Crossroads weather

It will be partly cloudy and a little warmer through Friday with widely scattered thunderstorms. Highs today will be in the upper 80s. The lows tonight will be in the lower 60s. The highs Friday will be in the upper 80s to mid 90s. The high yesterday was 84, and the low was 61.

Critics happy over stalemate in Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican and Democratic senators hailed the collapse of U.S. efforts to negotiate Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's departure from Panama, and the country's anti-Noriega ambassador said today the United States should let Latin Americans solve the problem.

Secretary of State George Shultz told a hastily arranged news conference that Noriega had rejected U.S. proposals for his resignation as defense chief and his temporary departure from Panama.

But Kerry said, in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," that the negotiations to oust Noriega hurt U.S. foreign policy "and also sent a terrible message with respect to our ability to do something about the narcotics traffic."

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., on "CBS This Morning," urged the administration to start working with Latin American leaders on the matter and said no options for dealing with Noriega should be ruled out.

Dodd urged Panamanians to "keep pressure on General Noriega to realize that he's not safe when he leaves his country and not secure at home either."

Ambassador Juan Sosa said on CBS, "The United States should hold back and let other initiatives go forward."

Sosa said the Reagan administration negotiated in good faith but should not have dealt with a terrorist. "The problem is Noriega is not an honorable person," he said.

In another appearance, on NBC-TV's "Today," Sosa said, "I suggest that other initiatives, diplomatic initiatives, political initiatives that are on the drawing boards and are initiatives that Panamanians are putting together with other Latin American countries be given a chance, although I still doubt that Noriega has any intention whatsoever of relinquishing power."

Reaction to the collapse of the negotiations came as no surprise since criticism of the administration's stand had been widespread well before Shultz's announcement. The critics included Vice President George Bush, Justice Department officials, Panamanian opposition leaders and 86 senators. Perhaps the most biting comment was made by Sen. Alan

Grand jury to hear four murder cases

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

District Attorney Lanny Hamby said early today that he will take four capital murder cases to a June grand jury, but will delay three murder cases and an involuntary manslaughter case against a former Big Spring policeman for the July grand jury.

Hamby said he felt the case against former Big Spring police officer Dennis Dunn, charged with the April shooting of his wife Caryle, required more time for completion by the investigating Texas Ranger.

Hamby also said he felt recent parole hearings concerning two of the three murder suspects in the death of an Odessa man indicated previously-unknown weaknesses in that case, but that the Kimble cases "are ready to go."

"It is our intention now to present those cases to the grand jury, and to bring all four of them," Hamby said.

Charged with capital murder in the April 1 shooting of C. Vance Kimble, 61, a Big Spring radio personality, are Dennis Noggler, Patrick Newton, Michael Hodnett and Pamela Newton.

Kimble was found dead of a gunshot wound to the upper chest April 1. Sheriff's officers said items were missing from his house and the dead man's pockets had been pilfered; a Ford pickup and Chrysler automobile were missing from the residence.

Three of the defendants, Patrick and Pamela Newton and Hodnett, were arrested in Louisiana after Pamela attempted to use one of the dead man's credit cards. Noggler was arrested in Florida and returned to Big Spring.

Bonds of $100,000 were originally set for all four, but only Pamela Newton remains in jail today. Bonds for Hodnett, Noggler and Patrick Newton have been reduced to $50,000 each and all three were released.

Texas Rangers were called in to investigate the Dunn shooting and Dunn was suspended, then removed, from the police force. Hamby said he plans to present that case to a July grand jury.

"The Ranger told me he would try to have that case ready for this grand jury," Hamby said, "but I'm going to talk to him and tell him I will not present it to

Forsan principal heading out to pasture

By DEBBY CALLEY
Special to the Herald

Three decades after Forsan High School Principal Jack Woodley began his teaching career as history teacher and coach at Norton High School he'll take on a new challenge next month — raising and training horses.

It's a task he claims — with a smile — is similar to teaching, "except you don't have to deal with parents."

He and his wife Ann, diagnostician for Forsan ISD and several other area schools who is also retiring, will make their home in Voca, a small town near Brady. A major influence in the Woodleys' decision to settle in Voca, they said, is the horse racing track in Brady.

A graduate of Howard Payne and Sul Ross University, Woodley came to Forsan in 1971 as history teacher and football and track coach. Four years later, when acting high school Principal J.F. Poyner was named superintendent, Woodley assumed the principal's duties.

The prospect of retirement prompts no remorse for Woodley. "I'll miss the people, especially the kids, but I've been at this long enough, and I have my goals." His fondness for the district and the people he's worked with is obvious, saying: "I've had tremendous support from the parents. I've had parents defend me when nobody else would. The people have been really great."

Acting Junior High Principal George White, who will replace Woodley, said, "I hate to see him go. I coached against him when he was at Garden City and I was at Sterling City, and he was a great coach. He came here two years after I did, and we've been together since then. I'm going to miss him."

Parents, students and fellow teachers also expressed regret about Woodley's departure. Charlotte Dalton, mother of two students, said, "As a parent, I appreciate him. He's a good mediator, somebody the kids can relate to. They don't mind going to him with a problem because they know it won't go any farther."

Jan Stevens, a teacher at Forsan, expressed similar sentiments: "I appreciate Jack both as a professional and a friend. He was always there, backing me up, and I knew I could count on him. We just love them both and hate to see them go."

Former student Lane Salvato, who now attends Texas Tech, echoed this approval: "Jack is quite a guy. If you got into bad trouble, he'd beat you, but he'd still be your friend. He had a good relationship with the students." Kim Curry, who was a student of Woodley's more than 15 years ago, said: "He was always so understanding. He didn't put up with any nonsense, but he sure did encourage improvement."

The Woodleys' motivations for going into teaching are the same reasons they've stayed in the profession. "We just love kids," Jack explains. "When you're working with a problem child, and you know he's not listening — when you've given your best shot and you've lost him — it's depressing. Then, when he comes back two or three years later and says that the things you told him are what got him through, that makes it all worthwhile."

Ann feels the same way. "When you see some things are not working because of the complexities of the system, and you feel like you're spending less time educating and more time on bookwork, it's frustrating... There are no two kids alike, and they're always surprising you — the association with the kids, that's what it's all about."

Mrs. Woodley, a graduate of North Texas University and Texas Tech who began her teaching career 25 years ago, is looking forward to retirement. She says the plans are all made: "Oh, we've got it all worked out. Jack is going to raise horses and I'm going to shovel horse manure!"

Three local schools get superior ratings

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Three Big Spring schools were among 342 Texas campuses recognized by the state board of education for outstanding performance on state achievement tests.

In addition, local students showed improvements in all areas of testing.

Bauer and Kentwood elementary schools were among the group honored by the board for having more than 90 percent of their students master all areas of the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills tests.

Moss Elementary also was recognized for having a gain of more than 30 percent of its students master the TEAMS test from 1986-87 to 1987-88.

TEAMS tests measure the basic reading, writing and mathematics skills of students in all odd-numbered grades, and are part of education reforms mandated by the state legislature in 1984.

"We are absolutely delighted with the results," elementary curriculum coordinator Helen Gladden said. "I am so proud of our teachers. That's quite an accomplishment."

Test results show improvement in every area throughout the district. Big Spring students either maintained or improved on their test scores on every grade level, Gladden said.

In the reading portion of the test, grade scores for classes were as follows with the percentage for 1987 first, followed by 1988:

- Grade 3 — 86/92
- Grade 5 — 92/92
- Grade 7 — 79/88
- Grade 9 — 74/76

In writing, the following scores were received:

- Grade 3 — 81/85
- Grade 5 — 92/92
- Grade 7 — 78/85
- Grade 9 — 44/61

In the mathematics portion of the test, Big Spring students scored the following:

- Grade 3 — 90/94
- Grade 5 — 95/96
- Grade 7 — 88/98

• Grade 9 — 71/74.

Grade 1 students tested later than others this year, and results are not yet available, Gladden said.

She said the district has made good TEAMS results a priority for several years. If scores were weak in one area, teachers were given assistance and materials to help improve those scores the next year, she added.

Although good test scores are a priority, she stressed the school was not teaching minimum skills to the exclusion of higher-level courses, and would continue to strive for improvement in those areas, also.

Principals of the three recognized

Forsan top grads are Evans, Soles

Kim Evans and Robin Soles have been named as valedictorian and salutatorian of Forsan High School's 1988 senior class with four-year grade averages of 96.03 and 94.92, respectively.

Kim, the daughter of Bob and Peggy Evans, Big Spring, is president of the National Honor Society and has served on the student council for two years.

She was president of her class for two years and has been a cheerleader for four years, the last two as head cheerleader.

She recently received the Optimist Club Youth Achievement Award, and was named to Who's Who in American High Schools, Who's Who at Forsan High School, and is a member of the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Other honors Kim has received include Miss FHS, class favorite for three years, and homecoming queen. She has gone to state in solo and ensemble band competition twice.

She is a member of the Spanish Club and has participated in various UIL events. She qualified for regional in number sense, state in news writing and was academic all State and most valuable tennis player this school year.

Kim plans to attend Texas Tech and pursue a major in accounting.

Robin is the daughter of Dale and Joyce Soles, Garden City Rt. She has served as secretary of her class and on the student council for three years.

In UIL events, Robin competed in number sense and typing. She was a member of the National Honor Society this year. Robin was a cheerleader her junior and senior year, and a drum major her junior year.

Robin's athletic involvement includes varsity basketball and track. She was named most valuable female athlete by her coach her junior and senior years. She was regional qualifier four years in track, and academic all-state this year.

Planning to major in physical education, Robin will attend San Angelo State University.

Two white officers sentenced to hang for murder of black youth

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two white policemen today were sentenced to hang for the murder of a black youth who was beaten and then shot during a police unit's drunken foray into a black township. If the executions are carried out, it would be the first time in South Africa that white policemen were hanged for crimes committed while on duty in a black township. Only six whites have been executed for killing blacks.

Key testimony against Warrant Officer Leon de Villiers, 37, and Constable David Goosen, 27, came from other members of their 10-man riot unit who were pressured by police investigators into abandoning a cover-up attempt. Goosen and de Villiers stood silently while the sentence was issued, but their wives and some of the court personnel broke into tears. The officers were embraced by relatives and fellow policemen before being led away. Several officers had testified that de Villiers, the unit leader, had ordered Goosen to "take out" 18-year-old Mlungisi Stuurman because the youth had been too badly beaten to be set free. Stuurman was taken to a riverbank and shot in the back of the head on July 26, 1986, in the black section of Cradock, in eastern Cape Province. The non-jury trial, which began in October, was held at the Supreme Court in Grahamstown, near Cradock. Justice N.W. Zietsman, who presided over the trial, convicted the two men on Wednesday, saying de Villiers had led his men on a "beating expedition" in which residents were assaulted indiscriminately. Today, Zietsman said he had rejected the mitigation arguments presented by defense lawyers. De Villiers' lawyer said his client was of below-average intelligence and was drunk at the time of the shooting. Goosen had testified that he was suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder because of repeated exposure to violence in the black townships. He also said he had an unhappy childhood during which he often was taunted because of his dark complexion. According to testimony during the trial, members of de Villiers' squad drank heavily, conducted a blood-oath ceremony swearing to secrecy, then entered the township at about 3 a.m., assaulting several blacks. Following another bout of drinking at their base, the squad returned to the township after daybreak.

Stuurman, who was wearing a T-shirt bearing the slogan "Forward To People's Power," was chased and grabbed by officers when he tried to walk away from them, then was assaulted, several officers testified. The officers said de Villiers ordered that Stuurman should be "taken out" because of the severity of his injuries. The defendants contended that the shooting was an accident. De Villiers said he did not report the incident immediately because he was still under the influence of alcohol.

State lawmaker says no tax increase this year

AUSTIN (AP) — Chances are slim that the Texas Legislature will enact another tax increase or a major tax reform bill next year, the chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee says. "There are only so many times the people in the Texas establishment can stand up and say 'be a statesman'... and get people (legislators) to totally disregard their constituents," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen. Schlueter said he had "counted heads" on the issue of taxes, saying lawmakers next year will be more inclined to give in to constituents' wishes than those advocated by special interests. The Legislature has approved three major tax increases since 1984, and Schlueter said Texans experiencing a declining in their incomes don't want to see higher taxes from the Legislature again in its 1989 session. Although legislative leaders in the past have used the "statesman" argument on lawmakers, Schlueter said Tuesday that "I think they've about worn that out." "Basically what they're saying when they tell you to be a statesman: 'Disregard whether or not your constituents want this to happen because they don't know what they're talking about. Do what we tell you to do,'" Schlueter said. The Legislature in 1984 approved $4.6 billion in new taxes to fund school reform. In 1986, it enacted about $900 million in higher taxes to temporarily pump additional money into the state treasury when oil prices began to fall. Last year, a record $5.7 billion tax hike was passed.

Group to preach crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several academic experts, consultants, governors, energy companies and advocacy organizations today announced the formation of a new group that will try to restore the notion of an impending energy crisis to the nation's consciousness. "Energy policy has fallen off the national agenda," said one of the organizers of the group, Gov. George A. Sinner of North Dakota, even though "polls indicate that national leaders and the American public are convinced there will be another energy crisis." The president of the new, Denver-based group, the American Energy Assurance Council, John Jenkins, said the group will try "to grapple with conflicting solutions," such as the conservation-at-any-price vision backed by some environmental organizations.

Raider offers record amount for company

NEW YORK (AP) — Takeover strategist Carl C. Icahn is offering a record-breaking $13.64 billion for Texaco Inc., but the troubled oil mammoth says the proposal from its largest shareholder is a phony "bear hug" pressure ploy. Icahn, who bought Trans World Airlines and has chased other big companies such as USX Corp., disclosed the $60-a-share offer late Wednesday in a letter to Texaco management.

