Politicians awaiting New Hampshire vote

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Vice President George Bush today predicted victory in the New Hampshire primary and said rival Bob Dole has fallen into the same "momentum" trap that snared Bush after the 1980 Iowa caucuses. Democrat Paul Simon told his supporters to look for "a real surprise" in the nation's first primary. "I want New Hampshire to do what it did in 1980" when President Reagan turned around an Iowa defeat and beat Bush in the New Hampshire primary, Bush said on ABC's "Good Morning America." In 1980, "I came into New Hampshire talking momentum. Reagan got the issues out. And now it's the opposite — Bob Dole is talking momentum and I'm talking issues... We're doing better getting out those differences with Bob Dole on the issues."

On the eve of the nation's first primary, the Gallup organization released a poll showing Dole leading Bush in New Hampshire by a 36-28 margin, with Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson tied for third at 12 percent and Pete du Pont fifth with seven percent. The poll of 589 likely Republican voters was conducted Friday and Saturday and had a five-point margin of error.

Other polls also showed the race a virtual tie, with the vice president's once substantial lead vanished into New Hampshire's frigid air and the trend moving in the Kansas senator's direction.

On the Democratic side, Michael Dukakis remained the leader and the target of sniping by Richard Gephardt and Simon, who are still dueling for second. The Gallup poll of 424 Democrats showed Dukakis with 39 percent, Gephardt 18 percent and Simon 16 percent. Its margin of error was four points.

Simon, campaigning in Hollis, N.H., claimed the race "is between Michael Dukakis and me" and "I think it is tightening. I think there is a possibility of a real surprise coming tomorrow." Simon began television commercial attacks on Dukakis, the governor of next-door Massachusetts, as a bureaucrat. Gephardt's new ads lashed at Dukakis too, calling him "one of the biggest tax-raisers in Massachusetts history."

Dukakis ignored the criticism, devoting much of Sunday to stating his views on foreign policy issues, including Central America and nuclear arms control. He emphasized his opposition to funding for the Nicaraguan Contras, but said he would use military force, if necessary, to thwart a military attack on a Central American ally.

Bush cast himself as President Reagan's strong loyalist in a debate with his five rivals Sunday night, while Pat Robertson offered the startling assertion that the Soviet Union secretly has placed nuclear missiles in Cuba — "nukes pointing at the United States," he said.

A White House official promptly disputed Robertson's claim, and a Robertson aide said after the debate that the candidate had meant missile-delivery systems, not necessarily warheads.

Dole displayed the confidence of a candidate who has seen all the breaks go his way for the past week since trouncing the vice president in the Iowa caucuses.

"Some of us would like to see it end Tuesday here with someone winning," Dole said. He gently boasted later, "I have come a long way in the last 30 days."

Mindful that a second loss after his Iowa debacle would be devastating, Bush acknowledged his own shortcomings as a campaigner and made clear he didn't intend to give up, no matter the outcome Tuesday.

He insisted he has no "lack of passion" and declared, "My work isn't done yet."

For Robertson, the former television preacher, the missiles remark was one of a series of attention-getting statements over the past several days that provoked Jack

Howard County firefighters combine efforts to extinguish a grass fire that injured one person, destroyed a storage shed, and threatened several homes in the Tubbs Addition Sunday morning.

The fire was reported about 10:40 a.m. and kept firefighters busy for about two hours before they were able to extinguish the blaze. Cause of the fire remains under investigation.

Grass fires threaten homes, injure one

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Howard County Sheriff's Office received several reports of grass fires Monday, including one in the Tubbs Addition that threatened several homes, destroyed a storage shed and reportedly injured one person.

The Big Spring Fire Department, along with four county volunteer fire departments responded to the fire after the sheriff's office was notified of the blaze at 10:40 a.m. Sunday. The fire was brought under control at 11:20 a.m. and was out by 11:40 a.m., according to sheriff's reports. Fire units were standing by in case of flare-ups.

Mrs. Sam Posey who apparently lives in the Tubbs Addition received burns to the face and hands while fighting the blaze, according to Big Spring Fire Department reports.

Posey was treated at Scenic Mountain Medical Center for second-degree burns suffered to her left hand, according to a hospital spokesman.

A storage building, owned by Billy G.

Powell, was destroyed by the grass fire, reports said.

A grass fire also was reported at 3:20 p.m. Saturday near Wasson Drive and Cypress Street. The Silver Heels Fire Department was called to the scene.

At 4:50 p.m. Saturday the Jonesboro Fire Department responded to a grass fire one mile east of the Fairview Gin.

A hay fire was reported at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Dodd's farm, four miles north of Coahoma. The fire was out at 10:36 p.m., according to sheriff's reports.

Experience and planning wins for these kissers

ADDISON (AP) — Peter and Maryellen Polichetti scared off the competition and quickly won this year's Valentine's Day kiss-a-thon in less than five hours.

The couple from nearby Lewisville also won last year's contest, but it took 58½ hours. Their most serious challengers for this year's title had to leave early to relieve a babysitter.

Nine of the 14 couples who registered for the Great Dallas Kiss-Off, a Valentine's Day celebration that was to raise funds for the American Heart Association, decided not to compete after learning that the reigning champs had taken a week's vacation to compete.

The contest began at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Harvey Hotel in this Dallas suburb and ended at 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

"I couldn't believe that it would end so quickly," Peter Polichetti, 38, who works for a construction company, said. He and his wife, Maryellen, 39, won a vacation in Jamaica for their latest victory.

"It's a shock to me and my wife, but we'll take it," he said.

Hank and Vickie Zecca of The Colony proved to be the most serious competition, but they left to relieve a babysitter.

Board filing begins Feb. 22

Area school boards will get into the thick of things politically next week when candidates can begin filing for the May 7 elections.

Monday will be the first day of filing for all area school races, with candidates having until April 6 in most cases to declare for election. All area school boards will have seats open.

Howard College and Forsan school district have a March 23 filing deadline.

Big Spring is assured of having a new board member with the announcement from trustee Jimmy Anderson that he will not seek a third term. He has represented District Four on the board, which predominantly covers the Kentwood and Highland South areas.

Other local trustees whose places are open for election this year are Ford Farris and Donnie Baker, Assistant Business Manager Ron Logback said.

Farris originally was elected to the board in 1985, defeating then-incumbent Jerry Forseyth for the District Four position. He represents the area basically on the eastern side of town, and currently is board vice president, Logback said.

Baker was appointed to the

HERALD STAFF REPORT

With the first day of filing for school board elections still a week away, the Big Spring board is assured of having a new member with the announcement today by trustee Jimmy Anderson that he will not seek a third term.

Anderson, who has served two terms on the board, said that the time is right for him to step down.

"I've been on (the board) for six years," he said. "I don't like to campaign... plus my child will be out of school after this year, so I think the time is right for a change."

The Howard County native was elected to the board for the first time in 1982 and won re-election in 1985 by a two-to-one margin. He also served as school board president during the 1985-86 school year. Although he admitted that the board has had "some major ups and downs" during his tenure, Anderson points to the 1983 desegregation settlement that led to the creation of Bauer Magnet School as its most successful accomplishment.

Anderson, who owns Professional Pharmacy, said he will continue to support the board after his return to private life.

board last year to replace Dock Voorhies, who resigned. The position is an at-large seat, Logback said.

The district two and four races will be for three years, while the at-large election will be for one year — the remainder of Voorhies' unexpired term.

Neither Farris or Baker have formally declared for the election, although both recently said they lean toward running.

Howard College will elect two trustees this year, according to Mary Dudley, assistant to college president Bob Riley.

Candidates for the college board election have from next Monday to March 23 to file for the race, which will be by place and for a term of six years, Dudley noted.

Man accused of shooting wife dies

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A man accused of shooting his teen-age wife while she was walking home from school carrying Valentine's Day gifts has died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, officials said today.

Johnny Gallardo, 27, who shot himself once in the temple after shooting his wife twice in the head Friday, died at 4:15 p.m. Sunday at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Tech Sgt. Lowell Cook.

Gallardo's estranged wife, Janie Gallardo, 15, died shortly after 4 p.m. Friday after being shot twice in the head, police said.

The couple had been married since August 1986, but separated since December.

Mrs. Gallardo was carrying a box of Valentine's candy, two carnations and a small stuffed teddy bear when she was killed. Authorities have speculated Gallardo may have thought someone had given it to her at Lowell Middle School. "It appears this is what enraged him. It appears it was jealousy," police homicide detective John Campa said Saturday.

Mrs. Gallardo did not run when her husband approached her, said Lulu Gamboa, 17, who was walking with Mrs. Gallardo.

