Prison site selection process stalls

From staff and wire reports
Big Spring and thirty-two other Texas communities that want a state prison probably will have to wait until November to find out if they will get one, says a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman.

The Texas Board of Corrections has called a Monday meeting to discuss prison construction, but spokesman Charles Brown said Wednesday the discussion will be limited to privately built and operated prisons.

The big economic prize sought by the 33 communities is a 2,250-inmate medium and maximum security prison planned by TDC. Also planned are up to four, 500-bed pre-release centers to be built by the state.

A meeting of the site selection committee concerning the 33 proposals had originally been planned for today, said city councilman Johnny Rutherford, who had planned to attend the meeting.

A Big Spring proposal to bring a new medium or maximum security prison to Howard County was sent to TDC in September.

Rider Scott, general counsel to Gov. Bill Clements, said the private prisons, a concept approved by the Legislature earlier this year, would be similar to proposed state-built pre-release centers. Four 500-bed private prisons are planned.

"They will take inmates who are soon to return to society and give them intensive training and education and help re-orient them with their families and help them find jobs," Scott said.

The Legislative Budget Board on Tuesday cleared the way for prison board consideration of private prison bids by setting $41.67 per prisoner per day as the state cost of running such prisons. Under the legislation approved this year, private prisons must operate at a cost of no more than 90 percent of the state cost.

Scott said private prisons could open as soon as fall 1988.

Community interest in getting a prison is a change from past years when prison officials had difficulty finding areas that would accept a penitentiary.

"It's economics, I think," prison board Chairman Al Hughes of Austin said of the change of heart. "There's a tremendous amount of employment based around a prison system."

Hughes is on the board's site selection committee which is reviewing the applications.

Brown predicted no decisions would be made until after the Nov. 3 general election. Voters will

Big Spring High School's girls basketball team — in 1919 — took to the dirt courts in black sateen bloomers with a middie blouse.

"My bloomers had six yards of fabric in them," remembers Margaret Bainbridge Maples, captain of the team that went to district nearly 70 years ago.

"We were very feminine — I remember that." Maples, of Longview, was reminiscing with longtime friend and fellow classmate, Reba Orenbaum Baker at the recent Big Spring High School Homecoming. Maples was inducted into the student Hall of Honor as valedictorian of their class and was the earliest valedictorian present at the induction.

Maples and Baker first met as classmates at "Old Main," the school building once located where the Howard County Library now stands. All grades were taught in one school then.

The two drew a verbal picture of the Big Spring they remember during their school years. The business district was confined to a couple of blocks on Main Street. City streets weren't paved, but, of course, that was unnecessary for the wagons and buggies, they laughingly remembered.

The high school crowd's favorite activities, Baker said, were "kodaking" — picture taking with the new Kodak camera — and enjoying picnics at Cottonwood Park on the east side of town, on Signal Mountain — or at Moss Springs or the big spring.

Yes, the big spring was running then. Chaperones were required for co-ed outings, and usually a teacher or parent could be counted on to tag along.

When the Lyric Theater opened on Third Street between Main and Runnels streets — where Smallwood's operated until recently — 10 cents would buy a ticket to watch a silent movie with a piano

Fire case prompts further analysis

Herald staff report

Assistance from an Oklahoma doctor has been requested in the analysis of the remains of two bodies found in the debris of a Saturday fire near Luther, Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.

Dr. Clyde Snow, an anthropologist from Norman, will be in Big Spring this weekend or the early part of next week. Justice of the Peace William Shankles said.

The house, owned by the Federal Housing Administration, was destroyed in the blaze and was virtually ashes by the time firefighters arrived on the scene. The charred bodies of two men were found in separate rooms of the home, according to sheriff's reports.

Snow has been summoned in the past for identification purposes, Shankles said, adding that the doctor, retired from the Federal Aviation Administration, is nationally renowned for his work.

Shankles said he expects a complete pathological report from Dr. Robert Rember, a member of the Scenic Mountain Medical Center staff, sometime next week.

No ruling has been made on the identity or cause of death of the victims.

They are believed to be Mexican nationals who were working as farm laborers and residing at the residence.

The sheriff reported today that the results of tests on material from the fire are not yet available. Debris from the fire was sent to the Midland Department of Public Safety laboratory for testing.

Arson has not been ruled out, he said.

The sheriff's department continues to investigate the incident and three deputies have been assigned exclusively to the case, Standard said.

Sands board organizes appraisals

Herald staff report

ACKERLY — The Sands Consolidated school district Board of Trustees named six teacher appraisers and announced appraisal times during its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Teacher appraisal times for the 1987-88 school year will be Oct. 14 through Jan. 8, and Jan. 25 through March 17, according to Superintendent James Blake.

Appraisers certified by the board are Blake, High School Principal Ricky Mantooth, Elementary Principal Lon McDonald, Zelda Bilbo, Lynn Johnston and Trecie Sides, the superintendent added.

All appraisals will be announced, which Blake said will be an effective method of evaluating teacher performance.

"It's hard to hide a poor performance," he said. "We have excellent teachers here, so I feel they'll do very well."

In other business, the board:

• Appointed a Language Proficiency Assessment Committee.

The committee will be responsible for overseeing student performance in the English as a Second Language and Bilingual Education classes, and making recommendations, Blake said.

Persons named to the committee are McDonald, Lydia Arismendez, Christine Russell and Conchita Rodriguez, he added.

• Received a visit by officials of the State Accreditation Committee, responsible for accrediting schools periodically.

Although the officials' report on Sands has not been completed, Blake said he believed the school system did very well.

• Discussed the school's new telephone system with Bill Johnson of NTS Communications Co.

• Passed a resolution in support of an elected State Board of Education.

Midland works for girl's rescue

MIDLAND (AP) — Rescue workers feverishly drilled through solid rock late this morning toward a crying toddler who tumbled into an abandoned backyard well and was trapped more than 20 feet down, officials said.

"She is still alive. As long as she is crying, we have a chance," said Midland Police Cpl. Jim White.

Eighteen-month-old Jessica McClure had been inside the well since about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and the effort to retrieve her was still under way today.

White said the toddler had cried and moaned and talked to her mother. "The only thing I heard her say is, 'Mommy.' The rest is just crying and moaning. "The emergency room doctor at the scene last night said the baby can last as long as 36 hours. We hope it doesn't take that long," White said.

Rescue workers had reached the casing pipe lining the well by late morning and were about 6 inches away from the child. A mining expert had arrived at the scene with special equipment to aid in the rescue.

"The closer they get, the more vibrations, the louder the noise. The poor little thing is scared," said White. "The closer we get the more uncomfortable she is going to be but it's the only way we can go."

Jessica's father, Chip McClure, 18, thanked the volunteers and those who had donated food. "With the Lord's help and your prayers, we know that little girl is going to make it," he said late in the morning.

"I've known her since she was born — she's rambunctious," said Jessica's uncle, Tommy Johnson of Midland. "She's a fighter."

"Whenever they're drilling she'd cry," he said. "Whenever they quit she goes to sleep."

Gathered around the site were friends and neighbors who waited and prayed with Jessica's parents, Chip and Reba Gayle McClure.

Pereira plans to fight added costs

Herald staff report

The adoption of a new rule by the State Property Tax Board could mean an additional $16,740 in costs for the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District, Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira said today.

Board members passed a resolution Wednesday opposing adoption of the rule, Pereira said. District board members took the action during a 1 p.m. regular meeting Wednesday at the Howard County Courthouse Annex.

The resolution will be sent today to the chairman of the State Property Tax Board, Pereira said. The state board is scheduled to adopt or review Rule 163.6 at an Oct. 30 meeting.

The state board is seeking additional tax appraisal roll data that would require additional computer-ware, labor and office supplies, Pereira said.

Adoption of the rule would require a lot of extra work, he said, adding that he plans to attend the Oct. 30 meeting to protest the adoption of the rule.

"Quite frankly, I don't want to spend the money — I can't see spending my taxpayers' money," Pereira said.

The board also reviewed data presented by NTS Communications of Big Spring, a long distance telephone company. The board is expected to take action on the information at its next meeting.

The board also approved minutes of the Sept. 9 regular meeting, and a Sept. 10 emergency meeting, and approved payment of bills, the appraisal district report and the financial report.

Intern program applications available

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Residents participating as Omar Burleson interns will return from the nation's capitol "with a real awakening," Board Trustee Johnnie Lou Avery says.

Four people are chosen from the 17th Congressional District each year to serve as congressional interns for one month in Washington, D.C.

Interns return with new insight into the workings of government, she said, adding that most had no idea of the varied and complex duties of public officials.

Raymond McDaniel, chairman of the foundation's board of trustees, announced Tuesday that the foundation had completed requirements to be recognized as a public supported educational trust.

As a result, the foundation can accept donations from any civic club, company or individual to pay the costs of the program.

In the past, monies to pay for interns' expenses came from U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm's campaign fund. Stenholm plays no part in the selection of interns, however, Avery noted.

Avery said $1,200 is given to each intern to cover transportation and living expenses for the month-long Washington internship.

The program is entering its ninth year and has had 32 interns serve in Washington. Two of them, Matt Taylor and Tom Anderson, were from the Big Spring area.

The foundation receives as many as 95 applications annually, Avery said.

An eight-member selection committee, chosen by board of trustees, reviews applicants and reduces the list to approximately a dozen who are interviewed before the final four are chosen, Avery said.

Applications will be available beginning Nov. 1 and must be completed by February, she said. Persons interested in applying should contact Avery or Stenholm's Abilene office.

To qualify for the program, applicants must be educators, or students enrolled in a college, university or technical school. Anyone who is between age 19 and 25 and lives in the 17th district also qualifies, Avery said.

The final decision on the four interns will be made March 19.

Two interns work during June and two work during July.

"They do everything from researching bills to investigating problems of constituents," Avery said.

Burleson was Stenholm's predecessor and served in Congress for 32 years.

Steam machines switched

Herald staff report

The Howard County Sheriff's office received reports of criminal mischief, theft and assault Wednesday.

John Arrick, executive vice president of State National Bank, reported the theft of a $800 steam machine taken from a Big Spring truck and trailer building located on the south service road of Interstate 20.

Someone reportedly backed a truck up to the building, left an old steam machine and took a new one. The driver of the vehicle has admitted to the switch, according to sheriff's reports.

The sheriff's office received a call at 11:40 p.m. Wednesday of an assault victim in Scenic Mountain Medical Center's emergency room. Jeannie Hodges, Route 1 Box 535 D, was assaulted by someone she knows, according to sheriff's records. Hodges reportedly was struck in the face and sustained a broken nose, reports stated.

