Texas takes on Dust Bowl look

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

AUSTIN — Areas of Texas are beginning to look like the Dust Bowl of the 1930s, yet the dry summer season is just starting, says State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

"In Texas, there actually are sections of our state that already are in Dust Bowl situations," Hightower told a news conference Monday.

Locally, drought conditions in Howard County have not reached the extremes that other areas of the state, particularly South Texas, have experienced, said Don Richardson, agriculture agent for the Howard County Agriculture Extension Office.

Nonetheless, rain is needed soon in order to avoid severe agriculture problems in the area, Richardson added.

"In Howard County, we've been fortunate to receive some timely rain, but within the next 10 days we've got to have some substantial rain," Richardson said. "If we don't get any rain, the cotton fields will be severely stressed, and it will be difficult for them to recover."

Other than an increase in feed prices due to the drought in the Midwest, the local livestock market has not yet been adversely affected by the lack of rain, Richardson said.

"We're used to dry weather here and can tolerate drier climates for longer periods of time (than the Midwest states and South Texas)," Richardson said.

National Weather Service data shows only parts of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota are worse off than South Texas from a searing drought's effects on crops.

"We have the potential literally for Dust Bowl conditions. And the tragedy is, of course, under the Reagan administration, they have made efforts to do away with the soil and water conservation programs that were developed as a result of the Dust Bowl," Hightower said.

The worst years of the Dust Bowl, with extreme wind erosion in Texas, were 1933-36.

Hightower was asked to comment on the drought after a news conference with State Treasurer Ann Richards about a new agricultural loan program.

"We have an emergency. We need to be treating it as an emergency rather than just appointing task forces up in Washington, D.C. to decide whether it's dry or not," Hightower said. "We need to be responding immediately with tools that already are in the hands of the U.S. secretary of agriculture."

Hightower said his office had appealed to the Fireworks funds threaten future Fourth festivities

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Although the July 4 Big Spring fireworks show will go on as planned this year, lack of public support has put future displays in jeopardy.

Carl Bradley — who is assisting Glenn G. Strickland in planning the event for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce — said he has been disappointed that residents are contributing little to funding this year's event.

The chamber has already donated the $5,000 necessary to hold the show at South Mountain, but has collected only $1,500 from the public for reimbursement, Bradley said.

"At the last chamber meeting we decided to put it on the citizens. We just need a little cooperation. We're tired of going to the local merchants asking for donations. They're hit with so many solicitations already," he said.

The chamber of commerce has hired a company that provides the fireworks, liability insurance and employees who will set them off.

"It was a package deal. Our main concern was the insurance and the company that was hired provided that," Bradley said.

F. LeRoy Tillery, chamber executive vice president, has also been heavily involved in planning the fireworks show, but is out of town this week and unavailable for comment.

Howard County Sheriff A.N.

Standard said he approved Tillery's request for a permit to hold the event. The site of the fireworks display is located just outside the Big Spring city limits.

Standard said he will "make available" deputies in case they are needed.

Big Spring Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles said some city firemen will be "on call" in case of an accidental fire.

Finance Director Tom Ferguson said the city has no direct involvement with the fireworks show.

Bradley said for the past six weeks the chamber of commerce has been seeking public contributions for the show — with little success.

"If everybody just gave a dollar we could have it paid for in no time. If the money doesn't come in, this will be the last year we do this. If the people want it bad enough, they'll contribute," he said.

Persons interested in donating may do so by stopping by the chamber office in person or mailing a check to the "Fireworks Fund," Box 1391.

The show attracts a large segment of the city's residents annually.

"Nearly everybody watches — at least from their backyards. That's why I am surprised we haven't gotten more response," Bradley said.

The fireworks show will begin at dusk, Bradley said.

Budget Summit

Officials to finish Monday

Source of resentment in Toronto

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

The results of a scheduled day-long work session Monday for city officials and council members should put the final touches on the upcoming fiscal year budget, Big Spring Financial Director Tom Ferguson said today.

The work session will begin at 9 a.m. in the McMahon-Wrinkle Air Park conference room.

If necessary the meeting could continue on Tuesday, Ferguson said.

During work sessions held three days last week city officials outlined expenditures to council members and listened to funding requests from department heads, Ferguson said.

"Because we have three new council members we wanted to give them a chance to ask questions. We also reviewed requests for new equipment. The council added information and we provided some for them," he said.

Although new fiscal year budget approval will occur during two council meetings slated for August, the city staff will begin necessary revisions after next week's work session, Ferguson said.

Methods of funding have also been discussed — primarily because of limited city finances.

"A tax increase has been discussed, but I wouldn't say that is a probability," Ferguson said.

He termed funding for the budget "bleak." The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

TORONTO — To commuters, it was inconvenient. For 100 political fringe groups, it led to the rally of a lifetime. But to the growing subculture of street people in Canada's richest city, the seven-nation economic summit was irrelevant.

"I don't really understand it. Are they trying to make more money?" said a 17-year-old girl with a Mohawk haircut who was panhandling for change Monday opposite the Eaton Center, a glittering mall on Toronto's main drag, Yonge Street.

"I've been out on the streets for three years," said the girl, who identified herself as Sally. "I don't even understand the summit."

A few blocks east, young people slept on plastic sheets and blankets in Allan Gardens, which like many Toronto parks provides temporary haven in a city with a booming economy but the worst housing shortage in the country.

"It's a side Toronto wants to cover up and ignore," said the Rev. Rudy Mumm, an Oblate missionary who works with the city's estimated 15,000 street people.

"We're outraged that such a big to-do is made and all this money spent when you have people who are dying in the streets in a city that's so prosperous," Mumm said.

The average price of a house in Toronto is $186,750, and the rental market is so tight there is just one vacancy for every 1,000 apartments. The waiting list for the few government-subsidized units is three years.

Toronto Mayor Art Eggleton was delighted when Prime Minister Brian Mulroney picked the Ontario capital to host the 14th economic summit. He welcomed the $16 million expenditure and said it would boost tourism and investment and publicize Toronto's bid for the 1996 Olympic Games.

But people who had to go to work in the offices of the city's financial Bay Street district, adjacent to summit headquarters in the Metropolitan Toronto Convention Center, viewed the summit differently.

Up to 15 blocks at a time were closed as a motorcade carrying President Reagan or British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher whisked past, and parking was at a premium with day-long rates hiked from $6.50 to $10.

For all that, anticipated rush-hour traffic jams never materialized. Many people simply took the day off. From hot dog vendors to cab drivers, most people went about their business unaffected by the high-powered discussions nearby.

But the city's parochial, Anglo-Saxon origins once brought it the nickname "Toronto the Good," and that earnestness surfaced during the summit.

While many of greater Toronto's 3.4 million people waved cheerily as police guided summit limousines through their neighborhoods, a loose alliance of 100 political groups used the event to promote causes as diverse as abortion and starving Somali children.

Big Spring firefighter Ron Maddox drags a 100-foot section of water-filled fire hose as part of an agility test given to all fire department rookies. The test — conducted at the department's training facility on Owens Street — is given to entrants of the department, and then given to the rookies to check their skills.

FDA's chief chides AIDS researchers

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Frank Young says academic researchers are choosing to stay at home for "the big bucks" in research grants instead of volunteering to help the government respond to the AIDS crisis.

In a speech at a conference of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Young said Monday he believed "the academic community has markedly failed in the AIDS problem."

University researchers, he said, "are being irresponsible because they want to stand on the sidelines and grab the big bucks instead of taking the heat" of helping to make AIDS policy decisions in Washington.

Young, 56, said scientists from his generation felt an obligation to contribute time to government service and that he gave up a laboratory with $2 million in research grants to take on his government job.

Most academic researchers now, he said, refuse to give any time to the government, even as the nation confronts what Young called "an extremely serious disease" in acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Young said the FDA is attempting to hasten the approval process needed to put new AIDS drugs on the market, but he said there is a shortage of the experts needed to evaluate drug applications and testing results.

Right now, he said, there are 162 drugs being evaluated, but the agency has only 127 people available to sift through applications that may include 100,000 pages.

Without the help of experts from academic laboratories, said Young, "the process will be slowed."

The commissioner said he repeatedly has asked academic researchers to spend two years in government service, at their same academic salary, to help battle AIDS. But, he said, "they don't want to leave their laboratories. I see very few people willing to pay the price."

Officials at several major research institutions declined to comment on Young's statements, although Martin Hersch, a Harvard University researcher, said it still is common for scientists to spend several years early in their careers in government laboratories such as those at the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control.

Young said of the 162 AIDS drugs now in some phase of evaluation and testing by his agency, three are vaccines. Tests of the vaccines, he said, are at least two years away and when those tests do occur "it's going to be horrible."

Feds propose more Superfund sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency today proposed to add 229 sites — including three in Texas — to the "Superfund" priority list for toxic waste cleanups and to drop 30.

The action brings the priority list to 1,177 sites, of which 378 are still proposals and 799 have been formally designated for the list.

