Texas tornadoes leave nine dead

By STEWART TAGGART Associated Press Writer

CALDWELL (AP) - Tornadoes cut a swath of destruction across more than 200 miles of eastern Texas on Sunday, leveling scores of homes and buildings and leaving nine people dead and at least 132 injured

Heavy damage extended from east-central Texas just west of Austin to the Tyler area, in the state's northeast corner, and into Louisiana

Sixty-five Texas counties remained under tornado watch or warning Sunday night, as well as parts of northern Louisiana and central and southern Arkansas

At least two people were trapped inside a convenience store in Shreveport, in northwest Louisiana. when a tornado brought down the roof but were reported rescued more than an hour later.

Some of the heaviest damage occurred at Palestine, about 120 miles southeast of Dallas, where an elementary school and two churches were leveled. dozens of homes were destroyed, and an estimated 100 to 150 buildings were damaged from a twister that cut a seven-mile swath through town, in some places as wide as a mile.

At least one person was reported killed in Palestine, and at least 36 were injured, said Barbara Hart, a spokesman for the Anderson County sheriff's

Juvenile justice

Juvenile justice

Has the pendulum swung too far?

Probation is area answer for juveniles

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

A majority of local juvenile offenders are put on probation, according to Pat Dunham of the District 118 Juvenile Probation Office. Of 204 cases referred to the office this year, only four have been sent to the Texas Youth Commission, she said.

"We did have one juvenile involved in a homicide this year, but he was certified to stand trial as an adult," Dunham said. He was sentenced to ten years' probation by the adult criminal justice

"We try, in all the cases, to do what we feel is best for the child," Dunham said, "even in the criminal cases. Right now, we have 30 cases actively on probation."

Probation involves a variety of options, she explained. The most common option ordered by the courts involves curfews, curtails association with persons with whom juveniles have broken the law, and requires reporting to the probation officer once a week.

Two other programs are used in the District 118 office. One is an informal supervision program, for offenders not yet ordered on probation by the court. Intensive supervision, the other, is a more stringent court-ordered program.

'The parents sometime take an attitude of trying to protect the child by not taking action," Dunham said. "In the long run this hurts the child, because the problem isn't going to go away if the parents ignore it.

'By the time the kid's in the system, it's serious," she said. 'Everybody has to depend on

EDITOR'S NOTE - Thirteen vears ago Texas reform schools were ordered to undergo dramatic changes to end what a federal judge called "a history of brutality." Those changes prompted complaints that the Texas system of juvenile justice is too lenient. Last spring, the Legislature attempted to address some of those complaints. In the second of a threepart series on juvenile justice, The Associated Press takes a look at a halfway house, one of the reforms resulting from the federal judge's

By WALTER C. PUTNAM

Associated Press Writer DALLAS (AP) — On a hot night late in the summer, a small circle of teen-age boys sat in a large, single-story brick building on the outskirts of Dallas.

One shouted epithets about his parents.

The scene was a group therapy session at Dallas House, a halfway house for juvenile delinquents operated by the Texas Youth Commission.

The shouter, sentenced to the TYC because of drug violations, was angry because his parents used drugs themselves.

"They had spent $200,000 on drug treatment programs for him before he came to the TYC, yet they had drugs all over the house," said Robert Louis, a counselor at Dallas House.

The halfway house is a step removed from juvenile probation on the county level, a step below the confines of a state training school. It is an innovation that arose since a federal judge ordered reforms in the juvenile system 13 vears ago.

Besides Dallas, there are eight HALFWAY HOUSE page 2-A everybody else to resolve the problem. The child has to take the probation seriously, the parent has to take the probation seriously.

"The rules have been set down," she said. "Now we have to follow them. We have to be consistent."

By the time a case reaches the probation office, she said, the child usually has a history of offenses. 'It's not the first time and it's not a minor offense," she said.

Dunham said Texas law allows a maximum penalty of one year of probation, which may be modified or may be extended for up to one year until the offender reaches the age of 18, she said.

She said juvenile records normally are purged when an offender turns 17 and becomes an adult under Texas law.

Juveniles on probation now in Howard and Martin county have offenses ranging from possession of homemade weapons and burglars' tools through theft of motor vehicles, public intoxication, aggravated assault, criminal trespass and criminal mischief, drug offenses and truancy, Dunham said. At present no Glasscock County juveniles are on probation.

Probationary options include residential center treatment for drug or alcohol abuse. Community service programs, in which an offender must work in the local rape crisis center, the Northside or Westside Community centers or the animal shelter, are options

Dunham advocates strongly.

"If a kid has to give something of himself back to the community, give up part of his free time and work on Saturdays, for example,' she said, "I feel the kid learns a greater lesson than if a magistrate assesses a $250 fine for damages and a parent pays that out of his or her own pocket.

"When they pay it, it's like the whole thing never touches the child," she said.

Sometimes juvenile offenders commit offenses to get attention, she said. In some cases, though, there are other factors — for example, runaways who may have been abused. "Sometimes we have to place them outside the home per-

Local bridge to be site of state project

Herald staff report

The Big Spring Gregg Street bridge will be the site of a pilot project to reduce bridge corrosion, a state highway department spokesman said today.

