911 cost $44,000 less than expected

By BILL FOSTER Staff Writer

Initial expense of installing a 911 emergency telephone system in Howard County is going be about $44,000 less than originally anticipated.

Members of the 911 emergency telephone service board learned Thursday that Southwestern Bell Telephone Company the county's primary telephone service provider — would be able install an automatic number and location identification system, including supporting computer equipment,

This figure is $44,109 less than a $63,675 installation cost quoted by Southwestern Bell officials one month ago. The cost difference results from emergency telephone district board members' decision to install only one computer station for receiving emergency calls instead of two.

The $19,566 Southwestern Bell estimate includes the necessary equipment to put a 911 telephone system on line at either the Big Spring Police Department or the Howard County Sheriff's office.

A decision of which law enforcement office will be responsible for operating the 911 computer terminal is to be reached by emergen-

Bike interest brings Swede to Texas

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

From Sweden to Big Spring is a long way to travel for motorcycle parts, but that didn't keep Stefan Gronquist from making the journey in January.

"I knew about Howard (Walker, owner of the Harley Davidson shop at 908 W. 3rd) from reportage in biking magazines in Sweden," said Gronquist, 26, of Skovde, Sweden. "I knew his shop is very old. I needed some parts for my own bike, so I took the chance to write a letter to Howard, and he answered.'

So began a correspondence that led Gronquist to make the 27-hour air journey from Sweden to Dallas via Frankfurt, Germany, and New York to visit Walker. He will return to Sweden sometime in March, he

His bikes stayed at home,

"I am here to meet Howard, to see the shop and buy parts," he explained.

He's also traveling Texas with Walker on weekends. They have been to El Paso and San Angelo, and plan journeys to Lubbock and Austin. Thus far, weather hibited any bike trips

"But I don't like to be a tourist," he said. "Texas is so big, and it costs too much to travel around. Of course, I want to see Big Spring.

"Texas is so flat, so dry," Gronquist said. "In Sweden, we have more farms, more trees. We have more humidity in the air, and more hills. Not really mountains, but more hills. We have mountains in the north, on the border with Finland.

He is from central Sweden, and in his home county there are several large lakes, he said.

'My town is about the same as Big Spring in population, but in area it is much smaller. In Big Spring, most homes are for one family.

Stefan Gronquist, seated, discusses motorcycles with Big Spring Harley-Davidson shop owner Howard Walker. Gronquist read an article in a motorcycle magazine in Sweden that prompted him to write to Walker two years ago in search of parts. Now he's in Big Spring to visit Walker, see his shop and tour Texas while getting parts for his vintage bikes.

In my town we have mostly apartments, buildings eight to 10 levels high," he said.

'We have this cold; it will be minus 25 Celsius," he explained, 'and we'll have this time of year usually a half-meter of snow. If you had that cold here, I think half the population should die.

No easy vote on Contra funding

WASHINGTON -- "Doggone it's hard to know the right thing to do," Rep. Jim Chapman said as he sighed resignedly.

All week he had been pulled and tugged by people who wanted him to vote their way on President Reagan's $36.2 million aid plan for the Nicaraguan rebels. The conservative Texas Democrat told them his mind was made up.

He thought it was, but he was wrong. At the 11th hour Wednesday night, Chapman had a change of heart and voted with the losing side as the House defeated the proposal 219-211,

No one illustrated the dilem ma of the undecided voter on Capitol Hill better than Chapman. After telling reporters all week he would vote against the Contra aid package, the Sulphur Springs congressman did the opposite.

Now he knows that on the next vote the lobbying will grow more intense

"I wish I could just say, 'I hate the Contras,' and vote against them all the time, or 'I love the president,' and vote with him every time," he said. "I really think the right thing to do is somewhere in between. Chapman wasn't the only Tex-

Teacher salaries in state school systems are based on an 11-step schedule that does not exactly reflect the number of years an individual has taught

Confusion raised over an article concerning teachers salaries in Wednesday's Herald prompted a clarification from Big Spring's assistant superintendent. The confusion concerns the

Food pantry

Committee says cited building unavailable

BY KERRY HAGLUND Staff Writer

Downtown Steering Committee members voted Thursday against donating use of a downtown building to local supporters of a Howard County food pantry, officials said. Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones said the committee approved preliminary architectural drawings Thursday for a railroad plaza that included demolition of the building sought by the food pantry board of directors. Big Spring downtown renovation plans call for construction of a railroad plaza at the First and Main Street site that would act as the focal point for downtown activity. The plaza is to be located directly across from the railroad depot on First Street and a railroad theme is to be maintained through the use of vintage railroad cars to be used as speciality shops and restaurants.

The news about the building was a disappointment to food pantry supporter Patricia Lawlis, director of West Texas Opportunities in Howard County

Lawlis, who had called the 100 Main St building an "ideal location," told about 20 food pantry supporters Wednesday she felt confident the steering committee would grant permission to use the facility - the former T&P Federal Credit Union building.

"I guess we'll have to look for another building," she said this morning upon hearing the committee's decision.

Pantry supporters are seeking a small downtown office area that will be easily accessible to the public.

