'Twain' Will open specials

"Starlight Special" presentations at the Comanche Trail Amphitheatre will feature a solo performance Saturday of the works of Mark Twain.

Actor Michael Spicer will perform two readings and selected dialogues by Mark Twain at 8 p.m. It will be Spicer's tenth performance of the celebrated author and inventor.

"(Mark Twain) always said, The hall opens at 7 and the trouble begins at 8,' "Spicer said. He will be dressed to impersonate Twain and will use only Twain writings for his materials, he said.

"From about mid-life until his death he was on the lecture circuit...and he developed volumes of material," Spicer

His readings will come from the works "Innocence Abroad" and the "Tales of Huckleberry Finn.

He encouraged families to attend the performance. "I used a lot of sources (to develop the material), all of it basically Mark Twain," he said. Season tickets are $12. Single tickets for adults are $3; senior citizens and children under 12 are $1. All tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce and at the door.

The performance schedule is: • June 23, 24, 25 — "Oil's Well that Ends Well," by Spring City

• July 8-9 - "Fiesta Night" with Lydia Melina, coordinator. • July 22-23 - Children's theatre production, Spring City

COLORADO CITY - Mayor Jim Baum joined LULAC Chapter President Oscar Ortiz in asking more than 40 residents Wednesday night for help in bringing federal investigators into the May 13 death of a Hispanic man shot by an Anglo police officer.

Citizens gathered in the Wallace Community Center to hear, and question, Baum concerning what the city planned to do. Many expressed fear for their safety because Police Chief Bobby Sparks. Gomez allegedly pulled a knife on the officers and refused to drop the weapon or stop advancing toward two of the officers.

Part-time police officer Billy Ray Williamson shot Gomez twice in the chest, Sparks has said, and information attributed to Kiker-Seale Funeral Home indicated that Gomez was also shot in the back of the head. Sparks earlier refused to reveal the location of the third shot, according to published reports. He did not attend the meeting Wednesday. The police department has refused comment on the shooting and has referred inquiries to City Attorney

Several residents, including the parents of the dead man, Marcario and Minnie Gomez, questioned the mayor about the ability of the city government to suspend Williamson pending a further investigation of

A Mitchell County grand jury refused to indict the officer May 20.

Ortiz presented a proposal to the citizens to create a joint committee, composed of Ortiz, Baum, and four representatives from the community and four city officials, possibly including representatives of the law enforcement community, to work together to defuse civil rights concerns in Colorado City.

Concerned Citizens Committee members are Ortiz, Emma and David Godina, Frank Biggers and Juan Espinoza. Baum said Wednesday he had not yet named city officials to the committee.

"I didn't want it to look like I was trying to ramrod anything here until the people had agreed this was what they wanted to do," Baum said. "I think within a couple of days I will have members (named).'

. The committee will also work toward prevention of incidents similar to the shooting, Baum said. "The only way we can get the Justice Department to investigate this is by you people getting involved, Ortiz said. "The only way to they will listen to us is if each one of you write the offices - the Texas Attorney General, the U.S. Attorney and the Justice

Walkers with heart walking for health Saturday

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer It is accepted medical theory that exercise, such as walking, is good for one's heart.

Area walkers at Comanche Trail Park Saturday will be helping other hearts besides their own, however, when they participate in the Great Texas Walk For Heart, sponsored locally by the Big Spring chapter of the American Heart Association.

Participants will attempt to raise money for the AHA by securing pledges for either a flat amount or on a per-mile walked basis, local chapter president Diane Linhart said Wednesday.

The walk is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. at the park's one-mile course, although persons may join in the walk at a later time that morning, Linhart said.

Prizes - which include windbreakers. barrel bags, T-shirts and visors — will be awarded to walkers who secure the most in pledges. In addition, a trophy will be given to the team that raises the most money, Linhart said.

Proceeds from the event will go to the AHA's continuing fight against heart diseases, which she said is one of the leading causes of death in the United States today.

Rita Nell Diffie, regional director for the AHA, explained how the money will be distributed. For every dollar raised, it is proportioned in the following manner: Research — 35 cents.

 Public education, such as curriculum guides and pamphlets - 30 cents. Professional education (seminars and material for medical professionals)

• Community service (blood pressure screenings, CPR classes) — eight cents.

 Fundraising — 15 cents. Administrative costs — seven cents.

Money raised locally is sent to Austin. and is invested by the state organization. The money is credited to the division from which it came, however, Diffie said. "The money doesn't actually sit in a bank account in Big Spring," she said from her Midland office, "but it does come back to the city indirectly." The closest research facility that receives AHA funds is the Texas Tech University Medical Center in Lubbock, she noted.

Materials needed for local programs are provided through the state office, Dif-

Linhart said Big Spring doesn't receive a large amount of funds, since there are no research facilities here. Most of the local chapter's efforts, therefore, go toward public education, she added. Education programs range from wellness seminars at the workplace to programs and curriculum guides in elementary and secondary schools, she

130 contestants still compete

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen more of the sharpest young spellers in the country were eliminated from the National Spelling Bee today, leaving 130 contestants who had whizzed through words that most people have never even heard of Today's competition began with 144 children who had survived Wednesday's first three rounds. There were 200 contenders in the contest when it began, the most ever in its 61 years

One youngster still competing was Iris Liu. the youngest contestant ever to make it to the national finals. Iris, the daughter of Taiwanese immigrants who operate a bookstore in Muncie, Ind., does not turn nine until June 20.

The third-grader had no trouble today, spelling "mordacious," which means biting or given to biting. Wearing a frilly pink dress and pigtails, she then turned with a little skip and walked briskly to her seat.

The day's first casualty was Rodolfo G. Ramirez Jr., 12, the son of a shoe repairman and a registered nurse from Midland, Texas. "I'm planning to come back next year," the sixth-grader said after he had misspelled "mycophagous." which means mushroom eater, by using an "i" instead of a "y."

Still alive in the contest, sponsored by Scripps Howard newspapers, was Robert Pryor, an 11-year-old from Washington. D.C., who had to be helped to the microphone

Wednesday by his grandfather and a bee official because of stomach cramps.

Today, with grandfather Robert Pryor standing at his side, he correctly spelled, "flammeous," which refers to something that resembles the color of a flame

Wednesday's rounds featured a spelling error by bee officials themselves.

They began distributing to reporters a list of words that had been asked in the first round when one journalist pointed out that a word appeared to be misspelled. Indeed, "hitchhike" had come out "hitchike" on the bee's list, and officials stopped handing it out while they penned in the missing "h" on all 300 copies.

