Heroes emerge in fiery crash that killed 27

CARROLLTON, Ky. — Police officials videotape the charred wreckage of a bus struck by a wrong-way driver Saturday night, killing 27 people on board.

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — Two 16-year-olds helped pull their friends from a bus that burst into a fireball after it collided head-on with a pickup truck on an interstate highway, killing 27 in one of the nation's deadliest bus crashes.

"They were just laying down in the back door, stacked up on top of each other, and no one could get out 'cause they all fell down on top of each other," said Larry Flowers, who escaped from the bus and helped evacuate it with Jamie Hardesty. "I grabbed their arms and pulled."

A pickup truck going the wrong way on southbound Interstate 71 late Saturday plowed into the right front side of the bus, which was filled mostly with teen-agers from the Assembly of God Church in Radcliff returning home from an amusement park outing near Cincinnati, police said.

State Police Trooper Jim Mudd said it was not known how long or why the pickup was traveling the wrong way.

Its driver, 34-year-old Larry W. Mahoney, of Worthville, was listed in a serious condition at Humana Hospital-University of Louisville.

This morning, five National Transportation Safety Board investigators set to work. One investigator went to the crash site, and the others were interviewing witnesses.

The NTSB also requested to examine blood samples taken from the driver of the truck, and to study both his and the bus driver's driving records, said Alan Pollock, an NTSB spokesman.

The investigators' preliminary findings were expected to be discussed at a news conference this evening.

Meanwhile, in another part of the armory building, other experts continued to examine the badly burned bodies of the victims, comparing dental records and other clues in an effort to provide positive identifications.

Nine of the 40 hurt sustained critical injuries; four people were seriously injured, including the driver of the pickup truck, who was alone.

Survivors said that as flames erupted in the bus' front, screaming passengers rushed toward the rear emergency door.

"Everyone started screaming and hollering," said Hardesty, a high school sophomore. "Everyone was trying to get off as fast as they could."

A passing truck driver, Patrick Presley of Dallas, and an unidentified trucker, rushed to the bus and yanked the rear door open.

The bus had been refueled with gasoline just before the accident, said Carroll County Coroner James Dunn. The fuel tank on the 1977 Ford school bus was on the right side, and ruptured upon impact, police said.

State Medical Examiner Dr. George Nichols met with about 60 family members in Carrollton and told them he did not want them to view the remains.

"The picture ... of their children in that room is not what they have in their memories or wallets," he said.

Garbage privacy changes

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled today that Americans have no right of privacy to their garbage once it's put out for collection.

By a 6-2 vote, the justices reinstated drug-dealing charges against two California residents: Police discovered evidence of narcotics in their garbage.

"The police cannot reasonably be expected to avert their eyes from evidence of criminal activity that could have been observed by any member of the public," said Justice Byron R. White for the court.

"It is common knowledge that plastic garbage bags left on or at the side of a public street are readily accessible to animals, children, scavengers, snoops and other members of the public," White said.

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution generally requires police to obtain search warrants from a judge before conducting searches.

But White said the constitutional protection does not apply to discarded trash because people have no "expectation of privacy" for their garbage.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice William J. Brennan said, "Scrutiny of another's trash is contrary to commonly accepted notions of civilized behavior. I suspect, therefore, that members of our society will be shocked to learn that the court, the ultimate guarantor of liberty, deems unreasonable our expectation that the aspects of our private lives that are concealed safely in a trash bag will not become public."

He was joined by Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Joining White were Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices John Paul Stevens, Harry A. Blackmun, Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia.

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, the newest member of the court, did not take part in deciding the case.

Today's ruling overturned decisions by California courts that said police officers must obtain warrants before searching discarded garbage.

Police sifted through garbage collected from outside the home of Billy Greenwood in Laguna Beach, Calif., on April 6 and May 4, 1984.

They found drug paraphernalia and drug residue and then obtained a warrant to search Greenwood's house.

There they seized marijuana, hashish and cocaine and charged Greenwood and Dyanne Van Houten, who was also present, with narcotics possession.

State courts threw out the charges after ruling that police violated the rights of Greenwood and Ms. Van Houten.

The state courts relied in part on a 1971 California Supreme Court decision that said residents of the state have an expectation of privacy in their garbage.

The effect of that ruling was overturned by Proposition 8, a 1982 initiative law known as "The Victims' Bill of Rights" in California.

On the police shift Weapons, fights — all are part of one night's work

Editor's note: Steve Reagan took a ride with Big Spring police officer Brad Ingram Friday night in conjunction with National Peace Officers Appreciation Week. This is the second and final part of his report.

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

An integral part of police communication is what is described as the "10-code." This form of verbal shorthand — 10 followed by one or two other numbers — allows officers to communicate a variety of situations in a concise manner.

"Two of the hardest things to learn when you join the force," Big Spring police officer Brad Ingram says, "are the 10-code and knowing exactly where you are at any given moment."

As acting shift supervisor Friday night, it was doubly important for Ingram to be familiar with the various parts of the 10-code, because of his obligation to provide backup wherever needed.

He wasted little time, therefore, when the 10-code designation for "man with a weapon" was transmitted on the radio.

"If ya'll are happy, we're happy," Ingram says. "You guys be careful — and don't be playing with sticks and knives." "They're buddies" he says, almost incredulously, while driving away.

"You never know what's going to happen when a weapon is used, so the supervisor likes to be there," he says enroute to the site.

Dispatcher reports noted that a man — bleeding, shirtless and possibly armed — was southbound on foot on Nolan Street. Ingram and about three other patrol cars covered on the site almost simultaneously.

The suspect was nowhere in sight, but Ingram noticed an open door on a house near Second Street — an unusual circumstance at 1 a.m.

After parking his car, the 13-month veteran and two other officers search outside the house before deciding to go in; their guns holstered, the officers cautiously enter the house.

The scene remains quiet during the search, as the glow from the policemen's flashlights provide the only indication of activity. After what seems much longer than five minutes, the officers emerge — suspect in tow.

"He claimed someone broke in and tried to rob him," Ingram says in explanation, as he gets into his patrol car. Leaving the suspect with another officer, Ingram heads for the station for additional equipment before returning to the scene.

Ogburn, Poe named top Big Spring students

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Laura Ogburn has been named valedictorian of Big Spring High School's class of 1988 for commencement exercises May 27 at 8 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Jennifer Poe is salutatorian. Two hundred and forty students are candidates for diplomas, according to high school principal R. Kent Bowerman, who will certify the class. Bill McQueary, district superintendent, will accept the class and BSISD school board president Ford Farris will present diplomas, according to information released early today by the school district.

A 4.0 student for the past four years, Laura Ann Ogburn is the daughter of Carol Ogburn, 2401 Alamesa, and Charlie Ogburn, Sterling City Route. She is a two-year member of the National Honor Society.

She has been involved in speech and theatre for four years, competing in University Interscholastic League debate and one-act play events. For the past two years she has served as vice president of Spe-atre, a speech and theatre group. She has also been named a member of the French Club.

She was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students for the past two years and was chosen for membership in Who's Who at Big Spring High School this year.

She has been chosen a National Merit Finalist and is a recipient of a National Merit Scholarship from the University of Texas as a result of her PSAT test scores and scholastic achievements.

She has also been awarded a Wal-Mart Foundation Scholarship. She plans to attend The University of Texas at Austin and major in accounting after graduation.

Salutatorian Jennifer Ruth Poe, daughter of Beverly Poe, also maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average during four years in high school.

She is a two-year member of the National Honor Society and a member of the French Club, and is serving her second consecutive year as secretary of Spe-atre.

She has been involved in speech and theatre for four years, participating in one-act play and various speech events in competition.

Last year she qualified for the University Interscholastic League state meet in debate and this year she qualified for the Texas Forensics Association state meet in original oratory.

She was named to Who's Who at Big Spring High School and Who's Who Among American High School Students during the past school year.

She has been involved in journalism for two years.

Government attorney expecting dismissal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Justice Department attorney who is seeking to extend her maternity leave without pay said today she expects to be fired unless she returns to work by the end of the month.

"I'm not going to go back against my doctor's advice and my own best judgment," Joan Bernott said on CBS's "This Morning" program. "I think I'll be AWOL, which will subject me to disciplinary proceedings and discharge."

Assistant Attorney General John Bolton, head of the department's criminal division, has ordered Ms. Bernott to return to work May 31 or submit additional medical information from her doctor giving a reason why her leave should be extended to mid-August.

On May 4, Bolton rejected Ms. Bernott's request, which is supported by a note from her doctor, to extend her leave without pay to Aug. 15.

Bolton said the civil division faces an enormous workload and that it was vital that its 25 senior attorney positions — one of which is held by Ms. Bernott — be staffed fully.

Ms. Bernott obtained a letter from her physician, Dr. Sandra M. Chase, on March 28 saying that an additional four months of recuperation from a difficult pregnancy was required.

"Return to work now, in my opinion, represents health risk to this patient," the doctor said in a follow-up April 26 letter submitted as a result of Bolton's request for more information.

Ms. Bernott charged in the interview that Bolton has made accusations and threats beyond his request for additional information from her doctors.

"He is holding three letters from two of my physicians. And he hasn't just denied my request for leave, he has issued reprisals against me, accused me of fraud, asked me to sign waivers of confidentiality of all my medical records," Ms. Bernott said. "He has demanded that my physicians answer 27 questions — probing details of their opinion and my medical condition."

"He has cancelled a reassignment that had been arranged for me about a year ago and has been in the works since then," she said.

Justice Department officials were not immediately available for comment.

