City may provide compensation

By BILL FOSTER Staff Writer

Friday will be City Manager Mack Wofford's final day on the job, although there is an apparent misunderstanding as to how he will be compensated between then and May 21.

Mayor Cotton Mize made the announcement concerning Wofford's last day on the job this morning.

Wofford resigned early Wednesday after being questioned by Council members about personal financial troubles that include a lawsuit, default judgement and home foreclosure payroll until his resignation becomes effective on May 21, Mize said this morning.

Council members have decided to pay Wofford for the 60 days between March 28 and May 21, according to Mize.

This is a good faith gesture on the part of the council," Mize said. However, no such pay agreement has been formally voted on by council members, Carey said this

"No real determination has been made. No vote has been taken. It was a consensus reached by council members during executive session," Carey said concerning the Wofford pay agreement.

Carey said in an earlier interview that Wofford offered to resign from his position "because we kept questioning and the answers weren't satisfactory.'

Mize stated this morning "We did not run Mack Wofford off. He gave us his resignation.'

Wofford was named in a lawsuit filed March 1 in 118th District Court by State National Bank, seeking $10,225.70 and related costs. The suit contends Wofford made a single $166.87 payment on the principal. The suit seeks $10,058.83, plus interest, attorney's fees and legal costs.

A 39-year-old bail bondsman has become the eighth and final candidate to enter the race for one of three at-large Big Spring City Council positions to be decided in a May 7 election.

COLORADO CITY - Mitchell County officials Wednesday expressed uncertainty as to the fate of a citation to claim more than $40,000 and a pickup believed to have been used in drug-related activity.

Juan Manual Villa, 28, of Kansas, was found shot to death Feb. 7 at an Interstate 20 rest stop near Loraine. Officers investigating the death found about $42,000 in a paper bag in Villa's pickup truck, according to published reports.

At a special meeting of the Mitchell County Commissioner's Court earlier this month, Sheriff Wendell Bryant said he believed the money and truck had been used in drugrelated activity and that a citation to claim that property had to be filed by the county filed within 30 days of the incident.

Commissioners then hired Sweetwater attorney Pete Sheridan to handle legal efforts in the matter. County Judge Bill Carter voted against the motion, saying he opposed using an out-ofcounty attorney District Clerk Bill Erwin said Wednesday that Sheridan filed separate motions to claim the money and the truck on March 7, but that he hasn't received any instructions to issue citations.

Erwin added that it was County Attorney Clay Strange's responsibility to issue a citation order, but Strange said he hasn't been contacted concerning the matter.

"My office has never been contacted by the sheriff's office (concerning the citation), Strange said Wednesday "The sheriff never came to me about anything in this matter.

'To my knowledge, the county attorney's office has never handled (these type of citations)," he

Strange also expressed displeasure with the way the matter has been conducted.

An annual attraction of the Roundup that will be back this year is the Pit Masters, a professional snake-handling group from Gainesville. Pittman said that their display of skills is something the public shouldn't Gray's sister, Donna Lynch, learned she had cancer very shortly before her death in December. When she died, Gray contacted the Red Cross and requested emergency notification for her brother-in-law, Al Lynch, stationed at Luke Air Force Base in Arizona, and two of her brothers.

Thomas Payne is an active duty serviceman in the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Dyess AFB in Abilene. Gray's other brother, Bobby Payne, is an Army man stationed in South Carolina. "It was two or three in the morning when I called," Gray remembered. "(The Red Cross) answered immediately. My mother (Pat Payne, also of Big Spring) knew to call the Red

"One is 17 and the other 19, and they have their own apartment. They pretty much take care of themselves, but I'm there when they need me.

That phrase — "there when they need me" might well be the catch phrase all Red Cross volunteers share. It seemingly applies to Mrs. Martha Moody, a lifelong volunteer service of another Big Spring resident.

Mrs. Moody has served as a Red Cross Volunteer since World War I, when she was 14 years old. She said she came to love the Red Cross at that time because of all it had done for the servicemen from this area.

She began — along with a group of youngsters her age - by making bandages for the Red Cross. She continues to serve today, 70 years Dozens of awards including pins, plaques, certificates and a silver tray have been given in recognition of her service, but perhaps the one she cherishes most is the Red Cross' highest honor: the Clara Barton Volunteer medal. A handsome artifact on a gold chain, it was awarded her in 1985 by the Red Cross chapter here, which had been trying to get her the recognition for three years. "On Armistice Day - it'll always be Armistice Day to me, not Veterans' Day - my Carter agreed that a communication problem exists between the sheriff and other county officials, saying that it "takes an act of Congress to get him to the telephone.

Normal procedure calls for the sheriff's office to file a report on the matter with either the county or district attorney, Carter said. As of Friday, that report had not been filed, he added.

If awarded to the county, part of the $42,000 will go to the state drug enforcement commission and the remainder to Mitchell County. Carter stressed that the money, if secured, can be used only for law enforcement purposes, and cannot be put in the county's general fund.

Attempts to contact Sheridan were unsuccessful Wednesday, and Bryant said that he was "not at liberty" to discuss the situation and related investigation, pending a conference with the county attorney.

Turn out, funds prompt cancellation

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

Summerfest has been canceled, the Chamber of Commerce board of directors were told Wednesday in their regular board meeting at the chamber office. Ambassadors president Steve Fraser cited a history of poor turnout on weekend events and problems with funding the annual fireworks display as prime reasons for the decision.

Instead, the daylong festival will be moved to a Friday, an open football date targeted at Sept. 25, and renamed Fallfest. The fireworks, however, may not be produced at all.

Last year the bill for the fireworks show was $5,000," Fraser told the board. "The money raised came to $1,500, and the Chamber had to eat about half the rest. The Summerfest committee helped to pay it off too, but that (fireworks) just is not where their money is meant to go."

