Shankles: Murder cases to grand jury

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A justice of the peace Tuesday ruled the state had shown probable cause to warrant a grand jury investigation of four Howard County residents charged with capital murder.

Justice of the Peace William Shankles pronounced his decision about 4:15 p.m. after meeting in chambers to discuss a dispute between Defense Attorney Luis Avila and Assistant District Attorney William Dupree.

Capital murder cases involving defendants Frankie and Joe Hernandez, Jeanie Hernandez Fonseca, and Arthur Islas Jr. will be considered during a grand jury investigation scheduled to begin Jan. 5.

Four other Howard County residents also have been charged in connection with the slayings of three men, whose deaths were discussed during Tuesday's examining trial.

The examining trials, also referred to as probable cause hearings, require the state to prove it has sufficient evidence to bind the cases over to a grand jury.

Four of the eight defendants have not requested examining trials. District Attorney Rick Hamby said.

During Tuesday's trial, Avila and Dupree argued whether Avila should be allowed to call Howard County Deputy Bernice Nail as his witness, she had not been subpoenaed to testify.

The scene above shows the remains of a Luther farm house where two men were slain before it was intentionally set afire, according to testimony given during Tuesday's examining trials. The house allegedly burned the night of Oct. 9 or during the early morning hours of Oct. 10.

After the prosecution and defense argued the issue, Shankles ordered that Nail, who, at that moment, was in the sheriff's office working as a dispatcher — be subpoenaed.

Nail said this morning she never received a written subpoena, but was notified Tuesday afternoon to report to the second floor of the courthouse — where the trial was being conducted.

Nail's testimony was sought because her signature appeared as notary on a statement given by Islas. Avila said he requested Nail as a witness to determine the validity of the document and whether it should be allowed into evidence.

Before Nail took the stand, however, the state made a motion to quash the subpoena, and the judge and attorneys recessed into chambers to discuss the matter.

When they returned about a half hour later, Shankles announced his decision to send the evidence to the grand jury — without testimony from Nail.

Javier Alvarez, an attorney representing Fonseca and Frankie and Joe Hernandez, and Avila requested that the bonds on their clients be lowered.

"Evidence has shown that he turned himself in and never tried to evade justice," Avila said of his client — Islas. Avila suggested lowering Islas' $125,000 bond to $25,000.

"We oppose that obviously because we're talking about a serious, serious crime," Assistant District Attorney William Dupree told the judge.

Alvarez requested that bonds be lowered on his clients to $10,000 or $15,000 each. Fonseca, he noted, is three months pregnant, and needs proper medical care.

"Allow the family to try to post bond," he asked.

Dupree, however, objected, telling the judge that defense attorneys could file a writ of habeas corpus in district court to seek bond reductions.

Shankles ordered that bonds remain at $125,000 each for Islas and the Hernandez TRIAL page 2-A

Gorbachev meets with lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with senior congressional leaders at the Soviet Embassy today in advance of new summit talks with President Reagan expected to focus on the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

The Soviet leader told lawmakers in an ornate embassy salon that ordinary citizens in both their countries favor improved relations.

"If that is not perceived properly, this process will not have the necessary impetus," Gorbachev said of the drive for arms control agreements and other examples of superpower cooperation.

"It will develop in a painful way, and that should not be the case," said the Soviet Communist Party general secretary.

Gorbachev declared that the United States and Soviet Union should congratulate one another on the signing Tuesday of a treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

"I have familiarized myself with the initial reaction in the world and I can see that it has had major repercussions in the world," he said, seated he sat across a long table from House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and a handful of other Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

Gorbachev invited the House and Senate leaders to the embassy after his hopes of addressing a joint meeting of Congress were scotched by conservatives. Several of his congressional critics threatened a demonstration on the House floor if the Soviet leader appeared.

Some of the legislators said in advance they would question Gorbachev about human rights and Afghanistan.

Senators who sat across from Gorbachev will help decide the fate of the missile ban treaty when the Senate votes on ratification next spring. And the Soviet leader was expected to address the issue of ratification.

"Now, as soon as the press leaves us alone we can talk to one another," Gorbachev said. Moments later, television cameras were shut down and the session was closed.

Gorbachev played host at the outset of his second day of summit talks after attending a glittering White House state dinner Tuesday night. He and his wife Raisa joined an impromptu sing-along of the soulful ballad, "Moscow Nights," played as an encore by pianist Van Cliburn.

After his meeting with U.S. legislators, the Soviet leader headed for the White House for his third meeting alone with Reagan in two days.

Behind the scenes, American and Soviet experts were picking up discussions of a new pact aimed at reducing the superpowers' arsenals of long-range nuclear weapons launched by missiles, bombers and submarines.

A senior American official said there were "no surprises or new proposals" during the first summit sessions on Tuesday.

In the White House talks, squeezed in between the congressional leaders and a Gorbachev meeting with prominent editors and publishers, Reagan and the general secretary intended to focus on touchy "regional issues," including the conflicts in Afghanistan and the Persian Gulf.

The Soviets already have indicated they are prepared to withdraw their estimated 115,000 troops from Afghanistan in a year's time. But Reagan and his key advisers are operating on the assumption the Soviets are so weary of the bloody conflict between the pro-Moscow government in Kabul and U.S.-aided Afghan rebels they may be ready to accept a much shorter timetable.

Other regional disputes also were on the agenda as Reagan and Gorbachev entered their third White House session and deferred further substantive discussion of arms control, the dominant summit topic, until Thursday.

Child shooting raises questions

Herald bureau report

MESQUITE — The family of a 10-year-old boy who authorities say shot and killed his 9-year-old brother Saturday during a hunting trip argument said Tuesday they refuse to believe the shooting was intentional.

The shooting occurred near Winters, a community of 3,000 about 60 miles south of Abilene, authorities said.

Taylor County Sheriff John Middleton said the boys, who were not identified because of their ages, were in a deer blind at about 9:30 a.m. Saturday when an argument broke out "over an insignificant thing" and the younger boy began to run off. He was shot in the side with a .22-caliber rifle.

"The boy told us the argument started when one boy's chair fell into the other one," Middleton said.

"The older one shot the other one and then went hollering and screaming." His cries drew the attention of their father, who was hunting in a nearby deer blind.

The youth was dead on arrival at Winters Hospital, said Taylor County Justice of the Peace J.C. Hodnett.

"This was an extraordinary incident," Middleton said. "In my 16 years here, we have not had a shooting, accidental or otherwise, by a kid 10 years old."

Middleton said the 10-year-old initially told authorities the shooting was accidental, but later broke down and said it stemmed from an argument. He said authorities believe the older boy lost his temper and shot his brother in anger.

However, the boys' father said he doesn't believe SHOOTING page 2-A

Casino night event raises over $15,000

Herald staff report

The Big Spring chapter of the Permian Basin March of Dimes has raised more than $30,000 in two recent events to help fight birth defects, according to Donna Parker, director of the local chapter.

The most recent event — Casino Night — was a success, Parker claimed.

"We haven't subtracted expenses yet, but it looks like we'll make just over $15,000," she said. "We're very pleased with the way things went."

Collections from that event, added to the Jail and Bail event in July, give the agency more than $30,000 collected from the fundraisers.

Parker said she doesn't know the exact amount collected from Jail and Bail to date, but said checks from the event are still arriving at the MOD office.

The agency received $20,000 in pledges from the Jail and Bail, and Parker noted in the Sept. 9 Herald that $15,000 had been collected.

Money raised by the organization will be disbursed as follows, Parker said: 40 percent goes to the national MOD office, and 60 percent remains with the regional chapter in Odessa.

An unspecified amount of the funds kept in the regional office is sent to the Texas State Grant Fund to help that organization fight birth defects, she said. The remainder stays in the Permian Basin area to finance programs to battle defects.

Comanche Dam work scheduled

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

Reconstruction of the Comanche Trail Lake Dam should begin early next year Big Spring Public Works Director Tom Decell told City Council during a regular meeting Tuesday.

Bids on the estimated $800,000 dam project are expected to be opened Jan. 28 and presented to the council for consideration at the second meeting in February, Decell said.

The construction work is necessary to repair damage caused by heavy rains, leading to the breach of the dam in August 1986.

The top of the dam levy will be restored to its original elevation of 2,551 feet above sea level, Decell said.

A rolled concrete cap will be used to strengthen the top of the dam and a portion of the downstream side of the structure, the public works director said.

Eight hundred cubic feet of rock rip-rap will be dumped on the upstream — east — side of the dam site to control erosion.

Project specifications also call for the clearing of both banks of the entire dam site.

Clearing of weeds, brush and shrubs from the creek banks will improve drainage along the channel and make the area more accessible to construction workers, Decell said.

The area will be reseeded once work is complete, he said.

Repair and upgrading of the dam site will be funded by a $650,000 state grant and $112,642 in city-pledged monies.

In other business, council members also approved plans and specifications and authorization to advertise for bids on an expansion of the sewage system at the city air park.

The estimated $550,000 waste water expansion project will be necessary to accommodate the sewage disposal needs of a privately-operated illegal alien detention center to be located on city-owned property on the northwest corner of the air park.

City Council's final approval of the sewage improvements will be made when a definite date has been set for construction of the detention center, Decell said.

A lease and operation agreement between Westex — the company that will construct the center — and the city has already been signed. However, Westex is still arranging financing for the project and an exact date for construction on the facility has not been set.

If approved, the air park COMANCHE page 2-A brothers and at $250,000 for Fonseca, charged with two capital murder offenses.

After the trial, Dupree said he was "neither pleased nor displeased — it's what I expected."

"We were looking for enough evidence only to suggest that evidence should go to the grand jury."

During the course of the trial, the state entered into evidence three exhibits: two signed statements from defendants Antonio Aguilar and Islas, and a statement of Miranda rights signed by Islas.

Aguilar's statement, entered into evidence Tuesday afternoon, gave an account of the deaths of two Mexican nationals whose bodies were found in the debris of a house fire near Luther.

The victims were identified as Roberto Gurrola Hernandez and Miguel Villarreal Calixto.

Aguilar, along with Orlando Aguirre, Enrique (Ricky) Sabedra, and Fonseca, have been charged with capital murder in connection with the deaths. All four were present when the two men were slain, according to the testimony of Howard County Deputy George Quintero.

He testified that the defendants had two rifles and a .25-caliber semi-automatic pistol.

"The purpose was for the robbery — they were going to take the people's money," Quintero said.

Before they arrived at the house, Fonseca told the others that she wanted everyone in the house killed — that they had a lot of money, according to Aguilar's written statement.

In the statement, Aguilar said he "went into the southwest bedroom where Jeannie and Orlando were ... beating a guy ... I grabbed the man's hair and pulled him to the floor and shot him in the head two times."

Both men in the house were shot and another defendant, Aguirre, also was in-involved in the shooting, according to Aguilar's statement.

Quintero testified that Fonseca then set fire to the house.

Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles determined that the fire was arson, according to Quintero's testimony.

Islas' statement, the first to be entered as evidence in the trial, described the death of Noe Perez, whose body was exhumed Oct. 17 from a shallow grave in northeast Martin County. The man's remains were positively identified through medical analysis.

According to the statement and Quintero's testimony, the man was slain in a Big Spring motel room in April and then transported to a remote area where his body was burned and later buried.

The state also entered as evidence a statement of Miranda warnings signed by Islas. The statement describes the rights of a person accused of a crime and contains a statement, signed by Islas, that says he willingly waived his rights and wished to make a statement.

Defense attorneys — both from Lubbock — did not say Tuesday whether they would seek bond reductions for their clients from the district court.

Survey sees uncertainties in oil markets

HOUSTON (AP) — Regional politics may play as strong a role as supply and demand in determining world oil prices in the near future, according to an annual survey.

"The industry is operating in the midst of the most uncertain and volatile situation in the Middle East since the early 1980s, making the geopolitics once again a pivotal, but unpredictable ingredient," a World Oil Trends survey by Arthur Andersen & Co. and Cambridge Energy Research Associates said.

The Andersen-Cambridge survey, released Tuesday, concludes that prices should remain around $18 and then increase.

"But new surprises may be in store," the survey says. "One must not forget that the world oil industry is an industry in which, during much of its history, there has often been a manager or a management group — sometimes weak, sometimes strong."

The survey describes the $18 price as not an economic price but a political price and one that could not be supported in a free market.

"The free market, left to itself, would push prices lower, at least short term," said Joseph Stanislaw, Cambridge managing director for Europe and the Middle East.

Daniel Yergin, Cambridge president, said the 1986 price collapse — in which oil prices tumbled to below $10 per barrel — and the subsequent rebound to $18 oil did not alter key fundamentals of supply and demand to the extent industry experts might have expected.

"Increases in non-OPEC production elsewhere have more than made up for the declines in the United States," Yergin said. "This has important economic and geopolitical implications, including strong increases in U.S. oil imports."

At the same time, however, the survey cautions that the full effects of the price collapse may not yet be known because forecasting methods now used were developed during times of relatively high and stable prices.