Bolton said last week that "there was no intent whatsoever to harass" Ms. Bernott and that "the idea that there is discrimination here is absolutely untrue."

He cited an April 21 comment in which he told Ms. Bernott's lawyer that "nobody is going to ask Ms. Bernott to do anything which would in any way jeopardize her health" and said he simply wanted more information from her doctor regarding the medical basis for the additional leave time.

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., who wrote Attorney General Edwin Meese III questioning Bolton's actions, said the department has no right to accuse Ms. Bernott of shirking her duties.

"She's sitting there with all sorts of doctor records saying, 'Look, I'm a 42-year-old woman and having this baby turned out not to be a nine-month cruise,'" Ms. Schroeder said. "... It sounds to me that they're just saying 'Motherhood isn't in this year, Joan, and at the Justice Department we're not for that. Why don't you leave?'"

Baker, Sessions advise '88 grads

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS
 The messages were almost enough to inspire a retreat into graduate school.

This year's college graduates were warned they face a mounting budget deficit, Third World revolutions and a constant struggle to maintain a competitive education system and America's middle class standards.

Journalist Bill Moyers, Treasury Secretary James Baker, FBI Director William Sessions and House Speaker Jim Wright were among several speakers who encouraged thousands of Texas college and university students in weekend graduation ceremonies around the state.

"I do not envy this year's class," Moyers told 1,400 students at the newly renamed University of North Texas. "This generation (of college graduates) will be hard-pressed to do as well... to achieve and maintain a middle-class standard."

Baker told 4,835 University of Houston graduates that the United States needs to curb its budget deficit, reform Social Security, and raise educational standards.

"I've long agreed with those who say that by tolerating a deficit we Americans have been voting to give ourselves goods and services that we don't have to pay for," he said. Baker advocates a balanced budget amendment with limits on taxation.

Sessions told 500 graduates at the University of Texas in El Paso they should maintain control in their lives.

"You do have control, always, over your attitude," he said. "Is it good, or is it bad? Is it optimistic, or is it pessimistic? Is the glass half full, or is the glass half empty? Is the race lost before the starting gun, or is there always a possibility that you will win?"

Wright, one of three speakers at commencement ceremonies at Texas A&M University over the weekend, told more than 3,100 graduates that they should have high standards for the future.

"Mediocrity is not our destiny," Wright said. "We don't have to be satisfied with that. Together we can see a better future, affirm a better future — and together we can make it happen."

In other speeches at the school, both Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Alfred Gray and U.S. Air Force Secretary Edward C. "Pete" Aldridge Jr. said war is likely for the graduating generation.

Gray, a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told 87 new military officers at A&M that "in this decade or certainly in the next," U.S. fighting forces would be engaged in "revolutionary warfare" in Third World countries.

Drought Grass camouflages parched ground

KENEDY (AP) — Scant showers have kept the grass green and creek beds covered, but ranchers say the ground beneath is parched and drought conditions are growing worse.

Farmer Vincent Brysch's land in east Karnes County is still green, but the effects of the drought can be seen in the mud bottoms of his stock ponds that should hold water 12 feet deep.

"That's my hay field. I'd have it cut by now and have 75 to 100 round bales. I haven't got anything to cut," Brysch said. "I normally carry one head of cattle for every five acres. Now, I'm at one head for every 20."

"It is incredible," said Gary Pogue, of the G.E. Pogue Seed Co. "People are having to disperse their cattle herds. Corn and sorghum are dying."

Karnes County is one of 11 South Texas counties requesting disaster relief. The others are Atascosa, Duval, Frio, Jim Hogg, La Salle, Live Oak, McMullen, Starr, Uvalde and Wilson.

Disaster declarations for the counties would make them eligible for emergency low-interest loans, feed and other relief from the federal Farmers Home Administration. It also would allow producers to grow hay and let animals graze in areas set aside for conservation.

The forage shortage is prompting some farmers to sell their stock long before they normally would.

"I've been around here for 33 years and this last April was the busiest one I have ever seen," E.F. Schorre said at the Karnes County Livestock Exchange Inc. "The only saving grace in all this is cattle prices are now damn good."

Between 1,100 and 1,300 head of cattle are selling each week at the exchange, about 300 to 500 head more than were selling at the same time last year.

Cattle prices affected by dryness

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Nationwide cattle inventories may continue to drop if the drought conditions prompting early cattle sales results in significant reductions in heifers and cows, experts predict.

A lack of rain and loss of forage has encouraged some early, out-of-season cattle sales that may result in tighter beef supplies and higher prices, the marketing experts say.

Some Texas cattlemen said the problem is so bad that cattle are dying, and the lack of pasture that is affecting ranchers in parts of Texas is also hurting ranchers in the northern Plains states.

In a normal year, many of the cattle being sold now would not be sold until fall.

"Some ranchers sold 20 to 30 percent of their herds and some cattle were so weak and thin they couldn't be shipped," said Jack Scoggins, co-owner and general manager of Starr Feedyards Inc. near Rio Grande City.

"Without more rain, we could see some more sales and maybe more dead cattle," Scoggins said. In California, enduring its second straight year of drought, ranchers started selling feeder cattle in March rather than during their regular sale season of May or June.

"About 70 percent (of the cattle) moved out a month earlier," said Ellington Peek, manager and owner of the Shasta Livestock Auction Yard in the northern California town of Cottonwood.

Alan May, Brown County extension agent in Aberdeen, S.D., where pastures are a dead brown instead of the usual lush green, said some ranchers are moving cattle to better pastures while others are selling parts of their herds.

"We're not seeing huge sales of cattle now, but there is some movement," he said.

Gene Patrell, Iowa State University extension economist, said if more cattle continue to be marketed earlier than expected, feeder cattle prices may drop slightly.

However, he said, more cattle being sold now would mean fewer sold in the regular fall season, which would drive prices higher.

Local opinion: Mixed feelings on Reagans, astrology

By MICHAEL DUFFY
For the Herald

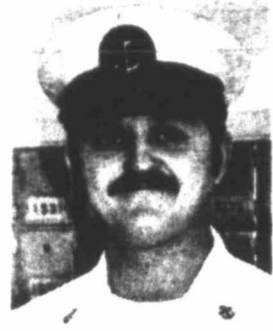

Former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan's revelations about First Lady Nancy Reagan's involvement with astrology and the influence it played in the president's decisions has caused ripples throughout the nation.

Brief interviews with Big Spring residents visiting the post office Saturday afternoon indicate that local residents have definite opinions on the subject.

In his book, "For the Record: from Wall Street to Washington," released last week, Regan writes that Nancy Reagan consulted an astrologer about the scheduling of presidential events.

Gary Sims, a U.S. Naval Chief Petty Officer and recruiter, discounts most "kiss and tell" books, including Regan's, as "indulgent and just a way of making a buck."

"(President) Andrew Jackson got drunk and brought horses and prostitutes up the stairs of the White House. That's not something many people know," he said.

Carl Blanchard also believes Regan's intent is financially motivated, although he has stated in published reports the proceeds from book sales will be donated to charity, despite a $1 million advance from the publishers.

"I think it's just another attempt by a person in a privileged position to cash in on his experiences. The timing is proof of that," he opined.

Ethylene Parker is adamant the astrology allegations are unfounded.

"I don't believe Reagan runs the White House with astrology. It's the stupidest thing I've ever heard. I think it's an attempt to sell books. He (Regan) was let go, wasn't he?"

"I also think President Reagan has been maligned enough. All of our presidents get maligned and I don't understand it. It's up to us to support them," she said.

P.V. KEATON

F. Morales said she reads her horoscope daily in the newspaper "for pleasure, but I don't believe in it," although Regan's disclosure upset her.

"That's ridiculous. We vote for a president for his brain and his knowledge. I didn't vote for him because he uses astrology," she observed.

Morales said the book's revelations have had a negative effect on her opinion of the president.

Reading the newspaper is a habit P.V. Keaton tries to avoid, although she reluctantly admits she has heard about the Regan book.

"You know why I don't read the newspaper? Because it's too depressing. Astrology? It's poppycock. Why do we get so involved in their (presidents') personal lives? The next thing they'll be telling us is what color of toilet paper she (Mrs. Reagan) uses," Keaton candidly observed.

Sharon Daughenbaugh said astrological matters hold little interest for her.

"I'm not really into astrology. I don't make decisions based on my horoscope," she noted.

Bo Isaacs intimated he believes astrology is "pure D" and the D stands for devil.

"I believe that astrology is the work of the devil. I don't think too much of (Regan) as president. We could have used him being down in the basement of the White House, but he didn't know what was going on," he said, a reference to the shredding of documents related to the Iran-Contra affair that reportedly occurred there.

Randall Curtis, on the other hand, weighed his comments heavily.

"If it's true, it's kind of bad, but I don't know because I have just heard bits and pieces. I haven't read the book," he said.

Two fires reported

An air conditioner fire damaged the pump and air conditioner at 3709 Dixon St. Sunday. Fire department reports indicated that the fire resulted from an electrical short in the pump, which melted down.

A fire at 2505 Rebecca St. resulted in about $500 damages to a central heating unit and the house. The heating unit caught fire as a result of an electrical short, according to fire department reports.

Deaths

Orba Hamlin

Orba E. Hamlin, 83, Big Spring, died Sunday, May 15, 1988 at Shannon Hospital, San Angelo, after a one-year illness.

He was born Dec. 12, 1904 in Howard County, and was a life-long resident of Howard County.

His parents, Lee and Sarah Hamlin, were pioneer settlers of Howard County.

He was a rancher. He is survived by two sons, L.E. (Esco) Hamlin, Big Spring, and Norvin Hamlin, Odessa; and four grandsons.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one brother, Monty, and one sister, Delila McNew.

