Splash, flash open State Fair

DALLAS (AP) — The 101st State Fair of Texas opens Friday with a splashy Sea World exhibit, performances of "South Pacific" and the return of a popular Chinese acrobatic troupe.

With its Texas-shaped swimming pool, Sea World sets a nautical theme for this year's fair, enhanced by the national touring company production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "South Pacific." The musical, starring Robert Goulet, opens Tuesday in Fair Park Music Hall.

"The biggest new attraction is a huge exhibit from Sea World," said Wayne Gallagher, the fair's executive director. "It's a major exhibit from their new park in San Antonio, which opens next year."

Sea World will have its own maritime musical centered around its Texas pool, complete with dancing water and prancing performers before a backdrop of the Alamo.

Attendance at this year's fair is expected to be about 1 million less than last year, which was Texas' long-running Sesquicentennial fair — drawing 3.9 million people, "certainly the largest ever," said Gallagher.

But the Sesquicentennial edition had a 31-day run, compared to this year's 17-day fair, Gallagher said.

"We expect somewhere between 2.5 million to 2.9 million people this year," he said, noting that weekday admission prices have been reduced $1 to attract more fair-goers.

Admission costs $3 for adults and $1 for children Monday through Friday, with senior citizens getting in free on Tuesdays. Saturday and Sunday admissions are $5 and $3, he said.

The Chinese acrobats were a favorite among the record crowds at last year's fair. So this year, the Shanghai Acrobatic Troupe, the top-ranked acrobats from the People's Republic of China, will perform daily in a specially-made tent seating 2,000 — twice the capacity of last year, Gallagher said.

The fair, which continues through Oct. 25, also features the Texas-Oklahoma football classic Saturday, the annual high school band Parade of Champions, the traditional slate of concerts, exhibits, parades, livestock and farm animals; and the Midway with the Texas Star ferris wheel.

Daily attendance averaged 140,000 people last year, but only six fairgoers were victims of crime on a given day, Dallas police said.

"For 31 days, Fair Park was the safest place in Dallas," Deputy Police Chief R.L. Schitelbein said. "We literally cut down on the opportunity for crime to be committed."

Eight more officers will be added to the larger force that made the Sesquicentennial fair one of the safest in years, Schitelbein said.

Last year an extra 65 officers were put on the fair patrol after a surge of crime at the 1985 fair, he said. Reported crime dropped from 227 offenses — including two murders and three rapes — two years ago to 166 offenses — no rapes or slayings — in 1986.

How's That? Highways

Q. Does Texas use state bonds to finance its highway system?

A. No. The only money the State Department of Highways & Public Transportation is authorized to spend is that received from state taxes determined by the legislature, and from federal highway user taxes. The bulk of the department's state funds comes from two primary sources — the tax on gasoline, often called the motor fuel tax, and motor vehicle registration fees, according to the State Department of Highways & Public Transportation.

Return to society is hospital's goal

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring State Hospital is no exception to the goal of any mental health institution: Return the patient to society.

The Support Services section of the hospital uses several forms of therapy in an attempt to give the patient the skills necessary to function in society.

Dr. Ann Mann has directed the section the past three years, coming to the hospital in 1978 as a clinical psychologist.

She outlined the procedures recently that her department uses to help patients overcome behavioral problems — procedures that include five forms of therapy.

"The purpose of the department is to provide therapeutic activities for the patient in order to help the patient adjust to the community," Mann said.

"Every psychic disorder has behavioral manifestations," she said. "We deal with the outward signs of behavior problems."

Upon arrival at the hospital, patients are evaluated by a team that determines not only the particular disorder, but the therapy best suited for them, she said.

"It's a rehabilitation program," Mann said. "Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center does physical therapy, and we do psychological therapy."

She believes the hospital's efforts have been successful.

SUPPORT SERVICES DIRECTOR
ANN MANN

When they are released from the hospital, the patients are asked to complete a form, which rates the success of the treatment. Most rate the therapies either moderately or very successful, Mann noted.

The five forms of therapy are educational, recreational, occupational, industrial and music, she explained.

Education therapy is headed by Dr. Ben Hutson. It provides a classroom setting that allows patients individual attention and encourages interaction with others, she said.

Communication and stress-coping skills are also taught.

In connection with the Big Spring school district and Howard College, a special education class is taught at the hospital. Margaret Lloyd and Debbie Mahlman assist about 20 to 30 patients annually to attain their General Equivalency Diploma, Mann estimates.

"A GED leaves a whole range of possibilities open to the patient," she said. "It is important to their self-concept."

Directed by Jim Potter, a registered therapeutic recreational specialist, the recreational therapy department offers the patient the opportunity for physical development, and "how to have fun," Mann explained.

Facilities — such as an outdoor exercise track and a swimming pool — give patients an outlet to eliminate anger and frustration. The section also teaches social leisure and stress-coping skills, she said.

"We teach them how to use their leisure time," she said. "That's a big problem for a lot of them."

Low-cost recreational ideas are taught, such as taking walks, picnics, visiting a museum or developing a hobby, she added.

An important part of this section, Mann said, is the social recreational program. Patients attend activities in town and surrounding areas

Bork's expected defeat stirs Higginbotham bench talk

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
WASHINGTON — With Robert Bork's Supreme Court nomination facing near-certain defeat in the Senate, Bork's liberal foes and conservative backers have begun to dig into the background of a Dallas judge who looms as a possible replacement.

Despite White House protestations that there is no planning under way for an alternative to Bork, Patrick E. Higginbotham, a 48-year-old judge on the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, has emerged as the consensus frontrunner.

But unlike Bork, who had left a three-decade trail of controversial writings and constitutional commentary, Higginbotham has thus far confounded those who have attempted to affix a label to his legal career.

"He is a relative unknown," said Gara LaMarche, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. "People are trying to find out what they can about him."

Higginbotham, an Alabama native who has practiced law in Texas for 20 years, came to national attention in June when the Dallas Times Herald reported that he was on a list of potential nominees to replace retired Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell.

While liberal groups scour Higginbotham's legal rulings and law-review articles to determine whether he is a mainstream conservative or a right-wing radical, three moderate-conservative Democrats — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala. — praised Higginbotham as they announced their opposition to Bork.

But some supporters worry that positive comments by anti-Bork lobbyists and senators could damage Higginbotham's chances for selection.

"The anger over Bork is very substantial," said one administration source. "He doesn't need friends like that right now."

In fact, the prospect of a Higginbotham nomination has set off a frenzy of behind-the-scenes political mud-slinging among conservatives.

Sources said Higginbotham's opponents recently informed First Lady Nancy Reagan that Higginbotham wrote the 1985 appeals court decision that reinstated a Houston woman who was fired for cheering the attempted assassination of President Reagan in 1981.

Higginbotham's conclusion that the woman's comments were protected by the First Amendment's free speech guarantee was upheld by the Supreme Court this year on a 5-4 vote.

"We wanted to make sure she knew that this was the kind of man her husband was considering," said one Higginbotham critic, who asked not to be identified. Although administration sources say that both Attorney General Edwin Meese and White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker are among Higginbotham's biggest admirers, the National Right to Life Committee has vowed to do anything it can to block Higginbotham's selection.

The anti-abortion group is bitter about Higginbotham's 1986 ruling striking down as "unconstitutionally vague" a Louisiana law making it a crime to perform medical experiments on aborted fetuses.

"We think his decision was wrong and unconscionable," said David O'Steen, the group's executive director. "This is the kind of thing that smacks of the Third Reich." In a three-page letter hand-delivered to Meese this week, O'Steen said Higginbotham would face "intense opposition" from anti-abortion groups because he had "demonstrated a disregard for the most defenseless members of the human family."

"Were the President to make such an ill-advised nomination, the National Right to Life Committee would have no choice but to devote our full resources to opposing Judge Higginbotham's confirmation," O'Steen wrote. "We believe that a number of pro-life senators would find themselves unable to support Judge Higginbotham."

But Bill Price, president of the Greater Dallas Right to Life Committee defended Higginbotham and chided national officials for failing to consult with Dallasites before announcing their opposition.

"I think he's gotten a bum rap on this deal," said Price. "I've talked to a lot of people and almost to a person they've told me that Judge Higginbotham's judicial philosophy is one that pro-life people should be comfortable with."