Beth Kuykendahl, Route 1 Box 624, reported Wednesday that her 1979 Cadillac smelled as though someone had poured gasoline over the interior. It is unknown if permanent damage resulted, according to reports.

Ronald Edward Krause Jr., 21, 1609 Avion St., was arrested Wednesday on a warrant charging him with criminal mischief. He was released on a $500 bond.

Melody Lynn Gay, 26, 1300 Princeton Ave., surrendered at the sheriff's office Wednesday on a charge of bondsman off bond on a grand jury indictment for theft over $750. She was released on a $2,500 bond.

Local store reports theft

Two thefts were reported to Big Spring police Wednesday.

Someone stole three cartons of cigarettes, valued at $71, and a ladies purse from The Box store, 2309 Scurry St., according to police reports.

Bobby J. Berryman, 1604 East Sixth St., reported the theft of two credit cards.

Three people were also arrested by Big Spring police Wednesday.

Joseph Lopez, no age given, 1407 Wood St., was arrested on an FTA warrant.

Alfred Lee Patton, 34, 1405 East Sixth St., was arrested on a parole revocation warrant.

Ricky Clayton, 17, 401 Young St., was arrested on FTA warrants on citations issued for speeding, no driver's license and no vehicle insurance.

Taking the oath of office during a Wednesday afternoon ceremony is new Big Spring Postmaster Kenneth Curry, left. Curry was installed by Emilio Garcia, manager of the postal service office in El Paso. Curry was formerly postmaster at the Lovington, N.M. office, and replaces Frank Hardesty, who retired earlier this year.

Coahoma City Council to enforce trash burning law

Herald staff report

Coahoma City Council members decided Tuesday to crack down on Coahoma trash burners.

Members decided to notify residents who have been burning trash within city limits that a city ordinance prohibits such action.

The council met for its regular meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the community center.

After receiving several complaints, the council decided to notify violators through certified letters. City Clerk Holly Best said. The city ordinance allows fines to be imposed on violators, but no specific amount is listed, Best said.

Anyone who knows of people who have been burning trash within city limits should contact the council, she said. Best had no estimate on how many people were violating the ordinance.

Best reminded Coahoma residents that the city is required to begin assessing tax on trash collection during October. As a result, she said, the trash assessment will increase from $7 to $7.50 effective this month.

accompaniment. "Your date would walk to your house, then walk you to the 'show', Maples said. "The high school hang-out was the Busy Bee Cafe in the 100 block of Main. They made a great double-deck sandwich."

The Busy Bee, according to Baker, was established to feed the railroad men. "Few families at that time could (afford to) eat out," she explained.

"Social activities were not organized by schools and churches, as they are now," said Maples, "so we had to improvise."

The women remembered that dancing was strictly forbidden. But youngsters found a way — usually at their homes, to the music of a Victrola.

"Remember, we always had a chaperone," reminded Baker. "There was absolutely no smoking or drinking."

The wife of a prominent citizen once reported a group of high school students guilty of misconduct — they were dancing, said Baker. Several of them, including Baker's sister, were forced to appear before the church congregation and publicly promise not to do it again.

Later, they both recalled, the city of Big Spring allowed young people to dance at city hall. The Elks Club opened a dance hall above the Albert Fisher Company in the 200 block of Main.

There was no city swimming pool, but that didn't stop the youngsters. The crowd went swimming at the tank behind the John Birdwell home (approximately where Golden Plains Care Center is now), and at Pool's Pond, a larger water hole at what is now 12th and Lancaster.

"There was no skinny dipping," assured Maples. "We were covered from head to toe."

Bainbridge was on the El Rodeo yearbook staff in 1919 and secretary-treasurer of the classes of 1916-18. Both women were members of the drama club. Bainbridge played basketball, while Baker was on the tennis team.

Both were members of the I.K.K.A.H. "This was a secret society," Baker explains. There was one for men, too — A.H.H.O.B. No one would tell what the letters meant — ever! It's been so long ago, I'm not sure, but I think the girls' society, I.K.K.A.H., meant "I Can't Keep A Husband!"

Perhaps someone else from the class of 1919 can recall.

Anti-apartheid law creates controversy

HOUSTON (AP) — Imagine a library without the Wall Street Journal or the Encyclopedia Britannica.

That's the quandary faced by Houston officials trying to comply with the city's anti-apartheid ordinance, limiting city dealings with businesses with ties to South Africa.

"We really do want the Wall Street Journal and the Encyclopedia Britannica," said Councilwoman Eleanor Tinsley, adding she feels it would be censorship if publications were withheld from the library for that reason.

City Council members approved the ordinance in July 1986 after weeks of emotional debate. But some city council members say a few of the effects of the law stray from the intended purpose — to strike a blow against apartheid.

In recent months, the directors of city library and park departments have had problems with the ordinance.

Many types of exotic snakebite antivenin that the city zoo keeps are only available through companies that do business with South Africa, Parks and Recreation Director Donald Olson said.

"It's a matter of having it around," Olson said, adding the zoo is often the only source of many exotic snakebite treatments in the Houston area.

Much of the zoo's supply is reaching the end of its shelf life, he said.

Library Director David Henington noted in April his department had to request all 3,500 of its vendors sign affidavits denying ties with South Africa. He predicted the library would lose many publishers unable to sign the affidavit.

True to the predictions, Henington's assistant, Margaret Green, said publications such as the Wall Street Journal cannot comply because they use a reporter in South Africa. Even Congressional Quarterly and the Encyclopedia Britannica cannot comply, she said.

"Our concern is we're unable to serve the citizens of Houston," she said.

Houston Councilman Ernest McGowan, who sponsored the original ordinance, said Tuesday he would back an amendment to allow the purchase of written material with South African ties. But he said he isn't convinced that there are no other sources of snakebite antidote that comply with the law.

Funds found for children

WASHINGTON — Immigrant children in 29 Texas school districts who were left out of a funding request approved earlier this year were provided for in a $1.3 million amendment attached to a major appropriations bill.

The new funds, approved Wednesday, will go to build new classrooms, buy equipment and provide instruction for an estimated 18,599 children who were not provided for in earlier Emergency Immigrant Education program funding.

In introducing the measure, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, called the oversight a tragic event and attributed it to "a series of administrative mistakes and miscommunications."

Terri Moore, spokeswoman for the Texas Education Agency, blamed the Education Department, which she said gave the state only three weeks to come up with data on the number of immigrant students enrolled in Texas schools.

Thatcher to visit Dallas

DALLAS — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will visit her only son and his wife, Mark and Diane Burgdorf Thatcher, during an unofficial trip to Dallas, sources say.

Thatcher is expected to arrive Sunday afternoon after a 49-nation, seven-day summit conference in Vancouver, British Columbia, sources told the Dallas Times Herald.

The private trip to Dallas, reportedly her first to the city, is shrouded in secrecy.

Sources said she will stay at her son's home in Highland Park, a city surrounded by Dallas and University Park.

The official spokesman for the prime minister would neither confirm nor deny the Dallas trip. Dallas attorney Paul Eggers, a friend of Mark Thatcher, is planning a dinner Monday evening for Margaret Thatcher and her husband, Denis.

"We don't know how it got out that she's even coming here," Eggers said. "I took the oath of secrecy."

Thieves pose as buyers

DALLAS — Four women posing as potential home buyers were believed to have stolen thousands of dollars in valuables from three home owners and real estate agents who allowed them to inspect the dwellings.

The women usually travel in a group of four, but sometimes in twos or threes, said police investigator Bill Carmack. The women have grabbed jewelry, expensive razors and even wallets belonging to real estate agents.

"One of the women distracts the Realtor by going outside to check the compressor or something, and they end up ransacking the house," Carmack said. Police say, in the last week, three such cases have been reported and investigators are looking at a similar incident in the Highland Park area.

New air ambulance opens

FALFURRIAS — Stories of patients from remote rural areas dying on long trips to hospitals spurred an official's efforts to obtain the air ambulance that begins serving 16 counties in South Texas today.

"I can tell you we could have saved 19 lives last year just from having this service on line," said James P. Dempsey, director of Brooks County Emergency Medical Services in Falfurrias, which will operate the new service, HALO Flight.

Dempsey said a 16-county emergency zone in which the helicopter is capable of arriving within 30 minutes will range from Refugio in the north, west to Laredo and as far south as San Benito in the Rio Grande Valley.

It also will serve locations outside of the zone for non-emergency patient transfers.

A frustrating incident last year in which a 24-year-old woman died from a collision with a bus on U.S. 281 south of Falfurrias motivated him to work harder to start the service, Dempsey said.

"A 21-minute flight would have saved her," Dempsey said.

Man hurt in lion attack

CRYSTAL BEACH — A man was bitten on the chest by a 320-pound lion in the second lion attack in the Houston area in four days.

Shawn Schilder, 20, of Port Bolivar, was treated for his wounds at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston and then released.

The lion's owner, Mike Kujawa, said late Wednesday he was desperately trying to find a way to avoid having the 17-month-old African lion, Shanda, killed today. Galveston County health officials earlier ordered the animal killed and its brains examined for rabies.

Saturday, 8-year-old Roxanne Hernandez, was mauled by a 300-pound lion being led through a North Houston flea market on a leash. She remains in the intensive care unit at Hermann Hospital.

Kujawa, 25, said Schilder, a sometime employee of Kujawa's Crystal Beach Riding Stable, was bitten when he fell chest-down on the animal's head Tuesday, provoking the attack.

But Joe Vickery, Galveston County Health District sanitarian, said Schilder had walked up to the declawed animal to pet it and was then attacked in Kujawa's front yard.

Gilligan home

A golden retriever nicknamed Gilligan was rescued Wednesday from an island in the Houston Ship Channel where he survived on small prey and puddles of rainwater. The dog had been spotted Oct. 7 on the three-mile barren strip of land. Four previous attempts at rescue had failed.

Linus Wright nominated for high office

DALLAS (AP) — Linus Wright, outgoing school superintendent in Dallas, welcomed his nomination as U.S. Undersecretary of Education and said he is looking forward to the challenge.

The White House announced Wednesday that Reagan would nominate Wright but issued no other statement. However, a Dallas school official said the nomination has already been made.

"Obviously, it is not unexpected," said DISD spokesman Larry Ascough. "The school system is honored that our superintendent has been nominated."

"We are very proud of that and are especially pleased to have a friend in Washington," said Ascough. "He is not leading an active life in education just in Dallas anymore; instead, schools across the nation will share his talents."