"Johnny said, 'Janie, where did you get those roses?' but Janie didn't say anything. She just kept walking with her head down," Miss Gamboa said Saturday. "Then he pulled out a gun. I thought he was just playing because he was smiling, but he shot her and we ran."

Gallardo then hesitated before shooting himself, Campa said.

Miss Gamboa said the flowers and candy were given to numerous girls by other male classmates at a party at Lowell Middle School Friday.

Mrs. Gallardo's brother, Santos Arocha, said his sister was allowed to be married at age 13 because she kept running away with Gallardo. Arocha said she returned to her parents' home in a housing project in late December after repeated abuse and because she wanted to return to school.

Campa said many teen-age girls in housing projects often marry early to get out of their situations.

"The scenario is you have a little girl, half attractive and the parents have a bunch of kids and they're trying to get those kids out and as soon as someone shows some interest in her, they go with them," Campa said.

"At that age it doesn't work out. Very often, those little girls get hooked up with some guy in his 20s and they're very jealous and don't want them looking at other guys," he said.

"But these girls still want to go to school and are still interested in seeing boys and the problem arises there," he said.

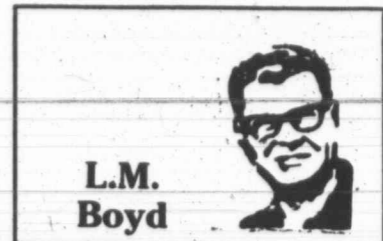

Police reports indicate Gallardo assaulted his wife at school in late January and friends said she was attacked later near the same spot she was killed.

Arocha said the family had been unable to get a restraining order against Gallardo after Mrs. Gallardo said she wanted a divorce.

Miss Gamboa said Mrs. Gallardo was lonely. "She needed a lot of attention and love and she thought she would get it from him, but she didn't," Miss Gamboa said.

Midland Fire Marshal Jerry Petree said today officials believe a spark ignited volatile vapors, causing the explosion.

A cigarette lighter was found at the scene of the explosion, Petree said, but added that authorities don't know if either of the men had used the lighter.

"It's something that occasionally happens... people get careless... we don't know for certain what caused (the fire)."

"Both men were burned over 70 percent of their bodies; they are still in very critical condition."

Waltenbaugh and Flores were airlifted to the Lubbock hospital after first being transported to Midland Memorial Hospital, authorities said.

Midland firefighters were called at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, said Petree, who reported the explosion occurred at an oilfield located five miles south of Midland on Cottonflat Road.

Kemp to say in the debate, "He has said some off-the-wall things."

Robertson said in separate television interviews Sunday that he "wouldn't have hesitated to kill" Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, and that he wants to gradually abolish the Social Security system "over 40 years, moving it into a private system."

Robertson failed to show up at a candidate's forum held at a Jewish temple in Manchester where he had been scheduled to speak just after the debate. His state campaign director, David D. Randlett, told leaders of the Temple Adath Yeshurun that he didn't know why Robertson never showed up. After hurried telephone calls Randlett said he couldn't find anyone with Robertson who could tell him.

Some 150 people had waited for an hour at the same temple where, four years ago in an emotion-packed session, Jesse Jackson tried to explain his embarrassing reference to New York as "Hymietown."

Democratic darkhorse Bruce Babbitt, arriving as scheduled, ridiculed Robertson. "They told me he was too busy turning the next storm out to sea," Babbitt said, provoking laughter.

After talking for an hour, Babbitt said, "I'm willing to stay here 'til the sunrise — whether it comes at the usual time or Pat Robertson makes it a little earlier."

Robertson, the surprise second-place finisher in Iowa, was in a struggle with Kemp for third place in most New Hampshire polls. His campaign manager Mark Nuttle said after the debate that Robertson had meant to say missile delivery systems — not warheads — were in Cuba. He wouldn't give the source of his information other than that some of it had been "compiled" by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Outside the debate at St. Anselm College, about 25 "Youth for Robertson" students jeered at about 70 members of "Cure AIDS Now," a group that includes AIDS victims. The Robertson backers chanted, "It's your own fault."

Republicans Kemp and Pete du Pont, and Democrats Babbitt and Gary Hart all faced the prospect of having little choice but to drop out if they fall short Tuesday — although du Pont and Hart vowed to go on in any event.

In the GOP debate, Kemp and du Pont both attacked Dole as harboring a secret desire to raise taxes. Du Pont thrust a piece of paper in Dole's face and asked him to sign a no-tax-increase pledge while accusing him of pushing through higher taxes in the Senate.

"That was to close loopholes on big companies like DuPont," Dole said in sharp reply, a reference to the giant corporation that was begun by du Pont's ancestors and is the source of his wealth.

The Democratic candidates held their final debate of the New Hampshire campaign on Saturday night, with Gephardt drawing criticism from his rivals for changing positions on taxes and a range of other issues.

Albert Gore Jr. asked for and got a televised apology from Gephardt for a profane denunciation of himself and his staff made by Gephardt campaign manager Bill Carrick earlier in the week.

C-City council calls for election

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City council has called a charter amendment election for May 7 to coincide with a council election.

A committee composed of former mayors has proposed four major changes to the charter, including:

- Formally changing the election date from April to the first Saturday in May to comply with state law;
- Allowing for closed or executive sessions when dealing with purchase of real estate, conferring with legal counsel or discussing personnel;
- Allowing for purchases of up to $4,999 without having to advertise for bids, and;
- Changing the conflict of interest provisions to allow a council member to serve but to declare a personal interest and abstain from voting on any measure where his personal interest may be involved.

Fred Holguin and Terry Wooten are the incumbents whose at-large positions will be open for the For-san board elections this May, Superintendent J.F. Poyner said. Candidates may file for the three-year terms at the district's business office between Monday and March 23, he added.

Three at-large positions will be open for election in the Sands Consolidated school district, Superintendent James Blake said, adding that they are each three-year terms.

Incumbents for this year's election are trustees Joe Barnes and Eddie Herm. A seat that is currently vacant also will be decided upon, Blake said.

Jansen is skating for his sister

By LISA LEVITT RYCKMAN

AP National Writer

CALGARY, Alberta — Now, more than ever, speed skater Dan Jansen is looking for a bright bit of gold to relieve the darkness.

On Sunday morning, Jane Jansen Beres died after a year-long battle with leukemia. Eight hours later, her youngest brother went onto the ice determined to hang an Olympic medal on her memory. Instead, there was a false start, and then a fall.

But Thursday is another day, another race, another chance to skate for Jane, to win for Jane.

"It's very important," Jansen said of the upcoming

1,000-meter event. "Once again, my family wants me to just go on now, and I know Jane would have wanted that."

The world champion in the 500-meter sprint started Sunday's race too fast, jumping the gun, and ended it far too soon, losing an edge swinging into the first turn. He slipped onto his left side, fought to get up, slipped again and slid across the ice, clipping the other skater and slamming into the mats along the wall.

"Maybe it just wasn't meant to be," Jansen said. Bouncing up, he threw his arms into the air in disbelief, slapped his thighs in disgust and doubled over, his head in his hands.

Revelry the password in Galveston

GALVESTON (AP) — Normally quiet winter streets were packed with revelry this weekend as the island's fourth annual Mardi Gras celebration swung into action with floats and music.

