybody who had.

"My neighbor got one for his kid," my friend said. "They were going for 40 bucks apiece when the pope first came to town, but he waited until the pope left and got one marked down for five."

Pope hats weren't the only thing that have been on sale during the papal visit.

I have another friend in Chicago who was telling me about his cousin's idea.

"She invented something called a 'pope scope' he explained.

"Do what?" I asked.

"You remember those things they used to sell at golf matches and parades with the mirrors?" he began.

"They were sort of L-shaped and you looked in the short end and the image of what you were looking at was sent down from a mirror in the tall end. You could see over people's heads with those things.

"My cousin found some of those things in a warehouse and bought them and called them pope scopes and she's been selling them all over the country."

Another report came in on somebody who had heard of an item called "pope on a rope."

It's a statue of the pope with a rope tied around it. The idea, it seems, is to tie the rope to your belt buckle and have the pope with you at all times.

"For good luck?" I asked.

"For 30 bucks," I was told.

A guy who runs a bar in Atlanta was telling me he had a special drink to honor the pope's visit.

"I'm calling it 'papal punch.' It's gin, vodka, rum, orange juice and three shots of holy water."

I suppose some might be outraged by the attempts to make a few bucks off the pope's visit, but money and religion do have a powerful bond.

I visited the Vatican once. What I remember most were the countless shops in the area where people were shelling out cash for various items with religious themes.

And on the Protestant scene, I saw television minister Dr. Robert Schuller the other morning. He was pushing holy letter openers, and let us not forget Jim and Tammy's waterslide for Jesus.

But back to the pope's hat. It's the subject of one of my favorite stories that must be repeated at least once during the papal visit:

Two Americans, one Catholic and one Protestant, are visiting the Vatican. The pope appears on the balcony in full regalia.

"Where did he get that hat?" the Protestant asked.

"The cardinals gave it to him," answers the Catholic, to which the Protestant replies:

"Looks like the Giants would do something like that for Willie Mays."

Clements and planes still at issue

How awkward it is for Gov. Bill Clements on this matter of state airplanes.

Clements made a major campaign issue of Democratic Gov. Mark White's purchase of a $3 million jet for use by the governor's office.

Between Jan. 23 and Aug. 20, Clements flew to Dallas 23 of 31 weekends at a cost to taxpayers of almost $30,000.

No doubt Clements does some state business in Dallas. Attorney General Jim Mattox says Clements' trips probably are legal. Clements said he intends to continue doing it.

However, the governor is at best inconsistent and, at worst, appears hypocritical.

Education wins

A federal appeals court has reversed a ruling that permitted a few Tennessee families to keep their children away from a public school course because they considered the textbooks godless.

The ruling, which also denied the families' claim to over $50,000 in expenses and private school tuition, is a correct one. Otherwise, schools are reduced to a smorgasbord of courses and texts as parents pick and choose when a child will attend and when he won't, with no regard to continuity of education.

In making the ruling, Chief Judge Pierce Lively of the Sixth circuit in Cincinnati wrote that, "there was no proof that any plaintiff student was ever called upon to say or do anything that required the student to affirm or deny a religious belief."

He added that the school system had not violated the Constitution's guarantee of freedom of religion because there was no proof that "an objecting student was required to participate beyond reading and discussing assigned materials."

At issue is a basic-reading series by Holt, Rinehart & Winston used in 15,000 school districts in the country. In the non-jury trial last summer one witness was offended by a story called "A Visit to Mars," because it seemed to embody telepath and supernatural powers she believes are God's alone.

The Tennessee families intend to appeal their cause all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. The case needs a speedy journey.

The issue of whether schools may expose young minds to a broad range of ideas — the essence of education — is too important to leave dangling.

Lauds Reagan's UN performance

President Reagan played to a tough audience at the United Nations Monday, and although he didn't get a standing ovation, his words were important and constructive.

In the United Nations, where anti-U.S. rhetoric is too often on the agenda, a respectful, listening audience and moderate applause is about all one can hope for. And that's what Reagan got.

Reagan spoke cautiously about recent moves toward "democratization" in Nicaragua. But he again warned that unless political reforms occur, this country will continue to support the Contra rebels.