Once back at the house, however, Ingram notices another man sitting on the porch. The officer approaches and engages the man in conversation.

After extensive interrogation of both men at the scene, the officer discovers the truth: The two are friends who merely had a disagreement — that ended with one being cut and the other hit with a board. Neither suspect wants to file charges, so Ingram leaves them with an admonition to behave.

"If ya'll are happy, we're happy," he says. "You guys be careful — and don't be playing with sticks and knives."

"They're buddies," he says, almost incredulously, while driving away.

"It's not like this every night," Ingram says, "although it does make the night go faster."

For the next hour, however, things slow a bit. Ingram's patrol is interrupted only once during this time — to investigate a complaint of loud music at the North Main apartments.

During the lull, he discusses a variety of topics, including "Colors," a movie that depicts police efforts to quell gang violence in Los Angeles. "Some of (the movie) was pretty good," he says. "It showed some of the tactics we use, although some other parts were pretty Hollywood. "It's hard to believe there's 70,000 gang members in Los Angeles," he notes. "That's three-and-a-half times the number of people in Big Spring."

Ingram's paperwork is interrupted by a report of a fight at Whataburger. Upon arrival, the officers find a rather irate male with a cut lip explaining the situation; others involved in the fight are gone.

"Someone came in and called his girlfriend a whore," Ingram says as he leaves the scene. "He didn't like that too much."

A search for a suspicious person on N.W. Seventh Street proves fruitless, ending Ingram's fifth hour.

"This is my first weekend to be doing this," he says of the acting shift supervisor's position. "I don't know if I like it too much."

He is faced with a dilemma. One of the officers has been working since the previous afternoon and Ingram doesn't want him falling asleep at the wheel. On the other hand, the supervisor doesn't want to be short-handed if trouble erupts.

A decision is made to allow the officer to go home at 4 a.m. — if things remain quiet.

Ingram's effort at paperwork is once again interrupted by a report of a fight in progress — this time at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

The fight involves the same two involved in the Whataburger altercation. Traveling in separate vehicles, they had gone to the hospital to have their injuries treated — and had resumed their fight once there.

The young man with the cut lip is in an examination room being stitched, while the other is in the waiting room being questioned by Officer Tony Everette.

The man is obviously being uncooperative with Everette, giving short, staccato answers to the officer's questions. An apparently flippant answer angers Everette.

"You lie to me one more time, mister," he says, "and you're out of here."

The man's two companions hurriedly intercede, urging him to cooperate.

"Your friends are giving you good advice," Ingram tells him.

Literacy council to have meeting

The Crossroads Adult Need To Read literacy council will conduct its annual meeting Tuesday at 6:15 p.m. at St. Mary's Parish Hall, 1005 Goliad.

The purpose of this meeting is to report on progress and goals for the coming year, elect board members and to thank all who are a part of the literacy program.

Tutors, students, and anyone involved in any way with the program are invited to attend.

Anyone interested in attending who has not been contacted by the committee should call 267-5295.

Local bands have final concert

The Big Spring school bands will present their final concert Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Big Spring High School auditorium. Goliad Middle School, Runnels Junior High and the Big Spring High School bands will perform.

High school director Ricky Mitchell said that the concert will feature popular songs from the '50s through the '80s.

The Goliad sixth grade band and Goliad advanced band will be directed by Pat Daniel, while the Runnels Band and the high school symphonic band will be directed by Steve Waggoner. Mitchell will direct the high school honor band.

Former Goliad Middle School director of bands Russell E. McKiski, owner of McKiski Music, will be guest conductor for the honor band's performance of "Fairest of the Fair" by John Philip Sousa, Mitchell said.

There is no admission charge.

Community luncheon set Friday

Area residents will be honored at the annual Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Community Luncheon Friday at 11:45 a.m. in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Reservations must be made by Wednesday by calling the Chamber at 263-7461.

Among the recognitions to be made are Small Business Person of the Year and Cultural Affairs Person of the Year.

Several topics will be discussed as well, including Starlight Specials at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheatre, celebration plans for July 4, and a report on belt buckle sales.

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A Big Spring man is in stable condition in the intensive care unit at Scenic Mountain Medical Center today, according to a hospital spokeswoman, after a stabbing Sunday.

Billy Chenoweth, Jr., 29, was admitted Sunday morning. Police reports indicate Chenoweth suffered from stab wounds to the right lower quadrant of the body.

Karla Cockrell, of 538 Westover (Barcelona Apartments) No. 246, reported a domestic disturbance to Big Spring Police early Sunday.

A second call from the same address concerning a theft was received at 1:33 a.m., and Chenoweth was taken to the hospital by private vehicle about 2:30 a.m., according to police reports.

Chenoweth's address was unavailable, according to police spokesman Lt. Juan Palacios. Reports indicated the address where the incident occurred was 538 Westover No. 246.

A Big Spring man, Ralph Lee Clarke, 26, 538 Westover No. 246, was arrested Sunday at 2505 South

Gregg St. (Pin Deck) on a warrant for aggravated assault. Howard County Sheriff's Office records indicate he was released on $5,000 bond on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Big Spring police also investigated reports of theft from four 7-Eleven convenience stores Sunday. Clerks at the U.S. Highway 80 and Willia Street store, the 1209 11th Place store, the 401 S. Birdwell Lane store and the 300 S. Owens St. store reported thefts of items including beer and cigarettes by persons unknown.

Police investigated a reported hit and run traffic accident at 2505 S. Gregg St., the Pin Deck parking lot.

Virginia Langston reported the theft of a boy's 26-inch bicycle valued at $99 from her residence at 1311 S. Johnson St. Sunday, and damage to a chain link fence estimated at $150.

Bill Rhodes reported the theft of several items from his 1978 grey Chevrolet pickup at his residence, 1500 Mesquite St., including a Belgium 12-gauge shotgun and a Stevenson .410 shotgun. Both single-shot weapons were of undetermined value; binoculars valued at $75 and a Snap-On torque wrench valued at $85 were also taken, according to police reports.

Richard Wright reported an attempted burglary at 503 E. Sixth St. Wright told police persons unknown to him had attempted to enter the building by force. Entry was not completed.

Brian Averette, 702 Johansen Road, reported that persons known to him took a $180 stereo, $64 speakers, tapes valued at $600 and records valued at $40 from his home between 3:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Kathy Mae Auwarter, 23, 1709 S. Aylesford, was arrested Sunday on charges of class C assault and released on bond. Amount of bond was not available from the police department.

Oscar Valencia, 605 McEwen St., reported that a person known to him deliberately caused damage to the garage wall at his residence and used abusive language in his presence.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Candidates must talk defense cuts

Presidential candidates talk little about it, but the military budget working its way through Congress is a clear signal of painful decisions awaiting the next administration.

President Reagan came to office trumpeting a "defense buildup" that in seven years raised military spending $2 trillion.

His successor will have to trim the current Pentagon five-year plan by at least $300 billion and perhaps more than $500 billion (half a trillion).

Quite obviously, a "defense build-down" on this scale will require drastic cuts in manpower, in new weapons procurement, in the number of bases scattered around congressional districts and in overseas bases and commitments.

But George Bush and Michael Dukakis have hardly addressed this monumental prospect.

Defense should be a major issue for the candidates because the intellectuals who advise them are already engaged in debate on the nation's future world role.

Clearly, this is a period of marking time as the Reagan era limps to a close. Soon enough, a new president will have to take hold of a defense budget that will determine the country's military-diplomatic posture until the end of the century.

The Baltimore Sun

SDI beginning to make sense

The White House admitted ... that President and Nancy Reagan are deeply interested in astrology.

In a new book, former White House chief of staff Donald Regan claims Mrs. Reagan turned to astrologers to help determine the president's schedule.

A day later, Reagan said in a speech that he wonders what would happen if Earth were invaded by "a power from outer space."

He said he imagines that an invasion from another planet would unite all nations in a common defense.

All of a sudden the president's enthusiasm for the Strategic Defense Initiative — Star Wars — begins to make sense.

The Times Record, Brunswick, Maine

Radicals are to blame, not Israel

Israel undertook its first major offensive into Lebanon since 1985 (last) week. Working with its ally, the Lebanese Christian militia, the Israeli army thrust into southern Lebanon, killed upward of 40 alleged Palestinian terrorists, captured 20 more, destroyed several guerrilla bases, and withdrew to Israel within 48 hours.

As military actions go, this one was quick and efficient. It appears to have accomplished its purpose — to protect Israel's northern border.

That Israel found it necessary to re-enter Lebanon, foraying out of the security zone it has imposed on that unhappy country, is without doubt regrettable.

The action will not make Secretary of State George Shultz's peace initiative any easier.

But let's not focus on Israel as to blame. It belongs, if anywhere, with the Palestinian radicals (backed by Syria, Iran and the Kremlin) who refuse to negotiate with Israel, and who use the Palestinian refugees as pawns in the bloody, cynical game of Mideast power politics.

The Providence (R.I.) Journal-Bulletin

U.S. needs anti-alcohol education

Anyone watching TV is likely to get the impression that you can guzzle down alcohol like soda pop and still shoot straight, beat up the bad guys, and rescue the heroine from a fate worse than death.

Over the years, this constant portrayal of continuous drinking as part of the American lifestyle has made it part of the lifestyle.

In the process, alcoholism has become the biggest drug-related killer of Americans during the past two generations.

Perhaps it is time to address the problem of alcohol the same way the U.S. surgeon general handled tobacco addiction. He did not treat cigarette smoking as a moral problem but as a menace to the health and welfare of the whole people.