With Bork's defeat appearing imminent, Higginbotham is one of about a dozen possible choices to receive heightened scrutiny from liberal and conservative groups alike. Among the other potential candidates under the microscope are at least six other federal appeals court judges.

They include: J. Clifford Wallace of San Diego; John T. Noonan of San Francisco; Ralph Winter of New Haven, Conn.; William W. Wilkins of Greenville, S.C.; Frank Easterbrook of Chicago; and Richard Posner of Chicago.

Other possible candidates are White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker, CIA Director William Webster, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

Police beat Indecent exposure reported

Four burglaries, a theft, and an indecent exposure were reported to Big Spring police Wednesday.

A man exposed himself to a 15-year-old girl on the east side of town late Wednesday, according to police reports.

Further details about the incident were unavailable.

Police Lt. Troy Hogue said the case is still under investigation.

Pyrrle Bradshaw, 1700 Johnson St., reported that someone entered her home and stole $50 cash and two silver dollars.

Clothing and other items, valued at $46, were reported stolen from the Wal-Mart store, 2600 South Gregg.

Maria Lou Bustamonte, 120 Airbase Road, Building 21, Apt. 3, told police an intruder broke a window to gain entry to her apartment and stole two video recorders.

The recorders were valued at $800.

Donna Marie Coldiron, 1905 Wasson Road, Apt. 3-B-2, reported the theft of a television during a burglary at her apartment. The television was valued at $70.

A burglary also was reported at Wilson Construction, 905 North Benton St. Someone broke through a plywood wall at the business, according to police reports. Nothing was reported missing.

Two arrests also were made by Big Spring police Wednesday.

Maria Del Rosario Alaniz, 24, of Snyder, was arrested on suspicion of theft under $200. Alaniz was transferred to the Howard County Jail and was released on $750 bond.

Darin Sean Tucker, 28, of 3806 Parkway was arrested on driving while having a suspended license. Tucker was transferred to the Howard County Jail and was released on $1,000 bond.

on evenings and weekends.

Occupational therapy is designed to help facilitate the healing process, using arts and crafts to improve the patient's self-concept and sense of accomplishment, she added.

This section provides many patients with an outlet for their feelings, and gives them an activity which will be helpful in filling leisure time, Mann said.

Industrial therapy teaches basic job skills — ranging from learning how to follow instructions and dealing with other people, to properly conducting themselves at job interviews and completing job applications, she noted.

Headed by Tom Greiner, a certified rehabilitation counselor, the section gives the patients work assignments and teaches them realistic applications of job skills, Mann said.

Tasks assigned to patients include work in laundry, food service, clerical work and nurses' aides assistance.

These tasks help patients handle the stress of a normal work environment and allows them to be paid for their labor, Mann explained.

After they leave the hospital, many patients are placed in normal or sheltered work environments — many of which are provided by different communities, she added. The sheltered workshops are provided for patients who can't compete in normal work situations.

The music therapy section works to help the patient express his feelings and emotions. It is headed by Ed Kahler, a registered music therapist, Mann said.

By either listening to or performing music, patients are encouraged to interact with the instructor and each other. Lessons in voice, guitar and piano are given, Mann added.

During the past fiscal year, 6,535 patients have been treated in the department. In addition, 42 patients have taken classes offered by the special education section, Mann said.

She took the opportunity to applaud Big Spring's support of her efforts.

"The community has been great," she said. "I don't know of anybody who's said no to our request. Everybody has been so supportive of us."

Banks raise prime lending rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Major U.S. banks raised their prime lending rate a half percentage point to 9.25 percent, the highest level in 19 months, in a move likely to drive up interest on mortgages, home equity loans and credit cards.

The increase, the fourth this year, was attributed by economists to efforts by the Federal Reserve Board to tighten up on credit in order to stem the dollar's decline and hold down inflation.

On Wall Street, blue-chip stock prices Wednesday appeared to stabilize after a big drop. The Dow Jones average edged up 2.45 points, closing at 2,551.08. The index had tumbled 91.55 points on Tuesday, its biggest point decline ever.

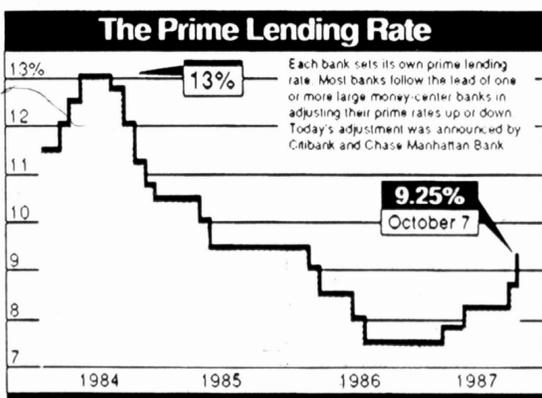

The prime is the benchmark used by banks to set interest rates on a range of corporate and consumer loans.

Consumers are likely to feel the effect of the increase most, since major corporations, once the main borrowers at rates based on the prime, can nowadays get lower rates from banks or borrow in the cheaper commercial paper market.

"More and more consumer borrowing is tied to the prime, whether it is through adjustable-rate mortgages, home equity loans or low-interest-rate credit cards," said Alan Fox, a spokesman for the Consumer Federation of America. An increase in the prime also could slow economic growth.

Citibank and Chase Manhattan — two of the nation's biggest banks — were the first to announce the increase from 8.75 percent Wednesday. Other banks quickly followed suit.

"It's ... a way of catching up to some of the Fed's tightening (of credit) in recent months," Ward

McCarthy, chief financial economist for Merrill Lynch Capital Markets. "I don't think it was much of a surprise."

The last time the prime was as high as 9.25 percent was in early March 1986, when it was lowered from 9.5 percent to 9 percent. The prime peaked at 20.5 percent in 1981.

The increase follows recent runups in credit market rates, which during the past year have pushed up banks' costs of borrowing money and paying interest on deposit accounts.

"Banks have been under pressure to maintain profit margins following huge writeoffs for loan-loss reserves" for shaky Third World loans, said Elizabeth G. Reiners, a money market analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds.

The prime was raised to 8.75 percent from 8.25 percent on Sept. 4, in response to the Fed's decision to boost its discount rate, the loan fee charged to financial institutions.

Many economists said they expected a rise in the prime, but some were surprised by the size of the increase.

"It does appear to be relatively greater than the market cost of funds," said McCarthy.

Watch the drinks at dinner

Local Rotarians to provide immunization against polio

The Big Spring Rotary Club has appointed a team to lead the club's participation in the worldwide PolioPlus campaign.

PolioPlus is a program of Rotary International to immunize all the children in the world against polio. It has a $120 million fundraising goal.

Club president Keith Wiseman said he has named Cliff Chapman chairman of the PolioPlus Committee. Other members are Ross Boykin and Dr. Harold Smith.

Rotary International asked the Big Spring club to raise $14,953 for its share of the total goal. President Wiseman said the club already has received $22,385 in cash or pledges from club members and an additional $53,000 from the community.

The club will conduct a variety of activities to allow the community to participate in the program.

A $6 million Child Survival grant was awarded to Rotary International for its PolioPlus Program by the United States Agency for International Development (AID). Recent announcement of the grant was made by Senator Robert Dole in ceremonies in the U.S. Capitol.

Rotary has pledged to provide vaccine to immunize every child in the world against poliomyelitis.

Rotarians in 161 countries are working to raise $120 million to buy the vaccine. The AID grant pushes the amount actually raised to more than $50 million.

In fighting polio, Rotary is in partnership with the World Health Organization, UNICEF, and other groups which support the goal of eliminating polio, measles, tuberculosis, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

Under terms of the five-year agreement between AID and Rotary, the agency will obligate $2 million during the first year and $1 million a year each of the following four years.

With this announcement the U.S. government became the fifth major nation to give its support to the Rotary PolioPlus program. Grants also have been received through agencies of the governments of the United Kingdom, Canada, Germany and Norway.

The Rotary Foundation already has made commitments to the governments of 45 nations to provide more than $40.5 million for polio vaccine purchases. When all of the immunization projects have been completed, some 252 million children will have been immunized.