When the event began Wednesday, there were 102 girls and 98 boys from 47 states, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam and Mexico in the running

None of them was yet 15 years old, even though contest rules permit entrants who have not reached their 16th birthdays, are not yet in the ninth grade and have not won

Last year's winner was Stephanie Petit, 13, from Bethel Park, Pa., who correctly spelled "staphylococci," a bacteria. In that contest, in which there were 185 entrants, it took 876 words before a winner was declared.

There were 485 words offered Wednesday.

plan to let the state sell the homes of deceased Texans whose nursing home bills were paid by the state was declared dead today by the senator who sponsored the law.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, told a special committee studying the topic that he would urge the 1989 Legislature to repeal the provision it approved last year in an effort to raise money to pay for nursing home care for more elderly Texans.

"I'm convinced the potential harm from this legislation outweighs its possible benefits,' Edwards told the Texas Sunset Commission's special committee on Medicaid liens. "Good intentions and a lengthy legislative process are not reasons to defend a measure whose minuses outweigh its pluses.

The provision was part of a comprehensive Department of Human Services bill sponsored by Edwards and approved by the 1987

AUSTIN (AP) — A controversial Legislature. Under the plan, DHS was authorized to recover Medicaid expenses from estates of deceased Texans who received benefits from the program.

In January, DHS proposed "estate recovery" rules in which it would be allowed to place liens on the homes of deceased Medicaid recipients who had no surviving spouse or disabled or dependent Projections showed the estate recovery program could have raised funds to pay for 1,000 additional elderly Texans in nursing homes."

But the plan drew protests from some Medicaid recipients who feared they would lose their homes. Edwards said some recipients dropped out of the program because of those fears.

"For the good of the senior citizens it is now time to say (the program) is not now or ever going to be implemented. It is time to declare the measure dead," he

'This is an emotional moment for Mrs. Reagan and me," the president said, telling the Gorbachevs he had seen and learned much about "this Moscow spring." Reagan said he was impressed with the Soviet people he encountered.

"At first they were curious faces. but as time went on, the smiles began and then the waves," he said, "And I don't have to tell, you, Nancy and I smiled back and waved just as hard."

Gorbachev thanked Reagan for 'cooperation, openness and a businesslike approach to the talks that we have had here."

But the Communist Party general secretary also said there were missed opportunities at the Moscow summit.

"Our dialogue has not been easy," Gorbachev said, "but we mustered enough realism and political will to overcome obstacles and divert the train of U.S.-Soviet relations from a dangerous track to a safer one. It is, however, so far, been moving much more slowly than is required...

As Reagan traveled to Great Britain, White House chief of staff Howard Baker told reporters aboard Air Force One that Gorbachev had challenged the president at their windup summit meeting over the wording of the final communique.

Baker said the two leaders were 'going at it pretty heavy until the end." Among other things, the U.S. side disagreed with some language in the communique that was used in the context of a broader embrace by both countries of the concept of "peaceful coexistence."

Baker said he had hoped the two sides could have gone further on arms control, but said, "We came out just about where it was predicted we could come out. It would have been nice if we could have gone any further, but nobody expected us to go any further.'

In an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," Shultz said, "We had lots of things that were worked out, and we've had some very realistic, strong discussion, where we didn't agree, and that's in the nature of this case. ... I think it's a sign of maturity and perhaps greater stability, that we can wrangle on these things and agree on other things.

Their work done, on their final night in Moscow, the Reagans went to the Bolshoi Ballet with the Gorbachevs and dined privately with their hosts at a dacha-in the countryside outside Moscow. Then, the Reagans took an impromptu stroll through Red Square, which was brightly illuminated by mobile floodlights brought in by networks to provide a backdrop for their evening newscasts.

"I didn't want her to miss it," Reagan said, holding hands with Nancy. Reagan and Gorbachev actually concluded their formal talks Wednesday — reporting scant progress on arms control and none on human rights disputes. After five days in Moscow, Reagan will have tea with Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace and dine with Mrs. Thatcher at No. 10 Downing Street. On Friday, Reagan will deliver a post-summit speech summing up East-West relations, then return to praise the Soviet leader.

Truck driver goes off bridge

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An El Paso man was slightly injured when the tractor-trailer truck he was driving went out of control and off a bridge in a thunderstorm Tuesday.

Rafael Bocanegar, El Paso, was released after treatment for abrasions and lacerations suffered during the accident, according to Department of Public Safety Highway Patrol Trooper Jim Lasater.

"The accident occured 17.1 miles south of Big Spring in Glasscock County," Lasater said Wednesday, "on U.S. Highway 87 at about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The vehicle was a 1978 White Freightliner tractortrailer.

"The vehicle drove off a bridge, taking out about 70 feet of bridge guard rail, and into a creek approximately 18 feet below," Lasater said.

The truck, belonging to Magnolia Coca-Cola Bottling Company of El Paso, was destroyed, he said. The vehicle was northbound on the highway when it went out of control and crossed the southbound lane, striking a curb and the guardrail, before falling into the creekbed; the driver said he lost his steering and was unable to regain control of the vehicle, Lasater said.

"There were no pre-impact skid marks," Lasater said. 'The physical evidence is consistent with a person falling asleep at the wheel.

College has power outage

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A transformer failure at the Howard College campus has resulted in a major power outage at the college, although disruption of summer classes is expected to be minimal, a spokeswoman said

The failure occurred at about 2:30 a.m. today, secretary to the president Lisa Fort said.

'Everything electrical at the college is down," she said. "Phones, lights, computers, everything." Power is expected to be returned to the campus by Monday and allow summer courses at the college to resume at their normal time, she added.

Although there was no electrical power at the campus this morning, it was left to the instructors' discretion to conduct classes. The college is normally closed Friday and during the weekend in the summer.

the city officials will get together and work out some remedies," Ortiz said, "to make sure that something like this will not happen again." Ortiz appealed to the residents to help the committee work by giving it a chance and by supporting the letter-writing campaign, and Baum asked the aulience to join the city in working toward a reso of the tensions. Gomez's family expressed shock and anger toward the speed with which the grand jury decided not to indict Williamson; the family and other members of the community also expressed fear of police harassment, citing incidents occurring since the shooting. "If I ask every person here, 'Are you fair, are you reasonable, are you honest,' "Baum said, "I think you would answer yes. So I believe this committee will be a group of 10 fair, reasonable, honest people, and I believe their goal and our goal will be working together for the good of the community. I am not dissatisfied with the police department, the sheriff's office or the Texas Rangers," he said, "but there are some who want no stone unturned in this matter, so I will ask the city attorney to write the justice department in the name of the mayor and ask

The mayor also told the residents he does not - nor does any one person in city government — have the power to suspend or fire Williamson in response to a question about submitting petitions to do so pending a federal investigation. "That is a decision that no one man makes," he said "I am sure the city council would be politically sensitive, though." Baum then said submitting the petitions "wouldn't hurt" the citizens' chances of getting Williamson "off the street." Police chief Sparks had earlier refused to suspend the officer pending the grand jury investigation and had said that as long as Williamson was working he would carry a weapon. Williamson also serves as the full-time fire marshal for Colorado City, while serving part-time with the police department. Gomez's family alleges that Williamson conducted a personal vendetta against the dead man, including repeated threats to the dead man and other members of his family, for eight years. The family and other residents said Williamson often used racial epithets to Hispanics and threatened to kill Gomez.