The department hopes to prevent additional corrosion of the Gregg Street bridge by reversing the flow of ions in the reinforcing steel embedded in its concrete deck, according to department spokesman Hilton Hagan.

The work is scheduled to begin in December.

The process is known as cathodic protection and has been used to prevent corrosion of underground pipelines, he said.

"It is a research kind of operation, a pilot project," he said, noting that the project is the first of its kind in Texas. Many West Texas bridges have problems with rusting reinforcing steel, and deterioration is speeded by winter salting of roads, he said.

The salt penetrates the reinforcement layer through cracks in the pavement and the steel is eaten away by corrosion.

The Big Spring work will reverse the flow of ions, turning all reinforcing steel into noncorroding cathodes.

The bridge's surface will be removed and metal will be joined to make an electrical circuit before resurfacing, Hagan said.

A strip of metal will be mounted outside the bridge structure, but connected to the circuit. It will serve as the anode and will take all the corrosion effects and eventually be eaten away.

AUSTIN (AP) — A formula to cut state funding for public schools by an estimated $26 million this school year has been approved by the State Board of Education.

The board, which will consider the formula again after enrollment figures are updated in January, gave initial approval on Saturday to a plan that takes into account the local property tax rate of school districts, but less than some alternative proposals do.

The cut, which averages about $9 per student, is needed because the Legislature reduced state agency funding across the board before approving the budget for the two-year fiscal

An alternative proration formula that would take the largest amount of state money away from districts with the lowest tax rates was turned down by the board, over the objection of some members.

The two formulas voted on by the board were among four alternatives, ranging from a minimal to a substantial reliance on local tax effort. The one approved had the third strongest dependence on the tax effort.

'Where there are districts that have a very, very low tax rate, compared to others, that's indicative to me that either they have a high property value or they've been unwilling to make an effort," said Jack Strong of Longview.

But Maria Elena Flood of El Paso said some districts with low property values have low tax rates because they would not be able to collect a higher rate from residents.

'There are poor ones that haven't raised the tax rate because it would be futile. When they do that, their collection rate drops," said Mrs. Flood, chairwoman of the board's Committee for Finance and Programs.

The public education budget is about $5 billion a year.

Wrongful death suit filed

Herald staff report

A wrongful death suit has been filed against Cecil Bynum, Route 3 Box 132, for the Aug. 21 death of Refugia Torres Moncada.

The suit was brought by Alicia Paredez, individually, and as administrator of the estate of Moncada.

Moncada, 87, died after being struck by a motorcycle as she crossed West Highway 80.

Bynum, who was operating the motorcycle, was westbound on Highway 80 and reportedly didn't see Moncada, according to police reports. The accident occurred at about 9:19 p.m.

No citations were issued, according to police records.

The lawsuit alleges that Bynam operated his motorcycle in a negligent manner by driving at an excessive rate of speed, by failing to turn to the right or left'in an effort to avoiding striking the woman and by failing to timely apply the brakes

Investigators working to find explosion cause

PAMPA (AP) — Company officials continued today the painstaking process of determining the cause of explosions that rocked a chemical plant, killing three workers and injur-

Teams of safety experts and damage assessors spent Sunday surveying what was left of the 755-acre Hoechst Celanese Corp. chemical plant after two strong blasts rocked the plant Saturday.

Plant manager Ron Guard said the disaster was the worst he'd seen at a chemical plant.

"I'd hate to see one any worse," he said, "because of the dmage it did to the heart of the plant and the damage it did to the people.

Three people remained hospitalized Sunday with serious injuries.

The largest single employer in this Panhandle town of 23,000, Celanese is vital to the community but the plant's future is uncertain.

Company officials evaded questions about whether the 35-year-old plant would reopen "I think to get into speculation meeting of its approximately 400 workers Sunday night to provide details and answer questions about the explosions. Following the one-hour, ten-minute closed gathering, most Celanese employees, wearing navy blue satin jackets bearing the company's insignia, were close-mouthed about what was said. Several women emerged from the meeting in tears, and many employees hugged each

Don Quarles, a welder at the non-union plant for 15 years, said employees were told they would get regular pay until the company decides what to do with the facility, which is the only plant in the nation to use the liquid phase oxidation process to produce acetic acid and other products.

During Sunday's investigations the safety team extinguished several small ground fires Sunday morning, Guard said, and also stopped some leaks in chemical vessels

Three people remained hospitalized with serious injuries.

"We will be going in unit by unit by unit to try to assess the damage," Guard said.

Ranchers living off the fat of the taxpayers' land fees

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON A small number of Western ranchers are getting a financial break on their grazing operations at the taxpayers' expense, and a battle over continuation of the subsidy is shaping up in Congress The Bureau of Land Manage ment and the U.S. Forest Ser vice manage livestock grazing on 307 million acres of land in 16 Western states. They make recommendations for grazing fees, based on estimates of how much an animal eats.

