Youthful murderer leaving death row

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

William Wayne Thompson is probably feeling relieved today. He will soon be leaving death row at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, Okla.

He also apparently no longer has to fear being executed.

The U.S. Supreme Court Wednesday struck down Thompson's death sentence of participating in a murder when he was 15, but stopped short of saying capital punishment is unconstitutional for minors.

The justices agreed that states should set the minimum age for execution, but fell one vote short of whether executing teen-agers violates the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment."

On Feb. 23, 1987 the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to hear arguments by Thompson's attorneys, who contended it is unconstitutional to execute persons for crimes committed while they were minors.

The Supreme Court heard arguments in the case on Nov. 9.

Oklahoma Assistant Attorney General David Lee said today Thompson will be eligible for parole, although it was unclear when that will occur.

Thompson, who is now 20, was 15 when he participated in the brutal slaying of Charles Keene — his brother-in-law — on Jan. 23, 1983, in Chickasha, Okla.

Keene's algae-covered body — attached to a chain and concrete block — was pulled from the Washita River in Chickasha by sheriff's deputies on Feb. 18, 1983.

He had been severely beaten, shot twice, stabbed and his throat cut, according to a medical examiner's testimony.

He was 16 when a Grady County (Oklahoma) jury found him guilty of first-degree murder and sentenced him to death on Dec. 5, 1983.

The Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals upheld Thompson's conviction and death sentence.

Three other men — Bobby Joe Glass, Charles Mann and Ricky Jones, all of Chickasha — were all tried separately, found guilty and also sentenced to death.

Mann remains on death row; Glass was stabbed to death in February 1984 — less than 10 days after he was transported to the penitentiary; and Jones is a free man — acquitted in a re-trial earlier this year after spending more than four years on death row.

Thompson never denied killing Keene. He testified during his trial that he felt no remorse for helping to kill Keene.

"If he came back to life today, I'd kill him again," Thompson testified, according to transcripts of the trial.

A psychiatrist who examined him testified: "He is incapable of feeling compassion for other human beings," trial transcripts stated.

Thompson was no stranger to trouble. He was arrested numerous times as a juvenile, Stephens County (Duncan, Okla.) District Attorney Melvin Singleterry said.

Singleterry served as the prosecuting attorney in Jones' re-trial. He studied previous trial transcripts during the months that preceded it.

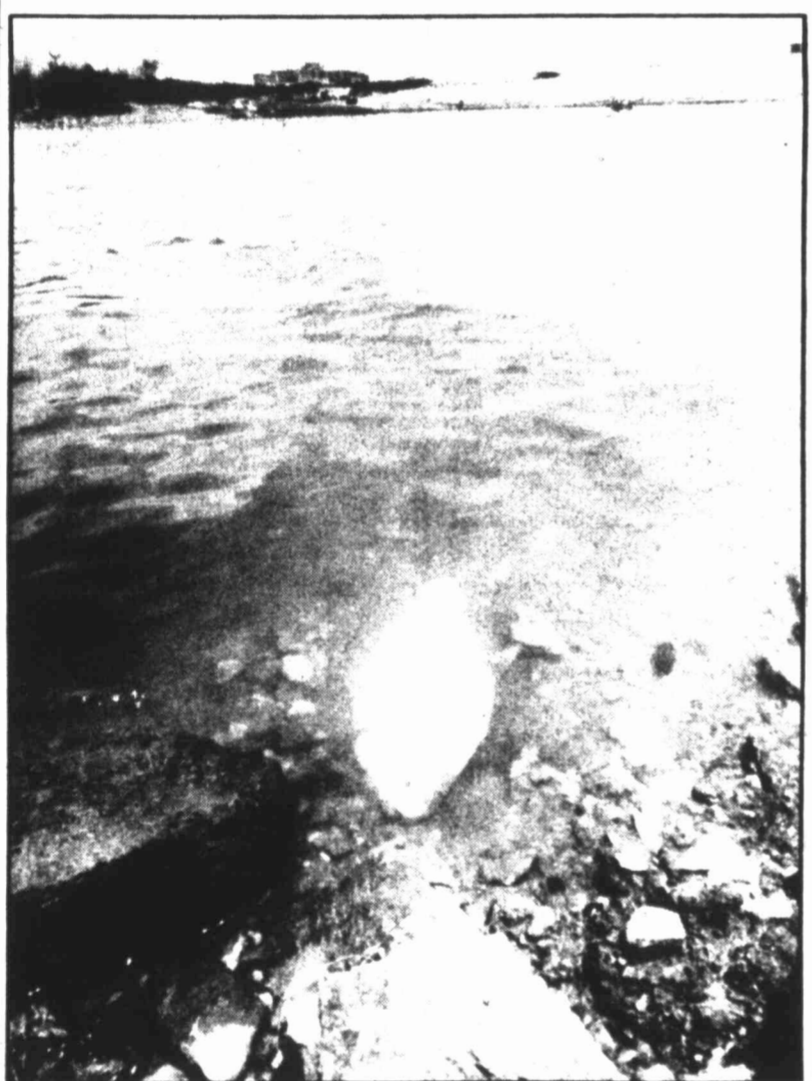

The Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals overturned Jones' conviction on May 22, 1987 — citing five reasons:

- Introduction of hearsay evidence by prosecutor Tony Burns regarding Keene's last words — "Please take care of my children."
- Introduction of two photographs and a portion of a videotape depicting the recovery of Keene's body from the Washita River.

- Burns was guilty of three instances of misconduct by requesting sympathy for Keene's ex-wife, Vickie.
- Introduction of irrelevant and prejudicial evidence during his questioning of Vickie Keene.

- Burns engaged in improper and prejudicial closing arguments.

District Judge James Winchester — who presided at Thompson's trial — was also present at the sentencing of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver for lying under oath about the lobbying business he formed after leaving President Reagan's staff.

Clearing the lake

Arthur Hilario, left, and Tommy Bobo display a carp, estimated at 35 pounds, they recovered from the Comanche Trail Lake Wednesday afternoon. Texas Park and Wildlife biologists used a chemical approved by the Environmental Protection Agency that doesn't allow fish to breathe oxygen, Tom Decell, public works director, said. The action was taken in anticipation of restocking the lake. Although fishing has been discontinued until the lake is restocked, dozens of people took advantage of the easiest fishing possible, waiting for the unconscious, floating fish to drift near the shoreline, where they were scooped out by nets. The chemical will not endanger fish or humans in the future, Decell said.

Court gives green light to independent counsel

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court's resounding endorsement of the special prosecutor law dispels any doubt about the authority of independent counsels investigating alleged wrongdoing by past and present Reagan administration officials.

The high court's 7-1 decision Wednesday removes a cloud from the Iran-Contra conspiracy case, and it clears the way for the sentencing of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver for lying under oath about the lobbying business he formed after leaving President Reagan's staff.

The ruling also removes the special prosecutor issue from former White House political director Lyn Nofziger's challenge to his 90-day sentence and conviction for illegally lobbying former administration colleagues.

And the court's decision revives independent counsel Alexia Morrison's long dormant investigation of allegations that former Assistant Attorney General

Theodore B. Olson lied to a congressional committee investigating the Superfund scandal at the Environmental Protection Agency.

Challenges by Olson and two other former high-ranking Justice Department officials to grand jury subpoenas obtained by Morrison led to the high court's ruling on the independent counsel provisions of the Ethics in Government Act.

"Obviously we are very pleased with the opinion and particularly at the fact that it was reached nearly unanimously by the court," said Morrison, whose investigation has been stymied.

The high court, in a decision written by Chief Justice William Rehnquist, rejected arguments that appointment of independent counsels by a special court violated the Constitution's doctrine of separation of powers.

Rehnquist wrote that the special prosecutors did not encroach on the power of the executive branch to investigate crimes.

The decision drew an impassioned dissent from Justice Antonin Scalia, who wrote that "by its short-sighted action today, I fear the court has permanently encumbered the Republic with an institution that will do it great harm."

Ruling as it did, the court further validated the authority of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh to prosecute former White House aide Oliver North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and others on charges stemming from the Iran-Contra affair.

County budget Workshop results in 'wish list'

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

A budget workshop resulted in the compilation of a "wish list," for Howard County commissioners Wednesday.

The daylong workshop included presentations to the commissioners by Cecilia McKenzie, representing the Rape Crisis/Victim Services Center, and C. Roy Wright as a representative of Howard County volunteer firefighters.

Commissioners tentatively approved increasing the county's contribution to the Rape Crisis/Victim Services Center's funding from $6,000 to $7,500.

They also tentatively budgeted $25,000 for land and a building for a new fire station south of Big Spring. If built, it can also be used as a polling station. Commissioners tentatively decided to replace three fire trucks chassis in county fire departments.

The replacement chassis will probably be those of trucks being replaced in the road and bridge department, for which commissioners tentatively approved purchasing two new trucks and two new pickups.

One new pickup was tentatively approved for county extension agents' use and three new vehicles for the county sheriff's department were included in the preliminary budget.

Commissioner David Barr commented during the session that budget reductions would probably be made during later sessions.

"We're going to have to trim with a sharp knife," Barr said.

No salary increases were discussed and no private citizens attended the public work session.

Commissioner William B. Crocker Jr. said the county's budget figures must include some increases in insurance premiums and other expenditures beyond the county's control.

However, he and county auditor Jackie Olson said, the increased expenditures in the tentative budget were not built around sudden increases in premiums.

Olson explained that the increases resulted from a previous budget's estimated cost of insurance, rather than an upward spiral of insurance costs.

Approximately $60,000 in increases were included in the tentative budget.

Commissioners also discussed increases in sealcoating and repair and construction funding, possible renovations to the county library and possible alterations to the county jail.

Public hearings on the proposed budget are expected in late August, according to Crocker. The county will not have final figures on revenue until late-filed protests on appraisals of some $7-million worth of property have been settled, according to Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District chief appraiser F.E. "Gene" Pereira.

Pereira told commissioners that estimates of the county's budget indicate an increase in revenues. He said a closer estimate of revenues would be available after the appraisal district's next meeting July 14.

Truck use causing road damage

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Heavy trucks already are using — and damaging — a Howard County road in an effort to avoid congestion and downtown Big Spring, according to officials.

