Cause of Gray's death awaits study

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Although Tammy Lynn Gray was another apparent drowning victim at Lake Colorado City last week, it may be a minimum of six to eight weeks before an official cause of death is finally determined, according to medical authorities.

The 27-year-old Big Spring woman was pulled from the lake during the early morning hours of June 23 by her husband, Travis, and rushed to the Mitchell County Hospital where she was pronounced dead by doctors who unsuccessfully attempted to revive her, authorities said.

She is the fourth apparent drowning victim at Lake Colorado City since May 11, although the previous victims drowned in the turbulent waters of a discharge canal where swimming and fishing are prohibited.

Gray drowned in a section of the lake called Cooper's Cove — about one-quarter mile from the site of the previous drownings, officials said.

Mitchell County Justice of the Peace Joan Merkett said she ordered an autopsy because Travis Gray was so distraught he could not tell authorities what actually occurred that morning.

He was hospitalized for one day in the Mitchell County Hospital for treatment of shock, a nursing supervisor said.

Merkett said she was notified by the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office Monday that a preliminary autopsy had been conducted, but that the official cause of death is "pending."

"I haven't heard anything else. If she drowned it seems they would know that by now, but I don't really know. I'm just going to wait and see. There may possibly be an inquest," she said today.

Mitchell County Sheriff Wendell Bryant said Tuesday that he has assigned a deputy to investigate the circumstances surrounding Gray's death.

Bryant has been closed-mouthed about the status of the investigation. He was unavailable for comment today.

Bryant said Tuesday the sheriff's department had been stymied in their efforts to speak with Gray because he had been heavily sedated.

Bill Lene, chief investigator for the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office, said "8 to 10 percent of the cases we list as pending are drownings."

"In the vast majority of cases we handle, there are gross anatomical findings like a gunshot or stab wound. Drowning victims often have no apparent signs as to the cause of death, so we usually list them as pending in order to conduct further tests," he said.

An official cause of death may take six to eight weeks to determine — and perhaps longer — depending on the results of toxicology (blood and alcohol) tests, Lene said.

"If the toxicology results war-

Study: Texans lukewarm on taxes

By PEGGY EIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Texans are lukewarm about the current tax system, but they want to maintain at least the present level of state services, according to a survey presented to the Select Committee on Tax Equity.

The survey by the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, answered by 620 people, asked for a seven-point range of responses from "least agreement" to "most agreement." It was presented Thursday to the committee, along with a survey of businesses that drew 151 respondents.

Nearly 75 percent of Texans in the survey agreed moderately or strongly that tax rates should be raised for people with higher incomes, but 46 percent marked "least agreement" when asked whether a personal income tax is a fair way for the state to raise money.

"I think everyone on the committee acknowledges the reality that the people of Texas don't want an income tax," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, during an earlier break in the committee meeting.

"If and when the people of the state decide they want an income tax, then they'll get one, but obviously that's not going to be in the next session or the session after that," said Schlueter, D-Killeen.

Surveyed Texans also favored increasing business taxes, with 63 percent of respondents marking the upper half of the agreement scale. Institution of a state lottery drew strong support, with 53 percent marking "most agreement" and 20 percent, "least agreement."

A total of 36 percent of the respondents marked "least agreement" when asked about the fairness of a sales tax increase, while only 11 percent marked "most agreement."

In the business survey, 60.6 percent of the respondents said businesses in Texas pay at least their fair share of total state taxes. In addition, 54 percent of the respondents marked the top two levels when asked if state taxes on business are too high.

The chief executive officers surveyed supported using net income as the base for taxing business in Texas, with about two-thirds of the respondents showing strong agreement with the proposal.

Nearly two-thirds also agreed strongly that the Texas unemployment compensation tax discourages additional business hiring.

The current sales tax on services is confusing to businesses, according to the survey. About 82 percent of the respondents agreed strongly that they are confused about what services are subject to the tax.

Almost 44 percent of businesses responding to the survey said they believe temporary taxes adopted by the 1987 Legislature will not solve even the short-run fiscal problems of the state.

Making a mark

Thursday was a special day for the children of the Howard County Library Trailblazers, Stargazers summer reading program, as Angela Way, curator of the Heritage Museum visited, telling of the cattle drives and bringing branding irons to demonstrate. The youths were then allowed to stamp a piece of paper with the brands, using ink from an ink pad instead of using fire to heat the brands. Ryan Schwertmer, 8, holds his paper above his head for all to see in the left photo. Tasha Grummitt, 8, pushes hard on the brand to make sure it leaves a mark on her paper in the photo at right. With six brands and six ink pads, a constant flow of children provided for a hectic scene in the basement of the library.

$25,000 renovation, expansion plans studied

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Costs for the first step of a proposed renovation and expansion of the Howard County library have been tentatively budgeted at $25,000.

County Commissioners William B. Crooker Jr. and Paul Allen examined the basement area where the proposed renovations will be made and estimated the cost of tearing out concrete tile walls and refurbishing a 1,450-square foot area for a new children's section at $22,500.

An estimated cost for completing this first step of the renovation includes everything except possible additional air conditioning, Crooker said Thursday.

"We feel right now that the air conditioning we have is sufficient, but if it proves necessary, I feel safe in saying that additional air conditioning could be put in for less than $5,000," he said.

Librarian Judith Gray had estimated the total cost of proposed renovations to the basement and first floor for the preliminary budget session Wednesday at approximately $300,000.

She had requested $65,000 for the first step of a five-year plan that will involve moving the children's section of the library to the basement, installing an elevator in the library, and renovations to the upstairs section of the library including removal of steam radiators no longer used.

Commissioners determined during the budget workshop that further study would be necessary before budgeting for the renovations, for which Gray had requested $65,000.

Thursday's session involved a physical examination of plans of the building and of the basement to determine feasibility of removing several walls or portions of walls.

Additional improvements will include lighting, carpeting and painting. Asbestos insulation in the area also will be studied, Allen said, to determine whether it must be removed or may be left in place, since it is sealed and contained.

Upgraded lighting is planned for the current library to enable patrons to make use of the front area for a research and study area, Gray said.

Preliminary plans for the basement work call for hiring or implementing previously-hired laborers to do the partition removal, some painting and cleanup work.

Purchase of shelving and sub-contract work for moving electrical conduit and wiring is included in the $25,000 estimate of the first year's cost, Crooker said.

Fourth fund short; band is scheduled

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

With only three days remaining before the July 4th holiday, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce's fireworks fund is still short of its $5,000 goal.

The fund had $2,949 as of this morning, $2,051 short of its goal. Chamber assistant Teresa Sheppard said today, adding that her totals are incomplete.

(Fund chairman) Clyde McMahon (Jr.) was out collecting yesterday, and I don't have his totals yet," Sheppard said. "I'm pretty sure he didn't collect $2,000, though."

Business contributions comprise 47 percent of the fund. The remaining portion has come from individuals, with the majority of those donations being less than $5, Sheppard said.

"We've had a bunch of small donations," she said, "and this has been great, because we originally asked people to donate 50 cents."

Nine businesses or individuals have donated $100 or more, including Price Construction, Strickland and Knight and Seenic Mountain Medical Center personnel.

Persons can continue to donate to the fund at the Chamber office, 215 W. Third St., through Monday. In addition, collection barrels will be placed at the amphitheater during the community band concert Monday evening, Sheppard said.

She added that Carter's Furniture, 202 Scurry St., will be having a July 4 sale Monday, and the store will donate $1 to the fund for every sales ticket drawn.

The community band — under the baton of high school band director Ricky Mitchell — recently completed rehearsals, and is scheduled to perform, beginning at 9 p.m. Monday at the city park amphitheater.

