Cubans moved; Atlanta siege remains

From staff and wire reports OAKDALE, La. - Nearly half the Cuban inmates who freed 26 hostages and surrendered after an eight-day siege were transferred today to other prisons, but no progress was reported in efforts to free 90, hostages still held in an Atlanta' penitentiary, authorities said.

Ten Big Spring Federal Prison Camp employees sent to Oakdale last week are still there to assist authorities in the aftermath of the rioting, Big Spring prison spokesman Lloyd McMillan said today

It's unlikely the 10, or other Big Spring prison employees, will be sent to Atlanta where Cuban inmates are still holding nearly 100 hostages, he said, but had no estimate of when the employees

But federal officials declined try, said Art Espinoza, the to say if progress was made in associate warden at Oakdale.

Federal prisons at Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Worth and Texarkana, Texas; Englewood, Colo., and Memphis, Tenn.; were among the destinations for the Cubans, Espinoza said. He declined to say how many might go to each prison. Espinoza said authorities hoped the prison would be emptied by the end of the day.

The U.S. Medical Center for federal prisoners in Springfield, Mo., received 66 Oakdale inmates today, said Keith Hayes, an administrative assistant there.

The Cuban riots followed a government announcement of the deportations to Cuba of 2,500 undesireables -- criminals or mentally ill - who were among the 125,000 to arrive during the 1980 Mariel boatlift. Oakdale was seized Nov. 21; the Atlanta riot began a week ago today. The rioting inmates demanded that they be allowed to remain in the United States

The Oakdale hostage release followed a videotaped message from Auxiliary Bishop Agustin Roman of Miami, who said he had reviewed a document offered by the government promising individual case reviews for those facing deportation.

The agreement also promised no reprisals for damage to the 112-year-old $17 million prison, which was badly damaged by fires during the riot. Officials said it will be rebuilt.

Hostages who began walking out to freedom from the Oakdale prison at 2:25 p.m. were greeted with joyous relief. Freed hostages beamed, and their relatives and the inmates wept and cheered.

Access issue facing phone users

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

A blizzard of information has descended upon area telephone customers in recent weeks, as Big Spring nears its status as an equal-access area.

Local customers have a chance to choose their long distance telephone service source for themselves under the equal-access regulation, a provision of the divestiture of AT&T by the Federal Communications Commission following a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in 1984.

According to Southwestern Bell's Darlene Gifford, "You must vote.

"You have to choose your service," she said, "or after the first wave of ballots, the Federal Communications Commission will require us to assign you to a service.

Voters must mail their ballots by Jan. 15, 1988, or the selection will be made for them, Gifford added.

'If the first wave comes in and 50 percent of the customers choose ClayDesta, 48 percent decide to stay with AT&T and two percent choose some other service, the FCC mandates that's how we allot the remaining customers' long distance service.

'Equal access is the term we use with the long distance carriers," she explained, "and easy access is the term used with the customer. which means you can have one-plus dialing.

'Equal access means we (Southwestern Bell) must see that the carriers have equal access to our long distance equipment to provide one-plus dialing service for customers.

The change in Big Spring's service centers around the installation of digital switching equipment, she said.

If customers find a company unsatisfactory, or if a customer is assigned a long distance carrier and wants to change service sources, she said, Southwestern Bell will implement the first change for free

"The first change is free, and it's only $5 to change anyway, so you won't have to stay with a company if you aren't satisfied," she said.

NTS Communications offers service to Big Spring customers under the equal access regulations, as do other companies, including ClayDesta Communications based in Midland, Action Telecom and TTI of Big Spring, MCI and US Sprint which are nationwide carriers, EconoLine of Midland/Odessa, LDS Metromedia, AT&T and Western Union. Western Union limits its services to business customers only.

According to Sherrie Kloss, NTS company guarantees that customers will be able to save money on long distance bills through NTS. As proof, Kloss says, the total bill through NTS also carries a printout of the total charge had the customer used AT&T's long distance service.

ClayDesta Communications became a long distance carrier almost by happenstance, according to Frank Walter. He is manager of public relations for the company.

Late harvest damage light for peanuts

ABILENE (AP) - Despite summer planting delays caused by heavy rains, peanut farmers are producing a bountiful crop this year with little sign of freeze damage from a late harvest

Processing plants are running 24 hours a day to keep up with the final harvests in three counties that produce more than a third of the state's peanut crop, officials say.

Farmers in Eastland, Erath and Comanche counties are now hoping for clear, dry weather to complete the season in better shape than many thought possible, although the quality of nuts is not ideal.

Ross Wilson, general manager of the Southwestern Peanut Growers, estimates that about 35 percent of the crop remains to be harvested.

"Grades have improved some of late, but on a whole have been very disappointing this year," Wilson said.

About 100,000 acres of peanuts were planted in the three counties this season, and Wilson said about 80,000 tons of Spanish and runner-type peanuts will be harvested from that acreage.

Statewide, the harvest is expected to be about 211,000 tons. Wilson said there are few signs of freeze damage in this year's crop, despite several freezes in the last three weeks.

Auto theft Considered state's fastest growing crime

From staff and wire reports The number of vehicles vanishing each day from Texas streets and parking lots has grown nearly, 30 percent in less than two years, making auto theft the state's fastest-growing crime, authorities

In sparsely populated Howard County, however, the problem is not as prevalent. During 1986, 22 vehicles were reported stolen from Howard County and 19 were recovered - three of them this year. During the first 10 months of 1987, only four vehicles were reported stolen and four were recovered.

Figures for automobiles stolen within the Big Spring city limits were not available at press time, although Police Lt. Troy Hogue said the problem was not as prevalent here as in other areas of the state.

Hogue cautioned against drawing too many conclusions from stolen car statistics.

guy loaned his car to a friend, and it never was returned," he said. 'We have to report that as a stolen car, just like the rest."

He added that arrests aren't made very often.

"Most of the time, the car is found abandoned," he said. "The number of arrests are not very high with stolen cars.

Organized crime, or "chop shops", in which automobiles are stripped of parts, apparently are

"There are quite a few where the more of a big city problem. "We haven't had any organized crime that I'm aware of," Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said.

The reasons for an overall rise in auto theft are simple, police say: auto theft in Texas is a thirddegree felony carrying a maximum prison sentence of 10 years, but few auto thieves spend that much time in prison, if they spend any at all. And to make prosecution even more difficult, many auto theft rings pay juveniles to steal vehicles. That places the cases in the complicated juvenile court system and decreases the likelihood of lengthy sentences.

"Every thief we catch, the courts put them back on the street, either through probation or early release. Dallas police investigator R.C. Martin said.

"We pick up juveniles who brag how they make $500 a day stealing cars. Then they laugh in your face AUTO THEFT page 2-A

At least 18 killed on state highways

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents claimed the lives of at least 18 Texans during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, including a 5-year-old Austin girl who was struck by a car while crossing the street.