A similar campaign to educate and depopularize the use of alcohol might be equally effective.

Carlsbad (N.M.) Current-Argus

Aliens should be told their rights

The importance of a federal court ruling last month on refugees from El Salvador is all the more important and appropriate in the light of the confusion surrounding the closing of applications for amnesty under the new immigration law.

U.S. District Judge David V. Kenyon has made permanent an injunction requiring the Immigration and Naturalization Service to inform Salvadorans of their rights when they come into custody.

There has been, Kenyon said, a "pattern and practice of pressuring Salvadorans to accept voluntary departure" from the United States.

Kenyon ordered the INS once again to inform the Salvadorans of their right to apply for political asylum, their right to counsel and their right to access to a public telephone.

The providing of information concerning these basic rights should be standard operating procedure for processing all undocumented aliens.

Los Angeles Times

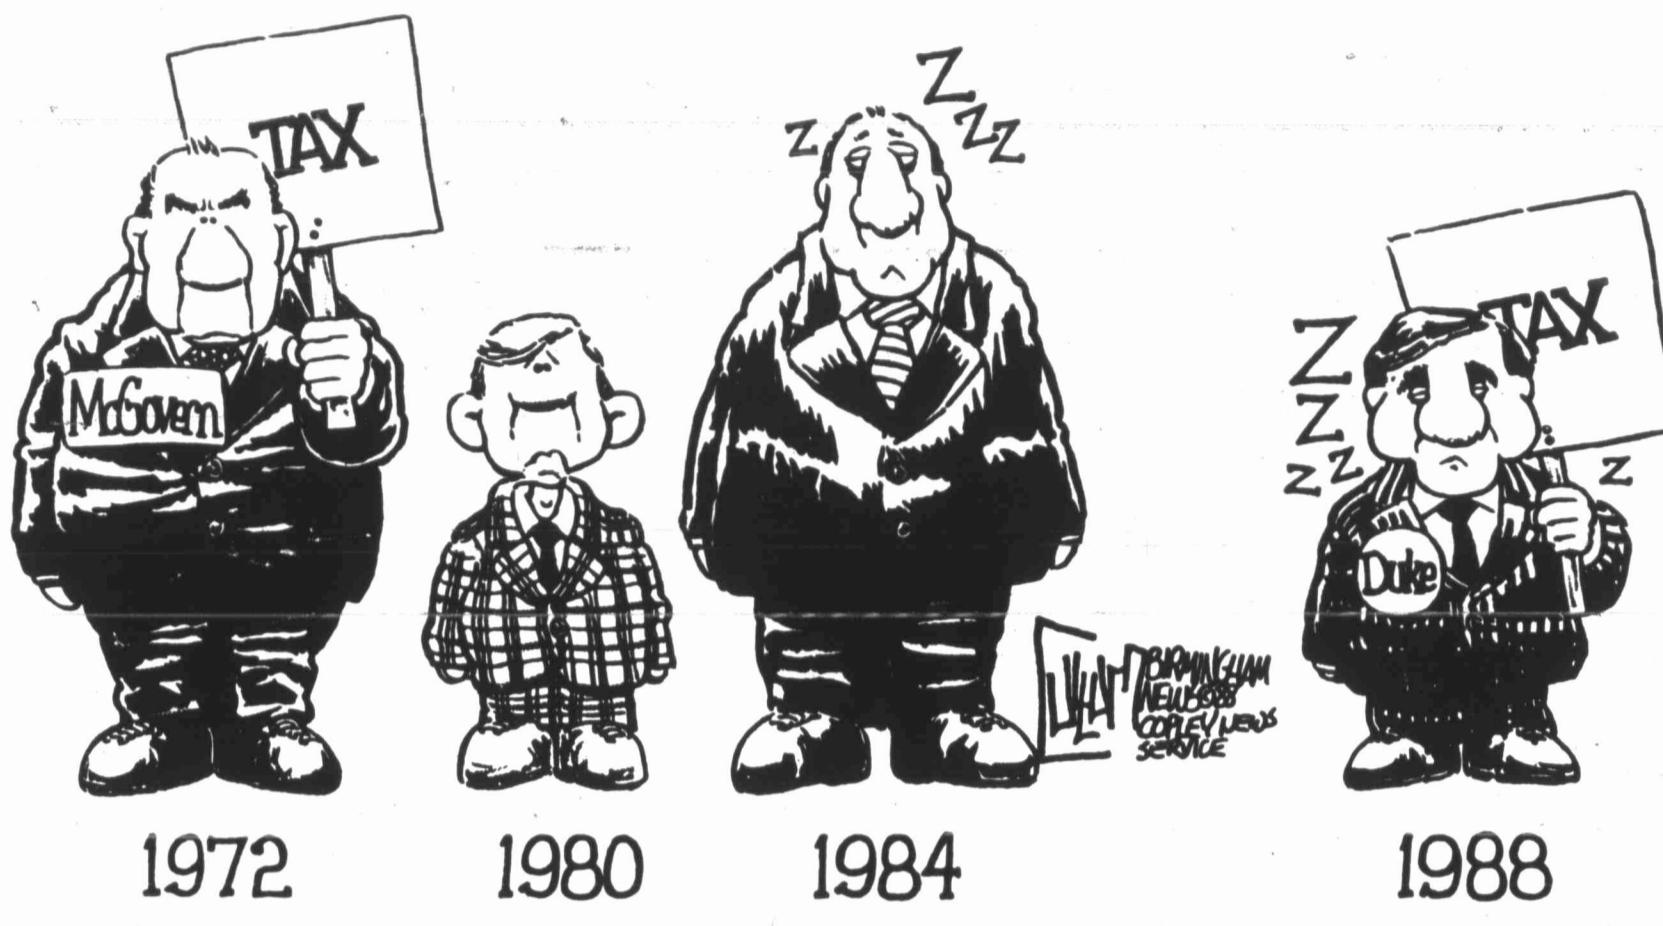

Astrology discovery contradictory

President Reagan is as resilient a politician as there is. But with only about eight months left in his second four-year term as president, there may not be enough time for him to live down his latest embarrassment.

There has been some straight-faced disappointment expressed. But many of Reagan's critics have been chuckling since last week's disclosure that Nancy Reagan reportedly used astrology to determine the timing of the president's speeches and travel.

We find it odd that Reagan, a supporter of creationism and prayer in public schools, is linked with a practice denounced by some religious denominations.

Sioux Falls (S.D.) Argus Leader

Landbogged in the U.S.A.

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

At the annual meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics in Washington last week, one felt the mix of pride and despair. The exhibit rooms were crowded with sketches of the future in space, a space dominated by American instruments.

But there was the sense of the window-shopper. Most of what the visitor saw was not yet built, or scheduled. Meanwhile, the Russians are plodding along, contriving and executing feats of space wizardry that their poor cousins in America only dream about.

It seemed hard to recall the day when we landed on the moon and it was generally accepted that the colonization of space was the manifest destiny of the United States.

The visitor stared at a miniature facsimile of the fatal Challenger. "Do they yet know for sure what caused it to — explode?" "Oh, yes. We knew that almost immediately. Within a week or two."

That was surprising, but it turned out that what brought the Challenger down was exactly what had been conjectured the very day of its destruction. It was too cold. The rings separating the compartments were frozen, and as the huge bus worked its way, straining and groaning, to achieve glide altitude, its hull worked but could not absorb the little twists and turns required. If the temperature had been 10 or 15 degrees warmer, it wouldn't have had any difficulty whatever.

"What would the Russians have done in such circumstances?" the visitor asked. The scientist smiled. "The Russians would have been up with the same Challenger design two weeks later. They'd just have waited until the weather warmed up a bit."

What we have done is substantially to remodel the Challenger, imposing on it every species of life-protecting device imaginable. Does that include an ejection capsule? The answer to that question is not simple.

There are means by which astronauts can seek to escape a defective missile launch, but technicians have not been able absolutely to ascertain at what moment the astronauts aboard the fated Challenger were disabled.

"It's entirely possible that one or more of them were alive when they hit the water." That grisly thought is leavened by the knowledge that their death contributed to the thought given to the amount of time an astronaut would have at his disposal before triggering the escape mechanism. "But you know," the scientist said, "what happens in these circumstances is that you get a book of specifications that the succeeding model will need to adhere to. Now, I am not exaggerating when I tell you that no one reads all those specifications. No one can read them all."

How then are they made up? "They are an accumulation. Everything Committee A has ever written or said is there, plus everything written by Committee B, plus the life work of Committee C — and by the time you get to the end of the line, you have a volume no man can carry, let alone read and act on."

What happens then? "What happens is that if whoever passes on your model is in a mood to get you, he knows very well he can reach into that book of specifications and find something that doesn't fit. But even if everything did fit, you don't have a guarantee that there won't be another life lost. When you drive home tonight, you have no guarantee of the kind some congressional committees would like you to come up with that you will reach the hotel without some fatal accident."

William J. Broad of The New York Times recently listed the projects outlined by the Reagan administration for space, and commented ruefully on their progress. Alex Roland, a former NASA historian now at Duke University, was quoted. "All of the Reagan projects are in jeopardy, first, because of lack of consistent, compelling vision, and second, because of the failure to shepherd them through the bureaucracy and Congress."

As recently as 1986, Mr. Reagan was talking about the new "Orient Express," which would "take off from Dulles Airport and accelerate up to 25 times the speed of sound, attaining low earth orbit or flying in Tokyo within two hours." Well, the prototype of that express has been postponed to 1995. Our space station, envisioned as an $8 billion venture, is now thought to come in at $32 billion and to be completed in 1997 (if ever).