"I don't know anything about that," Baum said. "I don't know Billy Ray (Williamson) that well, but I have never heard him make a derogatory remark." He said he thought the grand jury decision to free Williamson was fair as far as he could judge without hearing the testimony before the grand jury. He said he would support and continue to support the police department, but, "The city council will not tolerate abuse of its citizens.

Amnesty: keep families whole

The anguish of families torn apart by unfair amnesty rules is the unforeseen and unforgivable result of immigration reform. America extended the hand of legalization to 1.6 million undocumented immigrants. But we turned our backs on their wives, husbands and children, leaving tens of thousands of families divided.

"You weren't here long enough to qualify," immigration agents told them. "We won't hunt you down and deport you, but we won't give you papers, either. You must remain invisible illegal aliens.

How can America call itself a nation of families if we are breaking up the families of immigrants?

We did it to slaves, selling husbands and wives and children down the river. Generations later, many black families have never recovered. We must not do it to legalizing immigrants. They need their families more than ever, to share the burden and the terror and the responsibility of establishing themselves in our country. Poor families who stay together have a far better chance of making it up the economic ladder. Families without a father or a mother, or with some members in hiding, are pushed deeper into poverty, alienation, selfdestructiveness and crime.

No one knows this better than the immigration officers who were put in the new role of legalizing families. They heard the immigrants' painful stories. Roles were reversed as former foes met to consider applications (98 percent so far have been approved). The humanization of illegal aliens and of la migra in each others' eyes is a moving result of legalization. It may explain another unforeseen event.

In a surprise move, the INS has proposed a new law to hold together families of legalizing immigrants.

It would offer special visas to spouses or children of legalized residents. By granting new visas, it would reduce the 10-year backlog of family reunification from nations such as Mexico. It also would speed the process for applying for citizenship from five years to three years. The INS estimates 200,000 people — mothers, fathers, sons and daughters would be eligible. The process could take about three years, during which the undocumented would remain vulnerable as illegal aliens; in the end they would be able to apply for permanent-residence status.

It's not a perfect deal. But it offers hope.

We doff our hats to the INS. It is transforming its image and providing a national service by advocating this measure.

Moral virtue is not the only reward of this proposal. Holding together families will reap benefits for America that will last for generations. Breaking up immigrant families will cost this country grief, suffering, dependency and crime in years to

In our zeal to push the Immigration Reform and Control Act in 1986, we were blind to the people omitted from amnesty by a loophole in the law. We admit our mistake. It is time for the president and Congress to admit their errors of omission and to correct them by enacting a law based on the INS proposal.

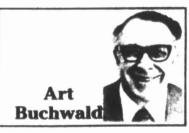

Immigrants should not be forced to choose between legality and family. Children need both their parents and their rights to prosper here. So do we need the bonding of new immigrant families to America.

Countdown at terminal C not for the faint of heart

The wonderful thing about air travel today is that it gives people an idea of what it was like flying missions over Europe in World War II.

As I sat crouched over my hand luggage in the waiting area at the airport, writing a farewell note to my wife, I saw Gregory Peck in the full uniform of an airline counter attendant march to the front of the room. "ATTENTION," someone shouted. "At ease," Peck said. He picked up a pointer and pulled down a map of the airport. "Passengers, I'm here to brief you on the situation. It is serious and the outcome is still in doubt. Pay close attention. You are here," he pointed to

'Where is that, sir?' "You can't see it on the map, but as we talk it is being towed to the hangar for failing to pass inspection.

Gate C. "Your plane is here."

'So what do we fly?"

Peck pointed to the map. 'There is a plane coming in from Minneapolis at 12 o'clock high. We hope it will get here at 0300 hours and be gassed and ready to go at 0400 hours." "Is that the scheduled takeoff time?"

"No, because this plane does not have a crew. The crew walked off in Detroit.

'Then how do we get out?" Peck looked around at all of us. 'Is there anybody here who can fly a jet? No one raised his hand so Peck said, "Then two of you are going to have to learn. 'Sir, can't you dig up another crew to take us out?" 'The only crew available to fly right now can't get here because there is no room in the employee parking lot. I've asked headquarters in Texas to supply backup flying personnel, but Texas is down because of weather and there is no one in the office to process the request.

"Then what are you going to

"I'm issuing everyone in this room a chit for a box lunch in the cafeteria. But it does not include beer or diet drinks. The cafeteria is located here next to the luggage merry-go-rounds.

"After we eat lunch can we sleep on the floor until you get a new plane?" someone asked. "No, you have to stand here by the gate because you never know when your flight might take off." A lady in front of me started to

ry. Peck said sternly, "Knock off the tears. I want everybody here to buck up and behave like the air passengers you were trained to be. No one promised you that flying would be fun when you signed up. If you're too chicken to fly one of our missions, you can turn in your wings at the ticket counter.'

"Even if I did have a crew right now," Peck told us, "I couldn't put anyone on board."

"Why not?" "There is no gate for the plane. Everything is backed up from here to Chicago.

'Then what do we do?' "I've asked the airline chaplain to say a few words to each one of you. We may not have enough pilots, but we have the best sky ministers in the business. All right, that's the morning briefing. want everybody back here at 0400 hours for the latest weather reports."

"Don't you have any news to cheer us up?' "Just remember this when you get discouraged: Waiting for a plane that is five hours overdue is dirty business, but somebody has to do it."

Summer: That was then, this is now

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Time to celebrate, folks — summertime is

What's that you say — summer won't arrive for three more weeks? Nonsense. Forget all that talk about solstices and other stuff, because everybody

Well, at least that's what I always thought. Although it's been a few years since I was a student, the first thing that comes to mind in late May still is: "Wow, knows summer began

when school ended last

Beyond school's almost out." the realm My academic career wasn't that terrible, you understand. In fact, several memories from those years are fairly decent. But there was something unique about the last day of school that made the universe a mighty fine place, indeed

I would count the last days of classes with all the patience of a starving piranha circling a wounded shark. No time passed more slowly than those final two weeks of spring semester.