The band is composed of Big Spring, Forsan and Coahoma residents, Mitchell said.

Show tunes — including Glenn Miller songs and selections from "The Music Man" — will be performed, along with patriotic songs such as "God Bless America," "Star Spangled Banner" and "America," Mitchell said.

The performance is free to the public and will be followed by the fireworks display.

No fatality-free days on highway yet

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas failed to record a fatality-free day on its highways during the first three weeks of the summer driving season, says the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts.

The coalition hopes to record "one deathless day" during the 101 days of summer.

But in the first 19 days of the vacation season, from May 28 to June 15, fatalities were recorded every day. The last deathless day on Texas roads was Jan. 5, 1977.

"From our preliminary counts, it appears that our best day so far was June 13. We had three people killed that day. The worst day we saw was June 4, with 12 deaths," David Wells said Thursday.

Law enforcement officers, community groups and private businesses across the state have joined in the effort to promote one day without a traffic death between May 28 and Sept. 5.

"We're urging all (motorists) to buckle up, avoid driving under the influence of alcohol and watch out for the other driver," said George R. Gustafson, president of the Texas Safety Association.

Rainbow camps fail inspections

ZAVALLA (AP) — Rainbow Family members preparing campsites for a July Fourth gathering — where thousands are expected to pray for peace — have so far flunked health inspections required before anyone else is allowed in the areas.

The back-to-nature group had designated six campsites in the national forests in East Texas, but a federal judge ruled Thursday that they may only have three sites, U.S. Forest Service spokesman Carl Gidlund said.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler also ruled that up to 700 people can go into each of the three designated areas to prepare them for more family members. Earlier, Justice had set a limit of 300.

Additional family members cannot enter the sites until each site passes a health inspection.

Family members designated three sites in the Davy Crockett National Forest and three in the Angelina National Forest, Gidlund said. But they will have to cut three sites, and he expected they may decide to scrap the Davy Crockett sites and concentrate in the Angelina forest.

The three Davy Crockett sites flunked a health inspection Thursday, as did the three in Angelina the day before, Gidlund said.

Meanwhile, family members seem determined to hold their event.

"I've been to 11 of these things and there are more cops here than I've seen anywhere else," said a family member who called himself Gypsy.

"We're here to celebrate with the family and all I see is cops with guns," he said.

Gypsy, who said he was from Oklahoma, and his group entered several days earlier, before marshals closed the road to what's known as the Mud Flats campground. They were allowed to stay but would not be allowed to return if they left, officials said.

The Rainbow Family, a loosely knit group of people from around the country, is holding its 17th annual "gathering of the tribes" over the Fourth of July weekend in the Angelina National Forest, about 125 miles northeast of Houston.

Group members earlier predicted they would assemble some 20,000 people, prompting the U.S. Forest Service to require them to get a campground permit.

After weeks of litigation, Justice agreed the meeting could be held but only if no more than 5,000 people gathered in each of six designated campgrounds.

Ruling termed a labor victory

AUSTIN (AP) — Civil rights attorneys are hailing a victory for organized labor a federal appeals court's ruling agreeing that parts of Texas' picketing statutes are unconstitutional.

The complicated ruling, issued Thursday by a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, came in a case involving the Texas Farm Workers Union's picketing of onion fields in Deaf Smith, Hale, Castro and Bailey counties during a 1980 strike.

In 1985, U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson ruled that sections of the state's picketing statutes were unconstitutional.

The appeals court ruling confirmed major parts of the earlier ruling, including a $500 award to labor organizer Jesus Moya for violations of his civil rights. The appellate court's ruling included throwing out the limitation of two pickets at any time within 50 feet of each other.

"This statute is so broadly written that it cannot help but have a deterrent effect on the exercise of First Amendment rights," wrote appeals court Judge John R. Brown in the opinion.

Moya, organizer for the International Union of Agricultural Workers, had challenged Texas' picketing statutes and their enforcement by Panhandle vegetable companies and Deaf Smith County authorities.

"What we challenged was the way the statutes had been applied to peaceful, lawful picketing activities," said Bill Beardall of Texas Rural Legal Aid, which was a party in the suit with Moya.

The TRLA alleged state authorities used the laws to break the strike.

Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for the state Attorney General's office, said the office hadn't seen the 5th Circuit ruling and couldn't immediately comment on it.

While holding that the state could prohibit "insulting" or "fighting words" on the picket line, the court also agreed with the previous ruling that threw out a companion law which made it illegal for pickets to be engaged in misrepresentations.

"The state cannot make it a criminal offense to picket if a single misrepresentation about anything at all, regardless of its relevance to the strike or any other matter of public concern. This statute cannot help but chill the exercise of free speech," the opinion said.

Store manager brutally killed

EL PASO (AP) — A janitor at a grocery store where another worker was found with his throat slashed faces capital murder charges, police said.

Antonio Madrid, 47, of El Paso, was charged with capital murder Thursday for the slaying of Rafael Adame, 63, of El Paso, Lt. Paul Saucedo said.

Adame, assistant manager of a Shur-Sav Foods store, was found in the storeroom with his hands bound behind his back, his head in a hood and his throat cut, police Lt. J.R. Grijalva said.

Cop's perjury frees prisoner

HOUSTON (AP) — A man sentenced to 90 years in prison for selling marijuana will be freed after serving only eight months because prosecutors say they cannot trust testimony given by the policeman who was the key witness in the case.

Louis Hebert Jr., 33, was convicted of selling 3½ pounds of marijuana to Ray Alan Swain — a former police officer and member of the Southwest Tactical Response Unit — on Aug. 26, 1987, while Swain was working undercover.

Swain was indicted Wednesday for lying at Hebert's trial, and he also has been indicted on unrelated theft and burglary charges.

The perjury charge alleged that Swain lied when he told a jury that Hebert had displayed a large quantity of marijuana in his pickup truck prior to his arrest.

Police order tight security

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities plan to be out in force for the funerals Saturday of four people after learning that past funerals for other former polygamist cult members have been stages for attempted violence.

The four people, three former polygamist cult members and an 8-year-old girl, were gunned down almost simultaneously in three separate attacks Monday afternoon in Houston and Irving.

Police have received unconfirmed reports that cult-related killings have been committed to draw other followers or former cult members out as targets for further bloodshed, Houston homicide detective Bill Belk said Wednesday.

Services for Mark Chynoweth, 36, Duane Chynoweth, 31, and his daughter, Jennifer, all of Houston, and Edward T. Marston, 32, of Irving, are scheduled for Saturday afternoon in Houston.

Court orders case restudy

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme set aside the death penalty of a Texas inmate, telling a state appeals court to restudy his case in light of a ruling regarding another condemned prisoner whose sentence was overturned.

Justices set aside the death sentence of David L. Powell, 37, convicted of killing Austin Police Officer Ralph Ablanado on May 18, 1978.

The court told the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to restudy Powell's case in light of their May 31 ruling in the case of Texas convicted killer John Satterwhite.

Satterwhite's conviction was overturned by the court because he was not allowed to visit with a lawyer before taking a psychiatric test.

FBI: Consultant passed secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI affidavits laying out the most detailed blueprint yet of the government's Pentagon bribery investigation disclose how agents eavesdropped as one consultant passed along insider information on nine Navy contracts worth more than $522 million.

On Sept. 30, 1987, FBI agents secretly listened in as George Stone, a Navy procurement official, read private defense consultant Mark C. Saunders the sealed bids from 10 companies competing for a $120 million air control contract, according to court documents unsealed Thursday.

