Crawfish farmer likes Aggie joke

WINNIE (AP) — John Gauling, a Texas A&M graduate, puts his hay in water, leading someone to dub it an "Aggie Hay Farm."

But Gauling, 41, says he's not trying to grow the hay, it's there for the crawfish.

Gauling, a 1968 graduate of Texas A&M with an agronomy degree, farms about 1,200 acres along Interstate 10. About 300 acres of the farm near this town about 60 miles east of Houston is leased for crawfish farming.

He said he didn't appreciate when a placard with the message "Aggie Hay Farm" mysteriously appeared in front of his acreage.

"At first, it seemed like a harmless prank," Gauling said Sunday. "I had no idea who did it. I don't know if they really even knew that it was a crawfish farm."

He said he discovered the sign one day in October.

"I figured if A&M could win the Cotton Bowl, I could put up with a little kidding about it," he said.

"We are leasing out some of our ground to other entrepreneurs who are raising the crawfish," he said. "I am providing the land and the water. It is not our crawfish."

Residents seek extra fire support

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A Sunday blaze in the Tubb's addition south of Big Spring has further illuminated the need for a volunteer fire department in the housing development, area residents say.

Brenda Rawls said today she was frantically trying to wet down the area around her home Sunday after a grass fire broke out near the house, apparently ignited by some people using a welder.

About a dozen Tubb's residents attended a Feb. 22 commissioner court meeting to garner support for the formation of a volunteer fire department in their area, which is served by the Silver Heels department located north of the Tubb's addition.

Rawls estimated firefighters arrived to the Sunday fire scene about 45 minutes after she called to report the blaze, which she said was located on the southern edge of the approximately 267-home development.

David Roman, another Tubb's resident, estimated the fire consumed about 300 acres. No homes were threatened.

The fire was reported to the Howard County Sheriff's Office at 3:36 p.m. Sunday and was brought under control at 4:20 p.m., according to sheriff's reports. Four of the county's nine volunteer fire departments were called to fight the blaze.

The fire is one of several that have plagued an area south of Big Spring. On Jan. 29 George and Connie Gatliff lost their mobile home in a grass fire that consumed an estimated 1,200 acres of range land and a Feb. 14 grass fire in the Tubb's addition sent a woman to the hospital for burn treatments.

Windy, dry conditions and an abundance of plant growth from heavy rains last year have contributed to dozens of grass fires in Howard County in recent weeks.

"There's so many of us out here that everyone is concerned," Rawls said, noting fires have come close to several homes.

"What we need is another fire department in the Tubb's addition," said Roman, who is behind the push to establish a volunteer department in the Tubb's area.

Today is a four-year special

LONDON (AP) — Take note of today, Monday — there won't be another like it until 1992.

It's leap year, when a day which seems to come from nowhere is added to February and the year is 366 days long instead of 365.

The astronomer of Julius Caesar in 46 B.C. decided it.

They said that as the solar year was 365 days and 6 hours, the hours made an extra day every four years.

Why leap? The Oxford English Dictionary says — and you may have to read this twice — that the year probably got its name because any fixed festival after February in such a year "falls on the next weekday but one to that on which it fell in the preceding year, not on the next weekday as usual."

A leap over day, you see. According to popular tradition in Britain, a woman on this day has the right to ask a man to marry her, instead of the other way round.

English folklore has it that any woman having her Feb. 29 proposal rebuffed can claim a silk dress from the man.

In 1288 a law was enacted in Scotland to give women the right to propose on Feb. 29. It said any maiden lady "shall hae libertie to bespeke ye man she likes."

If the man refused, he had to pay the lady a pound — a lot of money in those days — unless he could claim he was already betrothed.

A few years later, France passed a similar law and it was also legalized in the 15th century in the Italian cities of Genoa and Florence.

A British romantic fiction publisher named Silhouette, seeking to find out modern manners of proposing, asked the Gallup Poll to include a leap year question in its survey.

The poll found that women who propose to the man of their dreams on Feb. 29 have a 92 percent chance of success.

But only 12 percent of the women questioned for the survey — it didn't say how many — responded that they would seriously consider popping the question on this day.

Jane Ellison, a columnist on a London daily, The Independent, asked today: "How many men are worth waiting four years to propose to these days?"

Ms. Ellison suggested using leap year "sensibly" by relocating those "annual events you dread" to Feb. 29.

Among her choices: the University Boat Race, the next Andrew Lloyd Webber musical and Christmas.

Super Tuesday's creators finding it's not as expected

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — The people who created Super Tuesday to give a Southern flavor to presidential politics are coming face to face with their creation and it bears little resemblance to what they expected.

As the Democratic Leadership Council gathered Sunday for a meeting nine days before the delegate-rich balloting on March 8, three of the leading Super Tuesday contenders were pursuing agendas far from that advocated by the DLC.

The candidate with the largest base in the South is Jesse Jackson, who has referred scornfully to the DLC as the "Democratic Leisure Class."

Another leading contender is Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, whose Northeast base is exactly the wrong place most DLC members think the party ought to look for its next nominee.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri was a founder of the DLC, but has become a leading 1988 contender by advocating the kind of trade sanctions sought by organized labor and anathema to the DLC.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, the southerner in the race, but never a particular favorite of the DLC, is pursuing a Super Tuesday strategy, taking stands to the right of his rivals.

The Democrats DLC members most wanted to see in the presidential race were Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and former Gov. Charles Robb of Virginia. Robb is ending a term as DLC chairman and will be replaced by Nunn.

The DLC was established in the wake of the 1984 election in which Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale carried only one state. That landslide defeat was the party's fourth loss in the last five presidential elections.

The problem, decided many Democratic officials from the South and West, was the disproportionate weight wielded in the party by labor, minority groups and Eastern liberals. It was time to give the South a stronger voice in choosing the next nominee and time to diminish the importance of Iowa and New Hampshire.

Thus was born Super Tuesday, which amounts to a Southern regional primary. Twenty states will hold primaries or caucuses on March 8, a majority of them south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

High court to review Texas case

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A rape-murder case nearly 13 years old will be the focus Tuesday of a U.S. Supreme Court review that many inmates see as a ticket off death row.

"In my opinion, it will affect everybody," said Jim Vanderbilt, who has spent more than 11 years on Texas' death row for the 1975 slaying of an Amarillo teen-ager. "We will have commutation of everybody."

Lawyers for the state and for Donald Gene Franklin will present arguments to the high court on the constitutionality of a Texas statute that limits consideration by a jury of mitigating circumstances that could benefit a defendant.

Since October, when the court agreed to hear the case, dozens of death-row inmates in Texas, whose 27 executions in the last six years are the most in any state since executions resumed in 1977, have attached Franklin's arguments to their own in efforts to win stays.

"It's an issue that could potentially affect everybody on death row in Texas," said Richard H. Burr III, coordinator of the death penalty project of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund Inc. in New York. "I think probably everybody now is raising the issue and if they're not, they should be."

Franklin, 36, who has had three trials and four execution dates, blamed the abduction, rape and stabbing death of 27-year-old Mary Margaret Moran on a friend who used his car.

Franklin was arrested hours after the July 1975 abduction but refused to say where the missing San Antonio nurse was. Search parties combed San Antonio, but it took four days to find her bleeding in a bed of insects, suffering from loss of blood and irreversible shock. She died the next day.

Mark Stevens, who is representing Franklin before the high court, said jurors should have had doubt about Franklin's guilt because of circumstantial evidence in the case.

Stevens also said Franklin, at the time of the last trial, had caused no disciplinary problems while in prison, "which goes to show among other things, he shouldn't be executed."

First lady says casual drug users share in murders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan today called for a crackdown on casual drug users, saying they are "an accomplice to murder" in the deaths of judges, agents and others who have been killed by narcotics traffickers.

"I want to make it impossible for casual users to escape responsibility for any innocent deaths due to drugs," Mrs. Reagan said. "I want to make them fully face the brutality of drug use."

The first lady was joined by President Reagan at the White House Conference for a Drug Free America.

"The tide of the battle has turned and we're beginning to win the crusade for a drug-free America," Reagan said.

Mrs. Reagan gave a more somber assessment, saying, "Drugs are tearing our community apart." She said drug traffickers and dealers will murder anyone who stands in their way.

In particular, she cited the murder of Colombia's chief prosecutor, Attorney General Carlos Hoyos, and his two bodyguards who were abducted last month by a half-dozen gunmen who the government accused of working for local cocaine barons.

Hoyos' bullet-riddled body was dumped outside the center of the nation's drug trade. The body had been blindfolded and handcuffed.

The government blamed his abduction and death on the Medellin cartel, which U.S. officials say controls 80 percent of cocaine entering the United States.

Mrs. Reagan said that "the people who casually use cocaine are responsible because their money bought those bullets."

"The casual user may think when he takes a line of cocaine or smokes a joint in the privacy of his nice condo, listening to his expensive stereo, that he's somehow not bothering anyone," she said.

"But there's a trail of death and destruction that leads directly to his door," Mrs. Reagan said. "The casual user cannot morally escape responsibility for the action of drug traffickers and dealing."

"I'm saying that if you're a casual drug user, you're an accomplice to murder," the first lady said, prompting loud applause from the audience of anti-drug activists.

Demonstrator remains jailed

DALLAS (AP) — One person remained in jail following a clash during the Ku Klux Klan's weekend demonstration against the police department's new affirmative action hiring plan.

Seven of the eight people arrested during the melee were released, police said Sunday. The eight were arrested on charges ranging from assault to disorderly conduct. One remained in custody Sunday, while the others were released Saturday.

About a dozen Klansmen from Connecticut had gathered to stage a news conference in downtown Dallas Saturday against the police department's new affirmative action hiring plan.

Earlier this year, the City Council implemented the hiring plan in response to critics' charges that the police department did not reflect the city's racial makeup.

An anti-KKK group burned Confederate and Nazi flags and charged the hooded Klansmen and a group of skinheads.

The protesters threw bottles and horse manure at the Klansmen as tactical squad police armed with clubs and mounted officers tried to ring the hooded men and keep the crowd back. Police dogs converged on the scene as officers tried to break up the fight.

