City facing tax increase or services cut

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

Increased taxes or reduced services are the only alternatives to avoid city budget dilemmas, a majority of City Council members say.

Mid-fiscal-year examination of general fund revenues and expenditures has caused concern among council members and is prompting efforts to bolster the 1988-89 general fund budget.

An 85 percent increase in city employee medical insurance premiums and loss of federal revenue sharing funds are the primary causes of the current budget crunch, according to council members.

The city's share of employee medical premiums increased $120,000 Jan. 1. Revenue sharing losses totaled $370,000.

"We've cut government back to the point where it is nearly impossible to avoid either an ad valorem tax increase or a cut in services," Councilman Johnny Rutherford said.

A general fund budget of $6,063,320 was set by council members at the beginning of the fiscal year. That budget included a $96,560 balance from the previous fiscal year.

Recent mid-year budget revisions increased general fund expenditures to $6,091,520. Increased spending was made possible by a $166,575 increase in anticipated revenues.

The city's general fund revenues were expected to total $6,098,125 when the budget was drafted at the beginning of the fiscal year. However, the city now anticipates $6,264,700 in general fund revenues this year.

The year-end general fund balance is expected to be $104,868 — too slim a margin when dealing with a $6 million budget, according to Rutherford.

"The general fund is walking a fiscal tight rope," Rutherford said.

No money is available should the city face the need to make an emergency purchase such as a fire truck or some other piece of equipment, he said.

"The city does not have a reserve fund. If we had a fire truck collapse tomorrow and we had to make the decision to purchase a new truck, we wouldn't be able to make that decision ... there are no funds available," Rutherford said. Continued routine maintenance of streets is another area where the city is hard-pressed for funding, according to Rutherford.

One hundred thousand dollars was transferred to the general budget from a special utility contingency fund during the recent mid-year budget revision to ensure seal-coating of city streets this year, he said.

Mayor Cotton Oize and Councilmen D.W. Overman, D.D. Johnston and Gary Don Carey agree with Rutherford's assessment that the only way to solve the current general fund budget problems is to increase ad valorem taxes or cut services.

Every effort to cut general fund expenditures has been explored by city officials, according to Mize.

A partial hiring freeze is one way the city has attempted to trim expenses, the mayor said.

"The city has lost 30 employees through attrition during past two years. People have not been hired to fill those positions," he said.

Overman noted that it has been five years since the city has imposed an ad valorem tax increase and said another tax increase may be necessary.

"The general fund budget has been cut to the bare bones. A tax in-

Announcer's death studied

Vance Kimble, 61, longtime Big Spring veteran radio broadcaster was found dead in his home this morning from an apparent gun shot, KBYG officials said today.

Mary Larsson-Couch, KBYG news director, said that Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles is investigating what he described as "a suspicious death."

Kimble, the morning drive-announcer for the station, had been employed by KBYG since September, she said, and had worked with KBYG officials in the past.

Larsson-Couch said that Howard County Sheriff's officials had arrived at Kimble's residence on San Angelo Highway with Shankles to investigate, after Kimble had not arrived at work this morning.

Kimble had worked for KWKI radio.

Windfall repeal: 'News good, more needed'

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Elected officials and oil industry experts alike expressed elation today at the tentative repeal of the windfall profit tax, but agreed that more needs to be done to stimulate recovery in the petroleum business.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, met with House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., in Washington for more than three hours Thursday before emerging with the pact to include repeal of the tax in the trade bill being hammered out in conference committee, according to an Associated Press report.

"This is a major victory for the energy industry and also a great victory for Texas because, in the past, the House conferees have never agreed to the repeal of the windfall profit tax, and tonight they did," Bentsen said.

The tax, established in 1978, is applied when the price of crude oil reaches a certain level, depending on what type of well the oil came from. But crude oil has remained below the triggering price since the plunge of prices began in 1986, and virtually no taxes have been collected, the report added.

An aide of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said today that the repeal was something that the senator has worked on for several years.

WADE CHOATE

HARRY SPANNAUS

"Clearly, we're elated," Larry Neal said. "The repeal is something that Senator Gramm introduced in legislation last year, as part of the Gramm-Boren trade bill."

The bill, introduced by Gramm and Senator David Boren, D-Okl., was approved by a 58-40 vote in the Senate last summer. Resistance to the repeal from the House, however, led to a joint committee hearing, Neal said.

"The House (energy) bill didn't have any language concerning repeal of the windfall profit tax, so we're happy we came out a winner," he added.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, said today that he was pleased with the proposed repeal.

"We're elated — finally," Stenholm said. "The windfall profit tax has never made sense ... with all the tremendous costs of paperwork involved. The prospect of its repeal is very helpful."

Locally, Wade Choate, director of Choate Company, said savings in paperwork costs alone would be significant. He estimated that savings in that area would amount to $150 million annually in Texas.

"That's money people will have to invest back into the oil industry," Choate noted.

He also noted that incentives, both in taxes and in the oil depletion allowance, have to be increased.

"(Currently) investors are just not putting money back into the business," Choate said. "That's hurting the small independents. Most of the business being done today is by the major oil companies."

"Senator Bentsen is chiefly responsible for this happening," Stenholm said. "He held out long and hard in the committee, and the lion's share of credit should go to him."

Counsel: no proof of Meese foul play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent Counsel James C. McKay said today there was no evidence "developed to date" to warrant a criminal indictment of Attorney General Edwin Meese III in connection with the Iraq-Jordan pipeline plan or his investment in telephone company stock.

McKay said the investigation is continuing.

In a two-paragraph statement, McKay's office said "the grand jury's investigation is not yet complete as to these and other matters, and will continue at least through the end of April."

"If at the end of that period of time there remains insufficient evidence to warrant a prosecution as to these or any other matters, ... the office of independent counsel will issue a report covering all the matters which have been under investigation."

McKay's office said the statement was being issued "to clarify the current status of this criminal investigation" and to contradict

Prather first deaf Texan to be chosen

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Lateice Prather has always wanted to perform, and now she has a chance of a lifetime to realize that goal — but there's a catch.

Lateice, a student at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, is the first deaf Texan to be selected to participate in Up With People, the internationally-known musical group.

Before she joins the group, however, she must secure $7,600 to pay her way on tour, and with a July deadline fast approaching, she remains about $5,600 short of her goal.

Woman's attack leaves Texas community stunned

By JOEL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Residents of this quiet town, where "everybody knows everybody," were stunned and scared after a young woman said a group of men raped her repeatedly while onlookers ignored her pleas.

"It's something horrible," said Jesse Castanon, owner of the J.C. Windmill Restaurant on State Highway 44, the main road through this South Texas county seat about 70 miles west of Corpus Christi.

"I don't know how to explain it to you because all of the people are shocked because this never happened here," Castanon said. He said he knew most of the 11 men arrested in the case.

Four men were arrested and three surrendered to police Thursday, said Duval County Assistant District Attorney Rodolfo Gutierrez. Four others were arrested Wednesday. The suspects, 21 to 29 years old, were charged with rape, kidnapping or rape and kidnapping. Bonds were set at $20,000 to $50,000.

"Some of them we've brought in have admitted it. Some are not talking," said Ricardo Carrillo, another assistant district attorney.

There may be more arrests, and the Texas Rangers will help local authorities in the investigation, according to Jerry Galvan, an investigator with the district attorney's office.

San Diego, with a population of about 5,200 people, sits in rolling hills covered with mesquite trees. Ranching, oil and uranium mining are major industries in the area, but the biggest single employer is the county. Like many small South Texas towns, the dominant buildings are the courthouse and the Roman Catholic church.

"You expect something like this to happen in Corpus (Christi) or San Antonio or Dallas, but not in San Diego," said a woman, who asked not to be identified because "everybody knows everybody."

The 19-year-old victim told authorities she was walking home Saturday night after visiting a relative when four men forced her into a car and took her to a ranch north of town.

She said the four and several others repeatedly raped her for several hours in the back seat of a car while as many as 30 people attending an illegal cockfight either ignored her pleas or joined the attack.

"Some were holding her by the legs and by the arms, and some were covering her eyes and mouth," Carrillo said. The mother of two said several of the men took her to another remote location and raped her again before releasing her.

Gutierrez said the woman knew some of her attackers and that others were identified by witnesses, including a 12-year-old boy.

"The 12-year-old said (the victim) was screaming and crying and told them to take her home," Gutierrez told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. "They were just watching ... and she kept calling for help."

Schoolteacher Johnny Salinas said he wasn't surprised that onlookers did nothing to help.

"These people feel a kinship with each other," he told the Caller-Times. "I would have tried to stop it, but then again you might be afraid to try because you'd get beat up."

Meese

Recent media reports that an indictment is imminent.

In December, McKay's office issued a similar announcement stating there was insufficient evidence to bring criminal charges against Meese in connection with his efforts to help the scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. get defense contracts.

If the investigation is concluded at the end of next month, McKay said he will "refer all of those matters for review and action by the appropriate administrative authorities."

The statement issued by McKay's office said that "based on the evidence developed to date, he (McKay) does not intend to recommend that the grand jury return an indictment against Meese as to the 'Aqaba pipeline' matter or as to matters relating to Mr. Meese's investments, including the so-called 'Baby Bells' matter," the statement said.

Since last spring, McKay has been investigating allegations of wrongdoing by Meese, including ownership of stock in companies created by the breakup of AT&T when he was in a position to make policy affecting the telecommunications industry.

Meese as attorney general met with executives of four of the regional Bell Telephone companies at a time when he owned $14 million worth of stock in the Baby Bells, raising conflict-of-interest questions.

