United Way 62% short of goal

Herald staff report

The Big Spring 1987 United Way campaign is still nearly 62 percent — $133,558 — short of its $215,000 goal, with just five weeks left in the drive, according to Debra Daniels, secretary.

To date, a total of $81,412 in pledges have been collected, Daniels said.

However, Daniels said United Way officials are optimistic about meeting this year's goal and could possibly extend the pledge collection deadline past November 30 to ensure meeting the goal.

"Pledges always come in slow at the beginning of the drive and start coming in near the end," Daniels said.

The following are the most recent figures of pledges collected, and chairmen of the nine United Way divisions:

• Out-of-town, Scott McLaughlin, $1,255.

• Pace Setters, Bob Riley, $58,505.

• Special, Tim Blackshear, $1,713.

• Small Business, Larry Ray and Larson Lloyd, $1,125.

• Combined Federal Campaign, Beverly Tubb, figures not compiled.

• Professionals, Tim Thornton, $2,402.

• Special Events, Donna Morris, $6,730.

• Loan Executives, Lewis Gonzales, $7,673.

• Rural and Residential, Loyd Underwood, $2,008.

Deaths prompt three more arrests

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Three Howard County residents were arrested Wednesday and today on capital murder charges in connection with the deaths of two people whose bodies were found in the remains of an Oct. 10 fire near Luther.

Five others are being held on capital murder charges in connection with the Saturday discovery of a man's body in northeast Martin County.

The deaths are believed to be connected and drug-related, according to sheriff's authorities.

Additional charges are expected to be filed today against Jeannie Hernandez Fonseca, 29, 606 11th Place, in relation to the fire deaths, Standard said today.

Fonseca was arrested on a capital murder warrant Tuesday in connection with the body found in Martin County.

The three arrested in connection with the fire deaths are Antonio (Tony) Aguilar, 21, 1321 Utah St., arrested at his home shortly before 9 a.m. today, Enrique (Ricky) Sabedra, 17, of Knott, arrested at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, and Orlando Aguirre, 19, also of Knott, arrested at 8:47 p.m. Wednesday.

They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace William Shankles who set bond at $125,000 each.

Aguilar and four others arrested had worked in the Herald mailroom.

Shankles set bonds Wednesday for Pete Salazar Jr., 23, 411 N.W. 10th St., and Arthur Islas Jr., 20, 1306 Mesa Ave., who were taken into custody as principal witnesses Oct. 16.

The two were arraigned on charges of capital murder in connection with the body found in Martin County and bond was set at $125,000 for each.

Also in custody are brothers Joe Hernandez, 20, and Frankie Salazar Hernandez, 27, both of 606 11th Place, who were arrested Tuesday in connection with the death of the man whose body was found in Martin County. Bonds of $125,000 have been set for each.

Howard County officials have said the body found in Martin County is believed to be that of a Grand Prairie man who was last seen by family members in San Angelo April 3.

Standard said an investigation has led officials to believe the man was murdered in a Big Spring motel room in April and transported to Martin County, where his body was burned and later buried in a shallow grave.

Big Spring police had been investigating the incident in conjunction with several other agencies, according to police officials. Because of its connection with the

Collider promoters' $400,000 campaign neglects cost factor

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
AUSTIN — Promoters of a Texas site for the supercollider will air $400,000 in television advertising before the Nov. 3 election, but none of the 10 ads mentions the price of victory: $500 million in long-term debt.

The 30-second spots, previewed Wednesday at a Capitol news conference, will air beginning Friday in Dallas and Houston, and Monday elsewhere. Each is a litany of the benefits the high-tech project would provide to science, education, the economy and the state's image. Endorsements are made by such prominent and diverse Texans as Gov. Bill Clements, University of Texas President William Cunningham and U.S. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Phil Gramm.

Although the ads are replete with references to Proposition 19, as the question is identified on the ballot, the constitutional amendment voters are asked to approve never is described as a half-billion-dollar bond issue.

The $4.4 billion superconducting supercollider is a massive, atom-smashing device the federal government wants to build for study of such forces as gravity, radiation and the binding together of matter. It is billed as the largest and most expensive scientific instrument ever constructed and when finished will be the cornerstone of the nation's most prestigious research laboratory.

With two dozen states competing for the prize, Texas supporters want to offer inducements. Proposition 19 would augment a $500 million public investment in site preparation already approved by the Legislature with another $500 million in general obligation bonds, which would be paid off, with interest, over decades. If the site eventually selected is not in Texas, none of the money would be spent. Karl Rove and John Deardourff, political consultants who produced the ads for the privately financed organization called "Yes on Proposition 19, The Super Collider," said Wednesday that they chose deliberately to use only their selling points in the TV ads.

"We've tried to communicate in a more substantive and a more detailed fashion in the weeks leading up to this, but we've got a limited amount of time and we need to go with our strengths," Rove said. "We think people are smart enough to go in and look at the ballot, if they've not already seen it, and realize that it's a bond issue."

The lead ad features a male voice over a trumpet fanfare and graphics depicting the convergence of two atoms over the map of Texas.

"The supercollider," the voice intones, "one of the major scientific projects of the 20th century. Building it in Texas will mean thousands of jobs. It will be a magnet for new high-tech industry. It will improve education by bringing top scientists to our universities. It will make Texas a world leader in research."

"But 24 other states also want the supercollider. To bring it to Texas, we must pass Proposition 19. So vote yes for Texas. Vote yes for Proposition 19, the supercollider."

Gary Johnson, secretary of the Libertarian Party in Texas, which urges a "no" vote on Proposition 19, said he would expect supportive advertising to neglect the bond issue "because the voters would be astonished to know how much is involved."

"They're talking as if this isn't going to cost anything, when in fact it's going to cost us plenty," Johnson said. "Five-hundred million is just the principal."

Details on Nov. 3 vote are topic

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

Final details concerning the upcoming Nov. 3 election — to decide whether a 911 emergency telephone number system will be installed in Howard County — are to be hammered out by emergency board members during a meeting tonight.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the County Commissioners Courtroom, located on the second floor of the county court house.

Board members are expected to give County Clerk Margaret Ray authority to begin preparation of absentee ballots for the upcoming election, according to Big Spring Fire Chief and emergency board member Carl Dorton.

The 911 question will be the only local option on the ballot, according to Ray. Voters will also consider 25 constitutional amendments and two statewide referendums.

Questions concerning exactly how much the proposed system would cost Howard County telephone users each month still have not been answered by emergency board members.

Board members are certain that Big Spring Southwestern Bell Telephone Company business and residential customers' monthly bills for basic service would be garnished as much as six percent — or about 50 cents each month — to pay the estimated $136,220 expense for installing the system.

However, board members are uncertain if that same 50 cent-per-month charge would apply to telephone customers in other county cities and rural areas where basic monthly rates vary.

It also still uncertain if county telephone users would be assessed a monthly fee even if the 911 emergency system proposal is not approved by voters on Nov. 3.

If the proposal is rejected, telephone customers might be charged a monthly fee later if the city council in their respective communities, or the Howard County Commissioners voted to make the county part of a larger regional emergency 911 system, according to Tim Yeats, county attorney and board chairman.

Miss Howard County/Miss SWCID pageant conducted Tuesday night at the Howard College Auditorium — when Jeanie Robertson was named Miss Howard County and Kim Hawkins was named Miss SWCID — was an evening full of fun and talent for the audience, by contestants and other performers.

The pageant, emceed by Kimberly Beckham, Miss Howard County 1986, began with Kimberly performing a dance and lip sync routine along with students from Howard College and SWCID, to the song "I Want To Dance With Somebody," dressed as the character Vera from the play Greater Tuna.

New Dimension Singers of Howard College, led by Joe Whitten, sang "Always on My Mind," "Hit the Road Jack," and "The Rose."

Contestants competing for Miss Howard County modeled swimsuits, a requirement for the Miss Texas pageant, and Miss SWCID contestants modeled sportswear, a requirement for the Miss Deaf Texas pageant.

The contestants modeled their evening gowns and introduced themselves to the audience.

While the judges, Bill Moss, head executive director of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and his wife, Judy Moss, and Karen Thornhill, freelance interpreter from Odessa, cast their final votes, Howard College's version of the group Motley Crue, entertained the audience. The stage filled with smoke as they lip sync'd the song "Girls, Girls, Girls."

The audience sang and kept rhythm with the music by clapping, as Howard College students Richard Baker, Houston, Randy Deal, Denver, Colo.; Jodi Allen, Logan, Utah; and Darrin Glenn, El Paso, performed as though they were singing and playing instruments.

As James and Stephanie made their final walks across the stage as the reigning Miss SWCID and Miss Howard County, the audience gave them a standing ovation.

Finally, it was time to name the first runners-up and crown the winners.

