Board tackles student/teacher ratio edict

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring school trustees are to select one of five proposals March 24 to reduce the number of students per teacher in grades three and four beginning with the 1988-89 school year.

Superintendent Bill McQueary submitted the plans, designed to bring the system in line with state-mandated 22-1 student/teacher ratios, during the trustees' regular meeting Thursday night at the high school board room.

The plan McQueary recommended entails the purchase of one or two portable classrooms to be placed at College Heights and Washington elementary schools. Cost of the portable buildings was estimated at $80,000, he added.

The major advantage to the recommended proposal is the lack of student shifting involved, he noted.

"It will create the least amount of student movement and the least amount of busing," McQueary said. "It will leave classroom configurations exactly as they are now."

At least six and perhaps eight additional teachers will be needed next school year — regardless of which plan trustees approve, Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy said.

"No matter how we go, based on projected enrollment figures, we will have to add between six and eight new teachers at the elementary level for the next school year," Murphy said.

Using projected 1988-89 enrollment figures, the district would have to add seven teachers next school year — one in second grade, three in third grade and three in fourth — Murphy noted.

The other proposals submitted to trustees are:

• A plan to place seventh and eighth grades on the Runnels campus and fifth grade to Goliad Middle School. This would open 14 classrooms in the elementary schools, the administrators said.

The disadvantage to this plan is that it would entail additional construction at Runnels. The proposal estimates construction costs at $250,000, but McQueary said that figure could go as high as $500,000.

• Placing eighth graders at the high school, moving seventh graders to Runnels and fifth graders to Goliad.

Murphy said this would be the most economical solution, since no additional funds would be needed to put it into effect. However, he said placing eighth graders at high school would be disadvantageous.

"Having eighth-graders on the same campus as high-schoolers has long been a bone of contention for some people," he said. "Just because we have the space we need at high school doesn't mean it's the best method we can choose.

"You have to remember, these are still junior high students," Murphy said of the eighth-graders. "From a socialization standpoint, it's not the best solution."

• Open the Boydston — former East Ward school — campus. This proposal would designate Boydston as the overflow campus for the district. Whenever enrollment exceeded ratios at other elementaries, students would be placed at Boydston.

Q. Why did the Republican and Democrat ballots have different referendums? Why didn't both have the same? I didn't like the idea.

A. Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray said the referendums were placed on the ballot by the individual parties and were not listed by the state; the results are not binding in any way and are simply reflective of public opinion, she said.

Fire consumes vacant house

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An unoccupied home was destroyed by fire in one of two major grass fires in Howard County Thursday.

C. Roy Wright, president of the county's volunteer fire department association, reported that an old house on Larry Miller's property was destroyed in an afternoon blaze.

The fire was reported to the sheriff's department about 3 p.m. Thursday and was under control at 4:20 p.m., according to sheriff's reports.

It was located about four miles north of Interstate 20 on Salem Road, according to Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles, who said the city fire department was called to assist county units, but the blaze was under control when they arrived.

An earlier fire south of the Kentwood addition was reported to the Big Spring Fire Department at 11:45 a.m.

The fire started after a hot metal slag fell to the ground while welders were working on a city water tower in the area, Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles said.

The fire didn't threaten any homes and did not prove necessary to evacuate Kentwood School, Settles said.

The blaze was brought under control about 1:30 p.m.

A group of bystanders watch as a grass fire, caused from welding on the new water tank, burns the side of South Mountain behind the Kentwood area Thursday morning. The fire did not threaten any homes or Kentwood Elementary School, and was brought under control about 1:30 p.m.

Teen-ager sentenced to life in prison

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy convicted of killing a classmate with a baseball bat "to know what it was like" has been sentenced to life in prison, becoming the state's youngest prison inmate.

Rod Matthews could be paroled in 15 years under the mandatory sentence he received Thursday after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the Nov. 20, 1986, slaying of 14-year-old Shaun Ouillette.

Two former friends of Matthews testified he told them of planning the killing and took them to see Ouillette's body, which police did not find until nearly four weeks later in woods in Canton, a suburb 15 miles south of Boston.

Matthews showed no emotion when the verdict, reached after almost 10 hours of deliberations over two days by the Norfolk County Superior Court jury, was announced. Throughout the trial he had been expressionless, eyes downcast.

The decision satisfied neither the victim's mother, Jeanne Quinn, nor the defendants' parents.

Mrs. Quinn, carrying a large portrait of her son and choking back tears, told reporters she had hoped Matthews would be convicted of first-degree murder, which carries a mandatory life sentence without parole.

"He planned this," she said. "Fifteen years. No, I'm sorry, that's wrong. Shaun is not coming home in 15 years, is he? He's not ever coming home."

"It's terrible," Matthews' mother, Janice, said on the courthouse steps hours after the verdict. "A child shouldn't be persecuted and forced to go through something like this."

"God only knows how much worse it's (prison) going to make his condition," she said.

Matthews takes Ritalin for hyperactivity, and defense attorney John Philip White argued for acquittal by reason of insanity.

White portrayed Matthews as a mentally unstable child whose

College says sales project not affiliated

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Dr. Cheri Sparks, vice president for student services at Howard College, reported that individuals in Big Spring are falsely selling magazine subscriptions door to door under the pretense they are affiliated with the college.

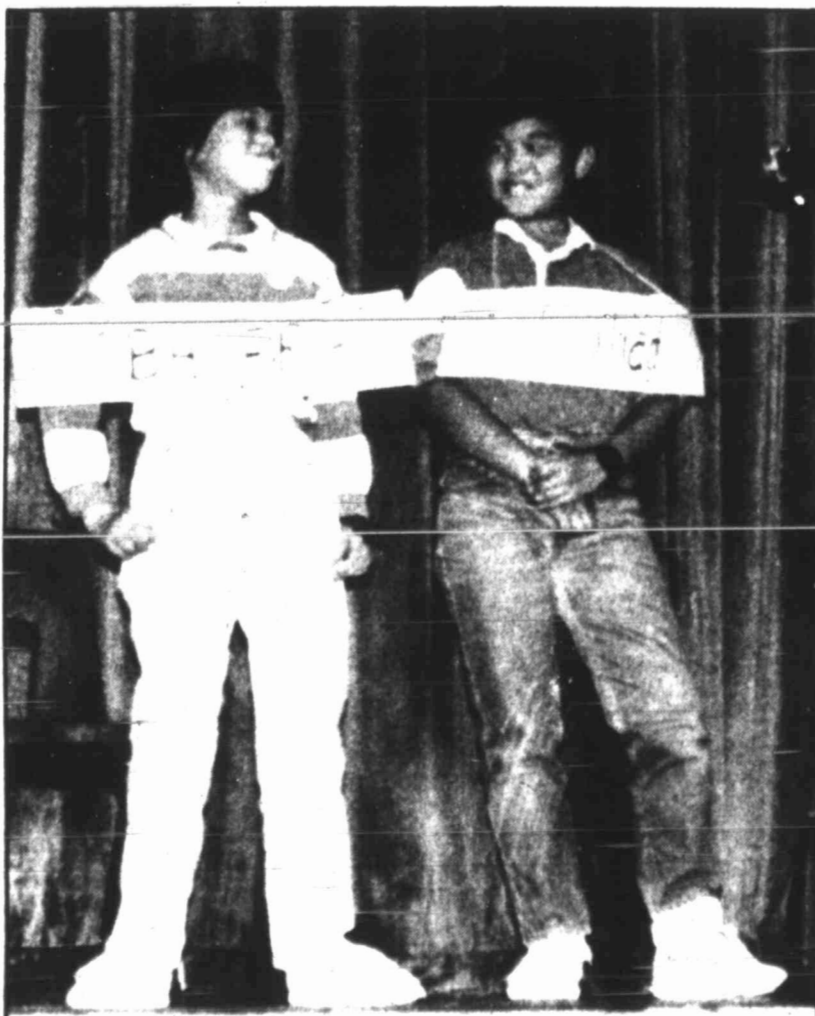

Although the college does conduct magazine sales projects, it is not involved in one at this time, said Sparks.

Concerned residents called Sparks and said they were uncomfortable with the presentation by the salespersons who claimed to be selling subscriptions to benefit the college.

Sparks advises anyone who is approached by the individuals to call the police.

She said if the college is involved in a magazine project, "most of the time we will have posters or have something in the paper."

Prospective buyers can verify the validity of the college magazine subscription sales by calling the college at 267-6311, Sparks said.

Carvell Nguyen, right, beams at younger sister Caroline after he won the Howard County Spelling Bee Thursday afternoon in the Howard College auditorium for the third straight year.

Student wins spelling bee for third consecutive year

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Howard County Spelling Bee evolved into a family affair Thursday afternoon.

The bee, which attracted 13 of the top spellers from Howard County, required 45 rounds of words before 10-year-old Caroline Nguyen succumbed to "zucchini."

At that point, her 12-year-old brother, Carvell, correctly spelled the word and then spelled "scintless" to win the bee.

It was the third consecutive year the son of Dr. Tra and Thu Nguyen has won the county spelling bee.

A year ago the 12-year-old won the regional spelling contest in Lubbock and went to the national competition in Washington, D.C. before faltering.

He will participate in the regional competition in Lubbock at 1:30 p.m. March 26 at Monterey High School auditorium.

The two Nguyen children became finalists in the competition in the 34th round, when Chris Park, the Runnels Junior High winner, dropped out upon misspelling "provincial."

Carvell was the Goliad Middle School winner, while Caroline represented Bauer Magnet School.

The first round of competition claimed four spellers, and three more faltered during the second round.

The remaining six spellers — Carvell, Caroline, Chris, Tony Roberts of Washington Elementary, Jennifer Cooper of Coahoma Elementary, and Ann Marie Scott of Marcy Elementary — spelled for five more rounds before the group narrowed.

Linda Conway, Howard College Dean of Admissions, served again as the enunciator of words from the official Words of the Champions for the 1988 Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee.

She read two pages of first round words before moving on to intermediate words for the two finalists.

Conway said it was the first time in her memory that the county spellers had reached the list of intermediate words.

Caroline succeeded on "quadrillion" and "pentathlon," while Carvell countered with "sluice" and "kamikaze" before his sister failed to correctly spell "zucchini."

The spelling bee was sponsored by the Big Spring Herald.

Board hears special education report

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring school trustees heard a report from the director of the district's special education projects during their regular meeting Thursday night.

Gene Atkins, director of the section, told the board members that there are 415 students currently enrolled in special education classes, and that 42 people are employed in the section.

The breakdown of students is: emotionally disturbed, 25 (18 at Big Spring State Hospital); learning disabled, 211; retarded, 23; physically disabled, five; other health problems, eight; pregnant, one; speech handicap, 132; visual handicap, four; and multiple handicap, seven.

The section also can care for autistic and deaf/blind students, but none are enrolled this school year, Atkins said.

Four students classified as auditorially handicapped go to the regional school for the deaf in Odessa, and occupational and physical therapy are provided for 15 students, he added.

A total of 94 students have been dismissed from special education this school year. This makes the total number of students enrolled in the section at 509 for the school year to date, Atkins said.