Two search warrant affidavits unsealed in Dallas show how the FBI began its investigation in September 1986, placed telephone wiretaps and office eavesdropping devices on nine consultants, and traced the flow of insider information on nine contracts.

Soviets arriving for inspections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Soviet teams will arrive in San Francisco tonight to begin inspections intended to verify compliance with the U.S.-Soviet medium-range nuclear missile treaty.

The Soviet government notified the United States early today that the five teams will land in San Francisco at 8 p.m. PDT, said Kendall Pease, a spokesman for the U.S. agency working with the Soviets.

Under the treaty, the Soviets need not list the sites they want to visit until they have been in the United States 48 hours, Pease said.

Other Soviet inspectors will inspect sites in the eastern United States, but their arrival time has not been relayed to the United States, Pease said.

The United States announced Thursday that a U.S. team would arrive in Moscow this afternoon to begin inspections of Soviet facilities.

Plant cleanups to cost billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleaning up environmental contamination and correcting other problems at the nation's nuclear weapons plants could cost as much as $70 billion and extend beyond the year 2010, according to government estimates released today.

The report was prepared by the U.S. Department of Energy and released by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who had requested it.

The department issued two sets of estimates, an "expected" projection representing the most likely requirements for each site and a "high" projection of what could be required to meet more stringent interpretations of existing laws, regulations and policies that could reasonably be imposed on the defense plants.

"Within those bounds, the cleanup of contaminated sites and corrective actions could require between $40 billion and $70 billion in addition to an ongoing base program of $700 million per year," the department concluded.

Shoplifter gets 24-year sentence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A shoplifter with a long history of thefts was sentenced to 24 years in prison by a judge who told her, "You're always going to be a thief."

Shirley York Doby, 35, of Little Rock was sentenced as a habitual felon with seven prior theft-related convictions. Pulaski County Circuit Judge Floyd J. Lofton cited a "rap sheet as long as my arm" in justifying the sentence.

"You're just a thief, you're a habitual thief, you're always going to be a thief, and there's nothing we can do about it," Lofton told Doby before sentencing. "I intend to send you to prison for as long as I can."

Lofton sentenced her to 24 years in prison on a charge of theft of property, for which he had found her guilty at a non-jury trial June 14.

Happy 25th birthday, ZIP code

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ZIP code, that string of numbers bringing up the rear of every American address, is a quarter-century old today.

"We'd certainly describe it as a roaring success," says John G. Mulligan, senior assistant postmaster general for mail processing and delivery.

The Postal Service handles more than double the mail today that it did when the codes were introduced.

Conference talk

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, right, confers with Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers, at the Communist Party Conference's third session in the Kremlin Thursday.

White House to test employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential employees will get letters next week telling them they face random drug tests in about 60 days, a step announced as an embarrassed White House grappled with revelations of staff drug abuse.

Both President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, who has campaigned extensively against drug use, expressed dismay Thursday at the disclosure that two female National Security Council secretaries had resigned and three Secret Service officers were suspended during a drug probe.

"I think it's just evidence of what we've been saying... No one is exempt," Reagan said, adding, "This problem crosses all kinds of lines."

Mrs. Reagan, through her spokeswoman Elaine Crispin, voiced disappointment and said, "Drugs are everywhere — in the work place, movie industry, sports fields and college campuses. It's time everyone became involved and aware and intolerant of drug use."

Her husband, however, advocated treatment rather than intolerance for the White House employees implicated in the case.

Reagan said during brief comments to reporters that "if it's just a case of using" drugs rather than dealing, "I would like to see us do our best to get them into a drug treatment organization, and that they will agree to accept a cure."

Neither White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater nor Secret Service spokesman Bob Snow would identify the individuals involved or the illegal substances allegedly used. Published and broadcast reports have said the probe focused on cocaine and marijuana use.

Fitzwater said letters will be sent to the 1,600 presidential employees next week warning that a mandatory, random program of drug testing will commence 60 days hence.

Fitzwater said the tests will be conducted six times a year, with each round involving about 2 percent of the staff.

Included are employees of the Office of Management and Budget, the National Security Council and the offices of the vice president and the first lady.

Fitzwater said two female clerical employees "admitted drug use and were separated from the NSC" several months ago. The spokesman refused to say whether they had sensitive positions on the agency, the White House unit that advises the president on a wide gamut of foreign affairs.

Adding to the disconcerting news was the alleged involvement of uniformed members of the Secret Service.

Gorbachev issues reform plea

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev made an emotional plea for his proposals to redistribute power in the Soviet Union, emphasizing that political change is essential if his economic reform is to succeed where similar attempts failed.

He took the floor for the second time before 5,000 delegates at the Communist Party conference he called to assess his reform program.

In his 40-minute speech Thursday, Gorbachev suggested that Soviet socialism will die if his proposals to restore more real power to local legislative councils are blocked.

"Society is waiting for it," he said. "The whole of socialism is waiting for it."

The speech ate into the schedule of a conference where only 47 delegates of 261 who asked for the floor have spoken. Officials originally said the gathering would end today.

Nortega offers new peace talks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega said Secretary of State George P. Shultz's trip to Central America could reignite Nicaragua's civil war and that Sandinista troops will be on guard despite the renewal of a truce.

Ortega said Thursday he was extending a unilateral cease-fire until July 31. He also proposed new peace talks with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels, which have been fighting the leftist government since 1981.

The rebels have not yet replied to his proposal for a new round of talks in Managua July 27-29.

In Guatemala City, Shultz and leaders of the Nicaraguan Resistance on Thursday discussed reviving the talks and using a carrot-and-stick approach with the Sandinistas.

Contra leader Alfredo Cesar said they talked about offering U.S. aid to the Sandinistas to induce them to enact promises of democratic reforms. They also discussed renewed military aid to the rebels if the Sandinista refused.

Iraqi raid kills 13 South Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An Iraqi raid on a gas plant construction site in Iran has left 13 South Korean construction workers dead and 37 others injured, Daelim Industrial Co. reported today.

The South Korean contractor said the raid occurred Thursday in Kangan, a town on the coast of the Persian Gulf about 550 miles south of Iran's capital, Tehran.

Officials said that eight Iraqi Air Force planes bombed the area Thursday morning, firing six rockets and strafing the area with machine gun fire, according to reports from Daelim's construction manager in Kangan.

The injured workers have been evacuated to hospitals on the nearby coastal city of Bushehr, the officials said.

Ethnic strife foils unity efforts

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Romania's move to shut down a Hungarian consulate was unprecedented in the Warsaw Pact alliance and shows how historically rooted ethnic strife can foul up Soviet-led attempts to forge unity in East Europe.

Seventy years after Romania gained the region of Transylvania from Hungary, the two neighbors are still bickering over treatment of the 1.7 million ethnic Hungarians who live in the fictional homeland of Count Dracula.

In the past two years, the dispute has escalated sharply, pointing up the difference between Hungary's reform-minded communism and the inflexible regime of Nicolae Ceausescu, which is increasingly isolated even among its East bloc allies.

British claim hostages are alive

LONDON (AP) — The government has evidence that Britons held hostage in Lebanon are alive, but is uncertain about the fate of Anglican envoy Terry Waite, a Foreign Office spokesman said Thursday.

Based on conversations with freed French hostages in May, British diplomats "were able to draw encouragement" that television journalist John McCarthy, 31, and lecturer Brian Keenan are alive, said the spokesman.

"But so far as Terry Waite is concerned, we've got no hard evidence about his well-being or whereabouts," he said on condition of anonymity, in keeping with British practice.