He spoke warmly of "agreement in principle" between the Soviet Union and the United States to eliminate short- and medium-range nuclear missiles, and he promised to press on toward an agreement on testing and long-range missiles. But again he warned that the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative would not be part of the bargaining.

BE SURE YOUR CHILDREN'S VOCABULARY INCLUDES THE WORD "NO"

It's time to send your children off to school again, to prepare them for the world they must one day confront. The school will do a good job of this, but your cooperation is also needed in order to make sure that they don't learn the wrong things. As everyone knows, we are living in an era where drug abuse is rampant, and the children are being lured into this trap at a shockingly early age. Don't fail to warn them about this, as a part of their preparation for the new school year, for it can be vastly more important than their clothes or books. Moreover, you can reinforce your efforts by enrolling them in the Sunday school at your House of Worship. With all this, you can rest assured that the vocabulary your children develop in school will include the proper use of the word "NO", as the password to a happier, healthier and longer life.

Big Spring resident wins $25

Ricky Hewtty, 1501 Avion, Big Spring, captured first place in the Stanton Herald Football Contest this week. He won $25.

He missed two games the Stanton-Plains shutout and the LSU-Ohio State, 7-7 tie. He guessed a total of 50 points on the spread. Baylor won 36-22.

Dewey Anderson of Stanton only missed two games, but his tie-breaker estimated totaled 50 points. He gained $15.

Dr. Phil Whisnand missed two games. His tie-breaker totaled 49. Stanton's new vet picks up $10.

Five people only missed two games. The tie-breaker provided the difference. A total of nine missed three.

A record selection in reverse was submitted by a woman, who shall remain nameless for obvious reasons, missed nine out of 10 games. Better luck next week.

A total of 81 entries were received at the Herald office, next to the Stanton Drug Store, in the fourth week's contest.

Winners will be announced in each week's edition of the Stanton Herald.

STANTON BEAUTY SPOTS — The Martin County Chamber of Commerce has selected two more Yards of the Week. Mr. and Mrs. George Herzog, 1110 N. St. Peter, top photo, and Mayor Danny Fryar and family residence at 507 W. 6th St., gained honors for helping beautify Stanton.

Chamber Chatter

By GERRY YARDLEY

Are you saving all you own and your neighbors aluminum cans? Our Martin County 4-H guys and gals have been saving these cans to help restore the roof of the Old Convent building. Maybe lots of cans were found on their 2-mile stretch of highway they cleaned last Saturday. The local convent project is a big project; but when it is completed we can help Texas with a BIGGER project.

Down at Galveston sets the aged Battleship Texas in drydock. The ship was a mighty and well-known force for our country's protection during past wars. Now she is in dire need of extensive repairs. An intense public information campaign will include announcements, 300 billboards, a message on Coke cans, posters and receptacles at Texaco stations, and many mailings. Please, keep saving your own cans and pick up all you find and put them where they will be picked up and re-cycled. Both the convent and the battleship are a part of Texas history that we ought to preserve.

Well, we stated several days ago that we will try to learn where the ex-students of Grady and Stanton are going to college. That is a good-sized undertaking so if you have the name of a student and his/her college and it doesn't get published by next week, October 7, just give me a call at 756-3386 and we'll get it in the next issue. The students who graduated two or three years are more likely to be missed. Don't you believe these colleges are lucky to have these Martin Countians?

Two county artists to show work

Two Martin County artists will be exhibiting their works at the Diamond A Fine Artists First Annual Show and Sale at Rex Loftis' Fort Texas Ranger Bar-B-Q in Midland at Garden City Hwy. (I-20 Exit 138 on 158 E.) from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 3.

The featured artists are Joni Hazelwood and Betty Sue Rose. Joni started painting in 1979 and has won numerous awards, including first in classwork at the Big Spring Art Association International Show. She was born in Tarzan and raised in Martin County. Her sister is an artist.

Joni Hazelwood specializes in paintings of cotton, windmills, Indian portraits, country and western scenes.

Joni has also entered into the field of the fine art of jewelry. Her pepper necklaces are currently on display in Midland, Colorado City and Big Spring.

Joni Hazelwood and her husband, Bob, reside in the northwest part of Martin County. They are the parents of two children, Robbie Curry of Greenwood and Pam McCampbell of Stanton.

