Procedure delays dam bidding

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

"Contractual complications," have delayed a scheduled Jan. 28 bid opening for reconstruction of Comanche Trail Dam, Big Spring City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

Wofford said bids on the estimated $800,000 project will be opened and compared at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Big Spring City Council members are expected to consider the bids at a regular meeting on Feb. 9.

Opening of the bids was postponed by one week to allow city officials time to contact potential bidders and make certain they could comply with state law requiring that at least 15 percent of funds spent on the contract be paid to sub-contracted minority owned-businesses, Wofford said.

"Our consulting engineer just wanted to double check with the bidders to be sure they could comply with the requirement. All of the bidders have indicated that they can comply... there doesn't seem to be a problem," he said.

Work on the dam is necessary to repair damage caused by heavy rains that led to a breach in the structure in August 1986.

Plans call for the top of the dam levy to be restored to its original elevation of 2,551 above sea level.

A rolled concrete cap will be used to strengthen the top of the dam and a portion of the downstream side of the structure.

Eight hundred cubic feet of rock rip-rap will be dumped on the upstream — east — side of the dam site to control erosion.

Project specifications also call for the clearing of both banks of the entire dam site.

Clearing of weeds, brush and shrubs from the creek banks will improve drainage along the channel and make the area more accessible to construction workers, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell.

The project will be funded by a $650,000 state grant and $112,642 in city-pledged money.

Reconstruction of the dam is expected to begin soon after City Council selects the bidder for the job.

Fellow officers gather to honor slain Dallas man

By DAVID PASZTOR

DES MOINES, Iowa — Revolver muzzles flashed 21 times into a wispy Iowa sky, and the body of John Glenn Chase — a son, husband and police officer who died too young — was laid to rest Thursday in a snow-dusted Des Moines cemetery.

Five days after the 25-year-old officer was shot to death on a downtown Dallas parking lot, a miles-long motorcade followed his hearse on the final leg of a mournful homecoming.

Then, before the eyes of God, family and hundreds of uniformed law enforcement officers from across the Midwest, an honor guard removed the American flag from Chase's blue and gold coffin for the last time and presented it to his widow.

"She has held up very well," said the Rev. Duane Gibson of Chase's wife Joanne after the funeral. "But she's feeling intensely lonely."

Three months ago, Gibson presided at the wedding of John and Joanne Chase in the First Baptist Church here, the church Joanne attended while growing up.

On this day — freezing but warm for January in Iowa — Gibson donned his robes to deliver a eulogy.

The largest church in town was needed to hold the services before the burial. Almost six dozen floral tributes from Texas and the nation were arrayed across the front of the spacious church.

The controversy and ill feelings Chase's death has spawned in Dallas were hundreds of miles away.

So Gibson welcomed Chase back to his native state by speaking of the day not long ago when he had married a young couple.

"The night of the rehearsal dinner, I sensed after spending time with Joanne and John, that this was an extraordinary couple," he told almost 1,000 mourners. "As my wife and I journeyed home I said, 'Honey they are a beautiful couple.... This guy is the cream of the crop.' And so we had that great celebration, never in our wildest imagination realizing that someday soon, we would be here."

Fire marshal investigates Roundup fire

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

The state fire marshal has been called to investigate a Thursday fire at Roundup Tank that caused more than $300,000 in damages.

Fire Chief Carl Dorton said today the state marshal was notified because of the large estimated loss and because the fire was located outside the city's jurisdiction.

Roundup Co. caught fire shortly after 11 a.m. Thursday — apparently after a spark from a grinder ignited styrene resins used to construct Fiberglas oilfield storage tanks. The blaze destroyed the building.

Roundup is located at the Howard County Industrial Park — about six miles northeast of Big Spring.

No injuries were reported, but a Howard County sheriff's deputy was treated at a local hospital for smoke inhalation.

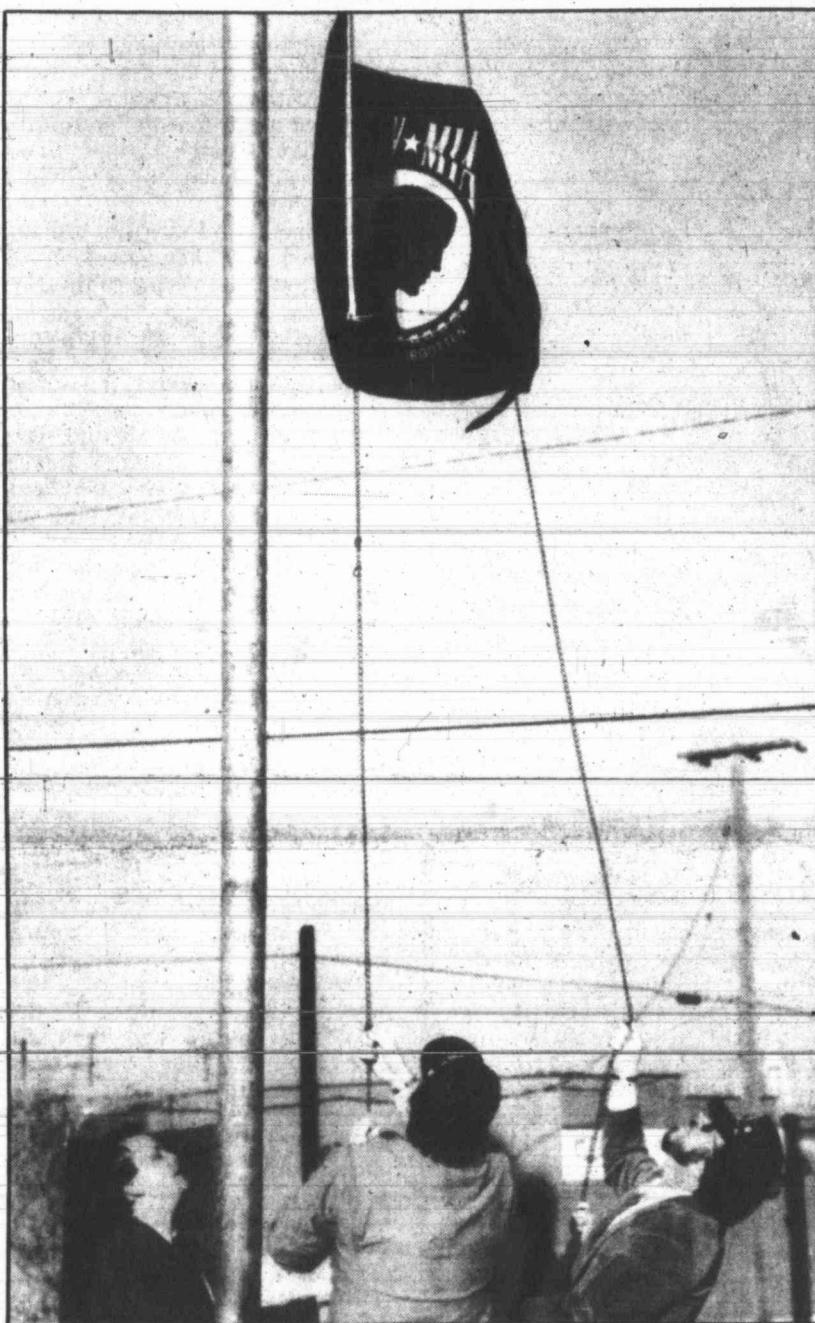

About eight employees were in the building when the fire started, Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settel said, adding that through talking with the employees it doesn't appear as though foul play was involved.

Settel said he expected state fire marshal officials to arrive today to investigate the cause.

Sheriff's deputies were called to control traffic and evacuated residents of about 10 homes located near the facility because of the threat of toxic fumes in smoke billowing from the facility.

Hal Boyd, Big Spring emergency management coordinator, also was at the fire scene monitoring the situation.

Jim Thurston, owner of Roundup, was unavailable for comment today.

Officials, students don't expect court decision effect

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

A recent Supreme Court decision allowing school officials more control over the content of student newspapers will have little — if any — effect on the Big Spring High School publication, educators and students said Thursday.

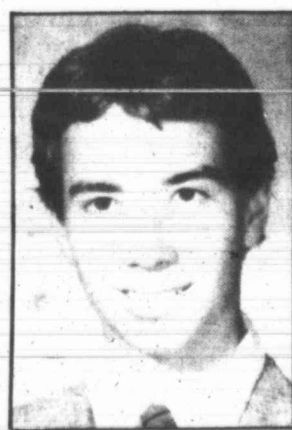

The Court recently ruled that student publications are not subject to the same First Amendment protection as professional newspapers. A majority of justices also ruled that principals can exercise prior approval of the school newspaper's contents.

This decision will have no effect on the Corral, the Big Spring High School newspaper, Principal Kent Bowerman said.

"It's not that big a deal, because I don't have anything to do with it," he said. "The effect on the (Corral) will be absolutely zilch. There will be no effect whatsoever."

On paper, at least, Bowerman does have the authority to review written material before its publication. Local school district policy states, "Material shall be submitted to the building principal for review."

Bowerman added that he doesn't review the high school paper before its printing, and doesn't plan to do so in the future.

"For all practical purposes, when the paper comes out, that's when I see it," he noted, adding that he relies heavily on journalism instructor Steve Poitevint to oversee the publication.

When Bowerman became principal last year, he and Poitevint reviewed the policy and made two changes. Sections were deleted stating that the principal would approve or disapprove the submitted material within 24 hours; and that failure to act within that time frame would be interpreted as disapproval, he said.

The deletion was approved by the school board last summer.

"What it all boils down to is common sense," Bowerman said of the situation. "If you use it, you won't have a situation you'd be sorry for."

Poitevint agreed that the prin-

Pizza delivery to Northside less than expected

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Pizza Hut delivery to the Northside, instituted about a month ago after a dispute with area LULAC officials, hasn't developed as officials had hoped.

League of Latin American Citizens representatives learned last week during a meeting with Pizza Hut officials that the pizza parlor was making only about one delivery a night to the Northside — far below its goal of 24 deliveries per night.

"I'm just a little bit disappointed with the figures," said Raul Marquez, LULAC president.

"There hasn't been a fantastic turnout."

Under the agreement, Pizza Hut has extended its Northside delivery area to Interstate 20 for the next month.

"We're going to try every way we can to make it work," said Robert Barton, Pizza Hut area manager.

"Delivery in Big Spring is really a joke to us," Barton said, noting that the demand for the service hasn't increased. Pizza Hut relies on restaurant business for the bulk of its profits.

