Texas debt issues on Nov. 3 ballot

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
AUSTIN — Officially, only two statewide referenda appear on the Nov. 3 ballot. But lurking in the weighty list of constitutional amendments is a third.

Five of 25 proposed changes seek exceptions to the rule that the state should not go into debt. If voters approve the total $2 billion in general obligation bonds, they will sanction a departure to unprecedented extremes from the Texas tradition of "pay as you go."

At the heart of the bond programs, proponents say, is Texas' ability to recover from the one-two punch of depression in its chief industries, energy and agriculture. They foresee new jobs and economic diversification, whether in the "Build Texas" program of Amendments 7, 8 and 23; the public fund created by Amendment 6 for nurturing Texas products and businesses, or Amendment 19's investment in the superconducting super collider.

"It may be the wisest investment we ever made," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said recently, plugging the programs before the Texas Association of Taxpayers.

Many critics, however, raise a single objection to the full slate: Now, they say, is not the time to add to the state's already substantial debt.

To date, Texas voters have authorized just under $4 billion in general obligation bond issues. About half those bonds — $1.97 billion — have been sold to finance veterans' land and housing programs, college student loans, farm and ranch loans, and park and water development programs.

But unlike revenue bonds, which must be retired with money generated by the projects they finance, general obligation bonds are ultimately backed by "the full faith and credit" — the taxing power — of the state. Taxpayers could face paying not only the principal amount, but interest costs that equal or exceed it.

If voters approve all five amendments, the state's authorization to borrow under such terms would increase by about 50 percent. That gives pause to some fiscal conservatives. In addition, each specific proposal faces opposition on its merits.

Amendment 6 would provide $100 million to the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority for agricultural development and $25 million to the new state Department of Commerce — $15 million for development of new products and $10 million for direct support of small businesses.

Critics say temporary hard times do not excuse the use of tax money for private purposes. Pledging businesses unable to get capital from traditional sources, they say, are unlikely to succeed in any event. Finally, they say, the program would divert resources from activities that must depend Inmate Harding 'Has no case' — Assistant D.A.

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Texas Department of Corrections inmate Arthur Lee Harding, who filed a petition for writ of habeas corpus this week in 118th District Court, hasn't got a case, Assistant District Attorney William Dupree, said today.

Harding, serving a five-year sentence for forgery by passing, claims he entered a guilty plea without being aware of the consequences of his plea. Harding was convicted July 7 after pleading guilty to passing an $11,500 forged check.

According to Harding's petition, his attorney failed to advise him that he had a right to appeal.

As a result, Harding seeks exoneration for the "misdeeds," according to the suit, which claims the conviction "is constitutionally infirm and violative of the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution."

Dupree, who represented the state in the case, said Harding was notified in writing of his rights and also was admonished in court of the consequences of pleading guilty.

It's routine business to admonish anyone charged with a crime about his rights, Dupree said. "He doesn't have any kind of case," he said.

According to a ruling filed Wednesday by District Judge James Gregg, the petition presents nothing for review.

Harding was a previously convicted felon and not eligible for probation, and the five-year plea bargain agreement was negotiated as a result of effective counsel, according to the findings-of-fact ruling.

In addition, Harding has repeatedly and consistently admitted his guilt and has abused the writ process by making a false allegation about his exposure in the proceeding, the ruling states.

RICKY MITCHELL

Mitchell, band target top state spot

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

When the Big Spring High School Steer Band won a place in the state marching contest last year, Director Ricky Mitchell was shocked — and pleasantly surprised.

This year, however, Mitchell is not only expecting to take his band to the contest, he is aiming for a spot as one of the top five bands state-wide.

"We have a very realistic goal of going to state this year," he said. "If you had asked me two weeks ago, I would've said 'I hope,' but now I'm confident of our chances."

Before motel reservations for Austin should be confirmed, however, the Steer Band must leap one more hurdle — regional marching competition in Lubbock's Jones Stadium Saturday afternoon.

BSHS will be competing against three other class 4A bands — Andrews, Levelland and Frenship — for the right to advance to state contest. The two highest-scoring bands will advance to Austin.

Mitchell said he believes Andrews will provide the toughest competition.

"Andrews should be our major competition," he said. "I've heard from other people that Frenship and Levelland aren't that strong. That doesn't mean we can coast, but they don't scare me."

Unlike the recent district competition, where the bands were rated on their own merits, the bands at regional will be ranked against the other competitors, Mitchell said.

Although the Steer Band only has to place second to advance, the director gave two reasons why he would prefer they win the top ranking.

First, there would be no doubt who had the best band. "This competition will spell out who's first," Mitchell said. The second reason is that whoever wins gets first priority in choosing placement at state competition.

"The order in which the bands march at state is determined before regional contest," Mitchell said. He explained that the top two directors will meet after the Lubbock competition and flip a coin to decide placement at state — with the first-place director getting the call.

When preparing for University Interscholastic League competition such as this, directors must be careful in selecting the type of show presented, he added.

Mitchell said he has tried to put together a show that is pleasing both to the crowd and the judges.

"We've always had a crowd show," he said. "But we've learned that you have to do a little more for the judges."

The fourth-year director, a 1973 graduate of Big Spring High School, said his band's show will be predominantly crowd-oriented, however.

"We play before an average of 20,000 each season," Mitchell said. "That's who we'll do our show for. I'm not going to base my season on three men who don't know me or my band."

Halloween a busy time

Herald staff report

Big Spring Halloween festivities include a Chamber of Commerce bash and free treats for the tots at local fire stations.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Cultural Affairs Council is presenting Artsfest '87 Costume Bash Saturday at the Big Spring Country Club.

The bash begins at 9 p.m. and lasts until 1 a.m. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased at the Chamber offices, 215 W. Third St., or can be purchased at the door for the same price.

Big Spring Fire Chief Carl Dorton said candy will be provided at the city's five fire stations and said he urges parents to bring children to the stations to be sure the candy they are getting is safe.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center will X-ray Halloween candy from 7-9 p.m. Saturday. Anyone wishing to have candy X-rayed should use the front entrance to the hospital.

The X-rays will not detect glass or poison only metal objects.

About 200 tickets for the chamber event have been sold so far, manager of the convention tourist and visitors bureau, Liz Taylor, said, adding that she hopes the party will become an annual event.

"Our goal is to have some sort of party every year to highlight Artsfest."

The chamber's second annual Artsfest began Oct. 8 with Howard College's production of Neil Simon's "Brighton Beach Memoirs" and culminates Nov. 21 with a Big Spring symphony concert.

Any money raised will go to the chamber's Cultural Affairs Council to support Big Spring cultural events, Taylor said.

The party is open to anyone in the community and to all age groups, she said.

Cash prizes of $50, $25 and $15 will be given for the best costumes.

Taylor said the council decided to begin festivities at 9 p.m. to allow time for parents to take their children trick or treating.

Sgt. Drew Bavin, Big Spring crime prevention officer, recommends that children complete their trick or treating by about 8 p.m.

"The little ones... we recommend parents go with them," he said, adding that one parent could accom-

Oprah-Jessica combination a hot ticket

MIDLAND (AP) — Callers clogged phone lines for more than two hours in hopes of getting a seat at Friday's airing of the Oprah Winfrey show honoring Jessica McClure to be broadcast from Midland, a spokeswoman said.

The 19-month-old toddler who spent 58½ hours in a dry water well before being rescued also was being honored today with a parade. Gov. Bill Clements declared today "Jessica McClure Day" statewide, saying those who helped Jessica showed Texans' sense of caring, compassion and concern.

More than 900,000 calls were completed into the six telephone exchanges in Midland-Odessa between 9 and 11 a.m. Wednesday for 800 free tickets, Southwestern Bell officials said. The completed calls represent a half million more than the exchanges receive in an average day, KTPX-TV spokeswoman J.J. Davis said.

More than a million calls never made it through, Ms. Davis said.

When told about the calls, Ms. Winfrey said she was thrilled with the response.

"We have all shared in this story. I only wish we could accommodate all 900,000 callers in the Midland Center," she said. "But I hope they'll all be watching."

Because of the volume of calls coming into the two cities, callers in the Midland-Odessa area had up to a four-minute wait simply to get a dial tone, Ms. Davis said.

"Normally if you pick up a phone, a dial tone will come on in three seconds," she said. "It was just incredible."

Alice McGee, a publicist with the show, said 400 tickets were offered to volunteers who helped get the Midland toddler out of the well before the tickets were made available to the public.

"We really wanted to get anyone associated with the rescue on the show," Ms. McGee said. "We thought we'd actually go through the event and focus on the rescue."

About 450 police officers, firefighters, utility employees and ordinary working people aided in Jessica's rescue in an effort that captured the attention of the nation and world. The volunteers controlled crowds, helped drill a rescue shaft and provided refreshments.

The Oprah Winfrey show will be carried live by NBC-affiliate KTPX-TV from the 1,200-seat Midland Center and will have the toddler's parents, Chip and Cissy McClure, on stage.

Officials say capitol walkway going well

Herald staff report
The response has been overwhelming, program coordinator Cecelia Old said of efforts to obtain funding from counties to restore the state capitol's walkways.
Howard County will be one of more than a hundred state counties to be represented on the Great Walk leading to the Texas state capitol.
County commissioners in June contributed $300 to the restoration project, enabling the county to have its name engraved in the walkway.

About 70 percent of the state's 254 counties that have contributed to restoring the walkways, Old said from her Austin office.
The Texas Association of Counties has asked all Texas counties to contribute $300 toward restoration of two walkways on the capitol grounds.

The Oval Walk, which encircles the capitol, and the Great Walk, the promenade that leads from Congress Avenue to the south entrance of the capitol, are to be restored.

Construction is scheduled to begin in January and will be completed in early spring, Old said. The walkways will be resurfaced with 28-inch, diamond-shaped components permanently etched with the names of contributors.