At the time, the Bell companies were seeking a reversal of the Justice Department's position opposing the Bells' expansion into new areas of business. Meese ended up approving a reversal of the department's position early in 1987 in accordance with the companies' wishes.

Meese says he had intended to sell the stock in 1985 but was unable to do so because he had lost the stock certificates. On his financial disclosure forms for 1985 and 1986, Meese listed the Bell stocks as having been sold.

The fact that he still owned them wasn't uncovered until last summer, when pressure from Congress forced the attorney general to disclose the details of his financial holdings.

In addition to the so-called Baby Bells stock, McKay has been investigating whether Meese conspired with San Francisco lawyer E. Bob Wallace and others to violate the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act in connection with an alleged scheme to pay the Israeli government and members of that country's Labor Party to protect a proposed $1-billion oil pipeline from military attack by Israel.

The issue involved whether or not Meese was aware of the proposed payment and whether he used his influence on behalf of the pipeline promoters to obtain U.S. government financial support.

At the Justice Department, meanwhile, sources said Meese was likely to announce later in the day the names of two, or possibly three, nominees for now-vacant Justice Department posts.

hearing-impaired — first learned of the opportunity when Up With People performed in Big Spring January 21.

"I've wanted to perform for a long time," she said. "And as soon as I heard of the chance to interview with Up With People, I jumped at the chance."

She interviewed with Kevin Jonas, an official with the organization, in January, and received notice of acceptance in February.

If she raises the necessary funds, she will join the group for a 12-month, 80-city tour of the U.S., western Europe and Japan during 1988-89. She will perform sign-language interpretations of the group's songs, she said.

"Hopefully, I'll go in July," Lateice said. "If I don't have the money by then, I'll have to wait until January."

She has raised $2,000, mainly from selling hand-made jewelry, and is looking for a job — almost any will do — to raise the remainder.

Attempts to secure money from official sources have failed, she said.

Lateice recently applied for funds from the Texas Rehabilitation Commission, but was denied because her request was not related to getting a job.

Bob Coltrane, a counselor at SWCID, said the college is restricted in the financial aid it can give Lateice, since most of its funds are specifically allocated.

"We can't outright give her money," Coltrane said. "We're a state agency, and we don't have any money earmarked for this."

The college is attempting to help her reach the goal by compiling a computer list of area businesses and civic clubs from which to solicit funds. College officials also have talked about conducting fundraisers, he said, but none have been scheduled.

Coltrane said that there have been two other deaf persons selected for the group, with Lateice the second hearing-impaired female and the first from this state.

While she and others are planning fundraising activities, Lateice — who was born in Juneau, Alaska and raised in Abilene — is looking forward with anticipation to touring with the music group.

During her 12 months with the group, she will do the two things she enjoys most — traveling and performing. Although classes will be offered, the major lesson learned by the performers concerns dealing with people from different lifestyles, she said.

"We'll be living with host families (while on tour)," she said. "It mainly will be about meeting people, although we will be taking some classes."

"We'll also learn about different aspects of the show, such as the lighting, costuming and staging," Lateice added.

A fund for Lateice has been established at the college. Persons interested in contributing can make their checks payable to HCJCD — Up With People, and can mail them to SWCID, Avenue C, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Repeal

Although pleased with the tentative repeal, Stenholm said more needs to be done to stimulate recovery.

"Absolutely (more has to be done)," he said. "But it's not going to happen until after the election."

"The current policy — to let the marketplace prevail — has had an undesirable effect on the oil industry," Stenholm said. "The only way we're going to change the policy is to change administrations ..."

Stenholm noted that restoring tax incentives to investors would be helpful to stimulating activity in the industry, as would an oil import fee.

Of the two suggestions, however, he said that the incentives were probably "more do-able."

Permian Basin oil experts echoed Stenholm's comments this morning.

"I'm delighted, but it's still not the final step in the process," said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association in Midland.

Spannaus noted that the bill still requires approval by both houses of Congress, and then must go to the President for his signature. He added that he has heard the President might veto the bill over disapproval of other aspects of the trade legislation.

Spannaus also expressed concern that Congress may extend the tax when it is to expire in the early 1990s if the repeal is vetoed.

"It's supposed to be a temporary tax," he said. "But Congress doesn't know what the word 'temporary' means. They spell it 'permanent'."

If the repeal is upheld, however, Spannaus sees it as a positive step toward re-vitalizing the energy industry, generating additional interest in exploration, drilling and investment.

But, like Rep. Stenholm, Spannaus said more needs to be done.

"We need to recapture some of the tax incentives that were lost in the Reagan tax reforms," he said. "When you can't cover your losses, and they overtax your gains, you have a problem."

Daylight savings time switch Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lot of people will be sleeping late Sunday, but not out of a desire for extra rest.

It's the day that daylight-saving time returns, meaning that clocks should be shifted an hour forward.

The change occurs at 2 a.m. Sunday, meaning most people probably will want to set their clocks ahead one hour before retiring Saturday night.

Although known as "daylight-saving time," the annual change doesn't really save any daylight — or time.

It simply moves an hour of light from morning to evening by delaying the timing of both sunrise and sunset by an hour.

That means that some children will wait for school buses in the dark, for example, in exchange for more time after school to play ball or join the family in backyard cookouts.

The idea has been attributed to various people, including Benjamin Franklin, but it was William Willett of England who launched the eventually successful campaign for the idea in 1907.

More time for evening recreation, less need for costly artificial lights and a possible reduction of evening crime were cited as major advantages.

crease will be necessary unless there is an influx of new business or another oil boom ... something I don't see happening in the near future," Overman said.

Carey said he doesn't favor an ad valorem tax increase, but he sees no other way of solving the budget woes.

"We don't want to impose a tax increase, but unless the economy gets better there seems to be no other alternative expect cutting services," he said.

Meanwhile, Johnston is predicting that the city must impose a tax increase in addition to cutting some services.

"I would have to take a closer look at the budget," Johnston said when asked which services he believes should be cut.

A 7 or 8 percent increase in ad valorem taxes would generate about $160,000 in additional revenues each year, Rutherford estimated.

Odessa American photographer wins pulitzer

ODESSA (AP) — As rescuers pulled toddler Jessica McClure from a well after 58 hours, hundreds of camera shutters recorded the event, but it was Scott Shaw's shot that got the Pulitzer Prize Thursday.

Shaw, 24, an photographer for the Odessa American, said he had not been expecting the prize for coverage of the Midland rescue operation.

"I had heard that I was in the final three a few weeks ago, but it was hard to believe that I could even have a chance to win such a big award," Shaw told The Associated Press Thursday. "I am pretty young. I am just pretty surprised."

But he said colleagues had been predicting the award. "Ever since I took the photo that night, the editors said I was going to win," said Shaw. "They were sure of it that night. And so it happened."

Shaw's photograph was a closeup of Jessica as she was being taken by a rescue worker to an ambulance following her emergence from the abandoned well last October.

"She (Jessica) whizzed by me with the rescue worker in a split second and I got a shot off," Shaw said of his photo. "I was going to change lenses to get a shot of the rescue."

"But I held the camera up before I got a chance to change lenses. I raised the camera and saw a blur through the viewfinder of the rescue worker and Jessica. I focused and got the one shot off."

A graduate of Southern Illinois University, Shaw has been with the American for a little more than a year and has worked at The Daily Press in Paragould, Ark.

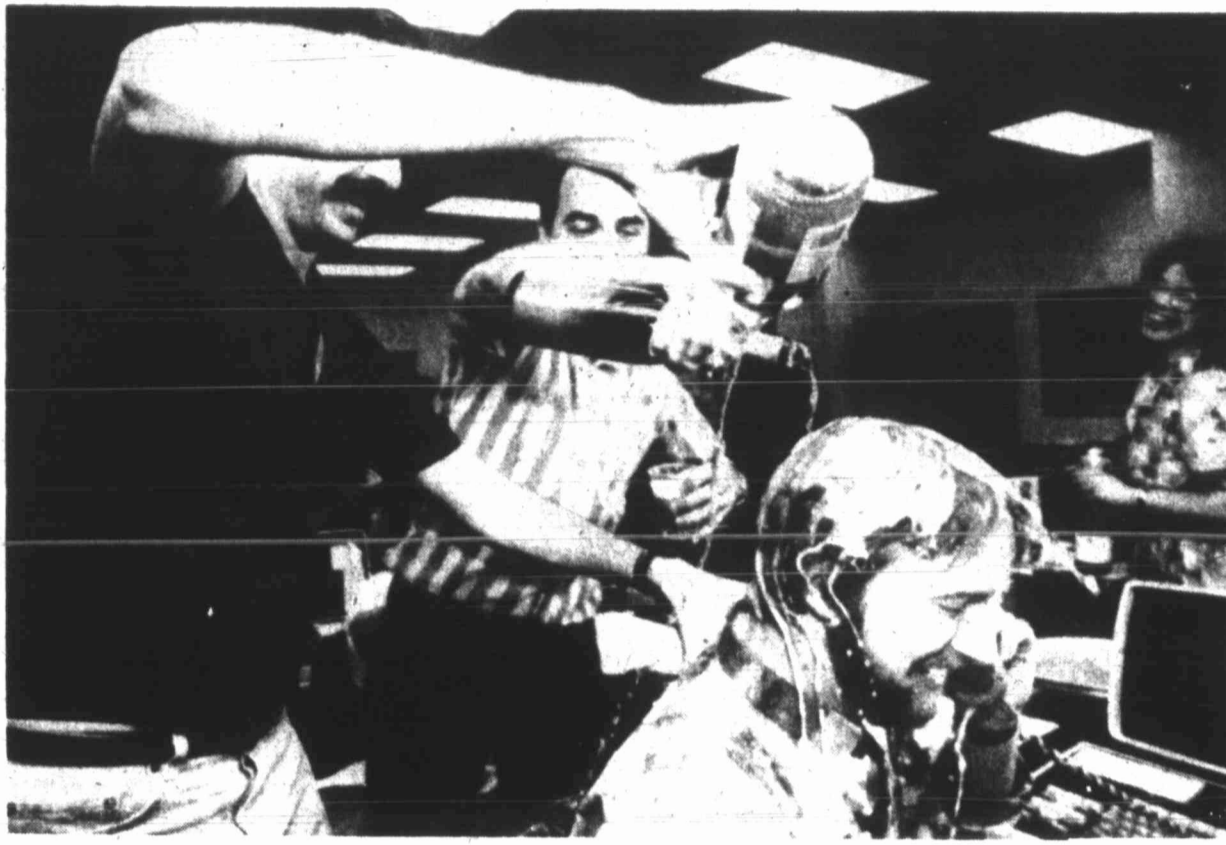

Managing Editor Olaf Frandsen said he knew Shaw's shot was a winner.