Ascough said Wright, who previously had announced his intention to step down as Dallas superintendent, received word of the nomination at about 1:30 p.m. CDT.

"I was elated to have heard it (the news of the nomination)," Wright said at a Wednesday afternoon news conference.

"It is a great honor to be accepting this nomination. I do have something to offer to the department. I am one of the few public administrators in the department."

Upon confirmation, Wright would replace Gary L. Bauer, now a White House domestic policy advisor.

"They've been assuring him all along that he would be nominated," another district spokesman said. "The word was that he was selected to be undersecretary of education and that all that remained was the nomination."

Wright said he hopes to interact with other education administrators, many of whom are attorneys.

Somebody will not go to heaven because of covetousness, at least that is what Eph. 5:3-5 says. "No covetous man has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ". Furthermore, a covetous person is, in these verses, put in the same category as those who practice fornication, filthiness and sexual immorality. And vs5 even says a covetous person is an "idolator". That's not only plain, but strong. There are two subjects that have their basis in covetousness: (1) wanting something for nothing and (2) gambling. Jesus said, "where your treasure is there will be your heart also" (Matt. 6:21). If, and when, a person is allowing their hearts to be filled or given over to greed and covetousness, it often comes out in various different methods of gambling, with a strong desire of getting something for nothing. In Eph. 4:28, the scripture says: "Let him who stole steal no more, but rather let him labor, working with his hands what is good." In 2 Thes. 3:10-12 the responsibility to work is discussed, so much so that he says, "if any will not work neither let him eat", and that "each with quietness is to do his own work". Gambling is dangerous to a person's soul. S. Patton

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Says Senate has disgraced itself

You're probably as tired as we are with the hearings to confirm Judge Robert Bork as a Supreme Court justice. The social activists know that you're too busy with your job and family to care much about it.

But it's their full-time job ... to make public nuisances of themselves in Washington. They imposed their will on the Senate to drag out the hearings and the result is that this eminently qualified and fair judge may not make it.

Why? Because he would curb state power, which threatens the social activists' very reason for living, and would restore power to where it belongs, with the people themselves.

During the past 30 years the social activists have taken a stranglehold on Americans' throats. Bork would begin reversing that (though to our minds, not fast enough).

Another part of the reason for this unprecedented delay and waste of taxpayer money is that three senators (Joseph Biden, Patrick Leahy and Edward Kennedy) are grandstanding before the TV cameras.

The issue of Bork's nomination should have been decided two months ago with the hearings themselves lasting no more than a week. The Senate has disgraced itself by letting the Supreme Court begin its fall term short of its full complement of nine members.

The Orange County (Calif.) Register

Points out what matters with Bork

Bork merits confirmation. He is exceptionally well qualified by training, intellect and experience to serve on the Supreme Court.

Although we might wish Bork to be more of a judicial centrist, the fact that the president has nominated a conservative judge is hardly surprising and not a matter of concern. Bork is a conservative but, contrary to the emotional rhetoric that has surrounded the confirmation hearings, he is not "outside the mainstream" of contemporary constitutional thought.

In fact, the argument that Bork ought to be barred from the court because he does not fit within the limits his opponents have chalked off is troubling. To subscribe to the notion that the court's range of intellectual thought must be held within a limited spectrum is to welcome judicial mediocrity.

True, Bork is a conservative. But he is also brilliant, reasoned and principled. And that, in the end, is what's most important.

Woodward on other credibility side

For the first time in his celebrated career, Washington Post super sleuth Bob Woodward apparently is finding himself on the wrong side of a credibility issue.

Woodward, who earned his spurs in the Watergate mess, asserts in his latest book that the late CIA Director William Casey confided in what amounts to a deathbed confession that he knew about the diversion of profits to the Contras from Iranian arms sales.

The Post and Newsweek published excerpts of the book's sensational charges, but a lot of people aren't buying the story, chief among them Casey's widow.

Sophia. Not one to mince words, she called Woodward a liar.

The Post says it stands behind Woodward. Fine. But one wonders why Woodward did not first offer the story to The Post when the Iran-Contra hearings were on the front burner and Casey was still alive. And if he did, why wasn't it published?

Perhaps The Post's editors weren't comfortable with the idea of publishing the answers to loaded questions asked of a dying man who apparently could barely speak.

Watertown (S.D.) Public Opinion

Ethics queried on Woodward book

While Robert Woodward's new book, "Veil" has Washington buzzing, it has also raised questions about ethics which are tough to answer.

Why, several critics have asked, did the key revelations of the book wait more than six months for publication when they might have been material to the Iran-Contra investigations, and surely would have interested readers months ago?

Woodward is, after all, an assistant managing editor of the Washington Post as well as a bestselling author. By saving the best bits for his books, he short-changed his newspaper employer. It's hard to defend such practices, particularly when the press correctly presses for rapid release of information from the government.

Other investigative reporters have chosen which field to pursue, such as Seymour Hersh, who broke the My Lai massacre story for the New York Times, but now works on his own. The Post should insist that Woodward make the same choice. Keeping timely information from the public is not good practice for newspapers.

The Kennebec Journal, Augusta, Maine

Says Bush didn't do well in Poland

Poland may seem to be an unlikely place to be added to the itinerary of a U.S. presidential campaign, but Vice President George Bush hates to lose a photo opportunity.

Bush made the most of his Warsaw visit, meeting with Polish government officials including Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, as well as with senior leaders of the outlawed Solidarity movement and Lech Walesa, its founder.

He told the latter he supported the movement, but stopped short of urging its legalization. He also visited a concentration camp, and appeared on Polish television.

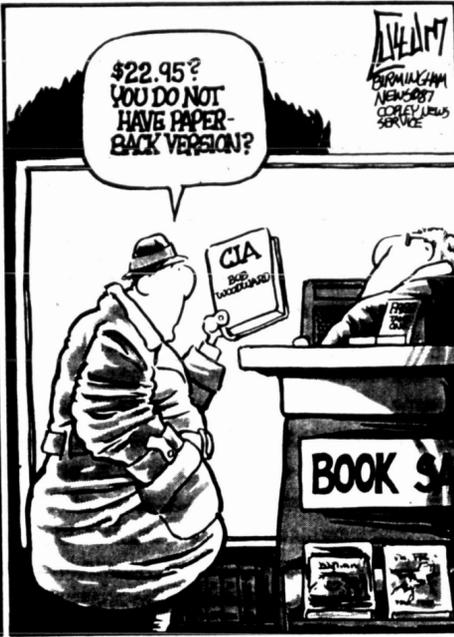

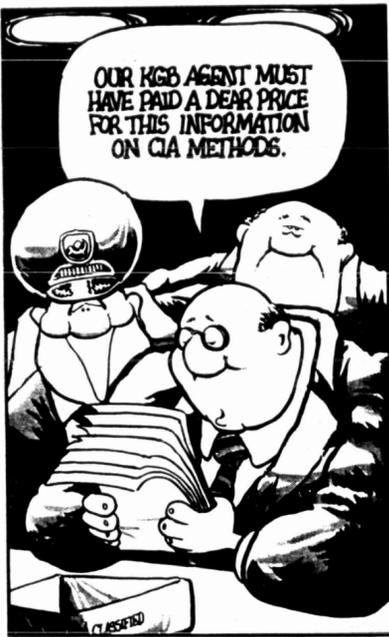

Presumably Bush's visit was in the spirit of warming up relations and urging the Polish government to get on with the process of liberalization. That is a proper course for the U.S. to take.

But Bush had something of a surprise. He said the U.S. agreed to help Poland obtain economic assistance to lighten its foreign debt burden. In short Bush said the U.S. agreed to assist that country in consolidating and rescheduling its loan repayments.

And what did Bush get in return for this rather large concession? Zilch. Zero. Not even a timetable for Poland's liberalization plans. There were vague assurances that the government was committed to reforms. That's not much of a trade-off. Wait until the far right in this country gets the impact of that.

Education gap may affect future economic growth

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The "gaps" that Americans are asked to worry about usually involve weapons or high technology vis-a-vis the Soviets, or credibility in the case of certain politicians.

Now some Labor Department economists have identified an education gap, yawning between the demands of high-tech employers and the supply of qualified job applicants. There won't be enough trained workers to fill all the jobs opening up in the next dozen years, they warn.

What makes this of more than academic interest is the dire effects this educational shortfall is bound to have on the U.S. economy. If uncorrected, it could eventually chip away at the standard of living Americans have taken for granted in the last 40 years.

American companies have suffered for years from competition from foreign firms whose workers are paid less; they will soon be vulnerable to foreign rivals whose workers know more.

The arithmetic of future employment is inexorable: Only 22 percent of today's jobs require a college education. But more than 50 percent of the new jobs created before the year 2000 will require education beyond high school — and there won't be anywhere near enough applicants who are qualified.

As a result, the experts estimate, almost one-third of these jobs will be filled — out of necessity — by workers who lack adequate education.

At first glance, the statistics on education don't look too bad: Today's job market demands a median of 12.8 years of education; the new job market will need a 13.5-year median. But when this is translated into English, it means there will be millions of Americans who won't have what it takes to answer the help wanted ads of the late 1990s. But desperate employers will hire them anyhow.

An even gloomier perspective: Out of more than 30 occupations that are growing at a greater-than-average rate and will probably continue to do so, all but one require education above the median level.

The exception is the service industry. But it's obvious that American prosperity in a competitive world can't be sustained by serving more fast food and fixing more flats.

The uncomfortable truth is that Americans who'll be joining the work force in the next dozen years will have educational and skill levels far below the increasingly tough requirements of the new high-tech economy.

Olliemania goes down the tubes

By ART BUCHWALD

The word on the street is that interest in Ollie North souvenirs is plummeting and vendors are now stuck with everything from videotapes to T-shirts.

Curious as to what all this means, I stopped by a stand on Pennsylvania Avenue that was loaded with Ollie North plaster statues wrapped in American flags, ashtrays with pictures of General Secord and Albert Hakim on them and bronze paper shredder bookends with Ollie and Fawn Hall on each side.

"Business seems slow," I said. "It's a disaster," the vendor replied. "Olliemania has gone down the tubes."

"But why? It seems to me that Ollie is as great a hero now as he was in his heyday."

"People are fickle," the man said. "There is nothing as old as yesterday's T-shirt."

"I see you still have a lot of Ollie

North letter openers," I said.

"It was one of my best-selling items. I couldn't keep them in stock. Now I can't give them away. You wouldn't be interested in an 'Ollie, Death Before Dishonor' tattoo, would you?"