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center had declined to fund the fireworks show this year and a campaign to fund it via public donations solicited through newspaper advertisements was dismissed as "If you do that (advertise for donations) and people send in their money, and you raise $1,500 or $2,000, and it costs $5,000 to put on the show, you're not going to put on a show for $2,000. Then what will you do with the money? "And people will expect to have fireworks if they send in their money," he added. "Unless someone is willing to undertake (financing) this, it won't happen "It'll be a real shame if we let this go by and it doesn't happen," he said, but noted that unsuccessful efforts to cover the cost of the show in previous years left past sponsors reluctant to become involved Chamber president Clyde McMahon, Jr. said he hoped some way could be found to present the fireworks, and preferably the entire Summerfest,

"I feel like this is the one event where we get the most participation from the local people of the year," he said. "Everybody comes out and has a good time and enjoys the whole day, and I would like to see us find some way to bring it back."

After repairs, park re-opened to climbers

HUECO TANKS PARK — Volunteer worker Fred Nakovic removes bolts climbers have put in place in one of the mountains here. Texas Parks and Wildlife Department rangers closeed the park — 32 miles east of El Paso — to climbers in order to repair damage done to the mountains.

HUECO TANKS STATE HISTORICAL PARK, Texas (AP) - Park officials hope a three-week cease-fire has allowed the "clean" American style of rock scaling to triumph in their battle against a European style of acrobatic climbing

The battleground is an 860-acre, 10-year-old park whose mission is to protect dozens of ancient Indian pictographs drawn on the smooth, brown granite rock formations - rocks that attract climbers from all over the world, especially during winter.

The weapons are steel bolts and tubes of epoxy, a strong adhesive.

Rangers hope to sponsor a summit of sorts next month or in December, when they want to persuade climbers to discard the bolts and epoxy and climb clean.

Officials closed the park about 35 miles east of El Paso to climbers about three weeks ago, after rangers discovered that 23 steel bolts had been drilled into the rock, mostly by European

Some climbers even had used epoxy to mold handholds and footholds on the sheer rock faces.

After surveying the park and determining that the new bolts and epoxied handholds had not harmed any rock paintings, park officials reopened the area to climbers last Friday and began removing the offending materials.

Technically, it is illegal to drill bolts into the rock at Hueco Tanks, but park officials have arrived at an unspoken truce with climbers: rangers will not remove bolts from established routes if climbers don't drill any more bolts.

We don't want any bolts at all here, but we realize the purpose is for safety and to prevent people from dying," ranger Bob Parker

Parker pointed at a 30-foot boulder on which two climbers from Munich, West Germany, had drilled three bolts. "Something like this is unacceptable," he said, explaining that the bolts were unnecessary for

Instead, he said, the climbers used the handholds and footholds to perform tricky gymnastic maneuvers on the rock.

Most rock climbers use bolts to secure safety ropes and consider it cheating to use them as handholds or footholds

"The majority of climbers are clean climbers and they go along with what we're asking," Parker

Parker said he hoped the climbing moratorium and the upcoming conference will be enough to get climbers to police themselves and report illegal bolting to park authorities.

"There is a school of thought mostly European — that says it's OK to do whatever you want to the rock, that you are part of nature in your interaction with the rock," Parker said. "We want to get that out in the open (at the conference) and get rid of that attitude.

With Chapter 11 ending, Texaco faces new battles

After four years of tortuous litigation, Texaco Inc. has won permission to emerge from the bankruptcy protection forced by its losing a multibillion-dollar legal battle with Pennzoil Co.

Texaco's troubles, however, are far from over. As the nation's third-largest oil company, it is seen as vulnerable to a takeover by investors who hope to reap big profits by selling off its assets.

Such raiders may have allies among legions of shareholders that analysts say were disenchanted with Texaco management even before it became entangled in the legal morass that prompted its April 12 bankruptcy filing.

Texaco management has vowed to resist any attempt to dismember the company but many industry analysts expect at least one fullscale takeover attempt.

U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Howard Schwartzberg on Wednesday affirmed Texaco's plan to emerge from bankruptcy protection, which hinges on a $3 billion cash settlement with Pennzoil.

Having agreed to pay Pennzoil that amount in cash to drop its $10.3 billion judgment, White Plainsbased Texaco is gearing up for a reorganization involving sales of $3 billion in assets

Texaco's troubles began in November 1985, when a Houston jury made the unprecedented $10.3 billion award to Pennzoil after deciding Texaco improperly had interfered with Pennzoil's acquisition of part of Getty Oil Co. so that Texaco itself could buy Getty.

Citizen audience deserving of much better performance

We are the audience to an unusual drama being performed on our city stage.

Wednesday's city manager resignation announcement was another page of a strange chapter in the life of this city.

In retrospect, it seems odd somehow that Mack Wofford faced the media entirely on his own Wednesday morning when he announced that he was resigning.

This is the council, for the most part, which voted in concert to hire the man less than two years ago. And all who will speak contend that Mack Wofford did a good job of managing the city of Big Spring.

On that point, we agree in many respects. From what we see now, his management was satisfactory and beyond that in Agree as those council members may that the work was good, not a one was there when 10:30 a.m. came around. Avoidance is always one way to handle any situation and usually the poorest. The fact of the matter is our city deserves a frank statement from the mayor and council, instead of being reduced to reading between a few lines and listening to what the nearest gossip mill is producing.

The citizens are owed an honest approach when it comes to this and they don't appear to be getting it. If a statement is forthcoming, there has been no indication to us.

The circumstances of his departure may not be attractive, but a man who has done his job deserved better treatment than given Mack Wofford Wednesday morning. Instead, he was cut adrift to float alone in hopes of the final curtain descending.

Poor performance.

If you don't blink too quickly, you'll notice that spring is coming to West Texas - if that's what you want to call this mutant time of

The thermometer is swinging wildly, as if afflicted with some meteorological form of PMS. Eighty-degree days, 30-degree nights; there may be mass murderers with less drastic mood

There are other indications of impending spring. Take the trees, for example.

Some of them have begun to bloom, but please don't take that as an iron-clad omen that winter is leaving, because most trees are

Well, maybe not stupid, but they have incredibly short, wooden memories. Every year, this area experiences a sort of false summer period around mid-January and the trees - thinking that winter has called it quits - decide to bloom in all their glorious foliage.