This compares to a total figure of 504 for the 1986-87 school year.

In other business, trustees:

- Accepted resignations from the following personnel: Terry Benner, Kent Carruthers, James Collinsworth, Jack Dorsett, Mickey Finley, Thomas Posey and Joe Horton, all at Big Spring High School.

Finley resigned to accept the head coach/athletic director position with the Iran school district, and Collinsworth and Horton resigned their positions — coach and counselor, respectively — to become full-time teachers in the district.

- Emerged from a 30-minute executive session and voted to extend the contracts of all district teachers.
- Approved the appointments of Roland Atkins and Wade Burroughs as teacher appraisers.
- Approved the textbook committee's recommendations and the addition of two honors courses — in freshman English and biology — for the next school year.

plan is the construction costs involved, estimated at $250,000, Murphy said.

"It's simply not cost effective," he said. "If we have to spend money, we can find a better way to spend it than trying to renovate a 30-year-old building that hasn't been used in several years."

- Do nothing more, McQueary said, than increase busing in an attempt to bring the ratios in line.
- He warned, however, that if grades K-4 experience any future growth, this proposal would be "dead."

Murphy admitted this morning that even the recommended proposal has drawbacks, but said it was the best of the alternatives.

"It's a band-aid approach," he said. "It won't take care of the long-term problems, but in the short term, it's the most effective plan."

To address those long-range problems, McQueary and his staff are formulating a seven- to ten-year projection plan he will submit to the trustees within 60 days. It will address any additional classroom space needs the district will have during the 1990s, McQueary said.

He told trustees that sometime in the next decade, the district will have to face the possibility of building a new school — either a middle school to house seventh and eighth graders, or an elementary school for about 800 students.

Trustees will select a proposal at their next meeting, scheduled for noon March 24 at the high school cafeteria.

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The following complaints were received by Big Spring police Thursday:

- Assorted jewelry, tools and a tire were stolen from a vehicle owned by Eugenio Galaviz, 301 N.E. Seventh St. Value of the stolen items was estimated at $1,460.
- A bicycle and scooter were reported stolen from the residence of Mike Weaver, 201 E. Sixth St. Value of the stolen items was estimated at $175.
- Someone damaged the windshield of a vehicle owned by Bernadette Martinez, 421 Edwards Blvd.

In addition, the following person was arrested:

- A 16-year-old Hispanic male was arrested after he was caught allegedly trying to break into New Hope Chapel Baptist Mission, 1008 N. Main St.

Rural/Metro response time climbs with county responses

HERALD STAFF REPORT

February Rural/Metro ambulance response time worsened in comparison to December and January rates, according to the company's monthly report.

Michael Black, Rural/Metro operations supervisor, attributed the slower response times to more calls outside Big Spring city limits.

"We had more county runs that were further out," Black said today, explaining that more of the county calls were in communities and less accessible than calls of accidents on major roads.

The ambulance service responded to 83 emergency calls in February — the same number as January.

It responded to 80 percent of its calls in eight or less minutes, compared to 84 percent in January and 82 percent in December within that time period.

The company responded to 11 cardiac calls, 16 motor vehicle accidents, six respiratory-related calls, 14 trauma calls and 36 other medical calls.

Total average response time within Big Spring city limits was 5.3 minutes and total average response time in the county was 10.3 minutes.

Black said monthly reports will divide city and county response times to provide clarity and avoid confusion. In the past, the reports listed an average total response time that combined city and county calls.

During February, the ambulance service responded to 67 calls within Big Spring city limits and 16 calls in the county. City calls accounted for 81 percent of emergency responses, according to the monthly report.

Gary Trimble, EMS quality assurance coordinator from Rural/Metro's Scottsdale, Ariz. office, is in Big Spring conducting a class for police dispatchers, Black said.

The two-day course, which began Thursday, teaches fundamentals in medical emergency dispatching, Black said.

campus this week in the hope that the furor would die down, but had insisted she was in charge.

Spilman called the resignation a tragic loss to the university.

"We selected Dr. Zinser as president in recognition of her superior academic, administrative and research skills," she said. "Her strengths and accomplishments were precisely in those areas most critical for the growth of the university."

Rep. Steve Gunderson, R-Wis. and one of the university's trustees, said a hearing-impaired person should be at the helm at Gallaudet. Zinser was the only one of the three finalists for the job who was not deaf.

"I've said all along, even before Dr. Zinser resigned, that ideally a hearing-impaired person would be the track that we ought to follow," Gunderson said.

A large majority of the institution's 2,300 students joined in the protests, which began Sunday with a march on Capitol Hill. Students on Thursday threatened to seize the president's campus house and office if Zinser made her way past students blocking entrances to the school, and school officials chained shut the doors to the administration building.

Students of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute of the Deaf in Big Spring joined the protest with a car parade Wednesday.

Students from the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, N.Y., had planned to travel to Washington by bus today to show their solidarity with the protesters.

Presidential candidates Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon offered words of encouragement to the students, saying their protest reflected the desire of handicapped Americans everywhere to take control of their own destiny.

The National Association of the Deaf, a 20,000-member deaf rights group based in Silver Spring, Md., said it had been receiving calls, letters and pledges of support for the Gallaudet students from around the country and as far away as Great Britain.

A university official who was one of the other two finalists for the president's job, I. King Jordan, on Thursday had withdrawn his support for Zinser.

The resignation followed a warning by Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., another university trustee, that federal aid for the school could be jeopardized if she refused to leave the post.

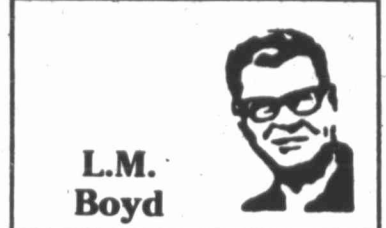

The House Education and Labor subcommittee on select education, which oversees Gallaudet's budget, scheduled hearings for next week on the dispute.

About 75 percent of the school's $76 million operating budget comes from federal funds. The rest comes from tuition and grants.

More than half the school's 274-member faculty endorsed the protesters' demands for the replacement of Zinser and Spilman.

pleas for help were ignored by teachers and friends and whose irrational behavior was possibly exacerbated by Ritalin.

"He was overlooked," said Mrs. Matthews. "He was overlooked in the third grade, junior high school. We overlooked him because we didn't think there was a problem."

White, expressing concern for Matthews' safety and the possibility the youth might attempt suicide, said he will try to have the boy moved from prison to a mental health center while considering whether to appeal.

highlighted by graphic descriptions of the slaying and testimony by Matthews' former friends, Rob Peterson and Jonathan Cash, who said he told them of his desire to kill in the fall of 1986.

"He said he wanted to know what it was like to kill somebody," Peterson said.

Matthews told a psychiatric counselor after the slaying that he first decided to kill someone after viewing the videotape "Faces of Death," which shows animal and human deaths.

An appeal must be made within 30 days, said Superior Court Judge Roger Donahue.

Matthews is the youngest of more than 6,500 Massachusetts prison inmates, said Correction Department spokeswoman Mary McGeown.

After rejecting two possible victims, Matthews chose Ouillette, an overweight high school freshman relatively new to Canton, because he felt he would not be missed, the youngsters testified.

Ouillette was lured to the woods after school by the promise of fireworks before being hit at least three times in the head with the baseball bat.

"It just doesn't make any sense because there's no treatment facility there," said Matthews' father, Kenneth.

Prosecutor Peter Casey, a Norfolk County assistant district attorney, called the decision an "appropriate, well-counselled verdict."

Matthews' trial, which began March 2, was broadcast on a Canton cable television station. It was

Brush fire burns in West Texas

ALBANY (AP) — Firefighters today were making progress against a raging brush fire 35 miles long and six miles wide, but officials said crews were preparing for a cold front to redirect the flames back toward Albany.

The fire by midmorning had scorched an estimated 135,000 acres, but there have been no serious injuries and most homes in the path of the roaring fire have been saved by the hundreds of firemen battling the blaze, Shackelford County officials said.

"It's been a miracle, so far," said Lawrence Winkler, information officer of the Shackelford County Emergency Management team.

Firefighters suffered only minor burns although they kept in close contact with the fire during the night, Winkler said.

Texas National Guardsmen, ordered by Gov. Bill Clements to help local authorities battle the blaze, joined an estimated 15 West Texas fire departments using 50 pieces of equipment.

Nearly two dozen firefighters and four pieces of firefighting equipment from the Texas Forest Service also were dispatched to Albany today, officials said.

TFS Director Bruce Miles said today that a request also may be made later for National Forest Service air tankers based in Arkansas to spray the area with fire retardant chemicals.

Republicans look at state Senate race

AUSTIN (AP) — The defeat of veteran state Sen. Grant Jones in the Democratic primary prompted Republican Party officials to explore resurrecting the campaign of a GOP candidate who dropped out of the race two months ago.

Even though Rex Andrew of Abilene withdrew from the race in January, Texas GOP executive director John Weaver said Andrew could be certified next week to appear on November's general election ballot.

If Andrew isn't allowed back into the race, Sweetwater lawyer Temple Dickson, a Democrat, becomes the automatic general election winner in the 14-county district that stretches from Temple to Abilene.

Dickson unseated Jones, a 23-year veteran of the Legislature and chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, by winning more than 56 percent of Tuesday's primary election vote.

"I talked to him. He is interested," Weaver said of Andrew, a television news reporter.

Weaver said the party is seeking a ruling from Secretary of State Jack Rains, a Republican, on whether Andrew could stand for election in light of the fact that he stopped payment on the check he used for his filing fee.

Rains' spokesman Jim Warren said Thursday that the questions were being reviewed. It wasn't certain how quickly a ruling would be made.

Andrew sent a letter to the party in January, saying he was withdrawing from the race. But his name appeared on the primary ballot because he did not pull out before the deadline for withdrawing.

"Technically, he withdrew too late. So he really didn't withdraw," Weaver said. "We'll make a decision next week whether to certify him to be on the general election ballot or not."

Republican State Chairman George Strake has the power to decide if Andrew can run in November, Weaver said.

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman, Andrew said he didn't realize it was possible to rejoin the race. He said he didn't know whether he would try to do so.

"I'm as much in the dark as you," the 31-year-old political novice said. "My situation is really unchanged from two months ago. It still would be very hard for me to do because of the family obligations that I have."

Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, said the GOP tried to recruit a viable candidate for the Senate seat but could find no one except Andrew.

By attempting to bring Andrew back into the race, Martin charged, the GOP was "operating outside the spirit of fair play, if not outside the spirit of the law."

"Apparently now they're trying to play some games. But once a guy said he's withdrawn, people know they're just playing a game of manipulation," Martin said.

Gramm says Texas has good chance for collider

DENTON (AP) — Texas stands a good chance of landing the proposed federal "super collider" project, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm says.

"We still have a dog in the hunt," Gramm, R-Texas, said Thursday of the seven-state competition among finalists hoping to attract the $4.4 billion research project.