Seven charged in thrift fraud indictment

DALLAS (AP) — Federal grand jurors capped one of the most exhaustive thrift probes in U.S. history by charging seven people with conspiracy, racketeering and fraud in a $100 million scheme to defraud five savings associations through a network of inflated land and construction loans.

The 85-page, 88-count indictment issued Wednesday charges that the defendants conspired to pocket profits from an estimated $500 million in loans, primarily for a string of condominium developments near Lake Ray Hubbard, east of Dallas.

The indictment, which named developers D.L. "Danny" Faulkner, James L. Toler and a group of associates, brings to 103 the number of people charged with criminal offenses in connection with the inquiry, which began after the March 14, 1984, collapse of Empire Savings and Loan Association of Mesquite.

If convicted of all charges in the indictment, the seven could receive a total of 1,696 years in prison and be fined a total $1.494 million. The five who face racketeering charges could also be stripped of their profits.

Those indicted include:

— Faulkner, 54, a Garland developer who is estimated by the grand jury to have netted at least $40 million in the scheme. If convicted, he faces up to 346 years in prison and $297,000 in fines.

— Toler, 52, a developer and former Garland mayor, who faces up to 348 years if convicted, as well as up to $302,000 in fines. Toler is estimated in the indictment to have reaped $38 million.

— Spencer H. Blain Jr., 51, of Dallas, former chairman of Empire Savings, who the indictment says earned at least $22 million in the enterprise. Blain faces up to 318 years confinement and possible fines of $240,000 if convicted.

— Paul Arlin Jensen, 38, of Ogden, Utah, a former mortgage broker and thrift official who, according to the indictment, made $23 million Jensen faces a possible 231 years in prison and $176,000 in fines.

— Kenneth Earl Cansler, 40, of Rockwall, Texas, a former high school football coach and real estate appraiser: Arthur G. Formann, 58, of Hondo, Texas, who faces up to 59 years of confinement and a $103,000 fine; and Paul D. Tannehill, 39, of Canton, Texas, who could get up to 38 years and $62,000 in fines.

The indictment said tracts of land along the Interstate 30 corridor used as collateral for the loans were inflated in value through a series of insider sales known as land flips, allowing the defendants and others to profit by distributing the proceeds.

BIBLICAL PRINCIPLES THAT GIVE SUGGESTIONS TO LIVE BY:

1. Change today's failures or mistakes into tomorrow's success
2. Don't allow your mental attitude to make you a "has been" with a very dim future.
3. Know exactly what you want from life, know what you will give in return to have it, know when you want it, create a plan on how to get it, then put the plan into action.
4. Repeat: "God being my helper, I resolve now to will myself to be responsible, to face reality, and to do as I ought to do."
5. Keep a positive mental attitude (integrity, faith, hope, love, optimism, courage initiative, generosity, tact, tolerance, good common sense, kindness).
6. Avoid a negative mental attitude (pessimistic, fear, doubt, a closed mind, melancholy).
7. Go the extra mile.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:
Calls Reagan a cranky spoilsport

President Reagan's protests about the "politicization" of the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the Supreme Court ring hollow. Reagan's problem is not that politics is being played; the problem is that he is losing on the playing field.

Reagan, a master of the electronic medium, is losing this particular fight, but he's won many times before and, no doubt, will again. No need to act like a cranky spoilsport.

The (Norfolk) Virginian-Pilot

Says disinformation in backyard

Just last week in an interview, President Reagan complained about what he called a growing communist influence in Congress and in the media.

With vigilance against communism becoming "unfashionable," according to Reagan, communists have mounted a worldwide "disinformation" campaign, "and that campaign is very sophisticated and is very successful, including with a great many in the media and the press in America."

Ah, yes, the phenomenon of dis-formation campaigns.

It would seem that this president — who gave us the Iran/Contra scandal and hired such acknowledged disciples of disinformation as former National Security Advisor John Poindexter and the late CIA director William Casey — need look no further than his own backyard for that topic.

Disinformation campaigns and press manipulation? It's a problem all right, but just not in the same way the president sees it.

The Albuquerque (N.M.) Journal

Reminds media of responsibilities

After his campaign manager admitted he had tipped the press to Sen. Joseph Biden's plagiarism, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis let him and another aide resign rather than tarnish his own presidential effort with the taint of dirty tricks.

Immediately the media scented what they hoped was blood and turned from tracking the trail of tears of ex-candidate Patricia Schroeder to bay after Dukakis instead.

Even the usually fair-minded David Broder wrote a column on how the past month's series of distinctly uncomfortable situations for Democratic candidates Biden, Schroeder and Dukakis helped feed voter cynicism.

Who is feeding it most? Broder's lumping these three entirely different situations into one series only contributes to the impression that all three candidates did something wrong.

Biden did. Schroeder and Dukakis didn't. What Dukakis did was, in fact, clearly the right and honorable thing to do.

Some of our colleagues covering campaigns need to remember over the next 13 months just why it is that the people confer on them ... precious freedom to search zealously after flies on and flaws in candidates for the Oval Office.

That freedom is a trust given not so its holders can abuse it by handing the public prejudgments packaged in with the facts, but so they can honor it by giving the people the facts and letting them decide.

The Raleigh (N.C.) Times

Predictions of deaths didn't occur

Despite dire predictions early this year from safety experts, the 65-mph speed limit on the nation's rural Interstate highways has not resulted in an upsurge of traffic deaths.

The higher speed has been in effect in Montana for six months and the state's highway death toll has remained slightly lower than last year. This also is the case in most other states, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Not only have monthly accident totals dropped by about 7 percent nationwide from a year ago, but the traditionally dangerous summer-holiday weekends — Memorial Day, July 4th and Labor Day — all registered fatal accident declines of about 10 percent below comparable 1986 figures.

The Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune

Warns Congress of 'new' Reagan

Mikhail S. Gorbachev has come up with some creative imagery in saying an American-Soviet treaty banning intermediate-range nuclear weapons could set off a "peaceful chain reaction." Indeed it could — a chain reaction leading to far more important agreements limiting strategic offensive arms and space-based defensive systems.

Both Gorbachev and President Reagan signed off on the concept of a 50 percent reduction in their massive strategic arsenals during their summit last November in Iceland. But they parted at loggerheads on "star wars" missile defenses.

Now there is some "give" on both sides and serious negotiations are underway.

This progress in arms control catches Congress in a time warp. While legislators race to put restraints on the "old" Ronald Reagan, the "new" Ronald Reagan is trying to make his mark as a peacemaker before his term runs out.

While congressional suspicions of the White House are understandable, Capitol Hill must be careful not to harm the U.S. position in arms negotiations.

Memos, depositions describe Bush's link to Contra scandal

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Recently released memos and depositions by the staff of Vice President George Bush raise more questions than they answer about his role in the Iran/Contra scandal. And there is still more evidence that hasn't been released yet by the Senate-House committees that investigated the affair.

As we reported previously, there was more to Bush's role than the public hearings brought out. On June 8 we wrote that a "still-secret internal memo implicates Bush's national security adviser Donald Gregg" — and by extrapolation Bush — to a much greater degree in the secret Contra aid program.

On June 21 we described the document as "a revealing memo that was placed in Bush's briefing book before a crucial meeting on his schedule."

Now the memo has been released, confirming our reports. The memo, dated April 30, 1986, was released by the Iran/Contra committees along with an April 16 "Schedule Proposal." Both describe the purpose of a Bush appointment with CIA agent Felix Rodriguez as being to brief the vice president "on the status of the war in El Salvador and resupply of the Contras."

Rodriguez and Gregg have been buddies since they both worked in the CIA. At the time he was meeting with Bush, Gregg and other aides, Rodriguez was making frequent visits to El Salvador as a "counterinsurgency expert."

He also was working with National Security Council aide Oliver North on the clandestine White House effort to resupply the Nicaraguan contras.

Bush has steadfastly maintained that, in three different meetings, he and Rodriguez never discussed the Contra supply efforts. As for Bush's aides, they have had to amend their recollections — of meetings with Rodriguez as more information has come to light that supplying the Contras was discussed far earlier than any of them acknowledged when the scandal first broke.

In an 83-page deposition Gregg made last May, he admitted knowing by August 1986 that Rodriguez was working with North on the secret Contra aid program.