He publicized the offer shortly after Texaco management scrapped talks with him over how to restructure following its emergence from bankruptcy-court reorganization last month. Icahn has amassed a 14.8 percent stake in the nation's third-largest oil company, and has been seeking the most profitable way to exploit it. Earlier this month, Icahn, who has said Texaco would be worth more broken up and sold, threatened a shareholder proxy fight to install five allies on its board. The company responded by suing him for alleged securities fraud. They began peace talks about three weeks ago. Texaco President James Kinnear said the company terminated the discussions Wednesday because of what he called Icahn's unreasonable demands for special treatment in a restructuring. "Texaco will not be bullied or cajoled into recommending to its

Biggest Corporate Takeovers

If financier Carl Icahn proceeds with his formal bid for Texaco Inc., it would be the largest such takeover attempt ever. The five largest takeover bids, in billions of dollars:

Texaco Inc. by Carl Icahn, 1988	$13.64
Gulf by Standard Oil of California (now Chevron), 1984	$11.1
Getty Oil by Texaco, 1984	$10.1
Standard Oil by British Petroleum (already held a 55% stake), 1987	$7.0
Conoco by DuPont, 1981	$2.1
Federated Department Stores by Campeau, 1988	$1.0

shareholders a transaction that is not in their best interest or the best interest of the company," Kinnear said. Icahn spokesman Daniel H. Burch said Texaco made a "totally inaccurate characterization of the negotiations." "He at all times sought a restructuring that would treat all stockholders equally," Burch said. "We've now proposed a $60 cash merger that does treat all shareholders equally."

Of 243 Texaco shares outstanding, Icahn owns about 36 million, for which he paid an average $34 each or about $1.22 billion. Combined with the $12.42 billion he offered to pay for the rest, the total offer is worth about $13.64 billion. If completed, such an offer would be the biggest in corporate history. The previous record was the 1984 $13.4 billion acquisition of Gulf Corp. by Standard Oil Co. of California, now Chevron Corp. Icahn said in his letter that he would drop the proxy contest if management would allow other stockholders to consider the offer. He gave management until 5 p.m. Friday to think it over. He provided few other details, but said part of his financing plan would include the sale of Texaco Canada Inc. and Caltex, two of Texaco's most prized assets. "However, we intend to maintain Texaco's core business and return it to its rightful place as a leader in its industry, just as we have done with TWA," Icahn said. Texaco spokeswoman Anita Larsen called Icahn's proposal "an illusory offer which so far as Texaco has seen, provides absolutely no details regarding financing, disappears in less than 48 hours, and is put forward as an alternative to allow him to avoid the proxy contest with which he has been threatening the company." "Just a few hours ago he was demanding that Texaco help him unload the shares he already owns," she said. Company sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Icahn had been hinting at such a move since talks began, and that Kinnear regarded it as a desperate ploy. Texaco said that in accordance with an agreement with Icahn it would delay that meeting from June 7 to June 17, unless the financier withdrew his board slate.

Band member receives award

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Patrick Collins, senior trombone player for the Big Spring High School Steer Band, was presented the John Phillip Sousa award — for outstanding achievement in instrumental music — during the band's annual spring banquet Saturday.

Collins, the son of George and Deborah Collins, was elected for the award by his fellow band members, Band Director Ricky Mitchell said.

"He has been a good leader and a very positive influence on his fellow students," Mitchell said.

The award — which is endorsed by the National Band Association — is presented annually to band members that best displays outstanding achievement and interest in instrumental music.

It has been presented to BSHS students since 1967, Mitchell noted.

PATRICK COLLINS

Collins was band captain this school year and has been an officer for the past three years. He also has participated in solo and ensemble contest and all-region band the past three years, Mitchell added.

In addition, Collins and 24 other Steer Band members were awarded "Who's Who in Music" certification. Those students are: Amy Carrol, Kristian Connel, Andrew Davis, Tyrone Foster, Aricia Grant, Mary Ann Guevara and Jamie Hinojos.

Also: Nancy Hollingsworth, Janene Horton, Joel Jennings, Eric Kinman, Debbie Lee, Gina Martinez, Torbin McEwen, Lyle Moore, Trisha Murley, Elsie Nieto, Scott Oliver, Jojo Paredez, Mark Settles, Martina Solis, John Vidlak, Stella Vidlak and Michelle Wiggins.

Officers for the 1988-89 Steer Band also were announced at the banquet. They are: Captains Joel Jennings and Nancy Hollingsworth; lieutenant Toby Hain and Marilyn Corwin; and sergeants Mike Schaefer and John Paul Stevenson.

Poppy Day

VFW Post 2013 members will be out in force Saturday to promote the annual Buddy Poppy Day in Big Spring, including Commander Pat Carnahan, left, and District Commander Jesse Hernandez.

Post member Don R. Brooks said that $800 was raised through donations during the sale of the flowers made by disabled veterans. The money, much of which is maintained at the Volunteer Department of the VA Medical Center, is spent for basic necessities for veterans who have no money. "Toothbrushes, shoes, socks, candy bars or a milkshake," Brooks said, although cigarettes for veterans are no longer purchased with the funds. Some money goes to the Christmas Fund for veterans who have no money but wish to send a gift to a grandchild, he said. Mayor Cotton Mize issued a proclamation in support of the Saturday campaign.

this grand jury. I want to present it to the July grand jury because there are a lot of loose ends that I want him to be very careful with tying up.

"This way it takes the onus off of him to try to have it ready (quickly)," Hamby said. "I want it right, and I want it complete. I want it good."

He said a question of manpower also affected his decision to keep the June grand jury caseload to a minimum. "We have some important cases that are going, but I have to be at a school the week of the grand jury so I won't be here to help (Assistant District Attorney William Dupree) with that."

"We have a grand jury next week at Stanton, and a possible trial the week after that," Hamby said. "The week after that is the grand jury here."

He said he also will not present murder cases against two Big Spring men and an Odessa parolee to this grand jury.

The three men are charged with murder in the April 2 slaying of Manuel Vega Garcia, 53, Odessa, whose body was found under a mattress, lumber and a washing machine shell in a west side caliche pit April 7. An autopsy report indicated he died from a blow to the head.

Charged with murder are Robert Romero Flores, 30, and Ricardo Romero Flores, 32, both of Big Spring, and Leroy Flores Alaniz, 30, Odessa. Ricardo Flores, Leroy Alaniz and Manuel Garcia were on parole at the time of the slayings.

Developments resulting from parole revocation hearings for Alaniz and Flores have prompted Hamby to reexamine the case against the men, he said.

"There are evidently some flies on that (case) that we were not aware of," he said today. "We're waiting now for a transcript of the parole hearings, because if they (prosecutors) didn't have enough to bust one of 'em's parole — and you can do that for spitting on the street — then we need to take a very close look at that defendant."

He said the cases probably would be presented to the July grand jury, for which no date has been determined yet.

Following the Howard County grand jury, Hamby said, the office will concentrate its efforts toward the July 25 trial of Jeannie Hernandez Fonseca, 29, Big Spring. She is charged with three counts of capital murder and an unrelated count of aggravated robbery stemming from incidents in October 1987.

He said it was not planned to try any of the other defendants in the three capital murders for which Fonseca faces trial at the same time.

Hamby said his office was encountering some difficulties with witnesses in the case. "If it all falls apart, I would rather have it fall apart on one defendant than on all of them. That way we could look at our case, and patch it, and present it again."

He and Dupree said a recent bond reduction hearing for Enrique Sabedra Jr., 18, a Knott man charged in two of the three October slayings, had been dictated by a point of law.

He said the office also had a considerable number of other cases to investigate and present to the grand jury or take to trial, and that despite feeling pressure from the jail, he could not bring the district attorney's operations to a halt to try the capital murder cases.

Fonseca and Sabedra are charged with two counts of capital murder each in the deaths of two Mexican nationals, Miguel Villareal Calixto and Norberto Gurrula Hernandez, whose burned bodies were found in the debris of a farmhouse authorities believe was intentionally set afire last October near Luther.

Autopsy results indicated both men had been shot in the head. Authorities believe the men were robbed and shot, and the house set afire.

Fonseca is also charged with capital murder in the death of a Grand Prairie man, Noel Perez, 39, whose burned and headless body was exhumed October 19 from a shallow grave in Martin County.

Authorities believe he was beaten to death in a Big Spring motel room, then the body taken to the remote Martin County site and burned and buried.

Also charged in the Calixto and Hernandez slaying are Orlando Aguirre de Knott and Antonio (Tony) Aguilar of Big Spring. Charged along with Fonseca in connection with Perez's death are Arthur Islas Jr. and Frankie and Joe Hernandez, Fonseca's brothers.

All seven defendants were arrested in October and had remained in custody in the Howard County jail until Friday, when Sabedra's bonds were reduced from $125,000 for each count of capital murder to $50,000. He was released on bond Friday.

schools — Bauer, Kentwood and Moss — credited teachers and parents with high student scores.

"An excellent staff dedicated to children made the difference," said Bauer Principal Jean Broughton, who added this is the third consecutive school year that the Magnet school has achieved a 90 percent or greater mastery rate.

No special preparation was done for the testing, she noted.

"We prepare for it all year because it's essential elements."

Broughton said. "It's what we teach."

Kentwood principal Andra Clark also credited the school's teachers for the students' high scores.

"Everyone teaches above and beyond the regular amount of curriculum," Clark said. "We go beyond just mastery — we give the students something to enrich them."

Clark also credited parents for working with their children toward making improvement in needed areas.

Panama

Cranston, D-Calif., who expressed no regret at all for the administration's negotiations failure.

"This administration negotiates with the darndest people — Iranian terrorists and Panamanian drug dealers," Cranston said. "I think we should have an administration which doesn't negotiate with people like that."

"This administration has handled the Noriega situation so badly that it is an embarrassment to the United States."

After the negotiations broke down, President Reagan ordered the return of State Department envoy Michael Kozak to Washington. Shultz said that the negotiating package, worked out laboriously between Kozak and Panamanian officials in the last few weeks, has been scrapped.

"No further negotiations are contemplated," Shultz said. "All proposals addressed during these negotiations have been withdrawn. No offers remain on the table."

Shultz refused comment when asked if military solutions are being contemplated. But at the Pentagon, officials insisted there were no plans afoot for direct military intervention in Panama.

For much of the day Wednesday, a deal seemed to be within reach. But Kozak telephoned the State Department at 4 p.m. EDT to pass along the news of Noriega's decision.

"At the final moment in negotiations, Noriega would not carry through with the arrangements his representatives had negotiated," Shultz told reporters.

Under Secretary of State Michael Armacost said Noriega had indicated that "majors and captains" within Panama's Defense Forces "might take strong action" against him if he agreed to the deal.

Bush, who has expressed some misgivings at the Reagan administration's negotiations with Noriega, on Wednesday said that he still was optimistic that Noriega could be persuaded to step down.

"I'm convinced Noriega will be out of power," Bush told reporters in Lakehurst, N.J. "The fact that we haven't solved this doesn't depress me."

"I don't want a bad deal. I want a good deal. We'll have to go back and figure it out."

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said that he welcomed Shultz's announcement. "Noriega must go if we are to achieve our goals in Panama. But sending Noriega off into retirement with a legal golden parachute ... would have been the wrong step at the wrong time."

This was a reference to the most controversial aspect of the administration's proposal: dismissing federal drug smuggling indictments against Noriega.

In February, two federal grand juries in Florida indicted Noriega on charges of taking at least $4.6 million in payoffs from a drug ring based in Medellin, Colombia, to protect cocaine shipments, launder money and hide drug smugglers from law enforcement officials.

In return for the withdrawal of the indictments, Noriega was to step down as commander of the Defense Forces in August and go into exile until after elections for a civilian-led government were held in May 1989.

The State Department's view throughout the negotiations was that dismissal of the indictments against Noriega was a small price to pay for his departure from Panama and the restoration of democratic rule.

But others thought differently. Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Wednesday, in a statement, that Noriega is a "fugitive" and the U.S. government will use "every legal means at our disposal to bring him to justice, to remove him from power and to restore democracy to Panama."

Dole had sponsored a resolution overwhelmingly adopted last week that put the Senate on record in opposition to dropping the indictments.

"Not only were we going the extra mile to win Noriega's departure," Dole said on Wednesday, "we may have been going too many extra miles."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., agreed. "I think we should make no deal that involves dropping drug charges. That sends the wrong message, particularly when we are trying to show more resolve against drugs."

Farmers may apply for loans

Don Richardson, Howard County Extension was notified this week that the Division of Emergency Management of the Texas Department of Public Safety approved, effective April 29, 1988, farmers and ranchers to immediately apply for emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state:

Employers of aliens must pay

The end of the amnesty period for illegal aliens in the United States marked a milestone in the immigration reform effort. But on one point there has been no change: Undocumented persons continue to pour into the United States, the majority of them seeking economic betterment. ... In spite of everything, there are still employers who are unscrupulous and irresponsible enough to hire illegal aliens, flouting federal law and exploiting innocent human beings in the hope of saving a few bucks' worth of wages. ... That has got to change June 1, when full sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens will go into effect. The effort to enforce those sanctions should be sweeping and energetic. Those who persist in employing undocumented workers must have it made clear to them that they will pay, and pay dearly. ...