"It wasn't a total surprise because we thought it was the best photo, but then every newspaper editor is going to say that, isn't he?" said Frandsen.

Thirteen Texas newspapers have previously won the Pulitzer Prize in journalism.

With a daily circulation of 31,000, the American has a staff of four photographers. The American, a Freedom Newspaper, publishes afternoons, Monday through Friday, and Saturday and Sunday mornings.

"It was his (Shaw's) first major national news story, and he got the shot that every other national media photographer missed," said chief photographer Mark Rogers.

Hundreds gather for space benefit

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of people gathered for a celebrity-packed tribute Thursday night during a two-hour gala to honor the members of the Challenger crew.

"It was such an emotional evening for all the families and the team of people who are behind the Challenger Center," said June Scobee, wife of Challenger commander Dick Scobee.

"It was a tremendous evening. What a fantastic group of people that helped pull off a launch of the Challenger Center," she said.

Proceeds from the Wortham Center event will benefit the Challenger Center for Space Education.

Conceived and developed by family members of the crew, the educational center will offer teachers and students the opportunity to learn about space by participating in simulated space flights and missions at the flagship center in Washington, D.C. and at satellite learning centers around the country.

Those appearing Thursday were The Fabulous Thunderbirds, Meiba Moore, Pia Zadora, Brooke Shields, actor Michael York, The Houston Pops, and Michael Maguire and Brandy Brown, who are starring on Broadway's "Les Miserables."

Paupers' graves found in dump accidentally removed

CLEBURNE (AP) — Human bones found in a dump near Rose Hill Cemetery have been traced to paupers' graves that were moved from a Depression-era cemetery at the old county work farm, authorities say.

Johnson County and Cleburne city officials Thursday denied rumors that bodies had been dug up to make room for new graves at the cemetery.

Numerous people with relatives buried at the cemetery streamed to the cemetery after reports of the discovery of the bones were aired on a Dallas television station.

"I just came out here to make sure everything was OK," Allen Lancaster said after checking on his relative's graves. "I wanted to check on my father's grave, and my sister's and niece's."

City officials admit the bones were dug out of unmarked graves by mistake and unintentionally dumped on the dirt pile, but they angrily deny that graves were opened and bodies dumped to make room for new graves.

"We are not, have not and will not reopen graves and rebury people," said City Manager Lloyd Moss. "This thing has gotten out of hand."

Moss said he did not learn of the grievous find until he was notified Wednesday by the Johnson County Sheriff's Department.

"That's when I asked my staff to go back and see what excavation might have been done out there to disturb any grave sites," he said.

Moss said city officials discovered records showing that a city backhoe digging a drainage culvert in an open field adjacent to the cemetery more than a year ago may have ripped into a series of unmarked paupers' graves.

Moss said the remains were traced to a Depression-era county work farm that once was the end of the line for countless unemployed vagabonds.

The remains will be reburied and city officials are considering placing some type of marker to outline the paupers' graves.

Man shoots, kills ex-wife; then shot, killed by stepson

DALLAS (AP) — A teen-ager disarmed and shot to death his ex-stepfather a few minutes after the man had killed the teen-ager's mother with several blasts from a shotgun, authorities say.

Berenice Pascoe, 35, died after being shot three or four times in the head and body Thursday as she sat in her 1984 Ford in the parking lot at Northridge Town Homes, Detective Linda Erwin of the Dallas Police Department, said.

Ms. Pascoe, who was preparing to leave for work at 8:20 a.m., had been talking to her ex-husband, Amir Abbasi-Damnabi, 38, of the Dallas area, when the man pulled out a shotgun, Ms. Erwin quoted witnesses as saying.

"After the shooting occurred, he apparently went to her apartment and attempted to get in and did get inside," Ms. Erwin said. "There, he was confronted by the woman's son and daughter."

Abbasi-Damnabi, believed to be a native of Iran, fought with the woman's 15-year-old son, while her 13-year-old daughter tried to contact neighbors and police.

"The boy was able to get hold of some kind of compound bow and arrow and shot at Abbasi-Damnabi and hit him, but it was not a mortal wound," Ms. Erwin said.

The man pulled a small-caliber revolver from his clothes, but the boy was able to wrestle the gun from the man's hands and shoot him with it several times, killing Abbasi-Damnabi, Ms. Erwin said.

Police said no charges have been filed against the teen-ager and both children were with relatives Thursday night.

Abbasi-Damnabi and Ms. Pascoe were divorced in June, a spokesman for the Dallas County District Attorney's office said.

Although Ms. Erwin said there had been trouble between Abbasi-Damnabi and Ms. Pascoe, neighbors said they had not heard any arguments in the apartment.

"She was just a real nice lady, that's all I know about her," Pat Smith, a neighbor, said.

"It's not like they were wild or anything," another neighbor said. "They were just regular folks, that's why I was so surprised about it."

Suspect released on bond in theft of stolen document

AUSTIN (AP) — The grandson of former University of Texas football coach Darrell Royal has been released on bond after being charged with stealing an Albert Einstein manuscript.

The handwritten document was found in Samuel Royal's home Tuesday. It was reported missing from a UT display last week. Royal, 18, was arrested Wednesday night at an Austin apartment.

He was released from the Travis County Jail Thursday on a personal recognizance bond. Royal was then taken to the Austin City Jail and released after paying fines for October traffic offenses.

The felony theft charge carries a maximum punishment of 20 years in prison.

Darrell Royal, who coached UT football in 1957-76, now serves as special assistant to UT President William Cunningham. The ex-coach was not at his campus office on Thursday and did not return calls to his office or his home.

Mexico's swap plan is fizzling

Mexico's plan to swap discounted old debt for new bonds backed by the U.S. Treasury has largely fizzled, severely limiting what many analysts had hoped would be a promising new means of debt relief throughout Latin America.

The debt auction devised by Mexico and New York's J.P. Morgan & Co., with the support of Treasury Secretary James Baker, reduced Mexico's $105 billion foreign debt by only $1.1 billion; Mexican officials had hoped for a reduction of up to $10 billion.

Moreover, because of the general lack of interest by creditor banks, Mexico City had to pay an average of 70 cents to retire each dollar of old debt. When the debt exchange was proposed in December, Mexico had expected to pay only 50-60 cents on the dollar.

The innovative debt swap fell short of expectations chiefly because creditor institutions have strengthened their financial positions during the last year by greatly boosting their loan-loss reserves. Most American banks now have set aside reserves equal to 25 percent of their outstanding loans to developing nations.

Treasury Secretary Baker asserts that the Mexico-Morgan arrangement remains "another item on the menu that can be used to work away at the debt problem." That is true, but it is an item that few bank customers are eager to order.

Pain is part of the nature of news

By CAROL RUST
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT (AP) — I got that look again the other night.

It made me wonder all over again what I'm doing in a business that makes my ears perk up at the sound of sirens and punctuates my dreams with the crackle of police radios.

Someone gave me that look again the other night, one that told me I was the collector of calamities, unwelcome in the womb of another's grief.

"Go away," it said. "You people never stop at anything." And I guess that look is right. It's the nature of news.

The next day's headline would be that a policeman was murdered.

He would be a decent man, clean-cut and dedicated. He would have died from a gunshot wound in the line of duty.

The unwritten part of the story would be a hospital emergency room literally blue with the uniforms of police officers, men who had known the slain officer, whose children maybe played with his children. They leaned against the wall in sad, silent human clumps, weary and teary-eyed.

As I was wondering what I was doing in my particular business that draws me into the paths of tornadoes and gravesides of grief, perhaps they were wondering what they were doing in theirs.

And some of them gave me that look when I asked them questions, an understandable look of sad resentment.

"Go away," the look said, "and let us be sad among ourselves."

The next day's story would be neighbors remembering a young man, a family man, who always waved when he passed them driving down the street. The son of a police chief himself. Father of two.

The tone of their voice when I called them told me, too, that I was intruding into their homes, shrouded in sadness.

The unwritten part of the story would be a shocked relative walking slowly from the room where the slain officer's body was, a 29-year-old body that all the physicians and paramedics in the world couldn't bring back to life.

Three hundred miles away, a frantic mother waited by the telephone.

She would soon learn her son had died, now just the body of a boy she praised and punished when he was growing up, a boy she nurtured and who nurtured her.

The unwritten part of the story was the consoling cluster of people who wrapped their arms tightly around others in the emergency room and walked slowly with them down the hall, going nowhere in particular.