The pizza parlor began Northside deliveries Dec. 21 to a limited Northside area that included homes and businesses from Second to Seventh Street.

During the period, 15 deliveries were made, Barton said. Since Pizza Hut officials met with LULAC representatives Jan. 21, the parlor has made six deliveries to the north side.

"They can see that we've lost money with the door hanging and deliveries," Barton said.

After the second 30-day period, which will include the entire Northside, Pizza Hut officials are expected to evaluate the success of the trial period and determine whether to continue service to the area.

Local and district LULAC chapters last fall questioned the pizza parlor's delivery policy, which excluded Big Spring's Northside — an area largely populated by Hispanics and blacks.

Pizza Hut officials have denied any implications of discrimination, maintaining that delivery boundaries were established for business reasons such as time factors.

Other area parlors — Pizza Inn, Domino's Pizza and Godfather's Pizza — provide Northside delivery service. None would reveal their delivery figures for that area of Big Spring.

Pizza Hut employees are maintaining driver time sheets and a record of addresses where deliveries have been made to the Northside.

State hospital officials dispute staff-patient ratio report

From staff and wire reports
The superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital said today that the facility is currently in compliance with court-ordered staff-patient ratios, disputing a state report that said it was in violation.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, who on Wednesday released a report on staff levels in state mental hospitals, said, "The court expects compliance" from the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

While saying he hasn't seen the report, Bob Von Rosenberg, superintendent of the Big Spring facility, said that the local state hospital is in compliance.

He said that the center follows a state-suggested formula in an attempt to stay within the court-mandated 1-4 staff-patient ratio. Administrators divide the average patient census by four to determine if adequate staff levels are being maintained.

The problem with following that particular formula, he said, is that patient levels can increase or decrease rapidly. The result can be a temporary shortage in staff personnel, which happened at the local state hospital last summer, he added.

"Last summer, we had a big increase in the number of patients over a short period of time," Von Rosenberg said. "That figure has gone down since then, and we are currently in compliance with the ratios."

"It's gotten to the point where we've told some of our temporary people that we don't need them," he added.

Attorneys for mental patients and hospital workers said the state should pay between $1.1 million and $1.5 million a month for each mental hospital that fails to comply with court orders.

David Pharis, the chief court monitor who conducted the hospital staff survey for Sanders, declined comment on the suggestion of fines, but told the Austin American-

Statesman: "I do think it will be time for some penalties" if violations continue.

An attorney for the state said the violations had been corrected at all but one hospital, which is expected to be in compliance by the end of this month.

The new report shows that San Antonio State Hospital, Rusk State Hospital, Big Spring State Hospital and Wichita Falls State Hospital violated court-ordered staff-to-patient ratios in a recent six-month period. Austin State Hospital, Terrell State Hospital and Vernon State Hospital were in compliance, and Kerrville State Hospital was not surveyed, the report said.

Sanders on Wednesday ordered San Antonio, Rusk, Big Spring and Wichita Falls state hospitals to correct staff deficiencies by the end of February.

If any state mental hospital violates court-ordered staff-to-patient ratios in the future, Sanders said, the court "will determine the sanctions to be applied in light of the nature of the non-compliance."

The Dallas judge, who oversees the 14-year-old class-action suit against state mental hospitals, has issued several orders setting out various staff-to-patient ratios over the past four years.

badges — and held his death before them as a challenge.

"John Glenn Chase did not live long enough," Gibson said. "But he did live long enough to demonstrate very tangibly and very clearly the mettle and the fiber of which he was made; the values and the attitudes that hold law enforcement at its very highest, that exemplify a calling from God into civil service."

"If we leave this magnificent sanctuary today defeated by death, we will do a great disservice to the one to whom we have come to pay homage," he said.

When the eulogy ended, Gibson, a fellow minister and many mourners needed several minutes to control their tears to begin singing "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

After the service, a Dallas police honor guard carried Chase's casket to the hearse for its final ride.

In the meditation section of the Highland Memory Garden, 11 files of officers 60 to a row snapped to attention and saluted when the casket was unloaded.

While they stood in the frigid wind, family and friends huddled under three green tents for the brief graveside services.

Joanne Chase, flanked by her parents and her husband's parents, sat in a folding chair holding two long-stem roses.

Police beat

Herald staff report
Three thefts, two burglaries and a forgery were reported to Big Spring police Thursday.

- Someone checked out of Motel 9, 704 E. Third St., without paying $40 room rent, according to police reports. A television set also was reported stolen from the motel. Value of the set was not listed.
- Mary L. Weeks, 506 11th Place, reported the theft of a gold watch, gold ring, five gold chains, two gold earrings and four belts. The items, valued at $3,687, were stolen during a garage sale at Weeks' home, police reports said.
- Three video tape players and two video cassette movies were reported stolen from the Texaco Food Mart, 2512 Wasson Road. The video players and tapes were valued at $960.
- David Hernandez, 1408 Birdwell Lane, reported the theft of a duffle bag, clothing, two basketball rackets, three credit cards and a wallet containing $7.
- A $279.81 forged check was reportedly cashed at The Box, 2309 Scurry St.

made during an ice storm — were made within 30 minutes, Barton said, but noted that the restaurant didn't have enough business to see what would have happened in a major rush.

Marquez said Pizza Hut officials discussed a willingness to make special bulk deliveries to the Northside if it is later determined that daily deliveries aren't economically feasible.

Meanwhile, to boost sales, LULAC will advertise the Pizza Hut's Northside service on a local Spanish language radio program and in the newspaper, Marquez said.

- Keith Randel Pherigo, 34, Coahoma, was released on a $1,500 bond Thursday after being transferred to the sheriff's office. He was arrested by city police on charges of driving while intoxicated.
- Margaret S. Dominguez, 27, 1402 Mesa Ave., was released Thursday on a $1,000 bond after being transferred to the sheriff's office. She was arrested by city police on charges of DWI.

Howard County named in official plague report

MIDLAND (AP) — Health officials now say an outbreak of bubonic plague, originally thought to cover an isolated area, is responsible for killing hundreds of rodents in nine counties — including Howard County.

Since state health officials announced the outbreak last week, the Texas Department of Health has received at least 200 calls reporting dead pack rats, cotton rats and rabbits in an area covering half the Permian Basin.

Besides Howard, Midland, Ector, Martin, Upton, Crane, Glasscock, Dawson and Borden counties now are thought to be affected by the outbreak, said Dr. Evret C. Newman, Texas Department of Health regional veterinarian.

A week ago, Newman had said the outbreak seemed to be confined to an area between Midland and Stanton in Martin County.

At the time, health officials suspected the outbreak covered a wider area but made no mention of their fears because full reports weren't in, said Newman.

Racing commission complete

AUSTIN (AP) — Four people, including the chairman of the King Ranch and the former mayor of Nacogdoches, today were named to the new Texas Racing Commission by Gov. Bill Clements.

The appointments mean that the commission, which also includes as voting members the state comptroller and Public Safety Commission chairman, can begin work soon, Clements aides said. Two more members still must be appointed by the governor.

The new Racing Commission will regulate pari-mutuel horse and dog racing, legalized by voters last November for the first time in a half century.

Named today were: James Higbie Clement of Kingsville, chairman of the King Ranch; Hugh A. Fitzsimons Jr., a Carrizo Springs rancher; Dr. Demarius L. Keller Frey, a Corpus Christi veterinarian; and former Nacogdoches Mayor A.L. Mangham Jr., currently chairman and chief executive officer of the Fredonia State Bank.

"We have conducted an exhaustive and thorough review of the prospective members of the Texas Racing Commission. We have been diligent, leaving no stone unturned," Clements said.

The governor said he believes his appointees will help keep race track gambling in Texas honest.

"We have been vigorous in our insistence on individuals of the highest caliber and unquestionable integrity. Our overriding goal has been and continues to be ensuring that the Texas Racing Commission is sound and squeaky clean," Clements said.

ciple leaves the operation and publication of the school paper with him.

"In practice, there's no prior review," he said. "I've never had a principal that's done that."

"The updated policy pretty much puts things on my shoulders, which is what I always thought a journalism teacher is for."

He does keep Bowerman informed on potentially controversial issues in the Corral, citing the principal's need to know as the reason.

"If I felt the principal needed to know something, I'd tell him. He needs to know — it's part of his job," Pointevint said. "If I felt like an article might touch on libel or harm someone, I'd check with (Bowerman) first."

The journalism instructor conceded that the Supreme Court decision creates the potential for abuse by administrators, but said such abuse is unlikely.

Oil/Markets

"The potential for the principal to censor the paper is there, but what principal has time for it?" he asked. "He has enough to do without worrying about the paper. But if he wants to assume that responsibility, the court obviously gave him the authority."

Student staffers of the Corral agreed that the administration doesn't interfere with their operation, but disagreed with the court decision, describing it as an infringement of their rights.

"We pretty much have the right to print what we want," second-year Corral Editor Jennifer Poe said. She agreed that the principal doesn't interfere with publication, but added that he shouldn't have the authority to do so.

"He shouldn't have the right to censor student stories," she said. "If the principal doesn't believe in abortion, that doesn't mean that the students' stories have to reflect that belief."

Teen jailed in grandparents' death

BONHAM (AP) — A high school senior wanted in connection with the slayings of his grandparents was jailed in Del Rio after he was arrested while trying to cross into Mexico, authorities said.

Fannin County Sheriff Sam Patton said Thursday there is still no clear motive in the killings, although he said the 17-year-old "was aggravated by authority figures."

The youth was arrested by U.S. Customs agents in Del Rio and was in custody in the Del Rio city jail, authorities said. Kim Kavanaugh, a spokesman with the Fannin County sheriff's office, said late Thursday that he did not know when the boy would be charged and transferred back to Bonham.

The bodies of the Rev. Charles Slusher, 63, and his wife, Sudie, 64, were found at home Wednesday in the parsonage of the Bonham First Church of the Nazarene.

Patton said preliminary autopsy results show Mrs. Slusher was shot in the head, chest and shoulder with a .357-caliber Magnum. Her husband appeared to have been shot at least twice with the same gun, the sheriff said.

Patton said the Slushers' grandson, described by school officials as an average student with no record of disciplinary problems, had been in a fight with his girlfriend at a basketball game in Wylie Tuesday night.

"She said that he slapped her and threatened her," Patton said.

Investigators believe the slayings occurred when the youth returned from the game, about 75 miles away, late Tuesday night. Slusher's body was found in bed and his wife's body was found in the living room.