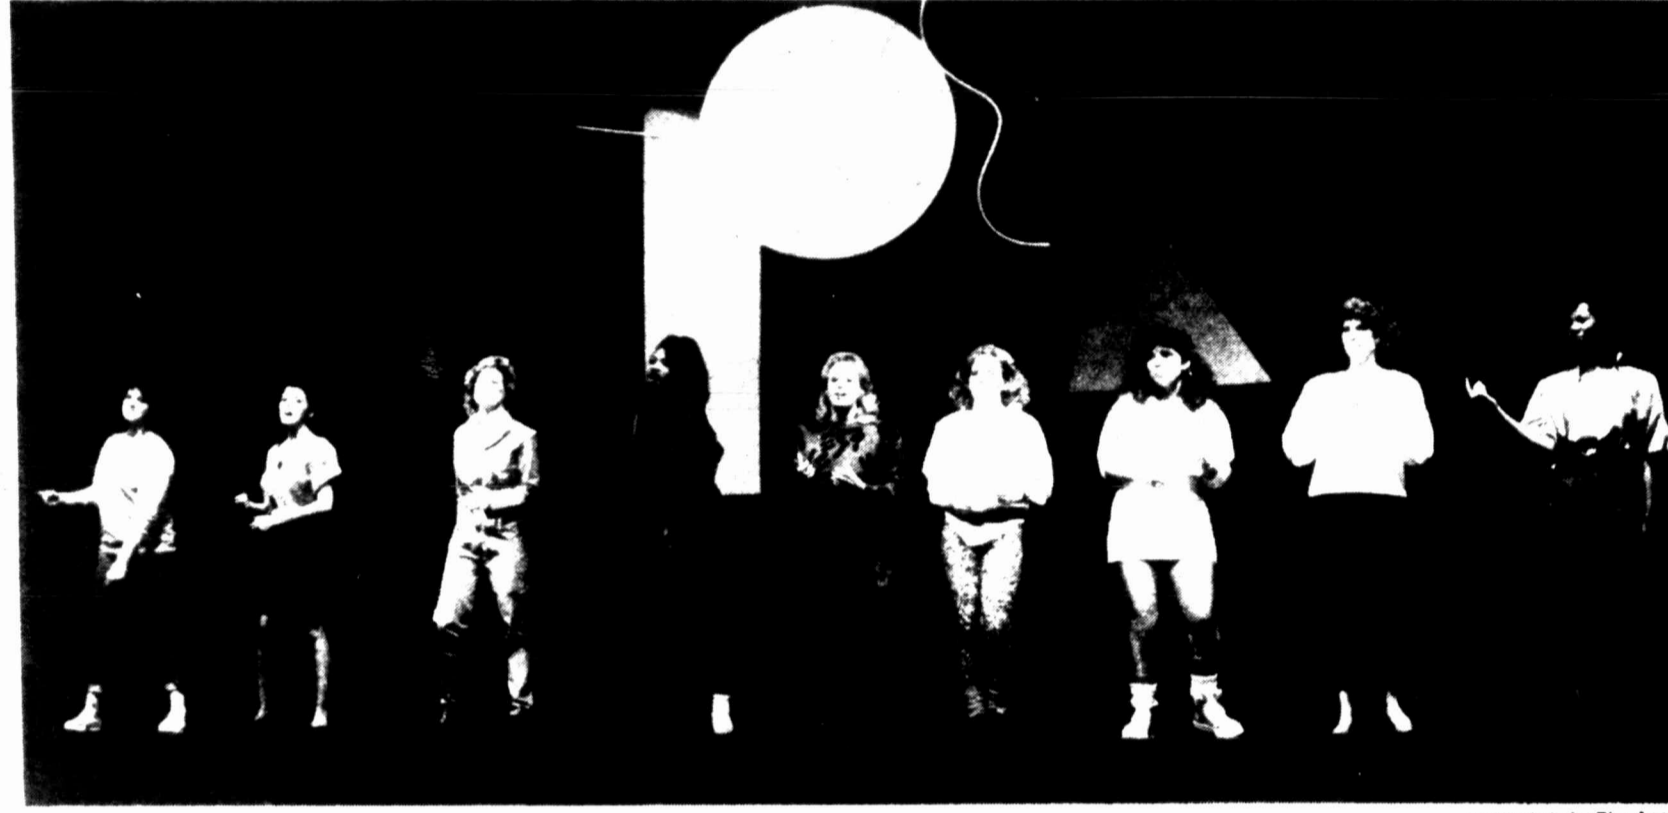

As the girls anxiously awaited the judges' decision, Kimberly announced the first runner-up for Miss Howard County. Amy Burgess, 18, daughter of Shirley Burgess and the late John Burgess. Kimberly then announced Jeanie Robertson, 19, daughter of Gene and Barbara Robertson of Coahoma, as the winner of the Miss Howard County 1988 title.

Jeanie said she was shocked as Stephanie presented her with a plaque and placed the crown on her head.

First runner-up for Miss SWCID is Sherry Pedersen, 19, daughter of Colleen and Paul Pedersen. Kimberly then announced Kim Hawkins, 21, daughter of Oran and Ruth Hawkins, as the winner of the Miss SWCID 1988 title.

Excited and tearful, Kim accepted the plaque and crown from James, as the audience applauded and yelled when they heard the decisions.

A first in the history of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce occurred during installation of board members at a quarterly meeting of committee chairmen and the board of directors Wednesday.

Installation of Clyde McMahon Jr. as board president marks the first time for both a father and son to serve as president of the board in the history of the Big Spring chamber. His father, Clyde McMahon Sr., served as president of the board of directors in 1959.

Other board officers installed were: Glen Strickland, vice president; Glen Fullingim, treasurer; and LeRoy Tillery, executive vice president.

Treasurer Fullingim and Executive Vice President Tillery will repeat their respective offices. Tillery has been the executive vice president since 1979. Fullingim first served as treasurer for 1987.

Strickland has been active with the chamber since the Strickland-Knight Highway Construction Company moved to Big Spring in 1980.

Fullingim presented the financial report for September. He said the chamber will write off $6,900 in accounts receivable for delinquent memberships. The memberships will be canceled, he said, and the affected members will be notified by letter.

Eighty-seven percent of the chamber's projected revenue for the year has been collected, he said, and 74 percent spent. Projections of $92,000 in revenues came close to the actual income of $91,199.21 in the membership drive just completed.

The assembly unanimously voted to accept the financial report. In other business, members:

- Agreed to adopt revised by-laws for the downtown steering committee.
- Agreed to support a resolution to consolidate the five regional chambers of commerce in Texas into a single state chamber.
- Approved a resolution in support of constitutional amendments 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 19 and 23.
- Approved the concept of the Junior Leadership program to be sponsored by the leadership alumni association. Junior Leadership is a proposed program to introduce Howard County high school students to community leadership via a series of meetings involving government agencies and meeting with area legislators.
- Approved the conventions and visitors bureau's matching challenge to the athletic committee for $1,000. The bureau will provide $1,000 for billboards advertising high school athletic championships provided the committee can raise $1,000 toward the project, which is expected to cost $2,200.
- Appointed a committee to select a man and a woman of the year to be honored at the chamber banquet.
- Appointed John Brown to replace Tom Watson as the chamber's representative to the Big Spring Crimestoppers program.
- Heard reports from the chairmen of the chamber committees on the status of committee projects for the quarter.
- Named Tommy Ross of Cain Electric to replace John Taylor and named Sandy Burroughs to replace Tammy Stripling on the board of directors.

Howard County fire deaths, the case was relinquished to sheriff's authorities, Standard said.

Authorities were led to the gravesite by Pete Salazar Jr., according to a complaint filed with the magistrate.

The body has tentatively been identified as being that of Noe Perez, 40, of Grand Prairie, according to sheriff's officials.

Bodies discovered in the debris of an Oct. 10 fire near Luther - approximately 15 miles northeast of Big Spring - have been tentatively identified as Miguel Villarreal Calixto, 24, and Norberto Gurrula Hernandez, 22, both Mexican nationals.

A medical analysis of the human remains by Dr. Robert Rember, Scenic Mountain Medical Center staff member, and Dr. Clyde Snow,

The Sheriff's office will seek assistance from a chemist with the Department of Public Safety in Austin in the extraction of fingerprints, Standard said today.

"We are dealing with homicide and arson," the sheriff said of the deaths.

According to complaints filed with the magistrate, the two men whose bodies were found in the fire debris were shot with a .22-caliber rifle.

One man was shot while kneeling in the living room and the other was shot in a bedroom, according to the complaint, which described a statement made by one of the arrestees.

The intent of the shootings was to rob the men of their money; the house was set on fire after the

Radio man awarded for Saragosa aid

HOUSTON (AP) — Amateur radio operator Jim Jeffrey says he's honored about receiving a National Weather Association award for his help during the Saragosa tornado, but claims other people have worked harder and deserve it more.

Jeffrey, amateur radio operator WA5QMJ, was credited for his efforts in initiating, maintaining and designing a ham radio communication system known as the West Texas Connection that was used for the first 36 hours after a tornado struck Saragosa May 22, knocking out conventional systems.

John V. Wright Jr., meteorologist in charge at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport, nominated Jeffrey to receive the award from the private, non-profit organization based in Washington D.C.

"I'm very familiar with Saragosa. I have to be. So I know who the 'heroes' were. On the basis of what he did, he certainly deserves the award," Wright said.

But the 55-year-old Odessa resident took the news of his honor modestly.

"I was real surprised. I knew nothing about it until they called me," he told the Odessa American before the awards ceremony, which was held Wednesday in Houston at the Embassy Suites Hotel.

"It was exciting to say the least. I've been awarded awards from local clubs, but this is a national award. As I told the weatherman, there are people who have worked harder and deserve it more."

Jeffrey's radio system was used effectively enough to grant the weather service 21 minutes to issue a tornado warning before the twister struck, Wright said. The tornado killed 30 people and injured 160.

Necessary supplies and medical help were sent to the scene according to requests issued through the radios, he said.

"The usual range of the hand-held transceiver is only a few miles, but due to the efforts of Mr. Jeffrey, who conceived and funded the project, the WSO staff and other amateur radio operators were in constant and clear contact with those on the scene in the Saragosa vicinity," he said.

Jessica

Midland Post Office deluged

MIDLAND — Postal officials say hundreds of packages and thousands of letters — most of them addressed simply, "Jessica McClure, Midland, Texas" — have arrived for the toddler whose 58-hour battle for survival captured the nation's attention.

Stan Sartain, manager of customer service at the Midland

Post Office, said up to 7,000 letters with donations for the girl have been received. More than 250 shoebox-size packages have also been sent to the child, Sartain said, noting that between 3,500 and 4,000 letters on Tuesday alone.

A trust fund for Jessica was established at Texas Commerce Bank.

Michigan kids raising funds

MIDLAND, Mich. — Second-grade students here cleaned their rooms, raked leaves and counted on the Tooth Fairy to raise money for Jessica McClure, the toddler rescued last week from a well in their namesake city in Texas.

"We're helping her because it makes us feel good inside, and we're glad to see that she got out of the well," said Christel Deal, also for Jessica McClure, the toddler rescued last week from a well in their namesake city in Texas.

Mood improves with health

MIDLAND — Doctors say it's still too early to know if they will have to amputate the right foot of Jessica McClure, the little girl rescued from an abandoned well, but the toddler's spirits are improving daily.

The 18-month-old girl remained in serious but stable condition at Midland Memorial Hospital, where she was in the intensive care unit for observation and security, officials said.

Utah murder probe comes to Texas

MANTI, Utah (AP) — As law officers staked out the Colorado funeral of slain polygamist leader Daniel Ben Jordan, forensic experts planned to see if there was a connection to the disappearance of a rival in California and investigators headed to Texas.

Meanwhile, authorities said the slaying may have included a "blood atonement" ritual shot.

"There were indications at the crime scene that I think someone familiar with the (polygamist) lifestyle would conclude that a message was intended by the murder," Sanpete County Sheriff Chuck Ramsey said Wednesday.

