Nicaragua says Honduran planes attack

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — President Jose Azcona Hoyo said Saturday he was reinforcing his troops along the border to oust Nicaraguan soldiers. Nicaragua reported later that Honduran warplanes had bombed Sandinista positions inside Nicaragua. The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry issued a report in Managua saying the Honduran planes made the bombing attacks in the Bocay region, where Honduras said Sandinista troops crossed into Honduran territory last week to attack U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels. The Defense Ministry statement said the air raids were in the same area where Honduran jets dropped several bombs on Thursday. There was no immediate comment on the Nicaraguan report by the Honduran government. Azcona had announced he was sending more troops to the Bocay region and also said he wouldn't hesitate to seek more U.S. help. He earlier had threatened Nicaragua with air raids, but said they would be restricted to Sandinista positions inside Honduras. A few hours after Azcona made the statements and before Nicaragua reported its territory was being bombed, the Honduran armed forces said the Nicaraguans were pulling back. Col. Manuel Suarez Benavides, the armed forces spokesman, said in a telephone interview "their troops are withdrawing. About 600 Sandinista soldiers are still inside our country, and the rest have abandoned the area during the past

24 hours." "This is a good sign on the part of the Managua regime, so that peace can prevail in Central America," he said. "We hope the Nicaraguan troops definitely leave our nation within the next 24 hours so that we can solve this serious problem of national security." U.S. officials, who have sent 3,200 military personnel to Honduras in the past few days, said they expected approval this weekend for U.S. helicopters to airlift Honduran troops to non-combat areas near the fighting. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said he was appealing to the International Court of Justice for an injunction to prevent action that would heighten tension between the nations, and he asked the United Nations to investigate the border dispute. The United Nations agreed to send a team of observers to Nicaragua. The Soviet media accused the United States of trying to impose its will on Nicaragua and spoil Central American peace efforts by sending in troops. Azcona had said before the armed forces announced the Nicaraguans were withdrawing that the situation in the mountainous Bocay region deteriorated when Sandinista troops re-entered Honduras after having retreated to the Nicaraguan side. He estimated the Nicaraguan strength in Honduras at about 2,000 by Saturday morning.

School chat

COAHOMA — It may seem like a typical classroom scene, as Shele Reid, right, chats with classmate Christy Fowler. But life has been unusual for Shele who was discovered to have a brain tumor more than a year ago. The experience she and her family had is recounted by staff writer Steve Reagan on page C-1 today.

Range fire likely work of arson

FORT WORTH (AP) — Arsonists set one of two small fires that roared out of control and blackened thousands of acres of West Texas ranchland a week ago, threatening the survival of herds of cattle, authorities said.

Callahan County Sheriff Bill Skinner said Friday that the blaze set by the arsonists may be linked to a string of suspicious grass fires set in the county last month.

"It's kind of sick," Skinner said. "I don't know what we've got here, but it's someone kind of sick."

The blaze, fanned by high winds and fueled by dry grass, raged for two days and smoldered for another three, destroying more than 300,000 acres of land in five West Texas counties near Abilene. Damage is estimated at $5 million to $7 million, officials say. The most extensive damage was in Shackelford County, 130 miles west of Fort Worth.

As the arson investigation continued, truckloads of donated hay and feed were being distributed to ranchers whose livestock, an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 head of cattle, lost their grazing area.

"None of the ranchers have missed a day of feed for their cattle because of all of the donations that came in," said Patti Fulton, range conservationist in the Albany office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service.

About 9,000 bales of donated hay had been received by the SCS by Friday, Ms. Fulton said.

Officials said the fire began March 10 from two smaller fires just north of Clyde in Callahan County.

The first fire, a mile north of Clyde, began accidentally when a pile of burning tires went out of control. The second fire was ignited 45 minutes later.

Council slate includes two

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
Editor

Although the slate of Big Spring City Council candidates lost an incumbent — Gary Don Carey — last week, two more names were added to the list that will be considered by city voters May 7.

Ron Booth and Jerry W. Roach both filed paperwork Friday, City Finance Director Tom Ferguson said, to make a total of six candidates for the three at-large seats to be filled.

Carey, a one term councilman, withdrew his candidacy papers Wednesday, explaining that he had begun "wondering, 'Why am I submitting myself to another three years of problems?'" he said that morning.

Besides Carey's position, the seats held by Johnny Rutherford and Russ McEwen are also to be filled at the May 7 election. They have not indicated that they will be candidates for the positions.

The deadline to file for the race is Wednesday at 5 p.m., at city hall.

Other candidates who have filed are: Melvin Daratt, 500 E. 23rd St.; Gail Earls, 4016 Parkway Road; Dorothy Leffler and Jimmy Leffler, 706 W. 13th St.

Roach, 1108 E. Fifth St., is the owner of the Wagon Wheel drive in at 2010 Scurry St., which he's operated since 1980. He has been a resident of Big Spring since 1959.

He recently established Lone Star Auto Sales at 1101 W. 4th St.

Roach said his desire for progress in Big Spring prompted his candidacy, and he hopes to see more businesses brought in to Big Spring.

"If the city would work with some of them, they could bring them in," he said.

He and his wife Susie have two sons, 16 and nine years of age.

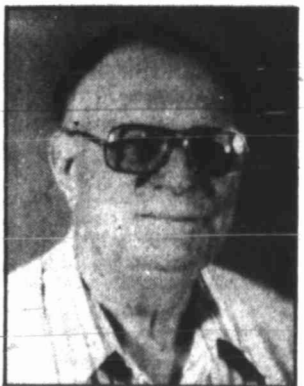

Roach has once previously run for office, unsuccessfully seeking the justice of the peace position in 1978, he said.

'We're a shoulder'

Compassionate friends organizing Big Spring group

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

The death of a child is like no other death.

Parents and grandparents of a deceased child will tell you: Unless you have experienced such a loss it is difficult to comprehend the grief. Day after day you wonder "How can I get through this?"

Ellis and Janelle Britton lost their grandson Jaison Dane Braulick when he recently died at 13 months of age.

"That was the best and the worst year of our lives," said Janelle. "I can't get used to life without him. I can't get used to not ever seeing him again."

Jaison, the son of Juli and Jay Braulick, Arlington, was born Nov. 5, 1986 after an emergency caesarian section — three months before his anticipated birth date. His life was a struggle from the beginning. Jaison weighed only 1 pound 9½ ounces and was given a slight chance for survival. His lungs were not sufficiently developed and he was placed on a ventilator to breathe for him.

Jaison was diagnosed as having respiratory distress syndrome, but his condition worsened to chronic lung and reactive airway diseases.

Although he spent most of his life in the hospital, his parents and grandparents never lost hope. "We never felt like he would die, although we knew he would need a lot of care," said Janelle.

After his second bout with pneumonia, Jaison's struggle for life ended Dec. 10.

Lynn and Mary Nell Hise's son Gary died Jan. 28, 1971. Despite surgery and radiation treatments after his cancer was diagnosed when he was 14, the youth died two years later.

Although 17 years have passed

MARY NELL HISE

JANELLE BRITTON

since Gary's death, Mary Nell still has not worked through her grief. She and several other Big Spring residents are forming an organization for parents and grandparents who have experienced the death of a child.

The Hises, Brittons, and Johnny and Darla Swindell, John and Peggy Wilson, and Ervin and Dean Fisher have all experienced such a tragedy.

They will meet April 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Avery & Associates conference room on the second floor of the Permian Building for their first meeting of The Compassionate Friends, designed specifically for parents and grandparents who have experienced such a loss.

"Several parents and grandparents who have lost children felt a need for a chapter in Big Spring," said Janelle.

"I learned about the group five years ago when a friend sent me a newsletter," said Mary Nell. "But I kept thinking 'I don't need to go' — I felt like I could work through this," she added.

Despite her faith, she discovered "I couldn't do it alone."

After the death of John and Peggy Wilson's son, John Jr. in January 1987, Mary Nell and Dean Fisher visited the Wilsons at their home. "We all talked about going to the meetings — we made plans to go some time."

Eleven months later, Darla, Peggy and Mary Nell attended the San Angelo group's November meeting.

"The first meeting is hard to go to — at least it was for me. But when we got there, we got a very warm welcome," said Mary Nell.

"The more I tell my story, the easier it is to talk about it. It's easier for me to help others," she added.

The Compassionate Friends, founded in England in 1969, is a self-help organization offering friendship and understanding to bereaved parents, according to a published report.

The purposes are to support and aid parents in the positive resolution of the grief experienced upon the death of their child, and to foster the physical and emotional health of bereaved parents and siblings.

When a child dies parents mourn and begin a bereavement process. Bereaved parents experience different feelings — disbelief, sadness, loneliness, fear, anger,

Stations' sale sought in proceedings

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Two local radio stations embroiled in bankruptcy proceedings for nearly two years may soon see an end to the battle, according to one local official.

"We're at a point now that we can ask the court to take us out of Chapter 11 proceedings," said Dave Ziebell, president of Bell-Ray Broadcasting Inc., which owns KWKI AM and FM radio stations under the umbrella company I-20 Media.

"It's a good thing for the radio stations and for Big Spring," Ziebell said, referring to a motion filed requesting approval of the sale of assets and authority to disburse proceeds to creditors.

Copies of the motion, filed in the Midland

Odesa division of the Texas Western District U.S. Bankruptcy Court, were sent to secured creditors March 15, according to court records. Bell-Ray Broadcasting has a preliminary agreement to sell the stations to Fiduciary Investments Inc. of Irving, Ziebell said.

The first step, however, is to get the motion approved, he said. The station was given court authority to look for buyers Feb. 4.

"Secured creditors have joined with us to get us out of Chapter 11," Ziebell said. Bankruptcy proceedings involving the stations — formerly known as KWKI-FM and KKIK-AM — began Aug. 4, 1986, according to court records. Call letters for the AM station were changed to KWKI about a year ago.

Ziebell called the case "extremely complicated" saying former Bell-Ray president Paul Lowrey filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy without the agreement of the corporation's board of directors. He was reportedly removed from his post after the filing.

Chapter 11 allows a company to obtain a court order that frees it from threat of creditors' lawsuits until it can develop a plan to put its finances in order. The final reorganization plan must be approved by the majority of the creditors.

"These stations have been tied up in legal battles for the better part of two years," said Ziebell, who added that he hopes the motion will allow the stations to get out of bankruptcy court and "back to business as usual."

"We are relatively optimistic that they will approve the plan."

Ziebell said it's unlikely the stations would close if the motion or sale is approved and said he doesn't expect any changes in staff as a result.

City to consider alarm ordinance

HERALD STAFF REPORT

City council will hear the first reading of a new ordinance concerning regulation of burglary, robbery and fire alarm systems during its regular meeting Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Under the new ordinance, alarm users will be allowed a maximum of two false alarms a month. If that limit is exceeded, the system shall be disconnected until a $150 fine has been paid, according to the council agenda.

The ordinance provides for the owner of the system to be notified in writing upon receipt of a second false alarm, with a warning that another false alarm shall result in disconnection.

The alarm user may request a hearing before municipal court to appeal the violation, the ordinance states.

Council also will conduct second and final readings of two ordinances concerning park and recreation fees and classification of new and unlisted uses in the zoning ordinance.

The fees ordinance concerns changing rental rates at the city auditorium and Comanche Trail Park amphitheater. Rental rates for the Dora Roberts Community Center and Moss Creek Lake will remain the same under the new ordinance.

The main section of zoning ordinance change will require persons wishing to construct a detention center in the city to obtain a special use permit from the zoning commission.

In other business, council members will:

- Consider approval of late homestead exemptions.
- Consider requests for livestock permits at 100 N. Cottonwood, and Driver Road.
- Authorize receiving bids for long distance telephone service.
- Appoint members to the Auditorium Committee.
- Go into executive session to discuss the city manager.
- Conduct a work session to work on budget revisions and hear a report concerning the Moss Creek Lake waterline.

SSC Funding

Herrington seeks support

By PETER ROPER
HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Energy Secretary John Herrington sent a letter to members of the House Budget Committee requesting $363 million in 1989 to begin work on the $6 billion superconducting supercollider.

Herrington is trying to maintain enthusiasm in Congress for the project despite the fact that only seven remain in contention for the 53-mile-long underground atom smasher.

They are: Texas, Michigan, Illinois, North Carolina, Tennessee, Colorado, and Arizona.

The Reagan administration wants work on the SSC to begin next year, but has postponed making a final site selection until November.

In a letter to Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., and chairman of the budget panel, Herrington said the $363 million would include $283 million for construction and $80 million for support services.

The futuristic physics laboratory is expected to have a staff of 500 scientists and is expected to attract high technology industry to the surrounding region. That's one reason administration officials fear the expensive project will lose congressional support once the lone winning site is selected.

Student qualifies for nationals

Five Big Spring High School students competed in the state VOE-OEA contest March 10-12 in Arlington, with Nicole Curry winning first place in the office support assistant contest, VOE Coordinator Anna Walker reported.

Nicole was tested on typing, filing, mailing, telephoning, business math while competing against other Texas area winners. Nicole had won first place at the area contest in February.

She will advance to the national VOE-OEA contest in Louisville, Ky. April 28 through May 1, and compete against winners from the other states in the office support contest. The top six winners in the national competition will be announced at an awards breakfast in Louisville on May 1.

Candidates—

Booth, 511 Edwards Blvd., declaring that "when the city is due money, they should collect that money," has also filed as a council candidate.

The Air Force veteran was stationed at Webb Air Force Base for four years in 1954 and returned as a resident at the time of his retirement January 1971.

He said that the primary motivation for entering the race was the council's decision in 1987 to write off taxes that had been determined as "uncollectible."

"I don't doubt that they were uncollectible, but my question is: 'Why did they allow them to become that way?'" Booth said Saturday.

A 1978 Howard College management graduate, Booth has worked with veterans for the past 13 years. He was a veterans' benefits counselor for the Veterans Administration for more than 11 years and has worked at the VA Medical Center as a Texas veteran's counselor for the past 16 months.

ANNANDALE, MINN. — Firefighters hose leaking tank cars after 20 cars of a Soo Line train derailed in Annandale Saturday morning. The town of 1,700 people was evacuated because two of the nine tanker cars carrying methanol alcohol were leaking.

Chemical rail cars spill, 1,700 residents evacuated

ANNANDALE, Minn. (AP) — Twenty railroad cars, including nine hauling chemicals, derailed Saturday, forcing authorities to evacuate all 1,700 residents from town, officials said.

The derailment also led to a fire that destroyed an empty building, said Deputy Sheriff Pat Miller. No injuries were reported, however. Some of the cars struck power poles as they derailed, knocking out electricity to the town for two hours, said a spokesman for Northern States Power Co.

A partial evacuation began when officials learned that two of the tank cars carrying methanol, a type of alcohol, were leaking, Miller said.

The decision to evacuate the entire town was made after it was determined another tank car carrying sulfur dioxide was damaged, said City Council member Val Lawler. He said the car was not leaking, but the tanker's outer envelope was ruptured.

Miller said the other tank cars, carrying anhydrous ammonia, were not leaking.

Many residents began leaving the town immediately after the derailment, which occurred at 7:38 a.m., an official said. The State Patrol also began closing off several highways to the town, located about 40 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

Hazardous waste crews from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency were investigating, Miller said.

The cause of the derailment was not known, said John Bergene, a spokesman for the Minneapolis-based Soo Line railroad. The east-bound train consisted of 65 cars and the derailment occurred in the middle of the train, he said.

Mysterious death claims Dallas girl day after dismissal

DALLAS (AP) — The mother of a 9-year-old girl says she is bewildered by her daughter's death, which occurred less than 24 hours after hospital officials sent the child home saying they could find no symptoms requiring emergency care.

A spokesman for the Dallas County medical examiner's office said Friday officials won't know the cause of Luwanda Lewis' death until results of blood toxicology tests are returned in several weeks.

Officials of Children's Medical Center and Parkland Hospital, who began a joint child-treatment program in July, said the third-grader showed no signs of requiring emergency medical treatment Wednesday morning.

That night, Peggy Lewis said Luwanda told her she was going to die in her sleep.

"Mama, I'm afraid I'm going to die ... I'm going to die," Ms. Lewis quoted her daughter as saying.

At Parkland, a nurse had told Ms. Lewis her daughter might have the flu. The nurse scheduled a Friday appointment for the child.

At 5:30 a.m. Thursday, when Ms. Lewis went to wake her daughter, she found Luwanda dead on the box spring and mattress pushed against the wall of her bedroom.

"They (the nurses) didn't do nothing," Ms. Lewis said Friday. "That's what I went to the hospital for, to see what was wrong. I didn't go there to get pushed back home. ... They didn't take time to find out what was wrong with my baby."

"Enough information was taken that it was felt the child was not at that moment

That night, Peggy Lewis said Luwanda told her she was going to die in her sleep. "Mama, I'm afraid I'm going to die ... I'm going to die," Ms. Lewis quoted her daughter as saying.

acutely ill," said Dr. Joel Steinberg, medical director of the Acute Care Center at Children's.

Ms. Lewis, 26, said her daughter began complaining of chest pains and a headache Tuesday evening. The next morning, Peggy and Luwanda Lewis took the bus to Children's.

A nurse asked Luwanda what her symptoms were, took the child's pulse and then directed her and her mother to Parkland's Pediatric Primary Care Clinic, Ms. Lewis and hospital officials said.

A clinic nurse asked Ms. Lewis what her daughter's symptoms were, then "told me my baby had the flu. She didn't even raise up to look at her. It was like my baby was already dead and it didn't matter," she said.

Advised on how to treat the flu and told to come back Friday, Ms. Lewis and Luwanda left, stopping at the Parkland emergency room on the way out. Ms. Lewis said she asked a nurse why the clinic wouldn't examine her daughter. The nurse then telephoned the clinic and told Ms. Lewis, "The clinic says they're booked up," she said.

Luwanda stayed home from school and wasn't herself, Ms. Lewis said.

About 11 p.m., Lewis went to her daughter's bedroom and found the girl lying on the floor beside her bed. She told her mother she was afraid of dying.

Steinberg said the nurse who examined Luwanda at Children's determined the child was a non-emergency patient and placed her in "Category 4," the least serious of four categories.

The child was sent to Parkland's center, and "it's their decision what they want to do with these patients," he said.

Parkland spokesman Tom Geddie said the hospital's pediatric center "is not an emergency-care facility." Since Children's had put Luwanda in Category 4, "normal procedure in that case is to make an appointment 48 hours or longer."

Police kill drug dealer suspect

FORT WORTH (AP) — A suspected drug dealer was killed in a spray of gunfire as police closed in on his pickup truck while it sat in traffic, authorities said Saturday as they worked to identify three others arrested in the case.

Two of the men jailed in Fort Worth on Saturday are believed to be from El Salvador, while the third is thought to be a Colombian national, said Lt. J.P. Foley.

