Regan: Decisions were star based

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Former White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan says President Reagan "laid down no rules and articulated no missions" while his wife, Nancy, presided over a "shadowy distaff presidency" influenced by astrological advice.

Regan's book, "For the Record: from Wall Street to Washington," scheduled to be in bookstores today, details his allegations that Mrs. Reagan consulted an astrologer about scheduling of presidential events.

The book pictures Reagan as a reluctant decision-maker, saying, "Never did he issue a direct order, although I, at least, sometimes devoutly wished that he would."

"He listened, acquiesced, played his role, and waited for the next act to be written," Regan wrote of the president who dumped him in favor of former Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. at the height of the furor over the Iran-Contra affair. Mrs. Reagan was widely reported at the time to have played a major role in influencing the president to replace Regan. The White House issued a statement Sunday saying: "Vindictiveness and revenge are not admirable qualities, and are not worthy of comment. Donald Regan's attempts to defame the first lady, on Mother's Day no less, are certainly in that category."

In an interview Sunday, Regan said, "I don't think this is an attack on his wife. . . . There are no adjectives, no deprecation of the first lady. I merely told the story of what she did or didn't do during my period as chief of staff."

The former chief of staff said he regarded Mrs. Reagan's interest in astrology as a harmless eccentricity at first and "it wasn't until it began to impinge and in my judgment harm the presidency in the latter part of 1986 and early 1987 that I began to protest."

Asked why he did not wait until the president was out of office to make the disclosures in the book, he replied, "I didn't set the time of my leaving this administration and I don't know why I should hold up the book for this administration. This administration certainly didn't hold up my job." When asked about Reagan's conduct at the time of Regan's enforced departure from the White House, Regan said, "I was disappointed. I thought that he was a generous, considerate person with loyalty down as well as expecting loyalty up. I still am puzzled by it. It's not characteristic, and that's the disappointment."

Regan said he was donating all of his proceeds from the book, published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, to charity.

Mothers They had their day; job goes on DALLAS (AP) — According to the calendar, motherhood is a one-day a year celebration, but a couple of Texas mothers say it's a role that lasts a lifetime.

Celia Murphy's 31-year job as chief cook and bottle washer for her family will end later this month when the last of her eight sons is handed his high school diploma.

But in Stephenville, Debbie Thompson's job of raising quadruplets is just beginning. The 4 1/4-month-old quads are quickly becoming a full-time career.

Watching her last son leave home gives Mrs. Murphy the opportunity to reflect on a lifetime of work and swell with pride at the job she has done.

"We always told them, 'Whatever you decide to do with your life, do the very best with it,' and I think they all have done very well," she said.

Her youngest, 18-year-old Terry Murphy, is equally proud. "She must have a hotline to God," he said. "At one point, she had six kids under the age of 8, all at once — and she's still sane."

The family remodeled their home three times to make room for the boys, who now range in age from 18 to 31. They shared huge Sunday dinners that became sandwiches all week, a paper route for their first spending money and a 1969 beige van

New council to debate INS prison

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The three newly-elected council members face a busy agenda Tuesday — including the second and final reading of an ordinance authorizing a special use permit for the proposed INS prison during the regular meeting of the City Council.

The meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall.

Sidney Clark, Chuck Condray and Gail Earls — who won council seats in Saturday's at-large election — are to be sworn in at the start of the meeting, according to the council agenda.

Among the several items of business they and their fellow council members will address will be the final reading of an ordinance authorizing the issuance of a special use permit for the proposed Immigration and Naturalization Service prison.

Ed Davenport, of Mid-Tex Detention Centers, Brady, has proposed converting the vacant Homestead Inn to a 240-bed detention center for immigration violators.

The permit issuance was recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission and was tentatively approved by council at its last meeting April 28.

Even if council approves the ordinance, a contract with the Federal Bureau of Prisons will have to be finalized before the prison can be constructed. If the ordinance is approved, council will then consider authorizing Mayor Cotton Mize to execute a letter of intent with Mid-Tex Detention Center.

The letter of intent states that upon completion of the facility's construction, the city will take title to the land and lease it back to Mid-Tex for $1 a year for 99 years.

Furthermore, the letter of intent states that if a contract between the city and the Federal Bureau of Prisons cannot be reached, the letter will be voided.

In other business, council will consider:

- Approving three requests for alcoholic beverage use at Comanche Trail Park.

- Approval of a request to keep livestock at the residence of Iris Doss, 2112 W. Third St.

- Awarding a contract on depository of city funds. Three local banks — First National, State National and Security State — have bid for the contract.

Drought Texas, Howard County are dry

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

RIO GRANDE CITY — It's getting so dry around here that ranchers say even the cactus looks thirsty.

Not much grass is growing this spring because of a drought since last fall in large sections of south and far west Texas. Apart from the cactus and deep-rooted native trees and brush, the Lower Rio Grande Valley's pastures appear coated with brown paint.

"It's dry, just like the floor," said Roberto Corona, whose family ranches near Rio Grande City in Starr County.

Corona's truck was loaded down with costly hay, like many seen on U.S. 83 in Rio Grande City.

Nineteen Texas counties have asked to be recognized as full-fledged disaster areas because of the dry spell. Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday certified that Starr County on the Mexican border in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and McMullen County northeast of Laredo need federal disaster assistance. A third county, Live Oak, was certified in March.

Howard County Extension Agent Don Richardson said this morning the possibility of seeking such recognition for Howard County has been discussed, although no action has been taken.

A spokesperson for the Agricultural Research Service in Howard County said this morning that 1.34 inches of rain have been received here through today — compared to an average rainfall of 4.05 inches through the first week of May.

When a drought sets in, the ranchers start burning thorns from the prickly pear cactus to make it easier for their cattle to eat.

"We've been doing that since September," said Alfonso Perez, a rancher near Roma in Starr County. "The cactus is starting to look dry, too."

The county normally averages 20 inches of rain annually, but has recorded just above five inches since September.

"It's just getting progressively worse," said Perez, county director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the U.S.

Threatening water supply

By ROGER PETERSON
Associated Press Writer

Drought has threatened water supplies in the West and Southeast, forced some Texas and California ranchers to sell starving cattle and allowed topsoil and crop seeds to blow away in the northern Plains.

In San Francisco, residents were ordered to reduce water consumption by 25 percent. Atlanta residents were asked to cut usage by 10 percent. Los Angeles also has imposed water conservation rules. In northern Montana's Liberty County, 70 people attended a 24-hour vigil last week to pray for rain.

"It's almost like you saw in the typical 1930s scenes where clouds of dust are moving across the fields," says Fred Kollman, district conservationist in Norman County, Minn.

"You see drifts of dirt almost like snowdrifts in the road ditches. There is lots of dirt in the air and lots of dirt in the houses."

In the West, two straight winters of poor rainfall and scanty snowfall in California's Sierra Nevada led to drought in the Southeast, parts of the Tennessee Valley have been receiving below-normal rain since 1984. In Texas, the drought began last fall. Parts of the northern Plains enjoyed above-normal rain last summer, but less than expected snow last winter.

"I'm not sure how much longer (the area) can take it. It's scary," said extension agent Judee Wargo in Montana's Liberty County, where rainfall since October has measured 0.73 inch, compared with an average 3.17 inches for the period.

Despite above-normal rain in Nevada in April, "the drought is still on with a passion," said state climatologist John James.

Northern California is having its worst water shortage in 11 years, officials said.

Winter precipitation was normal or above normal until the end of January.

Saturday voters OK horse racing, pari-mutuel betting

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weekend voting made winners out of horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in Dallas and Lubbock counties while the small city of Crystal Beach elected three councilmen who promised to wipe the town off the map.

In unofficial returns from all precincts, Dallas County voters approved pari-mutuel betting 42,198 to 32,830, or 56 percent to 44 percent.

Lubbock County voters approved pari-mutuel 18,939, or 52 percent, to 17,541, or 48 percent in complete returns Saturday.

In Melvin, a West Texas town of 202 people, Florence and Nestor Perez, both Republicans, faced each other on the ballot but were defeated by write-in candidate J.T. Sparks, the incumbent Democratic mayor.

Sparks, a rancher who changed his mind about running after the filing deadline, got 28 votes, while Florence Perez received 27 and Nestor Perez, 7.

In Crystal Beach, a sleepy Gulf Coast town of about 1,000 people, J.M. Tatum, Kyle Bryan and Leon Gaspard were elected aldermen. The city voted to disincorporate in April 1987, but the vote was overturned in state district court because election laws were violated.

Disincorporation forces have appealed the decision, and a final ruling is pending before a State Appeals Court in Houston.

Tatum says the new aldermen hope they don't have to serve too long before the city goes back under the jurisdiction of Galveston County.

But Crystal Beach Mayor Bill Kelsey, a strong opponent of disincorporation, says he wants the new council members work to work at making the city better.

The Lubbock racing vote was a reversal of last November's election, when pari-mutuel won statewide despite a negative vote in the West Texas county.

A leader of the anti-gambling forces said more money and stronger campaigning probably wouldn't have turned the tide. "If we had been more visible it would just have increased the turnout," said Sue Cox, executive director of Texans Who Care, adding that greater numbers would probably work in favor of pro-gambling efforts.