Howard County Commissioners David Barr and William B. Crocker Jr. discussed the problem briefly after a daylong budget hearing Wednesday.

The road links U.S. Highway 87 north of Big Spring with Farm to Market Road 669, Barr said, and is being used by heavy trucks en route to and from the Fina refinery and Grace chemical plant to avoid both traffic congestion around the Rip Griffin truck stop and traveling through downtown Big Spring.

Although Barr said he didn't think the trucks were necessarily carrying hazardous materials, the gross weight of the 72,000-lb. tractor-trailer rigs contributed heavily to damage of the county road, which was not designed or built to accommodate such loads.

"In the heat of the day, you get just one of those big trucks through there at the right time and it just tears (the road) up," he said. "It (the paved surface) sticks in the duals, and just rolls it up."

He said he did not blame truck drivers for using the road to avoid congested traffic or traveling through town. However, he suggested that particular section of county road be improved rather than buying right of way for a separate hazardous cargo route, as has been proposed.

He said the road would need to be upgraded and that such construction probably would have to be done through a contractor.

The approximately three-mile-long section of the road required rebuilding both of the last two years because of damage by the trucks, Crocker and Barr said.

Barr said all county roads are load-limited — posted and not to be used by heavy trucks — when a bridge is involved. This particular road does not have a bridge.

Defense industry generous to three Texas congressmen

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Three Texas congressmen were among the top 26 of all House members for honoraria received from the defense industry, a public issues group says.

Reps. Marvin Leath, D-Waco, Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, and Mac Sweeney, R-Wharton, were the Texas delegation's top money-earners in defense honoraria, according to a report by Common Cause released Wednesday.

Leath, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, took home $18,500 in defense-related honoraria last year, putting him in sixth place among all congressmen. Wilson, with $17,000, tied for seventh place with Robert Davis, R-Mich., and Sweeney, with $14,000 was tied for 14th place with Rep. Robert Livingston, R-La.

Wilson is a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee and Sweeney is a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

The Common Cause study was based on financial disclosure

"The nation's top defense contractors have been paying substantial fees to key members of Congress who control defense decisions to buy their oratory," said Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause.

reports required annually of members of Congress.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, received no honoraria last year from defense contractors, while Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is not a member of either the Armed Services Committee or the Senate defense appropriations subcommittee. He does not accept honoraria.

"The nation's top defense contractors have been paying substantial fees to key members of Congress who control defense decisions to buy their influence, not their oratory," said Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause.

"The honoraria fees system has become a special-interest vehicle for sticking money directly into the pockets of senators and representatives."

Aides for Wilson and Sweeney said the congressmen aren't influenced by the fees. Leath could not be reached for comment.

Wilson spokeswoman Elaine Lang said the honoraria "doesn't make him beholden to any group and if they request him to speak, he's happy to do it."

"He speaks to them on Afghanistan as well as answers any question they might have on defense issues," Ms. Lang said.

Sweeney spokeswoman Laura Epstein said the congressman stands by his record on the committee and that "nobody fights harder for a strong, cost-effective defense than he does."

The three congressmen received honoraria from companies whose offices have been searched or named as being under investigation.

Court victory worth struggle

EULESS (AP) — Clara Watson says her lawsuit charging she was passed over for promotion because she was black cost her some friends at the bank where she worked. However, she believes a victory in the U.S. Supreme Court was worth the struggle.

"I'd do it again and again and again if I had to," Ms. Watson said Wednesday, after the court ruled 8-0 that Watson, a former bank employee in Fort Worth, was improperly barred from using statistics in trying to prove she was discriminated against in 1980 and 1981.

Ms. Watson said filing the lawsuit cost her "dear friends" at work and she and her husband were divorced after he refused to support her suit.

"They thought I shouldn't make waves, that I should let it be," Ms. Watson said of her co-workers. She and her lawyer talked about the case Wednesday at Harris Methodist-HEB Hospital, where she has been treated for kidney trouble.

CLARA WATSON

The justices expanded the way employees can use statistical evidence to prove bias, making it easier for workers to prove their bosses are guilty of illegal discrimination.

Ms. Watson's lawsuit now will return to a federal trial court.

"It is really an important, landmark case in the area of civil rights and discrimination," said Art Brender, Ms. Watson's lawyer, "because it says that you don't have to prove intent to discriminate — that discrimination can be based on stereotypical views that people make without actually proving intent."

Unable to find work at other Fort Worth banks, Ms. Watson took a job cleaning cabins for American Airlines.

Although it involves a complicated aspect of federal anti-bias law, the decision carries a significant, direct impact on numerous lawsuits filed by women and members of racial minority members who say they have been treated unfairly.

After seven years' at Fort Worth Bank & Trust, Ms. Watson applied for supervisory jobs four times in 1980 and 1981 and was passed over in favor of people with as little as six months experience, Brender said.

Midland man's body found

ROSWELL (AP) — National Transportation Safety Board investigators will begin an investigation today into a single-engine airplane crash northwest of Roswell that killed a Midland man, authorities say.

The New Mexico Civil Air Patrol located the plane and the body of John Wilson, 59, on Wednesday, said Don Cooper of the CAP.

Searchers found Wilson's body about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday after a three-day search, Cooper said.

Wilson was pronounced dead at the scene, Cooper said.

Earlier Wednesday the CAP found the wreckage of the plane that left Santa Fe Monday on a routine business flight to Midland, authorities said.

The wreckage was discovered north of Capitan Peak about 60 miles northwest of Roswell, said Martha Cullom, a public information officer for the CAP in Roswell.

Cooper said the crash site was in a remote area that took the ground search crew two-and-a-half to three hours to reach.

Authorities said Wilson was the only person aboard the Piper airplane.

The CAP launched the search Monday and continued it Tuesday. The search ended at nightfall both days.

The wreckage was found between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Wednesday, Ms. Cullom said.

Madge Harrah, another CAP spokeswoman, had said Wilson was an experienced pilot who lived in Santa Fe and Midland. She said he had flown the route between the two cities a number of times.

Tears of joy

Hattie Jean Allen, 10, is hugged by her mother, Henrietta Allen, Tuesday night after teen-agers found her standing amid a briar patch in dense North Harris County woods. Allen was lost in the woods after escaping from a man with a pistol; he abducted her as she was returning from a store with her 14-year-old cousin. Although scratched and dazed, she was otherwise unharmed, officials said.

Truck driver killed in toxic crash

CORSICANA (AP) — Interstate 45 has reopened after workers spent more than 24 hours cleaning up a toxic spill that left a truck driver dead, officials said.

A tractor-trailer truck transporting oil well servicing chemicals from Odessa to Houston ran into the back of another tractor-trailer Tuesday at about 4:45 p.m. The accident spilled about 84 55-gallon drums onto the highway, causing some explosions that kept cleanup crews at bay most of the night.

The driver of the chemical truck, Charles Melvin Winterrowd, 53, of Wharton, was pronounced dead at the scene, said Ted Caldwell, a Department of Public Safety trooper.

Emergency personnel could not remove Winterrowd's body from the wreckage until about 2 a.m. Wednesday, Caldwell said.

The driver of the other truck, Helen Randall, 46, of Regina, N.M., sustained only minor injuries in the crash, Caldwell said.

"We will have to close one southbound lane Thursday to repair the surface," said DPS patrolman Reese Morgan. "But traffic will move through."

'Chicken Charlie' runs afoul of IRS

BALMORHEA (AP) — This West Texas town may never be the same again, residents say, since a local legend ran afoul of the Internal Revenue Service.

Folks have been known to drive a hundred miles or more just to eat one of Chicken Charlie's big steaks and then drive right back home.

IRS agents have seized the property of restaurateur Atry "Art" Preston Climer, known as "Chicken Charlie," the name of one of his restaurants.

The seizures took place June 13 and resulted from seven IRS liens against Climer totaling $90,427.46, according to Bob Branson, an IRS spokesman at Austin.

Branson said the IRS alleges that Climer failed to turn in income taxes withheld from employees from 1980 through 1984.

In Balmorhea, a town of 580 about 185 miles east of El Paso, some people credit Climer for saving the town from obscurity.

"He's done more for Balmorhea than anyone I know," said Helen Humphries, retired Balmorhea postmaster who served eight years as mayor.

EPA won't regulate oil wastes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has decided against regulating oil and gas drilling wastes as hazardous material, saying another layer of regulation is impractical for the hundreds of thousands of wells across the country.

But the agency is promising to get tough on states that fail to enforce existing regulations governing the disposal of such wastes as brine and drilling muds, and ensuring abandoned wells are capped.

"It was a tough decision but I think we made the right decision," said J. Winston Porter, EPA's assistant administrator for solid waste and emergency response. "We were concerned about layering on another level of regulations."

The biggest problem found by the EPA at the nation's wells was the disposal of brine — salt water that is extracted from wells in the drilling process. Porter said regulations already exist to cover that problem.

An environmental group criticized the decision as contrary to the public interest.

"These substances... do contain hazardous wastes with names 14 syllables long," said Mike Matz, Alaska representative of the Sierra Club. "Clearly the EPA once again is favoring big oil and big business and is shunning its responsibility to protect the public health and the environment."

Congress in 1976 gave EPA authority to decide what waste needs to be covered by the strict handling and disposal regulations that apply to hazardous wastes, but it required a study before decisions could be made about oil and gas production wastes.

EPA in December completed the study and then allowed public comment before drafting its recommendations. The final report was to be presented to Congress today.

EPA estimated in its report that oil and gas production would be cut by as much as 12 percent if drilling wastes were treated as hazardous. The cost of the program would have been at least $1 billion and could have ranged up to $6 billion, Porter said.

The American Petroleum Institute had put those costs much higher — up to $37 billion the first year and $7 billion annually thereafter.

EPA said stripper wells — those that generally produce less than 10 barrels a day — could not have easily absorbed the additional costs for hazardous waste management.

Warrants lead to arrests

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Four persons were arrested Wednesday night when Big Spring police arrived to serve warrants at a residence and allegedly discovered marijuana plants growing, Sgt. Bill King said today.

Pamela Grant Roberts, 24, and Teri Louise Nall, 30, were arrested about 5:25 p.m. at the residence located on Oasis Street, just outside the Big Spring city limits, King said.