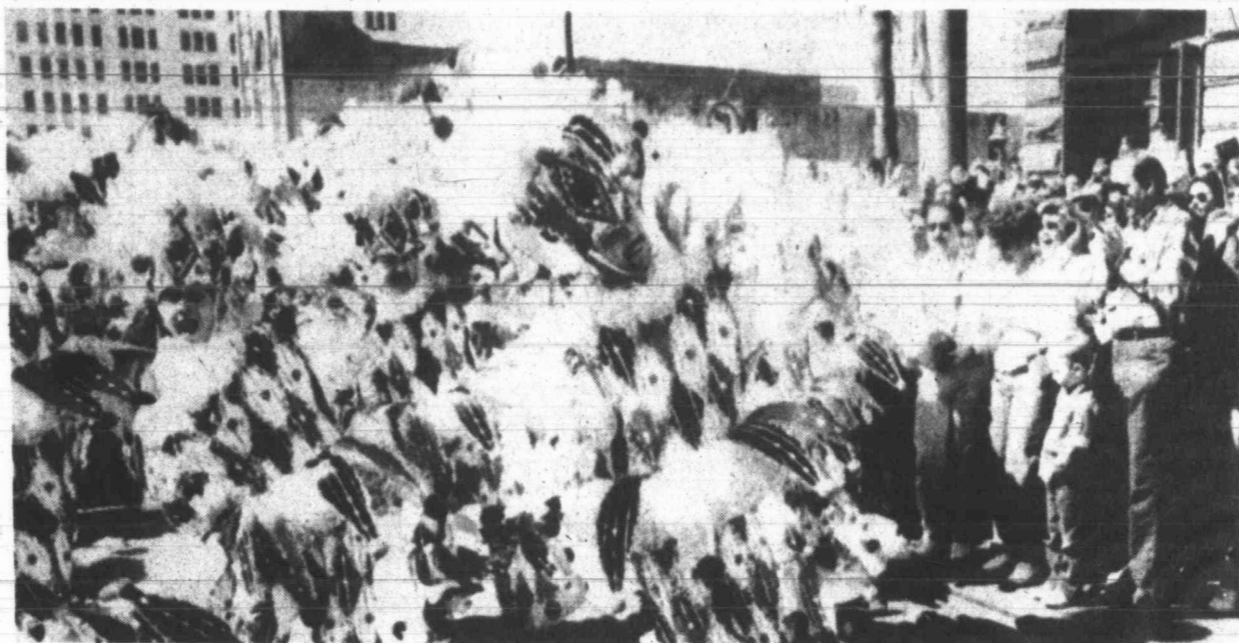

On Saturday night, spectators lined a parade route, gleefully grabbing for doubloons and beads thrown by costumed riders atop colorful floats, many decorated in Venetian style.

Police reported 63 arrests, mostly for public intoxication, marijuana possession and disorderly conduct, had been made by late Saturday. On Sunday, police said they were unable to provide a more complete tally.

Cramming the city's historic Strand district, and spread out along a parade route including the city's seawall boulevard, many parade-goers began a mirthful marathon that lasted well into the night.

"I ain't missed a one, and this one seems bigger than any of them," said Jack Crummett of Galveston. "I think there's twice as many people here as there were last year."

During the day, the Rebirth Jazz Band and Otis Day and the Knights were among musicians and other performers appearing on five stages in The Strand and Ship's Mechanics Row areas. Special invitation-only parties and balls were held during the evening.

GALVESTON — Members of the Philadelphia Memmers Ruaker City String Band perform for the crowd during Galveston's annual Mardi Gras Festival Saturday. A crowd of 300,000 was expected to attend festivities during the day and watch the Grand Night Parade Saturday night.

By late afternoon, special park-and-ride car lots established to ease automobile traffic into the city were full, forcing incoming motorists to park wherever they could find an open space.

Many of those who attended this year's event praised the city for its planning of the event.

"It's a lot more organized this year," said Lisa Heflin of Katy. "I almost got pushed under a float one year."

Others disagreed, disgusted by the crush of people and booming noise.

"It's horrible. People have been pushing me and rude," said Bootsie Dotson, who came to the island from The Woodlands. "I want to go home."

Family feud leads to endorsement

EL PASO (AP) — A long-running family feud led to a judge's children throwing their support to his opponent in the March 8 primary.

The six children of Judge John McKellips said Saturday the judge's professional behavior and his "overall coercion of his family," influenced their decision to support Mary Anne Bramblett in the Democratic primary.

"As a family, we have jointly decided to support Mary Anne Bramblett in the upcoming election for 41st District Court judge," they said in a prepared statement.

"It makes me very sad that my opponent and my ex-wife got my family involved in the campaign," McKellips said.

"To me, it's the lowest form of politics,"

Bramblett, an assistant El Paso County attorney, did not welcome the endorsement.

"I do not want to get involved in a fight between that family. I feel I'm a pawn being used by these people," Ms. Bramblett said.

The children's action is the latest in a dispute over property settlement and support for the three youngest children, who are in their early 20s and have varying levels of physical and mental disability.

The oldest child, Kathy McKellips Foster, said her father's influence made it difficult for her mother, Lillian McKellips, to hire a lawyer for representation in a divorce suit against the judge.

Man jailed after hoax bomb threat

ARLINGTON (AP) — A man who held police at a standoff for hours by threatening to detonate himself in a lounge was charged with possession of a hoax bomb and making terroristic threats, authorities said.

John James Allgood, 33, of Arlington, was in custody in the Tarrant County Jail Sunday in lieu of $3,000 bond, officials said.

Investigators said the man surrendered four hours after he walked into the Plaza Lounge Saturday, threatening to blow himself up with six sticks of dynamite he said were strapped to his body.

A fake explosive device was found later, authorities said.

"He's been a customer here for about five months. He always called me 'Mom,'" said lounge owner Iris Massey.

Bartender Ina Silloway said a man ordered a 12-pack of beer to go at about 8 p.m. and then gave her a Valentine's greeting card with a message written on it.

The man indicated he wanted police to kill him, she said.

Railey looks for new life

DALLAS (AP) — Former minister Walker Railey says the peace he sought by moving to San Francisco has eluded him as questions persist about the near-fatal strangling attack on his wife.

Railey says he is weary and resentful of the scrutiny of his private life, attention which grew after his in-laws filed a civil lawsuit accusing him of attacking Margaret "Peggy" Railey.

"I'm kind of between the devil and the deep blue sea," Railey told the Dallas Morning News in an interview published in a copyright story Sunday.

"And in a situation like that, it's hard to know what is the best, most honest and responsible way to respond," said the former senior minister at the First United Methodist Church in downtown Dallas.

On Feb. 2, Railey's in-laws filed a civil lawsuit that accused Railey of maliciously and knowingly trying to choke his wife to death. The petition seeks unspecified damages to cover Mrs. Railey's past and future pain, suffering and anguish from the attack.

Railey says he is innocent of the charges.

In November, Railey moved to San Francisco after giving guardianship of his wife to her parents and custody of his two children to friends. Since the lawsuit was filed, he has stayed in hotels and with friends instead of his apartment, saying he is trying to avoid reporters and photographers.

Railey told police he found his 39-year-old wife, strangled nearly to death the night of April 21, 1987, in the garage of their home. Mrs. Railey is comatose in a Tyler nursing home.

In the interview, Railey refused to give an account of that night.

Central Texas gold mining investment raises questions

HOUSTON (AP) — Links between a failed Nevada gold mining venture and two officials of Central Texas College have prompted questions from educators overseeing the school, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story.

The newspaper reported that Chancellor Luis Morton Jr. and President Phillip Swartz invested $110,000 in Double O Resources Corp., which developed links to the Killeen-based college's research and communications affiliate.

The investments were made in 1984. The company ceased experimental mining operations in 1985, after a few months of failure.

Several members of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board expressed surprise when told of the gold mining venture, and the involvement of Morton and Swartz.

"I don't know if they've done anything wrong, but it sure sounds like something I'd like to know a lot more about," said Ben Latham, a Amarillo board member.

The newspaper reported that Morton regularly visited Las Vegas, and his son worked for Double O Resources as a $5,000-a-month office manager, where a college computer was used.

On Sunday, Swartz said his personal involvement in Double O Resources did not cost the college anything.

"All travel made relative to Double O resources has been reimbursed to the American Education Complex," Swartz told The Associated Press, saying that four or five trips made in connection with the company were on his vacation time.

He declined further comment, saying he had not yet seen the article.

In addition, the newspaper said an elite college research team known as the American Group prepared a business plan and operations manual for Double O Resources.

While officials said no college money was invested in Double O Resources, the American Group promised to raise $1 million for the private corporation and agreed to provide managerial services for three years to the gold mining venture, the newspaper said.

In exchange, the American Educational Complex — a Killeen-based, publicly governed consortium of CTC and three related operating units — received 250,000 shares of Double O Resources stock, the newspaper said.

The stock currently appears to have little value, the newspaper said.

"I just don't understand this," said Sam Carroll, a San Antonio board member.

But W.A. Roach, chairman of the college board of trustees, said he saw no problem with the college's connection to the gold mining company.

"If it had turned out well, it might have made the college a bunch of money," Roach said.

Insurance exploitation of elderly grows

DALLAS (AP) — Insurance agents who sold an 84-year-old woman more than $10,000 worth in policies in a 13-month period are an example of a growing problem, industry officials said.

"They just preyed on her," said Betty Andrews, the daughter of Rubye Davis. "She is senile. She didn't know what she was doing."

In the case, which is under investigation by the State Board of Insurance, Mrs. Davis was sold 15 insurance policies, four Medicare supplement policies, three hospitalization, three nursing care, two life insurance, two cancer and one surgery policy, at a cost of $10,489.

A 1987 congressional report shows that 25 percent of the $12 billion spent by the elderly for health insurance is wasted on unnecessary or fraudulent policies. And authorities say the Rubye Davis case is not extraordinary.

Texas Insurance Commissioner Doyle Lee said the exploitation of the elderly has always been a problem, but it has grown worse in recent years.