But while other federal agencies charge $4.50 to $16 per animal per month, BLM and the Forest Service collect only $1.35. Revenue from the fees pays for only about 35 percent of the program's cost, and the difference is made up by the taxpavers The subsidy has totaled more than $200 million in the last five years, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

One thing that bothers critics of the cut-rate graz ing fees is that many permit holders — which include oil companies, land speculators and investors as well as ranchers - sublet their grazing rights at significantly higher prices

The current fee formula was set up under the Public Rangelands Improvement Act of 1978. When the law expired in 1985. President Reagan extended the formula with a $1.35 minimum.

BLM spokesman Joe Zilincar said that without the minimum, grazing fees — based on a complicated formula - would have dropped below $1 Both agencies pointed out that the low fees keep many ranchers in business. As for the subleases, they said, in most cases they include buildings and other private property, not just the grazing permits. "I understand all the arguments, but it's a political issue and it always has been," Robert Williamson, Forest Service range management director, told our reporter Tanya Isch.

Reps. Mike Synar, D-Okla., and George Darden. D-Ga., have introduced legislation to raise the grazing fees, while Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont, has countered with a bill that would keep the fee formula the way it is A Marlenee aide said critics often don't consider that holders of grazing permits must make improvements, such as digging wells and maintaining fences. A fee increase would lead some ranchers to drop their leases, he said.

"Qur opposents would like that," the aide said,-"They would love to push ranchers off the land and make more room for wildlife.

Critics point out that only 2 percent of all U.S. livestock producers use public grazing lands, and only 7 percent in the 16 Western states. Synar wrote last year in a committee report, "If Congress decided to subsidize all American (livestock) producers to the same extent, the subsidy would cost more than $2 billion annually.

Besides questioning why a favored few ranchers should be getting subsidies, Synar and other opponents of the current setup have never been convinced that BLM Director Director Robert Burford should be involved in grazing-fee policy, even indirectly

In 1981, when he was appointed. Burford owned land that had grazing permits attached to it. He sold the property to his sons before assuming his of

Before he was confirmed, Burford signed a statement releasing himself from making "any decisions which directly affect Bureau of Land Management grazing permits which I now own.

Gabe Paone, deputy ethics officer for the Interior Department, of which BLM is a part, said: "I guess every reasonable person would have to say yes, there's an appearance of conflict of interest. But it's the significance that is important, and we don't think it's significant.'

It was a dark and stormy night ... a norther had come down off the Caprock, ruffling the clouds across the moon to turn its intermittent light an eerie silver.

If the government cannot protect children from abuse by their I had volunteered to cover a football game. Grady would be playing Red Wing (Minn.) I Santa Barbara, Calif., after artifacts brought up from the 1912 disaster can still come in Saturday to do the story. Piece of cake.

Wrong again. When I pulled into the Sands High School parking lot that Friday night. congratulating myself on getting there in plenty of time to see the whole game, something seemed amiss: no football lights.

No crowd in the stands. Nobody in the press box; no visiting team's bus. No cheerleaders. No announcer

"I have a bad feeling about this." I said to myself as I slid out of the borrowed Dodge truck I drive. I walked over to the stone fieldhouse. There's a hole in the mortar by the door. "Hello ... anybody here?" I the echoes of my voice die.

Not just at the high school, either. A quick walk taught me that most of the houses nearby were uninhabited. Obviously, the football game had drawn a crowd but not here.

So, back in the truck, I start looking for a telephone. The whole town has gone to the football game, by the looks of things; then I found an eighteen-wheeler stopping. The driver said there'd be a phone in the trucking office.

So I went there. Not only did I find a phone, I found a kindly gentleman who took time out of his office duties to ask over his dispatch radio whether the ball game was being played at Grady.

It was. He took more time to give me - and then write down - directions to Grady Not just directions, either: good directions. At a time like that, good directions are absolutely priceless.

So it's a dark and stormy night, with the cold wind growing stronger. By myself, in a borrowed truck, over roads I've never driven, I'm going to Lenorah, to cover a football game at Grady and I'm about half scared.

By the here-again-gone-again moonlight, I can see enough of the highway to know there aren't many houses out here. In the whole time I'm on the road I pass one truck. Nobody passes me. If something goes wrong, like a burst radiator hose or a flat tire ... I decide not to think about how long I might be alone in the dark with my broken, borrowed truck.

Eventually, though, I find the four-way stop sign with the flashing light and turn right. Over the top of the hill, just like the gentleman in that oilfield truck service office said. I can see the football lights at Grady.

The game went right down to the last second — but oddly, the game seemed somehow anticlimatic. Afterward, another stranger who understood that I needed the quickest way to get somewhere provided me with directions to Lamesa from Lenorah.

His directions were the kind you can't get by starting out "Going back to U.S. 87" - the kind country drivers give and understand.

But the directions were pricelessly perfect again.

So, borrowed truck and all, I went home and back in good time and the next day I wrote my story on the game. But I felt I owed the folks who made it possible something more. You are genuine gentlemen, and I thank you both.

DENVER (AP) - Debi shows few signs of charring and Paschkov says she woke from a few injuries were caused by fire Stapleton International Airport spokesman Richard Boulware speculated the fire may have been the Rsult of a gas tank catching fire behind the plane.

"If you've ever seen an airplane crash, this is nothing in terms of fire," he said.