Texas is making progress in garnering its fair share of research and economic development money, Gramm said. As examples he cited the relocation of J.C. Penney Co. from New York to Plano, the choice of Austin for the Sematech semiconductor research consortium, and the attraction of two new naval bases to the state.

"We're making great strides. But this (the super collider) is an opportunity for us to make a quantum leap," Gramm said.

Other sites still in the running for the project include Illinois, North Carolina, Tennessee, Arizona, Michigan and Colorado.

Texas has proposed an Ellis County site south of Dallas, near Waxahachie.

Gramm made the remarks at North Texas State University Thursday where he toured the school's new $1.5 million particle accelerator lab. The former Texas

A&M professor also used the visit to tout increased cooperative efforts between business and higher education as a means to bolster the economy.

Texas Instruments contributed about $500,000 to the NTSU particle accelerator and is sharing the facility in tests measuring the purity of semiconductors. TI had tested materials at the University of Arizona before NTSU's accelerator became operational in January.

Such cooperation "creates more industry, better jobs, higher living standards and a more competitive American economy," Gramm said, adding that there are 800 electronics semiconductor firms within 50 miles of Denton that could benefit from NTSU's accelerator.

NTSI physicists say the accelerator is used in materials characterization, a process for discerning the purity of a substance at the atomic level. It is especially useful in the production of semiconductors, testing atomic structure at a rate of parts per trillion.

External research funding to NTSU rose to $10 million in 1987, from $4.9 in 1985, university officials said.

Case of blind leading blind

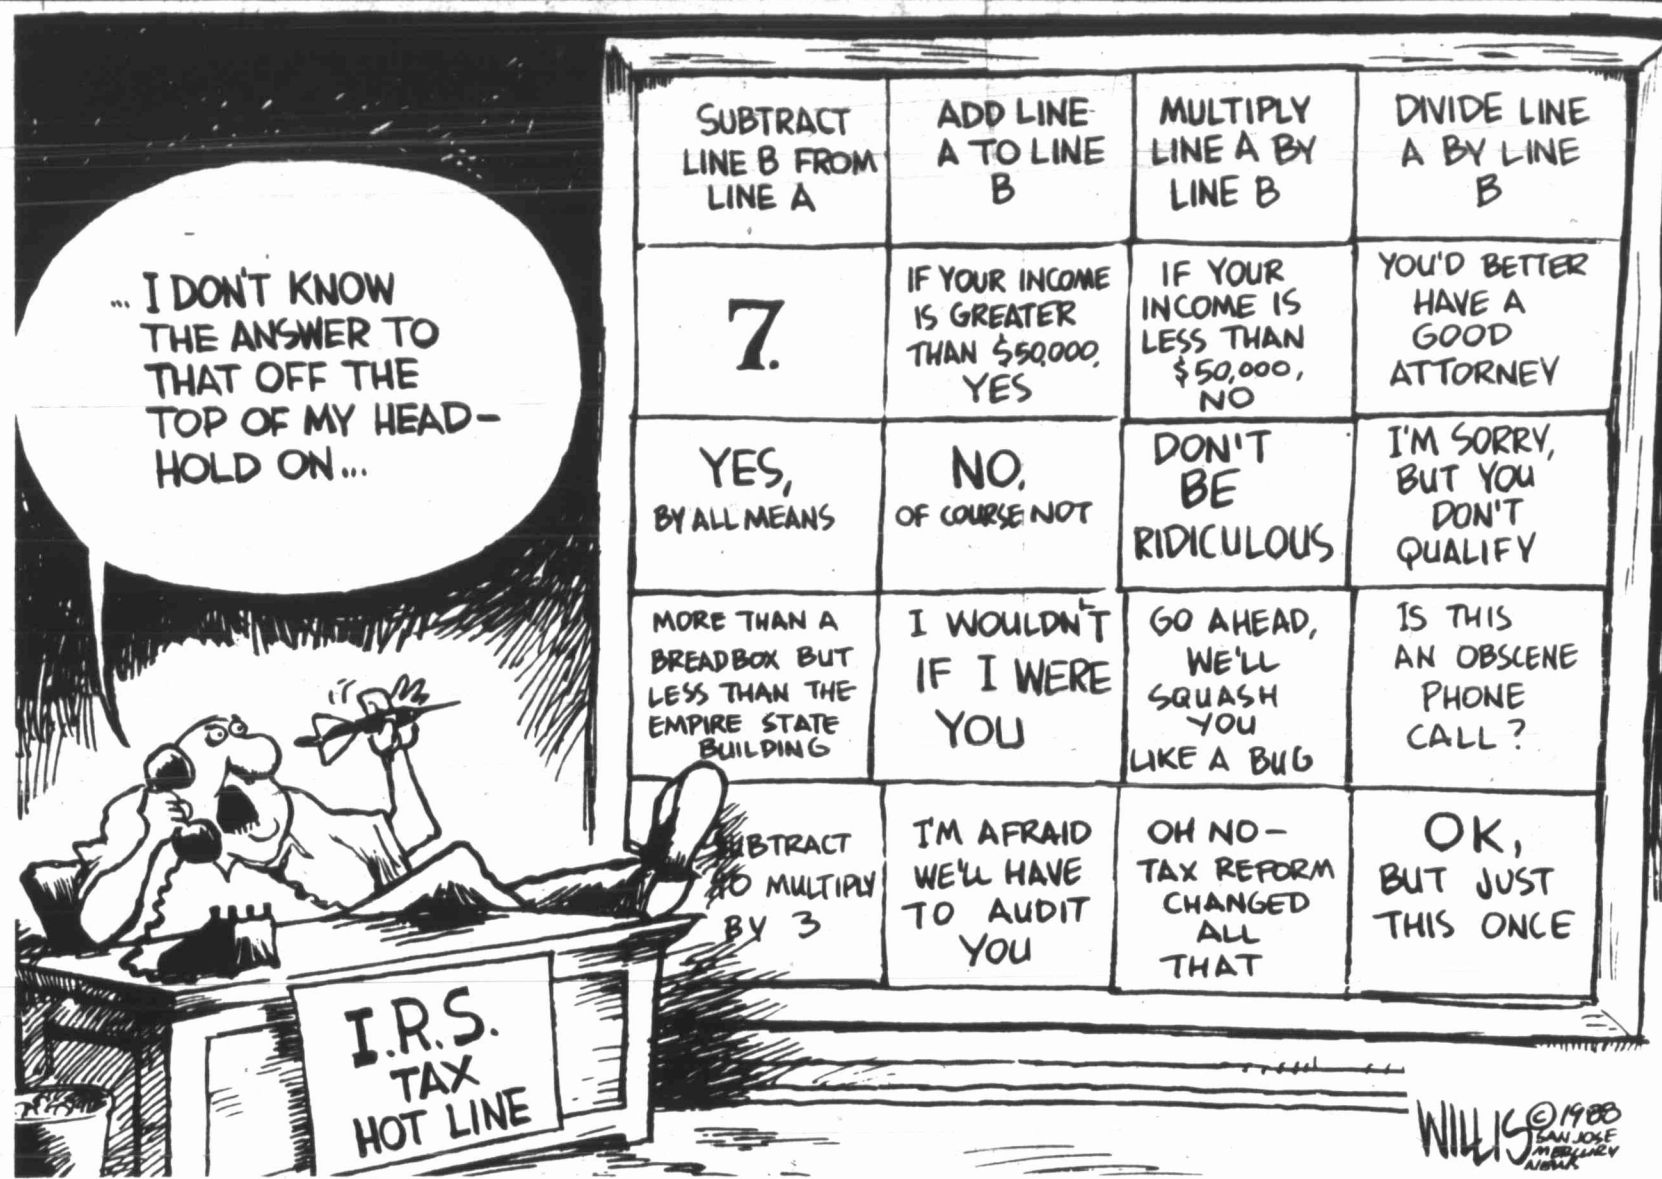

If you want help on your tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service may be the worst place to call. A General Accounting Office survey of the IRS's toll-free telephone service found that incorrect answers were given to 39 percent of the questions asked by auditors posing as taxpayers seeking advice.

This compares to an error rate of 21 percent found in a 1987 GAO audit. Lawrence B. Gibbs, the commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service, on the other hand, contends that an audit by his agency found an error rate of only about 25 percent.

Whatever the extent of error, the IRS's telephone service is hardly the way to encourage taxpayer compliance with the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

The new law, which went into effect this year, is primarily to blame for the uncertain telephone advice. It changed 2,000 subsections of the tax code and required revisions of more than 200 forms.

When many lawyers and tax accountants are experiencing problems adjusting to the new law, it is perhaps unrealistic to expect low-paid, seasonal IRS employees with minimal training to know all the answers. But the question is this: Should innocent taxpayers who are misled by untrained IRS agents be penalized for IRS mistakes? We think not. Substantial increases in penalties called for under the new law should be waived this go-round. Indeed, IRS officials have said they may not impose penalties on taxpayers who can demonstrate they relied on incorrect information in filling out their forms. Obviously, the difficulty will be in proving that the unreliable information came from the IRS telephone hot-line.

Driving seems to produce criminal mindsets

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

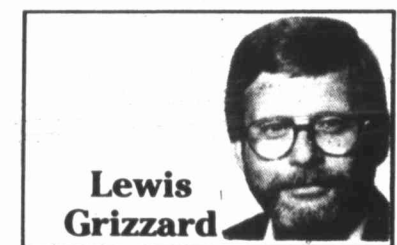

I don't think it was such a good idea to raise the speed limit on stretches of interstate and rural areas to 65.

The reason is when people get behind the wheel of a car, they immediately develop a criminal mind.

Most of us won't steal, kill, deal in drugs or make a tape of a movie we rented, which would get us on the FBI most wanted list.

But when we get into our cars, we might as well be Bonnie or Clyde. In the first place, I'd guess 90 percent of the nation's drivers speed, which is against the law.

If the speed limit signs say "55", hardly anybody goes 55. We figure we've got a cushion there someplace and if we push it up to, say, 65, the cops aren't going to bother us.

So we drive 65. When we're really feeling our wild oats, we go up to 70.

Others, of course, go even faster if they have one of those machines that makes chirping noises when there is police radar around. They call these things "fuzz-busters." You can go 120 if you want to if you own one of those things. When the chirping starts, you simply slow down.

It doesn't take a criminal mind to operate one of those things? Of course it does.

What's the difference between a fuzzer and a lookout? "I'll go in the bank and take the money and shoot the security guard," criminal No. 1 says, "and you look out for the cops."

"What should I do if I see one?" criminal No. 2 asks.

"Make a chirping noise." There are all sorts of other ways people can break the law when they drive. For instance, nobody really comes to a full stop at a stop sign if they're in a hurry and there are no other cars around.

Stopping completely at a stop sign could cost you a half second. With that precious amount of time saved, maybe you could learn to speak French.

Other drivers don't wait their turn at four-way stops. They also make illegal lane changes, neglect to slip on their turn signals, speed up through yellow caution lights, tailgate, and put obscene stickers on their bumpers.

Throw in those who still drink and drive, and we've got a nation full of people who make driving terribly risky to your well-being as well as to your sanity.