Jordan, 53, of Bennett, Colo., was shot Friday with a handgun near the Twelve Mile Canyon campsite where he and more than 30 family members, including his eight wives, were hunting.

Investigators were told by Jordan's family that he had received numerous death threats prior to his slaying, and had told relatives he expected to be killed.

Denver and Lakewood, Colo., police monitored Jordan's funeral in Lakewood in case sons of the late Ervil LeBaron, another polygamist leader, appeared.

Ramsey said no warrants have been issued but investigators want to talk to at least two of the sons.

Mike Hanks, chief of the Utah Organized Crime and Investigation Bureau in Salt Lake City, said the men were not spotted by law officers.

Hanks also denied investigators were about to take the two into custody. "There's no way we're even close to making an arrest," he said.

Meanwhile, two detectives were dispatched to Texas to gather information on followers of LeBaron believed to be in Mexico.

"This is a very preliminary stage of the investigation," Hanks said.

Jordan was a son-in-law of LeBaron, who died at Utah State Prison of a heart attack while serving a life sentence for masterminding the 1977 murder in Murray, Utah, of Dr. Rulon Allred, a rival polygamist leader. LeBaron also was convicted of conspiring to kill his brother, Verlan LeBaron, leader of another polygamist group.

Covetousness is sin (Eph. 5:3-5; 1 Cor. 5:9,10). Covetousness is based upon wanting something that another person has, even to the point of envy. It is based upon greed (excessive desire for getting regardless of the cost to another or the methods used in getting it). It is selfishly wanting something for yourself with no thought of the needs of others. Covetousness implies an insatiable desire to possess or acquire something in a lustful way, beyond what one deserves or is willing to put forth honest work to acquire. It suggests an unscrupulous eagerness for gain that manifests itself in seizing upon every opportunity to get for yourself what you desire without giving a fair equivalent. It is wanting something for nothing. Covetousness and greediness often manifest themselves in gambling. Gambling is a form of: greedy desires to have more (All desires to "have more" than what you presently have is not sin.) To fix one's desire upon wanting something for satisfying lust in indeed sin (Romans 13:9). Gambling is a form of that. God instituted the principle of "work for what you want" a very long time ago. Gen.3:17-19.

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Says U.S. needs better government

How much the Reagan presidency has changed can be gauged by comparing its first year with prospects for the final year. What was once a vibrant, aggressive administration determined to turn conservative ideology into public policy has become a gaggle of discredited politicians whose retirement cannot come fast enough. The feeling of disappointment is, if anything, more noticeable on the right, which has a legacy to protect, than on the left, where the smell of blood raises spirits. There is a basic optimism in Reagan's personality — a belief in himself and his mission — that may serve him well. Americans need better government than they have been getting. Since there can only be one president at a time, Reagan still has this last chance to provide it. Baltimore Sun

Japanese may win some points

Japan may have won some points in its favor with Congress by its announcement that it would buy modified jet fighter aircraft from the U.S. Not too many calendar pages ago, the Japanese were considering building a new airplane for its Defense Forces. The idea was that doing so would give it a leg up into aeronautics. It could build a state-of-the-art fighter plane, it could supply its own forces and, those with a little vision probably thought, break through into the international market of weapons sales. Recently they announced that they would consider two U.S. planes — the F-15 or F-16 — for modification. It goes without saying that a multibillion shift in the trade balance would have a mollifying effect on U.S. lawmakers who have been critical of the trade imbalance between the two countries. The Tennessean, Nashville, Tenn.

Contra aid to keep Nicaragua in line

When the Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded this year's peace prize to Costa Rica's President Oscar Arias last week, it made its agenda clear. This was to be one of those peace prizes aimed at influencing events.

Arias is showing himself to be a clear-headed seeker of peace, not just a well-intentioned one. The only thing lacking in his plan is a means of enforcement if one of the signatories fails to live up to it. That's one very good reason to continue sending aid to the Contras even during a cease-fire. They may well be needed again to force the Sandinistas into good behavior — the kind of good behavior that Arias is working so hard to induce in his neighbors. Los Angeles Daily News

Nobel committee advocacy right

President Reagan has said the peace plan signed by five Central American nations is "fatally flawed" and intends to ask Congress for $270 million to fund rebels who would use force to violate the plan. The Norwegian Nobel Committee regards that plan as good and awarded its author, Costa Rica President Oscar Arias, its Peace Prize. The plan calls for cease-fires, scheduled elections, restoration of civil rights and a free press. It also calls for countries from outside the area to cease military support of rebels. The United States could no longer fund the Nicaraguan Contras. An alternative plan, with bipartisan shading, was proposed by Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright, a Democrat. The U.S. plan had stiffer deadlines, and allowed for earlier intervention by outsiders. The Arias plan obviously is proving to be more acceptable to Central Americans. The Nobel Committee is now on record as sharing that belief. It should be commended for its advocacy role. Ocean County Observer, Toms River, N.J.

Prosecutors crack down on counterfeit bolt trade

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Federal authorities are beginning to tighten the noose around the counterfeit bolt trade.

Jack Anderson

Federal prosecutors are finally taking our warnings seriously. Last month U.S. attorneys in Orlando, Fla., persuaded a grand jury to hand up the first indictment in a case of alleged fraud by a steel bolt supplier. And the Justice Department has joined a lawsuit filed by a bolt salesman against a former employer, in which he charges that the company sold thousands of counterfeit bolts to the military. For months we have been reporting the potential danger posed by counterfeit steel bolts that can't withstand the stress put on them by military hardware. The substandard bolts turn to putty at high temperatures, possibly putting American military personnel in fatal trouble. This action by federal prosecutors comes none too soon for Pentagon investigators, who have been trying for the past year to nail the so-called "schlock houses" that sell industrial fasteners to the armed services. Several investigators have told our associate Stewart Harris they're worried about the magnitude of the counterfeit-bolt problem and its potential for catastrophe. At the Pentagon's "hardware store" in Philadelphia, the Defense Industrial Supply Command, one out of every three Grade 8 bolts is a fake. Grade 8 steel bolts are the workhorses of industrial fasteners. Alerts on the danger of fake, substandard steel bolts led to an appalling discovery: Counterfeits were in the replacement stockpile for use on the catapult systems of the carrier USS Vinson. Catapults that send planes off the Vinson every 45 seconds generate extremely high temperatures, which the counterfeit bolts can't handle. The counterfeits are made of cheaper boron steel, which can lose their strength at temperatures above 600 degrees Fahrenheit. Some counterfeit bolts fail at room temperature. Genuine Grade 8 bolts can withstand temperatures as high as 800 degrees without crumbling. Sources tell us that the Navy has issued warnings to its aircraft carriers about the deadly potential of the substandard bolts. We've also learned that counterfeits have been discovered in submarine tenders, which resupply the nuclear-armed subs that make up a vital part of U.S. deterrence against Soviet aggression. Last month the Justice Department joined a lawsuit filed by Nathan Haga, a steel bolt salesman who is cooperating with the Defense Criminal Investigative Service, the Naval Investigative Service and the Customs Service. Haga filed the suit under a 1986 amendment to the False Claims Act allowing whistleblowers with direct knowledge of fraud to sue the perpetrators. If the federal government wins its case, Haga could get as much as one-third of the monetary award. The lawsuit is asking for more than $1 million from Aircom Fasteners Inc. of Arlington, Texas, where Haga worked in 1984 and 1985. Aircom sold more than 43 shipments of counterfeit bolts to the Defense Industrial Supply Command, according to court papers. Company officials are not commenting on the lawsuit.

Documents we've obtained indicate that Aircom sold the Pentagon boron-steel bolts instead of authentic Grade 8 bolts. One purchase order from company files asked a Japanese bolt manufacturer to supply 90,000 Grade 8 bolts but the words "boron steel" were typed into the space marked "Description." Haga's lawsuit charges further that Aircom sold the Pentagon bolts plated with zinc instead of cadmium, a more costly rust-resistant treatment. The indictments in Florida charge officers of Edgewater Fastener Inc. with conspiracy to defraud the Pentagon and with making false statements. The charges involve the alleged supply of foreign-made steel nuts and bolts when domestically manufactured fasteners had been specified in the contract. CONFIDENTIAL MEMO: One of the first and most persuasive administration advocates of U.S. naval escort duty in the Persian Gulf was President Reagan's national security adviser, Frank Carlucci. White House sources say he argued earlier that the escort service would be merely an increase in the Navy's existing mission of protecting six U.S. ships a month through the gulf. MINI-EDITORIAL: George Bush always seems to be in the wrong place at crucial times. During a key White House discussion about Iran-Contra matters, he was at the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia. And when Judge Robert Bork was fighting for confirmation to the Supreme Court, the vice president was off in Poland, running not too skillfully for president. But he has since announced that he will "fight for Judge Bork's nomination" at home and abroad.

Airliner explains earnings

By ART BUCHWALD
The Hades Airline Company shareholders' meeting will come to order. Stockholders will rise for the Honorable Chairman Ike Boone. Hear ye, hear ye, the meeting is now in session. "Ladies and gentlemen, I am happy to report that the Hades Airline Company made a profit this year of $150 million. Are there any questions?" "How did we make the profit, Mr. Boone?" "We canceled all our scheduled flights during months with the letter 'R' in them." "Did we have any reason?" "Not that I know of. But I instituted a new rule that any flights with more than five empty seats were canceled." "How did we make money if we canceled our flights?" "We own the Coke machine concessions in the airports. The longer our planes are delayed, the angrier people get and the more Coke they drink." "Mr. Boone, I read in the paper that Hades Airline was fined for falsifying its repair records and using Bulgarian reject ties. Is there any truth to this?" "We didn't falsify our records, we shredded them. We have one of the finest performance report cards in the business. Given the right circumstances I would not hesitate to fly a Hades plane myself." "By the way, we'll have to do without a dividend this year to pay the $2 million fine. But we hope to make up the loss by auctioning off our passengers' lost luggage." "Mr. Boone, rumor has it that you don't have the slightest idea how to run an airline." "I'm a businessman and I know how to put companies together. I may not be up on the latest schedules, but I sure as hell know how to break a union." "When I took over Hades there were union people in every one of our departments — greedy types who kept asking, 'What's in it for me?' Well, I got rid of those workers and now I have employees who may not know what they're doing but they come cheap, and that means this company is making money." "But, Mr. Boone, everything seems to be keeping breaking down. The departures are hopeless, the reservation system is the pits, the flight crews don't show up for work. What do you have to say to that?" "I say I bought this company at $40 a share and it's now $50. I've never taken my eye off the bottom line." "Mr. Boone, I took a Hades flight yesterday from Atlanta to Washington and spent four hours flying over National Airport. The pilot said he could not land because there was no one to service the plane since you laid off all ground personnel. Did you really do this?" "Pilots love to blame management when they can't find a place to land." "Mr. Boone, is it true you are going to sell all Hades' planes?" "Not on your life. As a matter of fact, I'm planning on merging with Peter Pan Airways so we will be twice as big and have twice as much debt." "Why Peter Pan, Mr. Boone?" "It's a good fit for Hades. While we're first in flight cancellations, their record in near misses can't be beaten."

