Burn victim condition improving

HERALD STAFF REPORT

One of two local residents who were burned when the Fiberglas tank they were repairing exploded Saturday has improved from critical to serious, but stable, condition at Lubbock General Hospital.

Jesse Flores, who was burned over 70 percent of his body, had his condition improved early today, according to a hospital spokeswoman. Don Waltenbaugh, also suffering from burns over 70 percent of his body, remains in critical condition, she added.

Both men were injured Saturday while repairing a Fiberglas tank about five miles south of Midland. The tank had been purchased by Parker & Parsley, Inc. of Midland from Roundup Tanks, where Flores and Waltenbaugh are employed.

Dems exchange biting remarks

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

DALLAS — Democrat Albert Gore Jr., moving to set himself apart from his rivals, sharply accused rivals Richard Gephardt of flip-flopping on issues and Michael Dukakis of foreign policy inexperience in a combative debate that Gore said signaled the "beginning of the main event" of their presidential race.

Gephardt and Dukakis, who are battling the Tennessee senator in the delegate-rich primaries across the South less than three weeks away, found themselves under attack almost immediately Thursday night and countered in a series of testy exchanges.

"It's quite natural he would launch an attack," Gephardt, the Missouri congressman, said afterward. "He probably thinks I'm

Dole, Robertson drop out of debate

DALLAS (AP) — GOP presidential hopefuls Sen. Bob Dole and Pat Robertson said they won't participate in a debate here tonight. Their campaigns charged the event would be packed with supporters of Vice President George Bush.

The withdrawals leave only Bush and New York Rep. Jack Kemp scheduled to attend. Bush was saying Thursday that he still planned to participate.

"We had one of those (Bush) pep rallies in Houston. I don't see why we have to have two of them in one candidate's home state," Dole told reporters after a rally in the rotunda of the Georgia Capitol.

Richie Martin, Robertson's state campaign director, said he also thought the event was "stacked for Bush."

Dole complained that organizers of the debate at Southern Methodist University — sponsored by The Dallas Morning News, KERA-TV and Texas Monthly magazine — had given his campaign only 60 of 2,600 tickets for the debate audience.

But Burl Osborne, president and editor of the Dallas Morning News, said all the campaigns received 60 tickets each.

"(60) is the same number of tickets allotted to each candidate — no more, no less," Osborne said in a statement.

ahead in the South and he's got to jump start his campaign to have a chance."

With Jesse Jackson and Gary Hart included, the five candidates debated for two hours in a televised session with a heavy focus on the South — the major battleground of both parties' nomination fights before the March 8 Super Tuesday primaries. One candidate, Paul Simon, bypassed the event to concentrate on Minnesota and South Dakota, which have earlier contests.

The Democratic debate contained what were some of the most pointed exchanges among the candidates, most of whom have met each other in more than 20 debates over the past year.

Gore came out swinging immediately, using the first question to charge Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, was without foreign policy experience and had said in a recent televised interview that he was willing to tolerate a "Soviet client state" in Nicaragua.

"I'm not going to sit here and listen to that," Dukakis shot back, denying he said or believed such a statement. "If you're going to be president of the United States you better be accurate."

Gore turned to Gephardt moments later, saying his calls for

Theater fans plan revival of local drama

The magic of community theater may be making an encore appearance in Big Spring.

Alternatives for reactivating a local community theater were explored by 18 people who attended a special meeting Thursday night.

Cecelia McKenzie, founder of the former Spring City Theater Group, presided over the meeting, which produced ideas concerning possible ways of rejuvenating interest and support for community theater in the city.

McKenzie explained the Spring City Theater Group was formed in 1979. The group was disbanded in 1985, primarily because of the "lack of a strong board of directors," McKenzie said.

However, a new surge of interest and support for forming another community theater appears to be evident, she said.

"There's a time and a place for everything... I think now is the time. The interest is there," McKenzie said.

Greg Smith, former vice president of the Spring City Theater Group, agreed with McKenzie's assessment of apparent community support for forming another theater group.

"People are coming up to me on the street and saying they are interested in forming another group... a lot of people seem to want to get behind this effort," Smith said.

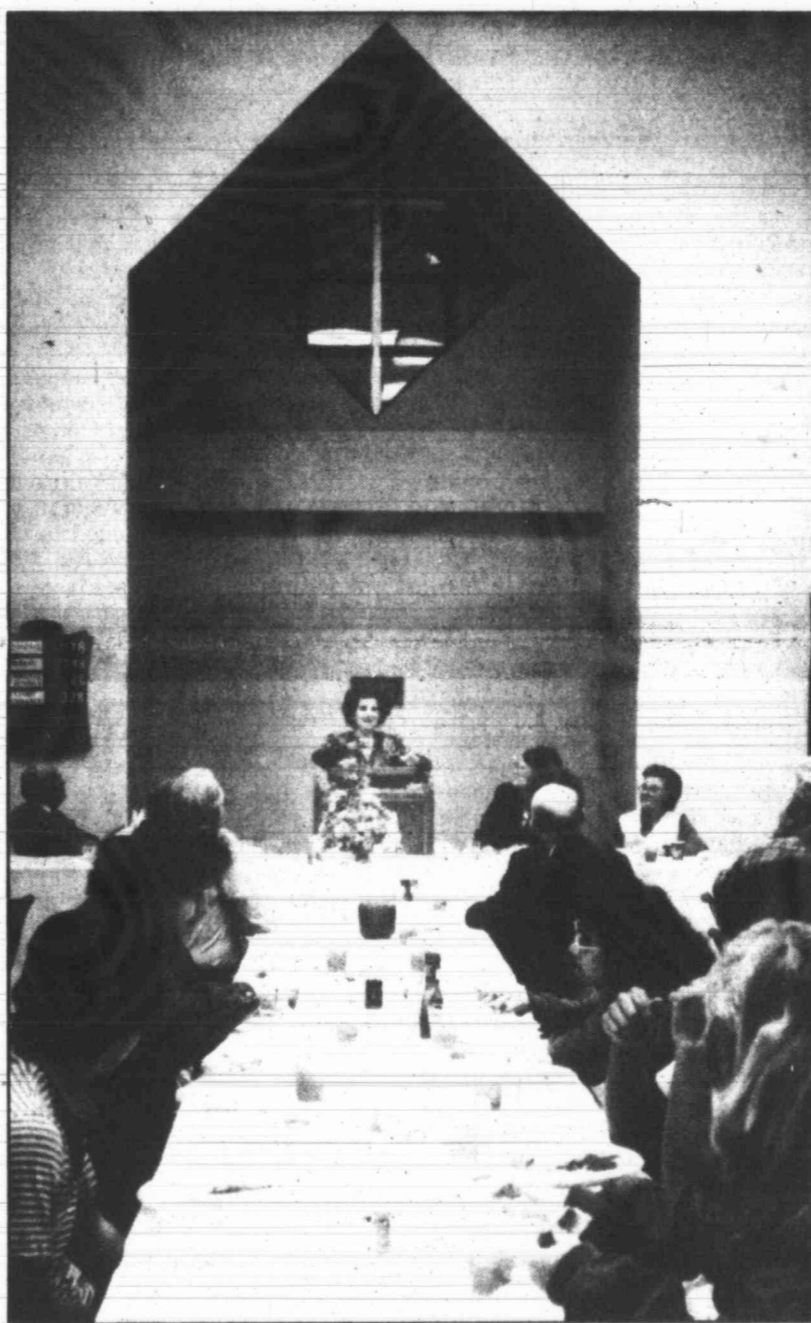

Some 30 people have already expressed direct interest in reactivating a community theater group in Big Spring, McKenzie said.

Production of large-scale theatrical performances at the city-owned Comanche Trail Park amphitheater might eventually be undertaken by a revitalized community theater group, suggested Cloetta Shotts, who was among those who attended Thursday's meeting.

Shotts said such shows might be patterned after the performances of "Texas" presented each summer by a community theater group in Canyon City.

"We might be able to possibly contract with the city to run the amphitheater," Shotts said.

Use of the renovated Big Spring municipal auditorium to allow year-round theatrical productions also was discussed by those who attended Thursday's meeting.

Committee OKs books for classes

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring school system textbook committee selected books from 25 subject areas during its public meeting Thursday at the high school board room.

The selections will be forwarded to the board of trustees for approval during their March 10 meeting, Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy said.

If approved, the books will be used in local schools for the next seven or eight years, Murphy added.

Although the meeting was designed to provide the public with an opportunity to comment on proposed textbooks, only committee members attended, he noted.

"The books we recommended were not very controversial," Murphy said. "The list was adopted with very little problem."

The next opportunity residents will have to comment on the proposed books will be the March board meeting. Murphy noted, however, that they will have to contact Superintendent Bill McQueary before then to be formally included on the board's agenda.

The assistant superintendent said the public hearing was the culmination of a three-month effort on the committee's part, which began with the members' selection at the November board meeting.

In addition to administrators, the committee is comprised of teachers whose area of instruction will be affected by the new books, he added.

Members were given an approved list from the state textbook committee, which named more than 200 books from the 25 subject areas that were acceptable according to state guidelines.

"The state committee approves X number of books every year and send them to us," Murphy said. "These books meet all requirements for subject criteria set forth by the state."

From that list, committee members selected one or two books, basing their choice on the text's conduciveness to local schools, he noted.

The committee received input from all affected teachers during the three-month period. Teacher suggestions were then relayed to the administration earlier this month, with the final recommendations coming at the Thursday meeting, Murphy said.

Teen-age boy arrested in deaths of family

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Authorities today arrested a 16-year-old boy in connection with the ax slayings of his parents, a brother and a sister, and prosecutors said they would seek to try him as an adult on murder charges.

"The boy has been captured and they are interviewing him now," said a police dispatcher who refused to give his name. The boy, who had dyed his hair black and partially shaved his head before the bodies were found, was taken into custody at a phone booth at the main Rochester Post Office, he said.

Olmsted County Attorney Raymond Schmitz said at a news conference that "our intent is to file a petition charging him with four counts of first-degree murder. Then we'll petition to try him as an adult."

"The officers who took him into custody said he was quite nervous and frightened,"

Officer Bill Verdick said.

The bodies of Bernard Brom, 41, his wife, Paulette, about 40, and children Diane, 14, and Rick, 9, were found in their nightclothes Thursday evening at their home in suburban Cascade Township, said Olmsted County Sheriff Charles Von Wald.

The four were believed to have been slain early Thursday morning, the sheriff said. A bloody ax 2 to 3 feet long was found in the basement of the home in a quiet, well-to-do area just outside this southeastern Minnesota city of 60,000, he said.

Law enforcement officials talked with friends of the 16-year-old who had spoken with him Thursday, the sheriff said.

"He indicated he was having some trouble with his parents," Von Wald said. "One student said he was having trouble with his dad because of a tape he had bought, and he didn't want him listening to it."

Reagan budget drops Texan projects

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Phil Gramm say they will press for full federal funding of the planned Austin-based Sematech project after President Reagan submitted a 1989 budget proposal with only partial support of the research project.

Sematech plans called for the semiconductor industry partners and the Defense Department to provide $100 million each to help meet the project's annual budget. But the budget Reagan proposed includes only $44.8 million for Sematech, said Bentsen, a Texas Democrat.

Bentsen wrote Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci seeking an explanation for the proposed funding cuts. Gramm, a Texas Republican, said the government would meet its commitment to the semiconductor research project.

President Reagan sent Congress a $1.09 trillion budget with his most restrained military request ever and requests for more spending on education, science and the fight against AIDS.

Two Texas defense contractors would also suffer major blows under that budget.

The Army plans to cancel its Aquila Remotely-Piloted Vehicle, an unmanned surveillance and targeting drone being developed by Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. Division in Austin. And the Air Force wants to drop its effort to develop an anti-satellite weapon on which Dallas-based LTV Corp. is a major contractor.

The Army had planned to spend $226 million in fiscal 1989 and $1.096 billion over the life of the Aquila program. The ASAT program was to cost $786 million this year and $1.432 billion in the future.

In his letter to Carlucci, Bentsen asked the defense secretary what caused his department to lower its support for Sematech.

"Let me put you on notice that I intend to fight for full funding for this important project," Bentsen said in his letter to Carlucci.