Gregg also says he knew that North and Rodriguez had fallen out over North's use of former associates of Edwin Wilson, the renegade CIA agent now in prison for arms smuggling. Gregg's handwritten notes of one conversation with Rodriguez state that the CIA agent told him North was "using Ed Wilson group for supplies."

Gregg said he had no idea that money for the Contras had come from arms sales to Iran. He said he thought it came from North's "informal private network."

Gregg also swore that he had never discussed any of that with Bush. "I spend a great deal of my time trying to send things to the vice president that I think are really vice presidential," he explained in his deposition.

Gregg further swore he had no idea how the reference to Rodriguez discussing "resupply of the Contras" got into Bush's briefing book, and said that the subject did not come up at the meeting on May 1, 1986.

In two depositions, Gregg's secretary, Phyllis Byrne, said that she remembered typing the phrase onto both the briefing memo and the schedule proposal from information given to her by Bush aide Col. Samuel Watson.

But Watson swore that he gave her no such information, though he acknowledged that she is an efficient secretary who types only what is provided by others.

This led Watson's interrogator, Senate counsel Mark Belnick, to observe sarcastically: "If you didn't prove it and if Mr. Gregg didn't provide it, and if she didn't come up with it on her own, and if Felix Rodriguez didn't provide it, then this was ghost-written, literally, because there's nobody who provided it."

MINI-EDITORIAL — One thing that mystified us about the flap over Sen. Joe Biden's purloined campaign rhetoric was the indignation voiced by Adam Walinsky, the speechwriter who ghosted a speech for the late Sen. Robert Kennedy that Biden borrowed.

He claimed it is "a counterfeit of emotion" to take someone else's thoughts and pass them off as one's own. We fail to see what the difference is between what Kennedy and Biden did with Walinsky's emotion — except that Kennedy paid for borrowing it. Is that it?

War's toll imprinted on Wall

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Dawn Monday found me alone with 58,000 recent acquaintances. Clara Justice had told me the view was stunning and, as the cold, new day broke over Scenic Mountain, I decided her opinions were not to be taken lightly.

It was beautiful. The pale blue sky mingled with the multitude of flags flapping in the breeze. The flowers that had been left behind became more visible.

And presiding over all of this was the object of my attention — the Moving Wall, with the names of the more than 58,000 men and women who died during the Vietnam War inscribed on its panels.

I had tired of simply covering the events of the past week, and had volunteered to work at the Wall for a few hours.

So there I was. There hadn't been any visitors for a while. Jerry — the other volunteer on duty — was over in the tent warming himself with the battery acid he called coffee.

It was just me — and the Wall. I have heard people describe a visit to the memorial as a religious experience. This may sound cold, but I didn't see any sign of God's handiwork, just another example of man's stupidity.

A mere child can see that there has to be a much simpler way of resolving our differences without burying a lot of people in the process. That's obvious.

What is terribly, terribly difficult, however, is to formulate an alternative to war. If you expect such an alternative in this column, you're in for a big disappointment.

I'm not the most avid churchgoer around, but I believe — in the case of war and other such nonsense — God pretty well allows mankind to follow his conscience on this matter.

It's as if He's saying, "Go ahead and kill each other if you wish. Just remember, when the world really ends, I'll call the shots."

No, what moved me Monday morning wasn't God's presence, but memories of the past week.

Memories of the various mementos people left, like a note I spotted Saturday night. It was addressed to three of the names on the wall, and it concluded, "I didn't have the guts to look your names up, so this is just in case."

Or the one left by a young woman to her father — one of the 58,000. On it, she told him how much she loved him, and missed him, and hoped she would see him again.

Memories of two sisters who placed flowers in honor of their dead brother. As they walked away, there were tears in their eyes — but their faces wore smiles also, as if a huge burden was at last lifted.

I saw that smile often last week. Memories of Phil Corbin sitting in the tent, VFW cap on his head, drinking another cup of that accursed coffee.

Phil — and all the other volunteers — performed a thousand acts of kindness to veterans and other visitors to the Wall. They did Big Spring proud, and they deserve our thanks.

Memories of my friend Gonz. He likes to portray himself as some sort of macho man. Ten minutes after arriving at the memorial, however, he walked to the first vet he could find and shook his hand. Later, he volunteered to help at the Wall.

All these memories served to rekindle my optimism that maybe — just maybe — we're beginning to put the war behind us. Perhaps the extreme passions that ruled us in the '60s are subsiding somewhat.

In an editorial tribute to the late President Johnson in 1973, the Minneapolis Star wrote, "It is difficult to see how history will interpret the war he so enlarged in a more benign light, though in the fullness of time it may find some aspects less unforgivable."

Perhaps. Maybe time does heal all wounds. If so, the Wall can be best remembered as a major step in mending the emotional scars left by a bitter, divisive war.

And that would be the best memory of all.

Adjusting to strike isn't easy

By ART BUCHWALD

I came in the house last Sunday and my wife whispered, "George is in the living room waiting for the football game to start."

"Didn't you tell him there is no game this week?" I asked.

"He refuses to believe me."

I walked into the room and found George sitting on the couch. He put a fistful of potato chips in his mouth and pointed at the screen. "Oouhouhouh," he said.

"There is nothing wrong with the TV, George. The teams are on strike."

George looked at me as if I had lost all my marbles and grunted. "Umumumumum."

"It's nobody's fault, George. It's a question of power and who gets to keep it. Would you like to see a movie?"

George shook his head and crawled to the TV set and started feeling the glass with his hands.

"You have to believe me, George. There is nothing you can do that will bring on a football game."

He rubbed his head against the screen. "George, you're getting hair oil all over the TV set," my wife said.

I made a sign for her to hush up. Then George began hitting the glass with his head. I pulled him away and gently put him down in his chair. My wife gave him a handful of pretzels.

"Dubidubidou," he said, spitting out half the pretzels.

"What does he want now?" my wife asked.

"He wants to know why there is no football."

"You told him that."

"The reality of the strike hasn't sunk in on everyone." I took a fistful of dollars out of my pocket and said, "This is why they're striking. The players want more of these and owners want to give them less. Surely you can understand that, George."

He jumped up, rushed to the screen and slammed it with his two fists.

"Don't get mad at the set," I begged. "The TV has nothing to do with the strike. You can hit it all day and you still won't see an NFL kickoff."

Apparently George didn't believe me and started sniffing around the back of the cabinet.

My wife came over and whispered, "Get him out of here."

"It's not his fault there isn't a game. The man has never done anything on Sundays but watch football. You can't take something like that away from a person and expect him to act normal."

I looked at George, who was examining the electrical outlet in the wall to make sure it was working.

"Why don't you take him outside and throw him a stick?" my wife suggested.

"George," I said, "you better go home. Someday the owners and players will make up their differences and then you can come back and we'll sit and cheer for the team of our choice. We'll call you when the strike is over."

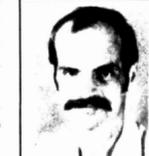

George looked hurt and shoved some popcorn in his mouth. Then he went, "Ouuurnnnouh."

"What is he mumbling now?" my wife asked.

"He says NFL football can drop dead."

"He said that?" she gasped.

"Yes, but that's not what is scary. He said he is speaking for everyone who holds physical violence sacred."

Falwell resigns PTL

FORT MILL, S.C. — PTL Chairman Jerry Falwell said he and PTL's board and top officers resigned this morning rather than remain at the helm of a ministry that has become the "Watergate of evangelical Christianity."

Falwell predicted that within six months, "barring a miracle of God," PTL founder Jim Bakker would take over control of the evangelical empire.

Falwell, who has his own ministry based in Lynchburg, Va., said PTL's main television program, the "PTL Club," will remain on the air at least three weeks, but the payroll at the theme park will not be paid Friday.

"I hope the successor will pay them," he said.

AIDS chairman named

WASHINGTON — The new chairman of President Reagan's AIDS commission, retired Navy Adm. James D. Watkins, will be supported to the "nth degree" by others on the panel, a commission member says.

That assessment by Dr. William B. Walsh, founder of Project Hope, came late Wednesday shortly after Reagan announced that Watkins was being selected to replace Dr. W. Eugene Mayberry.

The White House announcement occurred nearly eight hours after a spokesman at Mayo Clinic, where Mayberry is executive director, confirmed reports that Mayberry was stepping aside.