Corpus Christi Caller-Times

Bush, finally, speaks for himself

Vice President George Bush finally stepped outside the shadow of President Reagan, however slightly, on the issue of Panamanian Gen. Manuel Noriega and drugs. ... That should encourage supporters who have watched Bush continue to sink in the polls. The latest Gallup Poll has Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis leading Bush nationally by 54 to 38 percent. ... Pollsters also are finding out that voters believe the Democrats are handling the drug issue better than the Republicans. ... So Bush said recently that as president, "I won't bargain with drug dealers ... whether they're on U.S. or foreign soil." He said the anti-drug effort he has spearheaded wasn't enough, and he outlined a program in which the vice president would be the "drug czar" in a Bush administration. ... It's time that George Bush stop hiding behind the cloak of his "loyalty" to President Reagan and establish his own identity. ... It's time for George Bush to be George Bush.

Regents turning college into chaos

It's another sordid situation in Texas' public colleges and universities — politics, recriminations and finger-pointing getting in the way of education. Regents should have enough to do, with enrollments expanding and budgets shrinking, to keep them busy. But somehow they always manage to turn academia into chaos. ... If only our regents would behave as well as our students, Texas would not be systematically chagrined.

Houston Post

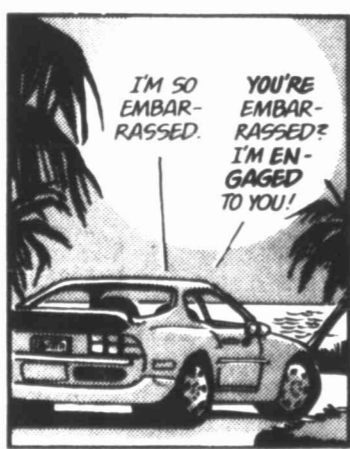

It's time for Wright investigation

Common Cause, the government watchdog group, has now called for an ethics inquiry on House Speaker Jim Wright, adding some credence to questions about some things Wright has done. There certainly is enough concern raised in the allegations for the ethics committee to hire an independent counsel to look into the matter. ... The criticism had until now been primarily raised by partisan opponents of Wright, prominently Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga. Common Cause, usually identified with liberal causes, several months ago turned down a request from Gingrich to press for an investigation of Wright's conduct, but now has done so on its own. ... Fred Wertheimer, Common Cause president, asked that the ethics panel look into earnings Wright has made from a book published by a contributor to his campaigns and into reports that Wright has tried to obtain special treatment for Texas bankers. ... Wright has denied any improprieties, but that certainly doesn't settle the matter. The proper way to clear up the allegations is for the ethics panel to hire an independent counsel and have him conduct an investigation. Wright ought to welcome the opportunity to have a neutral party decide whether the allegations are mere partisanship or not.

Advice for the graduate

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Dear Graduates: Well, here we go again, as the Gipper would say. It's graduation time once more in Crossroads Country. This means a variety of things, but mostly it means that several hundred 18-year-olds are about to go absolutely stark-raving bananas beginning tomorrow night. ... And — as someone who gets slightly crazy every now and then — I say you've earned the right. This does not mean I am suggesting that all of you get plastered and pile into the nearest telephone pole, but celebrations are definitely in order. ... But keep it clean, OK? Part of my responsibilities as a Herald writer is to write the Police Beat section every day, and I would hate to make your acquaintance in the police log. I also cover the hospital beat for the paper — and I would definitely hate to meet you in the emergency room. ... Other than getting yourselves (or someone else) busted or injured, however, whatever floats your boat within the limits of the law is fairly OK by me. After 12 years of sweating, groaning, crying, praying, ad infinitum — it's party time. ... Yes, folks, it's time to eat, drink and be merry — for tomorrow you work. I really hate to break this to you, grads, but it's not going to get any easier; in fact, it's going to get a mite harder from here on out.

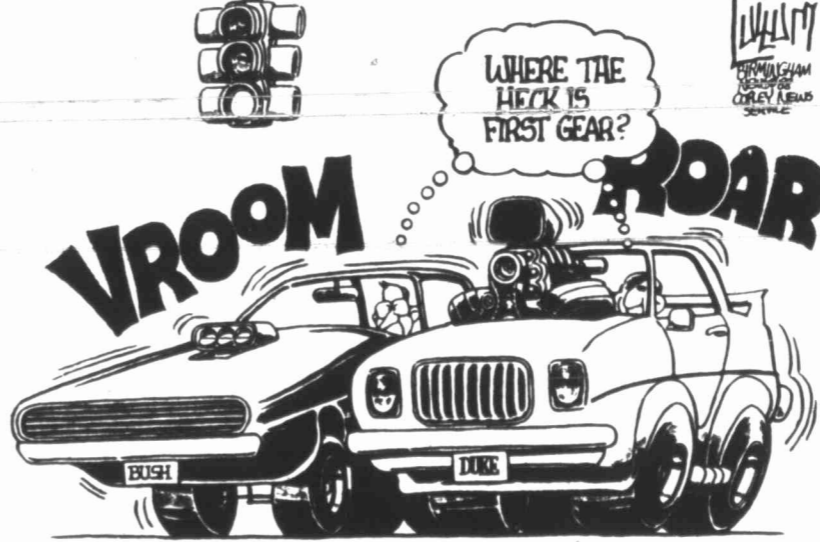

Beyond the realm

From my vantage point, I see one of three options for you in the near future: You can go to college; you can get a job; or you can (b-r-r-r-r-r) get married. ... There is, of course, a fourth option — you can sit around the house for the next few years, doing nothing except living off your parents. While this option may have some attraction to a few of you, I'm sure your folks would be less than thrilled at the prospect. ... I know for a fact that my mother's greatest fear in life was that I'd appear on her doorstep one day, penniless and with three or four extra mouths to feed. ... To avoid such an unpleasant occurrence, she urged me to seek occupancy elsewhere — in a loving, motherish way, of course. I think her exact words were, "Get out! Get out! Don't you dare darken my door again, you geek!" ... I'm just kidding, of course. My mother was far too gentle a soul to kick any of her offspring into the cold, cruel world without so much as a goodbye kiss — and besides, I'm getting away from the subject here. ... Oh yeah, graduation. I'm sure all of you will pay rapt attention to commencement speakers tomorrow as they exhort you to a variety of good deeds. ... I'm also sure that most — if not all — of what they have to say will be forgotten by the time you hit the exit, so I doubt you're looking for great wisdom from me either. ... However, I leave you with one pearl of wisdom that I hope you take to heart. It will serve you well in the years to come, and likely will impress others. ... For Pete's sake, buy some pots and pans — one of these days, you're going to have to learn to cook. Good luck, folks.

Will the real Democrat please stand up?

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Jesse Jackson has absorbed so much of the attention in the Democratic primaries, not much time has been given to Michael Dukakis' views; and from this inattention he has profited. ... Anyone running alongside Jesse Jackson will be thought a moderate. Mayor Edward Koch of New York, without saying so in exactly as many words, made it sound as if of course he could vote enthusiastically for Dukakis, because he is a moderate. ... But moderates do not do very well in Democratic primaries. Al Gore flirted with moderation at one point, and met with a very bad reception at a debate. From that point on he was on the prowl for immoderation. ... It didn't pay off, perhaps because nobody could out-immoderate Jesse Jackson. Democratic primaries are vehicles for the expression of the very dissatisfied — with U.S. domestic policy, U.S. foreign policy, and, yes, with the United States. And this recalls the situation in 1984, likely to be repeated in 1988. ... The most revealing story about the San Francisco convention was filled for The Washington Post by Barry Sussman and Kenneth E. John on July 15, 1984. It was a story that talked about the difference between Democratic delegates and Democratic voters. ... Mrs. Jeane Kirkpatrick, at the Dallas convention, got on to the point when she insisted on referring to the "San Francisco Democrats" — by which she meant that they were not to be confused with just plain Democrats. ... For one thing, the Post said, the delegates were richer than other Democrats, and more extensively educated. (More than 70 percent of the delegates were college graduates and 50 percent had at least some postgraduate work. Among Democrats nationally, 12 percent are college graduates; 4 percent have done postgraduate study.)

The poll went on to reveal divisions between delegate sentiment on major public issues and just plain Democrats. Here are a few: ABORTION. Ten percent of the delegates wanted a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion. Almost one-half of Democrats want such an amendment. CONTAINMENT. Twenty percent of the delegates agreed with the statement, "The United States should take all steps, including the use of force, to prevent the spread of communism." Among Democrats at large, more than 60 percent agreed with the statement.

ERA. Ninety percent of delegates were in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment, compared with 60 percent of Democrats at large.

It shouldn't, in other words, have surprised the Democratic Party that the campaign subsequent to San Francisco waged by Walter Mondale was pitched very directly to the conservative-moderate vote. He came out, for instance, for a 4 percent net (post-inflation) raise in military spending (Ronald Reagan favored 6 percent). In his foreign policy debate with Reagan, Walter Mondale sounded like Gen. Curtis ("Bomb them back to the Stone Age") LeMay. ... The strategy of Democratic candidates is to sound like Trotsky during the primaries and like Douglas MacArthur during the general election. So far, experience seems to tell us, it has not proved a successful mix. It is too easy for the Republican candidate publicly to recall preceding positions. ... It is going to be difficult for Dukakis to shake the reputation he has carefully cultivated of being a peacenik. To be a peacenik is very different from being in favor of peace. To be a peacenik, history confirms, is to lose one's grip on reality, and before you know it, the apparition standing at the door is a great big Russian bear. ... If it goes as it went in 1984, the Democrats are going to have to do some hard rethinking. Their immediate problem is, of course, the role of Jesse Jackson. ... "It is going to be difficult for Dukakis to shake the reputation he has carefully cultivated of being a peacenik ... To be a peacenik, history confirms, is to lose one's grip on reality."

The first choice of the San Francisco delegates for vice president was Gary Hart, whose qualifications included that he had the next highest number of delegates after Mondale. Mondale went instead to Geraldine Ferraro, as Dukakis may reach over Jesse Jackson's head to name Sam Nunn, or, for that matter, Al Gore. ... But destigmatizing a Democratic convention composed of delegates one-third of whom are pledged to Mad Man Jackson, and two-thirds of whom are pledged to the man who refused to criticize Mad Man Jackson, isn't going to prove that easy. Only total immersion will bring that off, and that's unconstitutional.

To the editor: I appreciate recent news format changes: National news on front page a great bonus and sports coverage seems to be more representative. I like the opportunity to read different opinions: National columnists such as Grizzard, Buchwald, Buckley and Anderson. ... I do not find them always acceptable, agreeable, amusing or annoying. ... I prefer to choose which I read, revere, or repudiate. ... Local columnists: ... Nice to find "locals" with a different approach and outlook. ... I like the varied backgrounds they bring to my attention. ... I appreciate my paper carrier, Debbie Calley: She saw a problem with our pups eating newspaper, she found the solution and implemented it. ... Thank you both. ... How to keep the husband and father from grumbling about children reading the newspaper first? ... Yes, I know how lucky we are that they want and can read; ... More thanks to you newshounds.

Thankful for promotions

To the editor: On behalf of the Big Spring Squares, we want to thank you and your staff for the excellent coverage of the 19th Annual Square and Round Dance Festival this past week-end. ... The promotion of any event depends largely on the cooperative efforts of many and we are pleased to say the Herald, radio stations and tourism committee of the Chamber of Commerce were a part of this cooperative effort. ... The plans for the 20th Annual Festival are already underway under the leadership of Ray and Rose Stukel and with the combined efforts that are offered in Big Spring, we will continue to have successful festivals in the years to come. ... Our thanks to all who helped make our festival a success.

Band sponsors impressed

To the editor: Judging from the wonderful community support, it is a fact that our Big Spring High School Steer Band is a group that we all can certainly be proud of. These young adults are an example of all that is "Right" with the youth of today. ... In May the Steer Band went on tour to Colorado, as sponsors it was our privilege to go along ... it was thoroughly a pleasure trip being with these young men and women. Their behavior was exemplary; without exception everywhere the band traveled compliments flowed and the band was warmly invited to return. ... Our sincere gratitude and admiration to each Steer Band member and also to our First Class Band directors, Ricky Mitchell and Steve Waggoner for their "great leadership". A special thanks to Pam Mitchell for her patience and love.

Jets on same altitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators are trying to determine why two jetliners flying in opposite directions with 286 people on board were assigned the same altitude, bringing them within 300 feet of colliding head-on over the ocean north of Puerto Rico.

The Federal Aviation Administration confirmed the Monday evening incident, which involved a Pan American World Airways Airbus-300 and an American Airlines Boeing 727.

Both pilots said in near-collision reports that they had no time to take evasive action as the two aircraft passed wing tip to wing tip in clear weather about 550 miles north of Puerto Rico in the so-called Bermuda Triangle.

The triangle is a region in the Atlantic Ocean where ships and aircraft are reputed to have disappeared since the 1940s.

Health bill supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A catastrophic health insurance bill providing the largest expansion of Medicare in the program's 23-year history has cleared a major legislative hurdle.

The compromise agreed to late Wednesday by a House-Senate conference committee must win final approval from both chambers, but that is a foregone conclusion given the broad support that the basic measure received last year when it cleared the two houses in different versions.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen told conference committee members that he will recommend that President Reagan sign the legislation, even though it is considerably more ambitious than the measure proposed by the administration more than a year ago.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, whose Finance Committee shaped the Senate bill, called the compromise "a landmark piece of legislation ... that will bring peace of mind to millions."

Company reaches deal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A utility company today tentatively agreed to give up the $5.3 billion Shoreham nuclear power plant. Once the deal is finalized, it would be the first time a completed U.S. atomic plant was abandoned before it opened.

The agreement between the state and the Long Island Lighting Co. was announced by Gary Fryer, a spokesman for Gov. Mario Cuomo.