"I know of two or three buildings where we might check," said Lawlis, reporting that several people had mentioned possible locations for the pantry

The proposed pantry would provide emergency food to area needy residents and provide record keeping to avoid duplication of services between local churches and social service-agencies.

Quinones said committee members decided against permitting use of the facility because demolition could begin this summer, forcing the food pantry to relocate within months of being established

Committee members said they hope to provide the food pantry board of directors with some alternative locations, however, Quinones said.

Local family files wrongful death suit

By KERRY HAGLUND Staff Writer

A wrongful death suit has been filed against a Midland trucking company in connection with the death of a Big Spring man killed in a construction accident

Alberto Rojo Gonzales was killed in Big Spring on Sept. 28 when a dump truck backed over him. His parents, Geronimo and Eufrasia Gonzales. Gail Route Box 21, filed suit in 118th District Court this week against Max Cuellar doing business as Cuellar Contracting Co., Midland.

Alberto Gonzales was working for Price Construction Co. and was directing the dumping of soil at a construction site at the corner of 200 N. Trades Ave. and the 900 block of Northwest Se-

After a hectic week in which they were subjected to phonecall blitzes, high-level armtwisting, and 10 hours of debate from their colleagues, the Texans who had the most difficulty making a decision on the Contra aid vote were still having difficulty with the decisions they had made.

"Let's give it a chance," Bustamante said of the Arias effort. "Just like I gave Contra aid a chance."

Most of the Texas lawmakers who had been considered fencesitters on the issue - all of them Democrats - ended up opposing the president's request.

Conservative Texas Democrat Charles Stenholm, who sponsored the Reagan package and worked hard to win support for it, said he was disappointed by the Texas turnout, particularly by the votes against by Bustamante and Democratic Reps. Mike Andrews and Kika de la Garza.

All three congressmen said the peace talks had been a key to their decision.

Fund established for fire victims

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A relief fund has been established at First National Bank to benefit George and Connie Gatliff, who lost their home and belongings in a Jan. 29 range fire.

The couple is staying in the Mid-Continent Inn temporarily, while they attempt to arrange housing.

George said today that a low-rent home has been located, but the family has no furnishings or funds. He said that the insurance on their mobile home paid only the mortgage. There was no insurance on furnishings, he said.

Griffin Truck Stop Manager Wayne assisted the family, Gatliff said.

Farrington, who is allowing the couple to staty at Mid-Continent and eat at the restaurant at no charge.

'We want to help 'em out whenever we can," Farrington said today, explaining that he had done such things on a limited basis before. "This is the most effort we've ever put forth.'

Dallas police don't shoot armed suspect

HERALD BUREAU REPORT

DALLAS - A robbery suspect pointed a handgun at two patrol officers on a highway ramp in Far Northeast Dallas Thursday, but the officers held their fire and the man eventually dropped his weapon — which turned out to be a pellet gun, police said.

Officers Roy Brown and Kevin Bailey were leaving a robbery call at the 7-Eleven store at Forst Lane and Audelia Road about 12:15 p.m. when they saw a man, armed with a large pistol, running southbound on Skillman Street toward LBJ Freeway

After a brief standoff in which both officers drew their pistols, the man threw down his gun and began running. Officers tackled the man and arrested him for investigation of aggravated robbery and investigation of terroristic threats.

Bobby Michael Byrnes, 23, was being held in Lew Sterrett Justice Center in connection with the 7-Eleven robbery and the standoff. Bail had not been set late Thursday.

Jackie Martin, a mechanic who was stopped on the westbound ramp behind the squad cars, said police handled the incident professionally.

'Considering what's happened, they handled it really well," Martin said, referring to the fatal shootings of two Dallas officers within 10. drop the gun, and he'd kind of shake his head ing. Brown and Bailey tackled the man and ar-

Sheila White, 34, who also witnessed the standoff, said she was surprised the police didn't

'That gun sure looked real to me," she said. "I've seen shotguns and little bitty pistols. This was really big.

After Brown and Bailey spotted the man, they blocked his escape by pulling their squad car into his path, police said. Using the car loudspeaker, they ordered the man to drop his weapon, but the man pointed it at Bailey, who was seated in the squad car.

The officers jumped out of the car and yelled for the man to drop the gun. By then, another squad car pulled up, and officers Debra Raffety and Scott Towns drew their weapons and crouched behind the car's doors, police said.

The man pointed his gun at Bailey and Brown, who also were crouched behind their squad car and pointing their pistols at the man. But the officers didn't shoot.

The man broke the standoff when he screamed something unintelligible, pulled off his days last month. "They kept yelling for him to jacket, threw down the weapon and began runn-

After the officers recovered the weapon, they learned it was a .177-caliber pellet gun, police

The incident began shortly after noon, when a man entered the 7-Eleven store and approached the counter with a large black pistol with a small hole in the end. The man jabbed the clerk, Hoyoun Kim Hong, 37, twice in the chest and demanded, "money, money," according to police reports.

Hong opened the cash register and put the cash drawer on the counter, and the robber grabbed the money from the register drawer. As he walked out the front door, the man said, "I've got the money, I've got the money," Hong

The man fled on foot, and Hong summoned police, who left the store to find the robber.