The cause of the crash is under investigation, but many survivors and witnesses say the plane veered wildly to the right and then to the left before crashing

'We were skidding on our side and eating dirt," said crash survivor Libby Smoot of Ketchum, Idaho. "A lot of people were screaming. A ball of flame passed by us as were skidding along.'

The crash was observed by passengers on a Continental flight that was returning to Denver from a Las Vegas, Nev., convention of psychiatrists.

Dr. Ron Semiow of Troy, Mich., said he looked out the window and saw the other plane somersault.

"The plane had lifted off the ground, then the right wing touched and the plane nosed into the ground. The whole thing did a somersault. The tail was coming over, and all the rest was in flames. It was like someone lit a can of gasoline. There was a big gasp on our flight," he said.

Amnesty

On break from onion harvest, four take first steps to legalization

EDITOR'S NOTE - Next spring, when the strawberries ripen in the California fields, Mexican farm worker Alejandro Fierro will cross the Rio Grande again to join other migrant pickers.

But by then, if good fortune holds and his paperwork is straight, Fierro will enter the United States legally for the first time since he first crossed the border three decades ago.

Fierro is one of the almost 1 million illegal aliens applying for amnesty under 1986 federal reforms. The Associated Press will follow Fierro, and the people who are helping him, through the amnesty process in the coming months.

By TAD BARTIMUS Associated Press Writer

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Like his father before him and his sons who followed, Alejandro Fierro began working illegally in the United States as a teenager, sneaking across the shallow Rio Grande in 1958 in search of a better life.

For three decades, the 48-year-old Mexican has measured his life by the growing seasons in El Norte the land up north.

Spring means strawberries in California; summer means onions in Colorado; fall means lemons in Arizona. Winter lures him home to the small house in Chihuahua, built by his backbreaking labor in U.S.

Next year, when the cycle begins again, Fierro may be able to enter the United States legally for the

Under the landmark Immigration Control and Reform Act of 1986, two groups of illegal aliens may apply for amnesty and possibile permanent residency in the United States.

Applications from the first group, people attempting to prove they've lived in the United States continuously since before Jan. 1, 1982, numbered 787,208

The second group encompasses illegal aliens who

This was the big day. They were finally applying for amnesty. Fierro, a sandy-haired man of wiry build, his face and hands lightly freckled by the sun, was dressed in his best blue jeans and finest cowboy Carlos Castro-Gutierres, 36, and Jose Duenas-Lopez, 28, wore matching new yellow sweatshirts and identical white tennis shoes. Jose Santillano, 23, had put on his elegant leather vest and finest boots.

The onion harvest was nearly finished and employers had given them permission to take the first day off work in many months. For Ms. Aldava, the hour-long drive from Greeley to Denver was a familiar commute. She'd made it at least once a week since she started helping migrant workers apply for amnesty shortly after the SAW program began June 1.

Ms. Aldava guides an applicant through complicated forms, arranges physicals and ID photos, helps employers with paperwork and assembles all the minutiae required by the government.

She is the stepdaughter of an illegal alien who finally got his citizenship in 1969. Along with her seven brothers and sisters, Ms. Aldava has sweated out a living in the fields of the West.

"I know what it's like to hoe sugar beets and top onions," she said. "I swore I'd never do it again once I got enough education to get out. That's why I want to help these people get their legal papers. I know how hard it is to get a break.' In Ms. Aldava's briefcase were four folders. Each contained papers printed in black ink, the only color acceptable to the government. Each is the skeleton on which Fierro and his friends built a life. "It's strange for them to talk about all these details," said Ms. Aldava, "because always before they tried to hide from the INS. It has been an adjustment.

Fierro's file sketched in his nearly half-century for strangers:

Born Jan. 11, 1939, in Rancho Majalra in the state of Chihuahua, he married Aurora, and together they had three sons and three daughters. The youngest, Gloria, is 10 and lives at home. Two married daughters and a son live in Mexico.

The two other sons are in the United States, one in Wichita, the other in Santa Fe. Fierro believes they, too, are applying for amnesty.

Question 16 on his application asked how he last entered the United States. The box "without visa" was checked. Question 17 asked for last place of entry. He'd marked "border (not through port)."

No place was provided for details of his arrival.

Education is best workout for lazy lover

Baser rational Monday November to 1987

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married a little more than two years. He has every quality I have ever wanted in a husband but he turned out to be a very selfish lover. I do not feel desired or appreciated, and I really am very attractive and feminine. When we are both in front of a mirror, he never looks at me - instead he looks at himself and comments on his hair, or asks me if he should grow a beard. Meanwhile, I am standing nude right alongside of him, and he never even throws me a glance.

He is also the laziest lover I have ever come across. He wants me to do all the work while he stays on his back. When I ask him to do something I would enjoy, he tries half-heartedly, then quits before 10 seconds are up.

I would look for an extramarital affair, but I don't want it on my conscience. Please suggest something.