Also in Dallas, voters approved by a more than 2-to-1 margin a proposal to build a 12-story jail tower that would add 2,304 bunks to the county's capacity to house inmates.

In other elections around the state this weekend:

In a Houston special election,

Republican Dalton Smith outpaced three opponents to fill the unexpired term of Mike Toomey in House District 135. Smith faces Democrat Mary Burk in November. The winner of that race takes office for a two-year term in January.

Mayor B.C. "Peck" McKinn outran five opponents to win a second term as mayor of Lubbock.

Austin Mayor Frank Cooksey came in second to former City Councilman Lee Cooke in the city's mayoral race, but six other candidates split enough votes to force a runoff between the top two vote-getters.

that all the brothers used to learn to drive.

"We had a great stress on the family itself, and on faith," said Mrs. Murphy.

"When she got frustrated, she'd go pull weeds," the youngest Murphy said of his mother. "She'd never take it out on us."

And Mrs. Murphy admits to doing some heavy weeding during the past 31 years. "Grass will grow when you get all the obstacles out of the way," she said. "And boys will grow and mature and develop when you take obstacles out of their way."

Mrs. Thompson is just learning about the stress of child-rearing.

Her young quadruplets go through as many as 24 bottles of formula and 45 diapers a day. The powdering, cuddling, feeding and fussing is nearly non-stop. There are babies to be burped, noses to be drained, nails to be trimmed, rashes and infections to be medicated. And nearly everything is charted — especially diapering.

It takes three adults to get the Thompson quads through a typical day.

"There's something all the time," Mrs. Thompson said.

For the record

The Grady school district will conduct its regular monthly board meeting beginning at 8 p.m. today. The preview article on that meeting, which appeared in Friday's Herald, was in error.

No hearing has been requested or scheduled, Supt. Gary Harrell said today. He explained that each agenda includes the opportunity for the public to be heard.

Department of Agriculture. Some other counties have it even worse. Farmers' crops are wilting along with the cattle over a wide area.

Bill Braden, communications specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station, said the drought that started last fall has stunted the growth of corn and sorghum and has cut wheat yields in half in the Corpus Christi region.

Areas from San Angelo west through the Trans-Pecos all the way to El Paso are suffering, Braden said.

"What we need is a good soaking rain all over the state," he said, noting that April and May, traditionally among the wettest months of the year, have brought mostly a series of dry cool fronts.

Texas cities so far remain largely unaffected by the drought because they draw on reservoirs, while farmers rely heavily on rainfall, with irrigation an expensive fallback, he said.

"There's nothing hardly in these pastures," said Billy Paul, county extension agent in Jim Wells County west of Corpus Christi. "Most of the hay boys are pretty well sold out of the hay they had."

Nation's dry

"But February and March of this year were dismal, drought-producing months," said Gary Barabato, a hydrologist with the National Weather Service at San Francisco.

Statewide, snow-melt runoff in rivers through mid-summer is expected to be an third of normal, said Don Heath, chief of the state's newly activated drought center in Sacramento.

As in Texas, some ranchers in California's central valley are selling cattle and appealing for federal grain subsidies.

Portions of southern Oregon have been classified as in a severe drought and sections of eastern Oregon are in an extreme drought, said Stan Fox, snow survey superintendent for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Rainfall in April was near or above normal for the whole state, but Oregon depends on winter precipitation for most of its water. Snowpacks around the state range from 81 percent of normal on Mount Hood to 3 percent of normal in Klamath County.

The Columbia River is at its lowest level since the 1936-1937 dust bowl years.

Montana's mountain snowpack this winter was only 75 percent of normal, meaning less to feed streams during the spring and early summer. Irrigation reservoirs in the state's eastern and central part range from 98 percent full to 10 percent.

"If we get into a normal July and August — normally very dry months — we're going to have some real trouble," said Phil Farnes, head of the Soil Conservation Service snow survey team.

The weather service says a mild drought is in effect across northern Minnesota, North Dakota and eastern Montana.

South Dakota Gov. George Mickelson on Friday declared 12 counties state disaster areas.

Motorcyclist injured in accident

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An automobile/motorcycle collision Sunday afternoon resulted in a Big Spring youth being sent to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

Travis Sean McDowell, 15, Rt. 1, Box 776, was injured when the motorcycle he was driving struck a 1986 Ford Escort driven by Scott Anthony Oliver, 2602 Dow St., according to a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman.

The accident occurred at 4:50 p.m. Sunday on Hilltop Road, she noted.

She said Oliver was westbound on Hilltop Road and McDowell and a passenger on his motorcycle, James Newton, 15, 108 Circle Dr., were stopped on the south side of the road.

McDowell then attempted to cross the road, failed to see Oliver approaching, and struck the Escort on its driver-side door, the spokeswoman said.

The motorcycle driver was taken by Rural/Metro ambulance to SMMC, where he was treated and released, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Newton refused treatment at the scene, the DPS spokeswoman said. Oliver received two citations in the incident, she added, declining to reveal the offenses.

Regan

In his book, the former chief of staff wrote "that my admiration for Regan as president remains very great" although "my judgment of him as a man, in light of my final experience as his chief of staff, underwent a certain change."

Over and over, however, he described the president as a leader who holds the reins lightly.

"Theodore Roosevelt believed that the president could conduct his office in any way that was not specifically prohibited by the Constitution," he wrote. "Regan, who laid down no rules and articulated no missions, conferred a Rooseveltian latitude on his subordinates."

Regan, who was secretary of the treasury before moving to the White House, said that in his four years at the Treasury Department, "I never saw President Reagan alone and never discussed economic philosophy or fiscal and monetary policy with him man to man.

"From first day to last at Treasury, I was flying by the seat of my pants. The president never told me what he believed or what he wanted to accomplish in the field of economics. I had to figure these things out like any other American, by studying his speeches and reading the newspapers."

He said of Mike Deaver, who served as deputy chief of staff before Regan came to the White House, that "his function in the White House had as much to do with the mysterious process of managing this shadowy distaff presidency as with his visible role as the custodian of the presidential image."

The Tupinamba Indians of Brazil thought it fitting — whenever one of their own returned to their community — to greet said homecomer with tears, moans, laments of sorrow. The Tupinamba are now extinct. Nobody blames that custom. Still, their settlement just kept getting smaller until it disappeared. People stopped coming home, I guess.

Tornado systems form over Midwest

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes swirled over the Midwest today as a severe storm system bore down on much of the nation, bringing showers, high winds and hail the size of baseballs.

As of midnight, more than 60 tornadoes and potential tornadoes were reported, including 23 in Illinois, 22 in Iowa and 20 in Wisconsin.

There were nearly 100 reports of thunderstorm wind gusts of more than 50 mph, of damage from thunderstorm winds and of hail ranging in size from three-quarters of an inch to the size of baseballs. The storms stretched from eastern Kansas, to northeast Texas, Arkansas, southern Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and western Kentucky.

There were no reports of injuries. Early morning thunderstorms and showers reached across Iowa, northeast Nebraska, the eastern Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, lower Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, western Kentucky, Tennessee, northern Mississippi and Arkansas.

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted over portions of northern Mississippi, southern Arkansas and much of southwest Tennessee.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from the Great Lakes to the central Gulf Coast states, across the southern and central Appalachians; showers scattered over the upper Mississippi Valley, also extending over Oregon, northern California and northwest Nevada.

Temperatures were expected to be in the 60s or 70s. Highs were forecast to be in the 50s over northeast Minnesota and the central Rockies; in the 80s and low 90s over the desert Southwest, the Southern Plains, the lower Mississippi Valley, southern Alabama and the southern Atlantic coast states; near 80 across the Ohio Valley, and the middle Atlantic states as far north as New York.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 31 degrees at Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., to 82 at Laredo, Texas.

Officers learning to identify signs of occult activity

DENTON (AP) — Dozens of police officers attended a workshop on satanic cults and ritualistic crime to learn to identify criminal activity related to the occult.

At Twin Lakes Hospital in Denton Saturday, officers were instructed on items associated with satanic worship that might be spotted during crime-scene investigations.

Officer Jerry Simandl of the Chicago Police Department, who has studied the occult and ritualistic crimes for seven years said devil worshiping is protected by the Constitution.

"We're not here to address anyone's religious beliefs. We do want to help police, teachers and parents recognize the signs of criminal activity that can be associated with satanic rituals," he said.

There are four levels of ritualistic criminal activity. The fourth, the most widely recognized, is often associated with teen-agers just beginning to experiment with the occult, he said.

Signs of criminal activity included six animals found in the Seagoville area in the past year drained of blood, a common satanic practice, said Detective Robert Green of the Seagoville Police Department.

Simandl told parents how to spot signs of their children's involvement in the occult, saying fascination with some heavy-metal groups which have satanic themes is one such sign.

"I don't want people to overreact. Ninety-seven percent of the kids who listen to heavy-metal music are not into Satanism. But the message is there," he said. "In the '60s some groups used back masking (playing music backward) to get secret messages across. Now you can get the message just by playing it forward."

Brother disputes officials' account of imprisoned boy

HOUSTON (AP) — A 7-year-old boy believed to have been locked in a bathroom for up to four years continued his hospital recovery, while attorneys for his parents disputed reports the boy was unloved and mistreated.