The unwritten part of the story was the white plastic garbage bag one of the policemen clutched to him, containing the slain officer's uniform and wallet.

They, too, would give me that look that says silently what vultures they think we news-types are.

And they will be partly right. But if we are predators of tragedy that puts us in uncomfortable situations where we fumble to find words to ask victims and criminals and judges and robbers things they don't want to recall or think about, it's because the people who pick up the paper the next day want to know.

They wanted to read what co-workers thought of a civil servant the city will mourn, what kind of neighbor he was, what kind of husband.

And the unwritten part of almost every story like this, one readers never will see, is the cold dread that seemingly paralyzes reporters' fingers when they're dialing the telephone number of a victim's mother, the sleep they lose because they can't get a weeping relative out of their mind, the sad, sinking feeling in their stomach when they're given that look again.

That, too, is the nature of news.

Defends rights of park owner

To the editor:
I am writing in reference to the front-page article in the March 27 paper concerning the skate (board) area.

I could not believe this. We are talking about private property. Where do these people think they get the right to go on private property and stop work the owner is paying to have done?

If it is so all-fired important that these kids have a place to skate and paint their four-letter words, let these people get together, buy a piece of property, build a skate area, pay the taxes, pay the liability insurance and assume the responsibility for it.

I dare say that had one of these children been seriously injured or killed, their parents would not have hesitated to sue the owner of the property.

What is the problem with parents nowadays? Instead of teaching their children to be responsible for their own actions and to respect the rights and property of others, they encourage them to believe everyone owes them something.

I am not trying to say that kids don't need places to do things, but it is not the obligation of citizens to provide their private property for kids' use and abuse — besides leaving themselves wide open for lawsuits.

Blames fate of park on fear

To the editor:
It saddened me to read about the former skateboard park and its demise, although I could hardly fault Mr. Bristow for his actions or for his promptness after questions arose concerning the safety of the children who frequent the park.

It is indeed unfortunate that we live in a society so etched in fear that our actions are dictated by that fear.

It is not the skateboard park at fault any more than it is the fault of the highway system for the accidents of the roadway or the automakers who manufacture the vehicles that are involved in the crashes.

The problem is much larger and lies with the judicial system that allows astronomical settlements in blameless lawsuits and the insurance companies' attempt to counter the problem with increased rates.

The skateboard park is but a victim, as are the children who enjoyed the park.

We the public are but slaves of our own fear and of the insanity of the court system that we created.

Thanks for the advice you gave, Rep. Howard

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., was piqued when we wrote about his pre-Christmas scrambling to find pork barrel projects for his friends on the House Public Works Committee. We compounded the offense with a story on his attempts to stuff the billboard industry's stocking with some special-interest legislation.

The distinguished legislator says our stories were unfair.

We took his charges to heart and assigned our associate Stewart Harris to have another look at Jim Howard. It seemed like the fair thing to do. Upon further consideration, we owe our readers an apology. We missed some important facts about the likeable, but misguided Howard.

One who agrees with us is Philip M. Stern, veteran political gadfly and co-chairman of a group called Citizens Against PACs. In a book that will appear in May, Stern wonders whether Howard may be unduly influenced by the industry lobbyists who have wined and dined him and filled his campaign coffers since he took the reins of the Public Works Committee in 1980.

In "The Best Congress Money Can Buy," Stern explores all the nooks and crannies of Howard's campaign records and financial disclosure forms. He comes up with some interesting facts:

- Only one out of every six dollars collected by Howard's campaign in 1986 came from inside his northern New Jersey district.
- People who live in Washington, D.C., the home of lobbyists and industry lawyers, contributed three times as much in 1986 as Howard's constituents back home in New Jersey.

• About $340,000 — more than half of the money he collected that year — came from political action committees.

Stern also documents Howard's "fondness" for winter trips to warmer climes, especially when someone else picks up the bill.

In February 1985, Howard went to Palm Springs, Calif., as the guest of the American Busing Association. The ABA often invites Howard to its conventions and never seems to tire of hearing the congressman talk. Since 1980, the group has paid him $9,500 in speaking fees.

The ABA has good reason to remain chummy with the chairman of the Public Works Committee, which has jurisdiction over regulations that affect bus safety and the maintenance of federal highways.

Keyed up over worn-out typewriter

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Soon after I got my first big-time sports department job, back when the Super Bowl was still a novel idea, I noticed the big-time sportswriters all carried the same kind of portable typewriters.

They were manuals manufactured by Olivetti, and they fit neatly — for travel purposes — into a blue leather case.

So I went out and bought myself a new one in 1968. It served me unfailingly in such places as Dodger Stadium, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the Press Hut at Augusta National Golf Club, and I even carried it to the Republican Convention in Detroit in 1980 long after my sportswriting career had ended.

My first Olivetti slowly began to fall apart, however, and my colleagues all suggested I begin to write on a computer.

I will say it again as I have said it before: God never intended newspapers to be put out by computer, as most of them are today. God has punished the nation's newspapers for this transgression, by giving them a headache known as USA Today.

Still, I had a problem replacing my original Olivetti. Manual typewriters are no longer manufactured by any company. What I finally did was ask around and I came up with two used Olivettis like my first one.

They served me gallantly all over the world. I even took one to the Soviet Union.

But one fell apart a year ago in Oklahoma City, and the other's carriage stuck on me as I typed in the Delta Crown Room in New Orleans. It has yet to move again.

"Get the computer," everybody said to me again. "You can't live in the past forever." I've accepted that now. One occasionally needs to update. I have even stopped wearing Old Spice aftershave for the exotic aroma of Bayou Wind, or some such thing.

The day of the portable manual typewriter — the Olivetti, hallowed by its name — is over. "So you'll get a computer to take on the road," I was asked.

"No," I answered. "I will buy a portable electric typewriter, my compromise with the information age."

I have never liked electric typewriters. They make that deep, humming noise like a 1962 Impala on idle.

And in order to operate an electric typewriter, one must have an electric outlet.

I once had to type a column on the tailgate of a pickup truck that had broken down carrying me out of the wilderness of Idaho. Where would I have plugged in my electric? In the rear-end of a longhorned sheep, the subject of my column?

Something else about electric typewriters is that they type faster than I can think. Try to type an "L" on an electric typewriter and no matter how lightly you peck the key you're going to get "LLLLL" every time.

But, as I said, I have decided to compromise. I have purchased a portable electric typewriter to replace my weary Olivetti manuals.

Upon the occasion of my next road assignment, I will be coming to you via a Smith-Corona, which has something called a "Coronamic Cartridge Correction System" — whatever that is.

While I am home, however, I will continue to use what I am using now, a vintage desktop manual Royal, a good and a loyal tool, the kind Bogie probably used in "Deadline USA," when he uttered those immortal words, "Progress sucks."

Senate to decide guilt

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A failed effort to reinstate the most serious of three impeachment charges against Gov. Evan Mecham has set the stage for a Senate vote next week on whether he should be removed from office.

Senate Democrats on Thursday refused to go along with a move by Republicans to revive the charge that the first-term GOP governor concealed a $350,000 campaign loan — a decision one senator called "political roulette."

"If there are not the votes to convict, and Governor Mecham is back on the ninth floor (the governor's office) on Wednesday ... they have dealt themselves a losing hand," said Sen. Tony West, a Republican and an early Mecham critic.

The Senate has heard five weeks of evidence on the remaining two charges: that Mecham tried to thwart investigation of an alleged death threat by a state official and misused $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund by loaning it to his auto dealership.

Council to meet today

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A defiant Jimmy Swaggart probably will leave the Assemblies of God rather than obey the church's one-year banishment from his television ministry, says a member of the denomination's Louisiana council.

Swaggart cited the Louisiana District Council's recommendation for a more lenient three-month ban when he said through his lawyer Wednesday that he would defy the national leadership and return to the pulpit on May 22.

The 19-member district council was to meet today at Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries to discuss the case, but Swaggart had not been asked to attend and didn't plan to, said his lawyer, Bill Treby.

Drug reduces death rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A study finding that one drug is better than a commonly used class of drugs at preventing deaths in people with high blood pressure may help change treatment recommendations in the United States, researchers say.

The study found that the drug metoprolol reduced the death rate by 48 percent in comparison to the widely used diuretics called thiazides, researchers said Thursday.

Metoprolol (pronounced muh-TAH-pro-law) is one of the heart drugs known as beta blockers. These drugs block the stimulating effect of adrenaline on the heart, reducing the rate and the force at which the heart pumps blood through the body — and reducing high blood pressure.

The thiazides make up one class of diuretics, which relieve high blood pressure by stimulating the body to expel fluid, thus lowering the total volume of blood in the bloodstream.

This is the first study to show that a beta blocker can prevent more deaths in people with hypertension than can thiazides, said the principal author of the study, Dr. John Wikstrand of Gothenburg University's Sahlgrenska University Hospital in Sweden.

To receive renewed aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will give quick approval to an aid package for Nicaragua's Contras, but it probably will be at least two weeks before the rebels begin receiving supplies under the new legislation, a State Department official says.

The Senate on Thursday gave lopsided approval to the $48 million aid bill, sending it to the president on a vote of 87-7. The House had approved the measure 345-70 a day earlier.

"There certainly is an urgent need among the resistance for medical supplies, food, clothing, the basic commodities of life," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "This bill is very welcome in that regard and we support it."

Fitzwater said Reagan intended to sign the measure before leaving the White House for a 10-day Easter vacation. The Contras have been shut off from U.S. aid since Feb. 29.