"I already have one," I told him. "When did you realize the Ollie boom was over?"

"I don't know if it was when the Ollie butter plates stopped selling or when people ignored the Ollie Colt 45 cigarette lighters. For months I had people lined up at my stand waiting for me to sell them an Ollie North night light. Then suddenly it was like I was in the Sahara desert. People walked right by me to buy Mrs. Aquino wallets and Princess Di gold necklaces down the street."

"What did you do?"

"I yelled at them. I said, 'Is that any way to honor an American hero?'"

"What did they say?"

"One wise guy asked me, 'How do you know he's an American hero?' and I said, 'Because the President of the United States says he is.' And he said, 'How does the President know that when he doesn't know what time it is in Tehran?' So I retorted, 'If you're going to talk like that I don't want you to buy anything having to do with Oliver North.' So he said OK and I lost another sale. I never believed the attention span on Ollie would be so short. He came through strong and forthright and I thought his incense lamps would burn forever."

"Everyone else has been wrong about Irangate, why shouldn't you be?" I told him.

A man came up to the stand. "Are these authentic Ollie North paperweights?"

"I didn't realize I had any left," the merchant said. "You're very fortunate to have found the last one."

"There are a dozen of them here."

"The stock must have come in while I was out to lunch."

"You don't have 'Ollie's New Testament to History'?"

"No, but we have a book of all the presidential findings he wrote to Bill Casey."

"I want something that's going to go up in value."

"How about a coin from the Freedom Fighters' Fund?"

"What does Oliver North get out of that?"

"The usual standing ovation."

The birthday blahs come gift-wrapped

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

If you hear a roar from the general vicinity of the Herald this week, please don't be alarmed. It's not a tornado or riot, or even deadline for that matter — it's just my huge sigh of relief.

Once again, I'm at peace with the universe because I've survived another birthday.

Last Friday yours truly turned 33. That in itself wasn't so bad, until I read an Associated Press item declaring the median age of Americans is 31.

That means that I'm older than more than half of my countrymen. Right then I had stark, irrefutable evidence of what I have always suspected — I'm getting older.

Shining insight, don't you think? I don't necessarily mind getting older — at least not in the abstract. It's one of those aspects of life with which I made my peace long ago.

On the gut level, however, I scream. Ponce de Leon, the famous Spanish explorer, died searching for the fabled Fountain of Youth. It's an effort I better understood, as I sat contemplating my 33rd year.

If a person ever discovered the secret for eternal youth, the lucky fool would have enough money to retire the national debt. King Midas would be a pauper in comparison.

I hope I'm not giving the impression that I'm vain. The thought of someday reaching 60 or 70 actually holds some appeal — as long as I can still do most of the same things I do now.

Enough about that, however; let's get back to my birthday.

The nicest part of it was the hour after I awoke. For 60 minutes, my still-numbered mind was blissfully unaware that I was officially older.

The temporary calm was shattered, however, when a well-meaning co-worker — albeit misguided — wished me a happy birthday. The terrible truth finally had to be faced.

Aaaagghhh!

The only saving grace to this crisis was that I didn't suffer my misery alone. Robert Wernsman, our editor, also celebrated his birthday Friday.

I think he faced his moment of crisis better than I did, but I can't be sure. There were times when his smile seemed decidedly forced.

After sharing birthday greetings, he informed me that Friday also was John Lennon's birthday. Since Lennon is dead, the information did very little to brighten my mood.

With images of impending doom surrounding me, I sat down in front of my trusty computer terminal and attempted to work. To say I succeeded would be dangerously close to an untruth.

No matter how hard I tried, the importance of the day kept creeping into my thoughts. "Thirty-three," my mind's voice whispered. "You're getting older, Buck-o."

"No, I'm not," I replied to myself. (See, I told you the day was rough). "Yes you are," the voice replied. "Pretty soon, it'll be nothing but rocking chairs and stewed prunes for you, boy."

I give thanks that others in the newroom were unaware of the internal conversation I was having. Lord knows, the aging process is quite difficult enough without co-workers questioning my sanity. Besides, I enjoy having a job.

The day had its bright spots, however. A couple of colleagues chipped in to buy a birthday cookie for Robert and me. It was the largest chocolate-chip cookie I've ever seen — I'm told it was equivalent to three dozen typical cookies — and it beat the bejabbers out of any cake, too.

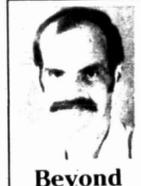

I managed to ignore the 150 candles.

Later that evening, a friend took the two of us for a fabulous Chinese dinner. Another friend and I blissfully saw the last of my birthday out at a local lounge, which was nice, also.

But the nicest touch came the next day.

As I was grocery shopping, I met a friend who wished me a belated happy birthday, and asked how old I was. After I admitted the truth, she said, "Gee, you don't look that old."

God bless her lying soul.

Reagan to still fight

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is promising a fight "to the last ballot" for Robert H. Bork, and backers of the Supreme Court nominee insist that they need until next week to make last-ditch arguments to the American people.

Reagan said in a speech Wednesday that the confirmation process was "marred by distortions and innuendos," and Senate Republicans argued — over Democratic objections — that it could take until Oct. 23 to set the record straight.

The opening day for debate was left unsettled, but the outcome is no longer in doubt. Fifty-four senators have announced their opposition to Bork, while just 36 have said they support him. Ten remain undecided.

Bush, Trudeau clash

ATLANTA — Vice President George Bush says he can now laugh at Garry Trudeau's "Doonesbury" cartoons depicting him as gutless and invisible, but he once wanted — and his sons still want — "to kick (Trudeau's) ass."

In an interview in The Atlanta Constitution today, Bush spoke about his image and his portrayal in "Doonesbury" since 1984, when he was shown placing his "manhood in a blind trust" to be President Reagan's loyal running mate.

"My first reaction was anger, testiness, getting upset," Bush said. But he said "there's been an evolution" in his attitude toward the cartoonist — after three years and a drink with Trudeau.

Stark report released

WASHINGTON — The USS Stark was saved from sinking after an Iraqi missile attack last May thanks to crew training and simple good luck, particularly since the ship's design limited its fire-fighting equipment, the Navy said today.

The Stark crew initially faced the threat of "mass detonation of the forward missile magazine," the report disclosed.

At the same time, the sailors were grappling with a fire that was "unique" in U.S. Navy experience — a fire so hot that instead of spreading horizontally, it spread vertically by flooding equipment on the deck above to the flash point of ignition, the report adds.

Six killed in house fire

MILWAUKEE — A fire that apparently was started by electric heaters killed six children and injured four other people early today.

"We've been told the gas had been shut off and they were using electric heaters," said Fifth Battalion Chief Howard Gassel. He said at least two heaters were found in the house.

It was the second major fire in Milwaukee within a month. On Sept. 30, 10 children and two adults were killed in a fire about one mile from the scene of today's fire.

Gassel said anywhere from 10 to 15 people were living in the house that burned today.

Explosion

25 injured in Chinatown restaurant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A propane tank was believed to be blame for an explosion that ripped through a Chinatown restaurant, injuring 25 people and igniting a three-alarm fire that caused an estimated $250,000 damage, authorities said.

"Boom, boom, boom. It just exploded," said Chung Sun Chan, who was inside the popular Canton Tea House in the city's most densely populated neighborhood during Wednesday's lunchtime blast.

Of the 25 injured, officials said, seven were admitted to San Francisco General hospitals, where two were listed in serious condition with smoke inhalation, cuts and second-degree burns, and five were in satisfactory condition.

Three were firefighters treated for minor injuries, fire officials said.

Fire damage was limited to the restaurant's upper floor, and fire Capt. Richard Crispin speculated that a five-gallon propane bottle blew up at a second-floor waiter's serving table.

"I heard a big explosion and glass flew across the street," said Paul Lee, owner of a grocery store across from the restaurant. "The building was shaking. We were all scared. I didn't go out. We thought it was a bomb."

Bus driver Norman Green said he was driving near the two-story restaurant when the explosion "blew the window right out across the street in front of me."

A paramedic carries an unidentified boy away from the Canton Tea House restaurant in Chinatown, San Francisco, Wednesday after an explosion rocked the restaurant during the lunch hour. The boy was in the building at the time of the blast and received a large bump on the head. About 25 people were injured.

Bill bars promotion of homosexuality

WASHINGTON (AP) — An overwhelming Senate vote to deny federal money for AIDS education materials that critics say promote homosexuality is prompting countercharges that the action will lead to unnecessary deaths.

"Education for high-risk groups must be explicit, detailed and unflinching," said Ann McFarren, executive director of the AIDS Action Council, an umbrella group of health and social service providers. She called the Senate's action Wednesday "a literal death knell... to the only effective means of curtailing the spread of AIDS."

Barry Lynn, legislative counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union, said private groups could be denied funding "if they speak bluntly to their constituencies. This could result in government suppression of vital informational material which must be disseminated if the AIDS crisis is to be reduced."

At issue is an amendment to the $129 billion Labor, Health and Human Services and Education appropriations bill passed 80-15 by the Senate on Wednesday evening. The bill contains $946 million for AIDS research, prevention, information and education, including $310 million for education efforts overseen by the Centers for Disease Control.

But before passing the overall bill, the Senate voted 94-2 to accept a version of an amendment sparked by conservative Sen. Jesse Helms' viewing of graphic sexual comics produced by the Gay Men's Health Crisis of New York.

The amendment says federally financed educational materials about AIDS must stress sexual abstinence and cannot promote or encourage homosexuality or intravenous drug use.

Opponents said the amendment clearly would limit CDC's ability to educate drug addicts, homosexuals and sexually active heterosexuals, particularly young people, about the dangers of AIDS.

"If you're going to censor that education, you've got no solution" to the AIDS crisis, said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who voted against the measure along with Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Weicker said CDC workers would risk losing their jobs and organizations would risk losing their grants if they so much as suggested clean needles or condoms to protect people against the deadly illness.

Radiation victims dying

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Four people who handled brilliantly glowing radioactive material sold as scrap to a junk dealer are in critical condition, including one whose arm was amputated, officials said.

Roberto Santos Neves' badly burned arm was amputated just above the elbow to reduce the chances of infection from festering sores, doctors at a navy hospital said Wednesday.

Forty-one people have been hospitalized with radiation sickness from exposure to the cesium-137, officials said.

Those who die will be buried in airtight coffins, said Rex Nazare, president of the National Nuclear Energy Commission.