And now, we go and make driving even more of a crap shoot by raising the speed limit to 65 on rural interstates.

Nobody will go 65, of course. They'll go 75 and 80 through the boonies and we'll soon get the automobile death rate back up there where it belongs.

Also, Farmer Brown will never know the answer to that ageless question: Why did the chicken cross the road?

Some fool who thought he was Richard Petty ran over it.

Military is wasting millions

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The U.S. military services are wasting millions of dollars developing different weapons simulators to do the same job, according to an investigation done for Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci.

Weapons simulators are used by the military to duplicate Soviet weaponry and radar so our troops can train under realistic conditions. But the different services have been unwilling to jointly develop the simulators, preferring to go their own routes instead.

The Air Force is even duplicating its own work. It spent $61.8 million on a simulator for the Strategic Air Command and then decided that the gadget didn't represent all the threats that could face a SAC plane during a long mission. So the Air Force commissioned a better simulator for more than $196 million. The report for Carlucci suggests more sharing of information between the services.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The Soviets claim they are converting a missile-production plant into a factory to turn out baby carriages, all because of the intermediate nuclear forces treaty. Let's pretend for a moment that we believe it. The United States will have to one-up them by converting one of our weapons plants into a day-care center. Not to be outdone, the Soviets will begin producing teddy bears at their SS20 missile plant. Next thing you know, we'll be negotiating the reduction of intermediate range Pampers and Huggies.

YOU DESERVE A NUKE TODAY — The nuclear energy industry is turning to Madison Avenue for some help in polishing its tarnished image. Nuclear power companies are planning magazine ads in Good Housekeeping and Better Homes and Gardens to pitch their product to women readers.

And pro-nuclear ads have been suggested for television to air in May during the mini-series "War and Remembrance," the sequel to the successful "Winds of War." You can also look for nuclear power pitches between innings of the World Series this year.

The industry is trying to reach men and women between the ages of 25 and 64 who have annual household incomes of $30,000 or more. They are the ones most likely to be interested in energy issues.

ECONOMICS — We are confounded by the economic wizards in the White House and on Capitol Hill who whine about every dollar they have to squeeze out of the federal budget, but who manage somehow to maintain a fleet of non-military planes — 1,100 to be exact, costing $650 million a year — for the purpose of sparing public servants the inconvenience of scheduled airline flights.

The argument is that the bureaucrat's time is too important to waste waiting in airports. Never mind that your tax money is too hard-earned to waste on pampering self-important paper pushers.

SLOW BOAT TO SILVER SPRING — Add this to your list of believe-it-or-not tales about wayward mail. Material mailed at the book rate from the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution took 11 days to get from Washington, D.C., to the home of one of our reporters in Silver Spring, Md., a distance of 11 miles.

It's Israel's problem — and ours

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Henry Kissinger has expressed skepticism over the prospects of success for Secretary of State George Shultz in his diplomatic blitzkrieg in which he is determined to square the Mideast circle.

What Henry Kissinger did not say is what everybody knows too well to require saying. The only muscle we have in the situation is our support of Israel, and we are not going to use that muscle.

The conventional way of putting this is that we are not going to use muscle "in an election year." A more accurate way to put it is that we are not going to use that muscle in an election year or in a non-election year.

Quite apart from the geopolitical fact that Israel is a strategic ally, the leverage Israeli loyalists in America exercise on political affairs simply excludes putting hard pressure on Israel.

And nobody except political necrophiliacs is going to come out for suspending aid to Israel until it does our bidding.

by in the United States were as powerful as, say, the Chilean lobby, or the Panamanian lobby. What would we be asking Israel to do, on the assumption that we did not, as in the case of Chile and Panama, desire the destruction of the incumbent governments?

The first thing, surely, is to figure out some formula for recognizing the Palestine Liberation Organization. The arguments against doing so are perfectly plausible, perfectly honorable, perfectly persuasive. But they are serving to subsidize a situation that grows progressively intolerable.

What has been happening now for three months in the West Bank and in Gaza can't go on happening for another 30 months.

This is not the observation of a disinterested political technician. It is the graduating consensus of civil society within Israel. The only way to cope with young men throwing stones is to throw back bigger stones. And bigger stones translates into rubber bullets, lead bullets, beatings, imprisonment, torture and exile.

A country — better, a movement — can get away with that kind of behavior over a short period. The Israelis who fought for independence between 1946 and 1948 were built of outright acts of terrorism.

But these excesses were viewed, and understood, as the awful grinding of gears that accompanies the forward movement of revolutionary activity.

The Israeli government cannot live with itself over a protracted period if it finds that every day, more and more people are mutilated and killed in order to document Israel's right to prevail over 1.5 million Palestinians with a resident force on the order of 75,000. That there should be negotiations is obvious, unless it is equally obvious that neither side is prepared to yield a single inch.

But that is not obvious. The Israelis could agree to negotiate with the PLO after carefully stipulating its reservations. The Palestinians are simply not going to recognize a substitute bargaining entity.

The undeniable requirement of the State of Israel is its security, and the goal for the West Bank ought to be what goes by the name of "an Austrian solution."

Self-rule — but under strict supervision to prevent military or paramilitary concentrations aimed at undermining Israel's security. That is a modest enough goal, but it is better, infinitely better, than the prospects faced now by Israel with its adamant stand against sitting down with the PLO.

Scouting enduring, endearing

Cheers to Girl Scouts of America on its anniversary.

And cheers to all the brother and sister organizations. I recently rejoined Girl Scouts — this time as an adult volunteer.

Throughout my childhood I was a full-fledged Girl Scout and received my First Class (Gold, now) Award. I was told at the time that it would be more meaningful later.

It is. Returning to Girl Scouts 12 years later as an adult, I was surprised to find it standing firm with values I have developed. More accurately, I guess I've discovered I believe strongly in the values that were a part of my Girl Scout experience.

As I see reports daily on rampant drug abuse and teen-age suicide, I see the growing importance of organizations like Boy and Girl Scouts of America.

The value system they represent is becoming rare. And I think young people are searching more than ever today for what they represent.

A recent example is the interest in world hunger. As the role models of teen-agers took up the banner the young people gladly followed. A large organization based in California continues its program of raising funds through a "hunger-thon," which accomplishes its purpose through fasting. It was begun by teen-agers and is still exclusively teen-ager promoted.

But the most important thing I learned as a Girl Scout was about myself — as a woman, an American and a member of society.

An undercurrent of the varied experiences of camping, hiking, community service, needlepoint and uplifting songs is the opportunity for each to discover the potential of who they are and what they can be in the world today. The bottom line is — I can give something to the world.

To be needed is the greatest high of all. Of course, not all the lessons learned in Girl Scouts were exemplary. As a teen-ager I learned of betrayal and rejection when some colleagues formed cliques.

And on one occasion, photographic materials were donated in a paper drive and, under intense pressure from my peers, I took a peek or two.

As I shepherded a troop of girls along the scenic Mountain nature path this week, observing nature through their eyes, seeing their concern for each other and happiness to be together, the importance of needing and helping each other was underscored. We all need to be Girl Scouts — learning, growing and caring together as a human race. And, of course, I also learned to be wary of paper drives.

Teen girls convicted

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Defense attorneys expressed disbelief after a judge convicted two 13-year-old girls of being accessories in the death of a 12-year-old boy forced to drink lighter fluid and suffocated with a plastic bag.

Montgomery County Juvenile Court Judge Arthur O. Fisher on Thursday found the girls guilty of involuntary manslaughter and grand theft because they helped two 15-year-old boys get into the apartment of victim Antonio R. Cooley.

"I had never envisioned her as anything but a material witness," defense attorney Daniel O'Brien said of his client, whose name, like that of the other youngsters in the case, was not released because of their age.

Attorney Risa McCray, who represented the second girl, said Fisher ignored the girls' claims they tried to warn the victim and testimony by a 13-year-old boy backing them up.

"He even ignored the state's own evidence," Ms. McCray said.

The defense attorneys contended the 13-year-old boy kept the girls in a back room while two older boys killed Cooley Feb. 8.

O'Brien said the two older boys had threatened the girls with harm even while in the county detention center.

Writer strike continues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Talks aimed at ending a four-day strike by film and TV scriptwriters broke off Thursday.

In New York, meanwhile, two unions representing 100,000 actors set a March 21 deadline for a strike against makers of TV and radio commercials.

Talks between the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers and the striking Writers Guild of America had gone on here under the auspices of a federal mediator.

A spokesman for the producers, Herb Steinberg, said the scriptwriters' demands are so unrealistic that "further talks would be fruitless. They're not even in the same neighborhood in an assessment of the economics involved."

Senator accused of bias

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham's defense lawyer angered senators by accusing the Senate majority leader of showing "overwhelming" bias against the governor during his impeachment trial.

Jerris Leonard lashed out Thursday at Majority Leader Bob Udane when the Republican lawmaker questioned whether the impeached governor's new lawyers erred when they said weeks ago they were ready to defend Mecham.

Railey

Phone calls cast doubt on actions

DALLAS (AP) — Telephone transcripts casting doubt on former minister Walker Railey's actions the night his wife was almost choked to death were released by a prosecutor who said he wanted to "fill in the blanks."

The transcripts of two calls Railey made to his home answering machine the night of the attack and a note he wrote before attempting suicide 11 days later were made public Thursday by Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne.

In the transcripts, Railey describes his whereabouts in detail, gives times and warns his wife, Margaret "Peggy" Railey, to lock the garage door.

Railey, 40, told police he found his wife unconscious in the garage with a cord wrapped around her neck when he came home early April 21. Mrs. Railey remains in a coma.

Railey, senior pastor at First United Methodist Church and a rising star in the United Methodist Church, took an overdose of pills in an unsuccessful suicide attempt May 2, the day police said they planned to interview him.

After reportedly refusing 43 times to testify before a grand jury, he resigned and moved to San Francisco, leaving his wife and children, ages 2 and 5, in Texas.

Kinne said he didn't have the evidence to bring Railey to trial.

"I feel like this may very well be the last anyone is hearing of this, and I want to fill in the blanks as much as I can," the prosecutor said.

The answering machine transcripts point out a number of discrepancies.

In one call, Railey said he was phoning around 10:30 p.m. and had a couple more hours of research to do at a Southern Methodist University library.

However, telephone company records indicate Railey made the call from his mobile phone at 12:04 a.m., and library employees couldn't recall seeing Railey when he claimed he was there, Kinne said.

Railey explained he had to leave the library when it closed and was on his way to another, and later called to say he was on his way home.

"I'm not calling on the private line because I know you're already asleep," he said in that message, "but in case you get up with the kids, I just wanted you to know that I'm on my way home. It's 12:30. I'll be home by about 12:45. Love you, dear. Bye Bye."

Railey called police about 15 minutes later to report he had found his wife unconscious.

