Crossroads weather

Forecast for the Big Spring area: numerous showers and thunderstorms, some with locally heavy rainfall through Tuesday. Lows tonight lower 60s; highs Tuesday in the mid 80s. Sunday's high was 87 and the low was 63. About 1.65 inches of rain were received Sunday.

Rains and damage cross parched nation

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Scattered thunderstorms boomed from the West to the Southeast today after unleashing tornadoes, winds and lightning that killed five people, burned a hole in a jetliner and knocked over a race track tote board.

Area rainfall amounts in Howard County varied widely, with reports of as little as .04 hundredths-inch and as much as four inches today.

The report of the greatest amount today came from F.C. Jurick, who reported that four inches of rain had fallen at Gayhill school in Luther.

Boyce Hale, Sterling City Route, reported 1.9 inches four miles north of Big Spring as of 8:05 a.m. and 1.8 inches one mile north of the city at the M.L. Knowlton residence. More than two inches over the weekend, with one and nine-tenths since about 3 a.m. today, was reported at the John Couch residence in Luther.

Tommy Hart, 1750 Purdue Ave., reported .15 inch. Cindy Hopper of Knott reported half an inch of rain with light showers continuing at 7:45 a.m. today.

Rainfall at the B.G. Barber residence, 1409 Settles St., was reported at one-tenth inch at 7:50 a.m. today.

Forsan resident Mrs. Roger Hudgins reported .3 inches of rain overnight.

Although there was considerable lightning and accompanying thunder in Howard County, no damage had been reported.

It was not so simple elsewhere. "We've got trees down, fences down — you name it; we've got a mess," Police Sgt. Joe Deich said in Greensboro, N.C., following Sunday's storms.

In Utah, a search was to resume today for a 41-year-old man who was swept away during a sudden storm Sunday at Utah Lake in which a 10-year-old boy drowned.

Scattered thunderstorms fell today from northeast Florida to North Carolina. Scattered showers and thunderstorms lingered in Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Sunday's fatalities included an 8-year-old Greensboro boy who was struck by two trees as he rode his bicycle through a storm, police said.

To the southwest, a 38-year-old man was fatally struck by lightning while boating on Lake Norman, said Mecklenburg County police Capt. J.I. Pendergraph.

In North Branford, Conn., lightning killed a 17-year-old boy and injured his 19-year-old girlfriend as they walked hand-in-hand through a hayfield, said police dispatcher Phyllis Dunphy. She was in fair condition today with first-degree burns and possible internal injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Near Boulder, Colo., one climber was killed and another injured when they were hit by lightning while trying to descend a 600-foot wall in Eldorado State Park on Saturday afternoon.

"We knew we needed to get on down, and we were doing just that," Randall Jett, 21, of Salem, Ill., said Sunday at Boulder Community Hospital, where he was recovering from burns on several parts of his body.

Lighting hit a Piedmont Airlines 737 as it approached Charlotte, N.C., on Sunday night, burning a small hole in the left

Computer whiz kids among top in state

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Their first experience with computers — perhaps like most people — came from playing video games.

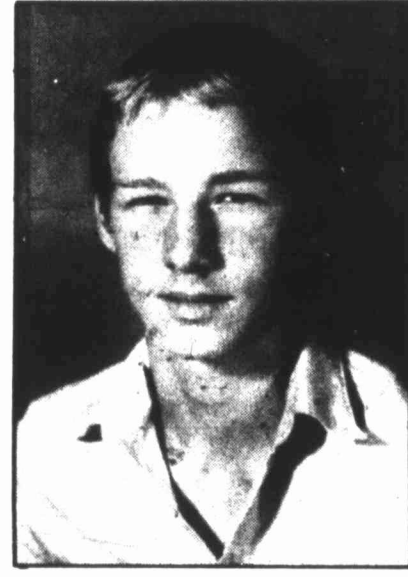

But Drew Bell, Doug Wallace and Mike Knowles have advanced to the point where they are three of the top computer students in their age group in Texas.

The three Coahoma Junior High School students recently participated in a computer literacy contest sponsored by the Texas Computer Educator's Association. When the results were in, they had placed in the top 10 percent of all eighth-graders in the state.

Drew, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Ray Bell, scored highest of all students in Area II, encompassing all of West Texas, in the contest — which tested the students' knowledge of computer programming, history, terminology and other related topics.

Doug, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Wallace, and Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Patterson, placed sixth and tenth, respectively, in the region contest, according to their computer teacher, Janie Parrish.

In state-wide competition, Drew finished fifth overall, and all three placed in the top 10 percent.

The youngsters' results continue a tradition of superior results in the Coahoma school district. Computer students there have placed in the top 5 percent in the state for two of the past three years, Parrish said.

Drew said his fascination with computers began when his father brought one home four years ago. "My father bought one when I was in the fourth grade," he said. "I started playing with it then — playing video games."

Although he still enjoys playing video games on the computer, he said he is fascinated by "all the stuff it can do," — particularly in the programming area, which he says offers him the greatest challenge.

"(The hardest part) is thinking about all those numbers — how it's going to work together," Drew said. "because it just loads your mind."

Doug, who plans on becoming a commercial artist some day, perhaps appropriately enjoys performing graphics on a computer. His talent in this area led to him being named art editor of the junior high newspaper.

"When I was 11, my dad bought a small computer," he said of his Commodore VIC-20. "At first, I mostly played games, but then I started reading the manual and began doing things. I didn't

Commissioners alter budget, hear hospital fee woes

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

A budget amendment was passed and a temporary employee authorized during Howard County Commissioners' session early today.

The commissioners also heard reports on easements for the U.S. Highway 87 widening project and on difficulties Scenic Mountain Medical Center has experienced with qualifying patients for the county's indigent health care programs.

Easements still to be bought are for two pipeline crossings in Commissioner Paul Allen's precinct, he told the court.

David Wiley, hospital director, expressed concerns that the hospital is recovering only approximately 1.5 percent of its expenditures for indigent health care.

Wiley said approximately 30 percent of the losses had been tentatively traced to illegal aliens receiving care through the emergency room and hospital facilities.

Commissioner William Crooker noted that of the total expenditure through May 9 — a total of $68,846.75 — some $38,000 had been paid to Scenic Mountain.

Crooker estimated that approximately $10,000 had been paid to out-of-county hospitals, in Lubbock, Amarillo, Midland and Odessa, for treatment of Howard County indigent residents.

Wiley said between $2 and $2.5 million had been expended by the hospital for services, and recovery had been made through the indigent program on $38,000.

"We have some information that we received today from Irene (Rodriguez, county indigent health care coordinator), and it's good information, to help us identify what we need to do to have these people approved," Wiley said.

Commissioners approved a budget amendment of $333 for the County Extension Service travel allowance after County Extension Agent Don Richardson presented a need to the court.

Richardson said he had not been made aware of a previous request from Home Economics Extension Agent Naomi Hunt to draw travel funds approved by the commissioners.

The resulting shortfall in travel funds allocated for Richardson and County Extension Agent Mike Bragg had created a need for a budget amendment to allow Richardson and Bragg to complete planned travel with youth groups and to attend seminars.

Commissioners also heard from county engineer Bill Mims on the subject of a temporary addition to personnel. Two persons will be absent from Mims' department simultaneously, he said, necessitating the temporary hire of a person to substitute.

Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown repeatedly and emphatically voiced his objections to the commissioners' actions in a previous meeting. Commissioners authorized Glenn Click to take over management of the county's fair barns and reinstated a $50 rental fee and deposit for all uses of the fair barn except those by educational groups such as 4-H and extension service meetings.

The commissioners approved the minutes of the previous meeting and approved and paid the county's bills. The next meeting will be a budget session Wednesday beginning at 9 a.m.

Veterans' issue to be decided

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether military veterans' disability benefits indirectly may be subjected to a state's community property law when they divorce.

The court said it will review a ruling that California's required splitting of benefits with ex-spouses does not violate federal law.

Gerald and Gaye Mansell were divorced in 1979 after 25 years of marriage. Part of the divorce settlement, not at issue in the case, entitled each to one-half of Mansell's Air Force retirement pay.

Mansell receives about $1,200 a month in retirement benefits, but has waived his entitlement to about $480 a month in additional retirement benefits so he can receive Veterans Administration disability benefits instead.

Because VA disability benefits, unlike military retirement pay, are exempt from taxes, such waivers of retirement pay are common.

California courts also ordered that Gaye Mansell receive half of the $480-per-month entitlement to retirement pay her ex-husband is passing up.

Mansell sought to modify the settlement in 1983, arguing that the state's community property law was pre-empted by federal law when it comes to dividing the disability benefits.

"Congress clearly intended the Veterans' Administration disability benefits to remain the separate property of the disabled veteran," Mansell argued in the appeal acted on today.

His argument was rejected by a state trial judge and a state appeals court. The California Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal last April 29.

Man surrenders in Garcia death

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

A 56-year-old Big Spring man surrendered to Howard County officials Saturday night in connection with the death of a man outside a roadside bar, authorities said.

Howard County Justice of the Peace Willie Grant issued a warrant for Froylan Florez Lopez Jr., 56, 708 N. Douglas St., charging him with involuntary manslaughter. He surrendered to sheriff's deputies at 9:05 p.m., Big Spring Police Department Sgt. Bobby Armstrong said.

Lopez, who was not jailed, posted $75,000 bond through a local bonding company and was released Saturday night, according to sheriff's reports.

Police had been attempting to locate Lopez in connection with the death of Domingo H. "Danny" Garcia, 63, Gail Rt. Box 88, whose body was found outside Navarette's, 506 Sgt. Paredes St., about 8:50 p.m. Friday. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

"We were looking for him (Lopez) when he turned himself in. He must have been laying low,"

Armstrong said.

Garcia is believed to have died from injuries he sustained in a fall from the top of a stairwell outside Navarette's. He and Lopez had allegedly been involved in a fight, although the nature of the argument was unknown, Armstrong said.