It would allow financially troubled LILCO to continue to operate as a privately owned utility. The state had been proceeding with a possible takeover of the entire company.

As part of the agreement, the state would buy Shoreham for $1 and LILCO would pay the more than $400 million to decontaminate and decommission the plant. New generating plants would then be built on Long Island to ensure that residents have a sufficient supply of electricity.

Woman must use birth control

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A teenager who left her infant sons alone for three hot days was ordered to practice birth control for the rest of her child-bearing years by a judge who rebuked her as a "child having children."

Other terms of a lifetime probation given to Debra Ann Forster prohibit her from seeing the two boys as well as a daughter she later bore. She must also provide weekly reports to the probation office on her birth control use.

Ms. Forster, 18, pleaded guilty in April to two counts of felony child abuse for leaving her two sons alone in an apartment, without food or water, for three days last May. She could have received 30 years in prison.

The boys, William and Scott, respectively 18 months- and 6 months-old at the time, were hospitalized eight days for malnutrition, lesions caused by a rash and dehydration. Scott was close to death from dehydration when he was found, the police said. Both have since recovered.

Temperatures for the three-day period ranged from 100 during the day and 73 at night; the average was 87 degrees, the National Weather Service says.

The children were found by Ms. Forster's estranged husband, Bill, who called police. Authorities removed the children from the house and Ms. Forster was arrested hours later when she showed up at the Mesa Police Department.

Judge Lindsay Ellis Budzyn said the sentence was the only way she could make sure the woman would not hurt other children since society offers little or no support for potential abusers.

"We don't have a lot of help out there for people," the Maricopa County Superior Court judge said in an interview Wednesday, a day after issuing the sentence.

But Alice Bendheim, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney, called it "an incredible sentence," and doubted it would hold up under constitutional scrutiny.

"I'm sure Judge Budzyn thought it was a sentence that fit the crime but we have a system that doesn't allow such an intrusion into private life," said Ms. Bendheim, who is on the ACLU's national board.

As the judge pronounced the sentence she told Ms. Forster, PHOENIX — Debra Ann Forster awaits sentencing Tuesday morning in Maricopa County Superior Court. Forster was given lifetime probation and ordered to remain on birth control for the rest of her child-bearing years for abandoning her two sons in a sweltering Mesa, Ariz. apartment last summer.

"Your case represents the epitome of what's wrong with our society: a child having children."

"I know I did something wrong, and I have to pay for it," Ms. Forster replied. "I'm sorry."

On Wednesday, the judge characterized Ms. Forster as a young woman of average intelligence who is emotionally immature.

Ms. Forster gave birth to a daughter while in jail awaiting the child-abuse trial. According to court records, a family friend adopted the daughter, and the sons were being placed through an adoption agency.

Ms. Forster was released from custody Tuesday and will live in a treatment center. Court officials have refused to release the name of the center, saying Ms. Forster has received death threats.

Although the order requires the woman to submit written proof to her probation officer that she is using some form of birth control, she will not be required to undergo any physical testing, Budzyn said.

"There would be no way, with an order like this, that she would be subject to physical tests," the judge said.

Bruce Griffen, a defense attorney in a 1986 child-abuse case in which the defendant was initially sentenced to undergo sterilization, said he believed the judge had gone too far.

Marcos suffers pains

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The hospitalization of Ferdinand Marcos in Hawaii has added a new twist to the bizarre drama in which Marcos supporters are trying to use his mother's unburied body to help their hero return home.

Marcos was admitted on Wednesday to St. Francis Medical Center in Honolulu suffering from chest pains.

The Philippine consul in Honolulu, Tomas Gomez, accused the 70-year-old Marcos of faking his illness to win sympathy in the Philippines.

Marcos' wife, Imelda, said in a radio interview today that her husband was suffering because President Corazon Aquino has refused to allow him to return to bury his 95-year-old mother, Josefa Edralin-Marcos, who died May 4.

Gas depot has closed

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — The state government said Wednesday a gas and kerosene depot in a residential area has been closed and would be moved because of an explosion and fire that forced evacuation of 100,000 people.

Spokesman Sergio Villarreal said at least 100,000 residents had to flee Tuesday as leaping flames threatened to ignite tanks filled with gasoline.

No one was seriously injured in the blast Tuesday at the depot owned by Pemex, the state oil monopoly. However, several firefighters suffered minor burns and Pemex employee Luis Alonso said he saw several car accidents caused by fleeing motorists.

"The depot is closed," Villarreal said. "It was a state government decision that was supported by Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex)."

Villarreal said an unpopulated site on the southern outskirts of the city of Chihuahua had been selected for the new depot, but he could not say how long it would take before it is opened.

Talks to begin today

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Leaders of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels arrived in Managua late Wednesday for a new round of talks with the leftist government on reaching a permanent cease-fire in the 6-year-old war. The negotiations were expected to begin Thursday.

One group of negotiators for the rebels, known as Contras, arrived in Managua from the Costa Rican capital of San Jose.

"We come with great political will so that a permanent solution will be arrived at to (resolve) the situation in Nicaragua," Contra spokesman Bosco Matamoros told the Sandinista government's Voice of Nicaragua radio station.

The two dozen rebel delegates went immediately to the Camino Real Hotel near the international airport on the outskirts of the capital.

Limits remain in USSR for its dissidents

Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of articles on life in the U.S.S.R. in anticipation of Ronald Reagan's visit to Moscow next week.

By MARK J. PORUBCANSKY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — In the era of "glasnost," a sentence to years of hard labor in a Soviet prison camp is not the automatic response to dissent. Greater debate on some topics is allowed — but there are still limits.

For all the talk about Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's policy of openness and tolerance, political prisoners remain in jails. And longtime refuseniks, repeatedly denied permission to leave, say they are worn out.

"As long as people are sitting in prison camps and people aren't allowed to emigrate, fear won't be cleansed from the soul," said Lev Timofeyev, a journalist and economist.

When Timofeyev wants to criticize Soviet authorities, he writes his comments into his Toshiba computer and runs them off on his Kodak printer. Not long ago, that would have been inconceivable, both technologically and politically.

Timofeyev was arrested shortly after Gorbachev took power in March 1985 and sentenced to 11 years in prison camp and exile for urging economic reform in a book published abroad. He was released two years later.

And though he is free now, along with hundreds of others, he still speaks of a "zone of fear" among dissidents.

Beginning with the release of Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov in December 1986 from exile in Gorky, Gorbachev moved to quiet critics of his country's human rights policies. Hundreds of people were released from jails and prison camps in 1987.

Dissidents now express themselves in unofficial publications on topics ranging from freedom of religion to ecology and women's issues. Editors of 30 such publications, often only a few irregularly produced sheets of carbon paper, gathered unhindered in Moscow in early May.

Computers still are not widely in use in Soviet society. Timofeyev says he received his small computer and printer from friends, and about 500 copies of each edition of the twice-monthly journal "Referendum" can be produced.

That is few for a country of 280 million people, Timofeyev acknowledged. "We need a Xerox," he said. "We need a laser printer. Then we'd be able to put out an edition."

But the government owns all printing facilities in the Soviet Union, and access to copying machines is guarded closely.

Refuseniks are looking for a new voice to present their demands and hope for a boost from President Reagan when he comes to Moscow next week.

Michael Stolar, who with his father Abe holds an American passport, said it would be "murderous" for refuseniks if Reagan does not draw attention to their cause because it would give the Soviet Union the impression that the United States no longer cares. He and his father have been granted permission to leave, but remain because Michael's wife Julia cannot get an exit visa.

Tanya Ziemann, 48, and her husband Yuri have been refused permission to emigrate for 11 years. Despite an increase in Jewish emigration last year to more than 8,000, she is convinced it is not in the interest of Soviet authorities to resolve the emigration issue.

"What are they going to bargain with?" she said. Longtime refuseniks are "in a terrible state physically and emotionally," she said. "They're worn out."

Dissident leaders like Yuri Orlov and Anatoly Koryagin have left the country. Anatoly Marchenko died in Chistopol prison in December 1986, weeks before Sakharov was freed.

Sakharov, the most authoritative voice on human rights in the Soviet Union, has settled — since his almost seven years in exile — into a quieter life devoted to physics and a few selected social issues. He rarely seeks contact with foreign correspondents, but has gained acceptance in the Soviet press that once vilified him.

Sakharov says he has "a great opinion of Gorbachev as a government figure and in personal terms." He met Jan. 15 with Gorbachev and handed him a list of 200 political prisoners.

Dissident sources say 200 is a minimum number of people who still are imprisoned for their beliefs, but they cannot say accurately how many political prisoners there are.

Although the government response to dissent has been somewhat more tolerant than in the past, there are strict limits that prevent dissidents from spreading their ideas across the vast country.

Authorities seized about 70 copies of former political prisoner Sergei Grigoryants' "Glasnost" journal last fall, claiming they had been printed illegally at a government-owned press.

In early May, dissidents said police seized another 400 copies of Grigoryants' publications, jailed the dissident leader for seven days and prevented his editorial office from hosting a meeting at which dissidents founded what they said is an alternative to the Communist Party.

Meetings of that group, the Democratic Union, were followed closely by police but not stopped. Instead, police detained dozens who came to the meetings from outside Moscow, and released them after a short time.

Dissidents and refuseniks planning demonstrations often are detained before they can get to the protest site. Those who manage to hoist protest banners often have them destroyed. They are taken away by police, but usually freed in a few hours.

Sometimes protests are allowed to proceed peacefully, like a refusenik demonstration on the steps of the Moscow visa office in late April. Other protests, such as one across from the Foreign Ministry building during the Washington summit between Reagan and Gorbachev in December, have been dispersed violently.

New laws in Moscow and many other places make it possible to seek a permit for a legal demonstration, but refuseniks and dissidents have found it is almost impossible to receive permission.

Soviet authorities also are faced with another area of dissent that Gorbachev has said could be the most serious — the rise of national sentiments among some of the country's more than 100 ethnic groups.

Serious ethnic unrest is known to have occurred in Kazakhstan, Azerbaijan and Armenia, and there has been an increase in ethnic feelings in the Baltic states.

Gorbachev has called for a meeting of the policy-making Communist Party Central Committee to discuss the issue.

One Armenian nationalist, Paryur Ayrikyan, has been arrested and is said to be under investigation for spreading false information about the Soviet Union. That law is one of several used most frequently in the past against dissidents, who say how authorities proceed against Ayrikyan will tell them much about the official attitude.

Tass says Reagan seeks peace talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass adopted an upbeat pre-summit tone Wednesday, quoting President Reagan as saying he was coming to the Soviet Union in the interests of peace.

The evening television news program Vremya carried a report from a Washington correspondent on Reagan's visit and later showed Reagan leaving for Helsinki, Finland, en route to Moscow.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, quoted Reagan's departure statement that he intended to work in the interests of peace during his visit to the Soviet capital next week.

It quoted Reagan as saying measures to reduce tension between the superpowers, capped by the signing of the agreement banning medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles at the last summit in Washington last December, were "only a beginning."

The agency said Reagan pledged to work for an agreement to cut U.S. and Soviet long-range missiles during his meetings with Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Moscow.

It relegated Reagan's comments on the deep differences that still divide the Soviet Union and the United States to the final paragraph of its dispatch.

A pair of later articles distributed by Tass were more critical.

One was a commentary by military analyst Vladimir Bogachev.

Talking ol' times

Nearly a dozen BSHS seniors gathered for reminiscing and festivities recently, as their graduation nears. The students were among 14 who began attending school together at Moss Elementary. They gathered at the school building and several of their former teachers attended.

From left, front row, are: Juan Delgado, Ginger Brooks, Gina Ficke, Kristi Butts and Bobby Porras; middle row, from left: Teddy Molina, Katrina Thompson, Kristie West, Cheri Wyrick and Jeff Collier; back row, from left: Matt Burrow and Lynn Sherril. Not pictured were Taff Wennick, Paul Berringer and Michael Porch.

Kristie West composed a song and performed it for the group; she will sing it at graduation Friday also.

Maiden thinks she's found prince charming

DEAR ABBY: Although I've never written to you before, I want to thank you for addressing one issue I had been struggling with a few years ago. A 17-year-old girl thought something was "wrong" with her because she was still a virgin.

Dear Abby

I, too, had felt that way on several occasions. I'm a virgin who will turn 21 soon. I was dumped by more than one man because I wouldn't have sex. I plan to remain a virgin until I marry. I don't want to have to tell my husband about an illegitimate child, an abortion or herpes outbreaks.

I also want to thank you for the addresses of overseas servicemen. I wrote six letters and received three replies. One has become very special. He's "Andy" on the USS Coral Sea. He writes beautiful, deep, philosophical letters — three and four typed pages. We have come to know each other intimately through our letters.

Our similarities are uncanny. We agree on everything from premarital sex and abortion to kids, dogs and yogurt. Abby, he has helped me to understand that just because I had a bad childhood, I am not a bad person. He tells me I am a very special, beautiful person, and I believe him. If I never lay eyes on him, he has already helped me more than he (or you) will ever know.

Andy is due back in the States soon. And when his ship docks in Norfolk, I'll be there to meet him! Abby, if he turns out to be half as wonderful in person as he is in his letters, I would marry him tomorrow.

DEAR WALKING: He sounds too good to be true. Congratulations on an exciting beginning. Please keep me posted.

NARVE members observe silence

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met recently at the Kentwood Older Adults Activity Center, with Mrs. Claudia McCreary, vice president, presiding.

Members observed one minute of silence in honor of Mrs. Carlos Ennis, Mrs. P.L. Bradford, and Juan Garcia, who all have recently died. J.J. Richardson remains hospitalized in Lubbock. W.W. Marline was recently hospitalized at the VA, and Mrs. Ray Scott returned to Lubbock for a check up.

