Candidates closing in on Super Tuesday

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

George Bush, hoping to set off a Southern stampede with his Saturday victory in South Carolina, sets out this week to take command of the Republican presidential race in Super Tuesday primaries. The Democrats engaged in a volatile, four-way race marked by intricate regional and racial splits.

The vice president claimed nearly half the vote in South Carolina's GOP primary, leaving his three rivals to split the rest.

"I believe what happened in South Carolina will have a major impact on Super Tuesday," Bush said.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., depending on the South for a Democratic foothold, shared a Wyoming caucus victory Saturday with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis. Both won four convention delegates. In the straw vote, Richard Gephardt was third and Jesse Jackson a distant fourth. On the Republican side in that Western state, Bush and Bob Dole were splitting the 12 delegates at stake.

Both campaigns explode this week into multi-state contests for convention delegates — 1,307 Democratic and 712 Republican — that make February's battles in Iowa and New Hampshire seem like relics of a simpler era. Gone is the day of coffee shop campaigning, replaced by television commercials costing millions of dollars — and lasting 30 seconds.

Bush is rated the heavy favorite over Dole and his other GOP rivals in state after state — so much so that the Kansas senator already is looking past the South to an Illinois showdown on March 15. Former television evangelist Pat Robertson and Rep. Jack Kemp aren't expected to win much of anything, either.

With 21 contests on the Democratic side, many of them in Southern and border states, this is the week that Jackson's black supporters begin voting in substantial numbers. Jackson leads the Democratic field in some regional polls, and rivals say he may win as many as five or six states and 300 or so delegates.

It is also the week that Gore hopes to redeem his Southern strategy and emerge as a serious contender for the industrial state battles that lie ahead. His Super Tuesday base is at home in Tennessee and next-door in Kentucky, but there were signs Saturday of trouble in the bigger states of Florida and Texas. Of tiny Wyoming, he said:

"It's the first state where some candidates did not have a two-year head start, and coincidentally, it's the first test of the new campaign presentation on TV and radio... people are responding to it."

This is also the week that Dukakis and Missouri Rep. Gephardt, the two best performers in Midwestern and New England contests that have gone before, resume their increasingly heated battle on a broader, regional scale. Each has attacked the other in speeches and television commercials as Super Tuesday has approached.

Dukakis, the best-financed Democrat, hopes to win in Florida and perhaps elsewhere in the South. He is counting on victories in Maryland, Washington state's caucuses and in Rhode Island and Massachusetts to give him the delegate lead after the ballots are counted.

Gephardt begins with his home base of Missouri, and has highest hopes in Oklahoma. His goal is to defeat Gore in enough states to drive him from the race.

Texas, with the biggest delegate prize, is a picture of the Democratic Super Tuesday race in microcosm — a tense, four-way struggle for delegates and bragging rights.

All contenders worked their way across Southern and border states on Saturday, while their television commercials played on.

Wilkerson top spender in county

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

County attorney candidate Hardy Wilkerson has spent the most among candidates running for Howard County offices and at the same time has received more contributions than any other candidate.

Wilkerson has spent $3,218.41 in his quest for the county attorney post, and has received $3,380 in contributions, according to reports filed in the county clerk's office.

His opponent, Robert D. "Bob" Miller, has spent $1,706.06 on his bid for the post and has brought in $1,300 in contributions, reports indicate.

Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to decide the fate of the highly-visible county attorney race that has included television, radio and newspaper advertising.

Fay Reed, a Precinct 3 county commissioner candidate, had the second highest expenditures, having spent $1,866.88 on her campaign.

Reed is running against Jimmy Newsom and E.L. "Pete" Jenkins in the Democratic primary. The winner will run against Republican incumbent Bill Crooker, who has no opponent in the Super Tuesday primary.

Wilkerson received a $1,000 contribution from Juanita Bryant, P.O. Box 1245, and a total of $1,250 in contributions from Stina J. Wilkerson, P.O. Box 492.

He also received $500 from his grandmother Opal Wilkerson, 502 Edwards Blvd., $300 from his aunt Evelyn Bender, of Miss Royale, 1509 Gregg St., and $100 from law office partner C.E. "Mike" Thomas.

Wilkerson also received $230 in donations in which each totaled $50 or less.

Jackson tells West Texans he supports oil import fee

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Stressing the need for an energy secure nation, presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson told West Texans Friday he supports an oil import fee.

Jackson spoke at 1 p.m. Friday before about 150 area residents at the Midland International Airport before traveling to Hillian Drilling Co. in Odessa to conduct a news conference on his energy policy.

Jackson's plan, which he called the Pan-American Energy Alliance, calls for conservation and cooperation among oil producing nations in the western hemisphere — Canada, the United States, Mexico, Colombia and Venezuela.

An alliance among those nations would enable the western hemisphere to control its own destiny and decrease its reliance on oil from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, he said.

"In this hemisphere we can become more energy secure," said Jackson, who noted an oil import fee might cause a modest increase in consumer prices, but said "the tradeoff is energy security over the long haul."

Mexico should be excluded from an oil import fee, however, he said, because such a fee would only penalize the country and increase its unemployment woes.

At the Odessa drilling company, Jackson spoke with owner R.N. Hillan, who said his independent company drilled 250 to 300 wells a year during the late 1970s and early '80s.

"All this was a beehive of activity; now we can't make a profit running any one of them," Hillan said, motioning toward his six drilling rigs.

"Independents are getting devastated in this area."

Keeping taxes down, but maintaining services are goals of incumbent O.L. "Louie" Brown, 1508 Oriole St., if elected to his fourth term as Precinct 1 commissioner, while his opponent, Emilio R. Molina Sr. seeks a solution to Jones Valley flood woes.

Molina, 54, 1103 N. Scurry St., is seeking his first term on the Howard County Commissioners Court and said his goal is "to serve all the people of Precinct 1."

also, I feel it was time for a change."

If elected, Molina said he would work to find a solution to flooding problems that have hampered Jones Valley businesses. Heavy rains in late May and early June contributed to Beals Creek overflowing its banks and flooding the area west of Big Spring's downtown.

Molina said he would seek state funds in solving the problem.

Incumbent Brown said he hopes to keep taxes down or lower them while maintaining present county services.

He said he also supports renovating the Courthouse facade and grounds as well as the county jail and library.

Precinct 3

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Three long-time Howard County residents are quietly seeking the Democratic nomination in the county commissioner Precinct 3 race.

The winner will run against Republican incumbent Bill Crooker, who is unopposed on Tuesday's primary ballot.

A loss in the county's tax base, which has contributed to a sluggish economy, is one of the main issues facing Howard County residents, according to two Democratic contenders.

"I think the most important issue at the present time is financial because of our shrinking tax base," said commissioner hopeful Fay Reed, 1500 Pennsylvania St.

"With careful planning, I would hope to meet the needs of the people and try to avoid a tax increase."

Reed retired this year from State National Bank after 32 years of service. Through her work at the bank, Reed said she gained experience in several areas, including audits, investments, expense accounts, leases and contracts.

Democratic candidate Jimmy Newsom, a Fina Oil and Chemical Co. employee, said he's against raising taxes.

If elected, Newsom said he will not waste taxpayers' dollars.

"I think our local economy is stagnant and I believe more input and involvement from the people could turn about a positive change."

"I am concerned about our county, city and country. In my opinion... we need a change in our government."

If elected, Newsom said he would retire from Fina Oil.

Democrat Pete Jenkins, running against Reed and Newsom on the Democratic ticket, said his experience as a Texas Electric employee would benefit him if elected to Precinct 3.

"I know all the low places; I know every road, every street, every bar ditch in this county."

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

SAN ANTONIO — Hispanics who have called for a boycott of a new controversial film about the Alamo are preparing for a showdown with movie producers on the 152nd anniversary of the fall of the Spanish mission.

"Alamo — The Price of Freedom," officially opens to the public today, but a group of Hispanics contends the 45-minute movie is historically inaccurate and does not adequately feature Tejanos — Hispanic Texans who fought for the Alamo in 1836.

The movie was co-produced by former Big Spring resident George McAllister, who said that what occurred at the Alamo is open to speculation.

San Antonio City Councilman Walter Martinez, who spearheaded a seven-month effort against the movie, said his group would picket in front of the theater today.

"The movie is insulting in the manner that it excludes the Tejanos."

There may be money waiting for you

FORT WORTH (AP) — About $60 million lies in Texas coffers, just waiting to be claimed, according to state officials who say the cash includes forgotten utility deposits, savings and checking accounts and cashiers' checks.

Among them are more than 10 dozen Howard County residents and firms, published below as provided by the state treasury.

A list of Texans with unclaimed funds awaiting them in the state Treasury Department or in banks and businesses will be published in 16 newspapers on Monday.

More than 75,000 names, representing the unclaimed accounts, will appear in the 20-page newspaper insert.

A listing means that a business or individual has at least $50 unclaimed somewhere, although the average amount is $800 and many accounts contain $10,000 or more, said Bill Cryer, a spokesman for the Texas Treasury Department.

Most of the unclaimed money accumulated in utility deposits, savings and checking accounts and cashier's checks, said Cryer.

People trying to claim money must complete a form, providing a Social Security number, and have the form notarized before returning it.

Those listed by the state from Big Spring are:

- Acco South, Billy D. Adams, Tom Adams, Clyde Allen, Larry L. Anderson, John Arrick, Grady Baker, Douglas L. Bellesheim, Big Spring Explorers, J. Jackson

If the imports were shut off we'd be in terrible shape," said Hillan, who reported he thought the country was getting into a "dangerous situation" with its reliance on foreign oil.

Wearing a cowboy hat, Jackson entered the Petro Jet Hangar at Midland International Airport about an hour past his scheduled arrival — approaching the crowd to shake hands with supporters who chanted "Win, Jesse, win."

Before Jackson entered, former New Mexico governor Toney Anaya told supporters "this time he's here with us, I can assure you."

Anaya, who last year pledged his support of Jackson's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, was referring to a scheduled December visit at which about 1,500 Odessans turned out to see the presidential hopeful, but went home disappointed after weather conditions prevented him from attending.

"This campaign represents hope — a renewal of faith in the country," Jackson told the audience Friday, donning first a Odessa Permian MOJO baseball cap, then an Odessa High cap.

"We the people can win," Jackson said.

"We can't keep going forward and looking backward or we'll stumble and fall. We must forgive each other ... and move on to a brighter tomorrow."

Jackson brought a message that included support of independent oil producers and family farmers. "People want to work and want to get paid when they work."

Jackson said the United States could eliminate welfare by increasing the minimum wage, providing comparable pay for comparable work by women and furnishing day care for children.

"I want to make our nation strong by investing in our children."

The presidential hopeful also spoke out strongly against drugs.

"Our borders are weak — militarily weak to the opium war — the drug war. We must defend our borders from the number one threat — drugs."

Jackson, who supports a U.S.-Soviet freeze on the production and deployment of new weapons systems, told Texans, "we don't need to deploy Star Wars, we need to employ the people."

At the close of the rally, about 20 children climbed onto the stage at Jackson's request and participated in a cheer led by the presidential candidate, in which the children shouted answers to three questions.

"What's happening March 8?" Jackson asked them.

"Super Tuesday."

"What're we going to do?"

"Vote."

"Who're you going to vote for?"

"Jesse Jackson."

Asked at the news conference why he came to West Texas instead of concentrating on larger Texas cities, Jackson replied, "A president must run for all the people."

Hebrew Jones, president of the Howard County NAACP, said Jackson appears to have a strong support among the county's blacks.

"I think that he will be well supported among the blacks here," Jones said Saturday.

"He certainly has my support."

"I feel the same way he does about domestic problems ... Jesse Jackson would make a good president."

1980 census figures indicate that blacks comprised approximately 5 percent of the 33,000 Howard County population.

For the record

Tommy Tune, Howard College director of community education, raised a question about the establishment of the Howard County Hot Check Fund and its relationship to county attorney candidate Robert Miller, about which an article appeared in the Thursday Big Spring Herald.

In the interest of full disclosure, it should be noted that Tune's wife, Donna Tune, is the secretary of the Thomas-Wilkerson legal firm. Wilkerson is Miller's opponent in the county attorney race.

The Herald was not aware of the connection until after the article appeared in print. Tune could not be reached for comment.

As for John Doe III, he becomes John Doe II, when either of the two men for whom he was named dies, then becomes simply John Doe when both are gone. That, too, is the rule." So writes a client who has made a lengthy study of the matter.

Miller received a $1,000 donation from Mike Craddock, P.O. Box 1084 and a total of $300 in donations under $50 each.

Of Wilkerson's more than $3,000 in expenses, more than $2,000 was spent on newspaper, radio and television advertising.

Wilkerson, the only candidate to advertise on television, spent $515.40 on a week-long cable advertisement that began March 1 and runs as many as nine times a day on cable Channel 3 (ESPN) and Channel 12 (CNN).

Expenditure reports show Wilkerson spending nearly $1,000 on advertisements on radio stations KBYG and KBST and his opponent, Miller, spending $532 on KBST advertisements.

Miller spent $41,48 in Big Spring Herald advertising, compared to Wilkerson's $690.84.

Other county candidates contributions and expenditures reports filed in the county clerk's office included the following:

- Fay Reed, Democratic candidate for the Precinct 3 county commissioner post, reported total expenditures of $1,866.88 and total contributions of $135. Expenses included $302.17 for postage and $501.90 for printing of fliers that were mailed to residents in Precinct 3.

- E.L. "Pete" Jenkins, Democratic candidate for the Precinct 3 county commissioner race, reported total expenditures of $1,104.19 and contributions of $25.
- Jimmy Newson, Democratic candidate Precinct 3 county commissioner race, reported expenditures of $897.31 and no contributions.
- O.L. "Louie" Brown, incumbent Democratic candidate in the Precinct 1 commissioner race, reported expenditures of $807 and no contributions.
- Emilio R. Molina Sr., running against Brown in the Precinct 1 race, reported expenditures of $930.09 and no contributions.
- In the unopposed races the only expense recorded other than filing fees was reported by Glenda Brasel, candidate for 118th District Clerk. Brasel reported a $50 expense for a newspaper advertisement.

jano participation in this historic event, and we condemn it as unacceptable." Martinez said at a news conference Friday.

"It has no social redeeming value, in our opinion, and will only serve as a divisive element in our community," Martinez said.

Martinez called for a boycott of the movie and its financial backers, Pace Foods Inc. and Luby's Cafeterias Inc., until the movie is removed.

But Doug Beach, vice president of Texas Calvacade, the producers of the movie, said the group tried to work with Martinez and that Martinez had no qualms after viewing the edited version earlier in the week.

He also said a boycott would only hurt Luby's and Pace employees, many of whom are Hispanics.

"Perhaps he's listening to people who care more about publicity than they care about the jobs of their own people," he said. "Picketing and censorship of the film deprives Texans of the opportunity to see the film and make up their own mind."

Rod Sands, a spokesman for Pace Foods, and Vernon Schrader, a spokesman for Luby's, both said they were concerned about the boycott, but stood by the movie.

"We don't feel we have done anything wrong. We feel kind of disheartened that this is happening," Sands said. "We felt we were investing in a project that was good for the community."

The famed Alamo battle was fought in 13 days in February and March 1836. At least 189 men inside the Alamo died defending it from Mexican troops led by Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, who took the mission on March 6, 1836.

McAlister, now of San Antonio and formerly of Big Spring, spearheaded the movie project. He has said he strove for historical accuracy, but he noted that much of what occurred at the Alamo is subject to speculation and individual interpretation.

"There are no chronicles of the Alamo and what happened there," he said.

Academy Award-winning filmmaker Kieth Merrill directed the movie.

Mother, son together; first time in 14 months

MESQUITE (AP) — A state caseworker's hunch and a missing-children flier led to a tearful reunion of a mother and her baby son who had been kidnapped from his home when he was just 18 days old.

Alisha Wetselline-Rodriguez held her son, Eric, for the first time in more than 14 months Wednesday and was so excited she could barely speak.

"I understand he has to get used to me," Ms. Wetselline-Rodriguez said as she cradled the boy dressed in red overalls and a striped shirt during a visit to the home of the boy's foster parents, John and Diane Noster, in Mesquite.

For months after Eric was kidnapped from the rear of his home on Dec. 9, 1966, Ms. Wetselline-Rodriguez would call police and receive the same message: Nothing yet.

The frantic mother resorted to a nationwide search using fliers and contacts with child-welfare agencies. Her sister, Veronica Yanez, said she even prodded local radio stations to play the song "Somewhere, Out There," and dedicate it to the missing boy.

A few months after his kidnapping, Edica Flores of Dallas took Eric to a local Catholic church and told a priest that a woman she met in a park nine days earlier had asked her to take care of the child for a week while the woman went to Houston to seek work.

The woman never returned, and Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Beverly Storey MESQUITE — Alisha Westselline-Rodriguez, right, touches the son she has searched for since he was kidnapped December 1966. Until their Wednesday reunion, Eric has been in the foster care of Diane Noster, left.

said efforts to find the woman have failed. The church turned the child over to the state on May 4, 1967.

On Christmas Eve, Texas Department of Human Services worker, Mary Forrester, noticed a striking similarity between a picture of Eric on a missing-children flier and an abandoned child who had been turned over to the agency. Then the identification process began.

"It was a one-in-a-million case," said Ms. Forrester. "I wasn't even supposed to get the case, but another worker was overloaded. And when I first saw the flier, I threw it away. Something made me go back and look at it."

Ms. Forrester said the boy would have been eligible for adoption in November, but she postponed that process because she had a feeling about the case.

Family Court Judge Harold Gaither Jr. on Wednesday returned the boy to Ms. Wetselline-Rodriguez's custody after reviewing evidence from blood tests and testimony by a Department of Human Services caseworker.

Parents and son differing on non-viewing benefits

AUSTIN (AP) — Hugh Wyman's parents believe the most important qualities their son gained by going a year without television are constructive habits.

Hugh thinks the most important quantity he has gained is $500.

He collected the money Friday, after winning a bet with his parents that he could tune himself out to television for a full year.

"It was hard because before, the first thing I used to do when I came in the house was turn on the TV," said the 11-year-old elementary school student.

"But I kept thinking about the money," he said. "I even figured out how many quarters I could get for $500, and it was worth it."

Hugh said he managed to avoid television at friends' houses by walking directly to their bedrooms — backwards. At home, he kept his eyes on the screen of his family's computer and off the television screen, he said.

Hugh said he wants to cash in some of the bills for quarters to play video games. Though he hasn't decided what he will do with most of the money, Hugh said he plans to spend at least $100 taking a few friends to San Antonio to play the laser gun game Photon.

"He's been making new friends at school throughout the course. He's becoming a popular guy for some reason," said his mother, Pat Wyman.

"I heard from his teacher that he's been asking to borrow money from the kids at school, promising to pay it back in March," she said. "But none of them fell for it."

Mrs. Wyman said the bet was set March 4, 1987, when she read about a similar account in the newspaper.

The Wyman's said it has been wonderful not having the television blaring continuously. They said their son has developed some positive habits like reading more and spending more time on his homework.

Three Sabine County lawmen indicted

HEMPHILL (AP) — Two brothers, who testified against three white Sabine County officers indicted in connection with the death of a black Louisiana truck driver, were injured in a car accident in Louisiana.

One of the brothers, Johnny Maxie, was seriously injured and was listed in critical condition Friday in the intensive care unit at Schumpert Medical Center in Shreveport, La. His brother, Alton, was treated and released from Sabine Parish Medical Center in Many, La.

The two had testified before a Smith County grand jury that indicted each of the lawmen on two counts late Thursday. Murder warrants were issued Friday against the officers.