The three in Texas include: Friendswood: Dixie Oil Processors Inc.; Sour Lake: Rio Grande Oil Co. Refinery; Texas City: Tex-Tin Corp.

Eventually, the agency has said, the list could grow to about 2,500 sites.

Fourteen of today's new sites are owned by other federal agencies, 12 of them either related to nuclear weapons manufacturers or a military base. Last week, EPA announced agreement with the Defense Department on penalties to be imposed if the department fails to live up to cleanup agreements.

The 30 sites being proposed for deletion have not been cleaned up, but "do not satisfy any of the criteria" for listing, EPA said. They will be cleaned up under other programs, the agency said.

Three other sites were deleted from the list in April on the grounds that all work had been completed or that they posed no threat, EPA said.

Designation for the "National Priority List" means the site is eligible for 90 percent federal financing of the cleanup under EPA's supervision, unless a federal agency owns it. Federal agencies are responsible for cleaning up their sites using their own money.

Rainbow Family East Texas braces for group's arrival

LUFKIN (AP) — Authorities are attributing a sudden increase in food stamp applications and an anonymous threatening letter to the U.S. Forest Service to the planned July 4 gathering of the Rainbow Family at three East Texas forest sites.

Department of Human Resources spokesman Pattie De Lamar said 25 new applications for food stamps have been received in Lufkin near the campsites in the past three weeks.

The Rainbow Family, a loosely organized group of back-to-nature advocates, have met in annual "gatherings of tribes" of thousands of people since the early 1970s and proposed to gather this year in Texas.

Ms. De Lamar said some applicants have identified themselves as early arriving members of the Rainbow Family, while others decline to say whether they are affiliated with the back-to-nature group. She said Rainbow Family members are eligible for food stamps if they can prove they are living in Angelina County.

The U.S. Forest Service has actively sought to prevent the group from camping in East Texas forest land for this year's celebration.

An anonymous letter sent to Jim Morpheus and Billy Ball, law enforcement officials with the Forest Service's Lufkin office, said five men would die by the end of June if the agency continues to keep "an armed camp" near Rainbow campsites.

Ball has been assigned to previous Rainbow Family gatherings nationwide. He was in North Carolina last year, officials said.

Copies of the letter, dated June 7 and signed "The Peacemaker," were mailed to The Lufkin Daily

News and the Tyler Morning Telegraph.

But the Tyler newspaper did not receive the letter, a spokesman said.

The letter called the officers "brothers" and assured them of "The Peacemaker's" brotherly love, but said: "These people whatever their lifestyle should be free to camp in public forests without the fear of looking down the barrel of a gun. Are we in Russia?"

"You are going to bring about death in our beautiful forest, and I ask you to prevent this by pulling out your men," the letter added. "If you do not, mark my words, five men will die by the end of this month."

"Now I leave you with these words. You are the keeper of your brother; you are not his jailer. If you seek to jail him, he will rise up against you and blood will spill."

Special Agent Roger Dunfee told the Daily News Monday that the FBI in Tyler is investigating the letter, but has no suspects.

The U.S. Forest Service estimated that 400 members of the Rainbow Family were in East Texas forests on Monday and said that could triple by the end of the week.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ruled earlier this month that the Forest Service's policy on issuing permits for gatherings was unconstitutional. The ruling has been appealed by the Forest Service.

Both sides awaited word on a telephone conference Monday between Rainbow and Forest Service attorneys and judges in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on whether a permanent injunction should be granted.

Defense consultant has ties with others in Pentagon probe

By JOAN MOWER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense consultant William Galvin, one of the 38 subjects of FBI search warrants in the Pentagon fraud investigation, has a wide variety of ties with other people and companies named in the probe.

FBI agents last week scoured Galvin's office in the Watergate complex where Melvyn Paisley, the former assistant secretary of the Navy identified as a key figure in the 2-year-old investigation, also has his office.

Federal agents also looked at the office of Galvin's stepson, Ken Brooke, of Vienna, Va. No arrests have been made in the fraud case, which involves allegations that defense contractors used consultants to obtain confidential Defense Department information. Bribes were paid to people inside the Pentagon, officials claim.

Galvin, whose business is named Athena Associates, and Paisley both worked as consultants for United Technologies Corp., a large defense contracting firm based in Hartford, Conn.

Galvin is a consultant to Norden Systems while Paisley works for Pratt & Whitney. Both Norden and Pratt & Whitney are divisions of United Technologies. The Hartford Courant has put the relationship even closer.

"When Paisley was with the Navy, Galvin was a conduit to him," the newspaper quoted a source as saying. "They had a relationship." Paisley, who resigned from the Navy in April 1987, was a close associate of John Lehman Jr., the former Navy secretary.

Efforts to contact the men were unsuccessful. Galvin was not in his office, said a man who answered the telephone. All calls were referred to his attorney, William Nussbaum, who did not return a call. Paisley did not answer his telephone, Brooke declined to talk about the investigation.

Larry Bingaman, a UTC spokesman, said the company had a policy of not divulging information about consultants. Norden manufactures military radar and communications equipment; Pratt & Whitney makes aircraft engines.

Galvin has three other clients that were the subjects of FBI search warrants last week. They are Lorai Corp., Unisys Corp., and Cubic Corp., according to published reports.

Galvin had another relationship with a firm on the list of companies investigated by the FBI: he was director of Armtec Inc., of Palatka, Fla., according to records on file with the Florida secretary of state.

Armtec, an 80-person firm that manufactures wiring harnesses, is located in the congressional district of Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee on defense.

Chappell is reportedly under scrutiny in the nationwide inquiry, but he has denied any wrongdoing and called the reports a "bunch of bunk."

The Florida Democrat, however, said he was instrumental in getting Armtec to move to the state's 4th Congressional District in 1986 because the company's president, William Roberts, is a close personal friend.

Roberts, who has a house in Alexandria, Va., as well as in Florida, said in a statement that the company "intends to cooperate fully with the government in its investigation," though it has done nothing wrong.

Friends of Galvin said he and his wife, Evelyn, recently moved from an exclusive area in McLean, Va., where former CIA Director Stansfield Turner was a neighbor, to the Watergate apartment complex.

"They were wonderful people," said Mrs. Robert Kimberly, a friend. The couple entertained frequently as part of their active social life, acquaintances said.

Galvin's daughter, Joan, works on Capitol Hill as a legislative aide to Rep. Andy Ireland, R-Fla. She coordinates Ireland's work on the House Armed Services Committee, according to his spokesman, Doug Hattaway.

Hattaway said Ms. Galvin joined the congressman's staff 18 months before Ireland was appointed to the powerful panel.

CBS News reported Monday night that Ireland is among a few House members who are under scrutiny in the case, but that there is not yet enough evidence to make them targets of the investigation.

Henry Hudson, the U.S. attorney who is coordinating the investigation from Alexandria, Va., said 270 subpoenas have been issued and that additional search warrants may be issued.

Some of the 38 search warrants under seal in the probe from last week may be opened to the public by the end of this week, he said.

Former CIA official charged in Iran-Contra probe

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A former CIA official accused of participating in an illegal conspiracy to arm the Nicaraguan rebels is the latest person charged in independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's broadening Iran-Contra investigation.

Joseph F. Fernandez, the CIA's former station chief in Costa Rica, was named Monday in a five-count indictment charging that he and unidentified co-conspirators "deceitfully and without legal authorization" organized a private arms supply network for the Contras when Congress banned such aid.

Fernandez, 51, who left the agency late last year after he was disciplined by CIA Director William Webster, also is charged with lying to his superiors to conceal the operation.

In addition, he is accused of obstructing an investigation of the Iran-Contra affair that was conducted by the presidential commission headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

The indictment charges that Fernandez lied to the Tower Commission last year by stating that he did not know for a fact that fired National Security Council aide Oliver

L. North was involved in aiding the Contras.

Fernandez's attorney, Thomas Wilson, declined to comment on the charges, saying he needed more time to study them.

Each of the five charges carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

The indictment shows that Walsh is continuing his grand jury investigation even while preparing for the trials of North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and arms dealers Albert Hakim and Richard V. Secord.

The judge in that case, Gerhard

A. Gesell, indicated last week he was ready to schedule a trial for North in U.S. District Court. North and his co-defendants are to be tried separately on the charges they conspired to divert U.S.-Iran arms-sale profits illegally to the Contras.

The case against Fernandez was assigned to Aubrey E. Robinson Jr., chief judge of the U.S. District Court here.

"The grand jury's investigation is ongoing," associate independent counsel Laurence Shstael, told reporters after the indictment was returned against Fernandez.

Shstael also suggested that the 18-month term of the special grand jury investigating the Iran-Contra affair be extended before its scheduled expiration next month.

The indictment charges that Fernandez helped North and Secord, a retired Air Force major general, coordinate air drops of weapons and supplies to Contra groups in southern Nicaragua in 1986.

Fernandez, who operated in the field under the cover name Tomas Castillo, also is accused of overseeing the construction of an airstrip in northern Costa Rica that the conspiracy built to help deliver arms to the rebels.