"The response to the fall in prices could occur with a considerable time lag, just as the responses to the price increases of the 1970's took a number of years to show their full vigor," the survey report said. "The full potential response to the fall in prices, thus, could be felt with considerable delay and more dramatically over the next three to five years."

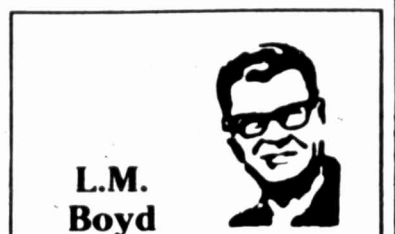

According to the survey, what has remained constant is a considerable gap between world production and capacity. The analysis forecasts that the surplus dominates the world energy industry and should continue to do so for the next few years.

"But the many surprises and unexpected collapse in the revenues of all oil producers — be they governments, national oil companies or private companies — have dramatically altered the prospects of all industry actors, and have forced them to make continual and drastic reassessments and revisions in basic strategies," the survey said.

Holiday treat at the Heritage

Herald staff report
Big Spring residents will be treated to a taste of a Victorian-era Christmas at the Heritage Museum Thursday night, according to Angie Way, curator. The exhibit, free to the public, will be from 6-8 p.m. and refreshments will be available, she noted.

Women dressed in costumes from the Victorian era will inform visitors how people in the early 1900s celebrated the holiday season.

One lady will discuss party planning while she prepares a guest list, menu and decorations for a turn-of-the-century celebration. In another section of the museum, a woman in a buggy will discuss how partygoers kept themselves warm on those chilly winter nights, Way said.

A lady in another room will show visitors how corn-husk dolls were made for children in that period, and a Victorian Christmas tree, complete with decorations, will be featured, she added.

Music for the exhibit will be provided by a barbershop quartet that will perform at 6 p.m., Way said.

The curator noted that the museum is still accepting entries in its annual Christmas tree and wreath decorating contest. Persons or organizations interested in entering have until noon Friday to do so, she said.

First place entries in tree and wreath decorating will be awarded plaques, Way added.

sewage expansion project will include construction of a new lift station and installation of additional sewer lines to connect the station with the city sewage system.

Council members also took action on the following items at Tuesday's meeting:

- Accepted a low bid of $11,548 from NCR of Amarillo for new software for the police department computer system. The bid also included educa-

- tional costs of $85 per hour.
- Approved an application from Melvin L. Jarrell for the keeping of livestock at 2703 Old Highway 80.

- Held first reading of an ordinance designating Channing Street as a one-way street south from its intersection with Sergeant Paredes Street on the north to Northwest First Street on the south. A recommendation to convert the street to one-way traffic was made by the Traffic Commission earlier this year.

City Manager Mack Wofford said.

- Held first reading of an ordinance allowing the city manager to decide which department heads should have the authority to designate the use of unmarked city-owned vehicles. The ordinance is necessary to comply with new state law, according to City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson.
- Appointed Mack Underwood and Annie Smith to the Parks and Recreation Board.

the second account, saying his son was "ranting and raving because he was so upset" and "that in my mind, it has to be pure accident."

The 10-year-old said he was attempting to activate the safety on his gun when it accidentally discharged, striking his brother, said the father, an employee of the Dallas school district.

At his Mesquite home Tuesday, he relived the incident in an attempt to discover what went wrong. "I was just down the way a little bit because they wanted to hunt by themselves. They thought they were big enough and they had proved to me that they knew how to handle guns. But that can happen to anybody."

He said he had taken every precaution to ensure his sons' safety. "We've target practiced," he said. "We've been over safety rules. We went over it all more than just a one-time thing. I've been hunting ever since I was 6 years old ... and they've been hunting ever since they've been with me."

He said the tragedy will not diminish his love of guns and hunting, but says he did make a mistake in putting both sons in one deer stand by themselves.

"If they had been hunting by themselves like they had previously and if it would have went off chances are it would have shot a hole in the roof," he said. "It's the first time I ever left them by themselves together. Of course, if you could turn back the wheels of time, you'd always do something a little different."

The father said he plans to hunt again and offer his third son, age 2, the same opportunity to hunt as his older brothers.

"Hunting is just something I look forward to," he said. "I probably won't look as forward to it for a while as I have in the past. It's just going to take a little time."

Although his two older sons loved to go on deer hunts, he said neither was really interested in shooting one of the animals.

"They were more or less shooting rabbits and stuff," he said. "I instructed them how to look for deer, but I feel that if one walked in front of them they wouldn't shoot it at this stage."

Police beat

Herald staff report

Four burglaries, two thefts, a robbery and an assault were reported to Big Spring police Tuesday.

- Irma Green, 1213 W. Sixth St., told police that someone broke into her vehicle and stole $405.
- Connie Allred, 1502 Kentucky Way, reported that someone burglarized her home and stole a video recorder, television set, and cable box. The items were valued at $1,000.
- Jonnie Ray Gardner, 205 N.W. 12th St., reported that a stereo, valued at $100, was stolen during a burglary at the residence.
- Thomasa Solis, 1512 Harding

St., told police that a television set was stolen during a burglary at the residence.

Adam Hernandez Valencia, 26, 202 N.E. Third St., was released after paying fines on convictions of driving while license suspended and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

City grass fires seem set

A series of grass fires kept Big Spring firefighters busy Tuesday and early today.

Firefighters were summoned to battle seven fires that occurred in vacant lots between 9:40 a.m. and midnight Tuesday.

The fires appear to have been set, Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles said this morning.

The fire department has no idea who may be responsible for setting the fires, but Settles urges the residents in neighborhoods where grass fires occur to be watchful and to report any suspicious activity to the fire department.

Firefighters responded to grass fires at the following locations Tuesday and early today:

- Tuesday, 9:40 a.m. at the N.W. corner of Ninth Street and Nolan Street.
- Tuesday, 11:34 a.m. at 207 S. Benton.
- Tuesday, 11:44 a.m. at North Second Street and Main Street.
- Tuesday, 1:23 p.m. at 700 Wasson Road.
- Tuesday, 6:10 p.m. at 3004 Cherokee Street.
- Tuesday, 7:55 p.m. at N.W. Second Street and Scurry Street.
- Wednesday, 12:05 a.m. east of Columbia Street and Auburn Avenue.

Class lives one week without television

WHITE SETTLEMENT (AP) — More than a week without television was like a day without sunshine for some fifth-graders when their teacher pulled the plug to stimulate their creativity and get them interested in other things.

But the students, as a result of the experiment, became more attentive in class, handed in unprecedented numbers of extra-credit assignments, romped outdoors, and rediscovered household pets, said teacher Lisa Baker, who had withheld TV.

However, Ricky Shelhorse confessed to his diary that he wanted to die at the beginning of his week without television. The 70 North Elementary School pupils strained to refrain from watching a single television program.

The video-starved students, at 12:44 p.m. Monday, chanted "TEE-vee, TEE-vee," as the 25-year-old teacher turned on the tube.

The teacher said she organized the mass abstinence to stir the students out of a passive existence, promote reading, stimulate creativity and imagination, and to give families a chance to get reacquainted.

"Kids have been writing that they've had better family ties," said Ms. Baker. "That makes me feel good. But then some of them also said their family was right on the edge. They were about sick of each other."

Family members had also been asked to join in the experiment. Students wrote of their experiences in a journal, revealing siblings fought more and one mother stormed out of the house while her husband guarded the tube and turned up the volume.

But six children decided not to join their 70 classmates.

"I'd rather not torture myself," said 11-year-old Quentin Solomon.

North Elementary School teacher Lisa Baker, front, treats the fifth grade to television during lunch Monday. The entire fifth grade gave up watching TV for one week.

"I'm just hooked on it."

Ms. Baker's students, at the beginning of the week, hummed a funeral dirge to a television set veiled in black. Ms. Baker printed contracts and told students how to keep a diary. She said the experiment, even if unsuccessful, would show students how important television was to their lives.

"It was frightening," she said. "I told the kids to begin with, 'I'm not down on TV. It can do some good things. It can be educational.' But I think that they are consumed by it and they fall into the temptation to just sit."

One mother pasted a sign over the family's main television that said, "Go outside and play."

Some said they realized that watching too much television had made them miss out on family life while others said they missed their favorite programs.

One fifth-grader found a way to comply without pain.

"I taped every show I liked," said Sandy Davis.

Murder suspect caught after high-speed chase

Herald bureau report
DALLAS — A high-speed chase on Stemmons Freeway ended Tuesday afternoon with the capture of a Dallas 19-year-old man police believe killed three members of a family, including his former girlfriend, whose body was found in the van he was driving.

Timothy A. Poole, whose address is unknown, was being held in lieu of $150,000 bail late Tuesday for investigation of capital murder in connection with the slayings, two of which occurred at a South Oak Cliff residence, authorities said.

A 14-year-old boy, who police said was Poole's accomplice in the slayings, was arrested Tuesday evening at an undisclosed location. He was taken to the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center, police said.

Police said they found Lexine Robinson, 37, stabbed to death and her 12-year-old son, Bernard Robinson, shot to death in their home in the 8000 block of Racine Drive about 6 p.m. Monday. Yolanda L. Foster, 17, who was Lexine Robinson's daughter, was found shot in the head in the van driven by Poole, police said.

Sgt. Jim Gallagher said two men kidnapped Yolanda L. Foster, 17, and a friend, Travonda Campbell, 15, from the house on Racine Drive Monday afternoon and forced them into Lexine Robinson's blue panel van.

The men released Campbell "several blocks away" after robbing her of $4, Gallagher said.

"It (the slayings) was the result of domestic trouble," Gallagher said.

Gallagher said police believe Poole took Foster to a motel in the 2500 block of West Northwest Highway on Monday night and she was fatally shot sometime Tuesday morning.

Shortly after noon Tuesday, police said, an anonymous caller told them he had seen a man loading a body into Robinson's van at the motel. Police spotted the van minutes later, turning west on Cullum Lane from Denton Drive.

Navy should let journalists work

In Joseph Heller's novel Catch-22 one of the characters, Major Major, came up with a sure-fire method for avoiding bad news. If he was in his office, his underlings were to tell anyone who dropped by that he wasn't available. But if he wasn't there, they were told to usher the visitor right on in, where the puzzled gentleman would be seated before the major's empty desk.

The Pentagon sometimes seems to borrow a page from Heller's satire when it deals with media coverage of U.S. military operations. Dozens of American journalists have applied to cover the action in the Persian Gulf, where naval warships are escorting oil tankers caught in the crossfire of the Iran-Iraq war.

They want to go because the U.S. military presence in the gulf is a major news event. The public and Washington policymakers need accurate, in-depth coverage to determine the operation's strengths and flaws.

Yet, the Pentagon has denied the journalists' requests, allowing access of only a small pool of reporters to Navy vessels there. Even the pool reporters complain the Navy hasn't brought them along on some major missions, such as the blasting of Iranian oil platforms in the gulf.

On the other hand, the Navy has been more than gracious in inviting the media to board ships practicing cold-weather maneuvers off the coast of Alaska. What is happening there? Nothing very newsworthy. Indeed, we wonder whether the Navy would send the reporters home if a real confrontation — perhaps with Soviet vessels — developed in the Bering Strait.

Under an agreement reached after the U.S. military invaded Grenada in 1983, the Pentagon was to set a pool of reporters to cover its military missions. It has not functioned well in the Persian Gulf.

News organizations complain of heavy-handed military censorship and delays in news transmission. Reporters have been left in their hotel rooms, while a Navy public relations man covered the action and provided them with grainy videotapes, bad photos and a couple of press releases.

Whatever its reservations about the media, the military must be in the business of managing the news. It's vital that reporters have a free hand to cover naval operations — in the hot spots where the news is really happening and not in a safe harbor.

Reader clarifies gambling definition

To the editor:

According to Steve Reagan's article concerning farming, you and your paper, like too many other people, don't know the difference in investment and gambling. In this article, he refers to cotton farming as "legalized gambling." This is not true because in gambling you have to have three elements present in order for it to constitute gambling.

First, you have to share an element of risk, which farming certainly has. Second, you have to anticipate making a profit. Third, and this is the difference, you have to profit at someone else's expense.

Whether you are betting someone that you can roll the dice better, that you can select better cards at poker, get money out of someone's slot machines, or that your horse can run faster than the other persons, you are gambling.

I've heard it said that "life is a gamble" because you might get killed going to work, etc. Or it is a gamble because you buy stock and it might go down in value. If you will think of the three elements necessary, I think you will always see the difference in investment, daily living, and gambling.

Says let marketplace be the judge

To the editor:

I was very divided on the recently proposed smoking ban for the city of Big Spring. As a non-smoker with respiratory problems that make the presence of smoke intolerable, I would love to never again be faced with the problem of a smoke filled room.

However, as a self-employed individual, I feel that the government has already restricted the freedom of the business owner far more than is reasonable. So what do you do? I say we put our system of free enterprise to work!

It seems to me that every person should have the right to run their business as they see fit. If a business person discovers that something is costing them business, they usually take prompt action to rectify the problem, without government control.

Therefore, if non-smokers are unhappy about the lack of a smoke free area, they should complain to the management of the business (the owner if possible, since he has the most to lose).