The State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he "would be very surprised if any aid is delivered within the next two weeks" because of the time required by the bureaucracy to gear up for a new delivery effort.

But the official said even with the delay, delivery will begin more quickly than normal because some of the responsibility for moving supplies will be given to the department's Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance, which has experience with such programs.

The aid aims at sustaining the rebels as a fighting force while they wait in cease-fire zones for their political leaders and the Sandinista government to work out a long-term settlement to their nearly seven-year civil war.

Aid to the rebels under the bill would total $17.7 over the next six months, including $1.5 million for communications gear if such equipment is deemed to be in accord with a March 23 cease-fire accord between the two sides.

Another $17.7 million would be spent on a new program of medical and rehabilitation help for war-injured children on both sides of the conflict. The bill offers $10 million to a verification commission that will monitor compliance with the cease-fire, and $2.5 million to pay the State Department's Agency for International Development to administer the aid.

The overwhelming and relatively quiet approval of the bill in both houses of Congress was an abrupt change in the tenor of a U.S. debate that began with the civil war seven years ago. Votes on Nicaragua policy have typically been decided by thin margins and with sharp and partisan argument.

Probe angers Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has angrily criticized a planned investigation by Amnesty International into the killing of three unarmed Irish Republican Army guerrillas by British commandos in Gibraltar.

Amnesty shrugged off her comments, saying it gets the same response when it lists human rights violations in South Africa, the Soviet Union and Chile.

"I hope Amnesty has some concern for the more than 2,000 people murdered by the IRA since 1969," Mrs. Thatcher told the House of Commons Thursday, to cheers from rank-and-file legislators of her Conservative Party.

Conservative lawmaker John Carlisle fumed, "These are interfering do-gooders ... it (the Amnesty probe) will be deeply resented by the British people."

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, Paddy McGrory, the lawyer for the families of the three guerrillas killed — Mairead Farrell, 31, Danny McCann, 30, and Sean Savage, 23 — said the relatives welcomed Amnesty's concern.

Fire a national disaster

MOSCOW (AP) — A leading Soviet scholar said a fire at the Academy of Sciences that burned 400,000 books and periodicals was a national disaster, but that library officials played it down like the Chernobyl nuclear accident.

Historian Dmitri Likhachev, head of the Soviet Culture Fund, demanded that top officials at the academy's library in Leningrad be fired for lying about the size of the loss and ordering a clean-up instead of a careful salvage operation.

The Feb. 14 fire at the library, which stores publications dating back to the 17th century, "can rightly be called a national disaster," Likhachev said. "Our culture has suffered a huge loss."

His comments appeared in a page-long article published in the March 18 edition of the weekly Book Review.

The scholar said 400,000 books and periodicals had been destroyed in the blaze and that 2.7 million more suffered water and moisture damage.

Bus accident kills 24

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bus filled with holiday travelers plunged 200 yards down a mountainside early today, killing 24 people and injuring 20, police said.

The bus began its journey in Cape Town and was traveling between the towns of Ladismith and Calitzdorp in southern Cape province when it veered off a road through a mountain pass shortly after midnight.

Police Col. Herman Scheepers said those on board were people of mixed race. Scheepers said the cause of the accident was under investigation.

South Africa observes a four-day holiday weekend each Easter, and the rate of traffic fatalities during the period is often the highest of the year.

THE EVENT MAY BE DIFFERENT,
 BUT THE FEAST IS THE SAME

Two sacred holidays in spring,
 According to our faith, will bring Observances remembering
 What started long ago;
 For lessons of our faith reveal
 The story of that famous meal
 Which even now will still appeal
 To all of those who go,
 To mark the Hebrew slaves' release,
 Or pray for sin and war to cease,
 So earthly man can live in peace;
 And thus it's apropos
 To pass along by word and deed,
 Whatever be our chosen creed,
 This joyful message we should heed,
 For all the world to know.

Local churches show film

"Twice Pardonned," a new "must see" film presentation created especially for teen-agers, examines the destructive ways in which many young people try to cope with the pains and pressures of growing up.

The film will be shown April 6 at First Baptist Church, 705 W. Marcy Dr., at 6:30 p.m.; and April 10 at St. Paul Lutheran Church, Ninth and Scurry streets, at 2:30 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Admission is free and a nursery will be provided at both churches.

In this recent release from Focus on the Family Films, ex-con Harold Morris tells his incredible life story and urges teen-agers to avoid the snares — alcohol, drugs, illicit sex and wrong associations — that led to his imprisonment.

"Twice Pardonned" was taped before 10,000 teens in San Antonio, and on location at Georgia State Penitentiary. Morris encourages young people to realize how much they are loved.

Speaking from personal experience, he explains how feelings of inferiority can make them vulnerable to peer pressure.

He also shares, in a down-to-earth manner, some of the tragic consequences of his wrong choices.

The film has been enthusiastically endorsed by noted family psychologist and best-selling author Dr. James Dobson, according to a news release.

"I have never seen a more powerful message for teens," Dobson said. "Every young person in America needs to see these films."

In 1969, as a result of false testimony from two "friends," Morris was convicted of armed robbery and murder, and was sentenced to a double life term at Georgia State Penitentiary.

After eight years in prison — including hard time on Death Row, Morris made a commitment to Jesus Christ and began an outreach to young people to help them avoid the traps that got him into trouble, the release stated.

Morris was miraculously released on parole March 14, 1978, after nearly a decade behind bars. He later was graduated from Southeastern Bible College in Birmingham, Ala. and was granted a full pardon by Georgia Governor George Busbee March 15, 1981.

Morris' first book, Twice Pardonned: An Ex-Con Talks to Parents and Teens, has ranked near the top of the Christian best-seller lists since its release in June 1986 by Focus on the Family Publishing.

Youth directors Need patience, energy and open ears

WACO, Texas (AP) — This is one job requiring the applicant to be just a little crazy. Teen-ager crazy.

And don't bother putting on airs for people ages 11 through 18. They see through pretensions and call a fake a fake.

Those words of wisdom come from youth directors and ministers, who say the things they have in common are patience, love and the need for a bowl of Wheaties every morning.

"Junior high schoolers are especially bouncing off the wall. They have so much energy. Whereas high schoolers are more bubbly, quiet and laid-back," said Alice Torian, youth director at Austin Avenue United Methodist church in Waco.

"As a rule, I think they're fresh and alive, not cynical, and if they don't believe something, they tell you they don't," said Michael Usey, associate minister at Seventh & James Baptist Church in Waco.

Depending on church size and tradition, a youth leader might be a minister, a staff member, a part-time staff member or a volunteer. Youth groups may have from fewer than a dozen to more than 50 members and meet from three times a week to twice a month.

Youth leaders are attracted to the job for different reasons. For ministers, there is a trend toward viewing the position as a career rather than as a stepping-stone, said Rick Bowles, youth minister-director at Waco's Calvary Assembly of God Church.

"The expression 'As the twig is bent, so goes the tree.' I just think it's a chance to influence people," said Usey.

Beth Peak, director of Christian Education for youth and college at Waco's First Presbyterian Church, said she wanted to work with young people "because of their enthusiasm and openness and humor. They're so funny."

And they're serious, too. "They have questions about death, questions about heaven, questions about, 'Why did God let my friend die?' That's a hard one for them. A hard one for anyone," she said.

"Having fun is just something superficial," said Jeff Feyerherm, youth director at St. Mary's Catholic Church of the WACO — Michael Usey, right, associate minister at the Seventh and James Baptist Church, organizes classes for both youth and college-age students.

Assumption in Waco. "I really think kids are a lot deeper than that. They want to know 'What's the world going to be like when I get there?'"

"As far as young people and society today goes, I think that too many people have forgotten what it's like to be a teen-ager. Outsiders tend to be judgmental. "Kids have more of a struggle with friends and relationships. They think it's the drugs, premarital sex and stuff, but we've got to teach young people how to relate. That's at the roots of the problems," Bowles.

Youth leaders are often both leader and member of the group, friend and disciplinarian, participant and observer.

"I see my role as a person who can show youth how to have a good time without drugs, or alcohol, or loud rock music, or any of those things that could be potentially dangerous in the future," said Feyerherm.

"I take a practical approach to life, that none of it's very good unless you can use it in your life. Make the Scripture your own," said Ms. Torian. "That's what I think my role is. There's not a separation between your daily life and the outside world and your inside world."

Youth leaders said one of the most important things they do is lend listening ears. Although all five leaders said they refer children with serious problems to a minister or counselor, Usey said, "A lot of it is just being there for them."

Bowles said, "I've made the statement to the kids and the parents several times that I'm not trying to be their mom and dad ... Basically, I just keep straight on what the Bible has to say on the issue."

Besides patience, love, energy and a listening ear, youth leaders should have a guitar, jokes Ms. Torian.

"Almost every youth director I know plays the guitar. I don't know if it's a prerequisite or what," she said, laughingly admitting she plays guitar.

Ms. Torian said of working with young people, "When you really need it and least expect it, they come through for you."

Working with young people also "keeps you honest," said Usey.

"They're quick to forgive, because they make a lot of mistakes, too. And they don't seem very afraid," he said, adding that he would not recommend the job to "sheepish, the weak of stomach and those who are overly concerned with etiquette."

Working with youths for two years has given him "a lot of gray hairs," said Bowles, laughing. "No. This may sound funny, but it keeps me young."

Feyerherm said the youth have given him "the warm fuzzies."

The James Gang, a group of young people at Seventh & James, agreed that relating is important.

Religion roundup

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Bishops of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America say "persons of homosexual orientation" seeking ordination or who already are ordained "are expected to refrain from homosexual practice."