I intend had a major decision to face. I could stop and depend on the mercy of strangers, or I could bravely continue driving, on the chance my car wouldn't melt before I reached Victoria. I sped on. By the grace of the good Lord, I reached Victoria. I stopped at the first gas station I came to, and turned the ignition off. I can't be completely sure, but I think my car said "Thank you." The station attendant walked over with a knowing smile on his face. He took a look under my hood and said he could fix my car. Unfortunately, since it was Friday evening and the parts store was closed, I would have to wait until Monday. To make a long story short, I spent the major part of my vacation — and a major part of my earnings — a few hundred miles from my destination. With most of my pocket money depleted, I sadly returned to the air base. I could go on, but it only gets worse. So, once again, vacation time is here. Being the totally optimistic fool that I am, I once again journey into the unknown. As you are reading this, perhaps you can say a small prayer. And if you're a station attendant and see my car pull in, be kind.

'Wish you were here' just not in the cards

By STEVE REAGAN, Staff Writer
All in all, this has been a fairly good week. Granted, the stock market's been shakier than my car — and who knows what will happen with Iran? — but there's been good news as well. Baby Jessica's doing fine, the football strike's over, the World Series is dead even and, best of all, I'm on vacation. After toiling in the journalistic vineyards for several months, I have been granted a temporary reprieve from the worries of the world. The world may explode during the week. The Dow Jones may reach negative figures. The Cowboys may lose again. And frankly, Scarlett — I don't give a hoot. The world's simply going to have to find a way to turn without me this week. As you are reading this, I hope I am smack in the middle of McKittrick Canyon, N.M., watching the leaves turn a lovely shade of yellow. Failing that, I hope I'm at least out of trouble. Vacation time for me has been an either/or proposition. It's been either the best of times or the worst of times. Yin or Yang, Alpha or Omega. Stupendous or — but you get the general idea. When I was young, my family vacationed regularly at Possum Kingdom Lake, near Breckenridge. I have no idea why the lake was so named because I never saw a possum the entire time I visited the place. Lack of the beasts notwithstanding, I always had a great time there. We would fish, eat, swim and generally hang out for two weeks. It was an ideal way for a six-year-old to pass the time. However, as most families do, we went our separate ways. When I became an adult, I sought diversions of my own at vacation time — not always successfully. When it comes to vacation planning, a travel agency and I have little in common. To put it mildly, my free time the past few years has stunk to high heaven. There are few things worse than a bachelor with a free week on his hands. I remember particularly one such vacation I had while I was in the Air Force. The year was 1976 — Gerald Ford was president, the nation was celebrating its bicentennial and I decided to spend a week in Corpus Christi. As an air traffic controller in the service, I found the job rewarding but demanding.

Beyond the realm

When the time came, therefore, to cut loose for a few days, I was ready for a good time. A friend recommended Corpus Christi. "You'll love it," he said. "Nothing but sun, sand and women all over the place." With visions of working on my tan while a bikinied young lady applied lotion to my back, I departed the base in high spirits. Fate, however, had other plans for me. Twenty miles out of town, a tire went flat. Although a bit peeved, I changed it with a smile — the ladies would just have to wait a few minutes longer. With the minor repair work out of the way, I continued on my summer odyssey. Things went fine until, 15 miles from Victoria, I heard a disconcerting chink from under the hood. Instinctively, I looked in my rear-view mirror just in time to see parts of what used to be my car's fan belt come to rest on the highway. "We might have some trouble here," I thought. About two minutes later, the warning light indicating overheating lit on my dashboard. "We definitely have a problem," I thought. A few seconds after that, smoke emerged from beneath the hood. Sensing that I had a major problem, I did what any good driver would do — I began to curse. It didn't solve the problem, but it did wonders for my blood pressure. I then had a major decision to face. I could stop and depend on the mercy of strangers, or I could bravely continue driving, on the chance my car wouldn't melt before I reached Victoria. I sped on. By the grace of the good Lord, I reached Victoria. I stopped at the first gas station I came to, and turned the ignition off. I can't be completely sure, but I think my car said "Thank you." Explosion kills one

TROY, Ohio — Fire in a tank of molten plastic and two explosions at a chemical plant killed one person, injured five others and forced the evacuation of 10 people living nearby, authorities said.

"It was a big, red glare in the sky," said Mildred Mason, who heard the two 8:43 p.m. explosions in the Goodson Chemical Corp. plant at her home two blocks away. "There was another explosion after that, but it wasn't as loud."

Firefighters from Troy and three surrounding communities in Miami battled the fire for nearly two hours Wednesday night before bringing it under control, said police Sgt. Raymond Brentland.

Girl survives crash

WALTON, Ore. — A whimpering 3-year-old was found buckled in her seat, shielded by a body, in the wreckage of small plane that crashed in heavy fog, killing her father, grandmother and another adult, officials said.

The girl, Aubrey Holst, was in serious condition at Sacred Heart Hospital in Eugene with broken arms, spinal bruises and possible internal injuries after the Cessna 180 went down in heavily wooded coastal mountains Wednesday.

Lane County Sheriff Dave Burks called the child's survival "a small miracle."

Killed were her father, the pilot, Carson Holst, 32; his mother, Anna "Effie" Holst, 63, both of Oakridge, and Darlinda Sue Taylor, 27, of Aguila, Ariz., whose relationship to the others was not immediately known.

Near-collisions rise

WASHINGTON — A 50 percent increase in the number of near-collision reports for commercial aircraft is causing concern among some aviation safety experts, but the Federal Aviation Administration maintains the statistics do not mean greater risk to air travelers.

During the first nine months of the year, the number of pilot reports on near-collisions involving at least one commercial aircraft jumped almost 50 percent over the same period last year, the FAA said Wednesday.

Worker admits drug use

BALTIMORE — A former Conrail brakeman told a grand jury that he and an engineer smoked marijuana before their locomotives slid into the path of an Amtrak passenger train in January, causing the worst crash in Amtrak history, according to a published report.

The former brakeman, Edward Cromwell, also told the grand jury that he and the engineer told a cover story to federal officials investigating the crash. The Baltimore Sun reported Thursday, quoting unidentified sources.

Soviet dancer Andrei Ustinov, right, speaks in a news conference with interpreter Nathalie Krassovska Wednesday in Dallas. Ustinov has been granted asylum and will be staying in the United States, immigration officials said.

Defection

Dancer tells why he won't go home

DALLAS — A Soviet dancer who has been granted political asylum said Wednesday he plotted his defection for weeks, then slipped away from a Dallas hotel and pleaded in broken English with a stranger on the street for help contacting authorities.

Andrei Ustinov, who had been on tour with the Moscow Ballet, said that religious persecution prompted him to defect. He will make his home at least temporarily in Dallas, where he has accepted a three-month engagement with the Dallas Ballet, officials said.

"I no need life in the Soviet Union," Ustinov, 32, said at a news conference Wednesday, when he emerged from five days in protective custody of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"Every day, I feel what I (have done)," said Ustinov, who may never again see the 2-year-old daughter he left in Leningrad. But, he said his life in the Soviet Union was "the road to nowhere."

Today, his freedom secured, Ustinov begins rehearsal with the Dallas Ballet and will meet again the "lovely girl on the street" whom he said he knew could be trusted to help him because of "the look in her eyes."

A dancer with Leningrad's Maly Ballet, Ustinov joined the Moscow troupe for its 21-city U.S. debut. From the moment he arrived on Sept. 24 in Baltimore, he said, he knew he wanted to stay.

While the rest of the 33-member troupe hurried to pack before an 8 p.m. show at SMU, Ustinov told his hotel roommate he needed dinner and quietly slipped out a side entrance of the Holiday Inn North Park Plaza.

He found no one outside. "No problem," he said Wednesday, smiling as he moved his arms to indicate running.

"I watch American people. I understand American people know my problem," Ustinov said. "I watch, who help me, who?"

"I watch (an) American girl. I think, yes!" he said. The woman, who authorities have identified only as "Cindy," was leaving a store when Ustinov approached her and said, "Excuse me. My name is Andrei Ustinov. I am dancer Russian. My situation is criminal."

Noticing a Christian icon Ustinov wears around his neck, the woman responded, "No problem, Andrei," he said. Within minutes, FBI agents were speeding to the scene to rush Ustinov into hiding.

10-year-old beheaded

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A 10-year-old boy was beheaded and two other people were killed in a series of attacks in the violence-plagued black townships of Pietermaritzburg, police said today.

Pietermaritzburg, the capital of eastern Natal province, has been the site of bitter feuding between two black anti-apartheid organizations.

In Pietermaritzburg, police said a small group of blacks attacked occupants of four houses with knives and sticks and abducted the 10-year-old boy, who was later found beheaded.

The independent South Africa Press Association said the killing was believed to be part of a revenge attack against the boy's family.

Brodsky wins Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Russian-American poet Joseph Brodsky, a former Soviet labor camp inmate who gained world renown after he was forced into exile, won the Nobel Prize in literature today.

The Swedish Academy cited Brodsky's writing for its "great breadth in time and space." It called his work "rich and intensely vital."

Brodsky, 47, is one of the youngest writers ever awarded the world's most prestigious literature prize. He writes in both Russian and English and is now a U.S. citizen living in New York.

Jihad makes threats

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The pro-Iranian captors of American and French hostages said today that thousands of suicide bombers have been readied for attacks against the U.S. Navy and European forces in the Persian Gulf.

The typewritten Arabic statement from Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, was delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut. It was accompanied by black-and-white photographs of American hostage Terry Anderson and Jean Paul Kauffman, a French captive.

The group encloses photographs as a sign of authenticity of its messages.