The warrants charge Roberts with speeding, failure to appear, possession of drug paraphernalia and failure to appear before judge; and Nall with bondsman off bond, possession of marijuana, three counts of possession of a controlled substance; two counts of possession of drug paraphernalia and two counts of failure to appear before judge, according to police reports.

King said both women were staying at the home that is owned by a man who is not a suspect.

While serving the warrants, King said police observed marijuana plants growing on the property, returned to the station and contacted Howard County Justice of the Peace China Long, who issued a search warrant.

King said officers returned to the residence, confiscated the marijuana plants and allegedly discovered what is believed to be a controlled substance, pending laboratory analysis.

Arrested at the scene were George Jimmy Bolton, 35, 1905 Wasson Road, Apt. 4B 12, and Helen Linda Thompson, 42, 406 1/2 Douglas St., King said.

Bolton and Thompson were arrested on charges of possession of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Sheriff's log

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Sheriff's Department officers reported investigating the following complaints as of 8:45 a.m. today:

• A theft was reported in the Tubbs addition. According to sheriff's records, the incident occurred Wednesday morning and an arrest was pending in the matter.

• Tammie Elliott, 19, 3607 Hamilton St., was arrested on a warrant for revocation of probation for burglary of a building. Bond was denied.

• State Highway 176 was reported flooded at 8:32 p.m. Wednesday. The road was closed until 10:05 p.m., when the road was reported clear.

Veterans convoy attempts Nicaragua trip again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A peace convoy thwarted in its first attempt to take 30 tons of humanitarian aid to Nicaragua will try again to cross the U.S.-Mexico border, members of the caravan say.

The Veterans Peace Convoy, a collection of rickety vehicles, loaded down with food, clothing and medical supplies will make its second attempt to cross at Laredo on July 9, spokesman Joseph Franklin said Wednesday.

The U.S. Customs Service barred the convoy from crossing the border at Laredo earlier this month, and seized four vehicles after the group refused to post bond and sign a series of papers promising the trucks would be returned to the United States.

Officials say letting the vehicles remain in Nicaragua would violate a trade embargo. They have said they cannot meet with the group because the matter is in litigation. The convoy has filed a federal lawsuit challenging the Customs decision.

About 100 participants in the convoys and 30 of their vehicles arrived in Washington last week to rally against Customs' decision, circling around the White House and in front of the State Department in three days of protests.

But the convoy, consisting largely of Vietnam and other veterans, was unsuccessful in convincing the Reagan administration to reverse its decision.

The group also was unable to meet with Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs, or anyone else in the administration, Franklin said. "It's been a complete stonewall," said Franklin. "We're not going to sign any papers or post any bond" when the convoy gets back to Laredo, he said.

Franklin said about 35 to 40 people began the trip back to Texas on Tuesday, with other members of the convoy returning home and a few staying in Washington where "we're going to keep the pressure on."

The convoy began in four cities

— Seattle, Missoula, Mont., Minneapolis and Caribou, Maine, and the four groups traveled through 100 cities in 42 states collecting aid before congregating in Austin and arriving in Laredo June 7.

In addition to the 30 tons on the trucks, another 140 tons of aid has been shipped to Nicaragua. Convoy members say the trucks are needed by the people of Nicaragua to deliver humanitarian aid around the country by non-governmental groups.

Brown & Root dismissed from prison project

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A company hired to supervise the construction of new Texas prisons has been dismissed from that task, reportedly after failing to tell officials about increases in the estimated cost of four proposed units.

Brown & Root, headed by former Texas Department of Corrections board chairman T. Louis Austin, won't manage the construction of two 2,250-bed, maximum-security units that it had been hired to oversee, prison board Chairman Charles Terrell said Wednesday.

While Terrell declined to comment on the reasons for the dismissal, other sources told the Dallas Times Herald and Houston Post that prison officials are blaming the company for bad estimates on the cost of four 1,000-bed, medium-security units.

Brown & Root is the contracting firm for the construction of Stacy Dam.

Terrell said last week that contractors' bids on the first of the four units were $3.5 million more than estimated costs, which forced him to withdraw temporarily a request for bids to build the medium-security units.

After reviewing the differences, he said the discrepancies should have been caught last fall.

"The scope of the units was changed, but the estimates never changed accordingly," Terrell said.

Brown & Root maintains it shouldn't be blamed for the overrun.

"We didn't design it. We didn't bid it," said Steve Zander, a senior vice president for the company, a subsidiary of Dallas-based Halliburton Co. "It's hard for me to believe we'd be responsible for any overrun."

Brown & Root had been employed to supervise construction of several new units and prepare cost estimates for the four medium-security facilities. In the past two years, prison officials estimated the company was paid $3.5 million for its work.

In March, Henry Beck of Dallas, a close friend of Gov. Bill Clements, who declined an appointment to the prison board in 1979, was hired to oversee construction of the four medium-security units.

Terrell said the board would solicit bids from firms interested in replacing Brown & Root on the maximum-security prisons.

The new units, which are slated to be built during the next two years, are part of an expansion within the prison system designed to relieve overcrowding.

Stripper who performed in court convicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A topless dancer who performed her routine before jurors, but only took off her jacket, was given a year's probation and fined $500 after being convicted of public lewdness.

Bonnie Marie Trahan, 25, who works under the stage name "Princess," was convicted Wednesday. She had faced up to a year in jail and a $10,000 fine for the crime.

Harris County Sheriff's vice officer J.P. Baker testified that Ms. Trahan rubbed her buttocks on his genital area Jan. 13 as she performed a personalized "table dance" at his request in The Executive Sweet, a dance club.

During her trial Tuesday, she flung her shoulder-length brown hair and twirled her body around to the music of Prince as she demonstrated her techniques before jurors in court before Judge Jim Barkley of the Harris County Court-at-Law.

In her jury demonstration, Ms. Trahan stripped off a jacket but danced wearing tight black pants, ruffled blouse, one black lace glove and high heels. Most of the jurors, trying to suppress smiles, watched the show and glanced at the courtroom audience for their reactions.

son's trial — approved a change of venue motion by Jones' attorneys, who maintained their client could not get a fair trial in Chickasha.

At the re-trial — conducted in nearby Anadarko in mid-January — Keene was described by the people who knew him as a "sorry" human being.

"None of my family cared for him, because of his never working to support his family, and sniffing paint," Vickie Keene testified.

Thompson's mother, Dorothy, who lives in McAlester to be near her son, testified Keene repeatedly sniffed paint at her home; set fire to her back yard; ripped the telephones out of the wall and beat her with them; forced his 4-year-old son to sniff paint and was responsible for Wayne's involvement with paint sniffing.

It was Wayne Thompson — a thin, unloved man who reached adulthood in prison — who testified he and Glass planned to kill Keene after an attempt by the victim to molest him.

Thompson matter-of-factly testified he, Mann and Glass abducted Keene, shot him in the head and heart, and slit his throat and stomach before attaching a chain and concrete block to his body and dumping it in the Washita River.

"We wanted to gut him so the fish would eat him," he testified. Thompson testified Jones was "passed out, dead drunk" when Keene was killed.

Dr. Fred Jordan — a forensic pathologist and chief medical examiner for the state of Oklahoma who performed the autopsy — testified he removed more than one-quarter inch of algae from Keene's body.

Jordan also testified he removed 45-caliber revolver fragments from Keene's head and a bullet from the cavity of his back, observed a 12-inch wound on his upper chest and stomach and a 7-inch "gaping wound" on his neck. His right leg "had been broken in half."

Asked by Singleterry whether he believed Keene was alive when stabbed, Jordan responded:

"It is my opinion, and I believe, that Charles Keene was still alive when the neck and stomach wounds were inflicted."

Jones — who said he is "living his life for the Lord" — was acquitted and is living in Chickasha.

County rainfall amounts vary from north to south

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Rainfall amounts ranged from 1.75 inches in Knott to only .2 inches in Forsan, according to reports received today.

Larry Shaw said that 5.75 inches of rain has been recorded two miles north of West Knott this week and 6 inches fell in the Brown community on Wednesday, with an additional inch reported on Wednesday.

At Wasson Road and Debra

Lane, Boyce Hale said .2 inches was recorded for the period ending at 6 a.m. today. For the month of June, .56 inches has been recorded and for the year there has been 7.07 inches.

O.W. Scudday said Forsan received 2 inches of rain as of 10 a.m. Thursday, but there has only been one-half inch of rain during June.

Cindy Hooper said Knott received 2 inches on Wednesday and S.N. Lewis, 1402 Birdwell Lane, reported .7 inches as of 11:30 a.m. today.

Neil Fryar reported .8 inches fell in Lomax since Wednesday.

Nell Rogers — with the Agricultural Research Station — said .31 inches of rain has fallen as of 8 a.m. today.

Normal rainfall through June is 8.76 inches and Big Spring has recorded 6.06 inches as of Thursday, Rogers said.

CRMWD, two mayors sign Stacy pipeline pact

Mayors of two contract cities and the president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District Wednesday signed documents fixing timetables and cost distribution for a 150-mile pipeline to deliver water from Stacy reservoir to San Angelo, Midland and District customers.

The project, based on today's figures, could cost upwards of $95,000,000, but it might save participants half that much over the life of the project, from what it could cost each city to build its own system, CRMWD secretary/treasurer Joe Pickle said.

Signing for Midland was Mayor Carroll Thomas, and for San Angelo, Mayor Dick Funk, along with CRMWD President John L. Taylor of Big Spring. Mayors of member cities — Cotton Mize, Big Spring, Don Carter, Odessa and Troy Williamson, Snyder — were present for the ceremonies at the Stacy reservoir site.

Contracts were formalized by the CRMWD directors at an 11 a.m. meeting at the Stacy field headquarters.

District General Manager O.H. Ivie told the board that bids have been advertised for construction of the dam's intake substructure to serve the cooperative pipeline venture, Pickle noted.

Opening is set for July 20 with a letting within a few days of that point, he added.

This project must be completed prior to the closure of the dam, estimated around Jan. 1, 1990. It may cost around $2.5 million, and whether parties to the agreement pay this in cash or issue bonds is optional to them, Pickle said.

The pipeline cost has been pegged at $92.3 million, and again, the contract cities will secure their own financing or ask the District to issue its bonds. In the latter instance, they would share according to their percentage of the project in earnings on a reserve fund to secure the bonds, he said.