And, invariably, winter decides to play a nasty trick on our wooden friends, and comes back with a vengeance, mowing down the pretty petals like Nazi Germany going through Poland.

You'd think they'd remember something like that.

My mother once told me that mesquite trees could tell when the last freeze of the season occurred. They wouldn't bloom, she said, until after the last cold snap of winter, making them a fairly reliable guage that spring has sprung.

Now, my life may not be the most exciting one in these parts, but I do have better things to do than stand around waiting for mesquite trees to bloom.

With apologies to my mother, if you want to tell if spring has arrived in this area, don't look at the trees — look at the dust.

There is no better indication that we have loosed ourselves from winter's shackles than to step outside and notice the sky turning a sickly shade of brown. Dust storms. A West Texas spring wouldn't be the same without the remnants of someone's cotton field depositing itself on the hood of your Chevy. Painters are rubbing their hands in glee, smug in the knowledge that once the dust storms subside, they will make a small fortune repainting all the houses that have been sandblasted. The Chamber of Commerce will be deluged by requests from movie companies, asking if they can use Big Spring as the setting for the next remake of The Grapes of Wrath I could talk about other benefits of the dust season, but you get the picture.

Bucolic it isn't, but if you want to know for a sure-fire fact that spring is here, forget this nonsense about ground hogs and mesquite trees, and just wait for your car to change colors and dust to clog every pore of your body.

Then you'll know for sure - spring is here. Isn't it grand?

Power company lawyer may hinder probe

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

Jack

WASHINGTON - The actions of an attorney for an Alabama utility company have raised questions about the government's ability to investigate wrongdoing at nuclear power plants. At issue is whether the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which polices the power plants, has the right to interview plant workers during an investigation without having the company attorney looking Anderson over their shoulders.

Three workers at the Farley nuclear power plant in Dothan, Ala., have refused to talk to an NRC investigator unless the attorney for the plant's owner, the Alabama Power Co., James H. Miller III, is present, according to a draft NRC memo obtained by our associate Stewart Harris.

Two workers told the NRC investigator who wrote the memo that Miller had offered to represent them - and one of those two workers said he feared for his job if he talked privately with the NRC.

The memo was written by NRC investigator Robert H. Burch in June 1986 after he tried to interview the three workers. Burch refused to talk to us, but sources at the NRC tell us that the investigation at the Farley plant remains stalled because the NRC is battling the Alabama Power Co. over how to interview its workers.

Burch was investigating the Farley plant for alleged faisification of documents.

When pressed by Burch, two of the workers said attorney Miller had offered to represent them in the investigation. One of the two, R.E. Sleeman, feared reprisals, according to Burch's memo.

"Although Sleeman was candid, cordial and responsive ... he indicated that his fear of talking with the OI (Office of Investigation) away from the Farley site and without attorney Miller present was based upon his current employment by Farley Nuclear Plant and the potential for reprisal, including loss of job should he fail to follow the directions and instructions given to him by attorney Miller and (plant manager) John

D. 'Jack' Woodard.' The second worker, J.P. Higginbotham, said the attorney or the plant manager had "maligned and criticized" NRC investigators. Higginbotham said he had been warned that NRC investigators "were a mysterious group and that they misrepresented, twisted and distorted the and stated unequivocally and emphatically statements of interviewees," according to Burch's memo.

The third worker, T.M. Burr, refused to say why he wanted the utility's attorney to represent him. "It became more apparent that Alabama Power Co., through its corporate general counsel (Miller) was attempting to orchestrate the investigation by controlling the conditions of interviews and the investigative process at the site," Burch concluded.

The Farley investigation has raised a dilemma for the NRC. From the NRC's viewpoint, the presence of the plant's attorney could chill the flow of information in interviews with workers. On the other hand, workers have a right to bring in an attorney of their own choosing.

Miller told us that his "clients" want to cooperate with the NRC, but he refused to identify who he considered his clients to be. Whoever his clients are, Miller said that he should accompany them to any interviews with the NRC investigators.

According to the memo, Burch told Miller that he thought there was a potential for conflict of interest if Miller represented both the workers and the management.

"Miller categorically and very vehemently denied any potential conflict of interest that he would represent all Farley Nuclear Plant employees who were interviewed by OI during this investigative matter," Burch

Burch concluded that the utility's attempt to control the investigation ran "counter to the spirit" of federal regulations that give the NRC the right to question nuclear power plant workers in private.

GREEK MAGAZINE PRESSURED The birthplace of democracy, Greece, is witnessing an anti-democratic turn of events. The government of Socialist Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou has been manipulating the courts to crack down on critics in the press.

In 1984 we wrote about Basil Tsakos, a notorious Greek arms merchant who was throwing money around Washington trying to obtain support for a trans-Africa oil pipeline. When "Anti" continued investigating the story, the magazine was sued for libel.

The lower courts threw out the case. Then 'Anti" broke a second story about one of Papandreou's associates who was entangled in an arms-sale scandal. Suddenly, last November, an appeals court overturned the ruling in the old libel case and "Anti" was fined nearly $50,000.

Meese can't take part

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge says Attorney General Edwin Meese and the head of the Justice Department's civil rights division cannot take part in the department's criminal investigation of alleged harassment of a black FBI agent.

Meese and Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds are parties to a civil lawsuit in Washington, D.C., alleging racial harrassment by white FBI agents against agent Donald Rochon.

U.S. District Judge John F. Grady said Wednesday he wants a "Chinese wall" between the Justice Department attorneys handling the criminal investigation and Meese and Reynolds.

Grady suspended a grand jury investigation in Chicago until government lawyers file a statement agreeing to abide by the order barring Meese and Reynolds from having access to the criminal file.

Poll shows no pardon

NEW YORK (AP) - Most Americans believe Lt. Col. Oliver L. North should not be pardoned before he goes on trial on charges stemming from the Iran-Contra controversy, according to a New York Times-CBS News

The poll found that 64 percent opposed a pardon for North before a trial while 27 percent favored such a pardon. The party affiliation of those interviewed by telephone for the poll did not appear to change results, the Times reported today.