The attacks will be patterned after the Oct. 23, 1983, bombings that demolished the headquarters of the U.S. Marines and French paratroopers in Lebanon, the statement said.

Future wife is left out in the cold

DEAR ABBY I am faced with a very upsetting situation. I am 29 and single. "W" is 47 and divorced.

We have been living together for a year and a half. Everyone knows we are a couple and are as good as married. "W" has five children. His oldest daughter is going to be married in the Mormon Temple. "W" is Catholic and cannot attend the wedding, but his ex-wife and children will be there. After the wedding he and his "ex" are having a reception outside of the temple. There will be wedding pictures taken and a regular party for their friends and relatives.

Dear Abby

"W" does not want to take me to this reception. He says I do not belong there. We have had many arguments over this. Meanwhile, he says he loves me and hopes to marry me someday, so I can't understand his thinking. I feel, as his future wife, I belong with him at his daughter's wedding reception. Am I wrong?

UPSET IN L.A. DEAR UPSET: Yes. Although you are living together and you consider this arrangement "as good as married," "W" does not. If he doesn't want you there, stop arguing and accept the fact that he thinks you don't belong there. You would be wise to re-evaluate your future with this man. He considers you good enough to live with, but not good enough to participate in a family celebration.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man who was married and divorced. (So was I.) I am 33 and Walter (not his real name) is 40. He's a lovely guy, but he has a fault that's serious enough for me to wonder if I should go through with this marriage.

He has asked me to repeat at least 100 times every detail of my sex experiences with the only two men in my life I have ever gone to bed with. The first was a man I was engaged to marry (after we went together for five years). We broke up when he confessed that he was bisexual and his psychologist told him to choose between me and the man he had been seeing. I lost.

The other man was my ex-husband. There wasn't much to tell because we were married less than a year and dated only a few months. I am sick to death of repeating my experiences, but Walter insists that he has to know everything. When I tell him there is nothing more to tell, he accuses me of lying.

He has told me about all the girls in his life, and there were many. I didn't ask him and really didn't care, telling me in detail about Imogene, Fredericka, Doreen, Holly, etc.

My minister advised me to refuse to talk about anything that makes me uncomfortable, but Walter won't take no for an answer. What should I do?

SICK OF TALKING DEAR SICK: Walter appears to have a sick preoccupation with your past, and it's not going to get any better unless he gets help. I would not marry a man who had so little respect for my feelings and so little confidence in my integrity.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a very nice woman you work with that she has a very bad body odor?

SOMEONE IN KENT, WASH. DEAR SOMEONE: Tell her privately — in a kind, gentle and caring manner. And soon. You will be doing her a kindness.

DEAR READERS: One of the great journalists of our time, George Seldes, age 96, who interviewed, argued and broke bread with Isadora Duncan, Albert Einstein, Freud, Trotsky, Lenin, Mussolini, Col. McCormick, Eleanor Roosevelt, Errol Flynn, Hemingway and hundreds of other notables, has written a fascinating book titled "Witness to a Century" (Ballantine). It's the perfect gift for a friend whose intelligence you respect. Treat that friend to this delicious literary smorgasbord, and buy one for yourself so you two can discuss it. But don't lend your copy to anyone. You'll never get it back.

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Area briefs

Club discusses credit problems

Naomi Hunt, county extension home economist, met with members of Elbow Homemakers Club Oct. 15 at the home of Gloria Kappas.

After a brief business meeting Hunt presented information concerning credit problems.

The 3-Rs to remember are rights, responsibility and redress.

A few rights for borrowers include no risk, choice of credit source, to be informed, to be heard, to redress.

A prospective borrower can't be discriminated against because of age, race or sex, and must be given a valid reason if credit is refused.

Some responsibilities of the borrower include dealing with reputable businesses, found out the cost of credit, the method they use to apply credit and actual dollar amount.

Read the contract before signing and guard those credit cards.

If lost or stolen, phone the company immediately and then write to inform them. Making payments before due date will insure a good credit rating.

The next meeting will be Nov. 5 at the home of Lou Vincent, 2300 Merryly.

NARFE discusses referendums

Chapter President James Henderson appointed a nominating committee for the purpose of choosing a slate of officers for the NARFE Big Spring Chapter for 1988.

Elections will be conducted at the November meeting. Donna Phillips, representative from T.U. Electric, presented the program "A Historic Look at Lighting."

The next meeting will be Nov. 12 at Kentwood Older Adults Activity Center, 2805 Lynn Dr., featuring the Hot Potato Band.

Patriot

Colorful country music singer Mountain John (John Michael Hilligoss) made a two-week summer tour of Poland and Hungary and says he felt a surge of patriotism when he performed for audiences who waved the American flag in eastern Europe.

PBS aiming for younger viewers

NEW YORK (AP) — Public television took a big step this week in its quest to expand viewership and shed its lingering image as a bastion of how-to shows, obtuse artistic ventures and documentaries on wildlife mating rituals.

This week, PBS began to yock and rock. "Trying Times" debuted Monday. The show is an anthology sitcom series in which PBS takes TV's shock genre and says we can do it better.

On public television's version of half-hour comedy, the writers have won Pulitzer Prizes for their plays and the actors have been in films by Martin Scorsese and Francis Ford Coppola.

A look at the first few episodes of "Trying Times" reveals the series to be satisfyingly off-beat and unlikely to find its way onto present-day network television. On the other hand, the best of the commercial network comedies, like the new "Frank's Place" on CBS and "The Slap Maxwell Story" on ABC, do not compare unfavorably with the PBS idea of TV comedy. Maybe public television can't do it that much better. Maybe commercial television is improving.

The first episode, "A Family Tree," is a black comedy written by Beth Henley, author of the Pulitzer-winning play "Crimes of the Heart," and starring Rosanna Arquette ("Baby, It's You," "After Hours," "Desperately Seeking Susan") and rock artist and filmmaker David Byrne ("True Stories").

Arquette is Kara, the Calamity Jane of social events, hoping to make a good first impression on her boyfriend's parents. The evening dissolves into a series of Hitchcock-inspired horrors. Henley pokes fun at sitcom style, turning everything swell at the end despite disaster.

Next week's episode is "Drive, She Said," written by playwright Wendy Wasserman and starring the wonderful Teri Garr ("One From the Heart," "Tootsie") as a stodgy art history professor who decides to learn to drive after her intellectual boyfriend (Lyman Ward) dumps her for the car-hopping star of "Dukes of Hazzard," played by Catherine Bach, who was actually in the defunct car-crash series. Again the story dissolves into true TV happenings when the art history professor falls for the driving instructor (Ron Silver).

Comedian Steven Wright stars as a freeloading perpetual academic who finally gets cut off from his stipend and has to "Get a Job" in episode three, by TV sitcom writer Earl Pomerantz, whose credits include some of the best of commercial television, "Mary Tyler Moore," "Cheers" and "The Cosby Show."

Future episodes star actor and monologue artist Spalding Gray, Jessica Harper, Jeff Daniels, Swoosie Kurtz, Candice Bergen and Keanu Reeves, the younger actor who made a splash in the movie "River's Edge."

The featured writers include Gray and playwrights Bernard Slade and Christopher Durang.

So much for yocks. In the rocks department, PBS this week revived "Rockschool," an innovative series featuring rock musicians explaining their work and demonstrating that, notwithstanding the Dire Straits tune "Money for Nothing," it is work. Keyboardist Herbie Hancock is host.

The shows are a combination of MTV-style star interviews, good rock music and, for those who want to grow their own, a how-to-rock course.

David Thomas, project director for WNET, said the series has been somewhat revamped since it first aired two years ago to give more space to music rather than pure instruction and to concentrate more on computerized synthesizers than on drums and guitars.

SHOP-O'-THE-WEEK

BUSY — Randy Reeves, recently appointed Special Events Coordinator for Highland Lanes, looks over the league and tournament schedule. The facility's 40-seat party room is available for community meetings.

HIGHLAND LANES

Highland Lanes, located in Highland Mall, is a state-of-the-art family recreation center.

The center was literally designed from the ground up to incorporate all the latest equipment and services available for the bowler, according to Paul Graves. Graves and Harold Abergegg are co-owners.

"We have people come from all over just to see our operation," says Graves.

The center features Zenith TV's and telescopes. "We're on the cable," Graves says. "The overhead telescope can be tuned into your favorite football game or soap opera, while you watch your score on the console scorer."

Highland Lanes provides a nursery attendant free of charge to participants in league bowling. There's a pro-shop, where you can be completely outfitted for the sport, including your own custom-fitted bowling ball. A snack bar provides everything from "the best burger in town" to a chicken fried steak. The arcade and pool room are located in a separate area apart from the lanes.

Topping off the center is the popular Pin Deck Lounge, serving mixed drinks and offering DJ entertainment with dancing nightly. There's a dress code in the evening.

Highland Lanes has been successful in attracting tournaments including the recent Special Olympics and Men's Invitational, Pro Doubles coming in December, and the Pro Region Tournament in May, 1988.

Cathey moving up on PRCA circuit

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Coahoma cowboy Wacey Cathey is rapidly moving up in the bull riding competition on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit.

Cathey, who began the season slow, out of the top 10, has worked his way to the fourth leading money winner in PRCA bull riding.

In the latest PRCA standings, Cathey's current earnings are listed at $45,885.

Ted Nuce of Manteca, Calif. is the current leader with $461,894 in winnings. Lane Frost of Frost, Okla. is second with $59,731, and Cody Snyder of Alberta, Canada is third with $47,307 in prize money.

The all-around money winner on the circuit is D.R. Daniel of Okeechobee, Fla. who has earned $74,677, a $7,000 margin ahead of Clay O'Brien Cooper of Gilbert, Ariz.

At the recent Lone Star Bass Tournament at Lake E.V. Spence, Monty and Brian Bollinger won first place honors.

Their aggregate catch of black bass for two days was 36.36 pounds, and 17 fish. Joey Henderson of San Angelo and Randy Dusek of Barnhart placed second, with 15 fish weighing 34 pounds.

Third place went to Bob Kirby and J. Don Scott of Midland, eight fish for 21.97 pounds. Finishing fourth were James Hood of Robert Lee and Jack Bartlett of San Angelo, nine fish for a total of 20.95 pounds.

Striped bass returned to the picture at Lake Spence with several of the larger size fish caught.

At lake J.B. Thomas, crappie continued to set the pace. Best fishing was in 15 to 20 feet of water off rocky points, using minnows as bait. Yellow and channel catfish are still biting well.