George Williams celebrated a birthday in May. Mrs. Laura Carlton was a visitor. The next meeting will be June 16 at Kentwood Older Adults Activity Center, 2805 Lynn Dr., at 6:30 p.m.

Woman's club installs officers

Big Spring Junior Woman's Club conducted its installation banquet recently at the Big Spring Country Club.

The following women were installed as officers for the 1988-89 year: Susan McLellan, president; Nancy Welch, president-elect; Teri Thomas, first vice president; Anna Sheedy, second vice president; Judy Johnston, recording secretary; Maureen Haddad, corresponding secretary; Susan Slaybaugh, treasurer; Heddy Wigington, press reporter; and Karen Wingert, parliamentarian.

Club Woman of the Year was Maureen Haddad; Rookie Club Woman of the Year was Ann Honea.

Contributions were presented to Greg and Lisa Brooks on behalf of the Texas Foundation For Stolen Children, and to Joyce Alexander, accepting for the Rainbow Project.

An organizational meeting was conducted at the Colonial Oaks Building. Projects and programs were discussed for the next club year.

Hyperion Club installs officers

The 1970 Hyperion Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Dan Johnson for a spring luncheon and installation of officers.

1905 Hyperion Club member Mrs. Clyde Angel, installed the new officers and wrote a special installation in honor of the occasion.

New officers are: Mrs. Dwayne Fraser, president; Mrs. John Freeman, vice president; Mrs. O.H. Ivie, secretary; Mrs. Murry Murphy, treasurer; Mrs. C.L. Carlile, historian; Mrs. Robert Haney Jr., reporter; and Mrs. Dan Johnson, parliamentarian.

Woman celebrates 90th birthday

The family of Belva Bowlin gathered at her home in Ackerly for a surprise party to celebrate her 90th birthday.

"Aunt Belva," as she is called, was born May 18, 1898 in Shelby County. She moved to Ackerly in 1923 with her husband, the late M.Y. Bowlin, who was involved in agriculture.

Mr. Bowlin died in 1981. Afternoon festivities included, cake, ice cream, and the opportunity to recall memories of days gone by.

Those who attended are: D'Brien and Lovetta Bowlin, Ackerly; Connie and Pat Hartly Lubbock, Diane and Greg Hicks, Lubbock; Dana and Erica Jackson, great-granddaughters, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bowlin, Lorraine, Mrs. Jack Bowlin, Ackerly; Del and Betty Bowlin, Stanton; Fred and Barbara Bowlin, Stanton; and Shug and Pat Bowlin, Midland.

Chapter recognized for program

The Tejas Chapter of the Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century met at Winchester's Steaks and Seafood restaurant for lunch and business meeting, with Mrs. Whit Clark, president, presiding, and Mrs. John Dawson and Mrs. C.G. Barnett, as co-hostesses.

Clark reported on the national conference in Washington, D.C., where she received the National President General Certificate for outstanding work and programs. The chapter also was recognized for sending in the best commemorative program for the year.

Mrs. Vera Morrow presented a program on "Your Flag and Mine." Members attended from Rotan, Snyder, Kermit and Fort Stockton. The next meeting will be July 30 at the restored drugstore in Gail.

Auxiliary to observe 27 years

The National Association of Letter Carriers Ladies Auxiliary 1975 met recently at the home of Mrs. Joan Slater.

During 1988, the auxiliary will observe 27 years of service toward its goal of promoting fellowship between the families of letter carriers assisting in bettering the working conditions of letter carriers and community service.

The current auxiliary was chartered in 1961 with nine members. Four of the charter members, Martha Moody, Altha Trupp, Francis Hendrick and Merlene Brown, remain active members. These ladies have been continuous members and will receive 25-year membership pins in September.

Martha Beene also will receive a 25-year membership pin for her years of service.

An earlier auxiliary was chartered in 1940 and remained active for several years. One charter member of that auxiliary, Myrtle True, has been a member of the current auxiliary for many years. She also will receive a 25-year pin.

As one goal of service to its purposes, the auxiliary would like to make all citizens aware of the amount of service one receives when mailing a letter in the United States with a 25 cent stamp.

Suspect in slaying tells of death scene

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer
A Big Spring man charged with murder graphically described the killing of a Texas man during a police revocation hearing in Odessa, Texas, Sunday.

Robert Romero Flores, slaying suspect, testified in the grand jury room in the courtroom.

My truck and Manuel got in the middle, and Leroy got in the truck and then I left to Odessa. I left my house and drove west on Second Street. I got to Brown Street, and turned north on Brown and drove to a trash pit that I knew about.

I went there because it was a secluded area, and I stopped and I got off. I got a piece of pipe out of the back of my truck and I laid it on the bumper, so (Leroy) couldn't see it.

And Leroy got off and told (Garcia) to get out, and he got off and took the pipe, and Leroy was talking to Manuel, and I swung at him.

Manuel turned and saw me, and he put up his arm and blocked the first swing, so I hit him in the arm. Then I swung again, and I hit him in the head I guess, and there was blood.

Later I went and I rapped up my truck and then I left to Odessa. He fled Oklahoma for Seminole and he said, then went to St. Paul, Minn. He was afraid for his life, he said, because of his brother's threat, in a statement to police after his arrest, he said his two strongest fears were his brother and the Texas Syndicate.

He described his brother, Ricardo Flores, 32, as a general in the Alamo gang members. He said they inducted Villareal into the gang during the April 1 party, but he was not allowed to witness the induction.

He said he was not a member of the gang and did not want to be. "Didn't you get in a fight with your brother because you had just killed one of his friends that he had invited from out of town especially Question, I just want to know if you can describe the 32-year-old Ricardo, also on parole, in a prison gang called the Texas Syndicate, and called paroled Leroy Flores, 31, Odessa, a member of the gang. He said Garcia was also a member of the gang and that he had killed his brother "General" weekend of Garcia's death. Flores also said a man, only as Bob Villareal was into the gang during an East Texas party at Flores' house. Villareal did not take part in the slaying.

Is this Crocodile's last lap?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In October 1986, the Paramount publicity department needed a hard sell to persuade journalists to interview an Australian pitchman-turned-actor named Paul Hogan. No problem now.

What made the difference was "Crocodile Dundee," a surprise blockbuster that grossed $175 million in the United States and Canada and did comparable business wherever it played. Now Hogan's back with "Crocodile Dundee II," which he swears will be the end of the outback adventurer.

"I've completed the circle," he said. "The new one is a good movie; it stands up all by itself. It's the end of 'Crocodile Dundee'."

"Yes, I'm sure I'll be asked the same questions in three years and five years. Like, 'What if 10 million people write you and say they want to see more?' That's getting a bit unfair."

"The challenge now is to come up with another character that surpasses 'Crocodile Dundee.' That doesn't mean I'll start playing 'The Hunchback of Czechoslovakia.' I won't stretch credibility too far."

His remarks will be filed for future reference. Remember when Sean Connery said no more James Bond? Remember "Never Say Never Again"?

If the success of "Crocodile Dundee" has changed Paul Hogan, it's not visible. He remains the same wry, laid-back observer of the passing scene.

Can he really be just plain Paul Hogan any more?

"Yes," he said. "In my home I can. I'm there as often as possible. When I work, I work seven days a week, however long it takes. When I finish the job, I disappear off the planet. Then I become bored with myself very quickly, and I go back."

About the only places where he can now travel freely, he admitted, are the Soviet Union and China: "Six months from now it may be different. But I don't really want to go to Russia anyway."

Hogan recently talked about the origins of "Crocodile II."

Paul Hogan and Linda Kozlowski recreate their roles as "Crocodile" Dundee and Sue Charlton in Paramount Pictures' "Crocodile Dundee II," which, according to Hogan, will be the end of the outback adventurer. "I've completed the circle," Hogan says.

"I decided about the time I finished No. 1," he said. "In the back of my head I thought I'd like to see this go further. I'd like to see this character get in real trouble. The first one was mostly a small-brackets adventure, a comedy and a love story with a little adventure."

"I thought I'd like to do a high adventure — if I could make it better than the first one."

In the new film, Dundee's girlfriend (Linda Kozlowski) becomes the target of South American drug dealers. After escaping death attempts in New York, the pair flee to the Australian outback. The villains pursue them, and Dundee faces seemingly insuperable odds.

The script was written by Hogan and his oldest son, Brett. Hogan said they made a good combination: "We were like a team writing songs — one writing the lyrics and the other the music. He writes very much in story lines, and I write in scenes."

The Paul Hogan story is the kind that makes the film business ever so fascinating. Who could figure that an Australian TV comedian would become an international star with one movie? Hogan didn't even start out to be an entertainer.

Hogan became a familiar face here with his commercials for Australian beer and tourism. So many visitors came to Australia that facilities were overtaxed. Hogan is no longer pitching his native land: "We don't want tourists sleeping in tents."

Playhouse hosts auditions

The Colorado City Playhouse will conduct auditions Monday and Tuesday at 7 p.m. for one of two mysteries: The Butler Did It, or Hide and Seek.

Performances are scheduled for August. Director will be David Shelton, music minister at First Baptist Church and choir teacher at Colorado Middle School and high school.

"The Butler Did It" is a play within a play, a thriller within a thriller, and a comedy above all else, according to Shelton. In the classic who-done-it-style, the audience will wonder whether Raymond Butler killed his wife, or if Victoria Butler killed her step-mother, or if perhaps it was Adlo — the butler.

"Hide and Seek" is a suspense drama. The story involves Jennifer and Richard Crawford who have moved into their new home. Their first child is on the way and life couldn't be much better. But, who is the little girl only Jennifer seems to have seen?

Both casts call for six to eight actors, both men and women, ranging from early 20s to middle age. Hide and Seek also will require a young girl with a small build, about the age of 12.

'Roots' actors reunited

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Louis Gossett Jr. and LeVar Burton, reunited for the first time since the blockbuster 1977 miniseries "Roots," predict the Christmas sequel will become a classic in itself, a kind of American answer to Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

"I think it's very wonderful to be able to anticipate sitting down with my loved ones and watching not only the Dickens classic, but 'Roots Christmas' as well, and hopefully year after year. It has the potential to be a classic," said Burton, 31, whose career was launched by the miniseries 12 years ago.

"This is as close to Dickens as we can get in an American story," Gossett said on a break in filming on the grounds of the Hermitage, the plantation home of President Andrew Jackson. "This is ours and we should cherish it. It's our American classic."

"Roots" still ranks as the highest-rated miniseries ever, and Part 8 was the third highest-rated television show in history, according to A.C. Nielsen.

The two-hour sequel, scheduled to air Dec. 11 on ABC, also stars Avery Brooks, Shaun Cassidy, Michael Learned and Kate Mulgrew.

The story was written by David Eyre based on an outline by Alex Haley, who grew up in the small western Tennessee town of Henning and wrote the Pulitzer Prize-winning book "Roots" after tracing his ancestry 200 years.

In the sequel, Kunta Kinte (Burton) and Fiddler (Gossett) clandestinely plan to lead a group of slaves to freedom on Christmas Eve in 1770.

Gossett, who in 1982 won an Academy Award for his supporting role in "An Officer and a Gentleman," said he expected a new generation to discover "Roots" through the sequel.

"It's a new kind of audience, the young people that maybe couldn't have grasped what the show was about the first time," Gossett said.

"It's very special, very spiritual. It's even better because of, I guess, the mutual growth of all of us and the growth of America especially," he said.

"Twelve years ago, do you think Jesse Jackson would have the chance to win anybody's primary, much less running or thinking about it? The consciousness of America has evolved."

Producer Mark Wolper, the son of executive producer David L. Wolper, said the sequel evolved from his father's idea that there were too few black Christmas shows.

"In thinking about what black kind of Christmas show he could tell, he called Alex Haley," the younger Wolper said.

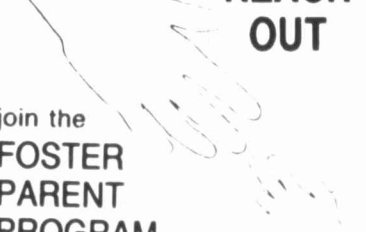

"And Alex Haley said, 'Oddly enough, I've just been thinking about examining my relatives' roots at Christmas. And the two of them said, 'What a great idea, let's write a 'Roots Christmas.'"

The film's budget is about $4 million, expensive for a two-hour television movie, said Bernie Sofronski, co-executive producer. In comparison, the last 12 hours of "Roots" cost $6 million, he said.

"When something has the history of 'Roots,' there's a lot at stake for the producers and actors involved to do this again," said Sofronski.

"We're also hoping, if we do our job right, that this will be a perennial Christmas show."

Boxers slug way to 2nd round of competition

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Local boxers are doing well against some heavy competition.

Both the Howard County Boxing Academy and the Big Spring Boxing Club fared well at the Western Trials Box-Off in Lubbock this past weekend.

Big Spring Boxing Club member Enrique Urias won the 95-pound weight division in the Junior Olympic competition. Randy Morales and Henry Urias also competed in the tourney.

Thursday Notes

Howard County Boxing Academy Junior Olympic winners were: Juan Garza (70) and Angel Villa (132).

Enrique Urias, Villa and Garza will compete in the Region VIII Junior Olympic Boxing Championship June 11-12 in Big Spring at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Howard County Boxing Academy boxers Juan Baldwin (125) and Martin Baldwin (139) won their divisions in the Open competition, advancing them to the Western Olympic Trials in Houston June 1-4.

Renee Villa (147) lost a close decision to Lubbock's Johnny Alamager, the two-time defending state Golden Gloves champ.