The indictment charges that Fernandez lied to an official of the CIA's Central American Task Force in September 1986 about the purpose of the airstrip and later sent incomplete or unresponsive cable messages to the agency in response to CIA queries about the covert operation.

The cables were designed to conceal the operation when the CIA questioned Fernandez after a C123K cargo plane carrying weapons for the Contras was shot down over Nicaragua on Oct. 5, 1986, the indictment says.

The indictment does not identify Fernandez's alleged co-conspirators.

Forsan '88-89 school budget OK'd; bids accepted on repairs

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

FORSAN — A tentative budget of $3.6 million dollars was approved and bids were accepted on two minor repairs to school district buildings during the regular meeting of the Forsan Independent School District Board of Trustees Monday, according to superintendent J.F. Poynor.

The board also discussed a policy concerning payment for cafeteria meals and an amendment to its commencement exercises policy, Poynor said, as well as deciding to continue operating the concession stands for school events as was done during the past school year.

The board moved its July meeting date from the 18th to the 25th and voted to join the Texas Association for Community Schools.

The board also approved a contract with ASAI of Lubbock for asbestos inspection, testing and a plan to contain or remove the substance in accordance with federal requirements, and voted to have buildings appraised for insurance reasons.

Board members received a report on summer work programs and made the following personnel decisions: accepted the resignation of Johnny McGregor, who will accept a junior high school principal's post in Stanton; hired Dennis Smiley, a Howard College instructor and former Coahoma faculty member, to fill McGregor's post; and added two persons to the staff.

Cindy Alderton has been hired as the district's speech pathologist, Poynor said, and Richard Stovall has been employed to serve as the homebound teacher for the cooperative operated by Midland Greenwood, Coahoma, Stanton, Forsan, Glasscock County and Grady schools.

Bids of $4,456 to repair hail damage to roof flashing and $800 to properly support a roof-mounted gas pipe were received from Texas Roofing of Odessa, Poynor said, and were approved.

The board chose to table action on the "no-charge" policy at the school cafeteria until its next meeting, at which time an administrative policy will be presented for the board's consideration, Poynor said.

"It's one of those tough things that everybody wrestles with," he said. "No one likes to see a child go hungry, yet at the same time, you're teaching irresponsibility by letting them charge the lunch they're supposed to have money to pay for."

Poynor said the $3,610,760 tentative budget reflects an approximate 5.5 percent increase over last year's, and does not include the co-op budgetary funds, for which Forsan acts as financial agent.

"Most of that $188,788 increase comes from new positions we've added," he said, noting that four new teaching jobs have been budgeted although one may not be filled depending on the needs of the district.

One injured in mishap

A Big Spring man was slightly injured Monday night in a two-vehicle accident, according to police reports.

Kenneth Lee Stonerook, 19, Route 3, Box 242, was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center for injuries he suffered after his pickup struck a Southwestern Bell Telephone box near the intersection of Cole Street and Birdwell Lane, reports stated.

Stonerook's pickup was northbound in the 2200 of Birdwell Lane about 6 p.m. when he lost control attempting to pass a car driven by Mark Lynn Barber, 18, 400 Dallas St., according to police reports.

His pickup slid sideways into Barber's car and then crashed into the telephone box after jumping the north side of the curb on Cole Street, reports stated.

Stonerook, who was transported by ambulance to the medical center, was cited by police for faulty evasive action, passing in a no passing zone and failure to maintain financial responsibility, according to reports.

Ruling expected on Morales death

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A ruling is expected within a matter of days in the March 28 death of a Big Spring man, Howard County Justice of the Peace William Shankles said today.

Shankles had been awaiting police reports before making a ruling in the death, he said, and received those reports late Friday. He said he will make a determination on whether the death was a suicide or a homicide after completing his examination of the facts presented in the death.

Fred Morales Jr., 39, was found in the 300 block of N. Trades St. suffering from gunshot wounds March 28.

Morales later died. A shotgun authorities believe to be the weapon used was found buried north of Big Spring after the death, and police investigations have continued into Crime Stoppers information concerning the shooting.

Police spokesman Detective Lieutenant Juan Palacios said today that detectives are preparing a case to present to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby in an effort to obtain warrants for tampering with physical evidence in the case.

"Charges are being filed," Palacios said, "and we're going to go before the prosecutor to obtain warrants."

He said Big Spring police take every case they investigate before a prosecutor, whether it be Hamby or acting County Attorney Harvey Hooser, to determine whether sufficient evidence exists for a warrant to be issued and an arrest made.

"When our case is presented to the DA's office, then we find out if we would get a warrant," he said.

Warrants were being sought for two individuals whose names have not been released in connection with the possible charges, he said.

secretary to declare certain Texas counties eligible for federal drought assistance.

"They agreed to do that but they are moving very slowly with the designation process," he said, adding that the local and state paperwork had been finished a long time ago.

Hightower said 40 counties have been approved for federal aid, but probably 150 need assistance.

He said ranchers are being forced to liquidate herds, and farmers and ranchers are going out of business as a result of the drought — "it's devastating."

Asked what his office had done to try to alleviate drought conditions, Hightower responded, "Yelling at the top of my lungs."

"There's nothing we can do except to pressure for this" federal aid, he said. "We have no authority, we have no money ..."

He said his office had no dollar figure on damages and, asked what sections had been hardest hit by the drought, he replied, "Not a section of the state ... I guess way up on the High Plains there's some water."

Even traditionally wet areas such as East Texas are having water problems, he said, mentioning that state agriculture officials would meet this week with county officials at Longview.

"It's not just a matter of this year's drought — it has been dry through the '80s," Hightower said. He added that dry weather building up over the years led to the Dust Bowl and drought of the 1950s.

Opinion

Sanctions hurt apartheid fight

It is almost inevitable that Congress will soon impose new, tougher sanctions on South Africa. With election fever in the air and a growing feeling of resentment at the Pretoria regime's intransigence, emotion is likely to outrank logic in the fight against apartheid.

But before our legislators fall prey to the temptation to bash the Boers even harder, they should heed some lessons learned from the administration's dealings with Gen. Manuel Noriega of Panama.

The first lesson is that sanctions applied half-heartedly, without the threat of military intervention, rarely achieve the desired result. Rather, they miss the target and create hardship for the very people they are intended to help. The second lesson is that if the United States desires to influence events in a foreign country it must have leverage of one form or another.

Washington's attempts to bring Pretoria to heel by imposing economic sanctions have failed. During the 18 months since passage of the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act, the Nationalist Government has gained substantial support from the white electorate.

As a result of the withdrawal of American corporations, white South Africans have gained cheap technology, management skills, brand names and market shares that would have taken them years to build from scratch. Nearly 100 instant millionaires were created when U.S. companies sold out cheaply. All of them were white. And by withdrawing its interests, the United States lost its on-site leverage against apartheid.

The flight of U.S. capital forced down the value of South African currency, making the country more competitive in international markets. As a result, the once-stagnant economy grew by 2.5 percent last year, with Japan stepping in to replace the United States as South Africa's main market for exports.

South Africa's little-publicized trade with other African countries also grew healthily, and new markets opened in Taiwan and Hong Kong.

The main beneficiaries of the trumpeted disinvestment were the white entrepreneurs — the Afrikaners and English-speaking businessmen. The losers in the sanctions game were the estimated 250,000 black workers who forfeited their jobs through economic recession.

A fact often overlooked on Capitol Hill is that only 25 percent of South Africa's blacks favor sanctions and disinvestment. Blacks such as Archbishop Desmond Tutu believe the value of sanctions to be their power to reduce the disenfranchised masses to such a state of desperation and poverty that they have nothing to lose by rising in bloody confrontation with the government. That is the quick solution to apartheid, and the costly one.

Moderate black politicians such as Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, leader of the Zulu tribe, the largest ethnic group in the country, reject the cynicism that calls for blacks to sacrifice themselves in bloody revolution; they seek orderly reform with safeguards for whites. That is the slow solution, but the sensible one.

Chief Buthelezi opposes sanctions because their net effect is to bolster white support for P.W. Botha's Nationalist government, to slow the pace of reform and to cause suffering among blacks. Like the vast majority of black leaders, he despairs at the thought of tougher sanctions.

As long as the United States remains disengaged and without leverage, it cannot hope to influence events in South Africa. The Boer is not easily bashed, even at close range, as the British Imperial Army discovered at the turn of the century. Long-range threats serve only to invite his scorn and strengthen his resolve.

The prospects for peaceful reform in South Africa, already bleak, will become even more bleak unless the United States is willing to become economically involved once again. By actively participating, by offering education and employment, by demonstrating democratic principles in the workplace, American interests can retain the leverage needed to hasten the reform process.

Before it fires off another counterproductive salvo of sanctions, Congress should get hold of the unpleasant reality of boycott and disinvestment. Without leverage the Boer will not be influenced any more than was Noriega. With the leverage brought about by active economic participation, the prospects for peaceful change in South Africa will be increased immeasurably.