But all things must pass — even recalcitrant students. The blessed day would finally arrive and - viola! - I was free once again.

Once rid of the shackles of homework and term papers, I would sit in glorious contemplation of the summer months ahead. What to do? Where to go? Who to see? Life for a student on summer break is a buffet — with an all-you-can-eat coupon in hand.

Geez, did I really write that last line?

Excuse me, but I still tend to wax lyrical when thinking about June and July. After all, a guy has to have something to get excited

Anyway, the first few days of summer vacation in the Reagan household were usually spent on strategic planning. Since the end of school meant five children who suddenly had idle time on their hands, my parents had to do a bit of planning themselves.

This usually revolved around how they would survive until autumn

Was it just our family, or did everybody's parents get more sullen when the children were home for three months at a stretch? I never understood their long faces. Don't they know it's summertime? Why aren't they happy? How can anybody be sad about summer — the greatest time of the year? Hindsight now provides the answer to those questions. They weren't miserable because I or any of my siblings were happy; they were sad because they had to devise something to keep us diverted for three months, so that we'd leave them alone, more or less.

It was something at which my folks were only partially successful. Sooner or later, no matter how well-meaning we children were, we'd eventually get on their nerves.

Perhaps it was just the heat.

Whatever the reason, I better understand now why parents might dread summer. As I drove around town this week and noticed all the children having such a wonderful time, a frown started forming on my face.

As I began to get a long face I wondered: Don't they know I have to work? Why are they so happy? Why did this have to happen to me? Suddenly, I hate summer.

Commission's top investigator transferred

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — The watchdog over America's nuclear power plants yanked the last tooth out of its own mouth last month when it transferred its top criminal investigator into a dead-end job.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has allowed its stance on enforcement to erode during the Reagan administration, and the latest casualty is investigator George Mulley A few weeks after a Congressional report criticized Mulley's work at the NRC, he was transferred out of his job. He is now assistant to the director at the Office of Inspector and Audit, an impressive position in title

Mulley was the Eliot Ness of the NRC in his previous job as assistant director for investigations. The former investigator and his band of gumshoes did their best in the past few years to shake up the sleeping NRC giant. Mulley wrote reports stinging dozens of errant government workers for laziness, dereliction of duty and out-and-out fraud. He is not a popular man.

So it is no surprise that the impotent NRC would latch on to the first excuse to bump Mulley out of his job, even if the excuse was gossamer thin

That excuse arrived in April when the General Accounting Office issued an unflatter ing critique on Mulley's work — a critique that had its own faults.

The GAO Office of Special Investigations, which looks into criminal matters and special cases for Congress, was ordered by four congressmen to examine NRC investigations.

One section of the GAO report criticizes Mulley's massive five-month investigation in 1986 of the NRC's regional office in Arlington. Mulley concluded that inspectors at nuclear plants were being harassed and intimidated by managers at the regional office, which covers 14 states.

The GAO said Mulley misunderstood when one key witness, Dick Denise, described two officials at the office as being "antienforcement." But Denise told us the GAO misrepresented his argument, also. Denise was the chief enforcement officer in the region until 1985, when he took a job with Denise told us Mulley's report made him sound more critical than he intended, but he added that the GAO went overboard in the other direction. He said the GAO report is written as if he sanctioned the "antienforcement" region officials.

"It looks to me as if (they) get endorsed as right-thinking heroes, and I certainly did not say that," Denise said.

The GAO should have taken anything Denise said about his superiors in the context of a nervous man. By the time he talked to the GAO, his statements to Mulley had already landed him in hot water, Denise told

Mechams ask dismissal

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - With opening arguments in former Gov. Evan Mecham's criminal trial just hours away, the Arizona Supreme Court was deciding today whether to let them begin.

Attorneys for Mecham and his brother, Willard, made a last-minute bid Wednesday for dismissal of charges that they concealed a $350,000 campaign loan.

The high court was asked to otherwise return the charges to a state grand jury or delay the trial so the justices could consider

The court was expected to issue a decision before today's scheduled start of opening arguments in Maricopa County Superior

The Mechams' attorneys argued Wednesday before the Supreme Court that the grand jury that indicted the pair Jan. 8 was lied to and was discouraged from calling witnesses or reviewing transcripts of earlier testimony. Assistant Attorney General William Schafer III countered that the grand jurors were neither misled nor discouraged from seeking any information they wanted.

Cigarette suit ending

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - A woman who died of lung cancer after smoking for 40 years knew the risks but chose to smoke anyway, a tobacco company lawyer said Wednesday as final arguments began in the product liability trial of three cigarette manufacturers.

The companies are charged with misleading the public about the dangers of cigarettes and contributing to the 1984 death of Rose Cipollone, 58.

Defense summations came exactly four months after the case opened in federal court with a lawyer for widower Antonio Cipollone outlining the case against Liggett Group Inc., Lorillard Inc. and Philip Morris Co.

The case rests on "the simple proposition that if you believe the testimony of Rose Cipollone and her family, that she smoked cigarettes because she wanted to and because she liked to, even though she knew the risks," then the jury "should return a verdict for Liggett and Myers," said Donald J. Cohn, an attorney for Liggett.

"Mrs. Cipollone enjoyed smoking, and that was why she continued to smoke, and she didn't want anyone to tell her not to do it," he

U.S. official's car hit by gunfire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John Kelly's car was hit in a brief exchange of gunfire between his bodyguards and a Christian militia patrol in east Beirut today, but the envoy was not hurt, police

A police spokesman, who cannot be named under standing regulations, said only one bullet hit the hood of Kelly's armor-plated limousine.

The spokesman said the shooting occurred when Kelly's bodyguards in two escort cars fired in the air with automatic rifles, "apparently to make way for the ambassador's convoy" in a traffic-jammed street in the Sin Fil neighborhood.

The ambassador's motorcade was heading for the heavily guarded U.S. Embassy compound in the suburb

The police spokesman said Kelly was in a dark blue bullet-proof limousine driving between the two escort

A militia patrol from President Amin Gemavel's right-wing Phalange Party, which was in the area, "opened fire in the air, too, in an effort to stop Kelly's convoy to check what was happening," the spokesman

"Kelly's bodyguards fired three bullets at the Phalangists in a white Mercedes-Benz and the patrol fired back," the spokesman said.

'Kelly's car was hit by one bullet in the hood and the convoy continued on its way to the embassy," the spokesman added. He did not elaborate.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said: "The ambassador and all his escorts are fine." He refused to elaborate.

In another development, police said three members of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, were wounded in a brief firefight with rival Shiite Moslem of the Syrian-aided Amal militia in south Beirut on Wednesday night.

A police spokesman said the five-minute firefight in the Shiyah district ended when Syrian troops intervened.