"When he pointed that gun, I ducked," said White, who also stopped on the ramp behind the two squad cars. "Whenever the officers yelled for him to drop the gun, he pointed it at them.

"He'd wave around the gun and then point it at the officers," said Martin, 34. "Several times I thought he was going to drop the gun and give in. He kept raising it up and then lowering his

Good sense is finally winning

A new survey has shown an encouraging drop in cocaine abuse among high school students.

Since 1980, when consumption of other drugs such as marijuana was in gradual decline after years of growth, cocaine has increasingly been the drug of choice among high schoolers. That pattern seems to have reversed.

A recent survey of 17,000 seniors found that only 10.3 percent of them, down from 12.7 percent in 1986, admitted using cocaine at least once during the preceding year, a 20 percent

Also encouraging was the news that the proportion of students describing themselves as "current users" dropped from 6.2 percent in 1986 to 4.3 percent last year. And indications of marijuana use continued to decline: Only 3.3 percent of high school seniors said they used marijuana daily, the lowest, level in the history of the survey. In 1978, the marijuana figure peaked at 11 percent.

The survey has been conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research each year since 1975. Because of its safeguards ensuring confidentiality, it is considered an accurate reflection of high school drug use.

The class of 1987 was apparently the cleanest in years, and if the patterns continues, this year's seniors should be even less dependent on illicit chemicals. Any drug abuse is too much, but the casualty toll apparently is gradually going down. Winning slowly is better than not winning at all.

THE DECK AND SAY I'M ... GIVE ME

Billboard business' favorite lawmaker

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON - History hasn't left us with the name of the first congressman to attach an obscure rider to an unrelated bill. No doubt his colleagues were piqued — first because he did it, and then because they didn't think of it themselves.

A legislative rider is like an ugly baby. It's such a shame until it's your own. And nobody knows riders better than Rep. Jim Howard.

The New Jersey Democrat was the first to trash other lawmakers for sneaking increased highway speeds into a spending bill before Christmas But Howard was busy at the same time squiring around his own ugly baby — a rider that would benefit the billboard industry, one of his most generous contributors.

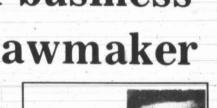

Howard pulled no punches when he criticized his colleagues over the rider permitting 65 mph speed limits on some state highways built to high-speed interstate standards. He is a strong supporter of the 55-mph speed limit. "What outrages me is that this major policy change happened in an appropriations bill," Howard huffed to Time magazine.

Howard's outrage is understandable. Advocates of good government often say a spending bill is no place to decide policy issues that deserve plenty of debate and the hot lights of media attention.

traced just how far Howard's had waived his right to compensaoutrage went. Not far. Howard managed to swallow his outrage put up the signs. long enough to try to attach his ownciliation bill.

The rider, which failed to make it into either bill, would have allowed billboard owners to collect money whenever local governments order them to reduce the size of their mount to taking someone's land, and the billboard companies should get some money out of it.

But Jim Howard and his pro-

biliboard colleagues on the House Public Works Committee are about the only ones outside the sign industry who think that way. The Transportation Department recently told Howard that current law leaves the question of compensation up to the states

In a letter to Howard, the new secretary of transportation, Jim Burnley, said that billboard owners are supposed to be compensated when the federal government tears down a sign in the name of the federal Highway Beautification

The law does not say anything about what happens when local governments reduce the size of signs based on local laws. Courts have repeatedly upheld Burnley's

This is not the first time Howard has pushed a law that benefits billboard barons while ignoring court decisions and advice from the Transportation Department.

After we exposed him in 1986, Howard retracted a proposal that would have paid a North Dakota sign owner for billboards slated for Our associate Stewart Harris the wrecking ball. The sign owner tion in exchange for permission to

A state court had ruled that the rider to the same appropriations man had no right to compensation, bill, and then to a budget recon- and the U.S. Supreme Court had refused to hear the appeal, letting the ruling stand. That didn't stop Howard from trying to get the man his money through an act of Congress.

Why is Jim Howard so gung ho signs. As Howard sees it, reducing for the billboard industry? A look the size of a billboard is tanta- at Federal Election Commission records shows that Howard got about 8 percent of his campaign money - $49,225 - from the billboard industry in 1985 and 1986.

It shouldn't be all Greek

By LEWIS GRIZZARD Today, a new Sniglet:

It is "Earlbutzatosis" (pronounced Earl-butts-a-toe-sis), which is the condition that occasionally strikes white people and makes them utter remarks about black people that cost them their

The latest example of someone suffering from this condition is Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, oddsmaker and former CBS television football analyst, who apparently dabbles in a bit of anthropology

Mr. Snyder, whose contract with CBS called for $400,000 a year, was asked why he thought there weren't more black people in managerial positions with professional sports teams.

This is what is known as a hot topic, which may be better defined as the issue currently being beaten to death in the media.

What Mr. Snyder, who is white, should have said when he was asked to comment is, "I have absolutely no opinion on that matter. Please ask me what the point spread is going to be on the Super Bowl instead.'

But, no Mr. The Greek said blacks already control the field of play and if they take over the coaching jobs, too, "Therer won't be anything left for the whites.'