And the principal casualty is the Strategic Defense Initiative. They speak of deploying it in its earliest form in 1997 at the earliest. And Congress balks over the money spent.

It's easiest to blame the Challenger for the demoralization of our space program, but probably 1971 was the critical year. It was then that Congress decided against completing work on a supersonic transport (our Concorde). We found ourselves in those confusing years looking out into space and retreating. The results of that retreat could be devastating.

Stress

Can you pass the ultimate test?

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Connie Chung was on television recently with a special titled "Stressed to Kill," which dealt with what causes stress and how we must learn to cope with it or else.

Connie Chung even gave a stress test, and viewers were asked to take it in order to find out just how much stress was in their lives.

I got a lot of stress just sitting through that stupid test, which simply wasn't detailed enough. The questions were much too general — e.g., "How much control do you have over your life and how upset do you get when things go wrong?"

You want a stress test? I'll give you a stress test. I am a screaming, Type-A personality, and I know more about stress than just about anybody, especially Connie Chung, who seemed perfectly relaxed during the program and probably never wanted to kill anybody who was in front of her in the passing lane on the freeway going 40.

Lewis Grizzard

Read each of the following scenarios or situations. If any of them make you nervous, impatient, want to kill, scream or bang your head against the wall, you're stressed out just like me and anybody else who answers the phone and finds out it's a wrong number and tries to make the person on the other end feel like a complete idiot:

1. You planned a vacation in Panama.
2. You have a new boss and he is a born-again Christian.
3. You live in a trailer park in Tornado Alley.

4. You are second in an intersection attempting to turn left. The car in front of you, however, will not pull forward enough so that when the light changes you can sneak through in order to be on time for your meeting with your wife's attorney.

5. You go to a drive-thru window at a McDonald's and ask for coffee, and some 14-year-old with terminal zits asks you eight times if you'd like to have french fries with that.

6. You are a baseball fan and your two favorite teams are the Baltimore Orioles and the Atlanta Braves.

7. You've moved into a new neighborhood with your two cats, Fifi and Shantelle, only to find out the guy next door has two pit bulls named Fireball and Killer.

8. You have been named program chairman of your Rotary Club and you have to line up interesting speakers all year and you

9. You take everything Ralph Nader has to say seriously.

10. Your best customer has invited you to play with him in his club's member/guest golf tournament and you've just developed the shanks.

11. You are sitting at an intersection and a bunch of kids are collecting money for charity, and you've got just enough cash for the six-pack you left home to buy.

12. You have a friend who works in a doctor's office and she called to let you know your lover came by for some blood tests her doctor ordered.

13. You gave an insider stock tip to Ed Meese, or your cholesterol count is higher than the Dow.

14. You're the captain of an oil tanker.
15. You're a Democrat. Now, if you'll excuse me, I'm late for a flight on Eastern.

Ban could be costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on imports of strategic metals from South Africa would cost the U.S. economy at least $1.85 billion a year and bring shortages of a key component of auto pollution control equipment, according to a Bureau of Mines study.

About 94 percent of the costs would result from a cutoff of South African shipments of platinum and rhodium, with the rest spread among other metals including palladium, manganese, chromium, titanium and vanadium, the study said.

Platinum, palladium and rhodium are essential constituents of pollution-control catalytic converters on automobiles in the United States and Japan. Other members of the platinum group are ruthenium, iridium and osmium.

For all the metals in question, South Africa is either the largest or second-largest producer in the world. The United States imports half to all its supplies of all of them, though not entirely from South Africa for any one. The Soviet Union is a major supplier of many of the metals, and the study warned that dependence on Soviet supplies would increase if South African metals weren't available.

Man slain in compactor

ELDERSBURG, Md. (AP) — A 19-year-old man was killed after he was dumped from a trash bin into a trash truck and crushed by the hydraulic compactor, police said.

Kenneth Wayne Knight of Finksburg apparently had been sleeping early Saturday in the trash bin, located behind a movie theater, said David A. Briscoe of the state police.

Knight's body carried no identification, so police were not able to identify the body and notify his family for about 12 hours, Briscoe said.

Police said the death was accidental, but an investigation was continuing, Briscoe said.

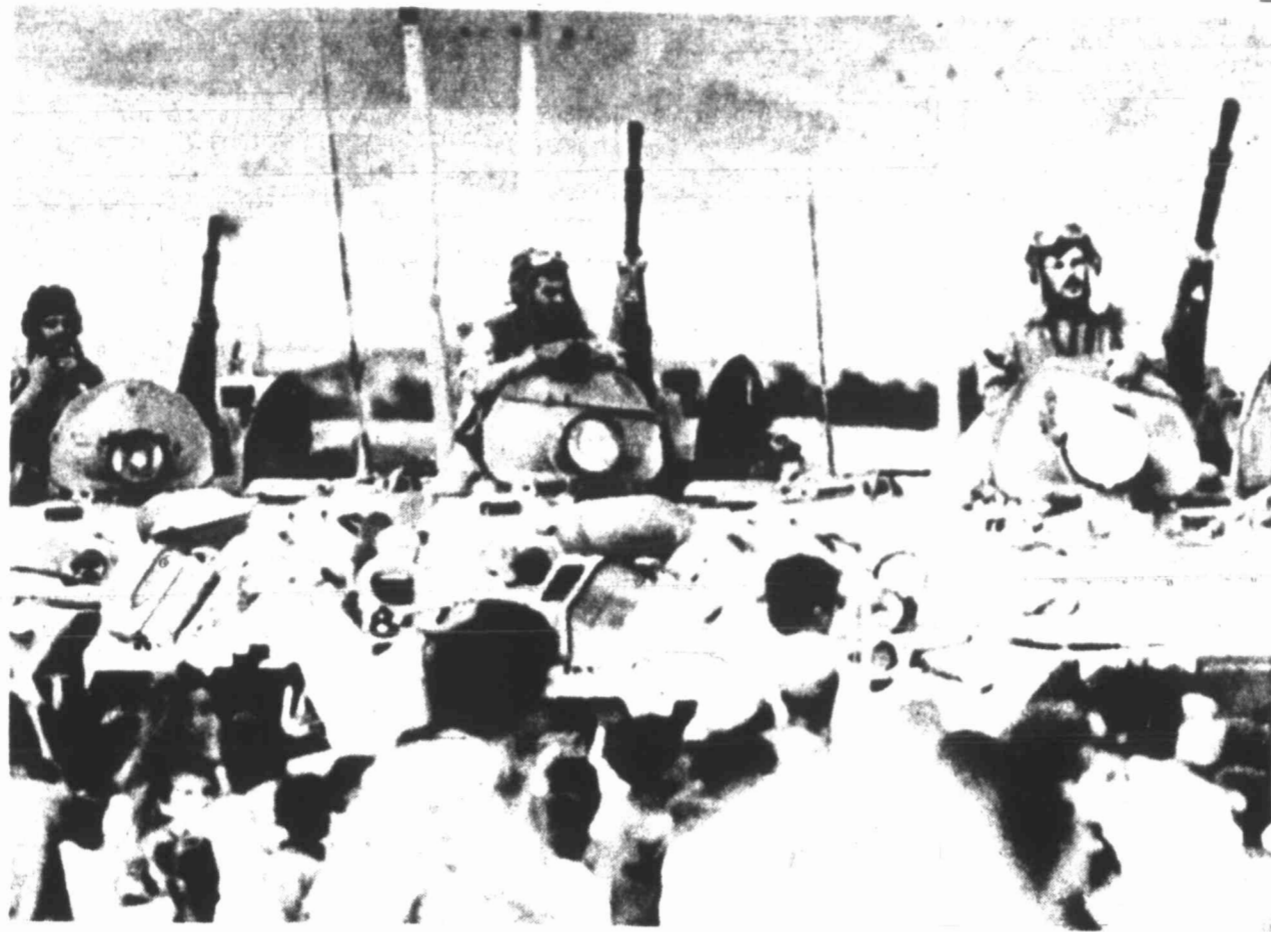

Results of an autopsy were not available Sunday night, he said.

Arms linked to Bush

NEW YORK (AP) — A spokesman for George Bush dismissed a report in Newsweek that the vice president's national security adviser was the Washington contact for a Contra arms-supply operation bankrolled by drug money.

The magazine reported Sunday that arms dealer Richard J. Brenneke had said in a sworn deposition to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee that Donald Gregg was the Washington contact for the enterprise, called Arms Supermarket.

Bush presidential campaign spokesman Pete Teeley said Sunday he believed the allegation had been raised before, and that Gregg had said he had not spoken with Brenneke. "Gregg has denied that," Teeley said.

Stark attack

Blast awoke the nation to Gulf War

WASHINGTON (AP) — For one hour on the night of May 17, 1967, it was business as usual for the crew and officers of the USS Stark after being told a jet was flying their way.

During that 60 minutes, the Stark steamed through Persian Gulf waters on a routine picket patrol, leisurely tracking the fighter it had been told was "assumed friendly, assumed Iraqi."

Then war came. Two Exocet missiles slammed into the guided-missile frigate, 30 seconds apart. The first was a dud. The second left 37 sailors dead, almost sank the ship and snapped once and for all the public's somnolence about the Iran-Iraq war.

Americans had died in the Persian Gulf. One year later, the Stark sits dockside at Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula, Miss., receiving the finishing touches of an overhaul that will cost an estimated $100 million. The careers of two of her officers — including the skipper — have come to a forced end.

Iraq said its fighter pilot mistakenly fired on the Stark — thinking it was a tanker carrying oil for archenemy Iran. Iraq has pledged to make restitution, although no money has yet changed hands and probably won't for years.