Colorado City had a host of boxers that won their Junior Olympic divisions. They were: Greg Gaona, (75) son of C-City coach Vince Gaona, Rey Anthony (90), Marcos Aguilera (112), Marcos Caballero (113) and Mario Galindo (175).

Former Big Spring Lady Steers' athlete Monette Wise can still play a good game of basketball.

Wise, now attending the University of Texas at Arlington, recently competed in the Schick Superhoop Three-on-Three Tournament, an intramural tournament for college students. The games were played at halftime of the Dallas Mavericks games.

Wise and teammates Donna Kidwell, Debbie York and Shirah Long won the local intramural contest and then the regional contest, advancing them to the national competition. They lost in the national semifinals in double overtime.

Wise is thinking about trying out for the UTA women's team next season, which will be her senior year.

Gale force winds almost cleared Lake E.V. Spence and J.B. Thomas of fishermen during the weekend, but there were a few reports of good catches.

At Lake Spence, one fisherman landed a 21-pound striped bass, and yellow catfish were biting on troutlines.

At Lake Thomas, Tommy Hood of Snyder not only won the Snyder bass tournament, but also had the largest black bass at 5.2 pounds.

At Lake Spence, Nolan Stanley of Big Spring caught a 10.1 pound striper.

Now for the weekly report from the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association...

Two teams tied for first in couples' scramble play on the back nine last Thursday with three-under-par 32s. One team was Gerald and Ramona Harris; and Nile Cole and Ina Stewart. The other team was Jerry and Ruth Roach and Paul and Dee Jenkins.

Finishing second with a 34 was the team of Max and Betty Ray Coffee and Jimmy and Ruby Honea. Placing third was the team of Marc and Dana Wilkinson, and Jim and Annie Ward.

In nine hole play Monday, Annie Ward and Dana Cannon shot a 40 to finish first in scramble play on the back nine.

Coahoma cowboy Wacey Cathey is still leading the bull riding competition in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Cathey currently has earned $23,248 in prize money. Second is Lane Frost of Lane, Okla. ($20,393) and third is Jim Sharp of Kermit ($20,354).

Last week at the Runnels Junior High awards ceremonies, the top male and female athlete were named. Voted Most Valuable Male Athlete was Gerald Cobos. Most Valuable Female Athlete was Amber Grisham.

Carlsbad, N.M. will be the site of the Equitable Family Tennis Challenge and Ford Mixed Doubles Championship June 4 at the Lake Carlsbad Municipal Courts.

There are different divisions for everyone. Winners advance to the sectional playoffs in Las Cruces, N.M.

For more information call Charlie Jurva at (505) 263-6597.

The weekend has finally come. Time for the West Texas Triple Crown Softball Series, which begins in Big Spring.

There will be a check-in party at K.C.'s Steak House at 7 p.m. Friday for all players and their families. Saturday tournament play begins in the four divisions, and Saturday night there will be a Saturday Night Special at Highland Lanes and the Pin Deck Lounge from 8 p.m. until 2 p.m.

Then there's more exciting softball action Sunday and Monday. So if you enjoy viewing top quality slow-pitch softball, don't miss this tournament.

The Western Sportsman Club will have its Second Annual Fun Day this Sunday from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the club's gun range on the Andrews Highway.

There will be seven events for rifles and pistols. Cost to enter is 42 per event or $10 for all seven. There will be awards for the first and second place finishers, and the high overall shooter.

All proceeds go to the Dora Roberts Rehab Center.

Pistons win at the Garden

BOSTON (AP) — Isiah Thomas scored 15 of his 35 points in the fourth quarter and the Detroit Pistons snapped a 21-game Boston Garden losing streak with a 104-96 victory over the Celtics in the opener of the Eastern Conference finals Wednesday night.

Thomas had two 3-point goals and a three-point play in the final period, offsetting the accurate shooting of Kevin McHale, who hit 12 of his first 15 shots from the field and scored 31 points.

Larry Bird had 20 for the Celtics, but couldn't come close to duplicating his 9-for-10 shooting performance in the fourth quarter of Sunday's playoff victory over Atlanta.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Boston Garden Thursday night. The third and fourth games will be at the Pontiac Silverdome on Saturday and Monday afternoons.

A 3-pointer by Thomas and a basket by Vinnie Johnson gave Detroit an 80-73 lead 1:09 into the fourth quarter. The Celtics then hit the next three baskets, including a 3-pointer by Danny Ainge, to tie the score for the 19th time in the game.

Thomas then had another 3-pointer and a three-point play, keying a 10-2 spurt that put the Pistons ahead to stay, 90-82, with 5:32 left.

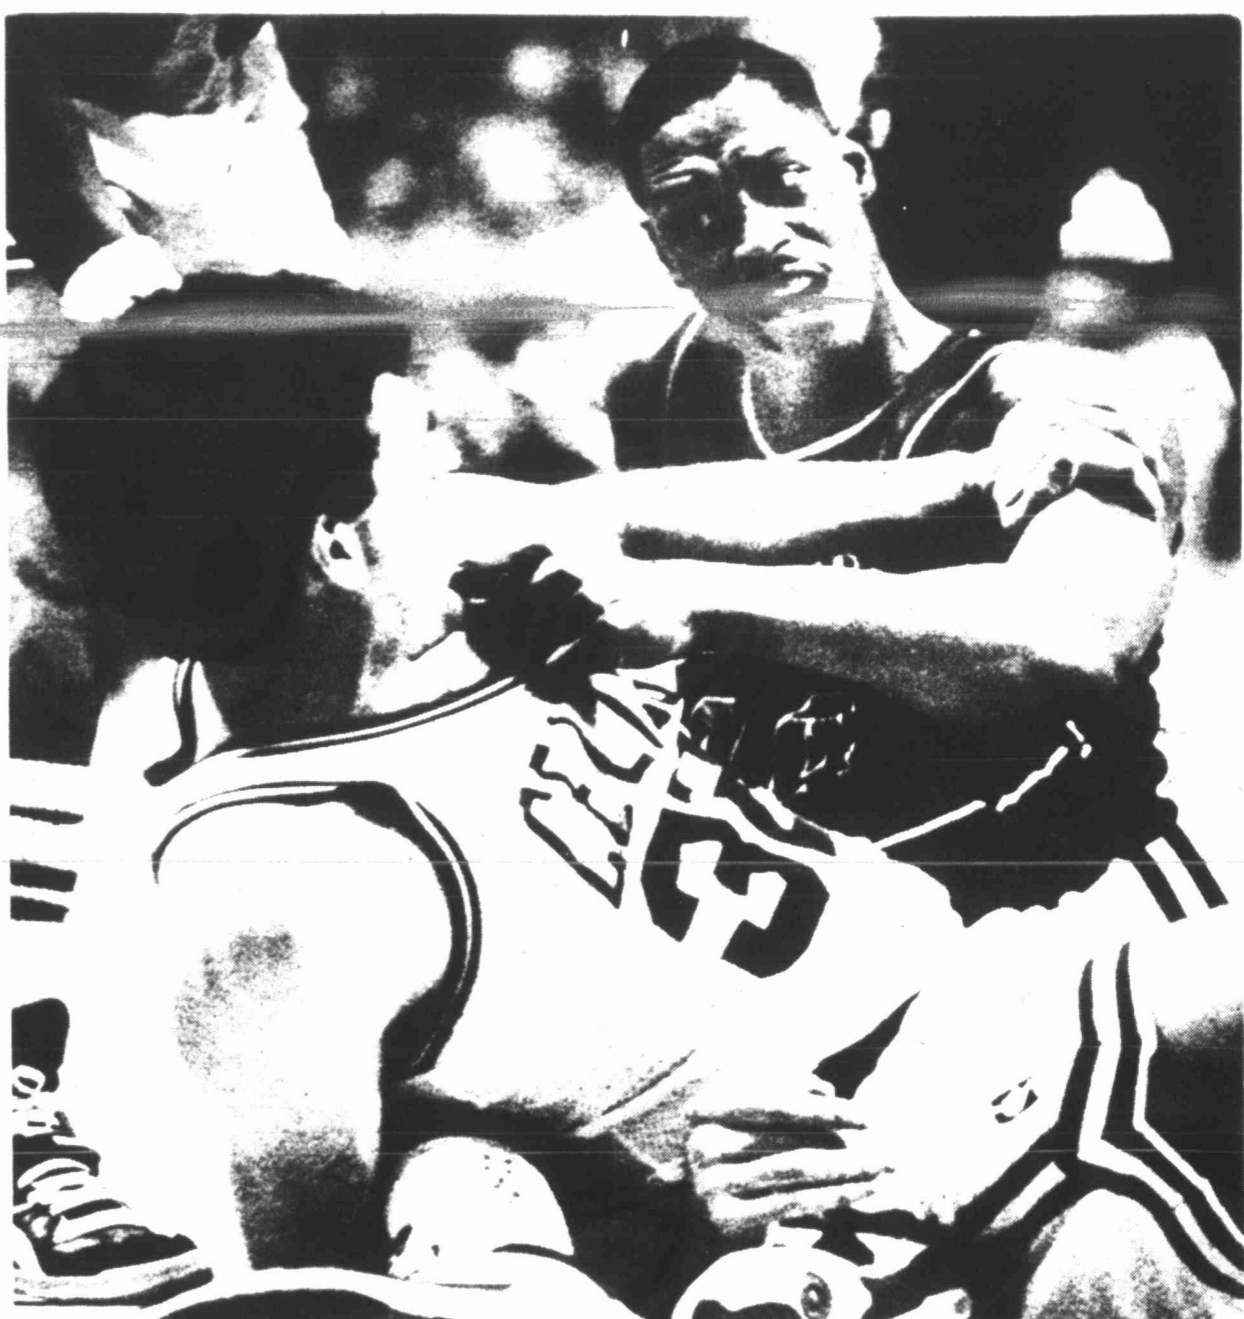

A three-point play by McHale made it 92-89 with 2:58 left, but two free throws by Thomas and a dunk by Dennis Rodman clinched the victory with 1:30 to go.

McHale had three baskets during an 8-2 Boston streak in the first three minutes of the second half, giving the Celtics a 61-54 lead, their largest of the game.

Despite missing six of seven free throws in the third period, Detroit stayed close until Thomas' three-point play started an 11-3 spurt that put the Pistons ahead 75-73 at the end of the quarter.

They held on to win at Boston Garden for the first time since Dec. 19, 1982 although center Bill Laimbeer missed the last 19 minutes with a bruised right shoulder.

The Pistons were playing their first game in a week after eliminating the Chicago Bulls in five games in the conference semifinals.

BOSTON — Detroit Pistons Rick McHorn (right) and Boston's Kevin McHale react after getting tangled up on the floor during third quarter action in game one of the NBA Eastern Conference finals at the Boston Garden.

Boston needed seven games, including a pair of two-point victories in Games 6 and 7, to beat Atlanta and advance to the conference finals for the fifth consecutive year.

The Celtics also have been in the championship series each of the last four years.

The Celtics, trailing by two entering the second quarter, tied the score six times in the period without taking the lead until a three-point play by Robert Parish put Boston ahead 51-50 with 1:30 left.

Boston led 53-52 at halftime.

A 12-3 spurt by the Celtics gave them an 18-13 lead with 5:13 left in the first period, but the Pistons outscored Boston 17-10 the rest of the quarter for a 30-28 edge.

Backup forward John Salley had six points and reserve guard Vinnie Johnson five in the final 3:05 of the period to lead the Pistons' rally.

Great Scott! Lakers bomb Mavs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Earlier in his career, Byron Scott was regarded by some critics as the weak link in the Los Angeles Lakers' lineup.

But Scott, in his fifth NBA season, has improved continuously and quietly has become the Lakers' leading scorer.

Wednesday night, Scott scored 30 points on 11-of-17 shooting to lead the Lakers to a 123-101 victory over Dallas and a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

The best-of-seven series now shifts to Dallas for games Friday and Sunday.

"My confidence level was high in the regular season and during the playoffs, it's skyrocketing. I felt so loose for this game," said Scott, who seemed plagued by self-doubt earlier in his career, particularly after he had some lackluster playoff games.

Scott, a 6-foot-4 shooting guard who's often overlooked in the shadow of point guard Magic Johnson, is the Lakers' leading scorer both in the regular season and the playoffs so far this year.

He has bolstered his game by becoming effective on drives to the basket.

He was hitting consistently from outside and on drives against the Mavericks in Game 2.

Scott's scoring is a problem Dallas coach John MacLeod would rather not have to deal with.

"He's another weapon for them," MacLeod said. "He's been having an All-Star season. He's been on fire, playing really well, since training camp."

"He's going to remember this year when he's old and retired. It's a banner year for him."

Said Lakers coach Pat Riley: "Byron had a career year last season, and he's playing even better this year."

"Byron is a young player and if he keeps improving, he's going to be the best off (shooting) guard in the league, if he isn't already. Of course, that's not counting Michael Jordan. He, like Earvin (Magic Johnson), is in a special class."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers' 41-year-old center, had 19 points and seven rebounds in the victory over Dallas.

James Worthy added 16 points and Johnson had 15 points and 19 assists.

Mark Aguirre led Dallas with 28 points. Sam Perkins had 16 and Rolando Blackman had 14.

The Lakers led 59-48 at halftime and stayed comfortably ahead in the second half.

Riley, saying the Mavericks' Reunion Arena is a tough place for visiting teams, tried to put the series in perspective.

MacLeod said he was still confident that the Mavericks have a chance, adding, "We're going to have to react better to what they're doing defensively, and we're going to have to get back faster on defense ourselves."

"They are an explosive ball club and we've got to be ready," Worthy said. "They will feel more motivated being at home with their crowd."