The statement came after three senior seminarians at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary at Berkeley, Calif., announced they are homosexual and have been assigned as pastoral candidates in West Coast synods.

Bishop Herbert W. Chilstrom, head of the denomination, said the church's ministry embraces all people, including homosexuals, but the church must set standards for those called as pastors.

He said the church draws a distinction between homosexual orientation and homosexual practice, and many denominations have clergy who may be homosexually oriented, but he added:

"The church will not ordain persons who engage in homosexual behavior nor will it permit such persons to be on the clergy roster if such practice is discovered."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Southern Baptist executive committee has declined to make a sweeping investigation of its Baptist Press news service, but a subcommittee has advised it to exercise "Christian restraint."

The news service has come under increasing pressures as a fundamentalist wing gained control of denominational operations.

Spear to pastor Colorado City church

COLORADO CITY — Dr. Ted Spear, 33, will begin his duties Sunday as pastor of First Baptist Church.

Spear replaces Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt who resigned six months ago to become chaplain at Baptist Memorial Center in San Angelo. Dr. James Shields of Abilene, a professor at Hardin-Simmons University, has been interim pastor.

Spear comes to Colorado City from Weatherford where he pastored Brock Baptist Church since 1983. Prior to that he was pastor at Purves Baptist Church in Dublin.

He and his wife, Stephanie, have four children, Andrew, 5, Johnathan, 3, and twins, Christopher and Patrick, 2.

Spear received his doctor of philosophy degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth in 1987, his master of divinity degree from Southwestern in 1980 and his bachelor of arts degree in Bible from Hardin-Simmons University in 1976.

Church presents musical

The public is invited to the Easter musical titled, "The Third Day," presented by the choir of Westbrook Baptist Church, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Narration will be by Bob Manning, pastor.

Wayne Pierce, will direct the choir, organist will be Ciola Whitesides, and pianist is Frances Ranne.

Harmony helps children

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Danny) and I were recently divorced. We have two school-age children. I invite Danny to every event that involves our children. I put things in the mail to let him know about their participation in school events, and invite him to come on times that are not "his" by court order. I try hard, for the children's sake. (He agrees I am more than fair.)

Our 6-year-old son ("Josh") had a hernia operation yesterday. Josh adores my mother, "Gram," and has spent a lot of time with her. Danny is still angry with my mother over some divorce matters, so he called to tell me that if my mother goes to the hospital to see Josh, there will be trouble. Danny refuses to rotate to let Gram see our son at all — and says he will not share the hospital room with her if she visits Josh.

I am heartbroken. Why can't Danny see that he is only hurting our son? Maybe he will listen to you. Please talk to him, and to all divorce-scarred parents out there who are trying to raise kids together.

THINKING OF THE CHILD
DEAR THINKING: I cannot guarantee that Danny — or any of the small army of divorced parents — will "listen" to me, but here goes: Children of divorced parents are the biggest losers when a parent uses a child to punish an ex-spouse or a member of the family. Everything that concerns the child, school and social events, matters of health — emotional as well as physical — should be shared by both parents. Even though the courts usually decide how much time each parent shall have with the children, the custodial parent can make it either difficult or easy for the other parent. To "poison" a child's mind against the absent parent or a member of his or her family is damaging to the child. In all things, the child's well-being and happiness should take precedence over the feelings of either parent. Circumstances differ; not all parents are eager to share in the responsibilities of raising a child, but those who are should put aside their own grievances, however justified, to present a united front for the good of the child. I think all divorced parents owe their children that much.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong in your reply to "Angry," who wanted her husband to have a vasectomy. You suggested that she might change her mind about having more children.

Abby, the world is already so overpopulated that no family should have more than two children. We hope it will never be necessary to do in this country what the Chinese have done — limit families, by law, to only one child. You may be one of those people who feel people should have as many children as they can afford to feed, but, Abby, we are running out of space for people to live and we are depleting our natural resources.

You should have told that lady to sleep in separate beds until her husband comes to his senses (if he has any). What if he has a scar half an inch long? Who's going to see it? As for discomfort for one or two days, that's a lot of baloney. I could have gone back to work immediately after my vasectomy. Believe, me, it was no big deal.

Extension Club meets twice in March

City Extension Club met twice in March, with Mrs. Vaughnea White, presiding.

The first meeting was at the home of Mrs. Marvin Sewell. Mrs. Waymon Etchison and Mrs. W. Priebe presented the program and demonstrated how to make a better pie crust. They noted that a piece of pie is equal to one third of the daily recommended calories.

The second meeting was at the home of Mrs. Frances Zant, with Mrs. Laverne Green as co-hostess. Larry Bristow, who represented the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, presented a program on care at the center, followed by a question and answer period.

Bristow explained how the center is financed, and said that anyone ranging from infants to older adults, who are referred by a doctor, can receive therapy.

Those with a hearing loss are also eligible for treatment.

Howard bull rider in second place

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

From the moment Robbin Richards and Kim Rankin posted the colors to open the Howard College Rodeo Thursday night through the last rider out of the bull chute, events went rapidly.

A cold wind whipped from the east and lightning flickered against the evening sky to the north and west.

Howe hand Joey Hubbard turned in a beautiful ride on a rank bull to earn a 76 and lead the bull riding for most of the night, but Jeff Quisenberry edged him on the penultimate ride of the event to score a 77 and give Vernon Junior College the lead.

Vickie Freeman, the Odessa College barrel racer, snaked a skinny .11-second lead out of her event by scoring 17.50. She passed Tarleton State's Jerri Lynch, who rode a 17.66, and Howard's Eckhardt, who turned in a 17.76, to finish atop the rankings.

Steer wrestlers mostly lost their bouts with the balky beasts on the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl's soft-loam floor. Howard dogger Tim Ross, West Texas hopeful Shane Goerner and Russell Jonas all finished with no-times; Shawn McMullan from OC had the only one-fall match of the evening to score a 13.2 for the lead.

Steers fell, but wouldn't roll off their feet, for David-Lacey from Vernon, who scored 13.2, and Monty O'Neal, Frank Phillips, who finished in 13.4. Tarleton's Todd Danley rolled a recalcitrant beef over in 15.7 and Bobby Moody from Western Texas suffered the ignominy of having to throw his steer twice, finishing with a 21.0.

Saddle broncs also gave the cowboys what-for Thursday night. Sul Ross cowboy Russell Alford scored a 56 on Buckskin Joe, a horse more of a mind to run than buck, but was thrown during his ride. Top points went to Western Texas' Wesley Henderson with a 71.

Witch Doctor's medicine proved too bad for Tom Messick from Sul Ross, who finished with a 61; Troy Budvarson rode Gray Ghost to a 67 score and Howard's Vance Eggeneyer turned in a textbook performance on Century to score a 69, good for second place.

Team ropers had a tough night too. Five of the 10 teams finished with no time; Howard College's Bill Berry and Robbin Richards took the lead with a 13.0 perfect catch.

Breakaway ropers Watkins and Overby tied at 3.0 while Scott's 3.1 was good for third. Howard's Kim Rankin finished with no time, as did Tennell and Judi Engle. JoDitt Danley, from WTC, finished with 5.3 and Eckhardt a 12.5; Tech's Shannon Garrison posted a 13.0, and Lynch finished in 14.8.

Shawn and Shane Goerner from WTC one-heeled their catch in

Teams may exchange stars

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Dave Winfield, feuding with New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, is being offered to the Baltimore Orioles for outfielder Fred Lynn, according to published reports.

Yankees general manager Lou Piniella talked Thursday with Roland Hemond, the Orioles vice president for baseball operations, newspapers in New York and Baltimore reported today.

A team source who is familiar with the talks said the deal was not close, the Baltimore Sun reported.

"The Orioles could put something together but whether the Yankees would accept it, I don't know," the source told the Sun.

The Yankees have actively sought to trade the outfielder since the recent publication of his autobiography, "Winfield, A Player's Life." Several clubs were said to have shown interest in him.

Winfield is said to be upset at how Steinbrenner has reacted to the book's publication, but wants to remain with the club.

"If we've had differences, I understand teamwork and chemistry in that lockerroom among players. He doesn't," Winfield told the Gannett Westchester-Rockland Newspapers, referring to Steinbrenner.

"I'm amused and appalled at the way I'm being treated," Winfield said. "A lot of other ownership wouldn't be upset."

Winfield signed a 10-year contract in 1980 worth approximately $18.4 million.

While the Yankees try to trade Winfield, he is convinced they cannot do it without his permission. In his contract, Winfield agreed he could be traded to seven teams, and Baltimore was among them.

But players with more than 10 years in the majors and more than five with the same club can veto any deal.

"I don't anticipate going anywhere soon. I'm a player rep. I know my rights. Ten and five," he said.

Yankees management, however, believes he can be traded.

Winfield wants to stay in New York.

"Right now we have a good bunch of guys, there's a chance of winning and I live there," he said.

Winfield, 36, hit 27 home runs with 97 RBI and batted .275 last season. He hit .351 with runners in scoring position and won his seventh Gold Glove.

"They're shopping. A lot of teams have made indications that yes, they would want me," Winfield said. "Hits will stop all that stuff. My play will stop it."

Piniella has said trade talks have "all been preliminary."

Lynn also has a no-trade clause in his five-year contract with the Orioles, and he, too, can veto any deal.

Shoe tycoon making plans to buy Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Paul Fireman, who built a nearly half-billion dollar fortune on Reebok athletic shoes, reached a tentative agreement Thursday to buy the debt-plagued New England Patriots and expressed confidence the deal would be completed.