A warrant had been issued for the arrest of the youth on murder charges.

Colombian energy minister emphasizes economics

HOUSTON (AP) — The threat of drug-related violence in Colombia centers on those involved in fighting drug traffickers, not average citizens and foreigners, a top government official says.

Guillermo Perry, Colombian Minister of Mines and Energy, said at a Thursday news conference it is unfortunate that news in America focuses on the notorious drug wars instead of his country's booming economy.

"Most Colombians and foreigners in Colombia do not have to fear," Perry said.

"It's the people directly related with the trials and condemning of drug traffic heads," Perry said, adding that he does not fear for his own safety.

Army units on Wednesday rolled into the Colombian cities to help police enforce President Virgilio Barco's emergency measures against drug traffickers, leftist guerrillas and right-wing death squads.

On Monday, Colombian Attorney General Carlos

Hoyos was slain by drug traffickers who also are blamed for the deaths of a justice minister, 21 judges, two newspaper editors and scores of police officers and soldiers.

"The violence that this cartel of drug heads has been exerting just shows how much pressure has been put on them, how strong the action of the Colombian government has been against them," Perry said.

He said two of the five drug organization heads have been captured, although one had been freed by a Colombian judge — "something similar to what happened here in the U.S. with a Mafia figure."

"Even in the period of the '80s, which has been a general recessionary period for Latin America, we have not had a recession," he said. "We have grown at an average 3.6 percent in the '80s. There is no other Latin American country that has grown like that — in a strong dynamic way."

Boy rescued from abandoned well

RED OAK (AP) — An eight-year-old boy who fell into an abandoned water well in this Dallas suburb says he said his prayers and thought about his family during the several minutes he spent clinging to some bricks embedded in the well's shaft.

Jeffery Lyle Mills, a third-grader, was not injured and spent only several minutes in the well shaft Thursday until a cable television company employee was able to pull him out of the muddy hole.

The boy did suffer chills and swallowed some mud, he said.

The youth said he fell about 3 p.m., when he and two friends were sitting on a mound of dirt around the well throwing stones in the water.

The children were on their way home from school when they stopped at the empty lot in this Ellis County town about 20 miles south of downtown Dallas.

"I threw a rock and I slipped down and fell," Mills said.

Mayor Leon Long said city workers had filled the well before.

"We filled up those wells to start with, but the good Lord settled the dirt back in there, not us," said Long, who said he feared that the incident would bring negative publicity to his town.

Mills slipped completely under water, but never touched bottom. He said he quickly lunged toward the top and held on to bricks in the well's wall.

School name change may start suit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A San Antonio School District board official says he will ask the local NAACP to sue the district to stop it from changing the name of a high school named to honor a pioneer black woman poet.

Thomas Gaffney, vice president of the school board, said Thursday the civil rights organization should file suit against the district to stop it from changing the name of Wheatley High School to Brackenridge High School.

Wheatley was named for Phillis Wheatley, the first prominent black woman poet in the United States. Wheatley was born in 1753.

Gaffney said he voted against the name change at Monday's board meeting because it violates a 1969 agreement with the Office of Civil Rights to always have a high school bearing Wheatley's name.

The board voted 5-2 Monday to change the Wheatley school name to George Brackenridge, who was a prominent San Antonio philanthropist and businessman. The board also voted to rename Emerson Middle School to Wheatley Middle School.

"I can't speak for the local NAACP, but I'll do everything I can to convince them that's the thing to do," he said.

He said he will meet with Ethel Minor, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as soon as possible.

Gaffney, who has been on the board since 1972, pointed out that the 1969 district plan to end racial discrimination called for Wheatley High School to be consolidated with Fox Technical High School and become Wheatley-Fox High School until a new building could be completed for Wheatley High School.

The schools remained consolidated until the new school was completed, he said.

Wheatley High School's enrollment now includes 1,771 Hispanic students, 203 black and 134 white.

Time to reform election process

Since the strife-torn Democratic convention of 1968, great changes have taken place in the way American political parties select presidential candidates.

Have the changes improved the system? Have reforms involved more people in the selection of quality candidates? Or have they simply given power to interest groups instead of party bosses, destroying the influence of the parties and doing nothing to improve the quality of candidates?

The current group running for president makes it seem the system is failing. Becoming a viable candidate has little to do with talent or integrity; the presidential race has become an endurance contest.

In 1968, before the nominating process was consumed by the direct primary system, Hubert Humphrey didn't announce his candidacy until six months before the general election. Pete du Pont made his announcement roughly 26 months before the 1988 general election, and he's not alone. George Bush, Bob Dole, Dick Gephardt, Bruce Babbitt — all have been running hard for at least two years. And the election is still nearly a year away.

Today's round-the-clock campaigning is a direct result of transferring power from the party bosses (who used to control their delegations via the onerous "unit rule") to the people. It takes much longer to reach the people than to reach the bosses.

That may be bad, but is it worse than letting a few bosses pick candidates?

The nomination system is evolving. Nearly everyone except residents of Iowa and New Hampshire feels those two states are given an unwarranted voice in the selection process. This is primarily the fault of the media.

But it is possible Super Tuesday may be the death knell of the inordinate influence of those states. No candidate since 1952 has been elected president without winning the New Hampshire primary. But this could be the year.

If it happens, watch other states join to hold regional primaries. It is unlikely there is a "perfect system." But the state primary approach that began to take hold with John Kennedy in 1960 is due for another overhaul.

A job requiring good taste

By JOE MURRAY
Lufkin Daily News

LUFKIN (AP) — Everybody probably knew it but me, that Ronald Reagan has a food taster.

How I found out was by reading all the way through the news story about the President suffering nausea, vomiting, and related stomach problems. This was the night before his meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita, which, I suppose, is neither here nor there. Hardly anything I read surprises me much anymore.

But the last paragraph was the exception: "As a security measure, Reagan's food is routinely tasted by an aide. (White House spokesman) Fitzwater said he did not know if the taster had also become ill."

Gee. If I were a Washington reporter, I think I'd make an effort to find out, and in the process ask a whole lot of other questions that come to mind.

- Who holds the office of Presidential Food Taster? Does the White House have a photo of him we can run in the paper? I imagine somebody a lot like Don Knotts on the old Steve Allen show. "Are you nervous, food taster?" the President might ask. "Nupe!" he replies, wide-eyed.

- How much is it costing the taxpayers for Mr. Reagan to have a food taster? What's his salary? Are meals included?

- Is he a Secret Service agent, perhaps a member of the Secret Service Food Service?

- After the food is tasted, how long does Mr. Reagan have to wait until he figures it's safe to dig in? Five minutes? Ten minutes? Is there also a Presidential Food Taster Watcher whose job it is to be on the lookout if the food taster suddenly starts twitching strangely?

- Why haven't we heard of the Presidential Food Taster before?

Lawmaker's pork express gets derailed by Congress

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Every Christmas, members of Congress scramble like elves to pass their favorite treasures into law before they recess for the holidays.

Often, the lawmakers hide little presents to themselves in bigger bills. The surprises sometimes masquerade as housekeeping changes, euphemistically known as "technical amendments."

Several members recently got caught sneaking in funding for everything from ski lifts in Idaho to a center for the study of Belgian endive.

The bolder members make he open, on the Senate or House floor. One of the boldest is New Jersey Democrat Jim Howard, the foreman of the Capitol Hill Pork Factory, better known as the House Public Works Committee.

While other lawmakers grappled with trimming the budget deficit, Howard spent the last weeks before Christmas bringing home the bacon — scouring the Hill in search of ways to stuff a few more road projects into the stockings of his friends. He failed, but not for lack of heroic effort.

At first, he tried to create his own bill for these giveaways — a "technical corrections" bill that rightfully should be saved for correcting typos and misspellings. The Senate refused to buy his "corrections."

So, Howard forged on to the House Appropriations Committee, which was working on the continuing resolution, the bill that keeps the government running until individual budgets are approved. You might think that's an unlikely place to find millions of dollars in road projects, but you can't keep a good porker down.

Howard's aide told our associate Stewart Harris that the congressman only tried the back-door tactic after the committee had let stand some pork barrel projects sent over by the Senate. The committee looked like an easy mark, but it wasn't. The members said no to most of Howard's more questionable projects.

Down, but not out, Howard then tried to tack his pet projects to the Budget Reconciliation Act, the bill that Congress hoped would sliced billions from the deficit and settle the Wall Street jitters over the growing national debt. To no one's surprise, Howard proposal was rejected.

Howard had only the most generous of intentions. He wanted to divvy up $31 million in road projects for the districts of his friends in Congress. It was probably just coincidence that those friends were also senior members of the House Public Works Committee: John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., and Bud Shuster, R-Pa.

Howard and his pals run a system that hands out public works money based on political clout, not on merit. That isn't to say these particular projects wouldn't be worthwhile, but the system doesn't allow for much weighing of priorities. Howard lavishes money on his friends while other urgent projects go unfunded.

Pork players argue that the money comes from the Highway Trust Fund, which is a separate pot of gold and doesn't count against the national debt. It is funded by gasoline taxes. What they don't seem to grasp is that many of the states would rather have the money go to needier projects.

For those states that manage to delay the unwanted projects and spend the money where it is really needed, Howard had a Christmas gift, too. He proposed language to force a state to spend money on projects recommended by Congress, even if the state officials know their road needs better. Fortunately for the states, Howard had no luck getting that passed, either.

ILLEGAL BARGAINS — Buying cars on the gray market may look like a bargain, but buyers have to skirt the law to get the cheapest price. Gray market dealers import luxury foreign cars direct to the buyer and skip the middleman.

But they also frequently skip the emissions control equipment required in the United States. The Environmental Protection Agency investigated the gray market and found that some dealers are falsifying emissions certificates, claiming that the car carries pollution control gear when it does not.

IDENTITY FOR SALE — The problem of fake identification cards in this country is not limited to teenagers looking to buy liquor and illegal aliens looking for jobs. The Department of Health and Human Services investigated the black market in Social cards and found that false IDs are costing the American public about $24 billion a year.

An Illinois alderman used a false name and Social Security number to open a bank account where he hid money stolen from a mortgage company.

I wish O.P. Evans had lived long enough to have known of controversial "Crazy Joe" Clark, the Patterson, N.J., high school principal who took over an urban school with a reputation for drugs, fights, stabbings and rapings and turned it into a model institution where students now actually are learning something.