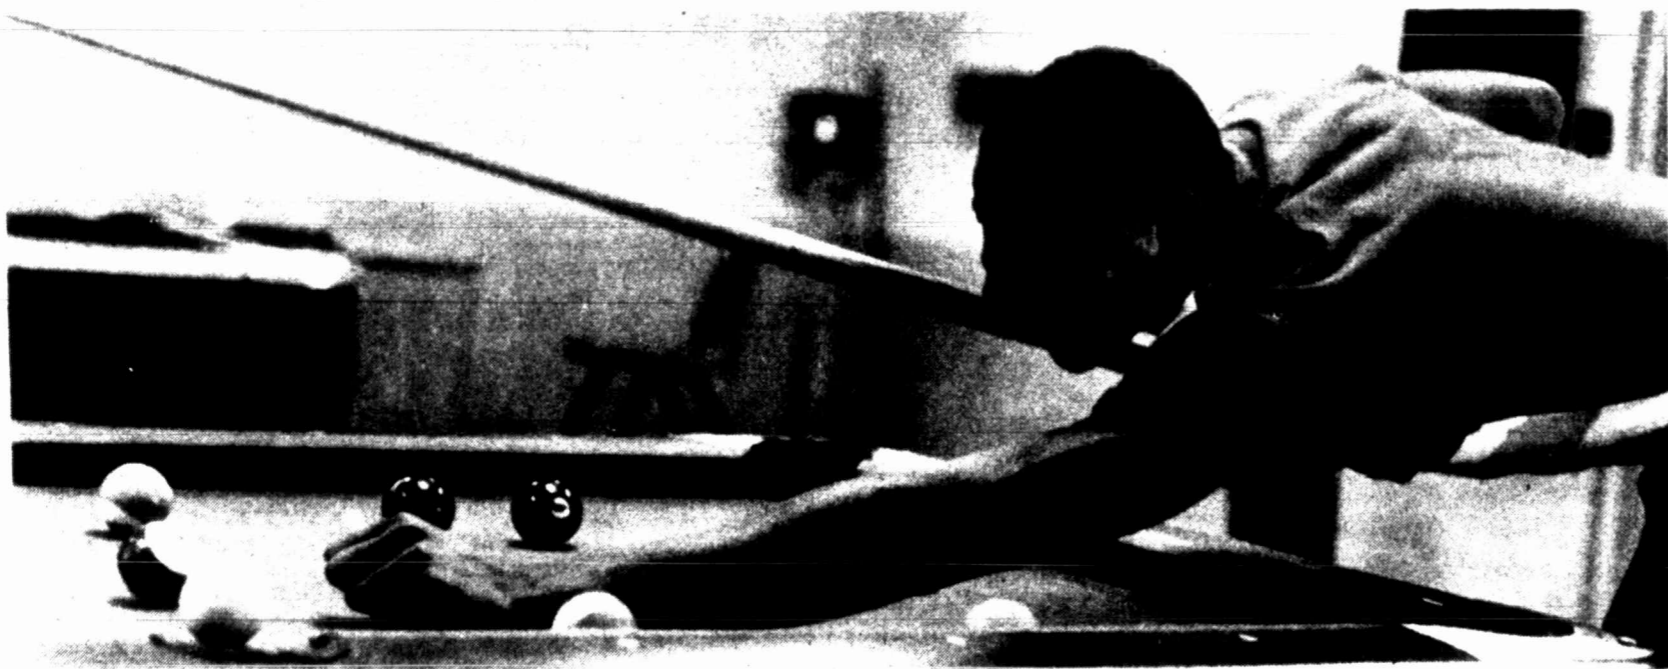

All capitol restoration efforts, begun after a 1983 fire that damaged the Senate wing and the lieutenant governor's living quarters, are expected to be completed prior to May 16, 1988 — the capitol's 100-year-old birthday.

Restoration projects include replacement of the Goddess of Liberty on the capitol dome, renovation of the north and south entrances, the rotunda, the governor's reception areas and the House chamber.

Anyone interested in participating in the restoration project should write to the Capitol Committee, 1507 West Sixth St., Austin, Texas 78703 or call (512) 477-6499.

Pavers remain available on the Great Walk and the names of individuals, families, associations, clubs and businesses can be inscribed on the blocks, Old said.

Participation is limited to the first 5,000 names.

Debt

on government funds.

Amendment 7 authorizes up to $400 million for loans to local government for improvements to their "infrastructure," the public sector catch-phrase for parks, ports, airports, jails, bridges, convention centers and the like.

Supporters want to take advantage of depressed real estate markets, relatively low interest rates and bargain-basement construction costs to invest now in facilities Texas will need in the future. The program would further reduce interest costs to localities, they say, by allowing them to take advantage of the state's credit rating.

Opponents observe that since selection of projects would be left to a state bureaucracy, voters can have no idea where or for what purpose the bonds would be used. Moreover, they say that any sound local public improvements can and should be financed with local bond issues.

Amendment 8 would provide up to $500 million for purchasing, constructing or repairing prisons and mental health and retardation facilities. Here, supporters borrow fire power from the federal courts.

Both the Texas Department of Corrections and the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation are under orders to improve conditions for those in the state's charge.

Hobby, in his speech to the taxpayers' group, said the bond proceeds would allow state prison officials to end a yearlong cycle of "closing the front doors to new admissions and opening the back to premature releases" by adding more than 7,800 beds to a critically crowded system.

Those on the other side call Amendment 8 the ballot's clearest example of "spend now, pay later." Prison and mental health facilities will produce no income to the state.

Assuming the bonds are sold at 7 percent interest and paid off over 20 years, as the Legislative Budget Board did in its estimates, the annual draw on the state treasury would exceed $46.5 million. The total amount paid would be more than $930 million — 86 percent more than the $500 million cost of the additional facilities.

"It's deficit financing," says state Rep. Al Granoff, D-Dallas. "It's going into debt instead of making decisions based on resources available."

Opponents also point beyond the fiscal wisdom of using bonds to the social issues that dog the criminal justice system. For example, Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants (CURE), a reform group headquartered in Washington, D.C., would prefer that the state make more effective use of probation and parole and instruct judges to base sentencing policies on prison capacity.

The best-publicized among the bond proposals has been Amendment 19, the $500 million in assistance to the superconducting supercollider — a massive $4.4 billion atom-smashing device planned by the federal government for study of such forces as gravity, radiation and the binding together

Authorization would double the state's pledge of investment in the federal project, for the Legislature already has approved the proceeds of $500 million in revenue bonds.

Supercollider boosters insist that without the full investment, the U.S. Department of Energy will overlook Texas in choosing the project's home. Four Texas sites — Amarillo, Hudspeth County, Garden City and Waxahachie — have been forwarded to federal officials.

Although the bond issue has enjoyed high-powered support from Republicans and Democrats, the Texas Libertarian Party has pushed against it. Gary Johnson, the party's Texas secretary, contends that what is touted as an economic boon to all Texans actually "will help, at most, a few professors and graduate students in physics."

Of the five amendments, in only one case — Amendment 23, authorizing $400 million in water development bonds — does the ballot specify how much debt a yes vote could generate.

Dancers arrested on Lewd Act charges

Herald staff report

Six male dancers apparently bared more than their souls Wednesday night during a performance at the Brass Nail.

The dancers, members of the Houston club "LaBare" — billed as America's Number One Ladies' Club — were arrested at 10:30 p.m. on charges of violation of the Lewd Act by Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission Agent James White.

Arrested were Dana Joseph Dennen, 25, Robert Lee Segler, 26, Troy Raymond Vopper, 24, Daryl Lee Duke, 23, Lane Alan Thompson, 24, and Robert J. Buras, 24, all of Houston.

Each was released on a $200 bond.

The Act, part of the Texas penal code, prohibits sexual contact in a location where someone might be offended by the action, Assistant Supervisor of the Alcoholic Beverage Commission L.D. Adams said today.

The sexual contact allegedly occurred during the dancers' act, he said.

Shelton Castle, a co-owner of the club, said this morning that he did not know any details concerning the arrest.

The violation is considered a Class A misdemeanor and is punishable by up to a $2,000 fine and one year in a county jail, Adams said.

Credit card rates may be public

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers would be able to compare interest rates when applying for a credit card under legislation approved overwhelmingly by the House.

The House voted 408-1 on Wednesday in favor of a measure which would require the multimillion-dollar credit card industry to give consumers "full and timely information" on its interest rate.

The measure, which would supersede state laws, is aimed at forcing down high credit card interest rates through competition and giving consumers a method of comparing different cards. But it does not place a nationwide cap on credit card interest rates.

The vote came after the House rejected 356-56 an amendment by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., which would have tied interest rates to what the federal government pays to borrow money.

Annunzio's amendment would have prohibited credit grantors such as banks and retailers from charging interest on outstanding balances at a rate more than 8 percentage points above the yield on one-year Treasury securities, adjusted quarterly. If such a limit were in effect today, the highest permissible rate would be 15.03 percent.

Donald G. Oglivie, executive vice president of the American Bankers Association, said in a statement that the defeat of the Annunzio amendment was a triumph for consumers.

"Placing price controls on such a broadly competitive industry would have only served to restrict credit and increase the costs of obtaining credit for those still qualified," Oglivie said. "The House approved the best pro-consumer proposal and one we are pleased to support: Meaningful credit card disclosure so that consumers can make intelligent and informed choices."

Joe Belew, president of the Consumer Bankers Association, said in a statement after the vote that the Annunzio proposal was anti-consumer, not pro-consumer, as the Illinois Democrat claimed.

"Annual fees might have increased," Belew said. "Grace periods would probably have disappeared. And most importantly, credit standards would have tightened. Those with lower incomes, short job histories, and those with even small blemishes on their credit records would have been penalized."

He said, "Had such a law been in place in 1981, when Treasury bills were yielding more than 16 percent, credit card rates would have exceeded 24 percent."

Annunzio said, however, the American consumer wants a cap on interest rates. "The issue is very clear," he said. "When the American bankers need help, they know where to go — the U.S. Congress. And they usually get what they want."

Bavin also recommended the following safety tips:

- Wear reflective material on costumes.
- Be careful crossing streets.
- Go to homes where you know the people living there.
- Don't enter the houses.
- Be respectful of people's property.

Showers in space get down to business Prayer at games debated in Dallas school system

HOUSTON (AP) — Showering in zero gravity is a tad different than showering at home, says a Houston homemaker testing the space agency's new device for orbital hygiene.

"It becomes functional and not pleasurable," Sue Eley, 36, said Wednesday. "I like to stand in a shower and let it beat down and relax. And it's not like that at all."

Over the past 14 months, Ms. Eley has soaped up about 40 times at government expense to help NASA test the new shower. For her efforts, she earns about $10 per hour.

During missions of up to three months, astronauts need to keep clean if they are to be at their best, said Rafael Garcia, mechanical engineer at the Johnson Space Center's Man-Systems Division. He has been working on the shower system for about three years.