Indicted were Bill Horton, 58, and James "Bo" Hyden, 34, both suspended sheriff's deputies, and suspended Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner. They had been indicted earlier on charges of civil rights violations in connection with the case in Sabine County.

The three were booked into Sabine County Jail Friday on murder warrants in connection with the December beating death of Loyal Garner Jr. A sheriff's department spokeswoman, who declined to give her name, said all three posted bond and were released Friday evening.

Bail was set at $50,000 for Ladner and $25,000 each for Hyden and Horton, officials said. Arraignments for the three law officers were scheduled for March 24.

The indictments accused the lawmen of causing Garner's death by striking him in the head with a slapjack, nightstick and an unknown object.

It's sound advice from Mark Twain

Mark Twain recalled a businessman, notorious for his pomposity, who announced with great fanfare, "Before I die I will go to the Holy Land, climb Mount Sinai, and read the Ten Commandments aloud at the top."

"I have a better idea," said Twain. "You could stay home and keep them."

The story comes to mind while digesting the latest twist in the career of the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart, the flamboyant TV evangelist who stepped down from his pulpit recently, after a tearful confession of "moral failure."

He declined to be more specific than that, telling his congregation only that "incidents" had led to his confession to church officials last week.

Reports are circulating that the one-time backwoods Louisiana preacher, whose evangelistic ministry ultimately brought in more than $140 million annually in donations, was spotted leaving a New Orleans motel in the company of a reputed prostitute.

Ironically, a year ago Swaggart insisted that the Assemblies of God investigate charges of sexual immorality against fellow Assembly minister and TV preacher Jim Bakker. Swaggart publicly condemned Bakker as "a cancer on the body of Christ."

Two mainstays of the fiery Swaggart repertoire were his relentless attacks on other Christian denominations, particularly the Roman Catholic Church, and his withering denunciations of fellow TV evangelists.

"Hypocrites" and "false prophets," he called them, "pompadoured pretty boys with their hair done and their nails done who call themselves preachers." Millions are deceived and duped by such people, he would say.

Even a stopped clock is correct twice a day, and Swaggart was right about a few TV ministers. Not all, by any means.

In stark contrast to Bakker and Swaggart, there are the Rev. Billy Graham, the Rev. Robert Schuller and the venerable Dr. Norman Vincent Peale. And laughable would be the comparison of Swaggart with the luminescence of the late Bishop Fulton J. Sheen.

The common denominator of Swaggart, Bakker, Oral Roberts and others is their preoccupation with the things that are Caesar's. The money that fills their coffers comes from tens of thousands of people who dutifully send in their offerings, often at great sacrifice.

Too many cases have been documented in which people have signed over their pensions, property and life's savings to TV evangelists.

The tragedy of Jimmy Swaggart is not the fall of a dynamic, yet flawed, preacher. It is the bitter disillusionment that will be felt most deeply and painfully among Swaggart's faithful followers.

Swaggart ought to think about that while he is taking Mark Twain's advice.

Newspaper's sale means little change

"Thomson affiliate buying Big Spring Herald, Texas newspapers" That was the headline on the front page of your newspaper Feb. 25.

What does that mean to the average reader of the Herald and others interested in a productive, successful Big Spring? Very little, we believe.

Ownership of the Herald has changed for the second time in less than two years. Founders Harte-Hank sold the 60-year-old daily newspaper to Garden State Newspapers May 1986. Garden State, which in recent months has become more popularly known as MediaNews Group, sold this operation, three other Texas dailies and 13 other newspapers to Thomson Newspapers effective March 1.

The suddenness of such transactions can leave people disturbed — any change is unsettling at first for anyone, and the staff of the Herald is no exception. Having a new boss can be a challenging way to continue a new year.

That unsettling feeling was relieved with the visit early last week of three members from the Thomson corporate office.

The Herald's purpose undergoes no change as a result of this new ownership. Quite simply put: We are dedicated to producing the best newspaper possible in the best community in West Texas. Our responsibility to accurately and fairly reflect this community and its citizens is no different regardless of the location of the corporate offices to which we report. Thomson has established a tradition of purchasing — and keeping — newspapers during its 53-year history. Stability and organization are trademarks of the corporation.

Any changes in the Herald will be those that are appropriate and best in the natural, evolutionary process of producing a good product for you. From an editorial point of view, the object we can't lose sight of is that our readers are our ultimate bottom line.

Mailbag

Director urging awareness, participation in prevention

To the editor:

The time has come for us to unite and take extraordinary actions to cease child sexual abuse, revictimization of survivors of sexual assault, and once and for all dispel all myths surrounding the issues of sexual assault.

We long ago answered the question "Are We Our Siblings Keeper?" with a resounding "Yes!" and with the deep-seated belief that services be provided "with respect for the dignity of all people, unrestricted by considerations of nationality, race, creed, color, status, a ge, sex or sexual preference." The dignity of the human spirit is at stake. The continuum of violence in our society and our state must no longer exist if we are to really become a society based on the principles of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. For there is little life for the children victimized by sexual assault. There is a life filled with pain and horror and the frequent need to act out their pain and anger on others and maintain the cycle of violence.

And there is little liberty for victims of sexual harassment and date rape and marital rape and stranger rape and all the other derivatives of sexual abuse common in our society. Freedom is an alien term and at best a long term goal for those who have been victimized, for victims very often live in "prisons" imposed on them by the crime and society's reaction to the same.

Pursuit of happiness is frequently looked upon as either meant for someone else or reserved for the perpetrators of sexual assault as their gifts must be preserved at all times — and this is one of their rights.

It is the fervent hope of the Texas Association

Against Sexual Assault that all citizens recognize their responsibility to themselves, their families, their co-workers and their neighbors and learn the signs and symptoms of child sexual abuse, refuse to believe the myths surrounding sexual assault and when called on to be a witness or serve as a juror do so willingly and with the knowledge that you can make a difference.

Just my type

Richardson depiction is touching

By ROBERT WERNSMAN

The tears were rolling Thursday afternoon. I'll be the first to admit it, I'm a sucker for a story that shoots at the heart.

It was, however, the last thing I expected when I sat down with the freshest copy of the weekly bible of the sports world: Sports Illustrated.

After all, there on the cover was Kirk Gibson crushing a spring training baseball and a smaller picture of Katarina Witt with one of her Olympic medallions hanging from her neck. Although he's a decent ballplayer and she was recognized for her talents, it hardly seemed like emotion-charged material.

Then, although I look forward to the quality writing found in SI, I was not expecting to be treated to some well-constructed, real-life drama — in a sports magazine.

Frank Deford, a longtime SI contributor, presented a compelling story of the life and recent hard times of a Texan whom this state can be mighty proud: Nolan Richardson.

His life — which began in El Paso — has included a series of successes that mark him as someone special, as much for making the very best of his opportunities as anything else.

As is widely understood, a little rain must fall in every life.

For Nolan Richardson and his family, it's been more like a torrent since the happy days of his high school coaching success, followed by more of the same at Western Texas Junior College in Snyder and then Tulsa University, where his team won the National Invitational Tournament his first year of coaching.

The man who was widely hailed as the most popular sports figure in Tulsa history, the man who could be called on to "bring together" the entire city, has suffered one of the ultimate pains — the loss of a child.

He struggled with the decision to leave Tulsa to coach at the University of Arkansas. Although the opportunity for a black man to set another first by coaching at a Southwest Conference school was ever so appealing, his 12-year-old daughter Yvonne's battle with leukemia made him decide to stay in Tulsa and allow her to continue to take treatments there.

That was the decision, at least until the 12-year-old successfully argued for the move, since it was an opportunity she didn't want her father to miss.

If you're a sports enthusiast who reads the magazine, you are in for a whole lot more than a sports story. If you would not typically read the publication, this is one that you might want to be sure to see.

Deford deftly establishes the scenario through the use of a four-act play, complete with character development, stage directions, and lighting cues.

What more can I say? It's so well crafted and polished the emotions pour forth.

Wernsman is editor of the Herald.

Jackson may be element changing voting chemistry

By JESSE TREVINO

With two days left before Super Tuesday, a new element has entered the chemistry of the presidential campaigns that surveys of voters in Texas and the South may not detect.

That element is Jesse Jackson and the number of southern Democrats — including many Hispanics — who may vote for him.

Jackson is raising eyebrows after remarkable showings during the last two weeks in Minnesota, Maine and Vermont — where he got 20, 28 and 26 percent of the vote, respectively.

These states have populations that are less than two percent black. Are voters there sending a message to Democrats across the nation that Jackson be taken seriously?

If that is the case, Hispanics and white liberals are the most likely to hear that message in Texas, producing the possibility of a credible win for Jackson in Texas.

How has this come about?

The popular perception that Sen. Paul Simon abandoned the South last week suggests Jackson may get substantial numbers of white liberal votes. Jackson's share of that vote kept Simon from winning the Iowa primary and triggered Simon's third-place finish in New Hampshire.

Instead of winning, Simon was edged out at the top by the slick, neo-populist campaign of Congressman Dick Gephardt and was nipped at the heels by Jackson. Since then, Jackson's share of the liberal vote has been growing.

If Jackson's recent string of good showings signals a breakthrough for Jackson among all Democrats, Hispanics — many of whom share an affinity for Jackson because of his ethnic appeal — could break out of the blocks for him in Texas.

Younger Hispanics, especially, are more receptive than older, more conservative Hispanics to Jackson's demands for social progress.

Four jailed in murder

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the four men who allegedly plotted the point-blank shooting of a rookie police officer guarding a witness' house is a suspect in two other drug-related murders, police said Saturday.

Commissioner Benjamin Ward said police believe a major drug dealer ordered the hit. The New York Post quoted sources Saturday as saying the suspects received "a few hundred bucks" to carry out a contract on the officer.

The Daily News said one of the four men arrested allegedly danced in the street after the killing, later boasting: "Did you see his blue eyes? Did you see his blue eyes? Did you see his brains?"

Todd Scott, 19, was arraigned late Friday with Scott Cobb, 24, and Philip Copeland, 22, on second-degree murder charges in the death of Officer Edward Byrne.

Byrne, 22, was gunned down Feb. 26 while sitting in a patrol car guarding the home of a man who had complained about crack dealing in the South Jamaica section of Queens.

Careful on this arrest

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — A 30-year-old man arrested five times in Michigan and Texas for crimes he didn't commit has settled a lawsuit against the city of Los Angeles for failing to remove his name from a crime computer.

Terry Dean Rogan sued the California city, its police department and two department detectives, saying his civil rights were violated when the department neglected to take his name off a nationwide crime computer.

The settlement, approved by the Los Angeles City Council on Friday, calls for Rogan to receive $55,000.

Supertrain is possible

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A Japanese company's proposal to build and operate a 300 mph train that would whisk visitors 20 miles from Orlando International Airport to Disney World in 10 minutes is generating interest among officials.

"Without question, it would put this community on the map as a transportation showcase," said Orange County Commissioner Lou Treadway.

The train "could become a major attractor on itself," Charles Ridgway, director of publicity for Disney, said.

The project, still in the experimental stages, would cost between $500 million and $800 million and would be privately funded, according to representatives of the company, Mag-Lev of Florida.

Hostage freed

Returns to live in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — West German engineer Ralph Schray and his pregnant wife returned to live in west Beirut on Saturday, two days after he was released from more than five weeks of captivity by pro-Iranian Shiite Muslims.

Schray's arrival here marks the first time a foreigner taken hostage in Lebanon has returned to live in the city where he was abducted.

"Here is my home. I feel great. I am so happy to be next to my wife and relatives," a beaming Schray said at a news conference he held at west Beirut's Sporting Beach Club, which is owned by his wealthy uncle, George Abu Nassar.

The Lebanese-born Schray, 30, an industrial engineer, was handed over Thursday to the West German Embassy in Damascus, where he stayed until his return to west Beirut early Saturday.

His uncle, a Lebanese businessman of Palestinian descent, and his pregnant Lebanese wife, Rana Mounla, accompanied Schray on the 55-mile trip to Beirut from Damascus.

"This place is my only country. It is my past, my present and my future. It is my identity," Schray said. His wife was at his side at the conference.

A family source earlier said that Schray, who was kidnapped Jan. 27, "returned to resume his normal life in west Beirut. He still feels he is more Lebanese than German despite his abduction ordeal."

The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, noted that Schray was born and brought up in west Beirut and had stayed with his mother's family after her separation from her West German husband, Rudolf Schray.

Schray thanked Syrian President Hafez Assad for his role in securing his release.

Forty-seven other foreigners kidnapped by various factions in Lebanon since January 1984 have been freed, but all swiftly returned to their home countries.

Marcel Coudary, a Frenchman held hostage for nine months until he was freed last November, returned to Beirut for a one-week visit in December. But he spent most of it in the capital's Christian sector.

Schray was the second foreigner

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Former hostage, West German Ralph Schray, embraces his Lebanese wife Rana Mounla Saturday. The couple have returned to live in Lebanon, two days after he was released from captivity. He had been held by his captors for five weeks.

abducted and freed since the Syrian army took charge of security in west Beirut on Feb. 22, 1987. The other was American journalist Charles Glass, who was kidnapped June 18 and gained freedom two months later.

Five other foreigners were seized in a new spate of kidnappings after Schray's abduction. But they all were grabbed in south Lebanon, which is outside the control of Syrian troops.

Among them is U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, 43, of Danville, Kentucky, who was kidnapped near the southern ancient port of Tyre on Feb. 17. He served with a U.N. observers' group in south Lebanon.

U.N. Scandinavian relief workers Jan Stening, 44, of Sweden, and William Jorgensen, 58, of Norway were kidnapped Feb. 5 near the southern port city of Sidon by what U.N. officials had described as unruly Palestinians. They were freed March 2.

The latest two believed to be abducted were a British official of the Oxfam relief organization, Peter Coleridge, 44, and his Syrian aide Omar Traboulsi, 31. They were grabbed in Sidon Thursday.

Lebanese security officials on Saturday accused the Palestinian guerrilla group Fatah-Revolutionary Council — led by wanted terrorist Abu Nidal — of holding Coleridge and Traboulsi.

But a spokesman for Abu Nidal's group, speaking on condition of anonymity, denied involvement.

Schray's abduction was claimed by a group calling itself the Holy Warriors for Freedom, which said he was released as a result of Syrian mediation. Syria is Lebanon's main power broker.

The group had also claimed responsibility for kidnapping two West Germans in January 1987: businessman Rudolf Cordes and engineer Alfred Schmidt. Schmidt was released in September, but Cordes remains in captivity.

There are 24 foreigners still missing and believed kidnapped.

Abductee helping child

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — An American working for the Witness for Peace organization who was abducted last week by rebels was helping an injured child when he was seized, a spokesman for the group said Saturday.

The rebels, known as Contras, have said Richard Boren, 30, of Elkin, N.C., and 12 Nicaraguans were detained because they were suspected of collaborating with the Sandinista government.

Edward Griffin, local director of the U.S.-based Witness for Peace, said Boren "was in a campesino (peasant's) house, tending a child injured by the Contras when he was captured by them and taken to an unknown location."

He said the abduction "verifies the (Contras') habit of attacking campesino settlements where the majority of the victims are civilians, mainly children, and then saying that they attack Sandinista military bases."

Two dead in shootout

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Two people were killed and seven were wounded in a shootout at a boxing stadium crowded with nearly 7,000 fight fans, police said Saturday.

Police Capt. Pitak Panyam said gunmen Thongchai Tikam and Manop Narktang, a police sergeant, were arrested and charged with murder after the incident Friday. If convicted, they could face the death penalty.

Police believe the violence stemmed from a personal conflict between boxing promoters.

Pitak said Thongchai shot Chaiwat Palangwattanakij, a boxing camp owner and president of the Professional Boxing Association, as he watched one of the Thai-style kickboxing matches at Bangkok's Lumpini Boxing Stadium.

Winner returns prize

BEIJING (AP) — A factory director whose labor-efficiency plans won him a $2,700 prize has decided to give up the money because of the lingering stigma against wealth and a deluge of request for handouts, a newspaper said today.

The prize, 10,000 yuan, is a huge sum for most Chinese, equal to 10 years' wages for the average urban worker and double that for a typical peasant.

The paper said he was receiving dozens of letters each day from strangers wanting to share in his new wealth, with friends and co-workers adding to the chorus.

Zhang won the prize for developing what he called a "full-load work plan" for allocating labor more efficiently at his factory. He became a nationally famous labor hero, winning praise from Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang.

A.N. STANDARD DOROTHY MOORE GLENDA BRASEL RICK HAMBY CHINA LONG

Six candidates seek election unopposed

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Sheriff A.N. Standard, a 28-year veteran of the Howard County Sheriff's Office, is running unopposed in the Howard County sheriff race.

Standard, 59, 504 E. 15th St., said his position involves addressing drug and criminal elements in Howard County, as well as providing public service to the community.

"There must be a greater effort between agencies as well as public support. I will work to that end."

Standard, a 45-year Howard County resident, said he's enjoyed his nearly three decades of service at the sheriff's department.

"Even though I do not have an announced opponent in the upcoming election, I am just as interested."

Standard served 10 years with the police department before accepting a position with the county.

Dorothy Moore, a 24-year veteran of the Howard County tax office, is seeking another term as county tax assessor/collector. Moore, 58, said she will operate the "tax collection procedure effectively and efficiently to benefit all taxpayers."

Moore is running unopposed for the position. Services at the tax office, located in the courthouse annex, 315 Main St., include collection of ad valorem taxes, voter registration and automobile registration.

Glenda Brasel is seeking the unexpired term of 118th District Clerk.

Brasel was appointed district clerk in January 1987 after the death of former clerk Peggy Crittenden. Before being appointed to the position, Brasel had served as deputy since October 1986.

She has been an employee in the district clerk's office for more than 19 years.

"I feel like I know the position and what is expected of me, and I enjoy the work."

Brasel is running unopposed for the position.

Incumbent Rick Hamby, seeking his fourth term, is running unopposed for the 118th District Attorney race.

Hamby ran a successful race in 1984 against challenger Robert D. "Bob" Miller, who is running for county attorney in Tuesday's election. The 118th District Court includes Martin and Glasscock counties.

Justice of the Peace China Long is seeking a second term as Justice of the Peace Precinct 1.

A former broadcast reporter for Big Spring's KBST radio, Long is running unopposed on the Democratic ticket.

She won the 1984 race in a runoff election against Doyle Lamb.

Incumbent J.B. Hall is running unopposed for the position of constable.

Two talk oil; big absentee vote in state

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Two Democratic presidential hopefuls said they would boost the ailing oil industry during Texas speeches as indications grew that Tuesday's primary turnout may be record-setting.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis spoke in Lubbock of renewed prosperity in the oilpatch and the Rev. Jesse Jackson gave his ideas on an oil import fee in Odessa Friday.

Meanwhile, record numbers of absentee voters continued to be reported, a possible preview of a record voter turnout on Super

Robertson plans Abilene visit

Republican presidential Pat Robertson will visit the Abilene Civic Center at 8 a.m. Monday, his Taylor County coordinator said. Larry Voorhies said that anyone interested in hearing Robertson's half-hour presentation is welcome to visit the center, located at North 6th and Pine streets. He suggested using the downtown Abilene exit.

Tuesday. Bexar County elections officials were overwhelmed by a rush of voters trying to beat the deadline for absentee voting in San Antonio. As the absentee voting period ended Friday, a record 41,271 votes had been cast in the county, more than three times the previous high of 11,525 in 1986.

In Howard County, 508 Democrats and 222 Republicans had voted absentee as of Friday's 5 p.m. deadline, County Clerk

Margaret Ray said. The office mailed ballots to 51 Democrats and 49 Republicans and a total of 69 have been returned, she said. The deadline for mail-in ballots to be returned is 7 p.m. Tuesday.