An elderly black woman was punched in the face by a white man, who was arrested for aggravated assault as the Klan marched around the City Hall plaza.

Skirmishes continued in the one-hour confrontation as opponents in the crowd spit on each other.

Some demonstrators who resented police protection of the Klan shouted, "Cops kill the people." One man yelled "Shoot a cop."

White supremacists with shaven heads, so-called skinheads, were usually outside a ring of police protection and were involved in most of the fights and pushing.

Police clubbed members of the crowd of about 200 and some protesters suffered minor injuries.

"It was the silliest darn thing I've ever seen," said Deputy Police Chief R.L. Schifelbein. "We were hoping that the Klan would come, say their piece and just get out of town."

The crowd of about 200 jostled close to Klansman as they paraded, shouting "Death to the Klan," and "Go away ... Dallas doesn't want you. We don't want you."

Fred Bell, an organizer of a group that came to protest the Klan, said violence was not his intention. He and other members of the Citizens Committee for Justice held a news conference on the northeast corner of City Hall Plaza.

Racial tensions heightened in recent weeks with the fatal shootings of three police officers and four other men who were shot by police.

Police Chief Billy Prince, who had urged the Klan not to march, said criticism of the department by minority elected officials had fostered an environment of ill-will between the minority community and police.

County board to take a look at '88 budget

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Howard County Consolidated Appraisal District will review the district's 1988 budget during its regularly scheduled meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

The board will meet in the board room of the Howard County Courthouse Annex, 315 Main St.

Board members also are scheduled to discuss changing the district's regular meeting date from the first Wednesday of each month to the third Wednesday.

Other items on Wednesday's agenda include approval of the following business: minutes, payment of bills, appraisal district report and financial report.

They plan to take their plans and ideas to commissioners Bill Crocker and Paul Allen March 3. The commissioners, whose districts cover the Tubb's area, set the March meeting date during a Feb. 22 commissioner court meeting.

The two are members of a committee formed this month to study equipment needs of the county's volunteer fire departments. Commissioners have replaced protective clothing at several of the stations and have discussed buying pumps and replacing fire trucks.

Phone fraud

WASHINGTON — Robert M. White, editor of the Mexico, Mo. Ledger, displays copies of phone charges billed to his newspaper during a visit to Washington recently. Despite phone companies security efforts, telephone credit cards are making it easy for thieves to steal telephone numbers and use them to run up huge long-distance telephone bills, as in the case of the Ledger.

Phone credit thefts increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone credit cards make it easier to charge calls but they're also making it easier for thieves to steal the numbers and run up huge long-distance bills.

The thieves are not necessarily the users. They often sell the stolen numbers to others who use them to dial around the world.

Toll fraud costs the long-distance companies about half a billion dollars a year, about 1 percent of the industry's revenues, according to the industry-sponsored Communications Fraud Control Association.

Despite phone companies' security efforts, thieves are coming up with bold new deceptions aimed at the unsuspecting.

Officials at the Mexico (Mo.) Ledger fell into such a trap with a Southwestern Bell calling card, which the newspaper used to make long-distance calls on American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s network, according to Editor Robert M. White II.

Southwestern Bell, using a computer to monitor calling-card use by its customers, detected unusual high use by the newspaper one weekend in January. After consulting the newspaper, it canceled the card and issued a new one.

Publisher Max Thomson says that on the same day the new code was issued, he got a call from a man who said he was from AT&T and needed to verify the new credit card number assigned to the newspaper because someone was trying to use it. Unsuspecting, Thomson gave the caller the new number.

Within days, the card again was being used to charge calls around the world, and by the time Southwestern Bell's computer sent up another red flag, the newspaper's card had run up charges of more than $4,500.

Super Tuesday

A discussion of "The Super Tuesday Challenge" was on the agenda for the DLC's two-day meeting at Colonial Williamsburg.

Other topics included "Democratic Capitalism:

New Strategies for Growth With Equity," and "Citizenship and National Service."

But the most watched event of the meeting will be a debate tonight between five of the party's six presidential candidates.

Death penalty

Stevens contends although such mitigating circumstances are presented at the punishment phase of a trial, the jury is given no guidance as to how heavily to weigh them.

Franklin's trial attorneys suggested a jury charge that spelled out ways to handle mitigating circumstances. The judge refused to include it in his instructions to the jury, which determined Franklin should die. He has been on death row since 1982.

"The state is real confident it will prevail," said Bob Walt, an assistant state attorney general.

A Texas jury now has these questions to consider before deciding a person convicted of capital murder should be executed: whether the defendant's act was deliberate and with the expectation death would result; whether the defendant is likely to commit a future violent act; whether the victim may have provoked the attack and whether the response by the defendant was reasonable.

"What they're saying now is that the Constitution requires a jury to consider mitigating evidence," Walt said. "I can't think of a case in Texas that has less mitigating evidence than Donald Gene Franklin's."

Stevens and Walt agree one one thing: It is impossible to predict what the Supreme Court will do.

If the court rules in Franklin's favor, anyone who requested similar jury instructions could be entitled to a new trial.

"Even if you didn't request these instructions, you might be entitled to raise that fundamental constitutional right," Stevens added.

Police beat

Two thefts, a burglary and a vandalism were reported to Big Spring police over the weekend.

• Six cartons of cigarettes, valued at $66, were reported stolen from the 7-Eleven Store, 300 Owens St.

• Michael Villi, 408 Edwards Blvd., reported the theft of a gold chain, gold pendant and gold ring. The jewelry was valued at $225.

• Johnnie Green, 1111 N. Lancaster St., told police that someone entered his residence and stole a video player valued at $400.

• Glass covers to meters on two gasoline pumps were reported broken at C.P. Thurman Fina Station, 3000 W. Hwy. 80. Damage was estimated as $100.

Four people also were arrested by Big Spring police over the weekend.

Anthony Spurgeon, 28, Midland, was arrested on warrants from the San Angelo Police Department.

• David Wayne Sigmon, 30, 2303 Carl St., was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated and resisting arrest. Sigmon was transferred to the Howard County Jail and released on bonds totaling $1,300.

• Clara Mae Alenander, 57, Mountain View Trailer Park, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

• Michael Joe McKinney, 40, Longview, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Sheriff's log

Mix of state and local issues on Super Tuesday ballots

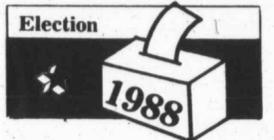

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

The battle for the White House won't be the only thing on the minds of some Super Tuesday voters. In Mississippi, they'll begin choosing a new senator; in Louisiana's 4th District they may elect a new congressman, and in Monroe, N.C., they'll decide whether to legalize sales of mixed drinks.

Of the 20 mostly Southern and border states holding presidential primaries and caucuses March 8, four — Arkansas, Mississippi, Maryland and Texas — are holding their regular state primaries at the same time.

But even in places where the state primary will be held later, officials have slipped statewide or local issues onto the Super Tuesday ballot.

"It's a cost-effective measure and it would tend to draw a larger turnout for both issues," explains

Jim Hamilton of the Florida division of elections.

In Mississippi, the retirement of Sen. John C. Stennis after 41 years has sparked a close Democratic primary race between Rep. Wayne Dowdy and Secretary of State Dick Molpus. Ed Cole, state Democratic chairman, says the combination of the presidential and Senate primaries "should ensure a pretty good turnout." Rep. Trent Lott is opposed for the GOP nomination.

In Maryland and Texas, Democratic Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Paul Sarbanes faces token challenges for renomination and will be heavily favored over whichever Republicans win their party's nominations. Texas also has primaries for five of nine seats on its Supreme Court, which has become a political battleground with two justices publicly reprimanded, two others quitting and Republicans hoping to achieve an unprecedented majority.

Arkansas features a heated Democratic primary in the 1st Congressional District, where 10-term Rep. Bill Alexander is challenged by campaign consultant Darrell Glascock, who says the incumbent neglects his district and spends too much time jetting to Central America.

The Texas secretary of state estimated it would have cost $12 million extra to hold separate state and presidential primaries. Bob Fisher of the Arkansas attorney general's office said the two parties would have had to "raise filing fees to an unholly amount" to finance separate primaries.

In Louisiana, voters in the 4th District will select a replacement in the U.S. House for Gov.-elect Buddy Roemer, who takes office on March 14. Roemer asked that the balloting be scheduled for Super Tuesday to cut down on election costs in his financially strapped state.

Nine Democrats and one Republican are competing in the open primary in which a candidate is elected if he receives a majority. Otherwise, the top two finishers compete in a runoff. The field includes former Rep. Claude "Buddy" Leach, who lost to Roemer in 1980 following Leach's acquittal on vote-buying charges.

In Georgia, legislators added a statewide referendum to the ballot with the hope of bolstering turnout for the presidential primary. The measure asks voters whether to increase from $8,000 to $10,000 the amount of gross income people 62 and older may receive and still be exempt from some school and property taxes.

"Every presiding officer that I've talked with, every governor, is worried about a low turnout," said Speaker of the House Tom Murphy prior to pushing the referendum through the General Assembly. "We need a tremendous turnout — the more folks the better."

In North Carolina, referendums on whether to permit mixed drink sales are scheduled in Monroe and three other cities and counties.

"This is an excellent way to avoid the cost of a separate election," said state Treasurer Harlan Boyles. "In Wake County, for example, they're having a separate election and it will cost something like $100,000."

In Tennessee, state Election Coordinator David Haines estimates that about 40 of 95 counties will hold their primaries for tax assessor and school superintendent on March 8, mainly to save money.

The Tennessee Legislature last year appropriated $2 million to cover the cost of the presidential primary, and gave counties the option of conducting their county primaries then at state expense or in May at their own. Counties must also pay for the August statewide primary and the November general election.

Ironically, in Oklahoma, two ballot issues relating to economic development were taken off the March 8 ballot and rescheduled for September because of fears that they wouldn't get the necessary attention because of the presidential campaign.