The unofficial Associated Press reporting period began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday. The Texas Department of Public Safety is not keeping an official Thanksgiving holiday traffic death count.

The 18 fatalities included four pedestrians, among them the 5-year-old girl who died after she was struck by a car and dragged about 25 feet as she crossed an east Austin street. Authorities said no charges were filed against the driver

Nationally, 445 die on roads

CHICAGO (AP) - Traffic accidents claimed 445 lives over the long Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

The death toll over the four-day period was led by 34 deaths in Florida and 20 in Michigan.

The National Safety Council said before the holiday the began that 450 travelers might die in traffic during the observance that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and extended to midnight Sunday.

Council statisticians did not provide an estimate of how many deaths might be expected over a four-day non-holiday period this time of year, saying that methods for gathering and analyzing such data are not comparable.

The worst Thanksgiving weekend was in 1968, when 764 people died. Since the 55-mph speed limit was imposed in 1974, the worst year was 1978, when 508 deaths were reported.

The speed limit was increased to 65 mph this year on many rural sections of interstate highways.

fered in the collision, said a spokesman for the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office. Police said they were looking for the driver of the car.

Saturday, Jirard Eugene Hanzik, 18, of Damon was killed and two others critically injured after the truck they were riding in skidded off the road and hit a light pole near West Columbia, DPS officials said. Hanzik was a passenger, along with Marty Long, 19, of Damon, in the truck driven by Kenneth Wayne Jakubec, 20, of Damon, the DPS said. Jakubec and Long were taken to the University of Texas Medical

Branch in Galveston, where they both were in critical condition. Two men were killed in Fort Worth when the pickup truck they were riding in collided with another truck and flipped over a guardrail Saturday, police said. Clive Mendez, 21, died at Harris Hospital-Methodist and Raul Raso, the community, a day of peace." Roman, the highest-ranking Cuban-born priest in Miami's Roman Catholic Archdiocese, expressed willingness to work to end the Atlanta prison takeover if officials asked him.

The Oakdale agreement could be helpful in negotiations with the Atlanta inmates, said Rafael Penalver, Roman's lawyer and chief negotiator.

"I think it can be applicable and I think it's an agreement that when it was worked out it was perceived with a much broader picture than just the Oakdale situation. We were thinking of all the detainees of Mariel who are detained in several prisons around the country," he said today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America.

The agreement still could lead to some Cubans being deported to their homeland, Penalver said.

'What the bishop wanted to ensure was that we have a fair process in which each individual case could be reviewed before a panel that would listen to each individual he said. "Each of those story," Mariel detainees has a story and many feel that they have never had a chance to tell that story.

Patrick Korten, the Justice Department's deputy director of public affairs, ruled out an immediate invitation to the bishop to participate in Atlanta talks.

After their release, the Oakdale hostages were taken by bus to Humana Hospital.

"They're dirty. They're in good spirits. They're hungry. They allocated Justice will not rest until the appear to be stressed somewhat," said Dr. Roy Harding. "All have been checked and appear to be doing very well. As the bus pulled into the emergency entrance, Ronald Thompson of Mobile, Ala., spotted his twin brother, Donald, who had been a hostage, and began screaming his name until he became hoarse. As his brother waved at him, Ronald kept repeating, "Oh God, thank you!" until he broke down sobbing.

Harding said one hostage guard had a sprained knee or ankle, but was not seriously hurt.

They got tired of wieners, but they were treated well," said Harding. "They ate the same thing as the inmates. They drank a little swamp water because the water ran out. The people I saw show no signs of physical abuse. Mostly, they have a lack of water and soap

Guard Leon Smith said he and the other hostages had been treated fairly and with respect.

"But we were all scared because it was the first time we had to deal with a situation like this," he said. He said he believed the hostages were treated well because guards had treated inmates fairly.

He said the only time he felt threatened was when helicopters swooped overhead. "They (the Cubans) really got upset when that happened," Smith said.

The Cubans had insisted on Roman's involvement a few days after the siege began.

The agreement, typed on stationery from Attorney General Edwin Meese III's office, included guarantees of individual reviews of inmates' status and medical treatment for those needing it.

"We did not give away the store," said J.D. Williams, a regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. "I think it's a good agreement.'

Meese, in a statement released in Washington, said, "While this is understandably a time of rejoicing and thanksgiving, the Department situation in Atlanta is also peacefully concluded and all the ages there are rele

Stalled engine blamed in deaths

COMMERCE (AP) - A stalled engine apparently caused the crash of a twin-engine airplane that killed the president of Dallasbased Skaggs Alpha Beta and the chief pilot for Trinity Industries, authorities say

Killed in the crash Saturday was Albert Kara, 47, of McKinney, president of Skaggs Alpha Beta, a Dallas-based division of American Stores with about 100 stores in nine states, including 48 in Texas.

The other victim was Thomas Arthur Smith, 44, of Plano, chief pilot for Dallas-based Trinity Industries, authorities said.

Hunt County Sheriff's Sgt. Jason Cunningham said investigators told him that an engine on the plane's right wing may have failed, causing the plane to spin out of control Authorities tried to determine whether the stall was an intentional training maneuver or an engine failure. Once stalled, the engine did not restart, said depart- plode on impact, he said.

ment dispatcher Carol Zborek. Kara's body was found on the pilot's side of the plane, a Beechcraft Baron, officials said, but it was not certain who was fly ing the plane.

Both men were experienced pilots, a friend said, but Kara didn't have the Federal Aviation Administration rating that would allow him to fly his new plane alone. So he took Smith along with him

Trinity manufactures rail cars, metal products and gas tanks. A company spokesman said Smith and three other company pilots were responsible for transporting company executives.

Smith also owned and operated a flight school at McKinney.

Tommy McFall, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the wreckage was to be taken to Lancaster for examination. Most of the wreckage is intact because the plane did not ex-

Disposal of Connally papers stirs fight

HOUSTON (AP) — The same month he filed for bankruptcy, former Texas governor John B. Connally transferred about 3 million historically important papers to a library, a newspaper reports.

In a copyright story, the Houston Post said Sunday the papers were given to the the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin on July 14. The papers are considered a practically priceless historical treasure by archivists and collectors.

On July 31, Connally filed for protection from creditors for his personal finances and filed for liquidation of the Barnes-Connally Partnership, which he had formed with former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

The donation, or transfer as it is known in legal papers, has triggered a legal controversy over whether Connally was entitled to donate the papers, or whether they should be auctioned off to help pay Connally's $93 million debt.

For years, Connally, 70, a former secretary of the U.S. Navy and Treasury, turned down numerous requests from libraries and archives to house the papers

Among the historical papers are a letter from Lee

Harvey Oswald to Connally 20 months before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy during a Nov. 22, 1963, Dallas motorcade. Connally was injured in the attack.