The child, Vannoy Jimenez, was in good condition Sunday at Ben Taub Hospital, where he was being treated for malnutrition and bruises, officials said.

Police were alerted to the plight of Vannoy Jimenez last week after he climbed out of a bathroom window at his family's apartment and wandered to a gas station. Witnesses and officials say the child was so malnourished that he appeared to be 3 years old.

The parents, Alexander Lizcano Jimenez, 38, and Charlotte Anne Bishop, 42, have been arrested and charged with injury to a child by omission. They were being held in lieu of $10,000 bond each.

Randy Holzapple, an attorney appointed to represent the elder Jimenez, rejected reports the father was unmoved by his son's plight.

"He loves Vannoy," Holzapple said. "That's one thing he kept saying over and over."

Pamela Shaffer, attorney for Ms. Bishop, said that based upon the child's small size, he may suffer from cerebral palsy.

"It's entirely possible that when the medical reports are out that a different picture will emerge than now," Ms. Shaffer said. "It may not be as it seems."

Ms. Shaffer said she planned to review results of psychological evaluations of Ms. Bishop.

"At this point, she's quite distraught... very upset about having her children taken away from her," Ms. Shaffer said.

Meanwhile, child welfare officials say they're being flooded with calls from the public regarding the case.

"This is very unusual," said Harris County Children's Protective Services Director Gene Daniel. "People have been calling us and the hospital offering clothes, food and money for the child."

Daniel said one family in Ohio volunteered to be Vannoy's foster family.

Craig Sigurdson, 20, Vannoy's half brother and Ms. Bishop's son from a previous marriage, said authorities may have misinterpreted the effects of medical problems as signs of abuse.

"Right when he came out from birth they said he was semi-retarded," said Sigurdson.

Judy Hay, a spokeswoman with the Harris County Children's Protective Services, said Vannoy showed signs of severe malnutrition and a beating.

The other children, Vannoy's twin sister, Veronica, and Alex, 9, and Alexandria, 10, have been placed in foster homes, Hay said.

Drusilla Seafood Restaurant, one of two places where the boy's father worked, will accept gifts for the boy beginning Monday, said Emily Buchanan, a restaurant cashier.

"We had no idea he (the father) could do something like this," said Buchanan. "He brought pictures of his other three children up here all the time and showed them to everyone. He was so proud of them. But nobody here guessed that he had another child."

Teens arrested in killing

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Mexican authorities have jailed two Texas teen-agers in connection with the killing of one policeman and wounding of another, but friends of the youths say they're sure it's a case of mistaken identity.

"I keep waiting for someone to wake me up," said Celso Rubio, a schoolmate of one of the defendants who have been jailed since early Saturday.

Rubio and other acquaintances said Sunday that the charges against Rawn Yates, 17, of El Paso and Kelly Martin, 18, of Dell City, probably are a case of mistaken identity. Chihuahua Judicial Police refused to discuss specifics of the shooting Sunday.

Agent Moises de Sena would say only that Yates and Martin would be bound over for prosecution today.

The newspaper Diario de Juarez reported Sunday the shooting took place while police were trying to arrest Martin and Yates.

The newspaper reported a pistol was wrestled away from Juarez Municipal Police Agent Pedro German Vera Gallegos and then used on Vera and fellow agent Jose Zuniga Acevedo, 35.

Opinion

The rights of the taxpayers

Most fair-minded Americans have no objections to paying their rightful share of taxes. But the very least they are entitled to in return is helpful, courteous treatment from officials of the Internal Revenue Service.

All too often, that is not the case. By no means can all IRS officials be accused of officious or offhand treatment of the taxpayers, but the many documented cases of abusive and arrogant behavior suffice for serious concern.

It seems odd that the American people should have to be protected from their own bullying civil servants, but that is what is being offered in The Omnibus Taxpayers' Bill of Rights Act, which was approved by the Senate Finance Committee on March 18.

This bill, introduced by Democratic Sen. David Pryor of Arkansas, gives taxpayers certain specific rights regarding their dealings with the IRS:

- It would give the IRS ombudsman power to halt illegal or unwarranted seizures of property or money. It would also allow taxpayers to recover damages when the IRS carelessly, recklessly or intentionally disregards any law or regulation.

- Other provisions would require the IRS to wait 30 days, instead of 10, to receive a tax payment before seizure actions and prohibit IRS supervisors from promoting or rewarding IRS personnel on the basis of sums collected from taxpayers.

- And last but not least, the bill requires that penalties be waived in cases where a taxpayer relies on incorrect written advice from the IRS.

The National Taxpayers Union, which endorses the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights, admits that taxes are collected "in a civilized manner" most of the time, but asserts nevertheless that the IRS has a long history of negligent disregard for taxpayers' rights.

The Taxpayers' Bill of Rights Act is designed to curb the excess zeal of a minority of IRS officials and to insert some checks and balances into the business of tax collection.

Such safeguards are long overdue and deserve the full support of the House. In passing this bill, Congress would instruct the IRS that it is the servant and not the master of the taxpayer. It would remove some of the bitterness from the tax pill.

Reader complains about TV guide

To the editor:
Why does the Big Spring Herald bother to try and publish the Tele View magazine? It hasn't been correct since the name changed: wrong times, wrong programs and when we finally get a chance to view something worth watching, such as a special program, they are not even listed.
Sincerely,

W.L. COULL

Editor's note: The material included in the Tele View is produced outside of the Herald. The company from which the listing service is contracted is aware of the deficiency and we expect improvements. However, we encourage cards and letters expressing your concern about this problem — they will be passed on to the company producing the material.

New laws concern senior citizen

To the editor:
We senior citizens are so confused as we find the insurance and banking industry lobbyists now own our legislators soul and body, and put into law anything these two monopolies want, whether it is good or bad for we old folk.

The banks now want to have full control of all locked box holders in their banks, plus they want to be in full control of the contents of those through their power of attorney forms, which they ask all box holders to sign. Yes, our 1987 legislators passed this for them. We wonder what the remuneration was?

This same intelligent bunch of dumb-dumbs approved insurance laws to let them rip off we senior citizens on home insurance rates by setting valuation rates on an old home 30 or more years old — which cost new $10,000 to build and is almost at the end of the line — at $25,000, which means $300-400 annual insurance rates. We also know their insurance companies would not pay $25,000 claims on this old of a house if it were lost.

Since our elected officials can see nothing but ripping off the taxpayers it looks like our only hope is the vigilante's fast return.

Mobile meals needs area support

To the editor:
We at the office of the council on aging receive many inquiries about the qualifications to receive mobile meals.

To receive a mobile meal one must be 60 years of age, or older, with a physical disability. Illness and isolation and inability to prepare their own noon meal also qualify.

The meals are funded by private donations. We receive no help from any government agency, except some financial assistance from Howard County. We are not bound by any government regulations.

Our special thanks go to the wonderful volunteers who deliver the meals. We appreciate our main benefactor the Garrett Foundation. We also thank the American Legion Post 506, the Rotary Club, and memorial donations for their generous donations.

Without these caring and generous people who freely give their time and money, this program would be impossible. We can always use more volunteers to help deliver these meals. Thank you.

"Are you sure you want to fly this airline, Mr. Bush? We have a terrible record when it comes to losing baggage."

Bush nostalgic for good ol' days of '80

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A movie called "Rappin'" is playing on Home Box Office this month — five times this month, to be exact — in which the credits are accompanied by a song whose repetitive refrain is simply, "Can't stop, won't stop. Can't stop, won't stop."

It might be the anthem for the current George Bush campaign. He can't stop, won't stop, running against Jimmy Carter.

The vice president is trying to take advantage of the fact that Dukakis, the probable Democratic nominee, often comes across as a cool, detached technocratic official in the Carter mold.

But Bush's tactic may backfire if voters decide the similarity ends there.

"Malaise" isn't prominent in the Dukakis dictionary. He likes to talk about hard work and miracles. He says, incessantly, that he wants to be a builder, not a great communicator. He could give lessons in upbeat.

Nevertheless, Bush is hoping that when voters look at Dukakis they will see Carter interest rates, Carter oil prices, Carter wringing his hands at Camp David, Carter confronting a rabbit with his canoe paddle, Carter agonizing while the American flag was being burned and the embassy looted in Tehran.

Actually, Bush is more than hoping that will happen; the Republican standard-bearer is trying to make it happen.

Reagan-Bush ousted Carter-Mondale in 1980 and crushed Mondale-Ferraro. The temptation to relive these races must be more than Bush and his staff can bear. Once Dukakis emerged as Bush's likely opponent, Bush's campaign manager quickly labeled the Massachusetts governor a "Northern-fried Carter" and the concept became a staple on the campaign trail.

Bush loves to ridicule "gloom and doom" Democrats. In Canton, Ohio, last week he spoke gleefully about "the gloom and misery" emanating from the Democrats' camp. On Tuesday, he said, "Let Mike Dukakis go around here talking about pink slips, despair, pessimism in the United States. I'll be the guy out there talking about hope and opportunity."

Whatever he is, however, Dukakis is no gloom and doom Democrat.

Speechwriter Bill Woodward recently told David Broder about the guidance he got when he signed on with Dukakis in 1987:

"The first thing he said was: Don't be negative about the hopes for the country and don't be overly negative about the Reagan administration." Woodward told the Washington Post writer that Dukakis described "a problem he saw in the 1980 and 1984 campaigns, the over-

Special delivery, posthaste

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Now that the post office is charging us more to mail a letter, I think the least the post office could do is offer us a few more services.