More than 100 voters were left standing in line at absentee ballot casting sites around San Antonio at 6 p.m. Friday.

said Jenkins, who said he traveled throughout the county during his 36 years with the electric company.

Jenkins, retired for the past year, said he would make the commissioner position a full-time job. "I miss the contact with people. I want to be able to ride down the street and have people recognize me... I want them to know who I am."

Jenkins said his goal is to keep a close watch on county spending.

"Watch spending, spend it wisely; secondly, keep in contact with the public — let them know what's going on."

Reed also said a slump in oil prices, loss of industry and economic hardships faced by farmers and ranchers have contributed to a reduction in Howard County's population as well as a reduction in tax dollars.

"We need to budget for our current needs, yet still provide a safety net for unforeseen emergencies." Asked whether they support forming a volunteer fire department in the Tubb's addition, Reed and Jenkins said yes, while Newsom said he'd like the county to work out a contract with the city fire department. "I would like to see the county contribute funds to the city fire department and have the city fire department handle all the fires in the Tubb's addition," Newsom said.

"If this is not workable, I would support a volunteer fire department and be willing to serve as a volunteer myself."

Commissioners Paul Allen and Bill Crocker met with representatives of the Tubb's addition

March 3 and offered to provide residents with a trailer containing a 500-gallon water tank and a hose and pump.

The fire trailer is expected to be placed in the Tubb's addition until money can be budgeted to provide a permanent station and truck.

Republican incumbent Bill Crocker said he'll work to maintain Howard County's "debt-free status" if elected to a sixth term.

"The commissioners must seek ways to lower costs of doing business and must help other elected officials to bring our services to the public at lower costs."

ble reductions in tax revenues, oil depletion, loss of revenue sharing, an expensive indigent health care program and deterioration of county roads," Brown said.

"All these problems can be solved or improved by careful planning and research."

Brown is relying on his experience in his race against Molina. He has served three terms on the court and is a member of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission and a member of the commission's review committee, which reviews grants submitted by Permian Basin cities and counties.

He is not employed outside of his commissioner position. Molina has been employed as a barber at the Big Spring State Hospital for 22 years. If he's elected, Molina said he will resign from the position to devote his time to the commissioner post.

There are plans aplenty for Public School Week

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Howard County schools will be rolling out the red carpet for parents and family members this week in observance of Texas Public School Week, with activities ranging from open houses to a free band concert.

March 7-11 has been designated Texas Public Schools Week, and will mark the 134th anniversary of the state public school system, according to information released by Helen Gladden, elementary curriculum coordinator for the Big Spring school district.

As part of the week's activities, all local schools will conduct open houses, Gladden said.

Local activities will begin at 7 a.m. Monday with a breakfast for area educators, hosted by the Staked Plains Masonic Lodge No. 598 and Big Spring Masonic Lodge No. 1340.

Big Spring High School will host an open house for parents and students at 7 p.m. Monday, followed by a free concert presented by the high school band at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The concert will feature Goliad Middle School Band Director Pat Daniel as featured tuba soloist, High School director Ricky Mitchell said.

In connection with the concert, the band boosters will be giving away a videocassette recorder. Tickets for the drawing may be purchased for $1 at the door, or can be obtained by contacting any booster or by calling 267-7463, Mitchell noted.

Runnels Junior High faculty and students will host an open house from noon to 1 p.m., with a concert by the band and choir scheduled for noon at the boy's gym, Gladden said.

Goliad's observance will begin with a band and choir concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the school gym. After the concert, all school teachers will be in their classes for parents to visit, she said.

Anderson Kindergarten Center will conduct an open house beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. A PTA meeting will be held, followed by a student program. Parents then can visit classrooms until 8 p.m., Gladden said.

Parents are requested to call in advance for an appointment with their child's teacher, she added.

For local elementary schools, the following events are scheduled, Gladden noted:

• Bauer Magnet School — The school PTA will host an open house from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday, at which time City Cultural Arts winners will be announced.

During the week, parents will be invited to eat lunch with their children at the school cafeteria. On Monday, first-graders will host their parents, with second-graders doing the honors Tuesday, third-graders on Wednesday, fourth-graders on Thursday, and fifth-graders hosting their parents on Friday.

• College Heights — Open house for the school will be held from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. Children's work will be on display, and refreshments will be served in the cafeteria. In addition, the public is invited to a PTA meeting from 5:30 to 6 p.m. in the cafeteria.

From 7:30 to 9 a.m. Thursday, coffee and donuts will be served in the cafeteria, and parents will have a chance to visit with the principal and teachers.

• Kentwood — The school's PTA will hold a regular meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, with entertainment provided by the combined music and physical education classes. After the meeting, parents are encouraged to visit their children's classrooms.

Throughout the week, Kentwood will have its annual Book Fair. Books may be purchased before and after school, and during open house Tuesday evening.

• Marcy — Open house will be 7 p.m. Tuesday, following the PTA meeting at 6:30 p.m. Parents are encouraged to attend.

In addition, Marcy will host "Pastries for Parents" at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Parents are invited to have pastries with their children at the school library.

A Teachers' Baby Beautiful Contest will be featured Thursday. Students will vote on the prettiest baby picture, with the winning teacher receiving a prize.

• Moss — Open house will follow the PTA meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The school will conduct a Book Fair similar to Kentwood, and parents are to attend Moss' Spelling Bee, to be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

• Washington — PTA will host the annual open house at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Class visitation will be held until 7:45 p.m. "Sounds of Texas," which was presented by the fourth-graders at an earlier PTA meeting, will be repeated during the open house.

Parents may eat lunch with their children at the cafeteria, under the following schedule: Fifth grade, Monday; second grade, Tuesday; third grade, Wednesday; fourth grade, Thursday; and first grade, Friday.

In Coahoma, the elementary school will conduct a Book Fair throughout the week. Books may be purchased before and after school, Principal Mike Turner said.

Elementary students will host a variety show at 8 p.m. Thursday, Turner added. Coahoma will host several activities Thursday, starting with a pancake supper at 5:30 p.m. in the elementary cafeteria, High School Principal Dennis Ward said.

Other activities that night will include elementary open house from 7 to 8 p.m., junior high open house and science fair from 7 to 8 p.m., and the high school will conduct a Mini Class schedule.

Judge asked to not let Robertson drop suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Robertson was accused in court papers Friday of abusing the judicial process by trying to dismiss the $35 million libel suit he filed against an ex-congressman who questioned his war record.

Lawyers for former Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif., formally opposed Robertson's motion to dismiss the case that is set to go to trial next Tuesday, the campaign season's Super Tuesday when the former television evangelist is hoping to make a good showing in Southern states.

Robertson, though still denying McCloskey's allegations, says he felt he had to abandon his libel suit because he couldn't take part in the trial and effectively campaign at the same time.

However, McCloskey's lawyers said in court papers Friday that Robertson "initiated this action for political purposes and has conducted this litigation in bad faith, putting the defendant to substantial, unnecessary and improper expense and public denigration."

Robertson's "last-minute tactics to avoid trial are just the latest, most flagrant example of his abuse of the judicial process and his attempt to treat this forum as a court of convenience," the lawyers said in papers filed with U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green.

The judge must now make a decision on Robertson's motion to dismiss the lawsuit.

The libel suit against McCloskey was filed in 1986 following publication of McCloskey's charges that Robertson used the help of his father, the late Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., to avoid combat during the Korean War.

The former television evangelist "aggravated over the decision to seek dismissal" but concluded that the trial date — which the judge refused to postpone — presented "a Hobson's choice of either abandoning his campaign during a critical period or forgoing the opportunity for personal vindication," Robertson's lawyers said Thursday in their motion to dismiss the case.

In a reply brief, Robertson's lawyers denied McCloskey's charges and accused the former congressman of pursuing his own political agenda.

PAT ROBERTSON

"The record is abundantly clear that Mr. Robertson brought this suit for vindication of his personal reputation and honor (and that of his father)," lawyer Douglas V. Rigler said in the reply.

"Mr. McCloskey, a politician himself, has continually used his attacks on Mr. Robertson and this lawsuit as an opportunity for personal publicity," Mr. McCloskey seeks out media appearances in which to air what has become a vendetta on his part against Mr. Robertson," Rigler wrote.

McCloskey's lawyers asked the judge to order the trial to proceed to ensure "the right of Mr. McCloskey to have the same vindication of his integrity that Mr. Robertson apparently sought."

If the judge decides to dismiss the lawsuit, McCloskey's lawyers asked that she order Robertson to pay the former congressman's court costs and legal fees, which they estimated to be about $400,000.

They also asked the judge to preserve McCloskey's legal rights to initiate court action against Robertson and his attorneys involving "possible claims" of malicious prosecution.

"To allow plaintiff to initiate an action which may require the expenditure of significant legal fees by or on behalf of Mr. McCloskey in defending his First Amendment right of self-expression, on the eve of the trial to both denounce the defendant in the most outrageous fashion and then request that the court dismiss the case seems to be the very sort of manipulation of the judicial process which this court should resist," attorneys George Lehner, Roger Spaeder and Leslie Blackmon said in their brief.

Flagpole may be world's tallest

WASHINGTON, Texas (AP) — The world's tallest flagpole may one day stand in the Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park, after the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department rejected assertions the landmark might create an amusement park aura.

The flagpole, which would tower 325 feet high and support a flag 65 feet by 90 feet, is being financed by Brenham banker Edward Smith. While Smith has not revealed the cost, the project is expected to cost between $115,000 and $250,000.

Parks and Wildlife officials rejected Smith's donation when he first proposed it as part of the Sesquicentennial celebration, the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence observed in 1986.

At that time, the officials said it would be an inappropriate addition to the park, where leaders of the Texas Revolution met March 1-17, 1836, to approve Texas' declaration of independence from Mexico and draft Texas' first constitution.

However, Gov. Bill Clements interceded last year, and the department approved the flagpole installation.

The flagpole reportedly will be set in a hole about seven feet across and 35 feet deep. A five-pointed, concrete star will form its base, and light poles 12 feet high, set at each point of the star, will illuminate the flag at night.

The flagpole is designed to remain standing in 70-mph winds, gusting to 136.

Its boosters are confident the flagpole will be 25 feet, 5 inches higher than any other in recorded history. According to the "Guinness Book of World Records," the existing record belongs to a 299-foot, 7-inch pole trimmed from a Douglas fir and erected for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

April 30 promises to be a musical day to remember

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce members were treated to a rapid-fire presentation of forthcoming events in the community at the chamber's quarterly community luncheon Wednesday in the East Room of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The busiest single day of the quarter — and the most musical — will be April 30. On that date, the Big Spring symphony guild and association will sponsor a "Night of the Stars" gala and debutante ball beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets are $100 per couple for sponsors, $40 per couple to attend. Sponsors' tickets include a wine and cheese party before the ball.

The U.S. Army Band and Field Chorus will perform at the Municipal Auditorium at 7:30 p.m., sponsored by the chamber and The Big Spring Herald. Admission is free but tickets are required and may be obtained at the Herald offices, 710 Scurry St., or at the chamber office, 215 W. 3rd St.

The same day, Highland Mall will play host to the Crossroads Fiddlers Contest beginning at noon, with $1,500 in prize money to be awarded the best fiddlers. The contest is sanctioned by the Texas Old-Time Fiddlers Association, and competition will be divided into three groups by age.

April 30 also is the backup date for Christmas in April, in case the workday April 23 weather turns adverse.

Christmas in April needs volunteers. Corporations such as Texas Electric, which has signed up 40 volunteers, are being solicited for the project's workforce now, according to Bob Noyes.

Meanwhile, the Big Spring Gem and Mineral Club's annual show is scheduled for March 6-7 at the Dora Roberts Fair Building.

The Howard College/SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf combined theatre production of "The Robber Bridegroom" will begin auditions Monday at 7 p.m., according to Liz Wolter of SWCID.

Gail Earls announced that the estate planning seminar sponsored through the Howard County extension service has been postponed from its March 7-8 date; the service's scheduled adult sitter training seminar will take place as planned and the training will cost $7 per student. The service also has planned a March 15 home maintenance workshop.

On March 18 the Big Spring Kiwanis will provide a pancake supper. Tickets admit two persons for $6 and the event closes at 8 p.m., according to Gene Grissom of the Kiwanians.

Charity events this month include the Comanche Trail Muzzleloaders' benefit blackpowder and bow shooting events March 26 at the club's gun range. Entry fees are $5 per gun and $3 per bow and proceeds go to the Coahoma Girls' United Softball program, according to Muzzleloaders' president Bob Lieb.

American Business Clubs representative Dub Day also told the chamber members that the AMBUCS-sponsored Rattlesnake Roundup to benefit Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will be March 25-27. Local candidates for various offices had an opportunity to be introduced to chamber members at the luncheon. Hardy Wilkerson, running for Howard County attorney, was present; Troy Fraser, running for the state legislature, said "I'm a candidate to represent the community in Austin simply because we haven't had one for the past eight years."

His statement drew applause, as did Al Valdez's explanation of his campaign for the school board: "I'm running because they raised the salaries and it pays twice as much now."

Pete Jackson was introduced as a candidate for county commissioner, place three, and Gail Earls was introduced as a candidate for the at-large place on the city council.

Scott McLaughlin explained the new emphasis for the United Way campaign, saying the campaign would be better organized and confined entirely to the month of September.

He said training sessions will be instituted for volunteers and this year's fundraisers would keep records of their methods to be reused "so we don't have to keep reinventing the wheel every year."

Southwestern Bell's Community Relations team is sponsoring a community Easter egg hunt at the Birdwell Park April 2. Tickets are $1 and donations for prizes are being sought, according to Diana Ferguson.

Terry Hansen described a slate of University Interscholastic League events and tournaments set for Howard College through the end of the school term including boys' basketball this weekend, tennis and golf tournaments in April and a regional academic contest.

In addition, Hansen said the three junior colleges in Texas Senator John Montford's district — Howard, South Plains and Odessa — have joined to sponsor a John Montford Appreciation Day and dinner April 5.

Ron Brasel told the group SWCIDfest has been moved from its customary first weekend in May to April 15-17 this year. A bowling tournament and casino night are planned, as is an open house.

Rattler roundup stirs two to protest activity

TAYLOR (AP) — Two men protesting this town's annual rattlesnake roundup padlocked themselves Saturday to a fence in the city park where hundreds of people had gathered for the weekend event.

The men chained themselves shortly before noon to a sign that read, "Animal Torture is No Way to Run a Charity" and "Stop the Snake Roundup."

Taylor police ripped down the sign within minutes but left the men chained to the fence near the entrance to the park, said Kenneth Jirasek of the Taylor Jaycees, event sponsor.

Nel Tuttrup with Earth First, an environmental group sponsoring the protest, padlocked himself to the fence with a bicycle lock, and another man did the same.

"We didn't think any other activities would give us sufficient publicity," said Tuttrup. "Such an outrage needs to be brought to the attention of the public. This has been going on for 16 years now. That's far too long."

Jirasek said the Jaycees planned to leave Tuttrup and Andy McCauley, both of Austin, locked to the fence.

"We are going to tarp them in," he said, explaining that Jaycees would place a partition around the men. "We're going to leave them here all day."

He said he did not know how long the protesters would remain chained to the fence.

Taylor Police S.G. Bengtson said the protesters were not breaking any laws as long as they did not block the entrance to roundup activities.

Earth First and several other environmental organizations said the annual rattlesnake roundup disturbed the Central Texas ecology and harmed wildlife. The Jaycees countered the roundup harvested potentially dangerous snakes and raised money for charity.

About 10 protesters were walking on streets in front of Murphy Park. They carried placards.

About 10,000 people are expected to attend the roundup through Sunday.

Jirasek said the Jaycees raise an average of $12,000 to $15,000 at the roundup each year. It is the group's primary fund-raiser, he said.

Taylor is about 25 miles northeast of Austin.

Judge rules on East Texas housing

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge in Tyler has ruled that federally subsidized housing programs in 36 East Texas counties must take action to ensure that no more than 75 percent of the residents of housing projects are members of one race.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice this week ordered the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to open predominantly white housing to blacks and other minorities.

In making the ruling, Justice expanded on a 1985 decision in which he held that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development had improperly "created, promoted and funded racially segregated housing in East Texas."

Michael Daniel, a Dallas lawyer who represented black families in the class-action lawsuit against HUD, said the decision "provides a remedy for discrimination."

"Judge Justice made real, for the black families of East Texas, the promises the Civil Rights Act had been holding out for 20 years and which the federal government has been denying them," Daniel told the Dallas Morning News.

In an order issued Thursday, Justice said the owners of public housing authorities in the East Texas counties must make vacant rental units available to minority residents whenever a housing project's population becomes more than 75 percent white. If a project has a population that is more than 75 percent minority, vacancies must be made available to whites.

American Legion Post 506, at their February meeting, made these donations.

$200.00 — Howard Co. Boxing Club
$200.00 — Boy Scouts of America
$400.00 — VA Medical Center Surgical Ward for TV.
$400.00 — To sponsor one junior high student to American Legion Boy State this summer $200.00 — American Legion outstanding student plaques to be given Goliad Middle School and Runnels Junior High.

We of the American Legion Post 506, are very proud to be able to sponsor these younger youth in some of their programs or activities.

A friend from the past?

BILL MYERS
Funeral Director

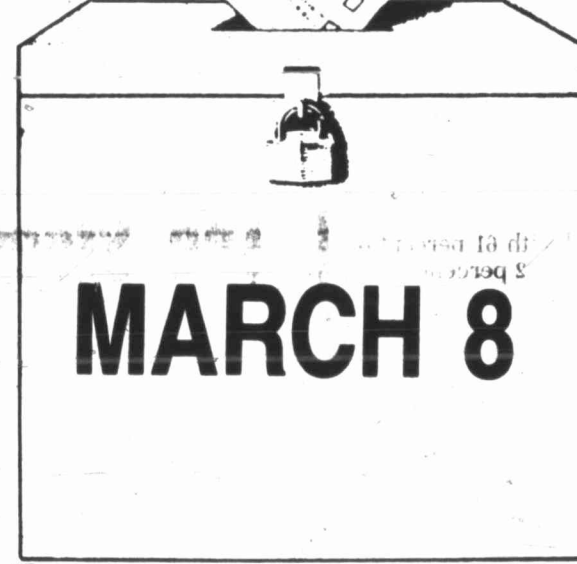

Many people wonder about that when they look at Bill Myers' picture. They associate his face with a caring attitude... with personal feelings for them... though they're not sure they've met one of the owners of Myers & Smith.

But yes, they have... and he was a friend when, as an area funeral director, Bill served many families in this community, for many years. (He's still a funeral director but now, of course, a co-owner of Myers & Smith Funeral Home and Chapel.) Bill Myers remembers these families, too... and the caring times they shared in the past.

Super Tuesday

Dukakis promises to help oil industry

LUBBOCK (AP) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis today promised to pursue economic and energy policies to help Texas "come back and come back strong," including expanded natural gas sales to Northeast states.

In a speech to 300 people in this west Texas city before flying on to Denver, Cheyenne and Seattle, Dukakis said the natural gas of the Southwest could provide "clean, efficient, non-polluting, non-acid rain energy" at a quarter of the cost of nuclear energy from the controversial unlicensed Seabrook, N.H., plant that he opposes.

Dukakis, wrapping up a two-day, 1,200-mile swing through the state with the biggest Super Tuesday prize, promised he would help

Texas' distressed oil industry "come back and come back strong."

On Thursday, Dukakis said the last few days to Super Tuesday may get "a little dicey" because of what he characterized as desperate tactics by Democratic rival Richard Gephardt. The Missouri congressman has runs ads accusing Dukakis of favoring tax increases and knowing nothing about agriculture.