More than two dozen U.S. Navy ships now operate in and around the gulf, escorting U.S. tankers as well as 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers reregistered to fly the American flag. The convoy work began despite congressional opposition spawned by the Stark incident.

Perhaps the Stark's most important legacy, however, has been a change in attitude within the military — the Navy has made the transition to a wartime footing in the Persian Gulf, with no end in sight.

Skippers are authorized to shoot first and ask questions later. U.S. ships are now cleared to come to the aid of neutral merchant vessels in certain circumstances. Four different battles have been fought with Iranian forces.

"There are really two U.S. navies — one for peace and one for war. The difference is mental readiness," Dr. Michael Vlahos, director of the State Department's Center for the Study of Foreign Affairs, observed recently.

31 killed in explosion

BEIJING (AP) — Thirty-one people were killed last month when a young farmer, upset after a fight with his mother, set off dynamite in a room crowded with people watching television.

The Hebei Daily, in a report seen in Beijing today, said 18 others were injured in the April 14 blast in Yujia village in the central Hebei province.

It said the "rare and catastrophic" explosion was set off by Yu Xiugang, 21, and linked it to an argument he had the previous day with his mother.

Yu bought five batteries and installed an igniter to sticks of dynamite he had, the report said. That evening he went to the home of Yu Mengjuan, where 50 people had gathered to watch a film on television.

The daily said Yu set off the dynamite, killing himself and 30 others. It was not clear whether Yu Mengjuan was his mother and whether she was killed in the blast.

Televisions are still rare in many parts of rural China, and it is common for crowds to congregate at the homes of people with TVs.

Suicide sparks fighting

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Hundreds of charging students hurled firebombs and rocks at riot police today after a student committed ritual suicide to demand the release of all political prisoners.

Fighting occurred at Korea and Sungkyunkwan universities in different parts of Seoul after police fired tear gas to stop 1,200 students marching into the streets to honor the death of Cho Sung-man, 24.

"Down with the military dictatorship," students screamed as they pelted riot police with firebombs that exploded in sheets of flaming gasoline. No serious injuries were reported.

At least 3,000 students and dissidents staged peaceful protests at other colleges and at Myongdong Cathedral, where Cho stabbed himself in the stomach Sunday before jumping from the top of a three-story building.

Hundreds of mourners, some of them weeping, lit incense or left white and yellow flowers at a makeshift altar outside the cathedral. Students marched around the cathedral compound shouting slogans and speakers urged passersby to fight the government.

Temple siege continues

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Security forces today stepped up pressure on Sikh extremists holed up in the Golden Temple, pounding two lookout towers with machinegun fire and incendiary bullets amid calls for the gunmen to surrender.

Seven Sikhs who surrendered on Sunday were brought to the complex to appeal to comrades still inside the holy shrine.

Robertson sets stage for Bush; now bowing out of political race

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Pat Robertson, the former television evangelist who failed to turn the fervent support of his "invisible army" into a significant share of Republican votes, was formally ending his presidential bid today.

At the outset of the 1988 presidential race, Robertson was a wild card.

The Republican establishment nervously eyed his evangelical followers and his hefty war chest and wondered what kind of a showing he might make. Since many Robertson supporters were new to the political process, his potential impact was difficult to gauge.

In the end, Robertson spent $22 million and gained only 46 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Robertson set the stage for his departure last week by endorsing the Republican nominee-to-be, George Bush, who already has a mathematical lock on the nomination.

He was holding a news conference today at his home to make official what has been clear to observers for months — that Robertson is not in contention for the Republican presidential nomination.

The former television evangelist was expected to hang onto his delegates until the convention, then release them to Bush on the first ballot.

The high point of the Robertson campaign came early on — the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses, where he beat out Bush for second place, behind Kansas Sen. Bob Dole.

But in the next big battle — the New Hampshire primary — Robertson finished behind not only Bush and Dole, but also behind

New York Rep. Jack Kemp and former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont.

Even then, Robertson gave every indication that he expected to make a comeback in the South, with its March 8 mega-primary.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he told his supporters after the disappointing showing in New Hampshire, "tomorrow I go into the South, and then we are going to be playing in my own backyard."

His backyard proved an unfriendly place. In the Southern primaries, he finished no better than second place — in Texas — and was third in his home state of Virginia.

Robertson continued to do well in the caucus states, winning in Hawaii, Nevada, Washington and Alaska, and doing well in Minnesota and Alaska.

But by mid-March Robertson was no longer even competing in states with primaries. He concentrated his scaled-down campaign on the caucuses, started talking about 1992, and about making his mark at the Republican National Convention in New Orleans this summer.

"I am the true conservative candidate and I will bring that voice to the convention," he said. Robertson said he hoped to shape the party's platform, bringing it in line with his conservative views.

"I want a platform like the 1964 platform — for school prayer, against abortion, for family values," he said.

The Robertson campaign was not without its other-worldly moments. On Easter Sunday, Robertson told a Denver congregation his presidential bid was divinely inspired.

Other signposts on the Robertson campaign trail:

- He sued former Rep. Paul McCloskey for libel when McCloskey said Robertson used the influence of his father — then a U.S. senator from Virginia — to avoid combat in the Korean War. After some messy preliminaries, Robertson dropped the suit because it was to go to trial on Super Tuesday. He was ordered to pay court costs.

- He contended it was unfair and bigoted to describe him as a former television evangelist, although that was how he became famous. He said cable businessman or religious broadcaster would be more accurate.

- His claim, in a New Hampshire debate, that there were nuclear missiles in Cuba aimed at this country. Robertson later said he had no firsthand information, but insisted that "nobody really knows." The contention was denied by the White House, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and others.

- His charges that Planned Parenthood founder Margaret Sanger "wanted to sterilize blacks, Jews, mental defectives, and fundamentalist Christians." Planned Parenthood officials dismissed the allegation. Scholars who have studied Sanger's writings said there was no basis for the claim.

Robertson has said he will return to the television network he founded nearly 30 years ago.

Off to the races Town getting ready for duck derby

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) — To a lexicon already crowded with such phrases as lucky duck, sitting duck, lame duck and even dead duck, a group of Taylor residents wants to add another — speeding duck.

They're hoping for lots of speeding ducks May 21 at DuckFest, a day of community activities topped off with a three-hour duck derby.

"Duck racing obviously will be the highlight of the day," says Debra Gore of the Taylor Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring DuckFest.

DuckFest also will include a race for humans, a 5-kilometer run called the "Duck Waddle," a duck egg relay and other activities natural in a town where the high school sports teams are the Fighting Ducks.

But the duck racing has captured imaginations.

"There has been a lot of enthusiasm around," says Charles Schulz, Taylor Daily Press president and publisher and one of those Ms. Gore credits with helping get the duck derby off the ground. "We're going to have some fun," he said.

The racing ducks themselves won't get off the ground. Instead, they will zip down wire-enclosed, 16-foot-long runways into a fenced catching area. When released, ducks instinctively tively run from their handlers toward the open end of the chute.

While the birds run, handlers are allowed to encourage them by crawling along a ramp above the runway and making any kind of noise they figure will motivate their racers.

But if the verbal encouragement rolls off their birds' backs, handlers are stuck. The rules say that once started, a duck can't be touched, and nothing can be done to harm the bird before, during or after the race.

"They run. They don't swim and they don't fly," Ms. Gore said. "I have been told that mallards are fast. The fastest age for a duck seems to be about 6 months old."

The Taylor competition is being patterned after the Great American Duck Race held each year in Deming, N.M., where hundreds of racing ducks and up to 20,000 spectators have gathered.

During Taylor's races, ducks will run in three-fowl heats to decide which birds advance to the next round.

"It's just like your basic track meet," Ms. Gore explained. "They will find the top ones from each heat. When it's over, we'll have the fastest duck."

And word is, racing ducks can really waddle. Good times for the 16-foot dash are under 1.5 seconds, organizers say.

Ms. Gore said Taylor residents are displaying some good humor as well as competitive spirit.

"We're having a good time getting people ready. We've urged different civic groups to compete, we're trying to get television sportscasters to come and race," she said. "We have ducks all over — live ducks, duck signs, ducks on bumper stickers. Somebody was even talking about making up one of those little yellow car-window signs: 'Duck in trunk'."

Practice sessions have been held, and enterprising breeders are getting their ducks in a row for would-be racers who lack an entry.

"A group will be renting ducks for those who don't have one," Ms. Gore said.

Rules require that each racing duck be named. Ms. Gore said that has generated a long list of suggestions, including the intimidating moniker "Winner or Dinner."

The pending competition has even spawned some hard-billed tactics.

"One lady is keeping her duck under her house," Ms. Gore said. "She's afraid somebody will steal it."

Garden club elects officers

The Planters Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Nadine Hodnett, for a covered dish luncheon, with new member, Mrs. Arlyne Johnston, present.

Members answered roll call by naming a new plant that she plans to put in her garden in the coming year.

Mrs. Doris Guy reported on the nominating committee. Officers elected for the year are: Mrs. Ruth Sweatt, president; Mrs. Allie Moore, vice president; Mrs. Nadine Hodnett, secretary/reporter; and Mrs. Joy Fortenberry, treasurer.

Plans made for ceremony

American Gold Star Mothers met recently for a monthly meeting at the home of Martha Moody.

Coffee time and fellowship were enjoyed before the meeting.

Odell Turner presided and opened the meeting according to ritual. Edna Peacock opened the Bible and voiced the ritual prayer. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Elida Hernandez.