I'm quite concerned, for instance, about the fact you can't go to the post office to mail a letter or to buy stamps without having to stand in a long line.

The only lines that are longer than the ones at the post office are those outside the ladies room at a Willie Nelson concert and those in express lanes in grocery stores where urban terrorists attempt to break through with more than 12 items.

Perhaps the post office could use the extra income from the increase in stamp prices to hire more people so the lines wouldn't be as long.

Either that, or they could give bonuses to postal workers who occasionally look up and notice the long lines and actually speed up to keep customers moving.

If the workers at my post office had been Pony Express riders, the Indians could have caught them on foot.

I'd also like the post office to throw out any junk mail addressed to me before it's delivered to my

What then follows is a detailed discussion of how her various bodily parts are in horrid states of disrepair and how, if I don't eat a lot of prunes, say out of the night air, and take oatmeal baths, the same sort of things could happen to me.

These letters leave me terribly depressed. The post office could simply call me on the phone and say, "Your Aunt Gloria wrote you again," and that would alert me she is thinking of me, but I wouldn't have to read any anatomical catastrophes.

The post office also could do a better job with my bills. Have you ever noticed how all your bills come on the same day? The post office could send your bills one at a time, enabling you to avoid financial panic.

The post office could call and ask, "When would you like your credit card bill?"

"How much is it?"

"A lot."

"Don't send it until next week. I should be over the electric bill you sent me yesterday by then."

Let's see Federal Express top that.

Simmons trial begins

OZARK, Ark. (AP) — Lawyers for a man accused of killing 16 people, including 14 members of his family, have decided against a defense based on the insanity plea. Prosecutors, however, pledge to seek the death penalty.

R. Gene Simmons, 47, a retired Air Force master sergeant, was to go on trial today for murder, charged with killing two people during a 45-minute shooting spree Dec. 28 in Russellville.

"We plead not guilty and we're just going to make them prove their case," defense attorney John Harris said Sunday. "We're just going to see that they don't get out of line, that they give him a fair trial."

Harris said he expected jury selection to last two days, and that testimony would take three days.

It was only after Simmons surrendered in connection with the two killings that police found the bodies of his wife and 13 children, grandchildren and in-laws at his home in rural Pope County.

Gasoline up a penny

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Retail gasoline prices rose an average 1.01 cent a gallon during the past two weeks but the rate of increase was much slower than during the previous two weeks, an analyst said.

As of Saturday, the average price of gasoline was 99.85 cents a gallon, according to the bi-weekly Lundberg Survey check of prices at 12,000 stations nationwide.

The previous survey showed an increase of 2.67 cents a gallon in the average price of all grades at self- and full-serve pumps and including cash and credit prices and taxes.

In the more recent survey, the average price per gallon at self-service pumps were: regular unleaded, 91.66 cents; premium unleaded, $106.06; regular leaded, 88.34 cents.

At full-service pumps: regular unleaded, $116.57; premium unleaded, $127.13; regular leaded, $114.27.

Remains return offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has quietly sent Cambodian officials a message in an effort to win the release of the remains of 80 American soldiers the Phnom Penh government claims to have from the Vietnam War, a congressman disclosed.

Rep. John G. Rowland, R-Conn., said U.S. officials, in a verbal communique delivered through the International Red Cross two weeks ago, offered U.S. aircraft and military honor guard to pick up the remains.

Rowland, along with Reps. Bob Smith, R-N.H., and Frank McCloskey, D-Ind., has been lobbying State Department officials to pursue an offer made to the congressmen by a high-ranking Cambodian diplomat during the lawmakers' visit to Southeast Asia in January.

Pope John

Tackles thorny issue in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Pope John Paul II, taking on one of the thorniest issues in Latin America, is seeking to spread the wealth tilted by a few.

The pope today was to visit the orange-growing city of Salto on the northwestern border with Argentina before flying to La Paz, Bolivia's 2½-mile-high capital, on the second leg of his four-nation pilgrimage.

Aides say the pope has been buoyed by the official reception he has received in this small country, which is considered the most secular in South America.

In a stop Sunday in Uruguay's gaucho (cowboy) country, John Paul came up against the contrasts that have bedeviled governments for generations throughout much of Latin America.

Herds of cattle grazed peacefully on large estates outside Melo, a northeastern city of 40,000 near the Brazilian frontier that church officials say is one of the poorest regions in Uruguay.

Speaking to a crowd of 50,000 gathered on a dirt field, John Paul said he was directing an appeal to "all Catholic faithful and all Uruguayans of good will."

"Those who own land and other categories of wealth must take into account that there is a social mortgage on all private property," John Paul said in Spanish, explaining that this meant the property must be used for the good of the entire community.

He cited church documents that wealth should be used to create jobs and that farmworkers should be paid enough to prevent the swelling of migrations to the cities. Nearly half of Uruguay's 3 million residents live in this capital beside the River Plate.

The pope also spoke out strongly for union rights, saying that those who sought to better the conditions of workers deserve "unconditional support."

Vatican officials say they have been delighted at the turnout of government officials at papal events and by the local media's coverage of the visit. President Julio Sanguinetti, an agnostic, flew to Melo for the papal stopover.

MONTEVIDEO — Pope John Paul II is greeted by Uruguayan President Julio Sanguinetti this morning at the presidential palace. The two met for about half an hour before the Pontiff departed to Salto on the Northwestern border with Argentina.

The church says 80 percent of the country is Roman Catholic but only about 5 percent attend Mass regularly in Montevideo. Divorce has been legal since 1907, separation of church and state is mandated by law, and teaching religion is banned in public schools.

A Vatican official, briefing reporters on grounds of anonymity, noted that two cabinet ministers have attended each event, in Montevideo, Melo and Florida. "We hope this is the start of a new climate," the official said.

The pope's tour is his ninth to Latin America in his nearly 10-year-old papacy, reflecting the Vatican's interest in the region.

Latin America is expected to contain half the world's Roman Catholics by the end of the century. There are an estimated 860 million Roman Catholics now in the world.

After Uruguay and five days in landlocked Bolivia, the 67-year-old pope will visit Peru and Paraguay before returning to Rome on May 19.

Compromise rejected

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Striking shipyard workers today rejected a compromise that would have forced them to end their weeklong strike and drop their demand for legalization of Solidarity in exchange for a pay raise.

"There is no freedom without Solidarity," the workers chanted at a rally this morning as they rejected the compromise offered by management following a four-hour negotiating session with the strike committee, union sources said.

Piotr Konopka, an aide to Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, said the 400 to 500 workers at the shipyard repeatedly screamed "no" when told of the offer.

The tentative deal had taken shape in talks revived at the initiative of a Politburo member on Sunday, strike leaders said. Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak, a ranking communist party Politburo member, twice telephoned a lawyer acting as a mediator to revive the talks after they broke down late Sunday afternoon, according to accounts given by strike committee members.

Sikhs fire on security

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Sikh extremists inside the Golden Temple complex opened fire today on government security posts outside the shrine, injuring five paramilitary troops, police said.

The Sikh radicals and the troops exchanged fire for an hour, said Baldev Singh, superintendent of police in Amritsar. He said it was not known if any militants were killed or injured in the exchange.

Virk and other senior paramilitary officers had gone to government security posts on rooftops near the shrine to look at a bunker that the Sikh militants were building at the western end of the complex.

They said the militants opened fire from at least 16 different sites in the temple complex, mainly with Chinese-made AK-47 automatic rifles.

The Sikh extremists have been waging a guerrilla campaign since 1982 for more political autonomy or an independent homeland for Sikhs in Punjab.

Borja elected president

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Rodrigo Borja, a center-left lawyer who promised to distance his administration from the current government's pro-U.S. foreign policy, was elected president of Ecuador.

Borja, 52, leader of the Democratic Left Party, defeated populist Abdala Bucaram, 36, in a runoff on Sunday to select a successor to conservative Leon Febres Cordero, Washington's closest ally in South America.

With the vote count virtually complete, Borja had 1,631,747 votes to Bucaram's 1,401,153 votes.

Reporter takes bandwagon notes

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democratic front-runner Michael Dukakis says he "wouldn't know a horoscope for that day indicated he would be taking on new challenges and having to make tough decisions."

Dukakis told a crowd at a New York fund-raiser last week that his horoscope for that day indicated he would be taking on new challenges and having to make tough decisions.

"It is pointless for you to remain in your current position," the Massachusetts governor read, drawing giggles.

Dukakis said he also decided to check the horoscope of Attorney General Edwin Meese III, whose legal troubles draw frequent gibes from Dukakis during campaign appearances.

Meese's horoscope, the candidate said, indicated that he should find happiness "elsewhere."

"I'll drink to that," Dukakis said

as the crowd roared in approval.

Dukakis is not generally known for his humor. But he drew laughs from a group of West Virginia coal miners when he said his ride into the mine on a cramped rail car was just "a little bumpier" than the Boston subway he often takes to work.

Minutes later, asked if the mine was the first place he had campaigned where there was not a Greek restaurant, the Massachusetts governor smiled and said: "There are Greek restaurants everywhere."