Arms sale accord near

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders and the Reagan administration are near agreement on a controversial weapons package for Saudi Arabia, according to sources on Capitol Hill and in the administration.

While the exact shape of the package had not been worked out, officials on both sides of the talks said they were optimistic a compromise could be reached at a meeting today between President Reagan and the bipartisan leadership of Congress.

Coyotes kill flamingos

LOS ANGELES — A ravenous pack of coyotes descended on 86 flamingos at the Los Angeles Zoo after keepers mistakenly left the birds' pen open, and by morning less than half the flock was still alive, officials said.

Some flamingos were saved by employees beating away the coyotes.

Wallace said 15 American Greater Flamingos and 33 Chilean Flamingos died.

The American birds, which cost about $1,500 apiece, are better known as pink flamingos.

World's heaviest man goes on diet

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Three weeks after getting stuck in a doorway, a man who broke the scales at 1,000 pounds has stopped gorging on junk food for a diet that includes dried fruit and sesame seeds.

It's paid off. Walter Hudson already has lost four inches around the knees.

He is still as far heavier than the heaviest man listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, who is less than 900 pounds.

Hudson has biceps like flabby watermelons. He has a 103-inch waist. That's 8 1/2 feet. His knees are 51 inches around, down from 55. His neck is 22 inches.

The 42-year-old Hudson weighed 212 pounds when he was 12.

Somewhere along the way, he said, he stopped caring what people thought of him, and only started caring again after he got stuck in his bedroom doorway and had to be extricated by rescue workers three weeks ago.

Hudson's plight was widely publicized. He got calls from exercise expert Richard Simmons, Overeaters Anonymous and Dick Gregory, the one-time comedian who runs a weight-loss clinic in the Bahamas.

"I'm absolutely surprised he's not dead," said Gregory, who has taken on Hudson as a client, and hopes to get him to lose enough in three months that he can be taken to the clinic.

Hudson estimated his own weight at 1,200 pounds. Several days ago, Hudson stood on a scale, propped up by three weightlifters. A spring popped on the scale at 1,000 pounds.

He has forsaken his daily Thanksgiving-size meals, when he would devour three or four ham steaks and six large bottles of soda pop for breakfast or lunch. His grocery bill averages about $300 a week.

Gregory has Hudson eating mostly fruits, sesame seeds, dry dates, raisins and three ounces of a special diet powder three times a day.

Hudson said he's tried other diets, but speaks with resolve about this one as he lies on the bed where he has spent much of the last 27 years.

"Mr. Gregory's plan is the best I ever tried because I don't feel Walter Hudson, 42, lies in his bed at his home in Hempstead, N.Y. Wednesday less than two weeks after beginning a diet, with the help of one-time comedian Dick Gregory. Hudson, who weighs more than 1,000 pounds, has been approached by people who want to help him after he was in the news three weeks ago. Fire and medical workers had to free him from his bedroom doorway.

hungry," he said.

"If he goes out, it will be the first time since his family moved from Brooklyn to this Long Island community 17 years ago.

Gregory's long-term goal is to get Hudson down to 190 pounds — losing more than 80 percent of his body weight. He said a rapid weight loss will make Hudson feel feverish.

"For 35 years, his body's been preparing itself to die. There are muscles and arteries that have not functioned in his body for years,"

Gregory said.

Barbara A. Whitehead, Hudson's niece who helps care for him, said he has always seemed happy. He listens to jazz, blues and pop music and played Monopoly, cards and checkers with her. He reads the Bible every day, she said.

"Overeating is a disease," Hudson said. "It's a habit for me. When depressed, a man reaches for a bottle of whiskey. I reach for food. It becomes like a junkie needing a needle."

Soldiers fight protest

SANTIAGO, Chile — Soldiers battled rock-throwing demonstrators in the biggest day of protests against the military government in a year. A 2-year-old was killed, 10 people were wounded and nearly 400 were detained, authorities said.

The clashes occurred on the day of a national strike for higher wages, which drew little support from workers.

Soldiers were dispatched Wednesday to support police in several areas. Three people, including a toddler, suffered bullet wounds, and several people were injured by buckshot.

Newsman ordered out

CHENGDU, China — More than a dozen Western journalists covering independence unrest in Tibet were ordered today to leave the province within 48 hours because officials say they violated reporting regulations.

The Chinese news agency Xinhua said 15 journalists from the United States, Britain, Italy, Canada and Australia are being expelled from Tibet because they did not apply for permission to cover news in the region.

Wall Street Journal correspondent Adi Ignatius, who arrived today in Chengdu, in Sichuan province, from the Tibetan capital of Lhasa said 14 foreign journalists were summoned to a Lhasa hotel room shortly after midnight Wednesday and told they were to be expelled. Two U.S. diplomats were also at the meeting.

Japanese vessel hit

MANAMA, Bahrain — An Iranian gunboat fired a missile at a Japanese-owned vessel off Saudi Arabia's coast today, setting it ablaze, and Iraq said its warplanes raided a ship near an Iranian oil terminal.

The raid on the Panamanian-registered Tomoe-8 occurred a day after Japanese shipowners lifted a ban on their ships sailing in the Persian Gulf.

The ban was imposed a week ago, after Iranian attacks on two Japanese tankers.

Guatemala holds talks

MADRID, Spain — Guatemalan government and guerrilla representatives held talks for the first time in 27 years, but the rebels said they were pessimistic about an agreement since the government asked them to lay down their arms.

The Guatemalan Embassy in Madrid issued a statement late Wednesday acknowledging for the first time the talks had begun. It said no details would be made public until the meetings ended. Spain agreed Oct. 2 to let the talks take place in Madrid.

Howard College Brighton Beach Memoirs won't disappoint

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
Editor

Theatre-goers are lucky that Neil Simon's dream of becoming a professional baseball player was never realized. If it had been, we might never have been treated to such delights as Goodbye Girl, Barefoot in the Park, Odd Couple and Brighton Beach Memoirs.

His desire to make the major leagues as a New York Yankee is just one aspect of his childhood that comes through clearly in the semi-autobiographical Memoirs, playing in the Howard College theatre today, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

A rambunctious 13-year-old in the play, performed with enthusiasm and abandon by Steve McLaughlin, the Simon character is the comic relief in a two-act production that deals with the family's more serious issues of the mid-1930's: a looming world war, unemployment — and a widowed sister and two daughters who have become fixtures in the Jack Jerome household.

Director Bill Doll has brought together an exuberant, talented cast, coupled with a busy, well-developed set, to competently portray the Jerome family and home in 1937.

Both Jack's wife Kate, played by Tracie Wikerson, and her widowed sister Blanche, played by Loryne Russell face challenges in their roles.

Each are in stressful situations. Their reactions to that stress are expressed primarily through anguished delivery of their scripts — as they attempt to deal with a combination of life and love gone awry.

The Simon-like character has a big brother, played by Stacey Reaam, whom he idolizes — and detests, depending on the moment and his frame of mind.

He is a typical big brother figure who lends advice freely to Eugene, and Stacey ably portrays a young man attempting to break through to adulthood, while living up to his father's ideals.

Blanche's two daughters, portrayed by Stacey Leonard and Chawndra Freeman, bring heightened tension to the drama — and for young Eugene, Stacey is his inspiration for an awakening puberty.

Both daughters seem suited for their roles: Stacey as a would-be actress with her heart set on Broadway, and Chawndra who has been pampered based on a perceived heart condition — a perception she's not hesitant to use to her advantage. She handles well the additional challenge of a large role with minimal script.

The crux of the play is the head of the household — Jack Jerome.

Theatre-goers in Howard County will have no trouble feeling the weight of the world being carried on the shoulders of Shawn Shreves, who plays that role.

A man who is willing to do whatever is necessary for the good of the family, Jack serves as counselor, confidant and wise man for each member — some of whom would dearly love to be nearly anywhere else at the moment.

The challenges he faces during these two acts are enough to try any man's soul. However, his reaction to the impending future expressed at the play's end speaks volumes about his character — and how Neil Simon must perceive his own father.

It's difficult to imagine anyone walking away disappointed from this production.