The clash was the first reported between the two sides since Syria deployed 2,400 soldiers in Beirut's southern slums on Friday and Saturday to end three weeks of street battles between the two militias in which nearly 300 people were killed and 1,000 wounded.

Moscow plane on sale

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) - A West German company is seeking to resell the Cessna plane that Mathias Rust landed in Moscow's Red Square a year ago, a Hamburg sports flying club official said today.

Karlfriedrich Giesie, deputy manager of the Hamburg air club, said Azuma Royal Cosmetics of Munich had placed advertisements for the plane in various newspapers. The company had bought the plane from the club for $88,000.

The Soviets allowed the Hamburg air club to fly the plane back to West Germany last October, and the club sold it to Azuma Royal.

"Now they (the company) are seeking a huge profit on it and have advertised it for sale in various places," Giesie said in an interview. He estimated Azuma Royal was asking between $150,000 and $175,000 for the SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The acting chief executive says President Jose Napoleon Duarte is "on the verge of death," that one of the hemisphere's staunchest U.S. allies has cancer of the stomach and liver.

The 62-year-old Duarte is in Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington D.C. for diagnosis and treatment.

With prospects for his return to the presidency dimming by the hour, Salvadorans face additional uncertainty heaped upon an already confusing national panorama of war and economic stagnation.

Vice President Rodolfo Castillo Claramount, the acting chief executive, told journalists Wednesday "it has been confirmed that President Duarte has a cancerous bleeding ulcer in the stomach. Today's (Wednesday's) examination ... showed that the liver is also affected by cancer.

Man's recovery from accident a miracle

VIDOR — Keith Woods and his mom, Ruth, shoot baskets outside their home. Keith was an aspiring athlete with hopes of turning pro, when a car accident in 1981 sent him to the hospital in a coma. With help from his mom and family, however, Keith has VIDOR, Texas (AP) — The top right corner of the picture is wrinkled. The frame is not the kind that costs a lot of money.

There are fingerprints on the glass that protects it, a moment in when Keith Woods blocked a kick from the opposing football team and broke the Vidor Pirates' 41-game losing streak.

He is poised in mid-air, his hand outstretched, seconds before his fingertips touched the ball.

A moment of victory That scene reminds Keith's mother, Ruth Woods, of another, more heroic scene. Again, her son is reaching, trying with all his strength to touch something.

But this time it is six years later in a Houston hospital.

Her son was trying to touch his past with his mind, one that massive brain damage from a head-on car wreck took away. And victory didn't come as suddenly.

Ruth would rather not relive the nightmare in the emergency room that autumn night in 1981 after she got a telephone call from her oldest son, Joey, telling her about Keith's wreck. She'd rather forget the first two weeks when Keith was in intensive care, when doctors didn't try to repair Keith's crushed leg, merely keeping it in traction to keep it from shrinking, because they didn't think he would live.

But she remembers the modest milestones Keith made in a seven-year fight to undo what the accident had done that gave her hope, causing her and her husband Joe to cheer Keith on more loudly than any cheerleader he might have known in his extensive athletic pursuits in both high school and college

And after many tears, prayers and hundreds of trips between Vidor and the Houston hospital, staying up nights to think of ways to get Keith to snap out of his coma, Keith and his family are still fighting — with success. 'They kept saying, 'it's going to 29-year-old whose bright eyes and athletic abilities belie the fact that doctors seven years ago thought he'd spend the rest of his life as a human vegetable — on the off-chance he lived.

get better.' And they're still saying that," says Keith, a husky made a near miraculous recovery.

"And I believe it will get better," Keith adds.

His parents brought the football picture, along with family pictures and some of his baseball trophies, to Del Oro rehabilitation picture of baseball star Reggie Jackson, Keith's favorite player of his favorite sport, he broke down crying.

Joey's wife, Missy, read the sports page to Keith every day, even during the first phase when he scarcely stirred and his eyes were still closed. His father Joe brought Keith's baseball mitt to the hospital in hopes the leathery smell would bring him out of his coma, and his mother wore his favorite perfume when she would

Four months after the wreck, Keith had progressed to the point he could throw a foam rubber football to someone and catch it. Ruth was "going out for a pass" when her foot caught on the hospital bed and she tripped and

Ruth's mother was in the hospital room with her, and they both heard it

Keith had laughed. It was the first sound he'd uttered since the accident.

"I don't even remember getting up off the floor," Ruth says. "All of a sudden, I was on the bed looking him in the face, and I said, 'Richard Keith Woods, I know you're in there.' I think he thought I was scolding him because he didn't make another sound all day."

Over the next two years, Ruth seldom got more than two hours of sleep at a time, her mind preoccupied with new ways to help Keith. Flash cards and the jogg-ing. Letting him cheat at basketball, which Ruth says he still does

While most hail Keith's recovery as a miracle, he is not without frustration. The wreck happened just months before he was going to spring camp to try out for a professional baseball team, "and sometimes when the sun's shining I want to put on my uniform and be out playing so bad," he says. And too, most of the girls he knew in high school are married now

Woman has terrible driving history

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you know you're a terrible driver but have to drive? I can't afford to take a cab everywhere, and the bus system where I live is inadequate.

I am 22 and have been driving for four years. In that time, I've had one major accident (both cars totaled, no serious injuries, thank God), and three minor but expensive accidents — and I can't count the number of near hits. My insurance rate is sky-high and my reputation as a driver is terrible.

Abby, I'm an intelligent, competent woman, but when I get behind a wheel, I tend to screw up. I never drink and drive. I do play the radio only moderately loud — but I never fiddle with it while the car is moving. I almost always drive alone, so it's not that I get involved in conversation and take my mind off the road. I can't figure out why I make such awful errors in iudgment

Please help me before I kill somebody!

LORETTA

DEAR LORETTA: Even though you have a license to drive, I think you should take a course in driver's education in order to improve your driving. In the meantime, you could minimize your risk by riding to and from work with a coworker and anywhere else with a friend

Dear Abby when possible. And when you absolutely must drive, concentrate 100 percent on your driving. (P.S. Have you checked out your vision? Your reflexes? Your depth perception?) My hat is off to you for recognizing a serious problem and wanting to do something about it. Our hospitals (and cemeteries) are filled with people who are there because somebody shouldn't have been driving - but did.

DEAR ABBY: Throughout the year we get postcards from relatives and friends who are vacationing abroad; then at Christmastime, dissertations arrive about the exotic places they have visited, with such grand accommodations as castles in Ireland, villas in Italy, posadas in Portugal, condos in Barbados, summer cottages in Canada and suites aboard the QE2. But when it comes to the USA, they wouldn't know a motel if they ran into one.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the world's most successful filmmakers and a legendary film company release a $55 million cinematic gamble on Friday with the opening of the medieval fantasy "Willow."