According to the newspaper, the staff of the LBJ library, which long had tried to obtain the papers, was surprised when Connally contacted library director Harry Middleton in early July.

A moving van and two rented trucks then arrived at the library's loading docks with 1,500 linear feet of Connally records, the newspaper said

Connally's attorney, Myron M. Sheinfeld, said his client would not have been able to donate paintings or other property to a museum within 90 days of filing for bankruptcy, but he said historical documents may fall into a different category.

"Paintings you acquire by paying some con-sideration for them," said Sheinfeld. "There's a difference in file cabinets full of papers. You're never going to know what the value of those letters are gong to be."

Jill Brett, spokeswoman for the National Archives, which is handling legal work surrounding the transfer of the papers, says the case poses novel legal issues

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - An Air Force investigator facing a court martial for sexual advances toward informants says he's being railronded for tactics he used to break up a drug ring among crewmen serving surveillance aircraft in the Persian Gulf.

Court martial

Special Agent James E. Flannigan claims his superiors approved of his relations with two women during the investigation last summer at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma. One of the women was the wife of a staff sergeant targeted in the investigation.

Flannigan's upcoming military trial at Lackland Air Force Base could explore whether officials of the Office of Special Investigations condoned agents making the advances to informants.

The investigator said he also probed reports that some servicemen may have been active in black-market smuggling in Saudi Arabia during their frequent rotations between Tinker and the Saudi city of Riyadh, where the Americancrewed AWACS are stationed.

The Airborne Warning and Control System planes are used as part of the U.S. presence in the Persian Gulf.

When defense attorneys for two of the four maintenance technicians charged in the drug probe complained of Flannigan's tactics, his superiors filed charges against him, he claims. Air Force officials charged Flannigan with becoming "intimately" and "emotionally" involved with the women during the undercover court-martial proceedings. investigation.

Accused blames drug ring tactics for charges

"I'm being railroaded," the 29-year-old staff sergeant said in an interview with the San Antonio Light last week.

Flannigan has been reassigned to kennel duty training police dogs — at Lackland pending his court-martial.

"It was obvious from the very beginning that I was getting through to these AWACS people through these girls," Flannigan said.

As a result of Flannigan's investigation and a subsequent inquiry, four maintenance technicians were charged with marijuana use and distribution.

Three will be tried in coming months and the fourth is expected to accept an administrative punishment, Air Force officials said.

The Air Force first offered to punish Flannigan administratively for his alleged violation of Air Force regulations, but he turned down the offer and demanded instead a public courtmartial proceeding

Capt. Ingrid K. Bradley, a spokeswoman for the Office of Special Investigations' district headquarters at Randolph Air Force Base, said that officials could not be reached for comment on the Flannigan case.

John Economidy, Flannigan's civilian attorney, said the unusual nature of the case will entitle him to delve into the military's techniques for undercover operations during the

Flannigan was formerly charged last week with dereliction of duty. He faces a maximum six-month sentence, a bad conduct discharge and a forfeiture of two-thirds of his pay upon conviction

Economidy, a former Air Force legal officer. said he expects the court-martial proceeding to be held in January, though a precise date has not been set.

Flannigan said he first became involved in the case when he was stationed at Lackland's investigative detachment. After one assignment fell through, he asked permission from his supervisors at Lackland and Tinker to look into drug use among AWACS maintenance personnel

He said his supervisors recommended that he visit lounges frequented by the suspected drug dealers. During his investigation, he met two women, one the wife of an AWACS maintenance staff sergeant at Tinker.

Flannigan defended his actions, saying the contacts were necessary to infiltrate the drug trafficking ring among AWACS crew members at Tinker Tinker spokesman Capt. Johnnie D. Ainsley said all four defendants in the drug case were removed from their jobs servicing AWACS immediately after the charges were brought against them.

Hurricane season blows away quietly

By The Associated Press The 1987 Atlantic hurricane season — what there was of it — is ending, and Texas escaped relatively unscathed this year.

"This season has been very mild, including the number of storms, the dollar amount of damages and no lives were lost," said Bob Case, a hurricane specialist with the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla

The season, which ends at midnight today, runs from June 1 through Nov. 30. The dates were chosen decades ago because of statistical background on prior storms and when they were likely to hit.

There were only seven named storms and one unnamed tropical storm this year, Case said.

"Normally, under proper conditions, a hurricane season will produce named storms, including six hurricanes, two of which would strike a coastal area," he said.

By contrast, just two years earlier, the United States had a record hurricane season, said Fred Roush, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service office at Corpus Christi International Airport.

During the 1985 season, there were 11 named tropical disturbances, and seven of them swelled into hurricanes. Six of those made landfall in the United States, the largest number to hit the country in one year in the past 70 years.

"At one time or another, every area on the Gulf and Atlantic coasts from Corpus Christi to New England was under either a hurricane watch or a hurricane warning during the 1985 season," Roush said Only three of the 1987 storms were nurricanes: Arlene, which developed and died in the open waters of the Atlantic Ocean; Emily, which ravaged the Dominican Republic and Bermuda; and Floyd, which dumped to 5 inches of rain on Florida, causing just $500,000 in damages and lasting only 12 hours.

The unnamed storm was the first of the season, sweeping through Southeast Texas on Aug. 10.

Case said that at the time, it was classified as a tropical depression, but further study of the weather system produced evidence that it actually had been a tropical storm. It passed through Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, causing $7.5 million in damage. Fred Wesley, a weather specialist with the National Weather Service in Port Arthur, said Gulf Coast states got off lightly in 1987

'I believe the cold fronts that pushed through the area in June, which caused us to receive about three times the normal amount of rain for the month, ended the hurricane season for us," Wesley said.

across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Diplomacy isn't Wright's business

After (President) Reagan refused to see Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, Ortega met with (House Speaker Jim) Wright - and thereby angered Reagan.

The speaker, by attempting to be an intermediary between the Sandinistas and the Contra rebels, overstepped the boundary between the legislative and executive branches.

Some accounts of a meeting at the White House ... between the president, the speaker and Secretary of State George Shultz described the session as a shouting match.

There's an easy way to restore peace between the president and the speaker: Wright shouldn't engage in diplomacy again.

The president and the secretary of state, not the speaker, are responsible for foreign affairs. Wright's roles in the peace negotiations are ones of counsel and cooperation - and Reagan should accept both.

The Courier-News, Bridgewater, N.J.

Reagan gave up foreign policy role

Lately, outraged complaints that the president's foreign policy role has been usurped have been coming from the White House. They're absurd complaints

No one had to usurp the president's foreign policy role. Reagan abdicated.

The administration has been in complete public disarray on the foreign policy front for at least a year, since the first stories about the sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Contras began appearing. Salina (Kan.) Journal

Iran report blames wrong people

One conclusion drawn from Congress' majority report on the Iran-Contra affair is that a "secret White House cabal" took power into its own hands.