FRUSTRATED DEAR FRUSTRATED: There appears to be an appalling lack of communication between you and your husband. An extra-marital affair is definitely not the solution. It is imperative that you do whatever is necessary to get your lazy lover to a qualified sex therapist if yours is to be a lasting, loving marriage. Your family physician or gynecologist should be able to recommend a therapist in your area. Don't put this off. The sooner your man is educated in this important part of marriage the healthier your marriage will be. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since this past June, when my mother (age 95) died, I have wanted to share our experience with you, and in turn with your millions of readers. We are a large, close family, although geographically we are thousands of miles apart. My husband and I visited China five years ago. On one of our scheduled tours, we visited a temple where a funeral was in progress. On the altar was a large photograph of the deceased. I thought no more of this picture until this June when we were preparing for a repast in our home following the graveside service for Mother. Suddenly, I thought what a marvelous idea! My sister and I ransacked drawers and albums, gathering more than 100 snapshots. Fortunately, all of Mother's 17 grandchildren, her 26 greatgrandchildren, and many friends and neighbors who had been a part of her long life appeared in the snapshots, which we taped on two doors in our center hallway. What a blessing these pictures were! The children chuckled as they looked at Nana with a false face on, Nana holding our big boxer on her lap, Nana at a birthday celebration blowing out candles. Rather than tears, because of these pictures, there was laughter!

As I am writing to you now (1:25 a.m.) on Oct. 20, I am looking at more than 100 different pictures those of my 34-year-old son, Maj. Dan Haworth of the U.S. Marines, whose helicopter crashed in the Persian Gulf on Oct. 4. He was the only one of four men not rescued.

These pictures of our son's lovely wife, his two young children, and many members of our large, wonderful family snapped during highlights of 10 happy years helped us once again.

Couple cashes in on grocery coupons

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) - Grocery shopping is a major endeavor for Joe and Wendy Gulish. When all the boxes, bags, cans and cartons had been rung up recently at the U Save Supermarket in the Centre Town Mall, the total on the register tape was $320.56.

But the Kernville couple didn't look the least bit upset; as a matter of fact, they soon were ecstatic. After countless coupons were deducted, the store, which gives double the coupon value, paid the Gulishes $8.55.

Wendy's refunding is what makes all the difference. It all started about five years ago when a back ailment put the young woman in the hospital and required her to wear a brace from the chin to the lower back for two ingville, Susquehanna County, came up with the idea of coupon clipping.

'Mom wanted me to do something to pass the time," Mrs. Gulish said. "She would help me get the stuff together.'

The "stuff" now takes up a room of their half of a double house and occupies much of Mrs. Gulish's time. Not only does she clip coupons, but she also subscribes to refunding publications and trades forms with people from throughout the country.

For the unemployed couple, the effort is certainly worth it.

"It saves a lot of money," Mrs. Gulish

Stocking up with the help of their coupons is an annual excursion for the couple, usually undertaken in December. This year, because they had moved recently and were out of a lot of items, the Gulishes decided to shop a little early. They ended up with three shopping carts filled to the brim.

Store employees seemed to take it all in stride. As cashier Jackie Brown calmly swept the boxes and cans across a scanner, Dave Rovida packed them into plastic bags and placed them in carts.

Rovida rang up the couple's order last year - a longer procedure, he said, because the store didn't have scanners then.

Sports BIG SPRING HERALD, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1987 Cowboys outlast Patriots, 23-17 in overtime

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Herschel Walker is running wild again. Dallas Coach Tom Landry gave him that chance and he gave the Cowboys a victory.

Walker, who complained about not carrying the ball enough, carried it 60 yards on one play for the winning touchdown as the Cowboys beat the New England Patriots 23-17 in overtime Sunday

He used his power to burst through the left side of the line on a basic off-tackle play and his speed to outrun pursuers and score 1:50 into the extra session. "I just saw that blue flame and I knew he was smoking," Cowboys' quarterback Danny White said. 'In overtime," Dallas running back Tony Dorsett said, "he played like a world champion. When he did, the Patriots' chances of gaining that honor this NFL season suffered a serious setback. Picked by many to win the AFC East, New England, 4-5, dropped out of a five-way tie for the lead. It has lost four of its last five games with regular players and remained winless against Dallas and in The Patriots took their only lead, 17-14, on third-string quarterback Tom Ramsey's 5-yard pass to Stanley Morgan with 1:55 left in the fourth quarter. But they allowed Dallas to drive 78 yards in just 1:27 and tie the score on Roger Ruzek's 20-yard field goal with 28 seconds remaining. "I don't know what's wrong," Patriots' running back Tony Collins said. "We can't afford to lose any more games.

Dallas is 6-2 in overtime games, while the Patriots are 0-9. They are 0-6 against Dallas, the only team they haven't beaten.

The Cowboys won on the fifth play of overtime despite tying a club record of 15 penalties one week after committing 11 in a 27-17 loss to Detroit.