"While I understand that you may be obliged to support the President's budget without change, I hope that you will not try to prevent restoration of the funds needed to keep this program on track and moving forward."

Bentsen says he is unaware of any contingencies for Sematech if the funding agreement is breached.

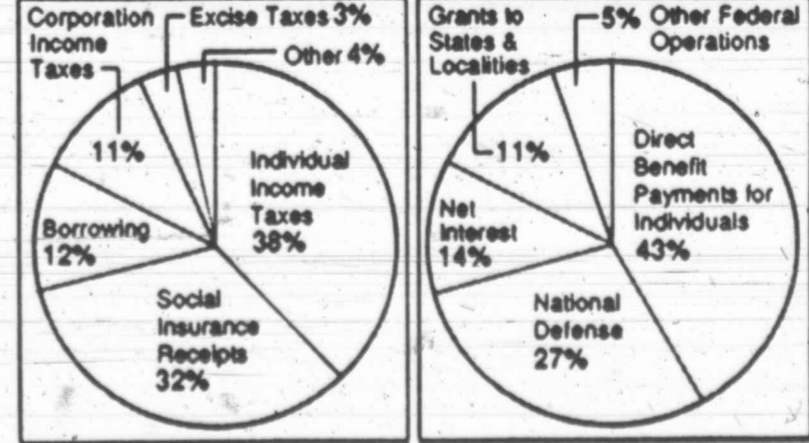

Gramm said the level of government funding needed depends on the level of support offered by the 12 high-tech firms belonging to the consortium, he said.

"I'm committed to seeing the federal government meet its full support of Sematech, not through additional spending, but through a reordering of priorities," Gramm

Seizure linked to wider smuggling ring

LUBBOCK (AP) — Authorities said more arrests are likely in a massive drug-smuggling investigation that has already netted a 1,200-pound marijuana haul.

The marijuana seizure earlier this week and arrests of two men "was not just an isolated incident," said Bob Nestoroff, Department of Public Safety narcotics investigator in Austin.

"This is a multistate investigation that has been in existence for some time," he said Thursday. "Other arrests are anticipated."

Nestoroff said that because the investigation is continuing, he cannot discuss details of the case, but it does involve numerous defendants. The investigation of the ring involves his agency; Drug Enforcement Agency offices in Austin, Lubbock and Dallas; sheriff's offices in Borden and Borden counties; the Dallas Love Field Task Force; U.S. Customs Service in San Antonio and San Angelo; the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics; and other agencies.

After U.S. Customs Service agents followed a KingAir plane from Mexico, two men were arrested who allegedly unloaded marijuana from the plane into pickup trucks near Possum Kingdom Lake.

DPS narcotics agents arrested Gerald Blake Mackey of Cedar Creek and Gary M. Whittington of Austin about 10 p.m. Monday, authorities said. Both are being held on charges of aggravated possession of marijuana.

The plane's pilot and another man flew from Palo Pinto County to Borden County, where the aircraft landed on an isolated airstrip on a ranch near Gail belonging to Warren Beaver, officials said.

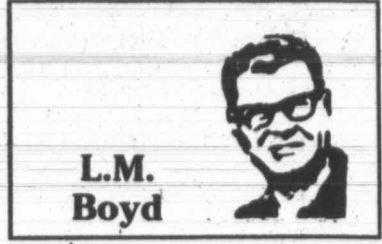

Authorities believe the strip had been used in previous smuggling operations, Nestoroff said.

Ed Mazurek, resident-in-charge of the DEA's Lubbock District Office, said Beaver had told authorities he was unaware the airstrip had been used for illicit purposes.

Beaver, who is a candidate for Borden County sheriff, did not return phone calls Thursday from the Associated Press.

Budget

Both Gramm and Bentsen hailed the budget proposals on science programs, including $11.5 billion for space programs and $363 million to begin construction of the superconductor supercollider project.

Expenditures on space would include a program to orbit a manned space station and to improve "performance and reliability" of the space shuttle, Reagan said.

Texas is one of seven states under consideration by the Department of Energy for the $1.4 billion super collider.

"I am pleased the President recognizes that, just as we make room in the budget for critical national defense programs and for meeting basic human needs, we also must provide for basic research to maintain American leadership in science and technology into the 21st century," Bentsen said.

Gramm said Reagan's budget proposal contained no surprises because it conforms to a compromise worked out between the president and Congress last year.

"I didn't feel then and I don't feel now that agreement is as good as the economy needs and the people deserve," Gramm said. "I think the key thing is to prevent Congress from violating that agreement and going on another election year spending spree."

Bentsen said he was pleased that the Reagan budget proposal contained a provision for the repeal of the windfall profits tax, a measure included in the trade bill Bentsen sponsored. That bill passed the Senate last year and is currently in a House conference committee.

tough trade policies would invite a trade war and cost American jobs. But it was his accusations that the Missouri congressman had shifted positions on a range of issues from Reaganomics to abortion that drew a sharp rebuttal.

"When you make a lecture on consistency, maybe you better take a look at your own record first," Gephardt said.

In a reference to the recently withdrawn GOP candidate, he added, "Lately you've been sounding more like Al Haig than Al Gore."

Gore responded: "That line sounds more like Richard Nixon than Richard Gephardt."

Gore clearly came into this debate eager to use it as an opportunity to take the battle to the two contenders he views as his chief opponents, while leaving Hart and Jackson relatively untouched by his barbs. Gore campaign manager Fred Martin sat watching a television in a nearby room, grinning as Gore threw some of his most intense charges.

Gore defended his strategy in talking with reporters later, saying consistency "is a legitimate issue" and the race had now moved into his territory.

Dukakis and Gephardt are the two winners so far in the 1988 Democratic nomination race, Dukakis winning in New Hampshire earlier this week and Gephardt winning Iowa's caucuses the week before.

Turning to Gephardt, Gore said "I'm going to lay it on the line now, Dick," and accused him of voting in Congress against increases in the minimum wage, against a Department of Education and for tuition tax credits. In each case, he said, Gephardt has taken different positions now.

"You voted for Reaganomics; now you say, well, where are you this week on Reaganomics?" Gore said.

Gephardt has acknowledged changing positions on some key issues, saying time and circumstances have changed. Meeting with reporters after the debate, he said: "All of us in public life should try to re-examine issues. That's what I've tried to do."

But Gephardt vigorously denied during the debate the suggestion he had taken differing positions in different regions of the country.

Poll: Clement rating improves

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, whose ratings in opinion polls plunged lower than the Texas economy several months ago, has dramatically improved his standing with voters, a new survey by the state Republican Party shows.

The percentage of voters who react to him negatively has fallen from a high of 71 percent in one poll last year to the new findings which show only 42 percent of those polled still have an unfavorable opinion.

The poll, conducted by Bob Teeter, a pollster with Market Opinion Research of Washington, D.C., indicates more than half the 800 Texans questioned react favorably to the governor. When queried about his job performance the poll results are about the same as previous ones, 44 percent have a positive reaction while 48 percent indicated they were dissatisfied.

Man killed after high speed chase

DALLAS (AP) — A man was shot to death by Dallas Police early today near McFarlin Auditorium on the Southern Methodist University campus, the scene a few hours earlier of a debate between Democratic presidential candidates, authorities said.

The shooting came following an 11-minute high speed chase that began after a service station was robbed at knifepoint.

The unidentified man died at 4:07 a.m. CST at Parkland Memorial Hospital, according to Dallas Police Sgt. R.D. Houston.

A representative from the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office was sent to the shooting, authorities said.

Officers said the man was shot after the car was chased onto the SMU campus and the man got out of the car armed with a knife. The license plate on the car had been concealed with strips of cloth, officers said.

The shooting took place beside one of the satellite uplinks used to relay signals from the debate.

Houston police officer drowns

HOUSTON (AP) — A police officer drowned after his car plunged into a bayou and divers were unable to rescue him from the murky waters, authorities said.

The accident Thursday evening apparently was triggered by a car that ran a red light, striking Officer Andrew Winzer's car, said police spokesman Dan Turner.

The officer's car went into a spin and the patrolman crashed through a guardrail and into Buffalo Bayou, he said.

"We have conflicting stories at this time, but the witnesses are telling us that the citizen ran the light striking the (patrol car) in the intersection," Turner said.

An off-duty patrolman, who was following Winzer in an unmarked car, and patrons of a nearby bar dove into the murky waters in an attempt to save the officer, he said.

"We saw bubbles so we tried to locate the car. It was too deep, we couldn't reach it and they called for divers," said a man at the bar who dove into the cold water.

"It's very disappointing we couldn't get to the car. It was a terrible moment thinking that he may still be alive. We just couldn't get to the car," said the man who declined to give his name.

It took police department divers more than an hour to pull the officer from the car which had all its doors locked. Officers were still attempting to pull the car from the bayou, a few blocks from the downtown police station, late Thursday.

The male driver of the other car was not seriously injured and taken to police headquarters for questioning, Turner said.

Winzer, whose age was not immediately known, had been with the police department about four years, Turner said.

Cisneros secures dome financing

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros says he secured a private financing deal for the proposed $158 million Alamodome project that will require $45 million in public financing from the city without a sales tax increase.

Under the proposal, the 65,000-seat sports stadium and convention facility would be constructed and operated by a private partnership of firms headed by International Sports Marketing Inc.

Cisneros said he began searching for a private financing plan for the Alamodome because of a lack of support for public financing for the project.

Under the new proposal, a suggested half-cent sales tax increase would not be needed to finance the Alamodome. A tax referendum will be postponed until next January in case the city is unable to negotiate the private financing proposal.

Cisneros said the private partnership will bring more than $150 million to the project. The city would buy and lease the land for the stadium and guarantee a lease payment to the developers for 10 years.

In return, the partnership will earn profits from development of land surrounding the stadium.

Chili cookoff war goes to court

PECOS (AP) — A hotly-contested dispute between rival chili cookoff sponsors is in the hands of a federal judge.

The argument began when Frank X. Tolbert broke from Chili Appreciation Society International Inc., formed his own group of the same name and started a rival chili cookoff near the Big Bend ghost town of Terlingua.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton must decide who gets to keep the Chili Appreciation Society International name and acronym — the larger, incorporated group, or the spinoff "Tolbert group," both of which hold an annual international championship cookoff near Terlingua the first weekend of November.

Bunton heard arguments Wednesday from the plaintiffs, who are the larger group; and the defendants, Tolbert's widow, son and daughter. The judge said he would decide within 20 days which group will get to keep the name.

Bunton likened the argument to the child-custody dispute King Solomon resolved by ordering the baby cut in half.

"That's exactly what's happened to Terlingua," Bunton said. "The baby is split. Terlingua doesn't need two cookoffs."

Bunton offered a tongue-in-cheek solution that probably left a bad taste in the mouths of defendants and plaintiffs alike: keeping one cookoff in Terlingua and letting the other organization start a menu cookoff in nearby Lajitas.

The first cookoff was organized in 1967 by Tolbert. The only two contestants, writers Wick Fowler and H. Allen Smith, tied.

The contest, at first designed to publicize the ghost town, grew. In the late 1970s, the contests began to take on some semblance of organization, testified Bob Neale, a Dallas advertising executive and one of the early organizers.

Another one of Tolbert's early partners, Ray King, testified that Tolbert agreed in 1980 to incorporate as Chili Appreciation Society International, but backed out because "he didn't care much for rules and organization. He liked it like it started out."

King and others incorporated the group, and Tolbert accepted the organization's honorary title of "Supreme Pepper." Tolbert approved the group's rules, King testified.

But Tolbert broke from the society in 1983 and started a rival cookoff across the road from the original site at the vacant Chisos Saloon. That group is now the smaller one.

The larger group — the one incorporated by King — moved its cookoff eight miles down the road to Villa de la Mina, where 2,500 participated in last year's cookoff. Proceeds from the larger group's cookoff go to pay for medical services for the region.

It's organic!

AUSTIN — Texas agriculture commissioner Jim Hightower looks over a selection of organically grown Texas products. A "Certified Organic" label will be placed on products state inspectors verify meet strict standards to help state producers break into the $3 billion-a-year national organic food market. Hightower announced the plan Thursday.

Judge eases prison monitoring

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled that federal monitoring of court-ordered prison reforms will be eased because of apparent compliance by the Texas Department of Corrections.