Man's blind dates fail to catch on fire

DEAR ABBY: Since my divorce two months ago, I've had a hard time meeting single women, so I signed up with a dating service. The fee was $750 (in advance) and they agreed to fix me up with as many women as it took to find a wife within 12 months.

For my very first date, I was fixed up with a woman of a different race. I'm not prejudiced, but I had clearly told the people at the dating service that I wanted to go out only with women of my own race. When I complained and asked for my money back, they said they were sorry and it would not happen again, so I gave them another chance.

My second date was with someone who works weekends and is not available on Saturdays and Sundays. I date only on weekends, which I told my "matchmaker" when I signed up.

The third date was with a woman who lives 90 miles away. Before joining I told them I would drive no more than 25 miles. When I told these matchmakers I was dissatisfied and wanted my money back, they said, "Sorry, we don't give refunds." Now what do I do?

DUMBBELL

DEAR DUMBBELL: You are not a dumbbell, only inexperienced and vulnerable. I'm reminded of a line from a song from "Fiddler on the Roof": "...playing with 'matches' a girl can get burned." Guys, too. The Better Business Bureau should be notified about this dating service. You were had.

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot of jokes about how women try to get out of having sex with their husbands by saying, "Not tonight, dear. I have a headache." Well, this is no joke — my husband really gets a terrible headache when we have sex.

I told him it wasn't normal, and he should tell his doctor about it when he goes for his next insurance physical, but he says he won't because the doctor might think he's crazy.

Abby, have you ever heard of this before?

HEADACHES IN HOUSTON

DEAR HEADACHES: Yes, I have heard that the physiological changes that accompany orgasm (accelerated heart rate and sudden rise in blood pressure) have been known to cause headaches in some men.

Also, just the stress of worrying about getting one of those headaches is enough to precipitate one.

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker arranged a blind date for me with a man she's been wanting me to meet for a long time. She gave him a big buildup, so I kept wondering why a "handsome, intelligent, successful, 36-year-old accountant" had never been married. (I'm 33 and divorced.)

Well, after the third date, I think I know why. This man doesn't believe in using a deodorant! I was very much attracted to him, so after the third date, in a very nice way, I told him he needed a deodorant — and even bought him one. He refused to accept it, saying, "There's nothing wrong with the honest smell of masculine sweat." (Can you beat that?)

Any suggestions?

TURNED OFF IN ATLANTA
DEAR TURNED OFF: Match his "honesty" with this honest statement of your own: "I am very much attracted to you, but I can't make love with a clothes-pin on my nose, so if you want to get closer to me, get wise and use a deodorant."

If he refuses, say goodbye with no regrets. He's selfish, insensitive and rigid.

Dear Abby

This week's 2-4A football stats have the Steers ranked sixth in team defense, allowing 303 yards per game. Sweetwater, Fort Stockton and Monahans have the top three defenses, allowing 135, 144, 161 yards respectively.

Big Spring is ranked fifth offensively, gaining 288 yards per game. Monahans, Sweetwater and San Angelo Lake View are the top three teams, averaging 399, 366 and 336 respectively.

The Big Spring Sports Booster Club will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the high school library.

One for the Herald sports blunders department: Last week we reported in the Forsan-Iraan football game story that Jan East caught a touchdown pass from Brant Nichols.

It was actually Steven East who caught the TD pass — Jan is the Forsan coach and Steve's dad.

Although the elder East contends "I'm not that good, to come off the sidelines and catch a pass." We wouldn't mind seeing him give it a try.

Homecoming '87

Which team will hang on to the ball?

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The winner of Friday's league football game between the Lamesa Tornados and Big Spring Steers could very well be the teams that fumbles the least.

Usually when one talks about winning football games, good offense and defense are the main topics. But fumbles surface at the top of conversation when discussing the Steers' Friday homecoming tilt against Lamesa at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Both Big Spring and Lamesa have been plagued by fumbles. Big Spring, 2-2 overall and 1-1 in league play, has fumbled 25 times this season, losing 16 of the bobbles. Lamesa 2-3 overall and 0-3 in district competition, has had a little better success holding on to the ball. The Tors have laid the ball on the ground 22 times, losing 12.

But in last week's 43-12 loss to Sweetwater, the Tors didn't commit a single turnover, the first time this year that's happened. As far as turnovers go, Big Spring had its worst night two weeks ago in a 39-18 loss to Sweetwater. The Steers fumbled 10 times, losing five.

Big Spring had an open date last week which gave the team time to heal wounds and polish its game.

"We worked on the fundamentals; blocking, tackling, catching, kicking and conditioning," said Steers coach Quinn Eudy. "That's basically what we do on every open date," said Eudy.

CHARLES WHITE

As far as eliminating the fumbles, Eudy said much work has been done on the center snap to the quarterback, a procedure, the Steers fumbled four times against Sweetwater.

"We've been kicking more in practice, working on the returners fielding the ball cleanly. We also looked at some new personnel in our kicking game," said Eudy.

Fifth year Lamesa coach Clyde Noonkester also has the fumbles woes.

"We've been turning the ball over way too much all year," said Noonkester. "Really our defense has been playing well, you couldn't tell it by the scores, but you have to figure because of the turnovers, they've been spending a lot of time of the field," said Noonkester.

The Tors are now a veteran team, returning 32 lettermen, including 15 starters on offense and defense.

"Our kids are definitely playing better than last year," said Noonkester. "But we're still very small and that's the worst thing that could happen to us. We give up too much in the physical matchups."

If the Lamesa offense could ever get untracked, it has one of the best breakaway threats in the state in halfback Gerry Woodberry. The 5-5, 142-pound Woodberry has been clocked in 4.4 in the forty-yard dash and 10.2 in the 100 meters, where he finished second in the state meet last year. Woodberry is the district's fifth leading rusher, with 390 yards in 65 carries.

Lamesa also has tight end Jim Horton, the league's third leading receiver with 11 catches for a 20.1 average.

"We've got some speed in the backfield, but the other people we're playing also has speed, plus a lot of talent. Their speed and talent neutralizes our speed," said Noonkester.

The Steers' option offense is led by running back Charles White, who had a two-game 100 yard streak snapped against Sweetwater. White is the district's seventh leading rusher with 353 yards in 52 carries.

When the Steers go to the air, flanker Buddy Everett has been quarterback Shawn Shellman's leading receiver. Everett ranks seventh in the district with six receptions for a 23.1 average.

The Tors will have everyone healthy for the game while Big Spring will be without defensive back Shane Gressett, who has a hip pointer. The contest will mark the return of Steers sophomore running back Chris Cole, who is coming off arthroscopic knee surgery.

Noonkester says is team must play error-free ball to beat Big Spring. "I don't know if it will be a defensive or offensive game but I know the games Big Spring has lost the other team has scored a lot of points on them."

Eudy says his defending district champion Steers have one thing on their mind.

"We'll play one game at a time. If we take care our our business every week, everything else will take care of itself."

Twins beat Tigers' ace

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The opening game of the American League playoffs has given the victorious Minnesota Twins added confidence while re-introducing the Detroit Tigers and pitcher Doyle Alexander to the realities of defeat.

"Tonight was the most nervous of any game this year," winning pitcher Jeff Reardon said after the Twins, who rallied from behind in the eighth inning Wednesday night, came away with an 8-5 victory. "It gives us confidence we can match up with them."

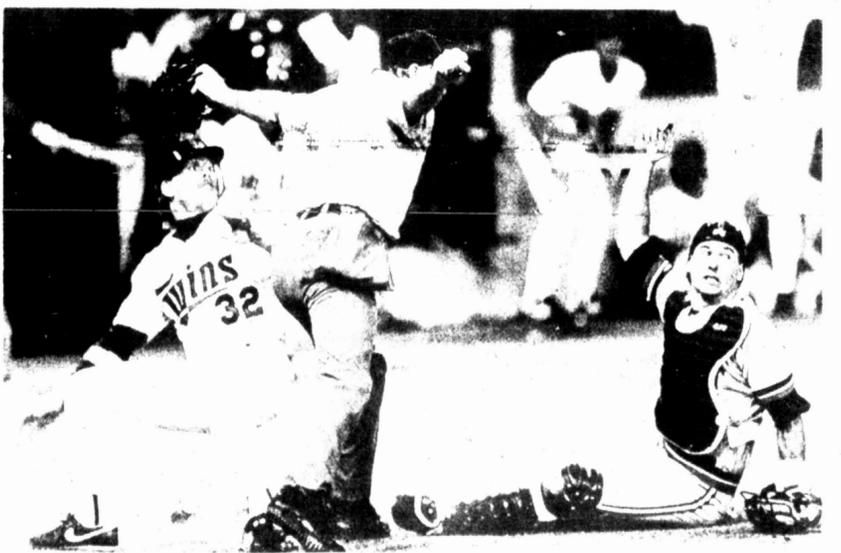

It was a point well taken because the Tigers won a major-league high 98 games — including the last three against Toronto to take the AL East — and held an 8-4 regular-season advantage over the Twins.