If that weren't enough, he went on to mention the word "bred" in a sentence about black athletes

"All I said," pleaded Massuh Greek, in his own defense, "was the truth.

Or, what he thought was the truth. It didn't matter anyway, because CBS punted him out the door even before Jesse Jackson could issue a statement, which is flat moving, baby Didn't Jimmy The Greek hear what happened to Al Campanis, former general manager of the Los It was in all the papers.

Ted Koppel of ABC's "Nightline" asked Al the same question about blacks in front office jobs. Al should have said, "You go me, Ted.

Instead, he spoke about blacks lacking "certain skills" for managerial positions and then became slightly delirious and began to talk about how blacks made poor swimmers because they lacked buoyancy.

I'll tell you who lacked buoyancy Al Campanis, who sunk straight to the bottom when the Dodgers kicked him overboard for his remarks.

How long is it going to take white people to get the message? If you're asked to comment on a matter involving black people especially if you are in the public eye - keep your mouth shut.

If you must talk, then learn the correct responses to black-oriented questions.

If you are asked, "Who would you like to see replace Billy Martin as Yankee manager, as soon as George Steinbrenner fires him?" Answer, "Bill Cosby

If you are asked, "Who are you supporting for the Democratic presidential nomination?" and can't think of Jesse Jackson, answer, "Ahmad Rashad.

Presidential TV speeches going out of style

By W. DALE NELSON WASHINGTON (AP) - Live

television or no live television, President Reagan's power to make a speech and bring pressure on Congress isn't what it used to be. White House conservatives are furious with the three major television networks for not carrying live the president's last-minute plea this week for new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. But even if ABC, NBC and CBS had joined Cable News Network in setting aside time for the Oval Ofwould it have made a difference? Many think not "Presidents have to realize they can only use that weapon as a rein-

Joe Foote, chairman of the Radio-Television Department of Southern Illinois University, who is writing a book on the subject. "Clearly on an issue where the American people are divided at

And Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb. told reporters, "He's a pretty good communicator yet, but the Great Communicator is in the last year of fice broadcast Tuesday night, an eight-year regime and people aren't as much interested in him asthey once were."

Exon said he didn't think-any votes in Congress are influenced by forcing tool when they have a great whether the networks carry such a deal of momentum going," said speech.

Effective or not, addresses to the nation have long been a major weapon in the arsenal of presidents. Reagan made six last year, not counting his State of the Union message and weekly radio best and probably antagonistic addresses. In their last years in of-, declining steadily, largely because toward him, it will accomplish fice, Lyndon Johnson made four cable television has made more and Jimmy Carter made five. Some people think it's unfair, particularly when the speech comes on the eve of a major congressional vote as Tuesday night's address did.

When J. William Fulbright was in the Senate, he unsuccessfully sought legislation to give Congress a right of reply, saying the televised presidential address was the equivalent of a constitutional amendment in terms of presidential power.

He still thinks so.

'The efforts of the Congress and so on to rejoin, they don't get the attention; they don't have the audience and only a few professionals pay any attention to them,' Fulbright said in an interview Wednesday.

A study by Foote, however, shows the advantage may be declining. Throughout the Reagan presidency, Foote found, the share of the television audience that tunes in to the president has been viewers.

"This is a whole art form that has gone by the wayside," said Foote. "This command performance — all of a sudden it's not that any more. It's just one channel out of 33 and no longer are the great majority of Americans going to huddle around their screens and coalesce into a unified body to hear a president.

Fulbright said he was not aware of Foote's study, but his reaction was: "Well, that would be a good thing

Aside from the impact of cable television and the decision of networks on some occasions not to carry the speeches, there is considerable evidence that the impact of Reagan's addresses to the nation

Foote was working as an aide on Capitol Hill in August 1981 when Reagan made a speech on behalf of his economic policies, which had run into temporary setbacks in Congress.

"I can personally vouch for stay-channels available to many ing four hours that night doing nothing but answer the telephone from irate constituents," he said. "He had touched a nerve and they were calling in, and it was a magical moment for him.

> In contrast, Reagan appealed to the public last July 15 for changes in the budget process, saying, "Believe me, if Congress won't see the light, I know you can make them feel the heat.

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., told The New York Times that his office received two telephone calls. both from people who disagreed with the president. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., got one, to his Milwaukee office, from a constituent also opposed to the president.

Speaker of the House Jim Wright of Texas said his Fort Worth office received two calls, both from people opposed to Reagan, and his Capitol office logged 10, six in favor of the president and four opposed. 'We saw no light and got no heat," said Lautenberg.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A former Ku Klux Klansman tied a hangman's noose for a jury, then described using a similar noose to strangle a black man in what prosecutors say was a random revenge killing ordered by two Klan cohorts.

James "Tiger" Knowles, the prosecution's key witness against his former KKK superiors, Frank Cox. 32, and Bennie Jack Hays, 72, underwent a full day of questioning Thursday about the 1981 murder of 19-year-old Michael Donald.

Knowles was scheduled for further questioning today in the fifth day of the murder trial before a jury of 13 whites and one black. Testimony began Tuesday.