The pipeline will be divided into three segments: The first from Stacy to San Angelo; the second to the Big Spring junction near Garden City; and the third to end equi-distant from the Midland and Odessa water treatment plants.

When engineering studies indicate San Angelo must have water, and it can't be furnished from other sources at reasonable cost within 24 months, the first segment will be put into motion.

The same scenario applies to Midland with a 30-month lead time. Should other major demands develop, the district and contract cities could agree to start one or more segments, Pickle said.

San Angelo would have the right to transport some of its water from well fields through the first segment under agreed conditions.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the state:

Bring in a special counsel

The more the public learns about House Speaker Jim Wright's sleazy financial dealings, the clearer becomes the need for an independent investigation by a special counsel.

The latest revelations concern the marketing of the Texas Democrat's book, "Reflections of a Public Man." It seems that the book was sold in mass quantities to lobbyists and political cronies in such a way as to circumvent House of Representatives rules against excessive outside income.

Wright's book deal was already notorious for his inflated royalties of 55 percent — far more than publishers normally pay even for best-sellers.

Then, as if all of this were not more than enough, we now find out that some people... have bought thousands of dollars worth of the book at one time — apparently for the specific purpose of enriching its author.

A $2,000 order came from an insurance company as a substitute for a speech honorarium.

House rules place ceilings on honorariums.

But in its first bill of particulars in the Wright case, the House Ethics Committee failed to mention this issue as worth examining. Its glaring omission confirms that the appointment of an independent counsel is overdue.

Clement's opportunity

Texas Supreme Court Justice James Wallace this week became the third justice in less than a year to announce he's resigning. That presents Gov. Bill Clements with an opportunity to win himself favorable notice in the history books. Clements can, if he will, provide the state with a test of merit selection of judges by convening a commission of legal and lay people to recommend to him a short list of qualified candidates, from which he can make the final selection.

The governor could still name a Republican, but the partisan angle — inappropriate for judges — would be muted, and the public could be better assured that the new justice is up to the job, and not just a way to pay off a political debt.

More IRS mistakes

A congressional investigation into how effectively the Internal Revenue Service goes after businesses which dodge taxes turned up unexpected results. Investigators found the IRS has accused hundreds of thousands of businesses that dutifully paid their taxes of not filing returns.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, found the IRS has failed to keep its computer files current and has more than one taxpayer number for huge numbers of business firms.

When no tax return can be found for an erroneous number, the IRS assumes the business has failed to file a return.

The result has been a flood of warnings that never should have been issued, wasted investigations by IRS personnel and additional expense and paper work for firms that have been falsely accused.

The GAO found that IRS investigations of business taxpayers produced an additional $5.9 billion in revenue for 1986, which appears to be a major accomplishment. But investigators also found that 73 percent of the investigations conducted by the IRS were not warranted and produced no additional taxes.

The GAO investigation lends credence to the viewpoint that the IRS keeps sloppy records, makes too many errors and falsely accuses too many honest taxpayers. That is a risky image for a system of voluntary taxation that up to now has been the world's largest and most successful.

Apt message was delivered

The fines seem too small, but at least political operative Rocky Mountain and his company, Southern Political Consulting Inc., weren't let off with a mere slap on the wrist.

In fining Mountain $7,600 and SPC $38,000 over the forging of petition signatures for presidential candidate Pete Du Pont, a San Marcos jury has sent a clear signal: Texans take this seriously, not as run-of-the-mill dirty tricks to be dismissed with a nudge and a wink.

The maximum punishment Mountain faced was one year in jail and $76,000 in fines. The company faced a possible fine of $380,000.

So both got off with only 10 percent of their potential monetary penalty, and Mountain avoided incarceration. But during the next year, he will be required to address two civics classes each week, prepare a public-service message on the value of the right to vote, and finish college. So at the least the punishments fit the crimes.

Providing beer to under-age workers, corrupting their respect for the political process, and subverting the methods by which we choose our leaders are serious offenses. Mountain and SPC did all three.

Once again, a statewide elected official has decided to abandon ship in the middle of his term, leaving his position to be filled by the governor through the appointment process.

Supreme Court Justice James Wallace became the third member to resign from the state's highest court in the last year.

It would almost be understandable if Wallace had resigned to uphold some principle he believes in or because of the controversy about alleged ethics violations involving two of the members of the court, or even about the battle over elected vs. appointed judges.

But Wallace cited a different reason — low pay.

Random thoughts while searching for my Sea World souvenirs:

For those who miss the action and "sport" of gladiator times, let me suggest watching ESPN on Saturday nights and catching a glimpse at arena football.

Arena football, for the uninitiated, is an indoor, miniaturized version of the great autumn pastime. The field is only 50 yards long, there are only eight men to a team and substitutions are severely limited — meaning the players literally bop 'til they drop, if you catch my drift.

The purist football fan out there may find this version of the sport somewhat distasteful but, for the hardcore pigskin fanatic, it might just be something to help you through the summer.

And with team names like the Steamrollers, Gladiators, Cobras and Bruisers, you don't have to be an Einstein to figure these guys aren't playing tiddly-winks out there.

The night I decided to watch, the New England Steamrollers were playing the team from New York — their nickname escapes me (maybe it was the Typhoids, or Murderers, or Tax Collectors, or...).

Anyway, as I watched the players bounce off one another, I came to the conclusion that we have finally found an '80s version of the Christians vs. the Lions.

If someone had put his foot on a fallen player, drawn a sword and waited for the crowd to give him

'Terrible' Ivan gets a Hollywood facelift

By ART BUCHWALD

The real meaning of the thaw in Soviet-American relations is that the Russians can no longer be cast in spy novels and movies as the bad guys. Arnold Schwarzenegger's latest film "Red Heat" is the first of many that portrays the evil empire in a good light.

This has required Hollywood producers to revise their scripts.

"Hold it, Richard. We're doing a complete rewrite of 'Ivan the Terrible.' First, we have to come up with a different title."

"What do you suggest?"

"How about 'Ivan the Good Ole Boy?'"

"Are you sure?"

"Richard, don't you understand? We can't make Soviet citizens the heavies any more. People won't accept it. The Russkies are the salt of the earth, and it's our job to portray them that way. Now let's take it from the top of the script: Ivan works for the KGB, which is the agency in charge of dams and reclamation projects in his country."

"In the original version the KGB was the notorious Soviet secret service."

"How wrong can you be? Why would Ivan, one of our two heroes, have anything to do with the secret service?"

"He's not a hero in the draft I have here. He is a villain with plans to blow up the Williamsburg Bridge in New York City."

"Change it. Make Ivan the one who is going to save the bridge."

"So who's trying to blow it up?"

"What about Noriega and his crazy crew of Panamanians?"

"You'd like to portray Noriega's people as the loonies?"

"Why not? What could be better than the Soviets and the Americans working together against the little twirp's empire? Let's do it like this. Sam, our American hero, and

"Do we still keep Hilda, the American civil engineer, in the script?"

"Yes, but let's make her a milkmaid from Kiev instead."

"You want a milkmaid to discover that the Williamsburg Bridge is going to fall down?"

"Of course, that's what makes glasnost for real."

"You bet it's my picture. The time is ripe to show the Soviet people as decent, warm, loving human beings who want peace and oil furnaces that work. When the milkmaid dies trying to save the bridge from falling into the river, there won't be a dry eye from Albuquerque to Smolensk. That is perestroika."

"Ivan meet at a Soviet-American softball game on Red Square. They take an instant dislike to each other."

"Why?"

"Because Ivan is short and Sam is tall. But they team up anyway to try to find the psychopathic bridge bomber in Manhattan. Although they are miles apart ideologically, the two men know that their lives depend on each other."

"They also feel that if Raisa Gorbachev and Nancy Reagan can hit it off, they can at least give it a try. For starters, the men learn each other's tongues. Ivan, who comes from Leningrad, teaches Sam fluent Russian, and Sam, who lives in Miami, teaches Ivan fluent Spanish."

The hidden places where smugglers conceal drugs

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — You won't read it on the window sticker with the other luxury options, but cars are perfect hiding places for illegal drugs. False trunks, secret doors, upholstery filled with marijuana — the spots smugglers find to hide drugs defy the imagination.

To the untrained eye, the car hasn't been altered. But drug enforcement agents can't afford to dismiss it on first glance. Sometimes they have to tear a car apart before they find what they suspect is there.

A drug intelligence unit in El Paso makes the job a little easier by sharing the secrets of the smugglers. The El Paso Intelligence Center is a federal information-sharing organization.

It gathers the latest intelligence in the war on drugs and shares it with enforcement officers from the Drug Enforcement Administration, the U.S. Customs Service and others.

We recently reported on EPIC's confidential list of common hiding places on airliners. The bathrooms are the most popular spots. Drugs are also disguised as common freight on airplanes — frozen in blocks of shrimp or bagged in the aquariums of tropical fish, for example.

Automobiles take more re-fitting, but the drug smugglers have proved themselves equal to the task.

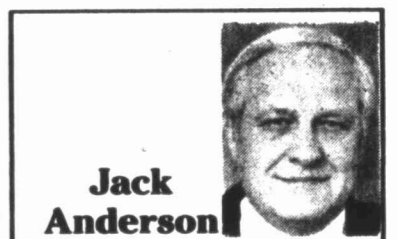

Here are some of the secrets of the highway smugglers shared by EPIC:

• New Mexico state police found 38 kilograms of cocaine behind a backseat head rest. The smugglers had built a compartment out of sheet metal and wedged it in the framework of the seat. It was opened by a remote-control latch with the button hidden under the dashboard.

• California police found a secret compartment behind the air conditioning ducts of a Chevrolet Camaro. Two switches had to be pushed to open the hiding place — one behind the air-conditioning control panel and the second near the fuse box.

• False trunk compartments have been found installed in Mercury Grand Marquis cars. The tipoff is a level spot where the trunk compartment is normally depressed.

One Grand Marquis stopped in Texas had been used to carry drugs into the United States and take guns back to Guatemala, EPIC reported.

• U.S. Customs agents at the California-Mexico border followed the nose of a drug-sniffing police dog and found that the gas tank on a Volkswagen van had been shortened to accommodate a secret compartment. Inside were 200 pounds of hashish.