Roy McKendrie of Big Spring caught 16 and six-pound strippers. J.J. Jeter of Big Spring caught 50 crappie and 30 catfish, weighing up to eight pounds.

Saturday the Big Spring Running Club competed in the Midland Red Hot Chili Pot Trot Eight Mile Run.

Linda Davis won her age division and Don Davis and Teri Quinones placed second in their respective divisions.

In Snyder at the White Buffalo Days Biathlon, Vic Keyes was the overall winner. The competition consisted of a thirty-mile bike ride and a 6.2 mile run.

The club's next race will be a state championship half marathon in Midland on Nov. 7.

Pioneer World Travel is sponsoring a soccer camp next summer for boys from 12 to 17 in Norwich City, England. Boys will learn soccer skills and techniques from professional players and coaches of one of England's most famous first division soccer clubs.

Campers will meet youth from all over Great Britain and play in a U.S.A. vs. Great Britain challenge match.

Private groups, teams and coaches are welcome. Some sightseeing is included. Participation in international tennis is also possible.

For more information telephone (800) 262-5725.

The Big Spring Steers are currently the fifth ranked team offensively and defensively in District 2-4A.

Offensively, Big Spring is averaging 274 yards per game, 202 on the ground and 72 in the air.

Monahans continues to roll up the offensive yards. The Lobos are averaging 404 yards per game, including 324 yards on the ground. The Sweetwater Mustangs are averaging 317 yards per game, including 259 on the ground.

While most 2-4A teams are run-oriented, the Lake View Chiefs and Fort Stockton Panthers are the best passing teams in the league. The Chiefs are averaging 146 yards in the air per game, while Fort Stockton is passing for 110 yards.

Andrews has the weakest offense in the district, averaging just 150 yards per contest.

Defensively Big Spring is allowing 267 yards per game. The Steers are giving up 137 on the ground and 130 in the air. The Steers have allowed more passing yardage (852), than any team in the district.

Now some news for hunters...

Landowners and hunters are reminded that no antlerless deer permit issued by the Texas Parks and Wildlife department will be required for taking antlerless deer in Howard County, south of Interstate 20, for the regular deer season for 1987-88.

Antlerless deer in Howard County will only require being tagged with the appropriate tag from the hunter's valid hunting license.

The regular gun white-tailed deer season for 87-88 is November 14 through January 3, with a bag limit of four deer, no more than two bucks in Howard County.

Landowners in Glasscock County are reminded that a mail-out system for issuing antlerless deer permits was initiated for the 87-88 regular deer hunting season.

Landowners or their agents that received antlerless deer permits last year were automatically mailed a renewal notice and antlerless deer permits will be mailed directly to them.

Landowners that did not receive their permits or were not on the mailing list last year, may apply for antlerless deer permits by completing an application card. Application cards may be obtained from local wildlife biologist, game wardens, and Department offices throughout the Possum Kingdom Regulatory District.

Department personnel will be available to landowners in Glasscock County on Nov. 2 between 8 a.m. and noon, and 1-5 p.m. at the courthouse in Garden City.

Eagles fly into town

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers and Pecos Eagles both have a main goal for their District 2-4A encounter Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

For the Steers it will be to stop the turnovers, especially fumbles. For the Eagles, it will be to get more turnovers. In any case the 8 p.m. contest promises to be a very interesting game for many reasons.

Both teams were picked to finish high in the pre-season district polls, and both teams have suffered rather disappointing seasons so far.

Coach Daylon Whitehurst's team come into the contest with a 1-5-1 league record and 1-3-1 mark overall.

After last week's 36-6 loss to Fort Stockton, the Steers drop to 3-3 overall and 2-2 in league play, with slim hopes of still making the state playoffs.

Pecos is coming off a 21-6 loss to powerful Sweetwater.

In its last three games, the Steers have been plagued by fumbles.

...must stop turnovers

STEVEN GILL
...new starting QB

Against Fort Stockton, the Steers' Veer offense fumbled the ball six times, and lost all six. It gave Big Spring an unbelievable 25 fumbles over the past three outings. For the season, Big Spring has fumbled 40 times and lost 23.

All of this leaves Steers coach Quinn Eudy puzzled.

"I really don't know what it is," said Eudy when asked about his team's recent rash of fumbles. "All you can do is work on it and work on it practice. I've never had a team that's come close to fumbling this much."

Pecos coach Whitehurst is hoping his team can get more turnovers than in the past. Coming into this contest, Pecos opponents have fumbled the ball 20 times, while the Eagles have recovered only five.

"We've played several close games but we haven't been able to get any turnovers. I've heard that Big Spring has trouble holding on to the ball. I hope they keep it up," said Whitehurst.

"But we've been having some problems with turnovers lately too. Last Friday night on the opening kickoff against Sweetwater, our return man fumbled, their man caught it in the air and returned it 21-yards for a touchdown. All of a sudden, with eight seconds gone, we were behind 7-0."

The Steers offense will have a new leader this week in quarterback Steven Gill. He will be the Steers' third starting quarterback. EAGLES page 2B

Cards even Series at two apiece

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals stole Minnesota's big weapon, and the World Series stood even. It was, indeed, a Lawless act.

The Cardinals used flashy defense and speed on the bases — their trademarks — to beat the Twins 7-2 Wednesday night.

They also got a three-run homer from Tom Lawless, who had only 25 at-bats during the season, to ignite a six-run fourth inning, and two RBI from Jim Lindeman to even the World Series at two games apiece.

The Twins, who have hit 13 homers in nine postseason games this year, had used big fourth innings to win the first two games at home, 10-1 and 8-4. This was a role reversal not only of timing, but of method. The homer by Lawless, only the second of his major league career, was the first in this Series by the Cardinals.

Lawless, playing third base for the injured Terry Pendleton, also turned in one of three run-saving defensive plays in the fifth inning as Minnesota tried, but failed, to get back into the game. The other fancy defensive work was done in by the Wizard himself, shortstop Ozzie Smith, and left fielder Vince Coleman.

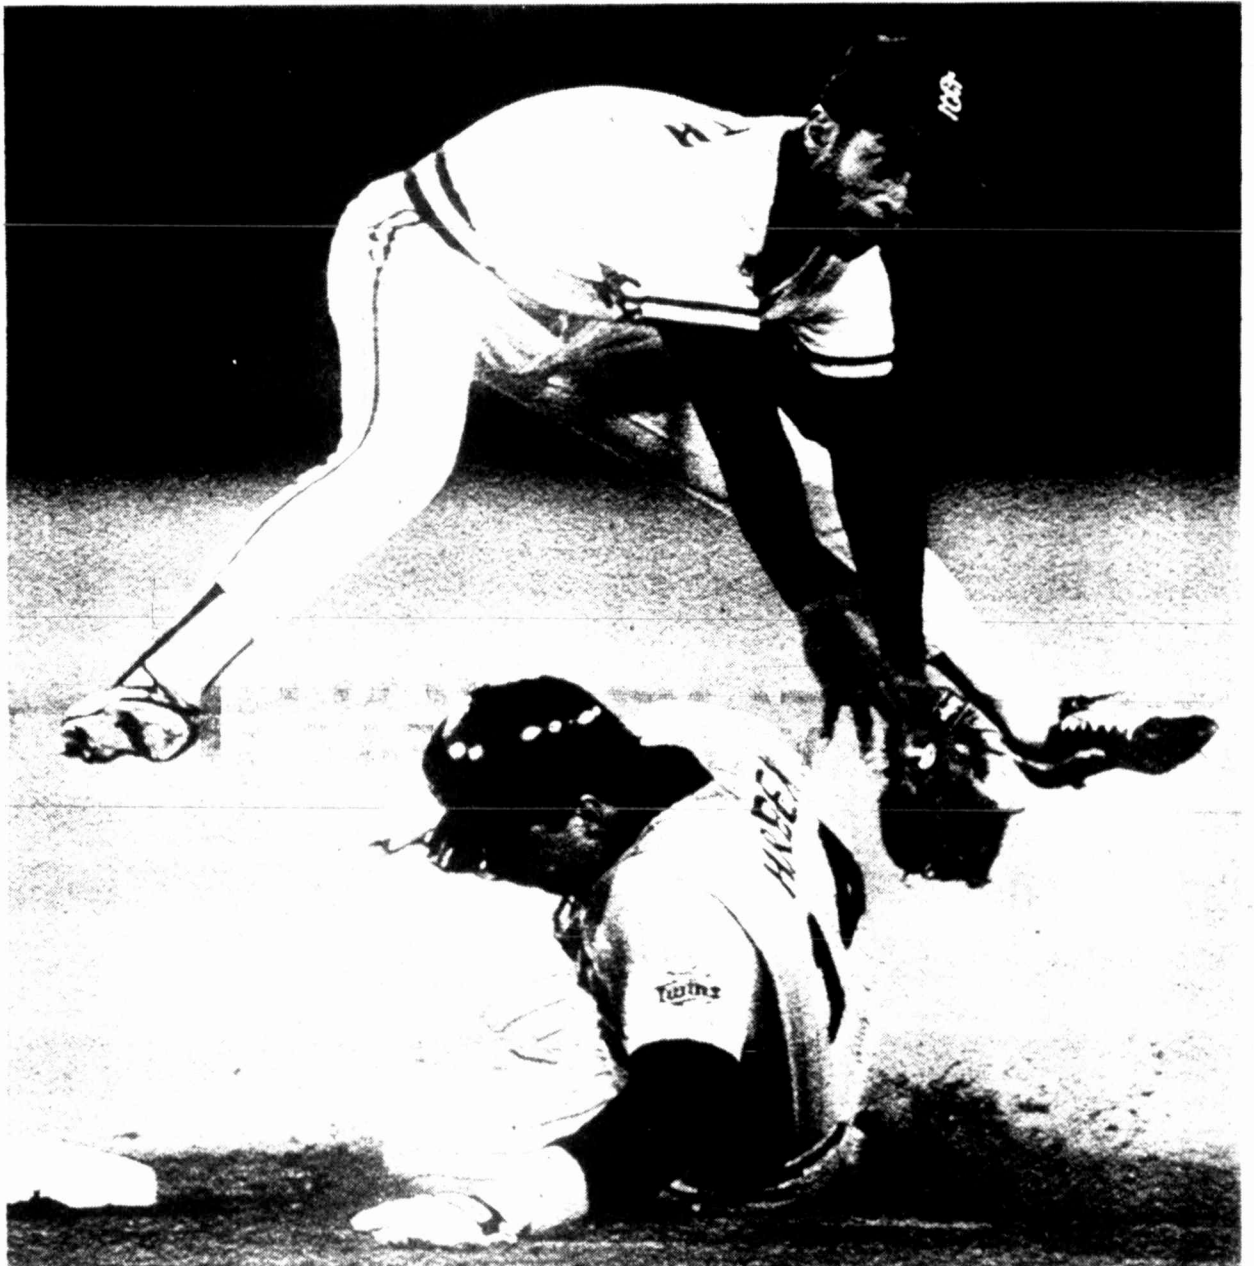

Lindeman, playing for injured first baseman Jack Clark, singled in runs in the third and fourth innings and now has four hits in two Series starts. He is platooned at first base against left-handed pitchers, such as the Twins' Game 4 starter, Frank Viola.