Big Spring police — responding to a "fight in progress" call — discovered Garcia's body outside the bar. He was bleeding from the mouth and arm, Armstrong said.

Services for Garcia, are to be Tuesday.

Board settles with Sprinkle for $5,000

By STEVE REAGAN

A lawsuit filed against Howard College by a former instructor apparently has been settled, officials said today.

Howard College trustees approved the tentative settlement at a special meeting May 31, according to college president Bob Riley. The news media was apparently not notified of the meeting.

The Herald did not receive notification of the special meeting. Mary Larsson-Couch, news director at radio station KBYG, said she didn't receive notification.

Wynelle Hale, news director at radio station KWKI, said she doesn't recall being notified of the meeting. Denise Creweige, KBST's news director, was unavailable for comment on the matter this morning.

Riley said agendas of the meetings are normally hand-delivered by his secretary to news agencies requesting them. The Herald and KBST have been the only agencies that have made such requests, he added.

The $5,000 settlement apparently ends a 16-month legal dispute between the college and former instructor Bill Sprinkle, who claimed his dismissal was in retaliation to his activities as president of the Howard College Faculty Association.

Sprinkle was an automotive instructor at the college from 1981-85. He had asked for unspecified back pay and benefits, plus $200,000 in punitive damages in the lawsuit, which was filed in 118th District Court in February, 1987. Sprinkle also sought re-instatement as a teacher at the college.

Sprinkle dropped the demand for reinstatement in return for the settlement.

"I felt that my demotion and non-renewal were retaliatory actions (on the part of the college)," Sprinkle said.

Mmm-mmm, bugs taste good

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wasp larvae or water bug eggs are fine, but Gene DeFoliart prefers deep-fried greater wax moth larvae, which taste just like bacon.

"Insects are as nutritionally valuable as many kinds of meat animals," said the University of Wisconsin entomologist, who has been promoting bugs as a staple since around 1974.

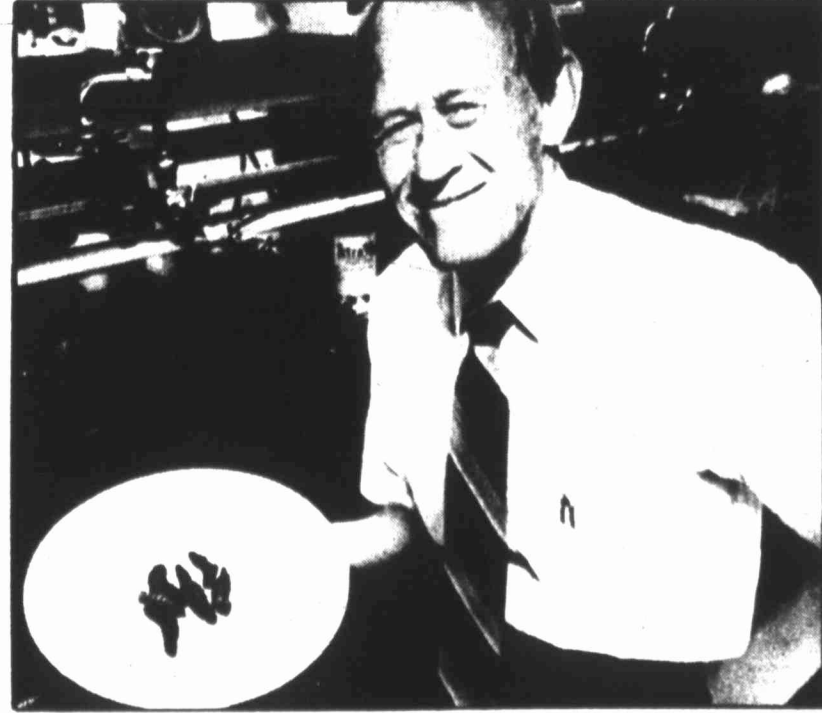

"They are the most protein available to people who don't have anything else. They also have a good fat, vitamin and mineral content."

DeFoliart, who snacks on the critters himself once in a while, finds ways to use them as cheap feed supplements in poor countries.

There are 500 different insect species worldwide eaten by people in nearly three dozen Asian, African and South and Central American countries, he said.

DeFoliart said he is concerned many people in developing countries are being pressured to consume less nutritional alternatives to insects because of growing Western influence on those areas.

"It's not a goal of ours to get people in the United States to eat insects," DeFoliart said. "But we don't think we should stand in the way in places where they are being used."

MADISON, Wis. — University of Wisconsin-Madison entomologist Gene DeFoliart holds a plate of silk worm larvae, one of a number of different insects he has cooked and eaten.

In Mexico, a favorite is wasp larvae, which taste like almonds. Various ants taste like lemon, nuts or cola.

Certain types of water bug egg, which taste like shrimp, are harvested for Mexican caviar and served in the best restaurants. Another delicacy is escamoles, or immature ants.

Judiciary pay issues will face legislators

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers need to make sure Texas judges and their helpers aren't short-changed in the legislative zeal to save money, court officials say.

The pay issue has been underscored by the recent resignations of Justices Jim Wallace from the Supreme Court and Richard N. Countiss from the 7th Court of Appeals in Amarillo.

Wallace, a former state senator from Houston, said "plain old money" prompted his decision to resign, the Dallas Times Herald reported. Supreme Court justices earn about $79,000 annually, which is about half the income of a partner in a major law firm.

Countiss, who was paid about $71,000 annually, said the "economic disparity between the state judiciary and private practice has become so great that I have no choice."

And last week, an opinion by Justice Franklin Spears of the Texas Supreme Court on a case received a scolding of the Texas Legislature for its penny-pinching concerning an equal branch of government.

"In this day and time, with ever-increasing dockets," Justice Franklin Spears wrote, "modern word-processing equipment, computers and skilled personnel to assist with the workload may often be as critical as heating stoves."

The high court ruled, 9-0, that a group of district judges had the authority to grant a 5 percent pay raise for court reporters and told county commissioners to provide the funds. The ruling overturned the action of the commissioners, who agreed to only 3 percent.

In a concurring opinion, Spears was joined by five fellow Democrats in saying, "No legislative authority, state or local, can so tighten the purse strings of the judiciary's budget that it fails to provide the funds reasonably necessary for the court's efficient and effective operation."

Trooper's troubles

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An off-duty Department of Public Safety trooper was suspended with pay after being charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the traffic death of a 33-year-old Lytle man.

Teodoro A. Cano, 29, was released from Bexar County Jail on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond, police said.

Pedro G. Martinez was killed about 11:45 p.m. Saturday when the car he was in was struck from behind by a pickup truck and sent spinning on Interstate Highway 35 about three miles south of downtown San Antonio, according to DPS spokesman David Wells.

Both the car and the truck were ignited by the accident, but neither the driver nor the passenger of the pickup was injured, Wells said. The car ended up on the median between the highway and the frontage road, pointed east, while the truck remained on the freeway.

of the Tribes."

Many more family members are expected to arrive this week, and that is why law enforcement officials have increased their presence in this East Texas forest. Between 12,000 and 20,000 people are expected to attend the family's 17th annual gathering this July Fourth holiday.

Law enforcement officials with the U.S. Forest Service, the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Angelina County Sheriff's Department have been called in to help patrol the area. They will be joined by drug-sniffing dogs from the U.S. Customs Service.

Wager critics decry fund use

FORT WORTH (AP) — Parimutuel wagering critics say suggestions that the government help pay for race tracks in three Texas cities prove that horse racing supporters have broken their promise to develop the industry without taxpayer support.

But supporters say they made it clear from the beginning the public would be involved in building major race tracks.

"The whole thing was a fraud from the beginning. I don't think there was any intention by the downtown boys in Dallas, Fort Worth or Houston to invest one dime of their money in a track," said State Rep. Randy Pennington, R-Houston.

But Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, the key sponsor of the Texas Racing Act and Ricky Knox, the head of the chief lobbying group for Texas horse racing, say they never promised that they could build a major race track without the public's help.

Reporter found, homicide likely

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Police are treating the discovery of what they believe is the body of a young reporter missing for a week as a homicide and may investigate whether her death is linked to the slayings of two other women.

The body of Audrey Cardenas,

24, a Houston woman who had arrived in Illinois on June 8 to work as an editorial intern with the Belleville News-Democrat, was found Sunday by an employee of Belleville East Township High School, police said.

The body was discovered in a dry creek bed in a wooded area on school property.

Police Chief Robert Hurst said the cause of the woman's death has not been determined, but an autopsy was scheduled for today. Hurst said he had no leads and no suspects.

The young women's parents came to Belleville when police were making no progress in solving her disappearance.

Her mother, Billie Fowler, had criticized police efforts and said she intended to hire a private detective to find her daughter.

Hurst, asked at a news conference Sunday what he could have done differently in the investigation, said, "in hindsight we would have gotten on it sooner."

He said the body had decomposed, and it was not apparent if Miss Cardenas had suffered any wounds.

Day at work: A legal high

HOUSTON (AP) — The pay was low and the advertisement small, but a university researcher's request for participants in a marijuana study drew more than 600 calls.

The 27 people selected for the experiment were injected with a form of marijuana, getting a legal "high" as part of a study to try to determine the effects of tobacco smoking on the metabolism of tetrahydrocannabinol, or THC, the active component in marijuana.

Shane McCluskey was one of those who took part in the experiment, conducted by researchers at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston.

"It was munchie city," said McCluskey, smiling slightly about the voracious appetite he experienced. "I started off the first 45 minutes with a fairly intense high, but about 2 p.m., I didn't feel the effects at all."

Wright: Dealer deal OK

FORT WORTH (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said he doesn't see anything wrong with working to get a hometown computer dealer on a list of approved congressional vendors.

Wright had originally said he knew nothing of the arrangement that allowed his friend and political supporter, Marshall Brachman, to install an experimental system in his Washington office. But the speaker told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a report published Sunday that he is trying to place Brachman's company on the approved list.