They were being held pending federal drug charges, he said.

"These are people who do not have any identification," Foley said. "We have two to three names on them so far."

A man tentatively identified as Antonio Montana, believed to be from El Salvador, died Friday of gunshot wounds at John Peter Smith Hospital, authorities said.

No police were injured in the gunfire at a Fort Worth intersection, said police narcotics squad commander Capt. B. Ray Armand.

The shooting occurred after an undercover Fort Worth narcotics officer and a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent had arranged to purchase a large amount of cocaine from Montana and another man, but suspected they were going to be robbed of about $60,000 in cash, authorities said.

While the transaction was scheduled to take place outside a gas station on a freeway service road, the lawmen decided to arrest the suspects before the deal occurred. Wearing windbreakers identifying them as police, the lawmen moved in on the pickup as the men sat in traffic, police said.

ALL PARTICIPANTS & SPECTATORS

GEORGE WILKINSON wishes to thank all those concerned people who came to his rescue March 11 and 12 during the fire on his property near the Lomax Community.

So many people, all unknown to him, aided with Water wagons, Backhoes, firefighting equipment, sweat, labor and time.

The Firemen, Sheriff's Department, County Commissioners, and able bodied bodies were all there risking limbs and equipment. What a wonderful community we have, full of people who will come out at a moment's notice to help those in need.

THANKS!!!! I APPRECIATE YOU ONE AND ALL.

GETTING RID OF CORNS

The best management for corns is to avoid them. Since they are usually caused by ill-fitting shoes, be sure that your shoes do not rub against your toes in any way. Usually, the small and large toes are the ones affected by corns because pointed shoes pinch these toes in. Always be sure you have enough room for comfort.

Cutting corns away, however, only provides temporary relief if you are determined to continue wearing the same shoes that caused them in the first place. The key is to find out what causes the corn in your particular case. It may be caused by a tight shoe, or by a foot that is off balance. A skilled foot doctor can give you the help and advice you need to prevent the recurrence of painful corns in your future.

If it is too late and you already have painful corns on your feet, they can still be cared for. The age-old method of treatment is to cut the corn away, to shave off the dried, horny skin and excise the eye with a scalpel. This removes the pressure and relieves the pain. It is still a good treatment, but it should only be done by a podiatrist.

Students' win: Time had come

Deaf students at Gallaudet University were the best communicators in Washington, D.C., last week. They got their message across to the nation and the world about the need for a better understanding of an estimated two million Americans who are profoundly deaf and the 19 million others who have substantial hearing problems.

Protests over the selection of a non-deaf educator as the seventh president of Gallaudet closed the school and focused international attention on America's only liberal arts college for the hearing impaired. Sympathy for the deaf-rights movement was so widespread that it eventually included presidential candidates Vice President George Bush and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Students at Big Spring's own Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf stepped in to voice their protest and support for their deaf brethren in Washington, D.C.

Ultimately, the students succeeded in forcing the resignation of President Elizabeth Ann Zinser, although they later acknowledged that she was "an innocent victim and unfortunate target of our collective anger."

Zinser was replaced by I. King Jordan, a Gallaudet dean and the first deaf president of the 124-year-old institution. The student protesters also achieved two other major demands: the resignation of controversial trustee chairman Jane Bassett Spillman and the creation of a commission to study the composition of the 21-member board of trustees, of whom only four are hearing-impaired.

The Gallaudet students have won an unusual victory. It's difficult to think of another campus where the cause of protesting students was so powerful and so successful. The Gallaudet rebellion represented much more, however. It was a milestone in a growing movement by deaf Americans to boost self-esteem, break down employment barriers and establish educational policies attuned to the culture of the deaf.

The irony of Gallaudet is that, although the university was thought to be a beacon for the deaf community, many of its students viewed it as a leading oppressor of the deaf. Hearing-impaired members of the board of trustees even said they were unaware of the degree of campus unhappiness over official discouragement of the use of American Sign Language, the small number of classroom interpreters, a lack of special teletype equipment and the perception of a paternalistic administration.

The Gallaudet students are back in class now, but the departing Zinser predicts that we haven't seen the last of them. In gracious, graceful farewell, the ousted educator acknowledged that the Gallaudet protest was a "civil-rights movement" whose time had come.

'Thanks' — for very little help

To the editor:

I would like to express my thanks to the city officials of Big Spring for all the help, effort and advice they gave me for an incident that occurred in November. I was the victim when two girls, whom I do not know, followed me to my daughter's kindergarten center and proceeded to curse me and try to run me off the road. They threw a rock through my window, which not only caused damage to my car (which is still not repaired), but also caused bodily harm to me, my five-year-old daughter and my sister-in-law who were also in my car at the time. In filing charges against these girls I not only found out first hand how inefficient and ineffective our officials are in handling this type of incident, but how I literally wasted my time in reporting this to begin with. I am grateful for the education in what not to do if something like this happens again.

Again, I thank all those who promptly returned my phone calls after they "checked into this matter" — for which, after taking this to court with two estimates on the total damages, I received nothing. This may seem like a petty problem that does not need solving but how would you feel if it was your child or your car?

Contra rebel support viewed from differing perspectives

BY GEORGE GEDDA
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are two ways, perhaps more, of looking at the results of President Reagan's six-year effort in support of the Contra rebels.

In the administration's view, the Contras have kept the focus of Nicaragua's leftist government on surviving, preventing it from promoting the spread of revolution elsewhere.

As a result, the administration says, each of Nicaragua's neighbors has been able to consolidate or at least make a beginning on building democratic institutions.

Reagan's worst-case scenario for the region — a belt of pro-Soviet states extending from the Panama Canal to Guatemala with the possibility that Mexico itself ultimately will be threatened — has not been borne out. He believes the Contras deserve much of the credit.

But the other view is that the costs of the policy have been exorbitant, far outweighing the benefits.

Administration critics maintain that American backing for the Contras has led to tens of thousands of dead and wounded and set back the Nicaraguan economy by a generation.

And Nicaragua has been, in some ways, a wrecker of reputations, playing the same role that Vietnam did two decades ago.

On Wednesday, the same day that Reagan decided to send U.S. troops to Honduras, a federal grand jury indicted former national security adviser John M. Poindexter, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North and two of their associates, Richard V. Secord and Albert Hakim.

As independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh described it, "the heart of the case" against the four was their role in diverting funds from Iran arms sales to the Contras.

Poindexter and North, two of the most influential figures in government less than a year and a half ago, face the prospect of extended jail terms because they are alleged to have disregarded the law in their zeal to support the Contras.

While Reagan has compared the Contras with America's founding fathers, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., calls them "our terrorists." Both sides believe the other's policies will lead inevitably to an

Know little of the Alamo? Don't look to movie for help

BY JESSE TREVINO

Waiting for an airline to undo a computer's mistake that delayed a long-needed vacation, I took an innocent and leisurely drive to San Antonio to see a movie entitled, "Alamo, the Price of Freedom."

The movie shows hourly at the Alamo City's dazzling new RiverCenter shopping mall one block from the shrine itself. What a ruination of a fine, sunny Sunday afternoon.

What with the newswires and television stations recently full of stories of Hispanics picketing the show's opening, I figured there was more than enough grist here for a column. Well, there is enough stuff, but, gee, it's on the order of much ado about nothing.

If the protesting folks had not raised the picket signs and hoisted the traditional complaints of stereotyping and racism, this silly thing would be irrelevant.

The movie is quite sad for what it is supposed to represent. I don't know much about the technical aspects of movie-making, but even I was awed by the amazing compartmentalization of time and events in this 45-minute film strip.

Something that is supposed to be a glorious event in the annals of Texas history turns out to be little more than a prolonged commercial for a trip to raft the Rio Grande. The number of aerial shots of some canyon with a deeply-rutted river, which I presume was the Rio Bravo, made one think of those ads for the Carnival Ship Lines — those television commercials that show cruise ships from the air and people playing games on deck and pointing at things out at sea.

This was a little more desert-oriented, though. But back to the Hispanic angle of things: There is very little in this unfortunate remake of John Wayne's truly offensive movie of the 1950s that provokes even the slightest outrage.

In this "Alamo," the Mexicans are not treated unkindly, they are not drunken slobs, they are not made out to be blood-thirsty savages and not one Mexican woman has either a rose in her mouth or a lustful eye set upon an unsuspecting blond gringo. And Gen. Lopez de Santa Anna's uniform, weighted down with layers of gold-set epaulettes, would make the real Napoleon blush with envy. That uniform alone is worth the price of the movie.

If you are in San Antonio, or if you soon will be, I recommend you go see the movie. Believe me, those of you who go in not knowing anything about the Alamo will know very little coming out.

The only complaint I have is with the theatre itself, built especially for this movie. The problem is that once the movie starts, you can't get out. Those poor rascals who immediately recognize a real loser when they see one cannot exercise the rights guaranteed to them by the U.S. Constitution and walk out like from any John Travolta movie.

Why? The theatre industry has finally built a movie house that is so dark and with seats so steep that to attempt to escape is to risk a fall as sharp and as sudden as that faced by the first wave of Mexicans who attempted to scale the walls of the real Alamo.

But if the movie does stir your bluebonnet soul and you feel like participating in this video reenactment of Texas' fight for freedom, just try to stand up.

The force of gravity will hurl you with such force toward the gigantic screen that your fellow moviegoers will little notice it, and think you are part of the ramparts scene.

I don't know if anything constructive can be said about this attempt to again chronicle an event for which there is so much disputed data and enlarged myth. Perhaps some of the Alamo-ologists who inhabit our state and constantly war among themselves can come together and find something worthwhile.

But if anyone is worried this movie is going to brainwash those vacationing out-of-staters from Ohio or Indiana to think Hispanics are somehow to be feared, hated or ignored, forget it.

What should also be forgotten is this movie, which, by the way, costs $5.25 to get in to risk your limbs in a freefall through a cinematic joke.

Rebirths can vary greatly

By ROBERT WERNSMAN

Reports of two unrelated cases of rebirth grabbed my attention recently.

One leaves me with a sense of the power of the Almighty, while the other reminds me that people can be strange, alrighty.

In Knoxville, Tenn. 71-year-old retired coal miner Shirley Barnett was revived — not once, but twice — after being declared dead.

Funeral arrangements were being made and relatives and friends were being called as word spread of his demise. We're not talking about your average brief heart failure for Mr. Barnett. He was dead once for 45 minutes and again for 30 minutes.

Excuse the retired Baptist minister for serious understatement, please, when he says he returned to life with a profound spiritual renewal.

"When I came to ... I had nothing but a heart full of love and joy for everybody," he said.

He had been admitted to the medical center after suffering chest pains. Five days later, a heart artery constricted and 45 minutes of efforts with an external pacemaker and electrical shock by doctors and nurses apparently failed — he showed no pulse, blood pressure or neurological responses.

Although weak, sporadic heartbeats were detected thereafter, they are considered "a dying heart pattern," his physician said. "It is very unlikely that if you can bring someone back (from that status) you'll have any functioning brain at all."

He was then disconnected from his intravenous feeding tubes and heart monitor and Barnett's daughters signed papers to remove the body to the morgue and began to make funeral arrangements.

A nurse who began cleaning out Barnett's hospital room heard him start to breathe and he was wheeled to the coronary care unit.

There, personnel again found no pulse or blood pressure. Barnett was hooked to a pacemaker and respirator, but family members told doctors he had requested that he not be kept alive artificially.

That period of apparent death lasted about 30 minutes, his doctor said.

Doctors disconnected Barnett from the life-sustaining equipment, but once unhooked, he began breathing on his own again.

"The gentleman gradually began waking up ... and talked with us. He continued to do well on his own," said his doctor. "There is no detectable short- or long-term memory loss in this man. There are obviously things that happen that we cannot explain."

Barnett later underwent heart bypass surgery. All this brings us to one Jerry Rosenberg who looks upon his "rebirth" in an entirely different light.

While on the operating table undergoing open-heart surgery, the man's heart and respiratory functions ceased for 90 seconds before he was revived.

Is he overjoyed by this good fortune? Does he want to praise either the Almighty or the marvels of medical technology?

Perhaps, although we don't know for sure. Mr. Rosenberg has other business on his mind these days. He wants to get out of prison — and he sees his rebirth as his ticket.

Rosenberg was sentenced to death in February 1963 after being convicted of killing two policemen during a robbery in Brooklyn. The death sentence was reduced in 1965 to 20 years to life.

So a second chance at life is not all he seeks? Hardly. The way this jailhouse lawyer figures it, he's fulfilled his 20 years-to-life sentence since he "died" and his rebirth should give him a clean slate.

I might look at things a bit differently from the other side of prison walls but I go along with the view of the state: A person is dead only after being declared brain dead by two physicians, one a neurosurgeon or a neurologist.

While I wish both Mr. Barnett and Mr. Rosenberg long and healthy second lives, I can't hope for a great deal of success for Rosenberg in his appeals for freedom.

Noriega weeds military after rejecting exile

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega rejected Washington's demands that he resign and leave the country, his press office reported Saturday.

The military strongman also purged more officers from the Defense Forces he commands in a move to strengthen his position.

His press office said Noriega met Friday with "some State Department representatives" and rejected their proposals for him to leave the country "as being unacceptable, illogical, and anti-Panamanian."

The statement did not name the State Department representatives, but it was known that William Walker, a ranking member of the department's Latin American affairs bureau, met with Noriega Friday.

In Washington, a Reagan administration official said Noriega had indicated a willingness to step down as Panama's military chief but was unwilling to go into exile, as the United States insisted.

Opposition leaders called for a general strike Monday to protest a nationwide state of emergency that restricted civil liberties.

Walker, a deputy assistant secretary of state, reportedly was empowered to tell Noriega the United States would not seek to extradite the general on drug trafficking charges if he accepted asylum in a third country, possibly Spain or France. Noriega was indicted on the drug charges by a federal grand jury in Florida last month.

The Defense Forces press statement gave no details of the American proposal, but said that while Noriega rejected it he "totally reiterated his position of keeping the doors open to dialogue."

It said Noriega and members of his high command met with the Washington envoys and he and his officers "are prepared to hold all necessary conversations to resolve the Panamanian problem, but without any type of conditions and always with the talks taking into account national interests."

The Reagan official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the United States was insisting that the general leave the country for fear he would continue exercising influence even after resigning from his official post.

Diplomatic and other sources said Noriega appeared to be consolidating his base of power through the purges in the Defense Forces after rejecting the U.S. demands.

A source close to the military said 15 colonels and majors have been forcibly retired or moved out of key positions since the head of the National Police tried to remove Noriega.

Nation

North seeks retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North says he's retiring from the Marine Corps because he may have to subpoena "the highest ranking officials in our government" to defend himself against charges in the Iran-Contra affair.

White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr., in an interview taped Friday for the syndicated television program, "John McLaughlin's One on One," declined to say how President Reagan would respond if subpoenaed.

"We haven't had to face that yet," Baker, who is a lawyer, said. He recalled that former President Ford was subpoenaed in the case of Squeaky Fromme, who was convicted in an attempt on his life. Ford videotaped a deposition.

Case may mean taxes

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. businesses might have to pay billions of dollars in new taxes if the U.S. Supreme Court agrees that Louisiana may tax a New Orleans store for catalogs it had printed in and mailed from other states, the store's lawyer says.

The case involves $43,937.03 in use taxes assessed against the D.H. Holmes Co. department store chain, but lawyers for both sides agree that the ramifications go far beyond that.

"I threw out the figure of $800 million at a meeting of the Tax Executive Institute in New York. ... People said that was a half or a quarter of the taxes it would raise," William F. Grace Jr., an attorney for Holmes, said in an interview.

Mecham: Mixed review

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham's supporters sang an optimistic "When Evan Comes Marching Home Again" outside the Arizona Capitol while the governor, fighting for his political life, was drawing mixed reviews as star witness at his impeachment trial.

"I think he hurt himself quite a bit," said Democratic Sen. Jesús "Chuy" Higuera after Mecham concluded three days of testimony by taking back an accusation that his former security chief stole documents.

"I did not have the proof and I do not have the proof now," Mecham conceded when pressed by senators for the basis of his accusations against Department of Public Safety Lt. Beau Johnson.

"It looks bad," Higuera said of Mecham's performance. "It looks bad any time anyone gets up there and doesn't tell the truth."

Soldiers killed Onlookers cheer action

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two British soldiers were shot to death Saturday after mourners at an IRA funeral dragged them from a car, beat them with crowbars and hoisted them naked before cheering onlookers, witnesses and police said.

The Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the killings in a statement released to Belfast media. The British army said the plainclothes soldiers came upon the funeral by accident.

The soldiers, blood streaming from their heads, were pulled to the top of a 12-foot-high wall around a football field for the crowd to see, witnesses said.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — One of two men who were later dragged from their car by a mob at an IRA guerrilla funeral and killed Saturday, struggles through the window as he holds a gun shortly before the incident in Belfast. Witnesses said the victims fired shots in the air in an unsuccessful attempt to extricate themselves from the crowd at the funeral.

They were then hauled behind a building and shots were heard. A short while later their bullet-riddled bodies were found in a vacant lot on Penny Lane, off the Falls Road.

It was the second fatal attack in four days at a Belfast funeral. Three people were killed in a cemetery attack Wednesday.

The killings, which brought the Northern Ireland death toll to 22 so far this year, occurred as thousands of mourners followed the coffin of Kevin Brady, an IRA member and one of the victims of Wednesday's violence.

Witnesses said the car carrying the soldiers sped toward the Brady cortege as it wound its way through predominantly Roman Catholic West Belfast. The car swerved and began to back up but was engulfed by angry mourners, some brandishing crowbars, who assumed the men were undercover agents.

One man climbed onto the roof of the car and pounded it with an iron bar. The windows were smashed, a shot was heard and there were shouts of "He's got a gun!" followed by "We've got two Brits!"

There were reports that a priest who tried to give one of the victims mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after the shootings was chased away and that more shots were then fired into the bodies.

Many cheered as the naked bodies were hoisted into view, but others, shocked by the grisly display, were weeping and trembling as the cortege resumed. The funeral was completed without further incident.

"The two men were badly beaten, they were stripped and spread-eagled and were soaked in blood," said a witness who requested anonymity. "They had deep gashes on their heads where they had been beaten."

The Royal Ulster Constabulary, the province's police force, said they were "soldiers who were on duty," and said three people were being questioned.

A police statement said the killings were "an obscenity committed by depraved and perverted people."

A British army spokesman said the soldiers were not assigned to monitor the funeral and were believed to have accidentally encountered the cortege while traveling from West Belfast to Lisburn, the British army headquarters in Northern Ireland.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called the killings "an act of appalling savagery."

"There seems to be no depths to which these people will not sink," she said.

Irish Premier Charles Haughey also condemned them.

"I once again appeal for an end to this fearsome cycle of death and suffering," he said in Dublin.