"We aren't thinking about a sweep," the Lakers' Johnson said. "We're just thinking about Friday night. We have to take care of business."

SAN DIEGO — Stars and Stripes catamaran has one hull out of the water as it sails along San Diego Bay Wednesday on its maiden sail.

The craft is one of two catamaran that may be used in the America's Cup defense.

Americans give new vessel first test

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 60-foot catamaran built to defend the America's Cup was taken out on San Diego Bay for its maiden voyage Wednesday, a two-hour excursion that went off without any problems, officials said.

Skipper Dennis Conner and his Stars & Stripes crew were happy to get the dual-hulled boat in the water and even happier that it came back in one piece, said

Lesleigh Green, spokeswoman for the Stars & Stripes syndicate.

"They took it very slowly and carefully at first, just to make sure everything was operating correctly," she said. "It's fragile ... and there had been some worries about maybe something breaking. But nothing broke, so that's good news."

"It came through intact and Dennis said he was very pleased with

More seeds lose

PARIS (AP) — A pair of obscure young players upset ninth-seeded Lori McNeil of the United States and 14th seed Sandra Cecchini of Italy at the French Open today, while men's seeds Pat Cash and Henri Leconte escaped narrowly with hard-won five-set victories.

Women's top seed Steffi Graf had no worries, though overpowering Susan Sloane of the United States 6-0, 6-1. Kent Carlsson, the seventh men's seed, breezed past his second-round opponent Jerome Potier 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Fourth-seeded Cash, last year's Wimbledon champion, started strongly against Javier Sanchez of Spain, but struggled before recovering to beat him 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Leconte, the 11th seed, saw momentum swing wildly in his match, before finally prevailing 6-1, 6-1, 6-7, 1-6, 6-2 over Bruno Oresar of Yugoslavia.

Sanchez got the upper hand over Cash in the second set by chasing down almost every one of the Australian's shots on the soft clay at Roland Garros Stadium. But Cash was able to come back by mixing accurate ground strokes with his preferred serve-and-volley game, which usually works better on grass courts like Wimbledon's.

Cecchini lost 6-4, 7-5 to 15-year-old Brenda Schultz of The Netherlands, who has moved up rapidly to 49th place in the world rankings this year.

Like Cash and Leconte, the favored McNeil looked unbeatable at the start. But she then lost command to Conchita Martinez, a 16-year-old from Spain.

Martinez played crisp shots from the baseline and took advantage of McNeil's errors to win 1-6, 6-3, 6-1. Ranked only 279th in the world, Martinez had to play in a qualifying tournament last week to gain entry into the Open.

Serving to stave off defeat in the seventh game of the final set, McNeil sent Martinez chasing balls across the backcourt, but she ran them all down and slammed a backhand passing shot to reach match point.

McNeil, of the United States, charged forward aggressively after her next serve, but dinked a forehand half-volley into the net to end the match.

Martinez, who trains in Switzerland, also is competing in the junior section of the French Open, in which play begins Monday.

Ranked 10th in the world, McNeil beat Chris Evert in last year's U.S. Open quarter-finals, but has had less success on slower clay courts.

Wednesday, Yannick Noah of France delighted a hometown crowd at center court with an acrobatic performance, beating Brazilian Luiz Mattar 6-2, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6.

Graf led most of the well-known women players through easy matches Wednesday that offered few thrills and only a few spills.

But the tournament also saw its first major upsets Wednesday. The casualties included both No. 8 seeds — Hana Mandikova of Australia and American Tim Mayotte — along with the 12th-seeded woman, Italy's Raffaella Reggi, and the No. 13 man, Andres Gomez of Ecuador.

Graf, sneezing from a cold during the match, had no problem beating Ronnie Reis of Miami 6-0, 6-1. But she became annoyed when she was told second-ranked Martina Navratilova still considered herself the top player in world tennis.

Navratilova had an even easier match. She was up 6-0, 1-0, 40-15 when her opponent, Hellas Ter Reit of the Netherlands, became ill on center court and defaulted.

Chris Evert, the No. 3 seed, disposed of Barbara Romano of Italy 7-5, 6-2. Sabatini beat Karen Schimper of South Africa 6-3, 6-0, Maleeva whipped Linda Ferrando of Italy 6-0, 6-2, and No. 6 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia defeated Sabina Appelmans of Belgium 6-1, 6-4.

Oilers shoot for Cup tonight

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Winning the Stanley Cup at the Northlands Coliseum has become a springtime tradition for the Edmonton Oilers.

"The only better position than a 3-0 lead is a 3-0 lead with the fourth game in Edmonton," said Oilers center Wayne Gretzky, whose club takes a three-game lead over Boston into tonight's second attempt to play Game 4 of the finals.

An Edmonton victory will give the Oilers their second straight Stanley Cup and fourth in five years. The first three were all won at home.

The first attempt to play Game 4 was short-circuited by a power failure Tuesday night at Toggly Boston Garden. The game was halted late in the second period, seconds after the Oilers tied the game 3-3.

The NHL decided to cancel the game and replay it in Edmonton, giving the Oilers — who are 10-for-10 at the Coliseum in playoff games this year — home ice in three of the first four games.

The Oilers were happy to be out of the Boston Garden, even if it meant coming home without the Cup.

"I think the conditions are better to play hockey in Edmonton," coach Glen Sather said. "The ice is absolutely better there. You can actually glide out there. In Boston, it's like skating in sand."

Or fog, which gave parts of Tuesday night's game a surrealistic quality.

Gretzky said the conditions were intolerable. There was no air conditioning and the heat in the building sent ice-level temperatures soaring and triggered the fog.

The game was held up several times while players skated around to help clear the fog. Gretzky said players had trouble seeing and there was a danger of getting hurt.

"It was an unfortunate situation," he said. "That sort of thing shouldn't happen in a showcase Stanley Cup playoff game like that."

When the power went out, Gretzky felt "it was a blessing in disguise. I thought someone was going to lose an eye, or something."

Things will be different in Edmonton, where the Oilers have been able to use the larger ice surface to their advantage.

"We've got to be in a good frame of mind," Gretzky said. "We won Game 3 and tied Game 4. We played well in Boston and we're coming home where we are undefeated."

However, Gretzky said the Oilers "would have loved to have finished the game (on Tuesday night). Basically, it was 0-0 and we were 23 minutes away from the Stanley Cup."

Flying into Edmonton on a charter Wednesday, Sather was happy to go home. But he said it "would have been a lot nicer going home if we had won. It's not easy winning the Stanley Cup. There's a lot of travel involved and this (game) is just another step. It presents another challenge."

No one knows that better than Bruins coach Terry O'Reilly, who was also happy to be going back to Edmonton at this point. That meant his team was still alive in the finals, even if it was just barely.

"It's good to be going to Edmonton, but I wish we had a win under our belts," O'Reilly said.

O'Reilly said Andy Moog, who who played well in the opener of the series and again in the blackout game on Tuesday night, will start in goal.

Moog, a former Oiler, has never been reader.

"I would rather play Game 4 in Boston," he said, "but we've played some of our best games in Edmonton."

Considering the circumstances, Moog would play Game 4 on the moon.

"Hey, we're down 3-0," he said. "It really doesn't matter where we play."

Penske's drivers top Indy hopefuls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, unhappy with his second-row starting position for Sunday's Indianapolis 500, is trying to figure out a strategy that will even things up against the three Penske team cars on the front row.

Rick Mears, Danny Sullivan and defending champion Al Unser — who have seven Indy victories among them — will start ahead of Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner. Mears occupies the pole position after a record 219.198 mph average for his 10-mile qualification run.

"All three of those guys have track records to prove their worth," Andretti said Wednesday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. "These are all skillful individuals that have won a lot of races and know how to win races. All you have to do is look at their record. That speaks for itself. These are capable guys."

It concerns me because all three cars are very good," he said. "I'd love to be clear of those and I'm not, so I'm going to have to deal with them and see how the race unfolds, how the start unfolds and take it from there."

"We'll see how quick Al wants to run, how quick Sullivan wants to run and I'm sure Mears will want to run quick right from the onset."

The rules require drivers to start the race with the tires used in qualifying and Andretti said that creates a problem for him in his 23rd Indy start.

"I don't have a particularly good set of tires because my stagers just went off in qualifying very badly, and I'm stuck with that," he said. "We're trying to survive that first stint before we come in for a change, and there's going to be considerable change after our first stop."

Andretti, 48, has suffered a series of frustrations in bids to duplicate the Indy victory he recorded 19 years ago.

He doesn't know when the first pit stop will come, but he's hoping for the best — and maybe a little luck.

"If I'm not leading, I'm going to just wait and see what the leaders do, because arbitrarily it's pretty tough to duck in the pits and then have the entire field ahead of you," he said. "To be caught in the back of the pack is no fun."

Andretti and the Penske entries have taken different routes in preparing for the race since qualifying on May 14, the first of four days of time trials.

"Mears, for one, has done very little running after qualifying, which I think is uncharacteristic. So, obviously, they're pretty confident," Andretti said.

On the other hand, Andretti and Sullivan both have spent considerable time practicing on the 2½-mile oval since qualifications ended.

Andretti placed his Chevrolet-powered Lola on the second row after qualifying with a disappointing 214.692 after recording several laps at over 220 in practice.

"We knew (this year) we could go quick under overcast skies, no question about that," he said. "I couldn't keep my front end in as soon as the sun came out. I think we sort of came to grips with that about Friday before qualifying and we chose not to really do anything about it. We should have. We probably should have aborted the run. But all those things are behind us."

That led Andretti to spend more time than usual on the track during the final week of practice.

"We had to do what we had to do. I felt I didn't have as versatile a setup as he (Mears) did, as far as going fast," Andretti said. "After running Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (of last week) with the actual race car, which I don't like to do ... I've been stung on that score before, but we did and I think we've made our car better."

Andretti and the 32 other drivers in the $4 million race have been experimenting with various race day setups on their cars in practice after they qualified.

"We just played around and played around quite a bit and I think we have a couple of different setups like we did last year. It looks like it's going to be hot, how sunny I don't know. I think that's going to determine what we finally do. We may make a last ditch change like we did last year just Sunday morning before we put it on the line," Andretti said.

Andretti was on the pole here last year when he led 170 laps before mechanical problems knocked him out of the race. He managed to finish 180 laps, placing ninth.

Andretti and the other drivers will have one last chance to test their cars on the asphalt oval during the traditional two-hour "carburetion" practice session today.

Green said Conner would be taking the San Diego Yacht Club boat out almost daily between now and the September regatta against New Zealand, which has entered a 90-foot monohull schooner.

New Zealand challenger Michael Fay is contesting the legality of the catamaran, which is being used in Cup competition for the first time.

In recent trial runs with practice catamarans, Conner and his crew have capsized twice and broken two masts.

Hitters Leary of this hurler

By The Associated Press
The National League is starting to become a bit leary of Tim Leary.

Leary, troubled by a sore arm for most of his career, pitched a one-hitter Wednesday night and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0.

A line-drive single by Darren Daulton leading off the third inning was the only blemish in Leary's third shutout this season. Leary, 4-3, extended his scoreless-inning streak to 19 and lowered his ERA to 2.45.

"I went to spring training not sure where I'd end up pitching," Leary said. "I had to open the Dodgers' eyes."

He did that again in pitching the Dodgers back into first place in the National League West, four percentage points ahead of Houston.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh defeated Houston 4-3, New York beat San Francisco 6-3, St. Louis trimmed Cincinnati 6-0, Atlanta edged Chicago 2-1 and Montreal topped San Diego 6-2.

Mike Scioscia and Jeff Hamilton hit two-run homers, the first of the season for each, to support Leary.

Leary pitched his first career one-hitter and his fifth shutout in the majors.

"It was just one of those things. They hit everything at us," Leary said.

Dodgers Tom Lasorda was more complimentary, as usual. "We didn't play very well behind him. He could be right up there with the big winners," Lasorda said. "He has pitched extremely well."

Leary's main trouble came in the first inning. He cut the middle finger on his pitching hand on a pebble while facing leadoff batter Milt Thompson, and called the trainer to the mound.

"It was bleeding a little," Leary said. "They put some gooey stuff on it and closed the scratch. It didn't bother me after that."

Phillies manager Lee Elia was bothered by his team's hitting, and lack of it.

"I'd be embarrassed if I went out there every night and had my bats broken," Elia said. "We keep getting jammed and striking out. You'd think they'd have enough belly to correct it."

"We got beat by a guy with one pitch, a fastball. All night long again, no offense," Elia said.

Mets 6, Giants 3

Gary Carter and Kevin McReynolds each drove in two runs as New York beat San Francisco for the first time in five games this season.

Ron Darling, 5-3, gave up three runs in 7 1-3 innings and Randy Myers got the last two outs for his seventh save.

McReynolds, in a 1-for-19 slump, hit a two-run single and Carter followed with a sacrifice fly in the first inning against PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Pirates Bobby Bonilla trots past third base coach Gene Lamont following his fourth inning homer off Houston Astros starter Bob Knepper Wednesday night in Three Rivers Stadium. Teammate Darnell Coles followed with another homer to help the Bucs beat the Astros 4-3.

Mike LaCoss, 3-4

LaCoss hit a two-run double and Kevin Mitchell homered for the visiting Giants.

Braves 2, Cubs 1

Gerald Perry singled home the tiebreaking run with two outs in the eighth inning as Atlanta won in Chicago.

The Braves took two of three at Wrigley Field and won their first series under new Manager Russ Nixon.

Reliever Rick Mahler, 5-4, won his fifth straight decision despite allowing Ryne Sandberg's tying single in the eighth. Bruce Sutter got his sixth save.