Fellow Greek and Dukakis confidant Nick Mitropoulis chimed in: "And if there isn't one, there will be soon."

Going out of the mine, Dukakis mistakenly turned toward a vein heading deeper into the mountain.

After a miner set him straight, Dukakis threw his hands in the air and said, "I'm sure glad you guys know where you're going because I certainly don't."

Tarmac football is the latest craze in the Dukakis presidential campaign.

Aides to the Massachusetts governor and reporters traveling with him routinely toss a football around when they arrive at airports before the candidate.

Dukakis himself has joined the fun lately, running pass routes on airport tarmacs in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Omaha.

In Cleveland last week, Dukakis, who played basketball in high school, and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, a standout college hoop player at Providence, took turns as quarterback and receiver.

"OK Raymond, go deep," Dukakis said before throwing a perfect spiral to the mayor.

"It certainly beats going around hitting people like George Bush does," said one Dukakis aide, referring to Bush's habit of throwing light punches or giving back slaps to people he meets while campaigning.

Probation officer helps girl find new life

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — She'd been a prostitute from the time she was 14, about the same time she started doing drugs.

It wasn't long before one pastime supported the other, and LaSonya Primes roamed the streets of Beaumont before she was out of junior high school, sometimes doing so much speed she'd stay awake for weeks.

She just wanted to "test the water," she says, in a world where everyone else was doing it — people who put more of a premium on not getting caught than finishing school, and more value on getting high than on eating a meal in a day's time.

She was furious when her boyfriend was sent to prison this past year — she can't even remember what for — and she just got madder when she was picked up for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle while on probation for possession of marijuana.

During the two months in the Jefferson County Jail, she got to the point she didn't feel anything any more, didn't care.

Enter Mary Randall, a Jefferson County probation officer.

Today the two laugh about the trip they made to Houston last September, when LaSonya, still high from the night before "drugging it," fought back tears and tried to tune out what Mary was saying.

She wasn't dumping LaSonya in a home, Mary tried to tell her, and she only was trying to get her out of an environment — where one of her relatives listed her address as that of a Beaumont liquor store — that had caused many of LaSonya's problems.

"All I knew is she held my freedom in that manila folder, and she was taking it away," LaSonya says. "I was upset."

But after three weeks at The Shoulder, Inc., in Houston, which offers long-term residential therapy for problem-ridden drug and alcohol abusers, LaSonya thought Mary might have something after all.

And she remembers with fondness the bag containing clothes and personal items, "right down to new underwear and brand-new stockings," LaSonya says, that Mary secretly packed and put in the trunk the day she took her to Houston.

BEAUMONT — Mary Randall, left, a probation officer for Jefferson County, receives a hug from LaSonya Primes. Randall helped guide Primes to a drug and alcohol-free life.

Mary has always kept a keen eye out to catch sales at stores, and she filled LaSonya's bag with items she'd found on sale during the past few months. Sales-watching has come in handy more than once since Mary became a probation officer a year and a half ago, she says, offering a visitor a piece of Easter candy she'd bought on sale the week after Easter.

"I wanted her to have some nice things, for her not to start out there feeling inferior to the other people there," Mary said. And if those things came out of her own pocket, well, it was worth it, she says.

The Shoulder operates a 12-step recovery program similar to that of Alcoholics Anonymous, and it initially focuses on raising the client's self-esteem. The program offers daily "functions" that begin with a 5 a.m. breakfast and chapel service not long after, and includes Bible study, group therapy, physical exercise and ends each night with another chapel service.

Mary chose The Shoulder rather than other Southeast Texas rehabilitation programs "because LaSonya didn't know anybody in Houston. Sending her there was like sending her to a foreign country, and that was my intent. She didn't have any support from the negative things that had caused her problems."

Normally, candidates for the program go through an interview process, but Mary drove to Houston that day with no intention of taking "no" for an answer. "I called them before I left and told them I was prepared to humble myself and beg, but I needed to get somebody into the program," Mary said.

A month passed, and LaSonya received a keyring that signifies she spent a month sober and drug-free. She continued to earn the keyrings.

"My 22nd birthday was the first

I'd spent sober that I can remember," she says. She says it won't be her last. "I don't want to ever get too comfortable in my sobriety because I don't want to ever get back to where I came from."

"I don't want to dwell on my past but I don't want to forget it, either," she says. "I'm always just a puff or a sip away from where I used to be."

She's not sure what she wants to major in when she is released from The Shoulder, but she wants to get a college degree.

"I've got book sense — I made straight A's before I dropped out of school," she says. "All the things I dreamed about doing when I was drugging, I am fully capable of doing now."

LaSonya believes she was arrested and placed on probation for a reason, "although I wasn't too happy about it at the time."

Not only has it helped her straighten out her life, but it has reunited her with her father, who got custody of her when she was 16, but later threw up his hands in despair after a year of LaSonya's rebelling, doing drugs and running away.

And the probation four months ago has given her the family she never had as an only child from a broken home. When she comes to Beaumont now, she stays with Mary's family — going shopping with Mary's daughter, Erin Denise; joking around with Mary's son, Steven. Many times, it is Mary's husband, Edward, who takes LaSonya back and forth to Houston.

"When she told me she celebrated her 22nd birthday, it made me stop and think," Mary says. "Our daughter was already 22 years old and we sit up nights worrying about her. LaSonya is younger than our daughter and she doesn't have anybody."

LaSonya doesn't know where she'd be if things hadn't happened as they did, or where she'd stay in Beaumont if not at Mary's home.

"Where would I stay?", she says, echoing the question. "Out there, just out there wandering ... " her voice trails off for lack of an answer.

"No, I don't think I'd have to worry about where I'd stay if things hadn't happened as they did," she said finally. "I don't think I'd be alive."

Kite flying safety tips

Kite flying season is here again and TU Electric urges young kite flyers to follow a few simple rules for their own safety.

Hooper Sanders, TU Electric manager, warns them of the danger of flying kites in the vicinity of electric power lines.

"If your kite should get caught in electric wires, call TU Electric," Sanders said, "and someone will be sent to get it down for you."

He also recommends the following safety rules for kite flying:

- Always use dry string, not wire, or anything metallic or any string with metallic threads.

- Always use kites made of wood and paper not metal or wire.

- Don't fly your kite on rainy days.

- Always avoid busy streets and highways while flying your kite.

- Don't pull in the string or climb a power pole to loosen a kite snagged in electric wires.

- Always fly your kite far from electric or power lines.

- Always fly your kite away from TV and radio antennas.

"Young people following these rules will get more fun out of flying kites and at the same time will keep from getting hurt or losing their kites," Sanders said.

Take a close look at an Arvin cooler.

A lot of evaporative coolers look about the same on the outside, so it's easy to assume they're about the same on the inside. Well, Arvin coolers deserve a closer look.

Arvin quality begins on the outside with POLYBOND, Arvin's exclusive appliance quality finish. Powder base epoxy is electrostatically applied to the cabinet of each Arvin unit to seal out rust for years of trouble-free service.

And Arvin quality is more than skin deep. Inside, Arvin uses heavy duty, moisture resistant UL recognized motors, balanced blower wheels, heavy duty blower bearings, easy quick-disconnect junction boxes, and maximum pad surface for high efficiency and extra cooling.

And pumps are UL listed, enclosed in flame-retardant material, thermally protected, grounded, and powered by heavy duty motors.

And only Arvin has stock availability — and parts availability — for over 50 models. Plus a 3-year limited warranty backed by the industry leader for over 35 years.

Women attend Region V meeting

Mrs. Paul (Charlotte) Sheedy shared highlights of the Region V meeting at the recent meeting of the Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs. She and Mrs. Marvin (Margaret) Wise attended the event in Wichita Falls, April 29-May 1, as alternate and delegate, respectively.

Some 182 members representing all 17 of the affiliated clubs in Region V were in Wichita Falls. Tom Haywood, vice president, North Texas Oil & Gas, and Helen Turgeon, 1988 ADCC president, were principal speakers.

In addition to seminars on communications and leadership training, delegates had the opportunity to visit the power plant still under construction at Glenrose.

A trolley car tour of Wichita Falls, a visit to Kell House, and the new water falls were included in the sightseeing package.

The Big Spring club will meet June 6 at 6 p.m. at Alberto's.

Hale meets friends after 52 years

After 52 years without seeing each other, Boyce Hale, Big Spring, and Alford (Jack) Wilmoth, Fredericksburg, Va., met again April 24.

Wilmoth and his wife, Loretta, visited with Hale and his wife, Jean at their home on Wasson Road.

They first became friends in 1929 when they lived in the oil field camp on the Owen & Sloan Oil Company Lease, two miles southeast of Forsan.

In 1936, Wilmoth and his family moved to Pennsylvania and in 1941 he enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps, from which he retired.

His family included Alford Sr., his wife, Alice; one brother, Henry; and one sister, Anna Mary. Henry is presently living in Harrisburg, Pa. Anna Mary died in 1980.

In 1985, Hale ran an ad in the VFW magazine, in an effort to locate some World War II buddies for a possible reunion.

Wilmoth saw the ad and contacted Hale, and from there plans were made to visit him.

After his arrival, he and Hale, along with their wives, visited Forsan High School and went on to visit the location on the Owen & Sloan Oil Company Lease, which is now Royal-Oil & Gas Co. Lease.