AIDS testing in military

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two years after launching the world's most extensive AIDS screening program, the Pentagon has tested nearly 4 million people and identified 5,890 carrying the deadly virus.

The testing has cost $43.1 million so far and is projected to cost another $25.5 million this fiscal year.

The latest statistics, released Thursday, include test results not only for recruit applicants — those men and women trying to join the military — but also for those on active duty and those serving in the National Guard

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham testifies before the special House impeachment committee Thursday. The committee could decide today whether to impeach the embattled governor.

Mecham

Lawmakers: Impeachment likely

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The votes are there to impeach Evan Mecham, say lawmakers who note that the more the embattled governor speaks in his own defense, the more secretaries are flooded with calls urging his impeachment.

'About 50 percent are saying impeach him. The other 50 percent are saying hang him," House Minority Whip Debbie McCune, a Democrat, said Thursday after three days of testimony by Mecham over an undisclosed $350,000 campaign loan.

The Republican governor planned to testify again today before a select House committee, and lawmakers later were to meet in private caucuses before going to the House floor to vote on an impeachment resolution. If that is approved, the House was expected to vote on a bill of particulars stating the specific reasons for impeachment. Before midnight tonight, if it's going to the Senate it will be gone," House Majority Leader Jim Ratliff said.

Speaker Joe Lane and House select committee chairman Jim Skelly, both Republicans, said they believed there were enough votes to impeach the first-term governor, although Lane said his opinion was "just speculation." Other lawmakers said privately they were convinced there would be enough votes. It takes 31 votes in the 60-member House to impeach the governor, or vote to put him on trial, and 20 votes to convict in the 30-member Senate.

On Thursday, Mecham testified before the House committee that he did not try to hide the campaign loan, contending it was lumped with other funds on campaign finance statements as a "time-saving matter" by his brother and 1986 campaign treasurer

"It was listed in an aggregate form but there was nothing done to hide it," said the governor, who began drawing criticism shortly after he took office just over a year ago when he canceled a Martin Luther King holiday created by his predecessor.

Mecham also faces a recall election May 17 and a March 9 criminal trial on charges of concealing the $350,000 loan. His brother faces criminal charges as

Mecham press secretary Ken Smith said Wednesday he had "gut instincts" that Mecham will be impeached. He later backtracked, contending an impeachment was not inevitable

Republican and Democratic lawmakers alike reported that the balance of the phone calls they received had been leaning further and further towards impeachment during Mecham's first three days of

In London, a spokesman for the Archbishop of Canterbury dismissed the report, broadcast by the Voice of Lebanon radio station.

The station, based in Christian east Beirut, has never been accurate in any report concerning foreigners held hostage in Lebanon. It is controlled by the right-wing Phalange Party.

Rebels shoot down jet

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - Sudanese rebels today said they shot down a jet fighter near Juba, the southern Sudanese provincial capital where relief agencies plan to send emergency food supplies.

Radio SPLA said rebels also fired on a military transport plane, but missed the second target. The broadcast was monitored in

The claims came on the eve of a planned emergency food airlift to feed tens of thousands of Sudanese facing starvation because of the civil war.

Envoy to visit Mideast

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A top United Nations envoy will go to Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria to search for ways of ending the Arab-Israeli conflict, said a spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Undersecretary-General Marrack Goulding will also meet with Palestine Liberation Organization officials, probably in Tunisia, said spokesman Francois Giuliani.

Goulding's departure date has not been set yet, Giuliani said Thursday.

Contra leader to resign

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) - Contra sources said Alfonso Robelo, a former Nicaraguan government official who later helped lead the fight against it, plans to resign as a rebel director so he may stay in Costa Robelo declined comment Thursday on the reports from sources in the Nicaraguan Resistance, the Contra umbrella organization, that he would announce his decision at a news conference today.

The sources insisted Robelo's decision was not related to the defeat Wednesday in the House of Representatives of President Reagan's Contra aid request. They said Robelo told other Resistance leaders of his decision three days earlier.

OUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP IS THE PLACE TO LEAVE OUR TROUBLES

For most of us who attend our House of Worship every week, it is not just a matter of routine or a feeling that we have an obligation to be there. We do it because we have learned that it is the best place to take our troubles. There is a great deal of peace of mind to be gained just from the sermons and the inspiring hymns. You will also find your clergyman friendly and helpful, for he is never too busy to listen to your woes. He will give you his best advice and recommendations, and you will leave there with a vision of sunlight breaking through the dark clouds of despair. In fact, you may find that those problems are a result of your own negligence and can be easily corrected by you yourself. So don't wait till trouble strikes to go there, but learn that as a result of your regular attendance you will be better prepared for it when it does.

Now, as a minister, the former drug addict and ex-convict says he wants to help others to break out of their own personal prisons, and avoid the trap he found himself in.

It is hard for 33-year-old Mann to believe that he was actually involved in those crimes 16 years ago. The crimes are something he is not proud of; nonetheless, he said he does not want to hide or forget his past

'It's hard to fathom because that's not my life anymore," he said. "But I still want to remember the confusion and the depression and the feeling of no peace on the inside that I had so that I can help others like that

As a child growing up in Abilene, Mann was a good student who was raised in the church, and taught good principles, he said. But when Mann was a young boy, his father drowned. I was bitter toward God because people were saying it was the will of the Lord for my dad to die," Mann said. "I was looking for leadership and answers and searching for the truth. I started hanging around the wrong crowd."