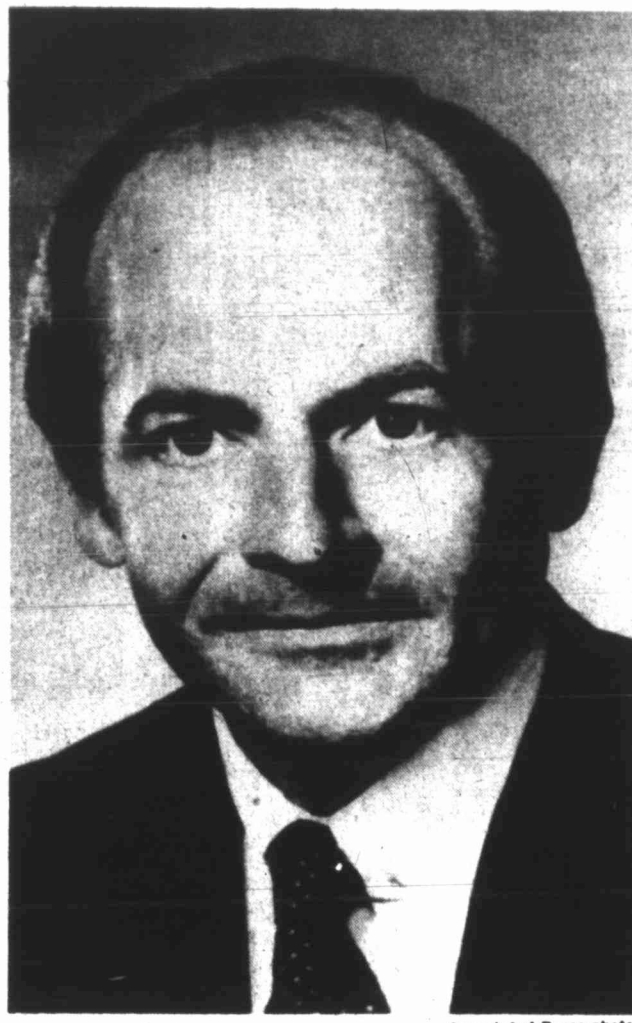

In the four-page suicide note, he described himself as "the weakest of the weak ... the baddest of the bad ... and the lowest of the low."

He said he was taking his life because "a demon inside my soul ... has finally gotten the upper hand ... (and) lured me into doing things I do not want to do."

Other parts of the note were published earlier. Railey has said the letter reflected his despondency.

Kinne also said he discovered that Railey spent more than an hour that night at the home of psychologist Lucy Papillon, who reportedly told grand jurors she and Railey were having an affair.

DALLAS — This is an undated file photo of Walker Railey, former minister of the First United Methodist Church in Dallas. Railey's wife, Peggy, was found strangled and almost killed in April by an unknown assailant. Transcripts of phone calls he made the night of her death conflict with statements made to the police.

therefore he strangled his wife," the prosecutor said.

Kinne initially refused to release the transcripts, prompting ABC News to file suit. The suit failed but Kinne decided to release the material after an appeals court ruled it was up to local officials to decide the issue.

The telephone at Railey's San Francisco apartment is unlisted, and Railey could not be reached for comment Thursday. Railey leased the apartment with Ms. Papillon.

Mrs. Railey's mother and legal guardian, Billy Jo Nicolai, has filed a civil suit against Railey accusing him of the attack on her daughter.

Avalanche kills one

KLOSTERS, Switzerland (AP) — Prince Charles was reported found trembling and weeping after an avalanche swept two close friends in his skiing party down a steep, unmarked Alpine slope, killing one and breaking the other's legs.

Charles, the Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, escaped unhurt.

The loose snow cascaded down as Charles, 39, and five companions were skiing Thursday at about 5,800 feet in an area of the Swiss Alps that authorities earlier in the day warned was prone to avalanches. The area was off the main skiing trails.

Charles' wife, Diana, and sister-in-law, the Duchess of York, were safe in a chalet when the avalanche struck.

Maj. Hugh Lindsay, 34, was killed on the spot. Patricia Palmer-Tomkinson was knocked unconscious and suffered fractures on both legs.

Charles helped dig the injured and unconscious Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson from under the snow. He also aided in freeing the body of Lindsay, said Press Association, the British domestic news agency.

The two victims had been swept about 400 yards down the slope.

Panama banks closed

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The military regime of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega made its army payroll, but Panama's deposed president and economists predicted it will not be able to pay civil servants next week.

That could further erode support for the general, chief of the 15,000-strong Panama Defense Forces and considered the real power behind Panama's civilian government.

The government had to withdraw substantial funds from the central National Bank of Panama and divert receipts from state-owned utilities in order to back the army payroll Thursday, diplomatic sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

In other developments Thursday, Panama's banks defied a government order to reopen on a limited scale, saying there simply wasn't enough cash available to do business.

Andy Gibb dead at 30

LONDON (AP) — Pop singer and former teen idol Andy Gibb was ready to begin work on a new album and apparently hoped to revive a dormant career sidelined by drugs and personal problems when he died suddenly at the age of 30.

Gibb, who followed his brothers, the Bee Gees, to pop stardom in the late 1970s, died Thursday in an Oxford hospital after complaining of stomach pains.

TRUST IN THE LORD, FOR HE KNOWS BEST WHERE YOU BELONG

Throughout our lives we become involved in many activities and associations, some of which are worthy causes and others, lost causes. This could apply to a job, a relationship with another person, or a volunteer organization to which we have given many hours or years of service. Nonetheless, there may come a time when it is best to bow out; perhaps someone else is equipped to do in a few seconds on a computer what would have taken us hours by hand, and so forth. Moreover, a change of job may be indicated, in favor of another one more suited to our abilities. Perhaps there is also another project more in need of our time and talents. Your faith at your House of Worship teaches you to arrange your priorities and review the pattern of your life now and then. In any case, let the Lord place you wherever He sees fit. He knows better than you do where you belong.

The season when to come and when to go, I can never know.

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of major U.S. Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic bodies have declared their solidarity with 18 organizations effectively silenced by South Africa's government for opposing apartheid.

Officials of the National Council of Churches, including Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, pledged continued backing of the anti-apartheid efforts, and urged U.S. sanctions against South Africa to spur "peaceful change."

Archbishop John L. May of St. Louis, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, called the new repressive measures an "intolerable affront to the dignity" of South Africans, and voiced support of those working for "a more just and democratic society."

Bishop's job more than tending the store

AUSTIN (AP) — Catholics have trouble keeping their purses shut when faced with the missionary zeal and Irish charm of the Most Rev. John Edward McCarthy, Bishop of the Diocese of Austin.

Attorney Jerry Bell first witnessed the phenomenon while serving on the board of directors of Marywood Maternity and Adoption Services. "We were in the middle of a $2 million fundraising project when McCarthy took over," he said. "He has this tremendous charisma that attracts volunteers. We raised the money largely because of his influence."

Since he was appointed Christmas Eve 1985, the bishop has demonstrated a preference for action over talk.

"I don't think we should just be tending the store," said McCarthy, 57. "In the east part of the diocese we go after lapsed Catholics. In the west, we open small missions. We also support efforts such as Ethiopian relief and other ministries abroad."

McCarthy sighed in mock exasperation. "My suggestions are not always embraced with great zeal," he said.

But the bishop meets challenges with the relish of a Notre Dame coach facing a game with archrival Southern Cal.

Archbishop Patrick Flores of San Antonio, who met McCarthy at St. Mary's Seminary in Houston 38 years ago, recalled his classmate's pugnacity. "No one could win arguments like he could," Flores said.

"He's still a fighting Irishman in the sense that he's a real go-getter. He's a hard worker for the poor, the church and the community."

McCarthy accepted the archbishop's appraisal. "I've always waded through a sea of controversy," he said. "I'm not a milquetoast bishop. I've dealt with farm labor, low-income housing and social justice. I want to help the poor. But I'm also interested in trying to correct the reasons why they are poor."

The bishop's record reflects his concerns. He has served as director of the Division for Poverty Programs for the U.S. Catholic Conference, board member of the Catholic Relief Service and executive director of the Bishops Committee for Spanish Speaking in San Antonio. He currently serves on the Administrative Board of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

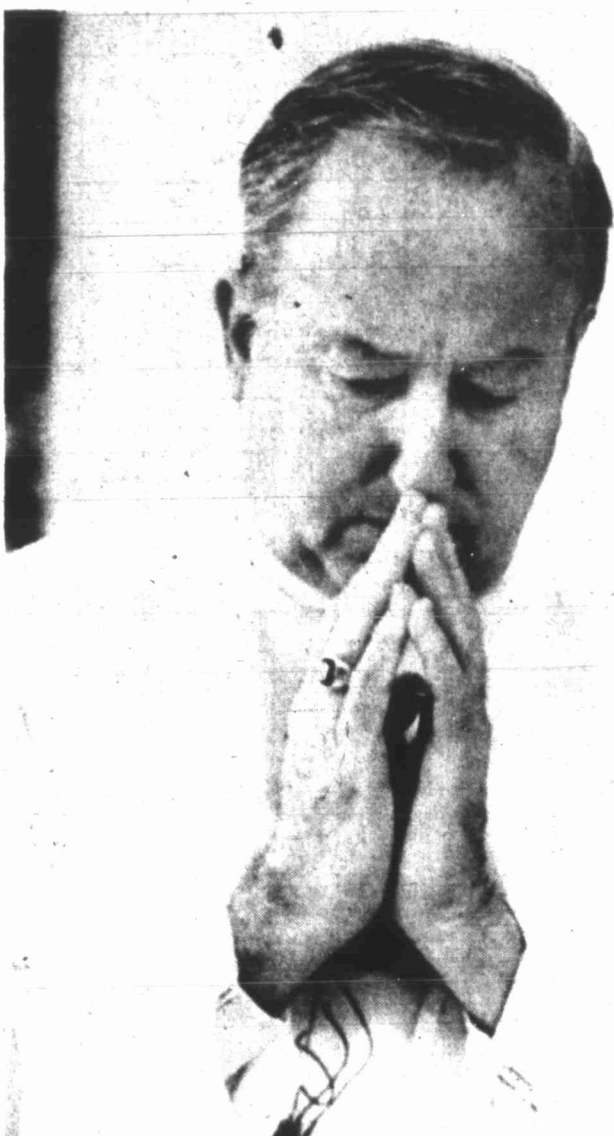

Few CEOs face duties and responsibilities equal to those carried by the bishop of a major diocese. McCarthy is spiritual leader of 250,000 Catholics living in 27 counties. He oversees 116 parishes and missions; six hospitals, including Austin's Seton Medical Center and Holy Cross; St. Edward's University; and the Catholic parochial school system in Central Texas.

The bishop, however, gets help managing the flock. The diocese is run by more than 500 lay employees and teachers, 135 sisters, 35 brother and 168 priests. Unlike many areas in the country, Central Texas has a full complement of ordained Catholics.

"We've got a good group of priests," said McCarthy in a folksy baritone reminiscent of TV journalist Charles Kuralt. "Many are tough country boys from towns like Granger. We're still a diocese of small towns — repositories of the values that produced so many priests in the past."