Buddy, can you spare a room?

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Well, buckaroo, I'm back — did you miss me? You mean you were gone, Reagan?

Now that you mention it; yes, I was. This past week found yours truly deep in the heart of darkness. I saw magnificent sights and performed wondrous deeds.

There were damsels in distress and signs in the sky; rivers ran red and dragons were loosed from the earth's bowels. It was the best of times and the worst of times.

In short, just another typical Reagan vacation.

Actually, there were very few dragons, and most of the rivers I saw were more a sickly shade of green than red, but when I get a week off, almost anything is possible.

My past vacation misfortunes have been well-documented in this space, so I see no need to rehash old woes to an indoctrinated public.

Leave it at this: There is usually a great difference between my expectations of a vacation and its eventual realities.

So, it's with a certain degree of shock that I report that my vacation last week was — well, not bad. I didn't have the most marvelous time of my life, but I did manage to avoid injury and arrest.

By almost any measure, that seems a success — wouldn't you agree?

A success, that is, except for one small detail.

If I have responsibility to pass along one bit of advice to fellow travelers this summer, it is this: Do not, under any circumstances, plan an overnight stop in San Antonio without having ironclad, guaranteed motel reservations.

I didn't — and believe me, I paid for my transgression.

Before you begin castigating me as some kind of balloon head without enough sense to make motel reservations, please bear with me for a few moments.

When I originally made plans for my trip, I — like the responsible adult I am on occasion — prudently made a reservation for that Monday. When Monday came, however, auto difficulties prevented me from leaving town until the following day, killing my precious reservation in the process.

Considering the luck I usually have on vacations, I should have seen the rest coming.

I must have spent no less than 20 bucks in loose change calling every motel ever built within 100 miles of the Alamo City trying to secure new reservations, but to no avail.

"I'm sorry, sir, but we're booked solid for the next two weeks," was a phrase I heard all too often as my quarters disappeared into Ma Bell's ever-hungry machines.

Tuesday arrived finding me still without lodging, but it made not one whit of difference. I was determined that I was going to San Antonio — even if I had to sleep in my car.

Which I almost had to do — but back to the story.

The trip to San Antonio was pleasant enough, what with the scenery and the pleasant sense of freedom that comes with breaking the office's shackles.

But — by a marvelous stroke of the infamous Reagan timing — I managed to arrive at San Antonio smack in the middle of rush hour. Among other things, this meant I would have to avoid being crushed and look for a vacancy sign at the same time.

No simple feat, that.

To make a long story short, I got lucky and found a motel. It was about 50 miles from where I wanted to be the next day, but I was so grateful to be off the freeway, I didn't complain.

As I sat watching the San Antonio news on TV that evening — a transvestite bank robber was the main story — I reviewed the day's events.

Car trouble, no reservations, bad timing — no doubt about it, just another typical Reagan vacation.

First they wanted to be firemen; now, they want to be evangelists

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I've been keeping close watch on the situation in Marion N.C., where the two kids keep getting kicked out of school because they won't stop screaming their heads off about their teachers classmates going to hell.

Certainly you've seen tapes of 5-year-old Matthew Strode and his 10-year-old brother, Duffey, who stand outside their school and quote Scripture and throw in an occasional mention of "whoremongers" — which is what you throw in, I suppose, when you figure you need a little something to regain your audience's attention when the Scripture-quoting gets a little boring.

I've heard many television evangelists do this but never a 10-year-old boy. Screamed Duffey Strode at school one day:

"Marriage is honorable in all, but whoremongers and adulterers, God will be the judge!"

Although they keep kicking the Strode boys out of school in hopes they will finally and mercifully hush, their father continues to encourage his sons and claims the boys are only exercising their freedom of speech and religion.

That may be, but I still wonder if Duffey Strode has any idea what a "whoremonger" is.

I'm 41, and I'm not certain how one would go about mongering a whore. I suppose we'll have to wait for an explanation in Jimmy Swaggart's memoirs.

Why I've been keeping such a close eye on the Marion N.C., story is that what I have feared for a long time is taking place.

When I was a kid, all the guys wanted to grow up to be cowboys, space rangers or football players. We watched television, and we idolized cowboys, space rangers and football players.

Later, kids watched television and wanted to grow up to be rock stars. You get all that money if you're a rock star, you get to ride in limousines and everybody knows who you are. What I am afraid is happening now is kids, like the Strode boys, are watching television and want to grow up to be evangelists.

You get all that money if you're an evangelist, you get to ride in limousines and everybody knows who you are.

And even if Duffey or Matthew Strode had no interest in becoming television evangelists, it could have been old Dad who came up with the idea. "Listen boys," he might have said, "I want the two of you to go to school tomorrow and start screaming at the top your lungs about whoremongers."

"No matter how hard they try to make you shut up, don't pay any attention. The news media will discover you and you'll be on your way to becoming rich television evangelists."

"But, Dad," the boys might have asked, "what's a whoremonger?"

"Just keep screaming boys. You're my ticket out of this hick town."

Homeless cafe opens

ATLANTA (AP) — About 25 homeless people gathered for a hot meal at the opening of 458 Cafe, where patrons are asked for their order instead of told to wait in a soup line.

The cafe, housed in an art deco-style building, serves as a full-service restaurant for the homeless. Volunteer waiters take orders from seated patrons who are offered a choice of meals.

The clientele Monday was not demanding — many simply shrugged when asked to choose from the menu of beef burgundy or chicken-and-riced casserole, salad, green beans or corn, and chocolate cheesecake or peaches.

Oscar Shears can't remember the last time he sat down at a table and heard someone ask, "May I take your order, please?" He said lingering over hot food and fresh coffee is an unaccustomed pleasure.

Pastor says he's sorry

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A federal judge has sentenced an outspoken fundamentalist minister to 21 months in prison for the attempted bombing of a family planning clinic by anti-abortion protesters.

"I am genuinely sorry for what I've done," the Rev. Dorman Owens told the judge at Monday's hearing. "I've tried to right every wrong. Now, for my sake and for the sake of my people, I'm asking for mercy and leniency."

U.S. District Judge Earl B. Gilliam also sentenced Owens to five months probation, during which time he is forbidden from participating in anti-abortion protests or preaching on the subject.

Owens, 54, the fundamentalist pastor of the Santee-based Bible Missionary Fellowship, pleaded guilty to charges of witness tampering and willfully concealing knowledge of the bombing attempt from authorities.

Man said to be insane

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man accused of imprisoning six women as sex slaves in a basement torture chamber is guilty but insane, his attorney says, but the prosecutor in the torture-murder trial says the man knew what he was doing.

Gary Michael Heidnik, a self-styled minister and a financial whiz, sat unmoved during opening statements Monday. He faces two counts of homicide, six of kidnapping, six of rape and four of aggravated assault.

"The evidence will show that this defendant committed repeated sadistic and malicious acts causing the torture and death of two victims (and) he did it methodically and systematically and deliberately concealed it," Assistant District Attorney Charles Gallagher told the Common Pleas Court jurors.

Malpractice

Doctors practice defensive medicine

HERALD BUREAU REPORT

WASHINGTON — Soaring malpractice insurance rates are driving obstetricians to practice a costly form of "defensive medicine" in maternal and child health care for fear of exorbitant lawsuits, a panel of physicians said Monday.

And while the cost of medical care for expectant mothers and infants is increasing because of "defensive medicine," the medical benefits of using high-technology monitoring and performing more Caesarean-section births are minimal, according to panelists at a National Academy of Sciences symposium Monday on the effects of malpractice liability on obstetrics.

"Timely Caesarean-sections will keep you out of court and are relatively safe," said Dr. Benjamin P. Sachs, associate professor of obstetrics at Harvard Medical School.

"But I think we have increased the cost of maternal care and obstetrics with really no improvement to public health," said Sachs, who also is director of obstetrics at Boston's Beth Israel Hospital.

Seventy-three percent of the nation's physicians last year reported they had been sued for malpractice at least once in their careers. Hardest hit of all medical professionals were obstetricians, causing 18.6 percent of family physicians to drop their obstetrical practices last year, according to the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen joined the panelists and cited statistics showing rural areas — particularly in Alabama, Mississippi and Texas — are feeling the hardest impact of dwindling numbers of obstetricians.

"With family physicians often the only ones to serve an area, numerous counties or entire regions of some states report that they have just one or two physicians to deliver babies," said Bowen.

Those physicians who remain in obstetrics find "defensive medicine" the only effective way to avoid lawsuits, Sachs said.

Perhaps the most obvious effect on the practice of obstetrics is the skyrocketing rate of Caesarean-section births, Sachs said. Caesarean-section births accounted for 6 percent of all births in 1970. In 1985, the number of Caesarean-section births quadrupled to 24 percent of all births. The United States currently has the highest rate of Caesarean births of all nations, more than twice the rate of Britain.

By the year 2000, Sachs said he expects the Caesarean-section rate to increase to 40 percent of births. Half of all women over 35 will likely give birth by Caesarean-section at the turn of the century, he said.