FAITH SEES POTENTIAL BLESSINGS IN OUR EARTHLY HAZARDS

Throughout history, many parts of the world have been dramatically affected by volcanic eruptions. Islands have been created and destroyed by them, and they are frequently associated with earthquakes. You may well ask how anything good can result from such terrifying upheavals. The answer is: there are areas of dormant volcanic activity which emit steam from fissures in the ground, and which are seen as a potential low-cost and inexhaustible source of energy which could benefit millions of people. Indeed, it is already being harnessed for this purpose. The forces of nature can either cause great disasters or prolong and enrich people's lives. It all depends on man's willingness to use his God-given intelligence to create the necessary technology. Thank the Lord for this great opportunity He has given us, and pray that we will always make good use of it.

Archbishop denounced

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops are urging supporters of excommunicated traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre to affirm their loyalty to the pope and remain united with the church.

On Thursday in Ecône, Switzerland, Lefebvre defied the Vatican and consecrated four bishops of his St. Pius X Fraternity, declaring that the church had become corrupted with modernism.

The Vatican denounced the rebel prelate for provoking the rebel schism in 118 years and declared Lefebvre and the bishops expelled from the church.

The Vatican will announce its position on the priests and lay supporters of Lefebvre in the coming days, Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro said today. Under church doctrine, Lefebvre will always be a bishop since he was appointed as a successor to the Apostles, said a Vatican official.

Navarro has estimated Lefebvre's supporters at 80,000 to 100,000. But other Vatican officials say around half a million people turn to his priests for various church functions, and Lefebvre says he has millions of sympathizers.

"Those who are sympathetic to Archbishop Lefebvre and may have found it almost impossible to accept the renewal of the church life endorsed by the Second Vatican Council are now faced with a painful choice," said Cardinal Basil Hume, the archbishop of Westminster.

"I would urge them to reaffirm their loyalty to the successor of St. Peter and to remain within the unity of the Catholic Church," he said. "To continue in support of the archbishop and to worship with the fraternity of St. Pius X is to leave the Catholic Church."

Vatican officials were visibly angered by the consecrations. A concert scheduled Thursday evening at the Vatican was canceled to express "deep pain" over the schism.

Lefebvre rejected a last-minute appeal by Pope John Paul II before elevating the bishops. Less than two hours later, the Vatican said the five had excommunicated themselves by defying papal authority.

An excommunicated Roman Catholic is unable to receive the church's sacraments, which include the eucharist and last rites, also known as the sacrament of the sick.

A Vatican statement said the consecrations were a "formally schismatic act." A schism is a formal rupture with the Vatican.

Lefebvre's act provoked the first major split in the church since the Old Catholics broke with the Vatican after the First Vatican Council proclaimed the doctrine of papal infallibility in 1870.

The Vatican identified those excommunicated as Lefebvre and the four bishops: Bernard Fellay, Bernard Tissier de Mallerais, Richard Williamson and Alfonso de Galarreta.

Reports from Ecône said Brazilian prelate Antonio de Castro Mayer, bishop of Campos, assisted at the rites and also faced excommunication. But Navarro said the Vatican was awaiting clarification on his role in the ceremony.

Lefebvre, an 82-year-old Frenchman, called the sanctions "null and void" and told his supporters not to pay any attention to them.

Excommunicated

ECONE, Switzerland — Controversial Roman Catholic Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, left, walks from his seminary at Ecône to a nearby tent to ordain 16 of his traditionalist priests Wednesday. Lefebvre, who has campaigned against the "satanic influence of liberalism," initiated four priests into the order of bishops before being excommunicated Thursday.

Virgin Mary

Texans visiting Yugoslavian shrine

BAY CITY, Texas (AP) — One of this summer's hot tourist spots for some Texans does not promise a gentle sun and a pounding surf. Instead, it offers rugged mountains and a quiet spirituality.

It is Medjugorje, a small Yugoslavian village where reported apparitions of the Virgin Mary have occurred since 1981.

People, mostly Catholic, throughout the world have traveled to this place, where six young people have reportedly received messages from the mother of Jesus Christ.

Her main message, they say, is simple: peace, prayer from the heart, fasting-penance, conversion and faith.

One Florida-based travel agency that handles these pilgrimages reports 3,000 trips last year, with the number increasing rapidly.

"It is one of the most popular programs we do in our agency," said Debra Tesoriero, director of religious programs for ITS International Tours. "It far outweighs the others."

ITS organizes tours to Rome and the Holy Land, as well as to Fatima, Portugal, and Lourdes, France, where church-authenticated Marian apparitions have occurred.

Since May 2, ITS has had 13 groups depart with each group averaging 40 people, she told the Bay City Tribune. Interest in making the trip is "spreading like wildfire all over the country," according to Mic Hartenstein, of a New Orleans affiliate, a non-profit organization established by nuns.

A recent television segment on ABC's "20/20" will undoubtedly raise the interest even higher, he observed.

Betty and Vic Urbanovsky of El Campo use the agency when they organize groups to make the trip to Medjugorje. Betty said she has been asked to give many presentations on her visits to Medjugorje, and has taken over 200 people since her first visit in April 1987.

"Each time, the people that went all felt what we felt and so I continued taking groups over," she said.

The groups she takes come from all over Texas and different parts of the country.

"It was as if Our Lady chose someone out of every parish and they went back to spread her message," Ms. Urbanovsky said.

She said one of her groups returned last week and another group will leave July 5 with trips scheduled for August and September. For every 20 people who go on one of the trips, Mrs. Urbanovsky said she could take a nun or priest free of charge.

Medjugorje was very uplifting,

"almost like a retreat," said Msgr. James Brunner, pastor of Holy Cross Church in Bay City.

Brunner said he became interested in Medjugorje when members of his former parish in El Campo made the trip.

"I think the parishioners who'd go became somewhat more involved with the church," said Brunner.

"They would attend Mass more regularly than they had in the past. From my point of view, I saw some very positive things coming out of it."

"The thing that impressed me the most was the faith of the people," he said. "They offered Masses most of the day and those were all well-attended. Very religious atmosphere, a very spiritual and that was what impressed me most about the entire time I was there."

Much of the travel literature describes the openness of the villagers, who host visitors in their homes. Many of the villagers have built additions onto their houses to accommodate visitors, said Brunner.

"We stayed with a particular family and I didn't get to know them all that well because we saw them only at meals," said Brunner. "I didn't speak Croatian and they didn't handle English very well," he said with a chuckle.

Archdiocese to sponsor gay Mass

SEATTLE (AP) — The Archdiocese of Seattle plans to take over sponsorship of a Mass for gay Catholics from Dignity, a group that opposes traditional church teaching on homosexuality, it was reported today.

Announcement of the change, to take place about Aug. 1, was expected today, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported. It was negotiated during the past year, the newspaper said.

Dignity has been forced out of churches in several cities, including New York and San Diego, since a 1986 Vatican letter labeled all homosexual activity a sin and said even a tendency toward homosexuality is an "objective disorder." The directive warned bishops not to support any group that condones homosexual activity.

The change was expected to be announced today in the form of an edict from Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen and Coadjutor Archbishop Thomas Murphy.

The Seattle change would follow the lead of Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, who earlier this month took similar steps in Chicago. His solution to the Dignity dilemma was initially hailed by gay activists as an acceptable alternative to an outright ban of the group from church property, but the issue has since split Chicago's homosexual Catholic community.

Mass for homosexuals was never formally sanctioned by the Seattle archdiocese, but the group's presence at St. Joseph Church was approved by the parish council and supported by a large number of the clergy, religious and laity.

That tolerance figured prominently in the Vatican's decision to discipline Hunthausen, who in 1983 delivered, on videotape, the welcoming address at Dignity's national convention in Seattle and permitted the group to celebrate Mass at St. James Cathedral.