Her art teachers include Jean Hildreth of Lenora, Edna Cox of Andrews, J.D. Keel, Betty Sue Rose and Vickie Clark.

"I think you paint what you want to learn," she said. "I go from pastels to portraits."

Living close to the land and being a sensitive observer of life, Betty Sue Rose is an artist of exceptional awareness.

She gained a perspective of the working cowboy and his heritage from her childhood.

As a young girl, she helped her dad with ranch chores when he was a ranch foreman. With Mother Nature as her teacher, Betty Sue studied as she worked with stock and horses.

While in high school, she began showing her paintings at the University of Texas. Soon afterwards, she studied with artist sculptor Ronald Thomason. With his encouragement she intensified her drive to develop her artistic ability.

Her painting of "Tomorrow's Promise" was published by the Quarter Horse Journal in May, 1978 and is now hanging in the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Chapman of Midland. Her 1986 magazine covers include those for Paint Horse Journal, The Quarter Horse Journal and Cattlemen's.

"A Drink for All," her depiction of longhorns, toured the South and Southwest in the Tandy Leather Company traveling exhibit for a year.

Horse portraits are a major part of her paintings and are included in the private collections of Ford Chapman of Midland, W.D. Blissard, Hoot Leonard, Danny Thomas, Doris and E. Jones, Lyn and Tom McGinnis and Elmer Kelton, the western writer.

Betty Sue Rose was also accepted for a Cowboy Artist of America Ten Workshop in 1986. She teaches oil painting workshops on a weekly basis because of a following of interested students.

Although she continues to participate in competitive shows and accepts commissions, she frequently donates her work to community projects and charities. With wide acceptance and demand, prints of her work are also available.

Born in Silver City, N.M., Betty Sue said, "I've been painting ever since I was old enough to hold a Crayola. I thought everybody knew how to draw. I didn't know I had any talent."

"I never bought a coloring book unless it had a picture of a horse in it," she added.

The show will also display works by Dale Beck, Kathryn Boone, Anna Cavett, O.B. Cavett, Sylvia Hale, William Herring, Mary Mann, Mary Nichols, Don Parks, Ken Rowland, William Schumpert, Patsy Swann, Weldon Whitley and Ann Wimberley.

Stubborn mule quiz announced

By ROY BARNHILL.

When I snapped a photo of the baby mule published in the Stanton Herald Aug. 26, I didn't realize so many people didn't know what combinations produced a baby mule.

I have worried about this ever since, trying to think how I could explain this "miracle" so it could be printable in a family newspaper.

But after I realized the word Jackass was mentioned so many times in the Bible, I decided my task was not so tough after all.

You cross a jackass with a mare. This is the only way. Mules can not reproduce.

Here's how the baby mule appearing in the Herald was created. The mare, owned by Bill Pardue, was being kept by Justice of Peace Francis Kennedy on grassland about five miles west of Stanton.

A jack was brought on the place at the precise time.

So needless to say, Bill Pardue's mare ended up with a baby mule.

Bill, this may not be so bad after all. Mules are selling real good at a high price right now.

Depot news

By RAMSEY ABBOTT

The Depot has some avid football fans and the Buffaloes are everybody's team. They lost a game but that is temporary and come next Friday, Seniors will be cheering them on again, especially Eddie B. Scurlock, whose son, Steve is a quarterback on the team.

According to reports, Steve is an outstanding player and we are all very proud of him.

A big group of Seniors were at the high school for the barbecue dinner and to vote for the coming home queen of their choice.

Seniors watch most of their football on T.V. but a good number were in the stands to watch the game in person Friday night.

Oklahoma is the number one team in the nation. They have won three games, and as usual, it looks like a great season for the Sooners.

Herman Fisher was under the weather a few days but was present for lunch on Friday and said that he was doing fine.

It was a round robin trip for Vera Osmond as she visited her children and grandchildren. First to Andrews, where she visited a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L.O. Vincente. Another daughter, Ivon Cates and husband, Bob and a granddaughter Mariene Ham. Then on to Plains for a visit with daughter, Winnell Winkle and grandson, Tray.