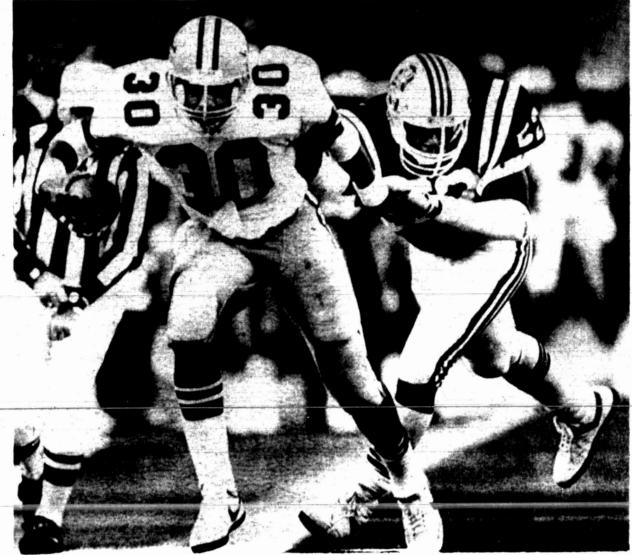

The victory gave the Cowboys, 5-4, some breathing room. They still trail Washington by two games in the NFC East but broke a second-place tie with Philadelphia, which lost to the New York Giants.

"A game like that could make a lot of difference" in the tight division race, Landry said. A back like Walker did.

rushing yards, fourth most in one game in Dallas history. After reaching the secondary, he outran cornerback Raymond Clayborn down the left sideline.

"Even though I was tired, I said whenever I get into the open field, where I see nothing but end zone, I don't care who's behind me," Walker said. "I'm going to score.

Dallas started at its own 30 following the overtime gain and a first down. Walker scored on the next play Dorsett carried just once for 5 yards late in the third quarter and bruised his shoulder on the run.

"It was very frustrating to just watch," he said. But you know they made a decision and that was the decision to play Herschel.

"I have no problem with Herschel."

The Patriots, obviously, did.

"We have been quite well aware of his ability to do everything there is on a football field, plus his breakaway speed," New England Coach Raymond Berry said. "He showed that today.

Walker, in his second NFL season after three years in the USFL, made key plays on two other Dallas scoring drives.

He ran 7 yards up the middle to the New England 3-yard line one play before Ruzek's tying field goal. He also caught a 14-yard completion from White to the Patriots' 3 one play before White's 3-yard touchdown pass to Doug Cosbie; coming 10 seconds before intermission, the TD gave Dallas a 14-7 halftime lead

New England quarterback Steve Grogan was responsible for the first two touchdowns. Ron Francis intercepted his pass and ran 18 yards to score late in the first quarter. Grogan then ran for a 2-yard touchdown 2:36 into the second quarter.

New England nearly won while playing almost the entire second half with Ramsey.

Tony Eason probably is out for the season with a separated shoulder. Grogan, who had back spasms Saturday, was sacked on the second play of the third quarter, hurt his head and didn't return although he did call plays from the sidelines.

Ramsey, playing quarterback for the third time in his three NFL seasons, threw his first NFL scoring pass, a fourth-down throw to Morgan. He also led the Patriots to Tony Franklin's 41-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter that made the score 14-10.

"I knew it wouldn't take much of a hit the way Steve came into the game," Ramsey said. "I figured I was going to play at some point in the game.'

The drive to Ruzek's field goal was kept alive by a 43-yard completion from White to Mike Renfro on fourth-and-13. It moved the ball to the New England 27 with 1:01 left in the fourth quarter.

"I had the deep coverage," cornerback Rod McS-wain said. "I took my eyes off Renfro. It was my play and I just didn't make it.

Walker had considerably more success on his play. "It was just supposed to be a running play," he said. "It turned out to be a great play.

HOUSTON (AP) — Rodney Mc-Cray of the Houston Rockets was just where he wanted to be as time was running out in the NBA game against the Seattle SuperSonics.

"I've always looked forward to taking the last shot and making it," jump shot at the final buzzer Sunday night to boost the Rockets to a 108-106 win over Seattle.

The Rockets called two time outs with four seconds left and the score tied 106-106 in an effort to execute a play that would get the ball to McCray. After the second time out, Mc-

Cray took the inbounds pass, dribbled to the top of the key and launched the game-wining shot with Xavier McDaniel closely guarding "It was a tough break for us," McDaniel said. "Last year we won those games. We just kept playing and kept our heads in the game and didn't get mad or upset. Houston, 5-1, was led by McCray and Akeem Olajuwon with 24 points each. Olajuwon had 19 second half points and blocked a Dale Ellis shot with 11 seconds left that would have given the Sonics a two-point

"That was a great individual defensive play on Akeem's part," Houston coach Bill Fitch said.

"In the second half, we played much more aggressive defense and had much better shot selection,' Olajuwon explained. "We needed the block at the end and it was a great shot by Rodney.

Seattle coach Bernie Bickerstaff ranked the Rockets as the second best team in the NBA.

"This Rocket team is the second team behind the Lakers with the acquisitions they made,' Bickerstaff said.

Houston had trailed 106-102 with 1:39 left, but a pair of free throws by McCray and a basket by Olajuwon tied the score 106-106 with 54 seconds left.

passes of 14 yards to Curtis Duncan and 42 yards to Drew Hill in the third quarter as Houston defeated the Steelers at Pittsburgh for the first time since 1978.

The loss knocked the Steelers out of the AFC Central first-place tie, while Houston ended a four-game losing streak against Pittsburgh.

The Steelers, 5-4, managed to score only on Gary Anderson's 22-yard field goal in the final minute of the first quarter.

The San Diego Chargers, with a commitment to change this season, might be the best team in the NFL. The Los Angeles Raiders, with their "Commitment to Excellence," may be doomed to mediocrity.