"They would be buried in coffins with a special seal on the inside so there would be no risk of contaminating the environment," said Nazare.

Police arrest students

SEOUL, South Korea — Police arrested 11 students suspected of organizing a secret leftist group that staged violent anti-government campus demonstrations, authorities said today.

Police said they were looking for eight other students allegedly linked to the group "Headquarters of National Student Movements." Police said the group, which claims to have 20,000 members nationwide, supports communist North Korea.

A police statement, which did not say when or where the students were detained, said the arrests will cripple violent college protests such as ones staged nationwide in June.

"Following the arrests, the organization of the most violent campus groups... is expected to collapse," the statement said.

Cessna to be returned

MOSCOW — A Soviet government spokesman said today that the single engine plane flown to Red Square by Matthias Rust the daredevil West German teen-ager, will be flown back to West Germany on Sunday.

A West German pilot has come to the Soviet Union to fly the Cessna 172-B to Hamburg Sunday morning, said the spokesman, who spoke on condition he was not identified.

He said he did not know the pilot's name or other details of the plans to return the aircraft.

The spokesman said an official announcement would be made in the Soviet press.

Soviets stop rally

MOSCOW — Soviet policemen broke up a rally by Jewish refuseniks and cut the cables of American camera crews covering the event, in the toughest action against such protests in recent months.

Witnesses said at least a dozen demonstrators were shoved into a bus Wednesday night and driven away from the protest site at a government television studio. Several were released later in the evening, it was not clear if any were held overnight.

Iranian missile slams into Kuwaiti oil terminal

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An Iranian missile slammed into Kuwait's main oil loading terminal today, setting an American-owned supertanker ablaze but causing no harm to U.S.-flagged ships nearby, officials and shipping sources said.

The shipping sources said the missile might have been a Chinese-made Silkworm. If true, it would be the first time Iran has used the medium-range missile against a ship.

At the United Nations, meanwhile, the Security Council agreed to back a proposal to end the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war, sources said. The proposal links a truce, a withdrawal of troops and formation of a panel to determine who started the war.

The 273,937-ton Liberian-flagged Sungari, owned by New York-based Omi Corp., was hit in the starboard side at about 5 a.m., said shipping sources who were in contact with Kuwait. They said ambulances rushed to the terminal.

The Kuwait News Agency reported there were no deaths among the crew, but did not say if there were injuries. It said a fire on the ship was brought under control.

Shipping sources said the tanker was anchored at the Mina Al Ahmadi oil terminal, where four U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers were waiting to be loaded with oil for a trip out through the Persian Gulf with U.S. Navy escorts. It had taken on half its cargo when hit.

No American warships were in Kuwaiti waters at the time of the attack, and the U.S.-flag tankers were not affected by the missile, said a U.S. official in the gulf.

U.S. sources would not comment on whether any of the four U.S.-flag

Kuwaiti tankers had been moved after the strike.

The Kuwait Defense Ministry said the missile hit "Kuwaiti territorial waters," without specifying the area.

"Kuwait holds Iran responsible for this act," said an unidentified Defense Ministry official, quoted by the Kuwait News Agency.

Last month, Kuwait confirmed that Iran fired a Chinese-made missile into southern Kuwaiti territory. Silkworms have a range of 50 miles and can carry a warhead of up to 1,000 pounds.

U.S. Navy officials said they could not confirm the type of projectile that struck the Sungari. The shipping sources said it might have been a Silkworm fired from the Iranian-held Faw peninsula in southern Iraq or a smaller, anti-ship missile fired from a boat.

Western diplomats said Iran may have fired the missile as a show of defiance in response to the U.S. Navy's attack on the Iran Ajr minelayer on Sept. 21 and the loss of three speedboats in a shootout with U.S. helicopter gunships a week ago.

Ferraro says attorney was dumb

NEW YORK — Geraldine Ferraro lashed out at her former boss, the Queens district attorney, with a "four-letter word" — dumb — after he tried and failed to convict her husband of trying to shake down a cable TV company.

John Zaccaro, 54, was acquitted Wednesday on bribery and extortion charges in an indictment Ms. Ferraro reiterated would not have been brought if she hadn't been the 1984 Democratic vice presidential candidate.

After the verdict, Ms. Ferraro said she might run for office again and would work to defeat in 1989

District Attorney John Santucci, who helped launch her career by hiring her as a prosecutor and later backed her for Congress.

"If we can't find a Democrat to do it, and the Republicans come up with someone... I'll be there to help out," she said.

Ms. Ferraro's real-estate broker husband was accused of scheming in 1981 with then-Queens Borough President Donald Manes to solicit a bribe from Cablevision Systems Corp. for the lucrative contract to wire the borough.

Manes, who also was implicated in unrelated corruption cases, committed suicide in 1986.

Zaccaro, if convicted, could have received up to seven years in prison.

"I'm angry at John Santucci for bringing this obviously empty indictment," Ms. Ferraro said on the courthouse steps. "It should never have happened. There's a four-letter word I can use to describe John Santucci."

"Dumb," she replied, smiling. "It is a dumb indictment. It was a dumb political action. But I guess, of course, anybody who sits on their brains for 14 hours at a time must suffer some sort of damage."

Misinformation tarnishes man's sterling reputation

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old, single, honorably discharged Vietnam veteran who is well-thought of in my community. I have excellent credit, a responsible job as an investment manager, and I work with disadvantaged children. I help raise money for charities and have a wonderful circle of friends. So what's the problem? Recently, pursuant to the upgrading of corporate policy, a new background check was run on employees. No problem. Nothing for me to hide. Right? Wrong. It seems this large international investigation company returned a report on me saying that I had been arrested six years ago for drug possession, fined and imprisoned. There's just one minor problem. It wasn't me. By referencing the case number and calling the records divisions of the court, I was able to discover that the individual they referred to in the background report:

1. Had a different middle name.
2. Obviously, a very different Social Security number.
3. Was a different race than I am.

This little fiasco caused in-describable tension with my employer and unbelievable embarrassment to me.

Abby, I am lucky. My employer at least showed me the report rather than immediately firing me as he might have. The point is not that I was able to get things straightened out and obtain a very half-hearted apology from this firm. The point, more significantly, is, how many innocent people are haunted by these grossly inaccurate, indeed, even libelous reports that they never get the chance to see? Jobs, mortgage loans, memberships to organizations — who knows what all a person will be denied because of one of these "small errors" in data retrieval?

Please let your readers know that anytime they suspect that one of these checks will be run on them, they have the right to request that a copy of the report be sent to their home. It would be a hell of a nice idea if some legislators would introduce a bill making dual reporting mandatory. What do you think? Incidentally, I am suing the reporting company.

MAD AS HELL IN SEATTLE

DEAR MAD: I think I would be even "madder" than you had I been victimized in that manner. Thank you for a valuable letter.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a secretary in New York City. I recently purchased — from a vendor on the sidewalk — a "1987 Edition of Webster's Dictionary."

On several occasions I have consulted that dictionary to verify the spelling of a word, and much to my amazement, those words were not to be found!

On closer examination, I noticed in small print on the title page a disclaimer stating: "This book is not published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary — or by their successors."

Abby, please print this letter to alert my fellow secretaries, students, and the public in general. JANE LABRIOLA, N.Y.C.

DEAR JANE: Lucky you. You got a worthless dictionary but learned a valuable lesson: Never buy in haste, and only from reputable dealers.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped 39-cent, self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

For Abby's booklet "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped 39-cent, self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Club members informed on hazardous chemicals

On Oct. 5, Mike Flanigan, Haztex and Associates, safety consultant to Fiberflex, informed members of the Desk and Derrick Club about the new federally mandated law respecting a community's right to know about hazardous and toxic chemicals used, stored and disposed of by industry and business. Reporting requirements will be in place by Oct. 17, he noted.

Flanigan explained, that locally a city/county emergency planning committee has been appointed, in compliance with the program requirements. State and local officials along with industry representatives are among those who will serve, according to the club report.

Turning to safety in the home, Flanigan stressed the importance of precautionary practices with household chemicals. He said to be aware that chemicals can be combustible, can vaporize into deadly fumes, and can cause serious skin damage. Some cleaners can be safely used alone, but when used with another substance can be extremely hazardous. He cautioned about reading labels carefully before using products, providing adequate ventilation and proper storage.

Another warning — never start your car while it's being filled with gasoline, said Flanigan. Flanigan, who received his degree in geology from Baylor University, is a USAF veteran and reservist, and was stationed at Webb Air Force Base in the early '70s.

Mrs. Billie McLain, committee chairman, announced plans for a field trip to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum in Midland. Members and their guests will meet at 12:30 p.m. Sunday at 611 Main St.

Members heard reports from Mrs. Marvin (Margaret) Wise, president, and Mrs. Paul (Charlotte) Sheedy, on their attendance at the 36th annual convention of the Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs, Sept. 17-19 in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Program on Channel Jewelry slated for meeting

Big Spring Prospector's Club met in regular session Oct. 8 at 606 East Third St., with Jerald Wilson, president, residing.

Prayer was offered by Dr. Laurence Snively, and Charles Leek led the pledge of allegiance.

After the business meeting a pot-luck salad supper was enjoyed by the members and one guest, Linda Tabor. Tables were draped with white cloths and featured bright yellow fall flowers, decorated by Elaine Matteson, hospitality hostess.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to the youngest members, Stephany and Bethany, one-year-old twin daughters of Jackie and Donna Nixon.

After the festivities, Jerald Wilson presented two short slide programs titled, "Yosemite National Park" and "Grand Canyon," furnished courtesy of the National Federation of Mineral Societies.

The next meeting will be Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m., which is a week earlier than usual, at the club house.

At this time, Stanley Tims, and son, Bob, of Tucson, Ariz., will present a program on Channel Jewelry.

Stanley is a designer, teacher, and lecturer, of considerable fame. He has presented programs and demonstrations in most of the United States and some Canadian provinces, and has appeared on many television programs, according to the club report.

After his retirement in 1966 from an engineering career with Hughes Aircraft of California, he began devoting much of his time to the lapidary hobby, according to the report.

His personality, enthusiasm and talent soon made him a much sought-after lecturer for school clubs, civic organizations, and television, according to the report.

Most of his original designs are created in silver and semi-precious stones, but he also does faceting of precious stones.

"We are honored and fortunate to have him and his son as our guests," said Myrtle Griffith, reporter. All members are urged to attend and bring a guest.

Elections for 1988 officers will also be conducted.

Restoration of antique trunks topic at meeting

Mary Jane Club of Coahoma met Oct. 8 at the home of Ethel Hart, with Frances Mason co-hosting.