After two days of remembering and getting re-acquainted, Wilmoth and his wife departed for Gatesville to visit with her great-granddaughter.

Prescription to plug privacy

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the pregnant woman who complained because her right to privacy had been violated by an office nurse who crassly commented on her previous abortion: "Oh, I see you've decided to keep this one!"

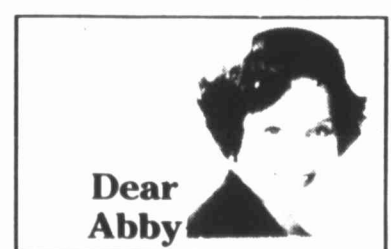

It's not only in doctors' offices that the right to privacy is violated. The last several months, my husband and I spent several hundreds of dollars in pharmaceutical bills, which we charged at our neighborhood drugstore.

One day, to my horror, a friend called my husband to ask if he was "OK." When my husband expressed surprise at the question, the friend told him that the bookkeeper at our pharmacy had told him about recent prescriptions for penicillin my husband had had filled. When we expressed our outrage at this breach of confidence, the friend told us that this bookkeeper had revealed information about prescriptions of other customers whose privacy was being violated in the same manner.

Needless to say, we changed pharmacies immediately. We did not tell our first pharmacist about the "yenta" who had been blabbing about his customers' private business — but now we think we will!

he or she has an indiscreet, loose-lipped gossip on the payroll. This includes office personnel, salespeople, employees of hospitals, hotels, motels, etc. The list is endless.

One cannot rid himself of rats unless he knows where the rats are.

DEAR ABBY: "Frustrated in Greenwood Springs, Colo." complained about people who are always finishing other people's sentences. Well, I'm one of those people, and I'll tell you why. I tend to become impatient with folks who like to drag everything out, so I finish their sentences to kind of hurry them along.

Abby, it would be a public service to tell people that if someone is always finishing their sentences, they are either talking too much, or too slow. Probably both.

Filly's victory ends drought for trainer

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

If a thoroughbred trainer must win the Kentucky Derby to punctuate his career, then D. Wayne Lukas, the most financially successful barn boss in the business, has his exclamation point finally in place.

In his eighth year of trying and with his 13th Derby horse, Lukas finally saddled a winner at America's most prestigious horse race when his filly, Winning Colors, beat the boys on Saturday.

It was a satisfying moment, a time to take a needle to some of his critics.

"Let me ask you a question," Lukas said. "If she becomes the first filly to win the Triple Crown, will I be a horse trainer?"

It seems unfair that until today a man who has produced better than $50 million in purses in the last five years, a man who won five straight national championships and three Eclipse Awards, had to make excuses for his Derby failures.

But that's the business. The first Saturday in May at Churchill Downs captivates the country's railbirds like no other race and Lukas' past performance chart at the Derby was full of failures.

No more. Winning Colors changed all that. She seemed to be running on empty as the race ended, hanging on by a narrow neck to beat Forty Niner. But she won and that was the bottom line. And on the day after the race, her trainer was glowing.

"We've been criticized over the years for everything," Lukas said. "But it got less and less every year we've been in the business. You just wear them out when you stay on the job."

The favorite criticism centered on Lukas' Derby failures. A year ago, he had his worst experience, entering three horses and watching On The Line finish 10th, War 13th and Capote 16th. "You come out here the next day and you feel like you've been hit by a truck," the trainer said.

Losing Derbys — and Lukas was 0-for-7 with 12 horses — was nothing special. Some of the best trainers in the business never ran in it more than once. Just getting here is an accomplishment, considering the pitfalls that each season's crop of 3-year-olds must face.

But winning. That's what racing is all about. Winning. And on Saturday, Winning Colors won. So on Sunday, Lukas talked warmly of his horse and the end of his frustrations.

"You get tired hearing it," he said. "I felt we'd win one sooner or later. We have too many good horses and one year, our number was going to come up."

"The guy I feel sorry for, the guy in trouble is the guy who works eight or 10 years, gets one good horse, one shot, and then something goes wrong."

So Lukas bided his time for eight years and then won the big one. That's not bad, really. It probably would have taken longer for him to win the NCAA basketball title if he had followed his first career option — coaching.

Of course, if he had done that, what would Bill Frieder be doing? Certainly not coaching Michigan, since Lukas is convinced he would have had that job.

While he was working on his Masters degree at a branch of the University of Wisconsin, Lukas became an acquaintance of assistant basketball coach Johnny Orr.

D. Wayne's thesis was on a weighted basketball shoe and he ran the idea past Orr, who loved it.

"We were both broke," Lukas said. "We didn't have two nickels to rub together. We drove to Chicago and took the idea to Converse. They threw $10,000 on the table and we couldn't wait to get it."

In addition, the deal paid Orr and Lukas a nickel a pair for the first 100,000 Converse sold. The shoe zoomed past that mark, turning a considerable profit for the sporting goods company and enabling Lukas to graduate as the proud owner of a red convertible.

When Orr went to coach at Massachusetts, he wanted to take his inventor assistant along. But the university turned down that idea.

"If I had gone to Massachusetts with him, I would have gone to Michigan with him," Lukas said. "Then when he went to Iowa State, I would have gotten the Michigan job."

See what a lucky guy you are, Frieder? And if you had Winning Colors in the Derby, well, you were as lucky as Lukas.

Martin will stay out of bars unless he has his partners

ARLINGTON (AP) — New York Yankees manager Billy Martin says that an incident in a nightclub in which he received a 40-stitch cut on his ear has convinced him to stay away from bars unless friends are with him at all times.

"It's embarrassing more than anything else," Martin said Sunday of Friday's altercation. "I'm going to be very selective where I go and make sure two or three coaches go with me at all times."

Martin said he had only two drinks at the nightclub, a statement verified by a waitress who served him at the club, Lacey.

"My drinking habits have come down to nil," Martin said. "I just don't feel like it. You drink when you're depressed. I'm happy."

Martin, 59, was married Jan. 25. But as Martin tried to put the incident behind him, media in both the Dallas-Fort Worth area and New York focused on discrepancies in Martin's story.

The Dallas Times Herald, in today's editions, quoted a Lacey employee as saying Martin threw the first punch, disputing all his previous statements.

"The remark that Billy Martin made about not getting a punch in was in error," the employee said.

"The first punch was thrown by Martin. It was the only punch thrown. He was not struck by anybody. He was given that shove."

Another unidentified Lacey employee said Martin and two men were engaged in "name calling" in the bar.

The unidentified attendant on duty said name-calling continued in restroom, but there was no fight. As he was on his way out the door, Martin hit and cut the shorter of the two men with a punch, employees said.

Employees said Martin was shoved out an emergency exit, then hit his head on the wall, leaving a bloody streak down to the

Racing vet slowing down

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — With over 300 Indy-car starts to his credit, three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford has known little but racing over the last 30 years.

It's still a bit difficult for him to believe that the Indianapolis 500 on May 29 might be his only race of this season.

Rutherford, seeking to start his 24th Indy 500, finds himself in a strange position. His deal with drag racer-team owner Kenny Bernstein is for only the 500.

"I'm still having fun racing and that's why I'm here," said Rutherford, who had a top one-lap speed of 206.091 mph during the opening weekend of practice for the 72nd 500. "It's one day at a time, one race at a time."

"The concentration is on the Indianapolis 500. Kenny told all his people involved that he would not run prior to Indianapolis so he could totally prepare for here," Rutherford said. "This is a first-class outfit. Having a first-class deal is not too bad a deal."

"There are a lot of ifs involved in this program. If associate sponsorships come along and funds become available to do the other two 500s (Michigan and Pocono) or other select races, or possibly the rest of the season, is still unknown."

Inactivity has been rare for Rutherford since he began racing modifieds in 1959. He came to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway four years later at the age of 25 and in his career he's driven more Indy-car races (311) than any driver save A.J. Foyt, who has started 321.

"I'm set on ready, rocking on go," Rutherford said. "I am pleased with the team, the cars and the testing that we did with the car."

Dick Simon, at age 54 seeking for the sixth consecutive year to be the oldest driver in the starting field, had the fastest lap of the opening weekend, reaching 211.665 mph on Saturday in a Cosworth-powered Lola.

Mario Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner and the leader for 172 laps before engine problems sidelined him last year, had Sunday's quick lap, 210.970 mph, in a Chevy-powered Lola.

Two-time winner Rick Mears went 209.888 mph after only four laps in his new Chevy-powered Penske PC17.

Roberto Guerrero of Colombia, who went 210.772 on Saturday, had a 206.469 lap in his backup Lola on Sunday. He also gained a teammate when owner Vince Granatelli signed two-time winner Gordon Johncock, whose only race since 1984 was as a replacement in last year's Indy 500.

Bobby Rahal, the 1986 Indy winner, had a lap at 209.879 on Sunday in a Judd-powered Lola and Michael Andretti went 209.059 in the traditional March-Cosworth combination.

The speed leaders are all driving new cars. Rutherford, however, will be competing against them in a year-old Lola chassis powered by a Buick V-6 engine. But he says it isn't necessary to have a new car to win Indy, and as proof pointed to Al Unser's record-tying fourth victory last season in a year-old March.