Although archdiocese officials declined to provide details of its ministry to homosexuals, the newspaper quoted sources as saying that the Rev. Gerald Stanley, pastor of St. Edward parish, would be coordinator.

Characterizing negotiations between the church and Dignity as "painful and frustrating," one priest who didn't want his name published said many Dignity members are struggling to determine if they can accept the archbishops' decision and still maintain their integrity.

Dignity, a national support group with more than 100 chapters, has sponsored Mass, sacraments, educational and social programs, and has worked for equal rights for homosexual Catholics for more than 20 years. According to the organization's statement of purpose, homosexuals can express their sexuality in a morally responsible way.

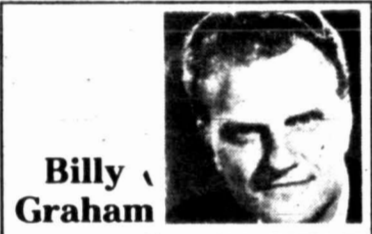

Soon after Hunthausen addressed Dignity's 1983 convention, he became the target of a papal investigation and eventually was stripped of much of his authority.

Hunthausen's authority has been restored, but ending Dignity sponsorship of the Mass at St. Joseph apparently was a condition set by the commission of U.S. bishops appointed to supervise the Seattle church.

The commission has until October to make its final report on Hunthausen, who was criticized for encouraging a "climate of permissiveness."

Blessed are those who mourn . . .

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My wife died almost a year ago, and I'm still overwhelmed with grief. A friend of mine says I shouldn't grieve because the Bible says it's wrong. I have no doubt that I'll see her again someday in heaven, but that doesn't do anything to take away my loneliness. I have even withdrawn from many of my friends because it's hard to be with them. Is it wrong for me to feel this way after so many months? — J.H.

Billy Graham

him. Jesus promised, "Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted." (Matthew 5:4).

What should you do? First, thank God frequently for the happy times you and your wife shared together. Yes, the memory of them may make you sad, but it will remind you of God's goodness in allowing you so many good years of happiness (which many people never experience).

In addition, step out and re-establish the friendships you have allowed to lapse. Although it may not be easy at first, you need their friendship to overcome your loneliness and sense of loss. In addition, ask God to guide you to others who have recently lost a loved one and who need your encouragement.

Episcopalians struggle with sexuality

NEW YORK (AP) — The Episcopal Church is struggling through a quagmire of controversy over sex, while also straining to reverse a gradual decline in membership.

Efforts to increase adherents through greater evangelism had wide support as the the denomination begins its triennial governing convention in Detroit.

But conflict over sexuality was rippling through the 2.7-million-member denomination on several fronts — regarding inclusive liturgical language, abortion and sexual relationships.

At the center of the controversy is a report on sexual morality from the church's commission on human affairs and health, directed three years ago to examine the issue.

Also firing up the conflict has been a 110-page study guide,

"Sexuality: A Divine Gift," issued by a church headquarters unit. Several bishops have charged it ignores church standards of celibacy in singleness and sex only in marriage.

Further exacerbating the issue was action early this year by the Newark, N.J., diocese encouraging ministry to those "living out alternate patterns of sexuality."

This was interpreted as condoning clergy blessings of committed homosexual unions.

However, the church-wide study commission, headed by Bishop George N. Hunt of Rhode Island, makes no such recommendations, but expresses differences over the morality of some sexual unions apart from marriage.

It affirms that "life-long, monogamous marriage is the normal or ideal context for intimate sexual expression between Christians" and says extra-marital sex is immoral because it violates the marital bond.

However, the report adds that some pre-marital and post-marital "sexual relationships intend to mirror, at a significant level, the faithfulness of marriage."

"Some of them surely have the potential to be life-giving and not life-draining. However, a widespread and increasing number of these relationships appear to us to witness more to promiscuity than to fidelity."

Consequently, such relationships should not be affirmed by the church as acceptable, the commission says, although it could not agree on whether some sex relations apart from marriage are moral.

"Old standards may yet prevail in the future."

'Rainy day fund' is among amendments

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of State Jack Rains picked the November ballot positions Thursday for three proposed constitutional amendments, including one to establish a "rainy day fund" to be tapped in a future state budget crisis.

All three amendments will be placed well down the general election ballot — following the races for president, U.S. Senate, and numerous state and local office — but Rains said he believes Texans will give the ideas their due.

"I have a lot of confidence in the voters," Rains said after drawing the three amendments out of a cowboy hat to determine their order on the ballot.

"We found that in the past, the electorate of Texas understands these questions. I don't think the length of this ballot poses any problem at all," he said.

Rains noted that voters last November waded through a record-length ballot that included more than 20 amendments.

"They demonstrated the patience and the intent. They showed their discrimination" in that election, he said.

The rainy day emergency fund will be the second of the three amendments considered by voters.

The amendment, authored by House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, would create the special fund from which money could be withdrawn anytime for any purpose if two thirds of the House and Senate agree.

Morales: Income tax likely by next century

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Texans will get an income tax when they demand one from their lawmakers, the vice chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said Thursday, predicting such a tax is likely "by the time we get into the next century."

"When the public and when the business community generally demands that sort of option in order to allow for the opportunity to have property tax relief, sales tax relief or what have you, the Legislature will be sensitive to those concerns and, I think, will respond to those concerns," said Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio, during a break in a meeting of the Select Committee on Tax Equity.

The committee, which is to make recommendations to the Legislature, heard presentations on a personal income tax, but Morales said he doesn't know if a specific income tax recommendation will be directed to the 1989 Legislature.

The "responsible course of action" is to proceed cautiously with tax reform, he said.