Taking cover

MONTREAL, Can. — An armed robbery suspect crouches behind a woman he is holding hostage after being cornered by police following a bank robbery in Montreal Monday. The gunman was later shot and killed by police, and the woman also was injured.

World

Haiti appears normal

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haitians ventured back into the streets today after a military coup catapulted Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy back to power after four months of civilian rule and ended hopes for democracy.

Some telephone service was restored after being cut Monday. The streets filled with cars and people in the morning after being nearly deserted the previous morning.

Scattered gunfire was heard in the streets overnight and into the dawn, but there were no signs of factional fighting. Soldiers have often fired their weapons into the air to frighten civilians from the street since the coup.

Namphy reestablished military rule by decree and named his own government Monday just hours after rallying troops, who seized the national palace and quickly ousted President Leshe Manigat's 4-month-old civilian government.

Botswana foils raid

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) — Security forces arrested two white South Africans after a shootout in which South African commandos injured three Botswana policemen, the president's office said today.

The statement said the shooting occurred late Monday when six unarmed police officers were fired at by five South African commandos who were planning a raid on a target in Gaborone, the capital.

South African commandos have staged numerous cross-border raids in the past on Botswana and other neighboring countries to attack suspected hideouts and bases of the African National Congress. The ANC is the main guerrilla movement fighting South Africa's government.

The commandos escaped, the statement said, but two other South Africans were later arrested at an army roadblock and were being questioned. Initial reports said the arrests came early today, but the announcement said only that the arrests followed the 10:30 p.m. shooting.

The announcement came hours after Gaborone police announced that a car bomb had exploded early today near the home of a building contractor in the capital.

Bus crash kills 33

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Thirty-three people were killed and 15 injured when a bus went off the road and crashed down a ravine in northern Kashmir state, the United News of India reported today.

UNI said the accident occurred Monday as the bus was en route to Srinagar, the state capital.

The victims were mostly from the northern Indian states of Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh, the news agency said. The bus driver was among those killed, it said.

Brief showers bring little relief

Brief showers brought scant relief to farmers in the parched Midwest as thermometers hit triple digits, and a meteorologist said a hurricane might be needed to end the drought in the Southeast.

On the Mississippi River, barges recently freed after days of dredging low spots again faced backups as two shallow areas had to be cleared. Authorities expected the delay to last days.

In Dayton, Ohio, a "hay hotline" was starting today for farmers seeking fodder from as far west as Kansas to feed their cattle in the face of the grass-wilting drought.

A Monday evening storm in northern Illinois brought the first significant moisture to that area in 28 days, depositing up to a half-inch of rain. Light rain also fell in Michigan and Indiana.

"Any bit of rain will help, but it's not a cure-all," said Rich Brumer, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Illinois. "We need to have something like this every three days for the next month before we can say the drought is ended."

More than three dozen record-high temperatures were reported Monday, mostly across the dry Midwest, and more of the same was predicted for today.

A meteorologist said Monday a hurricane might be just the trick to snap the dry spell in the Southeast.

"Of course, we don't want to see any hurricanes," said Paul Pettit, a weather service forecaster in Montgomery, Ala. "But the hurricane and the tropical activity may be the answer to the long-term lack of rainfall and water replenishment that we're probably going to need."

Mississippi River barges freed last weekend from sandbar tie-ups to the north and south of Memphis, Tenn., again faced an obstacle, the Coast Guard said Monday.

A 1,000-foot-long section of the Mississippi six miles north of Memphis has shrunk from 500 feet wide and 15 feet deep to 170 feet wide and nine feet deep due to the drought, said Cmdr. Michael Donohoe of Coast Guard headquarters in Memphis.

"Undoubtedly there will be a backlog here. We could probably have between 800 and 1,200 barges arriving at Memphis over the next 24 to 48 hours," he said Monday.

A dredge was scheduled to arrive today to begin scooping out the low spot. Donohoe said the river likely would be closed during the dredging, which could take two days or more.

Near Gunnison, Miss., a barge ran aground early Monday in shallow water. Engineers said it could take three days to dredge a deeper channel there.

TOLEDO, Ohio — Dwayne Sutter, a member of the Red Eagles, a Columbus, Ohio based Indian organization performs a native American folk dance Sunday after a religious ritual conducted by Sioux medicine man Leonard Crow Dog. Residents hoped the ceremony would relieve drought-stricken Clyde, Ohio.

The record-low water also is creating huge sandbars that are drawing spectators dangerously close to the swirling Mississippi. Three people drowned Sunday near Natchez, Miss., when a sandbar they were walking on fell apart, officials said.

Low water and the heat also are being blamed for an extensive fish kill on the Platte River, a Nebraska Game and Parks official said.

With no end in sight for the farm-belt drought, grain and soybean futures prices spurted sharply higher Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Except for wheat, which is mostly harvested in winter, all grain and soybean futures on the market shot up by their daily allowable limits at the opening bell and didn't budge all day.

Wheat futures are at their highest level in nearly seven years. Corn futures are at four-year highs.

The Montana Agricultural Statistics Service reported Monday that 71 percent of Montana's spring wheat crop is in "poor" or "very poor" condition, compared with 62 percent a week ago.

In Texas, state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower described the situation as emergency.

"We need to be treating it as an emergency rather than just appointing task forces up in Washington, D.C."

Summit host likely to recall session with gratitude

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

TORONTO — Whatever the final communique says today, host Prime Minister Brian Mulroney may remember the 14th economic summit with gratitude.

In a crucial special parliamentary election Monday in Quebec, Mulroney's handpicked candidate, Lucien Bouchard, won with ease, ending a series of reversals for Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party.

In addition, summit partners signaled a general endorsement of the Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement, which has run into all-out political opposition at home and will be the biggest issue in a general election Mulroney must call by September 1989.

Mulroney had put his personal credibility on the line in the election in Lac Saint-Jean, Quebec, and he shared news of the victory with summit partners at dinner.

Defeat for the Conservatives would have been a humiliation for the prime minister, who campaigned extensively in the district and showered it with $135 million in federal projects.

In March, Bouchard was brought back from Paris, where he was Canadian ambassador to France, and Mulroney appointed his old friend to the Cabinet as secretary of state. Cabinet ministers must be members of Parliament, and another Conservative resigned to let Bouchard run in Lac Saint-Jean.

Known as the "Mr. Clean" of Quebec politics,

Bouchard will be a key lieutenant for Mulroney in the general election.

"I'm very happy. Mr. Bouchard is an excellent Quebecer and Canadian who can render great service to Canada's unity," Mulroney told reporters.

A Mulroney aide later visited the prime minister and said: "He's not crowing or gloating but he's got his shirt off and his feet up and he says maybe now people will start seeing things the way he has."

Most Canadian governments run for four years of their five-year terms when the prime minister calls an election to seek a new mandate.

Mulroney swept to power in September 1984, but has hesitated to call an election because opinion polls show the Conservatives trailing the main opposition Liberal Party with just 30 percent voter support.

The Liberals, and the socialist opposition New Democratic Party, have said they would tear up the Free Trade Agreement Mulroney negotiated with the Reagan administration and which would dismantle trade barriers over the next decade.

Mulroney's opponents accuse him of sacrificing Canadian sovereignty in the deal.

The New Democrats also oppose Canadian membership in NATO.

With the election win, trade endorsement and successfully hosted summit, one Mulroney aide, speaking on condition of anonymity, commented: "You would think these things would have a great impact on the opinion polls."

Blaze near Reagan hotel

TORONTO (AP) — Fire swept early today through a building a block from the hotel where President Reagan was staying for the economic summit.

The blaze in the vacant, six-story building prompted fears for the safety of Reagan and other world leaders in nearby accommodations awaiting the final-day sessions of the seven-nation conference, said fire chief Walter Shanahan.

But firefighters extinguished the blaze within an hour of the initial alarm and no leaders were reported evacuated.

Cinders showered the street in the city's financial district as the blaze initially threatened to spread to nearby buildings. But a wave of firefighters arrived and doused the flames, preventing further damage.

The fire marshal's office was called in to investigate because of suspicions the blaze was deliberately set, said Shanahan.

Sgt. Rick Morris, a spokesman for the summit security force, said, "It doesn't look like it's related (to the summit) at all."

Security around Reagan's hotel was tight, but Morris said there were no plans to evacuate the president from the Royal York Hotel, about 150 yards southwest of the fire. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher remained inside the King Edward Hotel, about 150 yards northeast of the blaze.

Allies awaiting Reagan's successor

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

TORONTO — Western leaders, marking time until President Reagan's successor is elected, today conclude a harmonious summit that produced no economic breakthroughs but endorsed U.S. efforts to cut strategic nuclear weapons.

The world leaders did achieve some modest goals, including approval of a plan to relieve the debt burden of the poorest countries, but their overriding aim was to play down any controversy that could risk a repeat of last October's stock market collapse.

The 14th annual economic summit among the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada was ending today with the reading of a final communique extolling the virtues of economic cooperation.