Justice said in a ruling received Thursday by state officials that there is evidence the TDC is providing inmates access to legal assistance and law materials.

"In light of this welcomed development, the court will adhere at this time to its earlier practice of reducing the extent of active monitoring," Justice said.

The Tyler judge has presided over the 10-year-old landmark case that resulted in massive changes in the state prison system. He said he was eliminating outside monitoring of legal-access issues at 13 of TDC's 26 units.

The oversight is provided by the special master appointed to monitor TDC's compliance with court orders.

"This is good news," said state Assistant Attorney General Nancy Juren. "It's a real good sign. This is the third time the court has relieved the defendants from active monitoring."

Juren said a reduction in monitoring will lower costs for the state, which must pay for independent oversight.

Psychiatrist links ad to slaying of Texas woman

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for Soldier of Fortune magazine were to attack the credibility of a prominent forensic psychiatrist today who contends a classified ad in the publication led to the slaying of a Texas woman.

The woman's family is seeking more than $2.5 million from the self-styled "Journal for Professional Adventurers," claiming the magazine was negligent in accepting the ad. Testimony in the case was to resume today.

"In my opinion, the advertisement was a proximate cause of death for Sandra Black," who was gunned down in 1985, Dr. Park Dietz said Thursday.

Dietz — who headed the federal forensic team that evaluated John Hinckley, the man who attempted to assassinate President Reagan in 1981 — said Soldier of Fortune was without question the magazine of choice for people who would look through its classified ads to find someone willing to engage in illegal activity.

The ad brought Mrs. Black's husband, Robert Black, together with John Wayne Hearn, who placed the ad, prosecutors say. Black is on Texas' death row for paying Hearn $10,000 to carry out the killing at the Blacks' home in Bryan. Hearn is serving three life terms in Florida for other slayings.

Marjorie Einmann, Mrs. Black's mother, and Gary Black, the victim's 18-year-old son, are seeking $2.5 million in actual damages and $20 million in punitive damages.

Hearn's ad appeared in four issues of the magazine in late 1984, offering the services of former Marine and Vietnam veterans and weapons specialists with jungle warfare expertise for "high-risk assignments" in the United States or overseas.

Hearn has testified that the ad drew responses from people seeking work as well as asking for criminal jobs to be performed.

Dietz said the ad's reference to "high-risk assignments" meant criminal activity.

Describing the findings of his studies of the magazine, Dietz testified that a disproportionate segment of the magazine's readership included people who were paranoid.

"These are people who view the world with distrust, are preoccupied with violence," he said. "Soldier of Fortune tells such people what they want to hear."

Business owner supports widening

To the editor: As a part-owner of a retail Gregg Street business, I have given careful consideration to the proposed widening of this heavily traveled thoroughfare. Naturally, my partner and I have studied the effect of the widening on our business.

After learning additional facts from the State Highway Department representatives at the recent public informational meeting, we realize that the obvious inconvenience, interruption and general "mess" will be very short-term, probably six days or less in front of each merchant's place of business.

The Highway Department has done an exceptional job in planning the details of the improvements and intends to have its representatives work individually with each affected business to keep inconvenience to a minimum.

We have discussed the long-term effects of these proposed improvements with several other Gregg Street merchants, and, more importantly, the effects on our entire community. It is exciting to think that U.S. Highway 87 (Gregg Street) will be a safer travel route and will therefore be chosen more frequently by travelers, as well as Big Spring shoppers.

It is exciting to think about those travelers stopping more often for gas, food, lodging, entertainment and shopping, and to think of gaining more business from those who now avoid Gregg Street because of the dangerous driving conditions presently existing, but which should be alleviated by the installation of a left turn lane.

It is exciting to think about industry executives taking a fresh, positive look at Big Spring on the map, and deciding to locate here because they will be able to move their products in and out of town easily and safely. It is exciting to think of the new families these industries could bring to Big Spring to live and shop — with Gregg Street merchants.

A positive, open-minded business person can go on and on with a list of potential benefits from the proposed improvements. Big Spring must be given a chance to grow. Growing pains sometimes occur. Some business owners along Gregg Street, including our business, will have some parking problems to deal with, and a few may even lose the limited parking they now have.

My partner and I will lose all of our front parking. We are willing to invest funds to improve the parking area behind our store, and I feel that most, if not all, Gregg Street merchants can find alternative parking solutions, with a positive approach to the problem.

Let's not miss another golden opportunity for Big Spring. Gregg Street merchants, please think further in the future than just during the short period of inconvenience during the construction of these necessary improvements, and let's work together to solve our common problems. And Gregg Street shoppers, please support the proposed widening so that the street will be a safer and more easily traveled route for all of us and our families.

Parole officer praises counselors

To the editor: I publicly express my appreciation of Elaine Oliver and Lisa Brooks as well as their "boss," Cecilia McKenzie for the work they have been doing in their capacities as counselors for battered women and victims of violent crimes.

People of the opinion that these ladies are a bunch of bleeding hearts whose only passion is putting heat on prosecutors to try rape cases don't know these ladies well enough. Interfering where they don't belong is not in their job description.

I have watched Lisa Brooks spend countless hours in court rooms as part of the support group for the victims of several violent crimes. She puts her heart and soul in her work.

Elaine Oliver spends numerous hours counseling clients and has had quite an effect on those she works with. Rape Crisis Center Director Cecilia McKenzie has selected a fantastic staff of volunteers and they are doing an excellent job.

These people have been a great deal of help to me in working with women who have been beaten and brutalized by my parolees. I try to deal with the victims through the assistance and cooperation of the counselors and the Rape Crisis staff has been very supportive.

With the very limited resources in this community, it's nice to know there is an agency such as the rape crisis center in Big Spring where people can get counseling and assistance from very qualified, caring people.

Don't let the name of the agency fool you. If you are battered and beaten or abused in any way by anyone, go see these ladies in the second floor of the Permian Building. They will help you.

To Cecilia, Lisa and Elaine: For what it is worth, I appreciate all of you for what you have done.

Diary of a mad tourist

By TIM APPEL
Staff Photographer

My dislike for flying has grown in recent years.

I am a veteran flyer, but with a few bad experiences years ago, and with the constant crashes and near-miss stories, my attitude of flying has descended from confident to sheer terror.

Although I had flown in October, with my wife to cling to, my most recent flight to a family reunion in Sacramento, Calif. had to be made alone.

But as my diary of the trip shows, I survived without a crash or even a near-miss.

Feb. 13, 7:15 a.m. — If there was ever a time for a plane to crash, the start of a vacation would be the perfect time. Although I'm too tired to worry about ending in a puff of smoke, not too weary to perform my traditional takeoff ritual — gripping the armrests I close my eyes and whisper, "here goes nothing." I attempt sleep, but fail.

7:30 a.m. — I feel relaxed enough to move from my aisle seat, which I requested for mad dashes to the restroom, to a window seat. I slowly sip my ginger ale while watching the Lilliputian landscape glide by below.

7:50 a.m. — After departing on time, we land in Phoenix ten minutes early. A smooth landing, but I'd swear that pilots love to scare their passengers by making low approaches to the runway. We're practically on top of a highway in Phoenix when — just at the last second — the runway slips beneath us.

9 a.m. — After exploring every square inch of the airport in Phoenix, I head for my next flight, not due to leave for 30 minutes. At the gate, I see a man in a suit and tie using a high-powered portable computer. I wonder what kind of business program the executive is using. As I take a peek at the computer screen, I notice he is in the midst of playing a golf game.

9:45 a.m. — The flight is 10 minutes late because of a backlog of planes waiting for takeoff. I perform my ritual again, and the 737 is safely in the air. Two rows ahead of me sit the Phoenix Suns, flying to

Around the rim

Sacramento to play the Kings. On the ground, they are a rowdy lot, but most snooze away now. I attempt sleep, but fail again.

10:20 a.m. — Flight 550 is descending toward Sacramento, and the basketball players are definitely awake. They toss pillows around like a roundball. One of the players reads chapters 48 to 56 of a Jackie Collins book instead of sleeping. A stewardess passes a piece of paper around for the players to autograph. As a teenage girl listens to a personal cassette player, her father (seated in front of me) reads her Seventeen magazine — an article on sexual dreams. The man across the aisle from him and I covertly read the article, too. A ginger ale hits the spot.

Feb. 15, 9:40 p.m. — Maybe the beginning of a trip isn't the most likely time for a crash — the conclusion is, and this is it. Conclusion seems like a most unfortunate word.

The plane is full of weary vacationers ending their three-day weekend, and each looks as if there is a story to tell about their bedraggled lives. It would make a perfect made-for-television movie. Time again for my ritual, of course, and the plane makes the smoothest takeoff and ascent I have ever experienced. I attempt sleep, but fail.

10:30 p.m. — Fortunately, I had my glass of ginger ale. The pilot announces that the plane may have blown a front tire on takeoff, and the emergency vehicles with flashing red lights are nothing more than a precaution. Nothing to worry about, he says. If ever there was a time to be scared, I guess it would be now, but I actually feel calm.

10:50 p.m. — Instead of the normal approach into Las Vegas, we get clearance for a different runway. I guess in case we get spread all over the runway, the airport would still operate. Due to this new approach, many Las Vegas flyers "ooh" and "aah" over the scene.

The night view of this Nevada city is beautiful. As the back wheels touch, a gasp from a few is heard as we await contact by the front wheels. The wheels do feel a bit squishy when they make contact, but we make it to the terminal fine. I still think it was the best takeoff ever.

11:00 p.m. — Before I left Big Spring, I told my comrades at the Herald stories of how I would break hearts, make millions, and wreak havoc throughout Las Vegas on my three-hour layover. Instead, I explore the airport and eventually lie on some airport seats. I attempt sleep, but fail.

Feb. 16, 1 a.m. — Thirty feet from my gate are a slew of slot machines. I decide to make a killing on the nickel slots. After 30 minutes, I am a 2-dollar profit and will leave Las Vegas a richer man. Don't tell the IRS.

1:45 a.m. — If one wants to meet beautiful women, the Las Vegas airport is the place to do so — I also decide that the flight to Lubbock is not the place to do so. One passenger brings a stuffed animal aboard. Before takeoff, a stewardess named Barb puts a seat belt around the toy. The 17 passengers chuckle. I go through my ritual, get a ginger ale and attempt sleep, but fail.

God only knows a.m. — Unlike Las Vegas, Lubbock is nothing to "ooh" about from the air. After a brief stop, we fly to Midland. Once again, another ritual, another ginger ale, and failure at sleep.

8 a.m. — I am in my own bed, and my attempt to sleep finally has positive results.

Feb. 17, 11:12 a.m. — As I type this column, the newsroom television is tuned to Headline News. Bobbie Battista reads a story on airline near-collisions.

Also, I promised myself that I would sing the praises of America West Airlines. My confidence in flying went from 20 percent to 95 percent, and they were superb in every way. Is there a lucrative endorsement possibility here?

Baker travels in expensive style

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

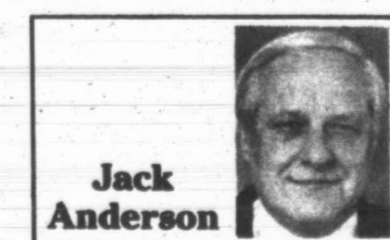

When White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker heads home for a weekend in Huntsville, Tenn., he flies on a military Lear jet. Whether on official or unofficial business, President Reagan has decided that Baker and National Security Adviser Colin Powell should never fly on commercial airlines.

The White House cites security and instant communication as the reasons for the special arrangements. A military official at the White House said it is easier for a military jet to pull a U-turn and head back to Washington should the president need his staff.

Baker, who flies to Huntsville about twice a month, never requested the special flights. Whenever he or Powell use the plane, they pay the going airline coach fare for a commercial flight, plus $1.

But the plane costs $480 an hour to operate. On a round trip to Tennessee, the plane is aloft for about two hours. A round-trip commercial ticket costs less than $250.

At Christmas time, Baker and his wife took the jet to Tennessee and then on to Opa-Locka, Fla., to see their granddaughter. They paid $1,022. When Baker flies west to Reagan's California ranch, he rides on a private C-20 Gulfstream jet that costs about $2,527 an hour to fly.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The State Department recently established diplomatic ties with Mongolia, but those diplomats didn't just fall off the turnip truck. They decided the ambassador to Mongolia won't actually have to live in Mongolia.