The poll also found that a majority of Americans believe President Reagan should not have sent U.S. troops to Honduras last Fifty-two percent said the troops should not have been sent, while 35 percent said they should have been and 13 percent said they did not know, according to the poll.

The poll, based on interviews of 1,654 people nationwide between Friday and Tuesday, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

Bridge halts travel

ISLAMORADA, Fla. (AP) — A drawbridge that got stuck in the up position, snarling traffic for 20 miles and stranding hundreds of motorists, was fixed today after blocking auto travel to most of the Keys, police said.

"The bridge just opened," Florida Highway Patrol duty officer Terri Magee said at 8:30

Rush-hour traffic on the Snake Creek Bridge is normally heavy, she said. That, coupled with the hundreds of motorists stranded when the bridge broke down Wednesday, means traffic jams will continue for a while, she said.

Cease-fire agreement signed

SAPOA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government and Contra rebels agreed to a 60-day cease-fire to negotiate an end to their six year war, signing a broad accord that promises the rebels a role in Nicaragua's political

The agreement signed late Wednesday was the first concrete step toward ending the conflict that has killed more than 40,000 people.

The cease-fire is to begin April 1, with negotiators meeting again April 6 in Managua to work out a permanent truce. In the interim, a truce that took effect Monday is to remain in force.

Daniel Ortega, president of the leftist Sandinista government, unexpectedly traveled to this small village on the Costa Rican border for the signing, which followed three days of talks.

He called the plan "a great challenge for all Nicaraguans" and called on the United States "to support this effort and get ready to normalize its relations with Nicaragua."

"I think, I hope and I believe that we have made a start, a firm start to end this war that is killing ... sons of the same country, sons of the same mothers," said Contra leader Adolfo Calero. Alfredo Cesar, another leader of the U.S.-supported rebels, said the nine points in the agreement "are not solely an opportunity to achieve peace and agreement, but the only opportunity.' The agreement was made "among Nicaraguans, full of good will and confidence in the future," said Cesar, who was among Contra and Sandinista leaders crowded on a makeshift dais.

Neither the State Department nor the White. House had any immediate comment on the agreement, which calls for the estimated 10,000 rebels to move into specified zones in Nicaragua during the first 15 days of April. Delegations from both sides will return to Sapoa on Monday to determine the zones.

The Contras also agreed to accept only humanitarian aid from a neutral organization. This would rule out further military aid from the United States, which President Reagan has tried in vain to secure from Congress. U.S. aid ended Feb. 29 and a successful Sandinista military offensive ensued.

Even before the agreement, Democratic leaders of the House of Representatives said in Washington they would act quickly to send food and clothing to the Contras if a cease-fire were worked out.

Under the agreement, the Sandinistas will on Sunday release 100 Contra prisoners and free half the remaining 1,400 such prisoners when Contra fighters have moved into the designated zones. The remaining 700 Contra prisoners will be freed when a permanent truce

The 1,800 former National Guardsmen in prison since the Sandinistas overthrew the late President Anastasio Somoza in July 1979 will be released after a final truce is worked out. Under Somoza, the army was called the National Guard.

The agreement says the Sandinista government will guarantee freedom of expression without restrictions, in accordance with a regional peace plan signed last August by Ortega and the presidents of four other Central American countries.

Many press liberties were barred in Nicaragua for almost six years under a state-of-emergency decree that has since been lifted.

The agreement says the Sandinista government will grant gradual amnesty and allow all political exiles to return to the country without fear of persecution and be able to participate in the political process.

The government also agreed to discuss the issue of military service in a national dialogue with the internal political opposition. The Contras had sought a suspension of conscription.

In Managua, opposition leaders hailed the agreement.

Eric Ramirez, president of the Social Christian Party, said, "It is a positive effort. Hopefully, it will contribute to ending the war and to the rise of the democratization of Nicaragua."

Gustavo Tablada of the Socialist Party called the move "a historic step ... a serious and responsible compromise.'

The agreement was signed by Gen. Humberto Ortega, the defense minister and head of the Sandinista delegation, and Calero. Also signing were Joao Baena Soares, secretary-general of the Organization of American States, and Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Managua. The secretary-general and cardinal attended the talks as witnesses.

The Arab reports said Israeli soldiers were using several West Bank schools as detention

The army said it was checking the reports of the woundings. According to the Arab-run Palestine Press Service and an Arab reporter, they occurred in scattered clashes from Hebron to Nablus in the West Bank. The army declined comment on whether schools were being used as detention centers.

In Lebanon, Israeli warplanes attacked Palestinian guerrilla bases on the outskirts of Sidon for the second straight day. There was no immediate word on casualties.

It was the third Israeli strike against Palestinian bases in Lebanon in a week and the fifth this year.

Oust fight continues

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Although U.S. sanctions and a general strike have devastated Panama's economy, opposition leaders said it may take another mutiny in the military to drive Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega from power.

As the strike entered its fourth day today, a prominent opposition leader was expected to return to join in the fight to oust Noriega, the country's de facto leader and head of its 15,000-strong Defense Forces.

Almost all businesses were shut down across the country again Wednesday. Lacking food and money, thousands of people lined up at soup kitchens set up by churches throughout the country.

Also Wednesday, the government ordered a U.S. diplomat expelled, but the State Department said in Washington that economics counselor David Miller would not leave as demanded. The State Department said it would ignore the order because it considers Panamana's current government illegitimate.

Planes attack bases

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes divebombed Palestinian guerrilla bases on the outskirts of this southern port city today for the second day, killing nine people and wounding five, police said.

A police spokesman said six Israeli fighterbombers hit the bases six times in 55 minutes with 30 rockets and bombs, starting at 1 p.m.

The bases were manned by Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council and the Moscow-oriented Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, police said.

It was the third Israeli strike against Palestinian bases in Lebanon in a week and the fifth this year. Forty-seven people have been killed and 6 wounded in Israeli air strikes on guerrilla bases in Lebanon this year.

An Israeli army statement identified the targets as buildings used by the guerrillas to store weapons and equipment. The statement said Israeli pilots returned safely and reported accurate hits on the targets.