Sinn Fein, the outlawed IRA's political wing, claimed the incident "bears the hallmarks of an official British undercover dirty tricks operation."

Youth group banned

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers raided a hospital Saturday and detained foreign television crews, and the government banned a PLO youth group to keep a tight grip on unrest in the occupied territories, where Palestinian protests subsided.

Stone-throwing youths confronted Israeli troops in scattered clashes in the occupied territories, but no shootings were reported. Hospital officials in the Gaza Strip said nine Palestinians were admitted with beating injuries.

A statement Saturday by the Defense Ministry said authorities had outlawed Shabiba, the youth group of Yasser Arafat's Fatah wing of the Palestine Liberation Organization with thousands of members throughout the territories.

Salvadorans are voting

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Surrounded by soldiers, harassed by a guerrilla ban on road travel and wary of violence, Salvadorans vote Sunday for a new national legislature and municipal officers nationwide.

For the fifth time since a 1979 coup by reform-minded officers, citizens of this Massachusetts-sized nation are casting their ballots in an open election. El Salvador has a population of about 5 million.

As before, they are doing it under less than ideal circumstances.

At stake are all 60 seats in the National Assembly, the unicameral legislature. Voters are also electing mayors and municipal councils in all 262 cities and towns nationwide.

The guerrillas, waging an 8-year-old war against the U.S.-backed government, reject the elections as "a farce."

Iraqi bombs terminal

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Waves of Iraqi fighter-bombers pounded Iran's biggest oil terminal Saturday, leaving at least two tankers ablaze in the northern Persian Gulf. Iran said it shot down two Iraqi warplanes.

Both sides fired missiles into each other's capitals and bombarded population centers with artillery shelling for the seventh straight day, resulting in civilian casualties.

An Iraqi military spokesman, announcing that two long-range missiles were fired into Tehran, declared: "We will make the Iranians live in hell until they accept peace."

The attack on the Kharg Island oil terminal, through which 90 percent of Iran's oil exports flow, was the first in six weeks and came during one of the heaviest Iraqi air offensives against Iran in several months.

Israelis trying to make a deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli representatives are trying to strike a deal with Iran-Contra prosecutors over immunity for four Israelis and U.S. access to Israel's Swiss bank account records.

The meetings with Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh's staff began Thursday, a day after a federal grand jury indicted Lt. Col. Oliver North, former national security adviser John Poindexter and two arms dealers. All four were involved in the diversion of profits from Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Israel is seeking immunity from prosecution for four Israelis involved in the sale of U.S. anti-tank missiles to Iran in 1985 and 1986, said an Israeli official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

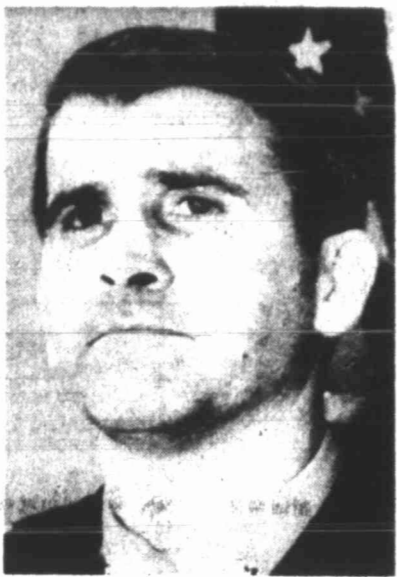

Walsh, in turn, wants records of Israeli transactions with North and the two indicted arms dealers, Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, the official said.

Yossi Gal, a spokesman for the Israeli Embassy, said a meeting today was aimed at "finding an acceptable solution for cooperation between the two governments."

Israel is seeking immunity from Amiram Nir, a Israeli anti-terrorism official; David Kimche, the former foreign ministry director; and businessmen Yaacov Nimrodi and Al Schwimmer. All worked with North on the Iran arms sales.

Gal also said that Rafael Vardi, a retired Israeli general who compiled a chronology of Israel's role in the arms sales to Iran, met with Walsh on Thursday. Several Israeli lawyers accompanied him, according to the Israeli official who spoke anonymously.

Elyakim Rubinstein, a top aide to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, is expected to join Vardi today for talks with Walsh's staff, Gal said.

Rubinstein, who has been in the United States with Shamir for discussions on a Middle East peace plan, also will meet with Reagan administration officials about the case, Gal said. He refused to discuss the meetings further.

James Wieghart, Walsh's spokesman, said he knew nothing about the meetings but confirmed that Walsh has been negotiating with the Israelis for a long time about access to the records on the Swiss accounts.

The Israeli official who spoke on condition he remain anonymous said Walsh is seeking bank account records to corroborate other evidence about Israel's transactions with North, Secord and Hakim.

Walsh angered Israel last year by issuing subpoenas against Nir, Kimche, Nimrodi and Schwimmer, meaning they could be arrested if they visited the United States and refused to testify.

Under pressure from the United States, Rubinstein and Vardi compiled classified historical and financial chronologies that were provided to the congressional Iran-Contra committees last year. The documents detailed the role Israel played in shipping U.S. missiles to Iran as part of a plan to secure freedom for American hostages in Lebanon.

Senate proposes Contra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan group of senators Friday proposed a $48 million package of new aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels, including renewed authority for the CIA to deliver previously stockpiled weapons.

Supporters said the proposal was designed to trigger negotiations in Congress and with the Reagan administration aimed at quick passage of an emergency infusion of aid to replace supplies lost or expended during the past week's heavy fighting along the Nicaraguan-Honduran border.

"We think it's very important right now to send a signal to the Sandinista government" which allegedly crossed the border into Honduras in an effort to destroy rebel camps and supplies, said Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., one of 11 sponsors of the new aid proposal.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said announcement of the package also would strengthen the Contras as they enter direct cease-fire talks with the Managua regime on Monday.

The proposal would use $48 million in unspent Pentagon money to buy food, clothing, shelter and medical supplies, and to transport "it to troops in the field, over the next year. About $3 million of that amount would go for communications gear.

But in what promised to be a controversial provision, the package would allow the CIA to airdrop ammunition and weapons previously stockpiled by the rebels to troops in the field. Boren said the rebels still have $2 million to $5 million worth of undelivered supplies, about half of them lethal.

And it would give President Reagan the right to hold a quick, guaranteed vote in Congress on any request for further military aid under certain conditions if the peace talks between the Sandinistas and Contras break down.

regret, guilt, despair, and personal loss.

These feelings are all a part of the emotional reaction called grief and may be so intense that parents don't understand what is happening. Some parents tend to keep feelings inside, authorities say, while others are able to express their grief easily and openly.

While there is no right way to grieve, other parents who have experienced the death of a child offer understanding and support through The Compassionate Friends.

"Forming a chapter here would make me feel like something good came out of (Jaison's death)," said Janelle. "I want to help other people through their grief."

"We're not trained to counsel — we're a shoulder," she added.

The Compassionate Friends offer support and friendship to any sorrowing parent, regardless of race, creed or economic situation.

The aims of the group are:

- To listen with understanding and to provide "telephone friends;"

- To provide monthly sharing groups;

- To give cognitive information about the grieving process;

- To provide acquaintance with bereaved parents whose sorrow has softened and who have found fresh hope and strength for life;

"We need people who have been through the grieving process to help," said Janelle.

The group will meet at 7:30 on the first Tuesday of each month.

A planned program will be presented at each meeting. However, Janelle said, "If the need arises, we may just talk and share."

"If anyone needs a ride, we'll be glad to pick them up," she said.

For more information, call Janelle Britton at 263-6892, or Mary Nell Hise at 263-2520.

*I'll lend you for a little time
A child of Mine, God said
For you to love the while he lives
And mourn for when he's dead*

*It may be six or seven weeks,
Or thirty years, or three,
But will you, 'til I call him back,
Take care of him for Me?*

*He'll bring his charm to gladden you
And should his stay be brief,
You'll have his lovely memories
As solace for your grief.*

*I cannot promise he will stay,
Since all from Earth return,
But there are lessons taught down "there"
I want this child to learn.*

And there, with you on Earth

*This child of mine I lend,
For the many souls that he will touch,
With the lessons that I send.*

*I looked the wide world over
In my search for people true,
And from the throngs who crowd life's way,
I have selected you.*

*Now will you give him all your love,
Nor think the labor vain,
Nor hate Me when I call around
To take him back again?*

*But You came 'round to call for him
Much sooner than we'd planned —
Dear Lord, forgive this grief,
And help us understand.*

Forget the 64; let 'em all play

By TIM APPEL
Staff Writer

You just can't trust the NCAA. Here I was, all ready to sink my teeth into their wimpy hides for the travesty it perpetrates upon the American public in picking the 64 teams for the National Championship tournament, and then my Oregon State team is chosen for the elite field. So how can I honestly write a column censuring the selection process?

Although the Beavers' presence in the tourney makes me ecstatic, as a supposedly objective journalist, I still realize that the selections are flawed and often biased.

Year after year, the press brings out this fact by pointing to the 20-game winners snubbed by the NCAA and then showing those teams with lesser records in the tournament simply by the virtue of them winning the tourney of some obscure conference no one's ever heard of. Are the best 64 teams in the country really represented?

And despite the thousands of inches written in the papers about the selection process, I've seen no one suggest a better method.

Thus, the major question remains: Can a college basketball tournament be conducted that is fair, exciting and uncontroverial for players, coaches and fans?

I highly doubt it, unless you happen to involve every four-year institution in the tournament field.

Now wait a minute! There are 291 schools in Division I alone, with 176 more in Division 2 and 295 in Division 3, each fielding a men's basketball team in this country. How on earth can a tournament possibly have 762 schools involved?

It would not be an easy task, but I believe it could be done.

Once the season is finished, each team would receive a ranking compared to the other schools. The rankings would be unbiased, thanks to impartial computer logic. Every statistic — such as team schedule and scores of games — would be fed into the computer. It would then spit back a list of the rankings for each team: One through 762.

Thus, you have your tournament schedule. Well, not necessarily. The simplest format would be a number of teams that would be two to some power, and 762 does not fit the bill. However, 512 does (two to the ninth power). In order to drop from 762 to 512, the top 250 teams would receive a first round bye. Then number 253 would play 762, 264 would play 761, and so on, at the home court of the higher-seeded team.

And there is your magic 512. But now the rules change somewhat. There would be no home-court advantage for any team in the tournament anymore (unless a team makes it to the Final Four, which would be a preselected city as it is currently). Instead, a neutral site between the two schools would serve as host, bringing bucks to many cities that otherwise would never be considered as host of a tournament game.

One problem with this would be if, for example, Alaska-Anchorage were to play Miami of Florida with less than 48 hours notice. This would cause traveling difficulties for teams and fans alike. So instead of today's Thursday-Friday and Saturday-Sunday schedules, games would be conducted on Wednesday and Saturday.

As in the first-round of action, the highest-seeded team would always play the lowest-seeded team left in each round and so on. Barring a major upset, higher ranked teams should easily make it to the final 16, but each round would be increasingly tougher.

But wouldn't such a tournament take too long to complete? Whereas the current format uses six rounds to crown a national champion, this tournament would only add four more rounds and would only take two extra weeks to complete, but would add to the excitement by including every school in the country.

And through it all, I believe there would be positive side effects to the game of collegiate basketball in general.

Although the smaller Division II or III teams might not go far in the tournament, receiving national exposure by playing a North Carolina or Syracuse and making a bundle in the process would be a plus.

Also, it would place a far greater emphasis on regular and non-conference games and less on the conference tournaments, which is an absolute farce for basketball, and nothing but a boon to the coffers of the athletic departments and the NCAA.

Granted, there would be a few negative effects to such a tournament.

First, some teams (especially independent teams) may wish to take the easy road to the tournament by scheduling lower echelon schools to fatten their records. It's hoped a computer program can see through such a ruse.

The game itself may also take a different approach. Near the end of a one-sided game, a coach may want to run the score up even higher instead sending in the second and third stringers, just to make the victory more impressive for the computer and to gain a higher ranking.

But for five weeks, every four-year institution would play a part in the struggle for the national championship. The hype would be massive compared to today's field of 64, and the game of college basketball would benefit from it.

COAHOMA — The Post Antelopes galloped off with track titles at the Bulldogs Relays here on a cold Friday night.

The Antelope boys won most of the running events, including the 400 and 1600 meter relays to win the meet with a whopping 199 points.

Brownfield finished second with 106 points and the Stanton Buffalos were third with 90 points. Forsan finished fourth with 61 points and host Coahoma was last with 35 points.

The Stanton boys did well in both relays, finishing second in the 400, and third in the 1600. The Buffs got strong performances from distance runner Rocky Barnes and hurdler Anthony Inman.

Barnes ran a season best of 2:02.55 in the 800 to finish second. He then came back and outsprinted the pack to win the 1600 in a time of 4:57.73.

Inman won both the 100 and 300 meter hurdle events. He edged favorite Brandy Bryan of Forsan to win the 110 hurdles in 15.09. Bryan ran a 15.12. Inman then overtook Post hurdler at the last hurdle to win the 300 in 40.01. Bryan was third in the event.

Forsan scored well in the field events as high jumpers Brant Nichols and Bryan finished second and third respectively with jumps of 6-4. Bryan finished second in the long jump (19-10). Weightman Stacy Munoz finished third in both the shot put and discus.

Coahoma's lone victory came in the long jump. Senior Matt Rowell, who was third going into his last jump, leaped 19-11 to win the event.

POST GIRLS MAKE IT A SWEEP
The Lady Antelopes won the 400 relay, and dominated the sprint events to win the meet with 176 points. Coahoma, getting a second place finish in the 1600 relay, finished second with 114 points.

The Big Spring Lady Steers finished strong, coming in, third with 106 points. The Lady Steers got a second and fourth place finish from the sister duo of Yvette Regalado and Mimi Regalado in the 1600 meters, plus a third place finish from the 1600 relay team.

The Lady Steers nipped Brownfield which scored 102 points. Brownfield did not have a 1600 meter relay team entered. The Big Spring junior varsity finished fifth with 24 points and Forsan followed with 16 points.

Coahoma was led to its second place finish by Nancy Hardison. The gutsy Hardison won the triple jump, finished second in the long jump, ran on the second place 800 relay team, finished second in the 400 and anchored the 1600 relay.

The Bulldogettes also got a strong performance from Shona Drewery who ran on two relays and won the 800 by some 20 meters in a time of 2:35.62.

The Lady Steers finished third in the 400 relay and went two-three in the 3200 meters. Freshman Mimi Regalado ran 14:36.37 and sophomore Yvette Regalado was just a few steps behind.

The top Big Spring finish of the meet came in the discus where Tracy Schaffner heaved the oval 90-10 to win first place.

Big Spring got a second place finish from high jumper Cary Brooks (4-10) and Charlotte Hayward in the shot put (32-1).

Forsan's lone victory came from sprinter Robin Soles, who won the 100 meters in 13.09.

The Big Spring JV got top finishes from Pam Gill who tied for third in the discus (93-7) and placed fourth in the triple jump (28-4).

A smooth transition

By NATHAN POSS
Special to the Herald

After recently finishing her first year of college basketball, Shanna Fowler seemed ready for a break after a very transitional experience.

It seemed to be a very positive experience, however, as her Grayson College team had won the Northern Junior College Conference title and advanced to the championship game of the Region V Tournament before succumbing to the Odessa College Lady Wranglers.

Like many college freshmen in new surroundings, she admitted that the first few weeks at Grayson, located in the North Texas city of Denison, were somewhat lonely. But that did improve in time.

That emotional adjustment was far from the only change for the former Coahoma basketball star, as the roundball court presented many challenges.

Like what challenges? "Learning to dribble," Shanna laughed. "I had played inside in high school, and the first thing I learned was that I had to play outside in college. I got it (the basketball) stuffed back down my throat a few times inside."

But after watching Fowler perform in the three games at the Region V Tourney in Midland recently, she made a successful adjustment. She handled the ball well on the outside and hit the boards with the taller opponents without fear. Her six-for-six free throw shooting in the Clarendon first round victory was a key in a four point Grayson win, too.

After complementing her court awareness and versatility, the polite Coahoma native gave credit to her high school coach, Truman Meissner.

"He was really a good coach and taught me a lot," Shanna confided. "And he also helped me get the scholarship at Grayson by getting me into an all-star game at Waco."

To her credit, she also made the change from a high school star to the sixth lady for Grayson, coming off the bench and ultimately playing more

Steers fifth in tourney

SNYDER — The Big Spring Steers lost out in the consolation finals of the Snyder Invitational Baseball Tournament Saturday, dropping a exciting 15-14 decision to the host team Snyder Tigers.

The Steers had advanced to the consolation round by defeating Brownfield 6-1 Friday.

The Tigers scored the winning run in the top of the seventh inning when a Snyder runner bowled over Big Spring catcher Chris Crownover at the plate, jarring the ball from Crownover.

The Steers got a heroic hitting effort from designated hitter-pitcher Aaron Allen against the Snyder. The big lefty went three-for-three at the plate, hitting three home runs and driving in 10 runs. Allen now has six round-trippers for the season.

Allen hit a two-run homer in the first, a grand slam in the second and a three-run shot in the fourth. He also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the third.

Crownover hit his second homer of the year in the contest and Matt Burrow hit a solo shot in the fourth. Crownover went four-for-four at the plate, adding two doubles and a single. Burrow, Eric Kinman and Brent Hartfield each got two hits for the Steers.

Allen took the loss in relief, dropping his record to 2-2 for the season. He relieved Mike Hillaro who went two-and-one-third inning. Allen struck out 12 in the game. Lee Fletcher was the winning pitcher for Snyder.

Dan Pasqua contributed his first homer of the spring.

DALLAS — The Howard College Hawks' Region V baseball games with Northwood Institute, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, were postponed because of bad weather.

The two teams will play a single game today at 2 p.m. and a doubleheader Monday beginning at 1 p.m.

Little League umpers needed

Umpires are needed for Big Spring Little League baseball. Anyone interested in umpiring Little League baseball should call Bobby Baker at 263-6928 (home) or at 263-1211, ext. 181 (work). Experienced is preferred but not required, said Baker.

Sidekicks win in overtime

DALLAS (AP) — Kevin Smith's goal with 7:34 left in overtime gave the Dallas Sidekicks a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Comets Saturday night.

The victory was Dallas' 12th straight at Reunion Arena and ran the Sidekicks' record to 23-22. Kansas City fell to 22-22.

Godfrey Ingram opened the scoring for the Sidekicks just 15 seconds into the game when he put Beto's miss into the net past goalkeeper Ed Gettemeier.

The Comets tied the score with 6:48 left in the first quarter when Kia fired a shot that deflected off goalie Krys Sobieski's hand.

Jorge Espinoza's goal just 1:26 into the second half put the Sidekicks up 2-1, and Eddie Radwanski's goal with 55 seconds remaining in the period advanced the lead to 3-1.