The chosen ambassador will work out of Washington. After all, there is nothing to do in Mongolia except drink fermented milk and fight frostbite.

The State Department may be on to something here. Why not save money by keeping all our diplomats in Washington? We can see only one drawback. Who would carry the suitcases when members of Congress go abroad?

We would suggest the Mongolia experiment as a test of whether the lawmakers can carry their own luggage, but we suspect most of them will continue their on-site inspections of such international hot spots as London, Paris and Rome.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The preacher-politicians are up in arms. Jesse Jackson implies racists are out to sink his campaign. Now Pat Robertson is whining about "Christian-bashing" by his opponents.

The former Rev. Robertson has the misfortune of leaving the ministry to enter politics at a time when all Christian evangelists are being scrutinized because of the antics of a few. That isn't "Christian-bashing."

That's legitimate public concern. This country has proved time and again that it is willing to elect a Christian president, and it may even be ready to elect a black president. What it may not be willing to do is elect a person with no experience in public office who wakes up one morning and decides he wants the whole enchilada. Call it "amateur-bashing."

Two terms is enough in capitol

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Reagan has several times recorded his opposition to the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution, which prohibits a president from running for a third term. He has made it clear that even assuming the amendment were repealed yesterday, or that it had never been enacted, he would not himself run for a third term.

He says this plausibly because of his age. If he were the age of Theodore Roosevelt when he left office, having served almost a full two terms (McKinley was shot six months after his inauguration), one would greet the disavowal of ambition skeptically.

No, Reagan believes it. He will tell you that the American people have the right to vote as many times as they like, not only for a senator or representative, but also for a president: "I intend to campaign when I get out of here on the subject."

Reminded that tradition can achieve the same prestige as law, he replies that the tradition was set by George Washington "at a time when people were afraid of the restoration of the monarchy."

When Franklin Roosevelt decided to run for a third term, he flouted the tradition, and during the campaign of 1940 much was made of FDR's narcissism. By the time the fourth term came up, Roosevelt was confirmed in the imperial manner.

Reagan is quick to acknowledge that no man should run for the presidency whose health is flagging. At the time Roosevelt ran in 1944, his doctors had privately confided to him that he was not fit to spend more than three hours a day at work. (If he had spent four hours a day, we'd have lost Western Europe also.)

Notwithstanding this considerable imposture, Roosevelt's supporters decried the 22nd Amendment. Elmer Davis called it "an act of retroactive vindictiveness."

They could never beat him while he was alive, Davis said, so they beat him after he was dead. But it is by no means certain that a Roosevelt, running in 1988, could bring off a third term.

What Reagan fails to take into account, I think, is the political metabolism of the American people. We are a culture that refuses to permit a morning news show to prolong a segment beyond six minutes.

This appetite for dispatch in the handling of the news accelerated during the '60s. It wasn't until the '70s that the networks resolved on the six-minute maximum segment in the morning television shows.

If Pythagoras appeared on a morning news program and had only got to two sides of his triangle at six minutes, we'd never know about the third side. That theatrical imperative for a change affects the public appetite for yet another presidential term.

Reagan would no doubt reply that if that were so, why let the people proceed to defeat the candidate seeking a third term. The trouble with that is that an incumbent is normally situated to enforce his own renomination — which has the effect, if a third term is frowned upon, of imposing a disqualifying burden on a party whose principles may be popular.

The volatility of public approval of a president's performance is illustrated by Reagan's own most recent ratings. After the stock market crash in October, he fell to 45 percent approval.

After he wined and dined Gorbachev, he shot up to 55 percent. Today he is at 50. Harry Truman had 25 percent approval when he left office. That was just one more point than Nixon had (24) when he was forced to resign from office.

From such figures we can't deduce an overpowering popular mandate for a third term. Johnson could have run again, and elected not to do so, yielding his seat to a Republican. Ike could not have run again, but his successor was a Democrat.

If one is to stare at the figures long and hard enough, they began to look like tea leaves. And they say to this soothsayer: Two terms is enough for a president. And if we are going to change the Constitution, let's have a three-term limit for senators, and a five-term limit for congressmen.

Residents return home

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — About 5,000 people evacuated after a toxic chemical leak tainted the Sandusky River were permitted to return to their homes today after fumes dissipated, the mayor said.

A water emergency remained in effect in this northwestern Ohio city of 22,000 after an estimated 100,000 gallons of flammable toluene spilled Wednesday from a ruptured Sun Co. pipeline south of here.

Reserve tanks which hold about 4 million gallons of water were expected to last until late this afternoon, Mayor Fred Singer said.

Mecham, Mofford clash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Impeached Gov. Evan Mecham says acting Gov. Rose Mofford is replacing his administration before the Senate can decide whether to remove him permanently, but a Mofford aide said she has "bent over backward" to be fair.

"May I ask you to recognize that I have only been accused and not convicted of any act," Mecham said Thursday in a letter to Mofford. The embattled Republican also demanded that Mofford forward all his mail unopened.

"I must convey my deep disappointment and surprise at the way your people are turning a temporary acting governorship into a complete disruption and replacement of my administration," Mecham said.

Budget reaction good

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's $1.1 trillion budget for fiscal 1989 is his first spending plan in years that is not being called "dead on arrival" by his Democratic opponents in Congress.

And even though there were mutterings on Capitol Hill of Trojan horses and smoke and mirrors, it seemed clear Thursday that despite likely fights over federal priorities, this year's budget battle should be relatively mild.

The spending plan contains a deficit of $129.5 billion, less than the $136 billion target required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law. The government would spend $1.094 trillion, while taking in $965 billion in receipts.

Officials order recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has ordered a blanket suspension of the use of a popular industrial device blamed for leaking tiny radioactive particles at more than 100 plants around the nation.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Thursday also ordered the 3M Corp. to recover and test all 45,000 of the suspect devices, ionizing air guns used to control static electricity and remove dust from product containers.

Robert Bernero, deputy director of the NRC's office of nuclear materials safety, said that of 823 plants inspected so far, "detectable" — though virtually harmless — contamination had been found at 118. Of those, he identified 39 plants where the radiation exceeded the reportable limit of 0.005 microcuries.

GUATEMALA CITY — A Nicaraguan woman touches the face of Walter Calderon, known as Comandante Tono, in front of the Archbishop's Palace where the second round of the Nicaraguan peace talks are occurring. The woman was part of a group demonstrating their support for the Contra leadership.

Mediator hopes to break impasse

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Seeking to break an impasse in peace talks, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo urged Contra rebels to accept a 30-day truce in exchange for four major concessions from Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

The Contras said they accepted "in principle" the proposal forwarded Thursday night. The leftist Sandinistas called it "interesting and constructive," but said it needed clarification.

Obando y Bravo, leader of Nicaragua's Roman Catholics, is mediating the talks, which were to resume today.

The concessions requested of the Sandinistas are:

- A "full, general" amnesty for the several thousand political prisoners in Nicaraguan jails, including all members of the National Guard of former dictator Gen. Anastasio Somoza, whom the Sandinistas overthrew in 1979.

- Full freedom of the press, which now is granted only to a few communications outlets, including the opposition newspaper La Prensa and Radio Catolica, the voice of the Catholic Church.

- A promise to "reconsider" a mandatory military draft law, which has sparked violent disturbances in several Nicaraguan cities by young men and the mothers of draft-age youths. The most recent disturbance was in Masaya only a week ago.

- Renewal of a dialogue with the Sandinistas' internal political opposition, which is calling along with the Contras for 17 changes in Nicaragua's Constitution. The talks broke off last year.

Victor Hugo Tinoco, Nicaragua's deputy foreign minister, said the cease-fire proposed by the cardinal was "vague and ill-defined" and would have to be clarified before the government could respond to the plan.

"The four requirements for the Nicaraguan government are very clear and very well defined," Tinoco said. "The requirement for the Contras is not quite clear."

Tinoco said the cardinal did not define "when the cease-fire is going to happen, how long it is going to be, where it is going to be" or how it would be verified. "We have to clarify what the Contras are going to give in exchange," he said.

Obando y Bravo said he offered the plan after the two sides were unable to agree on the philosophy underlying a cease-fire.

The Contras had argued that any truce must be preceded by democratic reforms, while the Sandinistas contended hostilities must end before real change can begin.

"We argued a long time," the cardinal said. "We could not come to agreement on the definitions."

The concessions requested by Obando y Bravo of the government were among many the Contras have been demanding for some time.

The rebels have also been seeking tri-partite talks among the Sandinistas, their internal opposition and the Contras. The cardinal did not forward that demand.

Nor did the requested concessions specifically address other Contra concerns, including constitutional changes that would prevent a Nicaraguan president from succeeding himself, separate the army from the Sandinista political party and establish a tribunal to guarantee constitutional rights.

Amal aids in search

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen seized six members of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah faction early today in connection with the kidnapping of a U.S. Marine officer serving with U.N. peacekeeping forces.

An Amal spokesman said the fundamentalist activists were rounded up in pre-dawn raids on houses in Tyre, the ancient port city in southern Lebanon.

Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, 43, was kidnapped Wednesday as drove on a highway south of Tyre.

Pope issues doctrine

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II today called for eliminating the division between East and West and blamed it for a host of economic and social injustices that he said made developing countries "cogs on a gigantic wheel."

In his seventh encyclical, the Polish-born pope said East-West rivalry based on "unacceptably exaggerated concern for security" was a main reason for the widening gap between rich and poor countries.

The 102-page document is an authoritative statement of the church's social doctrine. Titled in Latin "Sollicitudo Rei Socialis," meaning the social concern of the church, it represents an effort by John Paul to give force to themes he has espoused during the 9½ years of his papacy.

Bus wreck claims 17

TIERRA BLANCA, Mexico (AP) — A passenger bus trying to pass on a curve in the eastern state of Veracruz on Thursday slammed into a gasoline truck, killing 17 people and injuring 14 others, authorities said.

The impact caused the gasoline truck to explode near Tierra Blanca, 22 miles west of the port of Veracruz on the Gulf of Mexico. The accident occurred at 6:32 a.m.

Luis Edmundo Perez Garcia, a spokesman for the Mexican Red Cross, said it appeared the accident happened when the driver of the bus tried to pass another vehicle on a curve.

Soviet rocket fails

MOSCOW (AP) — The official TASS news agency reported that a Proton rocket failed after launch and destroyed three satellites that failed to reach proper orbit and burned up in the atmosphere.

The news agency gave few details of the accident, but the untimely release of the satellites suggests the carrier rocket exploded.

It was a rare report of mishap in the Soviets' commercial space program, which has been touted by Kremlin officials as a reliable means of deploying weather and navigation equipment for foreign organizations in the wake of similar failures in the U.S. space program.

Du Pont makes emotional exit

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — It had all the trappings of a campaign rally. The only thing missing was a presidential candidate.

On Thursday night — hours after Delaware's former governor announced he was dropping out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination — du Pont was greeting supporters at a high school, thanking them for their help in fueling his longshot campaign.

The du Pont partisans, who had made nearly 400,000 telephone calls for their candidate, who had sent out more than a million pieces of mail, crowded around, cheering, sporting "Pete 1992" buttons.

"In America nobody promises you you're gonna win," du Pont said as he announced his withdrawal. "America only promises you're gonna get your chance to try. She gave us our chance. We took it. We used it. We did well with it. And of that I am enormously proud."

At the rally, du Pont, never letting go of wife Elise's hand, tried to greet everyone, to shake every hand on his way to the stage.

Ironically, the campaign folded in part because of money. It's ironic because the du Pont name is synonymous with big bucks.

He is the great-grandson of the founder of the Du Pont Co.; his wife is a descendant of Benjamin Franklin and an heiress to a dairy fortune.

Du Pont and top aides decided there was not enough time to raise the millions needed for a respectable campaign leading up to Super Tuesday on March 8. The campaign ended, however, with no debt and $350,000 on hand.

The couple's daughter Elise was there for Thursday night's farewell, as were sons Pierre and Benjamin Franklin. Eluthere, known as "There," was "back at college doing what he ought to be doing — getting his college degree," du Pont said.