Soldiers enter region

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A Honduran military official said about 300 Sandinista soldiers entered the same Honduran border region where Nicaraguan troops last week fought Contra rebels.

"We don't know the purpose of this new entry and violation of our country, but the situation is being studied by the high command," the Honduran military official said of Wednesday's reported incursion.

'It's a matter of small armed groups of Sandinistas. Because of that, the state of alert continues for all combat units of the armed forces," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The grandmother of a local winner in the controversial Permian Basin Area Baby Pageant disagrees with another resident.

Elaine Tubb, whose granddaughter Stormie Jade Huff competed in the pageant, says the public should have been made aware that all contributions raised were not going to the Ronald McDonald House.

"We thought all the money was going to the Ronald McDonald House. We didn't sell anymore tickets after we found out there was a promotor and they were arrested," said Elaine.

Kelly Overton, mother of a winner in the Permian Basin Area Beauty Pageant, said earlier that officials were wrong in arresting the pageant's organizers.

Pageant organizers Stephen Davis, 32, William Clyde Burris, 26, and Donna Burris, 38, also known as Donna Dearing, were arrested March 14 after an Ector County grand jury retured four sealed indictments.

Dennis Alton Dearing, 33, surrendered to the Ector County Sheriff's Department March 17. He also is charged with gambling promotion, said Sgt. John Magee,

Each $1 ticket sold — for a lottery drawing of a trip to Disney World police officials contend was illegal — represented 100 votes. Sarah received 79,000 votes, while Stormie received 75,000 votes.

Although the pageant's four coordinators were arrested for possible violation of Article 47.03 of the Texas Penal Code, Kelly said, "I think the district attorney and the police messed up. I talked to Steve — he doesn't seem like someone who would rip off the

The article describes gambling promotion, a third degree felony.

Officials who were to benefit from the promotion are apparently still waiting for any funds.

Lori Nelson, past president of Odessa's Ronald McDonald House said "The House has been informed that all funds have been frozen. They (coordinators) can't write us a check."

Ector County District Attorney Eric Augesen said Tuesday that the Odessa Police Department froze $11,000, but added there is approximately $30,000 that still can't be accounted for.

"Mr. Davis had said he would give the Ronald McDonald House $10,000 the day of the pageant to my knowledge he has not,' said Augesen.

Kelly said parents signed a petition at the pageant in hopes that the money would go to the Ronald McDonald House and to the pageant promotors.

DEAR ABBY: Nineteen years ago I wrote to you for help. I was young, pregnant and unmarried. My boyfriend was also very young and said he couldn't marry me. The stage is draped in black except for a narrow stream of light highlighting the puppets and props. Dressed as they are, the puppeteers can operate the puppets and change scenes without being seen by the audience.

This form of puppetry gives us more versatility than using marionettes," Ms. Wolf says.

For the next 45 minutes, she supplies movement and voice for "The Most Unusual Baby," the current production at the North Dallas marionette theater. Ms. Wolf wrote the show and music and designed the costumes; she narrates the story and works a few of the Puppetry has added a dimension to Ms. Wolf's musical career. When she moved to Dallas in 1955, she was a young mother who worked as a freelance musical director with the Dallas Theater Center. She wrote the original score for "Under Milk Wood" when Burgess Meredith directed the show in Dallas in 1959.

At the same time, she was earning a music education degree at North Texas State, giving piano lessons and teaching kindergarten at a private school. She often created plays and songs for her two children and for her students.

Ms. Wolf also has created a series of cassette tapes for children. The tapes, titled "Kindersongs," are packaged with coloring books.

Movie 'Visa Versa' a delightful switch Associated Press Writer

How do you figure it — three movies in a row with the same basic plot? Last year it was Dudley Moore and Kirk Cameron changing brains in "Like Father, Like Son." Now we have Judge Reinhold pulling a switch with his young son, Fred Savage, in "Vice Versa." Soon to come: George Burns trading identities with his college-age grandson, Charlie Schlatter, in "18 Again."

Such coincidence is unfortunate, since all three movies possess the capacity to entertain.

"Vice Versa," in fact, is a nifty comedy of the supernatural variety. It benefits from a clever script by Dick Clement and Ian LaFrenais (who also produced), lively direction by Brian Gilbert and the inspired teaming of Reinhold and young Savage as the misplaced father and son.

The role reversal is caused by a golden skull stolen from a Thai tem-ple. In "Like Father, Like Son," it was a laboratory potion; in "18 Again." an auto crash.

Reinhold is a Chicago department store executive who is a less than adequate part-time parent. His 11-year-old son lives most of the time with his mother who is now remarried. During a brief visit, father and son touch the skull and become transformed.

The fun begins, though both victims are distressed by their new identities. Reinhold is more interested in rock music and his pet frog, but he reports to the office and tries to fake his way through matters that are as foreign to him as trigonometry.

Savage attends school, but he is bored by the childish doings and finishes his tests in a few minutes. He withers the school bullies and barks orders to his limo driver.

Educators urge end to mass kindergarten testing

NEW YORK (AP) — Two groups of in a statement. educators today urged schools to stop mass standardized testing of kindergarten

"Our children are being tested too early and failed too soon, and parents should ask for what purpose," said Sue Bredekemp, accreditation director of the National Association for the Education of Young to keep them from being promoted to later Children, one of the groups releasing policy grades. statements at a news conference in Washington.

The most important things to learn in kindergarten cannot be measured on a standardized test, so there is little or no educational reason for the testing, yet it is happening all over the country," she said

The groups did not oppose all standardized testing of young children.

But Bredekamp's group, along with the National Association of Early Childhood Specialists in State Departments of Education, blasted indiscriminate use of tests to hold youngsters back from kindergarten or Partly because of misuse of tests, "many kindergartens are now highly structured, 'watered down' first grades, emphasizing workbooks and other paper-and-pencil activities that are developmentally inappropriate for 5-year-olds," said a draft Bredekemp's group's position paper.