McCarthy arrived in Austin as a seasoned administrator. He served as auxiliary bishop of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston for seven years before moving to the capital. He served in Austin as executive director of the Texas Catholic Conference, headquartered at St. Edward's University, from 1973 to 1979.

"He has turned the image of the Catholic Church in Austin around," Jerry Bell said. "Previous bishops never got out to meet the people like a Boston city councilman campaigning for reelection. His goal is to meet every Catholic in the diocese."

AUSTIN — The Most Rev. John Edward McCarthy, bishop of the diocese of Austin, prays during Mass at the Catholic Chancery Chapel. "I renew my vocation every morning," he says. "I didn't just answer the call one day in 1953."

McCarthy fondly remembers his childhood, though his father died when John was 18 months old and the family had little income. He and his brother and two sisters lived on a Houston bayou, a natural playground where they hunted rabbits and squirrels.

His mother, the late Grace O'Brien McCarthy, was an opinionated, Irish Catholic from New York. Like her son, the bishop, she was interested in politics and quick to defend her positions.

Linares to preach Sunday

Dr. Thomas Linares, principal of Hillcrest Christian School, will preach at the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services Sunday at Hillcrest Baptist Church, 2000 W. FM 700.

Linares, who has served as principal for the past seven months, is a licensed minister, who supply preaches in Howard County, speaks at youth engagements, and teaches a discipleship class every Sunday at 5 p.m. at the church.

He will conduct a Sunday School workshop March 19, from 9 a.m. to noon at Midway Baptist Church.

On April 3, Linares will perform in Hillcrest Baptist Church's Resurrection Rally/Easter play, which will be conducted in the Big Spring High School auditorium. He has the lead role as Jesus.

Pastor shares St. Patrick and Irish history

By Rev. STEPHEN WHITE Special to the Herald

St. Patrick's Day is upon us again. The green and the shamrocks are coming into view.

Many groups in cities all over the world are preparing to celebrate St. Patrick's Day.

The Irish celebrate because they are proud of St. Patrick and his heritage. Fellow citizens will join them as they make everyone feel at home. The Irish enjoy music, dance and blarney.

Historians, secular and religious, have not been able to agree as to where St. Patrick was born or if, really, there was only one Apostle of Ireland.

These are matters of discussion for specialists.

It is a fact that Ireland was converted to Catholicism. That accomplishment is attributed to St. Patrick.

Ireland is still 95 percent Catholic in spite of great religious tribulations.

The Irish were explorers when they picked up St. Patrick in a foreign land. They have not lost that spirit of adventure. They and their descendants are found everywhere.

REV. STEPHEN WHITE

Although, they have not yet succeeded in winning freedom for all of Ireland, they always join freedom fighters wherever they find themselves.

The Irish died in the Alamo; they fought for Texas' independence. It is estimated that over one-third of Washington's Revolutionary Army were Irishmen.

The Irish always thank St. Patrick for their strong religious faith. Besides being committed Catholics wherever they went, we do have examples of Irish women and men adding their numbers to other Christian traditions where they found it impossible to practice the faith of their forefathers.

The temperament of the majority of the Irish is sanguine. They react spontaneously and forcibly to injustice and love.

The Irish are fun-loving. The shamrock has a special religious significance.

The Irish countryside possesses a special, complex type of green. It is said to contain 40 shades.

The Irish used a peculiar type of speech and spun "yarns" — stories — long before it got the name "blarney."

This year's St. Patrick's Day celebration in Big Spring will begin at 7 p.m. March 17 with Mass at Sacred Heart Church, 508 N. Aylford St.

After Mass, there will be a social gathering in the Youth Center, and a forum on St. Patrick and Ireland.

Come and hear Irish music, see Irish scenery and enjoy refreshments.

Rev. White is pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church.

Gary Hart drops out; 'I got a fair hearing'

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart ended his on-again, off-again bid for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination today, saying, "I got a fair hearing and ... I should not go forward."

It was the second withdrawal for the man who once was the prohibitive front-runner for his party's nomination, coming 10 months after he quit because of questions concerning his relationship with Miami model Donna Rice.

Flanked by members of his family, Hart told a news conference that when he rejoined the race last December, he said he wanted to "let the people decide."

"I got a fair hearing and the people have decided and now I should not go forward," he declared.

The former Colorado senator departed with words of praise for the surviving Democratic contenders, but cautioned them not to forego the tough attacks that have characterized the early primary states.

"Now that there are fewer candidates there should be more debates," he said.

Hart's announcement capped a story as bizarre as any in modern presidential politics.

He was the overwhelming favorite for the nomination when he announced his bid a year ago, but his campaign self-destructed in the springtime scandal.

He plunged back into the campaign last December, vowing to "let the people decide." He briefly soared in the polls, but it quickly became clear the voters were deciding he wasn't their man, relegating him to the back of the pack in the early primaries and caucuses.

Open house scheduled; art show hosted

An open house, marking the first anniversary of The Corral, Big Spring State Hospital's outreach activity center, will be hosted Sunday, from 1 to 3 p.m.

The center, located in The Corral building at 611 East Third St., officially opened in February 1987 to offer structured therapeutic recreation to former clients of Big Spring State Hospital and its accompanying community programs.

"When the center first opened, we were seeing about eight clients per day, and that figure has increased to more than 25 per day," Green noted.

"Members can participate in a variety of activities: ping pong, shuffle board, bingo, movies, parties, and table games."

Currently, the center is open Tuesday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is closed Sunday and Monday.

Transportation is provided for members who live too far away to make it to the center on their own, Green added. Coffee and tea are provided free to members.

The primary goal of the Corral center is to provide recreational and socialization activities for Big Spring State Hospital clients — past and present.

Clients who have received care through the Howard County Outreach Center also are eligible to participate in the programs. At present, The Corral has more than 100 members.

In addition to Elroy Green, The Corral is staffed by Veta Colvin, assistant director, and three workers from the hospital's Career Village. Several members also volunteer to help with activities.

"We feel that this center offers a real community service," Green said. "And, we would like to have community guests at this open house."

An Arts and Crafts show began at 10 a.m. in the Tollett All Faith Chapel classroom at the Big Spring State Hospital.

The show provided patients with an opportunity to display the different types of arts and crafts they have learned while in the hospital.

Many of the patients in art, therapeutic arts and crafts, and work therapy are proud of the projects which they have completed in these activities, said Kathy Higgins, public information officer for the Big Spring State Hospital.

These patients have expressed an interest in sharing what they have accomplished with their peers and the hospital staff.

"We have many talented people and they take pride in the work they do," said Higgins.

Trophies were awarded to Grand Champion and Reserve Champion. Ribbons were awarded to the first, second, and third place winners in the following categories:

Woodworking, woodburning, painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics, needlework, and leather work.

Each entrant also received a ribbon for participating in the show.

105 clients participated in the show, said Sonya Swindell, administrative technician for volunteer services.

Grand Champion is Tony Car-

Dollars and sense don't mix

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who was dunned for months by the General Telephone Co. of Holiday, Fla., for a 1-cent bill reminded me of my own experience.

My dear departed wife left me one share of some vague stock that earns 8 cents a quarter — that's 32 cents per year! I have pleaded with the bank that sends me these "8-cent checks" to forget the whole thing, as my CPA, in preparing my tax returns, charges me the same amount to report that one share as all the other earnings — $10 for each listing.

I have subscribed to a soft-water service for 30 years, never missing a payment and always punctual. Recently, I received a threatening, dunning computer printout in red to show that I was "seriously in arrears in my payments," and if I didn't send my 6 cents immediately, service would be discontinued and legal action taken.

Dear Abby
Dutifully I endorsed one of my quarterly 8-cent checks and sent it to the company requesting that a check for 2 cents be returned to me. In due course, the check for 2 cents arrived. Any company that uses computers and doesn't have a built-in sense of humor is in trouble. I canceled that purified water service, am now drinking water from my tap, and I never felt better in my life.

Carter: Demos expect strong ticket

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says this year's Democratic National Convention will help produce a strong presidential ticket, unlike recent "circus" atmosphere conventions that weakened the nominee.

Carter, who spent Thursday at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy as a Hedrick Fellow, said he emerged from both conventions that nominated him for president "weaker than I went in" because too many delegates used the occasions as platforms for their own issues.

"Democratic conventions were a circus," he said at a news conference after conducting an informal class for cadets majoring in international relations and government.

"We had nominees wounded and bleeding," he said, praising the current party leadership for "making sure delegates are committed to winning — not just highlighting their own individual causes."

Carter said he can't tell who will prevail at the convention, but it will be difficult for any candidate to get 50 percent of the delegates on the first ballot.

"I've got an open mind about it," he said. "What happens during the campaign will be an indication of who will do well in November when they run against George Bush."

Even candidates can get locked out

CHICAGO (AP) — As if stopping the momentum of his rival Democrats wasn't enough to worry about, presidential contender Richard Gephardt was hard-pressed just to get on the road for a day of campaigning.

Secret Service agents and Chicago police struggled for more than 45 minutes Thursday to open a burgundy Cadillac inside which a Gephardt aide had locked the keys. The car was parked at Midway Airport, where the Missouri congressman arrived in the late afternoon in preparation for Thursday night's Democratic Unity Dinner.

While the agents and police worked on the parked car, Gephardt was taken to a nearby office where he had to fend off reporters asking whether his campaign had run out of gas.

"We're campaigning as hard as we can in Illinois, in Michigan and in all the other states," he said.

Gephardt, eventually taken away in a second car, declined to predict his finish in Illinois' primary on Tuesday, but added, "We're going to do well."

Despite error, Robertson still on top

SEATTLE (AP) — Three days after Super Tuesday, Republican officials say human error skewed the reported results of Washington state's precinct-level GOP caucuses, but not enough to change the order of finish that put Pat Robertson on top.

Robertson won 39 percent of the Republican delegates picked Tuesday night to attend county or legislative district conventions where another slate of delegates will be picked for the state convention. Sen. Bob Dole won 26 percent and Vice President George Bush, 24 percent.

John Meyers, executive director of the state GOP, said reporting errors occurred when precinct caucus results were phoned in to the News Election Service, and that these errors first were noted by the Dole campaign.

Meyers said most involved precinct chairmen reporting straw vote totals rather than the number of pledged delegates they would send to their next convention. Others reported delegates and alternates together, he said.

"The mistakes weren't enough to change the overall results," Meyers said. "When you've got almost 4,000 precincts some mistakes are going to be made."

The result was that NES reported more delegates committed than possible for the 71 percent sample of Tuesday night. Some precincts didn't report.

Vance noted that it would be the July 15 state convention when delegates would be allocated and until then, "no one won here on Super Tuesday."

Sidewinders spring into glory

Tracy Carpenter exhibits her skill on the uneven parallel bars during a Wednesday practice session.

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Chances are, you don't think of youngsters performing seemingly impossible feats in midair when you hear the word "sidewinders." But there's a group of Sidewinders in Big Spring — the YMCA gymnastics team — who do precisely that. Coach Russ McEwen's squad has produced a trio of youngsters with star potential.