Mrs. Andrews said that she felt so helpless in trying to protect her mother that she went to court last year and had her declared mentally incompetent. Any checks now have to be cosigned by Mrs. Andrews.

"There wasn't any other way," she told the Dallas Morning News. "They would have turned her into a bag lady."

Lee acknowledges that his agency is part of the problem.

The insurance board has a backlog of about 2,000 cases against agents accused of fraud or other serious violations of state insurance law. Hundreds of cases involve the elderly, and some of the cases are years old. While the insurance board tries to catch up with its work, the accused agents are free to continue their business.

Lawyers and support staff are being hired to help tackle cases.

Bush won or missed point?

George Bush and Dan Rather went through nine minutes of political theater the other night — live and on camera — that generated a lot of commotion about what ought to be peripheral in this year's presidential campaign but that, so far, isn't: the tenuous relationship between certain politicians and the media.

The episode seems to confirm anew Marshall McLuhan's dictum that the medium is the message.

Too many are asking who won, who lost, who was ruder, rather than the more important question: What was the candidate's answer to the interviewer's question?

Indeed, what was the question? In this case, it was about Bush's still unclear role in the arms-for-hostage deal with Iran.

Anyone who believes the vice president was unfairly set up by Rather cannot have been paying attention to this campaign, particularly the vice president's.

Bush knew what was coming and had his counterpunch ready. Rather lost his cool, started playing prosecutor and thereby created an apparent wave of sympathy for Bush, especially among people who don't much like pushy reporters anyway and who may now think the Republican candidate proved he's not a wimp.

One can agree or quarrel with that assessment, but it's an argument that ought to be beside the point.

It's interesting that the only candidate of either party who expressed sympathy for Bush was Gary Hart, who is waging his own campaign by running against the media.

Bush has taken the same direction, and not for the first time. It seems to be a clever tactic, at least so far, but as a long-term strategy it has serious limitations.

Other journalists, forewarned and forearmed, are less likely to walk into the trap Rather did, less likely to allow their own behavior, instead of the issue at hand, to become the focus of public attention.

Bush outfoxed Rather; he may now believe that, in his own tasteless phrase after a 1984 debate with Geraldine Ferraro, he "kicked a little ass."

But the more he tries to fend off unwelcome questions about his performance as vice president by turning on his questioners, the more he invites the scrutiny that he seeks to avoid — and not just from pesky reporters.

The issue, finally, is not the conduct of a television reporter; the issue is the competence and forthrightness of the candidate.

Bush did nothing to prove his worth on either count.

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion:

Iowa not best place to start race

It is often said that this is not the best place in the nation to start this process: Iowa isn't like the rest of the nation — too white, too rural, too ag, culturally oriented, and the dead of winter is not the best time to measure political public opinion in Iowa.

Nevertheless, a presidential campaign has to start somewhere, sometime. If not Iowa, where? If not February, when?

Some experts predict the primaries and caucuses this year will become a series of favorite son events.

This would surely lead to brokered conventions. We hope this prediction proves wrong.

The Baltimore Sun

Calls Defense moves positive

The Defense Department's decision to open more military positions to women and crack down even harder on sexual harassment are small but significant steps toward allowing women to do their fair share to defend the nation.

The Pentagon plans to permit women into some 4,000 jobs previously out of bounds to them, including working on airstrips in combat areas, flying reconnaissance planes and serving as embassy guards.

Women who accept the risk will be scrutinized minutely, their mistakes judged harshly. But if past patterns hold, they will match male counterparts in dependability and toughness under arduous conditions.

Worries about morale and discipline among mixed-sex staffs working under less than ideal conditions can be largely alleviated by proper management. Over the past 20 years, women have proved themselves capable of taking on previously all-male tasks in every field of civilian endeavor.

Top brass at the Pentagon may be reluctant to admit it, but women can also be skillful soldiers, sailors and flyers. All they need is a fair chance.

Los Angeles Herald Examiner

Budget process needs revisions

An increasing number of representatives and senators are beginning to offer public apologies for the congressional budget process. The admission is past due, but it's a sign of progress, nonetheless.

The problem is Congress' failure to handle budget bills in an orderly manner, and its reliance on the continuing resolution instead. This contrivance has been used to load up the budget with pork barrels that any responsible president would otherwise veto.

This year's budget was embarrassingly corrupt, even by congressional standards. Some in Congress want to repent.

Write from the heart

Wretched seems the perfect fit

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

Wretched: Adjective. Suffering. In a condition resembling a wretch. Smitten.

All of the above, for the past few days, in the process of recovering from a bout with the infamous February Bug, aye, the terrible Virus Indomitabilis, I surely was.

Wretched is a pretty good word for the way I felt before the snow came two weeks ago. I didn't have much to go on, other than a vague scratchiness in my throat and a general feeling of being hit by a truck on that not-unpleasant Friday, but I figured the worst I could be in for was an ordinary cold.

Wrong. By 1 p.m., when the snow began to thicken enough to threaten that night's basketball games with cancellation, I felt pretty rough.

Last Saturday seems to have passed in a sort of truce between me and the bug; ditto Sunday. Monday the virus flexed its presence faintly, reminding me with flashes of vertigo that it slumbered yet in my vulnerable system.

Tuesday, when I was to return to work, the thing lay in ambush for me with shattering effectiveness. Shot down before noon, I took faint comfort in the sounds of husky soreness I detected in the CBS newscaster's throat at 5:30 p.m., and in a bout of foolhardiness ventured into the night to cover a basketball game.

The game worked a kind of magic on my senses. By its end I felt miraculously better.

By midnight I could have sworn I was well. By daylight I could have sworn my earlier good feelings were audio-visual hallucinations, complete with drug-induced special effects. Desperation drove me to drugstore shelves in search of anything that promised to stop the ringing in my ears and flashes of light before my eyes.

Meanwhile, I was bombarded with a treasury of home remedies — everything from jalapeno-laced nacho sauce to the time-honored "two-hat whiskey" cure was recommended by a host of well-meaning folk who could put to shame the Dimetapp Elixir commercials I kept seeing.

And, crossing the fine line between bravery and foolishness yet again, I struggled to keep going. At one point the face in the mirror looked completely alien; at several others I'm quite sure I looked and sounded like a zombie stoned on something unmentionable.

I floated in an insular cavern of discomfort, not quite well enough to participate fully in the world's events around me, not quite ill enough to relinquish the effort, give up, go home and get some rest.

So came I to enlightenment: This insular state is so far removed from reality that even its most unpleasant edges intrude only vaguely. Nothing can be grasped firmly; no conclusion begs to be drawn. No feeling outstrips any other feeling to provide a handhold for opinion.

Not pleasant, exactly, this strange state, but not painful altogether, either; it resembled more than anything else the soft-edged exhaustion I recall from finals week in college — and Air Force basic training.

The world goes rather fuzzy around the margins at a time like this; it feels somewhat as I imagine it must feel to be trapped underwater.

Kindly folk interpret my blank stares as a function of hearing loss; less kindly folk probably write me off as high on who-knows-what and therefore fit for nothing.

Actually, I'm not quite useless in this state. I'd make a wonderful counterpart for a species we're seeing quite a bit of, without being able to understand what makes them tick or why they continue to torture themselves. Iately.

I feel nearly as bad as a sixth-place presidential candidate.

Did Florida figure it out?

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

ORLANDO, Fla. — Florida is one of my favorite states. It's generally warm here, the golf courses are flat, and I like sun rising over oceans. You can see a lot of that in Florida.

Florida's fun. My family started bringing me here when I was 7. I played in the sand, rode the waves and ate cotton candy.

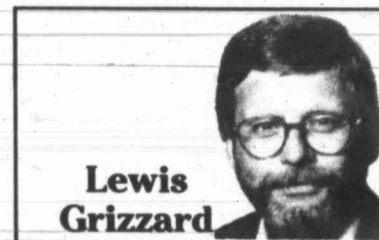

As I got older, I began going to Florida for breaks from the miseries of study.

I am forever and ever a Georgian, amen, but I wish we could be a little more like Florida at times.

You can get down a bet legally in Florida. You can go watch the dogs run or even make a wager in a jai alai fronton, whatever that is. But I like the horses best.

Sometimes, I bet the favorite. Sometimes, I bet the long shots. I even bet because I like a horse's name. I'll never forget the time "Harmonella" came in a winner at 15-1 and I had him across the board.

Florida's got something new going now — its own lottery. The first day it opened a couple of weeks ago, Floridians bought $13.5 million worth of tickets.

It's fun. Tickets cost a buck. You buy them at 7-Eleven stores.