• Some smugglers replace the upholstery stuffing in their cars with drugs. This is one of the easier techniques to spot, since the seats lose their bounce and the dogs can easily sniff out the drugs.

• The hollow spot behind the headlights of certain makes of cars is a small, but effective hiding place.

• Some of the compartments are protected by highly sophisticated locks triggered by remote-control switches. And the switches are as cleverly concealed as the hiding places — in glove compartments, under the hood, behind the parking brake.

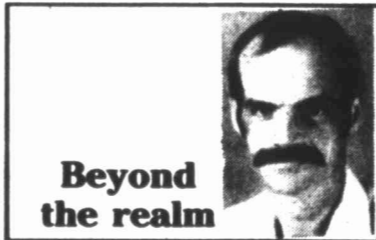

• Smugglers in a hurry, or those without a knack for body work, use the natural compartments in cars — door panels, steering columns, gas-line covers. Drug agents count on dogs to sniff out those hiding places.

If the dogs are foiled by hermetically-sealed bags, the police look for signs of tampering with screws and bolts. Another tell-tale sign is the lingering odor of air freshener or talcum powder, to baffle the dogs, or the smell of glue from a quick reupholstering job.

The drug enforcement agent who doesn't stay current with the smuggler's technology must resort to the crude tactic of tearing the car apart in a blind search — an embarrassing prospect if the owner is innocent.

I've decided I'll never complain about Big Spring summers again.

I went to San Antonio during my vacation and — although I had a wonderful time in most respects — the weather almost laid me low.

It wasn't so much the heat — the temperature was only in the mid-90s. No, what did me in was the humidity. Believe me, you haven't lived until you try to enjoy the Alamo while attempting to ignore 80 percent humidity.

It's no form of pleasure.

Although I lived in the Alamo City for a few years in the mid-1970s, I had forgotten about the humidity somehow. I was reminded, however, when I stepped outside and all my pores suddenly clogged shut.

I then made a solemn vow never to complain about the hot — albeit dry — heat of West Texas.

Now, whether I keep that vow remains to be seen.

Tender loving care

Son-in-law is a liar and a thief

DEAR ABBY: We need help. Our son-in-law is a thief. When he and our daughter visit us, invariably after they leave we discover that several objects are missing. (They live in another town.) If we confront them, we will lose our daughter's visits. In the past she isolated us for a couple of years at a time because she felt we did not treat her husband "right." They have been married for 17 years, and the only really good part of their marriage is our one and only grandchild.

We love our daughter, but her husband is a liar and a thief. This last visit, he took three items from our home — one is something that is very precious to me. We do not want to do anything as drastic as notifying the police. Please tell us how to handle this.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.

DEAR WHITE PLAINS: Call your daughter and tell her what is missing — particularly the piece that is very precious to you. Then see how she responds.

She surely knows that her husband is a thief, but if he steals from her own parents, and she accepts it, she is no better than he is.

Dear Abby

Perhaps it would be better if you didn't entertain them in your home if you have to go through the emotional turmoil and fear of wondering what will be stolen next.

DEAR ABBY: As a 47-year-old man who does not feel or think he looks older than he is, I resent clerks in stores asking me if I am entitled to a senior citizen's discount. Perhaps they think I look elderly, but I think it is impertinent of them to ask a question that implies that they think I am.

Some businesses offer discounts to "senior citizens," but it would be more tactful and better business for managers to provide clear, conspicuous signs explaining their senior citizens policy — then leave it up to the customer to decide whether or not to volunteer his (or her) age as a means of obtaining a discount. What do you think? Please air this in your column, Abby, and see if other readers agree with me.

CHARLESTON, S.C., READER

DEAR READER: I like the sign idea. In a society that values youth, as evidenced by the many products that promise to make us feel and look younger, it is not surprising that many people would be offended to be asked, "Are you entitled to a senior citizen's discount?" — especially those who look as though they are, but aren't. Readers?

***

DEAR ABBY: The phrase, "innocent until proven guilty" has been around for a long time and the wording really bugs me.

Wouldn't "innocent unless proven guilty" have a more positive effect on one's subliminal thinking?

R. BLOOMFIELD, POMONA

DEAR R.: Yes. "Until" implies that the person ultimately will be proven guilty. "Unless" suggests that the person may remain innocent forever.

STATEMENT OF INTENT TO CHANGE RATES

GTE Southwest Incorporated, in accordance with the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of rates in Texas, effective July 6, 1988. This proceeding has been previously docketed by the Commission as Docket No. 5610.

The proposed changes in rates will affect approximately 970,500 of the Company's Texas customers who represent all classes of customers subscribing to the Company's local exchange and foreign exchange services within the State of Texas, as well as all entities subscribing to the Company's billing and collection services within the state. The proposed changes in rates are designed to increase the Company's intrastate revenues by $81,407,000, or approximately 11.8 percent annually.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

A complete set of revised rate schedules has been filed with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and is available for public inspection in each of the Company's Business Offices in the State of Texas. A summary of the Company's rate filing has also been sent to the Mayor's office of each affected Municipality.

Caution: Not a stereotypical rock band

By LEA WHITEHEAD
Staff Writer

Their business card reads: CAUTION — High Voltage Rock. Their hair is long and dramatically styled. Their clothes take on a colorful and innovative "glam rock" look.

They are influenced by such bands as White Snake, Great White, Poison and Van Halen.

But here Caution, a local teen rock band, begins to depart from the image of the rock genre.

For example, they don't do drugs. They have part-time jobs after school. And adults describe them as "cute" and "well-mannered."

Members of Caution are: Eric McKinney, 16, lead guitarist, senior at Big Spring High School. The son of Rick and Patricia McKinney, Eric has been playing guitar since the age of 8, and is now studying classical guitar.

David Bingham, 16, guitar, junior at Coahoma High School. He is the son of Steve and Debi Bingham, and has played guitar about three years.

Rob Dennis, 15, drums, sophomore at BSHS. Rob, the son of James and Gay Collingsworth, comes from a musical family and taught himself to play drums.

Mark McKinney, 15, bass guitar, also a son of the Rick McKinneys. He began to study guitar at age 8, and switched to bass guitar about three years ago.

Brian Burson, 17, lead singer, senior at BSHS. Brian is from San Angelo and is living with the McKinneys while he attends school here.

His previous singing experience was with school choirs. They practice together about 10 hours a week, then each puts in four to six more hours refining his individual techniques. Practice sessions are at the McKinney home on Thorpe Road where the lots are generally large and the houses not too close together.

Nevertheless, a neighbor called the McKinneys one night, and asked if they couldn't play anything but "that loud rock music."

They can, and Rick McKinney told the caller that the band would play something for him. They opened up the windows and proceeded to play "Cotton Eyed Joe." A few minutes later, the neighbor called back and admitted, "Well, that's pretty good." It was the last complaint they had.

They've learned to take in stride the raised eyebrows and negative comments often heard from adults, say the McKinneys, who act as combination managers-counselors-promoters-den mothers. Rick McKinney played in a teen band here himself in the late sixties.

"I had to give up football, rather than sacrifice my hair," said Mark. "The coach was very nice about it. He asked me to cut it just a little. But I told him I was in a rock band, and he said he understood."

The unusual hair styles presented another problem when the youths looked for summer jobs.

"We must have applied at a hundred places and couldn't find a job," said David.

Then they approached Brenda Sandridge, owner of E.A.'s Diner, and she hired David and Eric immediately. "Hair never made the person to me," said Sandridge. "They are both very responsible and polite; they get to work on time and do a good job."

Eric is making deliveries, she said, "and he's making a lot of tips, so I'd say say the customers like him."

Caution's most recent concerts were at the Heart of the City Festival, a Rainbow Project Benefit, Highland Mall's Get Outta School Party, and a raft of private teen parties at graduation. They have a repertoire of about 40 songs, "... all positive; no bad language or drug themes," the group says.

Eric, who can both read music and play by ear, has composed some of their material.

The boys have a variety of interests, including architectural studies, weightlifting, theatre, sports and, of course, girls. But they've put most of these interests on hold for the past year to devote more time to their music.

"After we all get out of high school, we want to go to LA for a year or two," says Eric.

Letters get networks' attention

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Never underestimate the power of the pen, particularly when it's in the hand of an irate television viewer whose favorite show has just been canceled.

At least 2,800 people have written to NBC to express their disappointment with the cancellation of "A Year in the Life." Television critics have similar letters. The Associated Press received about 50 urging the return of the show next fall.

"I know that 4,000 people have written me about 'A Year in the Life,'" said Dorothy Swanson of Fairfax, Va., director of Viewers for Quality Television. VQT is the nation's leading organizer of mail campaigns and in the past has saved such shows as CBS' "Cagney & Lacey" and "Designing Women."

"I'm getting an average of 200 letters a day. I think if 4,000 people care enough to write to me, they will also write to NBC. This mail exceeds what I received in the 'Designing Women' campaign and is approaching 'Our World' (an ABC news show). Viewers are very upset. People are passionate about this show. People are tired of losing quality shows."

Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, said his network had never reversed a cancellation because of viewer mail. "But that doesn't mean we don't look at the mail," he said. "Our decisions regarding shows are not set in stone. It's just that we've never reversed ourselves yet."

Tartikoff said the most mail NBC had ever received was after it dropped "Little House on the Prairie" after 10 years. He did not recall the number of letters.

Other canceled shows, such as NBC's "Days and Nights of Molly Dodd" and "Aaron's Way" and ABC's "The Slap Maxwell Story" are also drawing mail, but not in large amounts.

The networks do respond to viewer mail. "Designing Women" was getting good ratings on Monday nights, then in December 1986, CBS moved it to Thursday against NBC's "Night Court." In two weeks it dropped from 20th in the ratings to 63rd. CBS pulled the show off the air.

Swanson's VQT members wrote 50,000 letters to CBS and the show went back on the air and became a hit again.

"We certainly do look at all viewer mail," said David Poltrack, vice president for marketing at CBS. "While volume is important, we differentiate significantly between mail that is coming in an unorganized way, from a large number of viewers, from that mail which is part of an organized campaign. If we get a lot of letters that are the same, we are somewhat skeptical of the depth of the feeling."