"The two were so important that we were afraid they would get lost in all the hullabaloo, in all the things going on," said Gov. Henry Bellmon's assistant press secretary, Wendy Johnson.

State briefs

Panel wants facilities

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — A panel has recommended that parole violators be returned to new facilities run by the state parole board instead of the inmate-clogged Texas Department of Corrections.

The recommendation came from a panel of top local and state leaders assembled by Gov. Bill Clements.

The proposal for immediate construction of facilities to house 2,000 parole violators to ease crowding at state prisons and county jails was among a dozen announced Sunday by about 40 mayors, judges, prosecutors, sheriffs and legislators participating in the three-day Texas Criminal Justice Summit.

The group called for 4,000 beds for parole violators, with half of those built now and the others to be approved by the Legislature next year along with 8,000 more prison beds and another 2,000 for a "boot camp" shock probation program. The parole violators program would be run by the Board of Pardons and Paroles and not the Texas Department of Corrections.

Delta trial to begin

FORT WORTH (AP) — A trial to determine who is legally responsible in the crash of Delta Flight 191 that claimed 137 lives begins this week.

The airline has filed a lawsuit against the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Weather Service, claiming that air traffic controllers and weather forecasters had evidence of a low-altitude thunderstorm in the landing path of the flight but failed to warn the jetliner's crew.

In the trial, which begins Tuesday, U.S. District Judge O. Belew Jr. will determine whether the government must pay a part of $91.2 million in claims that Delta Air Line's insurers have paid so far in connection with the Aug. 2, 1985, crash.

The judge also will determine Delta's liability in the crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport that killed 137 and injured 25.

The non-jury trial between the airline and the government could last between two and three months and could include testimony from any of 550 potential fact and expert witnesses named by the two sides.

Whatever Belew decides, the case is likely to be appealed, said Justice Department attorney Kathlynn Fadely.

Kidnapped girl beaten

FORT WORTH (AP) — The mother of a teenage girl who was abducted and severely beaten with stones and tree limbs says she thought she would never see her daughter again.

"I'm ecstatic," said the mother. "I really do think it's a miracle... I thought she was dead."

The 13-year-old girl was discovered about 7 p.m. Saturday in a culvert in Fort Worth. She had been kidnapped from a pizza parlor parking lot Friday night and was missing for nearly 24 hours.

The teen-ager was in stable condition at Fort Worth Children's Hospital Sunday. The girl suffered multiple cuts, including scalp wounds and exposure. A 16-year-old boy was being held Sunday at a juvenile detention center in connection with the abduction.

Fort Worth police Sgt. Mark Krey said tests to determine whether the girl had been sexually assaulted were not complete Sunday.

Smoking law foggy

DALLAS (AP) — When the City Council passed an ordinance requiring companies to accommodate smokers and non-smokers, it didn't provide money for enforcement of the rule that goes into effect Tuesday.

"The council intended it to be voluntary," said Jim Wood, assistant director of the city's Health and Human Services Department. "They believe — and I believe — that we'll get virtually 100 percent compliance on the ordinance."

The council passed the ordinance last August, but several employers hurrying to meet the March 1 deadline have called City Hall with questions.

Don Postell, an assistant city attorney who helped draft the ordinance, said the most frequent query is, "What does that thing say really?"

Wood said the city will check compliance only when a complaint is raised.

Town mourns deaths

HARPER (AP) — Almost half of this town's 400 residents packed a school gymnasium over the weekend to mourn the deaths of five teenagers who died in a head-on collision that also injured two adults.

Cars lined the streets next to the high school Sunday while inside the school's gymnasium parents, teachers, friends and family stood in close groups crying softly or standing in stunned silence.

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here are excerpts from recent editorials in newspapers throughout the nation.

Supports Reagan's Contra aid call

Democratic leaders in Congress hooted when President Reagan wanted to give military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras in case the peace process broke down in Central America. They should now send the same message to the Marxist regime in Nicaragua. With the Contras out of the way, Sandinista-backed warriors have picked up the pace of their battles elsewhere. Americans who decry Contra involvement in the deaths of Nicaraguans might also find time to mourn victims of the Sandinista-backed Marxist guerrillas in El Salvador. Reagan's plan to keep the Contra movement alive, as a check on the Sandinistas, was prudent and necessary.

Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail

IRS fear doesn't draw sympathy

The head of the Internal Revenue Service is worried by a trend among many taxpayers to delay filing their federal tax returns. According to IRS Commissioner Lawrence Gibbs, five years ago 14 percent of all individual returns were filed in January and 34 percent in April. Last year, only 4 percent were filed in January and almost 40 percent in April. Gibbs told a Senate Finance subcommittee that the trend, if exacerbated by the 1986 tax reform law, could pose big problems for the IRS. That's because the government is obligated to pay interest on refunds whenever returns are not processed within a 45-day period after April 15. He's unlikely to generate much sympathy among taxpayers with that complaint. The IRS ought to be glad that every taxpayer does not wait until April 15 to file.

The Times Record, Brunswick, Maine

Lauds Reagan budget for realism

For the first time in years, President Reagan has sent Congress a budget that wasn't immediately dismissed as dead on arrival. The $1.1 trillion budget for 1989 ... has been received on Capitol Hill as his most realistic spending plan. The note of realism injected into this year's spending proposal reflects the two-year budget agreement Reagan reached with Congress last year, after the stock market crash brought home the drastic need for deficit reduction. It reflects the politics of this year, an election year in which the president lacks the kind of muscle needed to push through daring new proposals. And it reflects the constraints imposed by huge deficits, which rose to record levels during the Reagan years.

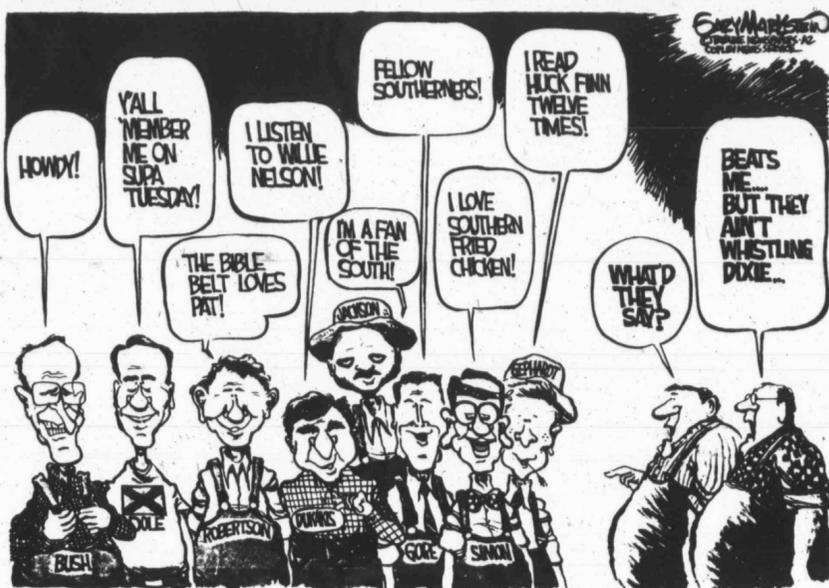

Baltimore Sun

Says some have too much talent

Yes, we'll probably be seated in front of our sets on April 11, tuned in to watch the Academy Awards. But that doesn't mean something won't be missing: Once again the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has snubbed director Steven Spielberg. This time Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun" failed to be nominated for Best Picture and Spielberg's name was conspicuously absent from the Best Director category. Of course it's the academy's right to make its own nominations. But it's too bad that Hollywood's elite has chosen repeatedly to ignore Spielberg, who has captivated the country as few other living directors have done. Spielberg has the talent to make American film classics that will entertain young and old for generations. Perhaps that's too much talent to bring him recognition from his peers.

Write from the heart
By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Fascination replaces fear at snake event

This job has its moments. I am often told that my writing reflects an involvement with the subject — and until recently, I didn't think that was meant as criticism. I guess there are more subtle ways to make your point, though. Like, as an editor, assigning your sportswriter to take a photograph of an upcoming event that's not exactly a mainstream sport — like rattlesnake hunting. Or better yet, send the reporter to a local civic organization's office to take pictures of a captive rattlesnake. Now, to understand my difficulty, you have to know two things about me: First, I am somewhat skeptical. When told unusual things, I tend to think my leg's being pulled.

I am also deathly afraid of snakes. Five dried peas in a tin can, shaken lightly just outside my sight, will send me leaping into space like an aggravated basketball coach levitating off a bench to protest a call. I don't really scare easily; I've taken photos in a rodeo arena where I could have gotten hurt and I thought I was having a wonderful time. The pictures turned out well, too. I've been known to wade into swollen streams to get better photos of flood damage or rushing waters — the right angle will get a really neat picture about three seconds before the water knocks you flat — and when I saw the photos, I felt the wet clothes were worthwhile.

So I went on this assignment figuring, "Be cool. They'll either have something in one of those glass boxes like on television, or there won't be any snakes at all." But sure enough, there were snakes. Curiously attractive creatures. The one I saw most clearly was about three feet long and about as thick as my wrist. The gentleman handling it said he believed it was a female.

It had been bitten earlier in the day by another snake, and the handlers said it wasn't very lively. They were not pleased with its reluctance to coil and prepare to strike. I thought the snake was wonderfully active. The snake did not appear terribly impressed; I was surprised at how they look: Their scales stand out slightly from their bodies. They are dry. When agitated, they swell outward and thrash about if prevented from coiling. These snakes, unlike dead rattlesnakes I have seen at home, were dark-colored, marked with a shiny yellow.

The snake I photographed did not whip itself to the side in the peculiar gait that makes rattlesnakes so easy to spot a hundred miles north of here. Sand rattlers have a sidwinding motion that's virtually unmistakable — and no other snake moves that way.

These, I was told, are diamondbacks. I found myself fascinated by what I saw. These snakes lacked the flat, wide-jawed heads of sand rattlers; they were more elegantly drawn. The one I was on speaking terms with, if you will, had birdlike eyes and a genuinely beautiful pattern. It had been injured; it was bleeding down one side. When first released from its box, it attempted to flee. Later, the snake put its head beneath a curve of its body, as if to hide.