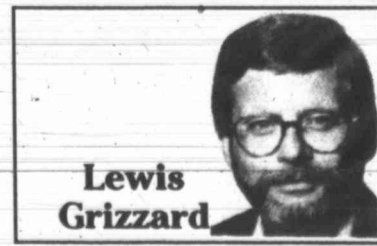

O.P. Evans was principal of Newnan, Ga. High School, where I was a student from 1960 until I graduated in 1964.

Mr. Evans, and I cannot refer to him in any other way, was a tall, red-like man with dark hair, bushy eyebrows, and there was a certain commanding presence about him.

He opened each of his many addresses to the student body by pulling forth an old tattered Bible he had carried since his Army days. It was held together by a rubber band and the Lord's will.

"When I was a child..." he would begin reading from the Scriptures with his deep, foreboding voice. God must have been quite pleased to hear his messages delivered in such a striking manner.

Mr. Evans did not have as tough a job as Joe Clark has. He principaled in a simpler time. His students, during my enrollment, were all white and mostly middle-class who still feared and respected authority. But had he ever been confronted with Joe Clark's problems, I think he would have handled them in the same manner as Crazy Joe.

- Joe Clark carries a baseball bat at Eastside High.
- Mr. Evans' paddlings were legendary.

"Yeah, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for I have already been paddled by Mr. Evans and nothing could be worse," quoth one who emerged from the paddling chamber, still smarting from the pain.

- Joe Clark expelled 60 students he referred to as leeches, for having no interest in graduating. Some of these "leeches" were as old as 21.

Neighbors' courage invaluable

By ALISHA GOLDMAN

In recent years I believe the "neighbor factor" that once was a common denominator in American cities has been disappearing.

Even in the middle-sized cities like Abilene and Big Spring, people are becoming more afraid to be the Good Samaritan. They are likely to be rewarded with severe injuries or worse.

When I recently visited my sister and brother-in-law in Abilene, they told me an interesting story that renewed my hope that perhaps neighbors still exist.

They told me there had been a rash of burglaries during and following the holidays on "The Hill" — home of Abilene Christian University.

Like many homes around a university campus, their house has a small apartment attached to it, often rented to college students. A young couple currently lives there, adjacent to my sister's home.

One afternoon a man was seen exiting the home carrying a pillowcase full of items. A crippled man who lives behind the house on the alley considered it unusual. Confined to a wheelchair, he couldn't leave the house, but he called the police immediately.

The man proceeded down the alley. He had, in fact, taken the couple's VCR and camera from the home after entering through a window.

Another neighbor farther down the alley, a recent burglary victim himself, saw the suspect and decided to risk following him and see if he could do anything.

Meanwhile the police officer who had been called to the scene drove by the suspect, carrying the pillowcase, and the neighbor, following a few hundred feet behind. The neighbor's attempt to get the officer's attention failed, but the suspect saw the police car and simultaneously realized he was being followed.

Dropping the VCR, he ran with the camera — and escaped. The neighbor returned to the burglarized apartment and gave his story to the police.

I visited with Susan, one of the two residents of the home. Although they were sorry to lose their camera, they were glad to discover they had neighbors who cared enough to get involved.

Even though the incident had robbed her of a sense of security while at home, alone during the day, she said she had gained the valuable knowledge that the people around her were concerned for her welfare.

In a college town, where the students come and go constantly, it was a surprise to me.

In this day, it is easy to say that it is too dangerous to play the Good Samaritan. But with caution and wisdom, we can still be the good neighbors we should. And thank God for the ones we have.

24 Injured in crash

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — An Amtrak train with about 100 people aboard struck a work train and derailed today, injuring at least 24 people and setting off delays in the nation's busiest passenger rail corridor.

Authorities reported no deaths from the 12:34 a.m. derailment of the Amtrak Night Owl, en route from Washington to Boston, and injuries among the 24 people sent to hospitals apparently were minor.

Wreckage was strewn for three blocks, but several trains moved through the crash site with delays estimated at 20 to 30 minutes, said Jim Barber, an Amtrak spokesman in Washington.

Clan members in jail

MARION, Utah (AP) — Five polygamist clan members were in jail today and their leader was in serious condition with gunshot wounds after a 13-day standoff ended in a gun battle that killed one law officer.

The clan's matriarch, Vickie Singer, tearfully pleaded innocent Thursday to four federal charges stemming from the Jan. 16 bombing of a Mormon chapel near the fenced-in compound where the clan lives.

Office questioned orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI field offices directed by headquarters to investigate opponents of the Reagan administration's Central America policies questioned the extent to which they could monitor "seemingly legitimate political activity," agency documents show.

The questions arose during an FBI domestic surveillance campaign that began in 1981 and eventually expanded to focus on hundreds of individuals and organizations opposed to U.S. intervention in Central America, according to the agency records.

FBI headquarters in July 1984 repeated its instructions to the field offices, adding the proviso that "it is imperative that these investigations are closely supervised and monitored to ensure our investigations do not infringe upon the rights of these individuals or groups."

The FBI documents were released this week by the Center for Constitutional Rights, a New York-based civil rights and civil liberties organization which obtained about 1,300 pages from FBI files under the Freedom of Information Act.

Jet crash

One Navy pilot dies in collision

INDEPENDENCE, Calif. (AP) — The fiery crash of two Navy F-18 Hornet jet fighters over the Sierra Nevada killed one naval aviator, but the other pilot ejected safely, officials say.

The two $23 million jet fighters crashed at 10:20 a.m. Thursday during a training mission over the mountains.

The wreckage was found at the base of the foothills, about 15 miles southeast of this eastern Sierra town and about 175 miles north of Los Angeles, said Dennis McGrath, a spokesman for Lemoore Naval Air Station in central California.

Lt. Cmdr. Eric Hitchcock, 35, a 12-year Navy man originally from Wadmalaw Island, S.C., died in the crash, while Lt. David Morgan, 25, a seven-year Navy man from Lockport, N.Y., ejected safely, McGrath said.

Hitchcock was married but had no children. Morgan lives in Lemoore with his wife. Both pilots were assigned to strike fighter Squadron 161 at Lemoore.

Mike Duncan, a mechanic for the Inyo County Road Department, said he became aware of the crash when he heard an explosion.

"There was a big single ball of fire coming down," Duncan said. "That single ball broke into two balls and from here it looked like maybe a quarter mile apart. I didn't see a parachute or anything."

The impact of at least one of the planes sparked a minor brushfire, but the planes came down in a burned-over area several miles from the nearest highway, U.S. 395, said U.S. Forest Service dispatcher Ann Honeyman.

The $23 million McDonnell Douglas F-18 Hornet is the Navy's newest operational aircraft.

Capable of flying Mach 1.7, nearly twice the speed of sound, the one-seat, twin-engine jet fighter is designed to operate from aircraft carriers for either air-to-air combat or ground-to-air attacks.

Black smoke trails from one of two Navy F-15 jets as it plummets to earth Thursday about 15 miles south of Independence, Calif. The mid-air collision killed one Navy pilot, the other ejected to safety.

Plane fuselage found

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — The wreckage of a South African Airways jumbo jet that crashed in November and killed all 159 people aboard has been found in the Indian Ocean, the U.S. Embassy said today.

The embassy said it had received a report from a U.S. Navy captain who heads the team helping the South African searchers with special sonar scanning and photographic equipment.

The broken fuselage of the Boeing 747 was located at a depth of 14,400 feet, the embassy said. It said the report was made by Capt. Tom Ingersoll.

The embassy had indicated the wreckage was discovered today, but the South African Department of Transport, which made an announcement about the plane two hours after the embassy, said the find actually was made on Thursday.

Ortega, pope meeting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II received President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua today, stressing the need for peace in war-torn Central America and the rights of people to live "under the principles of a real democracy."

The pope, who heard Ortega sharply criticize U.S. "imperialism" at their last meeting five years ago, greeted the president of the leftist government with the usual diplomatic honors, but in a cool manner.

At the end of their 30-minute private talks and a 10-minute exchange of gifts before photographers, the pope wished "peace for all Nicaraguans" and Ortega replied: "I believe we must make peace." The pope and Ortega spoke in Spanish without interpreters.

Cleric says captives alive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The nation's highest Shiite Moslem cleric said today he was certain that all the foreign hostages held in Lebanon are "alive and well," including Anglican church envoy Terry Waite.

"He is the most alive among them," said Sheikh Mohammed Mehdi Shamseddin, head of the Supreme Shiite Council, which governs the sect's religious affairs. He did not elaborate.

Shamseddin made the remark during an interview with The Associated Press in response to a question about a claim recently made in a West German courtroom that Waite had been killed by his captors.

NOTHING IN THIS WORLD IS PERMANENT EXCEPT GOD'S LOVE

We all make the mistake of assuming that anything on this earth will go on forever, and building our lives upon it; for this is simply not true. The tides of business can turn, and even long-established companies may suddenly go under. Whole towns can be leveled by earthquakes or tornadoes. Mountains rise and fall; shorelines advance and recede. Even the stars change positions, however imperceptibly, during our lifetimes. The lives of human beings are in a constant state of change, with the passage of time. The only thing in this world that remains unchanged is the love of God. We should thank Him for it and realize that it may cause even some of these tragedies to be blessings, in disguise. It's all in His universal plan, and you are a part of it.

Church highlights singing talent
"Sunday Nights in Big Spring," is a night of praise and singing at the Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster, at 6 p.m. Sunday. This is the first of four Sundays throughout the year that will highlight local singing talent. Every fifth Sunday will be designated as "Sunday Nights in Big Spring."
Anyone who would like to participate in the singing, please call Gary Smith, pastor, at 267-7015. The public is invited.

Religion roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — With endorsement of U.S. bishops and the National Catholic Council for Evangelization, the Paulist Fathers have launched a new, bimonthly magazine to spark greater evangelizing efforts in America.

The Rev. Kenneth Boyack, editor of the magazine, Catholic Evangelization in the United States of America, says it "arrives on the scene at a transition point in the history" of the U.S. church. "With 53 million active Catholics ... Catholics are now in a position to make a significant difference in the evangelization of the people of the United States."

NEW YORK (AP) — An Israeli legislator says more Jews were forced to leave Arab countries after Israel was established in 1948 than Arabs who left Israel.

Shlomo Hillel, speaker of the Israel Knesset, told the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations that "of the million Jews who lived in Arab countries in 1948, less than 40,000 remain today."