The summit handed Reagan one defeat as Europe and Japan rejected his call for a complete phase-out of billions of dollars of farm subsidies by the end of the century. But there was agreement to strengthen their efforts at economic coordination.

In that regard, the leaders decided to adopt a U.S. proposal for a commodity price index that would include gold. The index would be added to a list of other economic indicators, such as growth rates and trade balances, that the countries keep tabs on to see how their economies are performing.

On Monday, the world leaders issued a political statement that endorsed Reagan's call for tougher action to combat terrorism and illegal drug trafficking.

They also welcomed the progress made in reducing nuclear weapons and said: "We now look for deep cuts in U.S. and Soviet strategic offensive weapons." Reagan has said he would like to complete an agreement to cut strategic nuclear arsenals before he leaves office in January but is not sure that can be accomplished.

Posing for his final class picture with the other summit leaders on the grounds of the University of Toronto, Reagan turned nostalgic when asked how he felt about attending his eighth and final meeting.

"I'm going to miss them all," Reagan said of the other government leaders.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who was attending her 10th economic summit, let it be known through aides that she and the other leaders spent a good deal of time at the private meetings and dinners thanking Reagan for his leadership over the past seven years.

The good will was not enough, however, to gain acceptance for an American proposal to eliminate all farm subsidies by the year 2000. Reagan first made the suggestion at last year's Venice summit.

HC and VA join forces to teach

Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center and Howard College launched a pioneering venture with the beginning of classes offered at the VA.

Conrad Alexander, director of the VA, and Dr. Bob Riley, president of Howard College, addressed a group of students who are taking the course titled, "Introduction to Psychology."

Riley noted that Howard College plans to teach "Human Growth and Development" at the VA during the second summer session, to be followed in the fall semester with "Human Anatomy" and "Physiology I."

"Howard College is pleased to enter into this cooperative endeavor with the Veterans Administration," Riley said. "by actually having classes in the medical center as well as providing clinical experience for nursing and other students, a program that has been in effect for many years."

Riley congratulated the students in their moves to obtain a nursing education while continuing to work in the hospital setting. He said the self-sacrifice necessary to hold down both student and family responsibilities carries a positive payoff at the end. He encouraged the class to "stay with it because of the critical shortage of registered nurses in our country."

Alexander commended each member of the class for taking the initiative to become nurses. "This is the beginning of something meaningful for you which will be both personally and professionally rewarding," he said.

Students need to know it's normal to feel confused

DEAR ABBY: Our Middle Level Education Week events are behind us, but I want to thank you for taking the time and effort to send our students a personal bit of advice on how to renew positive attitudes toward themselves and their school.

Our principal read it over the public address system, and as I walked through the building, I was very much impressed with how attentive the students were.

Would you please consider publishing that message in your widely syndicated column? It deserves a national audience.

DEAR MS. ZELLEY: With pleasure:

The years between 10 and 15 are indeed filled with self-doubts, confusion, excitement and energy.

If you want to help students renew a positive attitude toward themselves and their school, let them know that

Dear Abby

ALL kids are filled with self-doubts, insecurities — and not a little envy because there will always be someone in the class who is brighter, more popular, taller, shorter, thinner, fatter, richer, smarter and more likely to

DEAR ABBY: How does a mother handle hurt feelings when a 41-year-old son doesn't remember Mother's Day or her last birthday? There have been no misunderstandings or hard feelings, as we both live in different states and have for the past several years. I visit the grown children once a year, and he and his family seem happy to see me, but there's very little correspondence during the year except an occasional note, and that is always from his wife.

Maybe I failed him as a mother somewhere along the line?

Lakers gunnin' for 'greatness' tonight

LOS ANGELES — Detroit Pistons head coach Chuck Daly will be trying to lead his team to an NBA title when they take on the Lakers at the Forum tonight.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The NBA's team of the '80s is playing for more than just a title. The Los Angeles Lakers are seeking a special place in history and the right to be called "great."

They say they will have neither if they lose the decisive seventh game of the NBA Finals tonight against the Detroit Pistons — whose star player, Isiah Thomas, probably will miss the game with a sprained ankle.

The Lakers can enhance their decade of dominance and fulfill their coach's guarantee of consecutive championships by denying Detroit its first crown.

"If we win it, we will have earned our spot in the recent history of basketball," Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said Monday. "We have been the dominant team of the '80s and if we win, we will have earned that appreciation."

The Lakers won three of the first seven titles this decade. But no team has repeated as champions since the 1969 Boston Celtics. After the Lakers won their fourth crown of the 1980s last year, Coach Pat Riley found an unusual way to try and break the streak.

He guaranteed the Lakers would do it.

"I'm going to guarantee everyone we're going to repeat," he said soon after the Lakers beat Boston for the title last year.

On Monday, with his players perhaps one day from accomplishing that, Riley said he made the statement to motivate them.

"If they ever really wanted to accomplish something, it had to come from back-to-back titles," he said. "If that was the criteria for greatness, then ... I think the players understand that."

He said his team's objective now is to win tonight's game at home, its goal is to win a world championship and its mission is intangible.

"What that is," he said, "is what we're playing for. Greatness."

The Lakers have won 10 titles, five of them since moving from Minneapolis in 1960.

The Pistons would be happy with one.

They are in their first final since they moved to Detroit in 1957 and haven't won a championship since they joined the NBA as the Ft. Wayne Pistons in 1948.

"I don't care about our fifth or sixth (title). All I want to win is one," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said.

While the Lakers seek greater glory, the Pistons feel they finally are getting the recognition they deserve for a season in which they became surprise finalists by knocking off the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals.

"I don't think anybody's saying we're a fluke now," Pistons' forward Adrian Dantley said.

Not after they took a 3-2 lead in the series and not even after the Lakers struggled to tie it with a 103-102 victory Sunday at the Forum. The Pistons "thought we had it" after they took a 102-99 lead with one minute left, Dantley said.

But they let it slip away, a lapse that gained meaning Monday when Thomas, their star guard, said he was hoping for a miracle so he

Strange silences the critics

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The waiting is over for Curtis Strange.

On Monday, he settled two old scores by winning his first major golf championship, the U.S. Open.

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Curtis Strange hits from a sand trap during action in the U.S. Open at the Country Club. Monday Strange beat Nick Faldo in a playoff to win the title.

Now, he can put to rest the whispers that said he wins money but not titles. And he can properly honor the memory of his father, who died when he was 14.

"This is for my dad," Strange said. "That's all I can say. I waited a long time to do this."

"I screwed up the 1985 Masters, and I was as disappointed as anyone. We don't have to bring that up, though. We're supposed to be having fun here. But I have been waiting a long time."

The 33-year-old Strange shot an even-par 71 over the 7,010-yard course at The Country Club, beating Nick Faldo of Britain by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff. The end came when Faldo had two bogeys on the four long, par-4 holes that start the back nine.

Although Strange managed to find only seven fairways while Faldo hit 12, Strange used just 26 putts, including a 29-footer for birdie on No. 13 while Faldo was bogeying the hole for a two-stroke swing.

"That was the turning point right there," Strange said.

Strange was the PGA Tour's leading money winner in two of the past three years, setting records both times. He had won two Tour events already this season, and Hale Irwin called him the greatest player in the game today.

Many other golfers agreed, but Jack Nicklaus, winner of 20 major tournaments himself, said Strange would have to prove it in one of the Grand Slam events.

Strange almost did that in 1985, leading the Masters going into the final nine holes. But he hit into the water on both par-5s for bogeys, and Bernhard Langer won. That may have been the low point of Strange's career.

This certainly was the highest.

"You wait for a moment like this in your life, to be able to thank the people who helped you through your career," Strange said, tears glistening in his eyes and his chin quivering with emotion.

Strange's father was a golf professional and owned the White Sands Country Club in Virginia Beach, Va. He had Curtis golfing when he was 7.

"When I was 9 years old, I went to work with my father every day and came home with him at night. I spent every day on the golf course. That went on for four or five years," Strange said, his voice cracking. "I learned a lot of things from him — many things I can't even think of that I probably do subconsciously, and many other things that I think about almost every day. I just wish he could have been here."

After his father died, Strange said golfing Hall of Famer Chandler Harper "took me under his wing and looked after me as a golfer and as a person."

"There are so many more to thank. I couldn't name them all because you're sure to miss someone. But there's my mother, my wife Sarah and my two kids, who really don't know what this means to me," he said.

"You have to thank the people sometimes when you have the opportunity, and this is the greatest thing I've ever done," Strange said. "It's the greatest feeling I've ever had."

Strange and Faldo wound up tied at 6-under-par 278 after 72 holes on Sunday, forcing an 18-hole playoff, the format used by the U.S. Golf Association for its Open championship. Strange saved par from a trap at 18 on Sunday after bogeying the 17th hole by three-putting from eight feet.

Strange was 1 under par on the front side and led Faldo by one stroke going to the back nine, which starts with four par-4s, all over 430 yards.