"You always have to figure you've got a chance," said Bob Forsch, who got his first Series victory in four decisions in relief of starter Greg Matheus. "Otherwise, it's going to be a long season. With some of the injuries we've had, if you're not an optimist, you could get a real bad attitude, and we don't have a bad attitude. That's what's so great when a guy like Lawless comes along with a home run."

Tonight, the Twins will start Bert Blyleven against Danny Cox in a rematch of Game 2.

"We didn't expect them to throw in the towel," Twins Manager Tom Kelly said.

On a second straight frigid night at Busch Stadium, the Twins took a 1-0 lead. It came on Greg Gagne's leadoff homer in the third.

St. Louis Cardinals' shortstop Ozzie Smith goes high over Minnesota Twins Kent Hrbek in the sixth inning Wednesday in St. Louis in a double play which helped the Cardinals defeat the Twins 7-2 in game four of the World Series.

Lindeman's RBI single in the bottom half of the inning tied it, and the Cardinals chased Viola in the fourth inning.

Viola, who pitched eight innings and allowed just one run on five hits in Game 1, had walked his first batter in 10 innings in the third.

Then, leading off the fourth, he walked Tony Pena. Jose Oquendo's single sent Pena to third, bringing up Lawless, the No. 8 hitter.

Lawless' only other major league homer had come in 1984 with Cincinnati. His second came on an 0-1 pitch from Viola and put the Cardinals ahead for good. Lawless flipped his bat toward the St. Louis dugout and took off on a slow, luxurious home run trot.

"I knew I hit it right on the button," Lawless said. "But I also knew this was a big ballpark. I just stood and watched it and I said 'Holy Cow!" to myself. ... I knew I hit it good, but I didn't know it was going out right away. I wasn't running because I figured it was either going to be a sacrifice fly or a home run."

"From the fifth inning on, I wanted to get the game over so I could relish the moment," Lawless said.

One out later, the Cardinals were CARDS page 2B

IRVING (AP) — John Dutton and Randy White shook hands.

"Randy knows he can have all the free beer he wants if I get my distributorship next year," Dutton said. "There was a lot of talk. But talk is cheap."

So much for the great showdown between returning strikers and picket line crossers at Valley Ranch on Wednesday.

It was business as usual as Dallas Coach Tom Landry prepared his returning veterans for Sunday's NFL game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

There were a few veterans not happy the replacements used during the 24-day strike were still around.

"They shouldn't be here," player representative Doug Cosbie said. "We don't need a lot of extra people around."

By land or air, this back can do it extremely well

By The Associated Press

Refugio's Willie Mack Garza scored by land and by air in leading the state's top-ranked Class 2A team to a 74-0 victory over Benavides last week.

Garza rushed 240 yards on 11 carries and scored on runs of 1, 17, 86 and 59 yards and he caught three passes for 95 yards, two going for touchdowns of 35 and 37 yards. All but one rush came in the first half.

The show was nothing new or out of the ordinary for the extraordinary Garza, who has led the Bobcats to a 35-1-1 record in his four seasons on the varsity.

He was outgained in yards by fellow South Texas runner Mario Moreno of Freer, who gained 354 yards on 23 carries and had touchdown runs of 52, 66, 5, 8 and 84 yards in a 60-28 victory over Falfurrias.

Garza and Moreno earned Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll mention for their outstanding performances.

Garza has 1,524 yards rushing this season and is averaging 15.4 yards per carry. He's scored 28 touchdowns, 24 by rushing and four by receiving. How much does Garza mean to the Bobcat offense?

"He's got speed, moves and power, he's the best blocker I've got and he's the second strongest player on the team," Refugio Coach Bobby Kelly said.

"What I like best about him is that he's a real gentleman. He's got an 89 (grade-point) average and already has passed the college entrance exam. He can go to any NCAA Division I school he chooses."

If Garza's feats seem unbelievable, Kelly has a video library of Garza's finest moments.

"When he was a sophomore, we were in the two-minute drill and the quarterback was trying to throw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock," Kelly recalled. "Mack leaped up caught the ball with one hand and somehow got a foot in bounds. It helped us score a touchdown."

There's more.

"Last year in his first game back (after suffering a broken wrist) he had a cast on his wrist and you could tell in the warm-ups he was wincing when he caught the ball," Kelly said. "But he caught three touchdown passes that night against Taft."

McMahon returns to lineup

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Opponents of the Chicago Bears had better be prepared for another dimension when the post-strike season resumes this week. Jim McMahon is back.

After a layoff of nearly a year in which time he underwent serious shoulder surgery, McMahon expects to play Sunday at Tampa Bay and, if all goes well, assume his starting quarterback role shortly thereafter.

"I feel ready to play," McMahon said Wednesday, "and if I do well in Tampa Bay, I'll expect to start the following week."

McMahon, who appeared in only six games last season but has a string of 23 straight starting victories, underwent rotator cuff surgery last December.

Doctors told him it would be at least a year before he could play again. But McMahon reported to the Bears training camp in Platteville, Wis., last summer determined to start the opening game against the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants.

"That was unrealistic," said McMahon, who was placed on the injured reserve list until Coach Mike Ditka announced he would be activated this week.

"So I set my sights on week seven and this is week seven," McMahon said.

McMahon has reportedly been throwing with some zip on the ball since the Bears, 4-1, began workouts last Thursday following the 24-day strike.

After practice Monday McMahon went to Los Angeles to get final clearance from Dr. Frank Jobe, who performed the surgery.

"Dr. Jobe was very happy with what he saw and the arm looks good," McMahon said. "It is stronger and the endurance that wasn't there in training camp is there. I'm ready to play. I don't think (Ditka) will start me, but I hope to get in the game this week."

Chicago Bears' quarterback Jim McMahon throws during the team's workout Wednesday in preparation for this Sunday's game. McMahon is expected to return back to the starting lineup after coming off a shoulder injury.

The carefree McMahon said he never worried about the injury being career ending.

"Once I threw the ball, I knew I could come back," McMahon said. "It was just a matter of conditioning."

about McMahon being able to take a hit on the shoulder but the quarterback feels he has already passed that test although unwillingly.

While playing in a basketball game last week, McMahon revealed that teammate William "The Refrigerator" Perry slammed into him with his 315-plus pounds.

"The Fridge hit me when my arm was extended back and that's what the doctors were worried about," McMahon said. "It hurt at the moment but it was all right."

McMahon feels he is entitled to start whenever he is ready in place of Mike Tomczak. Tomczak started seven games last year after McMahon was injured and won them all plus two this season before the strike.

"I don't think I did anything before I got hurt to lose my starting job," McMahon said. "I feel the starting job is mine, but that's not my decision."

"Tomczak has played well but I don't feel I should be demoted. Mike is playing better and he's going to get better, but I can do things on the field that he hasn't gotten to yet."

Tomczak is not yet ready to give up the starting job.

"I'm happy to see Jim come back, he has worked hard and I've been pulling for him," Tomczak said, "but the better quarterback is going to play and right now I'm playing well. Jim has missed almost a complete year and I think a lot of questions have to be answered in his mind."

McMahon figures he'll answer the questions on the field this week.

"I feel I'll get into the game," McMahon said. "I hope Mike does well and I can come in and iron out the kinks."

Miners seeking first bowl bid since '67

By The Associated Press

The last time Texas-El Paso's football team played a game this important this late in the season, Lyndon Johnson was president, the Vietnam War had not yet become front-page news and the Beatles were still making hits together.

Not since 1967, when the Miners made their last bowl appearance, have UTEP fans had so much to cheer about halfway through the season.

The amazing Miners, 5-1 overall and 3-0 in the Western Athletic Conference, get their stiffest test of the year on Saturday when they visit Air Force, 5-2 and 3-1.

A UTEP victory virtually eliminates Air Force from the title chase. A UTEP loss leaves just one team (Wyoming) unbeaten in league play.

Elsewhere in the WAC this weekend, Brigham Young is at Hawaii, and New Mexico visits Colorado State in a battle of winless teams. Utah entertains Utah State and San Diego State plays host to Long Beach State in non-league games. Wyoming is idle.

"Probably the most fun we're having is seeing the reaction in El Paso itself," said UTEP Coach Bob Stull. "We've had huge crowds — 46,000 to 50,000 — for our last three home games. Our fans start tailgating in the parking lot six hours before kickoff. They've had to stop some games because the crowd noise was so high. Enthusiasm is really up."

The Miners, while playing admittedly a soft schedule so far, have nonetheless won the games they once lost routinely. Led by the steady quarterbacking of Pat Hegarty and the solid running of John Harvey, the Miners rank 44th in the nation in total offense and 31st in total defense.

They're averaging 33.5 points per game — the seventh-best figure nationally — and are giving up only 16.8.

Air Force, which seeks to rebound from last week's 35-14 thumping at the hands of Notre Dame, boasts the nation's No. 2 rushing attack, averaging 365.4 yards per game. Quarterback Dee Dowis, who had 132 yards rushing against the Irish, is the top running quarterback in the country.

Another game of survival will be played in Honolulu, where BYU and Hawaii both have one conference setback. Historically, a second loss has proved fatal.

BYU, 3-3 overall, has been productive offensively of late, scoring 117 points in its last three games. Hawaii, 4-2, leads the WAC in two defensive categories, and Heikoti Wakava is tied with Harvey for the national scoring lead, both with 66 points in six games.

Hawaii has never beaten BYU since joining the WAC in 1979.