"A real exchange of population took place during the five years after the birth of the state," he said. "Israel did its utmost to absorb the Jewish immigrants. The Arabs neglected the Palestinians and let the refugee problem fester for their political purposes."

Pastor to lead four-night Bible study

Dr. Jerold McBride, who has pastored the First Baptist Church, San Angelo, for 17 years, will lead a four-night Bible study at East Fourth Street Baptist Church beginning Sunday and concluding Wednesday.

The Sunday night session will be from 6 to 7 p.m. with the week night sessions to run from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

McBride will teach from the book of Malach from the Old Testament. He has taught this book several times in other churches over the past few months, including Glorieta Baptist Conference Center in New Mexico, according to a news release.

McBride, who is well-known as a great pulpiteer and an outstanding Bible scholar, holds degrees from Hardin-Simmons University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, the release stated.

Before pastoring at First Baptist Church, San Angelo, he served as pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Gainesville; Southside Baptist Church, Palestine; First Baptist Church, Chickasha, Okla.; First Baptist Church, Ponca City, Okla.; and served two years as director of evangelism for the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma.

He served on the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma from 1962-68 and the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas from 1976 to 1985.

McBride served as first vice president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas in 1985-86. In addition he has served on numerous committees in the Concho Valley Baptist Association and for the Texas and Oklahoma conventions.

He has also been a featured speaker for many conferences at Glorieta Baptist Conference Center, for Baptist meetings and conventions in both Oklahoma and Texas and has conducted Bible preaching workshops in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Mexico and Brazil.

McBride has written several books including "The Romance of Christian Living" in 1971, and numerous articles for Southern Baptist periodicals and state papers. The community is invited to attend.

DR. JEROLD MCBRIDE

Children are a reward from God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I'm a failure as a parent. My three teenagers have all been in trouble of one sort or another, with no end in sight. After their father left us and divorced me, things just fell apart and I didn't take much time for them. I know nothing that can be done now, but I wish I had it all to do over again. Maybe my letter will make some parents pay more attention to their children when they're younger. — Mrs. A.O.

DEAR MRS. A.O.: Every week I get letters like yours, and they always bring sadness to me because God did not intend for our families to be like this. God gave marriage and the family to us for our joy and security; He also entrusted our children to us so we could teach them how God wants them to live. The Bible says, "Sons are a heritage from the Lord, children — a reward from him" (Psalm 127:3). Being a good parent is not easy, but it is a responsibility from God.

Although you feel you've failed as a parent, let me encourage you with two facts. First, your children probably have many years ahead of them, and as the years go by changes can come in their lives as they begin to see how serious life really is. Second, God is able to help you right now to deal with your problems. You can't change the past — but with God's help you can change the future.

As a first step, give your life to Jesus Christ. Admit to Him that you've failed and need His forgiveness and help, and by faith ask Him to come into your life. Then ask Him to help you love your children as you should — to take time with them and pray for them. In addition, pray that God will help you point them to Christ. Right now they are drifting and in danger of wrecking their lives. But God loves them (as He loves you), and when they see the difference Christ can make in your life they may realize their own need for Him as well.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: To me, the important thing is not what you believe, but how you live. I've met far too many people who claimed to be Christians but were really just hypocrites, and I think God is more interested in how we live than in what we say we believe. — W.W.

DEAR W.W.: There is certainly some truth in what you say, of course — as the Bible itself emphasizes: "What good is it, my brothers, if a man claims to have faith but has no deeds? ... faith by itself, if it is not accompanied by action, is dead. ... As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without deeds is dead" (James 2:14, 17, 26).

But the key is to realize that how we act will be determined by what we believe. The verses I quoted above were directed at the person who thoughtlessly says, "Oh yes, I believe in Christ," but has never really committed his or her life to Christ nor is seeking to follow Christ every day. A true faith in Christ affects the way we live.

Church briefs

Church offers prayer meetings

Spring Tabernacle, 911 W. Fourth St., will conduct prayer meetings each Tuesday beginning at 10 a.m.

The prayer theme will be "Pray You One For Another." "If there is a need in your life or in someone you know, come let us agree and seek God's help for love, joy, peace, strength, wisdom, whatever the need may be," said Arnold Tonn, minister. "Prayer changes things," he added.

Christian drama group performs

Sunday is "Super Sunday" at First Church of God, 2009 Main St. Members have been challenged to fill the church "Super Bowl" with friends.

The Covenant Players, a Christian drama group, will present a play for the Children's Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. They will also display their talents to the adults at the 10:50 worship service, and will be featured in a special afternoon celebration service at 1:30 p.m.

"Super Sunday" activities include seeing which team brings the most friends to church.

The church auditorium will be decorated with the team colors of the Denver Broncos on one side, and the Washington Redskins on the other.

Members are urged to sit on the side they want to win the Super Bowl. The winning team will be announced during the morning service. An old-fashioned carry-in dinner will follow in the church Fellowship Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Congregation attends program

The Big Spring congregation of Jehovah's Witness, along with six other congregations from the West Texas area, met Jan. 23 at the Sweetwater Auditorium, Sweetwater.

C.L. Lunsford, spokesman for the local group, noted that 801 persons attended the special one-day program of instruction and fellowship.

The principle address of the assembly was delivered by E.R. Brandt, a traveling representative of the Watchtower Society, who serves the San Antonio area.

His topic was "Jehovah's Organization Is On The Move." He cited examples of the growth of Jehovah's Witness, noting that in Japan in 1949, there were nine members — to date they have grown to 122,000.

In Italy in 1945, there were 100 members and today there are 150,000. In Poland, there are more Jehovah's Witness than the population of all but a few of the larger countries of the world, according to a news release.

And in Mexico, there are 222,000 members, and one million people are studying the Bible with Jehovah's Witness in their homes.

Guest minister slated to speak

Elder Cecil Darity, Macon, Ga., will be the guest minister Sunday for a series of meetings, which will begin at 6 p.m. at the Philadelphia Primitive Baptist Church, 713 Willa St.

Services will be at 7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Darity, an evangelistic gift among the Primitive Baptists, has preached in numerous states across the nation during his 45 years as a minister, according to a news release.

After each service, a fellowship hour and refreshments will be offered.

Church hosts "Super Sunday"

Keith Gibbons, pastor of College Heights Christian Church, 400 East 21st St., invites all football fans to attend the worship services at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

Those in attendance will help determine who, in the opinion of the College Heights' congregation will win the Super Bowl.

The south side of the chapel will be decorated in the colors of the Denver Broncos and the north side will be decorated in the colors of the Washington Redskins.

Those in attendance are asked to sit on the side of the team they are favoring to win the game.

The team that has the largest number of fans sitting in their section will determine who will win the game.

"Come and worship the Lord and enjoy this fun-filled morning," said Gibbons. Noting that services will be dismissed in plenty of time to watch the game.

Atheist upset over rearing kids Catholic

DEAR ABBY: I've been spending a lot of time the last five years with the most sensuous woman I've ever known. She's made it plain that she wants to marry me. I can give her security and position; I also know how to make her gears hum. We share a lot of other pleasures, too — skiing, backpacking, boating and talking.

Dear Abby

But there's a worm floating in our punch bowl. I'm an atheist and she's Catholic. This is a problem only when it comes to how we'll raise our kids — should we marry. She insists on raising them Catholic, saying, "How can we raise them in your religion? You're nothing."

She says she doesn't believe a lot of the mumbo-jumbo her church teaches. She's been divorced and never goes to confession. Still, she insists on imposing that outmoded nonsense on our kids. I can't stand the idea.

I want to start a family before I'm much older, and the clock is running even faster for her. Every time we discuss the problem of religion, we break up, but within two weeks, knowing that paradise is only a phone call away, I'm dialing her number — if she hasn't already called me.

I could just stand up for my beliefs, do my best to give our kids the freedom to think for themselves and hope it will all work out, but she wants my promise that our kids will be raised Catholic. I don't want to go into a marriage based on a lie. What should I do?

HESITANT IN HOLLYWOOD
DEAR HESITANT: You two appear to have too much going for you to break up now. Please give counseling an honest shot. But if that doesn't work, find another atheist. And then thank God you didn't spend more time trying to get a Catholic to change her mind.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this so that other mothers and children will be spared the heartache we had in our home recently.

A child was having a birthday party, so the child's mother sent the party invitations to school for the teacher to distribute.

My child and two other children were left out. I cannot describe the hurt it caused my child to learn that she had been rejected. Abby, perhaps if mothers read this it will make them realize that if they choose to exclude a few classmates, it would be much kinder to either telephone or mail the invitations.

STRATFORD, OKLA.
DEAR STRATFORD: I thought that kind of invitation went out with the equally cruel practice of "choosing up teams" to compete in spelling or other competitive games. Get with it, Stratford!

DEAR ABBY: What should a hostess do when she has her dinner all prepared and set to go, and one of her guests greets her at the front door with "I brought the dessert for tonight. Everyone just loves my lemon icebox cake."

Abby, I made your chocolate mousse and it was ready to serve in individual parfait glasses. I won't tell you how I handled it. How do you think I should have handled it? Don't tell me my friend meant well and should have asked in advance if she could bring the dessert. I now she should have — but she didn't.

FROSTED IN PHOENIX
DEAR FROSTED: I would have served the dessert I had prepared, as well as a "sample" portion of my guest's lemon icebox cake. And I'd have done it with a smile. Did you?

DEAR ABBY: While I was in college in 1972 in Orlando, Fla. (Florida Technical University), my roommate was in a financial bind and he sold me his grandfather's Civil War saber. My roommate's name was Charlie Wheatley. I would like to return the saber because it's an heirloom and really should be owned by someone in Charlie's family, but I've lost track of Charlie and can't locate him.

I would be ever so grateful, Abby, if you would print this. Maybe Charlie or one of his friends or relatives will see it and write to you. I hope so.

DOUG FRAZEUR
(NOW IN MINNESOTA)
DEAR DOUG: I don't usually do this, but I'll make a stab at it. Anybody out there seen Charlie? If so, please contact me.

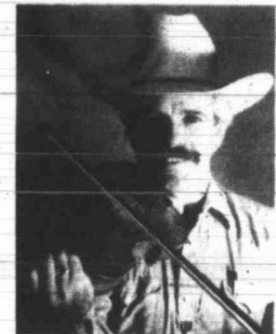

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, how to prevent unwanted pregnancy and how to handle the pain of growing up. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Charity flight may set round-the-world record

SEATTLE (AP) — A jet carrying moonwalker Neil Armstrong and more than 100 other passengers was winging its way around the world today in an attempt to set a new speed record and raise money for children's charities.