Western

Both George Lucas, whose "Star Wars" and "Indiana Jones" movies have grossed $1 billion, and MGM, which once was Hollywood's greatest studio, need a hit. The movie is directed by Ron Howard, who won acclaim with "Splash" and "Cocoon."

Lucasfilm Ltd. has produced two expensive flops, "Labyrinth" and "Howard the Duck." MGM, meanwhile, is struggling to regain momentum after several reorganizations. As a further complication, financier Kirk Kerkorian, who owns 82.4 percent of the parent MGMUA Communications, is seeking a buyer for the company. A "Willow" hit would enhance the price.

Despite some early negative reviews for the movie, which goes into 1,000 theaters nationwide Friday, MGM and Lucas can be proud of their achievement. "Willow" is movie storytelling in the grand tradition.

No, it isn't a landmark film such as the "Star Wars" trilogy — the kind of achievement that happens once a decade. Much of "Willow" may seem familiar to audiences exposed to special effects movies of recent years or to animated classics from

But "Willow" stands on its own merits as high adventure executed with superior imagination.

Theater owner and reviewer screenings drew mixed responses. Daily Variety called the film "a medieval mishmash" but predicted "kids will probably love it." Time magazine said: "For now, (Lucas') wonder wand is broken." Newsweek's headline was: "The Raider of Lost Art.

Facing blockbuster competition from "Rambo III" and "Crocodile Dundee II" on May 25, MGM prudently released "Willow" five days earlier.

"Willow" centers on the efforts of a brave dwarf to save a baby from the clutches of an evil queen who fears the child will destroy her power. The hero, Willow, finds allies in an over-the-hill knight and a pair of mischievous "brownies" — creatures

There are no major stars in the film, which features Val Kilmer ("Top Gun"), Joanne Whalley ("Dance With a Stranger"), Jean Marsh ("Upstairs, Downstairs") and 19-year-old Warwick Davis as Willow. The 3-foot-4 Davis was discovered by Lucas a few years ago and cast as an Ewok in 'Return of the Jedi."

The producers count on a box-office success to help their massive merchandising campaign. More than 30 companies have been licensed to manufacture such items as "Willow" underwear, bed sheets, lunch boxes, meal promotion at Wendy's, coloring sets, toy action figures, computer and board games, magic tricks, records, tapes and compact discs.

"Willow" resulted from a friendship between Lucas and Howard, who met 15 years ago when Lucas directed "American Grafitti," with Howard as one of the principal actors.

Shooting locations for "Willow" ranged from the glacial mountains of New Zealand to the craggy cliffs of Wales.

The cost of "Willow" has been reported from $35 million to $40 million, with $20 million for prints and advertising. Howard declined to confirm the amount.

"I want them to say, 'Oh, wow! What's going to happen next?"

MOSCOW — Mrs. Nancy Reagan, right, receives a bouquet of red roses from Mrs. Raisa Gorbachev today in Moscow as she and President Reagan prepared to leave the Soviet Union.

Summit '88 Baker gives insider glimpse

By TERENCE HUNT AP White House Correspondent

ABOARD AIR FORCE ONE (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev challenged President Reagan at their windup summit meeting over the wording of the final communique, and they were "going at it pretty heavy until the end," White House chief of staff Howard Baker revealed today.

Talking with reporters on the president's plane as Reagan flew from Moscow to London, Baker also pronounced the U.S. delegation satisfied with the results of the summit, which concluded Wednesday.

Baker said he had hoped the two sides could have gone further on arms control, but added, "We came out just about where it was predicted we could come out. It would have been nice if we could have gone any further, but nobody expected us to go any further.

Asked why Reagan appeared so fatigued over the past couple days, Baker said, "We're all tired, I guess, but most of us are more tired than he is. I don't think that fatigue played any role in the summit "

"I'm sure he's tired and I guess he looks tired," Baker said of the Baker described Gorbachev as a strong leader and said he demonstrated the same image in private as he did at his nearly two-hour news conference, where he was feisty and appeared entirely in command.

In talks with Reagan, Gorbachev "goes on at some length but he does not filibuster. He says what he says and he doesn't back up and say, 'I meant to say so and " Baker recalled.

"He comes out of the box saying what he meant," Baker said.

Unlike earlier summits, Baker said that Reagan did not share with Gorbachev his store of jokes about life

"He told him some lawyer jokes and I didn't like that," joked Baker, an attorney.

He described the scene at the final Reagan-Gorbachev meeting on Wednesday morning, about six hours before the summit communique was released to

"They were going at it pretty heavy and I was proud of the president. They were face to face and going at it pretty heavy until the end." - Howard Baker

"As the meeting ended, all of us stood up, including the president and the general secretary, and the president and general secretary continued to pursue their

Baker explained that at the first meeting, on Sunday, Gorbachev had given Reagan some papers describing items that he wanted to discuss over the next three days. Baker said the president gave it only a cursory look, and that Gorbachev quoted a phrase from the documents about "peaceful coexistence." Reagan said something like, "that looks all right to me," and the documents were passed on for review by Secretary of State George P. Shultz and the staff of the National Security Council, Baker said.

Gorbachev's document would have put the two leaders on record as believing that "no problem in dispute can be resolved, nor should it be resolved, by military means. They regard peaceful coexistence as a universal principle of international relations. "Equality of all states, non-interference in internal affairs and freedom of socio-political choice must be recognized as the inalienable and mandatory standards of international relations," the Soviet draft

At his Spaso House news conference in Moscow Wednesday, Reagan was asked why he took issue with the "peaceful coexistence" language

Reagan said that he liked "the whole tone" of the draft language.

But the president also said that aides studying the draft communique "saw where there could have been certain ambiguities in there that would not achieve the general thought of what was being proposed."

Reagan says red tape is to be blamed

MOSCOW (AP) - President Reagan, to the surprise of some refuseniks, said Wednesday that emigration barriers preventing people from leaving the Soviet Union may be the result of bureacratic snags rather than deliberate Kremlin policy.

In a summit-finale news conference, Reagan also said that it was General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev who changed his view of the Kremlin as an "evil empire." He said Gorbachev, his partner at four summit meetings, was "different than previous Soviet leaders have been.

The president said he hoped to conclude a U.S.-Soviet treaty to cut strategic nuclear arsenals by half before leaving office, but said it was more important to get a good agreement than to meet a January deadline

Time is drawing near Allen District 2-4A MVP

Big Spring Steers player Aaron Allen came away with the ultimate honor when District 2-4A passed out its all-league baseball honors Most Valuable Player.