Dukakis has responded in kind with ads suggesting Gephardt has voted to protect the interests of big banks and corporations from which he has collected political action committee money.

After a meeting with community organizers at a church hall in Houston Thursday night, Dukakis told reporters, "I think the next three, four days may be somewhat difficult, only because things may start getting a little dicey between now and Tuesday...I think some people are getting desperate."

Asked if he meant Gephardt, Dukakis said, "The record is clear.

MICHAEL DUKAKIS

He's running negative ads right now.

"The folks that attack are usually those that are behind," he said.

To Gephardt's charge that Dukakis has accepted campaign money from businesses that have major dealings with the state of Massachusetts, the governor replied, "I don't know what he's talking about. I have over 65,000 individual contributors to my campaign."

Dukakis, who refuses to accept money from PACs, said he has never taken contributions from state lobbyists, or more than $100 from a state employee.

"What is clear is that the PAC system is a very bad system... It's time it ended," said Dukakis, who blamed Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, a Republican presidential hopeful, and his GOP colleagues for filibustering a bill to curb PAC contributions.

"If I'm president of the United States, the first bill I will send to the Congress is the (campaign contributions) bill," he vowed.

Texas offers the biggest prize, 183 delegates, and Dukakis was headed back to San Antonio Saturday night after stops in Spokane.

He picked up endorsements Thursday from Washington Gov. Booth Gardner and Sen. Brock Adams.

Jackson outpacing Democrats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson holds a 7 percent lead over other Democratic contenders going into the Southern presidential primaries on Super Tuesday next week, according to a Los Angeles Times Poll released today.

Jackson, who finished fourth in Iowa and New Hampshire and second in Maine and Vermont, had 23 percent of the Democratic vote, according to the poll conducted in 13 Southern and border states for five days, ending Monday. All but one state, South Carolina, will hold presidential contests on Tuesday, along with eight other states.

On the Republican side, Vice President George Bush held a commanding lead of three to one over his closest competitor, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole.

Bush finished with 61 percent of the vote to Dole's 22 percent.

The poll found that roughly one-third of the Democratic voters in the South are black and that Jackson is backed by 61 percent of that vote, some 10 times greater than that offered to any other candidate.

A total of 3,538 adults were surveyed by telephone for the five-day poll. The margin of error was 3 percentage points for all likely voters, 4 points for Democrats and 5 points for Republicans.

The poll, directed by I.A. Lewis, was designed to give an overall view of how candidates are faring in the South. It does not indicate, however, candidates' positions in individual states.

Behind Jackson, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis garnered 16 percent, as did Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore. Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt followed closely with 14 percent, former Colorado Gov. Gary Hart had 8 percent and Illinois Sen. Paul Simon had 4 percent. Nineteen percent were undecided.

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson trailed Dole in the Republican race with 9 percent, and New York Rep. Jack Kemp got 3 percent. Only 5 percent were undecided.

A common thread among Southern Republicans was their continued support for Ronald Reagan. The president is handling his job well, according to 87 percent of those surveyed, and nearly two-thirds of these voters are Bush backers.

The biggest issue among voters of both parties is the budget deficit. Most Southern Republicans are against tax increases to reduce the deficit, while Democrats are split on the issue, the poll found.

This year, Crossroads Country high school girls' hoop squads turned in some exceptional performances.

Six area teams — Big Spring, Borden County, Coahoma, Klondike, and Stanton — brought reached the state playoffs.

Without further ado, then, we present the following All-Crossroads Country Girls' Basketball Team for 1987-88.

Katrina Thompson, Big Spring; Nancy Hardison, Coahoma; Tami Wise, Big Spring; Cherisse Williams, Klondike; Kristy Fryar, Stanton, starters.

First team bench: Michelle LaGrand, Big Spring; Jo Hudson, Shonna Drewrey, Coahoma; Lisha Sternadel, Elana Himes, Borden County; Becky Webb, Sands.

Thompson, earlier named most valuable player in District 2-4A, starts as a ballhandler, floor general and outside shooter, carrying a 19.8 point average for the season.

Coahoma's Nancy Hardison and Klondike's Cherise Williams, named to the all-district teams in their leagues, were also starters; Hardison earned the honors in ballhandling, Williams in defense. Hardison averaged 8.4 points per game.

Likewise, Tami Wise of Big Spring earned high marks for her defense; she averaged 18 points in the Lady Steers' final five games of the season. Proving her worth on defense, she averaged six blocked shots per game.

Stanton's Kristy Fryar was described as, simply, an all-around standout for the tough Lady Buffs.

Benches are definitely important to a basketball squad. First team reserves include Michelle LaGrand, whose rebounding filled the gap for Big Spring when sophomore Gisela Spears was injured, and Jo Hudson of Coahoma, whose workmanlike performance off the glass and under the basket aided the Bulldogette cause often. Hudson averaged 7.8 points per game.

Borden County's Sternadel is another ballhandler with poise and precision and a tough defender, who created turnovers for the Lady Coyotes. Beside her is teammate Elana Himes, a fine player whose inside scoring brought Borden County far down the road to the playoffs this year.

Sands' Becky Webb completes the starting lineup with consistency.

Stefani Shortes, Sands; Kelli Gillespie, Stanton; Deanna Herm, Sands; Stephanie Smith, Big Spring; Kody Newman, Stanton, starters.

Second team bench: Debbie Nelson, Forsan; Freda Perez, Grady; Dana Hillger, Garden City; Jennifer Monroe, Colorado City; Paige Wilson, Coahoma; Kristi Adcock, Borden County; Mindy Trotter, Klondike; Heather Schuelke, Sands; Tammy Williams, Coahoma; Melissa Myers, Klondike; Pam Gill, Big Spring.

Mustang girls' defense got a boost from Stefani Shortes all year, giving her the starting nod for the second team along with teammate Deanna Herm, whose consistency was notable in her long shooting particularly. She had four three-point goals in the Mustangs' last match against O'Donnell on the way to the playoffs.

Stanton's Kelli Gillespie earned honors for her consistent performance on defense as well. So did Big Spring's sophomore Stephanie Smith, shouldering ballhandling chores for her injured sister Peggy.

Kody Newman edged Paige Wilson by a hair for the starting spot; Wilson, who averaged 6.8 points per game, plays a fine all-around game. Coahoma's while Newman stars on defense for Stanton.

Clayton's Kaki Elmore gave both players a hard run for their spots on the team.

Borden County guard Kristi Adcock turned in steady games for the Lady Coyotes and proved a reliable, moreso than spectacular, all-around player. Klondike's Trotter and Myers earned their honors for bringing leadership and good offensive ballhandling and rebounding to the Lady Cougars' games.

Rounding out the lineup is Big Spring freshman Pam Gill, who offers a toughness and poise not often visible in one so young. She qualifies for the team as an outstanding player with good floor sense and high potential.

In a battle for Region 1-AA basketball supremacy, the Haskell Indians trounced the Coleman Bluecats 59-48 at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Saturday afternoon.

Haskell controlled the opening tipoff, but both teams starting cold as the jitters hit with the gust of a West Texas winds until Brad Bevel scored to put the opening points to give the Indians a 2-0 lead.

After a Coleman turnover, Chan Guess hit a three-pointer, and the Haskell massacre was on.

Ernest Stewart kept the Bluecats in the game with a bucket, and was fouled in the process. The charity stripe shot went astray, however, and Haskell led 5-2 with 3:43 left in the first quarter.

Guess rebounded three missed shots and a missed layup by Stewart in the opening quarter while leading the Redmen in rebounding, and Bevel scored again from the paint for Haskell.

With the closing of the first quarter, Coleman gained the lead with six unanswered points to leave the Indians in a temporary daze with a one point deficit.

At the start of the second stanza, however, Coleman turned the ball over on a three-second violation, and Mark Young and Guess hit three-pointers, changing the perspective of the game.

As both teams played the second quarter in a run-gun style, the seconds ticked off and the halftime buzzer sounded with the Haskell Indians leading 28-22.

During the third quarter, no one seemed to want to control the game early, but Haskell kept putting on the pressure, shooting three-pointers and making 100 percent from the floor to shut the door on the visiting team.

When the third quarter came to a close, Haskell's lead was up to 47-30.

With eight minutes to play, Haskell had the game under control with fine ball handling by their point guards and keeping the ball away from the Bluecats. The Indians kept the ball away so well from Coleman that the Bluecats had a hard time fouling the Indians to stop the clock.

Hawks make sweep of Vernon College

HERALD STAFF REPORT

VERNON — Designated hitter Darrin Glenn swatted two home runs — his fourth and fifth in two days — to lead the Howard College Hawks to a doubleheader sweep of the Vernon Chaparrals here Saturday afternoon.

Glenn's homer heroics were especially dramatic in the first game, as his last-inning dinger provided the margin of victory in an 8-7 Hawk decision.

Frederick was impressive from the plate, also, driving in three runs on two hits.

Hawk starter Jody Allen blanked the Chaparrals for the first two innings, but control problems — evidenced by eight walks — allowed Vernon to score their seven runs over the next three innings.

In gathering the victory, Kroeger allowed one run on three hits, walked one and struck out one.

Score by innings:

Howard College Hawks' shortstop Jay Williams fires a throw to first base during a recent game. Saturday the Hawks swept a doubleheader from Vernon College.

Gregg Kroeger pitched two-and-two-thirds innings of one-run relief to earn his fifth victory of the year against one defeat.

The big inning for the Hawks was the third, when they collected four runs. With one out, Geraldo Camara walked with the bases loaded to bring in the first run. Kenneth Frederick then singled, driving in Glenn and Joey Camarillo.

The next batter, Paul Spyhalski doubled, bringing Camara home. Frederick attempted to score from first, but was thrown out at the plate to end the threat for the inning.

In addition to Glenn, Ernesto Castro homered for the Hawks.

SECOND GAME

The Hawks erupted for six runs in the second inning, and pitcher Garth Buresh shut Vernon out on three hits, as the Hawks cruised to a 6-0 win.

Assistant Coach Greg Henry was particularly happy with Buresh's performance. In gathering his second victory against no defeats, the freshman from Sioux Falls, S.D. struck out nine Chap batters while not allowing a walk.

"The really important stat was that he didn't walk anybody," Henry said of Buresh's complete-game performance. "He had a really good day on the mound."

Five Steers make all-district

The Big Spring Steers, who finished with a 23-10 record, capped off the season by getting five players named to the 2-4A All-District Basketball Team.

The Steers had senior forward Brian Mayfield and junior guard Abner Shellman named to the first team. Senior forward Tyrone Foster made the second team, while junior forward Thane Russey and junior guard Ian Walker made the honorable mention squad.

The Most Valuable Player and Coach of the Year honors went to the Lamesa duo of Cedric Mason and coach Wayne Roberts. Mason was the state's second leading scorer in 4-A, averaging 27.3 points per game. Roberts led Lamesa to the regional finals. The Tors finished with a 26-8 record.

District runnerup Snyder placed three players on the first team. Senior forwards Trey Tippens and Terry Garza and sophomore guard Tracy Braziel made the elite group. Braziel was named Sophomore of the Year.

Mayfield, a 6-6 four-year letterman, is headed to SMU on a basketball scholarship. This season he led Big Spring averaging 25.8 points, 14 rebounds and four blocked shots per game. Mayfield shot 51 percent from the floor and 73 percent from the line, tops on the team.

The 5-11 Shellman followed Mayfield in the scoring and rebounds department, averaging 11.9 points and five rebounds per game. He also averaged four assists and four steals per game. He shot 45 percent from the field and 57 percent from the line.

The 6-0 Foster averaged four points and four rebounds per game. He shot 48 percent from the field and 64 percent from the line.

The 5-11 Walker averaged 8.3 points, three rebounds and three assists per game. He shot 38 percent from the field and 52 percent from the line.

BRIAN MAYFIELD

ABNER SHELLMAN

After a slow start, the 6-5 Russey finished as the team's third leading rebounder, with five per game. He averaged 3.1 points per game, shooting 38 percent from the field and 58 percent from the line.

OC downs Chaps to gain region title

Wranglers going to national tournament

By NATHAN POSS
Special to the Herald

MIDLAND — Larry Johnson lived up to his prime-time billing and two somewhat unlikely teammates sank four crucial free throws in the final 18 seconds as the Odessa College Wranglers captured the Region V juco men's championship Saturday night with a 78-73 win over the Midland College Chaparrals.

In a contest which was extremely well played and featured numerous lead changes, it was only fitting that it would be decided at the free throw line, as OC connected on 29 of 35 attempts while Midland manged a lukewarm 7 of 11 night.

Holding a 74-73 lead with 35 seconds remaining following

Midland's Smokey McCoverly's 3-pointer, Odessa's Riley Smith missed two free throws. But Johnson outfought two Chaparrals for the rebound to keep OC in control.

Midland quickly fouled Michael Davis, but he calmly sank both ends of his one-and-one. The Chaps' Billy Ray Smith then attempted to tie the bout with a three-pointer, which lipped out.

The everpresent Johnson grabbed the carom, however, and was fouled with three seconds remaining. If nothing but an en-core, he sank both for the final margin.

Midland led most of the first half, but Johnson scored the final eight points of the half for a 42-37 halftime lead.

Behind McCoverly and Skeeter Henry, the Chaps quickly regained the lead in the opening of the second half, and the rest of the way the two juco powers exchanged points.

But Johnson took control in the final 10 minutes, hitting five in a row despite intense pressure to ultimately put the Wranglers in position to dethrone the defending champion Midland College crew.

Johnson finished with 34 points and 13 rebounds for OC, which will play the winner of San Jacinto-Jacksonville in the first round of the NJCAA national tournament.

McCoverly played a sterling game for Midland, scoring 20 points and controlling the backcourt action.

Johnson was the Region V Tourney MVP. All-Tournament choices included OC's Smith, MC's Henry and Smith, Donnell Hayden of South Plains and Rodney Jones of NMJC.

ODESSA (78) — Larry Johnson 12-10-4-34; Riley Smith 2-8-2-12; Michael Davis 1-8-4-10; Rodney Samuel 4-0-4-9; Troy Bell 3-1-3-7; Tony Jackson 2-0-0-4; TOTALS 24-29-20-78. Total Rebounds 31 (Larry Johnson 13) Steals 5 (Samuel 3) Fouled Out None.

Steers win second track meet

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Steers won their second track meet in as many tries as they easily out-distanced the field in the Andrews Relays Saturday.

The Steers racked up 163 points, 32 more than second place Andrews. Lamesa was third with 84 points.

The Steers were led by distance runner-quartermiler Ben Gonzales. The junior won the 1600 and 3200 meters, and anchored the winning 1600 relay team. Big Spring coach Randy Britton said Gonzales wasn't pushed in either distance race, and anchored the 1600 relay team with a 50.9 leg. Also on the team were Sean Jackson, Tim Pruitt and Byron McElreath.

The Steers also got first places from Brian Mayfield (6-6) in the high jump, Jackson in the 800 (2:03.61) and the 400 relay squad of Charles, White, Dennis Hartfield, McElreath and Fred Reid (43.01).

White had two strong second place finishes in the sprints. The senior, headed to North Texas State University on a football scholarship, clocked a 10.58 in the 100 and 22.47 in the 200. He finished behind Lamesa all-state sprinter Gerry Woodberry.

Sophomore Pete Buske threw a career best 154-10 to finish second in the discus.

The Steers will be competing in the West Texas Relays in Odessa Friday and Saturday.

Steer linksters fourth, Lady Steers fifth

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Steer golfers finished fourth in the Andrews golf tournament Saturday, while the Lady Steer golfers finished eighth.

El Paso Eastwood won the boys crown, shooting a 635. Andrews was next with 637 and Abilene High shot a 642. The Steers shot a 648.

The Steers recorded a 322 on Friday, and was one stroke off the lead behind Andrews. Jeff Rhodes led the way with a 78, the third best score of the day. Rhodes also had a good round Saturday, firing a 75, ending the tournament as third medalist.

Chris Sims shot an 80 Friday, and followed it with a 83 on Saturday.

On Saturday, Eastwood, who had shot a 323 on the first day, roared back and shot a 312 on Saturday, four strokes better than Andrews.

Andrews won the girls division with a 763 total. The Lady Mustangs shot a 385 on Friday, and followed it with a 378 Saturday.

Hereford followed with a 766 and San Angelo Central was third with 775.

The Big Spring girls shot a 458 on Friday and knocked off 16 strokes Saturday.

Baseballers battle way back into championship

ABILENE — The Big Spring Steers played baseball all day Saturday, and came away with a second place finish in the Abilene Invitational Baseball Tournament.

After losing their first game to Abilene High Friday, the Steers defeated Odessa Permian 7-5 Friday night.

On Saturday the Steers played three-back-to-back games to get into the title game against Abilene Cooper.

"We just got tired," said Steers coach John Velasquez. "We played all those games 15 minutes apart. The kids showed a lot of class by never giving up. There were some times they could have just folded."

Mike Hilario was the winning pitcher in the Steers' win over Permian Friday. Aaron Allen got the save.

BIG SPRING 4, AMARILLO HIGH 3

Allen went all six inning and fired a three-hitter against AHS. The big lefty fanned 13 batters.

David Kilgore knocked in the winning run on a single in the sixth inning. Robert Rodriguez scored the winning run. Matt Burrow, who had singled, scored the tying run.

Kilgore and Burrow both got two hits in the win.

BIG SPRING 11, PLAINVIEW 3

Timmy Gutierrez went the distance in the win. The Steers were led by the bats of Allen and Felix Rodriguez. Allen socked a three-run homer in the sixth inning. Rodriguez was three-for-four at the plate. Kinman and Brent Hatfield each had two hits in the contest. Designated hitter Chris Crownover cleared the bases with a three-run scoring single.

BIG SPRING 6, ABILENE HIGH 4

The Steers got some revenge on the Eagles as Hartfield and Allen combined for the win. Hartfield, got the win and was relieved by Allen fifth. The Steers still won despite making 10 errors.

Allen got two hits in the game, including his second homer of the tourney, a solo shot. Burrow tripled, Hartfield doubled and Kinman and Jason Phillips went two-for-three at the plate.

ABILENE COOPER 12, BIG SPRING 2

Hilario took the loss for the Steers in the title game. This was Cooper's first game all day.

Big Spring scored in the fourth when Tony Lewis walked, and eventually scored on an error. Big Spring's other run in the fifth when Phillips singled, driving in Crownover, who had singled.

Crownover was two-for-two in the game. Allen, Burrow and Delix Rodriguez were named to the All-Tournament Team.

Duncanville 5 A champs

AUSTIN (AP) — Cinietra Henderson, Duncanville's 6-foot-4 center, poured in 31 points Saturday to lead the Pantherettes to a 60-46 upset of previously unbeaten North Mesquite for the Class 5A girls state basketball championship.

Duncanville avenged two earlier losses to North Mesquite this season — the Pantherettes' only two defeats of the championship year.

Despite the two previous setbacks, Duncanville Coach Sandra Meadows said she was confident of a title.

"In the back of our minds, this is how we thought it would end up. When we lost to them the second time, we figured the next time we would play them was in the state tournament. We didn't really change anything, we just did it better," she said.

Duncanville, 36-2, broke the game open in the second quarter with a 13-2 run in the final 6 minutes, 34 seconds for a 29-18 halftime lead.

Henderson, who had 29 points in Duncanville's semifinal win over Austin Lanier, controlled the inside with her strong moves and soft touch. She also pulled down 11 rebounds.

Henderson hit 15 of 19 field goal attempts. Duncanville, winners of 23 consecutive district titles, connected on 27 of 43 shots, or 62.8 percent.

Leann Moore backed Henderson's inside scoring by hitting on five of seven three-point tries and collecting 17 points.