Janie Phinney, vice president, presided. Roll call was answered with "My hidden talent." Juanita Stonebrook was welcomed as a new member.

Members will bring Christmas gifts to the next meeting Nov. 12 at the home of Diane Wood, for patients at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Hart presented a program "Talent from the Hart," demonstrating the restoration of antique trunks. She displayed four trunks she restored herself, showing before and after pictures.

She showed tools and supplies she uses and also presented information on ordering various parts and accessories.

Hart lined each one with aromatic cedar, and some were lined with quilted calico, using this to cover hat compartments and trays. One lid was lined with leather.

She also showed pictures of her original designs for hand-painted sweat shirts.

In observance of National Apple Week, the refreshment table was centered with a grapevine basket made by Hart, which was filled with apples and eucalyptus. All refreshments featured apples.

Study club discusses Oriental art and customs

The 1941 Study Club of Coahoma met at the home of Mrs. Rodney Tiller during the first week of October, with Mrs. James Green co-hosting.

Mrs. Johnny Justiss, president, presided at the business meeting.

The program was presented to 19 members by

Mrs. Jackie Mauch, who has lived in Okinawa and has visited the mainland of Japan several times.

Mauch noted Oriental customs and displayed several examples of Oriental art work.

The next meeting will be Nov. 2 at the home of Mrs. Wendell Shive.

Women's club informed of Pocket Park progress

Big Spring Junior Women's club met recently in the annex building of the First United Methodist Church for a business meeting with Pam Mitchell, president, presiding.

Rev. Victor Sedinger presented an informative program about "The Rainbow Project." He invited club members to attend a meeting of the Child Abuse Prevention Coalition being formed. The meeting will be at noon Oct. 22 at the Permian Building.

After the program, Teri Quinones and Elaine Oliver presented club members with an update on the Downtown Pocket Park project, which the club will donate $350.

Gay Herren, chairman of Major Ways and Means Projects, signed members to work at the club's concession booth during the Big Spring Arts & Crafts Festival. Sausage-on-a-stick, lemonade, iced tea, and caramel apples will be sold.

After the business meeting, guests were treated to a reception and given the opportunity to join the club. 18 new members joined.

The next meeting will be Monday in the annex building of the First United Methodist Church at 7 p.m.

Homecoming corsages are blooming business

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — If you think of simple, fresh chrysanthemums when you think of homecoming corsages, you obviously haven't kept up with the times.

Enormous paper mums in the school colors, reds, blacks, maroons and oranges, are simply a starting point. Then add miniature footballs, a rabbit's foot, streaming ribbons in school colors, tiny cowbells and football helmets.

These are the basics for building a corsage guaranteed to melt the heart of the most elusive high school girl.

Annette Grein, owner of Tigua Hobbycrafts, not only has the recipe, but she also has the ingredients for such a corsage. People begin flocking to her store in El Paso's Lower Valley just before the homecoming season starts in October and the flow doesn't let up until high school homecomings end later in the fall.

"There's a kind of competition to see who can give the girls the most elaborate corsages," Ms. Grein says. "They probably weigh a pound. That's quite a bit if you think of a pound of butter on your chest."

The trend toward weightier corsages began about six years ago, she says, but they weren't an immediate success.

"At first they didn't go over. The girls wanted real mums. But then they saw their friends with (the paper mums) hanging in the bedrooms long after homecoming, and they wanted them, too. They last, and they're real nice mementos."

So elaborate are the corsages that the girls attach them to their formal gowns with harnesses made of ribbons or on a sash.

Rather than paying others to make the corsages, many people learn to make their own in classes offered at the store. It takes about two hours to learn the basics and make a simple corsage.

To simplify the process, kits are available with the basic ingredients. They contain a rabbit's foot, horseshoe, football, cowbell and helmet. Also needed are ribbon, letters and mums.

The guys aren't forgotten, either.

"A girl feels real bad if her guy gives her a really nice corsage and her boutonniere doesn't measure up," Ms. Grein says. A kit for a boutonniere, given with a garter, includes four yards of satin ribbon, a yard of party ribbon, a carnation, a miniature football, feathers and chenille.

The garters come in fancy and plain as well, and are attached to the boutonnières by chains.

Every year, new trinkets and twists are added to the floral creations. This year it's tiny music boxes that play sweet melodies such as "You Light Up My Life," "Love Story," and "If You Love Me." One even has a romantic double whammy "Love Me Tender" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Also available are lights or lights and music boxes intertwined. When the wearer pushes the music box, the music comes on and the lights flash.

Maria Elena Samaniego, herself a homecoming queen and cheerleader in the late 1950s, now makes corsages for her sons' girlfriends.

Practicing the fight

They are the "forgotten few." Risking life and limb, they routinely thrust themselves into stifling smoke and searing heat to protect citizens' lives and property.

Monetary reward is not their objective, but they relish the personal satisfaction of public service.

They are Howard County volunteer firefighters.

"These men give freely of their time and effort without pay and little recognition ... they deserve all the recognition they can get, and then some," said Big Spring Fire Department Training Officer Alex Calvio.

Nearby, as Calvio spoke, about 30 members of six Howard County volunteer fire departments were going through the rigors of training exercises.

One by one, firefighters — laden with the 25-pound burden of bright yellow oxygen tanks strapped to their backs — stepped into the pitch-black confines of a 20-foot square gray concrete block building.

The intermittent "hiss ... hiss" of heavy breathing through air tank regulators and the muffled voices of firemen, confined inside snug air masks, provided supplemental background sounds complementing Calvio's words.

This scene took place at the "smoke house" on the east edge of the Big Spring Airpark Sunday, when volunteers from Sand Springs, Silver Hills, Forsan, Cohoma, Lomax and Jonesboro fire departments gathered for a combined training session.

It was the first hands-on training exercise for county volunteer firefighters since the Howard County Volunteer Firefighter's Association was formed two months ago, according to C. Roy Wright, Sand Springs fire chief and association president. "None of the volunteer fire departments are large enough to conduct their own training. This is one way we all can get together and learn," Wright explained.

Big Spring Fire Department hosted Sunday's session, which included training in oxygen equipment use, techniques for locating and rescuing people trapped inside smoke-filled buildings, and deployment and use of hoses and nozzles.

"Conditions today were set up as close as possible to conditions firemen might encounter when fighting a real fire," Calvio said.

Big Spring Fire Department has assumed a "big brother" role in assisting with the training, according to Calvio.

"We take care to make sure what they are doing is safety oriented," he said.

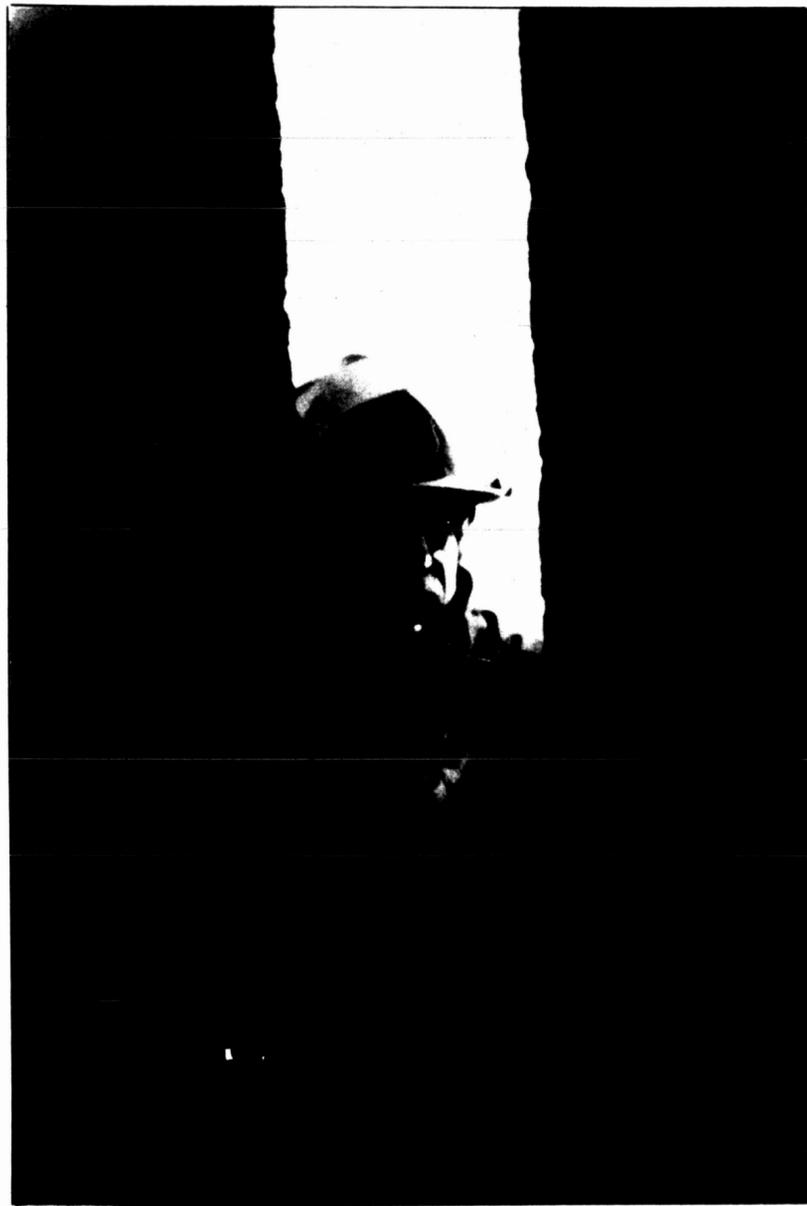

There is an additional bonus to the training, Calvio said, as it better prepares volunteer firefighters to contain major structure fires requiring assistance from the Big Spring department.

"The training helps them to know what they are doing and enables them to contain a major fire until we can get there to help," he said.

An improved image for volunteer firefighters is also an indirect benefit from the training sessions, according to Stanley Phillips, a member of the Sand Springs department.

"We are trying to correct the image of a volunteer firemen knocking down the front door and opening up the water hose full blast," Phillips said.

Wright said the members of the association will continue to meet for two hours of classroom training on the first Tuesday of each month, and will conduct field exercises similar to Sunday's training session whenever possible.

Howard County volunteer firefighters were subjected to the rigors of hands-on training during Sunday's exercise at the Big Spring Airpark. Clockwise starting above, firefighter Fred Newman peers through a window to see if his use of a water hose was effective in extinguishing a structural fire. Firefighters, including Larry Chandler, Don McIntire and Bob Wilson, extreme top, stretch out the hoses. Newman is also captured in action in the two photos at the bottom of the page.