"I don't make any bones about it," Wright said. "I'm not ashamed of having a bias in favor of a local firm."

"I'm not asking that they close out other competitors. I'm just asking that they open up the range of competitors to include our Fort Worth firm so he can be considered for business along with these other firms."

The Star-Telegram reported June 16 that Brachman's company, Computerized Business Systems Inc., installed the system in Wright's offices as the first step to becoming an approved dealer to the House.

Wright said at the time that he was unaware of the arrangement, which was negotiated by two of his aides.

"That's the first I've heard of that," he said in the news conference. "What do you mean by an approved list, anyway?"

But in a telephone interview Saturday, Wright confirmed that is helping Brachman's company get approval from the House Administration Committee to compete for business in the offices of all 435 representatives.

"Brachman has not collected payment for the $80,000 system placed in Wright's office over the last year, and some House members say Wright may be in violation of House rules, which prohibit accepting gifts."

"There is nothing wrong with getting business for Brachman if his services can be of as much benefit to members as they are to me," Wright said. "And as far as being a Fort Worth company, I don't see anything wrong with that. I'm always trying to promote business for Fort Worth people."

Wright is under a House ethics investigation that centers partially on past behind-the-scenes efforts for friends and associates. The computer deal is not part of that investigation.

Wright said he had forgotten specific details of the arrangement, handled by aides Marshall Lynam and Phil Duncan. But he said he enthusiastically embraces the idea of giving business to Brachman to expand computer competition on Capitol Hill.

"If it's a gift, it wouldn't be a gift for me," Wright said. "It's the government that gets the freebie."

Rainbows gathering

ZAVALLA (AP) — While Rainbow Family members camping in the forest here hold workshops emphasizing health, peace and brotherhood, law enforcement officials are close by making sure those activities are within the limits of the law.

The two groups gathered in the Angelina National Forest form quite a contrast. One side donned in uniforms, the others wearing baggy jeans, tie-dyed T-shirts, granny dresses and floppy hats.

But both have managed so far to carry out their different goals in relative peace.

Family members chant "peace" and "love," and are here to celebrate. The law enforcement side makes arrests for public nudity and drug and weapons violations.

Some 500 "seed campers" with names like One Eye, Electric Ed and Anonymous Person, have already gathered in the forest where they are preparing for the group's July Fourth "Gathering

Jail and Bail event draws $14,200 by arrestees

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Several local citizens turned "inmates" did time for the March of Dimes last week and raised more than $14,000 in pledges and donations for the local branch of the charity.

The second annual March of Dimes Jail and Bail event, held Wednesday through Thursday, raised about $14,200 for the local organization, said Charleen Sparling, community service coordinator for the March of Dimes Permian Division.

About 75 local citizens were presented with phony arrest warrants and hauled to a mock jail at Highland Mall, where a "judge" set their bail. The "prisoners" then had to call friends and relatives to raise bail money in the form of pledged contributions to the March of Dimes.

Anyone who donated $20 to the local charity could request the jailing of friends, co-workers or family members. Several local community leaders were pre-selected by the March of Dimes for arrest.

People who were arrested last year were allowed to choose a person for arrest. "We asked them, 'Who do you want to get even with?'" Sparling said.

"We had a great time," she said. "The event was received really well by the people involved, again."

Among the local residents who were imprisoned for charity were Stan Partee, with Spring City Do-It Center; Troy Fraser, of Fraser Industries; Pat Deanda, Big Spring city council member; and David McGhghy, Big Spring parks and recreation director.

Partee had the distinction of raising the most pledge money. He solicited pledges to cover all of the $1,000 bail he was assigned, Sparling said. Fraser, who made his bail of $600, raised the second highest amount of pledge money, she said.

Deanda was charged with "cruel and excessive scrutiny of the city budget," and McGhghy was charged with "watching the female lifeguards at the city pool too closely and mowing too much grass."

The Big Spring March of Dimes office provides educational information to anyone who wants to know more about how to prevent birth defects, Sparling said. The organization also welcomes requests from any local group that would like to host a March of Dimes presentation, she said.

Drought causes bees to stop their busy routine

ROME, Ga. (AP) — Jack Montgomery has a bunch of hard workers on his northwest Georgia farm, but they haven't done much lately except stay home and fan themselves.

"It's the danged drought," the 68-year-old beekeeper said. "All the flowers have died. North Georgia's honey production should be at its peak right now but it's already stopped for the year."

So, instead of spending these summer days collecting nectar and making honey, Montgomery's bees are trying to beat the heat, which was expected to reach only the upper 80s today after hovering near 100 degrees for the past week or so.

"The bees actually air condition their hives when it gets this hot," he said last week. "They deposit little droplets of water along the top of the honey frames and then fan their wings, causing it to evaporate and cool the hive."

"Then, they move the cool air throughout the hive, and take it out the door when it starts to heat up. They keep repeating the process all day long."

Montgomery keeps about 1.5 million bees — an Italian variety, of course — at his farm south of Rome.

He began keeping bees as a hobby 12 years ago, shortly after getting out of the dairy business. He now has 50 hives, or colonies, on his 1,400-acre farm.

"My bees actually like hot, dry weather, as a rule," he said. "The ideal temperature in the hive is about 95 degrees. But when it gets as hot as it's been around here of late, the temperature will go up to 120 degrees inside the hive if the bees don't turn on the air conditioning."

Making matters worse is the horrendous lack of rainfall. Montgomery says he knows for a fact that he lives in perhaps the hardest-hit drought area of the Southeast.

"We've only gotten 14.9 inches of rainfall since the first of the year," said Montgomery, who has been keeping rainfall records for the National Weather Service for 22 years. "Under normal conditions, we'd have gotten 30 inches of rain by this time of year."

"I make my observations from the rain gauge I keep out in front of the house," he said. "This is the third real bad year in a row for us. Our normal annual rainfall around here is 53 inches but we only got 32.7 inches last year and just 29.0 inches the year before."

ROME, Ga. — Jack Montgomery of Rome, Ga., shows a honey frame covered with some of his Italian bees who do little but stay home and fan, due to the drought. Montgomery says honey production for the year has stopped.

wing flap and causing minor turbulence, said airline spokesman Mike Clark.

"The passengers were never in any peril," Clark said. The flap was repaired, and the jet departed for Savannah, Ga., 75 minutes later.

A man was in fair condition today at a Fort Smith, Ark., hospital after he was injured Sunday by debris sent flying when high winds demolished a tote board, used to flash odds on different horses to bettors, at Blue Ribbon Downs in Sallisaw, Okla.

The winds knocked part of a wall and roof into the grandstands and destroyed shortly before the start of the 11th race, forcing cancellation of the 11th and 12th races, said Kerry Eason, the track's publicity director.

Tornadoes were reported Sunday in Colorado, Kansas, Texas, Alabama, North Carolina, and gusts of 90 mph were clocked in Tall Timbers, Md. Trees and power lines were downed in Oklahoma and from Alabama to Virginia, the National Weather Service said.

In Alabama, an estimated 12,000 people from Birmingham in the north-central part of the state to Dothan in the southeast lost power, Alabama Power Co. officials said. Service was restored by today.

The wind blew down a radio tower in Aiken, Ga.

Brown objects to fees

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown today objected, repeatedly, to a commissioner's decision which he said changes the policy for renting the county's barn near the rodeo and fairgrounds.

Brown objected to the $50 rental fee and a proposed $200 deposit for renters. He said the fees would not be fair.

"I just want to be fair about this," Brown said, "and either waive (the deposit and rental) for everybody, or not waive it at all."

The commissioners had decided not to require the deposit and rental fees from educational groups such as 4-H, FFA and the public schools; deposits would be returned if no damage was done and the facility was cleaned properly.

"We have a way of going back and collecting (for damages and cleanup) from them," County Judge Milton Kirby explained. "They're not going to run off from us."

Brown said he felt the fees were designed to single out "my people, the blacks and the Mexican-Americans," who might want to rent the facility.

The decision did not change policy, but reinstated enforcement of an existing policy. Commissioner Paul Allen said he felt the prices were fair.

Brown asked why the educational groups were exempt, and Commissioners David Barr and William Crooker responded that the barns had been provided to serve such groups.

Brown denied knowledge of that purpose and refused to read a document Kirby provided him containing a statement from a 1972 group outlining the purposes of the barn and guidelines for its use, saying the panel did not represent a cross-section of the community because it had no minority members.

Big Spring July 4 band practices begin tonight

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Tonight will be the first rehearsal for what officials hope will become a summer tradition — the Fourth of July Community Band.

"Everyone who has ever played a band instrument is invited to participate," said Ricky Mitchell, organizer and director for the band. "We're going to have familiar, fun music for all levels of players, and we hope that we have a good turnout for this performance."

The band is scheduled to perform in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce fireworks display on the evening of July 4, Mitchell said. "The Community Band had been organized briefly for Fourth of July activities several times during the past few years, and we are going to do it again this year," he added.

Music to be presented includes Sousa marches, patriotic music and show and pop tunes. Mitchell said more information will be given later about the performance time and place.

Interested persons are encouraged to attend three rehearsals: Monday through Wednesday, at 7 p.m. at the Big Spring High School band hall. If they can't attend the first rehearsal, Mitchell asks persons to contact him at 267-7989 so he may have an adequate amount of music available.

Sheriff's log

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today that an arrest is forthcoming in connection with a Friday search operation during which sheriff's deputies confiscated 29 marijuana plants from a location in northeast Howard County.

"No arrest has been made yet," Standard said early today, "but one is forthcoming." He said the warrant, executed late Friday afternoon, had resulted in recovery of 29 plants by deputies Jack Howard and George Quintero.

Sheriff's officers reported investigating the following complaints as of 8:25 a.m. today:

• Emzie Woodard Sr., 3601 Connally St., 67, was released on $1,000 bond at 2:55 a.m. Sunday. He had been arrested by Big Spring police on charges of possession of marijuana less than two ounces.