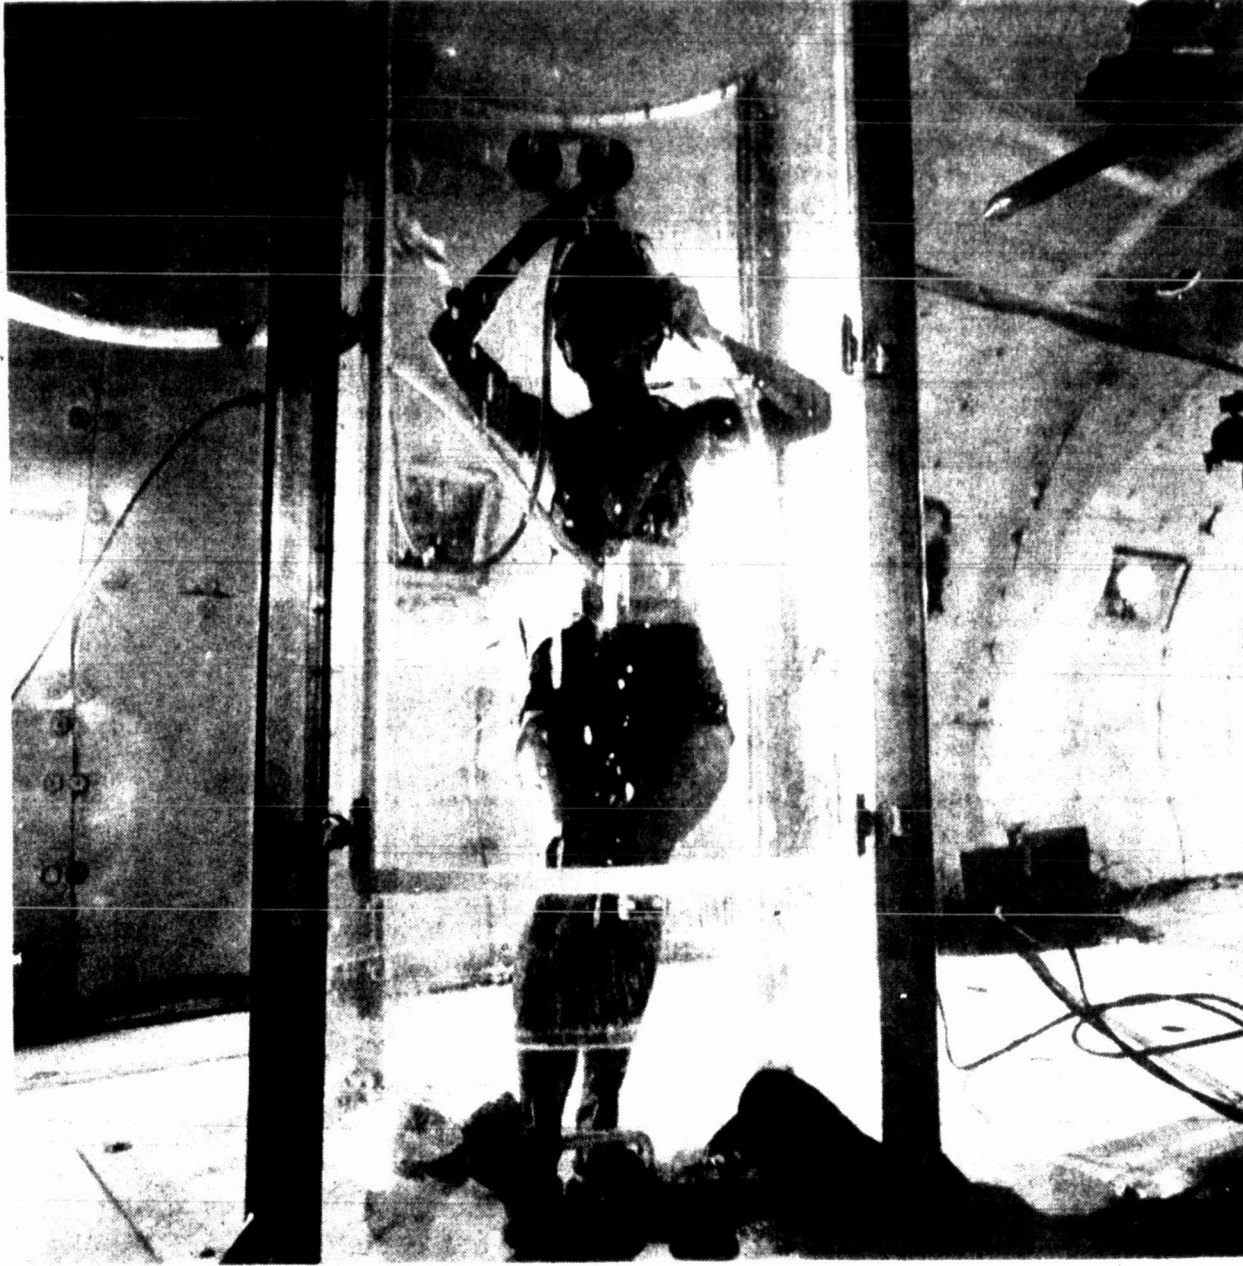

Carrying water into space is an expensive proposition at several thousand dollars per pound, when a gallon of water weighs 8.33 pounds.

"You probably wouldn't have a (space) station if you had to bring up the water because it turns out the each crewman needs about 52 or 55 pounds of water a day," said W.R. Humphries, chief of the life support branch of the Marshall Space Flight Center.

Humans drink about six pounds of water per day, and use 45-50 pounds per day for hygiene. At those rates, eight astronauts would go through 20 tons of water over three months, or the equivalent of an entire space shuttle payload.

The 450 pound shower recovers about 93 percent of water used, and astronauts would be allowed to shower every other day, Garcia said.

Despite drawbacks, Ms. Eley likes the shower.

Susan Eley, a test subject, rinses her hair following a shampoo and shower in a plexiglass prototype Space Station shower. She used a water spray nozzle to rinse and a vacuum hose to remove excess water. The test was flown aboard the KC-135 aircraft for zero-G testing.

Dallas Times Herald Bureau DALLAS — Invocations offered at public high school sporting events, the pregame prayers traditionally permitted in all suburban school districts but discontinued in Dallas last year, violate the Constitution and could be challenged in federal court, civil liberties officials say.

"It is unconstitutional," said Ken Gjemre, president of the Dallas Civil Liberties Union. "You cannot use public facilities to promote any religion. We have had a lot of complaints and we could sue a whole bunch of school districts tomorrow if people had the courage to stand the ostracism their kids would get. We'd like to sue if we could get a plaintiff, but when we say what they have to do, they don't want to suffer the consequences."

A federal judge in Atlanta earlier this year issued an unprecedented ruling banning public prayers at sporting events, but the ruling applies only to the 11th federal district. Texas is in the jurisdiction of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court based in New Orleans.

Most area school officials say they will continue the invocations until banned by court order.

"We feel it helps set the tone for the evening's activity," Plano East principal Archie McAfee said. "Everyone has a certain religious belief. We're not setting those beliefs, but we feel it is an inspiration when we give our invocation."

Another school official, Irving assistant Supt. Jack Singley, said the issue of public prayer should be decided by the community, not the courts.

"Unconstitutional or not, it depends on how the community feels about it," Singley said. "I can assure you we have prayers before each game."

A Times Herald survey of area school districts showed all public high schools in Arlington, Bedford, Euless, Garland, Grand Prairie, Hurst, Irving, Mesquite, Plano and Richardson allow prayer before football games.

Dallas school officials stopped the practice last year because of questions about its constitutionality, and the Carrollton-Farmers Branch district is in the process of phasing them out, athletic director Jim Arnold said.

Pearce has also reduced the number of its invocations, said Allen Holladay, Richardson Independent School District athletic director.

Cisneros infant son has heart tests

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doctors plan a heart catheterization for San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros' 4-month-old son who has a heart defect.

The mayor and his wife, Mary Alice, brought John Paul Anthony to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia seeking a second opinion on a diagnosis provided by doctors in Texas.

"We feel very confident about the care John Paul has received," Cisneros said. "But as in all other cases of very complex medical problems, Dr. Rogers concurs that it just makes good sense to have the most experienced doctors in the country also have an opportunity to confirm the diagnosis.

Dr. John D. Murphy, a child heart specialist and assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania, was scheduled to perform a cardiac catheterization on the child today, said Bonnie Jacobs, a hospital spokeswoman.

Ranchers blast Bullock land lease

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Duval County ranchers are branding as a sweetheart deal the leasing of 1,880 acres of state land by Comptroller Bob Bullock, the Houston Chronicle reports.

Both Bullock and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said there was nothing wrong or unusual about the 10-year lease. They also said Bullock is paying more than anyone else offered.

However, the Chronicle reported Wednesday, "Skeptics question how Bullock could have wound up with what turns out to be one of the state's few hunting leases in South Texas — without having received special consideration from Mauro's office."

The newspaper also said that Bullock has fenced in the land, closing off a road through the property that once provided neighboring landowners easy access to their own property.

"I think that he has caused considerable trouble out there," said rancher Leroy Hardcastle of Freer, who grazed cattle on the property for more than two decades before the state leased it to Bullock.

"I think it's an inside deal, but I have no way to prove it," Hardcastle said. "I'm sure it had to go through the land commissioner."

George Taggart, a Rockport businessman who owns land in the vicinity, told the Chronicle he also believes Bullock was given special treatment by the General Land Office.

The newspaper said the lease actually is in the name of George Garland, a former associate deputy comptroller for tax and administration in Bullock's office, who has been working as a lobbyist since January, according to Bullock. They split the lease cost, Bullock said.

"George and I have been hunting down there for years. Normally, we hunt on (Clinton) Manges' place," the comptroller said. Manges, a Duval County rancher, long has been a figure in Texas politics and is a long-time acquaintance of Bullock.

Mauro said no special deal was made. "He's not getting any special treatment, period," the land commissioner said. "But he did come in and offer the state the best deal available."

Girl dismays burglar with religious rebuke

DALLAS — Startled by the 10-year-old daughter of a Pentecostal preacher screaming "I rebuke thee in the name of Jesus," a burglar would-be burglar fled from the girl's teenage brother, and shackled with a chain until police arrived, authorities said Wednesday.

Police said Shaun Bowles, 15, and his sister Keidra Bowles apprehended Joseph Greg Brockman, 31, after they came home from school Tuesday afternoon and chased a man they found carrying a computer from their father's study.

Police summoned by a neighbor said they found Brockman lying face down in the backyard of the Bowles home, 914 N. Cedar Hill Ave., his hands secured by chain from a child's swingset and the children's father sitting on Brockman's back.