The man handling it said it could not strike when it lay like that. Several times during the course of my photographing, the distance I left between us prompted comments on my obvious lack of bravery. I was spellbound — and scared. Comically so, I expect, from the viewpoint of the other people there.

Until that moment, I never really understood the phrase "horrible fascination" before. I couldn't stop watching the snake, wondering at it — and strangely, I felt compelled to go closer. But I didn't dare. I wonder whether the snake was scared. Maybe, like me, it was too afraid to be amused.

What's the big secret of AIDS commission?

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Since its creation by President Reagan last June, the AIDS commission has been acting less like an advisory committee with a life-and-death mission and more like a covert operations task force with something to hide. The commission has been beleaguered by two resignations, a lawsuit and a congressional investigation. It has cloaked its own deliberations in secrecy, tiptoeing around federal laws that require open records and open meetings. The point, apparently, is to avoid a full and public debate on the AIDS crisis.

The AIDS commission was formed to study medical, ethical, social and economic impacts of the epidemic. It is governed by several "sunshine" laws guaranteeing public deliberations, including the Federal Advisory Committee Act.

But the chairman of the commission, Adm. James Watkins, doesn't think much of that act and told a congressional committee how he circumvents it. "I think it imposes a tremendous burden on us, and I think what we are seeing now is an attempt even by ourselves to end run the system and find alternative techniques that do no violate FACA," Watkins said in testimony in December before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which is studying the law. When Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, asked Watkins what those techniques were, Watkins said, "You talk on the phone a great deal." That eliminates the need for written memos and public meetings. "When Adm. Watkins says he's trying to 'end run' around the statute, it sends a very clear signal to me that the spirit, if not the letter of FACA may be violated," Glenn told our reporter Sallie Dinkel. Congressional investigators had trouble getting paperwork from the commission. "The primary documents missing are those from the White House," said Rosslyn Kleeman, senior associate director of the General Accounting Office. The secretary extends beyond the commission itself to White House decisions about the composition of the committee. We obtained a copy of a letter from the former vice chairman of the commission, Dr. Woodrow Meyers, who resigned along with the chairman, Dr. Eugene Mayberry, last October.

Whatever, you dial 1-800-EMBALMS or some such thing, and you plan out your funeral, paying for it in advance, of course.

The message is if you don't make the call and get your funeral squared away while you're still among the living, you're being selfish because those you leave behind will have to bear the responsibility of seeing you off. I don't know about anybody else, but I am not going to pick up a telephone and call some perfect stranger and talk about my funeral. What happens if I outlive the guy I pay in advance to handle my funeral? What if he forgets to leave a note about me? I'm just as dead as ever, but now I'm out a couple of thousand and my friends and family still have a cold one on their hands. There's a few other things, too.

Addresses
In Washington:
CHARLES STENHOLM, U.S. Representative, 17th Texas District, 1232 Longworth Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515. Phone: 202-225-6605
LLOYD BENTSEN, U.S. Senator, 703 Hart Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. Phone: 202-224-5922

In the letter, Meyers complains about "the great deal of secrecy within the White House on who has to be appointed." But the blame for the conspiratorial aura around the commission may lie with the members themselves. They have meticulously avoided discussions that involve more than a few members at a time, which gets them around the open meetings required of a quorum.

The commission published an interim report last year without a discussion by the full group. How did it manage this? The panel's executive secretary, Polly Gault, said the commissioners came into the office two or three at a time to offer their opinions. Watkins has suggested that the procedure "could well be the modus operandi from this point on," thus avoiding any public debate at all on the disputed issues surrounding AIDS.

This penchant for secrecy is not the only reason the commission has been criticized. A coalition of civil rights groups has sued the commission, claiming that it is not balanced because it lacks a range of people affected by the disease. There is only one gay member on the commission, no one with AIDS and no one working directly with AIDS patients. William Rubenstein, the American Civil Liberties Union lawyer representing the coalition, believes that only three of the 13 commissioners have the necessary experience with AIDS to serve on the commission. "At least eight of the commissioners have very strong ties with the leadership of the Republican Party," said Rubenstein, joining the critics who say that the members were appointed because of their political connections, not their expertise. SPARE PARTS GLUT — The Pentagon has so many spare parts for weapons that many of them will have to be thrown away because they will be obsolete before they are used. The total stockpile of repair parts, supplies and clothing is estimated to be worth more than $90 billion, according to the General Accounting Office. In 1981, before the Reagan administration arms buildup flooded the warehouses, the stockpile was worth $48 billion. The Pentagon claims it needs the large stockpile to support its programs to modernize weapons, but the GAO concluded that the Pentagon is spending too much too fast because the technology improves before the parts can be used. The Department of Defense has spent $2.3 billion on spare parts for the B-1B aircraft, but the plane's avionics systems are unstable and will have to be modified.

I'm not dying to pay for funeral

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

That television commercial about pre-planning your funeral has been running a lot lately. Do those people know something we don't? Whatever, you dial 1-800-EMBALMS or some such thing, and you plan out your funeral, paying for it in advance, of course. The message is if you don't make the call and get your funeral squared away while you're still among the living, you're being selfish because those you leave behind will have to bear the responsibility of seeing you off. I don't know about anybody else, but I am not going to pick up a telephone and call some perfect stranger and talk about my funeral. What happens if I outlive the guy I pay in advance to handle my funeral? What if he forgets to leave a note about me? I'm just as dead as ever, but now I'm out a couple of thousand and my friends and family still have a cold one on their hands. There's a few other things, too.

Lewis Grizzard

I'm not certain how I want my funeral to go just yet, for example. I've considered leaving enough money for a big party in my honor. Maybe get the original Drifters to entertain with "Up on the Roof," and their other great hits. Since there must be 30 or 40 groups around calling themselves the original Drifters, it shouldn't be hard to get a booking. Then again, maybe I'd prefer a simpler service. A few of my friends could gather and say nice things about me and there could be some soft organ music playing in the background. That would be cheaper than the party and parking wouldn't be a problem. The other thing is I frankly wouldn't mind being a lot of trouble after I'm gone. Let 'em scramble around trying to figure out what to do about my funeral.

I don't want to be forgotten that quickly. There was a bit of discomfort in getting me here, so there should be some hassle involved in sending me away. One group of friends could determine what sort of funeral, they want while another could disagree. After all, what are friends for if not to bicker among themselves? I can hear them discussing my life now: "You know," one might say, "Lewis never handled his success very well." "But don't forget," another might reply, "he didn't handle failure that well either." Go ahead and pre-plan your funeral and ruin all the fun that's involved in dying, but I don't want to. Besides, all you really need to know about funerals comes from the great philosopher who once uttered, "Regardless of what you might have accomplished in life, the size of your funeral is still going to be determined by the weather."

DUI arrest is rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol rose more than 220 percent from 1970 to 1986, while the number of licensed drivers increased by just 42 percent in that period, a government report says.

In 1986, some 1.8 million people were arrested for driving under the influence, compared to 556,000 in 1970, said a report issued Sunday by the Bureau of Justice Statistics. In 1983, the peak year, there were 1.9 million such arrests, one for every 80 drivers.

The study also found that rates for driving under the influence were highest among 21-year-olds, reaching a peak in 1983 with a rate of one arrest for every 39 licensed drivers of that age.

Phone fraud costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone credit cards make it easier to charge calls but they're also making it easier for thieves to steal the numbers and run up huge long-distance bills.

The thieves are not necessarily the users. They often sell the stolen numbers to others who use them to dial around the world.

Toll fraud costs the long-distance companies about half a billion dollars a year, about 1 percent of the industry's revenues, according to the industry-sponsored Communications Fraud Control Association.

Despite phone companies' security efforts, thieves are coming up with bold new deceptions aimed at the unsuspecting.

Officials at the Mexico (Mo.) Ledger fell into such a trap with a Southwestern Bell calling card, which the newspaper used to make long-distance calls on American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s network, according to Editor Robert M. White II.

Jet sets speed record

HOUSTON (AP) — A jet that landed here slightly more than 36 hours after it took off unofficially broke the speed record for an eastbound, around-the-world voyage, company officials said.

The 19-seat, Gulfstream IV completed the route in 36 hours, 8 minutes and 34 seconds. The jet started and ended its flight at Houston's Hobby Airport, taking off Friday and landing Saturday with stops in Ireland, United Arab Emirates, Taiwan and Hawaii, said Gulfstream Aerospace Co.'s chairman.

The flight time remains unofficial until further review by the National Aeronautics Association, which sanctions such records. An NAA representative was on the flight.

Allen E. Paulson and his three co-pilots flew the jet 45 minutes, 41 seconds faster than a Boeing 747-SP last month.

Flag flap

Both sides ready to fight issue

ATLANTA (AP) — Friends and enemies of the Confederate flag say they ain't just whistlin' Dixie when they promise a fight over whether the rebel battle banner will keep waving from state flagpoles in the South.

The Confederate flag flies over the capitols of Alabama and South Carolina along with state flags. The state flags of Georgia and Mississippi incorporate the design.

In Georgia, a bill to redesign the state flag languishes in a legislative committee, and in Alabama black lawmakers who hoped to remove the Confederate banner from atop the Capitol dome were arrested.

"This is a very emotional, controversial issue. We knew that when we took it on," said Earl Shinhoster, Southeastern regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "We think we deserve a vote on the issue."

South Carolina State Sen. Glenn McConnell said opponents are being intolerant of differing views.

"It does not breed good relations ... to pull (the flag) down and brand it as a symbol of racism and hate," McConnell said. "If we become a society that cannot bridge differences, then we ... become a society built on extremes."

Shinhoster said the flag "represents the heart and soul of a defeated cause."

"It represents state sovereignty, state rights, a rejection or resistance to federal control, and it has an adverse effect on basic issues of human need," he said.

Georgia's Legislature voted to include the Confederate battle emblem on the state flag in 1956, as a reaction to federal school desegregation orders. A bill seeking to reinstate the former state flag has been sent to a House committee, where it will likely die quietly.