During the summer, neighbors, sitting on their front porches, enjoyed the organ music of Mrs. Goldie Mayberry as she played the old gospel and county favorites.

Don't forget, Thursday, October is the out reach supper. Members may bring as many guests as they please. The more, the merrier.

Martin County sales more than double past quarter

Howard County gross sales dropped 19 percent during the first quarter of 1987 compared to the first quarter of 1986, according to a statewide report distributed by the state comptroller's office.

Gross sales in the surrounding counties of Borden, Glasscock and Martin rose, while they dropped slightly in Mitchell County.

Howard County reported gross sales of $90,367,456 during the first quarter of 1987, compared to $111,553,583 during the first quarter of 1986. The figures take into account all industry.

In the area of retail sales, gross sales dropped by 13.7 percent from $51,662,697 during the first quarter of last year to $44,535,410 during the first quarter of 1987.

In contrast to Howard County, Martin County saw a steep increase in gross sales — 176.6 percent higher than the first quarter of 1986.

Martin County reported 1987 first quarter sales for all industry of $41,754,120 — more than double the $15,261,597 recorded during the same period last year.

Gross sales for the retail trade division showed a 4.6 percent decline, however, from $4,350,061 in 1986 to $4,148,791 during the first quarter of this year.

In Borden County, sales for all industries increased 29.9 percent from $181,530 to $235,741.

Retail trade gross sales increased significantly in Borden — 165 percent, from $88,941 in 1986 to $235,741 during the first quarter of this year.

Glasscock recorded a 26.9 percent increase in gross sales for all industries and a 27.6 percent rise in gross sales for retail trade.

In Mitchell County, gross sales declined 7.3 percent, from a 1986 first quarter figure of $14,527,636 to $13,465,832 in 1987. Gross sales in retail trade declined 2.9 percent.

Vaccination required, needed

More than any other preventive health care practice, immunizations begun in childhood and kept current save money, misery, and lives, according to the Texas Department of Health.

In the U.S., an estimated $1 billion is saved annually in medical costs because of immunizations against polio, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles), mumps, and diphtheria, a department report states.

In Texas, proof of vaccinations for these six communicable diseases is required by law for all children registering for day care or public school. In addition, pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine is required for children less than five years old in day care and public schools, the report states.

"Today's parents of young children are sometimes too young themselves to remember a time when immunizations were neither available or required," said Wes Hodgson, of the TDH Immunization Division.

"But a few decades ago, outbreaks and epidemics of killer diseases such as polio and diphtheria not only threatened every child, but were occurring more frequently every year," he added.

Hodgson said — because of vaccinations — polio and diphtheria are now rare in Texas. In the past ten years, only six cases of diphtheria and four cases of polio — one fatal — were reported in the state.

"What some young parents may not realize is that although outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases are now less frequent in Texas, the diseases can still spread among us," he said. "Children are not born immune to these diseases."

The operation was drilled to 10,965-ft. total depth and will produce from perforations in the Fusselman Formation at 10,773 to 10,787 feet into the wellbore. Production tests were run on a 13/64-in. choke.

The location is in a 160-acre lease in the T&P Survey, Sec. 39, Blk. 35.

Drillsite has been staked for the No. 1 Johnson "C", a 9,500-ft. developmental well in the Spraberry Trend Field, Martin County. The well will be located 19 miles north of Tarzan in a 160-acre lease in the Borden CSL Survey, Lab. 12, Lge. 260. The operator is Parker & Parsley Petroleum of Midland.

Quilt documentation at fair due

KATHRYN BURCH
County Extension Agent/H.E.
Martin-Glasscock Counties
Martin County Extension
Homemakers will be documenting quilts in their booth during the County Fair. If you have a quilt that was made in Martin County or brought to Martin County, we would like for you to bring it to the fair to be photographed and a brief history taken on the quilt. Slides and prints will both be made and put in the archives at the Museum. Quilts often date births, weddings or other memorable occasions. We need utilitarian quilts as well as fancy quilts to tell the whole story.

If you have a picture of the person who made the quilt, we would like for you to bring it. We will take a picture of the picture you bring.

This booth will be open Friday, October 9 from 2:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. and Saturday, October 10 from 9:00 a.m. until 8:00 p.m.