• Ricardo Munoz Martinez, 28, Gail Route, was released on $1,500 bond at 11:30 a.m. He had been arrested by Big Spring police on a charge of driving while intoxicated, second offense.

• A structure fire was reported at the Gerald Walker farm at 2:40 p.m. Sunday. Fire units from Coahoma, Sand Springs and Big Spring responded, according to sheriff's records.

• Johnny Barraza, 908 Aylesford St., was released on bonds totaling $6,000 Saturday. He had been arrested by Big Spring police on charges of evading arrest, resisting arrest and criminal mischief.

• Froylan Flores Lopez, 708 N. Douglas St., 56, was released on $75,000 bond. He had been arrested on a warrant for involuntary manslaughter.

• Charles Earl Kelly, 23, 1503 W. Second St., was released on bonds totaling $4,000. He had been arrested on charges of possession of a controlled substance and possession of marijuana.

understand much of it at first, but I kept at it."

The most difficult portion of the test was the programming, he said. "I had forgotten most of it since I took the course during the first semester," Doug added.

Mike received his introductions to computers courtesy of Drew.

"I got started (on computers) by hanging around his house," Mike said. "I'd hang around there almost every day."

Although he enjoys working with computers, Mike doesn't plan on a career with them. He hopes to play football — first at the University of Oklahoma, and then with the National Football League — before becoming a math teacher and coach.

Doug plans on becoming a commercial artist, while Drew has his eyes on joining the family's manufacturing business — owned by his grandfather in Ohio.

For the record

The Public Records section of Sunday's Herald contained an error. Richard Milstead was listed as a defendant in a lawsuit; he is in fact the attorney for the plaintiff, in a suit filed on behalf of Henry Spears, against Devalva Riherd.

Russ Rutledge said this morning that it was incorrect for the Herald to report John Freeman as the founder of Fiberflex, as noted in a Sunday business section article. He said that he, Freeman, and Tom Rutledge jointly founded the business.

pastor of Baptist Temple Church, officiating. Interment followed under the direction of Myers & Smith Funeral Home.

He was born Jan. 18, 1903 in Oklahoma and married Odie Anderson Jan. 7, 1932 in Lovington, N.M. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and came to Howard County during the oil boom of the 1920s. He first worked in the Otis Chalk Field and later farmed in Howard County until retiring.

He is survived by his wife, Odie Thompson, Midway; one brother, Sterling Thompson, Abilene; one sister, Kay Corderman, Houston; and one nephew. He was preceded in death by two brothers and one sister. The family suggests memorials to their favorite charity. The family will be at 1111 11th Place.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the nation:

Take cigarette fight out of courts

The jury was right not to buy the picture of Rose Cipollone as an innocent victim, trapped in her smoking habit by addiction and by glossy ads. But the jury was also right not to let the Liggett Group off free. After all, Liggett ran ads suggesting that smoking was safe. . . . Tobacco cases are different from those . . . in which the risks of the product were unknown outside a specific industry. Smokers are aware — and have been for years — that they're taking a risk. The most appropriate place to fight against cigarettes is outside the courts. . . . Well-designed anti-smoking ads have educated millions of Americans about the danger of cigarettes. Congress has required strict warnings on cigarette packs and in ads. Many states . . . have restricted the right to smoke in public places. A number of private employers have chosen to go even farther and prohibited smoking in the workplace. Manufacturers of cigarettes can afford to worry a bit less about the danger of expensive jury awards. But the Cipollone verdict will encourage those fighting for new restrictions on cigarette smoking.

Illness bill expensive, but needed

Obviously it will mean an increase in taxes, but one of the most important bills passed in recent days is the one which provides catastrophic illness insurance. The bill passed the Senate 86-11, and earlier passed the House, 328-72. President Reagan, at the urging of Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen, sent the insurance proposal to Congress more than a year ago. It passed with some features the President doesn't like but it apparently is acceptable. It will give 29 million elderly Americans vastly improved protection against financial ruin if they are stricken with so-called catastrophic diseases such as cancer. For the first time, general prescription drug benefits will be paid under Medicare, a real boost for elderly people trying to make ends meet on small, fixed incomes. The plan provides full hospital coverage after a once-a-year deductible estimated at $564 in 1989. Little has been done for long-term home health care for disabled and chronically ill people of all ages, but the plan passed will provide some peace of mind to millions of elderly who now live in fear that an extended hospital stay will wipe them out financially.

The Daily Times, Maryville, Tenn.

Baker good choice to run campaign

More important now than than who (George) Bush picks for vice president may be who runs his campaign. Despite denials, Treasury Secretary James Baker III may be asked to join the campaign full-time. The old friends already talk regularly and Bush often takes Baker's advice. Baker is known as a superb organizer able to anticipate political problems and avoid them. In 1981, he went from working against Reagan's nomination to being one of the new president's top advisers, along with Edwin Messe and Michael Deaver. Baker is one of the most important but least scrutinized figures on the political landscape today. He may believe he can do more for Bush in November by staying at Treasury and keeping the economy humming. But if Bush's campaign continues to falter and he asked Baker to come on board, perhaps sometime after (this) week's Toronto Economic Summit, it's unlikely Baker could say no.

Sandinista promises must be kept

The president has warned the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua that he is prepared to ask Congress to renew military aid to the resistance fighters. This will happen if the Marxists running Nicaragua fail to live up to their pledges for democratic reforms under a Central American peace accord. A lasting peace in Nicaragua must be based on more than an end to the shooting and the release of a few political prisoners. There were promises made by the Sandinistas that broad democratic reforms would be effected. These promises must be kept. Unless they are, then it seems to us the Congress will have no honorable alternative save to resume full-scale military aid to the Contras.

The Intelligencer, Wheeling, W.Va.

Rail safety act will close loophole

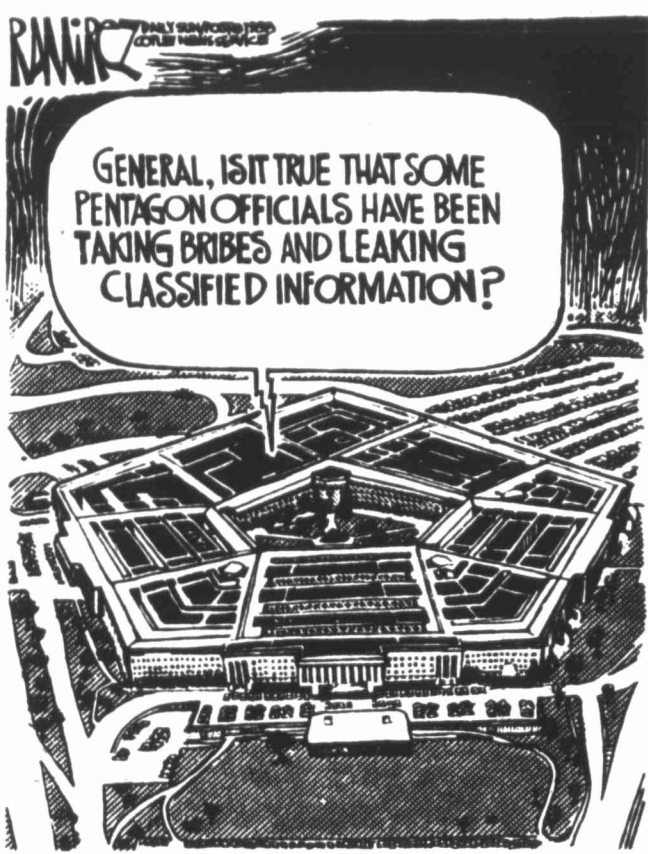

The Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988 will close a huge loophole in the running of the nation's rail systems. It seems so eminently logical now, but it took 21 years for Congress to grant Federal Railroad Administration officials the authority over the personnel who run the trains to match their authority over the companies that manage the system. It is imperative now that Congress finish what it started. The evidence of drugs influencing those who operate the nation's rail passenger and freight trains is too pervasive to allow any group, however well-meaning, to block reforms. Congress can — and should — help by buttressing FRA authority in this critical area.

The Baltimore Sun

Attitudes changing toward tobacco

For the first time ever, a court has held a tobacco company responsible for the consequences of cigarette smoking. This "crack in the dam," as one attorney called it, is yet one more signal of changing attitudes. A federal jury in Newark (N.J.) has ordered Liggett Group to pay $400,000 to Antonio Cipollone, whose wife died of lung cancer in 1984. The tobacco firm had failed to warn customers of health risks before such warnings were required in 1966 and had misled the public in its advertising, the jurors said. The award is small enough, Mrs. Cipollone was found to bear 80 percent of the blame herself — so that it will not encourage a rush to the courthouse door. If it is thrown out on appeal, the incentive will be even less. Nevertheless, it tells the industry that the times they are a-changin'.