At 13 Mann started using drugs. While a teen-ager, he was committed to two mental institutions for drug rehabilitation, but he said he had no desire to stop using

"I dropped out of high school because of my involvement with drugs. I lost interest and I didn't care anymore the effects of drugs on my life," he said. "All we did was sell drugs and get high shooting speed. Sometimes we would go a week without sleeping.

By June 1971, Mann's drug ring had become violent and carried guns everywhere they went.

Then, during a narcotics raid in Austin, Mann shot and wounded a

"I didn't know he was a police officer. We were strung out," he said. "I never even saw the individual. I just heard him break the glass and fired

But Mann said the arrest was actually a relief. He was glad to be off the streets, glad to come to a place where his life was forced

The turning point in his life came in the Travis County Jail when a gospel-preaching jail ministry group spoke to him.

'They really spoke to me," he said. "They didn't tell me I had to cut my hair, they just told me that Jesus loved me and cared for me. and that was what I was really looking for. I gave my life to the Lord there.

The decision may have changed Mann's life, but he still had to answer for the crimes he had committed before.

"I hadn't been sentenced yet. Sure, I wanted to be out, but ... even though it seems strange, I was free on the inside, and that's what really matters," he said.

"I had been on the outside and I had been so barred up. I knew if I returned to my old life, I would die, either because of an overdose or because someone would have killed me.

He was sentenced to 10 years in prison for assault with intent to kill a police officer.

Mann said he tried to view his stay in prison as a semester in Bible college. He read his Bible in his free time and tried to minister to others, he said.

By the end of Mann's 29 months in prison, a group of more than 100 inmates was meeting regularly for prayer and fellowship.

'Some people said it was just a con, just a way for us to get out on good behavior," Mann said. "But even people who didn't give their lives to the Lord had respect for

NEW YORK (AP) - Efforts of employes of church organizations to form labor unions sometimes encounter resistance from officials, even though churches have long supported the right of workers to organize for collective bargaining. The back-and-forth issue has gone on intermittantly for five years at the the United Methodist Board of Global Ministries where non-executive employes in 1982 voted for a unit of the AFL-CIO to be their bargaining agent.

Although employes subsequently in 1986 voted narrowly to "decertify" the union, an arbitrator ruled that church board officials had unlawfully discriminated against pro-union employes, and set aside the results. In another election this month, employes again voted to reject the union.

In Philadelphia, an arbitrator has been named in a dispute over union-organizing attempts of employes of the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization.

Union organizers claim the committee has tried to block the union effort. Committee officials say the organization's non-traditional structure and consensus approach present special problems for dealing with a union.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I've watched several of your crusades on television with great interest. Do you think it's necessary for a person to be able to point to the exact time he decided to turn his life over to Christ? I feel I have a real faith, but I grew up in a strong Christian home and can't point to the specific moment I decided to be a Christian. Is there something wrong with my faith? — Mrs. R.L.

DEAR MRS. R.L.: No, not at all. God deals with each of us in different ways. Some people know exactly when they made their commitment to Christ; for others their commitment took place in the dim memory of childhood or over a period of time.

I made my decision for Christ during meetings that were held by a visiting evangelist to our town, and I can remember the time and place as vividly as if it were yesterday. My wife, on the other hand, grew up in a strong Christian home her father was a medical missionary in China - and can never remember a time when she did not believe in Christ and trust Him as her personal Lord and Savior.

Jackson and Robertson: Preachers at opposite poles

Jackson and Pat Robertson, the two preachers in the race for the presidency, are about as different as day and night when it comes to politics and style.

Jackson, whose strength is greatest among black voters, is considered the most liberal of the Democratic candidates. Robertson, a Republican, primarily draws his support from conservative white fundamentalists.

Robertson, the broadcast-smooth former television evangelist, usually speaks in quiet tones. Jackson's energetic, emotional speeches are the kind that get audiences up on their feet and

Yet, their campaigns have cer-

Probably the most striking is the two men's constant quest for political credibility outside their special constituencies. Both candidates, as spokesmen for minority Robertson was willing to get. Last tially broad appeal. "People like my message but they say Jesse can't win. Well, don't you believe it. If I can be president then every dream you have becomes possible. You don't want anybody telling you that you can't be an accountant or a college president, do you? Then why transfer that to me?" Jackson told a packed house at the Hillside Truth Center, a nondenominational church on Atlanta's westside.

He repeatedly urged the 1,500 members of the predominantly black congregation "to believe in my campaign as a way of believing in yourselves.'

Robertson, who now shuns church campaign appearances, also called for people to believe during an appearance at Augusta a few weeks later.

"Believe me, I'm not here to make a statement or anything like that. I'm in this thing all the way and I'm in it to win," he told some 250 Augusta-area residents who had each paid $100 to attend a buffet fund-raising event in the ballroom of a downtown hotel.