Brockman, who lives about a block from the Bowles residence, remained in Lew Sterrett Justice Center late Wednesday with bail set at $10,000.

Shaun told police he and his sisters Keidra, a fifth grader at Hogg Elementary School, and Tiffany, a 5-year-old in kindergarten, arrived home from school at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday and heard noises in a back bedroom.

Started, the man pried open a door dead-bolt and leaped into the backyard with Shaun in pursuit, police said.

As the youth jumped the man from behind and held him in a "bear hug," the man reached to his waistline for what Shaun said he believed to be a concealed gun.

Shaun backed off and begged the man, by then wielding a tire iron, not to hit him. Keidra came out the back door as the man raised the tire tool toward her brother.

"I rebuke thee in the name of Jesus!" she screamed. "Dumbfounded, the man kind of began tripping over his shoes and I jumped him from behind," knocking him to the ground, Shaun said.

The man hit Shaun on the head and arms with the tire tool and bit his hands and arms repeatedly, but the boy held on, smacked the robber and "stabbed my finger in his eye," he said.

When Irving Bowles, 41, pulled in the driveway minutes later, Tiffany related the situation "all in one breath," said Bowles, an information analyst for IBM Corp. and a Pentecostal preacher.

DALLAS BASED COURIER COMPANY CLAIMS SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE IN FUEL SAVINGS WITH PLATINUM GASAVER

Following a three-month test, a Dallas area courier company, Relay Systems Courier Service, Inc. (Independent Contractor), concluded that the Platinum GasAver definitely provides the remarkable benefits the manufacturer guarantees it to be worthy of. The most noticeable improvement readily obtained was an 18-to-32% increase of fuel mileage with the overall average being 23% for the entire fleet.

According to a company spokesman, this will result in an annual savings of approximately $250 per vehicle. In addition, the company can now travel more miles between tune-ups and oil changes, since the fuel is more efficiently used in the engine. These tests were conducted on several vehicles with different engine sizes under a variety of driving conditions. For more information call (214) 644-4092 in the Dallas area, 1-800-445-1870 in Texas, or 1-800-634-0517 outside Texas.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

First lady makes perfect role model

Every so often there comes a cancer case which drives home the importance of treating this disease with care and respect. First lady Nancy Reagan gave us just such an example recently when it was learned she had breast cancer. That is one of the most frightening experiences a woman can have. Breast cancer is the second leading cause of death for women. One out of 11 females will develop the disease. However, Nancy Reagan's case can remove some of the fear. Tests revealed no spread of the cancer, and no further treatment would be necessary after breast removal.

Recovery chances for the first lady could not be better.

It was the early detection which made that possible. The fact that she is first lady, that she is so visible to the entire nation, and that she has the same health problems as others makes her an excellent vehicle for a message.

And the message is for women to have frequent examinations to make certain they do not have breast cancer. Then if a problem is found, it might be early enough to end with the same good results as did Nancy Reagan's story.

Burlington (N.C.) Daily Times-News

Tells Senate to fulfill responsibility

Now that the Bork battle is over, the administration and the Senate need to work on adding a ninth justice to the Supreme Court — and filling 50 vacancies on the lower federal courts.

As to the ninth justice, the sooner the better. The Supreme Court has already had one important tie vote, settling nothing. More will come as long as a vacancy exists.

The administration should quickly propose an easily confirmable nominee. Let's get this thing out of the way.

Baltimore Sun

Says market crash woke up Reagan

In his speech to the country (last) week, President Reagan finally admitted what many of us knew all along — that somewhere along the line, higher taxes would have to be part of the formula to help solve the country's economic problems.

It sounds like (last) week's market crash woke up some people in Washington.

Eagle Times, Claremont, N.H.

Catastrophic health bill blasted

The catastrophic health care proposal before Congress has quickly fallen from a noble idea to a financially irresponsible, special-interest bill.

Earlier this year, President Reagan proposed that elderly citizens be protected from the financial hazards of a catastrophic disease or illness. But then the House took the idea and twisted and turned it into a program of "free" prescription drugs for the elderly.

There's no such thing as "free" prescription drugs for the elderly. They get an 80 percent discount on drugs once they meet an annual $500 deductible. And because of this bill, Medicare premiums would increase 20 percent per year beginning in 1989 — after next year's congressional elections, of course.

Even the drug companies see the financial folly involved here. The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association opposes the bill.

The Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail

Lauds action of EPA to save water

Narragansett Bay ranks among the finest of those great estuaries of America — those magnificent bodies of water jutting into the coastline and bearing such storied names as Chesapeake Bay, Puget Sound, Long Island Sound, San Francisco Bay.

All of the scores of such waterways are wonderful recreational and commercial resources. They also share another common feature: All have been devastated by wanton pollution.

In the first national gathering of its kind, environmental groups from throughout the United States met for five days at Our Lady of Providence Seminary in Warwick, Rhode Island's own Save the Bay hosted the sessions, which were financed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

An action plan was adopted, launching a national agenda. Whether it will be carried out in every detail remains problematical.

But the conference already has achieved a lot in directing national attention to a national problem. For this alone, EPA and Save the Bay are to be commended for their initiative.

Gatlingburg doesn't want Bakkerville

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Gatlingburg has the "Bakker blues."

The small eastern Tennessee resort community (pop. 3,500), gateway to Great Smoky Mountains National Park, is hospitable enough to defrocked televangelist Jim Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye.

But trying to satiate the hordes of curious who have come to see the place where the Bakkers decided to hole up has put something of a strain on Gatlingburg's residents.

Not, mind you, that the hardworking, generally religious people of "the Burg," as they call it, will come right out and ask the notorious couple to leave. But if the Bakkers were to succeed in their comeback attempt and settle for good again in their old South Carolina digs, there'd be few tears shed in Gatlingburg.

When Dale Van Atta visited the town recently, the Bakkers were back on the front page again. Rev. Jerry Falwell had just resigned as head of the PTL empire, and Bakker seemed more determined than ever to rise from the ashes of adultery and disgrace.

Further fanfare greeted the appearance of the latest Playboy magazine, for which Jessica Hahn had bared all in print — and almost all in the accompanying photographs — about her famous sexual encounter with Bakker several years ago.

Except for one brief press conference, Bakker remained behind the fortress fence newly erected around his mountain retreat overlooking Gatlingburg. He refused to come to the phone to answer Van Atta's questions.

But the townfolks were talking, if one didn't appear to be a blatantly professional snoop. Hundreds of tourists had overrun the town's Alpine-motif motels and shops as they came to catch the turning of the leaves, and eavesdropping was no problem.

"They're our own Ferdinand and Imelda," one local store owner remarked a bit ruefully.

A saleslady at one of the bookstores confided to an out-of-town couple that Bakker himself had been in just a few days earlier to make a special purchase: the current Playboy. Though she said she hadn't asked for an explanation, Bakker volunteered one anyway. "I want to see what smut she's spreading now," he told the clerk.

During their retreat in Gatlingburg — which they left temporarily last week for North Carolina to be near Jim's hospitalized father — the Bakkers have spent their time entertaining friends and accepting petitions to return to PTL.

The house, which they bought a couple of years ago for $148,000, was put up for sale when the sex scandal brought hard times to PTL and the high-living couple. But a generous creditor bought it for Bakker and paid for an estimated $300,000 worth of improvements, including a sun deck, a pool, the security fence and a mammoth gate.

When they do venture out, they shop in Gatlingburg and nearby Pigeon Forge. A saleslady in a clothing store confided that it was "a good thing" Tammy Faye bought most of the duds she tried on, since "she gets makeup all over the clothes."

The Bakkers' preferred spot for dining out is a pizza parlor.

City Manager Jim Varner, polite but politic, boasted freely about his town and its fine people, but when asked about the Bakkers would only say enigmatically, "I've had some good folks coming in and some good folks going."

A local reporter said the Bakkers had made a great success of the fire department's white elephant sale by contributing "the usual junk." The Bakkers' "junk" was snapped up at high prices — by the townspeople, not the outlanders.

One old-timer pointed out that Gatlingburg had had more than its share of "characters," like the one-time philanthropist whose mansion is a town landmark, but who was indicted for drug smuggling in Texas a few years back.

Then there was Raiford (or Radford) Gatlin, who had the town, previously called White Oak Flats, renamed for himself after becoming storekeeper/postmaster in 1856. Legend makes him a drunkard, a thief, a Democrat and a Confederate in staunchly Union/Republican eastern Tennessee, and the owner of a female slave whom he may have murdered. But as local author and publisher George Aiken notes, all of this is hard to prove.

"We've had a number of notorious characters who have come and gone," Aiken said cheerfully. As for the Bakkers: "I'm no great admirer of theirs, but I have nothing against them, either."

Vice president gets what's coming

By ART BUCHWALD
Vice President George Bush has been getting a lot of publicity lately, and much of it is well deserved.

I saw him at a coming-out party of a corn husker's debutante daughter in Iowa, and he was telling us why the people in Iowa didn't vote for him in a straw poll.

The farmers were all playing polo," he said. "And those that weren't playing polo were big game hunting in Africa. Nobody stayed home to vote for me."

"No," the Vice President said, "but I met a Polish mechanic on my trip to Eastern Europe and he told me his niece was coming out here, so naturally I said I would go. That mechanic would put any Detroit worker to shame. We ought to bring over thousands of them to get our auto industry on its feet again."

"Have you ever been to a coming-out party in Iowa, Mr. Vice President?"

"No, but I've seen a lot of them in West Virginia. A coming-out party is as American as apple pie. We probably wouldn't have white ties if it weren't for the balls. I'm curious to find out if Iowa does it the way we do back home."

"I heard after the girl dances with her father she throws herself on a fiery haystack to prove she's ready to be dated."

"That's different from the way we do it," the Veep said. "The girls back home don't have to do anything more than curtsy to announce they are coming out in society. Are there any other questions?"

It sounded plausible. "Do you know the girl who is making her debut here in Iowa?"

"Mr. Vice President, you said on the 'Larry King Show' the other night that the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation was fighting Judge Bork's nomination. Did you misspeak?"

"Yes, and when I found out I did I issued a retraction saying I was pleased to hear that the group did not oppose Judge Bork. I feel that straightened out the matter quite well."

"They thought your apology was as bad as your original statement. You made it look as if they were supporting Judge Bork."

"Are you calling me a wimp?"

"No, sir."