"Our biggest objection is when tests are ferent ability levels. But if you put children misused to keep children out of school. That should occur only after a complete diagnostic evaluation," said Bredekamp in an interview, adding that parents and teachers are generally more reliable than tests in gauging the readiness of children for school. Louise Bates Ames, co-founder of the Gesell Institute, which produces a widely used screening test, said it was "discouraging that these groups have taken this political position.

'Our position is that if there are 25 has to individualize the curriculum to dif-forward.

together at different maturity and ability levels, then you have differences you can't possibly span," she said in a telephone interview from the institute's New Haven, Conn., headquarters.

At issue are three types of tests.

"Developmental screening tests" like the Gesell Preschool Test are designed to assess a child's ability to acquire skills. 'Readiness tests' help determine if preschoolers are physically and mentally mature enough to enter kindergarten. They might ask youngsters to perform such children in a classroom, all acting at tasks as hopping, drawing straight lines or 5-year-old maturity level, the teacher still circles, and counting to 10 backward and Achievement tests are used as early as kindergarten to measure whether a child has learned enough to be promoted to the next grade, or if the youngster needs extra help or should be held back.

Many states and school districts adopted such testing after the late 1950s Sputnik era when educators decided that the very young could, and should, handle academically demanding studies. The school reform movement of the 1980s accelerated the trend. In 1984, Minneapolis begans testing kindergartners in basic math and reading skills. Ten percent a year flunked and had to repeat kindergarten, and 75 percent of those were minority students.

Cancer cure rate linked to menstrual cycle in mice

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) A woman's chance of being cured by breast cancer surgery may depend on the point in her bbmenstrual cycle at which her surgery is performed, a study of mice suggests. The study released today said researchers doubled the breast cancer cure rate in mice by removing the tumor at the right time in the mouse menstrual cycle.

'Within a few years we may know if this is true in human beings," said William Hrushesky of the University of Minnesota.

The goal would be to define just what creates any such advantage in people, and to use drugs to simulate it during surgery, he said.

"We could do that in any woman, whether she was pre- or post-menopausal," Hrushesky told science writers at an American Cancer Society seminar.

Breast cancer will appear in 135,000 American women this year and kill 42,000, the society estimates.

Surgery can remove the tumor, but cancer cells that escaped before surgery can cause recurrence elsewhere in the body.

The experiment focused on the 5.5-day mouse estrous cycle, which corresponds to the monthly menstrual cycle in women.

Tumors that grow faster in response to the hormone estrogen, as many human breast tumors do, were implanted in the mice. Later analysis showed the timing of the implant in the estrous cycle made no aimerence in cure rates.

But the timing of surgery to remove the tumors markedly influenced the likelihood that cancer would have spread to the lungs by 28 days after the operation, Hrushesky said.

Sixteen of 60 mice that underwent surgery near the fertility peak of the cycle were found to be free of lung involvement, compared with nine of 73 that had surgery in the infertile phase.

That translates to 27 percent versus 12.3 percent. Under a different method to determine estrous stage, the percentages came to 31.3 percent and 14.9 percent.

In human terms, the highest cure rate corresponds to surgery just before and during ovulation, with the lowest rate corresponding to surgery around menstruation, Hrushesky said.

In the mice, fluctuation in the cure rate mirrored changes in activity levels of "splenocyte natural killer" cells, which attack cancer cells that have spread from tumors, he said.

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Big Spring Steers senior Brian Mayfield and Lady Steers senior Katrina Thompson head a list of area basketball performers that have gained postseason honors.

Mayfield, a 6-6 forward, headed to Southern Methodist University on a basketball scholarship, was named to the Texas Association Basketball Coaches All-State squad. Mayfield was named to the second team. Thompson was named to the Region I All-Region Team.

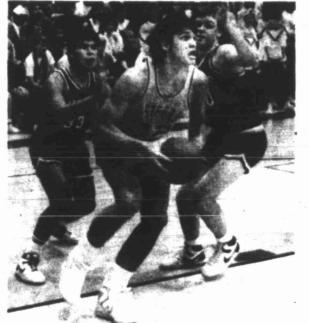

Mayfield, a four-year letterman, capped off a superb high school career by leading Big Spring to a 23-10 record while averaging 26 points, 15 rebounds and four block shots per game.

Joining Mayfield on the second team was Lamesa's Cedric Mason. The 6-1 forward led Lamesa to the regional finals, averaging 27 points and 12 rebounds per game.

Mayfield and Mason also were also named to the Region I All-Region First Team. Joining the two on the region first team were Andrews' junior guard Gym Bice, along with Daryle Gould and Reggie Flenoy of Wichita Falls Hirschi

Big Spring Steers forward Brian Mayfield was named to the All-State Second Team and the Region I All-Region First Team. The Steers finished with a 23-10 record.

Thompson started every game for the 29-2 Lady Steers, who went undefeated in 2-4A play this season before losing a bi-district match to Canyon in Lubbock. The team's only other loss was to Lubbock Monterey in the finals of the Caprock Tournament Dec. 31.

Thompson, a three-year letterwoman, averaged 17 points, three rebounds and two steals per game this season.

FORT WORTH (AP) - Jay Garcia and Mario Gongora hooked up in another bruising fight at the State Golden Gloves Tournament and again it ended with a controversial decision going to Garcia. It sets up a match against Big Spring's Juan Baldwin, also a winner Wednes-

Two weeks ago Garcia and Gongora battered each other for three rounds at the American Boxing Federation Region 8 tournament. Gongora thought he won, but the decision went to Garcia.

"I'll get you in the Golden Gloves," Gongora

The argument continued Wednesday night at the State Golden Gloves when the fought for three bruising rounds and Garcia won again. Gongora again disputed the 3-2 split decision.

Even though it appeared Garcia landed cleaner and more punches when the two squared off in their numerous exchanges in their featherweight bout, Gongora said "I took it all the way. I slipped most of his punches." Kenny Weldon of Houston, who coached Gongora, didn't mince words after the decision. "This is the second time we were ripped off," Weldon said. "Every time we come to Fort Worth, we have to put up witht this crap. He tamweight champion.