Du Pont, who was heading to Iowa and then New Hampshire next week to thank supporters, first wanted to thank those who have supported him through a stint in the state legislature, three terms as Delaware's lone congressman, and the maximum two terms as governor.

The 53-year-old du Pont announced his candidacy Sept. 16, 1986 — 17 months before the New Hampshire primary. He was the first Republican in the field. He said then if he did not do well in Iowa and New Hampshire, he would pull out of the race.

He was fifth in a field of six GOP candidates in the Iowa caucuses. He was fourth out of five in the New Hampshire primary.

He talked about what might have been.

According to du Pont, tracking polls showed he was solidly ahead of Jack Kemp the Friday before Tuesday's election.

"If that election had been held on Friday it would be in South Carolina tonight," he said to the cheering crowd.

Du Pont talked about the future, particularly the Republican National Convention this summer in New Orleans.

OUR LEADERS DISPLAYED THEIR GREATNESS BY THEIR HUMILITY

The great leaders of our nation who shaped its destiny and pointed us in the direction of the freedom which we enjoy today had one thing in common. They placed their reliance on the Almighty for their own guidance, to help them arrive at the unerring decisions which would secure our future for all time. In war or in peace they sought God's help, being fully aware of the awesome responsibility that they carried. It was this very humility that earned them their exalted place in our hearts and in the history books. We can best honor them on their birthdays or at any other time by following their example and attending our House of Worship regularly. What the Lord did for our nation He can do for us and our loved ones, and we should be ever grateful to those revered statesmen for, among other things, helping to bring this fact to our attention.

Religion roundup

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Southern Baptist Foreign Missions Board has urged the State Department to let American missionaries return to Lebanon a year after the U.S. government ordered them out because of strife.

"What we're appealing for is the same opportunity that we've exercised in other trouble spots through the years," said board president R. Keith Parks in a letter to Secretary of State George P. Schultz.

Southern Baptists pulled out 24 missionaries at the time the State Department ordered the exodus of U.S. citizens. Parks said missionaries, who feel called by God to certain areas, should be allowed to take risks for their faith.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Stronger morals and education are the best prevention against AIDS, the state's Roman Catholic bishops say in a personal letter.

The letter rejects the use of condoms or other forms of "safe sex" to prevent the deadly disease, and reaffirms the church's ban on extramarital sex, abortion, the use of contraceptives and masturbation.

The bishops deplore what they call the "dehumanizing effects of prostitution, pornography and adult entertainment centers based on sexual exploitation" and discourages "recreational sex."

The letter says "homosexuality is not sinful, but homosexual acts are."

NEW YORK (AP) — Reform Jews in America have raised more than $500,000 to plant 100,000 trees in a new forest in Israel named for Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, president of the Union of American Congregations.

The Schindler Forest is being established on 80 acres near Safed in Galilee as an expression of the Reform movement's commitment to Israel, says Samuel I. Cohen, executive vice president of the Jewish National Forest Fund.

What is God's will for you?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I'm in my late 20s and single. Right now I'm content to remain single for at least the next few years. The problem is, my parents and all my relatives are constantly telling me I need to get married, and frankly I'm tired of their pressure. How can I tell them politely but firmly that it's none of their business whether or not I'm married? — B.A.

DEAR B.A.: Let me take a different approach to your question. The most important question we can ask about any situation we face in life is this: What is God's will for me in this situation? God loves us, and one of the signs of His love is that He knows what's best for us. And when we truly seek His will about a situation, He has promised to guide us according to His perfect plan. The Bible says, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

What does this have to do with you right now? The question you need to ask is this: Is it God's will for me to be single at this time? If it is, then you need not be overly sensitive about the reaction of others to your present status. Don't resent or get angry at the well-intentioned remarks of your relatives; they care for you and want you to be happy. And if you are truly seeking God's will for the future, the time may well come when He will bring across your path the person He has chosen for your life partner.

Are you, however, honestly seeking God's will for your life? Or are you content to live without any thought of Him? Don't go through life just "doing your own thing" (as the popular expression says). Instead, commit your life to Jesus Christ and ask Him to guide you in the decisions you make about your future. There is no greater joy in life than knowing God's will and doing it.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I'm worried and fearful about my husband. He's only been retired a couple of years, but recently he's become very forgetful. He also sometimes seems almost like a different person, because he suddenly will get angry over almost nothing, and that isn't like him at all. Please pray for us, because my health isn't very good and it's hard to keep up with everything — Mrs. F.M.P.

DEAR MRS. F.M.P.: I'm sure many people reading this will pause and pray for you — including many who have faced similar situations with a spouse or relative. The Bible says, "The Lord is near to all who call on him" (Psalm 145:18).

Let me urge you first of all to see that your husband has a thorough examination by your doctor, and that you share your concerns frankly with him. There are many possible physical causes for what your husband is experiencing, and often they can be treated. But even if that's not the case, your doctor can advise you and give you some indication what to expect in the future. I suggest you also share what he tells you with other members of your family.

But let me also assure you that God knows your situation and wants to help and encourage you. That doesn't mean you'll be free of problems and decisions in the future. But in each situation you can turn to Christ and find the strength and wisdom you need. God has promised, "Even to your old age and gray hairs I am he, I am he who will sustain you. I have made you and I will carry you" (Isaiah 46:4). If you have never given your life to Christ, do so now. When we know Christ we are never alone, and more than that we have hope for the future. We also discover His patience and help right now as we open our hearts to Him each day. May this be your experience as you stand with your husband and help him during these days.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM — I grew up in a religious home, but I was going through a lot of meaningless motions. When I left home I left all that behind. But we had a child a few years ago, and I find myself wondering how I'll teach her about God, when I don't know anything myself. Is there more to religion than what I've experienced so far? — Mrs. C.W.P.

DEAR C.W.P.: Yes, there certainly is. You see, God is not just a vague force or a being so distant from us that He does not care about us. The opposite is the case. God is a person — He is able to feel and think and act and love us. And because He is a person, we can enter into a personal relationship with Him — which is far, far different from merely going through "a lot of meaningless motions."

How can you come to know God personally? The key is to realize that God has done everything necessary to bridge the gap between man and God. Because we have sinned and turned our backs on Him, there is a gulf or barrier between man and his Creator. But God loves us and wants us to come to know Him, and He sent His only Son, Jesus Christ, into the world to remove our sins through His death on the cross. "For Christ died for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God" (1 Peter 3:18). Right now Christ is standing at the door of your heart, wanting to come into your life. Ask Him to come in and commit your life to Him.

Then thank God for the child He has entrusted to you, and ask Him to help you teach her about Christ's love for her — by your words and your example. Get a Bible storybook for children (your local Christian bookstore can advise you), and read it regularly. Pray with your daughter, and pray for her as well. In addition, find in a church where Christ is preached, and where your daughter can attend a good Sunday school.

Early sex can cause health problems

DEAR ABBY: I had to write to you after reading your response to "A Private Person in Atlanta." It appears her company was offering their employees health insurance and one of their questions was: "At what age did you have your first sexual encounter?" She stated it was nobody's business, left it blank, and you agreed with her.

Dear Abby

Well, Abby, that is a pertinent question for any company that takes on the health risks of women. The earlier a woman engages in sexual activity, the higher her risk for early development of cervical cancer.

It is a scientific fact that women who have their first sexual intercourse at a young age are at greater risk for cervical cancer.

I doubt that you will print this letter, but I think you should, not so much for "A Private Person in Atlanta," but for all the adolescent women who are considering becoming sexually active. They should have as many of the facts as possible before making their decision.

NICK GIANNONE, M.D.
FREPORT, TEXAS

DEAR DOCTOR: Thanks to readers like you, I am always learning. I hope your important message reaches women of every age who will share this knowledge.

DEAR ABBY: I am the single mother of a 10-month-old daughter. I am on a very limited budget, but "Sandra," a dear friend of mine, has a daughter a year older than mine, and she gives me the clothes her daughter has outgrown. They're as good as new.

I am grateful for her generosity, but every time Sandra sees my daughter in something she has given me, she never fails to comment to everyone who happens to be present that my daughter is wearing her daughter's hand-me-downs. I find this embarrassing. Lately, if I think I might run into Sandra, I either leave my daughter at home or make sure she's wearing one of the few outfits I was able to buy for her myself.

I don't want to lose Sandra's friendship and the clothes she gives me help a lot, but I just can't take the embarrassment anymore. Should I tell her, or what?

SENSITIVE

DEAR SENSITIVE: Even well-to-do friends and relatives welcome children's hand-me-downs without feeling like "charity cases." However, since you find Sandra's public announcements embarrassing, you could either tell her privately how you feel, or you could beat her to the punch and proudly tell your friends how lucky you are to come into such lovely things due to Sandra's generosity.

DEAR ABBY: Add this to your file of ungrateful people: Two years ago, I went to the bank where I have had my account for many years. I handed the teller two 20s and a $10 bill, and asked her for 50 $1 bills.

She gave me 50 $10 bills — that's a total of $500! I started to tell her that she had made a mistake, when she said, "Please move along. I have a long line of people to wait on."

I finally was able to convince her that she had made a mistake and given me too much money. She took the money back, gave me the correct amount and turned to the next customer without so much as a "thank-you" to me.

But that night, I slept soundly.

JERRY PAYMER,
BALTIMORE

DEAR JERRY: Although virtue is its own reward, a simple acknowledgement of yours would have been in order. The teller was not only rude, she was probably too arrogant to acknowledge her mistake.

DEAR ABBY: Please deliver this message to all your readers who own pets: If you love your pet, take the time to fit it with a comfortable collar and identification tag with the animal's name and telephone number. Even though you say your pet never leaves your yard, there is always that one time when it does get out, goes a little too far and gets lost. This is equally true for cats.

You could avoid the pain and anguish of running a "lost pet" ad, calling the pound, or putting up signs on telephone poles describing your lost pet.

Abby, our cat has a collar with his name, our name, address and phone number on his metal tag. If he ever gets lost, we're hoping that whoever finds him will care enough to call us.

It is as hard on animal lovers who find lost pets with no identification as it is on those who lost them.

J.K., LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR J.K.: Every animal lover who has ever lost (or found) a pet will realize the importance of your message. And I hope that those who haven't as yet found the time to get a collar and identification tag for Tuffy or Fluffy will be moved to do so.

"How to Be Popular" is for everyone who feels left out and wants an improved social life. It's an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Abby's Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Members discuss birds

Mary Jane Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Ted Fowler, with Mrs. Larry Nix as co-hostess.

Roll call was answered by 11 members and two guests. Mrs. Ed Corson presented the program titled, "Soaring With the Birds." She gave a slide presentation of birds that are found in Howard County.

She noted that she had been birding for about 25 years, and that during that time many different birds have been spotted in this area.

To attract birds to your yard, it's necessary to offer fresh water year round. Hummingbird feeders should be put out by the last of March. Black oily sunflower seeds make a good food to keep out.

Members observed the club's 38th anniversary with a cake and other refreshments.

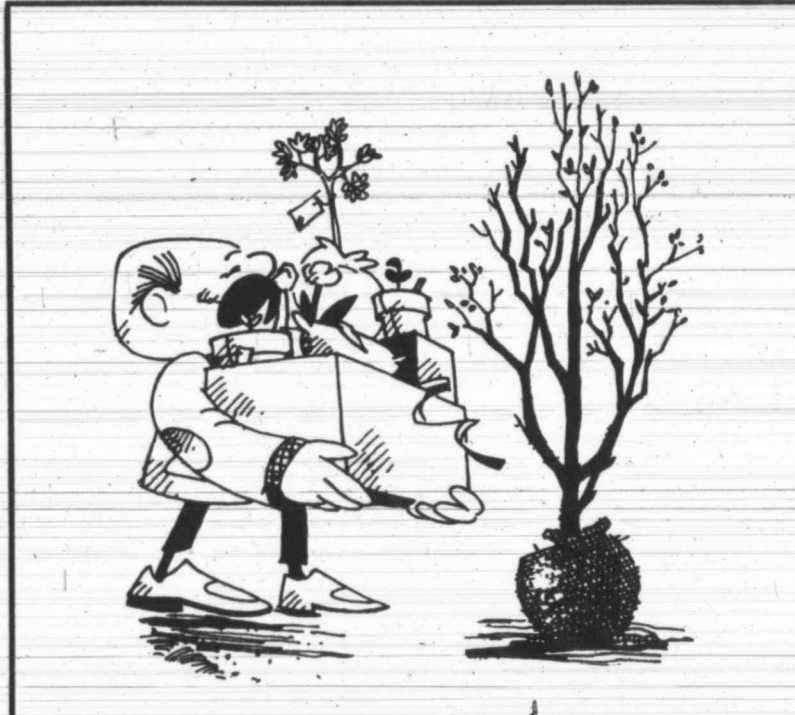

The next meeting will be a shopping trip. The group will meet March 10 at the home of Mrs. Jerrie Gee at 9:30 a.m.