"When we feel we have a significant amount of viewer mail on a subject we try to confirm what they are trying to tell us through scientific research. At the end of the season we got a lot of mail about 'Wiseguy.' This is a program whose future was in doubt. We noted that we were getting a strong support. We didn't take that alone as an indication of the show's potential. We also interviewed a random sample of people and discussed with them their views toward 'Wiseguy.' We learned it had a very loyal audience."

Tyson retires at age 22

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Tyson has had enough. Tyson, who turned 22 today, apparently has turned his back on boxing. After his 91-second knockout of Michael Spinks in their heavyweight championship bout Monday night, Tyson warned that it might be his last fight. He complained about the treatment he and his family received from the media before the fight.

On Wednesday, saying he is "burned out," told the New York Post, "You can't never say never. But as of today, I am retired."

Considering his youth and the riches boxing has brought him — including more than $20 million for his quick knockout of Spinks — it's difficult to believe Tyson won't be back in the ring.

"I'm willing to sacrifice, to give up boxing to save my family..." he said. "I just feel it's the best thing to do."

During a news conference after the Spinks fight, Tyson, who married actress Robin Givens on Feb. 7, blasted reporters for their treatment of himself and his wife. He cursed out many members of the media, saying they tried to "disgrace my family."

"The difference in my personal and professional lives is so vastly different," Tyson said at his home in Bernardville, N.J. "I'm depressed. I'm unhappy. Losing a baby like that (Givens recently suffered a miscarriage), when you're trying to fight, is very sad."

"I'm inexperienced in handling things like that. I've put my wife through a lot of stress."

To avoid future troubles, Tyson insists his boxing career is over.

"I had fun," he said. "Boxing was good to me, but nothing lasts forever. After this fight I thought it over. I decided it's time to move on. It's time to call it a day."

Tyson has been the most dominant heavyweight of the last three years. He has a 35-0 professional record, with 31 knockouts. His victory over Spinks left him with few viable opponents.

One opponent he has found outside the ring is manager Bill Cayton. Tyson has filed suit against Cayton, contending he was duped into signing a new four-year contract with Cayton and the late Jimmy Jacobs shortly before Jacobs died in March. Tyson maintains that Cayton is not entitled to share in the money the champion will receive from the Spinks fight.

Tyson said Monday night that the turmoil in his life was nothing special.

"My whole life has been chaos," he said.

But he told the Post: "This is no way to live. I've had fun. I live to fight when I'm in that ring. But ... I'm not a happy guy.

It's my nature, I guess ... I'm moody. I know people will think I'll come back.

"They think I can't stay retired. But I can do it if I want to do it. Even though I love it, I can stop fighting cold turkey."

Not many other boxing people are convinced.

"They don't have to buy it," Tyson said. "They're not getting in the ring and doing the fighting. I am."

Tyson's next fight is scheduled for Sept. 3 against Frank Bruno in London.

Former world light heavyweight champion Jose Torres, who recently resigned as New York's boxing commissioner to write Tyson's biography, said he was confident the Bruno fight would be held.

"He's going to fight September third," Torres said. "I'm positive."

Rain halts Chrissy-Martina's battle

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A brief downpour halted play in the second set of the opening women's semifinal between defending champion Martina Navratilova and three-time winner Chris Evert at Wimbledon today.

In the 78th meeting of their careers, Navratilova took the first set 6-1 before Evert bounced back to lead the second set 4-3. Navratilova had just gone up 30-15 on Evert's serve in the eighth game, on a pair of backhand errors by the No. 4 seed, when the rain started and referee Alan Mills ordered play suspended.

Centre Court was covered as the rain increased and thunder rumbled over southwest London. The shower ended about 45 minutes later, the covers were removed and play resumed one hour and nine minutes after it was stopped.

Navratilova is bidding for a record ninth Wimbledon singles title and her seventh in a row.

Top-seeded Steffi Graf was to play third-seeded Pam Shriver in the second semifinal later in the day. The forecast was for more showers throughout the afternoon and evening.

Navratilova started quickly, breaking Evert in the first game and again in the third. She wrapped up the first set on a break, too, as Evert netted a forehand.

Evert steadied in the second set, breaking in the first game and holding for 2-0. Navratilova held at love to close to 3-2, then broke to even the set at 3-3.

But Evert broke right back to take the lead again. Then the rain came.

The men's semifinals are set for Friday after defending champion Pat Cash of Australia was eliminated by two-time champ Boris Becker in the quarterfinals.

"It's a matter of winning the big points, and I couldn't do that," Cash said after his 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 defeat on Centre Court. "When he had the chances, he got them."

The match was billed as the big showdown, the battle of the grass-court kings. But the product never matched the build-up. Becker was just too good in every department.

Navratilova almost didn't get to her 11th consecutive semifinal at the All England Club.

She had to rally from 4-2 deficits in the second and third sets of a delayed fourth-round match Wednesday to beat the unseeded Ros Fairbank.

"I was playing on instinct and guts," Navratilova said after the 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory that put in the

SMU ready to hire hoop coach

DALLAS (AP) — Assistant Notre Dame coach John Shumate will be named as new head basketball coach at Southern Methodist University, two Dallas newspapers reported today.

Both the Dallas Morning News and Dallas Times Herald reported that Shumate will be named as replacement for Dave Bliss, who left the team May 18 to become the head coach of the University of New Mexico.

The other finalist was Stu Starnes, head coach at Montana State.

The Morning News reported that Starnes said he will not be coming to Dallas for the news conference where the new coach will be introduced.

The Times Herald reported that Shumate met Wednesday with SMU Athletic Director Doug Single, SMU President A. Kenneth Pye and a committee of students, players and faculty members.

Starnes was interviewed Tuesday.

Ed Wisneski, sports information director for SMU, said Wednesday the selection would be announced today. "We've had 175 applicants, a good many of which were Division I head coaches," Wisneski said.

Shumate is in his second stint as an assistant coach with Notre Dame.

He became an assistant for Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps as a volunteer for the first time during the 1981-82 season. After two seasons at that job, he became the head coach at Grand Canyon College in Arizona, where he posted a 58-33 record in three years. He joined the Irish again in 1986-87.

"I saw his team play at Grand Canyon and he is a good young coach," said Dallas Mavericks coach John MacLeod.

MacLeod, who coached Shumate when he was a player in the NBA, added, "He loves the game and he loves to teach."

Starnes was an assistant at Minnesota and Montana State before becoming Montana State's head coach in 1983.

Mexico soccer team banned from Olympics

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Mexico was banned from all international soccer competition Thursday, including the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul.

FIFA, soccer's world governing body, banned Mexico for two years, because a Mexican junior team in a recent world championship qualifying tournament used four players who were over the age limit.

The severe sanction by FIFA's Executive Committee means Mexico is out of the soccer tournament at the Seoul Games, for which it had qualified, and is effectively disqualified from the 1990 World Cup.

FIFA did not immediately decide which country will replace Mexico at the Olympics.

Mexico's under-20 junior squad was disqualified from the 1989 world championship in Saudi Arabia and its berth awarded to the United States.

The two-year ban is retroactive to April 25, the date of the end of the qualifying tournament for the junior world championship in Guatemala City, a FIFA statement said.

The two-year span does not include the 1990 World Cup finals in Italy, which start in June of that year. But Mexico will not be able to play the qualifying tournament, where it scheduled to play the United States.

FIFA spokesman Guido Tognoni said Mexico was the first country officially proven to have used players over the age limit in a junior world tournament.

Brothers doing well on Junior PGA tour

Two local youth competed in the Texas-Oklahoma Junior Golf last week. Chris Sims and Jon Sims were among 809 golfers who participated in the tournament.

Chris, 17, shot a 81-76-71 and made it to the semifinals of the 17-year-old championship flight. He finished the tournament in 17th place.

Jon, 14, shot 92-83-85-87, and made it to the finals of the first flight of the 14-year-old division. He finished fifth in the tournament.

Steve's stuff

The Sims brothers will continue to play the West Texas PGA and North Texas PGA junior tournament circuit this summer. Tournaments will be in Abilene, Midland, Odessa, Andrews, Snyder, Sweetwater, Dallas, Belton, San Angelo and DFW Bear Creek East.

Chris and Jon are the sons of Rev. and Mrs. Sammy Sims.

The Ninth Annual Coors Marquez Brothers Invitational Racketball Tournament was last weekend and Tommy Worrell of San Antonio won first in the open singles division. Worrell defeated Jeff Edmond of Amarillo for the championship. Finishing third was Chuck Nicollette of Odessa and Trey Browning of Fort Worth was fourth.

Big Spring's Raul Marquez won the second flight championship.

In the open doubles competition, Tom Heiting and George Fierro of Odessa defeated Trey Browning of Fort Worth and Mike Wallace of Dallas, for the championship. Finishing third was the team of Jeff Edmond of Amarillo and Bynum Vincent of Odessa.

Jose Solis of Houston won the class B singles competition. Ken Roberts of Abilene finished second and Hugo Hernandez of Big Spring was third.

Colorado City High School will have two familiar faces missing when basketball season rolls around next year.

Veteran Wolves head basketball coach Mike Hart rendered his resignation last week. Hart, a 18-year coaching veteran, will be leaving the coaching profession to attend college in Gunnison Colo., working towards his master's degree. Wife Jennifer will also be working on her master's degree.

With Hart's leaving, the head job was offered to assistant basketball coach Raymond Zamarrilla. Zamarrilla nixed the offer because he has accepted a assistant coaching position at Weatherford High School.

Unsettled weather had no effect on fishing at lake J.B. Thomas and lake E.V. Spence over the weekend, but a mild inflow is expected to accelerate fishing later.

At Lake Thomas general conditions were good with especially good fortune trolling for white bass. Good crappie catches were being made in 10-20 feet of water.

Dorothy Douglas of Big Spring and Leslie Douglas of Odessa caught five black bass, weighing up to four pounds. Tommy Montgomery and Roy Buchanan of Garden City caught strippers weighing eight and 8.5 pounds.

With the recent Little League city tournament concluded, local radio station KBST announcers, Chuck Martin and Al Patterson chose an all tournament team. Here are the selections:

Lonnie Jackson of the National League Yankees; Jeff Phernetton, Brandon Adcock and Jerry Wayne Krause of the Coahoma Reds; Todd Parrish, David Akin and Read White of the American League Pirates; and Brandon Hamblin and Roland Allen of the American League Colts. Co-MVP's were Colts' Michael Jones and Timmy Rigdon.