You scratch across the ticket with a coin revealing a plate of numbers. Three matches, you're the winner of either $2, $5, $50, or up to $5,000.

You can also win a free ticket, or an entry ticket into the bigger lottery drawing that will pay a million.

"I think of all the guys we used to put away for running numbers," a Florida attorney was saying, "Now, we got this."

So popular is the new game, stores can't keep enough tickets for the demand.

A friend and I bought 20 tickets together.

"We split whatever we get," he said.

"Twenty-five hundred each isn't a bad day's work," I said.

We won $6, another ticket and an entry into the big game. That's better than I do in Vegas.

The state of Florida is going to put the money from the lottery toward education.

We could have a lot of what Florida has in Georgia. We have beaches, too, and you ought to see the women of Buckhead.

We also could have dogs and horses running and we could have a state lottery and we could upgrade our own educational system, and I don't think Jesus would be all that upset as long as the money went to good use.

Of course, none of this will happen. Florida's got Mickey Mouse at Disney World.

We've got him in the governor's office.

Candid, informative AIDS booklet drawing shelf dust

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — If education is our best bet to stop the spread of AIDS, why is the government trying to shove its most candid and informative booklet on the subject?

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's detailed booklet on the disease has won much praise since he published it a year ago. Yet, members of Congress who want to pass the book along to the millions of people back home have to wait as long as six months to get copies from the distributor, the Department of Health and Human Services.

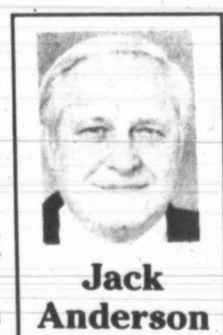

Democratic Congressman Barbara Boxer, who represents part of the San Francisco Bay area, first asked for copies of Koop's book last July. She got them in December. Other representatives have complained of similar delays.

Boxer thinks the holdup is the fault of White House conservatives and Health and Human Services officials who consider Koop's book too candid. "They do not like that booklet. It is too explicit and too direct," said Boxer. "We only have one vaccine for AIDS and that vaccine is education."

Boxer has asked the General Accounting Office to look into the situation.

Our associate Stewart Harris asked the Department of Health and Human Services about the delays. A spokesman said the biggest problem was with contractors who handle printing for the Government Printing Office. Only about 250,000 copies can be printed in a week, according to Health and Human Services.

But we found that the glitch is not in the printing. Rather, the printing office did not receive a single order from Health and Human Services during June and the first three weeks of July. When the printers finally did get orders, they turned them around in as little as three days. The longest the printing office took to deliver Koop's 36-page book after receiving an order was 30 days. Sometimes the printing office expedited the delivery by sending out partial orders while the remainder was still being printed.

To date, the Department of Health and Human Services has made 14 different orders for the pamphlet. Last spring and early summer, as the requests from Congress were piling up, Health and Human Services had ordered just a little more than 3 million copies.

It was not until Aug. 8, 1987 — well after most representatives had asked for copies — that the printing office received its biggest order — a request for 6.7 million copies of Koop's report.

The first copies rolled off the presses three days later, and all of them had been printed by the end of September. It seems the presses run more smoothly than Health and Human Services will admit.

Unfortunately for Koop's pamphlet, the political wheel of fortune has never turned as easily. Right-wing opposition to the report is widespread. Many conservatives don't like Koop's frank, common-sense approach to AIDS prevention. He openly advocates the use of condoms.

Secretary of Education William Bennett, one of the most conservative members of President Reagan's cabinet, has gone so far as to put out his own booklet, which urges minors to abstain from sex. Bennett's pamphlet advocates "sexuality in the context of marriage."

The Center for Disease Control, which is under the Department of Health and Human Services, has hinted that it doesn't like Koop's report either. When the CDC was deciding whether to mail AIDS information to every American household, a July 28 memo from the CDC to Health and Human Services noted that one disadvantage of not doing the mailing would be that it "might further stimulate congressional distribution of the Surgeon General's report."

Assistant Health Secretary Robert E. Windom announced last week that the nationwide mailing will begin this summer. Other officials indicated the booklet is still being drafted and will stress the importance of abstinence before marriage and faithfulness after. Individuals who cannot restrict their sexual activity within the context of marriage will be advised to use condoms.

There has been no suggestion that Koop's booklet might be used.

Biden recuperating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware should recover fully from emergency surgery to correct an aneurysm in an artery supplying blood to his brain, an aide says.

Biden, who had been listed as "seriously ill" following eight hours of surgery Friday, was in satisfactory condition by Sunday and officials said there was no change in that listing early today.

The 45-year-old senator remained in intensive care at Walter Reed Army Medical Center but was described on Sunday as "alert and talking to his family and resting comfortably."

Explosion kills three

CANAAN VALLEY, W.Va. (AP) — Officials at the Canaan Valley Ski Resort say an explosion and fire that killed three maintenance workers may have been touched off by a compressor used for snow-making.

The blaze, fed by at least five 55-gallon drums of fuel housed in the maintenance area, gutted the building Sunday, authorities said.

Resort spokesman Andy Snyder said it appeared the compressor, part of a snow-making machine, exploded and set off the fire. It took firefighters about an hour to reach the victims. No other injuries were reported.

Poll: Dukakis leads

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Democrat Michael Dukakis is maintaining his lead heading into New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary on Tuesday, but Republican George Bush's once-big advantage is gone, two new polls suggest.

The CBS News poll and the ABC News-Washington Post survey, both released Sunday, suggest that Bob Dole, who is coming off a convincing win in last week's Iowa caucuses, is now even with Bush.

The polls found tight races in both parties for the slots behind the leaders.

Robertson claim denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House promptly disputed Pat Robertson's claim that the Soviets have 25 nuclear missiles in Cuba that were overlooked by the "brilliant" people who negotiated the INF treaty.

Robertson made the startling allegation Sunday in a Republican presidential candidates' debate in Goffstown, N.H.

A top Robertson aide qualified the claim after the debate, saying the former television evangelist meant missile delivery systems, not warheads themselves.

In California, a White House official traveling with President Reagan said: "There's no indication of any nuclear missiles or weapons in Cuba." The official spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Storming through

GOLAN HEIGHTS, Israel — Israeli border police storm a Druse village in the Golan Heights Sunday during violent clashes marking the sixth anniversary of Israel's annexation of the area. Several villagers and four police were injured in the demonstration.

Stolen babies

Police, hospitals frustrated

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joan Thompson knew her boyfriend wanted a baby. But infertile and ineligible for adoption, she obtained a child the only way she thought possible. She stole it.

The abduction was the first of four such cases in a 14-month period in the mid-Atlantic region that stunned local communities, frustrated police and revealed hospitals' inability to guarantee patients' security.

"There have been 12 cases in the United States since 1980 which have basically the same facts over and over again," said Daniel Goldstein, Ms. Thompson's lawyer. "The significance of these cases is that they have almost lock-step similarity, (which) suggests that this is a mental health problem, not a criminal problem."

Psychiatrists said most babies are stolen by emotionally unstable women — not criminals or cult followers — who are strangers to the parents.

A few women take infants after suffering a distressful miscarriage, but most have been unable to bear children for years. In many cases the women fake pregnancy, then claim to give birth about a week to 10 days before abducting a baby wherever they can find one.

"People lose perspective, they don't imagine how the parents would feel. They shut that out," said Dr. Robert L. Sadoff, a forensic psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania who testified at Ms. Thompson's trial.

Sadoff said most women in such cases would be deemed sane in court, but their desire to get a child crosses into obsession. "They might be helped if they can get into therapy, or talk to someone about it. But these women usually don't have anyone to talk to," he said.

Though no statistics exist for the crime, child abuse experts doubt baby abductions are increasing. Five snatchings in the New York area in 1985 were considered "copy-cat" crimes by police, and psychiatrists attribute last year's mid-Atlantic cases to women mimicking each other.

In each local case, police said the women simply wanted a child.

Ms. Thompson, 45, from Ellicott City, Md., knew her boyfriend wanted a baby. But the mother of five had a hysterectomy in 1978 and failed in 1986 to get a child by private adoption, according to court testimony. Her daughter refused her mother's request to steal a child.

In desperation, Ms. Thompson pretended she was pregnant. On Nov. 7, 1986, she dressed up as a nurse and walked into a room at Grandview Hospital in Sellersville, Pa. She told Barbara Worthington her 1-day-old son, Phillip, needed an examination. She took the infant and walked out of the hospital unnoticed.

Two soldiers questioned

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army today said it was investigating allegations that about 20 Israeli soldiers used a bulldozer to bury alive four Arabs after anti-Israeli protests earlier this month in the occupied West Bank.