4-H'ERS PICK UP TRASH:

Fifteen 4-H'ers and their parents helped pick up trash Saturday on Highway 137. We picked up 15 sacks of trash. Only about half as much trash as was picked up on our first encounter of trash pick up. The highway just was not as cluttered.

We also began our aluminum can drive for the convent. We will continue the drive through the county fair. If you have cans you would like to donate, please bring them to the 4-H booth at the county fair.

Those; involved in the 4-H trash pick up were Robby and Bob Wilson; Carla, Jody and Lisa Brooks; Carla, Tandi, Cody and Brady Peugh; Patty, Tara and Clint Schuelke; Rebecca, Amanda and Belinda Riley; and agent Kathryn Burch.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

'Weekend athletes' need to be careful

AUSTIN — More than 20 million Americans are "weekend athletes."

They sit quietly at their desks during the week, then suddenly become active Saturday and Sunday. But part-time athletes have to be particularly careful, according to a report released by the Texas Beef Industry Council.

A recent Gallup survey found that the majority of doctors see three times as many sports injuries among weekend athletes as among participants of organized sports.

Injuries occur because people plunge into their exercise programs without taking the proper precautions, according to sports medicine consultant Paul Saltman, University of California at San Diego.

"Don't try to achieve your optimum performance on the first day," he advises. "You want to take a nice, gradual warm-up and take it easy the first time out."

Bicycling is a favorite sport of many part-time athletes. Thomas Prehn, 1986 U.S. professional cycling champion, has his own warm-up and cool-down system.

"To warm up for a race or a training ride, I start out slowly, gradually increasing the pace until I start to sweat," he said. "Then I ease off, do a few harder, real short sprints."

In addition, a weekend athlete should prepare for an active Saturday by maintaining a balanced diet during the week, according to Lisa Bellini Ergley, sports and cardiovascular nutritionist for New York's Executive Health Center.

"To maximize your performance on the weekend, you have to build your energy reserves by eating the right foods during the week," she said. "All machines need fuel. For the human machine, that fuel is food."

"I have to watch my caloric intake and eat a proper balanced-diet," Houston Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan said. "Normally, I'll eat my biggest meal the night before I pitch and that usually consists of a steak, usually a sirloin."

A free booklet featuring diet and exercise tips for the weekend athlete is available from the Texas Beef Industry Council. To order, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to The Weekend Athlete, Texas Beef Industry Council, 6504 Bridgepoint Parkway, Suite 400, Austin, Texas 78730.

Groups, volunteers make the fair A few tips to consider about credit

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent
How is the Howard County Fair orchestrated to provide the fun it is?

Our just completed Howard County Fair is a result of a tremendous amount of cooperation and hard work by a large number of volunteers and organizations. First of all, the organization, itself, is composed of 20 directors, all community volunteers, elected on an alternating basis from the board each two years.

These directors meet each month during the year and are charged with responsibilities of the various departments and areas of the fair itself. These directors appoint and recruit various other volunteers to assist them.

Examples include the Women's division, Entertainment, Security, Agriculture, Arts and Crafts, etc.

Ask the agent

The land itself is owned by the Howard County Rodeo Association, who cooperates by lending use of its Rodeo Bowl and grounds for fair use.

The Dora Roberts Building is owned by the Howard County Fair Association itself. The other buildings are owned and maintained by the County of Howard, who also lends its support in paving projects, grounds maintenance and other areas of assistance.

Without the joint cooperation and coordination of all these individual agencies and organizations, this annual event could not be possible. The Fair Association is totally self-sufficient and operates itself on its own financially.

Fair improvements are made from projects made at the fair each year. It also has some financial assistance from its annual "Friends of the Fair" program. All directors are always anxious for suggestion for improvements to the fair from fair-goers.

day during their fair most convenient in its schedule of events in support of agriculture in our community by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber also sponsors and hosts the farm tour in co-ordination of its Leadership Big Spring program in strengthening rural-urban relations.

This year's date was set to enable the workers of the fair to utilize the same facilities and equipment used the previous night at the annual I-II omelet event, saving time and labor in preparing for the two events.

The County Extension Office is responsible for arranging tour stops and is open for suggestions. Availability and timeliness of tour stops also are taken into consideration.