The Comets, however, pulled their goalie and replaced him with Kim Roentved with 7:55 to go in the game, and the move paid off with two goals to send the game into overtime.

Tasso Koutsoukos got the first sixth-attacker goal for the Comets when he fired in a pass from Jan Goossens. Kia got his second goal of the night when he made a horizontal shot off a long pass from Dale Mitchell with 1:38 left in the game.

New Mexico triathlon set

ROSWELL, N.M. — New Mexico Military Institute is sponsoring its 1988 Bottomless Triathlon April 30.

The competition pits entrants against the clock in three events — swimming, biking and running — and has been expanded this year, according to Captain Jerry Green of NMMI.

The swim remains a 500-yard effort, out to and back from a raft anchored in Lea Lake, one of New Mexico's Bottomless Lakes, scheduled site for the events.

Senior golfer sets course record

SUN CITY WEST, Ariz. (AP) — Al Geiberger, who set a course and tournament record with a 9-under-par 63 in Friday's first round, fired a 3-under 69 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead in the $225,000 Arizona Classic on the Senior PGA Tour.

Geiberger was at 12-under heading into Sunday's third and final round for the $33,750 first-place prize. The runnerup earns $20,250.

Dave Hill carded a 5-under 67 to move into second place at 10-under 134 on the par-72, 6,600-yard Hillcrest Golf Course.

Orville Moody is third at 9-under 135 with Gay Brewer and South African Harold Henning both at 8-under 136.

Miller Barber, Bob Brue, Gene Littler and Walter Zembriski are 7-under 137.

Geiberger, who started the day with a three-shot lead, got to 11-under after the seventh hole, but bogeyed the No. 8 to fall back to 10-under.

On the back nine, he birdied the 10th and 13th holes. Hill started the day at 5-under, but took the lead after he birdied the 12th hole to go 12-under. However, he bogeyed the 14th and 16th holes to finish 10-under.

Henning, starting at 4-under Saturday, went 10-under with a birdie on the 10th hole. After an eagle on the 13th hole, Henning was also tied for the lead at 12-under.

He then double-bogeyed 14 and followed with four straight bogeys to finish the day at 8-under.

Tubbs lighter for bout with Tyson

TOKYO (AP) — Mike Tyson weighed 216 1/4 pounds for his heavyweight title defense title fight Monday against Tony Tubbs, who weighed in at 238 1/4.

Tyson weighed 215 3/4 for his last defense, a fourth-round knockout of Larry Holmes last Jan. 22.

Tubbs weighed 229 when he won the World Boxing Association title against Greg Page on April 29, 1985. He weighed 244 when he lost the title to Tim Witherspoon on Jan. 18, 1986.

doubt and unselfish humility in her voice.

This observer has no doubt she can make it at a four-year school with improvement, however.

With an undecided major at this time, Shanna admitted that she has ideas that she would like to get into coaching.

"But it seems like some of the men coaches don't give the women coaches any respect. And that might make it pretty hard," she explained.

"But don't you think that some of the men might just feel a bit threatened by the women, and that's their way of maybe trying to create an advantage?" the question was asked.

"Maybe so," she said with a grin.

One shouldn't bet against her in making that transition, either.

Steers falter at Bluebonnett

BROWNWOOD — "I'm totally frustrated," said Big Spring Steers track coach Randy Britton after his team's performance in the Bluebonnett Relays Saturday.

The Big Spring coach wasn't too happy with his team's seventh place finish in the 14-team division which included 4A and 5A teams. The Steers scored 51 points.

Waco High won the meet with 77 points. Monahans finished second with 71 points and Abilene High was third with 69 points.

"As far as competing, it was our worst performance in three years," said Britton.

The Steers had three first place winners. Distance runner Ben Gonzales won the 3200 (10:09.12) and 1600 (4:41.32). High jumper Brian Mayfield the event with a leap of 6-6.

But other than that, it was a rough day for the Steers, starting with the 400 meter relay team, which ran out of the exchange zone and was disqualified.

The Steers didn't fare well in the 1600 meter relay either, finishing fifth in 3:31.25, some five seconds off their season best. Britton said one bright spot on the relay was Dennis Hartfield who ran a 51.7 400 on his opening leg. It was the first time Hartfield had run the event this year.

Big Spring did get a third place finish from Sean Jackson in the 800 meters (2:03.78) and a fourth place from Jackson in the 400 (52.33).

Next Friday and Saturday the Steers will be competing in the San Angelo Relays.

Foyt has very busy Saturday

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A.J. Foyt jockeyed between two races Saturday with the help of four rental cars, two airplanes, two flight crews and a zesty attitude.

"I'm having a lot of fun," Foyt said before driving his Porsche 962 at the 12 Hours of Sebring. "I'd like to get back to winning like I used to. It feels great to be this busy."

Foyt qualified an Oldsmobile early Saturday at the Atlanta International Raceway for Sunday's Motorcraft 500 NASCAR stock car race, then jetted about 500 miles to southwest Florida for the IMSA Camel GT endurance race around the Sebring Airport.

Foyt qualified sixth at Atlanta in his stock car at 174.280 mph and was running fifth after six hours at Sebring.

at Sebring.

Foyt arrived at Sebring at 12:40 p.m., just as the racing marathon entered its third hour. He was behind the wheel of his prototype Porsche less than an hour later.

Rain forecasts and a fatal accident Friday fueled fears that the endurance race would become a demolition derby. But skies cleared about an hour before the race began.

Bob Copeman, 48, of Aptos, Calif., died Friday during GTU qualifying when his Porsche 911 spun in the first turn and crashed at 100 mph into a concrete retaining wall.

That car returned after replacing most of the front suspension, but it ran 28 laps off the pace at the halfway mark.

"We were off the ground 17 minutes after I took the checkered flag (in qualifying)," Foyt said.

"That's one thing about the NASCAR guys, they really pitch in a help you when they know you're in a bind. I didn't even know what I qualified at (in Atlanta) until I was row walked, and scored on a double by left fielder Kinman.

The Steers took a 4-0 lead in the second. Jason Phillips reached base on an error and Crownover blasted a homer over the left center field fence.

In the third Big Spring upped its lead to 5-0 when Burrow reached base on an error, and scored on a single by Kinman, who went three-for three in the game.

Brownfield scored an unearned run in the fourth, its only run of the game. The outing gave Big Spring's Gutierrez 12 consecutive innings without allowing an earned run. Last Saturday Gutierrez didn't allow an earned run in a victory over Lubbock High.

Big Spring's final run of the game came in the fifth. Kinman singled, and David Kilgore ran for him. Kilgore scored on a double by Hartfield.

"I've been saying all year that this team will get better," said

Big Spring coach John Velasquez after the tournament. "The only thing we aren't improving on is our defense. We've been pitching and hitting the ball well though."

The Steers are now 7-8 for the season. They will begin District 2-4A play Tuesday against Fort Stockton at 7:30 p.m. in Fort Stockton.

The Steers got a strong pitching performance from junior right-hander Timmy Gutierrez. Gutierrez handcuffed the Cubs with four hits while going the distance, fanning 10 and walking four. The win raised Gutierrez's record to 3-3 for the season.

Tar Heels set scoring record

By The Associated Press
North Carolina set an NCAA Tournament record for most points in a game and ended the nation's longest winning streak at 25 Saturday with a 123-97 victory over Loyola, Calif.

Ranzino Smith scored a career-high 27 points as the No. 7 Tar Heels, 26-6, advanced to next Friday's West Regional semifinals in Seattle against 10th-ranked Michigan.

North Carolina held 15th-ranked Loyola, the nation's highest-scoring team with a 110.7 average, under 100 points for the first time in six games, dealing Lions their first loss since game seven of this season. Loyola finished 28-4.

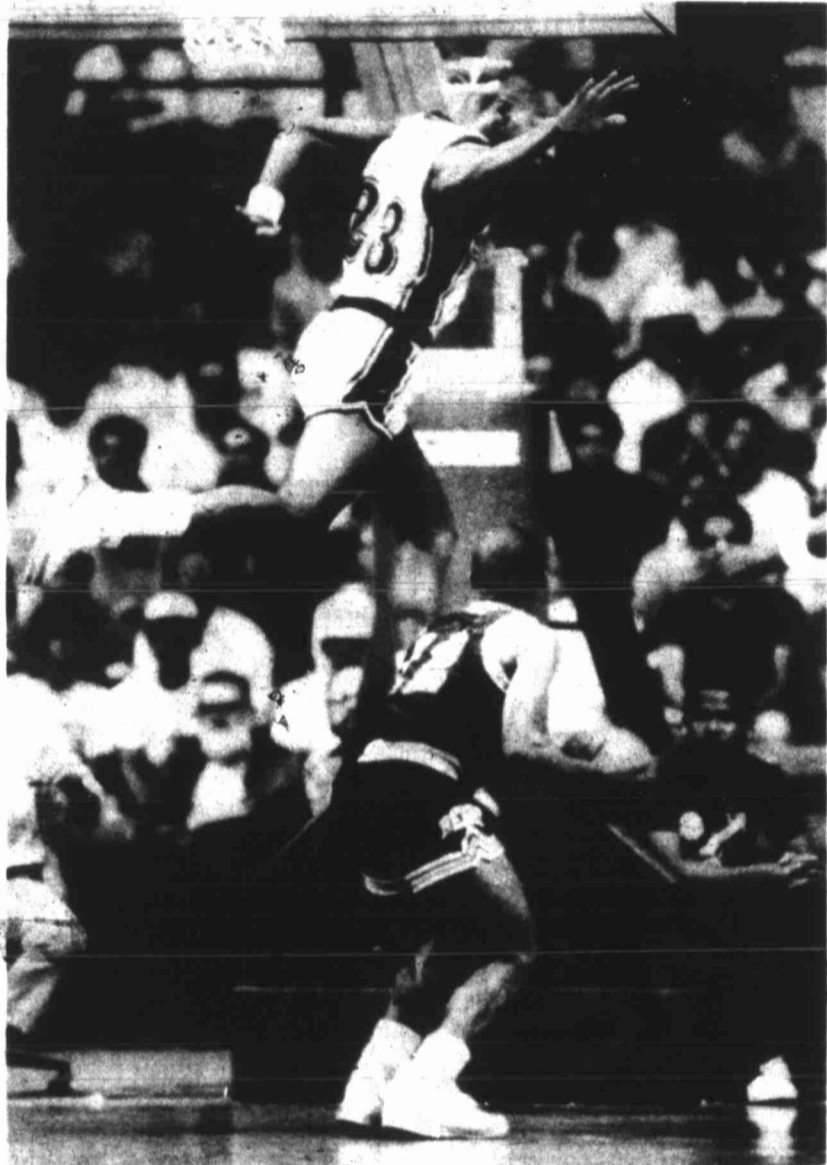

"We've had a pretty good run. Nothing is forever," Loyola Coach Paul Westhead said. "We ran our system, tried our best, but the shots didn't go that we frequently make."

The 123 points broke the tournament record of 121 set by Iowa in 1970 and matched by Nevada-Las Vegas in 1977. St. Joseph's, Pa., scored 127 points in a game in 1961, but the Hawks' victory was nullified because they were found to have used ineligible players.

North Carolina took its first lead of 20 or more points at 42-21 with 8:17 left in the first half, then moved to its first 30-point lead with 6:18 to play on a layup by Jeff Lebo that made it 106-76. The Tar Heels led by as many as 34, at 118-84, with 3:48 to play.

"We played the best defense we played all year," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "We had a hand in their face most of the time, and we got back on defense. We said run if it's there, if not look for the backdoor cut."

Jeff Fryer led Loyola with 27 points.

No. 10 Michigan 108, Florida 85
Glen Rice had 39 points, one short of his career high, as Michigan ran up a lead of as many as 27 points in an easy victory over Florida. Loy Vaught had 22 points and 15 rebounds, and All-American guard Gary Grant had 19 points and 11 assists for the Wolverines, who advanced past the regional's second round for the first time in four straight tries.

Rice played the game with eight stitches in his shooting hand from an injury sustained last Sunday when he reached inside a dishwasher. Rice said the injury bothered him in Michigan's 63-58 opening-round victory over Boise State, but not this time.

"In the first game, it started to bleed and it was hurting. It bothered me a lot," he said. "So I just decided to go out today and play hard and not think about it."

Michigan is 26-7, while the Gators finished 23-12, led by Vernon Maxwell's 23 points.

Rhode Island 97, No. 5 Syracuse 94
Rhode Island got 26 points from Tom Garrick and 23 from Kenny Green to silence some sniping from Syracuse, and the Rams will meet

Duke in the East semifinals.

Rhode Island guard Carlton Owens said he heard some demeaning remarks by Syracuse players during the game.

"They were talking most about playing some weak Atlantic 10 team," Owens said. "I just returned and said, 'That was an Atlantic 10 dunk Kenny just did.'"

Kenny Green had 23 points, including 16 in the second half, for the 28-6 Rams. Most of Green's offense came after Rhode Island went inside in an effort to get Syracuse into foul trouble, and it worked.

Syracuse forward Derrick Coleman fouled out with 5:32 left. Center Rony Seikaly, who led Syracuse with 27 points, picked up his fourth foul with 7:31 to play, and forward Stevie Thompson got his fourth with 4:15 left.

Syracuse finished its season at 26-9.

No. 5 Duke 94, SMU 79
Kevin Strickland scored a career-high 31 points, leading Duke to a lopsided victory over Southern Methodist in the other East Regional second-round game. Duke, 26-6, outscored SMU 21-7 over the final half of the opening period to take a 52-35 lead at intermission.

Duke led 60-39 after Strickland converted a three-point play with 16:39 to play.

SMU, which was led by Todd Alexander's 17 points, ended its season at 28-7.

The Boilermakers will next meet Kansas State, which they beat 101-72 last December.

Purdue, 29-3, got 22 points from Troy Lewis and 20 from Melvin McCants, but shot an uncharacteristically poor 39 percent from the floor in the first half before Mitchell got the Boilermakers going.

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Charles Barkley scored 27 points Saturday night to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to their third consecutive victory, a 94-89 decision over Washington that lifted them past the Bullets into second place in the Atlantic Division.

NBA

Cliff Robinson added 24 points for the 76ers, who half a half-game lead over Washington the New York Knicks in the battle for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth.

Washington led 80-76 after Jeff Malone's jumper with 7:43 remaining but the Bullets didn't score again until John Williams hit at 3:32. The Sixers took advantage of the dry spell to score nine straight points and took their first lead of the second half.

Gerald Henderson's 3-point shot began the run, Maurice Cheeks hit a pair of jump shots and Robinson capped it with a 17-footer.

The Bullets trailed 88-87 on a pair of free throws by Moses Malone with 1:27 remaining and had a chance to tie when Barkley was called for an offensive foul.

But Williams' shot from the left baseline rimmed out and Barkley grabbed the rebound, his 10th of the game, with 51 seconds left. Williams fouled Barkley, who made two free throws. Barkley made two more 20 seconds later after rebounding Steve Colter's miss and drawing a foul.

Jeff Malone led Washington with 23 points, Moses Malone had 18 and Williams 16. The Bullets have dropped two straight games and four of their last six.

Knicks 116, Hawks 110
NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Newman scored 10 of his career-high 27 points in the fourth quarter, including the go-ahead three-point play with 3:03 left, leading the New York Knicks to a 116-110 victory over the Atlanta Hawks on Saturday night.

The Knicks won for the 16th time in their last 17 home games despite blowing a 17-point lead in the second half. The victory left them in a tie with Washington for third place in the Atlantic Division, one-half game behind Philadelphia in the race for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth.

The Knicks play eight of their next 11 games on the road, where they have won only three times all season.

Newman scored 10 points during a 28-10 surge that turned a one-point deficit into a 59-42 lead with 2:25 left in the first half.

Atlanta scored the first seven points of the second half and trailed 67-58 but the Knicks responded with an 8-0 run for a 75-58 lead. They maintained that margin at 81-64 with 6:03 left in the third period before the Hawks rallied.

Two teams get home-court advantage

By The Associated Press
Stanford and Colorado State, usually strangers to postseason basketball play, have the home-court advantage for the second round National Invitation Tournament on Tuesday night.

The last time Stanford played in the postseason was 1942 when it won the NCAA tourney. Colorado State last played in the postseason in the NAAs in 1969.

NIT

"It has been a long time," said Stanford's second-year coach, Mike Montgomery. "But that is ancient history. We're opening a new chapter this year."

In first-round games Friday night, Todd Lichti scored a career-high 34 points in leading Stanford over Long Beach State 80-77 and Colorado State eliminated New Orleans 63-54 behind the 3-point shooting of David Turcotte.

Other Friday night results: Cleveland State 89, Illinois State 83 in overtime; Middle Tennessee State 85, Tennessee 80; Southern Mississippi 74, Clemson 69; Virginia Commonwealth 81, Marshall 80; and Arkansas State 70, Northeast Louisiana 59.

The second round starts Monday with Louisiana Tech, 22-8, at Connecticut, 16-14. The rest of the round is set for Tuesday night with Arkansas State, 20-13, at Stanford, 21-11, and Houston, 18-12, at Colorado State, 19-12.

In other Tuesday games, it's defending champion Southern Mississippi, 19-10, at Virginia Commonwealth, 22-11; Cleveland State, 22-7, at Ohio State, 17-12; Georgia,

Lady Longhorns win NCAA swim crown

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lady Longhorns, led by Olympian backstroker Betsy Mitchell, rolled to a record fifth consecutive NCAA Women's Swimming and Diving championship on Saturday night before an enthusiastic home pool crowd.

Mitchell, a senior from Maritta, Ohio, added the 200-yard backstroke to her 100-yard backstroke first place medal that she won Friday night at Texas Swimming Center. Her time was a pool record 1:57.21.

She won the silver medal in the 1984 Olympics in the 100-meter backstroke.

Texas scored 661 points to 542.5 points for second place Florida. Stanford was third at 419 points followed by California at 241 and Clemson at 218.5.

Florida's Tami Bruce and Julia Gorman became individual triple medal winners.

Bruce, a junior from San Diego, Calif., earned her third individual gold medal of the meet by winning the 1650-yard freestyle. She clocked an NCAA record 15:50.86 to

It's certainly rough if you're number 97

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Now let's see, 64 teams were invited to the NCAA Tournament and 32 more went to the NIT. One NCAA team, LSU, was 16-13 for the year and one NIT team, Clemson, was 14-14. So where does that leave Florida A&M, going nowhere despite its fancy 22-8 record?

"Disenchanted," Coach Willie Booker said. "Very disenchanted with the whole process of selection."

LSU plays in the swanky Southeastern Conference. Clemson lives in the awesome Atlantic Coast Conference. Florida A&M does its business in the less glamorous setting of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference.