"I knew I couldn't win forever," said Alexander, who posted a 9-0 record — the Tigers were 11-0 in games he started — following his trade from Atlanta in August. "We had our chances."

"It was good to get the first one out of the way," said Gary Gaetti, who became the first player to homer in his first two at-bats in the AL playoffs. "It doesn't remove the pressure, though."

Reardon, who saved 31 games during the regular season — as many as the entire Tiger bullpen — got the victory after relieving left-hander Frank Viola with no outs in the eighth inning.

ed in the second inning when Gaetti hit a 2-2 pitch from Alexander over the fence in right-center field fence. In the fifth, he hit the first pitch in the same direction.

The game clearly demonstrated the superiority of the Minnesota bullpen.

Leonard, Dravecky lead Giants

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The "Hac-Attack" is back. Jeffrey Leonard, "Hac-Man" to his San Francisco Giants teammates, is butchering the St. Louis

NL

Cardinals' pitchers so far in the National League playoffs.

Leonard's bat and the two-hit pitching of Dave Dravecky, was too much for the Cardinals.

Leonard homered twice to the deepest part of center, defiant, 420-foot shots to the heart of big Busch Stadium, and he's singled three times as the teams split the first two games.

"When I got the ball up, he hit it out of the park. When I got it down he just took me the other way and got his hits," lamented St. Louis pitcher John Tudor, beaten 5-0 by the Giants in the second game Wednesday.

"I don't particularly like him," he added, "but he's a good player." The mustachioed, sometimes snarling Leonard is nearly as important to the Giants as Jack Clark is to the Cards. But while Clark stewes on the bench, unable to play because of a sprained ankle, Leonard is thriving on the hoots and hollers from the Cardinal fans.

Leonard has been looking for an edge to climb out of a deep slump that started four months ago after he'd led the league in hitting for three weeks through June 3 with a peak of .374.

He made the All-Star team for the first time in a nine-year career, then slogged through the rest of the season with wrist and hamstring injuries. He finished at .280 with 19 homers.

The Giants rested Leonard most of September so he could be ready for October, and now he's red-hot. He's also taking devilish pleasure in the bars of red-garbed Cardinal fans in left field.

Sands in key matchup versus Wellman

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The football prognosticators would probably say that Friday's Sands-Wellman matchup in Akerly is for the District 4-A Six-Man West Zone championship. But neither coach feels that way although Wellman and Sands were picked in different polls to win the zone championship.

Last year coach John Cornelius led the Wellman Wildcats to a perfect 9-0 regular season record, and the zone title. His team was beaten in the opening round of the state playoffs by Trent. He lost four starters from that team but so far the Wildcats have been holding their own this season. Wellman, 3-2 for the season, won its only district game last week against Klondike. Its two losses have been to undefeated Midland Christian and New Home. Sands returns an abundance of starters from last year's squad that just missed a trip to the state playoffs. Coach Sid McCowan's Mustangs bring a 4-1 overall record into the contest. The Mustangs own district wins over Dawson and Borden County. Their only loss came to powerful Jayton.

Which gives the game all the ingredients of a zone championship battle.

But the coaches insist it isn't, for the same reason.

"It's too early in the year to say this game will determine the zone champion said Wellman's Cornelius. "This district is too evenly balanced for that. Ourselves, Sands, Klondike and Loop all have good chances to win it all. Grady and Dawson also have improved teams," said Cornelius.

"You can't call this a zone championship game," said Sands' McCowan. "The district is tough up and down. If you don't come to play every night, then you'll go home a loser," McCowan concluded.

The game will feature two quick ballclubs with an all-purpose running back.

For Sands' it senior Jay Fryar, who's averaging 150 yards per game on the ground and another 80 in the air. Wellman can counter with 175-pound running back Jay Roughton. Cornelius says his star runner will also throw the ball, "but not as much as Fryar does."

Roughton is averaging 189 yards and per five receptions per contest.

"Wellman has an excellent ballclub," said McCowan. "We must play consistent defense and not give up the big play. We've got to make the big play on offense."

"Since they use him so much, the key for us is to stop Jay Fryar," said Cornelius. "Our goal is to stop him, and then work on stopping the others."

Clemson picked to keep streak going

BY HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer
Never say never.

That's an expression football coaches like to use from time to time, especially when someone asks if they might be interested in a job at another school.

But the word "never" really applies in the 26-game series between Clemson and Virginia. Virginia NEVER has beaten Clemson — or even tied the Tigers, for that matter. Where Clemson is concerned, there is no Santa Claus for Virginia.

There have been close games (eight times the margin of victory has been a touchdown or less) and there have been routs (55-0, 48-0, 47-0), but each time the "W" has gone to Clemson. Virginia's best years were 1961, 1962, 1967, 1968, 1975 and 1976 when the Cavaliers didn't play Clemson.

Small wonder that the eighth-ranked Tigers are 17 1/2-point favorites when Virginia "invades" Death Valley on Saturday.

The NCAA record for the most consecutive wins against a major opponent is 32 by Oklahoma over Kansas from 1937-68. Oklahoma also holds the record for the most consecutive games without a loss against a major opponent — 34 (including one tie) against Kansas State from 1935-68.

The longest such streak still working is 30 wins and one tie by Ohio State against Indiana, which provides this week's opposition for the Buckeyes.

Clemson is 4-0 this season, Virginia is 3-2 after an 0-2 start. The pick is ... Clemson 28-7.

Last week's prediction record was 36 right and 15 wrong for a percentage of .706. For the season, it's 144-53-3—.731. Against the point spread, last week's mark was only 15-21-2—.417; on the year, 60-61-3—.496.

The weekend's only pairing of Top Twenty teams finds seventh-ranked LSU at No. 16 Georgia, a game the oddsmakers rate even.

The mystery is where LSU's offense has gone. True, the Tigers are averaging 29.6 points and 433.6 yards a game, but most of that came in early romps against Fullerton State and Rice.

They scored only 17 points against Texas A&M and 13 against Ohio State and Florida. They are, however, still unbeaten — until Saturday ... Georgia 21-17.

No. 1 Oklahoma (favored by 3 1/2) vs. Texas at Dallas: It's a good thing players can't physically "sell" their tickets any more because Texas has fallen on such hard times that there might not be many buyers

Kansas at No. 2 Nebraska (by 50): Kansas can't possibly be as high as it was last week in nipping Southern Illinois 16-15, a team that lost to Delta State 24-16 ... Nebraska 56-0.

Maryland at No. 3 Miami, Fla. (by 27): First time all season the Hurricanes haven't played a Top Twenty team. Revenge for Maryland's stunning comeback from a 31-0 deficit three years ago ... Miami 42-7.

No. 4 Notre Dame (by 7 1/2) at Pitt: With their rugged schedule, the Irish can't begin looking ahead to their Nov. 28 date with Miami this early. An emotional homecoming for former Pitt coach Foge Fazio, now Lou Holtz's defensive coordinator. Upset Special of the Week ... Pitt 24-21.

Vanderbilt at No. 5 Auburn (by 24): At least Vandy Coach Watson Brown knew brother Mack and Tulane wouldn't roll it up last week ... Auburn 42-7.

No. 6 Florida State (by 20) at Southern Mississippi: Another loss could cost the Seminoles a major bowl bid ... Florida State 28-14.

Indiana at No. 9 Ohio State (by 14): Except for a 0-0 tie in 1959, the Hoosiers haven't beaten the Buckeyes since 1951 and have been outscored 995-287 ... Ohio State 31-14.

No. 12 Michigan (by 6) at Michigan State: The Wolverines have won their last two games by 49-0 scores. Second Upset Special ... Michigan State 20-17.