You're all set to go shopping. You've got your credit cards ready to "charge." But before you hit the mall, take the time to figure out just how much you can afford to spend on credit.

Two simple rules can be followed when figuring out how much you can afford to charge. First, your credit bills — including car payments, credit card bills and other installment credit, but excluding your mortgage payment — should be kept to under 15-20 percent of your take-home pay each month. Second, be sure you are able to pay off everything in 18-24 months.

Interest rates on credit cards depend upon the rates set by the issuing financial institutions. Credit cards, such as Visa or MasterCard, aren't all the same. Interest rates and terms and conditions of computing interest rates can differ.

Depending upon how you use your credit cards, lower interest rates can be beneficial. If you pay your credit card bills in full each month, you don't have to worry about paying a finance charge so the interest rate wouldn't matter. You're using your credit cards for convenience, not credit.

But a true credit user may benefit by shopping around for a credit card with low interest rates. Because true credit users regularly use credit, and always carry over an outstanding balance, they pay a finance charge each month. If your current credit card charges 19 percent interest and another credit card company charges 14 percent interest, that's a 5 percent difference. Now, if you usually have a monthly balance of $800, multiply that figure by 5 percent and you come up with $40. That's the amount you'll save each year by switching to the credit card with a lower interest rate. If you have several credit cards at high interest rates, the savings could be substantial.

How Much Should You Spend On Credit?

There's one catch to this, however. Each company also may charge a different annual fee. Subtract the annual fee from the amount you calculated to see the real savings. If, for example, the card with 14 percent interest has a $17 dollar annual fee, you are actually saving $23 ($40 - $17 = $23) by changing cards. Lower interest rates may mean a high annual fee, which could cost you more in the long run, depending on the balance you carry over each month.

Wernsman is named editor, White adds responsibilities

Herald staff report

Two Big Spring Herald staff changes have been announced by Publisher John Brown.

Robert Wernsman has been named editor and Richard White has assumed the title of director of marketing — advertising and circulation. Brown said the changes take effect immediately.

Wernsman has been city editor of the Herald since September 1986, when he came to Big Spring from a Chickasha, Okla. daily newspaper.

He assumes the newsroom operations responsibilities formerly directed by Managing Editor Darrell Berkheimer.

White has been an employee of the Herald since January 1985, when he was named advertising director.

His duties were expanded upon the recent retirement of Chuck Benz, who has been circulation director since December 1977. Benz and his wife Carol are planning to return to Georgia, where they lived before moving to Big Spring to help with the care of his late mother.

White will be assisted in the circulation area by Sylvia Collins, who has been a Herald staff member for four years — one year in circulation, and in the business office for the past three years. Other members of the circulation staff are Steve Strain and Marcellino Chavez.

White came to the Herald after several years in the newspaper advertising business, having held advertising sales positions with the Houston Post, Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, Dallas Times Herald and Abilene Reporter-News.

Wernsman was in higher education administration for four years in Oklahoma until 1986, when he returned to the newspaper business. Previously, he was editor of weekly papers in Iowa for eight years — five of those years as publisher and editor of three weekly newspapers and a shopper in Marshall County.

SWCID intern program

Susanne McCaa, left, communicates in sign language to Liz Taylor, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office. McCaa, an accounting major, works two afternoons a week at the chamber as part of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf student intern program.

Betty Clere, program director, said seven other SWCID students are participating in the program: Terry Starling, accounting, and Noe Sanz, data entry, both at Western Container; Lisa Salazar, tain Medical Center; Darrell McMurrrough, data entry, and Luis Diaz, accounting, both at the Big Spring Herald; and Julio Diaz, accounting, at Cain Electric.

An instructor evaluates the students in the workplace, and group discussions are conducted.

Clere said the program helps give the students experience in holding a job and in dealing with the hearing public. She expects to expand the program in the future, adding more students and additional study subjects.

Sweetwater sour for Steers

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

SWEETWATER — The sad thing about Friday's Big Spring-Sweetwater game is that we'll never know which is the better team, unless the two meet in the state playoffs.

On the evidence of the score alone — it was 39-18, Mustangs — the conclusion seems obvious.

But before pronouncing the Mustangs a far better team than the Steers, remember this: The Steers gave this one away.