Judith Damewood, president of the grass-roots lobbying group Common Cause Georgia, said she is embarrassed whenever she looks at the Georgia state flag.

"When the Democratic National Convention comes to Atlanta this summer, this is not the flag I want those delegates to see," she said.

In Alabama, the battle flag has flown since 1961, when then-Gov. John Patterson had it put up in commemoration of the Civil War's 100th anniversary.

Since there is no law allowing the flag to fly, Gov. Guy Hunt has said he will allow the Legislature to resolve the dispute.

On Feb. 2, the House turned down a resolution to remove the flag, so 13 black legislators, led by Rep. Thomas Reed of Tuskegee, tried climbing a fence surrounding the Capitol to pull down the flag. The group was arrested on trespassing charges. A March 11 court date has been set.

Peace talk

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank — Palestinian soldiers of the West Bank town of Hebron listen as an Israeli soldier discusses diffusing potentially violent situations between IDF and protesters Sunday.

Police arrest settler

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police arrested a Jewish settler in connection with the shooting deaths of two Arabs in the West Bank, and Israeli Cabinet ministers suggested closing the occupied lands to media coverage.

The settler, from Neve Tzuf, was arrested Sunday, according to Adi Gonen, national police spokesman. The man, whose name was not released, is suspected of killing two Palestinians from the neighboring village of Abud after villagers blocked the main road on Saturday, Gonen said today.

The army today charged three soldiers, including a sergeant-major, with aggravated assault and brutality for allegedly burying alive four Palestinians in the West Bank village of Kfar Salem, an army spokesman said.

Peace plan supported

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz returned to Jerusalem to meet with Israeli officials after his regional peace plan won the support of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, a senior U.S. official said.

Mubarak, who met with Shultz on Sunday, became the first leader in the Middle East to support the plan. Jordan and Syria have rejected it, and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir of Israel has publicly opposed its key elements.

"They liked the package," a senior U.S. official said Sunday after Shultz outlined his peace proposal in a three-hour meeting with Mubarak in Cairo.

Winter games close

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — The Winter Olympics' flame, which was lighted in Greece and traversed some of the most rugged terrain by helicopter, dogsled, snowshoes and skis, was extinguished beneath a nearly full moon in Calgary.

With 60,000 people present, athletes from 57 countries marched in to McMahon Stadium for Sunday night's closing ceremonies carrying miniature Olympic torches. Banners reading "Until We Meet Again" in eight languages were draped along the top of the stands.

About 250 skaters took to the world's largest temporary ice rink in period costumes depicting the history of figure skating as a high-tech array of thousands of lights glistened off sequined costumes, flags and flame.

The skaters included past and present medal winners as well as young skaters from Albertville, France, site of the 1992 Winter Games, and Seoul, South Korea, site of this year's summer Games.

Readers defend, support honeybees

DEAR ABBY: When "Wendy" told of having been stung by a bee that had gotten into her soft drink can while she was golfing, you thanked her for the warning about this hazard.

Abby, are you sure the insect was a bee? I am very doubtful. At innumerable picnics, I have been harassed by yellow jackets. They were in my soft drink bottle, on my hamburger, buzzing around my head and stinging my ankles. Occasionally other wasps have entered the game, but never have I seen a honeybee behave this way. Honeybees will sting in defense of their hives, or to protect themselves if you grab them. But they do not invade soft drink cans or attack picnickers.

The nasty-tempered yellow jacket, which is about the same size as a honeybee, is very often mistaken for the bee! It attacks without provocation and nests around golf courses, and gravitates toward food and beverages. It's given the useful honeybee a bad reputation. Many a hive of honeybees has been destroyed; many a beekeeper has been forced to quit because neighbors feared "bees," when the real culprits were wasps! We need the honeybee for pollination of many of our most valuable crops.

"Wendy" is correct — insect stings can be quite serious to those who are highly allergic to them — but there is a vast difference in the potency of insect stings. A white-faced hornet sting will make my whole hand swell, a yellow jacket sting will cause my finger to swell for a day, and a honeybee sting will make part of my finger swell for perhaps half an hour. If you print this, sign me. ...

DELAWARE BEEKEEPER

DEAR BEEKEEPER: Thanks for a honey of a letter. I got stung on this one. No entomologist am I, but I wonder how many other can't tell a yellow jacket wasp from a honeybee?

Howard County Jaycees named most improved

The Howard County Jaycees received the Most Improved Chapter award and several others during the Area One Jaycees Convention at the Midland Hilton Feb. 19-21.

The Howard County chapter was named most improved for 1987, received a second place growth award in Division 5 and a 10th place in growth of all Texas chapters.

Marlon Hale, president of the local chapter, received a president award from Texas Jaycees President Catherine Triska.

Marlon and his wife, Becky, won second place in Family of the Year competition and will compete in the statewide contest May 19-24 in Lubbock. The couple have three children: Aletha, Amanda and Athena Jo. All three attended the weekend convention.

All children attending the convention were honored at a luncheon.

Texas Supreme Court Judge Barbara Culver of Midland was the keynote speaker at the convention.

The Howard County Jaycees meet the first and third Tuesday of each month. Their next meeting will be Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Coors Hospitality Room, Interstate 20 West.

Garden members discuss growing perennials

Rosebud Garden Club met at Feb. 23 at the home of Sandra Jones.

Programs for the next year were discussed with "Birds" and "How to Prepare the Soil for Planting," among the favorites.

Edna Womack discussed perennials. "Many of our best-loved flowers are herbaceous perennials," she said. "The terms perennials and herbaceous are often used interchangeably to mean a plant that comes up year after year and in most cases dies down to dormant roots each winter, leaving only lifeless stems."

Jones discussed "Giving Perennials the Right Start."

The next meeting will be March 22 at Comanche Park Amphitheater. Members should bring a bird book and binoculars.

Howard socks Hill College Rebels

The Howard College Hawks continued their winning ways by battering the Hill College Rebels in a Region V doubleheader Sunday afternoon at Jack Barber Field.

Howard pitched three innings. Hill took a 4-0 lead on two, two-run homers by Gilbert Luna and Randy Meichner in the first inning.

Catcher Randy Deal followed with a triple. Jody Allen and Jay Williams walked. Pinch runner, Paul Spyhalski, running for Deal, scored on a wild pitch.

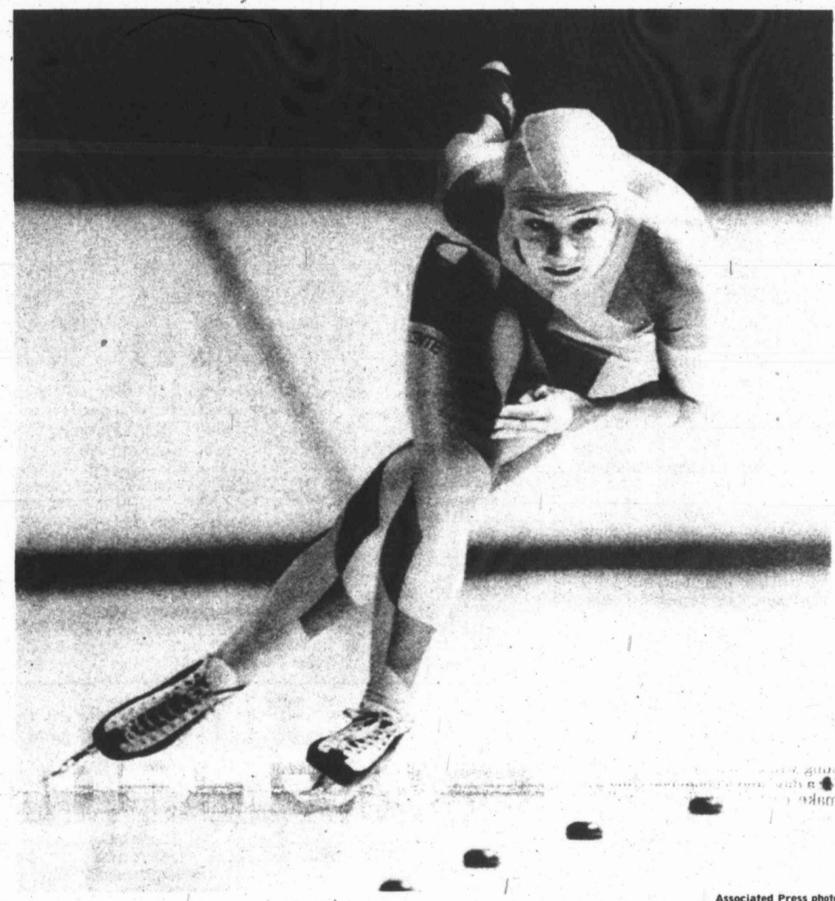

Spyhalski ran for him. Darren Glenn and Allen singled, Spyhalski scored on Glenn's hit, and Allen scored on a wild pitch.

Howard 700 422 x-15 18 4 WP - Kroeger (4-0) LP - Zamzow (2-2) HOWARD 13, HILL 7 Howard erupted for six runs in the first inning and never looked back.

Allen doubled, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Kenneth Frederick. Castro's second hit of the inning scored Spyhalski, who had walked.

Soviets, East Germans dominated

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) - The wildest Winter Olympics, etched by the skates of Boitano and Witt and stamped by the skis of the Flying Finn, Tomma la Bomba and Eddie the Eagle, ended in a joyous tribute to sports and world peace.

CALGARY - American speed skater Bonnie Blair of Champaign, Ill., shown here competing in the 1500 meters, led the U.S. medal winners with a gold and world record time in the 500 meters, and a bronze in the 1000 meters.

These were Games of grand performances and heart-tugging drama and they closed Sunday night with flashy skating, raucous dancing, a million "yah-hoos" and many a tear rolling down cheeks.

The medals table was merely a way to keep score and in the end meaningless next to the success that was part of simply competing.

Canada also is investigating why its heavy spending on Olympic training resulted in only five medals, none of them gold.