"Friendship One" took off Thursday evening in an attempt to circle the globe in 40 hours or less. Passengers include 100 people paying $5,000 each for charity, a half dozen journalists and 18 United Airlines crew members.

"We want to draw attention to the needs of the world's children. Those of us in the aviation community participating in this project think we can do so while making a mark in American aviation history and its technology," said Clay Lacy, a United Airlines pilot who formed the non-profit Friendship Foundation and solicited sponsors for the flight.

With a speed averaging 650 mph, the flight in the Boeing 747SP would take 36 to 40 hours, depending on winds, officials said.

A record of 45 hours and 32 minutes was set in February 1984 by Brooke Knapp, who flew a twin-engine Gulfstream III jet and raised nearly $1 million for UNICEF. She averaged 512.8 mph, including stops.

Among the passengers were Armstrong, the former astronaut who was the first person on the moon; Moya Lear, widow of the designer of the Lear jet; and Jim Zorn, a former Seattle Seahawks quarterback.

The jet's route carries it east over

Denver, Washington, Portugal, Egypt, Pakistan, India, Japan and Midway Island in the Pacific, returning Saturday morning to Boeing Field in Seattle.

Prior to leaving, Lacy said conditions were excellent and the flight could travel as fast as 800 mph, taking only 35 1/2 hours.

The trip must cover at least 20,000 nautical miles, or about 23,000 statute miles, to establish a record, said Bruce McCaw, a Seattle businessman who helped organize the flight. The actual flight is expected to cover 21,735 nautical miles, or about 25,000 statute miles.

The Friendship One plans to refuel only twice, in Athens, Greece, and Taipei, Taiwan, with each stop lasting 25 minutes. The 747SP is a smaller version of the 747 that can fly 7,700 miles without refueling, the longest range of any commercial airliner.

Fund-raising efforts will continue during and after the flight, said Dick Friel, a spokesman for the effort. Besides appeals for outright donations to benefit children, he said, Volkswagen donated a car that will be carried around the world on the flight, then raffled off.

Major contributors include United, Boeing, Pratt & Whitney and Volkswagen-U.S., Friel said.

Among charities being benefited are Children's Hospital in Seattle, Children's Hospital in Los Angeles, City of Hope children's charities in Los Angeles, and the education and scholarship fund for children at the Museum of Flight at Boeing Field.

OC nips Hawks at buzzer

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Odessa College's Rodney Harrell saved his only shot for the most critical time of the game. His attempt cost the Howard College Hawks dearly. Harrell's field goal attempt was good at the buzzer, handing the upset-minded Hawks a 74-72 loss in front of a large Howard homecoming crowd.

Harrell's 15-footer offset a furious Howard rally which saw the Hawks trailing by as many as 11 points in the second half. It also keeps Odessa, ranked No. 11 in the nation, unbeaten in league play.

The 5-10 Harrell's shot came after OC had tied the game at 72-72 on a monster slam dunk by Larry Johnson with 1:20 left in the game.

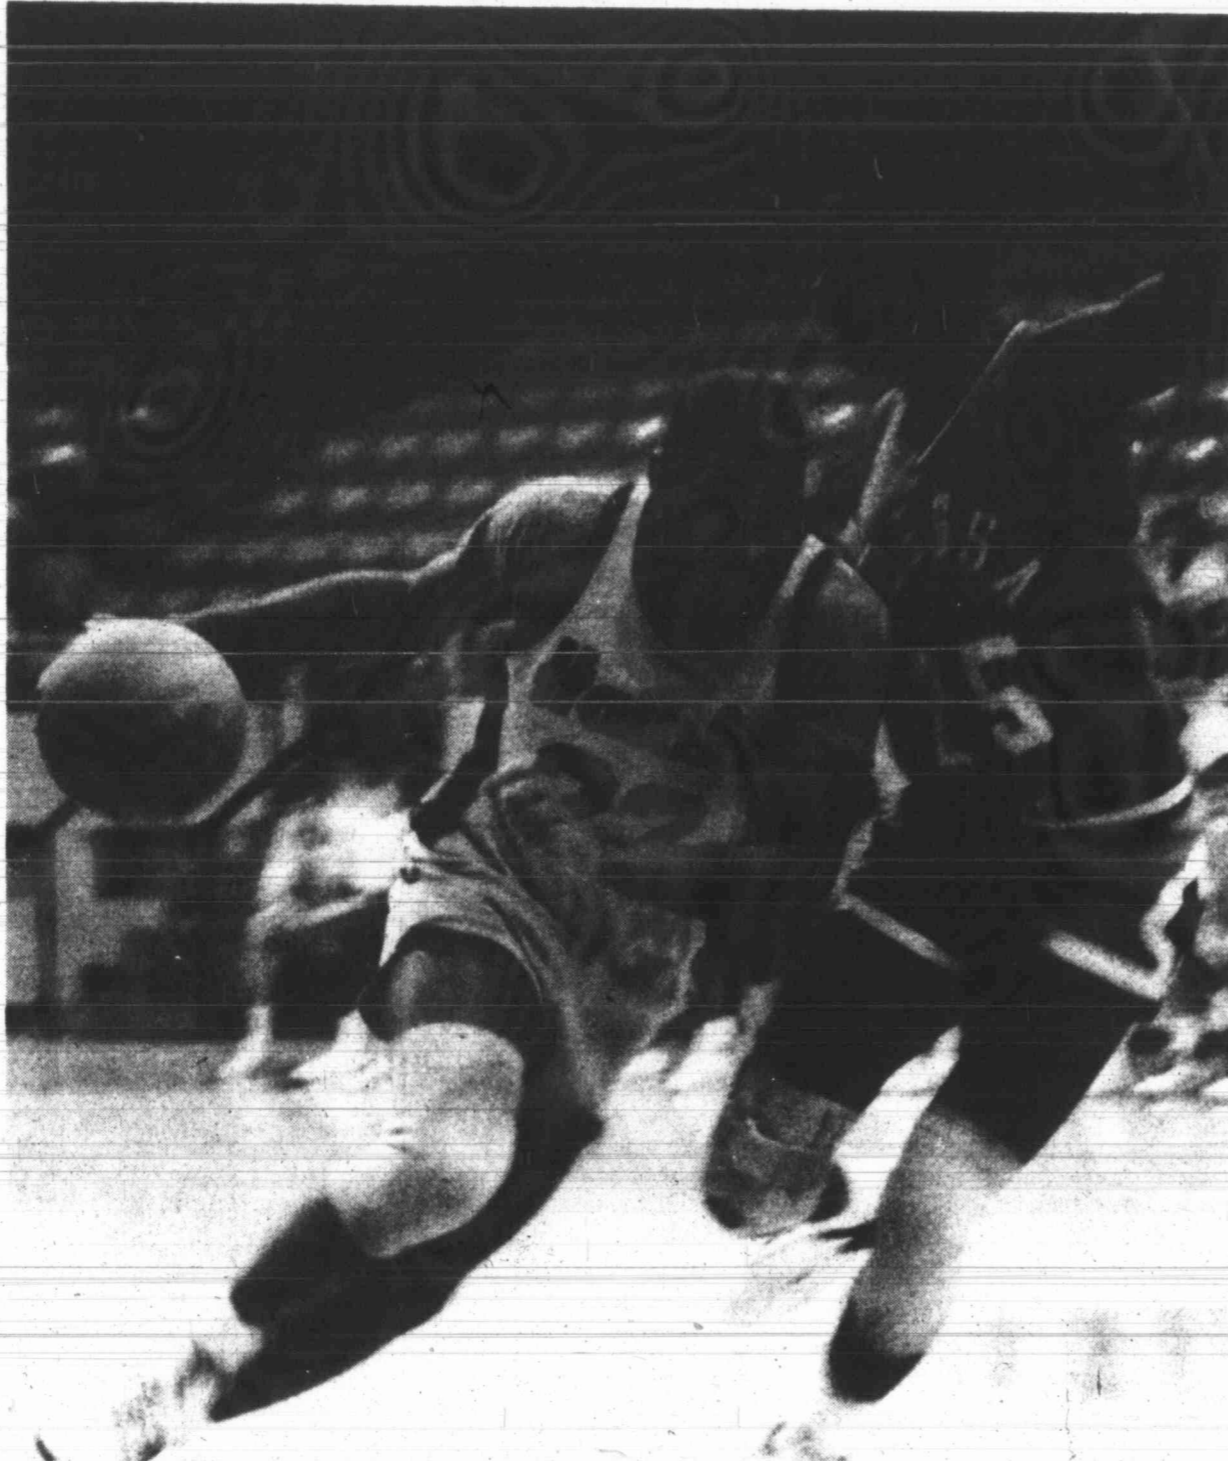

With time winding down, Howard got the ball via a Chris Miller steal. But in his haste traveling down the court, Miller turned the ball over. Then Odessa coach Dennis Helms called back-to-back timeouts with 16 seconds left on the clock.

The Wranglers brought the ball downcourt and worked it around, setting the stage for Harrell's buzzer-beater.

"I called the second timeout because I didn't think we were going out there confident," said Helms. "As many times as we had turned the ball over in the last few minutes, I wanted us to be sure of ourselves."

"I would rather we had got the ball inside to Larry (Johnson). But I also tell our perimeter people if they pass inside, move to an open position," said Helms.

"It was a real heartbreaker," said Howard coach Jerry Kassin. "We were playing straight man-to-man defense; he (Harrell) just penetrated and hit a good shot. These players (Howard) really haven't been playing together that long. We are finally executing as a team."

The two teams battled on even terms throughout most of the first half. OC made a strong run in the final two minutes to take a 35-28 halftime lead. The Wranglers converted three HC turnovers into baskets, while outscoring the Hawks 9-2 in the final two minutes. But the Hawks had proven they had come to play. Unlike the two team's first meeting in Odessa, where Odessa routed Howard 91-54, Howard did a good job of staying on the boards with Odessa in the first half, limiting the conference's leading rebounder, Johnson, to two boards.

Odessa hurt Howard at the foul line in the first half, sinking 10 of 12 attempts. Howard was three of four from the line in the first half.

Odessa College threatened to turn the game into a rout in the early going of the second half, taking a 50-39 lead five minutes into the quarter. Forwards Johnson, Riley Smith and guard Rodney Samuel keyed the rally.