North Mesquite, 36-1, never pulled within closer than nine points in the second half. The Stallions were led by Cynthia Horton with 14 points. They hit only 17 of 54 field goal tries for 31.5 percent.

Levelland 4A champs

AUSTIN (AP) — Carol Bailey scored 13 points to lead Levelland to a 38-35 overtime win over Calallen on Saturday in the Class 4A girls state basketball title game.

It was the Loboettes' third straight state title and second straight championship game win over Calallen.

Levelland led throughout the game until Calallen's Sherry Brown hit two free throws with 26 seconds to play to tie the game at 33.

Neither team got off a good shot before the final buzzer, sending the game into overtime.

The Loboettes took the lead again when Jerree Blakemore hit two free throws early in the overtime. Josephine Longoria added a layup with 2:10 to play to give the winners a four-point lead. Calallen's Franci Cassels hit a short shot with 2:10 to play. Bailey then hit one of two free throws with 51 seconds to go to give the Loboettes the three-point win.

Longoria sealed the win by intercepting a Calallen pass with only 17 seconds to play.

Levelland, 35-1, beat Calallen 41-30 in last year's 4A girls title game. Calallen finished the season with a 35-4 record.

Stacy Brown led Calallen with 11 points.

Nazareth easily wins crown

AUSTIN (AP) — Nazareth, led by Traci Hill's 16 points and a smothering defense, blasted LaRue La Poynor 64-28 on Saturday to win the Class A girls' state basketball title.

The championship is the ninth for the Swiftettes since 1977. Nazareth, 34-2, also breezed through this year's semifinals, crushing Moulton 70-47 on Thursday.

Nazareth used hot outside shooting from Hill to build a 24-16 halftime lead. Hill hit six first-half shots, including five outside set shots. For the game, she hit eight of 11 shots.

La Poynor, 33-2, felt the pressure of Nazareth's hustling press, turning the ball over 24 times. The Swiftettes turned the miscues into 24 points.

Darla Leavitt, Nazareth's 6-foot post player, controlled the inside, ripping down 15 rebounds, scoring 14 points and blocking at least three shots.

The losing Flyerettes were led by Kim Spencer's 12 points and nine rebounds.

Nazareth put the game away in the third quarter, outscoring La Poynor 20-4.

"We went in at halftime and talked about that we really hadn't played any true Nazareth basketball!" Swiftette Coach Sandy Heiman said of her team's first-half performance.

Overall, the Swiftettes hit 30 of 59 points for a 50.8 shooting percentage. La Poynor suffered through a 14 of 38 shooting performance from the floor and missed all six of its free throws.

Godley edges Grapeland, 60-58

AUSTIN (AP) — The Godley Wildcats, paced by Stacy McPhereson's 22 points, edged Grapeland 60-58 Saturday to win the girls' Class 2A state basketball title.

Godley withstood a late Grapeland rush, led by Trena Tillis, to take its first-ever girls basketball championship.

Tillis finished with 32 points and 14 rebounds, but missed a potential game-winning three-pointer at the buzzer.

The 6-foot post player had 30 points and 20 rebounds in Grapeland's semifinal win over Bloomington.

Godley, 37-2, led 58-53 with two minutes, 27 seconds to play and then packed in its zone defense to try to stifle Tillis under the basket.

But she spun free for a short shot that made it 58-55 and, 12 seconds later, brought the Sandiettes within two points by hitting a free throw with 2:04 remaining.

Godley's Kim Martin stretched the lead to four with two free throws with 1:21 to go. Victoria Smith then made it 60-58 by hitting an inside shot for Grapeland with 49 seconds to play.

After a missed Godley free throw, Grapeland's Nicole Stephinski missed an open 12-footer at the 10-second mark. Five seconds later, Godley's McPhereson missed a free throw.

Grapeland ran the ball up court and got it to Tillis at the top of the key, where she missed a 3-point shot at the buzzer.

Grapeland finished with a 34-5 record.

Sooners clinch Big Eight title

By The Associated Press
Second-ranked Purdue and No. 4 Oklahoma clinched their regular-season conference championships Saturday.

At West Lafayette, Ind., junior center Melvin McCants, who said he felt woozy early in the game, scored a career-high 24 points and Purdue survived cold shooting down the stretch to beat No. 10 Michigan 80-67 for its first outright Big Ten basketball championship since 1969.

And at Norman, Okla., Harvey Grant scored 20 points as Oklahoma won the Big Eight title with a 113-93 victory over Nebraska. The Sooners ended the regular season with a 27-3 overall record and a 12-2 league mark, one game ahead of Kansas State.

"I guess it was nervousness because we knew we could win the conference championship. I felt some butterflies in my stomach and I felt woozy," said McCants, who asked Coach Gene Keady to pull him in the game's early moments.

After a few minutes on the bench, McCants returned to score 13 first-half points and help Purdue take the lead for good.

"I just sat down, relaxed and was ready to go when coach sent me back in," said McCants, who was 14 of 16 from the foul line, including three free throws in the final minutes.

The Boilermakers led 65-53 with under nine minutes to play but went almost 6 1/2 minutes without scoring before McCants made two free throws with 2:36 remaining. Troy Lewis also made a pair to give Purdue a 69-63 lead.

Purdue, 26-2 and 15-1 in the conference with nine consecutive victories, trailed only once, when Michigan scored the game's first four points. Michigan is 23-6 and 12-4.

"I just think Purdue played extremely well," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said. "McCants had a career game. We knew what he could do, but he was just outstanding there. I don't think we played well, but I think it was their defense that caused our poor shooting (44 percent, compared to 54.6 for the season)."

Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said this may be the sweetest of his three Big Eight titles.

"For some reason I don't know, I thought we would win the Big Eight championship," Tubbs said. "I sensed that in early November. They did some things that probably a lot of people back in the summer didn't think they could do. And we didn't exactly catch the Big Eight Conference on a down year; that makes this special."

The Sooners, who were picked to finish third behind Missouri and Kansas, trailed Nebraska 15-10 six minutes into the game. It was 27-27 with seven minutes left in the first half when Oklahoma substitute Andre Wiley scored eight points to spark an 18-8 run that gave the Sooners a 45-35 lead.

Oklahoma broke the game open in the first five minutes of the second half with a 24-6 burst — Grant scored 11 — for a 76-50 lead. The Sooners topped the 100-point mark for the 17th time this year.

"I just think it was a matter of time before the python ate us, or swallowed us," Nebraska Coach Danny Nease said.

Oklahoma guard Mookie Blaylock had three steals and became the Big Eight single-season leader with 117.

Clemson 97, No. 13 Georgia Tech 94
At Clemson, S.C., Jerry Pryor hit a short baseline jumper with 1:10 left in the second overtime and Tim Kincaid made both ends of a 1-and-1 with four seconds left as Clemson posted its second straight victory over a Top Twenty team. The Tigers beat No. 9 Duke on Wednesday.

Clemson finished the regular season 14-13 overall, 4-10 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Georgia Tech, 21-8 and 8-6, played without center Tom Hammonds, who suffered an ankle injury against North Carolina on Wednesday.

Elden Campbell led Clemson with 26 points and Pryor had 20. Georgia Tech's Duane Ferrell had a game-high 34 points and Brian Oliver added 26.

Texas-El Paso 83, No. 15 Brigham Young 80

At Provo, Utah, UTEP's Tim Hardaway made four free throws in the final 83 seconds of the second overtime, including two with 12 seconds left, in the final Western Athletic Conference game for both teams.

BYU, 24-4 overall and 13-3 in the WAC, had won 15 straight at home but the Cougars missed five free throws in the second overtime, including the front end of a 1-and-1 opportunity by Marty Haws with UTEP ahead 81-80 and 13 seconds left. UTEP is 21-8 and 10-6. No. 18 Loyola, Calif. 110, Portland 104

At Santa Clara, Calif., Loyola Marymount matched its scoring average and extended the nation's longest winning streak to 22 games but the victory wasn't as easy as expected.

"We played in spurts — hard at times and in a daze at times," Coach Paul Westhead said.

Hank Gathers led Loyola, 25-3, with a tournament-record 33 points and 18 rebounds. Bo Kimble, who made only one of 12 shots in the first half, finished with 23 points and Corey Gaines added 20.

Lets keep our amateur athletes in the Games

By the Dallas Times Herald

Another Winter Olympics is history. And the U.S. team's lowly finish inspired the standard quadrennial complaint: Our amateurs are getting whipped by other countries' professionals, and it's time for taxpayers to subsidize the Olympic team. As usual, the carping shows how impossible it is for some people to grasp the Olympic spirit.

Before you write off the American youngsters, stop to consider: How much would winning gold medals mean if U.S. Olympians became full-time athletes virtually from birth, as is the case in most other countries? Sure, the United States would win more medals. But triumph would become routine.

The centerpiece of the Calgary Olympics was the figure-skating battle between the two Carmens — East German Katarina Witt and American Debi Thomas. It was a classic match between a government-subsidized professional and an amateur. Skating last, under intense pressure, Ms. Thomas stumbled badly.

Yet she captured the American imagination. About as many people watched her effort on television as watched the Super Bowl. Would so many have watched if not for the contrast between amateur and professional performance? Would emotions have been so high if Ms. Thomas had not been in the traditional American position of heavy underdog?

Lets not professionalize the U.S. Olympic team. The United States may not send its best athletes to the Olympics, but those who go dramatize the best of sport. They deserve congratulations — win, lose or fall. On to Seoul.

Lets not make election to Hall of Fame cheap

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

So Phil Rizzuto, Richie Ashburn and some others were not voted into the Hall of Fame by the Veterans Committee.

Good. For the first time since 1956, the panel did not elect anyone Tuesday. It should happen more often.

There are already 165 members of sports' most hallowed Hall. Many don't belong and the last thing the shrine needs is further dilution.

Sure, it's possible to make a case for many of those on the outside based on some of those inside. If Pee Wee Reese made it, so should Rizzuto; if Bobby Doerr is in, Joe Gordon should join him.

Wrong. The hall is for the greats, not merely the very good. Just because some managed to trickle in who shouldn't have, it's no reason to open the floodgates. Especially through the Veterans Committee loophole.

Nothing against the 20-member panel. It includes Ted Williams, Stan Musial and Roy Campanella and many distinguished baseball representatives — a committee certainly able of judging Hall of Fame talent.

But, why should those who did not get elected in the annual votings by the Baseball Writers' Association of America get more chances?

Leo Durocher, Ashburn and umpire Al Barlick were all fine additions to baseball. Yet the BBWAA did not see fit to elect them into the Hall and that should be the end of it.

Many members of the Veterans Committee expressed frustration that they could not muster a 75 percent majority for any of the 29 candidates. The committee, which is empowered to elect two people each year, wanted to put someone in this year and spent 4½ hours talking about it. "We couldn't get enough votes," Musial said. "It is disappointing."

There were 18 members voting Tuesday, meaning 14 were needed for election. No one got more than 12 votes.

"The rules need to be changed," said Monte Irvin, another Hall of Famer on the panel. "I just think we're wasting time to meet and not elect anyone."

Maybe the process needs to be changed — to eliminate the committee.

If a batter swings and misses three times, he's out. He doesn't get another strike, and that's how it should be with the Hall of Fame.

The BBWAA has long-established rules that give everyone a chance. Why should a group of 20 get to undo those voting procedures and agree to put someone in? The exception is with Negro Leagues players. Cool Papa Bell, Buck Leonard and others were recognized as some of the best players of their time, but racial segregation denied them a chance at the major leagues.

They did not have an opportunity to be voted in by the BBWAA and a system is needed to provide them a fair shot. Some critics claim that Negro Leagues players do not belong in the Hall alongside Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Joe DiMaggio.

Records from the Negro Leagues are often incomplete and their merits are sometimes a matter of word-of-mouth, passed on by those who saw them play. Trying to decide which of those players should be in the Hall may be an incomplete science, but they deserve some sort of opportunity.

Last year, the Veterans Committee elected only one person, Ray Dandridge of the Negro Leagues. This year, no one made it. It's a pattern that should continue.

This season is big test for Celtics

By ROBERT FALKOFF Houston Post

Are the Boston Celtics destined to be remembered as the Team of the Decade? Certainly, there are some impressive credentials already in place for Larry Bird and his celebrated teammates. The guys in green won the world championship in 1981, 1984 and 1986. They've captured five Eastern Conference titles during the 1980s and haven't watched The Finals on television since 1963.

But there's one little problem for these beasts of the East as they roll merrily along with one banner season after another. There just happens to be a team called the Los Angeles Lakers which is more than matching Boston's giant steps in the 1980s. The Lakers have won four championships in this decade and made six trips to The Finals.

Team of the decade? Right now, the Lakers have the inside track on reserving that prominent place in the history books. Just think of it as a nine-round event, since Philadelphia spoiled things by winning in 1963 and temporarily breaking up the Laker-Celtic reign. Magic Johnson leads Bird 4-3, but there's still two rounds left.

Don't put it past Bird & Co. to surprise skeptics such as CBS-TV analyst Billy Cunningham and win a fourth title in 1988, thus setting up a 1989 winner-take-all showdown in this intriguing battle for decade supremacy.

Remember what they say about Celtic Pride. It's a many-splendored thing.

"If this team stays healthy, we can beat anybody," Celtics forward Kevin McHale said. "That's the big key for us. Last year, we just had too many injuries to win it all. Under the circumstances, we actually accomplished a great deal to get as far as we did.

"Hopefully, we'll go down the stretch this year with more able bodies. I've always said that if you put a healthy Celtics team in a big game, I wouldn't bet against them."

Coming off last year's championship series loss to the Lakers, the Celtics got off to an uncharacteristically slow start this year.

They even allowed the finesse-oriented Denver Nuggets to prance into Boston and steal a game on the parquet floor for the first time in the Bird era.

"We definitely lost some games early that we never should have let get away," McHale said. "Larry was hurt for a while and I was just coming back from foot surgery."

On Dec. 11, however, the Celtics rejuvenated themselves by gazing at the purple-and-gold uniforms of their chief rivals, the Lakers.

Although they lost on Johnson's desperation one-hander at the buzzer, the Celtics point to that Laker game as one which helped them find their way back onto Prosperity Road.

"We needed that game to get over the hump," Bird said. "We had been down in the doldrums, but we got pretty excited when the Lakers came to town. Our intensity level shot up and we started to win consistently after that."

Later on the Lakers best the Celtics at the Forum.

For the first time in K.C. Jones' five-year tenure, the Celtics didn't build a good enough record to put Jones in the All-Star game as the East coach. Atlanta's Mike Fratello was one-half game better on the cutoff date, but the 32-13 Celtics have since made emphatic statements with a couple of wins over the Hawks.

"For the last couple of years, people have said we're too old," guard Danny Ainge said. "But we keep making it to the championship. I like our chances this year, even though we've got strong competition in our conference from teams like Atlanta and Detroit."

Few people would dispute that the Celtics' starting five is the best in basketball. All the superlatives have been used in describing Bird, and McHale is regarded by many as the premier power forward in the league. Veterans Robert Parish and Dennis Johnson show no signs of bowing to Father Time and Ainge has blossomed into an All-Star, showcasing a deadly three-point shot.

"Because Danny has the confidence to hit those three-pointers, it's spreading out the defense for our big men," McHale said.

Boston's big question mark is, once again, the bench. The Celtics were about as deep as a children's wading pool last year and it remains to be seen whether the revamped bench unit will be productive during the long haul.

Boston is hopeful of getting quality minutes from reserve center Artis Gilmore and ex-Rocket point guard Dirk Minniefield. But without mystery man Bill Walton, the Celtics' bench pales in comparison to the Lakers' Michael Cooper and Mychal Thompson.

Laker Coach Pat Riley mentioned during All-Star weekend that he's currently working to sell his team on the idea of "being unique." Riley wants the Lakers of the '80s to carve a special place in sports history before Kareem Abdul-Jabbar bows out after next season.

The Celtics of the '80s have that same opportunity. Parish and Dennis Johnson probably will be gone in a couple of years and Bird has said he's "99 percent sure" he'll quit when his current contract expires after the 1989-90 season.

So the lines have been drawn for the two superpowers.

Will the real Team of the '80s please stand up?

Second year forward may be key for Mavs

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

Roy Tarpley may be the Dallas Mavericks' new answer to their old El Fouldo tendencies in the NBA playoffs.

In these parts, "El Fouldo" is Tex-Mex for the Mavs taking deep-six playoff dives like losing to Seattle in the first round last year despite an impressive march to the Midwest Division title. Dallas has never been in the NBA finals.

Tarpley, in his second year out of Michigan, has been such a hit at forward and center for the Mavericks that he could very well earn the NBA's coveted Sixth Man award this year.

He's just won an NBA Player of the Week Award, not bad for a bench jockey.

Under new Coach John MacLeod, the 7-foot Tarpley has been given ample opportunity to display his talents, which include an uncanny timing for offensive rebounds.

"Roy has become such a force that we think he has a bad night if he doesn't get 15 rebounds," guard Rolando Blackman said.

Tarpley comes into the game usually for strong forward Sam Perkins, but he also spells center James Donaldson, who is bedeviled by hamstring problems.

The moment Tarpley straps on of eye scratches — the Reunion Arena crowd comes alive, giving him a big cheer even before he reaches the scorer's table.

"I come into every game pumped up because of the fans," Tarpley says. "I'm fired up from the start."

Tarpley says he doesn't mind the sixth man role, for now.

"Sure, I'd like to start some day, but I help the team more by coming off the bench," he said. "It gives me time to study the man I'm going to go against. I just enjoy playing. I don't analyze myself."

"But it really would be something if I play the way I've been playing my whole career, wouldn't it?"

In playing 26 minutes per game, Tarpley has averaged 11 rebounds and 12 points per game. Extended to a 48 minute game, Tarpley would be averaging 19 points per game, tops in the NBA.

A recent Chicago Sun Times survey of broadcasters and writers named Tarpley as the top sixth man in the NBA.

"We're using Roy much like Boston used Kevin McHale early in his career," said Mavericks Vice President and Personnel Director Rick Sund. "He can play forward and center just like Kevin did. Roy is playing more intelligently every game."

"We might come back about not making a trade for a center, but look at some of the games Roy has had recently and you can see why we weren't desperate."

Tarpley had 28 points and 23 rebounds in a recent game against Phoenix. Playing center against the Houston Rockets, he had 10 more rebounds than Akeem Olatunwo.

"This is the first year Roy has really been given a chance to show what he could do," Sund said. "He had to go through the rookie learning experience last year."

Tarpley also threw a scare into the Mavericks when he disclosed a chemical dependency problem last summer. He is under close supervision.

A first-round draft pick in 1986, Tarpley was almost the property of the Los Angeles Lakers. A trade was kicked around that would have sent Mark Aguirre and Dallas' 1986 first-round pick to the Lakers for James Worthy, but it never happened.

This was at a time when Aguirre was having personality problems with then Coach Dick Motta, who quit last season. The Lakers were said to be interested in Tarpley's potential.

Tarpley demonstrated against the Philadelphia 76ers recently how awesome he can be when he plays power forward while 7-2 Donaldson is at center.

Tarpley had 19 rebounds and 15 points in 34 minutes against the 76ers.

"Roy and I controlled the boards, and Charles Barkley wasn't his usual rip-roaring self," Donaldson said.

Philadelphia guard Gerald Henderson said Dallas is a changed team with Tarpley.

"They have to have somebody take charge down the stretch, and Tarpley could be that guy because he can really control the glass," Henderson said. "I see Dallas as the top team in the division now."

Owner Donald Carter recently gave the Mavs a tongue-lashing for blowing too many leads, accusing them of being "too nice and without a killer instinct."

That's when Tarpley started getting more minutes.

"Too nice" is suddenly a description that doesn't fit them any more, thanks to Tarpley.