The two matched par on No. 10, and Faldo bogeyed the 11th hole when he two-putted from eight feet. Strange gave the stroke back on 12 when he bogeyed from a greenside bunker.

The big swing came on 13, a 433-yarder. Faldo three-putted from 40 feet after driving into the right rough. Strange was on in two and birdied from 29 feet.

How much did that 29-footer mean?

"It meant a lot," Faldo said, "because he made it."

Strange said he had to guard against overconfidence at that point.

Pirates win 18-3; Yanks finish fourth

In a battle of to stay alive in Little League city tournament play Monday night, the American League Pirates romped over the National League Yankees 18-3 in a game called because of the 15-run rule after three-and-one-half innings.

The Pirates got a one-hit pitching performance from Todd Parrish. Parrish struck out nine and walked two. He got plenty of help as his Pirate teammates banged out 13 hits against Yankee starter Jeff Horn and reliever Hank Tom.

The Pirates led 5-1 after the first inning of play and stretched it to 8-1 after two innings. The American League team salted the victory away by scoring 10 times in the third inning.

The Yankees added their last two runs in the third inning.

Parrish was also a terror at the plate, hitting two triples and a double. Jason Lopez hit two singles and a double. Those were the only two Pirate hitters with three hits.

David Akin got two hits for the Bucs, slugging a homer and triple. Chris Copeland and T.J. Robertson also had two hits in the winning cause. Read White added a triple.

The Yankees, who finished the tournament in fourth place, got its only hit from Lonnie Jackson.

The Pirates will play the Coahoma Reds tonight at 8 p.m. at the American League field.

Veteran race car driver little better after crash

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of messages have been pouring in to Lehigh Valley Hospital Center, where veteran driver Bobby Allison is being treated for injuries received in Sunday's NASCAR Miller 500 auto race.

Maria Pillsbury, media relations director for HealthEast, the hospital's parent company, said 300 inquiries about his condition had come in by late Monday afternoon.

Allison, 50, of Hueytown, Ala., remained in critical condition today in the hospital's central nervous system unit, according to a hospital statement.

Donnie Johnson, Allison's brother-in-law, said Allison recognized his brother, Donnie Allison, when the latter visited him Monday.

"He squeezed his finger," Johnson said. "He's wiggling his toes. He recognized the doctor friend of ours. ... The doctor said he's responding to treatment, so we've got a little brighter outlook than we had earlier yesterday."

A blown tire shortly after the start of the race Sunday at Pocono International Raceway in Long Pond sent Allison's Buick into a wall. It bounced into the path of another car that rammed Allison's vehicle on the driver's side. Allison had to be pried out of his car.

Allison was treated for a concussion, possible internal bleeding and other injuries.

Davey Allison said Monday his father had a broken lower left leg, which was in traction, and fractured ribs. He said doctors drained fluid from his father's chest and relieved pressure in his skull, but said there was no further build-up of fluids or internal bleeding.

"The doctors tell us that everything is normal as far as his vital signs and internally (are concerned). Everything is stabilized," said Davey Allison, 27, who finished fifth in the race.

"Dad has control of his body. He moves his fingers, and that seems to be normal," the younger Allison said at the hospital after the family met with doctors. "He took a pretty good shot and he's busted up pretty bad. It's going to be a long haul."

"The people here were impressed with how much progress he made last night."

Davey Allison decided to go ahead with plans to race this weekend in the Miller 400 at Brooklyn, Mich. He said he plans to stay with his mother, Judy, until Friday, when practice starts in Michigan.

"I'm sure he would want me to go on with what I'm doing," Allison said. "I will be able to concentrate, especially after the progress he's made today."

Cash has easy time against teenager

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The headband was the same — and Pat Cash wanted to make sure nothing else changed as he opened defense of his men's singles title at the All England Club.

"To me, it's just another Wimbledon," Cash said after eliminating 17-year-old Todd Woodbridge 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in a Centre Court battle of Australians Monday.

The last time he stood on the famed swath of grass in southwest London, most of the green had turned to brown dust after two weeks of serve-and-volley pounding. That was a year ago, when Cash demolished Ivan Lendl in straight sets behind a blistering serve, then clambored into the stands to embrace his family and friends in celebration of a Wimbledon title.

This time, with the grass untouched — a lush green that would do the most finicky English gardener proud — Cash said he felt very comfortable.

"I came here (Sunday) to have a look at the court just to see how green it was," he said. "It was very familiar to me. ... I just knew the court well, so I didn't feel any different than a year ago."

On Monday, the serve was not quite as big as it was against Lendl. Cash had just one ace, but he handled everything Woodbridge had and threw it back.

"I just returned so well today," Cash said. "I suppose that set it up for me. It was a pretty slow court out there, but I made a lot of good returns. It worked out well."

His own service game was not bad. Cash lost just nine points on his serve, including only two in the final set. He won his last two service games at love and Woodbridge never got near break point.

"I think overall I am a better player," said the sixth-seeded Cash. Woodbridge is not among the world's top 200 players.

The only disquieting moment for Cash came in the third set, with Woodbridge serving and down 0-2.

With the scoreboard showing the third game of the third set at 30-30, Woodbridge hit a winner. But instead of calling the score 40-30, umpire Richard Lumb gave the game to Woodbridge.

"The umpire definitely made a mistake and I was very surprised and disappointed," Cash said. "It was 30-30 and Todd won a point to go 40-30 ahead but the umpire called game."

"I asked him what was going on and he didn't really say anything. Just 'Bad luck, I've already called the score.' It totally shocked me. He said, 'I called the score and you came and sat down.'"

Later Roger Smith, the chief umpire, said that neither Lumb or supervisor Ken Farrar was aware of any mistake. Lumb's scoresheet showed the score of the game as 40-15 when the point came.

Cash lost just two more points as he gained a second-round spot against Javier Frana of Argentina.

After the victory was finished in 1 hour, 44 minutes, Cash took a fistful of checkered-flag headbands and tossed them into the crowd, continuing a habit he began as an unseeded longshot two years ago.

"I had a couple of hundred altogether, but I've probably given out about 100 already," he said. "I do it in Australia and I do it here. Usually, if kids ask me anywhere else in the world, I do it if I've got one spare. But here, I kind of enjoy doing it."

"It is a bit different here."

Yankees fall from first

By The Associated Press
The Yankees lose people and lose games. The Tigers lose people, and win divisions.

New York, playing without starters Rickey Henderson, Willie Randolph and Don Slaught, fell out of first place in the AL East for the first time since May 3 as Detroit, which won the division last year, vaulted past the Yankees with a 2-1 victory on Tom Brookens' 10th-inning homer.

Is Yankees manager Billy Martin worried?

"No," he said. "If we win the next two, we're back 1 1/2 games up. I don't lose my cool over things like that. These guys are playing hard and they are playing hurt. Anybody who runs scared now is crazy."

The Tigers have been killing the opposition lately, winning 10 of their last 13 games.

Tigers 2, Yankees 1

Detroit got a second-inning run on second-inning doubles by Ray Knight and Darrell Evans and made it stand up until the ninth, when Dave Winfield spoiled Jeff Robinson's bid for a second straight shutout with a two-out RBI double.

Athletics 5, Brewers 4

Oakland built a 4-0 lead on Dave Henderson's solo homer, an RBI triple by Mark McGwire and Dave Parker's two-run homer. After Parker's shot in the sixth, Teddy Higuera was ejected by home plate umpire Derryl Cousins when he hit Henderson with the next pitch.

Higuera's ejection seemed to spark Milwaukee, which tied it on Jeffrey Leonard's three-run homer in the sixth and Paul Molitor's two-out RBI single in the seventh.

But pinch hitter Terry Steinbach doubled in the winning run in the ninth and Oakland's Dennis Eckersley pitched a scoreless ninth for his major league-leading 21st save.

Oakland starter Bob Welch also lasted only five innings after suffering a bruised hand when he reached out and deflected Dale Sveum's hard grounder in the fifth.

Red Sox 14, Indians 7

Boston continued its power surge. After collecting 23 hits against Baltimore on Sunday, the Red Sox went to Cleveland and belted Indians ace Greg Swindell, 10-5, who lost his fourth straight, allowing five runs on nine hits in 2-3 innings.

ARLINGTON — Texas Rangers Jeff Kuenkel (left) is congratulated by teammates after hitting his first major league winning RBI during the ninth inning Monday.

Mike Greenwell hit two homers and Jim Rice and Ellis Burks had one each. Rice, Greenwell, Rick Cerone, Spike Owen and Dwight Evans each had three hits.

Greenwell, on a 12-game hitting streak that has lifted his batting average to .330, enjoyed the 88-degree heat.

Bruce Hurst, 9-3, became only the third left-handed starter to beat the Indians in 17 games this season.

Angels 6, Twins 5

Wally Joyner was the difference at Minneapolis with a three-run homer and a run-scoring single. California, which has won five straight, also was aided by Joyner's sensational running catch in the ninth inning.