But the Hawks came roaring back behind the outside shooting of guards Larry Pettigrew and Tony Smith. Howard made a nine minute run, outscoring Odessa 19-8, tying the game at 58 apiece with 6:15 left in the game.

From then on, the teams battled back and forth. Howard took its only lead of the second half with time winding down. The Hawks tied the game at 70-70 when Tyrone Greer got a steal; Smith passed downcourt to Pettigrew for the layup. Then they went ahead when Pettigrew hit two free throws with 1:41 left in the game.

Pettigrew led Howard in scoring with 19 points thanks to a seven-of-12 field goal performance. Smith played a super all-around game. He was six of eight from the field for 15 points. He also added five steals and three assists. Myron Wright was the other Hawk in double figures with 12.

Johnson and Smith led Odessa, combining for 43 points and 17 rebounds. Samuel added 13 points.

Howard falls to 4-5 in conference play and 9-14 overall. OC is now 22-2 overall and 9-0 in league play.

Howard will play Clarendon Monday in Clarendon at 8 p.m.

Injured hoopsters recovering

When the Big Spring High School Lady Steers take the floor against the San Angelo Lake View Maidens girls' basketball team tonight in Steer Gym, they do so without two of their starters.

Defensive standout Gisila Spears and ballhandling wizard Peggy Smith suffered knee injuries during Tuesday night's victory over Pecos.

Part of the news is good, according to coach C.E. Carmichael. "Right now, we're not expecting either of them to need surgery. Peggy (Smith) seems to have a worse injury than Gisila (Spears), Coach Blackburn says, but both of them should be back by the start of the playoffs."

Coach Everett Blackburn, trainer for all Big Spring High School Steers athletic programs, reported early today that both Spears and Smith are recovering well.

"We consider the injuries type one sprains," Blackburn said, "and the worst case sprain is a type three."

"Both girls have almost full range of motion, and in fact I had Gisila do a little running for me last night," the trainer said. "They will both be back, but how soon I can't say."

"With Peggy Smith, her injury is a little worse than Gisila's, but it is also a type one sprain. She has a hyperextended knee, and a stretched ligament. What we're doing there is putting some ice on it, doing some range of motion exercises and starting some strengthening exercises."

"But we're very happy with the rate of recovery in both of them," Blackburn said. "They're recovering really well."

Carmichael said Thursday, "Peggy seems to have been hit from behind and that resulted in a hyperextension of her knee, while Gisila's injury was more of a twisting of her knee, and

Hardin Simmons honors Poss

ABILENE — Hardin Simmons University will induct Delnor Poss into its Athletic Hall of Fame in ceremonies Friday, Feb. 12. Poss will be inducted for his accomplishments in both basketball and track and field from 1953-56.

A Big Spring resident for the past 27 years, Poss originally hailed from San Angelo. In 1952, the point guard helped direct San Angelo to the state basketball finals.

He then matriculated to Hardin Simmons, earning four letters in both basketball and track and field. At that time HSU was a member of the Border Conference, which included Texas Tech, Texas Western (now UTEP), Arizona, Arizona State, New Mexico State and West Texas State.

In basketball at HSU, Poss amassed 1,017 points in his final three years at guard, capping his efforts by being named to the All Border Conference First team. He was also the team MVP at Hardin Simmons. At that time, he held school scoring records for single game efforts of 34 points against Howard Payne and free throw conversions with 16 vs. Pepperdine. Hardin Simmons also was invited to the NCAA Tourney one of the years.

Poss placed fifth nationally in the 1953 NAIA National Track Meet in the triple jump and qualified for the National AAU Meet in 1954. He was also a sprinter.

Upon graduation from Hardin Simmons, he made coaching stops in Garden City, Menard and Big Spring. Poss made a 12-year exodus from the coaching world, re-entering as the Athletic Director at Midland College in 1977. Since that time, MC's athletic program has won national championships in basketball, golf, swimming and three in tennis. The basketball team has also made the NJCAA Final Four three of the past six years.

Poss stays physically involved in the basketball world, serving as a high school and college official with the Southwest Conference and the Lone Star Conference. He has also officiated numerous Texas High School State Tournaments and NJCAA National Tournaments.

Burrow edging closer to 'dream' of attending military academy

Herald staff report

Matt Burrow has a decision to make — and it may not be easy.

The Big Spring senior "has dreamed his whole life about attending the U.S. Air Force Academy — he's always wanted to be an astronaut," according to his mother, Debbie Burrow.

Congressman Charles Stenholm's Washington office has notified Burrows that he now has the opportunity — to attend the Air Force Academy or U.S. Military Academy in West Point, N.Y.

A Stenholm aide said this morning it's rather unusual to have two appointments offered. "It happens perhaps once a year," the spokeswoman said.

Burrow, the son of Guy and Debbie Burrow, 211 Circle Drive, visited the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs last weekend, she said and Matt will travel to New York this weekend. His mother said this morning that she expects he will make a decision by the middle of next week.

Burrow will play football at whichever academy he chooses. The 6-3, 200-pounder has been a varsity member of the Steer football team for the past three seasons.

Last year he received numerous post-season honors, including second team All-State at offensive tackle. This year he was played a new position, linebacker, and finished as one of the team's leading tacklers.

This season Burrow was named to the All-District, All-Crossroads Country, All-West Texas and All-Area football teams, for his play at offensive tackle and linebacker.

He is also starting first baseman for the Steer baseball team, and has a 3.91 grade point average.

Odessa burns Queens

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

"All we wanted to do was to play hard, hang in there and throw multiple defenses to confuse them," said Howard College Coach Don Stevens, following the game between Howard College and Odessa College at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Thursday night in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play. The Lady Wranglers won the contest 84-53, keeping their record unblemished in conference action.

The Howard Hawk-Queens played their hearts out against a solid team which is ranked third in the nation, and also with a bench to keep fresh players on the floor at all times. From the beginning the Lady Wranglers outmatched the Howard team with size and physical rough play.

Odessa got on the scoreboard first and scored six unanswered points until Howard's Renee Crooks got the ball under the basket, scoring and getting fouled on the way up. She completed the three-point play, and Howard was on the scoreboard, only behind 8-3 with 17:43 left on the clock.

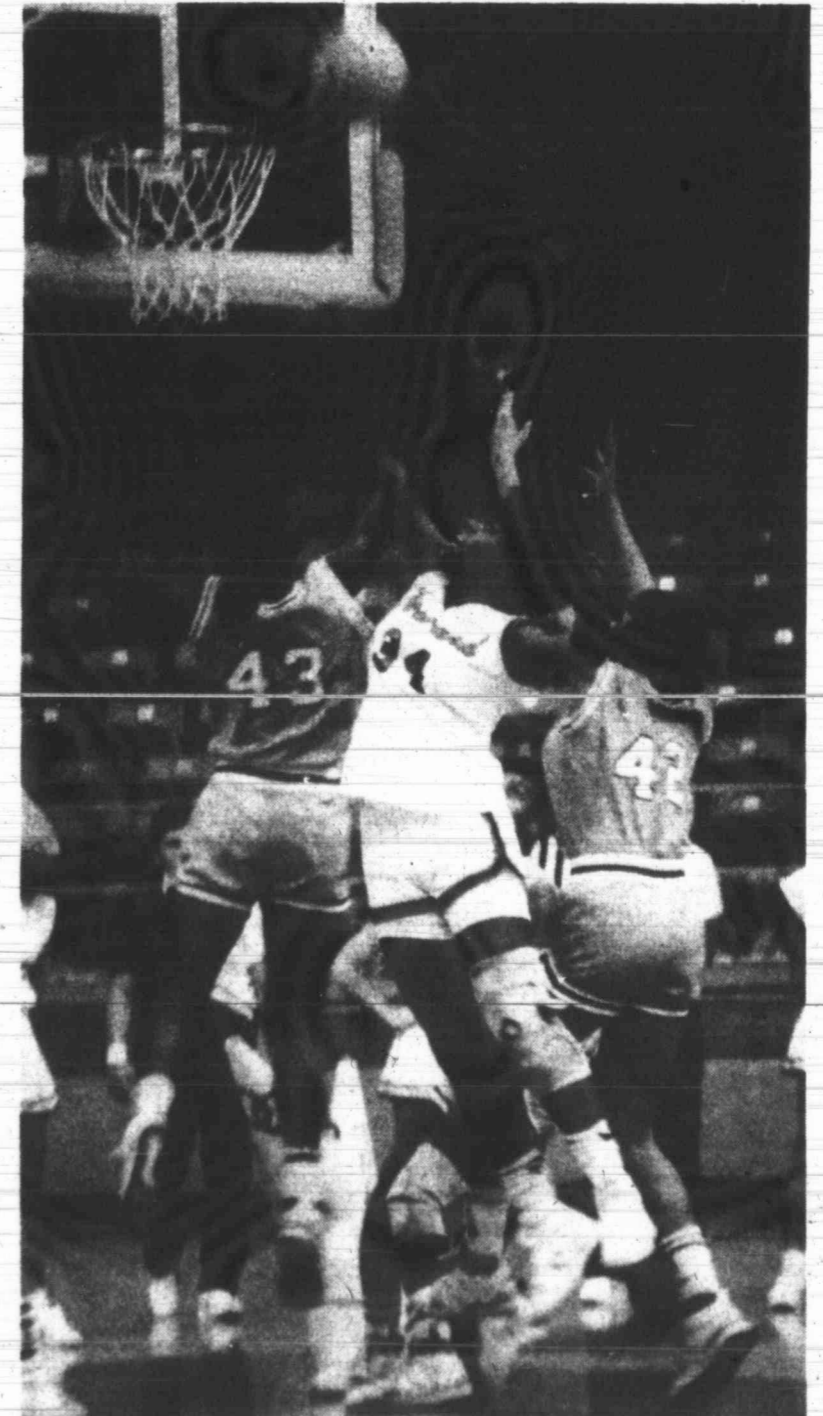

With three minutes gone off the ticker the Lady Wranglers were leading the Queens 17-11, but their impressiveness was nowhere near what one would be expecting to see. Howards' five looked like giant killers and kept the tally close on the mighty cowgirls.

With 11:10 left in the first half the Queens closed the gap to 19-15 as Sophomore standout Stefanie Massie found a way to score from the low post position with two or three Odessa players covering her like a blanket. Odessa coach Ken Hefner had a defense on the floor that at times Massie would draw as much as three players in her face.

As the first half came to a close Odessa led the Queens 42-28 with still hope of an upset against a team with possessing four ladies capable of playing Division I basketball.