Write from the heart

She was raised on rodeo

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Like a faded memory of a sad country song, the old man's voice drifted across the darkening sky. "How come that 'paper to send a girl to the rodeo?" I told him I had wanted to come, and he looked at me again, his washed-out blue eyes sharpening. "Not many want to any more. You been to a rodeo before?" A couple, I said. He nodded. "Never rode in any, though." No, sir, I said, I left that to my little brother. He used to be crazy enough to ride bareback broncs; lost a lot of entry fees bucking off. The old man's smile hid his eyes in a spiderweb of creases. "You raised around stock?" On a farm, I said, wishing I could have said a ranch. He had that look about him that made farming — let alone newspaper work — something slightly less honorable than a saddleman's trade. He looked me over again, and said, "You like rodeo?" I said I did. He shook his head. "You don't know anything about how it ought to be, how it used to be. 'It'd be mostly home folks; might have some full-time rodeo cowboys one night and in the finals, maybe, but it was mostly boys from 'round here. 'They'd gather range cattle and bring in for the ropin', and they'd know this feller or that n'd have a kind of an ornery horse, y'see," he said. "We'd have spring calves and sometimes big steers, six or eight hundred pounds, for the rasslin'." "And had the girls, too, y'know, ropin' 'n ridin' 'em. But the girls mostly went in for fancy trick ridin' back then. Some of 'em sure was purty," he said. He told me about watching quadrilles — horseback work not much different from dancing — and shook his head in disgust at a professional bullfighter crossing the arena. "Clowns," he said. "They don't even do that right anymore. Used to clowns was there to save the cowboys from the bulls or help get 'em off a horse if they got hung up, so they wouldn't get tromped on. 'Now they pay 'em $1,000 a night to come out here 'n act foolish," he said. "Ain't like it used to be, girl. Ain't as good. 'In between they'd have pony races, for the young'uns, y'know, 'n sometimes what they call a pony express race. Bet you never seen one a them." I admitted that I hadn't seen a live one, and he nodded. "You go t' rodeo for the singin' stars, do ye?" No, I said, and found myself explaining that I went for the sight and sound of the livestock and the feeling I'd never found anywhere else. I began watching rodeo with my parents, when I was too little to go anywhere alone; my love of it came from those times, and their tales of growing up in 1920s Texas. Daddy's family had a farm in Wood County; Mama's were a ranch family from near Putnam, and her father — the grandfather who used to coddle me for hours in a rocker, spinning tales — had been a cowboy and a broncbuster and a range cook before the turn of the century. The old man looked at me. "How'd you say y'ought'a go t' a rodeo?" I didn't understand the question. "Hadn't really oughta go in a car at all," he said. "Pickup if ye had to. But the best way'd be the old way, show your pride, y'know. Catch your best horse 'n ride into town, maybe bring the family in a wagon. 'Spend all day 'n picnic, 'n holler for your neighbors to win if you wasn't ridin' y'self," he said. He talked on awhile about the old days, making me dream of things I'd never seen. When I left the arena that night, with the last of the dust dying down and the last stock trailer loaded, I could hear that old man again, just as real as the keys to the pickup jingling in my pocket.

Supposed scenario isn't a dream; it is a nightmare

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

As everyone knows, there are many reasons to doubt the good intentions of Mikhail Gorbachev (he was elected boss by the same people who served Stalin and were elevated by him and his successors). But let us hypothesize that Gorbachev is in fact a genuine reformer, a man disillusioned with the economic strictures of socialism, skeptical of the eschatological vision of Marx, and offended by the brutalitarian face of the Soviet Union he grew up in.

On the right

Let us go so far as to suppose that, given his way, every year the Soviet people would be, oh, 10 percent freer than they were the year before. That every year, the Soviet Union would diminish its aggressions by 10 percent. Let us treat ourselves to the belief that by the year 1998, the Soviet Union will have granted its citizens human rights, will have disassembled its aggressive arsenal, retaining only a defense arsenal; that its satellites will be free and running their own affairs, with only a loose, defensive alliance with the mother country.

The end of the great plague that was begun in 1917. A friend of mine — a scientist with an elegant mind — once proposed to me that I write a novel that begins as follows: The president of the United States and the general secretary of the Soviet Union are ending a summit conference in Moscow and the moment has come for the final handclasp.

The president stretches out his hand as the ambient fanfare — the bands and the cannon and the airplanes overhead — distracts the attention of the great crowd in Red Square. The Soviet leader's hand meets the president's. And the president feels in his palm the slip of paper that has slid from the general secretary's hand into his own.

Discreetly, he deposits the little paper in the pocket of his coat. Eight minutes later he is seated in Air Force One, in his private cabin. He takes the note from his pocket, unfolds it and reads, in block letters, in English: "I WANT TO HELP YOU. HELP ME!"

It is signed by the GenSec, the same signature the president has seen on a number of state papers. What happens then is the responsibility of the novelist who accepts my friend's opening gambit.

It is, in any event, a deeply interesting artistic-political idea, because it supposes a situation in which, by accident, the presidium that elected the new Soviet leader made a most awful mistake, elevating someone who had deep and conclusive reservations about the entire Soviet idea.

It is as if the College of Cardinals had elected as pope a man who had privately concluded that in fact God did not exist and that therefore the entire Catholic establishment was an expensive, time-consuming opiate.

The fictitious Soviet leader has asked for the clandestine help of the president of the United States. The fictitious pope would have few alternatives than to pray to God for help. But what, exactly, would the president do to help?

Now suppose an impending and most awful disappointment.

The "conservatives" in the Kremlin (yes, under ruling terminology, Stalin was Russia's Burke-Adam Smith) meet one day in the corner of the Kremlin and resolve that enough is quite enough, that the historical mandate of the Soviet Union is being traduced by Mikhail Gorbachev.

Already he has called home the troops from Afghanistan, he has been going around trumpeting perestroika and glasnost, the results of which have been an eruption of capitalist and iconoclastic thought and behavior in the Eastern European states are in continuing turmoil.

The time has come, they conclude, to act, as once some of them and some of their predecessors acted against Khrushchev in 1964. They proceed to consummate their coup. The next day, Gorbachev dies an untimely death and is given a huge state funeral.

Then? The slow purges. It takes a while to throttle freedom down. It took Fidel Castro two years before he got around to socializing the kiosks. But the direction in which the new leadership moves is quite clear.

But the West is not moving pari passu with the reorientation of Soviet policy. Fresh commercial barriers against the export of U.S. technology were not raised when the Soviet Union abandoned its tentative approach to the free market.

The United Nations Commission on Human Rights never could summon a majority to condemn the growing stream of dissidents sent to Siberia. And the increase in SS-24s and 25s and in nuclear submarines didn't get a compensating increase in defensive weapons from the new American president.

And then the day came when an SS-24, from just outside Berlin, symbolized the thrust of the new Soviet message, sent to the capital cities of Europe: Disband NATO.

A nightmare, of course. But it woke me up, and should wake Ronald Reagan up.

Let 'em sit where they choose; at least they're not wasting gas

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A lady, obviously quite distraught, wrote me a letter recently asking that I "write something about all these teenagers sitting on the hoods of their cars at the shopping mall."

"They just sit there at night and play their car radios loud when they should be home," the lady continued.

Lewis Grizzard

The lady's name isn't important here. She was writing from Tampa, Fla., but that's not important, either.

What is important is that I do, in fact, write something about teenagers sitting on the hoods of their cars at shopping malls, which occurs — I suppose — all over the country.

I think it's a great idea, and I don't know why my generation didn't think of it.

What we did when I was a teenager was drive around the Dairy Queen.

I don't mean we drove around the Dairy Queen once and then drove somewhere else. I mean, we drove around and around and around the Dairy Queen — and I'm still not sure why.

It wasn't to locate any of our friends so we could converse with them. They were driving around and around and around the Dairy Queen, too.

It seems that once during all those years somebody would have had the good sense to ask, "Hey guys. What are we doing driving around the Dairy Queen? I'm getting nauseous."

Valedictorian murders mother

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A valedictorian who killed his mother with a baseball bat only 10 hours before he was to graduate from high school said she wouldn't "give him any freedom," police said.

William Shrubbsall, 17, was to be arraigned today on a charge of second-degree murder. He was being held in the city jail without bail.

Shrubbsall beat his 56-year-old mother, Marianne, to death Saturday morning after an argument over his late return from his girlfriend's house, Detective Lt. Richard Clute said.

Life saved by rubber-soled shoes

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — Sneakers probably saved a teen-age girl whose boyfriend died after the couple was struck by lightning as they walked hand-in-hand through a hay field, authorities said.

"The only reason she's alive is that she was wearing sneakers with rubber soles and he wasn't," said police dispatcher Phyllis Dunphy.

Gas prices dip despite season

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices bucked a summer trend and dipped a quarter of a cent a gallon during the last two weeks, according to a nationwide survey of more than 12,000 stations.

The Lundberg Survey said the average price of all grades of gasoline offered at all types of service stations was 99.98 cents as of Friday, down from the June 10 average price of $1.0023 per gallon.

The average price was down nearly a full cent from comparable June 1987 prices, according to the survey released Sunday.

Man rescues sleeping family

MIAMI SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — A man who moved into a house three weeks ago met his next-door neighbors by rescuing 12 of them from a burning home.

Richard Castro, a 26-year-old truck driver, said he awoke at 5:30 a.m. Sunday to the sound of an explosion and breaking glass coming from his neighbor's house.

"He just grabbed a fire extinguisher from the kitchen and ran next door," said his wife, Laureen, 27.

Physician's skills boost collection

CALVERT CITY, Ky. (AP) — A western Kentucky doctor uses his medical skills to collect fishing lures — by surgically removing them from anglers.

Dr. Carroll W. Traylor has about 300 artificial lures, fishhooks and a few other objects, many taken from anglers who hooked themselves on nearby Kentucky Lake.

Traylor, who has a family practice and does minor outpatient surgery at his clinic, began saving the items around 1958 and has them displayed in his examining room.

"They're really just for conversation," Traylor said. "I really don't fish very much at all."

The physician is confident his collection will keep growing.

MULHOUSE, France — French rescue workers examine the debris from an Airbus A320 after it crashed Sunday during an airshow demonstration near Mulhouse, France, with many of the victims aboard believed to be first-time flyers.

Jetliner crashes; takes three lives

MULHOUSE, France (AP) — A new European jetliner with a state-of-the-art computerized flight system crashed into trees while buzzing an airshow during a demonstration flight. At least three passengers were killed and 50 injured.

The Air France twin-engine Airbus A320 was carrying 133 people, many of them first-time air passengers, when it plunged from about 60 feet into the woods Sunday at the end of an airfield.

Thousands of spectators looked on as the narrow-bodied jet, tail dipping and with landing gear and flaps down during a low pass, cut a nearly 500-foot path into the forest. There was an explosion and the plane caught fire.

The daily newspaper l'Humanite reported today that pilot Michel Asseline told a rescue worker, "I wanted to increase the power, but the aircraft did not respond."