The report wants to "rein in" the CIA. One suggestion is to establish an independent inspector general to oversee the agency and report to Congress

There are two problems with this.

First, it administers the medicine to the wrong patient. Congress, nct the CIA, needs to be restrained ... from leaking highly sensitive intelligence information for partisan purposes.

Second, the CIA had nothing to do with the Iran-Contra debacle The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle-The Augusta Herald

Reagan breaks budget promises.

Over the past two years President Reagan has repeatedly made two promises: He won't raise taxes and he won't cut Social Security. Guess which promise he broke?

The budget compromise Reagan and congressional leaders agreed to last Friday will increase your taxes and fees by $11 billion for fiscal year

And that's just the start. Having broken his no-tax pledge now, Reagan will be an easy touch next year. Indeed, the agreement also includes a $14 billion hike of your taxes for fiscal year 1989.

All this was unnecessary. If Reagan had just said no, if he had refused to enter into any agreement with the congressional tax looters, the Gramm-Rudman budget law would have reduced the budget anyway, Gramm-Rudman would have cut spending by $23 billion. In contrast, the budget compromise cuts spending by only $19 billion.

Therefore, by bargaining with Congress for ... 20 days, Reagan has gotten $4 billion less in budget cuts than Gramm-Rudman would have given him, plus $9 billion in new taxes.

In other words, the budget talks resulted in no spending cuts, but a major new tax increase.

The Orange County (Calif.) Register

Sure that housing bill was doomed

The housing bill that sailed through the House 391-1 fell flat on its face in the Senate last week, virtually ensuring the eighth consecutive year without new legislation. It was inevitable.

The bill was a victim of idealism. It called for roughly $15 billion a year for the next two years to pay for housing assistance programs for the poor, elderly and handicapped - nearly double the current funding level for such programs.

At a time when Congress and the president were trying to wring out every fiscal drop from an overblown budget, a $30-odd billion commitment was a pipe dream right from the beginning.

Clearly a new housing policy is necessary - one that integrates the resources of the public and private sectors to meet an exorbitant and costly housing need. The effort is already under way.

The framework for a new housing policy should be ready for congressional scrutiny in about a year. In the meantime, it is politically and fiscally impossible to do more than hold the line.

Baltimore Sun

Reminds that air travel still safe

The airplane crashes in Colorado and Wisconsin (last) week, though certainly tragic in their own way, should not breed fear and panic among the American flying public.

A Continental Airlines DC-9 crashed on takeoff from Denver during a snowfall. ... Then right here in Wisconsin ..., a Beech King Air twinengine turboprop corporate plane crashed into a field between Fort Atkinson and Madison.

The King Air crash immediately drew national attention, probably because it happened less than 24 hours after the Denver crash. To put it in perspective, however, the King Air wasn't an airliner, the crash oidn't happen at a major airport and it didn't involve a snowstorm

In fact, there was virtually no similarity to the Denver crash.

Unfortunately for the traveling public, the coincidence of the two crashes ... prompted an atmosphere of uncertainty about the safety of air travel.

It's important to keep in mind that air service provided by professional pilots still is generally a very safe form of transportation in the United States and JOSEPH SPEAR WASHINGTON - The $500 billion stock market collapse last month sent shock waves from Wall Street to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, despite Ronald Reagan's determined show of confidence and optimism. To stockholders who lost their shirts — and brokerage employees who lost their jobs the president who has been telling us for seven years that happy days are here again sounded less like his idol, Franklin Roosevelt, than like FDR's luckless predecessor. When Reagan announced that the economy was basically sound, all he needed was a high celluloid collar to evoke in oldtimers the memory of Herbert Hoover

Despite the cheery public image, though, Reagan's Cabinet was badly shaken by the Oct. 19 crash. They now admit what they never would at the time: that Black Monday could have led to a fullblown, 1929-style panic.

In the aftermath, Treasury officials have had to revamp their relatively rosy economic forecasts for 1988. They now privately warn that a recession is much more likely next year than they had thought. The reason, of course, is that even before the crash, the U.S. economy was limping along barely above recession levels. And both the budget and trade deficits seem certain to remain stuck at unhealthy levels.

Treasury Secretary James Baker, almost alone among the president's top advisers, understood the need for decisive action on the twin deficits if the market's roller-coaster ride is ever to end. Baker realized long ago that tax increases were a necessary evil, but he never voiced this view publicly what he considered a fair starting salary. The graduate said, "I'll give you a break; I'm willing to start at $50,000.

The lawyer thought the graduate said $15,000, which was $2,500 less than the figure the lawyer had in his head as a reasonable starting salary. They talked some more, until the graduate said, "but I want to be up to $57,500 by the end of next year

The lawyer then realized the graduate had said $50,000 not $15,000. The lawyer was somewhere beyond stunned. But he continued chatting with the young man long enough to find out that the graduate arrived at the $50,000 figure based on the Nov. 5 episode of "L.A. Law

The fictional firm hired a new attorney at $72,500 and then all the other young lawyers in the firm became upset because they were in the $60,000-plus range. Based on those figures, the graduate felt asking for $50,000 was giving the law firm a "break.

Think about this. We're not talking about an impressionable child. We're talking three years of law school, top of the class, and 55 crackpot minutes of "L.A. Law" determines his idea of reality. He didn't get the job.

As children, we were taught through "Road Runner" cartoons that the hero could be blown up in one scene and back in perfect shape the next. It's TV logic.

And we have been seeing these visions of yuppie excellence on what's called "reality television" for more than a decade. John and Mo Dean. David Stockman. Gary Hart. Donna Rice. TV celebrities, "moral compasses" be damned.

Speaking of Rice, CBS News Saturday offered a feature on football-parking condos at the University of South Carolina, her alma mater. Yuppies spend $25,000 to get a private parking spot next to the stadium for home games

The big feature is private toilets, which the rabble in the public park ing lot can't use. They're sold out. Think of how many poor people could be fed with $25,000.

Television alone, of course, is not responsible for these skewed ethics of affluence. It's a deeper social problem

But it is television, high-stepping down the Avenue of the American mind, that is leading the parade of cultural reinforcement for a life measured in dollar signs and what they can buy. It is a parade that no longer seems to have a place for morality or public service.

and its inevitable comeuppance.

Laboratory bombed

LIVERMORE, Calif. - A man who claimed his anti-nuclear group planted a large bomb that shattered windows at a laboratory where nuclear weapons are designed claimed more attacks are planned in the San Francisco Bay area

The telephone caller refused to be specific about the plans of the Nuclear Liberation Front, and said there would be no advance warning of further bombings.

The FBI is investigating the group and its claim, which was the only one regarding Saturday's bombing at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, agent Tony Maxwell said Sunday.

Indians protest display

WASHINGTON - American Indian leaders are trying to get the Smithsonian Institution to stop displaying the bones of their ancestors.

Museum officials say they are willing to remove bones that can be identified as having been stolent from graves or coming from people with living descendants, but they would like to keep others for study.