"We have an agreement that's very solid," he said. "I believe all parties have an interest in making this thing complete and we're going to make it complete."

He said he hoped the deal to buy the NFL team from Billy Sullivan could be finalized in four weeks. Among several stumbling blocks are the current bankruptcy of Stadium Management Corp., which owns Sullivan Stadium.

"We have some open-ended items in the contract that need to be complete for this deal to complete on approximately June 1," said Fireman, chairman and chief executive officer of Reebok International. "One of them is the stadium and the other is contingent liabilities in the form of some suits pending."

"We think the stadium is part of this whole package and should get resolved."

He suggested a deal on the team was not inextricably tied to terms on the stadium.

He would own 51 percent of the team and Fran Murray, a Philadelphia businessman who had an option to buy the club, would get 49 percent under an agreement they reached last week.

Fireman refused to disclose the sale price.

Fireman, 44, said Sullivan, the team's original owner when it was formed in 1959, would remain as an adviser and Sullivan's son Pat would stay on as general manager, a position he has held since February 1983.

The elder Sullivan has owned the team since its formation as part of the American Football League, except for one year in the mid-1970s.

He called it "a very happy day, I couldn't ask for anything more."

He said Fireman "provided our family with the realization of our fondest dream, to keep the Patriots in Foxboro."

Fireman has strong local ties. He is a native of Brockton and lives in Newton. Reebok is based in Canton, about 10 miles from Sullivan Stadium.

He said he'd prefer to keep the Patriots at the stadium, but added, "our next big hope would be to build a new stadium in the New England market, the Boston market."

Murray said the option of moving the team out of the area "is so remote as not to be worthy of discussion."

Sullivan and his sons, Pat and Patriots' executive vice president Chuck Sullivan, agreed to the deal under pressure of a continuing court battle with Murray, who sought control of the team. Murray claimed the Patriots were in default on loans he gave them.

Pat Sullivan began testifying Wednesday and was scheduled to resume Thursday before Norfolk Superior Court Judge Harold Flannery granted a continuance.

If the sale is closed, the case will be dismissed, Robert Popeo, Murray's attorney, said.

He said Fireman and Murray would try to buy Sullivan Stadium, but it is not a prerequisite for the sale of the team.

"It's like having a 10-ton block lifted from my back," Pat Sullivan said of the relief provided by Fireman from the team's problems.

The team's financial predicament was compounded by substantial losses incurred by Chuck Sullivan as promoter of Michael Jackson's Victory Tour several years ago.

Knicks surging for place in playoffs

By The Associated Press

The New York Knicks' road to the NBA playoffs may have started on the road.

Gerald Wilkins scored 20 points and Mark Jackson got 15 of his 19 in the second half Thursday night as the Knicks beat the Milwaukee Bucks 113-103.

New York, just 5-30 away from Madison Square Garden, ended Milwaukee's 10-game home winning streak.

"This was a win of monumental proportions for us because we're a team that has only won four games on the road," Knicks coach Rick Pitino said.

New York stayed in the race for one of eight Eastern Conference playoff spots. The Knicks are in ninth place at 31-40, trailing Cleveland (33-38) and Indiana (33-36).

"We really needed the victory tonight, and with 11 games left we have a chance at the playoffs. A loss tonight would have been disastrous," Pitino said.

Elsewhere, Houston beat Indiana 102-100, Denver defeated Sacramento 121-111, Utah downed Golden State 115-92 and San Antonio stopped Seattle 117-115.

Patrick Ewing scored 18 points and Trent Tucker 17 for the Knicks, who led 97-81 with 8:52 remaining.

Rickey Pierce, who finished with 24 points, got 16 in the fourth quarter and Milwaukee pulled within 106-102 with 1:18 to go. New York, however, withstood the rally.

"We've had about nine or 10 games where it's gone down to the wire," Pitino said. "We're used to this type of situation."

The Knicks outbounded Milwaukee 51-39 with Ewing getting 11 and Bill Cartwright 10.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs acquired veteran quarterback Steve DeBerg from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Thursday to serve as a backup to Bill Kenney.

The Chiefs sent reserve safety Mark Robinson and fourth-and-eighth-round draft choices to the Buccaneers for the 34-year-old DeBerg.

DeBerg signed a three-year contract with the Chiefs, said General Manager Jim Schaaf.

On Tuesday, the Chiefs had traded former No. 1 pick Todd Blackledge to the Pittsburgh Steelers. Blackledge and Kenney had alternated in the starting job for three years before Coach Frank Gansz settled on Kenney last season.

Let the fun begin!

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The overrated Arizona team from the poor Pac-10. Oklahoma's better-sooner-than-later Sooners, who run but don't play defense. The Duke team that does everything the way Bob Knight would have. And the one-man show from Kansas, with the vagabond coach.

They all come into the 50th NCAA Final Four at Kansas City with labels, whether they deserve them or not.

"We have one game here Saturday," Duke forward Danny Ferry said Thursday night as the Blue Devils arrived at the Kansas City airport. "The object is to play two. It's the same for everybody. ... Now, it's time to concentrate on the game."

Final Four

This weekend, that's all that will count, and there will be only one label that matters — the tag of national basketball champions.

Saturday's semifinals match No. 5 Duke, 28-6, of the Atlantic Coast Conference against unranked Kansas, 28-11, of the Big Eight, at 5:30 p.m. EST, and No. 2 Arizona, 35-2, vs. No. 4 Oklahoma, 34-3, also of the Big Eight, at 8 p.m. The final, which many think will belong to the Arizona-Oklahoma winner, is set for Monday night at 9 p.m.

Arizona-Oklahoma is the anticipated shootout. It may well become one, since both can score big. But the teams also have proven they can play halfcourt games, offensively and defensively.

"Take no prisoners. Right!" Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said to enthusiastic boosters as his team arrived shortly after Duke. "It's great to be back. The first Final Four I ever witnessed was in this city — when UCLA won its first one (in 1964). That's a great omen."

Arizona, led by Sean Elliott and Steve Kerr, got to the Final Four by beating its opponents by an average of 26.75 points, including a 70-52 victory over No. 7 North Carolina in the West Regional final. It was the Tar Heels' worst NCAA Tournament loss since 1969.

UCLA set the tournament record for winning margin by a national champion of 23.75 in 1967. To break the record, Arizona would have to win its next two games by an average of 18 points.

By the same token, Arizona is a well-disciplined team that has adopted the precision-passing, halfcourt game that Coach Lute Olson brought with him from Iowa, which he took to the Final Four in 1980.

No Arizona player, even the All-American Elliott, averaged 20 points. Elliott led the team at 19.2, followed by three more players — Tom Tolbert (14.2), Anthony Cook (13.8) and Kerr (12.7) — at 10 or better.

"All of the talk — 'They play in a weak league, who have they played, they play better teams earlier in their schedule, and their league will make them soft for the tournament' — this team has proved from the beginning that they are a quality team," Olson said. Both Arizona and Oklahoma are Final Four neophytes. The Wildcats had never been to a Final Four. The Sooners haven't gone since 1947, and a victory over Arizona would tie Billy Tubbs with Bruce Drake at 200 victories, most by any Oklahoma coach. Tubbs is the only coach here without Final Four experience.

PONTIAC, Mich. — Kansas' Danny Manning will be trying to lead coach Larry Brown's Jayhawks to a basketball national championship.

The Sooners, led by 20-point scorers Stacey King and Harvey Grant, have built their record-breaking offense around a full court press that is designed to force turnovers, resulting in more Oklahoma points. "Everyone is loose and having fun," Grant said, "but we know it'll be all business on the court."

The Sooners, who set an NCAA record by scoring 3,847 points in 37 games this season, proved in the Southeast Regional final against Villanova that they could do more than run and shoot. Villanova played it as slow as possible with today's 45-second shot clock, yet Oklahoma won 78-59 to advance to the Final Four.

The tag on Duke may be the most accurate of all, and what would be wrong with that, at least in a basketball sense. Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski — usually just called Coach K because most people can neither pronounce nor spell his name — played three years under Knight at Army and was Knight's graduate assistant in 1975 at Indiana.

Duke does have a great man-to-man defense. Asked recently whether his Blue Devils would use it against Kansas' Danny Manning, Coach K replied,

High-scoring Bradley guard named top player in country

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bradley All-American Hersey Hawkins, who led Division I in scoring with the highest average in 11 years, was named today the college basketball player of the year by The Associated Press.

The 6-foot-3 senior guard finished the 31-game season with a 36.3 scoring average, the highest mark since Freeman Williams of Portland State averaged 38.8 in 1977. His 1,125 points made him the first player to break the 1,000-point mark in a season since Williams and it was the highest figure in a season since Pistol Pete Maravich scored 1,381 in 1969-70, his senior season at Louisiana State.

Hawkins received 223 of 445 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters which voted before the NCAA Tournament began.

Two-time All-American Danny Manning of Kansas was second with 89 votes. He was followed by junior Danny Ferry of Duke and freshman Mark Macon of Temple, each of whom received 28, Gary Grant of Michigan, who received 25 votes, and Arizona's Sean Elliott, with 22, the only other player to receive more than 20 votes.

Hawkins was to be presented today with the Adolph F. Rupp Trophy which is presented to the player of the year by the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky.

Hawkins averaged more than 39 minutes per game this season for Coach Stan Albeck as the 11th-ranked Braves finished 26-5 after a first-round loss to Auburn in the NCAA Tourna-

Lady Vols go after second NCAA Tournament crown

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Top-ranked Tennessee, the defending champion, will meet No. 5 Louisiana Tech and third-ranked Auburn will play No. 7 Long Beach State tonight in the semifinals of the NCAA Women's Final Four.