Area briefs

Women compile yearly report

The Big Spring Junior Women's Club recently compiled annual reports of their activities for 1987.

The reports were sent to Western District representatives and will be sent to representatives of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs and the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Among the activities reported were those completed during the last two months of the year. In November the Conservation Committee in cooperation with the Texas State Department of Highways, spread 26 varieties of wildflower seed in the median of the south service road and FM 700.

The flowers will bloom this spring and should provide quite a spectacular view for the large amount of traffic in this area.

Members also assisted with the Howard County Heritage Museum's fund-raiser "Big Spring Collects." They greeted guests, collected money and tickets and secured some of the valuable art displayed by residents of Howard County.

Members installed at meeting

The Howard County Lioness Club conducted its monthly meeting recently at Wesley Methodist Church.

A music program was presented by the Single Ladies' Ensemble of the First Baptist Church. The group sang a melody of songs.

Three new members were installed they are: Ann Fritzer, Susan Horton and Jeanette Cunningham.

Lloyd Ola Bearden was chosen to replace two-year director Fran Jansch, who is now a member at large.

In honor of Valentine's Day, husbands were invited to join members for refreshments. A special gift was presented to Suncha and Walter Christensen, who represented the longest married couple.

The "Rose Sale" is now in progress. Orders are being taken until March 8 for delivery March 27 and 28. Roses are $12 per dozen. Please call 263-2815 or 267-6095 to place an order.

The next meeting will be March 21 at Wesley Methodist Church.

Woman hear report on Mexico

The Modern Women's Forum met recently at the home of Goldye Moad, with 12 members present.

President Irene Smith conducted a short business meeting and gave a program titled, "Down Mexico Way."

She noted that as strongly as Mexico and the United States are bonded as neighbors, sharing a border 2,000 miles long, they are separated by differences in culture, history, wealth and power, as well as economic, technical, political and military inequality.

In the border city of Juarez, many of their traditions are disappearing. The serenading of girlfriends has virtually disappeared, as has the chaperone for young couples.

The children no longer offer tributes of spring flowers to the Virgin Mary in any of the Juarez churches.

Terlingua, a small village across the river in Mexico, as well as a large area of the Big Bend National Park, had no medical help for a one hundred mile area, until 1980 when Terlingua Medics Inc. was established.

Willie Nelson donated the money for their first cardiac monitor and sang at a benefit for the medics.

Dorothy Hull will be the hostess at the next club meeting Feb. 25 at the TU Electric party room.

90th birthday celebrated

Lucille Walker, 804 Main St., celebrated her 90th birthday Feb. 12.

The event was hosted by Linda Anderson, Frances Walker, Elizabeth Dennis, Mary Sue Walker, Georgia Cauble and Pat Simmons.

Friends dropped by from 3 to 5 p.m. to wish her well.

Walker, the former Lucille Vawter, came to Big Spring Aug. 24, 1924.

She went to work for the Albert Fisher Store, which was located in the 200 block of Main Street.

A few days after she arrived, she found she was frightened of the sandstorms. But she adjusted, because she's still here after 64 years.

She married R. Lewis Price May 23, 1933. He was vice president and cashier of the First National Bank, and was instrumental in the building of the first Country Club Golf Course, where he was the first president.

He and Lucille were avid golfers and competed in district tournaments.

Before he died on Oct. 25, 1938, the couple lived at 804 Main St., where Lucille still resides with her nephew and his wife, James and Frances Walker.

Lucille married Cecil Walker

LUCILLE WALKER

in 1941. He owned and operated Walker Drug Store. In 1944 he bought six cows and Lucille bought three. This was the beginning of their cattle business.

He had a farm north of town and was a breeder of registered herefords.

Cecil died May 19, 1983.

Lucille is a member of the World War I Auxiliary and a member of First Christian Church.

Lady Steers face same bi-district foe

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Saturday night in Lubbock Monterey High School's gymnasium, the Big Spring Lady Steers will meet Canyon — in bi-district play, for the second consecutive year.

Today has been proclaimed Lady Steers Day by Big Spring's mayor Cotton Mize, and the proclamation will be presented at a 3 p.m. pep rally for both basketball teams in Steer Gym.

Ranked second in the state in 4-A girls' basketball, Canyon boasts a long tradition of playoff appearances.

This year, rival Levelland swept the teams' district battles — the second one by two points off a turnover in the last seven seconds of overtime in Canyon — and the Eagles come into the playoffs as a runner-up.

Canyon coach Joe Lombard is no stranger to playoff competition. He's taken Canyon to postseason games every one of his three years there; before that he made several consecutive years of playoff appearances with Nazareth's girls.

According to Big Spring coach C.E. Carmichael, Lombard's reputation as a legend is well-earned. "For the last several years, he's had the second-best team in Texas, regardless of classification.

"He has some good talent up there," the Big Spring coach says thoughtfully. "They're some big ol' girls up there. They're tall and they're husky and they know how to play basketball."

Of Big Spring's team, Lombard says quietly, "They're very well-coached. There has been a real improvement with the Big Spring team — I think they're better this year than the team last year.

"We played against them last year, and our kids just had an exceptional night. Our girls shot extremely well that night," he continued.

Carmichael recalls, "They shot something like 65 or 70 percent against us that night."

Canyon will start three seniors including six-footer Kim Horton, who Lombard says didn't play much for the team last year, is much improved.

"She's been filling her role well for us this year," he said. "She had a nice ballgame the other night against Levelland."

Missi Kraai, a 5-8 junior, will start as well. She was named MVP of the Caprock tournament in January in Lubbock, and averages 14 points per game.

Co-leader in Canyon's scoring is senior Tammy Williams, a 5-10 forward. She is also averaging 14 points per game.

The other senior on the starting squad is the 5-7 Brandy Lowe, whose point guard position gives her the opportunity to act as the team's field general.

Averaging eight points per outing is Jara Behrens, a 5-6 junior who will start.

The reserve troops Lombard named as likely to see action Saturday are 5-8 junior Allison Payne, six-foot junior Stephanie Brown and 5-3 junior Joanie Stevens.

"Allison plays well both inside and outside for us," Lombard said. "Those are our top eight players. We like to play those eight, and in most of our games they all get to play."

He said he felt the team's bench added to its strength. "We like to think we've got some people coming in off the bench who can help us out."

By contrast, Big Spring will be without the services of injured starter Peggy Smith, whose ligament-damaged knee will require six months of rehabilitation.

Carmichael is planning to bring in Gisila Spears, the sophomore defender who has been sidelined since the Jan. 26 Pecos game with an injured knee.

"We're going to start Stephanie Smith, I think, and see how she does," Carmichael said. "Gisila will play for us. We'll have Tami Wise and Katrina Thompson.

"They've just upped their game since Peggy Smith was injured, raised the level of their performance so much," he said. "They're playing with a confidence now that when they get the ball,

Big Spring Lady Steers' Tami Wise (with ball) and Katrina Thompson (22) run an offensive play against a 2-4A opponent earlier this season. Saturday night the Lady Steers will be in bi-district play against Canyon in Lubbock.

Stanton routs Van Horn

MONAHANS — The Stanton Lady Buffalos began post-season play with a bang, as they took a easy 55-13 win over the Van Horn Eagles last night in 2-A bi-district action.

The Lady Buffalos scored the first 12 points of the game and never looked back. Van Horn didn't score its first basket of the game until six minutes into the first quarter.

Forward Kristi Fryar paced the Lady Buffs' first quarter attack with nine points. Fryar, who didn't play much in the second quarter, came back and scored nine more points in the third period.

The 5-10 senior finished the contest with 20 points, two above her average.

"We jumped out to a good lead toward the end of the first quarter," said Stanton assistant Wilma Stirl. "Van Horn just wasn't a very good team. I think it was just a weak year for their district (5-2A). We just outclassed them."

Stirl and head coach Stewart Beckwith had emptied the bench by the second quarter and the Lady Buffalos changed defenses from their press, zone and man-to-man.

"Usually we play a zone but we went to our man-to-man defense to get some practice at it," said Stirl.

Stanton easily won the war on the boards against the Eagles, whose tallest player was 5-6. Heather Colburn led the way with 12 boards. Fryar grabbed 10 rebounds and Kaki Elmore pulled down nine caroms.

Stanton advances to the second round of playoff action against tonight's winner of the Wall-Stamford contest.

Van Horn finishes the season with a 9-14 mark. Stanton goes to 26-4.

South Plains K-O's Hawks

LEVELLAND — The Howard College Hawks ran into a hot shooting crew from South Plains and dropped a 86-67 decision to the Texans here Thursday night.

South Plains led from start to finish, taking a 36-26 halftime lead. The Hawks tried different defenses, but South Plains was accurate with its outside shooting.

The Texans were led by freshman Rob Shields who bombed in 21 points. Last year Shields helped Morton win the Class 2-A state championship. Guard O'Donnell Haden aided the winning cause, scoring 15 points.

"South Plains is just a good ballclub," said Howard assistant Joe Huber. "Their perimeter play was good. They got good games from Shields and Haden. They've got some shooters that can shoot

Short-handed Queens fall, 85-55

LEVELLAND — The Howard College Hawk-Queens took it on the chin again Thursday night here, losing to the South Plains College women's basketball team 85-55.

But Queens' coach Don Stevens said of the game, "We played as well as we could. We played the last two-and-a-half minutes with four people on the court to finish the game."

Renee Crooks, who had helped the Queens all night with a 16-point performance from the field, fouled out with 2:30 to go in the ballgame.

Decimated by disciplinary losses in October compounded by two players' quitting then and two more leaving in December, the Queens now must finish their season without freshman Karen Mitchell, who has left the squad with health problems.

Stevens has five players left. "We have our last game Monday night, here," Stevens said early today, "thank goodness."

"I'm ready for this season to be over," he added, sounding weary. "It's been a long year, and it's been a tough year."

It has not been a good year for Stevens and his squad, though they did not go winless and their standout sophomore, Stefanie Massie,

Couples leads 1st round

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Fred Couples had the lead in the first round of the $650,000 Andy Williams Open golf tournament. At least that's what the scoreboard indicated.

But a pretty good argument could be made that Tom Watson is no worse than in a tie for the lead going into today's second round.

Coach's Comments

By BOYCE PAXTON
Steers coach

The Steers won some big games in the face of adversity this past week. The playoff picture is still wide open for Big Spring, thanks to big wins over Lamesa and Sweetwater.

A good defensive effort pulled off the win in Lamesa's gym. The win kept the Steers alive and was probably one of the biggest wins in the Steer Basketball program since we've been here. Traditions are built on seasons like this one and confidence and pride are by-products.

We will work to carry on this tradition in the years to come. Brian Mayfield dislocated a bone in his foot in the Lamesa game, missed the Sweetwater game, but will be ready for Andrews tonight. This will be a Must game for the Steers to make the playoffs. Lamesa is still in first with a 23-9 season and 13-3 district record. Snyder (22-8, 12-3) and Big Spring (22-9, 12-3) are tied for second with identical 12-3 district records.

Andrews is a close 3rd with a 22-9, 11-4 record. The survivor of district 2-AAAA might fare well in post-season play. Levelland is running away with the 1-AAAA title with a 11-2 record in district. The Steers are 1-1 with Levelland this year, one of those being a 15-point win on a neutral floor. Estacado and Pampa are battling for the second playoff spot.