"We played hard, but when it came time to score we could not make the baskets, we made nine out of 29 in the first half," said Stevens.

The second half started with the Odessa cowgirls scoring six points before the Queens could get started. Nelda Roy for the visitors scored two quick baskets and the tally kept going up, giving Odessa a 54-28 lead. The never-quitting Queens made a run at the Lady Wranglers, outscoring them 7-0, and keeping the nationally ranked team's coach nervously questioning each official's call.

With time winding down the visitors sensed a victory in the making as Coach Hefner kept the bench rolling out to substitute players almost at will. Kim Rankin, a 5-3 sophomore, played

Tigers' negotiation with Gibson stalls

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiations involving free agent Kirk Gibson have stalled because of a disagreement over contract clauses, the agent for the Detroit Tigers' outfielder says.

Seattle-based Doug Baldwin said Thursday a major problem was a "lockout" clause that the clubs are trying to introduce because of fears of another strike after the Basic Agreement between the owners and the players expires at the end of the 1989 season.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are believed to be offering Gibson a three-year contract for approximately $4.5 million.

Baldwin said the Dodgers are willing to give Gibson the two-year extension he seeks, but that contract language has become a major stumbling block.

"That's not to say we have an agreement on money because we don't yet," Baldwin told the Los Angeles Times from Seattle. "We've only kicked around some figures. But until the language is resolved, there's no sense resolving anything else. We can't go forward until we know how to handle this."

The problem stems from an attempt by the owners' Player Relations Committee to have all clubs include two new provisions in contracts being signed this winter.

The lockout clause would excuse an owner from having to pay a player in the event that the clubs stage a lockout in response to prolonged negotiations over a new bargaining agreement.

The other is known as a conversion clause and would enable a club to void the guaranteed aspects of a contract if the club arbitrarily decided that the player wasn't in first-class condition because of the use of illegal drugs, alcohol or prescription medicine.

"We've indicated to the Dodgers that there are ways to structure the language that would be acceptable to us, but whether it would be acceptable to them, I don't know," Baldwin said.

"They've said they would be willing to extend the contract through 1990, but only if we would be willing to include their language. It's a big problem at this point."

Fred Claire, the Dodgers' executive vice president, refused to comment Thursday. But a club spokeswoman said Claire had spoken with Baldwin on Thursday and expected to speak with him again today.

Seattle Mariners President Chuck Armstrong said he would like to bid for Gibson's services also, but he didn't think the club could afford to pay him.

Meanwhile, the Tigers have offered the slugging outfielder a one-year contract extension with a no-trade clause, the team said Thursday.

Snead says Skins champ might not be best golfer

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — The best golfer won't necessarily win all the money in the Senior Skins Game, Sam Snead says.

Since he has to spot the other three players 20 years or so, Snead hopes that opens the door for a septuagenarian to slip through and collect some of the $360,000.

"I don't think the best player always wins the skin; the guy who gets hot usually wins the most money," the 75-year-old Snead said as he prepared for the first seniors (50 and older) version of the match play competition.

"It's very interesting to watch. I think people would rather watch match play (hole-by-hole) than medal play (total strokes)."

"Sam's still capable of being a worthy opponent," Arnold Palmer, 58, said.

Snead and Palmer join Gary Player and Chi Chi Rodriguez for the Senior Skins Game this weekend at the Turtle Bay Resort on the north shore of Oahu.

Nine holes will be played Saturday and nine Sunday in the tailored-for-television version of the ages-old gambling game played by virtually every weekend hacker.

The low score on each hole wins the "skin," or prize money for the hole. Ties are thrown out and the money carried over to the next hole.

The first six holes will be worth $15,000 each, the next six worth $20,000 apiece and the final six holes $25,000 each.

Ties and the carryover can build up the pot dramatically, as illustrated when Lee Trevino collected $174,000 with a single shot, a hole-in-one on the 17th hole of the regular Skins Game last November.

"Although the money's great, I'd be a liar to say I'm just doing it for the money," said Snead, the PGA's all-time tournament leader with 84 tour victories. "I still really enjoy the competition."

"Anyway, I feel fortunate to get this far. Most of the guys I played with back in the old days are six feet under now."

The original Skins Game began in 1983; the idea of production company head Don Ohlmeyer, former chief of NBC Sports.

Since the ratings have been solid for each of the five events, and since the seniors tour has proven a strong drawing card, he figured a Senior Skins Game was a natural.

As a group, the Senior Skins players own a total of 38 major championship titles and more than 350 tournament victories.

"What you're dealing with here is people who are bigger than life," Ohlmeyer said.

Palmer, who collected $100,000 on one hole during the inaugural Skins Game but has slipped since and didn't win a single hole in the most recent event, said he still likes the format of the competition.

"It's a little different, a kind of golf that was taken for granted through the years," he said. "I think people are very attracted to it now."

"It's dramatic, a player can win all that money. The players enjoy it, too. It's fun... although it can be frustrating, too."

Coach's Comment

By Boyce Paxton

The Steers are slowly building momentum in their games and workouts. A very solid performance against Pecos gave the team a lift and added confidence as we push toward our goals.

Our season is left with seven district games and the playoff season (a total of five games). We do not look ahead but attack every opponent one game at a time.

We had a very good effort from the team against Pecos as well as outstanding individual performances by Abner Shellman, Brian Mayfield, Tyrone Foster and Tony Lewis.

All played very well. This game was the first district contest where the Steers really "put a whipping" on somebody.

Our varsity players all survived the no-pass no-play cut for the third six weeks. We push our players to perform academically first and in athletics secondly.

We send out grade checks every two weeks and constantly keep in touch with teachers on these players' progress or lack of the same. Appropriate actions are taken whenever they are necessary.

As a group, most of our athlete are conscientious students. A few have to be prodded and or "shoved" once in awhile. Athletics for the majority of high school athletes is over after high school. Studies and statistics show that only about four to five percent of all high school players advance to college competition.

Of that number in college, only three to four percent of them ever progress to the professional level. At the professional level, with the exception of the so called super stars, a professional athlete's average career lasts only three to four years barring injuries or other problems.

All that was said to make the point that high school kids need to hit the books first and athletics secondarily. Sports are fun but books and education will buy the groceries and pay the rent later on in life.

In our program, we stress academics and we strive to have our players be good people as well. Old habits sometimes die hard, but we will strive for excellence in those areas now and in the years to come.

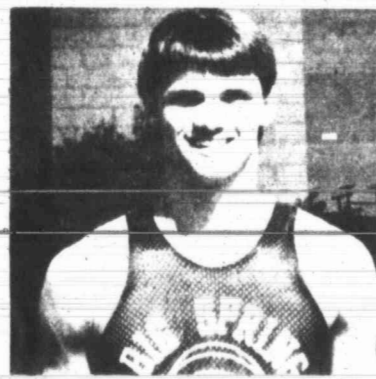

The Steers JV, under Coach James Collingsworth, has made a move in district play with improved efforts and winning efforts. The JV is 7-3 in district competition and are getting stronger as the season progresses. Our JV lost only one player to the no pass-no play.

Should the Steers make the playoffs, no pass-no play enters in again in the playoff season. A few years back, a team in the State tournament saw three of its starters fail and miss the finals because of grades. We will stress hard work on and off the court to plan ahead.

Our basketball program is a very successful one this year at all levels. We appreciate the fine efforts and hard work of these coaches and teams. We want a team and program Big Spring can take pride in.

Big games coming up are Lakeview on Friday there and a big showdown with second place Snyder on Tuesday in Steer Gym. The Steers need your support down the stretch for these big games. Give us a lift — be at Steer Gym and raise the roof.

BRIAN MAYFIELD

TYRONE FOSTER

ABNER SHELLMAN

PLAYERS OF THE WEEK
The three players above were elected captain of the Steer team by their teammates. These three are a big reason for the Steers success this year. All are starters. Brian is the offensive standout, Tyrone the defensive standout and Abner has provided all around play with his strengths being assists, steals and scoring. Brian and Tyrone are seniors and Abner is a junior at BSHS.

Oilers' Pease finds playoffs delay schooling

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Former University of Montana quarterback Brent Pease had to miss some college classes at winter quarter here this year, but he had a pretty good excuse: his employer was in the NFL playoffs.

Pease, who set single-season records at UM for passing yardage and touchdown passes in senior year of 1986, played backup to Houston Oilers quarterback Warren Moon during the 1987 NFL season.

Pease was signed up to take classes at UM winter quarter to work toward his degree. But the Oilers made it to the second round of the playoffs before losing to Denver, delaying his return to school.

"I did miss 10 days, but my teachers cooperated enough that I was able to start late," he said in a recent interview in Missoula.

While Pease was missing some school, he was still getting an education — watching Moon run the Houston offense.

"Warren can't teach me how to throw or read defense, but he helped me tremendously, just by watching him," Pease said.

"He'll be in a certain situation, and watching how he handles it is how I learned the most from him. On mental toughness, he really helped me."

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may have some trouble communicating today, especially in obtaining some facts and figures which you need, so be particularly careful about what you say. Enjoy your family this evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Settle any arguments which have been bothering you lately. Do some entertaining at home tonight, but don't stay up too late.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be very careful in the handling of financial and property matters, or you could lose quite a bit. This may be a highly romantic evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Someone you know may deliberately try to upset you today. Avoid this trap by refusing to argue. Stay at home and save money tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You have been overworking yourself lately, so try to take it easy and relax a bit. Take some time out for a little fun tonight.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Think of the unpleasant factors connected with a recreation you have in mind, and you'll decide against it. Take care of only important duties.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep busy at duties of a public nature, and don't let a family friend disturb you. Enjoy a favorite hobby with a good friend tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may have to develop a new way of looking at life which is more in tune with modern times. A new business contact has some great ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although it may seem like a great deal of work, now is a very good time to get your property fixed up. Handle your mail carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go out with some witty and charming friends today and have a fine time. Set up a budget which will help you save more money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Postpone that change you want to make where your job is concerned. Spend the evening with a good friend who enjoys peace and quiet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Enjoy an amusement with your mate which won't be very costly. Sit down together tonight and make some plans for the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It is important that you keep busy at some career or credit matters. Don't expect any special favors from a superior right now.

If Your Child Is Born Today

He or she will have an exceptionally logical nature and an uncanny ability to solve even the most difficult puzzles. Your progeny will tend to be pretty much a loner, but will also be quite adept at communicating ideas to others. Sports are a must for your child.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