"Because if you are, here is my war record. I am not a wimp. If I were I wouldn't be attending a corn husker's daughter's coming-out party when I could be fox hunting in Virginia."

"Mr. Vice President, you are not doing so well in the polls. Rumor has it you're trying to get President Reagan off your back."

"That's a damn lie. The thing I believe the most in is loyalty. President Reagan has made mistakes — we all do, but they are his mistakes and nobody else's. I would like to get the record clear right now that I was out of town when the errors were made and by the time I got back it was too late for me to do anything about them."

"I'm not one of those Vice Presidents who says those are the President's mistakes and these are mine — because I didn't make any"

A guide to avoiding columnistic disasters

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

One of the nicer things about having a regular column is it allows you to write almost anything that comes to mind.

Almost.

A few taboos exist that would send readers and/or editors and publishers into a fit of apoplexy. If — for example — I denounced Ronald Reagan as a hunch-backed, commie, neo-fascist with bad breath, I might get into hot water.

Children are another example. Being a non-father, I am able to look at these miniature humans with more-or-less unbiased eyes. What I see would make Hulk Hogan weep.

I don't know what it is about them that makes most adults sing their praises for hours on end. Maybe it's mind control — or rays from outer space.

One of my co-workers is a perfect example.

She is a hard-working, conscientious type who is sane most of the time. On her desk, however, is a picture of her young son — complete with food-stained grin.

To the normal observer, the child would appear to be nothing less than the second coming of Freddy Krueger, but this otherwise rational colleague of mine only looked at the picture and cooed lovingly.

"Isn't he cuuuute," she asked.

Faced with the dilemma of whether to tell the truth and risk possible bodily injury, or lie and lose a bit of my self-respect, I did what any red-blooded American male would do in my position. I had a sudden coughing fit.

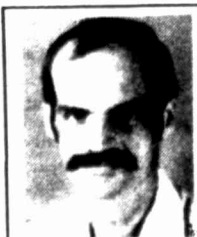

Like I said, however, if I were to write about such things, parents throughout the Herald delivery area would brand me as a heartless ogre without the slightest grain of decency.

Good thing I didn't mention it, huh? But aside from presidents, little children, certain popes and Annette Funicello, there's not much I can't expound on in my column.

As long as I observe the ground rules. Like many other things in life, column writing has its ground rules. As surely as Top Tall Jones can't break Phil Simms' neck without drawing a penalty, there are certain rules I must adhere to — or risk being on the wrong side of the soup line.

Without further ado, I present Reagan's Rules for Righteous Writing.

Investor had testified

MIAMI — The investor who shot two stockbrokers and killed himself after losing a fortune in the Wall Street crash had helped prosecutors convict mob figures in a 1977 stock fraud case, officials said.

Arthur Kane, 53, was actually Arthur Katz, a disbarred lawyer and federally protected witness relocated to Miami after his testimony drew death threats from organized crime figures in Philadelphia.

Kane had lost $10 million to $15 million in the market's two-week skid when he fatally shot a Merrill Lynch brokerage manager Monday and seriously wounded his personal broker before shooting himself in the head.

Crippled girl walks

BOSTON — A crippled Ecuadoran girl who was nearly cast into a jungle bonfire because of her deformed legs has taken her first steps in her permanent artificial limbs and may soon realize her dream of dancing in red shoes.

Seven-year-old Maria Andy will walk without crutches one day and will be sent home next week after she learns to balance on the new prosthetic legs she wore for the first time Wednesday, said doctors at Children's Hospital.

Maria was flown to Boston from an Ecuadoran orphanage last spring for leg surgery sponsored by Por Cristo, a charitable group of health professionals.

Atheist fights scouts

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. — Ken Saladin, who describes himself as a secular humanist, says he was barred from serving as a Cub Scout den leader because he does not believe in God.

Jim Sawyer, regional Boy Scout executive in Macon, said all adult leaders must fill out an application that includes a statement that "no member can grow into the best kind of citizen without recognizing an obligation to God."

"Only persons willing to subscribe to these declarations of principles shall be entitled to certificates of leadership in carrying out the Scouting program," the application said.

But U.S. officials said they were waiting to hear from Shevardnadze.

Trove yields little jewelry, money

PARIS (AP) — A two-hour broadcast about last summer's treasure hunt in the wreckage of the Titanic ended with the unveiling of a few stacks of soggy banknotes and a bit of jewelry that had rested on the ocean floor for 75 years.

Among artifacts raised from the unlucky luxury liner that were seen for the first time during the live telecast from Paris early today was a diamond-tipped pendant inscribed "May This Be Your Lucky Star."

The show was broadcast in 20 countries, including the United States, where it aired Wednesday night because of the time difference. The salvage expedition's private sponsors said they hoped it would help draw crowds to a Titanic exhibit that will tour the world next year.

The jewelry, cash and some gold-colored British coins estimated to be worth $5,000 were found inside a purser's safe and leather satchel raised from the Titanic wreck 350 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

The television program, "Return to the Titanic Live," also presented evidence that a fire in the oceanliner's coal bunker played a role in sinking the ship.

After the satchel and safe were opened, two experts from the jewelry firm of Van Cleef and Arpels examined the objects, including a gold pendant with a small diamond and the inscription, "May This Be Your Lucky Star," and a delicate bracelet with the name "Amy" spelled out in tiny diamonds.

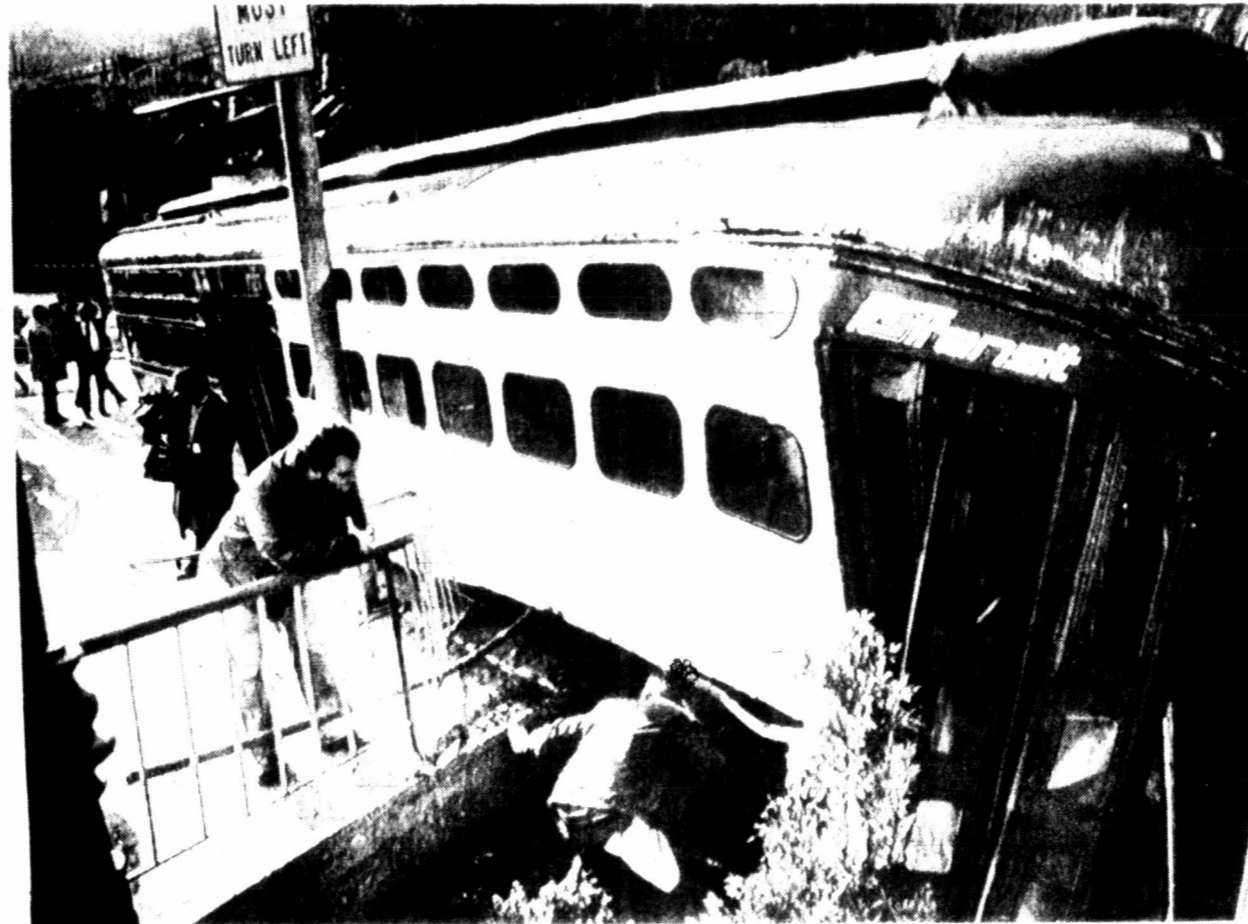

George Tulloch, one of the investors in the project, said the more than 900 artifacts recovered from the wreckage had been insured for $10 million. He added, however, that none of them would be sold.

The total cost of the project — including the voyage, production of the television show and a traveling exhibition — was expected to reach $10 million.

The investors hoped to recoup about $5.5 million from television and home video rights. They were expected to make up the remainder, plus a handsome profit, from entrance fees to the exhibit.

Investor Carlos Piaget compared plans for the Titanic tour to the exhibit of Egyptian artifacts from the tomb of Tutankhamen that went on tour in the early 1980s, generating $58 million in 24 months.

"One definite goal of the television show is to spur interest in the exhibit," Piaget said in an interview before the program.

Iran shells Iraqi port

KUWAIT — Iran said its warplanes attacked military and economic centers in southern Iraq this morning. Baghdad said six civilians were killed and 23 injured in Iranian shelling of the southern port of Basra.

The Iranian bombardment followed a vow to retaliate for Iraqi bombing sorties Wednesday that Tehran claimed killed 18 civilians and injured 70.

In the Persian Gulf off neighboring Saudi Arabia, a fire at the world's largest offshore oil operation was extinguished. Sources at the Saudi Arabian-American Oil Co. ruled out sabotage, saying a maritime accident was to blame.

Radiation victim dies

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — A junkyard worker who suffered radiation poisoning after his boss cracked open a capsule of cesium 137 has died, the fourth fatality from the incident which has hospitalized 39 people.

Admilson Alves de Sousa, 18, died Wednesday after 25 days in the naval hospital here, the navy press office said.