A control tower official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the jet appeared to lose power as it passed over the field in Habsheim, a village about 15 miles from the Swiss border.

Jean-Marie Schreiber, a reporter for the newspaper L'Alsace who was aboard, told the daily newspaper France-Soir he felt a jolt when the plane started to climb after passing over the field.

"Then, all of a sudden, I had the feeling we had hit a pot hole, and I saw trees from the window," he said.

One passenger, Roland Schmitt, said, "We were flying low, and I was afraid there would be a catastrophe... I am a pilot, and I said to myself, he's never going to make it over those trees."

He said passengers were able to get out after fire broke out because the crew put down the evacuation chutes almost immediately. All but the plane's tail was eventually scorched.

Pope: Confrontation is schism

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Pope John Paul II today denounced "bitter confrontations" among Roman Catholics as a historic schism loomed between the Church and its traditionalists.

The Church's first break in more than a century could open if traditionalist French archbishop Marcel Lefebvre goes ahead with the consecration of four bishops in Switzerland over the Vatican's objections.

The action, threatened for Thursday, would mean automatic excommunication for Lefebvre under Roman Catholic law.

PLO dissidents overrun loyalists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Up to 160 others remained pinned down awaiting possible safe passage out of the Chatilla camp.

Seven people were killed and 11 wounded in the latest hostilities between fighters of Col. Saed Mousa's breakaway Fatah-Uprising and Arafat's mainstream Fatah faction in Chatilla and the nearby Bourj el-Barajneh refugee camp.

Police said 40 fighters loyal to the Palestine Liberation Organization chief surrendered.

Pact sows considerable anxiety

TOKYO (AP) — Paying the world's highest prices for fertilizer and feed and confined to tiny plots of land, Japanese farmers are in the best of times squeezed to make a profit.

But a new U.S.-Japan pact to open up the nation's markets to cheaper American beef and oranges has sown considerable anxiety among farmers.

Ikko Abe, a 57-year-old cattle farmer in Japan's northeastern Iwate Prefecture, decided he could no longer cope. He hanged himself on June 18, just two days before U.S. and Japanese officials finished the beef and orange agreement.

Only army can bring democracy

PARIS (AP) — Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, who reassumed power in Haiti with a military coup last week, says in an interview published today that only the army can create the conditions necessary to bring democracy to his country.

"It would be impossible to organize elections in the current circumstances," he was quoted as telling the leftist Paris daily Liberation in Port-au-Prince, the Haitian capital, on Friday.

"First of all, we have to organize the state and establish the basis of this democracy that everyone demands but does not know how to prepare for," he was quoted as saying.

Mexican, U.S. firemen battle fire

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Fire crews from both sides of the border Sunday night battled a major blaze that heavily damaged a shopping center injured seven Mexican firefighters before being brought under control.

The blaze was under control by 10 p.m., officials said.

The blaze, visible from San Diego, began in a commercial district about 6:30 p.m., destroying 15 to 16 buildings, including clothing stores and other businesses, said Tijuana firefighter Ruben Garcia.

Lt. Col. L. Bryan Shelburne, Snyder, has assumed command of the United States Military Academy Band at West Point, N.Y.

Prior to his arrival, he served as executive officer, The United States Army Band (Pershing's Own), Washington, D.C.

He holds a bachelor of music degree from HSU and a master of music degree from Arizona State University. When the nation celebrated its bicentennial in 1975-76, Lt. Col. Shelburne was selected to join that historic mission, serving as executive officer and associate director of the U.S. Armed Forces Bicentennial Band.

Additionally, he has served as commander and conductor, U.S. Army Europe Band and Seventh Army Soldiers' Choirs in Heidelberg, Germany. He has served as staff bands officer for both the U.S. Forces Command, Atlanta, Ga., and U.S. Army Europe, Schwezingen, Germany.

He has also served as commandant of the U.S. Army Element, School of Music, Norfolk, Va.

His wife, the former Sareta Kiser, a 1963 HSU graduate, is a teacher and originally from Pecos, graduating from Pecos High School.

Yeoman Third Class Peter Porras Jr., son of Alicia and Pedro Porras, Big Spring, has been named the "Sailor of the Quarter" by the Office of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations in Washington, D.C.

Porras currently serves as an administrative assistant in the Office of the Secretariat, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Manpower, Personnel and Training where he is responsible for implementing and maintaining correspondence control procedures, and providing key administrative support.

The Glasscock County 4-H Fashion Show was conducted June 23 in the St. Lawrence hall.

Karla Jones placed first in the Junior I Construction division; Gail Hoelscher was alternate in the Non-tailored Day Wear competition.

In the Evening and Party Wear division, Bonnie Wilde received first place.

Michael Schraeder placed first in the Active Sports Wear competition in the Ready-to-Wear division.

In the Non-tailored Day Wear group, Kristi Havlak placed first, and the Specialty Wear award was won by Mistie Havlak.

Jennifer Jones competed in the Junior II Construction division and received the Non-tailored Daytime award; Angie Strube was alternate.

Audrey Strube won the Evening Wear division. In the Ready-to-Wear category, Chris Schraeder will represent Howard County in Active Sportswear competition at the district show.

In the Senior Construction division, Kristi Jones won the Non-tailored division with a 100 percent cotton skirt and blouse. Paula Wilde modeled a purple wool jacket and skirt, and placed first in the Tailored division.

Tiffany Jost won the Evening Wear division with a tea-length dress of pale blue taffeta. In the Ready-to-Wear group, Jean Schraeder won the Active Sportswear division with peach shorts, green-blue shirt and green plaid jacket.

Mandy Havlak won the Evening Wear division with a canary yellow, floor-length formal dress.

The contestants will compete in the District Fashion Show July 7 in Monahan.

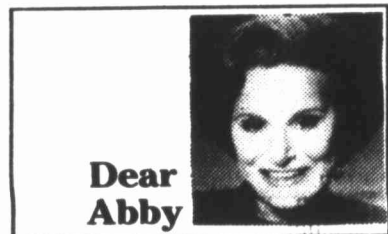

Some family quarrels can't be buried

DEAR ABBY: I can certainly relate to that woman who had a falling out with her brother. She hadn't spoken to him for seven years, and when he died, she didn't go to his funeral. She said, "I'm no hypocrite."

Three years ago, I learned that my brother had stolen from our elderly parents. When I confronted him with the evidence, he asked me to lie to cover up for him. I refused. "That's when he hit me in the temple with a full can of beer, beat me up, took all my cash and left."

The day he did that to me, my father had died. As far as I am concerned, I no longer have a brother, and if he were to drop dead tomorrow, I wouldn't attend his funeral.

Abby, you said: "Funerals are for the living. The deceased will not know who was there, but the grieving family will. Perhaps if that woman had attended her brother's funeral and buried her grievances, it might have made her feel better."

I rarely disagree with you, but this time you were wrong. Some grievances can never be buried.

dissenter: DEAR ABBY: Regarding your recent letter from the woman who didn't attend her brother's funeral because she wasn't a hypocrite, I think your answer was way off.

A funeral may well be for the living, but the living should apply first to the immediate family of the deceased, i.e. wife, husband, children — not brothers and sisters.

My father had a brother who ignored him in his later years despite repeated attempts by my father to initiate contact. This hurt my father deeply, but there was no falling out — they just never spoke. Then my uncle showed up at my father's funeral.

His presence upset my mother and me because we both know how much one short visit from this brother would have meant to my father when he was alive.

You'll probably say that we shouldn't carry a grudge, and maybe my uncle was trying to make up for what he had failed to do before, but nothing could make up for the hurt he caused my father in his final years.

Bitter? You'd better believe I'm bitter.

AMA debates AIDS proposals

CHICAGO (AP) — American Medical Association delegates gathered to debate proposals for battling AIDS by testing all immigrants and inmates, overhauling Medicaid and creating a type of hospital worker to replace nurses.

The annual policymaking meeting runs through Thursday and was expected to attract up to 2,000 doctors from across the country. The 420 doctors who are official delegates represent the association's estimated 295,000 members and act as a legislature, debating and setting policy for the nation's largest organization of physicians.

Today, the delegates were scheduled to debate 101 reports on problems including child pornography and the health hazards of clove cigarettes, and to consider more than 200 resolutions on such issues as the health risks of tanning parlors and the need to revamp the nation's Medicare health insurance system for the elderly.

Other proposals to be considered by the organization's House of Delegates included banning plastic handguns, putting warning labels on alcoholic beverages and clarifying the AMA's stand on mercy killing.

"We take an open, liberal policy on resolutions and will consider anything that we feel affects the public's health," said Dr. William Hotchkiss, whose term as AMA president is ending.

Hotchkiss said before the convention began that he expected the AIDS epidemic, and how to combat it, would prompt detailed discussion.

"AIDS, of course, is the biggest threatening health problem in the United States. There is still considerable debate that I think will take place over the issue of testing," said Hotchkiss.

One resolution up for debate today recommends requiring state and local health departments to notify the sexual partners of anyone who tests positive for exposure to the AIDS virus. The proposal also calls on the AMA to recommend that all immigrants and prison inmates be tested for exposure to the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

No more soap opera — it's time for the fight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mike Tyson defends his undisputed heavyweight title tonight against Michael Spinks in an intriguing battle of unbeaten fighters that could be boxing's richest ever.

Tyson, beset by personal problems while training for the bout, is a 4-1 favorite to retain his heavyweight crown in the scheduled 12-round fight, which will begin at Atlantic City's Convention Center about 10:50 p.m. EDT.

"Forget all the things that have happened, I will not lose," Tyson vowed.

The 21-year-old champion is making his seventh title defense and the fourth since he unified all three portions of the heavyweight crown last August with a decision over Tony Tucker. His last three fights all ended in knockouts, going a combined 13 rounds.

Spinks, meanwhile, is trying to regain the heavyweight title he gave up last year in order to fight Gerry Cooney, and to cement his place in a division where some still don't think he really belongs.