Dallas blew out Denver 123-96 on Monday night to move out to a comfortable lead in the Midwest Division. Tarpley had 20 rebounds.

Tarpley has been the catalyst, giving the Mavs hopes of joining the NBA elite of the Los Angeles Lakers and Boston.

"I had no idea I was capable of playing like this when I got into the NBA," Tarpley said. "But I might as well keep doing it."

Hoopsters render thanks

Dear Sands Fans: We, the 1987-88 Mustang basketball team, would like to thank all our fans for the loyal support they gave us this season.

Your support was a positive factor in our success this year.

Even though all the fans were great, there are some special backers we would like to thank personally. Conchita Rodriguez and Zaida Bilbao made many signs for the hallways and games. Trece Sides and Adrian Zarate were our statisticians. Kynn Maxwell filmed Stefani Shortes, Shelley Peacock, Heather Schuelke, Kama Blas-ingame, and Priscilla Franco, supported us as cheerleaders. Benji Rodriguez and Grant Gooch were the managers.

In addition, the administration, school board, faculty, and staff of Sands CISD gave us valuable moral support, encouragement, and advice.

Bob Noyes attends to his paperwork at Bob's Custom Woodwork with the support of his part-Siamese, Chevi Kit. The desk-top is the cat's favorite place to sleep.

Mabee, a tortoise shell-colored cat, stands among the supplies in the stockroom at Hester's Supply, watching the customers in the store. According to the owner, there are a lot of places for a cat to hide in an office supply store.

Quiet: Cat at work

The working cat has been on the job for nearly 10,000 years. Many centuries before the Christian era, the Egyptian, Cretan and Phoenician merchants founded trading posts on the shores of the Mediterranean Sea and undoubtedly took along their friendly and faithful mousers to protect their goods.

Cats were sacred in ancient Egypt and their presence was believed to ward off evil. The ancients chiseled the cat's lucky likeness on the walls of tombs, and even gave one of their gods a cat's head.

It's probable that felines migrated to the New World with the earliest settlers, keeping the mice under control in the holds of the ships.

At the turn of the century, every country store could boast of having a cat to keep the mice out of the cracker barrel.

The good news is, the working cat is still very much a part of the scene. Their jobs with Big Spring businesses is part mouser, part customer service and part employee relations — a far wider display of skills than their forefelines knew.

Jumping Jack Flash does guard duty at Country Flowers & Gifts at night, sitting in the window, "checking out traffic," says Minerva Lewis.

The frisky black male cat just appeared on the scene about three months ago. "We tried to give him away at first, but now we couldn't make it without him," says Minerva.

When the staff is busy making floral arrangements, Jack will often slip by, steal a flower and run off with it. "And I'm afraid he has destroyed at least one full arrangement," Minerva laments.

His favorite place to sit is on his owner's desk by the telephone and adding machine — where the action is. And he likes to chew on cinnamon rolls at break time.

Jack gets a special toy every so often — artificial birds made from real feathers. "We have to give him a new one when he pulls all the feathers out," said Lea Lewis.

"It's so comforting to see him when we get to work every morning," the staff agrees.

Customers sometimes stop in especially to see Hoon," says Phyllis Graumann at Graumann Oilfield Pump & Engine Repair.

Hoon was a starving kitten eight years ago when she arrived at the Graumann's business, too weak to eat or meow. Now the long-haired yellow and white cat presides over the reception area most of the time. When a visitor arrives, Hoon gets up and walks to the door, greeting them with a constant chatter.

"If you sit down, Hoon gets into your lap immediately. Although we brush her long hair every day, we do offer the use of our shop air hose to get rid of any hair left on dark suits," says Phyllis with a laugh.

Phyllis remembers one time when Hoon had kittens in the ceiling near a trap door; personnel moved the youngsters to a safer place — two or three times, in fact — but Hoon kept taking them back to the ceiling, climbing the ladder and carrying the kittens one by one. "I don't see how she did it," said Phyllis.

"Hoon had three litters of beautiful kittens — some Calicos — and we were always successful in finding homes for them. People still call to ask about kittens, but we've had Hoon spayed."

When not greeting customers, Hoon sits on Phyllis' desk or hides in the file cabinet drawers.

George, a husky yellow-orange tabby, has been on the payroll at Western Hills Animal Clinic for about four years.

"He's the neatest cat," says Betty Thompson. "He doesn't ever get upset when people bring in their pets."

Anxious owners, howling cats, barking dogs — nothing bothers him, according to Betty, no matter what's going on in the clinic.

George remains cool, sitting or napping in the in-basket at the reception desk. If you walk by without petting him, expect to feel a paw reach out and remind you.

George was a stray, brought in for rabies observation.

"He was so sweet and loving, we decided to keep him," Betty says. "We've had several clinic cats before, but George is the best."

He's a good mouser too, an important job because of the abundance of pet food on hand.

"The customers love George. Sometimes, owners of dogs that are antagonistic to cats will call ahead and warn me they're coming, so they can be certain George is safely out of the way."

Bob Noyes didn't know a thing about cats when he spotted a tiny kitten along Wasson Road, stopping his truck to retrieve the cat.

The kitten was so young he couldn't eat, so Jan Noyes prepared a formula of oatmeal and cream of wheat and fed it with a doll bottle.

Chevi Kit — "a kitten picked up by a Chevy," explains Bob — is part Siamese, grey and white with tan ears.

The Noyes family are "dog people," says Jan; they never had a cat before. But Bob, Jan and the whole crew at Bob's Custom Woodwork quickly took to him. Bob built him a custom-designed scratching

In memory of Mr. Peevers

Mr. Peevers no longer hassles the mice in the area of Benton and Second streets.

The yellow-striped cat was run over by a car the day after New Year's, according to Wesley Deats, owner of the John Davis Feed Store.

"I didn't know I liked cats," Wesley said. "I was a dog person."

But when the homeless, half-starved kitten adopted the feed store as his new home about 14 months ago, Wesley took a liking to him. Or as he puts it, "He got inside my gizzard."

"I'd always come down on Sunday just to see him. All my customers liked him and asked about him."

Mr. Peevers is buried outside the door where he used to sit and watch the traffic go by.

"I have a photo of him," says Wesley. "I had it framed and put it up so the customers could see it and remember him."

I haven't gotten over losing him yet. He was mycat."

Deats says he'll definitely get another cat for his feed store, "but not just yet."

Editor's Note: A few days after this interview, a friend of Wesley's came by the store and sympathetically offered him a kitten from a recent litter. Wesley picked out a little yellow-striped kitten, much like Mr. Peevers.

"His name is T. C.," Wesley said. "That could stand for Tom Cat. Or Tycoon — because I guess he'll be running the business."

Roberson-Denney

Melissa Lee Roberson and Alan Wilson Denney, both of Midland, were united in marriage Feb. 25, 1988 in a 7 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church, Crane, with Rev. Jim Hester, pastor of Crane Christian Church, officiating.

Parents of the bride are David and Jody Roberson, Crane, formerly of Big Spring.

Bridegroom's parents are Jim and Wanda Denney, Midland.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Roberson, 4304 Conally, and Mrs. Howard L. Dodd, 2114 Warren.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with two brass, 14-branch candelabra.

Vocalist was Susan Geary, who sang Twelfth of Never and The Lord's Prayer. She was accompanied by Mrs. Lady Faye Galloway.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white, floor-length, satin gown, with a self-made train, high neck and puffed sleeves. Her waist-length veil featured a ring covered with satin, accented with string and tiny pearls on the veil.

She carried a bouquet of white poms and ribbon with teal blue ribbon bows and streamers. Maid of honor was Pandy Grigg, Robert Lee.

Best man was Mark Browning, Midland.

Ushers were Gary Hamilton and Keith Carnes, both of Crane.

Candlelighter and registrar was Barbara Roberson, sister of the bride.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN DENNEY Exchanged vows Feb. 25

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table featured a two-tiered, white wedding cake, topped with bride and bridegroom figurines. The bridegroom's table featured a chocolate cake, champagne, and bride and bridegroom glasses.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Crane High School and is a filing clerk at R&H Well Service.

The bridegroom is a 1983 graduate of Midland High School and is a computer operator at PGI in Midland.

The Charles Seals

25 years ago

Charles and Nona Seals, Coahoma, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at a surprise party at their home.

The couple's daughter and son-in-law, Belinda and Bryan Beck, hosted the event.

Seals was born June 15, 1943 in Stanford. Mrs. Seals, the former Nona Gilbert, was born April 13, 1947 in San Angelo.

The couple met on a blind date in San Angelo and were married March 2, 1963 in a church in San Angelo.

They have four children, Richard, James and Dewayne Seals, all of Coahoma, and Belinda Beck, Dow Drive.

The Seals have two grandchildren.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES SEALS Celebrate 25th anniversary their marriage. Seals is an electrician at the physical plant at Howard College.

Mrs. Seals is a cook in Coahoma.

Seals is a volunteer fireman and a member of Coahoma City Council.

When asked to comment on their marriage, Belinda said, "They have had a long and prosperous marriage and still hold the same love now as they did when they were young adults."

Mrs. Seals enjoys handcrafts, sewing, gardening, reading and shopping.

The couple especially enjoy Saturdays because they can visit with their grandchildren, Christopher and Ashli.

Money and mutual funds

When deciding which money-market fund to entrust with your cash, a clue to a fund's ability to deliver healthy yields can be found in the prospectus and report to shareholders under the "expenses" heading.

There's a strong tie between how little a money-market fund spends on office costs and management fees and how well it pays, according to Changing Times magazine. Of the taxable money funds most widely purchased by individual investors, those with annual expenses below the median 75 cents per $100 earned (or 0.75 percent) averaged a 6.19 percent return for the 12 months ending November 30. Those at or above the expense norm averaged 5.9 percent.

Only one in 13 funds with $1 or more per $100 netted 6 percent or better for the investor.

At one extreme is IDS Strategy Money Market Portfolio. It paid a scant 4.93 percent for the 12 months because expenses took $1.89 of every $100.

His favorite place to sleep is on Bob's desk. "He's usually out like a light in the in-basket," quips Bob. Or he sits in the window of the office, overseeing the shop activity.
"He's a good mouser," says Jan, "and he greets people when they come in — he especially likes men. The crew looks forward to seeing him when they open up in the mornings."

Chevi Kit goes in and out every time the door is open in the daytime. Recently, however, when he was sick, Jan wouldn't let him out. "He was mad. If he could talk, we'd have had to wash his mouth out," Jan says.

Magnum — as in Magnum, P.I. — is a sassy black cat that has the run of the big buildings at Southwest Tool Company.

Magnum has a definite mind of his own, says Sherry Knight.

"If I don't feed him on time, he comes in here and lets me know ..." When a customer stops to pet him, Magnum decides when it's enough. "If he want more, he'll reach out and slap your hand or leg."

His favorite place to sleep is on a shelf just below the counter where Sherry makes service tickets. "He hides on the shelf and then reaches out and swats me."

Magnum was a stray that picked Southwest Tool for his home about a year ago.

Janet Hull first saw Mabee in the storeroom at Hester's Supply as she was closing up one night. "I thought it was a rat."

But it was a grey and tan kitten, which the staff saw from time to time: When they didn't, they'd tell each other, "Maybe it'll show up tomorrow." That was how Mabee got her name.

Her favorite place is a chair on the sales floor — or on Janet's desk under a lamp where it's warm.

"We haven't seen any mice since Mabee came," says Janet.

Mabee had one litter of kittens. "We made her a bed in the storeroom but she moved them out front to the Cross Pen case. When they started to walk, we just fenced off a play area in one corner of the store. The customers love to come in and see them."

There are lots of things to hide in at an office supply store. And Mabee likes to sit in the front windows and watch the antics of the downtown area pigeons.

"We never had a pet in the shop before, and we wondered how the customers would like a cat. We don't need to worry. Our customers were very comfortable."

These lucky shop cats — all former strays — now enjoy security, shelter and affection from their adoptive owners. But the store owners all agree that it is they who have benefitted the most.

Members discuss the perfect pie

"The Perfect Pie," was the topic when the Elbow Extension Homemakers Club met March 3 at the home of Mrs. Addie Hill, 612 Bucknell, with 17 members and four guest present.

Roll call was answered by experiences of going to a pie social. Members discussed the possibi-ty of forming a walking club.

After the business meeting, pies were baked and served. Members exchanged tips on baking the perfect pie.

The next meeting will be March 17 at 2 p.m. at the home of Gloria Kappes.

Wide range of programs found at Angelo State

Angelo State University is a coeducational institution of higher education authorized to offer a wide range of programs leading to the baccalaureate and master's degrees.

Angelo State University currently offers approximately 40 undergraduate programs within its undergraduate colleges leading to five baccalaureate degrees and offers approximately 20 graduate programs in the Graduate School leading to seven graduate degrees. The University also offers the associate of science in nursing degree.

Although teacher training has been a significant aspect of the University's mission since it first began as a senior college in 1965, the University also offers strong baccalaureate programs in literature and letters, psychology, social sciences, biology, chemistry, geology, physics, mathematics, animal science, fine and applied arts, journalism, medical technology, nursing, modern languages, physical education, numerous business areas and computer science.

The University serves a public service role primarily through a wide range of non-credit courses, workshops and seminars offered by its Division of Adult and Continuing Education. Although the University stresses individual faculty research using state and private funds to support worthy projects, the University's primary research role is carried out by the Management, Instruction and Research (MIR) Center, which is funded as a special item by the Texas Legislature. The MIR Center research scientists conduct applied research primarily in domestic livestock reproduction and range management.

Although Angelo State University is a regional university which serves a large, sparsely populated area of West Texas, the university also serves a very diverse student body of approximately 5,800 students from a broad geographical area. The composition of the student body includes students from over 200 counties representing every region of Texas as well as students from numerous other states and foreign countries.

Angelo State University is committed to offering its students a quality education and maintaining high academic standards in all of the programs that are offered. Admission requirements to the University have been steadily academic standards for admission into its teacher education program of any public institution.

One of the University's major goals is to provide a stimulating education climate which will offer students maximum opportunities for academic achievement and personal growth. Supported by one of the largest privately endowed academic scholarship programs in the nation, ASU has a distinguished student body which ranks first among regional universities and third among all state universities in Texas in the high percentile ranking of entering freshmen in their high school graduating classes. In addition, the university believes its students are best served by offering sound academic programs based upon quality instruction.

ASU is committed to providing a wide range of high quality academic programs and strives to develop in its students those qualities which will enable them to enrich their personal lives, improve their abilities to serve and contribute to society and become leaders in their professions and in their communities.

Howard College increases enrollment for spring '88

Howard College enrollment reached an all time high in the Spring 1988 semester with a total of 1,724 students.

Howard College, located in Big Spring, features many campus improvements, including the installation of a new heating/cooling system. The new system replaces the original system that was put in place in the early 1950s when the campus was built.

The San Angelo campus of Howard College has doubled its enrollment in the past year. In order to accommodate the increased enrollment, the San Angelo campus is adding another 2,300 square feet to its existing space at 2416 Vandeventer. The expansion will be completed by August 1.

In the fall of 1987, Howard College and the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf began requiring uniform placement tests for students enrolling in math and English just ahead of the state law passed mandating the tests to start in 1989.

Students scoring below a certain level on the tests are required to take developmental courses which will build their skills up to collegiate level. Howard College continues to offer a variety of occupational/technical and academic transfer programs to the community.

Hardin-Simmons hosts high school weekend

When prospective students arrive on the Hardin-Simmons University campus for High School Weekend, March 11-13, they will hear about the quality academic program, financial aid and scholarships and meet faculty members and administrators on a personal basis.

Barry Tyler, vice president of enrollment services and registrar, said that there are openings for any prospective student to still attend High School Weekend. For more information, call 915-677-7281.

Hardin-Simmons has received reaffirmation of accreditation for another 10 years by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Dr. Ronald A. Smith, executive vice president and provost, said the specific accreditation is to award associate, bachelor's and master's degrees. "We are obviously delighted that full accreditation of the university has been reaffirmed by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools without qualification," said Smith.

Smith praised the "high quality" of the faculty, staff and administration of HSU for making the reaffirmation possible.

Tyler said that a total of 1,771 students enrolled for the spring semester this year. This compares to 1,670 students who were enrolled at the same time last year.

Tarleton State provides variety of studies

Tarleton State University is located at Stephenville, Texas, just 65 miles southwest of Fort Worth. The easily accessible and spacious main campus of 165 acres lies in west Stephenville.

More than 5,200 students are enrolled in various programs offered by the School of Agriculture and Business; School of Arts and Sciences; School of Education and Fine Arts and School of Graduate Studies. The size of Tarleton State University is ideal in that the school is large enough to have a wide offering of majors and yet is still small enough to provide for individual attention to students.

Tarleton State University has an 89 year-long tradition of quality education. The University was founded in 1899 as John Tarleton College through a bequest of a pioneer of Erath County named John Tarleton. The university is one of the oldest institutions of higher education in Texas.

The main campus at Stephenville is enhanced with open space, malls, landscaping, huge trees and a mixture of both old and new buildings. Tarleton has just completed a massive building program. This building program consists of a new dormitory, renovation of existing dormitories, a new administration building and expansion of the Dick Smith Library. A new business building and a new hydrology and engineering building have been completed. A baseball field has been added for the new Texan baseball team.

Expansion, growth and development are all words that describe Tarleton in the 1980's.

TSTI offers training at two sites

Texas State Technical Institute is now accepting applicants for the spring quarter.

According to school officials, all programs offered at both the Abilene Extension and the main campus at Sweetwater will be starting new students, with the exception of vocational nursing. The nursing program will accept new students only at the start of the fall quarter, but all persons interested in joining can apply now. Individual interviews may be arranged.

Programs offered at the Abilene location include automated office skills, information processing, electronics, emergency medical technician, production drafting, production machine shop and telecommunications.

Those programs offered in Sweetwater include air conditioning and refrigeration, autobody repair, automation/robotics technology, automotive mechanics, automated office technology, computer maintenance technology, computer science technology, diesel mechanics, electronics servicing technology, emergency medical technician, fashion merchandising technology, information processing technology and telecommunications technology.

Non-credit classes on the Sweetwater campus include basic welding, horseshoeing, small engine repair, beginning LOTUS, advanced LOTUS, home appliance repair, cake decorating, stained glass art, cabinet making, kiddie computing I and II, introduction to computers, basic auto body repair and brick laying.

Two special free classes to be scheduled are fiction writing and ham radio operations.

In addition, the school will be conducting a number of night classes which can be taken either as credit or non-credit classes. These courses include personal computer operations, payroll accounting, computerized accounting, shorthand I, accounting I, income tax accounting, keyboard (typing) I and information processing I.

Limited housing is available in Sweetwater, and financial aid is available for all who qualify. Limited day care slots are open at both Abilene and Sweetwater for dependants of qualifying students.

All facilities at TSTI are handicapped accessible, and non-traditional roles are stressed. Anyone needing further information should either visit or call Abilene at 915-672-7091 or 1-800-592-TSTI in Sweetwater. Site visits are encouraged. TSTI is an Equal Educational Employment Opportunity Institution.

Equal Educational/Employment Opportunity

CJC promotes education

Cisco Junior College is an excellent choice for beginning one's college and career education.

Since 1940, CJC has offered quality academic and vocational programs in a small college setting at a very low cost. The smaller classes provided can make the transition from high school to college easier. Interested, well-qualified faculty are available for individual help. A majority of CJC's students are enrolled in academic courses in preparation for transfer to a senior college.

In addition to the basic curriculum, students may take courses in their major field of study. A number of vocational-technical programs are offered to prepare students for immediate employment in a skilled vocation. CJC students have opportunities to fully participate in many areas of campus life through the athletic program, student government, special interest clubs, band, choir, Wrangler Belle dance-drill team and other student programs.