The army said in a statement that two soldiers were detained and questioned Sunday and that other soldiers would be taken into custody soon.

Israeli newspapers quoted villagers where the incident allegedly occurred as saying the four Arabs were unconscious when relatives rescued them after several minutes. Three were treated at a West Bank hospital and released the same day, while the fourth was hospitalized for eight days, the reports said.

Chancellor may resign

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Chancellor Franz Vranitzky said the controversy over President Kurt Waldheim's wartime conduct is taking up too much of his time as a government leader and he may resign unless the furor subsides soon.

Vranitzky did not ask Waldheim to resign, but the Socialist chancellor said Waldheim's resignation would be "an important signal."

Vranitzky's comments came in a televised interview Sunday and constituted his strongest attack so far on Waldheim in a deepening political crisis dividing this nation of 7.5 million people.

Election fraud charged

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Gen. Alfredo Stroessner's landslide victory in the presidential election was achieved through widespread fraud, according to opposition leaders and foreign observers.

The 75-year-old president and his governing Colorado Party on Sunday won an eighth straight term, receiving 89 percent of the vote, Interior Minister Sabino Montanaro announced. Montanaro is also party president.

Birth control urged

BEIJING (AP) — Faced with a two-year population boom, family planning authorities today said pressure will be increased on local cadres to enforce China's one-child-per-family limit, which has been widely defied.

The authorities, while putting most of the blame for the birth surge on a peak in the number of childbearing women, also complained of a slackening off of birth control fervor in some places.

From now on, cadres "who implement the family planning policies well will get benefits, and those who do not do well will not get benefits and will even be punished," Liang Jimin, director of the State Family Planning Commission's general office, told a news conference. He did not describe the punishments.

Two infants receive transplants

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
A week-old California boy received a heart transplant as a Valentine's Day gift Sunday, while nearly a continent away, a 3-week-old Pennsylvania boy also began heart transplant surgery.

Baby Christoffer, age 7 days, was given a transplanted heart during a five-hour operation that ended Sunday afternoon at Loma Linda University Medical Center in Loma Linda, Calif.

"I have a Valentine's Day story for you," said hospital spokesman Dick Schaefer. The baby's full name was not disclosed. He was listed in critical but stable condition after the operation, performed by Dr. Leonard Bailey.

Meanwhile, in Pittsburgh, 3-week-old Jonathan Stowe went into surgery around midnight Sunday at Children's Hospital, according to hospital spokeswoman Sue Cardillo. The heart transplant operation was expected to last about eight hours.

Jonathan, the son of Tabatha and David Stowe of Beaver Falls, was born Jan. 25.

Both boys were born with hypoplastic left-heart syndrome, a lethal underdevelopment of the left side of the heart, the two hospital spokespersons said. Jonathan was the youngest transplant patient ever at Children's Hospital. But the Loma Linda hospital has done a number of transplants on young children, including 13 heart transplants on children under 4 months old, counting Baby Christoffer. Ten of those 13 children are still alive.

The youngest transplant at Loma Linda was performed last October on a boy who was just 3 hours old; his condition had been diagnosed before he was born.

The Pittsburgh hospital's youngest transplant patient, before Jonathan, was a 24-day-old boy from Wyoming who received a new liver in July 1986.

"He's doing well today," Ms. Cardillo said. The hospital said the Stowes, both 20, have one other son, Chad, who is 3. Stowe is unemployed.

The family members of Baby Christoffer asked that their names not be disclosed, the Loma Linda hospital said. They were described as an Air Force family living in Southern California.

Bailey, a pioneer in infant heart transplant surgery, stirred medical controversy in 1984 when he transplanted a baboon's heart into a child known as Baby Fae in an effort to save the newborn's life. The girl died 20 days after the transplant.

Composer Loewe dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Composer Frederick Loewe, who 50 years ago teamed with lyricist Alan Jay Lerner to enchant audiences with classics like "Gigi," "Camelot," "My Fair Lady" and "Brigadoon," has died at age 86.

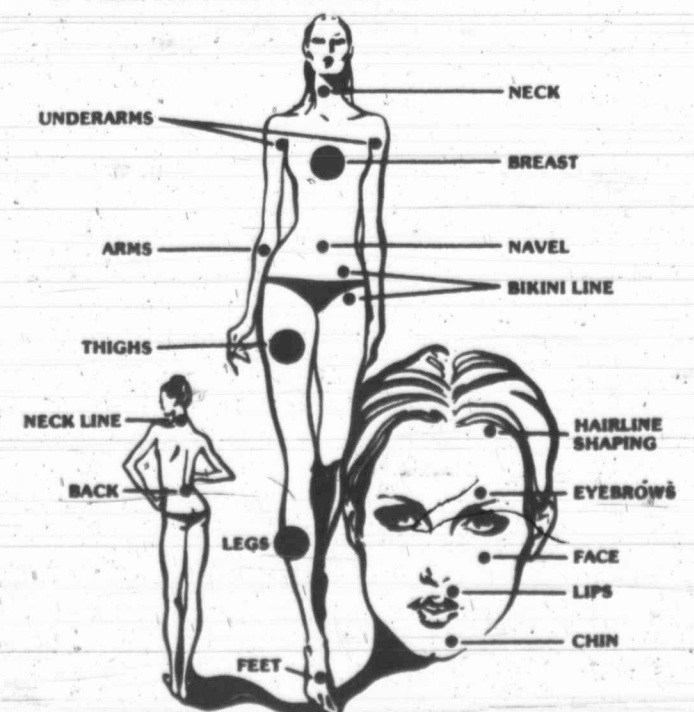

The surviving member of one of the most successful collaborations in American musical history died on Valentine's Day of heart failure, said his guardian and friend, John Morris.

Lerner and Loewe produced such favorite songs as "Almost Like Being in Love," "I Could Have Danced All Night," "On the Street Where You Live," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" and "If Ever I Would Leave You."

Perplexed young mother wonders what's in a name

DEAR ABBY: I am eight months pregnant with my first child. I'm 22 years old and confused about what name to give it. Here's my problem: I found out I was pregnant the day after my boyfriend (the baby's father) was killed in a motorcycle accident. "Boyd" was an only child.

My own father says if I have a boy he wants me to give my child our last name to carry on the family name. I have a brother who is married (no children) and in case he doesn't have a son, my father wants to make sure our family name is perpetuated.

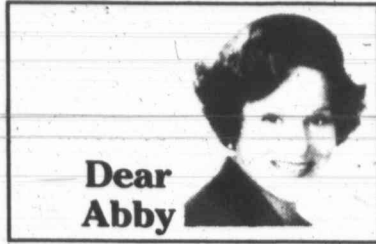

I am stumped. I want to please my boyfriend (rest his soul), but I want also to please my father. He has promised to give my child everything it (boy or girl) needs for that child's future.

Help me decide, please.

WHICH NAME

DEAR NAME: You don't mention Boyd's family. Do they know about the baby? If not, it's only fair to tell them. That child will be their son's, too — and now that he's gone, his child may mean even more to them. You and your family should confer with Boyd's family, then do whatever you think is best for your baby. Good luck, and may God bless you both.

DEAR ABBY: As a cadet at the U.S. Air Force Academy, I am expected to live honorably by "duty, honor and country."

Dear Abby

Now I have a question about ethics. I have a choice between $129 and honor. My dilemma is due to the fact that the Air Force Academy compensated me twice for the same private medical bill in the amount of $129.

It's such a small amount compared to the national debt. Why not keep it?

CADET, COLORADO SPRINGS
DEAR CADET: You can't be serious. If you are saying, "The national debt is so horrendous, another $129 won't make much difference," it's true, but that's not the issue. To compromise your "honor" for any amount of money should be contrary to your principles and, therefore, out of the question.

DEAR ABBY: In August 1969, I enrolled my daughter, Sandy, in the University of Maryland at College Park. (It happens to be my alma mater.) Although Sandy had been accepted to several other fine colleges, Maryland was her first choice.

When we arrived, I was dumb-founded to learn that my daughter had been assigned living quarters with three other girls in half of a trailer — the other half was going to be occupied by four young men!

Well, I charged up to the office of the dean in charge of housing and asked why my daughter was not assigned to one of the dorms. He told me they were all filled — then a lecture on the "advantages" of trailer life on campus followed. He stated that his own daughter was going to live in one, whereupon I said, "Mister, you can aid in the corruption of your daughter if you want to, but I'll be damned if you're going to corrupt mine!" Then I demanded that he refund my money for room and board. He did.

That afternoon we found a lovely apartment in the home of a very nice woman who offered Sandy the run of her home. (She was the only student in the house.)