The fight figures to be a matchup between the speed and devastating power of Tyson and the unorthodox style of Spinks, the 31-year-old former light heavyweight champion who rarely looks impressive but has always found a way to win.

"I have never run in a fight before and I will not run now," Spinks said.

Both have secured their place in boxing history. Tyson, who won the title at the age of 20 with a knockout of Trevor Berbick, is the youngest heavyweight champion ever, while Spinks is the first light heavyweight champion to win a heavyweight title.

The long odds aren't new for Spinks, who was a 6-1 underdog when he captured the heavyweight title on Sept. 22, 1985 against Larry Holmes. That loss also snapped Holmes' unbeaten streak at 48 fights.

"I'm not out to prove anyone wrong, I just want to win," Spinks said.

The fight could make boxing history, at least on the financial side.

Promoters claim it may gross $70 million overall, and nearly 22,000 fans are expected to pay a record live gate of about $12 million, with ticket prices ranging from $100 to $1,500.

More than 1 million others are expected to pay an average of $35 apiece to watch the bout at bars and arenas on closed-circuit or in their homes on pay-per-view cable. HBO has purchased the delayed broadcast rights and reportedly will air it four or five times beginning on Saturday.

Tyson will earn a record purse for the fight that could top $20 million, depending on final closed-circuit and pay-per-view sales, while Spinks will earn a flat fee of $13.5 million for his efforts.

Spinks weighed in Saturday at 212½, his heaviest ever for a fight, while Tyson weighed 218½, two pounds more than when he knocked out Tony Tubbs on March 21 at Tokyo in his last title defense.

"He's stronger now and he'll punch harder," Spinks' trainer, Eddie Futch, said of his fighter. "He's just as fast at this weight as he was before and now he hits harder."

Most boxing observers, though, feel Spinks can't hit hard enough to keep the powerful Tyson away from him. Spinks' best chance, they say, is to stay away from Tyson, give him different angles and frustrate him enough to win a decision.

That's not the strategy offered by Butch Lewis, Spinks' longtime confidant and manager, who contends the mistake Tyson's first 34 opponents made is respecting his power too much.

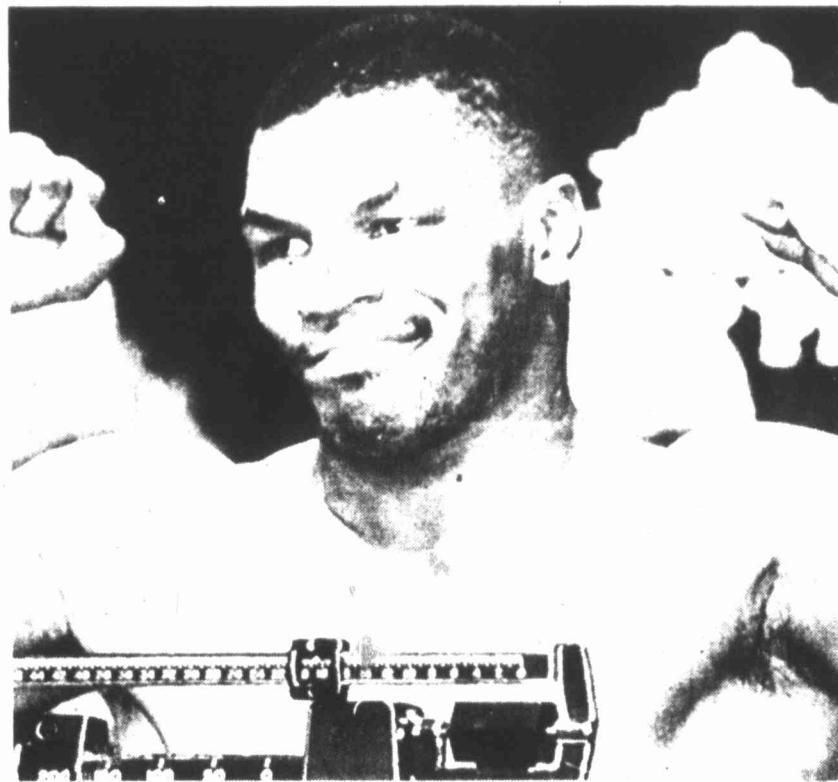

"We intend to make him (Tyson) pay," Lewis said. "We're not here to say we went 12 rounds. We're going to kick some rear."

Tyson's camp remains unconvinced.

"Spinks' only chance is to run, stink out the joint, try and frustrate Mike and steal the decision," Kevin Rooney, Tyson's trainer, said.

Tyson, whose quickness allows him to get inside against opponents with big reach advantages — five inches in the case of Spinks — figures to come out looking for the early knockout.

Of Tyson's 30 knockouts in 34

fights, 21 have come within the first two rounds.

"Everybody says he's awkward and has speed," Tyson said. "But he'll only be awkward for a few rounds. Eventually, I'll hit him and I'll hurt him."

Spinks himself has scored 21 knockouts in winning all 31 of his fights. But only two of the knockouts were against heavyweights and he has fought only four times as a heavyweight since leaving the light heavyweight ranks nearly three years ago to fight Holmes.

"If you ask me, I think I've always packed a bit of a punch," Spinks said. "It just doesn't look like it."

Spinks' most impressive heavyweight performance came in his last fight, when he stopped Cooney last June in the fifth round. But many, including Tyson, questioned how much of an effort Cooney put into the bout.

"He beat Cooney up, but Cooney didn't do anything," Tyson said.

While Spinks has trained relatively unbothered in the weeks preceding the bout, Tyson's camp has been in turmoil.

Twins near-perfect in sweeping A's

By The Associated Press

From beginning to end, it was a perfect day for the Minnesota Twins.

Dan Gladden hit the first pitch of Sunday's doubleheader against Oakland for a home run and Keith Atherton set down the last eight batters in the second game as the Twins swept the Athletics 11-0 and 5-0.

American league

The Twins gave a sellout crowd of 43,154 at the Oakland Coliseum little to cheer about as they moved to within four games of the first-place Athletics in the AL West. Minnesota trailed by 12 games on June 5.

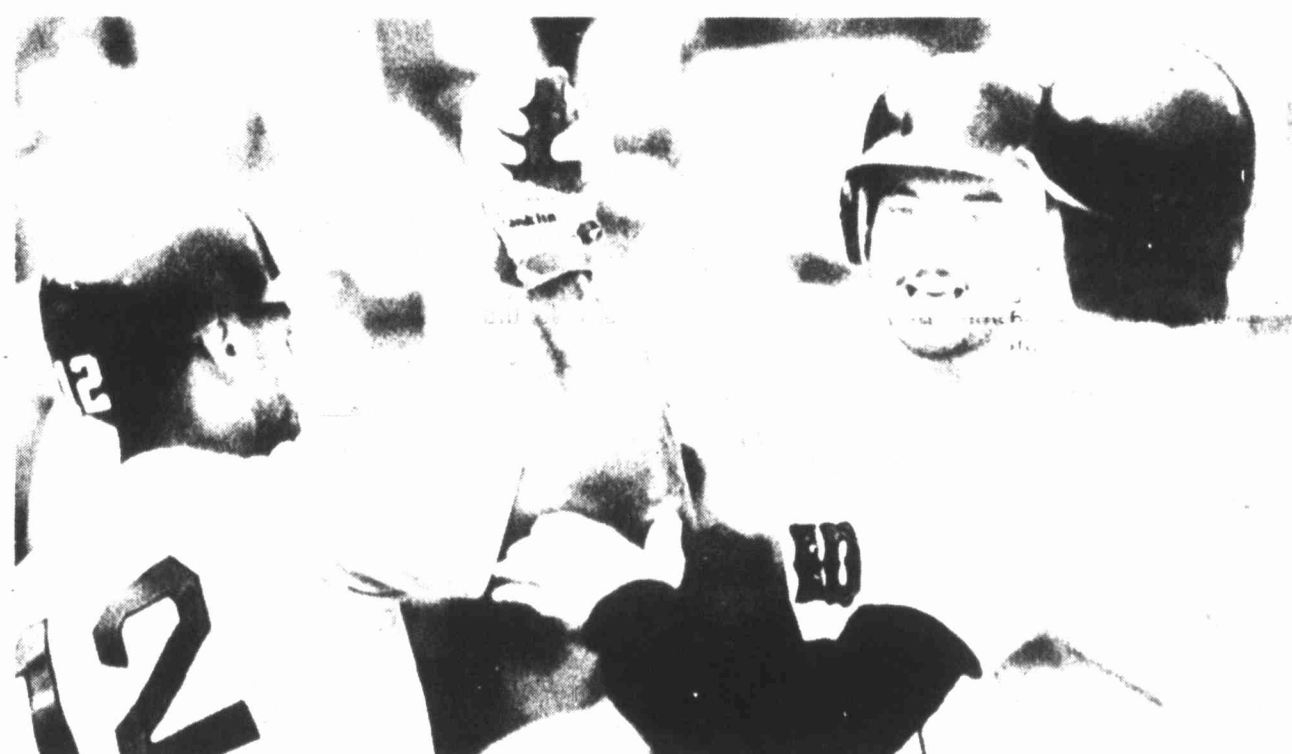

Frank Viola earned his league-leading 12th victory in the second game with relief help from Atherton.

Charlie Lea, 4-3, and Juan Berenguer combined on a six-hitter in the first game as the Athletics were shut out in a doubleheader for the first time since moving to Oakland in 1968.

Elsewhere, it was Boston 10, Baltimore 1; New York 4, Cleveland 3; Toronto 4, Detroit 1; Seattle 8, Kansas City 0; California 4, Milwaukee 2, and Chicago 7, Texas 5.

White Sox 7, Rangers 5
Daryl Boston hit a 430-foot grand slam and Harold Baines also homered as Chicago handed Jeff Russell his first loss of the season.