Katarina Witt wowed the figure skating judges and crowd as she tap-danced in blue feathers to "Hello, Dolly," then seduced them as the temptress "Carmen" to win the gold.

More to Olympics than winning medals

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) - Cheer up, America. The Olympics are over and you won't have to look at those depressing medal tables anymore.

is how much the chancellors of the exchequers at ABC and NBC paid for 1988 Olympic television rights. The USOC got only $15 million of it.

East Germany didn't quite catch the Soviets, finishing with nine golds and 25 medals overall, but it gave the Games some of their greatest performers.

The 22-year-old East German beauty with the flair of a DOMINATED page 3-B

But in bottom-line America, people worry about more tangible matters, like how much hardware you won, not how many friends you made. So the medal count became a big deal.

Take, for example, the case of tiny East Germany, equipped with only one-fifteenth the population and one-twenty-fifth the gross national product of the United States.

There were people like Corey Millen and Scott Fusco, hockey players who endured the disappointment of a second straight seventh-place Olympic finish, and Mary Docter, the Milwaukee waitress who gave up her sport for 3 1/2 years and then made it back on the speed skating team after just two months of training. They didn't win a medal among them, but they hardly could be termed failures.

CALGARY - Jill Trenary of Colorado Springs, Colo. is carried on the shoulders of her United States teammates as the American Winter Olympic teams walks into McMahon Stadium for the closing ceremony Sunday night.

American speed skater will have many memories

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) - When Dan Jansen looks back on his Winter Olympics, his memories will be good and bad. He will remember the death of his sister Jane, of course, and falling twice in speed skating races he was favored to win - races he wanted to win in Jane's memory.

He also will remember the support he received from teammates and total strangers, and that you can't always get what you want. In short, Jansen said, he will remember the lessons of the Games.

Welcome to Catch-22. "Part of our gross national product, through the television networks, is going outside the United States," said Robert Helmick, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

There were people like Dan Jansen, skating with a heavy heart after the death of his sister, and Debbie Armstrong, gamely defending her giant slalom gold on one good leg.

with no chance against the military men of the Eastern bloc countries, and Bonny Warner, thrilled with a personal best sixth-place finish in the luge.

And if standings are really so important to you, check out the NBA and NHL. Or better yet, wait a week. The Grapefruit and Cactus Leagues are about to start.

We are talking $609 million here, a substantial piece of change. That

Underclassmen grab spotlight in world of college basketball

By The Associated Press

It was Senior Day at North Carolina but a sophomore stole the show. Freshmen were the heroes for Temple and Kentucky and, just to make sure all classes had equal representation, a junior led Georgia Tech.

—At Chapel Hill, N.C., sophomore Scott Williams scored 20 points to lead five players in double figures as ninth-ranked North Carolina celebrated its final home game Sunday by crushing Clemson 88-52.

"I think this is the fourth time we've played them on Senior Day. I'll be glad when we get out of this Senior Day business," Clemson Coach Cliff Ellis said.

—At Philadelphia, freshman Mark Macon hit his first six shots in the second half and scored 27 points as No. 1-ranked Temple defeated West Virginia 78-69.

"They are a difficult team for us always," said Coach John Chaney, whose Owls nipped the Mountaineers by one point in their first meeting.

—At Lexington, freshman Eric Manuel, starting in place of injured Rex Chapman, scored seven of Kentucky's last eight points as the 12th-ranked Wildcats overcame a nine-point second-half deficit and beat No. 10 Syracuse 62-58.

"Manuel is not a freshman," Coach Eddie Sutton said. "He is a seasoned player. He plays like a senior."

—In Atlanta, junior Tom Hammonds scored 29 points as No. 20 Georgia Tech defeated fifth-ranked Duke 91-87.

"He put on a show," Coach Bobby Cremins said of Hammonds, who also grabbed six rebounds and held Duke star Danny Ferry to six points in the second half. "He was unbelievable. What a performance that kid put on. He never quits. He's something special."

The weekend featured high-scoring performances by No. 19 Loyola Marymount, a 141-126 winner over the University of San Diego, and fourth-ranked Oklahoma, which blitzed Colorado 134-84.

Besides Duke and Syracuse, three other members of the Associated Press Top 20 were losers — No. 13 Iowa beat seventh-ranked Michigan 95-87, Utah upset No. 11 Brigham Young 62-60 and Kansas downed No. 15 Missouri 82-77.

Elsewhere, it was No. 2 Purdue 69, Northwestern 51; No. 3 Arizona 101, Arizona State 73; No. 6 Pitt 74, Connecticut 69; No. 8 Nevada-Las Vegas 71, Fresno State 60; No. 14 Bradley 95, Indiana State 74; No. 16 Wyoming 85, San Diego State 59; No. 17 Vanderbilt 75, Notre Dame 66; No. 18 North Carolina State 64, Virginia 63.

No. 1 Temple 78, West Virginia 69

Temple, 25-1, overcame 31-percent shooting in the first half to boost its record to 11-0 in the Atlantic 10. It also marked the Owls' fifth straight season with 25 victories. West Virginia was led by Tyrone Shaw with 21 points.

Macon hit three straight jumpers in the opening minutes of the second half, which started with Temple leading 36-30. West Virginia twice cut the deficit to four points but a steal and a layup by Howard Evans and a three-point play by Mike Vreeswyk capped a 9-2 run that put the Owls in front 60-48 with 9:16 left.

Evans said Temple was tight in the first half because the seniors were honored before the game.

"My mother, my aunt and my sister were here," he said. "I was playing emotionally, and emotion doesn't last too long. Coach likes us to play with the same expression on our face all the time."

No. 12 Kentucky 62, No. 10 Syracuse 58

Kentucky trailed Syracuse 49-40 lead with 12:19 left. But the Orangemen kept missing the front end of 1-and-1s and Winston Bennett scored nine points in a 14-5 run that pulled Kentucky even at 54-54.

Derrick Coleman gave Syracuse the lead again with two free throws. But Manuel grabbed a blocked shot, sank a jumper while falling backwards, then hit a foul shot to complete a three-point play.

After Rony Seikaly made two free throws for Syracuse, the last of his game—high 21 points, Manuel connected on a 15-footer from the baseline to give Kentucky the lead for good 59-58 and drove the length of the floor for an uncontested dunk in the closing seconds.

"I knew I had to come in and establish myself," Manuel said. "I had to do the things I'm capable of doing. I just had to keep working to get some picks, to get my shots. I couldn't force things."

Bennett paced Kentucky with 15 points, followed by Ed Davender with 14, Rob Lock with 12 and Manuel with 11.

No. 20 Georgia Tech 91, No. 5 Duke 87

Brian Oliver made three crucial free throws in the final 45 seconds to secure Tech's seventh consecutive victory and the second straight loss for Duke. Tech took the lead for good at 87-85 with just under two minutes remaining on Anthony Sherrod's 18-foot jumper.

Despite his subpar second half, Ferry led Duke with 24 points. But Hammonds said he thought the defense on Ferry was the key to the victory.

"He's a three-dimensional player," Hammonds said. "I knew I had to come out and do a good job on him."

No. 9 North Carolina 88, Clemson 52

North Carolina rolled to its 33rd straight victory over Clemson, which played without leading scorer Elden Campbell, who was suspended for selling complimentary tickets. J.R. Reid and Ranzino Smith, one of two seniors on the squad, scored 12 points apiece for the Tar Heels.

"Clemson came here not at full strength, so it was hard to get a feel for how well we really did," said Coach Dean Smith, who celebrated his 57th birthday.

The wacky SWC race

By The Associated Press
One of the more bizarre championship basketball races in modern Southwest Conference history will come to wild-and-crazy conclusion this week.

But it may be the very last game on March 6 before the champion is crowned when Arkansas plays at Texas Tech in a regionally televised Sunday afternoon game.

Southern Methodist still has the best chance of winning the title although the Mustangs keep shying away from the finish line.

The Ponies could have clinched a tie for the crown Saturday night but were slow getting out of the gate and fell 76-69 to Texas in Austin. They had defeated the Longhorns 75-70 three weeks ago.

SMU dropped to an 11-4 ledger while Arkansas, a 112-87 conqueror of Rice, edged up to 10-4.

Baylor, which blasted Houston 88-73, improved to 9-5 and a tie with Texas for third place.

Texas A&M (7-7) downed Texas Tech (4-10) 68-66 in the other league game.

Rice (3-12) and idle Texas Christian (3-11) are battling to avoid the cellar because the ninth place team doesn't go to the SWC Post-Season Classic.

SMU has only one league game left, against TCU Wednesday night in Dallas at Moody Coliseum.

The Razorbacks have two rough road games, at Houston on Thursday night then on to Texas Tech. The Thursday night game will be on national television (the USA Network) at 8 p.m.

SMU could clinch a title tie against TCU then sit back and hope Arkansas loses one of its two games for an outright league title, first for the Mustangs in 21 years. It's been 16 years since SMU shared a title.

"SMU is still sitting good compared to Arkansas," said Texas Coach Bob Weltlich.

SMU fell behind 10-1 to start the game and couldn't recover.

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M forward Donald Thompson (30) powers his way past Texas Tech forward Wes Lowe to score a bucket in A&M's win over Texas Tech.

"To be a championship team you have to win road games and we didn't," said forward Carlton McKinney. "We're not a championship team yet."

SMU Coach Dave Bliss said, "Texas got off to a great start and we had trouble catching up. We tried hard but it didn't pay off."

Kato Armstrong, SMU's star guard, was held without a field goal although he hit 14 of 16 free throws. Baylor beat Houston for the fifth consecutive time, a record for SWC teams against the Cougars. Darryl Middleton scored 22 points and Michael Williams added 25 as the Bears coasted to victory. "They are just the two best players in this league day in and day out," said Baylor Coach Gene Iba.

Lakers win 10th straight

By The Associated Press

Even with Michael Cooper sidelined with an injury, the Los Angeles Lakers continue to dominate the NBA.