The hospital did not give the cause of death. Sousa's condition had worsened in recent days, and he lapsed into a coma Tuesday.

Sousa was an employee at a junkyard in the central city of Goiania that acquired a lead capsule of cesium 137 from an abandoned cancer treatment center. Cesium 137 is a radioactive isotope used in radiation treatment.

Iran plans anniversary

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran is calling on its citizens to join nationwide anti-American rallies to mark the eighth anniversary of the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

A statement issued by the War Information Headquarters said the rallies scheduled for Nov. 4 will demonstrate Iran's "firm determination to counter any foreign aggression," the country's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Wednesday.

Militant students seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, 1979, and held 53 Americans hostage for 444 days.

Caller blames rebels

MANILA, Philippines — A caller today claimed a communist guerrilla group had killed three Americans and a Filipino near Clark Air Base, and said seven more Americans would be slain to avenge a recent U.S. military shipment.

The four shot and killed Wednesday included two U.S. airmen, a retired U.S. airman and a Filipino businessman. Gunmen ambushed the car of an Air Force captain in one of the attacks, but he escaped injury.

St. Laurence celebrates with festivities

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

ST. LAURENCE — Once each year this small German community near Garden City revels in its heritage by rekindling a few of the sights, sounds and tastes of the past.

This Sunday the community will once again make that transition into its annual rites of fall by feasting on homemade sausage, holding an auction and dancing the night away to country music.

The Rhineland revelry, called the Fall Festival, will be at the parish hall of the St. Laurence Catholic Church.

"This is our big day at St. Laurence," said JoAnn Halfmann, member of the St. Laurence Catholic Church Council which is sponsoring the event.

"Months of preparation have been put into this event," Halfmann said.

Dinner will be served between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and will include homemade German sausage, barbeque, and homemade baked goods. Tickets for the meal are $5 for adults and $3 for children.

Sausage sandwiches priced at $2 will be served from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Halfmann also encourages visitors to stop by the Sausage Haus for "the best German Sausage in West Texas." The sausage will sell for $2.50 per pound.

Booths, games and prizes also will be part of the celebration of fall. Game booths will include spin-a-wheel, bingo, dig for gold, coke ring, and putt putt golf.

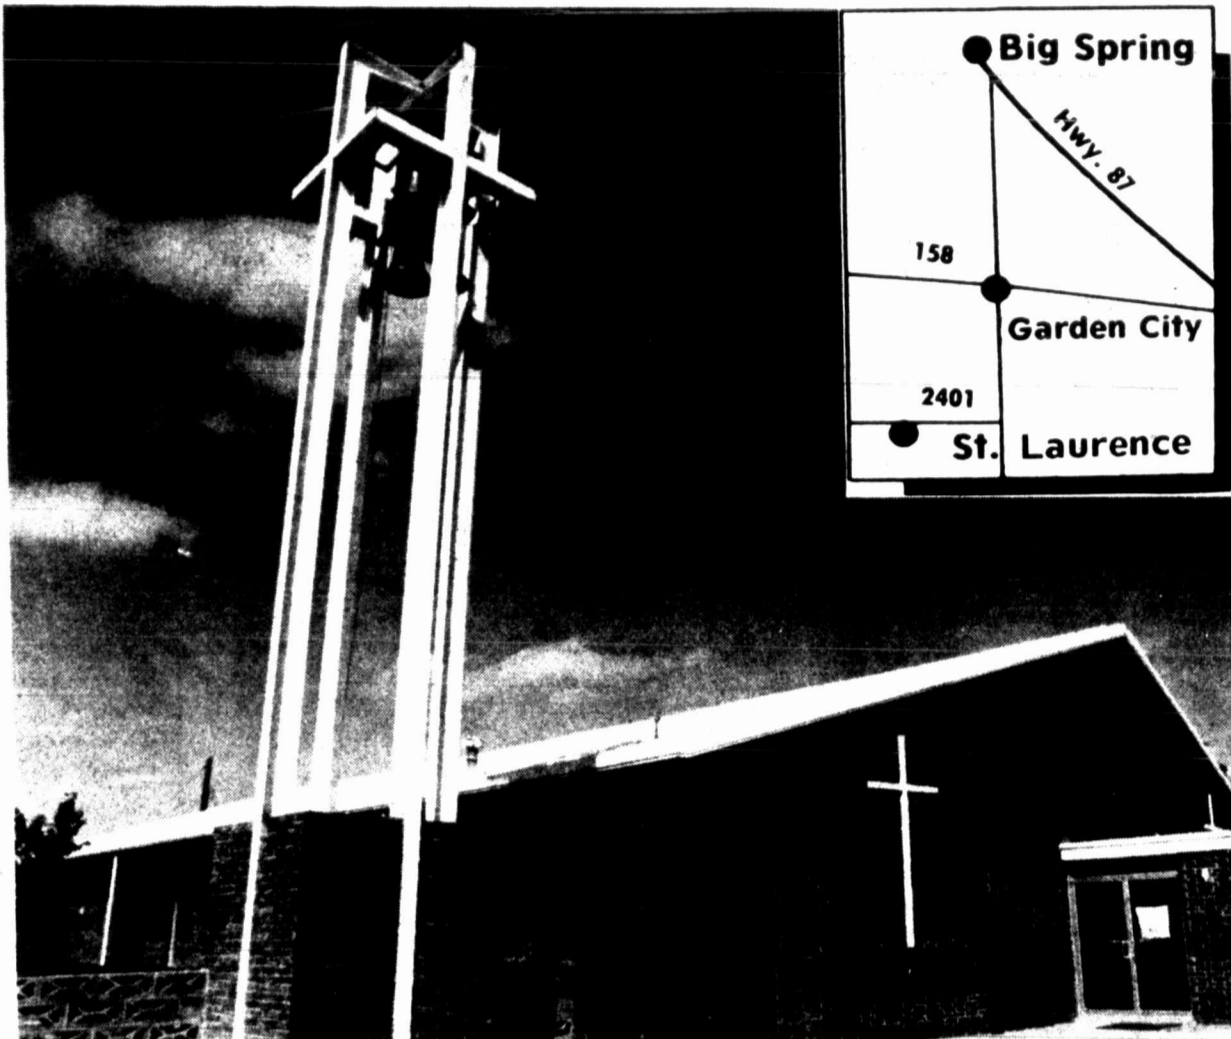

A country store will feature canned goods, baked items and crafts. Handmade quilts, produced by St. Laurence residents, will be on display at the store, according to Halfmann.

"An auction will begin at 2 p.m. and feature items donated by local merchants and friends," she said.

An itemized list of auction items will be available.

The evening will conclude by dancing with country music supplied by the Cavaliers of San Angelo. The music will begin at 7 p.m. and tickets will be $5.

The festival will be dominated

St. Laurence Catholic Church is the focal point of the community and the site of its annual fall festival this Sunday. The event includes its famous homemade German sausage, an auction, game booths and an evening dance. Months of preparation have been put into the festival by the 265 families in the community to make it a success.

by an atmosphere that reflects the heritage of the St. Laurence community.

The area where this predominantly German-Catholic farming community stands was once a barren, open pasture and rangeland populated mostly by brush and rattlesnakes.

The transformation of the mesquite trees and brush to lush cotton country came as a result of the hard work and dedication of the early settlers who came to Classcock County following World War II in 1946.

The 265 families in St. Laurence make their living farming cotton.

About 90 percent of the population is German-Catholic and the remainder is Czech, Mexican, Bohemian and Polish.

Life in St. Laurence revolves around agriculture and the influence of the Catholic church. The church is the center of the community, Halfmann said.

The annual church festival is the pride of the community, which draws people from throughout West Texas, she said.

Thousands migrate to the community to consume hundreds of pounds of German sausage and listen to lively music.

The festival is held annually on the first Sunday in November. It originated from the "old country," according to Halfmann.

Teen can't hear his story in parents' history Military

DEAR ABBY: I am an average teen-ager in a Midwestern town and I am sure my feelings correspond with those of many. I respect my parents and I know they want to be helpful, but I can hardly stand it when they begin a lecture with, "When I was your age..."

Dear Abby

A b b y, parents should realize that their experiences may not always be relevant to today's times and today's teenagers.

I am writing to you because I know that many parents read your column (mine do); so if they can't understand why what they experienced when they were my age doesn't do me any good, maybe they will listen to you.

AVERAGE TEEN-AGER DEAR AVERAGE: When I was your age, I used to grit my teeth and hold my tongue every time my mother or dad started a sentence with, "When I was your age..." but I listened respectfully to stories about how poor they were, and how many miles they walked to school (with an apple for lunch). It always ended with, "You don't know how lucky you are ... to have all the advantages you have."

Every generation (with the possible exception of Adam and Eve) has heard it many times, so listen respectfully, because one day you'll be delivering that lecture yourself — if you're lucky.

DEAR ABBY: When my children were small, I taught them to ask for whatever they wanted from the refrigerator. Then as they became teen-agers, all at once this problem came up. I go to prepare a meal and find that all the leftovers I had planned to use for the meal are gone!

So I ask, "Who ate the leftover roast beef I had wrapped up?" No one knows anything.

Then I say, "If you get hungry, make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, or take a piece of fruit — just don't eat the leftovers unless I say, 'Hey, anybody can eat this; there isn't enough left over to do anything with.'"

Sometimes I don't care if they eat all the leftovers — but there are times when I do care. I just wish they'd ask me, that's all.

We aren't poor, but my budget would stretch a lot further if the kids wouldn't eat everything in sight. Do other mothers have this problem, and what do they do about it? It's hard to hide things that need to be refrigerated, and I can't put a lock on the fridge. Does anyone have any ideas?

MA IN MELROSE, FLA.

DEAR MA: You're not wrong, but your problem could be solved if you reserve one shelf (or a part of one) for food you do not want touched. Designate it the KEEP OUT area, and let your family know you mean business.

DEAR ABBY: After reading "Alive by the Grace of God" in your column, I wanted to share with your readers my own technique for staying awake on the road late at night. My work takes me all over the state, and I often find myself driving long distances after dark. I have found that eating whole sunflower seeds is a reliable way to remain awake behind the wheel with my mind on the road.

Each sunflower seed must be cracked between the teeth and the shell deposited in the ashtray or a paper cup. It's a minor distraction, really, and very few calories. But the activity is enough to keep me alert and my mind on the road. It works better than coffee or radio music for me.

Packaged sunflower seeds are available at almost all convenience stores and many mini-mart-type gas stations, so they're readily accessible to anyone who is traveling.