Russell yielded seven runs and nine hits in six innings.
Boston's seventh homer of the BOSTON — Boston Red Sox outfielder Mike Greenwell, center, is congratulated by teammate Ellis Burke, left, and the team bat boy after Greenwell extended his hitting streak to 17 games by hitting a two-run homer in the Red Sox's game with the Baltimore Orioles Sunday. Boston won, 10-1.

season and first career grand slam came with one out in the top of the sixth and gave the White Sox a 7-0 lead, enough to stave off a Texas comeback.

Jack McDowell, 3-6, pitched six shutout innings before leaving with the bases loaded in the seventh. All three runners later scored.

Red Sox 10, Orioles 1
Mike Greenwell extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a two-run homer and Jim Rice also had a two-run shot to back the four-hit pitching of Mike Smithson.

Smithson, 3-2, allowed four hits, struck out six and walked five. Oswaldo Peraza, 1-3, was the loser.

Fred Lynn gave Baltimore a 1-0 lead in the first with his 12th homer of the season.

Yankees 4, Indians 3
Claudell Washington's fourth hit of the game, a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning, scored pinch-runner Rickey Henderson from third as New York moved to within one game of first-place Detroit in the East.

Joel Skinner walked with one out against Bud Black, 3-2, and moved to second on Bobby Meacham's single. Henderson ran for Skinner and moved to third when Roberto Kelly forced Meacham at second.

Blue Jays 4, Tigers 1
Mike Flanagan earned his 150th career victory and Jesse Barfield hit a solo homer to snap Jeff Robinson's seven-game winning streak.

Flanagan, 7-5, allowed eight hits, struck out five and walked none before giving way to Tom Henke

Robinson, 8-3, allowed four runs on seven hits.

Pirates to host crucial series with Mets

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates are home today to play the New York Mets in a series that has all the earmarks of September.

The Pirates completed their first four-game sweep since July 1984 on Sunday, beating the Montreal Expos 3-0 in 10 innings and moving within 4½ games of the National League East-leading Mets.

National league

The Mets, meanwhile, dropped a 6-3 decision to the Cubs and left Chicago with three losses in four games.

The Pirates, who lost two of three at Shea Stadium last week, say they have what it takes to remain competitive, and they don't care who else believes it.

"If they still don't believe in us, that's good," said Sid Bream, who snapped a scoreless tie with a 10th-inning sacrifice fly. "We don't have to worry about expectations."

Doug Drabek of the Pirates and Pascual Perez of Montreal dueled through eight scoreless innings, and neither team could get anything going until Expos shortstop Luis Rivera threw away Jose Lind's grounder to start the 10th.

Lind went to second on the error, took third on a grounder and, after two walks, one intentional, loaded the bases, scored on Bream's sacrifice fly to deep center field.

Mike Lavalliere followed with a double off the right-field fence, scoring two more runs.

Drabek gave up just two hits and struck out six in his outing, while Perez allowed six hits and walked three as the Pirates stranded eight in the first seven innings.

In the rest of the league, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 9-6, Houston shut out San Francisco 6-0, Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 7-5 in 10 innings, and San Diego beat Atlanta 2-1.

Astros 6, Giants 0
Bill Doran drove in three runs, and Jim Deshaies worked up just five hits.

Mike LaCoss gave up five runs on two hits and four walks in the first 1½ innings for San Francisco. Houston scored once in the first on a grounder by Doran, who added a two-run single in Houston's four-run second.

Houston added a run in the fourth when Randy Bockus hit Billy Hatcher with a pitch with the bases loaded.

Cubs 6, Mets 3
The Cubs scored all six of their runs in the sixth inning, erasing a 1-0 New York lead. The Cubs got some help from an error by catcher Mackey Sasser in the inning, but they also had six hits, including a double by Ryne Sandberg.

Vance Law drove in the tying run with a squeeze bunt that wound up being a single.

Chicago rookie Jeff Pico allowed just six hits.

Dodgers 9, Reds 6
John Shelby singled home the tying run in the ninth inning for his third RBI of the game, and Steve Sax followed with a three-run double, enabling the visiting Dodgers to sweep Cincinnati.

The Reds took a 6-5 lead when Barry Larkin hit a two-out, three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth.

Phillies 7, Cardinals 5
The Phillies rallied twice in the last three innings, trading a series of squeeze bunts with the Cardinals, before finally winning in the 10th.

Phil Bradley broke a 5-5 tie in the 10th with an RBI single, and Bob Dernier squeezed home an insurance run.

The Cardinals had tied the score 5-5 with two out in the ninth after Steve Bedrosian walked Vince Coleman. Coleman stole second and third and scored on Ozzie Smith's bunt.

Philadelphia went ahead 5-4 with two runs in the eighth, one scoring on a single by Dernier and another on a bunt by Steve Jeltz.

Padres 2, Braves 1
Dickie Thon drove in one run and scored the other, helping Andy Hawkins to his seventh victory in 13 decisions. Hawkins allowed five hits over 7½ innings as the Padres ended a three-game losing streak. At the same time, the Braves had their longest winning streak of the season stopped at three.

Thon singled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Carmelo Martinez in the first inning. He singled home a run in the second.

Golf

Nelson hangs on to win Atlanta Classic

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — It wasn't the kind of round Larry Nelson wants to remember, although it was just good enough to give him the 10th victory of his PGA Tour career.

"It was not as easy as I thought it would be when I woke up this morning," Nelson said Sunday after blowing a four-shot lead and then getting the birdie he had to have on the final hole to claim a one-shot triumph in the $700,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I'll forget this round, but I'll remember the drive and the second shot" on the 18th. "Under the circumstances it was the best drive I ever hit in my life. It's amazing how far you can hit it when you're scared."

His drive carried down the middle of the fairway, setting up a 4-wood approach shot that stopped 35 feet from the pin. He two-putted for his birdie-4 to finish with a 1-over-par 73 and a 20-under 268 total.

It gave him the victory over Chip Beck, a two-time winner this year who also birdied the final hole for a 66 and a 72-hole score of 269.

"I was fortunate Larry didn't have his best day," Beck said.

LARRY NELSON

"It's a tribute to him not to play his best and still win."

Nelson had destroyed the 7,007-yard Atlanta Country Club course for three days, leading after each round and going to the last 18 holes with a 21-under-par total that had him in line to challenge the PGA Tour record of 27-under-par set by Mike Souchak in the 1955 Texas Open.

The course also was drenched by a heavy rain Saturday night.

Injured Postlewait nabs McDonald's tourney win

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Kathy Postlewait isn't going to push her luck or her injured back.

Shortly after a one-stroke victory in the $500,000 McDonald's Championship on Sunday, Postlewait said she would skip this week's du Maurier Classic, one of the four majors on the LPGA tour.

"I'm not playing next week," she said. "I couldn't handle the six-hour plane ride."

Because of her back problems, Postlewait could barely handle a golf club. Over the past five weeks, she'd managed only seven rounds of golf, and complained during the McDonald's of fatigue on the back nine. She couldn't stoop to pick the ball out the hole after a putt.

"In this golf tournament, winning was not in my stars," Postlewait said, yet win is what she did, thanks to a final-round 1-under-par 70 that overtook 54-hole leader Patty Sheehan. Sheehan struggled to a 74 over the 6,366-yard Du Pont Country Club course, capped by a three-putt on the 18th hole to give Postlewait the title.

"I didn't give winning a lot of thought until after I played a couple of rounds," Postlewait said. "I just went out there and had some fun, and it worked out fine. I tried to stay mentally alert. I didn't expect a whole lot. I certainly got more than I expected."

The winner's check of $75,000 almost doubled her winnings for the year.

It was, however, a tournament Sheehan let get away. She held a two-stroke lead after 54 holes.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, JUNE 28, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your basically shy personality could attract a bountiful job offer. Be more assertive in a close personal relationship. You need more time before deciding whether or not to make a commitment. Family members are your strongest supporters. Be true to your values. This is not a favorable time to lend or borrow money. Get your financial affairs in order and practice better money management. Investment opportunities abound.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: slugger Don Baylor, comedienne Gilda Radner, philosopher Jean-Jacques Rousseau, comedian Mel Brooks, actor Pat Morita, author Eric Ambler, country musician Lester Flatt, England's King Henry VIII, composer Richard Rodgers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Truth is stranger than fiction and certainly your best weapon in making an important deal. Health concerns should not be overdramatized. Seeing a doctor will clear up any fears you may have.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Concentrate on work and ignore outside distractions. Today's events affect you in a positive way, opening the door to better financial opportunities. A relationship needs time to mature. Try to be patient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not be afraid to make a positive statement and take decisive action today. You could be on the verge of achieving something special. Guard against a summer cold by getting more rest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have all the tools you need to win a competition. Parents instill character-building values. You are a leader, not a follower. Show you are mature and a relationship will develop the way you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may have to work side-by-side with someone you do not care for. Hide your impatience and concentrate on teamwork's many benefits. Leave your cares at home when you go out tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Getting the go-ahead for a personal project makes you feel on top of the world. Do not expect too much; you could be overestimating a business proposition. Tune into loved ones' needs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A happy-go-lucky attitude comes in handy when your relationship with someone gets a bit sticky. Try to be more tolerant of your loved ones' idiosyncrasies. Strengthen family ties. Keep confidences.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not ignore subtle signals from romantic partner. A relationship may be cooling off. News from someone at a distance makes the situation clear. Take the first step to sort things out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work on a neglected project. An inspired gesture boosts your social-romantic prospects. Count your change when shopping. Romance enjoys highly favorable influences. Show your sentimental side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your diplomacy is put to the supreme test when you are asked to settle a dispute. Offer advice without making any accusations. Romance beckons. Dress to impress if going out tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Curb a tendency to be gullible, especially in business. Be wary of someone who tries to influence you with a tale of woe. Flirting with a stranger could jeopardize an important relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not sit back and wait for things to come to you. Get busy and turn your dreams into reality. You have what it takes to succeed. An influential person is highly impressed.