Allen, a senior left-hander, was voted by coaches in the district as the best player in the league. It marked the third time Allen has been chosen for all-league honors. He was a honorable mention choice his sophomore year in District 4-5A, and a first-teamer in 2-4A last

This season Allen was the top Steer batter, leading the team in homers, RBI's and batting average. He was also Big Spring's top pitcher.

He batted .523, hit eight home runs and drove in 35 runs. Allen's home run production and batting average was tops in the league. On the mound the 6-3, 185-pounder complied a 9-4 record with a earned run average of 1.46. He was the lone Steer named to the first team.

Andrews paced the first team, getting three selections. Andrews cocch Joe Ray Halsey was named Coach of the Year.

Big Spring center fielder Felix Rodriguez was the only Steer named to the second team. The senior batted a hefty .409.

Steers named to the honorable mention team were: junior catcher Chris Crownover; sophomore second baseman Michael Hilario; senior outfielder Eric Kinman; junior pitcher Timmy Gutierrez and freshman shortstop Freddie Rodriguez.

Coach John Velasquez's Steers finished fourth in district with a 7-7 record and a 14-15 overall mark.

PARIS — Defending French Open champion Ivan Lendl returns the ball to opponenet Jonas B. Sevensson of Sweden during Thursday action at Roland Garros Stadium. Sevensson upset Lendl in the $3.965 million dollar tournament.

Unseeded Swede turns tables on number 1 seed

PARIS (AP) — The men's and women's defending champions took opposite paths today at the French Open — Ivan Lendl going out an upset victim and Steffi Graf beating Gabriela Sabatini to reach the women's final Unseeded Jonas B. Svensson of Sweden varied his backcourt game with well-timed drop shots and volleys to win a men's quarterfinal match 7-6, 7-5, 6-2 over Lendl, who was hampered by an injured chest muscle.

"I don't think anybody expected that, and certainly not me," said Svensson, a 21-year-old with blond curly hair.

"He let me play my game all the way," Svensson said. "My game plan was to confuse him — hit slow balls to make him feel safe, then speed it up.'

Graf won a semifinal confrontation of 18-year-old stars 6-3, 7-6, taking the deciding tiebreak 7-3.

Graf said she got tense toward the end of the second set, when she led 5-3 then lost the next two games, but settled down in the tiebreak to advance to her fifth consecutive Grand Slam final.

Lendl, winner of the French Open in 1984, 1986 and 1987, never showed the powerful form that he used to overcome John McEnroe in a fourth-round match played Tuesday night and Wednesday with interruptions for rain and darkness.

Lendl had a trainer come onto the court twice to spray near his right shoulder. After the game, tournament trainer Todd Snyder Lendl said he thought he injured himself reaching for a forehand late in the first set and found it getting worse despite applications of the freezing aerosol.

The 21-year-old Svensson, who upset seventh-seeded Kent Carlsson of Sweden to reach the quarterfinals, will meet the winner of a match between Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union and Frenchman Henri Leconte.

At key points, Lendl's concentration appeared shaken by the bullhorns and recorded music wafting into center court from a demonstration by workers from plants owned by SNECMA, a stateowned manufacturer of airplane engines

John Hopkins rips Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Johns Hopkins University capitalized on Soviet errors to post a 15-2 victory Wednesday in the first U.S.-Soviet baseball game ever played on Russian soil.

Johns Hopkins struck immediately in the first inning, when lead-off batter Tom Finegan doubled, then scored on two successive wild wild pitches by the Soviets' Alexei Koshivoy. The Hopkins squad put the game out of reach in the third when first baseman Dan Durocher walked, advanced to second on a Koshivoy wild pitch and scored on a single by second baseman Andy Bernstein. After two successive errors load ed the bases, third baseman John Horner hit a drive that eluded center fielder Alexander Krupenchenkov and Horner came all the way home to make the score 7-0.

Mets-LA battle continues

By The Associated Press If the New York Mets and Los Angeles Dodgers meet in the National League playoffs, it may take a summit conference to settle their differences

When they met in Los Angeles last month, the Dodgers' Alfredo Griffin suffered a broken hand when he was hit by a pitch from New York's Dwight Gooden. The next day, Pedro Guerrero of the Dodgers threw his bat at New York's David Cone after being hit by a pitch and was suspended for four days.

The Dodgers got the worst of it again Wednesday night when starting pitcher Tim Belcher was ejected for hitting New York's Kevin Elster in the small of the back with a third-inning pitch. But they also got a 4-3 victory, their first in six games with the Mets. Both teams had been warned about knockdown pitches at the start of the series.

In the top of the third, the Dodgers' Steve Sax was almost hit by a pitch from Sid Fernandez while attempting to bunt. He fouled

"Sid was throwing at his head and there's no doubt that he was trying to send a message," Belcher

"I wasn't surprised that I was ejected. My problem is why Fernandez wasn't thrown out, too."

The Dodgers took advantage of two balks by Fernandez to push across two runs in the fourth inning. Pinch hitter Jeff Hamilton drove in two more with a seventhinning single for a 4-1 lead.

After Belcher's ejection, Brian Holton allowed three hits and a run in four innings. Jesse Orosco was charged with two runs in the ninth including Kevin McReynolds' fifth homer — before Jay Howell got the last three outs.

cinnati manager Pete Rose. It was Rose's first game since he was suspended for 30 days and fined $10,000 for bumping and shoving umpire Dave Pallone in a game against the Mets on April 30.

Angels make one-handed hurler eighth pick in draft

NEW YORK (AP) - Jim Abbott, the onehanded pitcher from the University of Michigan, was chosen by the California Angels as the eighth pick in baseball's pitcher-rich amateur draft Wednesday

"They talked to me about my situation, having one hand," said Abbott, who was born without a right hand. "They said it didn't matter to them, that they just needed a left-handed pitcher.

Pitchers dominated the first round, accounting for 14 of the first 26 olayers selected.

Andy Benes, a right-handed pitcher from the University of Evansville, was taken by the San Diego Padres as the No. 1 pick, followed by a pair of high-school players.

Cleveland took shortstop Mark Lewis of Hamilton, Ohio, High School, Atlanta selected left-handed pitcher Steve Avery of John F. Kennedy High School in Taylor, Mich., and Baltimore chose right-handed pitcher Gregg Olsen of Auburn University.

The Associated Press learned that Pete Rose Jr., the son of the Cincinnati Reds manager, was not picked through the first five rounds. Rose plays third base for Oak Hills High School in suburban Cincinnati and was expected to go in the first three rounds.

The Angels made Abbott the fifth pitcher selected, though most teams thought he would not be drafted until the end of the first round or the start of the second.