New Mexico, 0-5 overall and 0-3 in the WAC, ranks second in the nation in passing, but the leaky Lobo defense ranks a lowly 101st out of 104 Division I-A teams. Colorado State, 0-6 and 0-3, has thrown the ball effectively, but the Rams are last in the country in turnover differential at minus-14.

Cards

at it again. Coleman walked, and Kelly replaced Viola with Dan Schatzeder. The 3-1-3-inning outing matched Viola's shortest of the season.

"The only part that's frustrating was that I didn't follow my own game plan," Viola said. "I have to establish myself, throw strikes and get ahead, and tonight I didn't do it."

"It seems like I've given up so many homers to unlikely guys," Viola said. "If I'm not totally in my groove, it seems like the No. 8 and 9 guys are the ones that hurt me. Somehow I take a guy like that for granted and lose my concentration."

Schatzeder struck out Smith, but Coleman stole second, forcing an intentional walk to Tommy Herr. Lindeman followed with a single to score Coleman, and when Twins center fielder Kirby Puckett bobbled the ball, Herr raced to third and Lindeman to second.

Willie McGee followed with a single, and the Cardinals led 7-1.

"Nobody can replace Jack Clark," Lindeman said. "I've just got to go out and do what I can. ... I'm not going to go out and hit 900-foot homers like Clark. I'm more of a doubles man. I try to drive in runs."

On Lawless' homer, Lindeman said: "It was great. The way he reacted, we thought it was going in to the upper deck."

Mathews pitched into the fourth before a recurring injury forced him out of the game. He worked only three innings in his last start.

Game 5 of the National League playoffs, before he pulled a muscle in his right thigh. The Cardinals said he won't pitch again in the Series.

Forsch came on and worked 2-2-3 innings, allowing one run on a hit for the victory. Ken Dayley worked the final 2-2-3, allowing one hit.

"It's not the way I envisioned getting my first World Series victory," said Forsch, who was 0-2 for St. Louis in 1982 and 0-1 in 1985. "I envisioned it more as a starter than as a reliever, but I'll take it any way I can get it."

He walked pinch-hitter Gene Larkin to start the fifth, and a single by Dan Gladden sent Larkin to third. It was a perfect opportunity for the Twins' offense. It also was a perfect opportunity for the Cardinals' defense.

Forsch struck out Al Newman for the first out. Then Puckett hit a bouncing ball down the third base line. Lawless dived, got his glove on it, and while Puckett got an RBI single, the ball stayed on the infield.

Then Gary Gaetti hit a grounder that seemed destined to pass between Lawless and Smith and into left field. But Smith dived, gloved the ball and scrambled to his feet in time to force Puckett at second as Gladden went to third.

"So so," Smith rated his play. "It's all in a day at the shop."

Tom Brunansky followed with a sinking line drive to left field. Coleman raced in and made a sliding catch to end the inning.

"I knew I didn't want it to fall in," Coleman said. "All I was worried about was that it didn't get into the lights. I always feel like I have a chance on any ball hit out there."

The Cardinals had pulled the plug on a potential rally. The score stayed 7-2, and, just maybe, the momentum had swung.

"When we were down 2-0, people didn't give us a chance," Smith said. "It's tough for us to score runs. But somehow, we get the job done. I think we're a much better ballclub than we get credit for."

this season. Gill is filling in for injured Craig Knocke, who suffered a sprained ankle against Fort Stockton. Knocke was filling in for Shawn Shellman, who underwent knee surgery last Thursday.

A 6-2, 185-pounder, Gill is bigger than the other two QB's and has a "more lively" arm according to Eudy. Last week the senior transfer from Kentucky played sparingly and completed six of 10 passes for 52 yards. He had moved the Steers to the Fort Stockton five-yard line when the game ended.

"I've got a lot of confidence in Steve Gill," said Eudy. "He just has to learn to be patient and take what's given to him."

It's no secret the key to stopping the Pecos offense is to stop elusive junior quarterback Bobby Ray Smith.

The 5-10, 155-pounder is the league's fourth leading passer and fifth leading rusher. He's completed 33 of 83 passes for 403 yards, and is averaging 5.7 yards per carry while gaining 543 yards on the ground.

Bobby Smith has done a real good job for us this year," said Whitehurst. "He's not big or fast, he's quick though. His passing is not what we'd like it to be. But he needs an offensive line that can knock people off the ball.

"We've only scored 48 points this season. We move the ball from 30-yard line to 30-yard line. But once we get inside the 30, we can't score."

Eudy and his defense have their eyes set on Smith.

"Pecos' offense goes as the quarterback goes. He's really a good football player. He's one of the most elusive kids I've ever seen. He doesn't have great speed or you would really be in a bind."

"We've got to contain him on the sprint out, where he has the option to run or throw. I think I'd rather make him throw than run," said Eudy, adding that his secondary is capable of stopping the pass.

Whitehurst seems somewhat puzzled by this year's Steer team. "Big Spring is a Doctor Jeckel-Mr. Hyde. I saw them play against Estacado and I was quite impressed. I don't know what's happened to them since then."

Eudy is straight to the point when discussing what is the key to the game.

"If we cut out the errors and kicking game mistakes, we'll do well. If not, it'll be the same old story."

A story the Steers would rather not be in.

Linksters trying for 'biggie'

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — There is more at stake this week in the Tucson Open Golf Tournament than the title and $108,000 first prize.

There is the struggle for positions on the money-winning list in the last tournament that qualifies players for next week's $2 million Nabisco Championships of Golf.

"That's the only reason I'm here," said Mac O'Grady, among the handful of golfers in the hunt for those final positions on the 30-player list that will be eligible for the tournament in San Antonio.

Also in the scramble for the last four positions are Mark O'Meara, Hal Sutton, Mike Reid, Jodie Mudd, Gene Sauers, John Cook and Bob Tway.

At the moment, O'Meara, O'Grady, Sutton and Reid would qualify, with Mudd, Sauers, Cook and Tway below the cutoff, but they are in solid position to improve this week.

The tournament in San Antonio will offer the largest purse in the history of the PGA Tour and almost certainly will determine the leading money-winner and Player of the Year.

In addition to the $2 million purse, including $360,000 to the winner, another $1 million will be distributed according to positions on a season-long points list.

And, while that's a week away, it all serves as an incentive for the 156-man field that was to start play today in the $600,000 Tucson Open.

"The money-winning title, Player of the Year, Leading the Nabisco list," Paul Azinger said, "ticking them off his fingers."

Azinger needs a strong performance this week to close the gap going into the decisive Nabisco tournament.

Things don't get better for Kansas State

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

One of the problems with being in the Big Eight Conference if you're not Oklahoma or Nebraska is that you must play Oklahoma and Nebraska every year.

However, only winless Kansas State (0-6), which can least afford it, has to play them back-to-back this season.

Oklahoma and Nebraska are 1-2 in the Associated Press poll for a record eighth consecutive week by teams from the same conference.

"We will approach (Saturday's) Nebraska game much as we did the Oklahoma game (a 59-10 loss last week)," Kansas State Coach Stan Parrish says. "We want to go to Lincoln and play hard, fight hard and attack them."

The Wildcats must have improved some. They were 56-point underdogs at home against Oklahoma but are only 53 1/2-point underdogs at Nebraska, which played a near-perfect game in trouncing Oklahoma State 35-0. The Cornhuskers, who have won 18 straight from K-State, won't have to be anywhere near perfect. The pick is Nebraska 56-0.

Last week's prediction record was 33 right and 19 wrong for a percentage of .635; for the year, 210-89-4-702. Against the point spread, last week's mark was only 14-23-1-378; for the season, 88-105-5-456.

Saturday's only game between members of the AP's Top Twenty finds No. 20 Michigan favored by 7 1/2 points at No. 15 Indiana.

Michigan leads the series 35-8 and has won 15 straight. Two weeks ago, Indiana stunned Ohio State 31-10 to snap an 0-30-1 streak against the Buckeyes. Not this time. The pick is Michigan 24-14.

Colorado at No. 1 Oklahoma (favored by 37); Oklahoma 42-7.

No. 3 Miami, Fla. (no line) at Cincinnati; Miami 49-7.

Mississippi State at No. 6 Auburn (by 27); Auburn 35-10.

North Carolina State at No. 7 Clemson (by 19 1/2); Clemson 34-14.

California at No. 8 UCLA (by 28); UCLA 38-17.

Colgate at No. 9 Syracuse (by 34); Syracuse 42-14.

Southern California at No. 10 Notre Dame (by 6 1/2); Notre Dame 24-20.

Kentucky at No. 12 Georgia (by 10); Georgia 27-13.

Georgia Tech at No. 13 Tennessee (by 13 1/2); Tennessee 34-10.

Illinois at No. 14 Michigan State (by 16 1/2); Michigan State 28-14.

Minnesota at No. 16 Ohio State (by 11); Ohio State 21-14.

No. 19 Oklahoma State (by 3) at Missouri; Oklahoma State 24-14.

Arizona (by 7 1/2) at Washington State; Upset Special of the Week ... Washington State 28-24.

blems on the first full day of a mix between veterans and replacements.

Outspoken linebacker Jeff Rohrer said there were a "few sparks and stares" but said the team was following Landry's advice: "Keep your personal feelings off the locker and field."

Among the replacements only free agent wide receiver Kelvin Edwards appears to have a place on the roster clinched.

"He's the kind of young talent you want to keep around," Landry said. "He's shown a lot of ability to run away from people and catch the football."

Edwards, a fourth-round draft pick by New Orleans who was cut in training camp, wasn't taking anything for granted.

"I don't even want to think about it," he said.

The replacement players were working this week against the veterans and taking things one day at a time.

"I feel I can do the job, make a contribution somewhere but it's not up to me," safety Johnny Haynes said. "It's up to the coaches. I really don't know about my chances. They haven't kept a safety in a long time."

Offensive lineman Steve Cisowski said he planned to work hard. "I really want to play for the Cowboys and I might get a break."

"There has been a great camaraderie with the (replacement) players. We have developed a lot of friendships over the past three weeks. We have all become real close."

Defensive tackle Mike Dwyer, who has been a Cowboys' fan favorite with his enthusiasm, said he thinks he played well enough to get management's attention during the next couple of weeks. "I'm hoping."

Dwyer was on the cover of the Cowboys' game program when they met Philadelphia at Texas Stadium.

"That's something I'll never forget," Dwyer said.

Quarterback Kevin Sweeney, who didn't play in Dallas' loss to the Redskins Monday, doesn't know his status although he played well in two games.