The SEC sent seven of 10 member schools to tournaments. The ACC sent six of eight. The MEAC sent tournament champion North Carolina A&T into the NCAA and everybody else home.

There are conferences and then there are Conferences. "It's a situation where there are people with friends," Booker said. "It shouldn't be that way. You get in a conference, you work hard, you win, you ought to go somewhere. It's a slap in the face. Are we not quality players? We're members of the NCAA. We pay our dues. It's a bunch of baloney."

"The way the process is done bothers me. It hurt my fans. We've turned a program around here and we should have been rewarded, not punished. There are teams in those tournaments that didn't do as well as we did."

And plenty of them. Besides Clemson, the NIT invited Connecticut, 15-14, and Oregon and Boston College, both 15-13. Besides LSU, the NCAA invited St. John's, 17-11.

The NCAA selection committee was widely hailed for the job it did, especially because it avoided homecourt edges that often crept into previous tournaments. But it also went to some old reliables who were on the bubble last Sunday.

Charismatic coaches like Dale Brown of LSU and Louie Carnesecca of St. John's probably give their schools an edge in that toss-up situation. People know them. People don't know Willie Booker.

A&M had the best record among a half-dozen teams that won 20 or more games and went nowhere at tournament time. The others were Akron, 21-7; George Mason, 20-10; Lamar, 20-11; St. Peter's 20-9 and Texas Southern, 21-8.

"You win 20 games, you ought to go someplace," St. Peter's Ted Fiore said. "I felt we would. I was a little surprised we didn't."

"We beat Fairleigh Dickinson, which went to the NCAA. We lost by three to Xavier, which went to the NCAA. We played 20 games on the road where it's tough to win."

"I understand the selection committee's position and the hard decisions it must make and how some teams have to be left out. But I thought we'd be invited to the NIT."

Akron's Bob Huggins felt like a victim of circumstances. His school is an independent after pulling out of the Ohio Valley Conference to upgrade Gerry Faust's football program. Independents don't get automatic conference championship bids. In Akron's case, it got no bids, automatic or otherwise.

"We were victimized," said Huggins, whose team lost to Pitt, the Big East regular season champions, by four points.

"I guess we've got to win some more games," Huggins said. "Maybe we'll win seven more and go 28-0. Then they'd have a hard time keeping us out."

So on Thursday, when 16 NCAA games and eight NIT games were played, these left-out teams and their coaches found other things to do.

When 96 teams are invited to postseason parties and you're not one of them, it's tough to strut around the campus, wearing a big smile.

What are you supposed to chant? "We're Number 97?"

Marshall's move may change NFL

CHICAGO (AP) — Linebacker Wilber Marshall became the first major NFL player to change teams as a free agent Friday when the Chicago Bears let him go to the Redskins by refusing to match Washington's five-year, $6 million offer.

"It was a tough decision," Bears President Michael McCaskey said. "However, we looked carefully at our options and are unified in our position."

As compensation for losing the Pro Bowl caliber player, the Bears will receive two No. 1 draft picks from Washington, one this year and one in 1989.

The only other NFL free-agent transfer took place in 11 years ago when Norm Thompson, a cornerback, went from Baltimore to St. Louis. The inability of players to move to other teams after playing out their options is a major argument cited by the NFL players' union in its anti-trust suit against the league.

Marshall last Friday signed an offer sheet from the Redskins for a guaranteed $6 million over five years, in addition to a $500,000 signing bonus and no-trade clause for the first year. He will earn a base salary of $900,000 in 1988, increasing to $1,000,000 until 1992.

The Bears had a week in which to match the offer or lose Marshall.

"Wilber is a fine football player and we wish him the best," McCaskey added.

"Wilber is a great addition to the Redskins," said Washington General Manager Bobby Beathard. "It isn't often a player of his caliber is available."

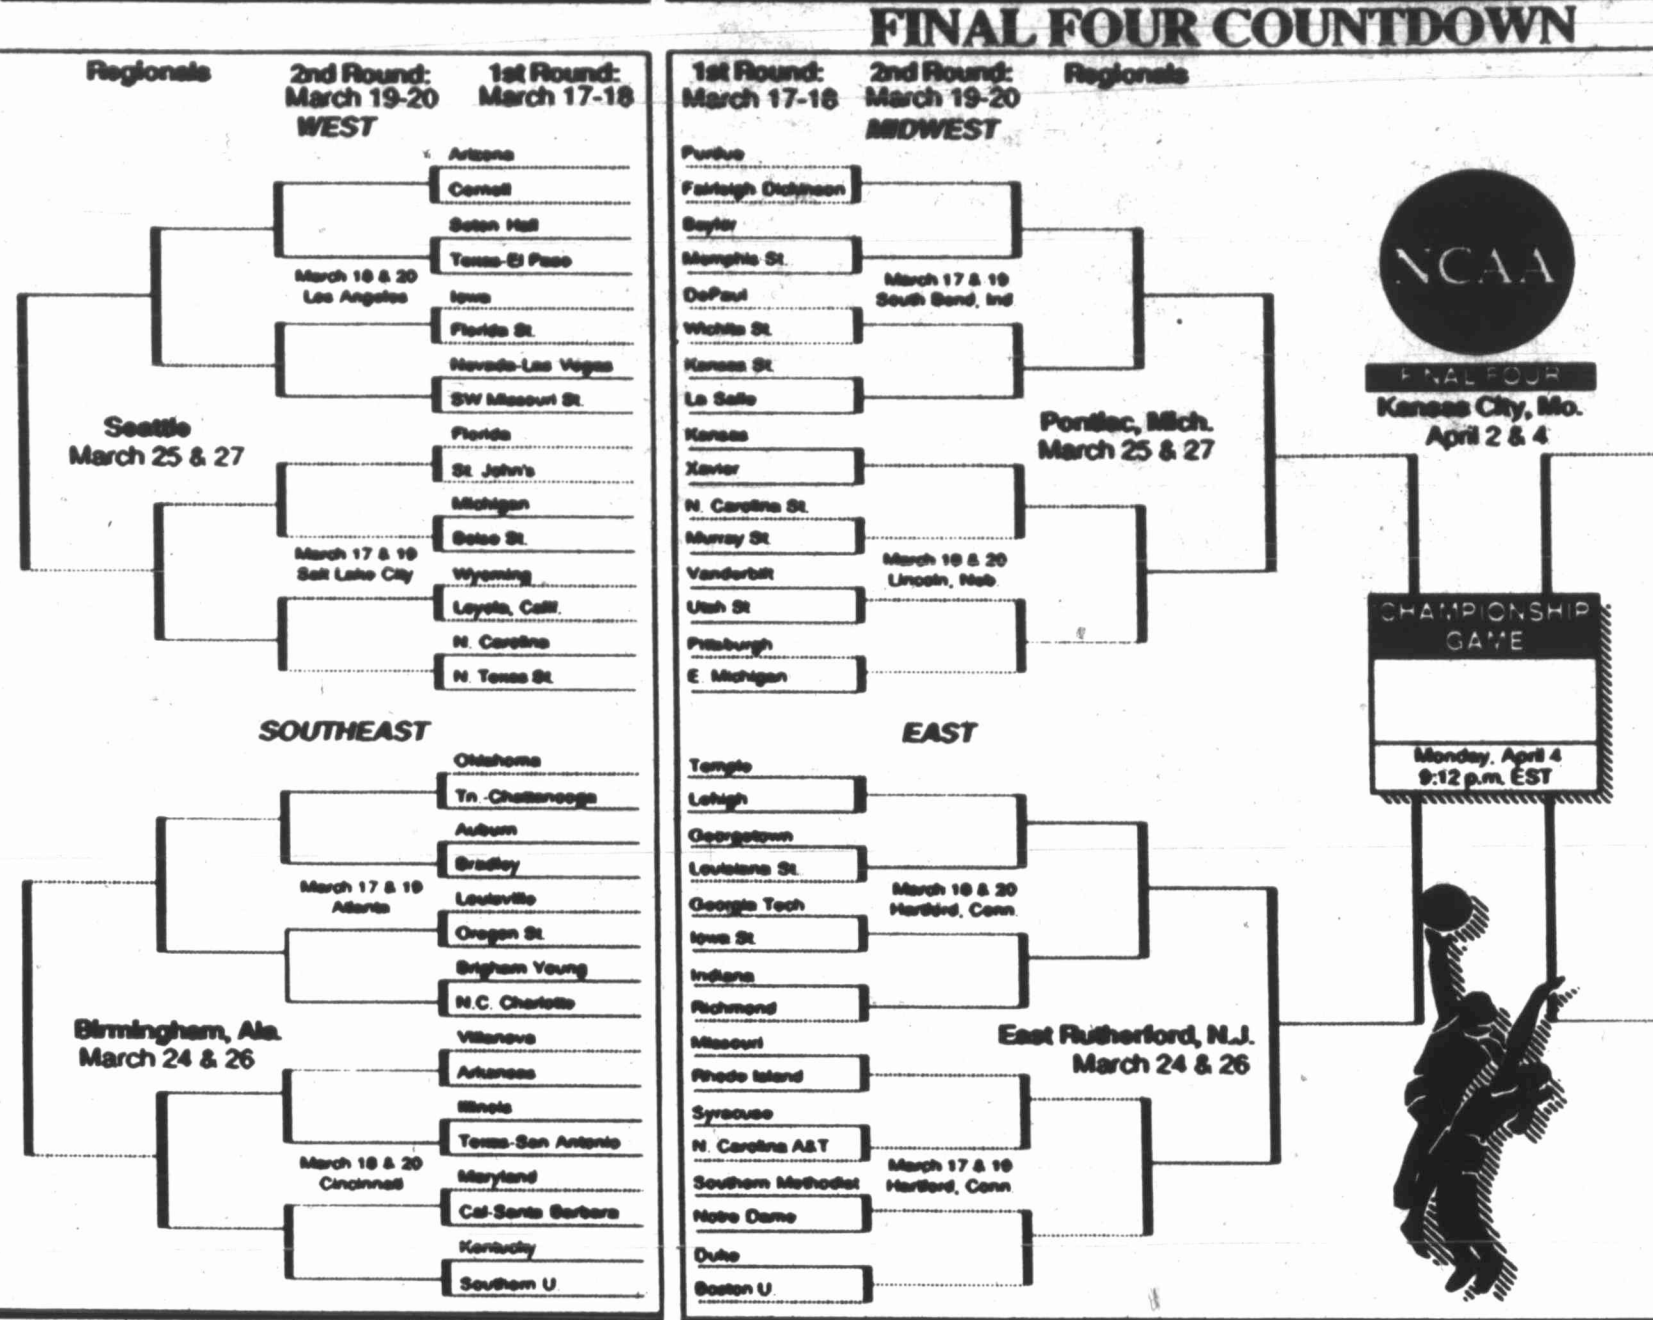

The deal also made Marshall the highest-paid defensive player in the pro football history.

"Building a successful team is similar to putting a puzzle together," said Bears Coach Mike Ditka. "Now, we've got a missing piece, but a lot of talent to fill that void."

"It's a challenge," he added. "We've got to put the deal behind us and continue to be one of the best teams in football."

At 25, Marshall is a four-year veteran. The size of the deal and the movement of a player of his age and proven skills could mean that players' salaries will begin escalating as team owners turn to free agency to build their clubs.

"The deal has gotten a lot of attention, and not just in the papers," said John Jones, spokesman for the NFL Management Council. "But I honestly don't know if anyone has a sense whether this is the start of a larger movement or just an isolated case."

A chance to end the fat jokes

TOKYO (AP) — Mike Tyson was talking about his admiration for sumo wrestling when someone cracked: "Do they remind you of Tony Tubbs?"

"Tony's not that big," said Tyson, who will defend his heavyweight title against Tubbs on Monday in the 55,000-seat Tokyo Dome.

Being too big about the middle has long been a knock against Tubbs and has made him the butt of jokes.

"If Tony doesn't lose weight before he gets to Japan, he's a threat to get harpooned."

Or how about: "Tony will love Tokyo. He won't have to wait for the fish to be cooked."

Tubby Tony, however, if you'll pardon the expression, fits the bill as an opponent for Tyson in a fight that is to showcase internationally the opening of the new arena.

The Japanese would like to see the scheduled 12-round fight last awhile. Tubbs could go the distance.

Tubbs, a 30-year-old former World Boxing Association champion, is an excellent defensive fighter who has not been off his feet in 26 fights, 25 of which he has won.

But that excellent record has been marred by Tubbs' reputation of not getting into good condition for several fights.

When he won the WBA title on a 15-round decision over Greg Page on April 29, 1985, Tubbs weighed 229 pounds. But he weighed 244 pounds when he lost it on points to Tim Witherpoon on Jan. 16, 1986. That decision was split, and critics feel a properly conditioned Tubbs would have kept the title.

The Japanese were concerned about Tubbs not being in shape for a solid effort, and reportedly there is a clause in his contract stating he has to weigh no more than 235 pounds.

Bill Cayton, one of Tyson's managers, denied there was any such clause, but said Tubbs was to get a $50,000 bonus for being in good condition.

Tubbs said he doesn't know anything about a weight stipulation and has never been told he could get a bonus. As for his weight, Tubbs expects to weigh in officially Sunday at between 230 and 232 pounds.

As for an incentive, Tubbs shouldn't need a bonus. The fact that it could be his last hurrah at the championship level should be enough.

Tubbs thinks he can win, but he's under no illusions.

"I'm the stepping stone," he said. "I'm the tuneup."

Tyson is set for a $17 million to $20 million payday for a highly anticipated showdown against Michael Spinks on June 27 at Atlantic City, N.J.

"If I go the distance, do I get the decision?" Tubbs wondered. He is a slick rather than busy fighter, who's not likely to get the nod on close rounds. That also fits him for his role as challenger at this time.

"I'm gambling, man," he said. "I've got to take him out of there."

However, Tubbs is a boxer, not a banger, and this also fits the role he has been assigned. "Sometimes you look ahead," Tubbs said, hoping Tyson might be looking past him to Spinks, "and sometimes it can end up the fight of your life."

Tony Tubbs might make the fight of his life, but he won't rise above the role of challenger.

CBS does homework for tourney

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

Temple, Arizona, Purdue and Oklahoma are the top seeds, but the only sure winner in the NCAA basketball tournament is CBS.

Interest in the event has grown tremendously since 1982, when CBS first televised the tournament. This year, the network will broadcast 47 hours of tournament action, including a record 10 hours of primetime coverage.

"It's so perfect for television," commentator Billy Packer said. "It's almost as if you sat down and tried to make a made-for-TV event."

Packer said the addition of the 3-point shot and expansion of the field to 64 teams have contributed to the basketball boom.

"There's a uniqueness to the tournament in the sense that it encompasses every town in the United States," he said. "You have great grass-root support, which was created when it went to 64 teams. If we were still back at 16, no way it would work for television."

Another plus, Packer said, is that the tournament "doesn't drag on forever."

"It's three weeks and, boom, you're at the Final Four," he said. "The Super Bowl, in contrast, is a single game that drags on for three weeks. This hits quick, and then it's gone."

CBS' new three-year, $166 million contract with the NCAA reflects the growth of the tournament. The network's original three-year deal was worth only $48 million.

CBS kicks off its coverage with late-night telecasts of two opening-round games — St. John's vs. Florida on Thursday and Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Southwest Missouri State on Friday. The network will show a tripleheader of second-round games on Saturday and Sunday.

Golf is coming to pay-per-view television.

The event is "The Desert Scramble," a one-day event pitting Americans Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino against Australian Greg Norman and Welshman Ian Woosnam.

The $300,000 best-ball competition will be held April 25 on the Cochise Golf Course at Scottsdale, Ariz. It will be shown live on pay-per-view outlets from 7-9:30 p.m. EDT.

Until now, the only sports or quasi-sports available on pay-per-view have been boxing and professional wrestling. However, the success of the "Skins Game" on NBC and the rapid growth of pay-per-view have convinced "Desert Scramble" backers that the timing is right.

Viewers will be charged $12.95 to watch the event. Choice Entertainment, which will distribute the program to cable operators, is estimating an audience of 4 million.

Pay-per-view is available in about 10 million homes.

During the Winter Olympics, ABC was criticized for soft-pedaling or ignoring controversial stories. NBC is taking steps to avoid the same fate at the Summer Games.

NBC's contingent at Seoul will include a group of reporters assigned exclusively to breaking stories, interviews and features.

"We're doing this strictly for practical reasons," network spokesman Kevin Monaghan said. "The play-by-play guys and analysts just won't have enough time to cover other things. In boxing, for instance, Marv (Albert) and Ferdie (Pacheco) will be covering 450 fights. That doesn't leave much time for anything else."

Dave Sims, a radio and television sportscaster in New York, has already been hired to report on track and field. NBC may also hire Newsday boxing writer Wallace Matthews and other print reporters.

Takes a special art to block the plate

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Mike Scioscia is known as one of major league baseball's best plate-blockers. While he appreciates such a reputation, he sees blocking the plate effectively as just one part of a catcher's job.

"It's actually a very small part," Scioscia said at the Los Angeles Dodgers' spring training complex.

"I wouldn't be playing if that's all I did. There are a lot of catchers who block the plate as aggressively as I do. I don't think I should be singled out."

"That's way down on my list of priorities. I have to work with the pitching staff, throw people out. Blocking the plate is down there with hitting. I think it's important, but it's down the list."

Scioscia, a 6-foot-2, 219-pounder, figures the last two seasons have been poor ones for him because they have been poor for the Dodgers.

In 1986, when the club went 73-89, Scioscia hit .251 while playing in 122 games. Last year, the record was the same and Scioscia hit .265 in 142 games.

"I'm very disappointed in my production the last two years," he said. "I'm a team player. When the team doesn't win, individual accomplishments don't mean a lot."

Despite what's happened the last two years, Scioscia is optimistic about 1988, mainly because the team has made several changes. "We've had an overhaul," he said. "There were some things that had to be done, and they were. I think we're a much better team. As far as on the field, it's just a matter of getting to know each other."

"If everyone plays near their capabilities, we'll win. On paper, we have a better team than in '85 (when the Dodgers won the National League West championship). But you can take that paper and burn it because it's what you do on the field that counts."

"There's a lot of ifs, but there are always going to be question marks. I like what's happened so far this spring. I really think we've got a better team than we had in '85."

A lot has been written and said about how the pressure is on the Dodgers because of what happened the last two years. Scioscia doesn't buy that.

Kite soars in high winds

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Paul Azinger struggled to a wind-blown 73 Saturday and saw his lead shrink to one shot over Tom Kite after the third round of the $750,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Kite matched the best score of the day, a 69, to chop five strokes off Azinger's lead over the final nine holes.

Azinger, who has led throughout the tournament, had a six-shot advantage at the turn and was threatening to run away from the pack before he bogeyed three of the last five holes. The last, on the 18th hole, finished off a two-shot swing in Kite's favor.