If nothing is done, the non-smoker should let the management know that they are unhappy with the lack of action and that they are taking their business elsewhere.

For too long non-smokers have complained to their families and each other, when the only way we are ever going to get any action is to let the business owners know of our dissatisfaction.

If that doesn't work, hit them where it hurts — in the pocket book! If enough customers complain and remove their business, you can bet something will be done. That's the way our free enterprise system works!

Conventions allow voters to give ideas

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

There is an effective way to leave your mark on the nation's future besides placing an "X" beside a candidate's name on an election ballot.

Leaders of the Howard County Republican and Democratic Parties already are making plans for meetings that provide citizens a first-hand opportunity to speak out about local, state and national political issues they would like their elected leaders, including the next U.S. President, to address.

When the polls close on the evening of the March 8 primaries, members of both political parties are invited to return to the polling place to back their vote with action.

The meetings are called precinct conventions and a vote in the primaries is the only credential you'll need to get in the door. Vote Democratic and you're entitled to attend the Democrat's meeting. A Republican vote is your ticket to that party's precinct meetings.

What will happen at the meetings?

The answer to that question will be decided by those in attendance.

One order of business will be election of delegates to represent their respective political party at a county convention March 19.

It's usually easy to get elected to the county convention. All that's required is attendance at the precinct convention and a sincere interest to become involved in party affairs.

The delegate selection process will be repeated at the county convention to elect delegates to the state convention.

And if you've got enough ambition and political savvy, you could find yourself among those delegates casting ballots at Democratic and Republican Party national conventions to choose the candidates who will appear on the presidential ballot in November's general elections.

If you're not interested in becoming a delegate, you can still contribute to shaping your party's and the nation's future.

Just down your thoughts concerning an issue you think is of local, state or national importance — whether it be opposition to local sales taxes, or support for a stronger military.

Bring those notes to the precinct meeting and submit them as a resolution. Party members will vote to determine if your resolution should be forwarded for consideration at the county convention.

There's a possibility that a resolution adopted at the precinct level could appear as part of the state or national party platform — the document which outlines the goals and beliefs of the party as a whole.

There will even be room at the precinct meetings for independent thinking West Texans.

However, I offer this word of advice to newcomers who have not witnessed the sometimes messy internal workings of a political party: Be bold and be patient.

Although you may think your individual voice isn't being heard amid the din of democracy, keep talking. You could be surprised at who is listening.

The magic of our political system is that the majority has the right to decide, but the minority has the right to be heard.

This column is probably a voice crying out in the wilderness of political apathy. But my hopes are that someone out there — preferably more than one — will read these words and realize that a person's active participation in the political processes can change history.

The importance of making your voice heard was emphasized by the late Robert Kennedy who said: "A single stone cast upon the waters of a still pond sends out ripples."

The upcoming Howard County precinct conventions is the pond. It's up to you to toss the stone.

Bill favors big companies sued for product damage

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Dingell's hearing room is littered with the corporate ghosts of those who try to double-cross the consumer or gouge the Pentagon.

So it was a surprise when we learned that the caustic chair of the House Energy and Commerce Committee is pushing a bill opposed by every consumer group we contacted — a bill that would make it tougher for those injured by dangerous products to sue the manufacturers.

Fearing the wrath of the Michigan Democrat — the second most powerful member of the House of Representatives — congressional insiders speak about Dingell's bill reluctantly and only on background. Here is what they told our associate Stewart Harris about the bill, which is expected to reach the full committee this week.

Liberal New Mexico Democrat William Richardson is fronting for Dingell as sponsor of the bill, the Uniform Product Safety Act of 1987. It is supposed to standardize how state courts handle product liability lawsuits — the suit you file when your gas tank explodes in a rear-end collision or your child's pajamas catch fire.

Dingell's aides make a persuasive case for a federal law to smooth out the wrinkles between the states. After all, they say, 70 percent of the products made in this country are sold across state lines.

Lobbyists for industries stung by product liability suits argue that the only real winners in the lawsuits are lawyers. You are the one picking up the tab for high damage awards, in the form of higher prices, they say.

But consumer groups fear that Dingell's bill goes too far.

Among other things, it establishes airtight defenses that manufacturers can use in court. One protects pharmaceutical companies and medical device manufacturers from punitive damages if they got Food and Drug Administration approval before going to market.

That clause puzzles several Dingell watchers who remember 64 hearings when Dingell and his aggressive band of investigators pounced on the FDA and the pacemaker industry for allowing doctors to continue implanting defective pacemakers that had been approved by the FDA.

Another provision of Dingell's bill establishes a "state-of-art" defense, letting the manufacturer off the hook if the defective product was designed with the best technology available at the time.

That would create a dangerous standard, according to Gene Kimmelman of the Consumer Federation of America. He says the person who was injured may have to prove that a better design existed when the product was made. Proponents argue that the state will decide who carries the burden of proof on this issue.

Some observers say Dingell is merely serving a major constituent. The Ford Motor Co. Ford has been pestered with product liability suits over the last decade. The car maker is headquartered in Dearborn, Mich., the heart of Dingell's district.

As if constituency is not enough to wed him to the auto industry, Dingell is married to former General Motors lobbyist Debra Insley, who subsequently curtailed her official lobbying activities and now works as an administrator in GM's governmental affairs office.

Dingell's team on this bill includes consumer advocate and chairman of the Consumer Protection and Competitiveness Subcommittee James Florio, D-N.J. Those close to Florio say he is awkward in his role as handmaiden to industry, but when he realized Dingell was going to push the bill through to the floor of the House, Florio decided to ride along to do damage control.

Another representative who can usually be counted on to defend the consumer has felt the sting of public concern over Dingell's bill. Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio, found himself fending off questions from the Cleveland Plain Dealer about his participation on a Dingell hunting party to Texas this fall with industry lobbyists who were pushing the product safety bill.

Apparently Eckart was not bothered enough by the attention to back off from the bill. On Nov. 19, in the subcommittee hearing to make adjustments to the bill, Rep. James Schener, D-N.Y., stalled the bill by invoking the "five minute rule," which stops all committee business unless the whole House unanimously agrees to let the hearings continue.

It was Eckart who ran to the floor of the House to ask for unanimous consent. He failed, but committee business resumed when the House recessed for the day.

BUYING IN BULK — Like any smart shopper, the Pentagon tries to save money by using multi-year contracts — buying larger quantities all at once, in return for a price break.

But a plan to buy more than $9 billion in equipment next year and save 8.9 percent over five years has already hit a snag. Of nine Pentagon contract proposals reviewed by congressional auditors, seven either don't save enough money or the products have not been sufficiently tested to enable the Pentagon to predict problems.

In the case of a Hawk missile contract, the Army and Marine Corps can't even agree on the amount of the savings.

Compassion urged for the caged

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

When I was a sports editor, I once sent a writer to cover a baseball game at the Atlanta Federal Pen, the place television was calling "The Big A" as the Cuban prisoners inside burned and took their hostages.

I remember the story the writer turned in and what he said it was like being in there for only a few hours.

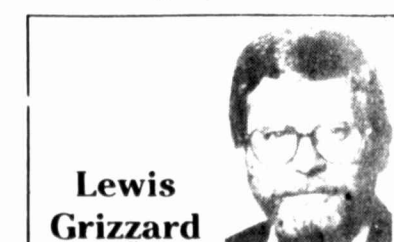

The story "There was humor. "Each time a foul ball went outside the wall, an inmate spectator would holler, 'I'll get it.' When umpire blowed, 'You're out,' on a close play at the plate, an inmate laughed out loud, 'I wish he'd say that to me!'"

An inmate runner reached first. Somebody said, "Don't get caught stealing!"

But the writer's reaction to his assignment was chilling.

"I had to pass through several doors to get to the recreation field. As I passed through each gate, it would slam behind me.

"I knew I'd be out of there by 4 o'clock, but there was no sound like a cell door slamming behind you. I kept thinking to myself, 'I'm in a zoo for human beings.' "Caged' has got to be the worse world in the English language."

Looking at the joint from the outside brings chill bumps. What must it be like on the inside.

One compelling story I've covered as a columnist was the series of inmate stabbings and killings that occurred at the Atlanta Federal Pen in the late '70s.

Prison officials wouldn't give out the information we needed to cover the story. I wrote a column asking inmates to write me letters and describe what was happening.

The letters came by the score. They were filled with thoughts of desperate men:

• "Nobody sleeps here anymore. You sleep, you could die."

• "At night, I put my mattress on top of me. It's all I know to do to protect yourself."

• "Death walks these halls. The problem is, you can't hear it coming."

The man on the street had the Cuban riot figured out:

• "Deport 'em," he said.

• "They shouldn't be over here in the first place."

• "We can't let 'em out on our society to kill and steal. Send 'em back to Castro. He knows how to deal with 'em."

It isn't that easy, people. We don't hand out death sentences en masse, and we stopped breaking up families when we stopped buying and selling slaves 120 years ago.

All I know is if you cage something, you change it, and its desperation grows each day it remains caged.

So, find at least some understanding for the desperate souls behind those walls and the women and children who wait and weep for them outside.

We're a good enough people to do that. Aren't we?

Top spy to be chief

WASHINGTON — Nearly all opposing factions among CIA veterans are praising Director William H. Webster for choosing a chief of clandestine operations with years of undercover experience and no links to the controversies of William J. Casey.

On Tuesday, Webster lured 31-year intelligence veteran and Soviet specialist Richard F. Stolz out of a retirement he began in 1981, well before then-director Casey embroiled the agency in the Iran-Contra affair.

Stolz, 62, who spent more than half of his CIA career under cover in Western Europe, retired after Casey passed him over as head of the operations directorate in favor of Max Hugel, a businessman with no intelligence experience.

Among other European posts, Stolz served in Moscow in 1964-65 and rose to chief of station in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, in 1973-74 and later in London.

Veterans file papers

WASHINGTON — A veterans group said in court papers Tuesday that it had uncovered internal documents showing a high-ranking Veterans Administration official dismissed concern about the health threat posed by Agent Orange exposure as amounting to a "witchhunt."

The Vietnam Veterans of America filed papers in federal court saying it had obtained through the legal discovery process the paper written by the VA's chief Agent Orange official, Dr. Lawrence Hobson.

It charged that the documents were evidence of bias and bad faith by VA officials in the controversy over the Agent Orange herbicide.

Defense gives sympathy

NEW YORK — An attorney defending one of four white teen-agers accused of killing a black man in Howard Beach offered condolences to the man's family for the first time in court, but contended the death was the victim's fault.

Michael Griffith, 23, was not the victim of a racist assault, but died because of his decision to cross a busy highway, attorney Ronald Rubinstein said in closing arguments Tuesday.

Rubinstein, who represents 17-year-old Jason Ladone, was one of three defense lawyers who gave closing arguments in the eight-week trial Tuesday. The case is expected to go to the jury Thursday.

City bans smoking

SKOKIE, Ill. — Maybe it was a Lucky Strike, but the first day Illinois' toughest non-smoking law went into effect, even the staunch Marlboro Man didn't complain to Village Hall.

The law requires non-smoking areas in restaurants, schools, banks and other buildings open to the public.

Workers search through debris for clues to the cause of the crash of Pacific Southwest Airlines flight no. 1771 Tuesday near Cayucos, Calif. All 43 people aboard the flight between Los Angeles and San Francisco were killed when the jetliner crashed.

Crash

Officials suspect former worker

CAYUCOS, Calif. (AP) — Investigation of the jetliner crash that killed all 43 aboard focused on a fired airline employee who, reportedly bent on revenge, may have been carrying out a murder-suicide mission.

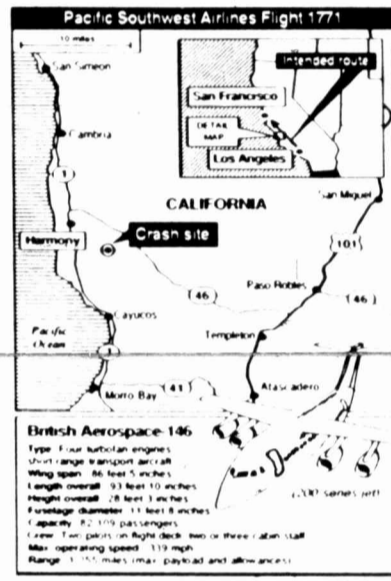

FBI agents Tuesday concentrated on the hunt for a weapon possibly smuggled aboard Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 1771 by David A. Burke, whose former boss also was on Monday's flight.

Burke, 35, had worked 14 years for USAir, which owns PSA, but recently was fired as a customer service agent at Los Angeles International Airport.

"We're looking for a weapon, and hopefully if there's one we'll find it," said FBI special agent in charge Richard Bretzing.

No weapon was found when the search was halted Tuesday.

Bretzing and other investigators declined comment on an ABC News report that a revenge-crazed Burke smuggled a .44-caliber Magnum into the jetliner, whose crew reported gunfire and smoke in the cockpit just before Monday's fiery crash.

It appears at this point — and has yet to be substantiated — that it was a criminal act on board that caused the craft to come down," said Bretzing.