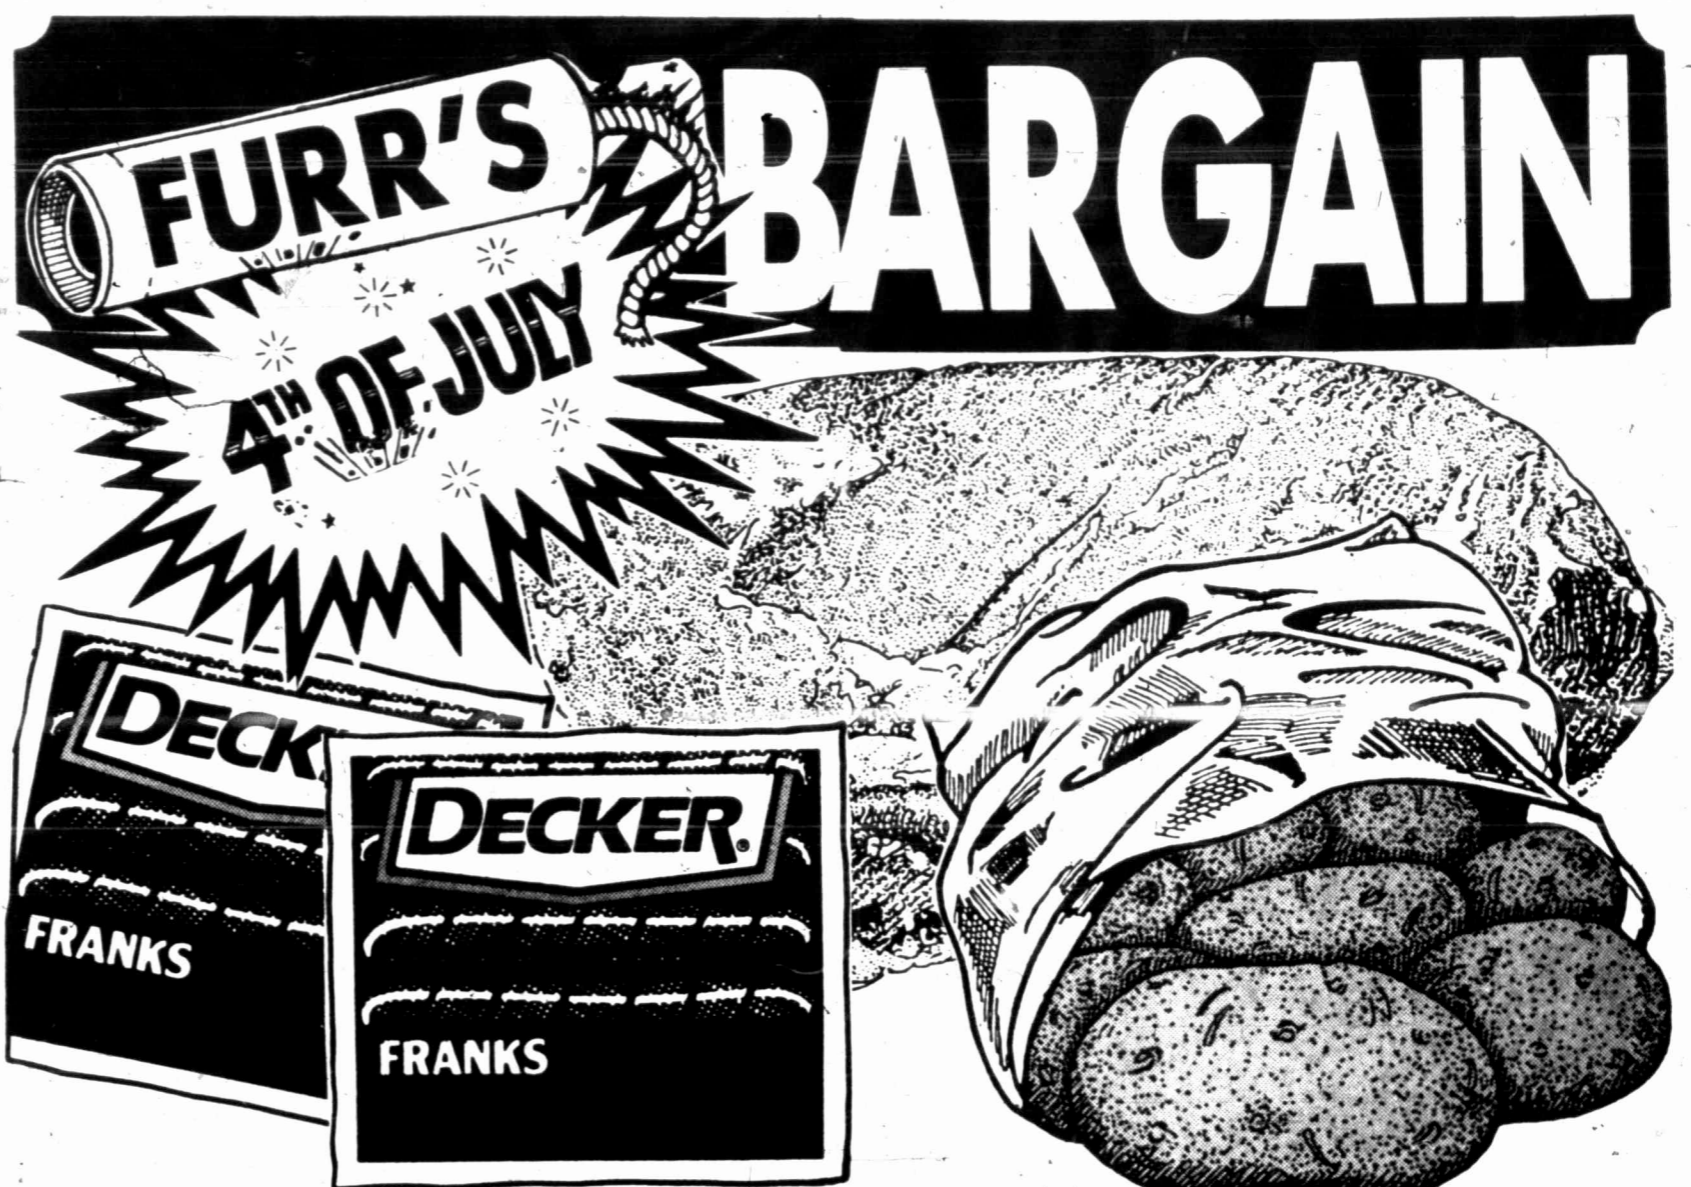

"I think it is far likelier than not that by the time we get into the next century, some form of income taxation will be a portion of the Texas tax structure," he said. He added he doesn't know whether it would be a personal or corporate income tax.

But Morales said he thinks the only way an income tax would be justifiable from the public's perspective is if it were coupled with significant property tax relief and/or significant sales tax relief, and I think that's as it should be."

Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the imposition of a personal income tax should be accompanied by a constitutional ban on whatever tax it is purported to replace.

"If we're going to have an income tax, let's eliminate the sales tax. If the sales tax is that bad and that regressive, let's get rid of it," he said.

Morales disagreed with the suggestion of a constitutional ban on a type of tax.

GALVESTON — Capt. Ernie Galvan, head of the Criminal Investigation Division, and his son, Tim, a member of the patrol division, both work for the Galveston Police Department.

For Galveston forces, law is a family affair

By JOYCE BOYD
The Galveston Daily News

GALVESTON (AP) — Tim Galvan and his father share the same employer, the Galveston Police Department.

Capt. Ernie Galvan is head of the Criminal Investigation Division and his son is a member of the patrol division. They don't see much of each other, but Tim says he gets some ribbing about the relationship when his father is on the police radio.

"Oh, they'll say 'Tim... your daddy's talking,'" the younger Galvan said.

But Tim Galvan takes it in stride. He says his father never wanted him to be a police officer because of the risks to his personal safety.

His dad never came home with police stories, either, Tim Galvan says.

But Tim had his mind made up from the time he was a safety patrol officer in grade school and a lifeguard in high school. He became a reserve sheriff's deputy and went on to the Galveston Police Department Academy.

While his three years on the force may seem few compared with his father's 34 years of service, he said he has had a wide range of experiences and does it "not for the money... but because I enjoy excitement and the difference divisions."

Capt. Galvan said he used to worry about Tim, but has faith in his son and the department and worries less now.

Another Galveston police captain, Dale Rogers, in charge of administration, says he also worries about a son on the force.

"It's not a good feeling with your son out there. You worry about all your officers, but when it's family you worry more," Rogers said.

Officer David Rogers, who has been on the force eight years, was working elsewhere when he decided to take the police exam. When his former employer found out about it, he was fired.

Rogers says he once had to supervise his son, and probably was harder on him than any other officer.

Rogers says he never encouraged his son to be a police officer. But the family is proud of their involvement in law enforcement and his grandsons, Christopher Alcala, 2, and Tony Hand, 4, have authentic police outfits and toys. Christopher's father is a police officer with the University of Texas Medical Branch.

The Galveston County Sheriff's Department also has father-son officers on the roster.

Pepper Harvell Sr., a former League City police officer, works in the warrants division. Pepper Harvell Jr. works in electronic security in the county jail. He has been with the department five years; his father is a veteran of 23.

"I never said a word about his being a police officer and I never encouraged him," Pepper Sr. said.

"My mother is proud because I followed in my father's footsteps," Pepper Jr. said.

Woman only has memory

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 41, happily married and the mother of two teenagers. I have a sad story from my past that I want to share with your readers, especially couples who are living together and think it's the same as being married.

Back in the '60s when I was 22, I had been living with my boyfriend for two years. I wanted marriage, but "John" said we didn't need any "little piece of paper" to keep us together — we were as good as married.