"We're here to please," says Ralph Johnson, new manager of Golden Corral on FM 700. Ralph has been at the Golden Corral since it opened four years ago, and was assistant manager until his promotion a few weeks ago.

He feels that the reasons for Golden Corral's popularity are the friendly atmosphere, the fast, courteous service and the consistently good food. "Your meal is guaranteed — if you don't enjoy it we'll make it right."

Freshness is important. Their salads are made daily and their meat is cut daily.

The popular salad bar features all the usual raw vegetables and goodies, plus a dessert bar with as many as six choices: a hot food bar with five vegetables, pasta dish, three fried vegetables; crab, shrimp, tuna or turkey salad. There's a lunchtime salad bar special — all you can eat for $4.39 from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

"Our 7-oz. sirloin with baked potato is probably our most asked-for steak," says Johnson. But they also serve T-bones and rib-eyes, as well as a variety of chicken, fish, shrimp and combination platters and hamburgers.

They offer a Senior Citizen special for age 60 and over.

Golden Corral is a family dining facility, with plenty of room and accommodations for children.

For special occasions such as birthdays and anniversaries, the staff serves a candle-lit cake and sings to the honoree to the enjoyment of all diners.

Local athletes running to glory

By STEVE BELVIN

Big Spring is beginning to be a hot bed for good distance runners and triathletes.

In the current Tri-FedTexas Triathlete Rankings, two locals are listed near the top of their age divisions. In the 40-44 age division, Don Davis is ranked fifth and Vic Keys is ranked eighth.

The ranking are based on a point system in which the individual is awarded points for every triathlon they compete in.

Now for some road running news...

The Big Spring Running Club was well represented at the Texas Tech Homecoming Road Race last weekend.

The six members of the team were Lee Lowrey, Glen Fillingim, Harlan Smith, Linda Davis, Don Davis and Vic Keys.

Placing second in his his age division was Keyes. He was followed by Davis who finished third. Linda Davis was second in her age division.

The club will be competing in an eight-mile race this weekend in Midland. Anyone interested in running should call Keyes at 263-3543 or Don Davis at 267-4010.

Local boxer Juan Baldwin recently participated in the Elite All-Comers Camp in Marquette, Mich., on the campus of Northern Michigan University. The event is sponsored by the USA Amateur Boxing Federation.

The camp included extensive training sessions, defense training and improvement clinic for boxers. The objective of the camp was to expose national caliber athletes to a training camp environment and to expand the pool of talent for international events.

Now some news for hunters...

Landowners and hunters are reminded that no antlerless deer permit issued by the Texas Parks and Wildlife department will be required for taking antlerless deer in Howard County, south of Interstate 20, for the regular deer season for 1987-88.

Antlerless deer in Howard County will only require being tagged with the appropriate tag from the hunter's valid hunting license.

The regular gun white-tailed deer season for 87-88 is November 14 through January 3, with a bag limit of four deer, no more than two bucks in Howard County.

Landowners in Glasscock County are reminded that a mail-out system for issuing antlerless deer permits was initiated for the 87-88 regular deer hunting season.

Landowners or their agents that received antlerless deer permits last year were automatically mailed a renewal notice and antlerless deer permits will be mailed directly to them.

Landowners that did not receive their permits or were not on the mailing list last year, may apply for antlerless deer permits by completing an application card. Application cards may be obtained from local wildlife biologist, game wardens, and Department offices throughout the Possum Kingdom Regulatory District.

Department personell will be available to landowners in Glasscock County on Nov. 2 between 8 a.m. and noon, and 1-5 p.m. at the courthouse in Garden City.

Crappie fishing continued to set the pace at Lake J.B. Thomas over the weekend.

For example, Tom Keever of Luther, brought in four crappie that weighed 12 pounds. Most crappie are being caught on minnows with fishing in 20-30 feet of water along rocky areas.

Yellow catfishing was also good. Sam Froman of Big Spring caught yellows weighing 16, 23 and 31 pounds.

More than 200 bass fishermen and women participated in the Fifth Annual Colorado City Bass Tournament, which gave away $7,000 to the top finishers.

Winning the $2,000 first prize was Ronnie Simpson of Lubbock, who hooked a three-bass with a total weight of 10 pounds, nine ounce bass at Lake Colorado City. Second was Johnny Spruell of Colorado City, who caught eight pounds, 15 ounces of bass. Paul Ham of Proctor was third with catches weighing eight pounds, 13 ounces.

The top finisher from Big Spring was Jack Touchtone, who finished 18th. Colorado City's Bo Merket finished 14th and Stuart Ponko of C-City finished 20th.

Bernard McMahan of Coahoma finished 24th, one place better than Colorado City's Stephen Holly. Gary Bryan of Big Spring was 27th; Byrle Chapman, Colorado City, 28th; Ronnie Connor, Colorado City, 31st; Tommy New, Big Spring, 32nd.

News from the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association.

In Monday nine-hole scramble play, the team of Martha Saunders, Peggy Marshall and Ruby Honea won first with an even par 38. Scoring 41 and finishing second were Georgie Newsome, Patti Woodal and Betty Ray Coffee.

In Thursday nine-hole couples play, the foursome of Sherrill and Jane Farmer and Jim and Ruby Honea finished first with a 31. Finishing second with a 34 was Jim and Annie Ward and Paul and Patti Woodall.

Four ladies from the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association competed in a tournament in Big Lake Saturday. The foursome tied for second place and finally lost to another team after playing six additional holes, finishing in third place.

Big Spring Steers senior pitcher Aaron Allen has been named Amateur Baseball Player of the Year finalist in Texas by the United States Baseball Federation.

The announcement was jointly made by Oscar Mayer Foods Corporation, the sponsor of the special awards.

The Volunteer Amateur Baseball Player of the Year honors a player who has made an outstanding contribution on any level to amateur baseball in any capacity.

The winner of the award is first selected by a state selection committee of the USBF and then forwarded to the national awards committee, who selects the national winner.

St. Louis Cardinals left fielder Jose Oquendo leaps onto the on top of his teammates in celebration after the Cardinals beat the San Francisco Giants 6-0 to win the National League Championship Series Wednesday night in St. Louis. Oquendo belted a three-run homer in the game.

Cards ace Giants, 6-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — In winning pitcher Danny Cox's opinion, it was appropriate that light-hitting Jose Oquendo's home run was the big blow that powered the St. Louis Cardinals into the World Series.

"We seem to have a different hero every night," Cox said Wednesday night after combining with Oquendo, an unsung utility player, to lead St. Louis to its 15th National League pennant.

"No one expected Jose to hit a home run, so we weren't expecting it either," Cox said. "We seem to find a different way to win each time."

Oquendo's three-run shot in the second inning, only the third homer of his major league career, was all that the Cardinals really needed in tandem with Cox's pitching for a 6-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

But for good measure, shortstop Ozzie Smith stuck in his defense as the middle man on three double plays. And, with the Giants' hopes waning in the late innings, Tommy Herr sealed their doom with a two-run single.

"This is the kind of victory that reads like a storybook," Rick Horton said in a tumultuous St. Louis clubhouse, where champagne flowed.

"All year long, people kept counting us out because of all our injuries. Well, tonight we had injuries, too. We overcame them. It makes it all that much sweeter because of the adversities we've overcome."

Like they had during the regular season when they lost pitching ace John Tudor for several months with a broken leg, and for stretches Herr and slugger Jack Clark, who remains sidelined with torn ligaments in his left ankle, the Cardinals consistently overcame adversity and the opposition.

The last predicament was a 3-2 deficit that forced them to win the last two games of the playoffs to advance to their third World Series in the last six seasons. They meet the American League champion Minnesota Twins in the first game Saturday night.

Cox, no stranger in the past to difficulty, went at San Francisco from the start with both vengeance and purpose.

The 6-foot-4 pitcher challenged Giants hitters throughout. He yielded eight hits, but all were singles — including two by playoff MVP Jeffrey Leonard. And he struck out five while walking none.

"You go with your best stuff," Cox said of the format he used to keep San Francisco from collecting more than one hit in all but the third inning.

"He's a good pitcher, no matter what the score is," Mike Aldrete of the Giants said. "When he gets a lead, it makes him that much tougher."

Part of Cox's bravado stemmed from the Cardinals' four-run eruption in the second, capped by Oquendo's homer on a 3-2 count off Altee Hammaker.

"I never thought about hitting the home run. I always look where the ball is and try to hit it the way it's pitched," Oquendo said. "Every time I hit a home run, it surprises me, because I'm a line-drive hitter."

Jim Lindeman started St. Louis' second by striking out, but Terry Pendleton fouled off two pitches and singled to center field.

Pendleton raced all the way to third, pulling a muscle in his rib cage as he went, when Tony Pena singled to right. Pendleton, whose daring throw to third base on a hunt foiled a San Francisco bid to win Game 6, later removed himself from the game. His status is now day to day.

But he scored the Cardinals' first run on Willie McGee's single. Then Oquendo, after catcher Bob Brenly's passed ball allowed both Pena and McGee to advance a base, cleared the left-field wall.

Oquendo said the drive served as a gift for his daughter Adiane's third birthday. "I feel good. My wife told me to do something good for my daughter," Oquendo said. "I tried to do my best. When I hit it, I thought it was off the wall."

Balloons were released into the air held by red-clad St. Louis fans to mark the home run by Oquendo, who may never again be heralded

Fort Stockton Panthers are for real

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Last year when the Big Spring Steers struggled past the Fort Stockton Panthers 16-0, the Steers could be accused of taking the lowly Panthers lightly. Friday night in Fort Stockton, the Steers won't have that excuse.

This season Fort Stockton has proven itself as one of the top teams in the district.

Last year the Panthers struggled through a 3-7 record while the Steers were winning the district championship. Now things have changed. While Big Spring hasn't looked like a powerhouse this season, the Panthers have shown signs of being one.

Second-year coach Ken Herring and his staff has transformed the Panthers into a team that has won five games and lost one. Their best start eight years.

This game is almost a must win for both teams. The Steers, 3-2 overall, already have one district loss to Sweetwater. Fort Stockton lost its only game last week to district foe Sweetwater, 20-6, a game which the Panthers suffered six turnovers. Neither team has played Monahans yet.

Herring credits Fort Stockton's big turnaround to a number of things.