Vince Abbott, cut by the Raiders last year, kicked three field goals Sunday night and the Chargers won their eighth straight game, beating Los Angeles 16-14.

At 8-1, the Chargers have their longest winning streak since 1961 and the best record in the AFC.

The Raiders, slowed by a teamrecord 186 yards in penalties, lost their sixth in a row and fell to 3-6. The losing streak is their longest since a 13-game skid in 1962.

Chicago, leading the NFC with a 7-1 record, plays at Denver tonight. The Raiders finally played mistake-free in scoring two touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

But by then it was too late as San Diego swept the season series for the first time since 1981. "It drives you crazy," Raiders quarterback Marc Wilson said. "If and out of the playoffs since 1982, continued to win with their balanced attack. Defense and the running game now get as much attention as the Dan Fouts-led passing attack.

"It was a real physical game. We knew it would be going in,' Chargers Coach Al Saunders said "It was a game of might versus might.

The Chargers might have decided it early, scoring 10 points on Raiders' turnovers in taking a 16-0 lead at halftime.

Abbott, who lost out to incumbent Raiders kicker Chris Bahr last year before coming to San Diego this season, kicked field goals of 38, 47 and 39 yards in the second quarter.

"Personally, I took this as any other game," said Abbott, who kicked game-winning field goals against Cleveland and Indianapolis over the past two weeks. "I don't get any special satisfaction from playing the Raiders, but I did from the Chargers beating the Raiders.'

Fouts had thrown a 9-yard touchdown pass to Kellen Winslow in the first quarter.

The Raiders scored with eight minutes left in the game on Wilson's 5-yard pass to Dokie Williams. Wilson threw a 47-yard TD pass to James Lofton with 16 seconds left.

Fouts completed 15 of 32 passes for 149 yards while Wilson hit 15 of 32 attempts for 228 yards. Each was intercepted once, and each turnover led to a touchdown.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a good time to come to new agreements with your family and friends. Rely on your instincts if you encounter any conflicting points of view. Your charm can get you out of a tough situation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You'll have a lot of pent-up energy today, so use it productively. Don't allow an argumentative person to cause you to lose your temper.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take pride in your work, and make sure anything you present as finished is neat and accurate. Be appreciative of your co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Stop hiding your light under the proverbial bushel, but use your talents efficiently. Make plans for future amusements tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Entertain some friends who you admire and to whom you owe a debt of gratitude. Work on improving the comfort of your home.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't take your allies for granted; show them that you appreciate their help, and you'll get even more coopera-tion in the near future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care of financial obligations which have been piling up. Be charming and you'll get the advice you've been needing from an expert.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

Tonight would be a good time to meet with good friends socially and have a delightful time together. Use your inimitable sense of humor. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Stop thinking small and you'll get good results. A positive attitude toward irritating daily duties will make your day go by more quickly. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show some affection to your mate and others who are selflessly helpful to you every day. Be sure you drive carefully today. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Get your personal affairs in better order. Be sure you look after your health and get plenty of rest. You'll need your energy in the days ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

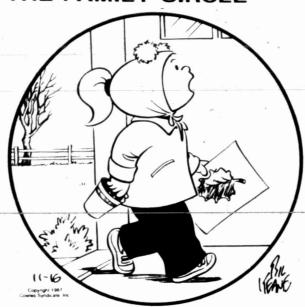

State your aims clearly and avoid a costly misunderstanding today. A contact with a person who is far away can be helpful to you. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some special thought for your mate can patch up a long-standing rift in your relationship. Protect your credit and pay your bills on time.

If Your Child Is Born Today

He or she will be quite attractive and should be taught not to be shy, but to show gratitude for this gift and to use it wisely. Be sure you teach your progeny not to deliber ate over problems for so long that the decision reached no longer has any significance.

Howard College program relieves nursing shortage

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

With hospitals across the country facing a severe shortage of nurses, persons entering the profession face a variety of choices and opportunities, according to the director of Howard College's Allied Health Department.

In her seven years with the college, Barbara Holdampf has watched 254 students receive their Registered Nurse degree - and four years ago added a program to increase that number.

The program is called the Accelerated Nursing Program, and is designed to award licensed vocational nurses with a RN degree in half the regular time as normal procedures, Holdampf said.

LVNs join the program around the first of June and — after a sixweek transition course — become sophomore-level nursing students. They also receive college credits for their LVN experience, she

The end result of the accelerated program is that the number of graduating RNs has doubled since its inception, Holdampf noted. The first Howard nursing class — in 1977 — graduated 14 nurses. This year, 36 graduates received their RN titles.

Holdampf said there are two major reasons for LVNs to upgrade phasing out LVN certification. This makes it imperative for nurses to get their RN degree, she said.

afford to upgrade, and helps ensure hospitals of having qualified registered nurses, she noted.

The other reason is the severe shortage of nurses that exists in hospital across the nation, Holdampf said.

National enrollment in four-year nursing programs has declined the past few years, she noted. The reason for the decline is women branching into different careers than the ones they traditionally staffed, Holdampf added.