Abby, when more people stand up and tell these liberal idiots that they are not going to tolerate this kind of thing in our institutions of higher learning, the moral climate will change.

If you use my letter, please use my full name. I do not write anonymous letters.

This couple serious about 'taking the plunge'

LONGVIEW (AP) — Joe Smith decided to take the plunge literally, marrying Kathy Williams in an underwater ceremony on Valentine's Day.

Smith, 28, wore a tuxedo and his bride wore a wedding dress as they dived through a layer of balloons floating on the indoor-heated swimming pool at The Aquatic Center.

"I know they think we're crazy, but this is special," Ms. Williams, 27, explained after the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Wayne Gooden.

The couple swam into a 3½-by-7-foot plastic bubble weighted down with 3 tons of railroad track. Smith's mask came off, but he said, "Everything turned out fine."

The minister was waiting and conducted the ceremony while scuba diver Dick Howell played music on a violin with an electric pickup.

"I thought I was going to hyperventilate," Gooden said, "but everybody calmed down."

Hawks win season's first series

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Howard College's Hawks baseball team took both games of a doubleheader Sunday to sweep their season-opening series with Paris Junior College, four games to none.

Sunday's first game saw the Hawks rebound from deficits in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings enroute to a 7-5 victory over the stubborn Paris team.

Howard ran away with the second half of the doubleheader, 12-7. The game was called because of darkness after 5½ innings.

According to Hawks coach Bill Griffith, Paris came out of the first game with five runs on nine hits while making just two errors. The Hawks piled on seven runs from

"Matlock gave up a single, then walked three batters and hit one with a wild pitch," Howard coach Bill Griffith said, "so we brought in Benevides . . . He walked the next three."

six hits and committed one error in the game.

"In the bottom of the first we jumped out to a 1-0 lead when Darrin Glenn hit a solo homer to left center field," Griffith said. "Paris came back in the top of the fourth and got two runs on three hits, so they went up 2-1.

"In the bottom of the fourth, (Geraldo) Camara led off with a single and (Joey) Camarillo singled into left center.

"On the relay, Paris threw the ball away so Camara scored to tie the game."

In the top of the fifth, Howard pitcher Garth Buresh walked one batter and balked to put another on base, then wild-pitched to a third. Paris' Peters promptly doubled to left field to send Paris into the lead, 3-2.

Howard retaliated in the bottom of the inning with Ernesto Castro's first homer of the year to right field — hit so far out of the park it bounced into the men's dormitory on the second floor, Griffith said — to tie.

In the sixth, Joey Williams booted a grounder. One walk and one base hit later, Paris led 4-3. In the bottom of the sixth, Howard's Camarillo walked, Jose Rubiera hit a grounder to first, which Paris fumbled to put both men on base for the Hawks, and Paul Spyhalski walked.

That gave the Hawks one out with the bases loaded as Paris' pitcher Conrad threw a wild ball to score Camarillo, tying the game 4-4.

Castro walked, loading the bases again, and Jody Allen hit a double off the wall in right center field that scored all three — Rubiera, Spyhalski and Castro. That gave the Hawks a 7-4 lead.

In the top of the seventh Paris collected two consecutive base hits, retiring Howard starter Buresh and bringing reliever Al Benevides into the fray.

"Benevides retired three batters in order to preserve the win," said Griffith early today. The final score was Howard 7, Paris 5.

Howard pitcher Derek Matlock started the second game. However, he gave up a single in the top of the second inning with one out and things proceeded to go sour.

"He then walked three batters and hit one with a wild pitch," Griffith said, "so we brought in Benevides."

His luck was no better. He walked the next three Paris batters. Griffith went to the bullpen again, this time bringing in Greg Kroeger, who put away the side and stayed throughout the game.

Leading 3-0 before the pitchers' debacle began, Howard found itself staring at a 6-3 deficit in the bottom of the fourth with one out.

Jody Allen hit his third home run of the series, off the left center field wall. The two-run trip made the score 6-5.

Paris collected a walk and two base hits in the top of the next inning to go ahead 7-5, Griffith said, "but in the bottom of the fifth the roof caved in on 'em."

Ernesto Castro hit his first home run so far out of the ballpark that it bounced into the men's dormitory behind right field. In the doubleheader, Jody Allen batted in six runs while teammate Randy Deal had six RBIs in the second game.

That's when Howard's Kenny Frederick hit his first home run of the year. Richard Baker then walked, Spyhalski singled into right, and Darren Glenn, pinch-hitting for Williams, singled to left field, scoring Baker to tie the game.

Castro walked; with two outs, Camarillo singled to left center, scoring Spyhalski and Glenn to put the Hawks ahead by two.

As he had done in the first inning, Randy Deal stepped up to the plate and knocked the ball out of the park, his third homer of the year, to bring in three runs for Howard and complete the scoring at 12-7.

Deal's first homer of the game scored Castro and Jody Allen; his second brought home Glenn and Camarillo. Deal had six RBIs for the game, while Jody Allen collected six runs batted in for the series.

"We're off to a good start," Coach Griffith said. "We'll play Vernon on Saturday and Sunday at Jack Barber Field and have doubleheaders both days."

Score by innings, first game:
Paris 000 211 — 5; 5 runs, 9 hits, 2 errors
Howard 100 114 — 7; 7 runs, 6 hits, 1 error
LP — Conrad, Paris, 0-1
WP — Buresh, Howard, 1-0

Score by innings, second game:
Paris 051 100 — 7; 7 runs, 6 hits, 2 errors
Howard 300 27 — 12; 12 runs, 10 hits, 0 errors
LP Bryan, Paris, 0-1
WP Kroeger, Howard, 2-0

SMU's road victory not enough to please coach

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Despite Southern Methodist's road victory against Arkansas, tying the schools at first place in the Southwest Conference, SMU Coach Dave Bliss is not getting overconfident.

"We're not a first-place team yet," said Bliss. "We still play ugly at times. However, we're just thrilled to beat Arkansas in Fayetteville. That's something our players can always remember."

Bliss realizes what evil can befall league leaders. The 1988 Southwest Conference basketball season will be known as the championship nobody wanted.

First, Texas A&M took the lead, then faded.

Southern Methodist then charged to the front and yielded to Arkansas in a blowout to Baylor in Waco.

Coughing on the rarified atmosphere of first place, the Razorbacks lost their first game in Fayetteville this year. SMU pulled off a 73-63 victory to gain a first-place tie with the Razorbacks, the preseason favorites.

SMU had blown a 22-point lead to lose to Arkansas in Dallas in January.

"We're set up for a wild finish to the race now," said Bliss. SMU and Arkansas each own 8-3 league ledgers.

It was only SMU's second victory in 12 games at Barnhill Arena. Arkansas had won 11 consecutive games there this season.

"I still think 12-4 will win it or share the title," Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson said.

In another crucial game on Saturday, Texas Christian beat Rice 73-58 in a game that tied the Frogs for eighth place, with the Owls at 3-8. The ninth-place team does not get to play in the SWC Post-season Classic.

In other games, Houston stopped Texas' five-game winning streak at 62-51 and Baylor got some revenge with a 74-73 double overtime victory in College Station against Texas A&M.

SMU hosts Rice on Wednesday night while Arkansas tries to regain its composure against Texas A&M, which beat the Hogs earlier this year in College Station.

In other games, TCU is at Houston, Texas Tech is at Texas, and Baylor entertains Angelo State in a non-conference game at Waco.

Following 8-3 SMU and Arkansas are 6-4 Houston, 6-5 Texas, 5-5 A&M, 3-7 Texas Tech and 3-8 TCU and Rice.

Baylor's Darryl Middleton's 3-point play with six seconds left gave the Bears their 1-point victory.

A&M's high-scoring guard Darryl Middleton fouled out in regulation play.

"It was a good payback for them beating us in Waco."

Playoff slates settled

Borden County's Lady Coyotes and Klondike's Cougar girls will travel to Midland tonight for bi-district playoff games.

The Lady Coyotes meet Sanderson at 6:30 in Midland's Greenwood High School Gym, according to coach Bill May.

Finishing runner-up to May's squad in 13-A girls' roundball was the Klondike Cougar team coached by Terry Simpson.

His team will take the floor at 8 p.m. in Greenwood gym against Grandfalls-Royalty for a bi-district game, Simpson said early today.

The Cougar girls overcame O'Donnell 56-49 Saturday night in Lamesa to advance in the playoffs. Klondike's record is 13-14.