ABC, citing a confidential government source, also said authorities found a suicide note or recording left by Burke.

After learning his former boss, 48-year-old Raymond F. Thomson, would be on the Los Angeles to San Francisco flight, Burke bought a one-way ticket and smuggled a gun and six rounds of ammunition aboard, using his airline badge to avoid security checks, ABC said.

USAir spokeswoman Nancy Vaughan said Burke had turned in his airline identification after being fired for stealing airline money.

Moments later, witnesses saw the flaming four-engine BAe-146 jet streak in a nose dive into the green, oak-studded hills of a cattle ranch 175 miles northwest of Los Angeles. Wreckage and bodies were scattered over 20 acres.

Patricia A. Goldman, head of the National Transportation Safety Board's investigation, said Tuesday night her agency was coordinating the probe with the FBI.

Unless bullets pierced a control cable, aviation experts said, it was unlikely gunfire inside an airliner would result in a crash.

Plane crashes in sea

LIMA, Peru — A twin-engine navy plane carrying a Lima soccer team and other passengers crashed into the ocean near this coastal capital and the navy was searching for survivors today, the control tower chief of Lima's international airport said.

The plane was declared missing Tuesday night when it did not arrive from Pucallpa, 265 miles northeast of Lima in Peru's Amazon jungle region, a navy communique said.

The exact number of passengers was not available but some radio news reports said the plane was carrying 54 people. The plane had a 60-passenger capacity, according to airport officials.

He said initial reports from the navy indicated that the pilot was believed to have survived as well as some of the passengers.

Japanese fire on Soviets

TOKYO — Japanese jet fighters scrambled and fired several warning shots with tracer ammunition today when a Soviet bomber violated Japanese air space off Okinawa, the Defense Agency said.

It said this was the first time Japanese planes had fired warning shots at Soviet aircraft.

An agency official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said two F-4EJ jet fighters scrambled from a base in Naha, Okinawa, after radar showed an unidentified plane flying into Japanese airspace.

The official said the Japanese fighters first gave warnings by radio and, when these were ignored, fired warning shots as the plane entered Japanese airspace.

Soldiers take Honasan

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Renegade Col. Gregorio Honasan, leader of a bloody August coup attempt, was captured today during a raid on a Manila subdivision, the government announced.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno told The Associated Press that four or five truckloads of soldiers arrested Honasan at about 8 p.m. at a home in Valle Verde, a subdivision in suburban Pasig.

About 30 to 50 soldiers seized Honasan at about 8 p.m. while he was visiting Juan Guillermo Hernandez, a former secretary of opposition Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, the television said.

Honasan also worked for Enrile when Enrile was minister of defense.

Hijacking misreported

FRANKFURT, West Germany — A Frankfurt-bound Lufthansa flight from Turkey was not hijacked today as the airline reported earlier, a Transport Ministry spokesman said.

"Lufthansa has told us it was a false alarm," ministry spokesman Hans Christian Maasz told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Iran makes oil threat at OPEC talks

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran's oil minister said today at the outset of an OPEC meeting that his country would sharply boost its oil production if its demands for a higher price are not met.

Analysts had predicted that with oil prices in the free market already edging lower OPEC would reject Iran's demand. They also said the cartel's year-end conference would be fraught with bitterness over the Persian Gulf war.

The OPEC quota system is due to expire Dec. 31, so the meeting is under pressure to reach agreement on a new structure, and a price for 1988.

Gholamreza Aghazadeh, Iran's oil minister, said he would not sign an OPEC agreement on prices and production quotas if Iran's demands are rejected.

Senate reviews $23 billion tax bill

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate got its first chance today to demonstrate whether it supports the deficit-reduction pact worked out last month between the White House and congressional leaders.

Senators planned to begin debating the first of two measures that would carve the budget accord into law: a two-year, $23 billion tax bill.

The second measure, providing $605.9 billion for military and domestic programs this fiscal year, was approved Tuesday by the Senate Appropriations Committee. It contains $7.6 billion in reductions from projected spending increases.

Senate leaders plan to bring it to the floor immediately after the tax bill is completed, perhaps later this week.

The two bills are designed to meet the goals of the budget agreement reached last month by White House and congressional officials. Under that pact, $30 billion in federal red ink is to be eliminated in the 1988 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, and another $46 billion next year.

The tax bill received a boost Tuesday from Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, who said in a letter to Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that the package "is consistent with both the letter and spirit of the agreement reached by the negotiators."

But Baker objected to several provisions that some Republicans can be expected to oppose on the Senate floor, including one freezing the top estate tax rate at 55 percent. The rate had been scheduled to drop to 50 percent.

Other senators, meanwhile, have expressed dissatisfaction with the deficit-reduction accord because it does not go far enough.

One alternative may come from a group of about 20 senators led by Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan. Their proposal would use a spending freeze, a delay in tax rate reductions and a slowdown in Social Security increases — plus some savings from the overall bill — to cut the deficit by $42 billion next year.

Most of the tax increases in the bill the Senate will consider, which would raise taxes by $9 billion this year and $14 billion next year, would affect corporations and people with high incomes. The only provision that would hit the average person is an extension of the 3 percent tax on local and long-distance telephone calls, which had been scheduled to expire Jan. 1.

The Senate Appropriations Committee ap-

The spending bill combines all 13 annual appropriations bills for fiscal 1988, none of which has been completed by Congress. The House passed a $587 billion version of the combined measure last Thursday.

Tax package lauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration on Tuesday praised a deficit-reduction tax increase approved by the Senate Finance Committee but expressed concern about three provisions in the package.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, in a letter to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the committee, said the bill is a sound method for raising revenue and "is consistent with both the letter and spirit of the agreement reached by the negotiators."

However, he expressed these concerns:

- He called unfortunate a provision freezing the maximum estate tax rate at 55 percent, rather than letting it drop to 50 percent as scheduled under an earlier law. The freeze "fails to complete the intended reform of this section of the tax law as first proposed by the president and enacted by the Congress in 1981," Baker wrote.

- A provision raising premiums charged employers to finance the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., which ensures employees' retirement benefits, should not have been stripped of a section limiting companies' ability to tap the fund for benefits when a plant shuts down.

- A provision extending Internal Revenue Service authority to withhold tax refunds from people whose government loans are overdue should be counted as a tax increase, not a reduction in spending, Baker contended.

Under the budget pact, $30 billion in federal red ink is to be eliminated in the 1988 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, and another $46 billion next year.

proved the giant spending bill after deciding to omit language that would have provided $22.8 million in aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The assistance would have been for continued "non-lethal" support — food and supplies — for the rebels, who are trying to depose the leftist Sandinista government. The United States is supplying such aid at a rate of about $3 million per month, but that assistance is due to expire Dec. 16.

The money would also have been for the purchase of detection devices that aircraft bring enemy troops were near drop-off areas, and for additional supply planes and helicopters.

Reagan has said he wants the spending bill to include assistance for the Contras. Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who brought up the aid amendment, said he would try to attach the language during floor debate.

Suspect shoots officers during interrogation

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two San Antonio police officers have been hospitalized after a burglary suspect they were questioning disarmed one of the men and shot them, authorities said.

Officer George Cardenas, 39, a 17-year veteran assigned to the patrol division, was shot twice in the head and Detective Fernando Casarez, 34, a 14-year veteran assigned to the burglary unit, was shot in the abdomen Tuesday, police spokesman Sgt. Paul Buske said.

Casarez underwent surgery and was listed in critical condition at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center late Tuesday and Cardenas, shot twice in the right ear, was reported in fair condition in the intensive care unit, officials said.

The 27-year-old suspect dropped Casarez's .38-caliber revolver and fled, but was captured a short time later by officers who answered Cardenas' emergency call for help, Buske said.

"He was hiding near a house. When they answered the officer-in-trouble call, witnesses pointed out the suspect, and the arrest was made," Buske said. "There was somewhat of a scuffle, and the individual was arrested and brought to the police station."

Officers said the suspect was combative in the police car, and Emergency Medical Service personnel were summoned to take the suspect to Wilford Hall for examination of a head injury, Buske said.

"He had blood on him, but he had staples in his head from an old injury, and we don't know if he suffered a new injury or if he re-injured the old injury," Buske said.

Two charges of attempted capital murder will be filed against the man, who was taken to the Bexar County Medical Examiner's office Tuesday night for tests to determine if he had recently fired a weapon, Buske said.

Buske said the incident began about 3:30 p.m. when a woman flagged down a patrol unit and said she was following a man who had taken some old clothing from a refrigerator she had stored outside her residence in far west San Antonio.

Cardenas found the suspect and began questioning him, and Casarez arrived to assist, Buske said.

"When they were talking to the suspect and searching him, a scuffle ensued and the suspect was able to get the pistol from the plainclothes detective and, it appeared from what one of the investigators said, he emptied the pistol," Buske said.

Why Is Our Golden Grilled Chicken So Much Better?

In this time of "cut costs," "do it quick," just make a profit, "give the customer just enough to make him happy," a few people still go to the trouble to do things the right way. The best way.

That's the way we do things at Golden Corral. Maybe that's why everything — including our chicken — tastes better at Golden Corral.

Taste America

Company offers deli recipe contest

Does a trip to the supermarket deli inspire more than the usual brown-bag fare? If so, you may be just a deli stop away from winning one of 166 prizes totaling $20,000 in the Third Annual Swift-Eckrich "Taste America" Deli Recipe Contest.

You don't need to be a gourmet cook to enter. What you need is an uncomplicated recipe with a regional American flavor and an imaginative twist.

Recipes may use any of the Swift-Eckrich deli meats, either alone or in combination, including turkey breast, ham, roast beef, corned beef, pastrami, hard salami, Genoa salami, pepperoni and bologna.

Each appetizer or snack recipe must call for at least eight ounces of meat. An entree or sandwich recipe must use a minimum of three ounces of meat per serving. Judges prefer the deli meat sliced, shaved, cut into strips or cubed rather than ground, finely diced or chopped.

Not sure how many cups of cubed meat equal one pound? A handy chart in the "1987 Taste America Deli Recipe Contest Winners" booklet can help and is available by writing to Taste America, P.O. Box 2718-R, Des Plaines, IL 60017-2718.

Beginning Jan. 10, send entries to "Taste America" Deli Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 1370, Barrington, IL 60011. Enter as often as you'd like but include just one entry per envelope. To qualify, entries must be postmarked by April 15 and received no later than April 22.

Recipes will be judged on taste, appearance, ease of preparation, creativity and regional appeal. A total 166 prizes will be awarded including one $5,000 grand prize, 15 first prizes of $750 each, and 150 second prizes of $25 Butterball Turkey Gift Checks.

For a complete set of rules, stop by your supermarket deli or write: Rules, P.O. Box 1370, Barrington, IL 60011.

This week's Recipe Exchange features winning recipes from previous contests.

GOLDEN GATE GRILL

Marie Berger, Sacramento, Calif.
12 ounces turkey breast, sliced thin
1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup milk or half and half
8 slices large oval sourdough French bread
Grated Parmesan or Romano Cheese
1 small avocado, seeded, peeled and sliced
1 tomato, sliced thin
2 tbs. chopped fresh cilantro
4 slices red onion, separated into rings
4 slices Monterey Jack cheese
2 tbs. butter or margarine, softened, divided
1 clove garlic, minced

1/4 to 1/4 tsp. crushed red pepper
Combine egg and milk. Dip one side of bread in egg mixture, then in Parmesan cheese. Arrange turkey on undipped side of 4 slices bread. Place avocado, tomato, cilantro and red onion on turkey. Top with Monterey Jack cheese and remaining bread, dipped side up. Combine butter, garlic and red pepper. Preheat large skillet over medium heat. Melt 1 tbs. butter mixture in skillet. Brown both sides of 2 sandwiches until crisp. Repeat with remaining butter and sandwiches. Serve immediately. Makes 4 sandwiches.

ROARIN' CAJUN HAM BISKIES

Jan Hill, Sacramento, Calif.
12 ounces ham, minced
2 1/2 cups flour
1 tbs. baking powder
2 tsp. ground red pepper
2 tsp. cumin
1 tsp. dried thyme leaves
1 tsp. dried oregano leaves
1 tsp. salt
1/2 cup cold butter or margarine
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar or Gouda cheese
1/3 cup minced green onions
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup mayonnaise
Chili sauce

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Combine flour, baking powder, red pepper, cumin, thyme, oregano and salt in large bowl. Cut in butter to resemble coarse crumbs. Stir in ham, cheese and green onions. Stir in milk and mayonnaise to make dough that holds together. Roll into 1-inch balls. Place on greased baking sheet and make indentation in center of each ball with finger. Bake in oven 10 minutes. Remove from oven; press indentations again with handle of wooden spoon. Return to oven for 10 minutes. Cool. Fill indentations with chili sauce just before serving. Makes 84 appetizers.