Tidbits

By LEA WHITEHEAD
Staff Writer

Joe and Virginia Whitten were guests recently on Dr. Jimmy Allen's program "Life Today," a Ft. Worth TV talk show on the Acts Network that's beamed by satellite to more than two million people around the world.

The interview, in which Joe and Virginia talked about "His Children Prison Ministries," can be seen in this area Wednesday night in Midland and Lubbock.

By the way, Joe has been invited to sing with The Centurymen in their return engagement to China, which will be filmed as an ABC Special. The Centurymen, under auspices of the Radio and TV Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, first went to China in a cultural exchange four years ago. The singers in the group are picked by audition from throughout the U.S.; only three from Texas were chosen this time.

Tidbits

Sherrie Bordsoske joined her sisters Lela Porter, San Francisco, and Lovelle Stuart, Sylvester, in Sweetwater to celebrate the birthday of their mother, Clara Brown.

The four had a small reunion on Friday. Then on Sunday there were 27 for dinner, as relatives from Abilene and Roby arrived to help Clara celebrate.

Just back from San Francisco where they attended the National Automobile Dealers Convention are Sonny and Shirley Shroyer, Bill and Lori Mae Pollard, and Bob and Joann Brock.

The Shroyers got an extra treat. They visited their daughter, Lt. JG Deborah Shroyer, stationed at Alameda, Calif. She is a navigator aboard a destroyer tender, now deployed at sea for six months.

Pat Porter was back in town to catch his breath this week after a round of satellite dealer shows in Catskill and Buffalo, N.Y., and Altoona, Pa.

"February is not the height of the tourist season in that area," he informs us. Furthermore, it's difficult for Pat to find familiar food. "Their idea of Mexican food is Nacho Flavored Doritos with cream cheese. When a waitress told me they did not serve biscuits and gravy, I said 'I guess fried okra is out of the question then'."

Pat claims he knows why the dish is called Southern Fried Chicken. "They don't know how to fry it in the north."

Pat will be on the road again in a few weeks, doing dealer shows in Las Vegas later this month, then on to Regina and Toronto, Canada, in April.

How's the Mexican food in Canada, Pat? Former resident Scott Fitzgerald was in town recently visiting old friends. He's a reporter now for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

'Tis the season for politicking. Bob "Tumbleweed Smith" Lewis is campaigning for Rotary Club District Governor.

He was nominated by the local club, and now expects to travel throughout this district shaking Rotarians' hands and asking for the vote.

Liz Taylor drove to Galveston Wednesday to attend the annual convention of Texas Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus.

She went by way of DeLeon and picked up her mother, Alma Taylor, to keep her company on the trip. Liz reports that it "rained on us all the way."

Big Spring was well represented at the recent annual meeting of Texas Junior College Teachers Association in Dallas.

Among local teachers and spouses on hand were Bill Doll, Harlan and Doris Huijbregtse, David and Susan King, Wesley and Mary Deats, Jerry and Dr. Mary Dudley, Barbara Holdampf, Dean and Anita Booth and Shawn Shreves.

Also Larry and Wanda Reese, Barbara Brumley, Dr. Mel Griffin, Dr. Bob Riley, Linda Patterson, Ken Houston, Adolph Labbe, Dr. Cheri Sparks, Joe and Anna Rhodes, Becky Smiley, Terry Hansen, Dan and Betty Clere, Lila Adkins and Gayla Williams.

"We were prepared!" That's how Marilyn Payer describes her reaction and that of her fellow Girl Scout executives in a recent emergency situation.

Marilyn was in Abilene at the West Texas Girl Scout Council office, chatting with Linda Walker and Pam Caudill, when a motorcyclist was hit by a car right in front of the office door.

"We had our first aid kit and blanket handy, rushed to the scene, assessed the victim's injuries — which, fortunately, were not serious — and remained with him until the paramedics arrived."

Marilyn was just practicing what she teaches older girl scouts here.

Incidentally, Pam, a former local resident and graduate of Big Spring High School, is now director of Camp Boothe Oaks in Abilene.

Care becoming a crisis Newcomers

By NAOMI HUNT
County extension agent

Care for the elderly is rapidly becoming a national crisis. The 65 and over age group is growing rapidly (between 1900 and 1980 this group tripled) but a subgroup that is affected by the most illness — those 75 and over, has grown by nearly 40 percent in the last 10 years.

By 2030 the over 65 segment is expected to be one fourth of the total population. Advances in medical technology have made it possible for victims of heart attacks, strokes, and broken bones to survive and live for many years in a sometimes impaired condition. But it is the chronic illnesses that often produce the greatest hardship on older adults. And, nearly 40 percent of those 65 and over suffer from some chronic physical or mental disability.

The funding structure for medical care has emphasized institutional solutions. Partly because the goal of "covered" care has been to deal with an acute situation and to get the patient back on her feet and going again, preventive and maintenance services have not been available through formal support programs such as medicare or Medicaid.

It has been estimated that 25 percent of the elderly residents of total institutions do not need to be there. Thus it is often the informal support system — family, friends or privately hired sitters — that is relied on by the impaired older adult to assist in activities of daily living ranging from personal care to grocery shopping to chauffeuring.

There is clear evidence that Focus on family

families providing assistance to their elder members, and individuals who provide assistance on a paid basis (adult sitters/companions) have an increased need for information on the practical aspects of caregiving, in areas of both physical and mental health.

A Home Maintenance Workshop will be conducted March 15 at 7 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Fair Building. An Adult Sitter Clinic is scheduled for March 21-24, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Westside Community Center. These events are planned and conducted by the Extension Home Economics Committee to meet the educational needs of county residents. For more information or to register for either of these programs contact the County Extension Office at 267-8469.

The Crossroads of West Texas

Sexually precocious girl needs counseling now

DEAR ABBY: Recently I boarded a night flight from Paris to New York. I was in the window seat, and next to me was a pretty, precocious 10-year-old girl. Her aunt was seated on the aisle, and two other adult family members were seated ahead. They were New Yorkers and obviously affluent and well-educated.

Soon after take-off, the lights were dimmed and blankets distributed. This seemingly innocent child proceeded to grope me beneath the blankets! Terrified, I turned on my side and assumed a fetal position. Eventually she abandoned her pursuit.

The fight was agony for me. Upon arrival at JFK, the family bade me a fond farewell.

Dear Abby

Some scary questions come to mind: Who would have believed my version of what happened? How many men are unjustly accused of child molestation? And what should I have done — if anything?

HAUNTED: Your first two questions are good ones, which I cannot answer, but the last one is easy: You should have told one of the adult members of the family that the little girl had a problem and stated it without hesitation, because she needs counseling before she gets herself — and possibly some other man — in trouble.

If an adult becomes sexually involved with a child, regardless of who initiated it, the adult must assume full responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas I sent a Christmas card to Mrs. Margaret Gastineau, an elderly friend who had been living in a Montana nursing home for the last several years.

Yesterday my card was returned to me. Her name and address had been crossed out, and with a thick red felt-tipped pen, someone had printed in large block letters: "DECEASED — RETURN TO SENDER."

I was shocked at the extremely callous manner in which I had learned that my dear friend had died. If the staff was too busy to write a brief note, saying they regretted to inform me of the demise of my friend — and perhaps telling me the date she expired and a few relevant comments — they could have delegated this delicate task to a volunteer.

Learning that a cherished friend has died is always sad, but it becomes even more traumatic when handled as crudely as did the staff at the nursing home. One wonders if they ever heard of the golden rule.

JAMES A. LANG, NEW BRIGHTON, MINN.

DEAR MR. LANG: You make an excellent point. Perhaps after this is printed, facilities such as the one above will find a more considerate method of returning mail of this kind. I hope so. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for "Angry and In Doubt," the lady who was given a piano years ago by an elderly woman who was moving into smaller quarters and had no room for it. Now, 36 years later, her relatives want the piano back — for "sentimental" reasons!

She should let the relatives have it. She should also present them with a bill for storage. Let's say $10 a month for 432 months, which is cheap for heated storage. Insist on cash. No checks.

If the family is really that sentimental about the piano, they will gladly pay $4,320 and the present owner can go out and buy herself a new piano.

WANDA FROM LEBANON, ORE.
DEAR WANDA: What a great idea. (Judge Wapner, move over.)

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Managers urged to reverse ideas

By TOM PETERS

As a long-time student of the history of management, I am astonished to see the coincidence of viewpoint emerging on the management scene.

Practitioners, pundits and reporters alike are quickly homing in on the models of management required for the new shape of competition in utilities, financial services and healthcare, as well as in steel, autos, computers and retailing.

Consider so-called vertical integration (owning all elements of production, from the iron mine to the auto assembly plant, for example); it has long been a bedrock American business belief.

Yet a recent Industry Week magazine cover story was titled "Doing It All Yourself... and Ensuring Worldclass Underperformance."

It starts, "The demise of highly vertically integrated manufacturing companies is upon us. The wisdom within industry is that the failure to disintegrate could lead to true disintegration. Now, less is more. Minimization is in."

That is, inefficiency, not efficiency, turns out to accompany owning too big a chunk of the action.

The article declares, "When manufacturers went to oligopolies or monopolies, they didn't have to worry about cost as much as they do when there's loads of competition."

Now, those companies that are highly integrated have an inherent disadvantage. Their costs are typically higher.

That's hardly the logic of yesteryear, when vertical integration was undertaken for security, to control total supply, to control total demand, to control total cost.

Moreover, the trend in manufacturing is toward developing a competitive niche, and that's related to less vertical integration.

But to de-integrate, in many minds, means shipping jobs offshore, probably to Asia. That is not necessarily the case, as Joel Kotkin makes clear in the current issue of Inc. magazine.

In "The Great American Revival," Kotkin observes that big manufacturing has indeed been in decline, shucking 1.4 million jobs between 1974 and 1984. At the same time, however, small manufacturing firms with 250 or fewer people have grown in number by 41,000, and have added 1.5 million jobs.

"People have developed a mythology about size," notes one venture capitalist Kotkin quotes. "In sharp contrast to the mass-production-oriented giants of the last industrial era," Kotkin adds, "the new stars of manufacturing are small, highly focused companies whose fortes are flexibility, customization and market sensitivity."

If these two coincident, unconventional assessments of management practices weren't enough, turn to Peter Drucker's provocative "The Coming of the New Organization," the lead article in the current issue of the Harvard Business Review.

Drucker, too, turns his back on the excesses of large scale. He touts flexibility and even suggests that the new organization, featuring new information technologies, may have "no middle management at all."

Meanwhile, similar radical themes emerge in Jack Grayson's (founder of the American Productivity Center) and Carla O'Dell's just-released and well-received "American Business: A Two-Minute Warning - Ten Changes Managers Must Make to Survive Into the 21st Century."

The authors' new success requisites, derived from exhaustive observation and research, include "small operating units with fewer, more highly skilled people per unit," "new management levels" and "flexible product mix."

Under the revised fare structure, for example, a one-way regular coach ticket from New York to Denver rose from $350 to $395. A one-way coach ticket from Newark, N.J., to Rochester, N.Y. rose from $118 to $125.

Last month, airlines raised their deepest discount fares by about $10 per round trip, partly because of surprisingly higher passenger traffic. In January airline traffic rose about 4 percent, more than most industry analysts had expected. February traffic also appeared to be strong.

American, for example, reported a 25.7 percent jump in passenger traffic for the month over a year earlier and said it flew a record 4.61 billion revenue passenger miles. A revenue passenger mile represents one paying passenger flown one mile, an important measurement of an airline's business. Continental said February traffic increased 8.8 percent over a year earlier.

Airline traffic ordinarily slows in the winter.

$9 billion Deficiency payments to reach farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Estimates by the Agriculture Department show that farmers will have received about $9 billion in direct federal subsidies by the end of March for participating in 1987 commodity programs.

Part of the payments has been in cash, but most has been in generic certificates that can be redeemed for surplus commodities held by the department's Commodity Credit Corp.

Another installment was announced Thursday. Milton Hertz, executive vice president of the CCC, said farmers who participated in last year's feed grain program will get about $1.45 billion in government "deficiency" payments this month.

Hertz said the payments will include about $1.3 billion for corn farmers and $225 million for sorghum producers, all in certificates.

Under the program, deficiency payments are required when average market prices fall below a prescribed target price. The payments make up the difference between the target and the market price or support level, whichever is higher.

In addition to the $1.45 billion due this month, corn producers received about $2.6 billion in advance payments for 1987 participation, and sorghum producers got advances of $225 million.

According to figures supplied by the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, which is headed by Hertz, total deficiency payments for 1987 crops may be around $12 billion, slightly less than the $12.6 billion paid to farmers under 1986 programs.

Counting the payments for feed grains announced Thursday, payments through March are expected to total about $9 billion, with the possibility of an additional $3 billion to come as final settlements for 1987 participation.

The feed grain deficiency payments are expected to reach about $7.3 billion for 1987. Other projections included totals for: sorghum, $612 million; barley, $294 million; oats, $19 million; wheat, $3.2 billion; upland cotton, $861 million; and rice, $568 million.

In addition to the deficiency payments, farmers also can qualify in some cases for "diversion" payments to remove additional land from crop production. For 1987, those are expected to total more than $1.6 billion, including: corn, $1.44 billion; sorghum, $137 million; barley, $31 million; and oats, $8 million.

There were no diversion payments for wheat, cotton and rice.

TI announces new computer

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas Instruments Inc. said Thursday it will sell a computer for artificial-intelligence work based on Apple Computer Inc.'s Macintosh II, a step that should move "thinking machines" more into the mainstream of business.

Texas Instruments said the new Micro Explorer would have all the functions of a standard Macintosh II as well as artificial-intelligence features, such as the ability to manipulate symbols instead of just numbers.

Most other artificial-intelligence (AI) workstations, including Texas Instruments' own Explorer, cannot be used as general-purpose computers.

Other AI companies are also moving to insert their technology into existing computers, including Texas Instruments' biggest rival in the field, Symbolics Inc. of Cambridge, Mass.

However, Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple said it will have an especially close relationship with Dallas-based Texas Instruments. In a first for both companies, Texas Instruments and Apple will both put their logos on the Micro Explorer, which will be marketed only by Texas Instruments.

Texas Instruments and Apple said the Micro Explorer could be used in such varied fields as tax advising, computer-aided design and assigning gates to airplanes at airports.

Although artificial intelligence encompasses the whole concept of making computers think like people, most products on the market have the more modest goal of augmenting human decision makers by converting knowledge into a set of rules that can be applied by a computer.

The price of the Micro Explorer ranges from about $15,000 to $30,000, compared to $50,000 to $70,000 for the Explorer, which is about twice as powerful, Texas Instruments said. An AI package will also be available for people who already own the Mac II. Shipments are scheduled to begin in the April-June period.

Symbolics, in a response to the Texas Instruments announcement, said its Ivory chip for artificial intelligence is superior to Texas Instruments' Explorer Lisp chip. It also said its chip will be plugged into not only the Mac II, but also International Business Machines Corp.'s Personal System-2 and PC AT, although it could not give a timetable.

Texas Instruments said it had no timetable for putting its artificial-intelligence chip into other personal computers besides the Mac II.

DALLAS — Kim Britt, right, knowledge engineering projects manager for Texas Instruments, explains the microExplorer desktop computer system with help from Jerry P. Malec, vice president and general manager of Apple Computer, Inc. The combines the TI software and microprocessor with Apple's Macintosh II personal computer.

Businessbeat

By SARAH LUMAN Business Writer

Overheard on the beat this week: ... Springtime in Hawaii beckons Big Spring Zales' Jewelry store manager Emma Carlton and recently-departed Big Spring J.C. Penney's manager Bill Cleveland.

EMMA CARLTON

Zales manager Emma Carlton won her trip for two to the islands in a promotional contest called Catch the Spirit conducted by Zales. She departs March 17 and will be accompanied on the trip by Simmie Driver, secretary to Zales executive Bob Harris, director of stores.

"Although this (Big Spring) is a depressed area economically, you wouldn't know it by this store," said Carlton. "We stay busy here."

"The contest was for the top increase in sales over plan for October, November and December," she explained, "and our store was one of the top performers nationwide in 1987."

"Our strength here is our people," she said.

Carlton is a 20-year veteran with Zales, having begun her career in Big Spring in the downtown store managed by Travis Starr before transferring to Lubbock, where she was assistant manager to Naman Lipinsky. Thereafter she managed the Zales store in Abilene's West Gate Mall, returning to Big Spring as store manager in the Big Spring Mall location in November 1986.

She is widowed, but her family in Big Spring includes her daughter, Luan Taylor, and two granddaughters, Paylee and Abilee Taylor.

Bill Cleveland, recently transferred to the J.C. Penney store in Midland, also won a trip to Hawaii for the performance of the Big Spring store he managed.

Cleveland's trip was the top prize in a December district and regional contest conducted during by the Penney chain, he said.

"The contest was for the store with the best improvement for sales and profits, and the store in Big Spring won," said Cleveland. "So I won a trip to Hawaii for a week. We'll be leaving on March 10, and it's all expenses paid, so it's a pretty good deal."

Cleveland came to Big Spring "just over two years ago," he said.

Carpet Center has taken on a new associate. He is professional contractor Nuge Alexander, and he specializes in tile, parquet and wood flooring, inlaid and all sheet vinyl.

Alexander also does complete remodeling and has 15 years experience as a contractor.

He can be contacted at 267-1712 or 267-7576 and will give written estimates for remodeling and contracting work.

Chiropractor Bill Chrane and staff members Joan J. Pick, Joyce Newsom and Laverne Chrane, L.V.N./C.A., are attending the Parker College of Chiropractic's Applied Physiotherapy and Physiotherapy Update conference at the Hyatt Regency in Austin this weekend.

The college's department of postgraduate and continuing education is presenting the two-day conference, which teaches six courses: management of soft tissue injuries, understanding frequency — which includes sections on healing following injuries, peripheral nerve injuries and exercise among its subtopics — pain control, edema and inflammation and practical use of modalities, such as ultrasound, interferential therapy and heat and cold.

Flying higher Major carriers raise fares

NEW YORK (AP) — Unexpected strength in passenger traffic during a typically weak travel season has prompted major airlines to raise fares twice in recent weeks.

Continental Airlines initiated the latest move on Thursday, boosting one-way regular coach fares in amounts ranging from $7 for short flights to $45 for longer trips.

Continental also tightened restrictions on some of its discount fares used by business travelers, effective March 15. They will have to book tickets four to seven days in advance and pay a 25 percent cancellation or change penalty.

American, United and Northwest airlines immediately announced they would match Continental's regular coach-fare increases in markets where they compete. Other carriers were expected to do likewise.

Under the revised fare structure, for example, a one-way regular coach ticket from New York to Denver rose from $350 to $395. A one-way coach ticket from Newark, N.J., to Rochester, N.Y. rose from $118 to $125.

Last month, airlines raised their deepest discount fares by about $10 per round trip, partly because of surprisingly higher passenger traffic. In January airline traffic rose about 4 percent, more than most industry analysts had expected. February traffic also appeared to be strong.

American, for example, reported a 25.7 percent jump in passenger traffic for the month over a year earlier and said it flew a record 4.61 billion revenue passenger miles. A revenue passenger mile represents one paying passenger flown one mile, an important measurement of an airline's business. Continental said February traffic increased 8.8 percent over a year earlier.

Airline traffic ordinarily slows in the winter.

Discontinued model

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Pontiac Division of General Motors Corp. announced this week that the Pontiac Fiero will be discontinued at the end of the 1988 model year, idling more than 1,100 workers. Sales of the car fell from 101,720 in 1984 to 47,156 in 1987. Pictured is a 1987 Fiero GT model.