No. 13 Arizona State (by 1) at Washington: Will the real Huskies please stand up ... Washington 28-21.

Rutgers at No. 14 Penn State (by 14 1/2): An unpleasant homecoming for Rutgers Coach Dick Anderson, Class of '63 at ... Penn State 28-13.

No. 15 Alabama (by 16) at Memphis State: The Crimson Tide gets serious again next week against Tennessee ... Alabama 35-13.

Fullerton State at No. 18 Florida (by 40): The Traveling Titans already have found Hawaii and LSU to be inhospitable hosts ... Florida 49-0.

Colorado at No. 19 Oklahoma State (by 6): The winner could be a Big Eight dark horse. If the Cowboys remember last year's 31-14 loss to Colorado and don't look ahead to Nebraska ... Oklahoma State 21-14.

No. 20 Arkansas (by 8) at Texas Tech: The weak Southwest Conference is giving the Cotton Bowl indigestion. Third Upset Special ... Texas Tech 24-21.

Illinois (by 6) at Purdue: Fred Akers gets his first victory in the Fourth Upset Special ... Purdue 24-17.

Twelve 49ers cross picket line

By The Associated Press
All but seven NFL teams have cracks in their union solidarity as 37 more players defied the strike, bringing to 129 the number who have crossed the picket line.

The San Francisco 49ers, who beat the New York Giants 41-21 on Monday night with no regular players on the field, became even stronger Wednesday as quarterback Joe Montana, wide receiver Dwight Clark, running back Roger Craig and nine other 49ers rejoined the team.

Players who decided against staying out of uniform for the third straight weekend had to report by 1 p.m. in order to be eligible — and paid — for this week's games. The players union has 1,585 members, and of the 129 who have reported, 25 are on injured reserve.

The seven completely non-union teams are Kansas City, Philadelphia, the New York Giants, Seattle, San Diego, Tampa Bay and Washington. On four other teams — Chicago, Detroit, Minnesota and Green Bay — the only players who have reported are on injured reserve.

Thus, four of Sunday's games will match all non-union players, with San Diego at Tampa Bay, Washington at the Giants, Minnesota at Chicago and Detroit at Green Bay.

The Super Bowl champion Giants had three near-defections, when linebacker Lawrence Taylor, the NFL's most valuable player last season, Pro Bowl defensive end Leonard Marshall and third-string quarterback Jeff Hostetler reported Wednesday.

But they left after meeting with team officials. General Manager George Young denied the players were asked to leave.

The St. Louis Cardinals lead the league in defections, with 18, including four players who returned Wednesday — offensive tackle Tootie Robbins, punter Greg Cater, linebacker Charlie Baker and guard Mike Morris.

Offensive tackle Luis Sharpe, the Cardinals' assistant player representative, said strong union teams hold a low opinion of his team, who despite having 11 regulars on the roster last Sunday, lost 28-21 to the Washington Redskins.

Other teams in double figures among defectors were the Los Angeles Raiders and San Francisco with 13 each, New Orleans with 12, Denver with 11 and the Los Angeles Rams with 10.

Keith Fahnhorst, the 49ers' player representative, said the defections would cause team divisiveness.

The other players returning Wednesday were: placekicker Tony Franklin and running back Elgin Davis of New England; corner back Lester Hayes of the Raiders; quarterback Blair Kiel, nose tackle Scott Keller and tight end John Brandes of Indianapolis; center Joe Fields of the New York Jets; defensive end Carl Hairston of Cleveland; running back Frank Pollard of Pittsburgh; defensive end Eddie Edwards of Cincinnati; defensive tackle Kevin Brooks, running back Robert Lavette and wide receiver Karl Powe of Dallas; running back Carl Byrum and defensive back Durwood Roquemore of Buffalo; linebacker Bobby Leopold of Green Bay; tight end Mike Mularkey and defensive end Mark Mullaney of Minnesota, and safety Liffort Hobley of Miami.

Candlestick, a park that favors the power-hitter.

The Giants out-homered the Cards 205 to 94 this year, while the Cards led the league with 248 stolen bases.

But St. Louis was throttled in the second game by Dave Dravecky, who said he "zoned in on the catcher's glove" and pitched his best game ever, a two-hitter aided substantially by good defense.

Dravecky walked the leadoff batter in four innings, but in three of them he pitched to just two more batters. Catcher Bob Melvin threw out Tony Pena on a pitch-out called by Craig in the third inning and the Giants' infielders turned doubleplays in the sixth and eighth. Leonard's contract calls for him to make a $50,000 bonus if he's named the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs, but he says "I'm not even thinking about that."

Teammate Chili Davis said the Giants are showing their aggressiveness at the plate.

Ozzie Smith, stranded on second after leading off with a walk that was followed by Tommy Herr's single in the fourth, had a miserable day after flipping onto the field.

He hit into a double-play and booted a grounder by Uribe. Smith had a league low 10 errors this season.

Tigers a 5-4 lead with runs charged to Viola. Reardon gave up a single and a walk in the ninth, but wound up striking out the side, including Bill Madlock and Kirk Gibson to end the game.

But the Detroit bullpen failed to bail out Alexander.

Dan Gladden singled to start the eighth. After Greg Gagne fouled out, Kirby Puckett doubled to center to tie the game and bring on Mike Henneman, who intentionally walked Kent Hrbek and unintentionally walked Gaetti.

Willie Hernandez relieved Henneman and gave up the go-ahead run when Don Baylor, pinch hitting for Bush, singled to left. Brunansky followed with a two-run double.

Heath drove in another run with a bases-loaded single in the seventh. But it was the only run the Tigers could manage in the inning, despite singles by the first three batters.

Big crowd for Pokes?

IRVING (AP) — More than 10,000 ticket-holders requested refunds for Sunday's non-union Dallas Cowboys game by the Wednesday night deadline, and officials said they would set up a "swap window" for diehard fans to trade for choice seats.

With the refunds, final except for lagging mail returns, Cowboys officials say they expect one of the largest crowds in the nation when the replacement Cowboys meet the Philadelphia Eagles in Texas Stadium.

"We didn't know what to expect, but the average (attendance) last Sunday was around 19,000 and we've got a little over 43,000 with tickets now," said Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd. "We're going to have a good crowd." Swap windows were to open at the Cowboys ticket offices at 8 a.m. CDT Thursday so those holding tickets to Sunday's game may exchange them for returned season tickets.

Tickets from the refund pool will also be available for purchase at all Cowboys ticket outlets, officials said, but exchanges will only be made at the main ticket office at Cowboys Center in Valley Ranch.

Kickoff time is noon Sunday. The game will not be televised in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Former players say paper was wrong

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Two former University of Oklahoma football players quoted in a published report as saying they obtained preferential treatment in obtaining car loans and also sold football tickets for profit say their words were taken out of context.

The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday that the athletes, Buster Rhymes and Tony Rayburn, were among four who said recruiting coordinator Shirley Vaughn operated a system in which selected Oklahoma players received up to $4,000 for the sale of their ticket books.

Rhymes, now with the Minnesota Vikings, told Oklahoma City television station KTVY on Wednesday that he told the newspaper Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer acted only as a credit reference for him on a car loan because his parents were not in a financial position to sign the papers.

A spokesman for the newspaper said Wednesday that the paper stands by its story, "and we really have no further comment on what Rhymes and Rayburn would have to say."

Rhymes also told the television station he sold his tickets "at face value" and did not receive large sums of money for them as reported.

Rhymes was quoted by the newspaper as saying money obtained from ticket sales "was enough to tide you over for a good little while."

"I would go see Shirley Vaughn in August. We had ticket time, see, and you could sell your tickets ... She said she would sell them for you and then you could come back and get the money."

"What you hear me saying is the truth," Rhymes told the television station. "The Dallas Morning News misrepresented my words."

Rayburn also told the station he was misrepresented by the newspaper.

Rayburn said he did not sell any football tickets and said his parents co-signed the loan when he purchased a car.

He said he talked with a reporter for the newspaper and answered "no" when asked if he had gotten money from selling tickets.

The players had described identical payment plans concerning their cars, the newspaper reported, and said they contacted a Norman banker and Oklahoma booster after learning that he would finance new cars.