The regional competition appears to be one of the following: Wichita Falls Hirschi, Graham, Castleberry or Burburnett. I feel strongly that 2-AAAA competition has prepared the 2-AAAA playoff teams well for post-season play. We have a very strong district. However, in the playoffs, good is good, but a little luck and some good fortune can help determine a team's fate. The Steer's goals remain very high. The team practices are spirited and a feeling of confidence presides in those workouts and games.

Special congratulations go to Steer forward Thane Russey for his induction into the National Honor Society at BSHS. Steer managers Rex Tucker and Tami Burnsed are also members in NHS. We salute these students' academic excellence and encourage and challenge others to follow suit.

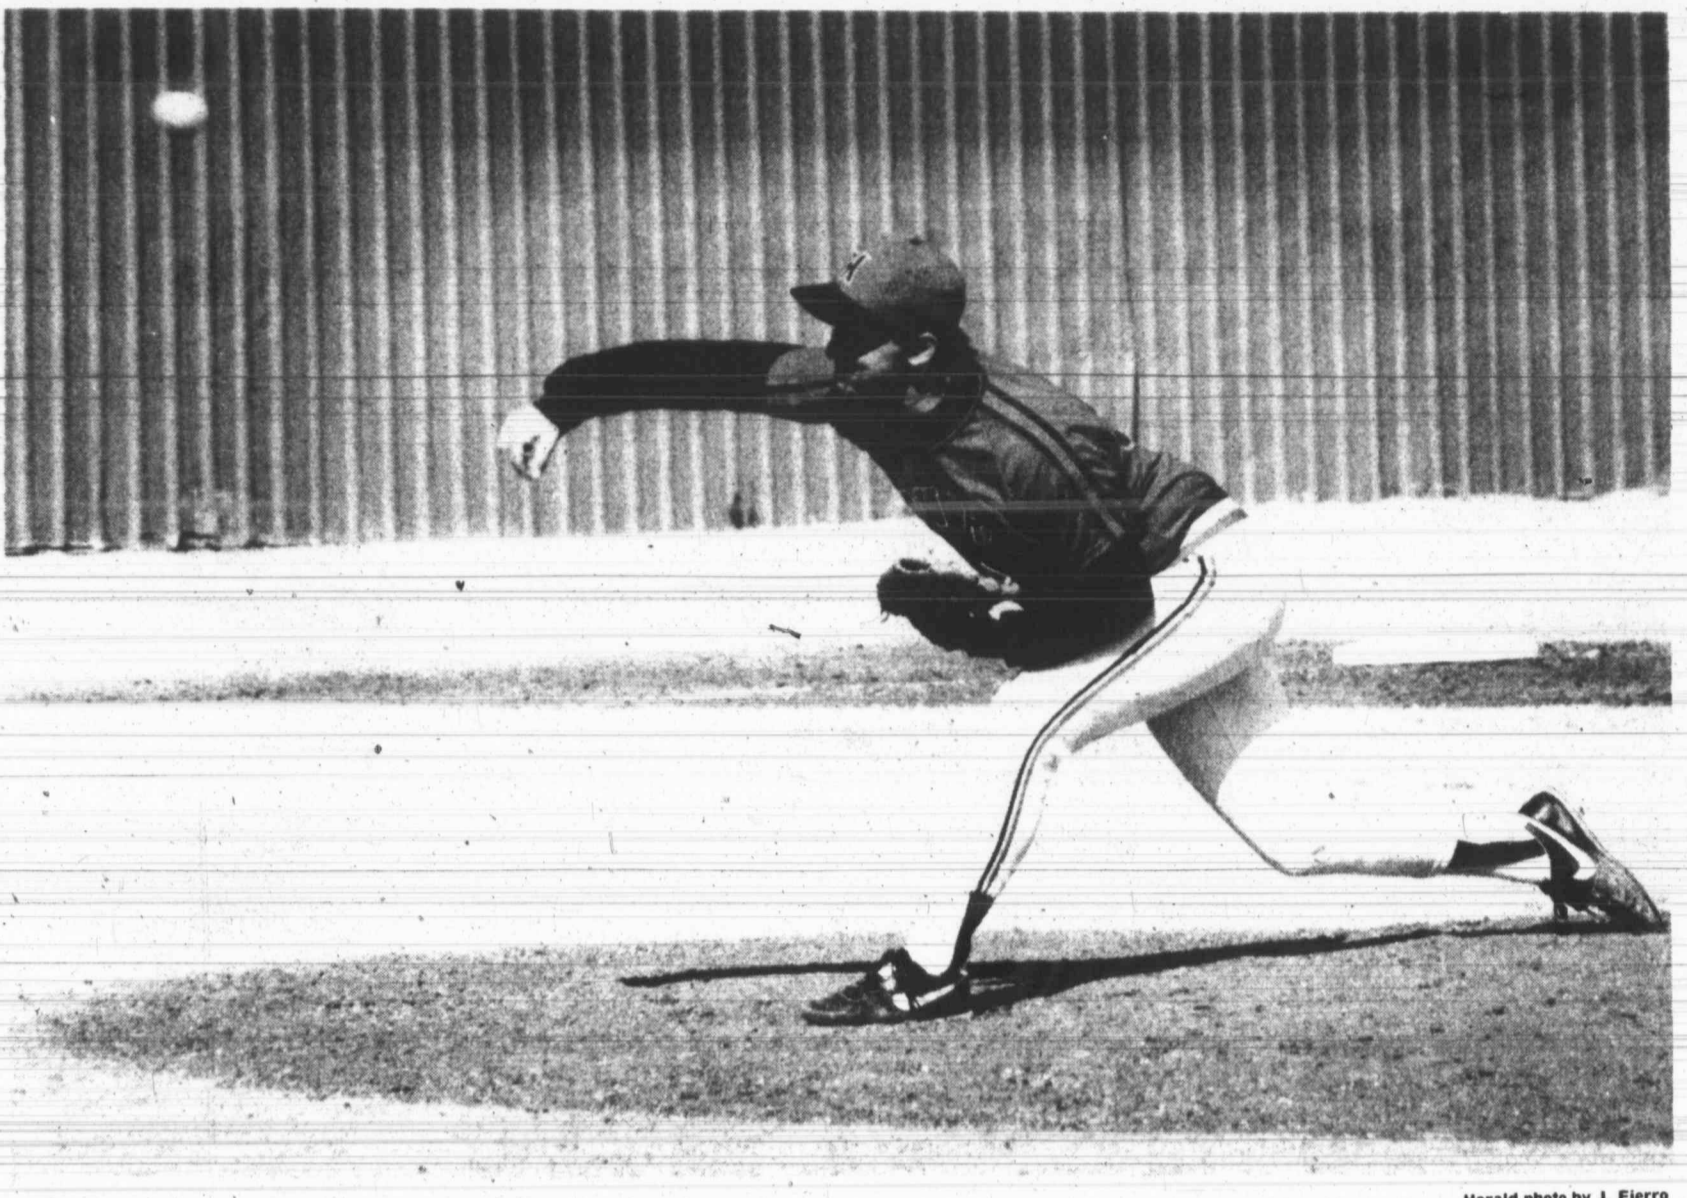

The total program has been very successful this year thanks to the efforts of several fine coaches and some talented young athletes in our program. Below are team records and coaches.

- Goliad 7th A Team — 8-4 season — Coach Bobby Doe.
- Goliad 7th B Team — 9-3 season — Coach Mike Ritchey.
- Runnels 8th A Team — 10-3 season — Coach Jim Wirwahn.
- Runnels 8th B Team — 9-5 season — Coach Mike Wallace.
- Steers 9th A Team — 18-6 season — Coach Kent Caruthers.
- Steers JV Team — *13-14 season — Coach James Collinsworth.
- Steers Var. Team — *22-9 Season — Coach Boyce Paxton

*season record to date
We appreciate all the efforts of these coaches and athletes in our program. We are building pride in Big Spring athletics.

We need a big crowd tonight to help the Steers overcome a tough Andrews team. This is a must game for the Steers to make the playoffs. The support has been great. See you at Steer Gym Friday night.

PLAYERS OF THE WEEK
Brian Mayfield, Abner Shellman, Doug Young and Thane Russey have been named players of the week. These players were named players of the week for their outstanding efforts in recent games. All have played big parts in the Steers success this year. Brian and Bruce are seniors while Abner and Doug are juniors at BSHS.

Porkers track favorite

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks remain heavily favored to defend their men's title despite some big changes planned for the 15th annual Southwest Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships meeting this year.

The meet begins this year from yards to meters to meet the NCAA qualifying requirements. Every running result will be a meet record, since all previous meet records are in yards.

Another change is the addition of an extra day. For the first time, the meet will be over a two-day period, beginning at 4 p.m. in Tarrant County Convention Center. Saturday's final session begins at 2 p.m.

There's not likely to be a change in the winner.

Coach John McDonnell's Razorbacks have won seven straight men's indoor championships.

Only Texas A&M's victory in 1980 has broken the Arkansas spell.

The Hogs, who have won four straight NCAA indoor titles, scored 93 points last year. Texas was second with 59.

Texas and Houston shared the women's title last year with 110 points each after the Lady Longhorns had won back-to-back crowns in 1985 and 1986.

Arkansas' Joe Falcon, who had 20 points in winning the mile and two-mile runs, and Texas' Karen Nelson, who had 26 points, were returning as high point performers from last year's meet.

"If we stay healthy, we have a good chance of defending our title," McDonnell said. "We have some depth. We'll miss (redshirting) Roddie Haley in the sprints. We'll be hurt in the shorter races but from the 800 on up, we should be very strong. Still, we don't have the quality people at the top like in the past."

McDonnell said nobody on the Arkansas team talks about the winning streak.

"This is a different team," he said. "I'm the only one still around. We really don't talk about the streak."

Texas Coach Terry Crawford said the two-day meet should help her team.

"This will give us a chance to rest," she said. "In the past, people have gotten tired in the one-day competition."

She said it should be a three-way women's race.

"Arkansas and Houston are always tough and we can't afford to get shut out in the sprint events where Houston is always so tough," she said.

Other champions from last year who are taking a redshirt season besides Haley (600-yard run), are Texas A & M's Lawrence Felton, winner of the 60-yard hurdles, and Houston's Jolanda Jones in the high jump and Cheryl Klein in the shot put.

Lady Steers

they think they're going to score." That confidence is justified: Thompson has averaged 19.7 points per outing all year, and Wise 14. But since the loss of Spears and Smith, Wise's five-game average has gone to 18.8 and Thompson's per-game output has risen to 22.2.

Senior Michelle LeGrand will start too, Carmichael said. "She has been playing so hard on defense, rebounding for us and really hustling. I feel like she's going to play hard Saturday, she'll be hustling and giving her best effort. If she can have the kind of game where she can score 10 or 12 or 13 points, it would really help us out."

Such a game from LeGrand, with help on the boards from the returning Spears, could bring the Lady Steers nearer an upset victory over Canyon.

Carmichael said he plans to rotate junior Kelli Knight with sophomores Pam Gill and Stephanie Smith to help Thompson with the ballhandling chores as necessary, but Peggy Smith will be sorely missed on the floor.

"If we can get the ball down the floor from one end to the other," Carmichael said, "I think we can do some things with it on either end."

Caution tempers his outlook as the game draws nearer, though. "I think what we've got to do, this year, is go out there and give it our best shot, do everything we can, and then go from there."

GISELA SPEARS

Nor will Lombard predict an easy victory: "I think it's going to be an exceptional game for the fans to come and see," he said. "I think it will be a great ballgame and the teams seem to be evenly matched."

"We're excited about getting to play Big Spring again," he said. "We won't run the pressure defense quite as much as we did last year, because we're not as quick as we were last year. We'll be pressing some, but we won't live or die by it."