A monetary gift was pledged to the walking-jogging trail to be built at the Veterans Administration Medical Center for the use of the patients.

Chapter Mothers will attend the Memorial Day ceremony May 30 at 10 a.m. in front of the VAMC with Congressman Stenholm as guest speaker.

Edna Peacock displayed a decorative handcraft made of plastic knit and yarn, including notebook holders, book markers and fly swatters.

The next meeting will be June 9 at the home of Luz Abrea, 1106 Nolan St.

Reader more likely to frown when told to smile

DEAR ABBY: I could have written the letter from "Insulted," who was always being told to smile! All my life I've had people walk up to me and say, "Who are you mad at?" Abby, I'm not mad at anybody; I guess I just have one of those sad-looking faces.

You were right to say that most people have a serious look — or even a frown — on their faces when they're deep in thought. That's me, but I don't think I should go around grinning like a Cheshire cat for no reason at all.

Thanks for understanding that it hurts to be constantly reminded to smile. Maybe if you print this, people will think twice before they say it.

SAD FACE IN TWIN FALLS
DEAR SAD: I never realized until I ran that letter from "Insulted" how many people had the same problem. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: At last, I am no longer alone. I, too, am one of those people with sad-looking faces who are always being told to smile. Thanks for saying, "Folks who go around smiling all the time for no reason at all are often followed by a non-smiling person with a butterfly happy heart.

SACRAMENTO SOURPUSS
DEAR ABBY: Perhaps the person who is constantly told to smile should read what Dale Carnegie had to say in his book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People":
THE VALUE OF A SMILE
It costs nothing, but creates much;

It enriches those who receive, without impoverishing those who give;
It happens in a flash, and the memory of it sometimes lasts forever;
None are so rich they can get along without it, and none so poor but are richer for its benefits

It creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in a business, and is the countersign of friends.

It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and nature's best antidote for trouble.

Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is of no earthly good to anybody until it is given away.

Nobody needs to smile so much as those who have none left to give. Smile, smile, smile.

Hawks lose heartbreaker

ARLINGTON — "The way we played, we didn't deserve to win," summed up disappointed Howard baseball coach Bill Griffin, after Panola, overcoming a six run deficit, edged the oft-erring Hawks 8-7 in a smacking good 12 inning thriller here Sunday afternoon, that eliminated the Region V champs from the state junior college tournament.

"There is no winner in a game like this, with a team like that (three time champion San Jacinto), waiting for you," deadpanned Griffin, indicating the powerful Gators (59-7) the only unbeaten team in the tourney, were not about to lose two games in-a-row to the club surviving the loser's bracket.

"Sure enough, Griffin proved to be a prophet as San Jacinto handled Panola for the state title, earning a ticket to the Junior College World Series, May 28-June 4 at Grand Junction, Colo.

"We had chances to win this game in the ninth, 10, and 11th innings," winced Griffin, referring to a blown bases loaded opportunity in the 10th, and a runner being cut down at the plate in the 11th.

"He (Panola left fielder Jelf Helm) had to make a perfect throw to home to get the runner," said Griffin.

Actually, Howard appeared in early command — ace left hander Garth Buresh was rocking along with a two-hit, 7-1 lead in the sixth — and Griffin and his staff were probably planning a location for San Jac.

However, the Ponies, who had ousted Northwood 8-6, late Saturday night for the spot opposite Howard, scored five runs in a nightmarish sixth, and added a tying unearned tally in the seventh, to tie the game at 7-7.

The two teams, receiving splendid relief pitching, rocked along until Dale Priny, cracked a game winning single in the 12th.

J.J. Munoz, a dazzling southpaw, pitched the final two and two-thirds innings, served a one-out walk to Jose Rubiera in the bottom half of the inning, but retired Gerald Camara and Randy Deal, on long fly balls, to record his 15th victory without defeat.

Greg Kroeger, worked four innings in relief, and the only run the hard throwing Hawk gave up in three tournament appearances, made him loser. He finished 9-3.

Despite the fact Howard outhit Panola 21-11, the Hawks managed only five hits after the third inning. More importantly, they were also kept off the board during those nine frames.

Howard's big-bat offense, batted only .211 (30 of 142) in four tournament games. And that figure was hyped by those dozen hits in game number four. The Hawks averaged only .191 in the first three.

"I had it at .198, but it was somewhere around there," remarked Griffin.

Howard came into the tournament with the highest team batting average (.369) and earned run average (.473). While the hitter for the most part, took the weekend off, the hurlers allowed only 13 runs in three four games, and just seven were earned.

"Our pitchers did well," praised the coach.

However the only players doing anything at all with the lumber were Rubiera, who hit 400 (6 of 15); Jay Williams, .357 (5 of 14) and Deal, .353 (6 of 17).

But Phil Longo hit .000 (0 of 11), Camara batted .111 (2 of 18), Ernesto Castro, .117 (2 of 17); Joey Camarillo, .181 (2 of 11); Joey Allen, .200 (3 of 15) and Darren Glenn, .214 (3 of 14), left all their bats on the bus, hitting .150 points less, than they did during the

Coahoma relay eighth

AUSTIN — It was a rough state track meet for the Coahoma Bulldogettes 1600 meter relay this weekend.

The Bulldogettes, who ran a 4:03.62 to finish second at the regional meet, ran a 4:07.6 in Austin to finish out of the running in seventh place.

Relay members were Nancy Hardison, Shona Drewery, Jo Hudson and Tiffany Ward. Ward, a freshman, is the lone underclasswoman on the team.

"I was disappointed, I really don't know why we didn't run better than the 4:03 we ran at regional," said Coahoma coach Truman Meissner. "The kids were real excited, they wanted to run and do well. It was just one of those nights."

"I really thought with us running at night, we could go under four minutes. But I'm real proud of the kids. Just to make it to the state meet is an honor," said Meissner.

In other Crossroads Country action, Grady junior shot putter Naomi Morales threw the shot 35-4 to finish fourth.

"Naomi competed well," said Grady coach Ted Bedwell. "She beat the girl from Booker that had beaten her at regional. I'm sure the leg was bothering her (Morales, pulled muscle), but she went out there, did the best she could, and didn't complain. Most of the girls that beat her are seniors, so we'll have a good chance next year," said Bedwell.

Garden City sophomore runner Guillermo Morales finished fifth in the 3200 meters in a time of 10:07.00, his best time of the year. Morales also ran a 4:39.4 to finish fifth in the 1600 meters.

"The state meet didn't affect him at all," said Garden City coach Sam Scott. "He (Morales) went out and ran well. There was some fast competition. He knocked 13 seconds off his 3200 meter time."

Forsan 110 meter hurdler Brandy Bryan ran a 14.60 to finish fifth.

"That was his second best time of the year," said Forsan coach Jan East. "I'm satisfied, he did as good as he could do," said East of his senior hurdler.

Stanton senior sprinter finished eighth in the 100 meters.

Gymnast remains paralyzed

TOKYO (AP) — Julissa Gomez of San Antonio, Texas, a petite 15-year-old gymnast who damaged her cervical vertebrae in a tragic accident here 11 days ago, remains paralyzed but is conscious, a sports official said Monday.

Ryoji Itsukaichi, a spokesman for the Japan Gymnastics Association, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the condition of the American teen-ager "remained almost unchanged" since the accident May 5.

He said she was receiving oxygen because she has been unable to breathe regularly, and that her arms and legs remain paralyzed.

Itsukaichi quoted a doctor at the Tokyo University Hospital as saying "it is too early to say whether she can recover from the injuries, but since she is young, she may have a chance."

Jazz scare champs; but lose

By The Associated Press
The Utah Jazz caught a wave of emotion and rode it far enough to scare the Los Angeles Lakers.

On Sunday, the Lakers said, "Enough." They stormed back from a nine-point deficit in the third quarter and evened their Western Conference playoff series 2-2 with a 113-100 victory at Salt Lake City.

"We didn't allow them to get up by 10 or 15 points because once they get the lead they play on spirit and emotion," said James Worthy, who scored 21 of his 29 in the first half. "We ran the ball a lot more today and Jazz players who had to go 40 or 45 minutes had to be a little more affected by fatigue."

The Lakers, seeking to become the first team since 1968-69 to repeat as NBA champions, turned on the power after Utah's Bobby Hansen hit two 3-point shots early in the third period and helped put Utah ahead 65-56 with 9:05 left in the quarter.

"We knew that sooner or later if we kept the score close, we'd get our game going," the Lakers' Byron Scott said. "The Jazz were riding high on emotion, but I think the edge has turned. When we were down by nine, we didn't give up. We didn't get our heads down like we did in Game 3."

Atlanta won Game 3 of its Eastern series with the Celtics after losing twice in Boston. The Hawks won 110-92 as Dominique Wilkins had 25 points and Kevin Willis 23.

Detroit took a 3-1 lead over Chicago with its second straight road victory, a 96-77 decision, holding high-scoring Michael Jordan to 23 points. Dallas tied its Western series with Denver at 2-2 with a 124-103 home win behind Mark Aguirre's 34 points.

Boston is at Atlanta tonight, while Utah is at the Lakers and Dallas goes to Denver on Tuesday night. The Bulls-Pistons series resumes Wednesday in Pontiac, Mich.

Lakers 113, Jazz 100
The Jazz, trying to advance past the second round for the first time, looked like they might grab a 3-1 lead in the series. But the Lakers, behind stars Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson, took control midway into the third period, outscoring the Jazz 28-11 for the remainder of the quarter. Johnson scored 10 points during the quarter and Abdul-Jabbar's patented sky hook was unstoppable.