As a result, hospitals are having trouble staffing their nursing positions — and their recruiting efforts have intensified accordingly.

In the past few years, Howard College has experienced an influx of hospital recruiters to its Big Spring and Del Rio campuses. Most of them represent area medical centers, but some come from as far away as Dallas, Holdampf said.

The recruiters also are coming earlier now than in past years, she added; relating how one recruiter asked permission to talk to students as early as eight months before graduation.

All this attention serves to make the program highly attractive and enhances its reputation among West Texas hospitals, she explained.

Dr. P.W. Malone, co-founder of Malone & Hogan hospital concurred, saying "If it wasn't for the college's efforts, a lot of hospitals around here would have to close.

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Dr. Frank Young held a news conference Friday to announce that the FDA has approved a blood clot dissolver for preventing heart damage immediately following a heart attack.

FDA approves new heart drug

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new emergency drug expected to save the lives of thousands of heart attack victims by eating away clots blocking the flow of blood to their hearts was approved Friday by the Food and Drug Administration.

FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young called approval of the genetically engineered drug widely known as TPA "a major advance in the management of coronary heart disease.

Dr. Howard Morgan, president of the American Heart Association, said, "This drug has the potential to greatly improve the outcome of many heart He said studies have demonstrated that TPA "can reduce the amount of damage to the heart muscle as well as the number of deaths due to heart attacks if it is administered soon — within a few hours — after While offering new hope to the 800,000 Americans who suffered initial heart attacks each year, approval of the drug also holds the promise of financial bonanza for Genetech, Inc., the 11-year-old South San Francisco, Calif., company that developed it.

Company officials said the drug should be available in emergency rooms nationwide within two or three weeks. They declined to say how much it will cost in the United States, but indicated it probably will be in line with the $2,000-per-treatment charge in other countries where it already is on the market.

TPA — or tissue plasminogen activator — is a clotdissolving protein that occurs naturally in the human body, but not in the concentrated dose that will be ad-

Bergstrom of Sweden, the recipient ministered to heart attack victims. of the 1982 Nobel Prize in It becomes the sixth FDA-approved drug developed through biotechnology - all but one of them by Genetech — and the one likely to have the broadest, most dramatic application.

TPA is not the first clot-dissolving product on the market, but physicians participating in clinical trials involving some 4,000 heart attack victims hail it as a breakthrough development.

Dr. Charles Abbottsmith, director of cardiology at Christ Hospital in Cincinnati, has called TPA the 'penicillin of heart attacks.'

An emergency treatment most effective when administered within the first minutes or hours after a patient has suffered a heart attack, the official labeling will call for its use "as soon as possible after the onset of symptoms."

While not discounting its life-saving potential, Young said its longer-range benefit is at least as Noting that 250,000 people who suffer a first heart attack in the United States each year die within the first month, Young said, "Early treatment may help reduce these deaths, but it may be even more important to many of us that early treatment can improve the quality of the years remaining.

"Today, only one-third of the survivors of initial heart attacks completely recover," he continued. 'Many of the rest live limited, circumscribed lives as a result of heart damage. By limiting damage to the heart, early use of TPA can reduce heart damage and thus help ensure the continued enjoyment of the vigor and pleasures of life.

Indeed, Young said it was additional clinical evidence of TPA's ability to limit heart muscle damage that played a large role in prompting the FDA to approve the drug after an advisory committee recommended on May 29 that it not be approved pending further studies.

TPA works by binding itself to blood clots and activating an enzyme in them that "essentially eats away" the clot, said Young.

Thursday is SmokeOut day

LUBBOCK - November is National Smokeout Month, and the American Cancer Society has declared Thursday as the Great American SmokeOut.

According to the ACS, an estimated 150,000 new cases of lung cancer will be reported this

The incidence rate in white males dropped from 82.7 per 100,000 in 1982 to 79.3 in 1983. The incidence rate in white females and black males and females, however, continues to rise, according to society statistics.

The symptoms or warning signals of lung cancer are: A persistent cough, sputum streaked with blood, chest pain, recurring attacks of pnemonia or bronchitis. However, early detection of lung cancer helps lower the risks, the society

Lung cancer is very difficult to detect early because the symptoms often don't appear until the disease has advanced considerably.

If a smoker quits at the time of early precancerous cellular changes, the damaged bronchial lining often returns to normal. If a smoker continues the habit, cells may form abnormal growth patterns that lead to cancer, the report added.

The survival rate of lung cancer is also devastating.

Statistics from the ACS show that only 13 percent of lung cancer patients live five or more years after diagnosis. The survival rate is 33 percent for individuals who detect the cancer in a localized stage, the report

WHY CHIROPRACTIC? When you or someone you know has a health problem or recognizes any of these Eight Danger Signals: 1) headaches; 2) stiffness of the neck; 3) painful joints; 4) pain between the shoulders; 5) backaches; 6) pain in the arms or legs; 7) numbness in the hands or feet; 8) loss of sleep; DON'T IGNORE IT!! Many of these health problems relate to the spine and need chiropractic care. Millions of satisfied patients nationwide prove chiropractic is successful in helping such problems. Incidentally, chiropractic is the world's largest drugless, healing profession. Call for an appointment or no appointment necessary.