White Sox's rally falls a little short

By The Associated Press
Royals Stadium was like Fenway Park and Wrigley Field. A nine-run lead wasn't all that safe.

Jamie Quirk, George Brett and Danny Tartabull homered as Kansas City took a nine-run lead Wednesday night. But the Chicago White Sox scored eight runs on nine hits in the seventh inning and the Royals had to hang on for a 9-8 victory.

American League

"You would think with a nine-run lead you'd be safe," Royals manager John Wathan said. "I've seen eight runs scored in an inning before, but never by a team that was behind nine-nothing."

The record for a comeback is 12 runs, by the Detroit Tigers on June 18, 1911 and by the Philadelphia Athletics on June 15, 1925.

Harold Baines doubled to start the Chicago seventh and Greg Walker followed with an RBI single.

Dave Gallagher singled and Dan Pasqua hit an infield single to shortstop Kurt Stillwell, who threw wildly past Brett at first base as Walker and Gallagher scored and Pasqua went to third.

Fred Manrique hit a run-scoring single to make it 9-4 and Jeff Montgomery relieved.

Ozzie Guillen singled and, after Ron Karkovice struck out, Gary Redus hit an RBI double. A wild pitch by Montgomery scored Guillen and Lyons hit a sacrifice fly to make it 9-7. Baines followed with his 10th homer and Jerry Gleaton relieved.

Walker singled before Gallagher grounded out to end the inning.

"That's the weirdest inning I ever saw," Royals catcher Jamie Quirk said. "Once you relax, it's hard to get it going again and that's what happened to all nine of us out there at the same time. All of a sudden, we go from being ahead nine-nothing to being in trouble."

"We got down nine-nothing but came back and gave 'em a game," Chicago manager Jim Fregosi said. "I'm proud of these guys, the way they battled. You can't ask for more than that."

In other American League games, Texas beat Seattle 1-0 in 12 innings, Boston beat Cleveland 5-1, New York beat Detroit 7-3, Toronto beat Baltimore 4-2, California beat Minnesota 2-1 and Oakland beat Milwaukee 7-2.

Quirk, Brett and Tartabull hit fifth-inning homers as Kansas City, which had 15 hits, took its lead.

Rookie Melido Perez, traded by Kansas City in the offseason for Royals' starter Floyd Bannister, fell to 6-5 while Bannister improved to 8-6. Steve Farr got the last three outs for his fifth save.

Rangers 1, Mariners 0
Charlie Hough pitched 11 scoreless innings and pinch-hitter Barbaro Garbey hit a sacrifice fly.

Hough, 8-7, allowed seven hits, struck out eight and walked three in the longest major-league outing since Milwaukee's Ted Higuera pitched 11 1-3 innings last Oct. 2. Hough has pitched into the 11th three times this season.

Mitch Williams got the final three outs for his 11th save. Mike Schooler, 1-2, lost in relief of Mike Moore, who allowed four hits in nine innings.

Red Sox 5, Indians 1
Roger Clemens struck out 10, ending a four-game losing streak at Fenway Park, and Ellis Burks hit a three-run homer as Boston won its fifth straight and ninth in 11 games.

Clemens, 11-5, allowed three hits in seven innings and raised his major league-leading strikeout total to 163. Lee Smith allowed one hit in two innings for his 11th save. Tom Candiotti, 7-7, lost for the sixth time in his last seven decisions.

Yankees 7, Tigers 3
Claudell Washington drove in three runs with a single, double and triple as New York beat Detroit for the first time in six games this season.

Jack Clark hit his 15th home run and two singles.

Steve Shields, 1-2, pitched 2 1-3 innings for the victory and Walt Terrell, 3-5, was the loser.

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 2
Jimmy Key allowed four hits in 6 2-3 innings in his first start since April 14.

Key, 3-1, struck out five and walked two. Tom Henke got the final out for his 16th save.

Toronto broke a 1-1 seventh-inning tie with three runs, two unearned, off Dave Schmidt, 3-3.

Angels 2, Twins 1
Johnny Ray and Darrell Miller hit run-scoring singles and Chuck Finley allowed four hits in seven innings.

Finley, 5-8, struck out four and walked three. Bryan Harvey allowed one hit in two innings for his eighth save. Allan Anderson, 4-6, allowed nine hits in six innings.

Athletics 7, Brewers 2
Dave Henderson hit a three-run homer, Mike Gallego hit a solo homer and Bob Welch pitched a six-inning.

Welch, 10-4, walked one and struck out five for his second straight victory after going five starts without one. Bill Wegman, 6-6, was the loser.

Mets overcome fiesty Pirates

By The Associated Press
Playing in front of postseason-sized crowds at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, the New York Mets gave a performance of championship caliber.

PITTSBURGH — New York Mets third baseman Howard Johnson is upended after making the forced out on a sliding Pittsburgh Pirates Andy Van Slyke during ninth inning action of Wednesday's game.

The Mets won twice in a series that drew a total attendance of 127,717, the highest ever for three games in Pirates' history. New York trailed 7-6 in the ninth inning Wednesday night, but Howard Johnson homered on a 1-2 pitch with two outs and the Mets went on to score in the top of the 11th and win 8-7.

New York now leads the second-place Pirates by 5 1/2 games in the National League East.

"You can look back and say we were lucky, but I'd say it's talent and not panicking," said Johnson, whose 14th homer came off reliever Jim Gott. "I heard the people yelling and it was loud, just like a playoff game. But that's the kind of team we are, we never give up no matter how bad it looks."

The Mets had blown leads of 4-1 and 6-5 and appeared to be beaten when Gott, who had saved Monday night's game, set down Kevin McReynolds and Darryl Strawberry to start the ninth.

"Sometimes when you think it's easy, it's impossible. Sometimes when it looks impossible..." Mets manager Davey Johnson said.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 4, Chicago 2; Los Angeles 2, Houston 0; San Francisco 7, Atlanta 2; San Diego 3, Cincinnati 2, and Montreal 3, St. Louis 2 in 10 innings.

After Johnson's homer put the Mets back in the game, reliever Roger McDowell took over. The right-hander worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the ninth and doubled and scored the winning run in the 11th.

"It was like Little League on Saturday morning. I got to hit and field and pitch and everything," said McDowell, 4-1, who allowed one hit in three innings.

Andy Van Slyke, whose 12th homer highlighted a four-run Pittsburgh rally in the fifth, was pleased with his team's performance but acknowledged the difficulty of beating the Mets.

"At least we didn't give it away," Van Slyke said. "We had 'em down three times, but they've got a lot of talent and are capable of scoring a lot of runs, and they proved that tonight."

Phillies 4, Cubs 2
Juan Samuel, pinch-hitter Bobby Dernier and Von Hayes hit consecutive run-scoring singles in the seventh inning as Philadelphia ended Chicago's four-game winning streak.

Calvin Schiraldi, 4-6, was protecting a 2-0 lead, but with one out in the seventh, Darren Daulton beat out a hit off Schiraldi's left ankle, Steve Jeltz singled and pinch-hitter Mike Young walked, loading the bases.

Les Lancaster replaced Schiraldi and Samuel singled to left, driving in Daulton. Pat Perry relieved Lancaster, and Dernier was credited with a single when right fielder Andre Dawson lost his ball in the sun. Hayes then singled to right.

Mike Maddux, 2-0, allowed seven hits in six innings. Steve Bedrosian retired the final two batters to earn his 13th save.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0
Los Angeles' Orel Hershiser pitched a two-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, outdueling Houston's Nolan Ryan.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to extend their NL West lead to 4 1/2 games over second place Houston.

For Hershiser, 12-3, it was the fifth two-hitter of his major league career. The right-hander walked one, struck out six and allowed only a single to rookie Craig Biggio in the bottom of the third and an infield hit by Billy Hatcher in the fifth.

Ryan lost his fourth straight decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters for the 178th time in his career.

Giants 7, Braves 2
Don Robinson allowed two hits in six innings in his first start in nearly three years and Will Clark hit his league-leading 19th home run as San Francisco swept a three-game series at Atlanta.

Robinson, 3-1, who had made 31 relief appearances this year and had not started since Aug. 18, 1985, gave up two-out singles to Dion James and Dale Murphy in the fourth inning.

Scott Garrelts allowed RBI singles by Andres Thomas in the seventh and ninth innings, but earned his fifth save.

Padres 3, Reds 2
Roberto Alomar hit a tie-breaking two-run homer and Eric Snow scattered five hits in 8 1-3 innings to lead San Diego.

Alomar hit his sixth homer in the fifth inning off Tim Lincecum, 0-1, who was making his first NL start.

Show, 6-8, won for the first time against Cincinnati since Aug. 15, 1986, a span covering seven starts.

Two of the hits off Show were solo homers — by Chris Sabo and Paul O'Neill. Show walked none and struck out three. Mark Davis struck out the final two batters to earn his 14th save in 15 opportunities.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2
Otis Nixon tripled to lead off the top of the 10th inning and Herm Winningham followed with a sacrifice fly as Montreal defeated St. Louis.

The Cardinals have lost 14 out of 19 and have four extra-inning losses in their last six games. The Expos are 10-3 in extra-inning games this season and 22-4 over the last two years.

Jeff Parrett, 7-2, pitched two hitless innings for the Expos. Nixon opened the 10th against Todd Worrell, 3-4, with a drive to right-center and scored on Winningham's fly to left.

Montreal starter Dennis Martinez allowed no hits until relief pitcher Bob Forsch singled cleanly to right with one out in the sixth.

The Expos took a 2-0 lead with unearned runs in the first and fourth innings against Danny Cox, making his first start since April 29 because of elbow problems.

Midland Angels blast Wichita Pilots, 11-3

By The Associated Press
The Arkansas Travelers exploded for four runs in the 10th inning for a 6-2 Texas League baseball victory over the Shreveport Captains.

In other Texas League action Wednesday night, Midland blasted Wichita, 11-3. Tulsa whipped Jackson, 7-2, and El Paso defeated San Antonio, 9-1.

Texas League

Bien Figueroa singled home Mike Robinson with the tie-breaking run for the Travelers in the 10th inning. Robinson singled and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt.