That's the truth. At the same time, don't fault the Mustangs. They were good. They took advantage of most everything they were offered, and they were offered quite a lot.

Perhaps more so than the Steers, it was Murphy's Law that beat the Steers. It states, for the unfamiliar: "Anything that can go wrong will go wrong."

It all went wrong. The Steers lost five of ten fumbles, and had a pass intercepted. After four of those turnovers, Sweetwater scored. The Mustangs needed just 12 first downs to score their 39 points.

When the Mustangs didn't score, the turnovers at least gave them great field position. Meanwhile, the Steers were getting abominable field position. In one stretch of the second half, the Steers started on their two, their eight and then their five-yard lines.

The miseries began early. The Steers received the kickoff, and three plays later quarterback Shawn Shellman was hit and lost the ball at the 26.

The Mustangs went one yard in three plays, but went for it on fourth and nine. Quarterback Larry Healer completed a 15-yarder for first down at the ten. It would be the Mustangs only completion in three attempts for the night.

On fourth and goal, from the three, Healer scampered in on a keeper, with 7:45 left in the opening quarter. The extra point was blocked.

Danny Williams fumbled the ensuing kickoff, and Sweetwater started from the Steers' 15. Williams atoned for his miscues moments later, intercepting Healer's final pass attempt of the night at the two and racing down the sidelines. It appeared Williams would score, but Healer knocked him out of bounds at midfield.

The Steers bobbled the snap on the first play, however, and the Mustangs recovered. Moments later an unsportsmanlike conduct call on the Steers gave the Mustangs first down on the Steer 32.

Healer scored on a 14-yard keeper a few plays later, and ran in the two-point conversion. The Mustangs led 14-0 with 3:45 left in the first quarter. At that point, the Steers had run just three offensive plays.

Sweetwater kicker Louis Rose, who consistently boomed his kick-offs to the goal line, did so again, and the Steers opened on their own eight.

The Steers were forced to punt four plays later. Punter Johnny Landers kicked 39 yards, and Charles White made the hit of the night on the Mustangs' returner. As the referee walked off a 15-yard penalty against the Mustangs, the Sweetwater returner was helped off the field.

Sweetwater started on the 18, by far their worst field position of the night.

After a Mustangs' punt the Steers started on the Sweetwater 49, their second best starting position of the night. Shellman threw a perfect bomb that was dropped, and the Steers' opportunity halted when White was stopped on fourth and one.

Later Big Spring took over on downs at their own 18, but Ken Norman intercepted on the 34. Norman, who started at tailback as well, scored on a three yard out with a Herschal Walker-like dive with 3:55 left in the half.

Sweetwater led 21-0 following the point-after. At that point, the Steers had five yards rushing and one first down.

Starting from their 21, the Steers finally held on to the ball, and as a result, mounted an impressive drive.

Shellman looked sharp on the drive. Using the play-action, Shellman had two nine-yard runs, and completed passes of 17 yards to Dwayne Woodall and eight yards to White. The second completion gave the Steers a first and goal on the two.

On three plays the Steers lost a yard, and faced fourth and goal from the three with less than 10 seconds remaining in the half. Shellman went wide right, and hurdled himself over the goal line. He did a headfirst flip over a Sweetwater tackler and scored.

The snap on the point after was low, and the kick missed. At the half, it was Sweetwater 21, Big Spring 6.

Sweetwater punted on their first possession, and the Steer returner fumbled. The Mustangs recovered, but the Steers' defense held.

Later in the quarter, the Steers finally got a break of their own. The Mustangs' punt returner fumbled, and the Steers started on the Sweetwater 35, their best field position of the night.

White busted loose for 21 yards to the 14, and Shellman hit Woodall at the one. With 4:56 left in the third, White busted over from the one. The two-point conversion failed, but the Steers trailed just 21-12 and appeared to be making a game of it.

It was more mistakes, however, that would soon take them back out of it. Sweetwater punted on its next possession, and the ball rolled to the two. One play later the Steers fumbled and lost the snap.

Eudy thinks the week off will help.

"We've been on the road and played four tough games. The rest will do us good. We are capable of being a good football team, but we have an awful lot of corrections to make," he said.