"First of all we have matured alot and another things that's helped us is that we've had two kids come back to the program, and we got two transfer players that are two-way starters. Plus the coaching staff has been here a year and we've got to know the kids and they've got to know us. They're more familiar with the program. This team was built through our off-season program," said Herring.

What Herring and his staff has built is a good defensive squad that is even better; and a much-improved offense. This year the stingy Panthers defense is allowing only 144 yards per game.

The offense, which averaged 226 yards and 10 points per game last season, is averaging 337 yards and 24 points this season.

But the Panthers might be without starting fullback and middle linebacker Mike Nix, a 6-2, 220-pound senior. Nix suffered a foot injury against Lake View and didn't play against Sweetwater. Nix is the team's leading rusher and tackler. Herring listed his status as "questionable".

JASON PHILLIPS

The Steers will be trying to snap the trend of fumbles they've been suffering over the past two games. In their loss to Sweetwater, Big Spring fumbled 10 times. In a narrow win over Lamesa, the Steers fumbled nine times.

But it was a power running game that pulled the Steers through versus Lamesa. Led by Charles White's 134 yards and Bruce Jones' 93 yards, the Steers scored two fourth quarter touchdowns.

"I think we should have started out doing what we ended up doing, sticking it down their throat," said Steers coach Quinn Eudy of his team's ability to run up the middle against Lamesa.

"At first we tried to run wide and throw the football. We should have done what we do best, which is running at people."

While the Steer offense struggled against Lamesa, their defense played a strong game. Led by defensive ends Mike Perez and Jason Phillips, and tackle Kyle Carroll, the Steers limited Lamesa to 55 yards rushing.

Eudy has the utmost respect for the Panthers.

"I think they are a very solid defensive team. They are well-coached and play hard. Offensively, they execute well. They don't make mistakes that will beat them," said Eudy.

Herring feels the same about Big Spring.

"Big Spring has been killing itself. They are a very good team. I think they are real explosive. They're like a sleeping giant ready to explode," said Herring.

He just hopes the sleeping giant doesn't wake up Friday.

NFL strike may be winding down

NEW YORK (AP) — Three entire teams appeared today ready to return to work en masse, effectively shattering the NFL players strike following a day of mass defections.

"Our strike seems to be winding down," union head Gene Upshaw conceded this morning in a recorded message to players.

But whether the players can be back in time to play real games this weekend remains in doubt.

While union and management haggled Wednesday over the final 1's to be dotted and T's to be crossed in an agreement that would end the strike without a contract, 89 players returned to their teams, more than double the number in any previous single day. But there still was no agreement and Upshaw and the 28 player representatives were holding a telephone conference this morning to decide the next step in the 24-day-old strike.

Meanwhile, the Washington Redskins, the only team without a striking player in camp, were set to return en masse, so were the Pittsburgh Steelers, and the Los Angeles Rams were reported nearly ready to do the same. Other teams league probably would not be far behind.

"I would suggest that all of the players in the National Football League hang together because we're now on the verge of returning you all back to work," Upshaw told players this morning in the telephone message.

The Redskins' lone potential defector, All-Pro defensive end Dexter Manley, changed his mind Wednesday, saying he preferred to act with his teammates. While Neal Olkewicz, the team's player representative, had no comment on the return, Upshaw said Wednesday night: "I'm sure they're going back. They've said they're going back."

"There's a lot of guys who want to come in," player representative Tunch Ikin of the Steelers, who had 11 players report Wednesday, said this morning before the call with Upshaw. "We'll meet today and see what they want to do."

And the Los Angeles Times reported that the Rams, 13 of whose players were due in today, were two or three votes short of coming in.

The rest of the players will almost surely follow soon.

Several teams, like the New York Giants, have said that if one team breaks, they will follow.

And if that doesn't do it, they will be back as soon as the two sides can agree on the expiration date of the 1982 contract, which will be extended while negotiations continue. The union is seeking an expiration date of Feb. 1 so that any new gains on free agency would not be delayed another year. The owners are seeking a June 16 expiration date.

Young actress

Not easy to juggle movie with school work

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Drew Barrymore had her hands full, between classes, studying, homework, her workout and her newest movie for CBS, "Conspiracy of Love."

In the movie, to be aired Sunday, she plays a tomboy kept from her beloved grandfather (Robert Young) by a restraining order obtained by her mother (Glynis O'Connor). The movie deals with the rights of grandparents.

Drew, 12, was on the patio of her hillside home one afternoon after her seventh-grade classes at a private school. She had just completed her exercise program. She lives with her mother, Ildiko Barrymore, a writer and former actress who is writing a screenplay for Drew.

"I've still got three hours or homework," Drew said. "Maybe four hours. They give us way too much homework. I don't think it's necessary. On weekends they give us so much you spend the whole weekend working."

An orange cat wandered by and rubbed against her. "His name is Kiwi Bear," she explained. "He sleeps with me and licks my face."

She worked in the movie last June, when it was "super hot." She had to leave school three days before finals to go to Toronto.

"When you do a movie you still have to do your school work," she said. "I'd work on the film all day. On my lunch hour I'd study. I'd come home at night, exercise, take a shower, read my lines for the next day, study and go straight to bed. Time goes by fast when you're doing that. The working part was super fun."

Young plays Grandpa Joe, an old-time barber who lives on rose-tinted memories. Drew's character fervently believes his embellished stories of past glories. Her father, Joe's son, deserted the family. Her mother gets a restraining order to keep the grandfather away because she fears he is a bad influence.

Drew comes from one of America's most illustrious theater families. Her grandparents were John Barrymore and Dolores Costello. Her great-aunt and great-uncle were Ethel and Lionel Barrymore, both of whom won Academy Awards.

She made her professional debut in a commercial when she was 11 months old. When she was 2 she was in the TV movie "Suddenly, Love" with Cindy Williams. Her feature film debut was in "Altered States," but it was her role as the little sister in "E.T.—The Extraterrestrial" that made her famous.

In "Irreconcilable Differences," she and Ryan O'Neal and Shelley Long played a scene from "Father Knows Best" with Drew as Kathy. While in Toronto, she told Young, the original "Father," about it.

"I think Robert Young is such an incredible actor to work with," she said. "You learn so much from just one scene with him. What's so great about him is that he's always 100 percent doing what he has to do. He's always on the money."

Drew has worked mostly in feature films, but she has also done such TV work as "Amazing Stories," "Babes in Toyland" and "Bogey."

She wants to continue her acting career but is also interested in designing and decorating. "I love, love, love to create," she said. "I designed some of my clothes. Nobody uses safety pins for clothes, so I made a skirt with safety pins. Weird, huh? It's good to be different."

She plans to go to film school and learn directing and other aspects of film work.

"I know the odds are against me continuing as an actress when I grow up," she said, "but if you think about that you'll never get anywhere. I'm going to make it. If I'm not as famous later, it's all right. If you have the attitude that it's difficult, then you don't want to be an actress."

In November she starts work on another feature film, "Second Chance." Drew, who will be 13 in February, plays a 15-year-old.

She admits it's hard to watch herself on the screen. "I get embarrassed," she said. "I try my absolute hardest to be good, but I'm never sure. I'm a tough critic on myself."

Survivor

Debbie Reynolds prepares herself for a confrontation as she plays an over-50 New York policewoman in the upcoming CBS movie "Sadie and Son," scheduled to air Oct. 21. For Reynolds, a self-proclaimed survivor, having weathered one marriage that sparked an international scandal and another that erased $8 million in earnings, the film marks her first in 17 years.

Writer made poet laureate

CUMMINGTON, Mass. (AP) — The writer who once pooh-poohed the idea of an American poet laureate because, he said, it was not worth the risk that the nation would get a bad one, now has the job.

What exactly Richard Wilbur is supposed to do in the $35,000-a-year post isn't clear, since he's only the second poet ever named to laureate. The first, 81-year-old Robert Penn Warren, stepped down after a year because of frail health.

Whatever he's supposed to do, Wilbur won't write official poems commissioned by the government.

"That's not part of the deal," said the 6-foot-5 man of letters in a recent interview at his hilltop home in western Massachusetts.

"Besides, I feel I've already done the laureate's job in that respect," he said, referring to his lyrics to a cantata performed last fall by the New York Philharmonic to celebrate the Statue of Liberty's centennial. "I don't expect to write any more long, patriotic poems."

At 66, Wilbur has already done many jobs, including a lifetime of teaching, translating French plays and writing elegant metered verse that has been heaped with honors, among them the Pulitzer and Bolling prizes and the National Book Award. He also served as president of the American Academy of Arts and Letters from 1974 to 1976.

LUBBOCK
The Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble, a dance company from New York City, will perform at the Texas Tech Allen Theatre in Lubbock at 8:15 p.m. Oct. 22.

Established by Alvin Ailey in 1974, the dance group was originally envisioned as a bridge from the classroom to the performance, blending elements of repertoire, technique and performance.

Today the ensemble has grown to become one of the most exciting components of the renowned Alvin Ailey American Dance Center.

Included in the group's performance are ballets by such famed choreographers as Donald McKayle and George Faison. In addition the company has become a forum for the modern works of emerging young choreographers, winning much critical acclaim for its performances of these original dances.

Reserved-seat tickets for the Thursday night performance are available at the University Center ticket booth. The cost is $12.

For more information call 742-3610.

Moviemakers wooing Hispanic audiences

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Spurred by the summer success of "La Bamba" and other bilingual releases, Hollywood is making Hispanics in the United States its hot ticket.

"There's a market of Hispanics out there with tremendous pulling power," said Santiago Pozo of Universal Studios, whose Spanish-subtitled "Born in East L.A." opened in August. "We're developing a new market and creating a ticket that we otherwise wouldn't put in our pocket."

Like "La Bamba," Columbia's late July release on the 1950s rock star Ritchie Valens, "Born in East L.A." was released in both English and Spanish. The movies became hits in both languages. "La Bamba," dubbed with Spanish dialogue, grossed nearly $43 million in 1,115 theaters by early September. About $2.4 million of that came from Spanish-speaking moviegoers at 77 theaters, a Columbia spokesman said.

Cheech Marin's "Born in East L.A.," the story of a U.S. citizen deported to Mexico, pulled in $4.4 million on 1,112 screens on its first weekend. About 4 percent came from 25 Spanish subtitled screens and returns per screen were higher for the bilingual versions.

Tri-Star Pictures, Inc., is about to release "Gaby — A True Story," Luis Mandoki's film about Mexican writer Gabriella Brimmer, who was born with physical disabilities so severe that she could not speak, walk or move her hands. It is Mandoki's first English-language feature and utilizes a large Hispanic crew.