HULA HAM WITH MELTED BRIE

Dianne Muyskens, Portland, Ore.
1 pound ham, sliced thin
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained well
2 tsp. Dijon mustard
1 tbs. finely chopped green pepper
4 large slices dark rye bread
4 ounces Brie cheese, chilled and cut into 4 slices
2 tbs. chopped macadamia nuts
4 large lettuce leaves
Preheat broiler. Combine mayonnaise, pineapple, mustard and green pepper. Divide mayonnaise mixture between slices of bread and spread. Top each slice with 1/4 of the ham and then slice of cheese. Broil 4 to 5 inches from heat about 4 minutes or until cheese melts. Sprinkle nuts on top of cheese; serve on lettuce. Makes 4 open faced sandwiches.

PECAN TURKEY STEAKS WITH GARLIC MAYONNAISE
Clarence Socwell, North Ogden, Utah
1 1/2 to 1 3/4 pounds turkey breast, sliced 3/8-inch thick
1/3 cup sherry
1/3 cup soy sauce
1/2 tsp. ground ginger
4 green onions, chopped
Garlic Mayonnaise (recipe follows)
1/2 cup flour
3 eggs, beaten

1 1/4 cups fine dried bread crumbs
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
1/4 cup vegetable oil, divided
Cut turkey slices into 12 steaks. Combine sherry, soy sauce, ginger and onions in large covered dish. Add turkey and marinate covered in refrigerator 1 hour. Make Garlic Mayonnaise. Coat marinated turkey with flour. Dip into eggs and then into mixture of bread crumbs and pecans. Heat 1 to 2 tbs. oil in large skillet. Brown turkey on both

1 cup sour cream, divided Preheat oven to 300 degrees F. Combine cracker crumbs and butter. Press firmly onto bottom of 8-inch springform pan. Sprinkle with 1/2 tsp. dillweed. Set aside. Heat oil in large skillet; saute onion and green pepper until onion is tender. Add spinach; cook and stir 3 minutes. Cool. Mix together ricotta and Gouda cheeses in large mixing bowl. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each egg. Stir in ham, spinach mixture, pickle relish, 1/2 cup sour cream and 1/2 tsp. dillweed. Spoon and spread mixture over crumbs. Bake in oven 1 hour 20 minutes or until center is set. Turn off oven and let cheesecake stand in oven with door slightly open for about 1 hour. Combine remaining 1/2 cup sour cream and remaining 1/2 tsp. dillweed. Spread on top of cheesecake. Serve at once or cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 18 to 24 appetizers or 6 entree servings.

TURKEY-ARTICHOKE BUFFET PIZZA
Elaine Webster, Columbia, S.C.
12 ounces turkey breast, diced
2 cans (8 ounces each) refrigerated quick crescent dinner rolls
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 to 2 tbs. orange juice
1 tsp. shredded orange peel
1 cup artichoke hearts, drained and chopped
1/2 cup chopped fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup very small broccoli flowerettes
1/4 cup chopped green bell pepper
1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper
1/2 cup chopped pitted ripe olives
1/2 cup chopped green onions
Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Separate dough into 4 long rectangles. Place rectangles crosswise in ungreased 15x10x1-inch baking pan; press to cover bottom and up sides 1 inch to form crust. Bake in oven 14 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Cool completely.

Blend together cream cheese, orange juice and orange peel in small bowl. Spread over cooled crust. Top with turkey, artichokes, mushrooms, broccoli and green and red peppers. Sprinkle with olives and green onions. Cut into pieces about 1 1/2 inches square. Makes about 60 appetizers.

Editor's note:
The recipe for Lemon Pecan Cake in Nov. 4 Recipe Exchange was incorrect. The following is a list of the corrected ingredients.

LEMON PECAN CAKE
2 cups (4 sticks) margarine, softened
2 1/2 cups (1 lb.) packed light brown sugar
6 eggs, separated
4 cups flour
1/4 tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 oz. Adams Lemon Extract

2 cups pecans, chopped
Preheat oven to 300 degrees F. Cream margarine and sugar. Add egg yolks. Blend well. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. Add Adams Lemon Extract and pecans. Mix until well blended. Beat egg whites to peak. Fold into batter. Pour into a stem pan (10-inch) that has been greased and dusted with flour. Bake at 300 degrees F. for one hour and 40 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Do not overbake. Allow cake to cool before removing from pan. This cake will keep for weeks.

Going Bald? Try This, At No Risk

HOUSTON, Texas—If you are gradually going bald, obviously, something is causing your hair loss to be greater than the growth. It stands to reason that if you can reduce your hair loss to where it is less than the growth... you can stop the balding process... and gradually thicken your hair.
It is a known fact that "sebum" which is discharged through the sebaceous glands in the scalp, can cause excessive hair loss. (Seborrhea) The symptoms of a sebum problem are: greasy forehead, dandruff, dry or oily, itchy scalp; and if your hair pulls out easily on top of your head. If you have one or more of these symptoms, sebum could be the cause of your problem.
A firm of laboratory consultants has developed a scientifically advanced formula and regimen to remove and control the continuous discharge of toxic sebum, so the scalp can function normally and effectively. This, in turn, greatly reduces excessive hair loss... and helps promote natural hair cell production.
This scientific regimen has proven so successful the firm invites you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself.

Experts believe that the majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.
But, if your hair loss is caused or effected by sebum, here is help.
So, if you have sebum symptoms and still have any hair on top of your head... now is the time to do something about it before it is too late.
Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days... at their risk... if you have sebum symptoms and are not already slick bald. Just send them the information below. Or, call them toll-free at 1-800-231-7157 (in Texas 1-800-833-8387) 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Monday thru Thursday and they will send complete information. Your reply places you under no obligation whatsoever. ADV. (c)

Sgt. Jesse E. Haro, son of Eustalia Morena and Juan Haro Sr., 310 W. Seventh St., has been awarded The Air Force Commendation Medal.

Haro distinguished himself by meritorious service as a Hyperbaric Transportation Technician, Wilford Hall United States Air Force Medical Center, Air Training Command, Lackland Air Force Base, from July 2, 1984 to Dec. 10, 1986.

His astute judgement, keen perception and devotion to duty saved each of the 40 inpatient units an average of three man hours per day, thereby relieving trained medical personnel for other duties. Especially noteworthy was the fact that over 28,000 patients were transported without a single accident or injury. The distinctive accomplishments of Sgt. Haro reflect credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

Sgt. Haro is married to Prissy Herrera Haro. They have one son, Jesse M. Haro Jr.

Nye Paul Justice II, Ft. Richardson, Alaska was recently promoted to the grade of Sergeant (E-5). He also was awarded the Army Achievement during operation "Brim Frost 87". Sergeant Justice, a patrol leader, captured a five-

Names in the news

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Actor Danny DeVito has come home to tout his new movie, which will have its world premiere in this New Jersey shore community tonight.

"It just seemed to be the right thing to do for my first directorial effort," DeVito said Monday of his choice of Asbury Park for the premiere of "Throw Momma From the Train."

DeVito directed the comedy-drama and co-stars with Billy Crystal.

He said he saw the movie as a way to "take chances and different avenues to grow as an actor."

Celebrities expected to attend tonight's premiere at the Paramount Theater at Convention Hall include actor Christopher Reeve, singer Cyndi Lauper, comedians Joe Piscopo and Robin Williams, and talk-show host David Letterman.

A dinner for 400 will be held before the screening and 1,200 people are to attend a party afterward.

About 1,350 tickets at $15 each had been sold for the movie.

Tickets for all three events went for $150, and DeVito said the proceeds will go to local charities.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Rock star-actress Madonna, citing irreconcilable differences, filed for divorce from actor Sean Penn after 27 months of matrimony, court records show.

She asked for restoration of her maiden name — Madonna Ciccone — and division of the couple's property according to a prenuptial agreement, the records obtained Monday said.

The prenuptial agreement's terms were not disclosed by attorney Michael K. Inglis, who filed the Superior Court petition Friday. Inglis referred all calls about the matter to Madonna publicist Liz Rosenberg in New York, who did not return phone calls Monday to The Associated Press.

Attorney Howard Weitzman, who represents Penn, was in court Monday and unavailable to confirm whether the actor was served with the divorce papers.

There had been speculation for months that the couple's marriage was in trouble.

Madonna, 29, and Penn, 27, were married Aug. 16, 1985, in a lavish, invitation-only ceremony on a Malibu bluff as news photographers' helicopters buzzed overhead.

Penn has been involved in a series of legal wrangles involving fistcuffs with photographers and others.

He was released from a Los Angeles jail Sept. 17 after serving more than half of a 60-day sentence for violating probation by punching a movie extra who tried to photograph him. Penn had been on probation for fighting with a man he accused of trying to kiss Madonna in a Los Angeles nightclub in 1986.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles attended the gala opening of the opera season at Milan's famed La Scala theater, but his wife, Princess Diana, wasn't in the royal box with him for Mozart's "Don Giovanni."

Diana was in London for Monday night's charity premiere of the film "Dancer," starring Mikhail Baryshnikov. Charles, heir to the British throne, and Diana have been apart for much of the past few months.

DEAR ABBY: A short time ago, my niece, Mrs. Donald Palumbo, had an accident at home. She was helpless and couldn't reach the phone. Fortunately, she had taught Gina, her 3-year-old daughter, how to make a few phone calls, so that child called the operator and told her to send the police and an ambulance!

The police came right out, this child let them in, and from that point on everything was taken care of. So you see, it pays to teach them young.

DEAR MRS. BIRITELA:
Hooryay for Mrs. Palumbo! She taught little Gina well. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a radio dispatcher for the local police department. I answer all the calls and dispatch the police, paramedics, firefighters, etc. These are all emergency calls.

Lately our department has been having a serious problem that I am sure we share with other dispatchers.

We receive at least 25 calls a day from children who are "playing" on the phone. I can understand that parents want their children to know how to contact the police or fire department in case of an emergency, but these children should be taught to call us only when there's a real emergency because it ties up our lines.

Abby, I hope you think this is important enough for your column.

BUSY DISPATCHER
DEAR DISPATCHER: It is and I did. Parents: Let the little ones practice on a toy phone, and leave the dispatcher's line free. One day it could be you calling for help.

DEAR ABBY: You recently stated that a full colonel has a "chicken" on his shoulder. No, no, Abby! A full colonel has an eagle on his shoulder. You may recall the old military song: "Would you rather be a colonel with an eagle on your shoulder or a private with a chicken on your knee?"

Please apologize, and sign me "Old Railroad Tracks."

CAPT. CORTEZ,
SAN ANTONIO
DEAR CAPT. CORTEZ: Error acknowledged and apology rendered for a fowl mistake. However, there is more to apologize for (same letter): I identified the silver leaf worn on the shoulder of the lieutenant colonel as a maple leaf. Wrong again. It's an oak leaf.

DEAR ABBY: We are having a family problem. Our daughter is being married in Santa Fe (our hometown). We are preparing our guest list for the wedding. Two couples from New York have already told me they cannot attend.

I say they should not be sent an invitation since they have already said they cannot attend. My husband says we should send them an invitation regardless.

What do you think?
MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER: I vote with you. Since they have already been invited — and declined — inviting them again would be pointless. However, a wedding announcement later might be in order.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling are included).

Olympic Training Center has highs and lows for local boxer

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

For Juan Baldwin, the Olympic Training Center had both its highlights and low points.

Baldwin, the Big Spring bantamweight (119 pounds), recently returned from the center in Colorado Springs. The purpose of the center was to get top boxing hopefuls in the country ready for the Olympic Trials July 5-10, and the 1988 Olympics.

At the camp, coaches would pick the boxers for the U.S. International Team, whose next stop is Cuba, to go against the top boxers in the world.

Baldwin fared well in the two-week camp and certainly didn't look like a boxer who hadn't been in competition in since April. He impressed the coaches with his boxing skills, strength and endurance.

Steve's stuff

"I took it to them," said the cocky 18-year-old, who's ranked No. 7 in the country.

The low point for Baldwin at the camp came when he learned that he has a stress fracture in his foot, and was ordered by doctors to stay off of it. Ironically the news came on the same day that coaches told him he had made the international team and would be leaving for Cuba.

So scratch the Cuba trip, and Baldwin will be getting his foot back into shape. But at least he knows he has a spot on the international team whenever it heals.

In fact, there will be two Baldwins on the international team. Father Jamie Sr. was called by coaches from the training center in Colorado and asked to come down and be a coach. Daddy Baldwin was there for the last week of camp.

Juan calls the camp a grueling experience.

"It was rough but I think I really handled (the camp) well. It took me a while to get used to the altitude though."

A normal workout day consisted of getting up at 6:15 a.m., stretching, and then running around the lake's 4 1/2 mile circuit.

Then there was breakfast; at 10 a.m. the boxers worked on weight training and then it was to the track. On the track the boxers completed six 800 meter runs, during which their heart rate intervals were tested.

"There were guys there that could have been in track," said Juan. "Some of them were running 2:05 800's."

At 2 p.m. it was time for work in the gym for some intense drills and sparring. After a couple of hours of this, the boxers got a break until 6 p.m. Then they attended various clinics and seminars. "After that you went back to your room and slept, because that is what you felt like doing," said Juan.

Juan went to the camp weighing 128 pounds. A week later he was down to 121, and two days later he was at 118 1/2.

"When I first got there they tested my body fat and I had 5.8 percent. The computers said that I would have to get down to 121 before I had no body fat," said Baldwin.