Final Four

Auburn's Lady Tigers, Tennessee's Southeast Conference rivals who split two games with the Lady Vols this season, are 31-2 and Long Beach State is 28-5, with 20 victories in a row. They are scheduled to the second game.

The 35-year-old Summitt, coach of the gold medal U.S. basketball team in the 1984 Olympics, says this year's Final Four is the strongest of the nine she's been involved in during her 14 seasons at Tennessee.

"I think the challenge of being in a Final Four gets tougher and tougher," she said.

Tennessee reached the Final Four for the third consecutive season by beating Virginia 84-76 in the East Regional championship game last weekend.

"I think without a doubt we felt more pressure in the regionals," Summitt said. "We were not as relaxed as we were during the regular season. But the pressure is off now that we've gotten to the Final Four."

Louisiana Tech Coach Leon Barmore remembers last year's 23-point loss to Tennessee in last year's Final Four.

"I don't enjoy seeing Pat Summitt in this situation," he said. "Pat is the kind that will give you a smile and then she'll kick your tail."

Summitt has a 350-104 record at Tennessee, but is only 3-11 against Barmore.

"I told my players last year and I'll probably tell them again this year, they're going to have to outplay the Lady Techsters because I'm not going to outcoach Leon Barmore," she said.

Long Beach State was in last year's Final Four, too. Auburn is making its first trip to the Final Four, and Lady Tigers Coach Joe Ciampi is worried although his team turned in a near-perfect performance in beating Maryland 103-74 in the Midwest Regional title game.

"You have to be concerned with their (Long Beach State's) quickness," Ciampi said. "They're very explosive."

Although Long Beach State eliminated Washington 104-78 in the West Regionals in Long Beach last week, 49ers Coach Jon Bonvicini hopes the Tacoma Dome crowd will adopt the 49ers as the "home" team.

"We'd love to have the Seattle people behind us," she said. "I'm sorry we beat the Huskies so badly."

The Final Four features some of the best women's college basketball talent in the nation, including:

- Tennessee's Bridgette Gordon, a 6-foot junior forward and a three-time All-Southeastern Conference pick. She is the first Lady Vol in nine years to average more than 20 points (21.0) and also averages 6.9 rebounds, 2.4 steals and shoots 54.2 percent.
- Louisiana Tech's Teresa Weatherspoon, a 5-8 senior guard who is averaging 9.2 points, 4.4 rebounds and six assists. "I've never seen a point guard have total command of the situation like she does," said Washington Coach Chris Gobrecht, who picks the Lady Techsters to win it all in Tacoma.
- Louisiana Tech's 6-4 sophomore center Venus Lacy, who is averaging 15 points, 9.2 rebounds and 1.7 blocks.
- Louisiana Tech's Nora Lewis, a 6-0 junior forward who was the national high school player of the year in 1985. She averages 13.9 points, a team-high 6.9 rebounds and 2.1 steals.
- Long Beach State's Penny Toler, a 5-8 junior guard who is regarded as the best one-on-one player in the tournament. She averages 22.6 points, 4.8 assists and 2.2 steals.
- Auburn's Vickie Orr, a 6-2 junior center who was the SEC player of the year this season. She averages 16.6 points, 6.9 rebounds and 1.3 blocks, while shooting 54.5 percent.

Astros cut roster to 24

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — A few days ago, Houston Astros third baseman Ken Caminiti improved his spring training batting average with two home runs from both sides of the plate, but that wasn't enough for him to make the team.

Caminiti and pitcher Rocky

Childress were sent to the Astros' AAA club in Tucson as Houston reduced its roster to its opening day 24-man team.

The Astros also announced Thursday that they released veteran pitcher Joe Sambito and infielder Dale Berra.

Caminiti, 24, who was recalled from the Astros' AA club in Columbus, Ga., last July, ended the season as the team's regular third baseman. But this spring the switch-hitter failed to impress Manager Hal Lanier with his eight errors and weak hitting from the left side.

Four of 12 ropers missed their calves. Shawn McMullan took the lead with an 11.2, followed by Shane Goemmer with 11.9 and Richard Batla at 13.1.

The goat tying event went to Texas Tech's Annette Overby, who tied her goat in 11.0 seconds. Jamie Watkins from Odessa took .8 seconds longer to wrap up the second-place goat and Sandy Scott, from WTC, finished third in 12.8. Howard's Teresa Tinnell was fourth with a 13.5 tie and Robbin Richards finished in 14.0.

Denny McLanahan took the lead in bareback riding with a 70 on a horse called Watson Tango; another WTC cowboy joined McLanahan atop the rankings when Adam Brewster scored 69 on Texas Tom. Sul Ross rider Russel Alford finished fourth with a 66 on Good news, behind Mike Carrillo's 67 on Contagious.

Three bronc riders — Howard's Matt Pugh and Casey Strange both hit the dirt and Texas Tech's Chip Maley no-showed — finished with no score.

almost incredulously. "We've played man-to-man all year."

Indeed, Krzyzewski uses man-to-man defense all the time, like Knight. Duke's top defender, Billy King, probably will draw the assignment on Manning. In Duke's East Regional championship victory over top-ranked Temple, King held Mark Macon, the nation's No. 1 freshman scorer, to 6-for-29 shooting, although Macon helped by throwing up eight shots that didn't even touch the rim.

"The key to every game we've played this year was defense," Ferry said. "If we shoot well, we can win. When we can put our offense together with our defense, then we're a very tough team to beat."

Like Arizona, Duke spreads its offense around. Ferry averaged 19.1 points, Kevin Strickland 16.3 and Robert Brickey 10.6. Junior point guard Quinn Snyder, who once complained to Coach K that his teammates weren't listening to him on the floor, is emerging as a leader, if not a scorer.

The Duke-Kansas game is a rematch of the 1986 national semifinal, which Duke won 71-67. Duke also won 74-70 in overtime at Kansas this season, getting 21 points from Snyder.

Kansas is the most highly regarded team in the Final Four with one of the most highly regarded players in the nation, the two-time All-American Manning. The 6-foot-8 senior forward averaged 24.6 points this season for the Jayhawks. The next best average belonged to the team's defensive specialist, Milt Newton, at 11.2.

Yet, when it came time to beat Kansas State for the Midwest Regional title, it was left to support players, like Scooter Barry, to help out. Although Manning scored 20 points, he did not dominate as he has done so often for the Jayhawks. That's when Barry, son of NBA Hall of Famer Rick Barry, came to Kansas' aid with 15 points after averaging just 2.2 for his career.

"We've shown so much character the entire tournament," Barry said. "We deserve this."

Some say: Give much of the credit to Kansas Coach Larry Brown, who has been at the school five seasons and has taken the Jayhawks to the Final Four two of the past three years. Many others only question: Where will Brown be after this season?

Before coming to Kansas in 1983, Brown was coach for Carolina and Denver of the old American Basketball Association and later the NBA for seven seasons, UCLA for two seasons, and New Jersey of the NBA for two more seasons. Now, he is rumored to be on his way to either the new NBA franchise at Charlotte, N.C., or back to UCLA.

"Sometimes, it's comical!" Brown said. "I can't ever say I'm going to be somewhere. But I intend to be here. After Danny graduates and I'm still here, that will put all that to rest."

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Take a less direct approach and both cash and credit will come more easily. Your experience counts far more than you know in advancing your career. Peace of mind will be yours in the year ahead. Cut your ties with people who are always negative. You need positive feedback in order to do your best work. Excellence is the key to success. Although foreign travel is a possibility, it may not be glamorous. Do whatever needs to be done.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pitcher Don Sutton, actor Alec Guinness, singers Marvin Gaye and Emmylou Harris, storyteller Hans Christian Andersen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If your energy is low, use the weekend to relax and recover. Skip strenuous exercise until you feel rejuvenated. A good book is a pleasant diversion. Being realistic about a relationship can be hard. Try!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You sense something important is happening in a relationship. A social event stimulates you to talk up a storm. You have a new audience and can tell all of your wonderful stories.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Feelings run high today. Slip off for some private time. A walk in the park or country could be just the ticket. Someone you are about to meet will bring you good luck.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone has a crush on you, but lacks the confidence to admit it. Cooking helps you relieve the tension of your work and can lead to inexpensive at-home entertainment. Choose your most fun-loving friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Boredom is the enemy today. Look around for interesting things family members of all ages can do together. You need to spend less time analyzing a romance and more time nurturing it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Listen carefully to professionals, but shy away from your friends' advice. Save your money; think twice before investing. Better days lie just ahead. Wait for what you want. Refuse to settle for less.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Travel is apt to be stressful now. Postpone signing legal documents. This is an excellent time to start a diet. Self-improvement activities enjoy favorable influences. Secret agreements benefit your bank balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People or events at a distance could upset your plans. Close friends want to help, but may not know how. Trust your intuition. A business can be helped by new social activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Welcome opportunities to meet new people. Romance is very much in your thoughts. A loan from a close friend will do the trick. A health problem begins to show improvement. A platonic relationship may be gradually changing. Talk things over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A cleanup program will beautify your home. Get rid of clutter. Family members are willing to pitch in and help. Think about purchasing appliances that will reduce the time spent on household chores.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Decide how to handle a problem only after consulting mate or partner. A romantic relationship enjoys favorable influences for the next few days. A small gift will be a source of delight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Making small changes in your lifestyle will greatly increase your happiness. Get rid of items you no longer use. A financial situation may be less than ideal, but it is nowhere near critical.