Pistons, Hawks, Bulls advance

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Pistons, Chicago Bulls and Atlanta Hawks worked all season to get a homecourt advantage in the first round of the NBA playoffs, and that's exactly what they got.

Those three teams won all of their home games and lost all their road games in their best-of-five first-round series, and as a result they advanced to the Eastern Conference semifinals with victories Sunday. In the East, the home team won 18 of 19 first-round games, with Boston's series-clinching victory at New York on Friday the only road triumph.

"This is what you play for all season, the fifth game at home," Detroit's Dennis Rodman said after the Pistons' 99-78 victory over Washington. "It was great to see the old Pistons come back. We were whoopin' and hollerin'."

Chicago advanced to a second-round series against the Pistons, beginning Tuesday at Detroit, by defeating Cleveland 107-101. Atlanta beat Milwaukee 121-111 and will begin second-round play at Boston on Wednesday.

In Sunday's other game, the Los Angeles Lakers crushed Utah 110-91 in Game 1 of a Western Conference semifinal. Denver eliminated Seattle 115-96 in Game 5 Saturday, and the Nuggets will face Dallas in the other West semifinal.

Rodman, who was 5-for-5 from the field, came off the bench to score 12 of his 13 points in the fourth quarter, when the Pistons scored 10 consecutive points to take control against the cold-shooting Bulls.

"They had been getting blasted in the media for letting it get this far," Washington coach Wes Unseld said of the Pistons. "There were a lot of intimidating factors today."

Detroit held the Bulls to 31 percent shooting and limited Jeff Malone, who averaged 27 points in the series, to just four points. He was 1-for-12 from the field, while Moses Malone was 2-for-10 and before the game that he would start, scored 24 points, including two key baskets late in the third quarter that put the Bulls in control of the game.

"I told Pippen walking onto the floor that this would be his first start, because I didn't want him to be nervous," Bulls coach Doug Collins said. "Plus, I wanted to take some pressure off Brad Sellers."

Jordan, whose 226 points for the series broke King's 1984 mark of 213, said Pippen's performance gives other teams something to think about.

"I really helps our confidence," he said, "and it helps his confidence. It makes us look like a lot better team."

The Cavaliers, who got 25 points from Mark Price, led 12-2 and had a 35-23 advantage at the end of the first quarter, but the Bulls took their first lead, 78-77, on a steal and layup by Pippen with 27 seconds left in the third quarter. The rookie from Central Arkansas scored again on a rebound at the five-second mark, and the Bulls led the rest of the way for their first trip to the second round since 1981.

"Michael carried us the first two games," Collins said. "But today, the Chicago Bulls team showed up."

Hawks 121, Bucks 111
Dominique Wilkins, the NBA's second-leading scorer behind Jordan, also got some unexpected scoring help from teammate Renny Wittman against Milwaukee.

Wilkins had 33 points and 10 rebounds, while Wittman added a season-high 29 points, including 17 in the second half when he was 7-for-7 from the field.

"I got it going early, then some of the other guys took over when I got tired," said Wilkins, who scored 24 points in the first half. "We knew there was no way we were going to lose this game. Wittman made some shots and everybody contributed. If we play with this kind of intensity, we'll win a game in Boston."

Atlanta broke the game open in scored 15 points.

"Jeff played four of the five best games you will ever see in this league," Unseld said. "He tried, and that's all I ask. Give me your best and you'll never have a problem with me."
Detroit had five players in double figures, led by Joe Dumars with 20 and Adrian Dantley with 17. Ber-

Kooch makes most of chance

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gary Koch was candid about it: there were no major injuries to blame for his miserable season in 1987.

"It was burnout," he said. "All I could think about was going home."

As a result, he dropped to a career-low 175th on the PGA Tour's money-winning list, and "my status was in limbo."

"At the start of the year, I didn't know whether I'd get in 10 tournaments this year," said Koch, who collected five titles and more than $1 million in career earnings.

One he did know about was the Las Vegas Invitational. He had been selected on that tournament's four-man team in the season-long Nabisco charity competition, and he was assured of a place in the field.

And Koch, his interest and enthusiasm rekindled, made the most of the opportunity, taking a one-stroke victory Sunday in the $1,388,889 tournament.

Koch won $250,000 — more than he had collected in 11 of his previous 12 seasons on the tour. But that, he said, was not the point.

He scored his sixth career triumph with a 274 total, 14 under par, and regained his fully exempt status on the tour.

Peter Jacobsen and Mark O'Meara tied for second at 275. Jacobsen, who had a closing 70, had a chance to force a playoff but missed an 18-foot birdie putt on the final hole. O'Meara closed up with a 66.

Curt Byrum, Joey Sindelar, David Canipe, Rick Fehr and Gene Sauers were at 276.

Sindelar had a closing 66, Fehr, Canipe and Sauers 68s, and Byrum, the third-round leader, matched par 72 after three-putting for bogey on the final hole.

Ben Crenshaw, who started the day one stroke back did not make a birdie for the day and finished with a 73 that left him at 278.

It was shortly after the first of the year, when the PGA Tour was getting started on the West Coast, that Koch began to regain his interest and enthusiasm for the game.

"Then, right after the first of the year, all the guys were out there starting to play again, and ol' Gary is sitting home waiting for somebody to tell me when and where I could play.

"That's the first time that had happened in a long time. That's when it hit home," Koch said. "It's a long way to come from 175th on the money list to thinking you could win the tournament," he said. "Fantastic."

Inkster wins tourney in sudden death playoff

SUDDEN DEATH PLAYOFF — Given a second chance in the 18th hole at the Crestar Classic, Juli Inkster made the most of her opportunity and won with a birdie.

"I was just so glad," Inkster said after the win Sunday. "I really enjoyed playing with Betty Jones, Rosie Jones and Nancy Lopez."

Inkster, who made an eagle putt of almost 100 feet and broke a 12-year winless streak, stepped up to avoid the play-off hole and an eagle putt of almost 100 feet.

Lopez, who had laid up in two, left her third shot about 30 feet away and in the first cut of fringe. She missed a birdie putt.

King put her second shot about 15 feet from the cup but missed an eagle putt. She tapped in for a birdie.

Jones, whose second shot landed in a weeded, marshy area short of the green, chipped to within 12 feet but missed the birdie putt.

After all three had putted out, Inkster stepped up to her ball and sank the winning putt that left Lopez in tears, Jones impressed and caught King by surprise.

Lopez said she was so overwhelmed by Inkster's victory that she started shedding tears of joy as the foursome walked off the green. "But then I stopped because I realized some people might think I was crying because I lost."

"It was awesome to see Juli hit it three feet from 220 yards," Jones said.

"I thought it would take a birdie," King added. "I never even thought about eagle."

Jones and Lopez closed with 2-under 70s, King carded a 72 and Inkster shot a 69 to come from four strokes off the pace for her ninth career victory.

"I really thought someone would run away with it today," said Inkster, who picked up $45,000 from the $300,000 purse.

"I really did sneak up on them." Amy Alcott, Missie Berteotti and 36-hole leader Sherri Turner finished one shot back at 210. Alcott shot 69, Berteotti 73 and Turner 74.

Hurler just misses no-hitter

By The Associated Press The list of no-hitters pitched in Pittsburgh isn't very long, and Doug Drabek will have to wait for another day to add his name to it.

Drabek pitched eight hitless innings before San Diego pinch-hitter Randy Ready led off the ninth with an infield single as the Pirates beat the Padres 6-2 on Sunday.

"You know what's going on but you try not to think about it," Drabek said. "I talked on the bench between innings because I didn't want to get by myself and start thinking about it."

Ready, who was pinch hitting for reliever Greg Booker, hit a grounder up the middle that shortstop Al Pedrique knocked down. Pedrique made a throw to first but it was way too late to beat the speedy Ready.

One out later, Marvell Wynne homered and Drabek finished with a two-hitter. Drabek, 4-2, struck out four and walked two for his 13th victory in 17 decisions.

Mets 5, Reds 1 Ron Darling pitched a three-hitter as New York beat visiting Cincinnati for its fifth straight victory and 10th in 11 games.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off Mario Soto on a double by Tim Teufel, an infield out, and a single by Darryl Strawberry.

Phillies 5, Braves 1 Bruce Ruffin pitched a three-hitter and retired the last 19 batters as Philadelphia beat the Braves at Atlanta.

Astros 7, Expos 2 Bob Knepper allowed seven hits in seven-plus innings and Denny Walling drove in two runs, leading Houston over Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Knepper, 4-0, who walked only six coming in to the game, struggled with his control against the Expos. He walked five and had a wild pitch, all in the first four innings.

Knepper leads the NL with an 0.77 earned run average.

Dodgers 12, Cardinals 6 Mike Marshall's two-run double keyed a three-run fifth inning rally and Mike Davis had four hits and drove in three runs as visiting Los Angeles routed St. Louis.

The Dodgers then hammered Jose DeLeon and reliever Steve Peters for five hits and seven runs in the seventh, including Davis' two-run triple.

Don Sutton, 2-2, allowed six hits and five runs in seven innings en route to his 323rd career victory.

Cubs 13, Giants 7 Vance Law drove in six runs with a bases-loaded double and a three-run homer as Chicago beat San Francisco in 30-mph winds at Wrigley Field.