Cardinals 6, Reds 0

Larry McWilliams pitched a two-hitter and Tom Brunansky had a two-run homer, leading host St. Louis over Cincinnati.

McWilliams, 3-0, struck out eight for his first shutout since Aug. 1, 1984, and first complete game since June 16, 1985. It was his fifth career two-hitter and lowered his ERA to 1.46, second-best in the NL.

Pirates 4, Astros 3

Bobby Bonilla and Darnell Coles hit consecutive homers and Jose Lind's single broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning as Pittsburgh beat visiting Houston.

With two outs, pinch hitters

Sid Bream and Barry Bonds walked before Lind singled off Joaquin Andujar, 0-2.

Mike Dunne, 3-2, gave up five hits in seven innings. Jeff Robinson closed for his fifth save.

Expos 6, Padres 2

Dennis Martinez ended his four-game losing streak with his first victory since April 24 as Montreal defeated San Diego.

Tom Foley hit a pair of RBI doubles and Tim Wallach had two hits, drove in two runs and scored twice.

Martinez, 4-6, gave up eight hits in his second complete game.

Forget the no-hitter; just trying for strikes

By The Associated Press
Jeff Robinson was so bad he was almost perfect.

The Detroit pitcher had a hard time finding the plate, and the Milwaukee Brewers had a harder time finding his pitches.

When the game was over Wednesday night, Detroit had a 4-3 victory and the Brewers had just one hit off Robinson and reliever Guillermo Hernandez, a three-run homer by Greg Brock.

American League

"Robinson was wild," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "Wild enough to be very effective until he got too wild."

In the first five innings, Robinson, 5-2, didn't give up a hit.

"I was so concerned at trying to throw strikes, I never had time to think about a no-hitter," Robinson said. "I think I was just wild enough (that) they couldn't sit in one place."

"They didn't know where it was going, and half the time I didn't, either."

In other American League games Wednesday, it was the New York Yankees 4, California 2 in 10 innings; Texas 5, Toronto 1; Minnesota 4, Kansas 2; Cleveland 5, the Chicago White Sox 2; Boston 4, Seattle 0; and Oakland 8, Baltimore 1.

Robinson started the Milwaukee sixth by walking Paul Molitor and B.J. Surhoff. One out later, Brock hit his third home run of the year into the lower deck in left. Robinson then struck out Glenn Braggs, but when he walked Rob Deer, Detroit manager Sparky Anderson called for Hernandez to come in from the bullpen.

"I knew if we were going to win it, he (Hernandez) was going to have to come in and put a stop to it," Anderson said. "He did. He had excellent control and he's throwing the ball hard again."

Hernandez finished up to earn his second save, walking one and striking out one.

"Guillermo's been doing that for the last month," Robinson said. "He's done the job every time they've given him the ball. When the money's on the line, he's done his job."

"He was awesome tonight. I was watching him tonight, and he was just incredible."

The Tigers scored three runs in the third off Juan Nieves, 4-4, then took a 4-0 lead in the fourth. Tom Brookens drove in two of the runs.

Yankees 4, Angels 2

Dave Winfield's 10th-inning home run led New York to its victory and a three-game sweep of California. It was the Angels' fifth straight loss.

Winfield's 10th homer of the season came with one out against DeWayne Buice, 1-3. The Yankees added another run on Willie Randolph's bases-loaded walk.

Johnny Ray's pinch-home run with one out in the ninth off winner Neil Allen, 1-0, made it 2-2. Joel Skinner had given the Yankees a 2-0 lead in the seventh with a two-run homer, his first.

Red Sox 4, Mariners 0

Roger Clemens held Seattle to just four hits and pitched his fifth shutout of the season as Boston defeated the Mariners 4-0 at the Kingdome.

Spike Owen's third homer of the season, off starter Mark Langston, 4-4, hit the left-field foul pole just above the wall. Wade Boggs walked to lead off the eighth and Dwight Evans followed with his second home run.

Clemens, 7-2, posted his fourth straight complete game and sixth of the season. The major league's strikeout leader with 107, Clemens fanned five Seattle batters and walked two. In his career, Clemens has 15 shutouts in his 67 victories.

Indians 5, White Sox 2

Cory Snyder's two run-scoring hits led Cleveland past Chicago. It was the Indians' 12th victory in their last 15 games.

John Farrell, 5-3, allowed two runs on six hits, while striking out five and walking two for the victory. It was the 18th complete game of the season for Cleveland pitchers, compared to 24 for all of 1987.

Julio Franco singled in the first off John Davis, 1-2, stretching his hitting string to 14 games, the major leagues' longest current streak.

Twins 4, Royals 2

Bert Blyleven beat Kansas City for the 28th time and Dan Gladden tripled, doubled and singled, leading visiting Minnesota to a three-game sweep of the Royals. Blyleven gave up 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings. Jeff Reardon finished for his 10th save.

The Twins won their fourth in a row on the road, one short of the franchise record for consecutive victories on the same trip. The Royals lost their fourth straight game.

Blyleven, 3-4, won his 247th career game, tying him with Joe McGinnity and John Powell for 37th on the all-time list.

Rangers 5, Blue Jays 1

Keno Petrali had three hits and knocked in three runs to lead Texas over Toronto. The victory snapped a three-game Texas losing streak as middle reliever Jeff Russell, making his second straight effective start, gave up six hits over 7 2-3 innings. Dale Mohoric relieved with the bases loaded to halt Toronto's rally and gain his fourth save.

Athletics 8, Orioles 1

Bob Welch allowed three hits in eight innings en route to his seventh consecutive victory as Oakland defeated Baltimore. Welch, 8-2, who got his first AL shutout with a five-hitter at Baltimore on May 14, struck out four and walked none.

Rick Honeycutt pitched the ninth inning, allowing one hit. Mark Williamson, 1-4, was the loser.

Oakland's Dave Parker and Dave Henderson each had two-run homers.

Angels game stopped in 10th

By The Associated Press

Matias Carrillo hit two home runs, singled once and drove in three RBIs as the El Paso Diablos posted a 10-9, come-from-behind Texas League baseball victory over the Arkansas Travelers.

In other Texas League action Wednesday, Shreveport downed San Antonio 3-1 and Tulsa defeated Wichita 5-1, but a rain-soaked Midland-Jackson matchup was postponed with a scoreless tie in the tenth inning.

Texas League

El Paso trailed the Travelers until the fifth inning Wednesday when they took a 9-8 lead. The Diablos scoring was boosted ahead by the strong swinging of George Canale, who followed an 0-for-17 season record against the Travelers with three hits and three RBIs.

Diablos second baseman Fred Williams drove in Frank Mattox with a two-out single in the tenth inning to give El Paso the go-ahead run.

Pitcher Rob Hicks allowed no scores in his 3 2-3 innings of relief work to earn the victory.

In Tulsa, Chad Kreuter's two-run triple capped a three-run third inning and led the Drillers to a 5-1 win over the Wichita Pilots.

Jose Vargas hit an RBI double to complete the scoring in the inning. Other runs for Tulsa, 21-22, came from Gary Alexander's RBI single in the first and an RBI single by Scott Coolbaugh in the third.

Wichita, 19-27, scored its only run on a wild pitch in the seventh inning.

Shreveport's John Skurla knocked in a run and scored one himself as the Shreveport Captains scored three times in the first inning and then held on for the 3-1 win over San Antonio.

Dee Dixon doubled, and scored on Skurla's single. Rick Nelson scored the third run on a single by Romy Cucjen.

Winning pitcher Trevor Wilson, 5-1, went seven innings, allowing seven hits and three walks and striking out three. Romon Martinez took the loss for the Missions.

Florida trying to lure pro team

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida House voted Wednesday to complete a $30 million funding package that aims to lure to Florida the Chicago White Sox or other major, professional sports teams.

The vote was the latest bet in a bidding war between interests in Florida, primarily the city of St. Petersburg, which is trying to bring the White Sox south, and interests in Illinois, whose officials hope to keep the team in Chicago.

Lawmakers nearly stalled the Florida bill by demanding that any enterprise qualifying for the public support ensure that at least 15 percent of its stadium-concession employees be ethnic minorities. But that was turned away with a promise to raise the issue in the Senate after its fiscal impact could be examined.

Proposed by Rep. Douglas

Jamerson, D-St. Petersburg, the funding package was passed after weeks of debate only because Jamerson and other sponsors agreed to broaden it to include cities other than his hometown and sports besides baseball. However, St. Petersburg appears furthest ahead in the race to draw major-league baseball.

Any Florida city could qualify for the state funding if a major-league team signs a 15-year lease to play in that city and begin full-time, home-game play by 1991.

The bill (HB 1717) was sent to the Senate on a vote of 66-38. There were 16 abstentions.

The Senate and governor would have to approve the bill before it would become law.

Last week, lawmakers approved a direct $5 million appropriation for any city that can draw a major-league team. The $25 million bill approved Wednesday would provide for two more direct appropriations of $5 million in each of the next two years and a plan to allow a $15 million bond issue, based on sales-tax revenues from a stadium where an approved team is based.

Stadium profits, if any, would be used to help pay back the bond issue.

Also, an amendment was added to ensure that Joe Robbie Stadium, where the NFL's Miami Dolphins play, could qualify for the money if a baseball franchise were brought there. That amendment anticipates an expansion by the American or National baseball leagues.

Hargrett said it would be easy to find minority employees to sell food and drink at concession stands and that the requirement should not scare away potential financiers.

Lansford likes new leadoff role

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Carney Lansford, a leadoff man for the first time in his 11-year career, is feeling more comfortable in his new location in the lineup.

The 400 neighborhood will do that for a hitter.

"I'm getting used to it," says

Lansford, who is hitting .397. Lansford went into Wednesday's game against Baltimore with a .400 average but went 1-for-4 in the Athletics' 8-1 victory over the Orioles.

"The thing I'm happiest with is that I'm getting on base for the guys behind me," Lansford said. "Mark McGwire and Jose Canseco are the keys to us scoring runs."

Lansford had 19 home runs, his career high, in each of the last two seasons and was the A's cleanup hitter the final 33 games of last year. He also stole a career-high 27 bases in 1987.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your exuberance will inspire others. Seize the brass ring when it comes your way! You enter this next year of your life with a clean slate. Talents you may not realize you have will display themselves at exactly the right moment. Your good luck carries over into areas of health, romance and long-term investments. Financial success may be enhanced by a change of environment. Stay alert!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Bruce Weitz and Vincent Price, dancer Isadora Duncan, biologist Rachel Carson, authors John Cheever and Herman Wouk, "Wild Bill" Hickok, author Julia Ward Howe, Vice President Hubert Humphrey, diplomat Henry Kissinger, composer Harold Rome.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A very productive day lies ahead. Others will be open to your ideas and suggestions. You have your act together. A good day for expanding a relationship, fulfilling loved ones' wishes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Consider employment alternatives if you are unhappy about your work. Work pressures may be all that ail you. Check with a doctor to be sure. Travel is favored if you keep expenses down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make a big push to finish things this morning so you will feel really free this weekend. You could be a source of inspiration to someone you do not even know.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Humor is a valuable ally in establishing a new relationship. Things should go well for you now. Financial planning lets you increase investments or savings. Call loved ones or allies overseas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An athletic event commands your attention. Regular exercise will help you feel and look better. Be direct and you will get what you want. Include the whole family in your decision-making.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Morning travel is not advisable as there could be mix-ups. Do not lose your cool. Take any rumors you hear about friends, organizational ties or romantic affairs with a grain of salt. Be realistic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A sharp difference of opinion with mate will get the day off to a rocky start. Compromise! Instead of brooding over past mistakes, look for new ways to cut costs. Speed routine tasks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your powers of concentration are at their peak. Tackle those tasks that require careful attention to detail. Come to grips with a challenging creative project. Home life continues to be joyful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Listen attentively to partner's advice. Catch up on paperwork and routine chores. An influential person is not available right now. Romance provides the brightest spot in your day. Be affectionate with loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An old friend supplies the information you need to put over an important project. If practical, share the glory and financial remuneration. Romance continues on a steady course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You make long-range plans to ensure your financial security. Remember that family members need to know exactly where they stand. Romance will blossom if you make the first move. Be bold.

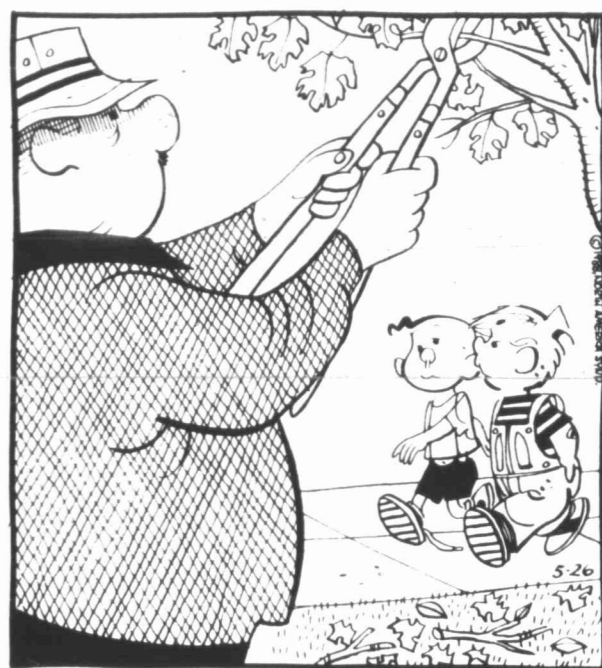

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Check facts and figures very carefully before making a proposal. Protect joint resources by paying more attention to routine tasks. A discussion with your mate provides food for thought. Keep your own counsel.