Well, John was in a terrible auto accident. When I rushed to the hospital, they wouldn't let me see him because I wasn't his next of kin — I was not even a relative! I sat in the waiting area for 20 hours until his mother arrived from out of town and asked the doctors to let me see John. He died the next day without regaining consciousness. His mother, whom he had not seen for several years (they did not get along), made all the funeral arrangements without consulting me. She had his body cremated and sent to a distant state where she lived for burial. She took all his clothing, books and personal belongings from our apartment and left me nothing that belonged to John. She was also the sole beneficiary of his insurance, so I received nothing.

Suddenly that "little piece of paper" seemed mighty important. So, Abby, please tell your readers that living together means nothing in the eyes of the law.

OLDER AND WISER IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR OLDER AND WISER: Your point is well-taken, and well worth passing along, but in some states living together for a specified number of years constitutes common-law marriage that is recognized in those states as legal and binding. Unfortunately for you, Minnesota is not one of them.

So, dear readers, if you are living with someone and assume it's just as good as being married, you'd be wise to find out if your state recognizes common-law marriages. Most do not.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing a retired, 60-year-old married man for nearly two years. (He is separated from his wife.) He says he loves me and we have slept together, but when I bring up the subject of marriage, he says he is in no hurry to get a divorce.

We live in different towns, and I work, so I can spend only weekends with him in the house he shared with his wife for more than 25 years. (They raised six children.)

While I am at his house, I do all the cooking, cleaning, laundry and ironing. I would like to make some plans for the future because I am only 36 years old and see no other man but him.

I really care for him and want to get married, but he seems happy with things the way they are. He never takes me anywhere. We just stay home and watch old movies.

How can I get him to make a commitment? Or do you think I'm wasting my time?

HOPING FOR MORE

DEAR HOPING: Until you can get a firm commitment out of this man, you are wasting your time. And if he isn't paying you for domestic services, he's getting a free cook, laundress and cleaning woman, plus a weekend lover. You can't force him to make a commitment, but you can give him a deadline, and I suggest you do.

Names in the news

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lisa Bonet, who as Denise Huxtable in "The Cosby Show" departed for college as the star of "A Different World," is being welcomed back into the family fold as a dropout.

"Bill Cosby feels that her story of being a college dropout, which is how she will be played, would be better served on 'The Cosby Show.'" NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff said at a news conference Wednesday.

"Something similar to this happened to one of his own daughters and he said he would be pleased to have it portrayed on his show," he said.

Miss Bonet's character, Denise, plays a college student in "A Different World," which was spun off from "The Cosby Show."

Miss Bonet last year married singer Romeo Blue and is pregnant, but the pregnancy will not be worked into the plot, Tartikoff said.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — They'll have everything on display but the Force as the biggest show of filmmaker George Lucas' magical creations opens amid a galaxy of special effects.

"We're putting out for the first time on this kind of scale the very things which dreams and wishes are made of," said Judy Niles, spokeswoman for Lucas' Industrial Light and Magic, the special-effects division of his movie-making empire.

Starting today, visitors can see Han Solo, frozen into a block of carbon like a coffin figure from

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Elton John, actor Charlie Sheen and actress Marlee Matlin plan to join other celebrities in staging "For The Love of Children," a benefit for children with AIDS.

Miss Matlin and Sheen will be host of the July 8 event sponsored by the Southern California Gas Co. Proceeds will go to the Ryan White, 16, contracted AIDS from a blood transfusion. John, known for his wild eyeglasses as well as his music, became interested in White, a hemophiliac, after reading about his plight two years ago.

"Elton read about Ryan in a doctor's office, when he had throat problems, and he was so moved by Ryan's story that he thought, 'My problems are nothing compared to this,'" publicist Sarah McMullen said Wednesday.

White will attend the gala dinner and concert at the Century

LONDON (AP) — Singer Michael Jackson will go ahead with a planned British tour despite quarantine laws banning his pet chimpanzee Bubbles, his record company says.

Jackson was allowed to take the ape into Japan last year and he would have liked to bring him to Britain, Jonathan Morrish of CBS records said Wednesday.

"Michael enjoys Bubbles' companionship but he is a consummate professional and knows the show must go on," Morrish said. "He is obviously disappointed but he understands the quarantine laws here."

The Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food said it insisted there could be no exception to its rules — "not even for important show business stars" — that animals entering the country must be caged for six months to prove them disease-free.

Jackson's British tour begins July 14.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS newscaster Kathleen Sullivan says she and her husband, real estate developer Michael Kiner, are legally separating after 2½ years of marriage.

No one's bags will be packed, though, since the couple has never lived together. Ms. Sullivan, the anchor of "CBS This Morning," is based in New York, while Kiner lives in Palm Springs, Calif.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Economic Community is sharing not only its markets but its opera talents under the guidance of Spanish opera star Placido Domingo.

The European Youth Opera, launched Wednesday under the patronage of the Common Market, will be made up of young singers who are EEC citizens and will be a permanent fixture on the European cultural scene.

"I'm really thrilled to be the president of this opera," Domingo told a news conference.

It's Martina vs. Graf in finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova beat longtime rival Chris Evert at Wimbledon Thursday in a seesaw semifinal that ended in confusion and controversy, while top-seeded Steffi Graf breezed into the final with a victory over No. 3 Pam Shriver.

Navratilova, seeking a tournament-record seventh straight singles title and ninth overall, edged Evert 6-1, 4-6, 7-5 in their 78th meeting dating back to 1973.

Graf then overwhelmed Shriver 6-1, 6-2 in 59 minutes, stretching her string of straight-set victories in Grand Slam tournaments to 20.

Both were replays of last year's semifinals, when Navratilova beat Evert in a thrilling three-setter and Graf won all but two games from Shriver.

The ending of Thursday's Navratilova-Evert match temporarily overshadowed Navratilova's bid to make Wimbledon history and her Saturday showdown with Graf, who is closing in on her third straight Grand Slam title.

Facing her fourth match point in the rain-interrupted contest, Evert hit a cross-court forehand that clipped the net and landed right near the sideline on Navratilova's side.

Evert, thinking the ball was in and she had another chance, jumped up and raised her arms in celebration. Navratilova, unsure of the call, turned toward linesman David Shepherd to look for an in or out signal.

After a brief pause, Shepherd stuck his right arm out to indicate the ball was out. Evert stood by the baseline and stared at chair umpire Richard Lumb, who announced "the ball was called out."

Evert, a three-time Wimbledon champion, remained on the court for several seconds before walking to the net and shaking hands with Navratilova. She bypassed the traditional handshake with the umpire, however, as the capacity Centre Court crowd boomed his call.

"I just was stunned," Evert said. "I thought the ball was in. I guess I needed time for it to sink in."