'Can we do it?," he asked his predominantly white audience. Absolutely! Can we restore moral strength in America? Absolutely!"

This was about as close to his former persona of TV evangelist as with his Christian Broadcasting Network and resigned as a Southern Baptist minister to offset criticism that he would mix church and state.

Ignoring the occasional cries of 'Amen, brother" from the crowd, Robertson remained steadfastly secular and low key thoughout his 20-minute speech.

But if Robertson, in an attempt to broaden his political base, is trying to follow a secular path to the White House, Jackson has no compunction about appealing to the Lord in his campaign stops.
"Let us pray," is how he began his rocking, evangelical political sermon at the Hillside Truth Center, after the church's charismatic minister told her congroups within their parties, spend a Sept. 29, he severed his affiliation gregation, "The messenger is here,

Sailors on small ships need letters too

DEAR ABBY: I'm not on an aircraft carrier. In fact, I wish I were spending six months aboard a carrier would be better. They have video game rooms, snack bars, live USO shows and they receive Operation Dear Abby III mail.

My ship is the smallest in the Navy, a guided missile destroyer. I realize it is impossible to get "Operation" mail to every ship underway at Christmas. I just would like people to stop and think about us — the ones who, for six months, live in a world that is 400 feet long and 40 feet wide. A world that rocks and vibrates constantly. A world where 300 people live and work. It's a place where you forget what day it is. Those of us on small boys' have little time off, and when we do, where can we go?

We are the ones who protect our valuable carriers, recover downed pilots or men overboard. We live with the knowledge that our job is to get between the carrier and the incoming torpedo (or missile); we take the hit so the carrier can continue to fight. We're also the ones that escort tankers in the Persian Gulf. We've been there since the crisis began.

Just a short while back, we were up at 5 a.m. to refuel the ship, then at noon we unloaded ammunition. By 3 p.m. we finished working, and realized that it was Thanksgiving Day! I have been separated from my wife for two months — only four more to go and we'll be a family

COUNTING THE DAYS. IN THE LO. DEAR COUNTING: Thank you for your very informative and heartwarming letter. Readers: Mail is a terrificmorale booster, so be a sweetheart and send a valentine to the men aboard the USS TOWERS (DDG 9), FPO SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. 96679-1239.

DEAR ABBY: An imaginative member of the Older Women's League came up with an idea similar to the "maverick table" you mentioned in a recent column.

Once a month she chose a reasonably priced restaurant usually on a Sunday evening where any OWL member could turn up and enjoy the company of other OWLs. It worked very well, and provided companionship and a pleasant supper to many women who otherwise would have been dining alone. Since the lady who thought of it was named "Lucy," we called the program "Lucy's Table," so one could ask for "Lucy's Table" when she enters the restaurant alone.

DOROTHY SATIR, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR DOROTHY: Hooray for Lucy and other imaginative people who dream of creative solutions for today's social problems — and the loneliness of dining alone is certainly one of them.

DEAR ABBY: I saw the enclosed in a Sunday tabloid:

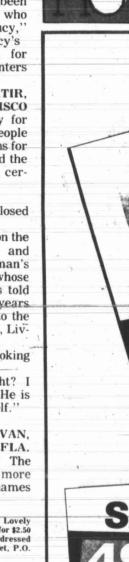

"A man looks at a portrait on the wall and says, 'Brothers and father is my father's son.' At whose portrait is he looking? I was told this little gem more than 50 years ago and am still puzzled as to the answer. - Harold W. Longua, Livingston, N.J.

'The answer: The man is looking at a portrait of his son.' Abby, is this answer right? I think it should have been: "He is

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA. DEAR MR. SULLIVAN: The tabloid is. To make the riddle more understandaable, substitute names from your own family.

NMJC dumps Queens, 72-52

HOBBS, N.M. - The Howard College Hawk-Queens lost their third straight game here Thursday night, falling to the New Mexico Junior College lady Thunderbirds

"That pretty much slams the door on our season," said Howard coach Don Stevens early today. 'We hadn't been talking too seriously about going to regional anyway with our record, but we needed this one (win) to do it at

He said since Western Texas College had been forced to cancel its remaining conference games the Queens would now begin a 14-day layoff before playing again.

'We talked in the dressing room before the game," Stevens said, "about the last two games and how we hadn't been playing for the first four or five minutes.

"It happened again. We fell behind nine to one, then 15-4, and the game was over," he said. Citing poor shooting in the entire contest, he said the Queens' team totals in the second half contributed to the disaster.

"Besides Stefanie Massie, the entire team went 3-26 from the floor in the second half," Stevens said. He said Massie, who led Howard with 26 points, scored all but five in the second half.

"The best player on the floor was Tonya McCaster (from NMJC), a big post kid and a freshman,'

Stevens said. "We couldn't do anything with her."

The Thunderbirds outshot the Queens 52 percent to 34 percent in the first half and 47 to 33 percent for the game, he said. New Mexico led at the half 39-23 and outhustled the Queens in rebounding 48-26.

Howard College's Queens, lacking depth all year since the departure of seven players in October, suffered two more losses since December with the departures of Laura Reeger and Callie Cooley.