Azinger, the 1987 Player of the Year, was at 8-under 205 after three trips around Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course.

Kite, the 1982 Bay Hill champion, was at 206. "Obviously, I'm very pleased," Kite said. "It really didn't look like Paul was going to let anybody back in the tournament, the way he was playing." Azinger's decline began on the 14th hole, where he three-putted for bogey. He drove into a bunker, hit the lip coming out and had to make a 15-footer for bogey on the 16th, then drove into the left rough and bogeyed the 18th, moments after Kite had hit a 5-iron to within a couple of feet of the pin for a birdie.

It was another two shots back to 44-year-old Dave Eichelberger, who fought his way to a 71 and a 208 total.

Andrew Magee and defending champion Payne Stewart were the only others in the field within six shots of the leader going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $135,000 first prize.

Magee was at 209 after a 73. Stewart had a 70 and was at 210.

"It was a tough day to play a tough golf course," said Tom Watson, the five-time British Open champion who could do no better than match par-71. He was at 215.

Lichti made his first 11 shots, 12-of-13 overall, and made a key steal in the last 15 seconds Friday night.

Long Beach rallied from a 15-point second-half deficit to tie the game at 75 with two minutes to go. Stanford trailed 77-76 before Lichti hit a jump shot with 30 seconds left. Then he deflected a pass by Long Beach State's Jeff Eastin and stole the ball and Stanford's Scott Meinert hit two free throws with nine seconds remaining.

DeAnthony Langston led Long Beach with 22 points. Turcotte, who made six of 10 3-pointers, scored 24 points and Pat Durham added 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as Colorado State led all the way. Ledell Eackles paced New Orleans with 22 points.

Rams Coach Boyd Grant wasn't pleased, although it was CSU's sixth victory in its last seven outings.

"Our kids played hard, but I think they will agree they didn't play well," Grant said. "I didn't think we played like we did in the WAC tournament" when they came within a last-second basket of reaching the championship game.

"Maybe that's good. Now we have a lot of improving to do, and we have about a day to do it in."

Kevin "Mouse" McFadden, who missed his first 11 shots and damaged only three points in the first half, scored nine in the second and five in overtime to lead

Cleveland State to its 15th straight home-court win. He finished with 17 points.

"McFadden just made good plays, especially down the stretch," said Illinois State coach Bob Donewald. "I knew he'd get the ball at the end, but he's skilled enough that he went for it."

Middle Tennessee got 20 points from Chris Rainey and four straight foul shots from Ty Baynham in the final 24 seconds. The Blue Raiders made 26-of-31 free throws, including 15-of-17 in the final seven minutes.

Dyron Nix led Tennessee with 21 points.

Derrick McGhee's free throw followed by Lionel Bacon's breakaway with six seconds left led Virginia Commonwealth past Marshall.

erase the old standard of 15:53.85 by Tiffany Cohen of Texas in 1985.

Bruce, who won two gold medals in last summer's Pan American Games, also took the 500 and 200 yard freestyles earlier in the three-day meet.

Gorman, a junior from Baltimore, Md., won the 200-yard butterfly in 1:56.08 to go with previous victories in the 200 and 400-yard individual medley.

Teammate Dara Torres also eclipsed an NCAA record, winning the 100-yard freestyle for the Lady Gators in 48.26 seconds. The old mark was 48.40 by Tammy Thomas of Kansas in 1983.

The American mark in the event is 48.20 established by Angel Myers of Furman two weeks ago in the Region III U.S. Swimming meet in Atlanta. Myers is not competing in the NCAA's to train for the Olympics.

California freshman Hiroko Nagasaki splashed to an NCAA 200-yard freestyle standard in 2:11.65 to break the old mark of 2:11.93 by Susan Rapp of Stanford in 1987. Rapp was second in 2:11.81.

Florida also established an American record in the 400-yard freestyle with a clocking of 3:16.89 to 3:17.20 for second place Texas. The old record was 3:17.69 by Stanford in 1987.

Debbie Fuller of Ohio State won the first 10 meter diving championship with 578.30 points to 557.15 for silver medalist Mary Fischbach of Michigan. Fischbach won the gold in the one and three meter diving.

A crowd of 1,086 watched the Lady Longhorns put a fifth championship flag into the rafters at the swim center.

Texas won the 1987 title by only 17 points over Stanford, but led by 93 over Florida going into Saturday night's final events.

It also gave one Texas swimmer, senior Debbie Risen of Overland Park, Kan, her fifth championship ring. She redshirted last year because of an injury but was a student coach.

William Scott scored 21 of his season-high 23 points on 3-pointers as Kansas State held DePaul to its lowest point total of the season. Scott was 7-of-8 from the 3-point line for Kansas State, 24-8. DePaul ended its season at 22-8, making its quickest exit from the tournament in three years.

Only nine of Scott's points came in the first half, but three of them put Kansas State ahead for good, 30-28, one minute before halftime.

Rod Strickland led DePaul with 19 points.

SOUTHEAST

No. 4 Oklahoma 107, Auburn 87
Stacey King scored nine of his 37 points during a three-minute stretch when Oklahoma moved from a 55-45 lead to a 73-52 margin with 13 minutes left in its Southeast romp over Auburn.

The Sooners topped the 100-point mark for the 19th time this season and became the fifth team to reach that plateau in the tournament.

Oklahoma, 32-3, never trailed after King ignited a 16-7 run by hitting a short jumper in the lane with 16:54 left in the first half.

Auburn, 19-11, was led by Jeff Moore's 22 points.

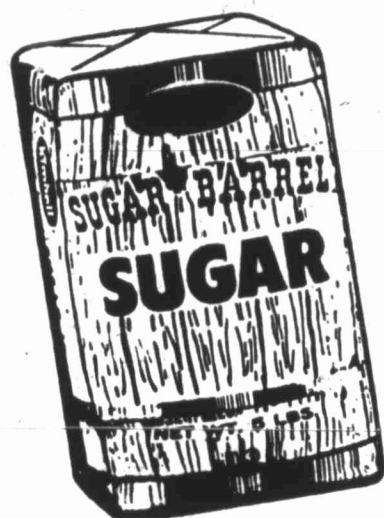

Louisville 97, Brigham Young 76
Pervis Ellison scored 24 points to lead Louisville over 19th-ranked Brigham Young. The victory sends the Cardinals against Oklahoma in the region semifinals on Thursday in Birmingham, Ala.

Ellison had 14 points in the first half as the Cardinals, 24-10, who won the national title two years ago, overcame a 12-2 deficit and used a 10-0 run to take a 51-42 lead at the half. BYU, 26-6, could get no closer than nine points in the second half, the last time at 65-56.

The Cardinals outscored the Cougars 20-6 over the next eight minutes and took a 23-point lead at 85-62 with 6:06 left.

BYU, which won the Western Athletic Conference regular-season title, was led by Michael Smith with 21 points.

Through the fire ...

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Cancer victims themselves are not the only ones affected by the disease. To be sure, they must bear the brunt of the disease's wrath. Surgery, chemotherapy, radiation treatment and physical pain are just a few of the struggles the patient must face.

But not all of the hardships cancer inflicts are suffered alone.

For the family of the victim, the emotional struggles involved can be just as real — and just as painful — as those faced by their loved one.

Although painful, the experience serves to strengthen the bonds of some families — just as fire forges iron into steel.

This story is about one of those families.

By most standards, Shele Reid, a sophomore at Coahoma High School, had an ordinary life for her first 15 years. Her grades were consistently good, she was active in sports such as basketball and track, and she had her share of friends.

One thing marred this otherwise normal existence, her mother recalls.

"She had headaches all her life," Mrs. Shyrlee Reid says. "It finally got so bad that, when she was 10 (in 1981), we took her to the doctor to see what was wrong."

The doctor, Nell Sanders, of Medical Arts Hospital, diagnosed migraine headaches. Surprisingly, the headaches ceased soon after this determination, Shyrlee says.

"They just stopped. Either that, or Shele just stopped complaining."

Shele remained headache-free until they mysteriously reappeared in September 1986. The family first thought the headaches were stress-related, but they increased in severity, causing Shele to suffer sleeplessness and nausea, her mother said.

A prescription was secured after a return trip to Dr. Sanders, but it didn't relieve the pains. Finally, in November, Shele was referred to a physician at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

On the Monday before Thanksgiving, Shele, her mother, and her father, Philip, went to the hospital, where Shele was examined by neurosurgeon Lloyd Garland. X-rays and an electro-encephalogram were inconclusive, and arrangements for a CAT-scan were made for Wednesday.

"There were some shiny spots that were showing up on the left side of her skull," Philip says. "The doctor thought it might be an old injury, but he wasn't sure."

Her parents recall Shele suspecting that it might be something more serious.

"Shele was afraid it was a tumor," says Shyrlee. "In one of her science classes, the teacher had told her that if you have a pain in the same spot on your head, that could be an indication of a tumor."

The family was shocked by the news when her fears were confirmed by the CAT-scan.

"We weren't expecting what we heard," her father says. "We thought we'd just end up getting some more medication."

Surgery was scheduled for the following Monday, Dec. 2. Philip remembers the family "walking around in a daze" in the days preceding the operation.

"Some of our friends told us we should get a second opinion," he says. "But why get a second opinion when you could see it on the CAT-scan? That's when we started doing a lot of praying."

He and his family would fall back on their faith often during the course of the next year.

"I was pretty scared," Shele recalls of this period. "I didn't really have an idea what I was in for."

"It was weird, because it's like (Shele) knew she had had it all along," says her older sister, Angela. As for her reaction to the diagnosis, Angela remembers "feeling pretty guilty, because I had teased her a lot, and had made dumb jokes like calling her 'Old brain-tumor head,'" before the diagnosis.

Younger sister LeeAnn recalls "sitting in bed, crying. I had fought with her a lot, but I didn't want her to die."

The surgery took less time than the family expected — about three hours — but the doctor's prognosis was far from comforting, Philip says.

"He told us he got about 80 percent of the tumor," he said. "But when we asked him what her chances were, he said that the tumor would probably kill her — if she lived long enough," after the surgery.

The doctor had also warned the Reids about possible post-surgical effects, such as stroke or paralysis. Although these never occurred, the chilling prognosis numbed the family.

"Shele was more like a zombie than anything else," says Shyrlee. "We expected her to fall apart, but she didn't."

"Every time we stopped to think about it, things would get kind of heavy," Philip says. "So we were busy trying to keep her preoccupied."

"It was so unreal, I couldn't believe it," Angela recalls. "I thought she didn't have long to live. I was scared and tried to be nice to her. I was glad she came through the surgery as good as she did."

"I didn't like the idea of how long she had left," says her mother. "She had just turned 15. It was like standing under a cold shower — it was a shock."

The doctor's warning was clear: Since he hadn't been able to remove the entire tumor, it would continue to grow unless checked by radiation or chemotherapy. He began making preparations for Shele to see a radiologist and chemotherapist.

The family, however, had decided to seek a second opinion.

"We decided to go to Houston to get a second opinion, and that we wouldn't start radiation until then," Philip says. "We were not going to stay there. I didn't like the idea of radiating her whole brain."

Shele was released from Methodist Hospital on Dec. 13, and returned home to Sand Springs for two weeks. Angela remembers having a difficult time trying to resume her schoolwork.

"I kind of slept through some of my classes then," she says. Although she was thankful that her teachers were sympathetic of her situation, she was angered by some of her friends' reaction to Shele's plight.

"I would get angry when people told me they 'understood'," she said. "How could they understand what I was going through? They couldn't."

Three days after celebrating Christmas — less than a month since the tumor was diagnosed — the family went to Houston.

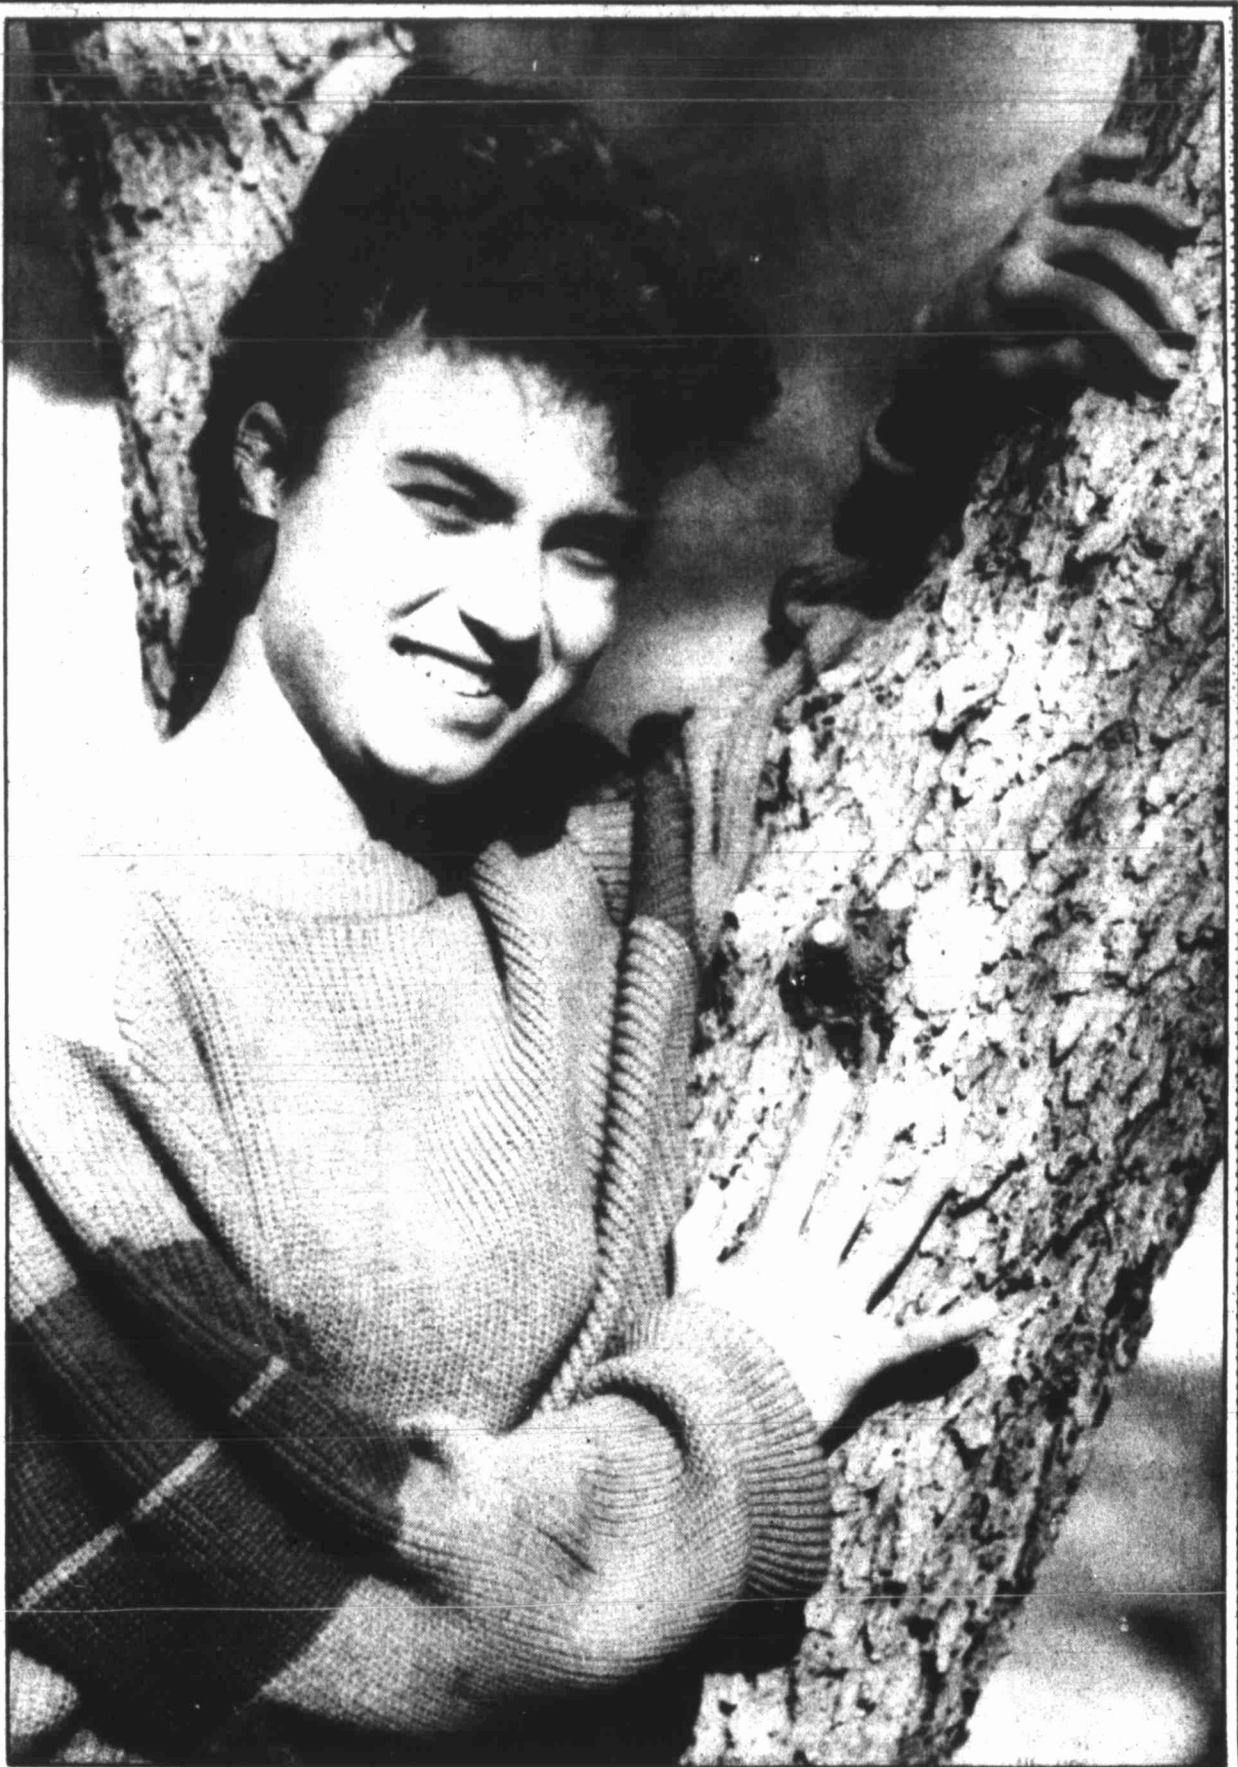

An examination by doctors at M.D. Anderson Hospital showed that the tumor had grown to the extent that it was causing pressure on Shele's optic nerve, blurring her vision. After a brief return home, a second operation was scheduled for Jan. 8.