The Smithsonian has about 34,000 skeletal specimens, of which some 14,500 are North American Indians. Many of them are prehistoric. Eskimos, Aleuts and Koniags account for 4,061 of the specimens; whites, 6,829; blacks, 1,744, and "all others," 7,033.

Plane crash kills one

LONG BEACH, Calif. - A light plane crashed onto a freeway crowded with holiday travelers, killing a passenger, critically injuring the pilot and causing a five-car pileup, authorities said.

Traffic was backed up for 10 miles after the single-engine plane smashed into the concrete center divider on Interstate 405 at 6:43 p.m. Sunday. But authorities marveled that the plane missed cars and there weren't any serious injuries reported among the motorists involved in accidents.

Plane crashes 274 feared dead in two incidents

By the Associated Press

Two airliners - one South Korean and the other South African - crashed during the weekend, and officials fear that more than 270 people may have died. A search of thick, mountainous jungle along the Thai-Burmese border today turned up no sign of a missing South Korean airliner, officials said.

A senior police official overseeing the air and ground search said wreckage of the plane that disappeared Sunday with 115 people aboard had not been found as earlier reported.

"We did not spot the wreckage or find out anything about the aircraft," Police Lt. Gen. Chitr Boonyachai told reporters in Kanchanaburi province, on the Burma frontier. "Initial police reports were uncertain."

Earlier. Air Vice Marshal Sommot Sundaravej, spokesman for the Thai air force, told reporters in Bangkok that the Korea Air Lines jet had plunged into the rugged border area.

The search was suspended at dusk today and was to resume Tuesday

Search teams found four more bodies today in the Indian Ocean near where a South African Airways jumbo jet crashed with 159 people on board. So far nine bodies have been retrieved, the airline said.

The crash occurred early Saturday after the Boeing 747's pilot reported smoke inside the plane as it approached Mauritius for a refueling stop en route from Taiwan to Johannesburg. Only small pieces of debris have been found, and all aboard are presumed dead.

M. Bagaunt, civil aviation director in Mauritius, said the five bodies found Sunday were brought to the Mauritian capital of Port Louis early today and taken to a hospital for an autopsy. None of the recovered bodies has been identified, said airline spokesman Nico Venter.

Contact with the plane was lost 10 minutes before the scheduled landing, after the pilot, Capt. Dawie Uys, radioed to the control tower: "There is smoke coming into the cabin. I think we have a fire.'

Ships from France, Mauritius, Taiwan and Japan are participating in the search, as well as spotter planes. South Africa today sent two airplanes, two helicopters and a navy ship to join the hunt, centered about 100 miles northeast of Mauritius.

Passengers on Flight 295 came from 12 countries. The lone American on board was identified from a passenger list as William G. Murless, South African Airways said.

Officials would not speculate on the cause of the crash of the 747-200B "Combi," a jumbo jet designed to carry both passengers and cargo.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti - Sporadic gunfire echoed early today through nearly empty streets where a voter-targeted terror campaign forced cancellation of Haiti's first presidential election in 30 years.

More than two dozen people were killed in the violence, including 15 people shot or hacked to death at a polling place Sunday before the election was called off by the Electoral Council

Within hours, the independent council was dissolved by the military-dominated provisional government, led by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

HARARE, Zimbabwe - Mozambique rebels axed to death a couple and five of their six children in a northeast Zimbabwe border village, the national news agency said today.

The Ziana news agency said the seven were killed Thursday, the same day antigovernment rebels hacked to death 16 whites, including two Americans, on two mission farms in southwest Zimbabwe's Matabeland province

The Matabeland attack was blamed on Zimbabwe's notorious rebel leader, Gayigusu, who is accused of hundreds of slavings in Matabeland province.

Cuts to the Pentagon budget "are going to hurt us substantially," Carlucci told reporters as he flew across the Atlantic to his first North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting since assuming his post.

Washington was "the greatest black man besides my father," said Gerald Nicholas, a retired city worker who took his place in line at 5 a.m. The mayor's death "was a terrible shock," he said. People began lining up shortly after midnight for the funeral, police said. A small procession of police cars adorned with purple bunting and flowers escorted a hearse carrying Washington's flag-draped coffin to Christ Universal Temple early today. Church bells were to ring out across the nation's third-largest city late this morning to signal the start of the funeral and buses and trains were to pause for a moment of silence. Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson, a Republican, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, a Democratic presidential contender, were among those to deliver tributes to the 65-year-old Democrat at the South Side church.

Some dolls cost hundreds at The Orphanage Don't mask smoke odors

BISHOP, Texas (AP) - Nicki Bryan stopped playing with dolls years ago and started working with them.

6A

It can be an eery experience walking into her store, The Orphanage, filled with merchandise that stares back. The shop features dolls, doll-related accessories and little else.

Bryan, 39, operates out of a drafty ex-train depot at the intersection of U.S. 77 and Farm Road 70 in Nueces County just north of Bishop.

There she has thousands of little and not-so-little human figures of bisque, rubber, wood or plastic, lined up in display cases or crowded onto shelves and tables. The merchandise ranges from brand-new collectibles to century-old relics.

Her business, at its present location for five years, caters to the conventional children's population, as well as acquisitive adults who are accumulating dolls in everincreasing numbers.

Yet a shopper won't find some of the pedestrian, well-known varieties.

"It's such a strange thing," Bryan said, before stopping to sell a sad-faced clown to a woman who said it was for a hospitalized daughter. "People buy dolls for strange reasons.

Sometimes, she said, it is to replace something they had as a child, while others use them to decorate their homes.

"A lot of them (adults) play with them," she added.

Bryan said she became a doll collector after she went to college and found out her mother had given away all of her dolls.

"I just started looking for the dolls I had," she said. "You start looking for something like that and you get really involved."

The old dolls, as well as some of the new ones, can cost hundreds of * dollars.

Collectors still find bargains all the time at garage sales, she said. A woman who had bought a wooden doll at a garage sale took it to The Orphanage marveling at how expensive it was at $10, Bryan said. It turned out to be a turn-ofthe-century Schoenhut valued at $400

Another collector brought in a "Even their furniture is expen- wooden Pinocchio doll from the from later decades and the Ginny agers 1940s that cost $25 at a garage sale, but had a collectors' price of $250. Yet she doesn't recommend buying dolls just for an investment that may end up selling for a loss.

"People that buy dolls for enjoyment will come out better in the long run," she said, "because they like what they've got and they'll keep it.

"The only time it's spooky is when somebody brings one in with a real life-like face," Bryan said. Some of the modern collectables are frighteningly realistic and appeal to children and collectors. The German Zapf dolls feature almost angelic beauty. Such dolls, often costing hundreds of dollars new, are known as 'crossovers," she said.