Baldwin won the admiration of coaches when he sparred with bantamweight Richard Duran of Sacramento, Calif., the No. 5-ranked amateur in the world. Duran had recently returned from Poland where he had beaten the Russians, Koreans and Finns.

It seems the Big Spring lad took it to Mr. Duran, and Baldwin will be the first to tell you.

"We fought with 14 ounce gloves instead of 10 ounce. They use eight ounce gloves in international competition. The bigger gloves takes some of the shock away from the punches, but I still hurt him. His legs were gone by the second round," said Baldwin.

From then on, the coaches compared his style to Don Curry, former welterweight world champion.

The sparring sessions were limited to one's own weight class. Baldwin also sparred with bigger boxers.

While others took the day off on Thanksgiving because the gym was closed, Juan and his dad headed down the road to Fort Carson, home of light heavyweight Andrew Maynard. The 178-pound Maynard is currently ranked No. 1 in the United States and No. 3 in the world. The duo had an intense sparring session.

"It was a great feeling working with someone like that (Maynard). He has a real great attitude towards work. We were the only ones to work out that day," Baldwin said.

So everything was rosy until the pain in Juan's foot began to worsen. Then the doctor gave him the grave news: stress fracture. Stay off it until it heals.

"I thought it was just a bruise. I didn't tell anybody about it until it really started hurting. The same day the doctor gave me the news, the coaches told me I was going to Cuba."

But it was back to his hometown instead.

Now Juan is set on getting his foot healed and continuing his training. He knows he's on the international team; he hopes his injury will mend in time to fight the Scandinavian team in January. If not, maybe the Russians later on.

But the main thing is that he knows he's through the door which opens into the Olympic Trials.

He can quickly reel off the ways one qualifies for the Trials.

"They told us at the camp," he said. "Eight boxers qualify in each weight division. The gold and silver medalist in the U.S. Championships (American Boxing Federation) go. The National Golden Gloves Champ automatically goes. The eastern and western champ get to go and two military winners will go. The international selection committee will pick one person to go."

"It's tough to make it to the Trials, but I plan on being there."

Steers skin Bobcats

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It's been a rough four-day stretch for the Big Spring Steers.

It began with a poor showing against Levelland in Levelland Saturday night. Next the team's second leading scorer, Shawn Shellman, was dismissed from the team because of disciplinary reasons. This was followed by a long, hard practice Monday and a Tuesday night tilt with the San Angelo Central Bobcats, a 5-A playoff team last season.

So, how did the Steers respond to it all?

With an excitement-filled 95-87 win in front of a screaming home crowd at Steer Gym — that's how they responded. The Steers played their best ball of the year as they outfought the San Angelo team to earn Big Spring's sixth win in eight games and drop Central to 4-3.

The game was a fan's delight from start to finish. Both teams played with high intensity levels, and both teams sped up the tempo of the game with their presses.

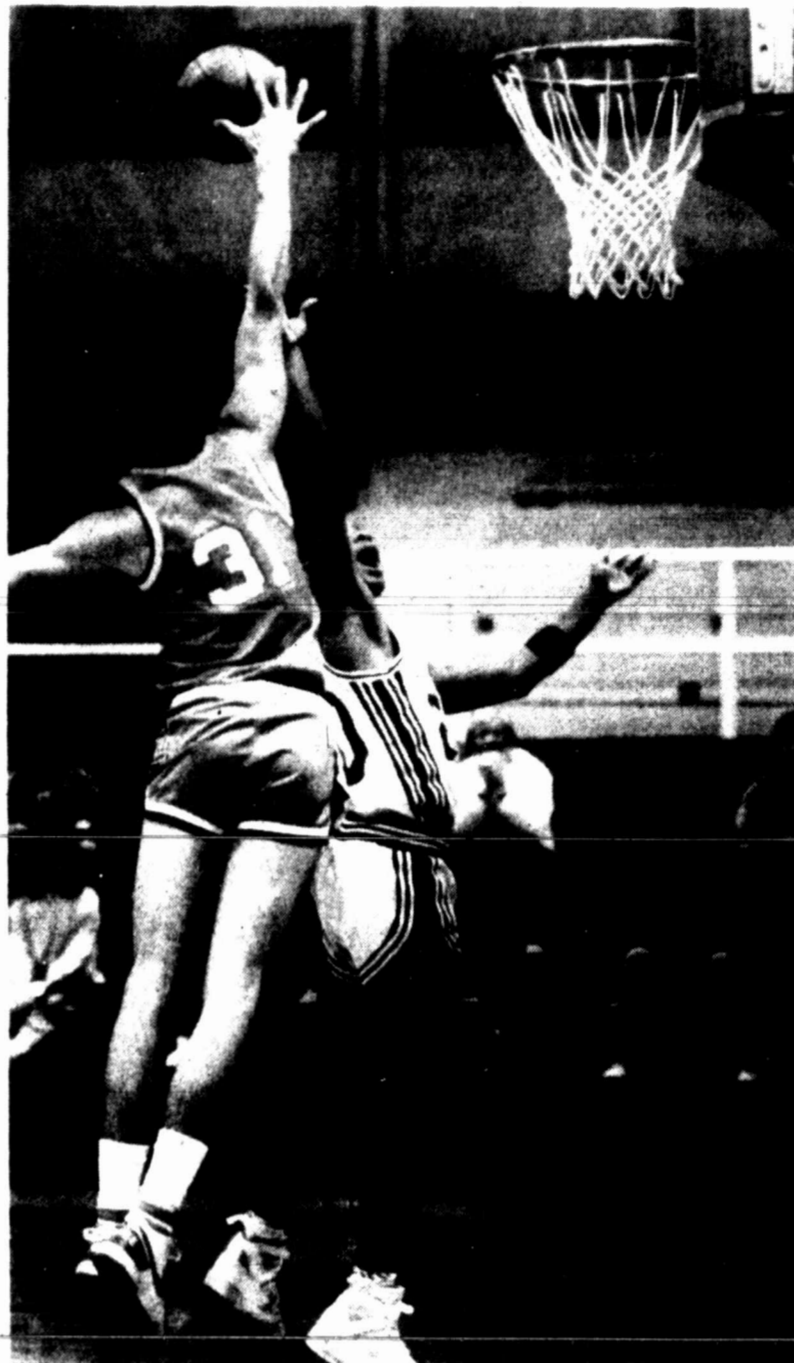

But in the end it was a total team effort that made the difference for the Black and Gold.

So evenly matched was the game that the lead changed hands 17 times and the score was tied eight times. The first half was especially close, as the biggest lead was three points by either team. The lead changed hands 13 times and Central came away from the first 16 minutes of play leading 44-43.

The second half started off the same way. But the Steers began their run to victory behind the outside bombs of Doug Young. Young, who had been in a shooting slump of late, sank a couple of three-pointers and Big Spring held its biggest lead of the game at 59-54 with 3:31 remaining in the third quarter.

Young sank five of eight field goals in the quarter and Big Spring took a 66-63 lead going into the final period.

ly tied the game by swishing a three-pointer at the start of the quarter. Marshall, a 6-0 guard, was a thorn in Big Spring's side all night. The scrappy senior made 11 of 19 field goals, including four three-pointers.

He ended the game with 30 points, five rebounds and four steals.

But the Steers came right back when Abner Shellman hit a jumper, and then fed Ian Walker for another basket, giving the Steers a four-point advantage.

Shellman, an 6-0 junior guard, played a flawless game. Before fouling out with 30 seconds left in the game, he scored 21 points, got five steals and handed out five assists.

With Central wilting under the pressure of the press, Shellman scored again, giving Big Spring a 72-66 lead with 6:10 left in the game.

Central scored a basket and Big Spring made its final march to victory.

Shellman canned his fifth basket in a row. Young hit a jumper, Fred Reid got a steal, Shellman fed Brian Mayfield for a basket, and Walker scored off an offensive rebound. The Steers held their biggest lead at 82-72 with 3:45 left in the game.

But Marshall wouldn't let the Bobcats die, as he bombed three shots, including two three-pointers, cutting the lead to 88-84 with 45 seconds left.

But Big Spring iced the game as Walker made two free throws and Mayfield sank three of four foul shots. The game ended fittingly when Steve Gill fed Mayfield on the baseline, and the 6-6 forward jammed down the last of his four slams in the game.

In all fairness to Mayfield, the big senior had a fantastic game. He was a force on both ends of the court, hitting his first seven shots of the game and never slowing down.

Lady Steers break Mustangs

By SARAH LUMAN

SWEETWATER — The Big Spring Lady Steers opened their District 2-4A championship defense on the road against Sweetwater Tuesday night — and showed themselves a contender to repeat the title by defeating the Lady Mustangs 50-30.

"We played pretty well," Coach C. E. Carmichael said early today. "I thought we played pretty good overall, and we played well on the defense. We seem to be playing with a lot more confidence."

"I guess that's because of our win in the tournament," he said. The Lady Steers are undefeated at 12-0 and hold the championship trophy for this year's Big Spring Tournament and Abilene's Polk-Key Tournament, in which they bested teams from Lubbock, Snyder, Pampa, Cleburne and Hereford.

"We played some really good defense," Carmichael continued, "but by the end of the third quarter, the game was really over."

"So we started doing some different things and playing some different people, and at the end of the third quarter they scored 10 points."

He said he felt his team had controlled Sweetwater well through the first three-quarters of the game, and despite the Mustang rally toward the end, he was pleased with what he saw of the players he sent in on rotation.

"One thing that was really outstanding was that Peggy Smith had five steals," said Carmichael. "She played a real good game all night."

"Tami Wise was our leading rebounder. She had 10."

Smith also topped Lady Steer scorers with 16 points and scored Big Spring squad's lone three-point field goal. Michelle LeGrand followed with 11 points, Wise with 10.

No one on either team fouled out, Carmichael said.

The Lady Steers will play Andrews Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Andrews. Freshmen begin at 4:30 and junior varsity follows at 6.

Dantley hits scoring plateau

By The Associated Press

Rick Mahorn already had wrapped up the biggest game of his career with 20 points and 20 rebounds. Like the rest of the Detroit Pistons, he was rooting for teammate Adrian Dantley to post an even bigger number.

"Tonight, it was 20, 20 and 20,000," Mahorn said after the Detroit Pistons beat the Portland Trail Blazers 127-117 Tuesday night.

The 20,000 belonged to Dantley, a 12-year veteran who, thanks to a layup with 11 seconds remaining, became the 13th NBA player to reach 20,000 points.

"I thought if I stayed in the league long enough, I could reach the 20,000 points," said Dantley, who has won two NBA scoring championships. "During the game I was pretty uptight."

Pistons 127, Trail Blazers 117. The Trail Blazers led 74-66 in the third quarter when the Pistons went on a 22-13 burst to take the lead for good to take their fourth straight game.

Mahorn was the key to the victory, but Dantley stole the spotlight.

Dantley, slimmed down to 210 pounds, was a first-round draft choice of the Buffalo Braves as a hardship player out of Notre Dame in 1976. He was traded three times before landing with the Utah Jazz, where he spent seven seasons before being traded to Detroit in 1986.

Lakers 98, Nets 81

The Lakers broke a three-game losing streak — extremely long for them — while handing the Nets their ninth consecutive setback. Magic Johnson scored 13 points, handed out 14 assists and grabbed 13 rebounds.

The victory helped Los Angeles avert its first four-game losing streak since March 1979. The nine-game losing streak equalled the Nets' longest of last season and dropped them to 2-13.

Rockets 106, Kings 97

In a game of streaks, the Rockets had the biggest one, a 16-0 burst. Akeem Olajuwon scored 26 points and Purvis Short, who made 13 of 15 shots for 27 points in his last game, had 25 points.

Reggie Theus led the Kings with 25 points, but he was scoreless in the fourth quarter.

Knicks 116, Bulls 92

Patrick Ewing made the right decisions for a season-high 29 points as the Knicks broke broke a four-game losing streak. New York also got 25 points from Bill Cartwright and 14 by Pat Cummings off the bench in the team's most

DECEMBER 9 1987

Three big name players go to different teams

DALLAS (AP) — Those attending the winter baseball meetings apparently do not realize they are supposed to do little wheeling and dealing because of increased free agent signings and no interleague trading deadline.

Perhaps all that was needed to spur the trading juices of baseball's general managers, however, was to come to Dallas, where million-dollar land and oil deals are cooked up every day.

On an unexpectedly busy day of dealing, three big name veterans — Dave Parker, Lee Smith and Rafael Ramirez — changed uniforms Tuesday. And there were rumblings they might soon be joined by Lloyd Moseby, Mookie Wilson, Bob Welch, Mike Marshall, Steve Balboni, Leon Durham, Dave Winfield and Kirk Gibson.

"This is fun. Maybe we'll see you again tomorrow," Oakland Manager Tony LaRussa said after the Athletics dealt prospects Jose Rijo and Tim Lincecum to Cincinnati for Parker, the six-time All-Star outfielder.