"We have three girls competing in the optional level," McEwen said. "There are four classes — really five, but in Texas we don't compete in class five. The entry level is class four, and the first competition is the compulsory. The next level is the optional, and then above that there's class three."

"We have two girls who qualified for the semifinals in class three optional, and one girl who's qualified in the state semifinals."

McEwen said the two girls, Kendra Carey and Erin Roberts, who qualified for semifinals recently competed for a chance to advance to the state level in United States Gymnastics Federation competition, but did not qualify.

Tracy Carpenter has qualified for state semifinals, and will compete Saturday and Sunday in Fort Worth in an effort to earn a place in the state finals, which will be April 9-10 in Houston.

McEwen is confident of his gymnast's ability to qualify for that honor. His entire squad will travel to several other meets in coming months, he said.

"We'll have the West Texas YMCA gymnastics championships here in Big Spring April 16, and a state Y meet in Midland the first weekend in May," McEwen said.

Four girls — Carpenter, Karen Neighbors, Roberts and Sara McCarter — will be competing in the YMCA nationals in Boston, Mass., in June, McEwen said.

He said compulsory routines were precisely that — written out in excruciating detail and judged on the girls' ability to precisely follow the demanding instructions.

"But in the optionals, they have the option to do a routine on the floor, the beam, the bars and then whatever vault they want to do. We choreograph it and each one actually does two routines: the compulsory and the optional."

McEwen said class II competition is the next step above the difficulty of class III, and then the gymnasts move into class I. Beyond that level is the elite class. "Elite is the Olympics," McEwen said.

That's where Tracy Carpenter's aspirations point her efforts. Carpenter is an attractive 15-year-

Tankers head to regional meet Saturday

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Eight members of the Big Spring High School swim team will be competing in the Region I swim meet at the Texas Tech University Recreational Aquatic Center Saturday.

For the second consecutive year coach Harlan Smith will be taking his entire team to the regional meet, a competition where it's very hard to qualify for state.

Unlike other high school sports where each school competes in its respective classification, all classes of swimmers compete against each other at regional.

That means Class A to 5-A swimmers will be competing together. "That's because there is not as many swimming schools in the state, compared to other sports," explained Big Spring coach Smith.

"But if you make it to Austin, it's truly a state meet, and only the best in the state get there."

To qualify for state, a swimmer or diver gets an automatic bid for finishing first in regional. The next best eight times from the eight regions qualify for state. Not an easy task.

JOHNNY WEBB

JANIE GONZALES

The top six swimmers in the regional prelims make the finals.

But Smith says his main goal is to get experience for his group of young swimmers, which features only two seniors.

"I'm looking to improve time, get some good swims," said Smith.

"It'll give the young kids experience. Hopefully they'll enjoy it, stay in the program, and want to go back next year. This is a good bunch of kids. If they stay in the program, it could be the start of a good program," Smith said.

The girl tankers are led by senior Janie Gonzales, who will be competing in the 200 yard individual medley and 500 yard freestyle.

Sophomore Erica Clarkson will compete in the 200 freestyle and 100 freestyle, while frosh Sally Lopez will swim the 100 butterfly.

Top hopeful for the boys is sophomore Johnny Webb in the 200 and 500 freestyle. Webb set school records in both this season.

Smith likes Webb's chances in the 500.

"More than likely Johnny Webb will get into the finals," said Smith. "With his time and what I've seen from the other districts, he's got a shot at third place."

The boys 200 medley relay of senior Mark Lynch, freshman Shane Anderson, sophomore Doug Logan and sophomore Tommy Juarez will be competing.

Logan, Mark Lynch, Juarez and Webb will compete in the 400 freestyle relay.

Logan also qualified in the 100 butterfly.

Swimmers will begin warmups at 7:30 a.m. Saturday. The swimming prelims start at 9 a.m. Women's diving begins at 2 p.m. and men's diving follows at 4:15. Swimming finals begins at 6:45 p.m.

Finley gets Iraan job

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

IRAAN — Big Spring High School assistant football coach Mickey Finley was hired for the dual post of head football coach and athletic director here Thursday night, according to school superintendent Roy Dodd.

Finley, a former head coach at Klondike and Comanche, whose most recent assignment in his 14-year coaching career was as a defensive coordinator for the Steers — for which he also served as interim head coach following Quinn Eudy's resignation — will assume his new duties as soon as appropriate arrangements can be made with Big Spring Independent School District, Dodd said early today.

"We're excited about having Coach Finley," Dodd said. "We feel we have gotten one of the finest coaches in the state of Texas. We feel his track record will prove that we have gained an excellent coach."

"He's been a winner at Klondike and a winner at Comanche," Dodd said. "Our students compete real well, and we're looking forward to having Coach Finley here."

Iraan, a 5-2A school and a small 2A district, Dodd said, has 142 high school students with a graduating class of 29. The football team has been in the state playoffs for five consecutive years, Dodd said, and has been to the state quarterfinals two of the past five years. Last year, the Braves finished the season with a .500 record at 5-5, in what the superintendent called "a bad year."

District foes for Finley's Braves will be Presidio, a 206-mile one-way trip, Stanton, McCamey, Marfa and Van Horn.

Finley graduated from Andrews High School and took a degree from Angelo State University in 1974 before embarking on his coaching career. He served for 10 of his 14 years as a head coach.

"He's a super fellow," said Dodd. "He has talked with all the coaches in our district, and it appears that all our coaches will be staying with Coach Finley."

"He replaces Steve Maurer, who has asked to be reassigned within the district as a biology teacher," Dodd said. "He will be teaching two classes in the fall, when he has football, and will pick up four classes in the spring."

Salary details were not settled yet, Dodd said.

MIAMI, Fla. — A lusty swing by New York Mets' Gary Carter results in only a foul tip during Wednesday's 11-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in a spring training game at Bobby Maduro Stadium.

Raines still smashing baseballs

By The Associated Press

Tim Raines went 2-for-3 with a homer to raise his spring batting average to .588, leading the Montreal Expos to a 6-0 victory Thursday over the Baltimore Orioles. Tim Wallach and Alonzo Powell also homered for the Expos.

Spring

Training

Dennis Martinez and three other pitchers combined to shut out the Orioles on nine hits. Martinez worked three innings, allowing five hits — all singles — for the victory. "This is my best spring since my rookie year in 1981," said Raines, who was forced to sit out until May 1st year when he failed in his free agent bid to switch teams. "I'm just excited about playing baseball this year."

Mike Morgan, 1-1, worked four innings, giving up five hits and three runs to take the loss.

Yankees 8, Rangers 6
Rickey Henderson homered twice, singled and scored another run to lead the Yankees over Texas. Henderson's first homer led off the game, and his second broke a 4-4 tie with two out in the fifth.

Pete O'Brien hit his second home run of the season leading off the second inning for Texas.

Phillies 10, Reds 3
Mike Schmidt drove in three runs, two with his first spring homer, as Philadelphia beat Cincinnati. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Reds.

Schmidt's third-inning homer came off Jack Armstrong after Chris James had doubled. The homer was only the second this spring for the Phillies. Schmidt also drove in a run in Philadelphia's four-run fifth inning.

Kevin Gross pitched the first four innings for the Phillies, allowing one run on three hits.

Rebels, Cougars get close wins in conference tournament play

By The Associated Press
Nevada-Las Vegas and Brigham Young were expected to be challenged in their conference tournaments. They just didn't think it would happen so soon.

The Runnin' Rebels, ranked seventh and top seed in the PCAA, were pushed by Fullerton State before surviving 61-56 in a first-round game. BYU, ranked 17th, had even more trouble — and on its home court, no less, against a last-place team. The Cougars edged Hawaii 76-74.

Two teams earned NCAA bids with conference tournament championships Thursday night. Fairleigh Dickinson beat Monmouth 90-75 for the ECAC Metro crown, while North Texas State took the Southland with an 87-70 victory over Northeast Louisiana.

College

Hoops

In the only regular-season contest involving a ranked team, No. 15 Iowa routed Wisconsin 103-70.

Pacific Coast
UNLV had just enough to avoid the upset. Clint Rossum had all of his 10 points in the second half and played an especially significant role after Jarvis Basnight fouled out with 3:54 to go.

Richard Morton had 28 points for the Titans, who never trailed by more than six points.

The victory was the 500th for Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian. But, as he watched the game he began to worry that he would be stuck on 499.

Wayne Engelstad had 31 points and a season-high 15 rebounds for Cal-Irvine, which had lost three straight before surprising Long Beach State 74-69. Andre Purry scored 26 points for the fourth-seeded 49ers, who ended the season 17-11.

Cal-Irvine plays UNLV tonight.

Dan Conway scored a career-high 28 points as second-seeded Utah State got past San Jose State 80-72. Reid Newey added 22 points for the Aggies, 19-9.

Brian Shaw and Mike Doyle scored 13 points apiece for Santa Barbara, which led most of the way. But New Mexico State took a 38-35 lead with 11:57 left to play before Doyle hit two consecutive baskets and Shaw hit three in a row, including a 3-pointer to cap a 13-4 run.

Western Athletic
Brigham Young nearly wound up on the sidelines in an embarrassing manner. The Cougars, who managed just a two-point victory at Hawaii this season, barely survived on their home court against the 4-25 Rainbows.

A tip-in by Jeff Chatman with 1:43 remaining was the difference in the game, which ended after four shots by Hawaii failed to drop in the final seconds.

Chatman finished with 21 points and 12 rebounds and Jim Usevitch had 18 points and 13 rebounds for old, slight and flexible in appearance. In midair her birdlike delicacy of build brings her into her own: she is all movement and grace.

Carpenter stays with gymnastics because of its challenge, she said. "I think it's a fun thing to do, and also it keeps you out of a lot of the trouble you could get into. We practice about three to 3½ hours a day, sometimes Monday through Saturday and other times Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

"When I was little, instead of walking around the house I'd do rolls and I was always climbing on the furniture, so my parents put me in a dance-and-tumbling class, and I ended up doing more tumbling.

"It's hard work, but I want to go to the Olympics. I know that's going to be a lot of work." She has been working toward that goal for nine years, and won't stop soon.

Kendra Carey is a brown-eyed 11-year-old, already a veteran of nine years in gymnastics. Her start in the sport was a doctor's idea.

"I'm blind in one eye," Carey said, "and my eye doctor told my parents it would be good for me to get into (gymnastics) to use my eye muscles.

"I've just been in it ever since." She said her lack of vision hampers her in balance beam particularly, "because you can't really focus on it."

But to see her in practice is to disbelieve she could be impaired.

Karen Neighbors, also 11, has been in gymnastics for approximately six years. A cheerful girl with a red ponytail, Neighbors said she enjoyed gymnastics because, "It's hard and challenging, but you really can't get hurt that badly in it."

Both girls compete in class III AO, advanced optionals, in which they say "the tricks are harder, and each trick counts more."

All three girls were quick to praise their coach, McEwen.

"Russ works here out of his own time," Carpenter said. "He doesn't get paid or anything, he just does it for us, and we really appreciate everything he's done for us."