"You get a lot of grandmothers who want to buy a first doll, a really nice doll for their granddaughters, or they're starting a collection for them," said Bryan. But, she added, increasing numbers of men and younger women are beginning to share the same obsession with dolls in a growing network. Sometimes collectors call from thousands of miles away looking for a particular model "If you go to a doll show now, instead of it being 90 percent ladies over 60, now it's 40 percent ladies over 60," she said. "There are a lot of children with very expensive doll collections.

Sports BIG SPRING HERALD, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1987 Colts demolish Oilers, 51-27

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Houston defense did the talking and Eric Dickerson did the running to his first record as an Indianapolis Colt.

'They're very aggressive. They wanted to get to me," said Dickerson, who scored twice on runs of 19 and 13 yards while accumulating 136 yards on 27 carries as Indianapolis defeated Houston 51-27 Sunday.

The victory allowed Indianapolis, 6-5, to maintain a share of the AFC East lead with Buffalo and the New York Jets. Houston, meanwhile, remained a game behind Cleveland in the AFC Central as it dropped to 6-5

"I heard back home in Texas and LA (Los Angeles) that I got 148 the first time (as a Los Angeles Ram in the season opener against Houston) and wouldn't get 100 this time," Dickerson said.

"It's good to have that kind of confidence in the defense. But I have confidence in the offense, and I have confidence in myself," he said.

In his fourth start as a Colt, Dickerson topped the century mark for the fourth consecutive game, breaking the club mark of three straight set in 1975 by Lydell Mitchell. The AFC's rushing leader has 583 yards in 129 carries since he was dealt to Indianapolis by Los Angeles on Oct. 31.

Albert Bentley, who lost his starting job in the backfield after Dickerson arrived, caught a pair of touchdown passes from Gary Hogeboom - the first scoring receptions by a Colt back since August 9, 1984. Bentley scored on pass plays of 72 and 22 yards and rushed for 64 yards on eight carries. He also returned four kickoffs for 79 yards.

Bentley and Dickerson both scored their touchdowns in the first half, which ended with Indianapolis leading 28-10. Houston never drew closer than 11 despite having Warren Moon pass for three touchdowns.

Moon completed 24 of 44 passes for 327 yards with Drew Hill catching seven for 138 yards and two touchdowns, while Houston also had Mike Rozier rush for 122 yards on 26 carries.

George Wonsley scored on a 2-yard plunge with six seconds to play, giving the Colts their highest point total since a 58-20 victory over Buffalo on Dec. 12, 1976

The Colts came up with five turnovers, including three fumble recoveries that gave them a leagueleading 20.

Houston trailed 31-20 after a 44-yard Tony Zendejas field goal with 1:38 gone in the fourth quarter. But, Dean Biasucci's 45-yard field goal after the Colts recovered a fumbled punt and a 29-yard Dickerson run after an interception proved fatal to the Oilers.

Hogeboom never saw Bentley make his second touchdown reception. Hogeboom, who has been plagued by injuries since joining the Colts last year, was knocked down by safety Jeff Donaldson while releasing the ball. He watched the rest of the game from the sideline with a dislocated right shoulder and Meyer said he considered him "extremely doubtful" for next Sunday's game in Cleveland.

The Oilers, meanwhile, will host San Diego on Sunday

Bills whitewash Marino and Dolphins

By The Associated Press For the first time since 1985, Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula had nothing good to say about his quarterback

In fact, he was struggling to find anything good to say about anything.

The only thing we had today was Reggie Roby's punting, Shula said, "and anytime you have to talk about the punter as the highlight of the game, you're in deep trouble.

On Sunday, the Buffalo Bills beat Miami for the second time this season, handing the Dolphins a 27-0 shutout and preventing Dan Marino from throwing a touchdown pass for the first time in more than two years.

Marino had passed for at least one touchdown in 30 straight games. The last time he had failed to throw a TD pass was Nov. 3, 1985 at New England.

The shutout was the first against Miami since 1982, and Buffalo had not beaten the Dolphins twice in one season since 1966, the year Miami joined the old American Football League

Buffalo's victory helped break a five-way tie for the AFC East lead. The Bills remained in the tie at 6-5 along with Indianapolis and the New York Jets. Miami and New England fell a game back at 5-6.

Indianapolis clobbered Houston 51-27, the Jets beat Cincinnati 27-20 and Philadelphia used an overtime. field goal to beat New England 34-31

The Monday night game had the Miami then intercepted a long pass attempt by Boomer Esiason to seal the victory.

Eagles 34, Patriots 31, OT Paul McFadden, who had missed 39-yarder two minutes earlier, kicked a 38-yard field goal with 2:44 left in overtime as Philadelphia knocked New England out of the AFC East tie. Tony Franklin missed two chances to win the game for New England. He missed a 31-yard field goal attempt with five seconds left in regulation and one of 46 yards with 9:59 to go in overtime. Philadelphia is 5-6.

49ers 38, Browns 24

San Francisco stayed a game ahead of New Orleans in the NFC West as Joe Montana threw four touchdown passes, three to Jerry Rice and one to Dwight Clark, against Cleveland.

San Francisco, 9-2, rolled up more than 400 yards on offense, with Montana passing for 342, against Cleveland's defense, which went into the game ranked No. 1 in the NFL. The Browns had allowed only nine touchdown passes in their first 10 games.

Rice had his second consecutive three-touchdown game and totaled 126 yards on seven catches. His 30-vard TD catch in the second quarter sent the 49ers ahead to stay at 14-10.

Saints 20, Steelers 16 Bobby Hebert's 19-yard touchdown pass to Eric Martin in the fourth quarter put the Saints ahead, giving them an 8-3 record Playoffs and guaranteeing an over-500

Cougars forfeit 37-7 win over Temple Owls

HOUSTON (AP) ---Houston Athletic Director Rudy Davalos said forfeiting a football victory is only the first step in his handling an eligibility case involving Cougars safety Randy Thornton

After a review of Thornton's class records, Davalos said Sunday that the Cougars would forfeit a 37-7 victory over Temple because Thornton was scholastically ineligible when he played in the Nov. 14 game.

Davalos said two courses were added to Thornton's class schedule on Nov. 12 to bring him up to the Southwest Conference and NCAA minimum of 12 semester hours.

Davalos said it was obvious to him that someone in the athletic department added the courses to Thornton's record, and that he planned disciplinary action.

"I'm making a very strong statement to the university and to my own people that I'm not going to tolerate this, and if we have to forfeit victories to do this, then we'll do that," Davalos said.

"There is going to be a real keen look at that operation; there's just going to be a real tough check-out system," he added. "We're going to have disciplinary action appropriate for that. I won't say who it is, but it's people in our department.

Thornton was a defensive standout in Houston's 60-40 victory over Texas. He returned an interception 17 yards for a touchdown and added five tackles.

That earned him a start against Temple, and he responded with six tackles and a 19-yard interception return for a touchdown.