Minnesota, helped by three Angels errors, had rallied for three runs when Kirby Puckett lifted a high fly toward the stands along the right-field foul line. Joyner, running at top speed from his position at first base, gloved the ball over his right shoulder.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 2
Dave Stieb, 10-3, won his ninth straight decision and Fred McGriff keyed the offense with a two-run homer. Stieb allowed four hits in six innings.

Toronto took a 3-0 lead in the first off Mike Boddicker, 3-10 on Rance Mulliniks' run-scoring double, George Bell's RBI and Kelly Gruber's run-scoring groundout.

The Orioles never caught up, although Cal Ripken had a solo homer and RBI double.

Rangers 4, Mariners 3

Jeff Russell improved his record to 7-0, six of the wins since he became a starter on May 14.

Russell tied Jim Kern's team record for quickest start by a pitcher. He gave up only four hits.

Jeff Kunkel, who hit a homer in the eighth, won it with an RBI double in the bottom of the ninth in his first start this year.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

At Chicago, Steve Lyons hit Jerry Don Gleadon's first pitch for a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

With one out in the ninth, Gary Redus walked. Gleadon relieved Jeff Montgomery and threw to first a half-dozen times before finally throwing a pitch to the plate. Lyons hit it into the upper deck in right field for his third homer of the season.

The drive made a winner of Bob-By Thigpen, 3-5, as the Royals suffered their fourth straight defeat.

Nettles helps Expos deck Cards

By The Associated Press
As a part-time player at age 43, Montreal's Graig Nettles can't be blamed for feeling a little rusty. But he felt loose enough to help the Expos defeat the St. Louis Cardinals.

National League

St. Louis starter Jose DeLeon had held the Expos to two hits through seven innings Monday night and Montreal trailed 2-1. In the bottom of the eighth, pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson doubled with one out and lefty Ken Dayley was brought in to face the left-handed Nettles, also a pinch hitter.

"I haven't had a chance to swing against too many lefties this year," said Nettles, whose double tied the game. "But I've had a long career and I've hit lefties pretty well throughout it."

"He threw me a fastball which I was looking for."

Tim Raines was walked intentionally and, one out later, Andres Galarraga's double off relief ace Todd Worrell scored pinch-runner Tom Foley to give the Expos a 3-2 victory and snap a five-game losing streak.

Cubs 7, Phillies 2

Jamie Moyer and Les Lancaster combined on a four-hitter, allowing only two base runners after the first inning, as Chicago won its fifth straight game.

Moyer, 4-7, gave up three hits in the first inning, hit Mike Schmidt with two outs in the bottom of the third and gave up a one-out single to pinch-hitter Keith Miller in the eighth.

Pirates 8, Mets 5

John Smiley won his fourth straight decision and Pittsburgh scored six runs on eight singles in the seventh inning as the Pirates won in New York.

The Mets took a 3-2 lead in the fourth on Darryl Strawberry's three-run homer, his 17th of the season and fifth in the last seven games.

Reds 2, Astros 1

Tom Browning allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings to win his fourth straight game and Nick Esasky's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning scored the go-ahead run for Cincinnati.

Browning, 6-3, defeated Houston starter Jim Deshaies, his former teammate at LeMoyne College, for the second time in a week.

Browning struck out six, walked three and gave up Kevin Bass' sixth homer in the fourth inning for Houston's only run. John Franco relieved with runners on first and second and two outs in the bottom of the eighth. He struck out Billy Hatcher and then retired the side in order in the ninth to earn his ninth save.

Deshaies, 4-5, allowed eight hits in eight innings, walking four and striking out five. Barry Larkin, who had three hits.

Dodgers 7, Braves 3

Shawn Hillegas scattered 10 hits in 8 2-3 innings and Dave Anderson had three singles to lead a 14-hit attack.

Hillegas, who was called up Saturday from the Dodgers' Triple-A farm club in Albuquerque, struck out six and walked two in his 11th major-league start. Alejandro Pena got the final out to earn his fifth save.

Padres 2, Giants 1

Andy Hawkins and Mark Davis combined on an eight-hitter and San Diego Padres made the most of three hits off San Francisco's Mike LaCoss.

NL Old Timers too much for Americans

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Tug McGraw frowned when he was asked if his fifth-inning double to deep left in the National Old Timers Classic was the longest ball he'd ever hit.

"I resent that question," said McGraw, one of baseball's most colorful players when he pitched for the New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies.

Sure, McGraw got the win in the National League's 8-2 victory over the American League Monday night. But it was his hitting prowess that dominated the conversation.

"Relief pitchers are the kind of athletes that do what has to be done," deadpanned McGraw. "Just because they describe us as pitchers doesn't mean we're not well-rounded athletes able to help the team in any way that is necessary."

Actually, McGraw's blast over Rocky Colavito's head was anti-climatic; the Nationals had already snapped a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the fifth and final inning on Billy Williams' game-winning RBI single and then added three more runs.

Lakers

could play tonight.

He severely sprained his right ankle with 4:35 left in the third quarter Sunday and was on crutches Monday. Trainer Mike Abdenour said "his chances of playing are one in 99."

Thomas carried the Pistons Sunday with 43 points, including 17 after he was hurt, but said Monday that, "I have a lot of faith in my teammates."

"I like our basketball team's chances. We're a strong defensive team and I've said all along the best defensive team can win the series," he added. "Even without me, we'll still be able to stop people."

Vinnie Johnson was expected to start in his place alongside Joe Dumars. Forward Dennis Rodman probably would see increased time in the backcourt. Detroit's other guards are Walker D. Russell and Ralph Lewis, who have played a total of nine minutes in the series.

Thomas "is our emotional and spiritual leader as well as our point guard," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "We'd definitely be in a hole without him."

They'll be in a deeper hole if Dantley can't recover from Game 6, in which he made just 3 of 10 shots and scored 14 points. In each of Detroit's three victories, he has outscored Los Angeles forward James Worthy. In each of the Lakers' wins.

The Pistons also need to regain rebounding superiority. For the first time since the opener, Los Angeles controlled the boards, 41-33.

The Lakers have the homecourt advantage and experience in big games, having been in seven of the nine finals in the 1980s. Of the 13 seventh games played in the finals, the home team has won 10.

Los Angeles has lost all five of its seventh games in championship series, but only one since 1970. The last time a finalist overcame a 3-2 deficit was in 1978 when Washington beat Seattle. The Celtics did it in 1969, when they won the seventh game in Los Angeles to

Blues name ex-player new coach

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The biggest problem for Brian Sutter, the coach, is that he won't be able to call on Brian Sutter, the player. Sutter, a hard-nosed left wing who scored 303 goals and 333 assists in 12 seasons with the Blues, said he won't accept second-best now that he's traded in his jersey for a tie and jacket.

"If they play (hard), we can teach them," Sutter, known for years as one of the NHL's best two-way players, said after signing a three-year contract Monday to become the team's 15th coach. "I'm not going to accept mediocrity. I'm not going to accept anybody that doesn't come to work every day in practice."

Sutter, 31, played 799 games for St. Louis a 12-year career that ended, unbeknownst to him at the time, during this spring's playoffs.

Phillies name new director

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lee Thomas, player-development director for the St. Louis Cardinals, today was named to replace the fired Woody Woodward as player-personnel director of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Thomas, 52, had been considered the front-runner for the job in the wake of the firing of Woodward, who had been on the job seven months.

Thomas, who was given a three-year contract and will take on his new duties by July 1, is given much of the credit for the Cardinals' farm system, considered by many to be among the best in baseball. The club scheduled an 11 a.m. news conference to announce the appointment.

The Phillies' minor-league system has received heavy criticism, and before he was fired, Woodward had recommended sweeping changes in it. Giles has said he would implement several of Woodward's suggestions.

Players tell off on coaches

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Two former University of Minnesota football players say there was a system dating back to the early 1980s under which coaches and former university administrator Luther Darville gave money and other aid to players, according to a published report Tuesday.

The Star Tribune also reported that a former assistant football coach, who asked that his name not be used, said he could corroborate part of the stories told by Valdez Baylor and Melvin Ferguson.

The former assistant said that in the early 1980s, he was told by several other players that they were receiving money from an assistant coach.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will enjoy the time you spend in your kitchen or outdoors more than any other. Companionship is what makes a relationship last. Have faith in your abilities and others will follow suit. Your confidence grows on the job. You may decide to quit looking for greener pastures. Regular exercise and good nutrition are the keys to having plenty of energy. A newcomer is strongly attracted by your down-to-earth ways.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Meryl

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Struggling too hard to make a point is counterproductive. Be on time for appointments. Look for a safe exit if you feel trapped by a relationship. Success comes when you make a phone call.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Use a talent you have not relied on previously and good things will happen quickly. Financial and professional gains come from using all your skills. Travel may be too

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Watch your step when dealing with people at a distance. Look out for someone who flatters you all the time. Ulterior motives are possible. A good day for working behind the scenes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Sudden career developments prompt a permanent change. A newcomer makes an intriguing suggestion. You are unable to resist! Be conservative in business and you will win big. Widen your social circle.