Leading 7-6, the Cubs pulled away with six runs in the seventh capped by Law's three-run homer.

Ryne Sandberg had four hits for the Cubs — including two triples — and is 15-for-37 since moving into the leadoff spot.

Bob Brenly hit two homers for the Giants.

Detroit's Tim Higgins tries to stop the puck with goalie Grant Fuhr as the Oilers Glenn Anderson (9) is caught in between during the first period of play Saturday. Detroit won the game but the Oilers have a 2-1 lead in the series.

Red Devils even series at 2-2

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — With all that was bizarre in Game 4 of the Wales Conference finals, the ordinary prevailed.

Sean Burke was very good in goal and the New Jersey Devils won.

Burke turned aside 33 shots and the Devils' first-period goals from Dave Maley and Pat Verbeek in a 45-second span gave the team a 2-1 victory over the Boston Bruins that evened the best-of-seven Patrick Division series at two games apiece.

However, this was a very ordinary series of events. It was extraordinary because of the NHL's decision to suspend the game and the ice during the first period.

The craziness of the series less than an hour after the game when the NHL suspended play because of a run-in with referee Don Koharski on Friday. New Jersey felt the league did not properly because it had to meet with Superior Court Judge Madden, giving Schoenfeld the okay to continue.

When Schoenfeld went behind the bench, referee Dave Newell, linesman Gord Broseker and Ray Schoenfeld and alternate referee Denis Morel all refused to work the game, which ended up being delayed 67 minutes.

When the game did start, the officials were Paul Gagnier, Vis Godleski and Jim Sullivan, three referees who had worked as NHL off-ice officials during the season.

They could have made a big difference. They also, and one reason was because Burke never let the puck get to the net.

They gave the Devils the lead for good at 10:47 of the first period by beating Boston goalie Reggie Leach with a 16-foot shot on a 3-on-1 breakin with Brian Roloff and Doug Sullivan.

Shortly after Ken Linseman of Boston hit the goalpost with a shot, Verbeek stole the puck from the Bruins blue line, skated in on a 3-on-1 and beat Fuhr with a backhand shot, taking him out of position.

A's roll with 13th straight win

By The Associated Press It's too early for a showdown, Dave Stewart said. But he's got the Oakland Athletics headed toward showdown territory.

Stewart remained undefeated Sunday, beating the Cleveland Indians 6-1 and sending the Oakland Athletics to a club-record 13th straight victory against another previously unbeaten pitcher, Greg Swindell.

"You get showdowns when you get to the playoffs and World Series. This is just another game," Stewart said, and already with an eight-game lead over Chicago in the American League West, the A's are headed in that direction.

A's 6, Indians 1 Stewart, 8-0, pitched a four-hitter as the A's matched the longest winning streak in the majors since the 1987 Milwaukee Brewers started 13-0. Stewart walked two and struck out four in beating Swindell, 6-1, who carried a 1-0 lead into the fifth, when the A's scored four runs.

Rangers 10, Yankees 8 The Yankees, who were swept for the first time ever by Texas in a three-game series, saw their lead in the AL East cut to a game over Detroit and 1 1/2 over Milwaukee.

Curtis Wilkerson had three hits for the Rangers, including a two-run triple in the second inning, and rookie James Steels drove in three runs.

Jeff Russell pitched the fifth and sixth innings for the victory and got relief help from Dale Mohoric, who pitched the final three innings for his third save.

Tigers 9, Mariners 3 Frank Tanana earned his sixth victory in seven decisions, allowing eight hits and three runs in 7 2/3 innings. Tanana gave up just two extra-base hits, but they both cost him: Mickey Brantley doubled and scored in the sixth, and Alvin Davis homered in his fourth straight game for two more in the ninth.

Brewers 6, Royals 2 The Brewers won their ninth straight, getting four runs off Dan Quisenberry in the 10th inning to beat Kansas City. Dave Sveum knocked in the tie-breaker, and Mike Felder had a two-run single.

The Brewers have not lost since April 29 when they dropped a 7-2 decision to the Royals. Kansas City has lost five in a row, all at home.

Red Sox 10, Twins 6 Dwight Evans and Ellis Burks both homered, leading Boston's 13-hit attack as the Red Sox defeated Minnesota. Evans drove in four runs and Burks three as the Red Sox erased a 4-2 Minnesota lead with three runs in the fourth, one in the fifth and four more in the sixth.

Orioles 6, White Sox 5 Joe Orsulak hit a bases-loaded single in the 10th inning to lead Baltimore over the White Sox. The Orioles loaded the bases with a single, a balk and two walks, one intentional, for only their fourth victory of the season.

He also told reporters that no one else was present, but the police version was that the attack was witnessed.

The Dallas newspaper and the New York Times said a restroom attendant, Eric Counts, denies having seen the attack, but Arlington police spokesman James Hawthorne says a manager at Lacey confirmed Counts did see the scuffle.

Martin told police he, then of Famer Mickey Mantle and Yankees coach Mike Ferraro went to Lacey, a topless bar about a half-mile from Arlington Stadium after Friday's 7-6 loss to the Texas Rangers.

The Dallas Morning News reported that Mantle's son, Mickey Mantle Jr., also was with Martin.

Martin said he went to the restroom alone and three men jumped him. He said two men pinned back his arms while another hit him with a blunt object. Martin suffered head injuries and a cut on his left ear that required 40 stitches.

Sabatini ready to stake claim

ROME (AP) — With two major tournament victories to her credit this year, Gabriela Sabatini says she is ready to win the French Open and challenge for the No. 1 world ranking.

Sabatini captured the $200,000 Italian Open women's championships Sunday, beating Helen Kelesi of Canada 6-1, 6-7 (7-4), 6-1 in a hour match.

The women give way to the men today as the $825,000 Italian Open men's clay court tournament was to get under way with a premier field headed by top-seeded Ivan Lendl.

Three seeds were scheduled to play today: No. 2 Mats Wilander of Sweden, the defending champion, No. 5 Kent Carlsson of Sweden and No. 8 Martin Jaite of Argentina, last year's runner-up.

Wilander has been slowed by the flu since the Monte Carlo Open last month, but his coach, Jon-Anders Sjogren, said Sunday he would be ready to play.

Sabatini, who turns 18 this month, has come into her own this year. She has defeated world No. 1 Steffi Graf twice and Chris Evert once, beating them in consecutive matches to win the Virginia Slims of Florida tournament. However, she lost in two finals to Martina Navratilova.

Sabatini, ranked fifth in the world, said her eyes are now set on the French Open, a Grand Slam event which begins in two weeks on the same slow red clay that was used in Rome. Three years ago, just after turning 15, she was the youngest semifinalist ever in Paris, losing to Evert.

But her victory in Rome was tarnished because Graf skipped the tournament. Navratilova pulled out at the last minute with an injury and Evert withdrew in the third round with a heel spur.

Sabatini admitted that her performance in Rome wasn't particularly impressive. She was extended to three sets in the quarterfinals by Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, faced a tiebreaker in the semis against Judith Wiesner of Austria and dropped a set to Kelesi in the championship match.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will feel pulled in many directions. Loyal associates and friends will trust you to pick the best road to travel. You are grateful to be left to your own devices! A family reconciliation reduces the tension in your life. Your other relationships benefit. Travel or expect visitors around Christmas-time. Wedding bells signal good times. Listen to what children have to say.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Taurean Blaque, TV personality Gary Owens, actress Nancy Walker, former House Speaker Carl Albert, superstar Fred Astaire, country singer Mother Maybelle Carter, movie producer David O. Selznick, sportscaster Pat Summerall, composer Dimitri Tiomkin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friends are the ones to turn to if a business crisis persists. Get your financial affairs in order without further delay. There is no need to feel nervous at a party. Be yourself!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It may be hard for you to express your feelings directly. Write a memo if business is involved, a love note if a relationship is your concern. Travel opens new business channels.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Tackle several projects today. You will get bored if you do not have enough to do. Those in authority will promote people who show initiative. Be a self-starter. Love beckons from afar.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be thrust into the position of go-between for family or friends. Be careful not to take sides. Your powers of persuasion are used to best advantage on the telephone today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Heavy commitments are not for you. Tell the truth and save yourself both time and trouble. Travel enhances a romance. Money could come from out of the blue. Business correspondence needs prompt attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Guard against making impulsive decisions. You could be the victim of too much advice. Trust your own hunches. Bargains can be found. Examine sales merchandise very carefully before buying. A friendship deepens.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your advice is much sought after today. You can expect to hear several versions of a domestic spat. Stay out of it if you want to remain friends with both parties. Romance is just great!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A friend or neighbor expresses thanks for past favors. Give top priority to an artistic project that could increase your earning power. Postpone financial transactions. Better terms will be available later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be wary of speculative deals. You must take direct action to fulfill a personal wish. Help someone confined to a hospital or nursing home. A blind date will work out better than expected.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Creative endeavors prove especially rewarding. A romantic relationship could be tested. You learn who really cares for you. Keep a tighter rein on spending. Daily splurges could leave you in the hole.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put little stock in promises. The people making them are talking through their hats. A communication mix-up leads to delays. A white elephant could turn out to be a real treasure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone who acts unreasonable could be making a bid for attention. Be more understanding. Make a special effort to get in touch with an old friend. Romance takes a turn for the better.