Tom Baine had an RBI single and Todd Zeile drove in two runs later in the 10th inning for Arkansas.

Everett Graham had a solo homer for Shreveport in the first inning.

The winning pitcher was Scott Arnold, 7-1. The loser was Jose Dominguez, 2-4.

Eric Pappas went 4-5 with three RBI and three runs scored to lead the Midland Angels to an 11-3 victory over the Wichita Pilots.

Pappas also had the game-winning RBI with his first inning two-run double and had his fourth homer of the year in the ninth inning.

Lee Steven had a two-run homer for Wichita in a four-run outburst in the sixth inning.

Craig Cooper had a two-run homer for Wichita and Billy Wrona drove in the other run for the Pilots with an RBI single in the third inning.

Chris Collins, 9-3, was the win-ing pitcher. The loser was Terry Gilmore, 6-5.

A three-run double by Chad Kreuter in the fifth inning highlighted the Tulsa Drillers' 7-2 victory over the Jackson Mets.

The Drillers also scored in the fourth on RBI singles by Gar Millay and Paul Postier and singles later in the game by Gary Alexander and George Threadgill.

Manny Salinas had an RBI double in the third for Jackson and Joaquin Contreras added another run with a single.

The winning pitcher was Steve Wilson, 8-5. The loser was Brian Givens, 3-8.

The El Paso Diablos got 13 hits, including a double and a triple off three San Antonio Missions pitchers enroute to a 9-1 victory.

Gary Sheffield put the Diablos on the scoreboard in the first inning when he drove in a run with a groundout.

Dan Scarpetta, 9-5, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mike Schweighoffer, 5-3.

After a couple of grueling five-setters, the 28-year-old Czechoslovak downed American Tim Mayotte 7-6, 7-6, 6-3.

The other semifinal will be between Stefan Edberg of Sweden and Miloslav Mecir. Edberg ousted unseeded Patrick Kuhn of West Germany 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 7-6, while Mecir dashed the Grand Slam hopes of another Swede, Mats Wilander, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Cash had been seriously tested only once on his way to the quarter-finals, despite coming into Wimbledon without a single tournament title this year.

He knew Becker would be far his toughest hurdle to date, but could not have imagined just how tough.

After being outplayed for two sets, Cash got back into the match when he broke Becker for a 4-2 lead in the third. But he couldn't hold on and immediately dropped his own serve.

Then came the crunch. With his title slipping away on the muggy afternoon, Cash saved three break points in the ninth game as his fans cheered. On the fourth, he sent a forehand deep into the backcourt and positioned himself perfectly at the net to cut off the return.

But the ball had flicked the net on its way and gave Becker just enough time to pound a backhand down the line past the lunging Cash.

The Australian, as if realizing the end was close, stood at the sidelines, threw his arms up in despair and took one last glance up at the stands.

Becker completed the break, served out the match, and Cash's reign was over.

"I had it the way I wanted in the first set," Cash said. "But I didn't have enough to put it together. I haven't been happy with my form the whole tournament."

Becker was more than content with his.

Public golf courses taking brunt of summer drought

By The Associated Press
Golf courses, usually lush this time of year, are cracked and parched from June's drought and face more water cutbacks as the dryness persists. Officials of the Professional Golfers Association and Ladies Professional Golfers Association said tour courses are holding up, so far. It's the public courses that are feeling the heat.

"The type of courses we play generally are further along than the general public courses, so they are better able to withstand conditions like this when they come up," Dave Lancer, assistant director of public relations for the PGA Tour, said.

"The municipal courses are on tighter budgets than the country clubs we play and they are suffering more."

For weeks, the drought has dried most of the nation's midsection and some of the Southeast, withering crops, killing cattle and costing farmers millions of dollars.

The National Weather Service's 30-day forecast, issued Wednesday, called for below-normal rainfall during July for Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and most of California.

But above-normal rainfall was predicted for some drought-plagued areas, including Montana, Wyoming, southern South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico and western portions of Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Gerald Faubel, manager of golf course buildings and grounds at the Saginaw, Mich., Country Club, said conditions there were miserable.

"Public courses are just burnt up," he said. "They're in terrible shape. Many are just trying to save their greens. It's conditions like this when you find out just how good your water systems are."

"It's extremely difficult, to say the least, to keep grass alive and growing," Faubel said. "Drought conditions are so bad we've begun to lose trees that have been stressed. That's very unusual."

Golfer Tom Watson was worried about the water, too, as he played in the PGA's Western Open at Oak Brook, Ill.

"Everybody's short of water. We're building a golf course outside of Kansas City, and we're short," Watson said. "It's on a lake — it's our lake and it's our water — and we're pumping 250,000 gallons a day. And we're running out."

John Segui, president of the Golf Course Superintendents of America, said the drought is so widespread that courses on the East Coast were just as imperiled as those in the Corn Belt.

Segui said May rains filled water reservoirs and soaked the soil, helping turf and trees in much of his region. But June's drought prompted him to cut back on fertilizer and wait to apply weed killers.

"It is so early to be in a condition like this," he said. "If it continues in July and August, I can see turf lost. That would require reseeding — and out on the West Coast, where we get our seed, they don't have a lot of it to reseed with."

Pro Larry Castagnoli said golf balls ricochet like pinballs over the Waveland Municipal Golf Course at Des Moines, Iowa.

"We have a pretty hilly course and when it gets dry like this you get some strange bounces," Castagnoli said. "The course becomes quite frustrating to play. Our play has cut back dramatically because of the heat."

Castagnoli and Anderson said golfers have been hitting the links early in the day, laying off during the heat and returning in the evening.

Courses in very bad condition — dry, cracked, with little or no grass — are generally those without irrigation systems.

"Our fairways and roughs are not growing. We haven't seen a rough mower or a fairway mower out for more than a month," Castagnoli said.

Some regions of the nation have restricted water use on all but greens and tees as cities attempt to conserve water.

"Anybody in this area who is on city water has had to cut back to greens and tees," Castagnoli said.

English lass making name for herself

COQUITLAM, British Columbia (AP) — Laura Davies has her LPGA opponents in awe of her power.

When the tour rookie from England steps to the tee, course marshals fall back another 50 yards — at least. Davies, 24, can drive a golf ball more than 300 yards. And, her peers are learning to respect the rest of her game, too.

"There is no one who hits the ball like Laura," said Nancy Lopez, the leading money winner on the LPGA tour. "She's really strong — and also good around the greens."

Davies shocked the golf establishment last year by winning the U.S. Women's Open in a playoff with JoAnne Carner and Ayako Okamoto before she became an LPGA tour member. Now she's appearing on the tour on a regular basis and has won $99,706 in 14 LPGA events this year.

Davies will be among the favorites today when 139 players begin the 72-hole, $500,000 du Maurier Classic at the Vancouver Golf Club. Top prize money is $75,000.

Carner said the par-72 Vancouver Club course plays on the short side, but there is plenty of room to hit a driver consistently.

Davies wowed galleries in practice rounds with her booming drives. For example, on the 495-yard 13th hole, she drove the ball almost 290 yards.

"I've won two tournaments this year, but I've also missed a couple of cuts," she said. "This course is pretty narrow, so I've got to keep it in play to be in contention."

"I've enjoyed myself so far on the tour. No department of my game is great, but then again no department is terrible."

Davies has a long swing that packs pure power. The popular 5-foot-10, 200-pounder might not be mistaken for Jan Stephenson by the crowds, but she is being quickly recognized as a player who may some day challenge Lopez as the dominant performer on the tour.

Lopez, 31, is one of the longer drivers on the tour and averages about 245 yards off the tee — about 35 yards short of Davies.

Carner describes Davies' swing as "scary" and concedes that Davies is "really a great shotmaker."

"She does a lot of position golfing out there," Carner said. "It's refreshing to see someone still attack a golf course in a short way."

Nelson gunning for second straight win

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — There's no question about the state of Larry Nelson's game. His only concern is how long he can keep it going.

"It's nice to be coming in to play a course and a tournament you like — and to be coming in having won the week before," said Nelson, who comes into the Western Open off a victory last week in the Atlanta Classic.

"This is one of the first tournaments I put on my schedule each year," Nelson said after a practice round for the $900,000 Western Open, which started today.

"This golf course is one of my favorites," said Nelson, runner-up in the Western last year. "It's as good as any course we play all year."

Nelson was near some PGA Tour records through three rounds of last week's Atlanta tournament. He was at 21 under par through 54 holes, one stroke off the record for three rounds, but missed a chance at the 72-hole record when he faded to a 1-over-par score in the final round. That was still good enough for a one-stroke victory.

"I wanted to get the record, score a lot of birdies on Sunday, but I got off to a slow start and that was it," said Nelson, a former U.S. Open champion who won his second PGA championship last year.

"It gives me something to shoot for. I know I'm still playing well, but they're two different golf courses, requiring two different mind-sets. I don't think you'll see anyone making 23 birdies in the first three rounds."

Nelson, 40, faces a field of 156 that is led by three-time Western Open winner Tom Watson and D.A. Weibring, who beat Nelson by a stroke in the flood-shortened Western last year.

Australian Greg Norman, who had planned to play, is among the missing. He's still nursing a wrist sprain suffered in the U.S. Open.

Some of the major contenders for the $162,000 first prize include former champions Andy Bean and Scott Simpson, Ben Crenshaw, Hale Irwin, South African David Frost and Bob Tway.

Par through 54 holes, one stroke off the record for three rounds, but missed a chance at the 72-hole record when he faded to a 1-over-par score in the final round. That was still good enough for a one-stroke victory.

1988 Property Tax Rates in Glasscock County I.S.D.

This notice concerns 1988 property tax rates for Glasscock County I.S.D. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. Compare it to the tax rate the taxing unit proposes for this year. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$2,186,863
+ Last year's debt taxes	$32,628
= Last year's total taxes	$2,219,491
Last year's tax base	$373,248,000
= Last year's total tax rate	$6000 /$100
This year's effective tax rate:	$2,229,491
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and taxes to correct appraisal roll errors)	$342,523,200
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting taxes on new property)	$6538 /$100
= This year's effective tax rate	$6734 /$100
Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings	$6734 /$100
This year's rollback tax rate:	$2,186,863