Wes Matthews, replacing Cooper as the Lakers' sixth man, scored nine points in the fourth quarter. Byron Scott finished with 30 and Magic Johnson had 23 points and 15 assists Sunday night as Los Angeles defeated Phoenix 111-97 for its 10th consecutive victory and 34th in 37 games.

"Wes is playing great basketball for us," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "It's been five or six games that he's been productive and given us solid backup minutes. If he stays in tune with the game, he's going to be effective."

The Lakers took advantage of the disarray in the Suns lineup. Mark West, Ron Moore, Tyrone Corbin, Craig Hodges and Kevin Johnson are new to the team because of trades last week, and Hodges and Johnson are injured.

Rookie Armon Gilliam had 19 points, Jeff Hornacek added 17 points and 15 assists and Corbin scored 10 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter for the Suns, who have lost 20 more games than they've won.

The Suns, losers of 13 straight at The Forum, used a 14-6 spurt in the first four minutes of the third quarter to reduce a 62-47 halftime deficit to 68-61. But a 15-6 Los Angeles run restored the margin to 92-77 in the final minute of the period.

The backcourt combo of Scott and Johnson scored 20 and 17 points, respectively, in the first half. Scott scored five during a 15-6 first-period run and Johnson scored eight to fuel a 17-6 burst over the last 3½ minutes of the second quarter.

Pistons 106, Celtics 101

Detroit, which has lost seven straight at Boston Garden, beat the Celtics for the eighth straight time at the Silverdome.

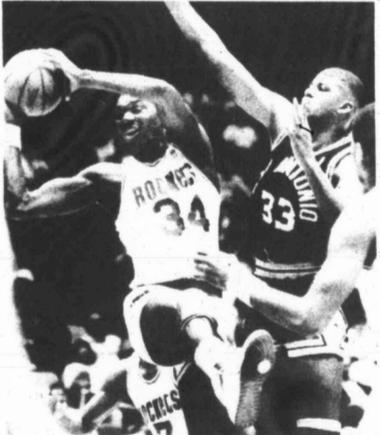

The Pistons outscored Boston 26-13 in the first nine minutes of the second half for a 79-71 lead. But Larry Bird scored 14 of his 26 points in a 26-15 Boston run, capped by a 3-pointer that put the Celtics ahead 97-94 with 5:56 left in the game.

The Pistons, now 27-0 when leading after three quarters, outscored the Celtics 12-4 the rest of the way, getting six points from Dennis Rodman and four from Isiah Thomas. Rodman and Thomas finished with 17 points apiece.

Kevin McHale finished with 33 points for Boston, while Adrian Dantley, playing sparingly in his second game back from an ankle injury that kept him out 10 games, had 19 for Detroit.

Rockets 108, Spurs 95

Houston survived the absence of Sleepy Floyd as center Akeem Olajuwon had 10 of his 26 points and six of his 15 rebounds in the first quarter against San Antonio.

Floyd missed the game because his mother is seriously ill in Gastonia, N.C. Frank Brickowski, who had 21 points for the Spurs against Houston in a victory on Friday, did not play because of a bone bruise.

With the assistance of two goaltending calls on Olajuwon, San Antonio took an 8-0 lead, only to be outscored 21-4 by the Rockets over a six-minute stretch. By the end of the first quarter, Houston led 29-20, and the Spurs never caught up.

Walter Berry led San Antonio with 16 points.

Nuggets 109, Knicks 100

Denver snapped New York's three-game winning streak, its longest of the season, as Michael Adams scored 15 of his 18 points in the first quarter, giving the Nuggets the lead for good.

The Nuggets, who committed an NBA season-low five turnovers, led 32-25 after one period and extended the margin to 57-43 at halftime as Blair Rasmussen had 16 of his 20 points in the first two quarters.

The Knicks never caught up in the second half, with Denver's Lafayette Lever scored 22 of his 24 points in last two periods.

Veteran Pokes quarterback thinking about retirement

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White says he is thinking of retiring after 12 NFL seasons, though he is more bothered by off-the-field criticism than his lingering wrist injury.

"It's not an easy decision," said White at a football clinic here Saturday. "The wrist is fine. It's not a question of anything having to do with my physically. I'll never be able to bend it."

"Pathologically, I'm having a problem. Emotionally, I'm fine. I've gotten about 90 percent of the strength back and I can still improve that a little bit. It's merely a matter of adapting."

"It's not a physical question. It's more a psychological question," White said. "It's just a kind of beating you take off the field. That, for me, is something I've grown kind of tired of. It takes a little fun out of the game."

White, 36, has played for Dallas since 1976. He was blamed by some fans for not leading the Cowboys to the Super Bowl like his predecessor Roger Staubach.

"At some point, it's going to get to the point where the game's not as much fun for me as it once was. And that's when it's going to hit me... that's its time to retire," said White. "That might come next month and it may not come for a couple of years."

White is bothered by the wrist injury on his throwing hand. His right wrist was broken on Nov. 2, 1986, when he was sacked by New York Giants defensive lineman Carl Banks and has not healed properly.

His wrist remains stiff and bothers him primarily when he throws on the run or when soft "touch" passes are required, he says.

White said he plans to gear up for the Cowboys' training camp in July at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

"Physically, right now I'm ready to go. I've been working out and I'm going to continue to work out. I'm planning to go back to camp and be ready to play. I think (Dallas Coach) Tom (Landry) obviously would like to have me there."

"As far as the season is concerned, Tom must decide whether (backup) Steve Pelleur is ready or not, when he'll be ready and if he's seen enough of Steve to know if he's going to be the type of quarterback he wants. They've got to decide who's going to be their quarterback for the next 10 years.

"But I'm not going to commit to anybody at this point (and say) 'Yes, I'll be there' or 'No, I won't.' If something happens between now and then to change my mind, I'll change my mind. I think it would be foolish because too many things could happen. I just want to keep my options open."

White, who grew up in nearby Mesa, was an All-American quarterback at Arizona State from 1971-73.

Memories

ed a lot out of them.

"I've had some good memories out of this, even though the main memories are sad ones."

Jansen said too much emphasis was placed on winning at the Olympics, and one of his teammates said the experience of Jansen showed there were rewards more precious than gold, silver and bronze to be gained at the Games.

"It's just a great opportunity to be in the Olympics," said Bonnie Blair, whose speed skating gold and bronze accounted for one-third of the U.S. medals at Calgary. "If you win a medal, it makes it even better. But just being here and doing your best, that's what matters."

Robert Helmick, the president of the USOC, said American athletes can do better than they showed in the last two weeks.

But Helmick also said that winning medals should not be the main goal.

"What does count is competing, and if we compete well, the medals will come," he said. "If we focus just on the medals, that's a mistake."

To compete well, Helmick said, the United States needs more training facilities for winter sports, along with more money from corporate sponsors.

Hollywood actress left her fans a final memory with a double encore show in the exhibition Sunday night.

She danced defiantly to a song with the lyric "I am what I am, I am my own special creation," then donned a sequin-studded black leather jacket and shook up the Saddledome with a sexy disco dance to Michael Jackson's "Bad."

Finally, she put on a white cowboy hat, one of the symbols of these Games in an oil and cattle town, and danced one last goodbye.

Brian Boitano, a Nureyev on skates from Sunnyside, Calif., leaped higher than anyone in his gold medal routines, and thrilled the crowd with his swashbuckling closing show.

No skater, though, pumped up the fans as much as Canada's kids, Brian Orser and the silver belle, Liz Manley. Each received thunderous standing ovations Sunday and gave the crowds glittering farewells.

Orser, in royal blue, stood at center ice, looking up at the 19,000 fans with glistening cobalt blue eyes, then skated soulfully to Neil Diamond's "Story of My Life."

It was a poignant moment for Orser, who had been deeply wounded by just missing the gold against Boitano and had talked philosophically about going through life as the silver medalist instead of the winner.

On this night, though, with the pressure of competition yielding to the sheer freedom to skate, Orser celebrated life with a spectacular flip and was rewarded afterward with kisses and hugs and flowers from female admirers.

Manley, who shocked everyone, including herself, by winning the gold program and capturing a silver that was good as gold to her countrymen, was greeted by a cry of "We love you, Lizzie" before her final encore.

Debi Thomas, too, made an emotional departure after letting the gold literally slip away Saturday night in one of her worst performances ever and settling for bronze.

"My heart wasn't in it after I missed the first jump. Because I kind of felt like, the whole reason I'm here is to skate great," she said. "And I didn't do that combination. So from then on out, I couldn't be great."

It was a sad night, a time for the 20-year-old from San Jose to think about quitting skating and going back to Stanford University to pursue her pre-med studies. But she recovered a little on Sunday and skated out her blues in a shimmering gold dress.

Free of pressure, she was the epitome of grace on ice, appearing sometimes to be singing as she skated. A lilting, bittersweet song about success and failure included the line, "Maybe just one more time..." and when the singer sang about tears, she momentarily covered her face with her hands.

World records were set in nearly all the speed skating events, but personalities made these Games special.

Flying Finn Matti Nykanen, once a barroom brawler who harnessed his aggressiveness to challenge the skies, won three golds with his soaring, poetic flights in ski jumping.

Alberto Tomba, the cocky 21-year-old La Bomba, set off a wild Italian celebration by powering to gold medals in the slalom and giant slalom.

He got the brush-off at first when he tried to give flowers to Witt after her freestyle show, but later won a formal introduction and a smile. He acknowledged, though, that any would-be romance was thwarted by language problems.

No Olympian won more attention, had more fun and gave more joy to fans than Eddie "The Eagle" Edwards, the overweight, under-trained, ski jumping Briton with the bottle-thick glasses and indefatigable grin.

Some said he invented a new sport — ski dropping — but he reminded everyone that these Games are more about trying than winning. There are many Walter Mittys, daydreaming about adventure, but Eddie Edwards dared to live his dream and Olympic fans were grateful for the chance to watch.

Bonnie Blair, smaller than her East German rivals, imbued the Games with the spirit of the pure amateur who fights against all odds to be the best she can be.

Blair, the toast of Champaign, Ill. and all America, won the 500-meter speed skating gold in world-record time and took a bronze in the 1,000. But she disagreed with Steinbrenner that "the bottom line" of the Games is the medal count.