Abbott, the 1987 Sullivan Award winner, faces not only the usual struggle of trying to make the major leagues, but he must also convince doubters he can pitch despite his handicap and protect himself from balls hit back to the mound.

Before going into his wind-up, Abbott balances his glove on the nub of his right wrist. He delivers the ball and jams his left hand into the glove by the time the ball reaches the plate.

When he catches the ball, he jams the glove under his right arm and the ball rolls into his left hand. It takes about a second.

"I don't think of myself as different," Abbott said. "I don't think of myself as courageous. I grew up learning to do things within my capabilities. I've had a good time doing what I've

Abbott, the Big Ten player of the year, was 9-3 with a 3.32 earned run average and 82 strikeouts in 97 2-3 innings. He was 8-1 with a 1.70 ERA for the 1987 Pan American team, and was the first U.S pitcher to beat Cuba in 25 years. He hopes to pitch for the Olympic team this summer.

Abbott was 26-8 in three seasons at Michigan after turning down a $50,000 offer from the Toronto Blue Jays, who took him on the 36th round in 1985, when he finished high school.

Between the top four picks and Abbott's selection, the Los Angeles Dodgers took Bill Bene, a right-hander from Los Angeles State, and Texas chose Monty Farris, Oklahoma State's shortstop. Houston went for Willie Ansley, a shortstop from Plainview, Texas, High School.

Eighteen of the 26 first-round players were from college teams, matching the high set in 1984. The 6-foot-5 Benes was 16-3 with a 1.42 with 187 strikeouts and 36 walks in 146 innings. He will start at either the Class A or Class AA level. "I don't know exactly where I would fit in," Benes said. "They've talked about Double A to start off. You don't want to throw a guy in and have him get ripped day in and day out because happen on the Double-A level. Lewis, who batted .598 this season in 27 games with 13 homers and 63 runs batted in, was the first high school player chosen.

that's a little hard on the confidence and that may

'Since I was 5 years old, I've wanted to play major league baseball," Lewis said. "This is my chance. I'm not going to mess it up. Cleveland is an up and coming team. I hope to be a big part of it in about three years.

After California took Abbott, the Chicago Cubs selected Ty Griffin of Georgia Tech, whose gamewinning homer beat Cuba in the Pan Am Games. Next, the Chicago White Sox picked Robin Ventura, the Oklahoma State third baseman who in 1987 set an NCAA record with a 58-game hitting

Seattle, choosing 14th, took first baseman Tino Martinez of the University of Tampa; San Francisco drafted shortstop Royce Clayton from St. Bernard High School in Inglewood, Calif.; Oakland took catcher-third baseman Stan Royer of Eastern Illinois; Cleveland took right-hander Charles Nagy from Connecticut.

Viola five-hits Rangers

By The Associated Press The Oakland Athletics are trying to cast their spell over the American League West, but Frank Viola's home hex is keeping the Minnesota Twins elose.

Viola tied a Twins' record with his ninth straight victory Wednesday night as Minnesota beat the Texas Rangers 7-1.

Jack Morris and Guillermo Hernandez teamed on a four-hitter and Lou Whitaker homered and drove in three runs as Detroit beat

Morris held the White Sox hitless until Steve Lyons singled with two outs in the sixth inning

Blue Jays 7, Brewers 2 George Bell hit an RBI single during a five-run first inning and made two shoestring catches in left field, leading Toronto over visiting Milwaukee.

Mike Flanagan, 5-3, gave up eight hits and one walk in six innings, but allowed only one run. The Blue Jays backed him with three double plays.

Mariners 4, Orioles 3 Rey Quinones hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning that lifted Seattle over Baltimore.

Rose returns to dugout

CHICAGO (AP) - His 30-day ordeal is over. Pete Rose is back and his only concern is to get his Cincinnati Reds winning again.

Rose returned as manager of the Reds on Wednesday after having served his suspension imposed by the National League only to see them stumble to a fifth straight defeat, a 6-3 decision to the Chicago

"I'm happy to be back but not happy to lose another game," said Rose, who was suspended for 30 days and fined $10,000 for bumping and shoving umpire Dave Pallone in an April 30 game against the New York Mets.

Rose, who said he did not want to be the center of attention upon his return, came out of the dugout only once and that happened in bottom of the seventh inning when he held brief discussion with umpire Bruce Froemming.

"My shortstop (Barry Larkin) had injured his finger and I wanted Dave Concepcion to get in a few more throws," said Rose.

Pistons one victory away

BOSTON (AP) — The cold-shooting Boston Celtics are struggling to find the basket. Isiah Thomas and Adrian Dantley can show them where it is.

The Detroit duo's marksmanship and Boston's off-target tosses have put the Pistons a victory away from the NBA championship series and the Celtics in big trouble.

Boston, which has reached the final in each of the last four seasons, won't get there this season unless it wins on the road Friday night and at home Sunday when a seventh game will be played, if necessary.

With Thomas scoring 35 points and Dantley adding 18, Detroit overcame a 16-point deficit and beat Boston 102-96 in overtime Wednesday night to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

With Boston leading 70-61, Detroit scored the next 14 points to go ahead 75-70 with 9:25 left in the fourth quarter. Thomas took four shots in that stretch and made them all.

With Boston leading 94-92 on Dennis Johnson's layup with 3:52 left in overtime, Dantley made a free throw with 3:37 to go and a three-point play that gave the Pistons the lead for good, 96-94, with 2:52 remaining. On both plays he was guarded by Fred Roberts, who took over when Kevin McHale fouled out with 1:59 left in the fourth quarter.

Thomas hit two free throws and a layup, making the score 100-94 with 1:17 to go. Boston came no closer than four points thereafter.

The Pistons, who broke a 21-game losing streak in Boston in the series opener, have won two of three games there in the series. The Celtics lost nine straight at the Pontiac Silverdome before winning Game 4 Monday. The home team won all seven games in last year's conference final between the same teams

The Celtics led the NBA with a 52.1 field goal percentage during the regular season but suddenly can't shoot straight.

They have made 41.8 percent of their shots in the Detroit series and sank 37.5 percent Wednesday night. In the third and fourth quarters and overtime, Boston hit 12 field goals in 48 attempts. In that same span, Thomas hit 11 of 20 shots by himself.

Boston was ahead 68-56 when it went cold. After Larry Bird made a layup with 3:54 left in the third quarter, the Celtics missed their next 12 shots and went 8:49 between field goals while Detroit was building a 77-73 lead.

Until Roberts' field goal with 1:10 left in the fourth quarter sent the game into overtime tied 92-92, only four Celtics had scored. Starting guard Danny Ainge played 47 minutes but missed all six of his shots and was held scoreless.