After the Temple game, Thornton was dropped from another class, giving him only nine semester hours, and the Cougars declared him ineligible for the rest of the season.

"It's rather evident that these courses were added to make the young man eligible," Davalos said. "The fault is ours and no one else's.

Davalos issued a statement Sunday night following an examination of Thornton's class records.

"Due to Randy Thornton's ineligibility at the time of the University of Houston's victory over Temple, I have notified Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the SWC, and Temple University that we are forfeiting that game to Temple,' Davalos said.

He said Thornton was eligible for all other games in which he played. The forfeit drops the Cougars to a 3-7-1 record this season

Trevino bags Skins Game

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — The reward was great, Lee Trevino said, "but I paid the price."

He came into the area more than a week early to practice for the 1987 edition of golf's Skins Game.

"I practiced daylight to dark — play nine holes, play 18 holes, hit 300-400 balls a day, putting, practice from the sand," Trevino said.

He didn't mention practicing 167-yard 6-iron shots. Maybe he figured it wasn't necessary.

But it was that shot that found the cup for a hole-in-one on the 17th hole at PGA West on Sunday, and was the centerpiece of his lastday sweep of all the money in the two-day, 18-hole, made-for-television Skins Game.

"It looked like a Rembrandt," Trevino said of the shot he lofted into a bright, blue desert sky on Sunday.

"I knew it would be close when I hit it, but never in my wildest dreams did I think it would go in."

And then the chattering 47-year-old Trevino launched into a story.

"I've been playing golf for 35 years and that's only the second hole-in-one I've ever had," Trevino said. "And I didn't get to see the other one.

"It was at Pleasant Valley on the first hole. I was in the second group off the tee

No. 11 Iowa too much for Villanova in Maui Classic

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP) – The people running the Maui Classic basketball tournament couldn't decide on a most valuable player, so they did the next best thing.

They chose a most valuable team.

Tournament officials bestowed that honor on Iowa after the 11thranked Hawkeyes raced past Villanova 97-74 in Sunday night's championship game. Five Iowa players scored in double figures. headed by B.J. Armstrong's 19 points, and the Hawkeyes won it in the second half while their best player, forward Roy Marble, was on the bench with a gash over his left eye.

"I appreciate the tribute to the team as the MVP because I sort of look at it that way, too," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "It's such a terrific effort by eight or nine guys that all worked so hard"

Iowa scored the first seven points of the second half to erase a 38-37 halftime deficit, then outscored Villanova 26-8 over the final seven minutes to turn the game into a rout.

Center Ed Horton came off the bench to match his career-high of 17 points for Iowa, reserve Jeff Moe scored all of his 13 points in the second half, Al Lorenzen added 11 and Bill Jones 10.

Iowa won the Great Alaska

Shootout to start the 1986-87 season, Davis' first with the Hawkeyes, and went on to 18 straight victories. The team finished 30-5 and came within one game of reaching the NCAA Final Four.

Kenny Wilson led Villanova, 2-1, with 20 points, Doug West scored 18 and Mark Planskay 13. But the Wildcats couldn't hold an early 10-point lead and eventually withered as Davis constantly went to his bench to keep his troops fresh.

Illinois took third place in the tournament by beating Kansas 81-75, Stanford pulled away in the second half to beat Baylor 69-56 for fifth place and Nebraska defeated Chaminade 76-75 in the seventhplace game.

Horton, who has been slowed by an ankle injury, kept Iowa in the game by scoring 10 first-half points, Moe and Armstrong took over in the second half.

The 6-foot-8 Horton got the Villanova frontline in early foul trouble with his quick moves to the basket. Starters Tom Greis, Doug West and Mark Plansky all had four fouls, as did reserves Barry Bekkedam and Rodney Taylor.

Moe hit a three-point shot 22 seconds into the second half and followed with two free throws and Armstrong sank a pair of free throws to give Iowa a 44-38 lead.

Villanova recovered from that 50-second spurt and trailed only 51-50 with 14:26 remaining after two straight baskets by the 7-foot-2 Greis. But Horton drew the fourth foul on Greis with a spin move that he converted into a three-point play to start a 16-5 run that increased Iowa's lead to 67-55.

Villanova came back again and trailed 71-66 after West's jump shot with 8:14 to play, but the Wildcats didn't get another field goal until Bekkedam scored with 1:02 remaining.

Meanwhile, Armstrong scored eight points and Kent Hill five to lead a 20-3 charge that sealed the outcome.

"I really didn't think we could go 3-0 in this tournament," Davis said. "There was too much good competition for me to feel that way. I was hoping for 1-2 at the worst and maybe 2-1. but I didn't think 3-0.

"For this early in the year to play games of this caliber with that intensity is really unusual. It usually takes you into January, into the conference season, to get this kind of intensity. I think it's a tribute to the tournament that you see players working this hard to win

Marble needed eight stitches to close the gash over his eye after being elbowed by Wilson with less than a minute left in the first half.

Freshman leads Florida

NEW YORK (AP) - It took only one game for Livingston Chatman to break into the starting lineup of undefeated Florida.

Now that he has, the 6-foot-7 freshman intends to make the Gators, 4-0, a team to be reckoned with in the Southeastern Conference and the NCAA playoffs.

The 242-pounder scored 19 points in Saturday night's 70-68 victory over Seton Hall in the final of the third annual Big Apple NIT at Madison Square Garden. Two free throws by Vernon Maxwell with six seconds to play enabled Florida, which blew a 21-point first-half lead. to hold off the Pirates, 3-1.

Maxwell finished with a gamehigh 27 points, giving him 50 for the two games at the Garden and earning him the MVP award. Chatman, who had 27 points in the semifinals against Iowa State, was selected to was an easy one. the all-tournament team.

"There was no way I could predict Livingston would get off to start like this," said Florida Coach Norm Sloan. "I was concerned that he would be able to play at all, and now look at this. He has a great future in front of him."

Sloan's concern over Chatman's availability was understandable. The Lakeland, Fla., native underwent arthroscopic surgery on both knees in July. Loose chips remained in the left knee and additional surgery was required 12 days before the start of the season.

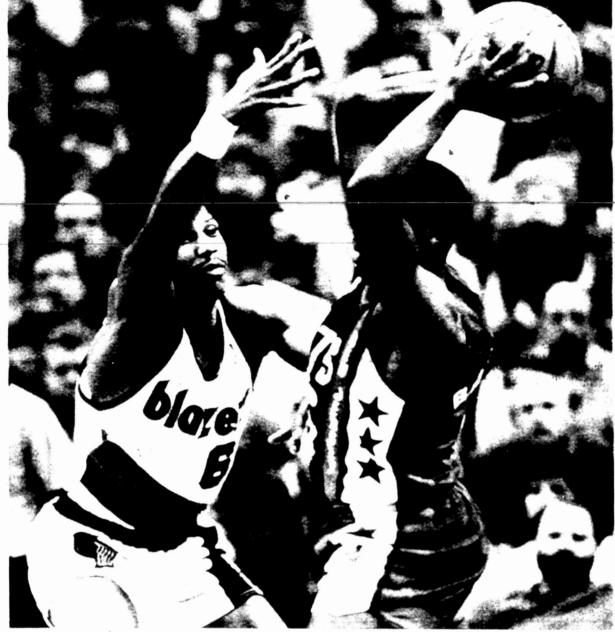

Eager to play, Chatman was ready for the NIT opener against Jacksonville, but Sloan kept him on the bench. The next game, against Georgia Tech, was a different story. Used as a reserve, Chatman scored a game-high 25 points while pulling down seven rebounds in a 80-69 triumph, Sloan's decision to put Chatman into the starting unit points.