Baseball winter meeting

Parker and Smith not only switched teams, they switched leagues. In a surprise deal, the Cubs sent the right-handed Smith, the only reliever in National League history with 30 or more saves in four consecutive seasons, to the Boston Red Sox for pitchers Al Nipper and Calvin Schiraldi.

The deal is the first for newly named Cubs director of baseball operations Jim Frey and is bound to cause controversy in Chicago. In return for a proven closer, the Cubs obtained a starter, Nipper, 28, who's never won more than 11 games and a reliever, Schiraldi, 25, who struggled this season.

Schiraldi became the 1986 AL champion Boston's late-inning stopper, going 4-2 with a 1.41 ERA and nine saves. He slumped to 8-5 with a 4.41 ERA and six saves in 1987 and appeared to lose confidence after losing the final two games of the 1986 World Series to his former team, the New York Mets.

The Reds got rid of the old, 36-year-old Parker, to make way for the new, promising young outfielders Paul O'Neill and Tracy Jones. Reds Manager Pete Rose said "you never replace a player like Dave Parker, but I think Tracy Jones can be a star for us for many years. He's got to play."

A former NL Most Valuable Player with the Pirates, Parker hit a full-season career-low .253 despite respectable numbers of 26 homers and 97 runs batted in.

The Reds, who earlier got promising left-hander Danny Jackson from Kansas City, added the right-handed Rijo (22, 2-7, 5.90) and Birtzas (27, 7-2 at Class AAA Tacoma) to a suddenly much-younger pitching staff. They also unloaded Parker's $1.4 million salary.

LaRussa can't wait to bat Parker in the middle of a thunder-filled batting order that already includes Mark McGwire and Jose Canseco.

The Atlanta Braves traded one of baseball's highest-priced utilitymen Rafael Ramirez to the Houston Astros for Class A prospects Mike Whited and Mike Stoker. Ramirez is a good hitter and erratic fielder — he led or tied for the NL lead in errors for four straight seasons — who is expected to fill the Astros' hole at short.

Manager Chuck Tanner said the Braves "are moving in a new direction" by emphasizing youth. Whited, an infielder, batted .323 with 28 homers and 126 RBI and the right-handed Stoker was 13-5 with a 2.91 ERA, both with Asheville of the South Atlantic League.

There were just as many rumors as there were deals. The Los Angeles Dodgers reportedly have offered right-hander Welch and outfielder Marshall to both New York teams.

Meanwhile, the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers reportedly were huddling over the idea of trading sluggers, with the Yankees sending right-handed-hitting Winfield to the Tigers for left-handed Gibson.

Kansas City and the Cubs have discussed swapping first basemen, the Royals' Balboni for the Cubs' Durham. Seattle and Baltimore talked about dealing pitchers, Mike Morgan of the Mariners for the Orioles' Ken Dixon. And the Mets may be shopping Wilson, their veteran centerfielder.

Former Atlanta slugger Bob Horner, who wants to return to the U.S. after a year in Japan, turned down a reported one-year, $700,000 offer from the Texas Rangers a day after refusing a better deal from the Braves. But Horner, who lives in nearby Irving, Texas, reportedly wants to be a Ranger.

Both leagues heard reports from their expansion committees. And Philadelphia Phillies President Bill Giles said interleague play could be the catalyst to bring about baseball's first expansion since Seattle and Toronto joined the AL in 1977.

The AL would increase to 16 teams and the NL to 14 teams if each adds two. Since 14-team scheduling has proven unwieldy for the AL, "interleague play is the only way I'd go for it," Giles said.

on-sided victory of the year.

Pacers 103, Bucks 101

At Indianapolis, Steve Stipanovich scored 24 points, Herb Williams had 19 and 13 rebounds, and Chuck Person added 17 points. Stipanovich's two free throws gave Indiana its winning margin as the Pacers survived a 3-point shot by Jack Sikma with eight seconds to go.

76ers 109, Bulls 96

Gerald Henderson came off the bench to score 13 of his 16 points in the final quarter at Chicago. He was aided by Charles Barkley, who had 32 points despite second-half foul trouble. Barkley hit seven free throws down the stretch.

Spurs 105, Jazz 100

Frank Brickowski isn't acting like a mere stand-in at center until David Robinson is available. Brickowski scored a career-high 27 points as the Spurs won their sixth straight at home.

With Utah leading 99-98 with 2:02 left, Brickowski hit two free throws. After an offensive foul on Utah's Karl Malone, Alvin Robertson hit a 10-foot jumper, giving the Spurs a 102-99 lead.

Utah's John Stockton was fouled on the next possession, but only hit one free throw. San Antonio's Leon Wood made a 3-pointer with three seconds left to end the scoring.

SuperSonics 107, Cavaliers 96

The SuperSonics' return from a 2-4 road trip was successful as Dale Ellis scored 15 points in the fourth quarter and 25 overall. Xavier McDaniel also had 25 points, while the Cavaliers were led by Brad Daugherty with 20 points and 19 by Dell Curry.

Hawks 90, Clippers 79

At Los Angeles, Hawks leading scorer Dominique Wilkins returned after a two-game absence with a sore toe.

Soph leads UT over Oral Roberts

By The Associated Press

Texas sophomore Travis Mays scored 18 points in a victory over Oral Roberts that saw the Longhorns playing better in the first half than at the end, said coach Bob Weltlich.

"I thought we really played pretty well defensively. We got sloppy at the end. They are a very talented team, athletic-ly," Weltlich said after Texas defeated Oral Roberts 86-76 Tuesday in an inter-sectional college basketball game.

In other Southwest Conference action, Southern Methodist University whipped Prairie View 91-75, Baylor edged Tulsa 69-67 and Rice fell to Southern University 107-86.

Texas, 3-2 for the season, led by 24 points — 57-33 — with 12:31 left in the game. But Oral Roberts trimmed that lead with a full-court press.

Oral Roberts, 1-4, pulled closer late in the game after Texas Coach Bob Weltlich put in a group of substitutes that included two walk-ons.

Texas grabbed a 43-29 halftime lead as Oral Roberts shot only 11 of 39, or 28.2 percent, from the field.

Mays, a 6-foot-2 guard averaging 19.3 points a game, had only four points at the half.

SMU, which boosted its record to 3-0, led by as many as 25 in the second half against Prairie View. But accurate outside shooting by freshman Michael Ervin got Prairie View to within 14 midway through the second half.

Eric Longino led SMU with 18 points and Todd Alexander added 14. Ervin had 22 for Prairie View, which fell to 0-3.

SMU Coach Dave Bliss said his team wasn't looking ahead to Saturday night's road matchup with North Carolina.

Michael Williams scored 24 points, including a 3-pointer, to lead Baylor to its win. The Bears scored 13 points before Tulsa was able to make a basket at the 16:15 mark in the first half.

Tulsa took its only lead in the game, 26-24, with 4:38 left in the half. But Baylor regained control to lead 32-30 at the half.

Behind Williams in scoring for Baylor was Michael Hobbs with 17 points and Darryl Middleton with 16.

Tulsa's Tracy Moore earned a game-high 33 points, nearly half of the team's point total. Other high scorers for Tulsa were Don Royster and Jeff Sadowski with 10 points each.

Baylor improved to 5-2 with the victory, while Tulsa fell to 2-2.

Kevin Florent scored 29 points and Patrick Garner 22 to lead Southern University to its win over Rice.

Southern, 3-3, took advantage of its running game to build a 62-44 halftime lead over the Owls, who fell to 2-4.

Rice was led by Ronald Robertson with 23 points and Willie with 20.

Landry hopes to be back two more seasons

IRVING (AP) — During his weekly press luncheon, Tom Landry looked down at his burnt dessert, smiled and said, "That's a perfect example of what kind of year it's been."

However, Landry plans to be back for two more of them barring any rash moves by suddenly outspoken owner Bum Bright.

Landry said on Tuesday he will coach the Dallas Cowboys until 1989 unless something unforeseen happens.

"I knew it would take three years to bring the team back into contention again when I signed my contract," Landry said. "There is no magic to it."

But he added, "Nobody can predict what's going to go on. I don't intend to retire before then but you never know."

Club President Tex Schramm said he also expects Landry to return for two more years as Cowboys coach.

"What's happened this year increases the challenge," Schramm said.

Landry was heavily criticized publicly for the first time by owner Bum Bright after Sunday's 21-10 loss to Atlanta that all but eliminated the Cowboys from the NFL playoffs.

Asked if Bright had got to the point of giving him plays to run, Landry quipped, "If he wants to try one I'll welcome him."

The late Clint Murchison, the Cowboys' original owner, once hassled Landry to try Bob Hayes on an end around. Landry did, the play lost 12 yards and the coach never heard from him again.

"I've been down a little bit, but that's part of football," Landry said. "To receive criticism from an owner was a deviation from the past a little bit."

Washington Coach Joe Gibbs defended Landry in a hookup with the Dallas media on Tuesday.

"Coach Landry is one of the guys all the younger coaches in the NFL would like to be like," Gibbs said. "He has been a success over a long period of time."

Gibbs added, "If you have been a winner you are always going to take criticism if you lose. It's something you have to expect."

The Cowboys travel to Washington Sunday to meet the Redskins, who have already clinched the NFC East.

"Washington doesn't have to win the game except for what they think about the Cowboys," Landry said. "They remember we beat them twice two years ago."

Gibbs said basically the same thing about the Cowboys.

"We expect Dallas to be in a foul mood. The rivalry is still there," the Redskins coach said.

Danny White will return as the starting quarterback for the Cowboys, Landry said.

Steve Pelluer, who suffered a knee injury on the fourth play of the loss to the Falcons, was moving better on Tuesday and could play, Landry said.

Steers

The SMU-bound star made 17 of 23 field goals and finished the game with a season-high 39 points. He also found time to pull down 13 rebounds and block five shots.

Young was the other Steer in double figures, scoring 20 points.

Forward Bill Hollis scored 17 points and grabbed seven rebounds for the Bobcats.

Steers' coach Paxton had a hard time suppressing his happiness after the game.

"I'm happy, but we can play better," said the second-year coach. "That's what makes it so exciting, knowing we can play better. We had a lot of adversity this week.

"You know I'm the most hard-headed person on this team. I'm determined to get this team to play up to the potential it can play.

"I only used eight players tonight and I was a little worried about fatigue. We played a lot on emotion tonight. Abner Shellman played a super game. He ran the offense well.

"Doug Young came out of his shooting slump. Brian Mayfield played a great game on both ends. Steve Gill blocked out well on the boards and Fred Reid made some big plays for us."

The Steers will play Littlefield at 4 p.m. Thursday in the first round of the 28th Annual Mustang Invitational in Denver City.

JV'S LOSE

The Steers junior varsity dropped a 58-46 decision to Central in the opening game of the evening.

Joe Downey led Big Spring with 16 points. Chris Cole added 11.

Big Spring falls to 1-6 for the season. The Steers will play Lamesa at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the first round of the Big Spring JV tourney.

Dallas school boasts second Heisman grad

Herald bureau report DALLAS (AP) — Woodrow Wilson High School in Dallas once was regarded as the place that high-browed country clubbers sent their children for a fine education, where teachers stood in a very long line for employment.

It was known back then just as Woodrow High School, and people had no idea it was named for a president.

But things have changed over the past decade or so, and Dallas Woodrow has been put to sleep by the glassy expansion of a city and her suburbs.

"People tend to forget about us out here," says Robert Giesler, Woodrow's first-year principal.

That is why this year's Heisman Trophy announcement was so important to a student body of 1,301, and to a glittering trail of alumni sacked with middle-aged sentimentality.

Notre Dame's Tim Brown is one of their own, a Woodrow grad, and was the runaway winner of the 53rd Heisman Trophy, given to college football's outstanding player of the year.

Already Woodrow boasted one Heisman winner: the late Davey O'Brien, who won the award in 1938 while a senior quarterback at TCU.

With Brown's selection, Woodrow became the first high school in the country to produce two Heisman winners.

"It's just been a revival out here, a revival of community spirit and school spirit," says Kathryn Thompson, the wife of Wade Thompson, O'Brien's football coach at Woodrow.

No one may be enjoying this more than Wade Thompson himself. Four months shy of 84, Thompson is the only living member of Woodrow's original 27-member faculty.

"Back in the old days we used to do our part," says Capt. James C. Riley, who succeeded Thompson as Woodrow's football coach in 1939 and did not retire from the school until 1967.

"I've seen this difference (take place) and saw it as it occurred."

He watched some of Dallas' finest pass through those tiled hallways.

People like developer Trammell Crow; former Dallas mayors Jack Evans and Wallace Savage; recent Texas Supreme Court appointee Bob Phillips; current attorney general Jim Mattox; Associated Press Texas sports editor Denne Freeman; former Dallas police chief Don Byrd; Buddy Minyard of Minyard food stores; former U.S. Open and Masters champion Ralph Guldahl; former football All-Americans I.B. Hale, Bill and Herschel Forester and Malcolm Kutner.

"I could go on and on," says Barbara Byrd Adamson, the 1966 Woodrow graduate who has seized the moment to form a Woodrow alumni association.

"And the funny thing is, we all grew up together. Went to the same church together, and same elementary school together."