Baldwin also had a tough time reaching the semis, winning a similar 3-2 split decision over Efrain Canales of Corpus Christi.

Garcia was the one of three Fort Worth representatives to win Wednesday night in the second night of the tournament that ends Saturday.

Light flyweight Jimmy Martinez lost to Eric Griffin of Houston, and light welterweight Phillip Herrera lost when the referee stopped his fight in the second round with Martin Baldwin, Juan's younger brother, also of the Howard County Boxing Academy.

Blue Jays expected to win very close race

By The Associated Press Don't fret, American League East fans. Reports that your division was in demise were premature.

Detroit, Toronto, Milwaukee and New York proved it last season. All won more games than Minnesota. the AL West champion, and took turns beating up their brethren beyond the Mississippi. And Boston, Baltimore and Toronto Blue Jays The Blue Jays can hit, pitch and field. So why don't they win it all? Because trouble, along with talent, Cleveland are getting better.

keeps finding Toronto. MVP George Bell hit 47 home runs with 134 RBI, the fourth straight season his power numbers have increased. So did his salary: a new $5.9 million, three-year contract. But he's unhappy with being moved from left field to designated hitter, so much so the team suspended him for a day in the spring and talked about trading him. The Blue Jays wanted to save daily wear and tear on Bell and make room for young outfielders Rob Ducey (.284, 10 HR, 60 RBI in 100 games at Class AAA Syracuse) and Sil Campusano (14 HR, 63 RBI, 26 stolen bases in Triple-A). But if Bell sulks and stays, he could disrupt the entire team.

New York Yankees Everyone knows Billy Martin is back and Jack Clark is on the attack. Do people also know Rich Dotson, John Candelaria, Don Slaught, Lee Guetterman, Jose Cruz and Rafael Santana have joined the Yankees?

New York has not won the division since 1981 and Boss Steinbrenner is getting real impatient, especially after finishing fourth last season

Santana, the first major leaguer traded between the Yankees and Mets, was obtained to play and 103 RBI. shortstop.

Milwaukee Brewers

Milwaukee won its first 13 games, then lost 12 in a row and spent the season streaking - the only team to win 12 or more straight and drop 12 or more in the same season.

The Brewers finished third with 91 victories and are going in the right direction with a nice blend of experience and vouth.

Paul Molitor (.353) hit in 39 straight games, the seventh-longest string since 1900. He'll play second base this season and Jim Gantner has moved to third. Robin Yount, now in his 14th season at age 32, batted .312 with 21 homers

Detroit Tigers Hard to believe a team whose opening day lineup included Orlando Mercado, Terry Harper and Mike Heath in right field topped the majors with 98 victories. Detroit scored 896 runs, more than anyone else. They did it after losing Lance Parrish to free agency and will have to do it again minus Kirk Gibson (24 HR, 79

Alan Trammell (.343, 28 HR, 105 RBI) carried the Tigers and should have carried the MVP voting, some say. Darrell Evans (34 HR, 99 RBI) became the only 40-year-old to hit 30 homers; instead, most people only remember he got picked off third base in the playoffs.

Rookie Matt Nokes was a major plus, hitting 32 homers with 87 RBI. mostly against righties. He is weak defensively, which is Heath's Ray Knight (14 HR, 65 RBI with Baltimore) could end Detroit's search for a third baseman. Lou Whitaker slumped to .265 and should rebound.

Jack Morris (18-11) is the biggest winner this decade. Walt Terrell (17-10) continues to win at Tiger Stadium and struggle on the road. Frank Tanana (15-10) was consistent and Doyle Alexander, acquired late in the season, went 9-0 and pushed the Tigers over the top. Rookie Mike Henneman (11-3, 2.98 ERA) emerged as the stopper with Willie Hernandez near the end. Boston Red Sox

Lee Smith and other new names join Wade Boggs, Roger Clemens and Jim Rice as Boston regroups after a season of frustration. The Red Sox, within one strike in 1986 of winning its first World Series since 1918, never found the groove and finished fifth at 78-84. They sagged despite the success of Boggs and Clemens.

Boggs hit .363, won his fourth batting title and became the fifth player to get 200 or more hits in five straight years. Clemens, a spring training holdout, overcame a 3-4 start and went 20-9 to win his second consecutive Cy Young; no one has won it three straight times. Baltimore Orioles

Earl Weaver used to pray for three-run homers. He's gone and now the Orioles hit home runs. The problem is they can't stop the other team from scoring.

Baltimore (5.01) and Cleveland (5.28) became the first AL teams since 1956 Washington to have ERAs over five runs per outing. The Orioles gave up 10 homers to Toronto in one game, and prospects for better pitching are remote.

Mike Boddicker (10-12) is the only quality starter on a team that once prided itself on pitching. The additions of Mike Morgan and Doug Sisk won't help.

Here's a funny thing about the Orioles: for all their power, they don't score. Baltimore's 211 homers were third in the majors to Detroit's 225 and Toronto's 215, yet the Orioles' 729 runs ranked nextto-last in the AL.

Cleveland Indians Not even the Indians thought they would finish first, as many socalled experts suggested last spring. But Cleveland sure didn't expect what happened — the worst record in the majors.

Where Minnesota was able to succeed without pitching, the Indians collapsed. Tom Candiotti (7-18) was their top winner; rookie John Farrell, who stopped Molitor's hitting streak, was their best pitcher at 5-1.

UT women in rugged region

AUSTIN (AP) — The regional women's basketball matchups are so good it seems like the Final Four, says Coach Leon Barmore of No. 5-ranked Louisiana Tech.

"Looking at the final 16 teams, I had to pinch myself to realize this is not the Final Four, this is only the regional tournament ... I think that the 16 teams that are left all could have made the Final Four years ago," Barmore said Texas Coach Jody Conradt of No. 4 Texas surveyed Tech and the other teams in the NCAA Midwest women's regional basketball tournament and told a news conference "it's anybody's ball game.