The scheduled Monday match between the Queens and the Lady Dusters from Western Texas College has been canceled as a result of losses WTC's women's team suffered. Stevens said.

As a result, only a single game— the men's match—will be played in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Monday night. The Hawks take the Michael Jordan got his points and John Paxson hit two 3-point goals late in the game. But it was Chicago's defense and lack of the same by the Suns that finally gave the Bulls a victory in Phoenix.

Chicago hadn't won at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum since March 2, 1977, dropping 14 straight games.

Thursday night, that streak came to an end.

"We got the lead, but we let them back in it. Then we found ourselves in a game," said Jordan, who scored 37 points. "We got into our rhythm and we had to play some defense on them.

Stanford beats No. 1 Arizona

By The Associated Press

The Arizona Wildcats are one of the best teams in nation, except when they're ranked No. 1 and playing at Stanford.

Todd Lichti scored 23 points and Howard Wright 21 Thursday night as Stanford upset top-ranked Arizona 82-74.

It marked the second time this season Arizona has lost while

The standing-room only crowd of 7,500 at Maple's Pavilion was warned early in the game to stop stomping on the floor when Arizona was shooting free throws. But the Wildcats still seemed rattled by the crowd, which swarmed onto the court when the game ended.

Stanford outrebounded Arizona 32-26 and outshot the Wildcats from the free-throw line. For the fourth straight year, Arizona ran into foul trouble at Stanford and the result was the Cardinal made 22 of 30 free throws, compared to 11-for-16 for Stanford avenged a 90-65 loss at Arizona last month and gave the Wildcats their first Pac-10 loss in 10 games. The Cardinal is 6-4 in the league.

No. 2 UNLV 99, Cal-Irvine 77 Karl James scored 26 points and sparked a first-half spree that sent UNLV past Cal-Irvine in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. James, a freshman, had seven points during an 11-0 streak that gave the visiting Runnin' Rebels a 44-28 lead. Jarvis Basnight and Anthony Todd each added 13 points for UNLV, 20-1 overall and 9-1 in the PCAA.

UNLV made 25 of 26 free throws. Wayne Englestad scored 25 points for the Anteaters, 10-9.

Michael Smith scored 21 points shot to start Stanford's 10-0 streak, as Brigham Young beat Utah and remained the only unbeaten major college team.

Mark Macon scored 26 points and Mike Vreeswyk 21 as Temple broke its home-court scoring record by routing Duquesne.

The Owls, 17-1 and 11-0 in the Atlantic 10 Conference, scored the first eight points and used a 23-8 burst for a 36-19 lead. Macon scored 11 points during the spurt, and the freshman has reached double figures in every game. No. 8 North Carolina 88, Clemson 64

J.R. Reid and Jeff Lebo scored 17 points each as North Carolina pulled away from Clemson late in the second half.

Elden Campbell, who scored 20 points, fouled out. North Carolina outscored the Tigers 22-2 the rest of the way for its 17th victory in 18 games against Clemson.

Reid also had 10 rebounds for the Tar Heels, 16-3 overall and 5-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Clemson is 11-8 and 1-6.

Ohio State 64, No. 17 Illinois 60 Jay Burson scored 20 points and made two clinching foul shots with 17 seconds left as Ohio State held off Illinois

The Buckeyes won for the third time this season at home against a ranked Big Ten team. Ohio State is 11-7 overall while the Illini fell to 14-7 with its third straight loss.

Foreman wants Tyson

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) Former heavyweight champion George Foreman, who continues his comeback tonight against Italy's Guido Trane, thinks he's perfectly matched for the reigning champion, Mike Tyson.

"Tyson's style is based on somebody moving away from him," Foreman said. "I'm not from that mold of run and hold. I'll stand there and trade some punches with him. And I'll get the best of those punches.

Foreman takes another step toward his goal of eventually fighting Tyson when he meets Trane in a scheduled 10-round fight at Caesars Palace.

Foreman will be seeking his seventh straight knockout since returning to the ring last March. although all of his opponents have been of dubious quality.

"The only thing I have to do i keep winning," the 40-year-old ex-champion said. "I realize now that the only reason I came back was to fight for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Although he has yet to meet a top opponent since resuming his boxing career after a 10-year absence from the ring, Foreman talks confidently of a fight against Tysen, perhaps early next year.

He compares Tyson to Joe Frazier, who Foreman knocked out twice, the first time in the second round in January 1973 to capture the heavyweight title.

U.S. POSTAL SERVICE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT...BIG SPRING AND ALL AREA POST OFFICES HAVE JUST RECEIV-ED AUTHORIZATION TO ACCEPT APPLICA-TIONS FOR THE CLERK-CARRIER EXAM THE FIRST WEEK IN MARCH.

A recent issue of Newsweek magazine noted that the average Postal worker earns $27,500 in salary and benefits. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. Courses to help you prepare for the above exams will be offered by Postal Exam Workshops. Instructors Larry Herman and Bill Harold are considered by many to be the most qualified on how to gain employment with the Postal Service. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam score, the easy to learn techniques taught in these co were designed by Mr. Harold. He is a former Postal employee, the author of 3 Postal Exam Guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal tests.