May, Federated reach agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Campeau Corp. said Friday that May Department Stores Co. has agreed to buy two divisions of Federated Department Stores Inc. — Filene's and Houston-based Foley's — if Campeau completes its hostile takeover bid for Federated.

Toronto-based Campeau said the agreement with May would make it easier to obtain the financing for its bid for Cincinnati-based Federated and reduce the amount of long-term debt that would be needed after the acquisition.

May said the purchase of Filene's and Foley's would strengthen its business. Filene's is based in Boston and Foley's in Houston. Campeau said they were worth about $1.5 billion together, but did not say how much May had agreed to pay.

On Thursday, Campeau threatened a court challenge to a merger agreement between Federated and R.H. Macy & Co.

Campeau, which had its rival buyout offer snubbed by Federated, stated it intended to challenge provisions requiring Federated to pay Macy fees of up to $45 million if their merger fell through under certain conditions.

Macy late Tuesday agreed to acquire Federated for cash and securities in a deal valued by some analysts at a total of about $6.1 billion.

In accepting Macy's offer, Federated spurned Campeau's bid to pay about $6.18 billion in cash for the retailing company.

Under its current offer, Campeau would pay $75 per share in cash for 80 percent of Federated's shares, and after a merger would pay $44 per share for the remaining 20 percent. The company said the offer — revised from a previous $68 a share offer for all Federated shares — had a total value of about $68 a share on a fully diluted basis.

Campeau also has offered to raise its offer by 50 cents a share if the breakup fee provision was withdrawn.

The Macy-Federated merger will take six to 12 weeks to conclude, when it will be submitted to Federated's shareholders for a vote.

The real world simultaneously chimed in with clear-cut confirmation of the findings I've just reported. On Jan. 28, IBM announced a reorganization that Chairman John Akers described as "a fundamental change... as significant as any we have ever made."

The reason, said The Wall Street Journal, was IBM's "being too unwieldy to exploit market niches and develop new products quickly."

And if such an assessment seems too far out, refer to Fortune's Feb. 15 cover story featuring a haymaker aimed at General Motors by former director Ross Perot.

Before launching his litany of charges, including inflexibility and inattention to people and customers, Perot blurted, "We've got to nuke the GM system."

Any one of these out-and-out attacks on core management beliefs would have raised eyebrows just 36 months ago. To have them all besiege us in the space of just a few days is startling confirmation that the for-so-long comfortable world of management practice has truly been turned upside down.

Drilling report

HOWARD
Plug-and-abandon orders were issued for the No. 1 Hamlin, a deeper pool wildcat venture of Chapman Exploration of Tulsa in Howard County. Spudded Dec. 23, the well had reached 10,245 feet total depth. Drillsite was three miles west of Luther in the T&P A-271 Survey.

MARTIN
The No. 5 Cowden Courtney, a 4,900-ft. wildcat, is scheduled to be drilled in Martin County. Heritage Resources of Midland is the operator. The well will be spudded in a 320-acre lease 21 miles west of Stanton in the T&P Survey.

BORDEN
A Midland-based operator has staked location for the No. 1 Rowden "39", a developmental well to be located eight miles northeast of Stanton. With projected total depth of 11,100 feet, the well is in a 160-acre lease in the Martin County's Caprock East Field, T&P A-60 Survey. The operator is Barbara Pasken.

MITCHELL
An Abilene-based operator has staked location for the No. 1 W. E. Smith, Jr., a wildcat to be located five miles southwest of Westbrook. With projected total depth of 5,300-feet, the well is in the T&P Survey, 467 feet from the south line and 2,700 feet from the line of section 28, block 28, in Mitchell County. The operator is George S. Galbraith.

Flower Mound bank reopens after failure

FLOWER MOUND (AP) — Heavy loan losses contributed to the failure of Flower Mound Bank which will reopen today as Security Bank, the state banking commissioner said.

About $17.2 million in 4,900 accounts as well as fully secured liabilities will be transferred to Security Bank, Flower Mound, Texas, a newly chartered subsidiary of Security Bank Shares F.M., said Bill Olcheshki, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman in Washington. Depositors of the failed bank will become depositors of the assuming institution, pending court approval.

The collapse of the bank in this community 20 miles northwest of Dallas was the 12th failure in Texas this year.

Flower Mound Bank was a non-agricultural institution, Olcheshki said.

4,747, 4,735, 4,750 and 4,760 feet respectively.

The No. 1 Smith has been spudded by Discovery Operating of Midland in Martin County four miles northwest of Tarzan. This wildcat venture carries authority for a 4,600-ft. maximum drilling depth and is located in a 160-acre lease in the M. Curtis Survey.

MITCHELL
An Abilene-based operator has staked location for the No. 1 W. E. Smith, Jr., a wildcat to be located five miles southwest of Westbrook. With projected total depth of 5,300-feet, the well is in the T&P Survey, 467 feet from the south line and 2,700 feet from the line of section 28, block 28, in Mitchell County. MITCHELL
Drilling at the No. 1 Brennan is nearing the 7,600-ft. mark in Mitchell County. It is a developmental well in the Westbrook Field with Cass Oil as operator. The well was spudded Jan. 26, and carries permit for 3,300 feet maximum drilling depth.

MITCHELL
Consolidated Producing of Abilene has bottomed its No. 1 Schattel at a depth of 2,850 feet in the Iatan East Howard Field, Mitchell County, and has called for completion tests. The well is located five miles southwest of Westbrook in a 10-acre lease in the T&P A-1205 Survey.

MITCHELL
Drilling operations have been completed at the No. 4 Gospel Trumpet, a developmental oil well, in Mitchell County six miles northwest of Westbrook. Bottomed at 3,240 feet, it is in the Turner-Gregory Field. Hrubetz Operating of Dallas is the operator. Testing for potential is scheduled.

... From Dan Wilkins at Edward D. Jones and Company comes this tax tip: "People who are not covered by an employer retirement plan can deduct their full IRA contribution, up to $2,000 per individual or $2,250 for a spousal IRA, no matter what their income is."

That means an IRA is still a sensible alternative, even though deductions are being reduced for persons covered under employer retirement plans following the Tax Reform Act of 1986, Wilkins said. Married couples earning less than $40,000 total income can deduct their entire contribution, he said, as can single taxpayers whose income totals less than $25,000.

For singles earning $25,000 to $35,000, the deduction allowable is reduced 20 percent for each $1,000, and for married couples earning $40,000 to $50,000, the same rule applies, he said.

"In cases where an individual's adjusted gross income is more than $35,000 or a couple's combined adjusted gross income is more than $50,000 and they are covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan, no deductions are allowed for IRA contributions," he said. "However, all earnings remain tax-deferred until they are withdrawn."

For more details about IRA changes under the tax laws, contact Wilkins at 219 Main St. or telephone 267-2501.

REVENUE ACT OF 1987

On December 22, 1987, President Reagan signed our newest tax bill into law. There are four new items which may have a direct effect on your individual income tax return.

- * Mortgage and home-equity interest
- * Mutual funds
- * Dependent care expenses
- * Estimated tax

The law gives us two new terms in reference to home interest deductions. The first is "acquisition indebtedness"; the interest deduction on acquisition indebtedness is limited to $1,000,000 of debt. The second term is "home-equity indebtedness"; the interest deduction on home-equity indebtedness is limited to $100,000 of debt, regardless of the use to which the money is put. There are some exceptions to these interest limitations that can create traps for the unwary.

The law provides temporary relief for shareholders of certain mutual funds who are taxed on "phantom income." The 2% floor on the miscellaneous itemized deductions of individuals will not apply to the expenses allocated to mutual fund shareholders until tax years beginning in 1988.

Effective for 1988 and later years, you will not be permitted a dependent care credit for sending children or other dependents to overnight camps.

The increase from 80% to 90% of the current year's tax liability that must be paid by individuals in order to avoid penalty will take effect for tax years starting after 1987. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 was to have made this effective for 1987 tax returns.

By far the most significant item in this new tax law has to do with your new home interest deduction. Seek professional assistance before financing or refinancing any residential property.

Plant tomatoes earlier in cages

By DON RICHARDSON County extension agent

This is a continuation of last week's column on caging tomato plants. Now you are ready to install your cage over the tomato plant. Using the cage, you can plant much earlier than usual and many successful tomato growers set their plants and install their cages at or before the average date of late frost, which extends from late March to mid April on the Texas Plains.

quate ventilation for the fast developing plant. You will notice in

Ask the agent

Be sure to drive a stout stake into the ground on the upwind side of the cage and tie the stake to one of the upright wires of the cage. This means you will have to puncture through the plastic a tiny hole large enough to thread the wire or string through and around the wire.

Then move soil up to the outside of the plastic and form a small dam around the entire periphery of the cage. This will help to stabilize it and when you pour water on the inside to water the tomato plant it will not flow out from under the cage and away.

On nights when the temperature falls below 50 degrees, you can close the plastic over the top of the cage to keep the temperature 5 to 7 degrees warmer inside the cage. Be absolutely sure to remove the plastic from the cage top the next morning to prevent heat injury.

The day temperatures gradually rise during April and early May. When the temperature regularly rises to the 80's you will need to ventilate the cage by pulling up on the plastic wrap during the afternoon when it is warm and securing the plastic with a spring loaded clothes pin so that it will not fall back down. Raise the plastic so that you have about six inches clear space at the bottom of the cage.

Hot air will move up inside the plastic-wrapped cage and cool air will come in at the bottom to replace it. This is known as the chimney effect and will ventilate your tomato plant nicely. By the middle of May on the South Plains and by early June on the North Plains you will be able to remove the plastic entirely to assure adequate ventilation for the fast developing plant. You will notice in the course of this early growth that practically every blossom that forms on the plant will set fruit and that by the time you remove the plastic you will have many fruit set on a very vigorous and healthy plant with no insect damage or disease.

Do not attempt to prevent the vegetative shoots of the tomato plant from growing out of the cage. As branches grow out the openings in the cage this will let more light in and additional shoots will develop and grow upward in the cage and one after another will set fruit and grow out the openings using the wire for support.

If you keep your plants healthy, eventually the shoots will actually grow out the top of the cage and a caged tomato plant is capable of producing at least 30 to 40 lbs. of fruit. Some gardeners have harvested in excess of 60 lbs. of fruits from one caged plant.

Be sure to plant the extension recommended varieties - Celebrity, Jackpot, Big Set, or Spring Giant to get these kinds of results. Assuming that you have fertile soil in your garden and have applied adequate fertilizer before planting, start sidedressing the plants with nitrogen fertilizer as soon as they begin to set fruit.

Apply one tablespoon of ammonium nitrate per plant every two to three weeks during the growing season to maintain a heavy production on a sturdy plant where the leaves will provide adequate shade for developing fruit. Carry out a program of disease prevention by spraying a fungicide such as Maneb or Captan when foliar disease symptoms are noticed on the lower leaves or before a predicted rainy period.

Prince Charles talks urban redevelopment

By MARCIA DUNN Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Britain's Prince Charles brought his concern for urban redevelopment to America's Rust Belt, visiting steel mill towns to offer encouragement and look at a blueprint for their post-industrial rebirth. The Prince of Wales, honorary chairman of the Remaking Cities Conference of U.S. and British architects, was to close the four-day symposium with a speech today.

The future king of Britain, an outspoken critic of modern architecture and supporter of inner-city rehabilitation, startled many last December when he made a speech accusing London's architects of being artless, mediocre and contemptuous of public opinion.

"He understands the difficulty of an industry closing, what that means to an area," said John Clarke, a Trenton, N.J., architect who briefed the prince Friday on a proposal to rejuvenate communities that were once the nucleus of America's steel industry.

The 39-year-old prince met with about 50 architects, urban planners and community leaders in the nearby Monongahela River Valley. "What concerns me, did you actually talk to the people in the area? ... Have you actually identified what to do with the steel mills?" the prince asked, looking at a blueprint spread over four tables.

"They've been thinking about it for years. They're very concerned about jobs," said economist J. Lee Sammons of Denver, a member of a special team attached to the conference that developed the plan.

The four-day meeting, sponsored by the American Institute of Architects and the Royal Institute of British Architects, is exploring ways to once more bring prosperity to depressed communities.

In a 120-page report presented Monday, the team headed by Clarke stressed the need for public participation in replacing the shuttered factories lining the banks of the Monongahela with parks, gardens, marinas and shops.

The prince studied large diagrams depicting the team's suggestions during his visit to a new jobs center for blue-collar unemployed in nearby Homestead. "He said, 'I know from my information that this has generated a great deal of interest and it's a wonderful process because it draws the community into the planning effort,'" Clarke said.

He impressed the crowd with his insight and sensitivity. "He asked us, 'Are most of your parents laid off? Do they have other jobs?'" said Heather Chesnoske, 16, a high school junior invited to the forum. "I said, 'Yeah, but it took a couple years to find them.'"

"He had a very genuine interest in human concerns," Clarke said. "He asked, 'Will this (plan) continue? Will it go on?'"

Earlier in the day, the prince was greeted by Mayor Richard Caliguiri on Pittsburgh's Mount Washington, which rises about 400 feet above the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers.

The stop was intended as a sightseeing point, but heavy snow obscured the view of downtown. The prince attended a luncheon at Pittsburgh's prestigious Duquesne Club and visited with eight students at a high school computer training classroom in the nearby town of Munhall.

"He asked us about the similarity of the region as opposed to England. I said it was very similar," said Munhall Mayor Raymond Bodnar. "I said our problem is to give us a better image and rejuvenate the (industrial) corpses that we have, pump lifeblood into them."

At each stop, the prince was greeted by hundreds of people waiting for a glimpse of royalty. At the Duquesne Club, two people protesting unemployment in the Monongahela Valley and British policy in Northern Ireland were led out of the crowd by police and cited for disorderly conduct.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can find some lucrative new business opportunities if you stay alert. If your good friends need

Texas firm entering supercomputer race

BOSTON (AP) - Apollo Computer Inc. got a key jump on its competitors by developing a $70,000 desktop "personal supercomputer" the company says is faster than anything else in the market, industry analysts said.

Two other companies also announced new supercomputers, marking what promises to be a period of fierce competition among makers of sophisticated supercomputers used by scientists and engineers.

"This seems to be the year for the so-called 'personal supercomputer,'" said Gary P. Smaby, who follows the industry for Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood in Minneapolis. "I think it's going to be an interesting horse race."

Apollo said it was producing a workstation for scientists and engineers with supercomputer power that outperforms anything in its price range of $69,900 to $130,000.

Analysts said the Domain Series 10000 returns the Chelmsford, Mass.-based company to the forefront of the highly competitive field of small, powerful workstations that combine extremely rapid "number crunching" with three-dimensional graphics. "We think that this definitely positions them as the performance leader to beat in the new graphics supercomputing market," said David Burdick, an analyst with Dataquest Inc. of San Jose, Calif.

Ardent Computer Corp., a Sunnyvale, Calif.-based start-up, announced its first product Tuesday, a graphics supercomputer in about the same price and performance range as Apollo's.

Convex Computer Corp. of Richardson, aiming at a pricier segment of the market, unveiled a more powerful new line of mini-supercomputers it hopes will cut into Cray Research Inc.'s domination of that market.

Another recent start-up, Stellar Computer Inc. of Newton, Mass., is expected to announce a similar graphics supercomputer in two weeks, and analysts anticipate a half-dozen more to follow.

Apollo, which pioneered workstations in 1980, said at a Boston news conference that the new model speeds up complex numerical computations and its four-processor model allows several different programs to run simultaneously.

Unsung hero

New play celebrates influence of university's namesake

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

A hundred years ago, Sul Ross was governor of Texas. Then he became President of Texas A&M, which was nearly broke at the time.

Because Sul Ross had such a good reputation, the men he commanded during the Civil War sent their sons to A&M, confident they would get a good education from this statesman and leader. Much of the success of A&M is credited to Sul Ross.

Now a stage play about this great Texan is making the rounds in theaters. It is called Knight of the Lone Star: the Life and Texas of Sul Ross.

Appropriately enough, the play was written by Dr. Ron Hubbard, who heads up the theater department at Sul Ross State University in Alpine. "I came here three years ago and read in the university catalogue about the man this place is named for," says Ron.

"I saw all the things he had done. He was a Texas Ranger, Confederate General, Sheriff of McLennon County, a State Senator, Governor of Texas and President of Texas A&M. I thought he would be a good subject for a play."

Like Sul Ross, Ron Hubbard was not born in Texas, but he loves it. "I think the state and its people have incredible energy," explains Ron. "I've never seen another place like it. It's unique in all the world. I put a lot of my feeling for the state in this play."

"A lot of us never did anything before we got to Texas. But if you recall, only six of the men fighting for Texas at the Alamo were born here. The rest were from places like Mexico and Tennessee. Texas is a place where if you have what it takes, you can come here and do it."

Tumbleweed Smith

Lawrence Sullivan Ross was born in the Iowa territory in 1838. His father, Shapley Ross came to Texas seeking opportunity. He had met a man who had been to Texas. The man spoke so gloriously to Shapley about the place that Shapley had to come and see for himself. He settled in Waco, became the city's first postmaster and built the city's first hotel.

Sul Ross attended Baylor and in 1859 Sam Houston appointed him Captain of a Ranger company to assist in protecting the frontier of the state.

Ross joined the Confederate Army as a private in 1861 and served four years, rising to the rank of Brigadier General. He led Ross's Brigade in 135 engagements.

After the war he farmed, then became sheriff of McLennon County. He was a state senator and was inaugurated as governor on January 18, 1887. He was the first governor to occupy the new capitol building.

On his retirement from office in 1891, he was elected President of A&M. Sul Ross died in 1898.

The play covers 80 years (1840 to 1920) of Texas history as influenced by Sullivan Ross. In spite of all his accomplishments, he is best remembered as the man who led the raid on the Comanches when Cynthia Ann Parker was rescued and brought back to civilization.

Membership drive adds 57 to chamber roster

By THE BIG SPRING AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Membership Committee Co-Chairmen Terry Hansen and Denise Jackson have announced that 57 new members have been recruited into the chamber as a result of the chamber's recent membership drive.

The top three teams in this recruitment contest were: first place, co-chaired by Dean Spencer and Robert Wash — 2,944 points and 20 new members; second place, co-chaired by Steve Fraser and Steve Herren — 2,136 points and 12 new members; and third place, co-chaired by Sharon Justice and Nancy Marshall — 1,857 points and 14 new members.

The next Business After Hours is scheduled for March 17, from 5:30-6:30 p.m. The Gentleman's Corner, 223 Main St. will be the sponsor for this occasion. Mark your calendar and make plans to attend. Bring your business cards, come on out and enjoy the fellowship and fun of getting to know your fellow chamber members and Big Spring business people.

Nominations are still being accepted for the chamber's small business person of the year and the cultural affairs man or woman of the year awards. They will be presented at the chamber's May community luncheon.

Nominations will be accepted through March 31 for both awards. For more information on these two awards or to nominate someone, contact the chamber office at 263-7641.

The chamber's Athletic Committee, chaired by Don Davis, has again been busy with playoff games; six basketball playoff games have been hosted in the past two weeks.

Approximately 3,500 people have come to Big Spring as a result of these games. Also, Howard College has been busy hosting boys' and girls' regional tournaments, events that bring many visitors to the community.

The tour bus business is beginning to hop again in Big Spring. The Days Inn has reported a baker's dozen buses have confirmed bookings for the 1988 season.

These are tour companies that will be traveling through our area throughout the year and staying overnight in Big Spring. The chamber's Convention and Visitors Bureau and a group of Hospitality Hostesses make a point to meet and greet these buses and wish them an enjoyable stay in our city.

We look forward to these buses, since each busload of travelers can leave an average of $3,000 per night in our community.