Mark Eaton, who held Abdul-Jabbar to 16 combined points in Utah's two victories, got into foul trouble as Abdul-Jabbar finished with 20 points.

"Any time you get Eaton out, it's a factor," Scott said. Eaton played only 21 minutes in the second half and was sidelined with Utah ahead 69-67 and the Lakers in the midst of their run.

"With Eaton in foul trouble, it gave us more options, but I don't think that was really a factor in this game," Scott said. "We came back like true champs. We are the champs and I think the last couple of games we forgot about that."

Karl Malone led Utah with 29 points.

Knight will stay at Indiana

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — After spending the weekend mulling over an offer from the University of New Mexico, Bobby Knight apparently will remain as basketball coach at Indiana, according to a published report.

Knight, quoted in today's Star Tribune, said he told Indiana University president Thomas Ehrlich of his decision Sunday night.

"The first thing I told Mr. Ehrlich was that I was staying at Indiana," Knight told the Minneapolis newspaper during a telephone interview Sunday.

Should Knight indeed step aside as a candidate, Dave Bliss, a former Knight protege, apparently would become the leading candidate. Dave Bliss is currently coach at Southern, Methodist University.

New Mexico athletic director John Koenig, who conducted interviews with Knight at Albuquerque last week, expressed surprise at the report when contacted at Anaheim, Calif., by the Associated Press.

"We're still talking," Koenig said.

He added that he assumed Knight would have contacted him had the coach reached a decision on his coaching future.

"I've received messages all day," Koenig said, "and there wasn't one from him."

Ken Johns, an influential Albuquerque businessman who was close to the UNM-Knight talks as a member of the university's board of regents, said he "hadn't heard anything at all. That's news to us."

Indiana University sports information director Kit Klingelhoffer, asked late Sunday to comment on the Minneapolis report, said: "I don't know anything about it." Knight, he added, "hasn't said anything to me."

Knight, whose teams won NCAA titles in 1976, 1981 and 1987, said in the newspaper interview that was no truth to reports of a rift between him and Ehrlich or of difficulties in recruiting.

"Any decision that I would have made to leave Indiana or get out of coaching would not be made because of people now at Indiana," he told the Star Tribune.

Knight did say he'd been considering leaving for personal reasons, but that he'd had no thought of doing so before the 1988-89 season.

He said he became interested in the New Mexico job, vacant since Gary Colson's forced resignation on April 26, after being criticized by Ehrlich and several faculty members for his televised comments comparing stress to rape. After the NBC show was aired, Ehrlich said Knight's comments were in "bad taste."

Although he is turning down the New Mexico offer, Knight described the job as one of the better ones in the country.

Local third in tourney

Local pro Phil Ringener finished third in the Pro Bowling Association Southwest Regional Bowling Tournament this weekend at Highland Lanes. This was Ringener's highest finish this season.

Winning the competition was Phil Trieto of El Paso. Second was Brian Hatton of Broken Arrow, Okla.

In the pro-am competition, Shellie Massie teamed with a professional to win first place. In the junior pro-am competition, Corey Elliott finished first. Deanna Johnson was second and John Paul Foster was third. (Complete results in scoreboard on 4-B).

Blue Jays nip Expos

In Teenage League baseball at Roy Anderson Complex, the Blue Jays defeated the Expos 4-2. Brian Sledge was winning hurler for the Blue Jays. He struck out 12, allowed three hits and was relieved by Klay Klatt. John Kennedy took the loss for the Expos.

Klatt worked his way out of a bases loaded jam in the last inning, thanks to a double play by second baseman Tony Taylor.

Bailey hits golf ace

Tuesday Dickie Bailey made a hole-in-one at the Big Spring Country Club Golf Course.

Bailey aced the par four, 318-yard nine hole. Witness was John Wilson.

Moe Coach of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Moe, who guided the Denver Nuggets to the Midwest Division title and their best record since entering the NBA in 1976, was named the league's Coach of the Year on Monday.

Moe received 41 of 80 votes from a national panel of media members.

Pat Riley, who coached the Los Angeles Lakers to a league-best record of 62-20, finished second with 25 votes. Doug Collins of Chicago and Mike Schuler of Portland tied for third with five votes apiece.

The Nuggets finished the regular season with a 54-28 record — 17 wins more than they had the previous year — despite injuries to Calvin Natt and Wayne Cooper.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY,
MAY 17, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Financial changes will work to your advantage. Two incomes will make life even easier! Look for new outlets for your managerial skills. Stress can be reduced by moderating your aggressive approach. Let others know when they have your full support. A change of residence could solve more than one problem. Do not despair over a romantic relationship. Time will make things right.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: boxer Sugar Ray Leonard, actor Dennis Hopper, author Stewart Alsop, Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, singer Birgit Nilsen, baseball coach Ozzie Virgil.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Charity work brings deep personal satisfaction. You are better off as a spectator in the political arena. Stick to what you do best. Concentrate on improving the bottom line in business.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may have too much ambition for those you work with. Put money needs first. A former romance could suddenly reignite. Look out!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take public transportation whenever possible today. Postpone signing agreements or deciding the terms of a contract. Playing for time will give you an advantage. Avoid rushing in where angels fear to tread.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If time is heavy on your hands, spend a few hours at the library. You could make a discovery that will bring both pleasure and cash. Consolidate last week's gains. Contact friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not ignore the seriousness of a financial or family situation. Quick action can eliminate danger. Beware of someone who may be trying to give you the fast shuffle in romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are talented at handling money and business negotiations today. Recognition comes for past achievements. Share the credit with those who deserve it. Your love life becomes more stable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Independence and originality net you new business, perhaps even a promotion. By being frank with superiors, you gain a sympathetic ear. Keep spending and eating within moderation. Self-control brings big benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Returning favors wins you respect. New career and business opportunities attract your attention. Working at a deliberate pace helps you avoid costly mistakes. Expect an exciting new relationship to be somewhat stormy.

STRINGTOWN — Several guards keep watch Sunday evening at the Mack Alford Correctional Center. The standoff at the prison is expected to end today.

Prisoners are to surrender today; $2.5 million damage

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer

STRINGTOWN, Okla. — Inmates agreed today to release their last two hostage guards and peacefully end a three-day prison uprising that did $2.5 million in damage, after officials promised that the surrender would be televised.

Officials also agreed to a demand from the approximately 20 inmates that three state legislators the convicts met with Sunday would witness today's surrender, said Department of Corrections spokesman Jerry Massie.

The agreement was reached after a guard held with the others since the uprising began was released late Sunday, officials said.

One inmate and one guard sustained minor injuries during the takeover of the overcrowded, medium-security Mack Alford Correctional Center.

After the surrender, the inmates were to be taken to another state penitentiary, Massie said.

Under the agreement, they were to let the hostages go after a van arrives to take them away, then come out of the dormitory where they have been holed up since late Friday, said prison spokeswoman Anita Trammell. Both hostages and inmates would be given medical examinations, she said.

In exchange for food and the earlier meeting with the three state lawmakers, the inmates late Sunday released prison Capt. Lewis McGee.

"He's tired, he's in good health. He's glad it's over with," Ms. Trammell said. She said the other hostages also were believed to be unharmed.

Authorities gave the convicts soft drinks, ice cream and cigarettes at their request, said corrections spokeswoman Joy Hadwiger. Temperatures in the area Sunday were in the low 90s.

The inmates' also demanded restoration of electricity and meetings with reporters and an American Civil Liberties Union attorney who has helped prisoners, Ms. Trammell said. Officials did not say if those demands would be met.

One of the three lawmakers, Rep. Walt Roberts, said late Sunday the convicts feared an overnight raid, but he did not believe that would happen.

"The DOC is not going to do this, but they don't know that," Roberts said. "All they see is razor wire, rifles, and the towers."

In addition to corrections officers, an 18-member Highway Patrol tactical unit and as many as 40 other patrol officers have kept watch on the prison.

On Sunday afternoon, two inmates took one hostage outside for less than 10 minutes and talked to officers through a fence.

The guard appeared to be all right, as did the other hostages seen earlier in the day, Ms. Trammell said.

The guard, Sgt. Harold Yoder, was used as a shield by inmates who worked to close a hole in the fence cut by prison officials to help other inmates surrender, she said.

She said the hostage takers told the 30 to 35 other inmates locked in the occupied south dorm that their lives would be in danger if they tried to leave. Ms. Trammell said, however, that those inmates said they didn't feel like hostages.

The insurgents hung sheets with messages written on them from the roof of the two-story south dormitory.

The first sheet said "White Power." A second said, "DOC Will Not Respond to Demands. They Have Lied to You the Public and Press." A third requested help from news reporters.

"I feel like the inmates did that for attention," Ms. Trammell said of the first sheet. "Also, I feel like we have some racists up there."

Of the three guards held Sunday, one was white, one black and one an American Indian.

There have been unconfirmed reports that a racial incident set off the violence at the 33-year-old prison.

According to authorities, the uprising began when officers tried to move five inmates to a maximum-security prison. The five reportedly had threatened other inmates who allegedly stole from them.

The inmates then seized eight hostages; five were released unharmed Saturday. A guard who was not taken hostage and an inmate sustained minor injuries.

Most of the prisoners who were routed from dormitories were transferred to other prisons.

Ms. Hadwiger said 150 were being held in a gymnasium area of the prison awaiting relocation.

The prison, located about 130 miles southeast of Oklahoma City, had 652 inmates when the rebellion began but an operational capacity of 492, officials said.

STRINGTOWN — Relatives of one of three Oklahoma prison guards being held hostage at the Mack Alford Correctional Center wait silently Saturday near the main gate of the facility.