"Just being here and doing your best, that's what matters," she said.

The only medal Dan Jansen won was the USOC's Olympic Spirit Award, a bronze medallion encased in glass that meant as much as any gold.

No one who saw these Games could forget his courage in racing hours after the death of his sister. He became America's Heartbreak Kid, falling down twice, but he learned and taught a valuable lesson, "That things don't always go the way you plan, and that not everybody can be a winner."

Volunteers are needed to help repair homes of needy elderly citizens April 23

Christmas in April needs donated labor and tools to repair at least 10 homes

The date is fast approaching — Christmas in April Day, April 23 — the day when volunteers will repair at least 10 homes of our community's needy elderly. But this is a project that must have many willing hands to make it happen. A least 200 volunteers are needed, for everything from putting on a roof to hauling away trash. Donated use of equipment and tools are necessary as well.

Volunteer your own time, or get together with your friends or organizations. Just one day of your time, Saturday, April 23, is all that Christmas in April, Inc. needs. It will make a big difference to some of our community's deserving citizens who just happen to be needy and elderly.

To schedule a slide presentation for your club call Sandy Burroughs at 263-0809.
 To donate your time or tools call Don Riley at 263-4335.

Former batting champ dies

CHANDLER, Ariz. (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, the former batting champion who managed the 1982 Milwaukee Brewers to the club's only World Series appearance, is remembered as a man who played baseball hard and loved the game dearly.

Kuenn, 57, the 1953 American League Rookie of the Year and AL batting champion in 1959, was found Sunday by his wife after collapsing in the shower at his home in Peoria, Ariz., police said. The cause of death was not immediately determined.

"I'll always remember Harvey with one foot up on that dugout step, with that chew of tobacco, looking out over the field on the way to the World Series," said Larry Haney, a coach with the team since 1977. "Those are some great memories."

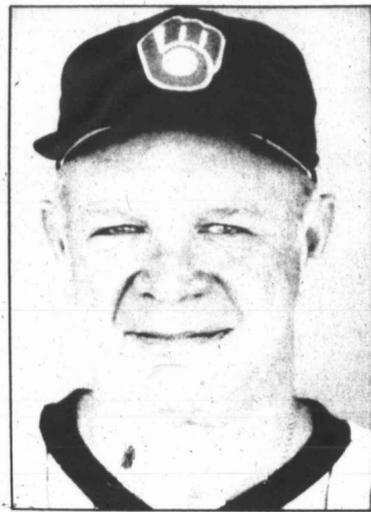

Jim Gantner, one of three players from 1982 still on the Brewer roster, said Kuenn set an example of courage while battling a series of major medical ailments since the mid-1970s.

He underwent open heart surgery in 1976. Then, in March 1980, he had his right leg amputated just below the knee after a blood clot cut circulation. He returned to coaching only six months after the surgery.

Kuenn's Brewer team became known as "Harvey's Wallbangers" when it won the pennant in 1982. Replaced as manager a year later, Kuenn stayed with the organization as a scouting consultant, splitting time between his Arizona home and his native Milwaukee area. He was born in the Milwaukee suburb of West Allis.

Predominantly a singles hitter, Kuenn had only 87 career home runs among his 2,092 hits. He won the AL batting championship in 1959 with a .353 average and then was traded to Cleveland for Rocky Colavito, who had won the home run title with 42 homers.

Hall of Fame outfielder Al Kaline, who joined the Tigers the same time as Kuenn, remembered his teammate as a "hard-nosed" competitor and a friend. "As a player, he was a great hitter," Kaline said from the Tigers' spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla. "He had outstanding bat control. He helped me a lot when we first came up."

Kuenn is survived by his wife, Audrey, son Harvey Jr., and daughter Robin.

Beck ends 10-year drought

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chip Beck felt he had finally broken through the barrier.

"It was a long time coming," Beck said Sunday after he won the $750,000 Los Angeles Open, the first victory of his 10 years on the PGA Tour.

"I've always known I could win. It's so satisfying to knock those barriers down."

PGA

Beck, who fired a 3-under-par 68 to beat Mac O'Grady and Bill Sander by four shots, had been a runner-up seven times during his tour career, but could not seem to break through for a win.

"I know this is a stepping stone and it can transform you," said the 31-year-old Beck. "This can push me ahead, I know that."

"I'm still young and I'm playing well and I feel like I'm just starting."

His play at Riviera Country Club might offer some hint of what's to come. His rounds were 65-69-65-68 for a 17-under-par 267, and Riviera is considered one of the tougher challenges on the Tour.

And, after taking a three-shot lead into the final day, he tenaciously held on despite rain that soaked the course and delayed play twice for a total of more than two hours.

Asked how he would have felt about a rained-out, Beck replied: "I didn't want to win my first one that way."

Sander, like Beck, also had the best finish of his 10 years on the Tour. Sander, who had only a fourth-place to his credit previously, knocked in a 65-foot chip shot on the final hole for a 66 that tied him with O'Grady.

Sander said he also wondered whether the round was going to be washed out.

"It was hard because you didn't know if you were going to get to play," he said. "I kept on telling myself, 'This counts, keeping on playing.'"

O'Grady, close to the lead throughout the tournament, shot a closing 68.

Jay Haas, Ed Fiori and Australian Steve Elkington began the final round tied for second, three shots in back of Beck. But Fiori had a closing 70 to drop into a tie with Mike Reid at 272, Haas had a 71 and Elkington a 72.

Although Beck had never won a tournament before, he had done well financially on the Tour.

In his first big-money year, 1983, he collected $149,909. Last year, he earned $523,003 without winning a tournament.

Since he joined the PGA Tour in 1978, he has earned nearly $1.5 million.

After collecting $135,000 for his LA Open victory, Beck said money wasn't really all that important to him now.

"When I came out of school (the University of Georgia), I didn't know what $500 was," he related. "Then they tell you that you have to win $50,000 to keep the (tour) card."

"Sports in this country are blown out of proportion. The money's nice, but I just want to do as well as I can."

"I'm glad I was able to pull through (with the victory). It's a dream I've had for a long time."

Beck's string of second-place finishes includes the 1986 U.S. Open, and the Championships of Golf and the Tucson Open — the final two events of 1987.

Okamoto wins tourney opener

HONOLULU (AP) — Ayako Okamoto struck gold in her first LPGA Tour appearance of 1988, holding on for a one-stroke victory in the $300,000 Hawaiian Ladies Open.

The 1987 LPGA Player of the Year shot a par-72 in Saturday's final round, while much of the competition struggled against gusty winds on the 6,220-yard Turtle Bay Resort course on Oahu's north shore. She finished with a 54-hole total of 213, 3 under par.

LPGA

Okamoto began the day trailing Joan Delk by a stroke, but took the lead as Delk bogeyed three times on the front nine.

JoAnne Carner started the final round tied with Okamoto, but had dropped to even-par by the 10th hole. She rallied on the back nine to tie Okamoto, but bogeyed the 17th and missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th that would have forced a sudden-death playoff.

"Boy did I want that one," said Carner, an LPGA Hall of Famer. "I just couldn't get it going soon enough."

Okamoto was the steadiest of the leaders, never dropping more than a stroke on the day. She had bogeys on the first, fourth and 15th holes, but birdied the second, fifth and 13th.

"Even though I got bogeys, I got birdies," Okamoto said through an interpreter. "Plus, Joan Delk and JoAnne Carner didn't have too many birdies."

Carner shot a 73 Saturday to finish at 213. She tied for second with Deb Richard, who shot a 68 to emerge from the pack.

Richard, who finished long before Okamoto and Carner, missed a 20-foot par putt on the 18th hole that would have dropped her to 3-under.

Carner bogeyed the second, third and 10th holes, dropping to par. Then she clipped three strokes off par on the back nine with birdies on the 12th, 13th and 16th holes.

"I was up and down and all around," Carner said. "It was a true test of my patience, the way I played the front nine."

Carner's 20-foot birdie putt on the 16th moved her into a tie with Okamoto.

Carner missed a 15-foot par putt on the 17th and Okamoto made par to take the lead. Carner then missed a chance for birdie on the final hole, while Okamoto made par for the victory.

Beth Daniel, Kathy Postlewait and first-round leader Jan Stephenson were two strokes back at 215. All shot 72s.

Delk, Cathy Gerring, Marci Bozarth and Patty Sheehan finished three strokes back at 216. Gerring shot a 73 and Bozarth and Sheehan had 71s.

five hits, three runs, while fanning six. Allen came on in relief.

"Our hitting finally came around," said Howard assistant coach Greg Henry. "The whole year Coach Griffin (Bill Griffin, Howard head coach) has called on the bench and they guys have come through. I think we've got more depth this year."

The Hawks are now 10-1 overall and 3-0 in Region V play.

Tuesday and Wednesday Howard will host Western Oklahoma in doubleheaders at Jack Barber Field. Game time is 1 p.m. each day.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 1, 1988

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Matters of a very unusual nature will arise. These can best be dealt with by using old and accepted procedures. Contact people who have much experience for advice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Friends can show you the right way to keep benefits flowing in. Show your appreciation for this help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tonight is the perfect occasion for a good time with your mate. You'll both enjoy a little change of pace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A little trip to a place which you enjoyed before can bring you the same happiness again. Have a good time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Make a plan for handling the week's activities. Try to cut down on expenses wherever possible.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Introduce an outside partner to a long-time partner. Discuss matters of mutual interest and treat them both to dinner.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) This is the right day to use a new gadget and get the right results. Show an associate that you appreciate his help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A talent you possess can be very profitable today if used correctly. Enjoy some recreations with new friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A family friend well-versed in modern methods can give you very good advice on financial matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attaining personal goals can be easy if you contact the correct people. A short trip can be very successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Stop worrying about money; improve your operations and you'll soon have all you need. Drive carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) This is a good day to be around old and trusted friends. The recent difficulties at home are clearing up.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Visit someone you know who is somewhat critical. This person will give you all the support you need for a project.