DOING MY PART

FOR HIGHWAY SAFETY DEAR DOING: Thanks for the tip. And I always thought sunflower seeds were for the birds.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

ROBERT MCFARLANE

MATTHEW BRODERICK

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane says he learned to cope with stress during his government career but was unprepared for failure.

After the Iran-Contra affair became public last year, McFarlane tried to commit suicide with an overdose of Valium. "I felt my name would forever be associated with these failures," McFarlane said after Monday's speech to The Economic Club of Southwestern Michigan. "I felt I would be a burden to my family forever."

McFarlane said he was told by doctors that he created a chemical imbalance in his body by suppressing negative feelings, and that he now makes an effort to talk about depression when he speaks on college campuses.

"Whenever you are finding yourself facing a gloomy situation, if you have the intelligence to share it with other people, it has a chemical effect and a physical effect," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Matthew Broderick, out of the public eye since an Aug. 5 car crash in Northern Ireland that killed a woman and shattered his leg, has returned to work with a reading of newly-discovered plays by Benjamin Franklin.

Broderick appeared at the Writers Theater with actress Blythe Danner, actor Stephen Collins and others Monday night at a $125-per-person benefit for the theater.

"He's doing fine. He's taking physical therapy every day, but it still will be some time before he's fully healed," said his agent, Lois Smith. "What he's doing mostly is resting and reading a number of scripts."

Broderick is due in a Northern Ireland court on Feb. 15 to determine charges in the crash.

Tudor princess

The Princess of Wales has her hair swept up to complement a Tudor-look gown as she arrives at a charity fashion gala in London Tuesday night. This came as Britain's tabloid press went on guessing about a rift in her six-year-old marriage to Prince Charles.

Regionalism rules Canadian antiques

From COUNTRY HOME
A Meredith Magazine

Vigorous regionalism is a prevalent characteristic of antique Canadian country furniture. Furnishings from the 1800s speak eloquently of the nation's demanding life style, author Howard Pain says in Country Home magazine.

Pain is an expert on provincial furniture and has written the book, "The Heritage of Upper Canadian Furniture."

The handwork of immigrant craftspeople from the United States, Britain and continental Europe, these sturdy pieces combine traditional construction with an unabashed freedom of style and decoration.

Today, these country furnishings are a tribute to the individual nations that contributed to Canadian decorative design. French, English, Irish, Scots, Americans, Germans and Poles all brought distinctive furniture traditions to the northern wilderness.

The French had the first European influence on Canadian furniture. The oldest Canadian furniture is found in Quebec, where original French settlements date from the early 17th century. Skilled artisans, including furniture makers and woodcarvers, were among the first to arrive from Normandy, Brittany and other French provinces. They produced elegant furnishings and decorations for churches, convents and manor houses in the colony of New France.

The wood-carving tradition established by the church-sponsored artisans in early Quebec settlements remained an important aspect of French Canadian furniture throughout the 18th and 19th centuries. This influence is apparent in the elegant and complexly carved decorations of armoires and commodes and in the charming folk motifs that were simply carved on more rustic pieces.

French Canadians were also partial to strong, boldly painted treatments. Many early pieces are lively combinations of robin's-egg blue, vermilion, apple green and ultramarine.

Canadian furniture was also influenced by the Germans and Poles. As early as 1750, German settlements were established in Nova Scotia. These maritime communities are the source of distinctive furniture and decorative objects boasting wonderful painted decoration. Geometric designs and swirling swastikas and pinwheels executed in a combination of traditional ocher, red, green, blue and black hues are common motifs.

In Ontario, several areas settled by Germans, Swiss and Alsations between 1825 and 1860 produced a great variety of well-crafted furniture, including wardrobes called schrankes, and chests, cupboards and tables. Along with their appreciation of fine woods, the immigrant craftspeople brought with them a high level of competence in carpentry and joinery.

German cabinetry, often includes inlaid or painted decoration commemorating a marriage or other important family event. The motifs are geometric figures, stylized flowers, birds and other elements reminiscent of their counterparts in central Europe, in particular those of the German decorative folk tradition.

According to Country Home, another thread of continuity from European decorative traditions appears in the frequent occurrence of paint techniques simulating woodgrain patterns.

The German and Alsatian finishes often are bolder in color and more vivid in execution than the typical examples of other nationalities. Rich combinations of vermilion and black, vermilion and ocher, and green and ocher are found on Canadian pieces of German and Alsatian influence.

Particularly prized by collectors are Polish paneled blanket chests painted with traditional floral motifs that frequently take the form of bouquet and basket arrangements. These elements are connected to the overall design by painted panels and the use of dramatically contrasting colors on moldings and other structural details. Stylized in both form and color, these motifs are native in nature when compared with work from other countries where professional painters were part of the local craft tradition.

"And you shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength. This is the first commandment." (Jesus, Mark 12:30). LOVE is a steady, disciplined will to seek the good of another. Love gives, whether it receives in return or not, love reaches out to serve, and goes to any length to do good to the beloved object of its affection. Love gives to the uttermost. Love is more than a matter of emotions, it involves the will. You determine to reach out and serve, to seek to bless another, it involves moral integrity and obedience. Love is the desire for holiness to be in others. Love is God's desire to impart himself into us. God loves, not for what he can get, but for what he can give...so with ourselves. Love is more than a feeling, it implies not just a receiving but a giving of self. When we see Jesus commanding love from us, it is a reference to a sense awakened within our hearts of the value that God is to us. God loves the unlovely, the unappreciative, his love even goes beyond human reasoning, it forgives the deepest hurt and is compassionate toward us. "We love him because he loved us first" (I John 4: 7-21). HOW MUCH DO YOU LOVE GOD??

A WORLD OF FLOWERS — Fresh flowers arrive daily at Faye's Flowers, and potted plants are shipped several times a week. Pictured are Bill and Helen Draper, checking some of the new arrivals.

FAYE'S FLOWERS

Faye's Flowers, 1013 Gregg, in December will observe 50 years of continuous service to the residents of Big Spring. Helen and Bill Draper bought the business in January of 1957. Bill had been in the flower business in Lubbock, but chose to move to Big Spring to raise their family. Founded by the late Leon Letterman in 1937, the firm was located on Main Street downtown. Faye Kuykendall bought the shop in 1945, when it was located at 208 Gregg Street, and changed the name to Faye's Flowers. The shop opened in a new building at its present location January 1, 1963. Bill and Helen speak fondly of the firm's early owners and have pictures that show how the business looked then. "We're observing 50 years of building a business," said Bill, "and 50 years of offering quality merchandise at a fair price. That's always been our goal." "It's a business based on emotion," says Bill, who has worked with flowers since he was 14. "Floral gifts convey love, sympathy, thank you, good wishes, friendship and more," both Drapers agree. Faye's is affiliated with five wire organizations and can have flowers delivered nearly anywhere in the world. The experience of the staff — Bill, Helen and nine employees — totals 112 years! One employee holds a degree in floral culture from A&M.

Big Spring hoop teams picked to win district

The Texas Association of Basketball Coaches has high expectations for the Big Spring High School basketball teams this season.

In a recent poll released by the association, both Big Spring teams were picked to finish first in District 2-4A.

Behind the Big Spring girls are Snyder and Andrews. Following the Big Spring boys are Lamesa and Andrews.

Best bets for state tournament appearances are the girls teams from Levelland, Calallen, Canyon, McKinney, West Orange-Stark, Waco Midway, Stephenville, Wilmer-Hutchins, Dallas Madison and Pflugerville.

Best bets of the girls teams to reach the state tournament are: Port Arthur Lincoln, Wilmer-Hutchins, Kerrville Tivy, Dallas Hillcrest, Waco Midway, West Orange Stark, Cleburne, Schertz Clemens, Everman and Lancaster.

While on the subject of basketball, the Howard College-Hawks looked pretty good in their 85-77 exhibition win over the Fort Hood Tankers Monday.

Playing against older, more experienced players, the Hawks exhibited some high jumping, good shooting and aggressive defense.

"It took a yeoman's effort for us to come out on top in that game," said Hawks coach Jerry Kassin. "The kids gave 100 percent effort. As far as an execution standpoint, I'd say we played about 75 percent."

"The U.S. Army is an experienced team. Most of their players played college ball. I'm really thankful they came out and played us. They showed a lot of class and ambassadorship."

Kassin and the Hawks will get another taste of tough competition at the Midland tournament next weekend. Also entered in the eight-team tournament are South Plains, Ranger, Cisco, Midland, Odessa, Garden City, Kan., and Jackson Baptist College.

The Hawks begin tourney play against Garden City Thursday at 4 p.m.

Results of the last regular playday of the season for the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association:

In nine-hole scramble play, the team of Ruby Honea, Ina Stewart and Betty Ray Coffee placed first with a two-under-par 35. Finishing second was the trio of Harriett Richardson, Martha Saunders and Patti Woodall, with a 39.

Big Spring Boxing Club coach J.V. Martinez recently attended a Olympic American Boxing Federation Convention in Tulsa, Okla.

The federation is embarking upon a program which involves a lottery in which the winner will win a ten-day trip for two to the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea. All expenses will be paid including airfare and hotel, plus $500 for personal expenses.

Martinez still has some tickets for the drawing. A total of 2,500 tickets have been printed, and the cost is $20 per ticket, which must be paid prior to the drawing.

The date of the drawing is Aug. 1, 1988, from the New York Pick 4 Lottery. The USA Today newspaper, which is distributed throughout the country, publishes the winning number daily.

Anyone interested in trying to win this 10-day trip can call J.V. Martinez at 267-4365, or write to him at 2509 Gunter, Big Spring, Tx., 79720.

Former Big Spring Steers center Charley Ogle, now at McMurry College, saw his season come to a halt last week in Alpine.

Ogle, a freshman, had earned himself a starting spot for the Indians. Against Sul Ross State University, Ogle separated his left elbow. He will be lost for the remainder of the season.

Ironically, it will be the first time Ogle has missed a workout since playing football in the fourth game. The Indians currently sport a 3-4 record.

Another former Steer, Todd Coker, now playing for the Greenville College Panthers in Illinois, is still starting at linebacker in his freshman season.

Last week against Iowa Wesleyan, the Panthers suffered their first loss of the season by a 21-12 margin.

The Panthers committed seven turnovers and were whistled for 13 penalties in the contest.

Coker led the team in tackles with 10 against the Iowa school. The Panthers are now 5-1 for the season.