Tracy is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Carpenter; Kendra is the daughter of Gary Don and Donna Carey, and Karen is the daughter of James and Linda Neighbors, all of Big Spring.

ECAC Metro
Fairleigh Dickinson beat New Jersey rival Monmouth as Jamie Latney scored a career-high 39 points, 30 in the first half. He set a conference tourney points mark as FDU, 23-6, won for the 18th time in its last 20 games.

The loss ended a surprisingly strong run for tiny Monmouth, which was playing in its first Division I postseason tournament.

The Knights opened a 10-0 lead and never looked back. Latney hit FDU's first four baskets.

"That probably was the best half of basketball I have ever seen anyone play, and I have been involved in college basketball for 17 years," Knights Coach Tom Green said.

Southland
Playing on its home court, North Texas State struggled for a half, then blew out Northeast Louisiana. Tony Worrell, the league's player of the year, scored 33 points, 20 in the first half, and freshman Ronnie Morgan added 19 as NTSU, 17-12, earned its first NCAA bid in the school's 72-year history.

Sprints of nine and eight points put the game away for the Eagles, who have won 11 straight games.

Wichita Falls Hirschi beat San Antonio Alamo Heights 70-54.

The Class A semifinal winners were defending champ Paducah, a 62-49 victor over Graford, and Livingston Big Sandy, a 72-71 overtime winner over Ladonia Fannin.

All finals are Saturday.

Lincoln, 28-4, was led by Marlon Jackson's 13 points, including a game-winning layup, in its 4A win over Lancaster, 28-3.

Lancaster led 58-54 with 2 minutes, 17 seconds to play in regulation time. But Lincoln tied it at 59 with 44 seconds to lay when Bryan Sallier hit two free throws for the final points before the overtime.

Jerrold Wright gave Lancaster the lead at 62-61 when he hit a free throw with 1:38 to play in the extra period. But Jackson hit a layup 16 seconds later to give the Bumblebees the lead for good.

Rodden Green added a Lincoln free throw for the final margin.

Thomas Hill led Lancaster with 25 points.

In the other 4A semifinal Wichita Falls Hirschi used a running offense and 22 points from Reggie Flenoy to beat Alamo Heights, which was led by Rob Stevens' 15 points.

Hirschi, 25-8, built a 33-11 halftime lead over Alamo Heights, 31-4, and was never threatened in the second half.

West Oso, 34-2, advanced to the Class 3A final against Sweeney by getting 19 points each from Lance Harper and Brian Green in its win over Wills Point, 27-8. The losing Tigers were led by Chris Howard's 16 points.

Black scores seven birdies
CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Birdies, even eagles, are not all that uncommon on the PGA Tour. But sea gulls?

Ronnie Black scored seven birdies in a wind-blown, rain-dampened 67 that gave him the first round lead in the $700,000 Honda Classic. And Fred Wadsworth scored two eagles in a round of 69.

Brad Faxon managed a 70, despite an encounter with a meddlesome sea gull that prompted an arm-waving run by a marshal and a ruling by a chuckling PGA Tour official.

There were few chuckles from the players, however.

"The conditions were just awful," Faxon said of the wind and rain.

The rains lifted in the afternoon, but the winds became even more severe.

He was tied at 69 with Wadsworth and Ken Brown of Scotland. Joey Sindelar was second alone at 68.

Tech women in finals

DALLAS (AP) — After failing to make a field goal all night, Texas Tech's Stacey Seibert made the one that counted and even got fouled in the bargain.

The sophomore center converted the three-point play as the Red Raiders edged Houston 60-59 Thursday to gain a spot in Saturday's Southwest Conference Tournament final.

The No. 3 seeded Raiders face top seed Texas, which defeated Texas A&M 72-56 in Thursday's other semifinal game.

With the Red Raiders down 59-57 with :06 remaining, sophomore Stacey Seibert was fouled by Houston's Sallie Routt while sinking a rebound of her own shot to tie the game.

Down 30-26 at the half, Houston came back to take the lead at 12:39 with four unanswered buckets. The teams traded leads down the stretch until a foul by Reena Lynch sent Barbara Anderson to the line for Tech, where she hit both ends of a one-and-one to put the Red Raiders up 59-57 with :32 remaining.

TEXAS 72, TEXAS A&M 56
The Longhorns' 100th consecutive SWC victory was never in jeopardy as Texas led for the final 36 minutes of the game.

SWC Player of the Year Yulonda Wimbish had 21 points and Beverly Williams added 15 in the win. Doreatha Conwell was the third Longhorn starter in double figures in a game where the team shot 31.3 percent from the field in the second half.

"We had a great deal of difficulty with momentum and intensity," said Texas Coach Jody Conradt. "Our attention span was not what it should be."

"I'm proud of this team in terms of being able to hang in there and get to the finals, which is what we set out to do."

The Aggies' appearance in the semifinal came after a year's absence from the tournament. Donna Roper led all scorers with 22 points, while Lisa Jordan added 14 before fouling out with 3:01 to play.

"We played very hard and I am very proud of this team," said Texas A&M Coach Lynn Hickey. "They've had a lot of accomplishments this year."

Paduach 62-49 winner

AUSTIN (AP) — Defending Class 3A state champ Sweeney is back in the boys state basketball finals, thanks to a 36-point offensive show by Benford Williams.

The 6-foot-5 senior was near perfect in the Bulldog's 67-53 semifinal win Thursday over Dimmitt. Williams, a Texas Longhorn signee, missed his first three-point try, and then didn't miss again from the field.

He hit 13 of 14 shots, including seven of eight three-pointers in a performance that dazzled the crowd.

Sweeney advanced to Saturday's 3A title game against Corpus Christi West Oso, a 68-57 Thursday winner over Wills Point.

In Class 4A semifinals, top-ranked Port Arthur Lincoln edged Lancaster 64-62 in overtime and Wichita Falls Hirschi beat San Antonio Alamo Heights 70-54.

He was tied at 69 with Wadsworth and Ken Brown of Scotland. Joey Sindelar was second alone at 68.

Faxon and 16 others, including Paul Azinger and Curtis Strange, were tied at 70.

But all were upstaged by the sea gull.

Faxon, Bruce Fleisher and Bruce Lietzke, playing the first hole of the TPC course at Eagle Trace, all hit their drives down the middle of the fairway.

"But when we got down there," Faxon said, "there were only two balls in the fairway. The marshal came running out to tell us about the sea gull."

It seems the gull scooped up Faxon's ball in his beak, flew 50 yards into the rough and deposited the ball into a hazard, about a foot from a lake.

The bird then returned to the fairway and was nudging Fleisher's ball in the same direction when the shouting, arm-waving marshal scared it away.

"We didn't know what to do," Faxon said. "So we called for a ruling. When (PGA Tour official) Mike Shea got there, we told him about it. He started laughing. First time I ever saw an official laughing when he made a ruling."

Pirates 2, Tigers 1

Darnell Coles homered in his first spring at-bat, and Doug Drabek pitched three scoreless innings to lead Pittsburgh over Detroit. The Pirates' second run scored when center fielder Gary Pettis dropped a popup by John Cangelosi.

The Tigers got a ninth-inning run on Scott Lusader's sacrifice fly.

Mets 7, Braves 3

Keith Miller had three hits and John Gibbons homered to lead New York over Atlanta. The victory was the second straight for the Mets after four consecutive losses to start their spring season.

Gibbons' homer came in the sixth inning with two out off reliever David Miller and gave the Mets a 4-2 lead.

Catcher Chris Jelic also singled home two runs for the Mets.

Astros 7, Dodgers 6

William Brennan balked in the winning run with two out in the ninth inning to give Houston its victory and hand Los Angeles its first first spring loss.

Brennan's balk, the fourth called in the game, followed a run-scoring single by Jim Pankovits. The Astros had taken a 5-4 lead with four runs in the eighth on a run-scoring single by Pankovits, a balk by Jay Howell and RBI groundsers by Louie Meadows and Kevin Bass.

Cardinals 13, White Sox 4
Jim Lindeman hit a bases-loaded triple in a six-run first inning against Jack McDowell, and St. Louis beat the winless White Sox. Chicago committed seven errors, including three by new third baseman Ken Williams.

Lindeman's triple followed a single by Vince Coleman, a walk to Ozzie Smith and a single by Tony Pena. David Green and Jose Oquendo also had RBI singles in the inning. The final run scored on an error by Williams.

Indians 6, Angels 2
Julio Franco and Brook Jacoby had two hits apiece as Cleveland beat California.

Angels first baseman Wally Joyner committed two errors leading to four unearned runs.

The Indians scored three unearned runs off Jack Lazorko in the fifth inning to take a 3-1 lead. The Angels committed three errors in the inning, including one by Joyner.

Mariners 4, Brewers 1

Dave Valle homered to lead off the seventh inning, breaking a 1-1 tie and leading Seattle its third straight win. The Mariners scored twice more in the eighth on an RBI double by Mickey Brantley and Ken Phelps' run-scoring single.

The Brewers tied the score 1-1 in the sixth when Paul Molitor walked, went to third on a single by Robin Yount and score on B.J. Surhoff's grounder.

Giants 8, Cubs 1

Lead-off hitter Brett Butler reached base five straight times with three singles, a triple and a walk and scored twice for San Francisco.

Left-hander Atlee Hammaker shut out the Cubs on two hits over the first four innings, striking out four, and Scott Garrelts yielded one hit over the final 2 1-3 innings.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

Greg Gagne and Gary Gaetti homered, and Kirby Puckett hit a three-run double, leading Minnesota over Boston. It was the Twins' fourth straight exhibition victory.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The modus operandi under which you have been proceeding for the past two days should be maintained, since this is just what is needed to insure movement in a positive direction. Think big and succeed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This morning is a good time to discuss your ambitions with a superior. Stay at home with your mate tonight, and get plenty of rest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can learn some valuable shortcuts from an expert in your area of endeavor. If you make any criticisms, make them constructive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some special thought for your mate could bring you fine results, but if you purchase a gift for this person, make sure it is practical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) When conversing with a business associate, make sure your facts and figures are correct. Avoid a troublemaker this evening.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You have been trying to solve problems on a "policy" level, but you'll have to get down to the basics if you're to have any positive results at all.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Let your talents be noticed by your superiors, and you can benefit greatly from them. Be extra cautious while driving today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make any repairs to your home which you can handle by yourself. Tonight would be a good time to have some upbeat guests into your home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Any business dealings you have today can bring you better results than usual, so be energetic and apply yourself seriously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have a habit of overspending, so learn to be more economical. Set up a new budget and save some money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you work on improving your financial security, you will feel happier and more sure of yourself. Work on improving your wardrobe.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you have been promising your mate to take care of a tedious chore, stop putting it off before it becomes a serious bone of contention.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A trusted friend can give you some good advice on how to attain your personal goals. Get together with pals for a favorite hobby.

If Your Child Is Born Today He or she will have a talent for setting up a plan of action and carrying through with it successfully. A good education is essential, and the field of business administration would be particularly worthwhile. Your progeny may tend to argue often, but not in an angry way.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