"I never expected to play like this," Chatman said. "I've always had confidence and I feel comfortable and relaxed on the floor. A lot of people tried to put pressure on me, saying it was tough for a freshman in our conference.

"All I did was ignore that kind of talk. My teammates have helped a great deal, too. They boost me all the time, and that makes it easy to get involved in the game. I really feel we're going to go far.

Mark Bryant had 16 points to lead Seton Hall, while teammates John Morton added 15 and James Major 11. Morton and Major joined Chatman on the all-tournament team along with Jeff Grayer of Iowa State and Charlie Thomas of New Mexico.

Grayer had 29 points as the Cyclones defeated the Lobos 107-96 for third place. Thomas scored 32

Depression

Deadly when combined with asthma

By JERRY ESTILL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Asthma and depression are not usually thought of as killers, but a specialist in both fields says the combination can be unnecessarily deadly for the 2 million U.S. children who suffer from asthma.

'We are learning some things that won't cost us much to save some children who otherwise would die, by just paying attention to an asthmatic child who all of a sudden starts to act different." Dr. Bruce Miller says

While youngsters normally fight off asthma attacks - which can come at any time - survival becomes a serious concern in a depressed patient, Miller says.

"In that very hopeless, despairing, depressed state the same attack can be lethal because it has a much greater physiological effect," he says.

In an interview, the pediatric psychiatrist and respiratory disease expert cited the sudden death of a 12-year-old asthma patient as a striking example of the potentially fatal combination.

The boy, who had been in and out of the Denver hospital where Miller works, finally was sent to live with an aunt and uncle in Texas because his mother. suffering from mental problems, was unable to care for him.

"He did beautifully for a year," Miller said in an interview

But then the child was taken to another state for the funeral of a grandmother with whom he had been particularly close.

'His mother sort of showed up out of nowhere and literally kidnapped him out of the custody of the aunt and uncle," said Miller.

The mother was able to tie the custody issue up in the courts, and "within four weeks of this event having taken place the child had an asthma attack and died just within minutes," Miller said.

"My contention is that the child found himself in what he regarded as a hopeless situation. The reality may not have been there, but he regarded it that way. His appreciation of that would have caused him to just kind of give up and say, 'What's the use?'

Miller maintains that an undetermined number of asthma-suffering youngsters die unnecessarily each year in what he calls a "kind of passive suicide" because their emotional problems are not dealt with or recognized

In simplest terms, the complex physical changes that occur automatically in the body when a person is under stress from depression worsen the fundamental action of an asthma attack - a constriction of airways to the lungs.

Calling asthma a "classic psychosomatic" illness, he noted that many people do not appreciate that there are definite, measurable physical symptoms in such cases. "It's not just 'all in the head," he said. Miller said an estimated 3,000 people died from asthma in 1980, the last year for which reliable figures are available. But he said he knows of no good estimates on how many of those were children and he declined to speculate. His position is that whatever the number, most of the child deaths probably could be prevented through increased vigilance by parents and doctors to "the danger signals that may be lurking in a child who has depression.

One would be a child developing the attitude that "it doesn't make any difference whether I take my medication.

Others, said Miller, would be "if you see a change in a child's function, withdrawal from school or activities, withdrawal from peers, a loss of interest in the future, symptoms that to a trained eye or ear would cause alarm.

"I think extreme physical fatigue also is something to watch out for in children," he added.

"Above all, if you have an asthmatic child going through an attack that doesn't respond to the usual course of treatment, if there seems to be something different about this attack, you get them to the emergency room, you get them to the doctor. You don't hesitate.'

Although physicians will not be able to see as much about asthmatic children in monthly visits as their parents, Miller said doctors nonetheless bear a special responsibility.

"I don't think it's too much to expect of the physician, who could be informed by some simple education, for him or her to say some basic things to the parents

Flu among college age students," he said. "A-Taiwan returned last year for the first time in about 35 years, and most young people had never been exposed to it before.

"We expected that unimmunized students, in the close quarters of classrooms during cold weather, would be especially hard hit by the flu. But as I said, we were lucky, the weather was mild, and no large outbreaks developed," mended, as well as on individual treatment of flu's symptoms, he noted.

In general, flu lasts for five to seven days, and doctors usually recommend bed rest, fluids, and sometimes prescribe drugs. Antiviral agents which are now available help protect against influenza-A, but must be administered on an ongoing basis. Immunization is still the best protection against influenza.

"Parents should always use caution giving aspirin to children under 16." Crider added. The ingredients in aspirin have been linked to the development of Reye syndrome, a serious neurologic disorder which can strike young people during recovery from influenza or chicken pox.

Dr. John Renner of St. Mary's Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., has become an authority on bogus AIDS cures. He keeps the duck on his office table to represent the quackery which he said has become rampant. In front of him are books and bottles of useless tablets and pills.

Texas population may suffer from the disease, and some cases persist even in the summer, according to the Texas Department of Health.

Activating the gene in the experiment was enough to cause cancer, in contrast to cancer genes that need help from other genes to produce cancer, said Philip Leder, chairman of the genetics department at Harvard Medical School.

Leder spoke Wednesday at the Albert Lasker Awards lectures at Rockefeller University in New York. He shared a Lasker award for work that dealt partially with genes and cancer.

Cancer genes, called oncogenes,

That partnership was illustrated. Leder said, by experiments in which an oncogene was switched on in the breast tissue of mice. Only a few of the cells containing the activated oncogene grew into tumors, indicating that this activation alone was not enough to cause cancer, he said.

In contrast, the new experiment with an oncogene previously linked to breast cancer produced tumors throughout the breast, showing that the single activation was enough for the disease, he said.

A single activation is more probable than a combination of them, so the finding may help explain why breast cancer is so common, he said.

Leder declined to elaborate on the breast cancer gene work. The research, not yet published, was performed by Harvard's William Muller, Leder said.

The oncogene, called "neu," has been found in abnormally frequent numbers in breast tumor cells from many women who fail to respond well to therapy and whose cancers reappear.

About one in 10 women will develop breast cancer, the American Cancer Society says. An estimated 130,000 new cases are expected this year.