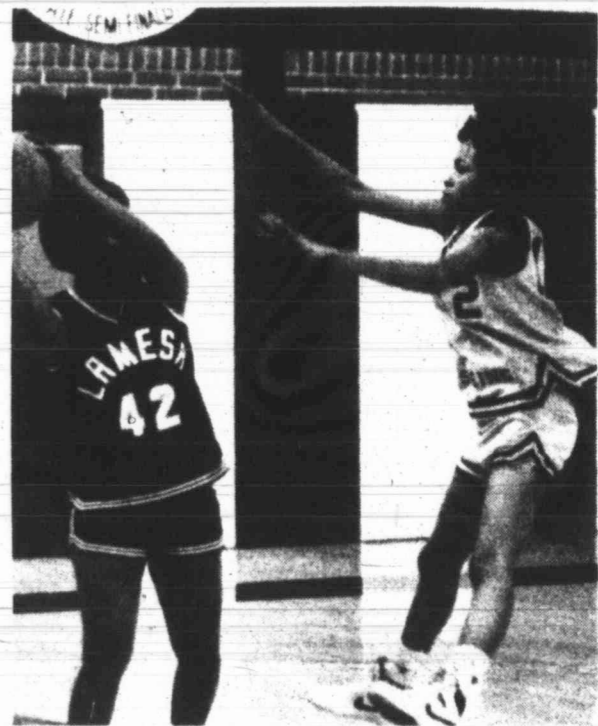

O'Donnell earned its playoff appearance by overcoming the Sands Mustangs girls' squad 49-48 Friday night, also in Lamesa.

The Big Spring High School Lady Steers will play Canyon Saturday night in Lubbock's Monterey High School gym at 7 p.m., according to coach C.E. Carmichael. Doors will open at 6 p.m. and admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students.

Coahoma's Bulldogettes finished as runner-up in District 5-3A and will face Decatur Saturday at Cisco Junior College at 7:30 p.m.

Stanton's Lady Buffalos won District 6-2A, but details of their playoff match remain pending, along with details of boys' playoff games for the Stanton Buffalos and the Sands Mustangs.

Stanton fans can see their girls in action tonight, however, in a scrimmage against the Howard College Hawk Queens in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at 6:30 p.m.

Big Spring High School Lady Steer Stephanie Smith (12) leaves the floor to defend against Lamesa's Evita McClendon Friday night in Steer Gym. The Lady Steers won the game 59-27, maintaining an undefeated season in district 2-4A play at 15-0.

Sports Briefs

Hawks face Midland

The Howard College Hawks travel to Midland College tonight to play Howard, 6-7 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference action, faces third-ranked Midland, 7-4, after a surprising homecourt defeat of New Mexico Military Institute Friday night.

Coming off their 81-80 overtime win, the Hawks will play a road game at 8 p.m. at Midland College.

The Hawk Queens, meanwhile, stay at home to meet Stanton High School's Lady Buffalos in a scrimmage game. The Stanton girls are playoff bound and Coach Don Stevens' Hawk Queens, decimated early on by disciplinary dismissals and further thinned on the bench by the loss of Callie Cooley and Laura Reeger, will practice against the Lady Buffalos at 6:30.

Coahoma tilt canned

COAHOMA — The Pecos High School girls basketball team canceled its scheduled scrimmage with the Coahoma High School girls, according to Coahoma officials, early today.

Coahoma, runner-up in its district, will play Decatur Saturday at 7 p.m. at Cisco Junior College. Coahoma officials say the team is looking for a scrimmage game before the playoff match.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty added another memorable chapter to his career at Daytona International Speedway, but it's one he would probably rather forget.

Petty, who has won the Daytona 500 a record seven times, lost control of his Pontiac midway through Sunday's 30th annual race, and it was hit by four other cars. Petty's car flipped over, spun around on its nose, hit the wall and barrel-rolled seven times before landing upright.

No one was seriously hurt in the spectacular wreck. Petty, 50, was treated at a Daytona Beach hospital for a bruised ankle and slight concussion and released.

"If there was a long enough caution flag, maybe we could get back and finish the race," Petty told a nurse before he was released to return to his home in Level Cross,

N.C. "Richard's OK," said his wife, Linda. "I guess the good Lord looks out for you."

The wreck occurred coming out of turn four of the oval after Petty's car suddenly turned toward the infield. Cars driven by Phil Barkdoll, A.J. Foyt, Brett Bodine and Eddie Bierschwale smashed the left side of Petty's car.

"The back end jumped out from under him, it looked like," Foyt said.

Petty's crew chief, Dale Inman, said the driver remained conscious but had the wind knocked out of him.

"I reached him before the ambulance did," Inman said. "I asked him how he was."

"He said, 'I'll talk to you when I get my breath.' He knew he was in Daytona, but he wanted to know where he wound up on the track."

Winter Olympics in Calgary Sunday night. The pair was first with all nine judges.

Father, son top Daytona duel

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Allison is a proud father who always wants the best for his son Davey, unless it means giving him the Daytona 500.

But with a $202,940 payoff and a chance within reach to win the world's most prestigious stock car race, it was time to teach his offspring one more valuable lesson:

The heir is still the heir apparent. "I knew on the last lap there was no way he was going to let me have the high line," the younger Allison said Sunday after finishing second to "the old man" in the $1.5-million race.

When Davey chased Bobby on the 200th and final lap at Daytona International Speedway, the elder Allison moved to the top of the high-banked third turn and took away his son's preferred route.

Davey, who earlier had drafted smartly to help Bobby fight off Darrell Waltrip, dived low and pulled alongside his father briefly. At that point they became strangers.

Less than a mile later Bobby's Buick crossed the finish line first, leading him to victory Lane for the 84th time in a Winston Cup event. Davey, NASCAR rookie of the year in 1987, was 2½ car-lengths behind in his Ford.

"I didn't think of him as my dad until the checkered flag fell," Davey said.

For both it was fulfillment of a dream. Bobby is coming off three bad years during which he got just two winner's checks amid talk that age was taking its toll.

"I guess I'm a late bloomer," he said with a laugh.

Davey, who won twice last year, an unprecedented feat for a NASCAR rookie, had been looking forward to a last-lap shootout with his father, saying he had often dreamed of a one-two finish with his dad. "I just hoped it would be the other way around."

While the Allison's realized their dreams, Waltrip again failed to win the one big prize that has eluded him for 16 years.

"I'm heartbroken," he said as he fought back tears. "We had the best car. Right there at the end it just wouldn't go."

Waltrip, who led six times for 69 laps, fell out of contention with 15 laps remaining. Ig-niton problems were believed to have been the reason.

Prior to that, his Chevrolet was the most impressive car in the race. A round of pit stops with about 60 laps remaining had taken him from a contending position to 10th place.

In a span of just two laps, during which he drafted with Buddy Baker, Waltrip blew by the field and moved all the way to the front as many in a crowd of 135,000 screamed in astonishment.

"It was the best car I've had in my whole life, bar none," he said.

Three-time champion Cale Yarborough crashed hard into the wall on turn four and was eliminated on the 48th lap. Defending champion Bill Elliott finished 12th and was never a factor. A.J. Foyt was involved in the spectacular Richard Petty crash.

Phil Parsons, Neil Bonnett and Terry Labonte ran strong throughout, finishing third through fifth, respectively. Polesitter Ken Schrader was sixth, followed by Rusty Wallace, Sterling Marlin, former champion Baker, two-time defending Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt and Waltrip.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1988

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may want to express some special talent with which you are endowed, but this should be done in an unpretentious manner so that no one will be offended. Try to be more pleasant and idealistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This is a good day to contact some friends who are happy and full of life, as these people will improve your mood considerably.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be innovative in the handling of your routines, and your superiors will be impressed. If you need a favor from someone, ask directly and get it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can make some great new contacts today, but don't get too involved with people you don't know well. Be careful while driving.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get your mind off of recreation, and try to be more efficient in business matters. Do something which will delight your mate.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can accomplish a great deal in the business world today, so put home affairs aside for the time being. Don't oversat tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of running off on any tangents, stick to your routines and accomplish much. Don't say anything harsh to your co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get away from your family for a while so you won't feel so hemmed in.

You will appreciate them more when you get back.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It is important that you are more thoughtful of your friends and more tactful with your family at this time, but don't overdo it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Deal with business associates in an open and honest manner. Stop worrying so much over petty details nobody really cares about.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show more affection for your mate, and improve the understanding between you immensely. Don't let a private worry spoil your mood.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stop being so subservient to a greedy person who has been influencing your decisions. Get together with some upbeat friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be careful that you don't confide your secrets to people who could make trouble for you. Be very careful in motion of any kind.

If Your Child Is Born Today
He or she will have a strong interest in modern techniques and inventions, and should be given the best possible education. Your progeny is a born intellectual, and can be quite successful in a profession which permits experimentation and stresses research.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