Shele's physician in Houston, Dr. Richard Moser, impressed both her and the family.

"The doctor in Lubbock was kind of an old guy," Shele says. "Dr. Moser was funny. I liked him."

"He gave her some optimism," her father says. "When he first examined her, he didn't know if there was going to be any surgery. He just said they would take care of anything that came along."

"I was really impressed," says Shyrlee. "The facility wasn't a drudge like I thought it would be."

Everybody was cheerful and tried to be helpful. The social worker assigned to us gave us a list with a variety of places to stay.

"I just felt like these people knew what they were doing," she adds. "Dr. Moser was a delight. He tried to break the ice, to make Shele feel better."

Unlike Lubbock, where the doctor withheld some information from Shele, Moser explained everything in detail to her — the possible consequences, such as stroke, loss of speech, paralysis, even death.

Her mother faced the prospect of the second operation with ambivalence.

"It wasn't fair to go through it again," Shyrlee says. "Why couldn't they have gotten all of (the tumor) the first time? I was scared that we were pressing our luck."

"It was worse the second time around," Angela recalls. "The doctor went more into detail about what was going to happen. There was nothing we could do but wait. It was frustrating."

LeeAnn remembers feeling scared during that time, but found partial distraction from her problems by talking with parents of other patients.

"There was a playroom on (Shele's) floor, and I went in there a lot," LeeAnn says. "A lot of little kids came in there, and the nurses let me play with them. I loved that."

On the morning of the eighth, Shele remembers not being scared until the orderlies took her to the pre-op room.

"It was real cold in there, and I kept asking for more sheets. I waited in there for about 15-20 minutes. There were all these thoughts going through my head; I felt like telling them to call the whole thing off."

"Then the orderly came in and shaved my head, and I started crying. That's the last thing I remember," Shele says.

The surgery lasted 10½ hours, and Philip remembers a tired but pleased Moser coming out of the operating room to give them much-needed good news.

"He explained everything that happened," Reid says. "He was very optimistic that he had gotten everything."

Shele recalls being wheeled into the intensive care unit, and talking to Moser about the operation. Because her body had been motionless for such a long period, it hurt more than her head, she noted.

"I hurt everywhere but my head," she recalls, adding that the soreness kept her awake all that night.

After five days of recovery at the hospital, the family came home for a week before returning to Houston for Shele's radiation treatments.

The treatments lasted five and a half weeks — once a day; five days a week — and ended in March 1987.

Shele's recovery from the tumor has been mirrored by the decreasing visits to her doctor. At first, her appointments were once every six weeks, then every three months, and now, once every six months.

Subsequent check-ups have revealed no traces of the tumor, her father says. "The doctors said there was a remote possibility of a re-occurrence, but they are very optimistic that it's gone."

Shele is back to doing all the things she did before her operations. She maintained her schoolwork during her illness, and once again is high-jumping for the track team.

During the crisis, her father had to be away from his job with Northwest Oil Co., but says his employers have been "fantastic."

"I was off probably two months off and on during that time. They just said, 'Don't worry about it. Your daughter is the most important thing right now.'"

Philip gives the entire credit for his daughter's recovery to God.

"Before this all happened, I thought we were ordinary run-of-the-mill family," he says. "We don't feel so ordinary now. Something happened to us that you always expect to happen to someone else — and it made our family stronger."

"I'm glad everything turned out OK," LeeAnn says. "I don't know exactly what it is, but I feel closer to Shele now. We hardly fight anymore."

To which Angela laughingly replies, "Thank God for that."

"We knew we had a lot of friends," Shyrlee says. "But we got support from a lot of people we didn't even know. There's a lot of love in Big Spring."

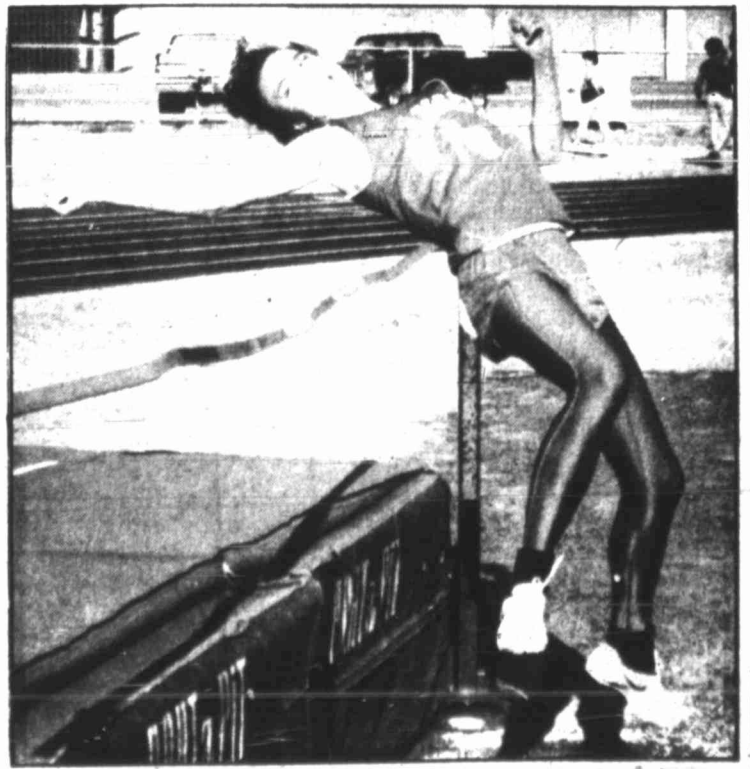

"And Coahoma and Sand Springs," her husband adds.

"God makes things like this happen for a reason," Angela says. "It made this family closer. We realize that nobody is promised a tomorrow."

Life has begun to return to normal for the Philip Reid family of Sand Springs, after their daughter Shele, 16, underwent two operations to remove a brain tumor. Subsequent examinations have found no evidence of recurrence. ### Author speaks to local unit

Carolyn Corbin, president of Carolyn Corbin Inc., an international research, training, and consulting firm based in Dallas, spoke to the Mary Kay Cosmetic consultants of Dene Sheppard's unit recently.

Her topic was "Maximizing Your Personal and Professional Impact."

Corbin, the author of Strategies 2000, presented a slide show, and consultants participated in a "Personal Style Survey."

Her book Strategies 2000 was dedicated to her cousin, Gloria McDonald of Big Spring, who asked Corbin to speak to the group, said Dene Sheppard, unit director.

After obtaining advanced degrees in psychology and business, Corbin launched a consulting and training career in the high tech and financial services industries. She pioneered Computer Assisted Instruction.

For her work in that field, she received an award by Dr. Robert Jones, NASA designer of the space helmet used in the first United States moon walk.

Because of her interest in space business, she is the first trainer chartered to consult on space stations, according to a news release.

She is the only woman ever selected to address the Detroit Tiger, and she did so in 1984, the year they won the World Series.

Corbin has been honored with a plaque from the business people of Peru for being the "Most Impressive American," spotlighted during a three-month corporate tour of the United States, the release stated.

She presents seminars for many major corporations across North America, including IBM, Wells Fargo Business Credit, GE, Soho, Phillips Petroleum, Contel, RE/MAX Ontario, Citicorp, ARCO, and the U.S. Department of Defense, according to the release.

Sheppard said Corbin speaking to the group is part of a continuing effort for personal and professional growth for Mary Kay consultants.

In the midst of our sorrows, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our many relatives, friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the loss of our beloved husband, father, son and brother, Elton Scott Franklin. We especially wish to thank the Rev. Billy Patton for his consoling words; all the donors of the many beautiful floral offerings; the pallbearers; Bagpipe Player, Edmund Scott; the Masonic Lodge and Suez Roasters for their kindness, a special thanks to the Max Moore family and co-workers; and to the Myers and Smith Funeral Home for their efficient management of the services.

ARLINGTON — Although the Borchardt triplets, Ferrel, left, Max and Billy, were born within minutes of each other, doctors found that Ferrel had been conceived after the other two babies and is six weeks younger.

Pregnant woman conceives

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A woman has astounded her doctors by giving birth to triplets — two of them six weeks older than their brother.

Apparently, 29-year-old Kim Borchardt was pregnant with twins when a third child was conceived, doctors said.

"The amazing thing about this is that they were conceived at two different times," said Dr. Neal Goldberg, director of neonatology at Arlington Memorial Hospital.

Ms. Borchardt, who had not taken any fertility drugs, had a Caesarean section Jan. 9 at Arlington Memorial. The triplets weren't due until March 8.

Billy Joe Jr., the first triplet, and his brother, Max, showed 32 weeks of development at birth. But Ferrel, the third sibling was only 26 weeks along and weighed 1 pound, 13 ounces — less than half as much as his brothers.

"Ferrel was a lot sicker and had more of the premature problems," Goldberg said. "One night he almost died, he was so sick."

All three boys had problems when a fetal blood channel to the lungs failed to clamp off at birth, Goldberg said. Medication helped the two older boys, but Ferrel required surgery within 24 hours.

"He was too sick to move him to the OR (operating room); we had to do it at bedside," Goldberg said. "But that turned him around. It's not only a miracle he made it, but that he's done so well."

Ferrel was released from the neonatal intensive care unit Wednesday. Billy and Max were released three weeks ago to Kim and her husband Joey Borchardt, who live in Lewisville.

Ferrel was not fazed when his parents, accompanied by his brothers, came by to pick him up. He slept, while Max made faces and Billy delighted nurses with his smile.

"I just hope they all don't look alike when they grow up so they can't play tricks on us," Mrs. Borchardt said.

Max and Billy might look alike, but Ferrel most likely won't be an identical triplet to the others.

Raising kids in the past unrealistic

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, as a 48-year-old widow, I adopted a divorced relative's 3- and 4-year-old daughters. We live on a farm, near a village where there is a buggy factory and a blacksmith; the movie house shows films from the '30s through the '50s, the restaurants serve home cooking, and everything closes at 5 p.m. We attend a 100-year-old church. The girls are sweet and innocent. They are not allowed to watch TV and they watch only VCR films that I approve of. They read my old books and listen to my records from the '50s and before. I teach them morals, manners, ethics, history, nature, and to love everybody.

The school board wants me to bus them with the other non-Amish kids to school in another town. They've never seen a school, and I don't want them learning about computers, women's lib, sex, and the downgrading of everything that once was important in our country; nor do I want them associating with the minorities or illegitimates the public schools admit these days.

I can sell 25 acres at $8,000 per acre lot. Would this be enough to have the girls tutored until they reach 16?

CONSCIENTIOUS MOTHER, MASSILLON, OHIO

DEAR MOTHER: I don't know how much tutoring would cost, but I would be less concerned with the cost than the long-term effects of your well-intentioned plan to raise your daughters in a wholesome, controlled environment of your own making.

While your motives are admirable, your behavior is controlling and unrealistic. It's also hypocritical. You say you are teaching the girls to love everybody, yet you do not want them associating with "minorities and illegitimates" — as though they were not a part of the "everybody" you are teaching your daughters to love. Your over-protectiveness will prevent the girls from living in the real world and coping with life's problems.

Please abandon the idea of trying to raise the girls in a time warp. If you succeed, they will be defenseless against the challenges of life in the 20th century.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are proud parents of a beautiful baby boy. We adopted him, but the minute I held him in my arms, he became "ours" — and the term "adopted" vanished from my vocabulary. How I wish that were the case with my mother-in-law. Every time she shows him off — even to complete strangers — she mentions that he is "adopted." This is unnecessary and it cuts my heart like a knife.

Abby, please help me find a way to tell her to stop. I can't take much more.

A TRUE MOM IN TEXAS

DEAR MOM: Take your mother-in-law aside at the first opportunity and say, "Mother (or whatever you call her), please forget that our baby was an adopted child. He is ours now. When you mention that he is adopted, it cuts my heart like a knife. I know if you realize how much it hurts me, you wouldn't do it, so I am asking you to please never mention it again. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for remembering this." Period.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced woman (age 44) who has been having an intimate relationship with my married boss for the last three years. (He is 55). His wife died three months ago, and all of a sudden he has cooled off with me considerably — not but entirely.

This morning he asked me to make plane and hotel reservations for him and a "Ms. Somebody" as he is taking her to Hawaii! Her name is not familiar to me, so he must have met her very recently. He asked me to get "adjoining rooms."

I am terribly hurt and upset and would like to tell him to make his own reservations for this trip. I am not thinking very straight. Please advise.

NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR NO NAME: If you tell your boss to make his own reservations, he may have none about firing you. Cool it until you know what's what. Ms. Somebody may be a relative or just a friend.

Agent explains how to tell if a tomato is disease resistant

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

How can I tell if the tomato plants I buy are disease resistant or not?

Breeders have incorporated the best features of wild and experimental plants into today's garden varieties, including resistance to pests and diseases. In seed catalogs and at nurseries, labels on the plants have capital letters after the variety name. These letters some sort of

Ask the agent resistance: F is fusarium wilt, V is for verticillium wilt (both are soil-borne fungi that yellow, weaken, stunt or kill tomato plants), and N is for nematodes, tiny wormlike root parasites.

Can you give me a little information about a drip irrigation system for home gardens?

Drip irrigation, developed in Israel more than 40 years ago, is just now catching on with gardeners. Although drip systems vary in design, all are basically leaky hoses that release water, a drop at a time, at the base of each plant. Very little water is lost to evaporation above ground. In numerous tests, drip irrigation has been shown to increase yields of many fruits and vegetables, including watermelon, potatoes, corn, squash, tomatoes and peppers, while using 30 to 50 percent less water than sprinklers and furrow irrigation.

Since the water is delivered to a small area, it penetrates deeply and quickly — taking as little as 15 minutes to reach a depth of one foot. Deep watering encourages plants to form equally deep roots.

One of the cheapest ways to start dripping would be to punch some small holes in that garden hose and lay it out in the garden. The main drawback to this method is that most of the water squirts out of the holes closest to the faucet and very little reaches the end. For less than $25 a gardener can buy one of several types of soaker hoses.

Are you concerned about cholesterol?

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Are we overly worried about how much cholesterol is in the foods we eat? The answer is yes — and no.

A high blood cholesterol level is a known risk factor for heart disease. Coronary risk rises progressively with cholesterol level, especially when cholesterol levels go above 200 milligrams per deciliter. Milligrams of cholesterol per deciliter of blood is the standard measurement for blood cholesterol level. A deciliter is one-tenth of a liter and is slightly less than one-half cup.

As a result, the National Institute of Health advises all adults over 20 to have their blood cholesterol level checked every 5 years, know what their cholesterol level is, and take steps to lower elevated levels.

Besides high blood cholesterol, other factors also put a person at risk of heart disease, such as high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, obesity, diabetes, a family history of heart disease or being male.

Dietary treatment is the cornerstone of therapy to reduce blood cholesterol. People with borderline-high cholesterol levels, but no other risk factors, will be placed by their doctors on a cholesterol-lowering diet. They should reduce their total fat to less than 30 percent of calories, saturated fat to less than 10 percent of calories, and dietary cholesterol to less than 300 mg a 1-day. For individuals with high blood cholesterol and other risk factors, the treatment may include cholesterol lowering drugs as well as low-cholesterol diet.

Although only about 25 percent of the population will have high cholesterol levels, the rest of us still need to watch our fat intake and control the other risk factors. That means reducing the total fat in our diets; using polyunsaturated fats in place of saturated fats like shortening, lard or coconut oil; trimming the fat from meat and poultry and removing skin from poultry; and moderating certain high-cholesterol foods, such as liver.

Change to lower-cholesterol diet gradually

You'll have more success in moving toward a lower-cholesterol diet if you make changes gradually. Try changing the way you eat one meal at a time. For example, change all of your dinner foods to lower fat items. Or try changing one type of food at a time, such as switching to low fat dairy products.

As you make diet changes, be sure your meals are balanced with all the nutrients you need. If you eliminate all dairy products, for instance, you're also eliminating calcium and other important nutrients you need. If you eliminate meat, you're removing the best source of protein and available iron from your diet. Instead, eat leaner cuts of meat and trim fat before cooking.

A cholesterol-lowering diet shouldn't cut out any class of foods entirely. Even some fat, mostly in a polyunsaturated form, is necessary for good health.

Focus on family

Walter and Suncha Christensen will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in April. Invitations are in the mail to a reception in their honor on April 23 at Garrett Hall in the First United Methodist Church.

The event will be hosted by their children, W. Neil and Judy Christensen, Mt. Clements, Mich., and Dr. Phillip and Lorene Christensen, Salt Lake City. Grandchildren Amara and Damian Christensen, Salt Lake City; Brian Christensen, Mt. Clements; and Brenda Christensen, Los Angeles, will also be on hand.

By the way, Walter has just come home from a Midland hospital, where he underwent knee surgery.

"He's doing so well," says Suncha, "that they released him several days early." He'll be back in top shape for the April festivities.

John and Ladona Cook and daughter, Megan, will be home today from a vacation in Big Bend. "We go every March," says John. "We don't do a lot — just relax. That's what we like about it." Favorite activities include hiking and swimming in the hot springs of the Rio Grande. "There was once a bathroom there," John says. "You can still see the foundation." They sometimes rent row boats to ford the river, and hire burros for the ride into the little Mexican town of Boquillas.

R. V. and Eunice Funderburk of Childress, in Las Vegas recently to attend a trade show and convention.

Chuck and Patsy took time to visit their daughters, Vanessa Cawthon and Cheryl Kight, who live in Las Vegas. Vanessa, a registered nurse, just moved there from Irving to take a position as charge nurse in the cancer unit at Human Sunrise Hospital. Cheryl has lived in Las Vegas for 15 years and owns her own business, Metro Light & Design.

Pam and Jim Stewart report that their son, Heath, has been attending a 10-day NASA Space Academy training program in Huntsville, Ala.

A freshman at Texas Tech, majoring in electrical engineering and aerospace, Heath will earn one college credit for the mini-course which he was due to complete today.

"They underwent training identical to that given the astronauts," explained Pam. This included a simulated shuttle mission, she said, in which they were locked inside a space shuttle, simulating flight conditions, for 24 hours. The training is open to selected youth — seniors in high school and freshmen in college — to increase awareness of the aerospace industry and recruit future astronaut trainees.

Three local musicians, members of the Heart of Texas Band, attended the Texas Steel Guitar Association's Fourth Annual Convention last weekend at the Marriott Hotel in Dallas.

Shelton Castle, lead guitar; J.R. Hayes, bass; and Calvin Carnes, drums, had a chance to "jam" with other professional musicians from all over Texas as well as Nashville, including Johnny Bush — of "Whiskey River" fame. Another star attending was Buddy Emmons, owner of Step 1 Records in Nashville, which produces records for Ray Price, Johnny Bush and Darrell McCall, among others.

Visitors to Big Spring next week from Dortmund, Germany, will be Mr. and Mrs. Franz-Ferdinand Marx. They're making the trip here to see his daughter, Stephanie, a Rotary International Exchange Student, who is the house guest of James and Pam Welch.