Adamson wants to dub Woodrow the "Home of the Heisman," push for a Woodrow entrance into the Cotton Bowl Parade — "at least a banner," she said — and plan a Heisman reception Jan. 3 in Dallas, as the proceeds to start a Davey O'Brien-Tim Brown scholarship fund at Woodrow.

"Tim is our hot number right now and that stimulates people," says Adamson. "What Tim Brown can do for Woodrow is bring more students back that are going to private schools."

The kids have seized the moment, too. Plans were under way to send Brown a letter on computer printout with as many signatures as possible.

"They are really excited," Giesler says. "And they want to do something special for him."

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you have some confidence in your creative abilities, you can achieve a great deal. This is a good time to start getting in the holiday spirit. It is also a fine time to make arrangements for any trips.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show that you are creative and ambitious. Your superiors will see you in a new light. Be sure to let them know what you want to achieve.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you show more affection for your mate, your home will become a much more cheerful place. Get advice from experts — don't guess.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Friends or associates who have become quite successful can now give you the benefit of their experience, so you can do the same.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Show your co-workers that you respect their ambitions. If you support one another, you can all progress more rapidly.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) This is a good time to get together with old friends for some enjoyable reminiscing. This is also a good time to begin any new business deals.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a way to make your home more comfortable and charming for the coming holidays. Have some fun friends in for the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Now is a good time to attend to your Christmas shopping. Be sure to make out lists and plan things ahead or you'll fall behind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A very successful person you know can give you some pointers on how to achieve a similar success. Listen carefully to advice given to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) New situations will arise which can help you make better plans for the future. Your insight is almost prophetic at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your intuition is working quite well right now, and you would be wise to follow it. Avoid someone who is trying to upset your routines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Associates and friends will be quite helpful to you today, so show these people that you appreciate them. Be more compassionate to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your surroundings, and find a way to improve them. Try to create a more harmonious atmosphere with co-workers.

If Your Child Is Born Today He or she will have a warm and charming manner, and will find it quite easy to influence people. Teach your progeny to use this talent only in good ways. Your child is destined for wealth and fame, so make sure he or she is given a fine education and taught manners.

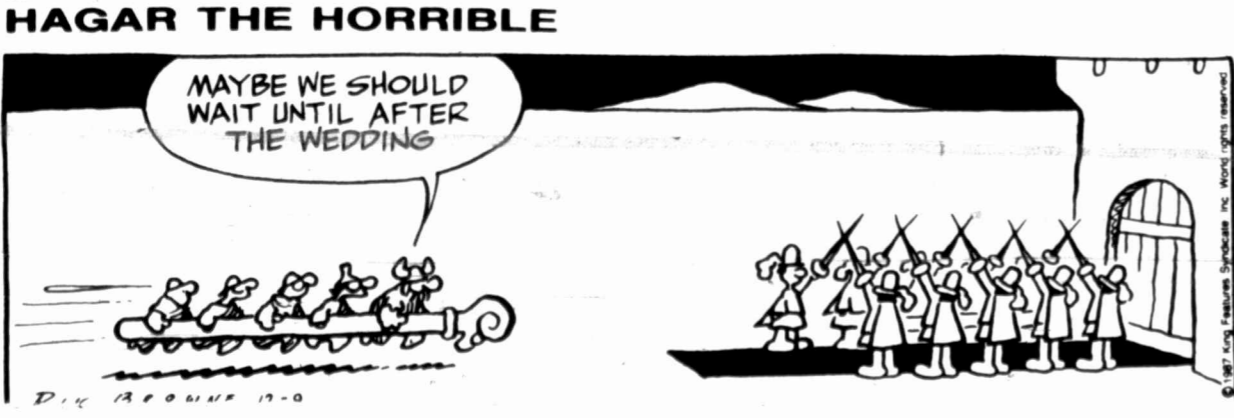

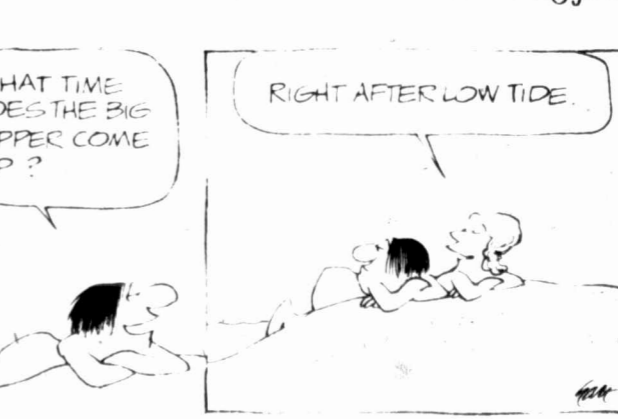

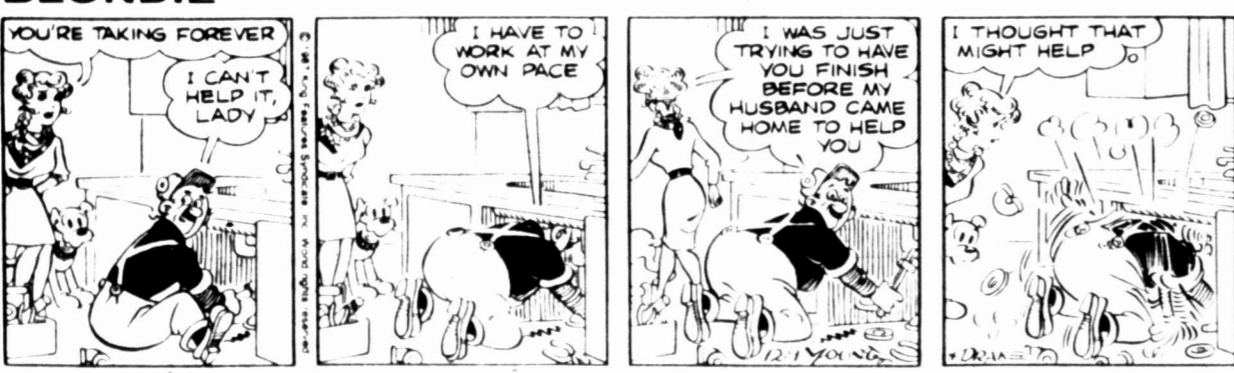

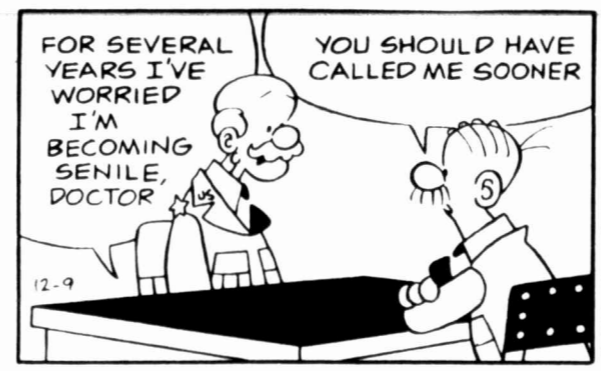

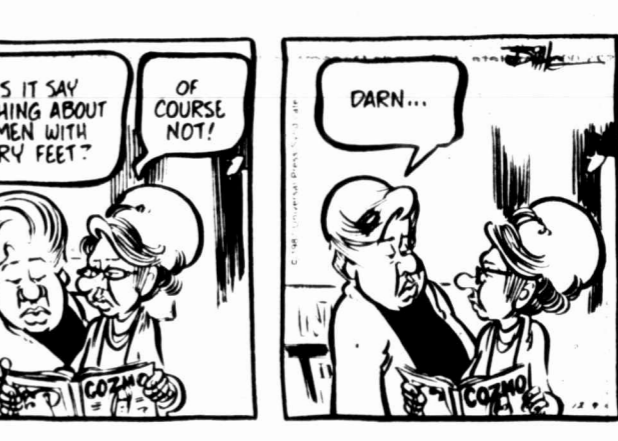

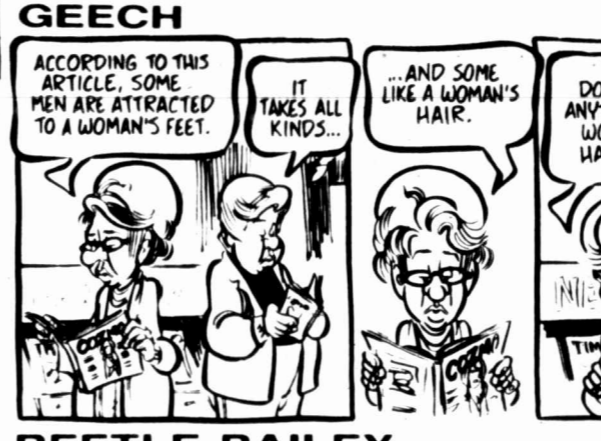

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Paper feud

Crusade tries to improve journalism

By MOLLY IVINS

Herald bureau report

AUSTIN — ERM, ah, this is a little awkward. You see, there's a situation-type situation (as Alexander Haig once said) up in Amarillo that unquestionably calls for all good journalists to come to the aid of the First Amendment.

Newspaper under attack for honest reporting! Beleaguered clarion of truth endangered! Forces of evil assault a trumpet of the people! Well, would you believe the Amarillo Globe-News is in trouble again?

It causes me to shake my head in confusion, too. I never heard of a paper getting into so much hot water for having an occasional attack of courage — and one must admit these attacks don't strike often at the Globe-News.

Still, yet, but, our brothers in pursuit of truth, justice and the American Way up in the Panhandle are under by-God fire for having done some good reporting and plain old truth-telling.

It is high time the rest of us in the press abandoned our bemusement over the irony of it all and rallied to their support. Good grief, get the shades of John Peter Zenger, Tom Paine, William Brann, Ida Tarbell, Lincoln Steffens, H.L. Mencken and Walter Lippmann up to Amarillo right away.

Call in the journalism reviews, get the Society of Professional Journalists on the line, call the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press — we've got brothers in trouble!

Don't forget the people with money and influence — APA (the publishers), ASNE (the editors) and the networks. Aux armes! We need to take up cudgels for the Amarillo Globe.

Normally what you've got when you take up the poor old Globe is a soporific, but the paper had a fit of energy a few months ago and published a whole series of articles about race relations in Hereford, a boil on the Panhandle about 60 miles southwest of Amarillo.

This is not a new story. I was up there about a year ago and wrote that the only surprising thing about Hereford is that it still has this strong resemblance to South Africa, which is the same story people have been writing about Hereford for 20 years.

Every reporter who's ever gone up there has written the same story because it's the truth — it's been done by the Dallas Times Herald, the Dallas Morning News, the New Yorker magazine, the Texas Observer, Texas Monthly and now it's been done by the Amarillo Globe, which, being a lot closer to the situation, had good cause to go into it at some length.

And every time someone writes this sad saga with new chapters, the reaction of the Hereford establishment is the same — instead of doing anything about their problems, they whine about the press.

I challenge the city officials of Hereford right now — if they'll start a serious community relations council, get to studying what they can do about that god-awful labor camp, get to work on the problems in their schools, law enforcement and housing, if they'll make a good-faith effort to find out what's been done to end segregation in other towns like theirs — then I'll be the first reporter to write a story. NEW DAY IN HEREFORD.

Right now, the city fathers of Hereford, instead of doing dog-all about the racism that sits there stinking right under their noses, are trying to shut down the Amarillo Globe.

In this unlikely endeavor, they have a heavyweight ally in the person of T. Boone Pickens, the noted corporate raider and a man with an ego the size of Montana. Pickens has been in a snit with the Globe ever since the paper's last attack of energy.

In 1986, the Globe exposed a juicy little scandal about remarkable cost overruns in building a new mansion for the president of West Texas State University. Pickens is chairman of the board at West Texas State and runs the place as though it were his personal plantation.

Pickens started a campaign to get people to cancel their subscriptions to the Globe a year ago; now he's piggy-backing on the anger of Herefordians. They formed an organization called Panhandle Citizens for A Better Amarillo Newspaper — many of the sponsors are associates of Pickens and he has reportedly detailed a handful of Mesa employees to work on this remarkable instance of civic betterment.

"Our goal is to improve the quality of journalism in the region and to have a newspaper that is a part of the community, not an active detractor," said the group's letter, announcing a public meeting on the topic.

Fifteen hundred people turned out to improve the quality of journalism in the Panhandle, a thought that renders me stupefied with ecstasy. I want each and every one of them to know that I, too, think the quality of journalism in the Panhandle is vastly in need of improvement.

The Citizens for A Better are hell-bent on curing the Globe of "relentless negativism," "its pit-bull attacks on every aspect of the community" and "presenting the area in the worst light."

An astonishing reading of a paper just as given to hometown boosterism as any Babbitt could possibly wish. If I were truly uncharitable I might suggest the Globe wouldn't be in so much trouble if it did its journalistic duty more frequently — its readers might be a trifle more accustomed to stumbling across the occasional unpleasant truth in its pages.

But, now is no time to be churlish. This "citizens" organization, funded by that average Panhandle Joe, Boone Pickens, is no more interested in good journalism than Spiro Agnew — they're out to intimidate the Globe-News.