Coahoma bull rider Wacey Cathey remains in fourth place in the recent Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association standings.

Cathey has earned $48,045. Ted Nunce of Manteca, Calif. is first with $63,267 in earnings. Lane, Okla. cowboy Lane Frost is second with $62,307, and Cody Snyder of Alberta, Canada is third with $49,598.

This is the last week of the 1987 PRCA regular season, and Cathey is a shoo-in to qualify for the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 4-12.

The Stanton Fellowship of Christian Athletes, along with area churches, is sponsoring a Week of Champions Nov. 2-4 at the Stanton High School auditorium.

Former Texas Tech and USFL quarterback Ron Reeves will be guest speaker Monday night. On Tuesday Wellman basketball coach Gary Bridges will be the guest speaker, and McCamey football coach Buster Leaf will be guest speaker Wednesday.

Meetings each night begin at 7:30 p.m. For more information call Wilma Stirl at 756-3326.

The Big Spring Booster Club will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the high school library.

The booster club is not for support of football athletes only, it supports all athletes in all sports.

Can LA repeat?

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The only thing the Los Angeles Lakers haven't accomplished in the Magic Johnson era is win consecutive championships. No one in the NBA has done that since the 1969 Boston Celtics, but this could be the year.

Boston is a year older and will play without the injured Kevin McHale until December or January, jeopardizing the homecourt advantage the Celtics needed so desperately last spring in the playoffs.

Dallas, Detroit and Atlanta have the players to challenge, but they did little to improve themselves in the offseason and lack championship-round experience.

Houston has Twin Towers Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson signed and healthy, but the never-ending search for a backcourt continues.

Seattle and Chicago are stocked with young talent and took big steps to improve themselves, but both lost more often than they won last season and can't be expected to make the giant leap to the top.

So as the NBA opens its 42nd season next Friday, Coach Pat Riley is feeling frisky about the Lakers' chances of a fifth title in this decade and a repeat of last June's championship.

"Repeating is the only thing left for this team," Riley said. "It's something that could make us special. It's a two-year window we have to face."

After winning the 1987 title, Riley said the Lakers would win again this season.

"When we won in June, I guaranteed that we would repeat," Riley said. "I'm not a boaster as a rule, but I still stand by that statement because I believe we can rise to the challenge."

Riley is standing pat with the lineup that won a league-best 65 games in the regular season.

Even if free agents Jeff Lamp and Milt Wagner crack the roster, they won't take playing time away from the seven-man nucleus: 40-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, MVP Johnson, James Worthy, A.C. Green, Byron Scott, Mychal Thompson and Michael Cooper.

Riley said past champions took a defensive stance against the rest of the league.

"We don't want to take the attitude of defending champion because that means we're 'fending off' the other teams," Riley said. "We want to have the attitude of teams like Dallas and Atlanta that want to go out and win it the first time."

Houston Rockets coach Bill Fitch reacts to a call during a recent NBA exhibition game. Fitch and the Rockets must find a way to dethrone the Los Angeles Lakers.

To repeat the Lakers must avoid the kind of injuries that plagued Boston last season.

"The main area we can improve is the health area," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said, but his team was already hobbled.

"Kevin McHale might be out until January and the earliest we can expect Bill Walton is March," Jones said.

But with a starting lineup that includes Larry Bird, Robert Parish, Dennis Johnson and Danny Ainge, the Celtics should be able to win the Atlantic Division crown and battle Detroit and Atlanta for the best record in the Eastern Conference. Lohaus Reggie Lewis and Brad Rookus and free-agent acquisition Mike O'Koren could give relief to the overworked starters.

The Julius Erving era is over in Philadelphia, but rebounding champion Charles Barkley and guard Maurice Cheeks will keep the 76ers from falling far. Other

Queens lose opener

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

WACO — Following a season-opening loss to Cisco Junior College in the McLennan College Tournament Wednesday, Howard College women's basketball coach Don Stevens couldn't help displaying pride in his squad's performance.

"We played real well in the first half," Stevens said. A lack of depth hampered the reconstituted Queens, though.

"Then we just ran out of gas," Stevens explained. "In the first half we had them down 30 to 20 and had outrebounded (Cisco) 18 to 12. But in the second half, we had Stefanie (Massie), Renee Crooks and Karen Mitchell play 40 minutes."

"So we just had fatigue. Cisco pressed us hard, like anybody with any sense would, and kept throwing fresh players against us," Stevens said.

In spite of the eventual loss, the Queens turned in respectable performances — especially in view of the squad's experience.

Oilers sign Highsmith

HOUSTON (AP) — First-round draft choice Alonzo Highsmith, who ended a three-month-long holdout by signing a four-year contract worth a reported $2.6 million with the Houston Oilers, is wasting no time getting started.

The former Miami Hurricane running back and third player chosen in the 1987 NFL draft was to report to the Oilers for today's practice, team spokesman Rick Nichols said.

Although no contract terms were released, the agreement includes a $1.2-million signing bonus, Houston television station KRIV reported Wednesday night before the signing was announced.

Highsmith sat out the entire preseason and three-week NFL player strike in a contract dispute with the Oilers.

"It's been a long wait since (the NFL draft) April 28th but, everyone connected with our organization believes the wait was worthwhile," Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzog said.

"Alonzo is the player we wanted when we made the decision to move from the eighth spot in the first round to the third spot. We are delighted he is now a member of the Houston Oilers football team."

The holdout prompted a suit filed in Miami by Highsmith, who accused the Oilers of keeping their offer artificially low and alleged collusion among NFL teams to fix salaries. A Florida judge declared Highsmith a free agent.

Steers in showdown

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It's showdown time when the Big Spring Steers take on the Monahans Lobos Friday night in Monahans. At stake is a possible trip to the state playoffs. More than likely, the loser can start thinking about next year.

The favored Lobos enter the contest with a 6-1 overall mark and 4-1 district record. They suffered their first defeat last week, a 23-7 decision to Sweetwater.

Defending district champion Big Spring owns a 4-3 overall mark and 3-2 district record. Big Spring lost district games 33-19 to Sweetwater and 36-6 to Fort Stockton.

This is the situation: Sweetwater is undefeated and leading the district with a 5-0 record. The Mustangs have defeated Big Spring, Monahans and Fort Stockton. Monahans is next with a 4-1 record. Fort Stockton has a 4-2 record, losing to Sweetwater and Lamesa. Big Spring is next with a 3-2 record.

If Big Spring wins, and then defeats Snyder and Andrews to finish out the season, the Steers don't have a sure playoff trip. For that to happen, Fort Stockton would have to lose another game; the Panthers are open this week then end the season against Pecos and Monahans.

That way Monahans and Big Spring would end up in a tie for second with a 5-2 record. But Big Spring would go to the playoffs because of defeating Monahans.

Now if Monahans wins Friday night then defeats Lamesa and Fort Stockton to finish the season, the Lobos would go with a 6-1 record.

But if Fort Stockton won the remainder of its games, they would go because they had beaten Monahans. Fort Stockton could also go if Big Spring beats Monahans and the Panthers win the remaining two games.

Although they and Big Spring would be tied with 5-2 marks, the Panthers would go to the playoffs after defeating Big Spring.

But right now Steers coach Quinn

...could see action

STEVE RAINES
...consistent DT

Eudy and Monahans mentor Brenn Holland aren't thinking that far ahead.

"I get all mixed up thinking about all of it," said Holland in an interview Wednesday. "We can't be thinking about all that other stuff. We've got all we can handle with this game Friday."

"We need a little help, but we've pretty much got our own destiny in our hands," said Eudy. "We just have to go out there and take care of business Friday night."

If the Steers play like they did in last week's 28-15 win over Pecos, they have a chance. In that contest quarterback Steve Gill led a Big Spring offense that didn't lose any fumbles and rushed for 238 yards total offense — they would have kept more if Big Spring hadn't had three big-gainers whistled back because of penalties.

This week the Steers will get former starting quarterback Shawn Shellman back. Shellman is coming off minor knee surgery following an injury in the Lamesa game.

Another former starting quarterback, Craig Knocke, is moving well after spraining his ankle against Fort Stockton.

Eudy says Gill will get the starting nod, but added that all three signal-callers may see action. Last week the Big Spring defense was at its best, limiting the Eagles to 175 yards total offense, including only 20 in the second half.

The Steers defense was led by linebackers Kenneth Banks, Matt Borrow and tackle Steve Raines. Banks played his best game of the season, making 22 tackles.

The trio will be expected to lead the defensive charge against a Monahans offense that is averaging 375 yards per game.

The Lobos' main weapon is 170-pound senior running back Charles Thompson. Thompson is the state's sixth leading rusher, with 1,126 yards, averaging 10.7 yards per carry.

"He has the possibility of going all the way anytime he touches the ball. You've got to hit him and wrap him up," said Eudy of Thompson.

"Their wingback and fullback are also above-average players. Their quarterback is good; in fact they've got about as good a passing attack as we've faced."

Holland is also impressed with the Steers and sees the game as a quickness versus power matchup. "I think Big Spring is as strong as they were last year," said Holland.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Let people around you know that you are comfortable with present conditions, but are also open to changes. Progressive friends can play a major role in assisting you in attaining your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Join with some good friends and have a great night out. Show some enthusiasm in your daily activities and get much better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can improve your business interests by using more modern methods. Accept advice from those who have been successful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use your imagination in daily business activities — don't rely on "old hat." If you meet with disappointment, don't let it ruin your day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Spend time with your mate and be quite attentive. He or she needs some cheering up. Don't let business interfere with pleasure.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Many new and unexpected situations will arise today, so be alert and take advantage of them. Suggest an advantageous agreement to a partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Stop living in the past! You can improve your life domestically, socially and also in the business world by simply keeping up with the times.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A long sought-after pleasure will finally be available to you. Be more romantic with your mate, and you'll both be much happier.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you want to make some changes at home, this is a good day to implement them. Have some guests over who will cheer you up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A little thoughtfulness to your good friends will go a long way. Be sure to get your bills paid. A short trip could improve your mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your expenses may not be in proper proportion to your income, so see if this problem can be justified with a new or revised budget.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid a person who does not appreciate you. Today can be very interesting and profitable if you're cautious in all your dealings.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you'll stop being so conventional, you can become more popular and feel happier as well. Be very careful when out driving today.

If Your Child Is Born Today

He or she will easily understand all aspects of the modern era and should attend the most modern of schools. Traditional studies should not be neglected so that your progeny will better understand people who are not as forward-thinking as he or she is.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