Louisiana Tech, 28-2, and No. 12 Mississippi, 24-6, open the tournament Thursday at 6 p.m., followed by host Texas, 31-2, and No. 11 Stan"I think the Midwest is probably the strongest of the regions," said Stanford Coach Tara VanDerveer.

Mississippi Coach Van Chancellor quipped, "It's great coming back to Austin. ... I wished I was here and Louisiana Tech and Texas and Stanford were somewhere else - that's what I'd really enjoy, because I like the town and the university. I don't like who I'm playing.'

Stanford gained the regional playoffs by edging Montana at Missoula, Mont., in overtime, 74-72, before 9,000 fans — "the loudest (crowd) I ever heard," said VanDerveer.

She said of Texas, "I think they are a lot more athletic, they're a lot quicker. They're a lot more experienced and handle the ball quite

Conradt said the loss of All-American season took away Texas' "margin for error." "We can't play poorly and beat too many people right now.

Barmore recalled that when his team was in Austin in the 1987 NCAA championship game, the Lady Techsters "got kicked pretty good by Tennessee.

Chancellor said to beat Tech his team would have to avoid "what we have called a 'rope offense' - you give us enough rope and we'll hang ourselves sometimes.'

One of four players at the news conference, Tech senior Angela Lawson of Longview, Texas, said, "This is probably the most fired up I've ever been about playing a basketball game, a basketball tournament, because I am back in Texas, and because this is my last year.

"This is it. If we lose, I'm through. And I'm Clarissa Davis with a knee injury early in the not in any means ready to end the season.'

Chargers' QB leaning towards retirement

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts, who has set seven NFL passing records during a 15-year career, is expected to announce his retirement.

Team officials declined to elaborate on a statement released Wednesday that said Fouts, 36, called the news conference for today at his home "to make an announcement about his future plans.'

Fouts is the National Football League's second-most-prolific passer. His total of 43,040 passing yards is exceeded only by former Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton's 47,003 career yards.

Widely considered one of the league's most durable quarterbacks, Fouts was forced by injuries to miss games each of the past five seasons, including the finale of last year's season-ending six-game losing streak. The skid knocked the 8-7 Chargers out of the playoffs and started speculation whether Fouts would be their starting quarterback next year after a five-year absence from the playoffs.

Published reports citing unnamed sources said Fouts is retiring. Neither club officials nor Fouts have commented on reports earlier this week that his six-year contract, which expires next year, was paid off in November. Fouts, who led the NFL in passing seven times and total offense four times, reportedly gave up all contractual guarantees beyond 1987 in return for an undisclosed bonus, last year's $750,000 salary and $375,000 for next season. Six 400-yard passing games, including two straight in 1982, are among the league records owned by Fouts, who also established 34 team records since joining the Chargers in 1973 as a third-round draft pick.

Fouts joined Tarkenton and John Unitas as the only quarterbacks to throw for more tian 40,000 career yards while leading pro football's most feared offense in the early Tarkenton also is the only player with more career passing attempts and completions than Fouts, who heads the all-time NFL list of most 300-yard passing games with 51 as well.

Fouts led the Chargers to four straight playoff appearances from 1979 through 1982, the first three as division champs.

The team came within one game the 1981 AFC title game at Cincin-management.

nati in near-Arctic conditions. That marked Fouts' best season, however, as he threw for 4,802 yards and 33 touchdowns.

The low point of Fouts' career may have come after the 1976 season when he told a federal judge he would rather retire than stay with the struggling Chargers, who had improved only slightly to 6-8 from their 2-12 record in 1975.

Fouts had joined 16 other NFL players in a lawsuit challenging the lack of free agency under the collective bargaining agreement between the league and players' union when he made the statement.

After upsetting team officials with subsequent comments that the Chargers weren't a Super Bowl contender, Fouts sat out the first 10 games of the 1977 season before of its first Super Bowl when it lost settling his differences with girls from Stanton.

Kody Newman, Lady Buff senior, was named to the Class 2-A Region I second team, and her senior teammate Kristi Fryar was named to the third team in the same division.

In Waco, according to Associated Press reports, the TABC named Elmer Bennett, the high-scoring guard from Houston Bellaire atop its all-state boys and girls teams released this weekend. Bennett, who is taking his 35 points-per-game scoring average to Notice Dame, was named to the Class 5A first team by the coaches. Other 5A first-teamers included

Tony Terrell of San Antonio East Central, who averaged 33.9 points per game; Chris Walker of Houston Milby, who averaged 24 points per game, Todd Schoettelkotte of Kingwood, who averaged over 20 points per game and was a top rebounder, and Matt Hankinson of San Antonio MacArthur. Schoettelkotte is the only junior. "This one of the best teams we've had," said Alton Ballard, who publishes the State Roundup for the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches. "It has tremendous balance, shooting and a lot of speed. The coaches do a thoughtful job of making these games this year, raising his fouryear total to 2,930 points, a Class 5A record in Texas. He is also a tremendous ball-handler.

selections

"It's amazing the way he handles the ball," said Coach Gene Haffington of Houston Bellaire. "His ability to penetrate and pass the ball will be his biggest asset when he gets to Notre Dame.

The Class 5A girls' all-star team is led by Cinetra Henderson, a start on Duncanville's state champions who upset North Mesquite. Others on the first team included Cynthia Horton of North Mesquite, Lasonya Conley of Houston Forest Prook, Joanne Benton of Fort Worth Richland, and Chris Ferrell of Longview

In Class 4A, high-scoring junior Thomas Hill of Lancaster, who averaged 25 points per game, leads the team which has seniors in the other positions. They included Bryan Sallier of champion Port Arthur Lincoln. who averaged 20 points per game, Thirman Dimery of Kerrville Tivy, Reggie Flenoy of Wichita Falls Hirschi and Craig Lillie of Clevand. The 4A girls all-state first team included Stacy Brown of Calallen, Carol Bailey of Levelland, Yolanda Phillips of Stephenville, Deanna Russo of Friendswood, Mellisa Peay of Wilmer-Hutchings, and Missy Kraai of Canyon.

The TABC picked all-state teams Bennett scored 1,110 points in 31 for classes 5A through A.