After spending a few days here, the Marxes will visit New Orleans and then go on to Florida. Stephanie, a senior at Big Spring High School, plans to take the senior trip to Acapulco with her class in May. And she's looking for her mother, Karen Marx, who also lives in Dortmund, to be here for her graduation. Karen will stay with James and Pam while she's in town.

Competition's best bet seen in cooperation

By TOM PETERS

I've used this column as a bully pulpit time and again to rail about the need for unfettered competition — to spur the necessary, once-a-century revolution in management practice. This week I want to introduce a paradox: Much more competition demands much more cooperation.

Cooperation is not our instinct. We have always had an adversarial bent.

James Madison may have inadvertently started it in political affairs with the Federalist Papers. Our fragile democracy survives by maintaining dynamic tension between the executive, judicial and legislative branches; the competitive assertion of interest-group rights comes naturally to us.

Likewise, in economic affairs, Americans are the ultimate proponents of Adam Smith's unbridled competitive capitalism.

I hardly mean to challenge the overall efficacy of the American system. But Americans' adversarial attitude toward anything (for instance, we have 655,000 lawyers, while Japan, with half our population, has 13,000) is causing us untold harm in the changing commercial sphere.

Our enterprises are at war. Outside the firm we go at it with suppliers. Our arms-length, contractual dealings aim to induce rival vendors to engage in bloody price wars with quality often suffering.

But now, the most innovative firms, such as Harley-Davidson, are preaching heresy: supplier partnerships and sole-source arrangements. Suppliers and buyers are becoming teammates, dedicated to constant, joint projects aimed at quality and productivity improvement.

Most firms also have long engaged in warlike relationships with customers — the ultimate user of the product or service (witness the auto industry's approach to warranty claim adjudication), and especially the wholesaler, retailer, franchisee or manufacturing rep.

Yet in today's more competitive setting, developing lifelong customer relationships is paramount.

For instance, teams of company and franchisees, company and distributors and company and end users must continually be formed to exchange information and rapidly create new products.

Only partnership with all members of the distribution-user channel will promote world-class competitiveness.

Joint ventures are a final type of external relationship that must change its adversarial coloring.

More and more big firms are turning to small companies to fill gaps in their product lines. And everyone is sub-contracting literally everything. Working together with such outsiders as partners is a must today.

But sadly, we reserve our most virulent adversarial behavior for people inside our firms: management vs. the union; function vs. function. And, once again, it will not do.

To be sure, the expert views of people in different functions remain vital; and the union certainly has a legitimate role in numerous firms.

But partnership must become the dominant mode of daily dealings. For example, manufacturers, marketers, designers, accountants, salespeople, service people (as well as vendors and distributors) must work together from the inception of every project, to cut the product-development cycle by the 90 percent necessary to survive.

Likewise, management and labor must sit on the same, not opposite, sides of the table, to induce rapid quality and productivity improvement.

So what can you and I do? My advice is homely. In the past several months, I've been working on a public television program about leadership.

I've, therefore, had the privilege of hanging out with some real heroes, such as Pat Carrigan, the first woman ever to manage a General Motors assembly plant; and Winchester, N.H., high school principal Dennis Littky.

Both were initially beset with American adversarialism at its worst. But both have prevailed, turning a myopic school board and the union, which had a long-term negative environment, into full-blown partners.

Both worked like the devil to overcome their tumultuous inheritance, proceeding from bone-deep and eerily parallel beliefs: patience, constant and informal communication, good will, trust, straight-

Immigration officials plan pro-amnesty blitz

EL PASO (AP) — The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service will take to the airwaves in an effort to get more aliens to tune in to immigration amnesty before the May 4 deadline.

The INS, through the Dallas-based Spanish Information Service, intends to blanket the state with a three-hour broadcast message starting at 9 a.m. CST March 26.

The program will originate at the INS Legalization Center in Dallas and will be carried on 14 Spanish-language radio stations statewide and another station in Albuquerque, N.M.

Most or all the stations will hold live remote broadcasts from their local legalization centers and each will go statewide for a few minutes in a phone linkup, INS spokesman John Armistead said Thursday in Dallas.

"We're going to have a big shindig. It's going to be a giant promotion," said Zoltan Csanyi, news director for KAMA-AM, an El Paso Spanish-language station. "We're working with the INS to promote that fact that the amnesty deadline is near."

KAMA will broadcast live from the El Paso legalization center, Csanyi said.

The promotion is for people "who haven't been listening to the news or who have been putting it off," Csanyi said. "We're here to tell them time is running out and they have only a few days."

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, people who have lived in the United States illegally since before Jan. 1, 1982, can apply for amnesty and obtain temporary residency and the right to work legally. But they must apply by May 4.

Amnesty recipients later can apply for permanent residency and eventually apply for U.S. citizenship.

INS officials also are answering questions from potential amnesty applicants on live call-in radio shows during the last eight weeks of the application period.

About 20 radio stations belonging to the SIS network carry the weekly call-in show, which will move to a different location most weeks. It has been broadcast so far from Houston and San Antonio, Dallas, El Paso and other cities are scheduled to host the shows later.

During the 55-minute show, INS officials field questions about amnesty requirements, paperwork delays, proper documentation and other topics, SIS reporter Bertha Obregon said.

"The response has been incredible," Ms. Obregon said. "About 10 (phone) lines are available, and believe me, we use them all."

The call-in shows are broadcast over radio stations in Albuquerque, N.M., and in the Texas cities of Amarillo, Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Laredo, Lubbock, McAllen, Odessa, Pearsall, San Angelo, San Antonio and Uvalde.

OPEC report lifts oil prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The rumor-battered oil market has found some temporary support in a report that OPEC may take steps next week to bolster prices.

In a statement issued in Lagos, Nigeria, and reported in the United States late in Thursday's trading session, OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman said he would announce measures March 22 to stabilize the market.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for April delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, jumped 28 cents to $16.28 per barrel. Most of the increase came in the final minutes of trading.

Refined products also finished higher. April contracts for wholesale gasoline gained .36 cent to settle at 45.60 cents per gallon, while April heating oil rose 14 cent to 44.22 cents per gallon.

Before Lukman's statement was released, prices had fluctuated in reaction to a variety of rumors, some involving reports of price discounting, others focusing on the unrest in Panama.

Traders said such reports recently had become the market's lifeblood.

"The market will trade aggressively on any rumor," said John Hill, a vice president for Merrill Lynch Energy Futures.

Prices opened higher Thursday on reports that output by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had fallen to its lowest level of the year. But sentiment soon turned bearish amid reports that Saudi Arabia, the cartel's largest producer, planned to discount sales to Japanese customers.

Prices then recovered in response to reports that a strike by electrical workers had cut off power to the trans-Panama oil pipeline and rose further on Lukman's statement.

But despite the upward move sparked by Lukman, market observers remained skeptical of the mood among OPEC members.

"There's no substance to it," said Hill of Lukman's reported plan.

The market has traded nervously since reports picked up last week that OPEC might convene an emergency meeting to discuss ways to prop up sagging prices. Hopes for such a meeting later faded, but picked up again in light of Lukman's announcement.

I have received numerous books lately. Probably most useful among them are: Lubbock's Operation Bootstrap farmers' education program titled "The Bureaucracy Buster," by Bruce Magness, and one from The Texas Research League explaining "Appraisal Practices and Tax Burdens, Texas Local Governments 1987."

The Bootstrap book explains how to deal with the Farmers' Home Administration, Federal Land Banks, production credit associations and the Small Business Administration.

To get a copy, contact Magness at 2302 34th St., Lubbock, Texas, 79411 or telephone (806) 791-5041.

The Texas Research League's booklet deals with local taxes, and is available for $5 from the league by writing them at P.O. Box 12456, Austin, Texas, 78711.

Spring City, is attending the Satellite Broadcasting and Communications Association of America's National Trade Show at Bally's Las Vegas Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev. The show runs through Tuesday.

According to the association's information, the satellite industry is making quite a comeback from the two-year slump in sales which followed the onset of signal scrambling, prompted in part by low-cost subscription packages.

Technical difficulties prevented the publication last week of photographs of several new store managers in the Spring City.

Among them is JERI WORKMAN, taking over at Whataburger from Jean Hale. Workman formerly managed the Whataburger restaurant in Sweetwater and has traveled West Texas extensively for the company, she said Spring City folks have impressed her tremendously with their friendliness.

Also taking on managerial duties in Big Spring is Cliff

Attaway of Dunlap's in Highland Park Shopping Center. He comes from Cleburne and is house-hunting for himself, his wife and two sons.

Joining the ranks of new managers in Big Spring is Bob Farley at Anthony's in College Park Shopping Center, who moved here from managing the Anthony's store at Coleman. He's looking for a home for himself and his wife; they have two grown sons.

"We're striving to continue giving our customers good merchandise at a fair price," Farley said. He takes over for Kelly Tucker, who left Big Spring's store to manage an Anthony's in Odessa.

The Big Spring National Guard unit is being reorganized to change from a combat engineering outfit to a field artillery organization, and in the process they're adding some 50-plus new part-time jobs.

You do have to join the National Guard, but they've got a pretty nice package of benefits to offer if you qualify. Check them out by seeing either Sgt. First Class L.G. "Bud" Assenmacher or Staff Sgt. Jess Pierson at the Armory on FM 700.

Hair-raising business grows fast

BERRYVILLE (AP) — Dick and Sharon Atwood gave haircuts to about 200 kids and more than 400 of their parents and relatives on their ranch in less than three days last week.

Actually, they shaved their entire bodies.

The couple raise Angora goats and shear the nannies, billies and kids twice a year. Eight years ago they bought 36 goats to get away from cattle and fell in love with the breed of mohair makers. Since then, the herd has multiplied to more than 1,000 goats.

"We'd run cattle all my life and the market was up and down," Atwood said. "The thing about goats is you either love them or hate them. These things are the most docile animals I've ever worked with. We fell in love with them."

The Atwood ranch here in the rolling hills of East Texas along Lake Palestine is an unlikely place for Angora goats. West Texas ranchers have raised Angora goats for decades for their expensive hair, but Atwood said improvements in medicine has made goat ranching

They shear the goats twice a year and have raised mohair animals for eight years.

HERALD STAFF REPORT KBYG radio has appointed Mary Larsson-Couch to the position of news director, according to radio station officials.

MARY LARSSON-COUCH day from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. She will gather, write and produce local news for the station with help from mid-day shift newscaster Roger Grey.

Larsson-Couch will begin broadcasting half-hourly newscasts Monday.

Hair-raising

Continued from page 1-D possible in the more fertile areas to the east. "Most Texas ranchers have said goats and sheep cannot be raised in East Texas, but the medicine available to us now is much better," he said.

Each goat was laid on its side and its feet were tied together with thin leather straps so neither it nor the shearer would get hurt during the cutting. When all the hair was trimmed and the strap untied, the goat jumped to its feet and ran to the corner of the small corral to huddle with the others.

Pranks, tales recalled

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

I met Drayton Speights the other day in the drug store across the street from the court house at Hemphill. The half dozen people I had become acquainted with over coffee all told me I needed to meet him.

So when he came in (everybody comes into that drug store at Hemphill) we made plans to get together later at his house.

The place is one of those fun places you run across every once in awhile. It is down a quiet tree-covered lane and sits back off to itself. It has a long front porch that offers a splendid view of the nearby woods.

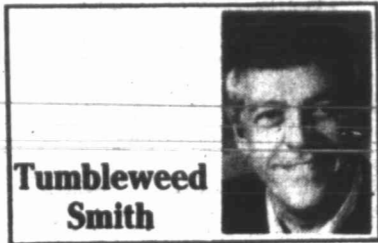

When we settled in to talk, I asked Drayton if he knew of any practical jokes. Sure enough, he did.

He said during World War Two there were sightings of flying saucers. So he had a mechanic make one complete with batteries and old radio tubes.

He put it in a narrow road a mile east of town so anyone who came by would see it. Sure enough, some old folks who had gone out to play croquet noticed the contraption when they were returning home. They called the sheriff to come out and see about it.

Now Hemphill is a small town, so when the sheriff gets a call about a flying saucer falling to earth, suddenly everybody in town knows about it.

So a whole bunch of people went out to investigate. The curious included the city's newspaper editor, who photographed the UFO and sent the story and picture to the Beaumont newspaper.

The next morning the headlines read, "Flying Saucer Found Near Hemphill."

The story detailed how the county judge was afraid to touch the thing, so he shovelled it out of the roadway. Once back in town, a merchant said he wanted it to display in his store.

The sheriff approved. People who came by to see it would say things like, "I don't see how on earth the thing could fly." That prank was good for a couple of weeks. Then Drayton put out a story that a lion had escaped from the Dallas zoo and was loose near the community of Brookeland, not far from Hemphill.

Churchgoing folks down that way swore they saw it. Men said it chased their calves. Ladies were afraid to pick their blackberries. After a few days, Brookeland people thought it might be a joke of some kind.

Drayton says people had rather believe a big lie than the truth. "Tell a big yarn and folks go to wonderin' about how much truth is in it."

Drayton used to do business occasionally with a man who owned a little store near Hemphill. "He had a very complete line of merchandise," says Drayton, "all the way from coffee and snuff to coffins and whiskey."

"Every time he sold a quart of whiskey on the credit he'd pour a quart of water in the barrel. During cold weather it got to where his whiskey would freeze it got so weak."

He used to have a fishing friend who drank a lot. One time he and Drayton had maneuvered their boat just a few yards from shore and he reached under his seat, got out a big bottle of whiskey, threw the top away and handed the bottle to Drayton.

"That's yours," the friend said, and reached under his seat, got another bottle, opened it and threw that top away.

That friend used to read lots of stories in western magazines.

"He was a real storyteller," says Drayton. "He'd tell one of these stories and institute himself as the main character. He'd tell about going to West Texas or Colorado. He would tell about going to Japan if he'd had enough to drink. He'd tell you about travelling to the Orient on a steamship and would even name the boat and tell the whole story, just like he read it. But he really wasn't a world traveller. His brother-in-law told me he had never been nowhere but to Orange and his folks had to send him money to get back home from there."

shooting and radical power sharing. I call their sagas "tales of unilateral disarmament." Unilateral disarmament may be a questionable approach in big power affairs, but not in organizational settings.

Both leaders intuitively reject an adversarial stance toward anyone. Carrigan and Lutky openly admit they genuinely like people.

Carrigan warmly cheers her colleagues' (union workers') smallest successes; and Lutky celebrates even the tiniest sign of a recalcitrant student's improvement or a skeptical teacher's heightened involvement.

Neither theorizes about the partnership. Both just live it moment to moment, on the oddball assumption that it's normal for people to share goals, dreams and aspirations.

They instinctively sit on the same side of the table with any person or group to bring about those goals.

I can't leave you with a formula. To succeed in our organizational environments, school or factory, I devoutly believe we must replace antagonism with partnership.

We need to begin by examining our own attitudes and embracing the belief that sharing power and working together is natural and productive, not "soft" and counterproductive.

If there is a first step, it's hanging out with the other guy, with lips sealed and ears open, to get a feel for his or her attitudes and constraints. Then start talking, laughing and enthusiastically sharing small successes.

I have not an iota of sympathy for managers. Our role is to garner maximum efficiency and effectiveness in our work places. And that will come only from partnership. It is our job — unilaterally — to start making that happen this afternoon.

Chamber board will meet

By THE BIG SPRING AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The regular monthly board of directors meeting, this month combined with the quarterly meeting that all committee chairmen are invited to attend to discuss committees' progress, will begin at noon Wednesday at the chamber office.

The chamber's Transportation Committee will meet at 5 p.m. Wednesday in the chamber office to discuss plans for approaching the state highway department about creating a Hazardous Cargo Route around Big Spring.

Local committee members Johnnie Lou Avery, John Arrick, Glen Fillingim and Drew Mouton were scheduled to meet with Jon Guthrie, consultant from Austin, Friday to discuss creating a local funds search center for Big Spring.

The facility would be available to all non-profit groups carrying a 50(C)3 designation to apply for outside foundation support, and would consist of an information and research center located in Big Spring.

Chamber officials are working with the city and other community entities in preparation for scheduling the 1988 Community Planning Retreat, tentatively slated for mid-May.

Tour bus season has begun. Bus travelers are beginning to come through our city again this spring and are a welcome sight because most stay overnight. Others stop for a rest, a meal or to look at and enjoy Big Spring; while they stay here, they spend money.

Liz Taylor greeted one such bus last Wednesday at the Days Inn. It is good to make a good impression of our city on these people because they tell other people, and other tour bus companies, who will also visit. The average tour bus spending a night in Big Spring leaves between $2,500 and $3,000 in our community.

The University of Texas Permian Basin will host a groundbreaking for the new Energy Center at the intersection of Highway 191 and Farm Road 1788 on March 28 at 2 p.m.

The annual Rattlesnake Roundup, which begins Friday, runs through March 27 at the Howard County Fair Grounds; meanwhile, Howard College is hosting the district 2-4A academic competition.

These events are expected to bring many people into town and create lots of revenue for our community.

Syria to become net oil exporter in 1988

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Syria will become an oil exporter for the first time because of new discoveries.

James Audu, a spokesman for the Vienna-based Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries, said that Syria produced 240,000 barrels per day during the fourth quarter of last year. Syria's local demand is at about 220,000 barrels a day.

Oil exports would help the country's estimated $3-billion deficit.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

C&H Construction Company takes all jobs, big or small

"Small jobs and big jobs — we want them all," says Tom Vernon, manager of C&H Construction, 300 West Second Street.

"We have the capability to do any home repair or remodeling job," says Vernon, citing such diverse jobs as a $200 roof repair and a $35,000 room addition.

"We're small enough to be able to take on small jobs," Vernon explains, "yet we have the depth to handle large construction projects."

Vernon has 35 years experience in the Big Spring market as construction and lumberyard manager for Rockwell Bros. C&H Construction office opened in August, 1987.

Vernon has handled ready-built homes in the area since 1980. There is usually a model home on display behind his office.

As a "total home repair center," C&H builds fences, installs fireplaces, paints exteriors or interiors, installs wood or composition roofs, handles plumbing and just about any other home repair project. The firm has three home room additions underway now in Big Spring and is bidding on a room addition and home in Colorado City.

"We're building a spec brick house in Colorado City. We found there is a market for our work there — and we're also looking at other area markets."

C&H offers financing on all its jobs. "We do business with local financial institutions," Vernon declares. "That way, the money stays at home."

C&H does light commercial work, as well. For example, the firm just completed a new roof job for a local car wash.

For estimates or other information, phone 267-9859 and ask for Tom.

"Bear with us," Tom says. "Sometimes we're busy and out of the office. Just leave your name and number on our recorder, and we'll get back with you right away."