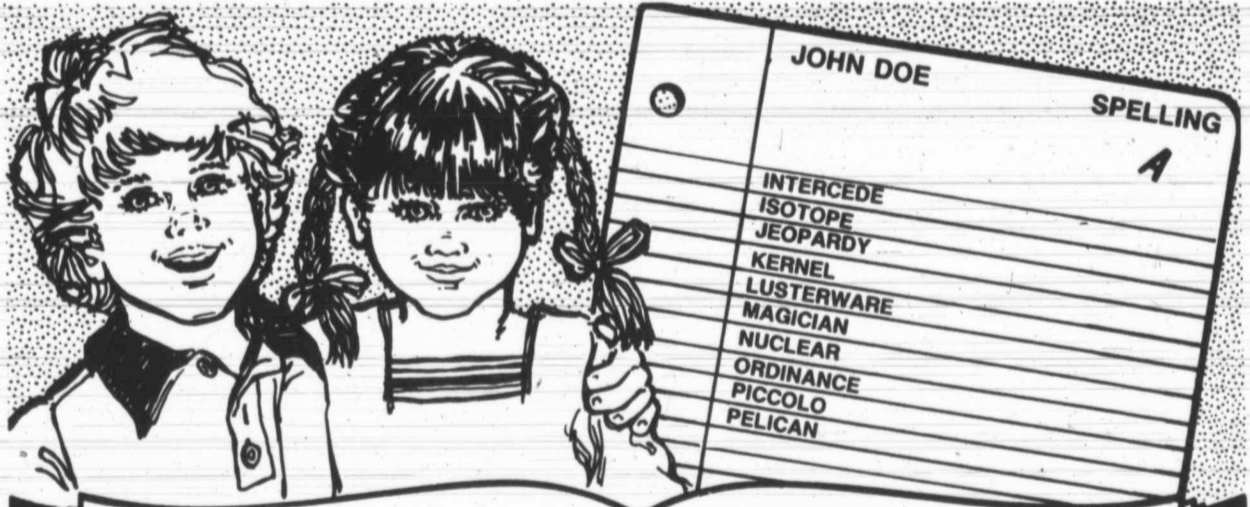

Carmichael, meanwhile, is not looking beyond Saturday's game.

He simply says, "An upset sure would be nice."

"Some of our girls are looking at this as if they feel like they have a chance," he said. "Katrina and Tami, especially, I think, believe they can play with Canyon."

"When you see Canyon play, they won't look like any other high school girls' team you've ever seen," he said. "But I think our girls feel like they're not going to get run out of the gym."

"You know, you always hope," he said; some of his starters have seen Canyon before. "Maybe it'll just be our day."

The Crossroads of West Texas

Olympics

Fall Jansen's dreams shattered

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — On the way to the Olympic medal speed skater Dan Jansen knew he could win — would win — fate stepped in and knocked him off his feet with a one-two-three punch.

First there was the death of his sister, Jane; then a fall in the 500-meter race; then a fall in the 1,000 meters that millions watched but no one wanted to believe.

An emotionally battered Jansen pulled himself up again and again. But by Thursday night, he had wearied of the fight.

"I feel a slight sense of relief that this is over," he said, looking pale and visibly exhausted. "The whole week has been hard. I'm going to go home... spend the weekend with my family. They're not going to be disappointed at all. They know I did what I could."

What Jansen did was skate like a man with a mission, a study in grace under pressure. He was going to win an Olympic medal for Jane. It was his last chance.

He passed 200 meters in 16.80 seconds, fastest of the first eight skaters.

He passed 600 in 44.02, another best, though two others would beat it later.

With less than 200 meters to go, the finish line almost in his sight, Jansen's right skate caught an edge. He fell to his knees, spun around and slammed into the wall. Stunned, he pushed back his hood and sat with legs splayed until Coach Mike Crowe and teammate Nick Thometz helped him up.

Back at the starting line again, he embraced his fiancée, Canadian speed skater Natalie Grenier, and buried his head on her shoulder, sobbing visibly.

The worst fears of his family and fans had come true.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. Crowe came onto the track. "Tough break," he told Jansen. "You were on a good one."

"For some reason, I don't feel as shocked as I did after the 500," Jansen said. "I think part of that was because of the whole day, because my sister's death was that morning."

The worst week of Dan Jansen's life started Sunday, the second day of Olympic competition. In the morning, Jane Jansen Beres, 27, his favorite older sister, died after a year-long battle with leukemia. Hours later, Jansen's hopes for a medal in her honor ended with a first-turn fall in the 500 meters that sent him crashing into the wall mats. He doubled over, head in hands, overcome by disbelief, disgust and despair.

"Maybe it just wasn't meant to be," the 22-year-old world sprint champion said.

Then he began preparing for Thursday.

His teammates, who had dedicated their Olympic effort to Dan and Jane, gave him a card and money for a trust fund for his three nieces, Jane's daughters. Hundreds of cards came from around the world.

A U.S. Olympic Committee sponsor brought in a private jet to fly Jansen and family to Milwaukee after the race. A wake for Jane is scheduled for tonight. Mass and burial are set for Saturday.

Americans still trying

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

CANMORE, Alberta — When Bill Koch surged out of the Austrian forest to win the silver medal in the 1976 Winter Olympics, the talk was that his dramatic achievement would make the United States a force in cross-country skiing.

It never happened. Twelve years later, the Americans still are struggling in cross-country races, making Koch's achievement even more impressive. It is the only Olympic cross-country medal ever won by an American.

In the first three cross-country races at Calgary, the Americans have been able to do no better than Leslie Krichko's 31st place in the women's 5-kilometer race and a 49th by Dan Simoneau of Bend, Ore., in the men's 30K.

While the Americans have been frustrated in their hopes for even a top-25 finish, the Soviets have won six of the nine medals. Finland's Marjo Matikainen with her gold and bronze, and Norway's Martin Hole with a bronze, are the only skiers so far to dent the Soviet domination at the Canmore Olympic Nordic Center.

Koch no longer skis in the Olympics, but American skiers insist that, despite their failure to follow up with more medals, his silver medal has had an impact on cross-country skiing in the United States.

"Bill Koch did give us momentum, but we have hit a plateau," Todd said. "It is time to push off that plateau."

"What Bill brought to the sport was exposure. He brought us into a new age. We still have a long way to go," Todd, a former skier and now coach of the American cross-country team, agrees that the United States is stronger in Nordic events than it would have been without Koch's breakthrough.

Winds interfering in Olympic events

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — It's in Calgary, as well as Oklahoma, where the winds come sweeping down the plains.

And at Canada Olympic Park. And up on Mount Allan. The incessant winds that have raked the area for the past week are blowing the Winter Olympics off course.

Gusts of up to 77 mph Thursday bent trees and blinded skiers on Mount Allan. The winds swirling around the ski-jump towers at Canada Olympic Park on the outskirts of Calgary made it difficult to walk, let alone jump.

Two more events were postponed Thursday, and the long-range forecast says it may be Monday before the winds abate.

For the athletes and Olympic organizers, the wind has been a nightmare. For the tens of thousands of people flocking to Calgary, it's been a mixed blessing.

The Chinook winds roaring over the Canadian Rockies have pushed daytime temperatures into the low 40s, making it almost like spring for the throngs meandering through downtown Calgary.

"The wind is the only thing that makes Calgary bearable in winter," a bus driver said Thursday as he shuttled reporters around town. "After a week of cold, people get down on their knees and bow to the south" to implore the warm winds to come their way.

But not during the Winter Olympics.

Thousands of people have been disappointed when they couldn't watch skiing, jumping and luge events delayed by the weather.

By the end of Thursday, more than $381,000 in ticket refunds had been made for postponed events. And more refunds are expected, according to Terry Steward, a spokesman for the Calgary Olympic committee.

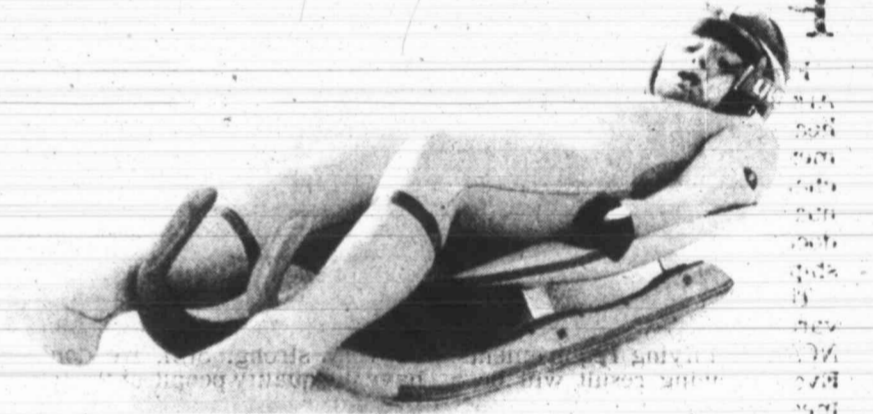

Besides costing money, the wind is giving officials an Olympic-sized headache.

"It is a tremendous rescheduling problem and events start backing up," Steward said. "It creates horrendous ticketing problems and refunds. It certainly plays havoc with television network coverage for the rights holders around the world who have scheduled coverage, and it is a tremendous inconvenience for the ticket holders."

"It also creates a very bad image problem," Steward said. Some fans are "very angry. But it just can't be helped. It isn't that unusual at Olympics for events to be rescheduled."

While the athletes are eager to compete, most say they would rather wait than risk injury or a sub-par performance because of the wind.

Switzerland's Brigitte Oertli was the first — and only — woman to try the downhill course Thursday on Mount Allan. About a third of the way down the mountain, the wind enveloped Oertli in clouds of snow, obscuring her vision and sending her off the course and into soft snow.

CALGARY — East German Steffi Walther glances aside as she hurtles down the women's luge course en route to a gold medal at the Olympic Park Thursday. Defending champion, she took her second gold medal in 3:39.73 minutes, leading an East German medals sweep in the event.

Texan Aljoe beats Gault in bobsleds

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — U.S. bobsled coach Jeff Jost doesn't want to hear any more talk about how Willie Gault is the fastest bobsled pusher on America's Olympic team.

Gault, a wide receiver for the Chicago Bears, was paired with the United States' No. 1 bobsled driver for two practice runs Thursday, and the results were less than impressive.

"I wanted to squelch any rumors that Willie was faster," Jost said.

Gault's "push times," measured over the first 50 meters of the course, were slower than those posted by the No. 2 American team. So Gault will be on the sidelines and former Oklahoma football player Mike Aljoe will be pushing USA 1 in the two-man races Saturday and Sunday, Jost said.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1988

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you are presented with some new ideas that sound a bit impractical, keep an open mind and consider them carefully before abandoning them. Use charm to soften any opposition you may encounter.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Stay around creative, energetic individuals who can give you some new ideas. Take it easy tonight, and get plenty of rest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) This is the right time to sit down with your mate and work out a more practical budget. This will make you both happier.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you want to gain your aims quickly, sociability is very important right now. Be most careful in motion, especially while driving.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be sure to handle credit and community matters with care and intelligence. Show your appreciation to people who have helped you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Plan a trip which will bring you much more success in the future, but count the cost carefully before you make any firm decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you are having trouble advancing a new approach. Be more gentle and understanding to your mate, and you will both be happier.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You'll have a chance to benefit from a new opportunity, so be alert to day. A partner may want to make revisions to an agreement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A co-worker will have an idea which could be helpful in organizing a new project, so accept it. Take it easy tonight and rest up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) This is a good day to start work and get great results on a pet project. Go out for some fun with your friends this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show more affection for your family and create a more harmonious atmosphere at home. This is a good evening to entertain friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A dynamic associate has some ideas which can increase your business interests considerably, so seek these out and use them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can get involved in a new financial enterprise which has some fine possibilities. Consult with an expert on this matter.

If Your Child Is Born Today
He or she will be extremely energetic, and will have the ability to make quick decisions under pressure. Teach your sharp-minded progeny to finish one project at a time, otherwise he or she may not develop a taste for accomplishment and success.

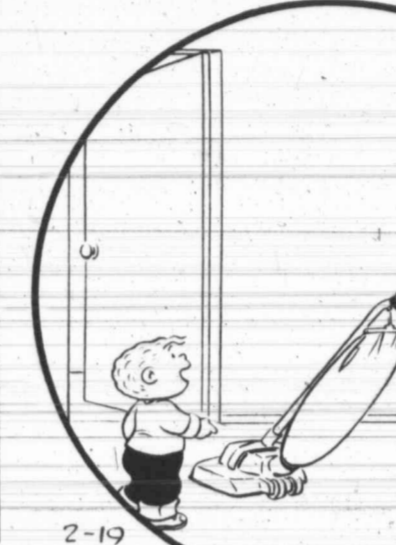

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