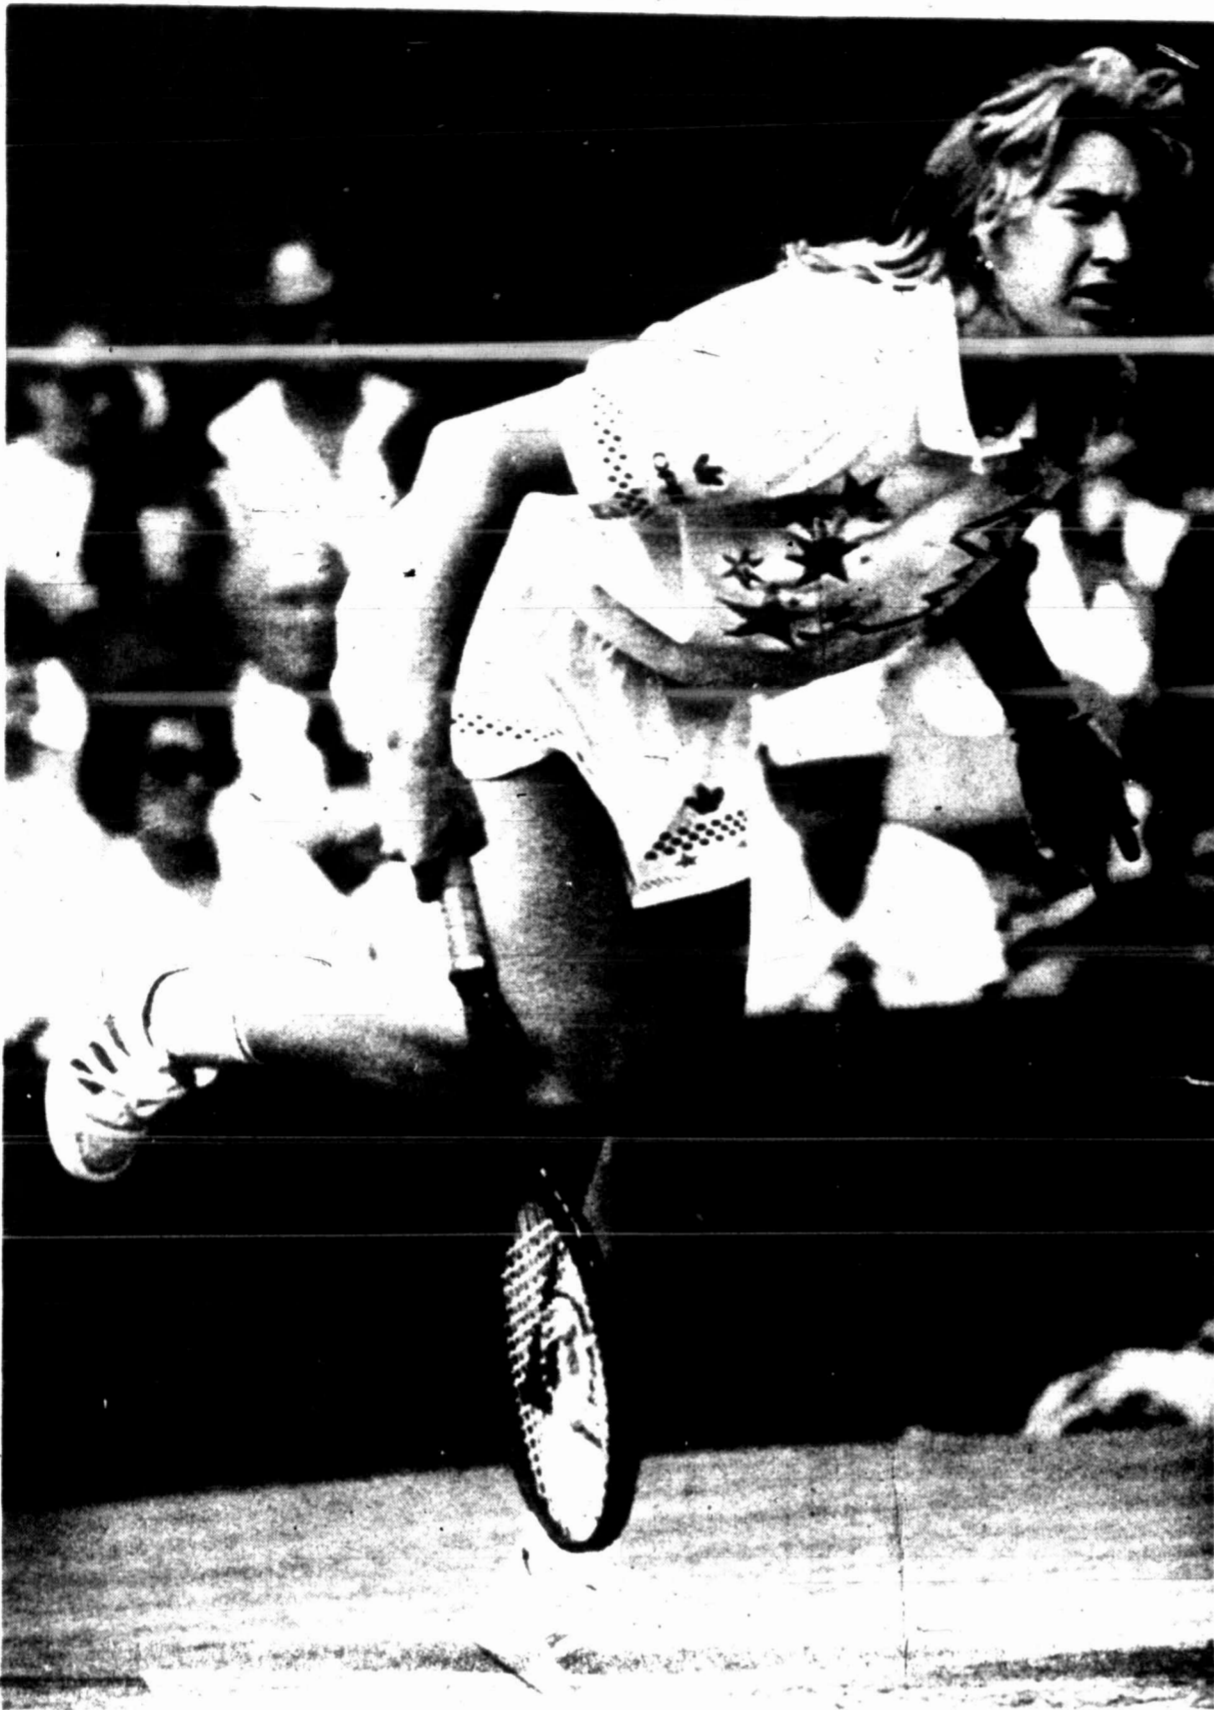

"It was just a bad break for me," she added, "and bad luck considering the match was so close."

But Evert, who has always been gracious in defeat, was philosophical about the call.

"I was real surprised he called it out," she said. "After thinking about it, though, it really doesn't matter what I think. I wasn't sitting on the line."

Television replays were inconclusive.

Navratilova, who leads the series 41-37, was as uncertain as the crowd about the final call.

WIMBLEDON, England — West Germany's Steffi Graf serves to Pam Shriver during their women's singles semifinal match on the Centre Court at Wimbledon Thursday. Graf won the match 6-1, 6-2 and will meet defending champion Navratilova in Saturday's final.

"I can't say it was good and I can't say it was out," she said. Despite the controversial ending, Navratilova said the victory didn't "leave any sour taste in my mouth."

"It's just too bad that it had to end that way." The level of play was almost as erratic as the weather during the match, interrupted by rain for 70 minutes in the second set. Navratilova, the second seed, jumped to a 4-0 lead and won the first set in 34 minutes when Evert netted a forehand.

Evert, known as a slow starter, got her game going in the second set, beating Navratilova with pinpoint passing shots. Evert broke in the first game and took a 3-1 lead before they exchanged breaks to make it 4-3 just before the rain came.

Trailing 15-30 on her serve in the eighth game when the match was halted, Evert won three straight points when play resumed and served out the set on her second set point when Navratilova sent a backhand long.

The quality of play picked up in the third set as Navratilova flicked off winning volleys and Evert, the fourth seed, kept pressuring her with passing shots.

Navratilova had her first match point in the 10th game, but Evert saved it with a beautiful forehand passing shot down the line. Evert eventually won the game on her sixth game point with a forehand winner that landed on the baseline.

After Navratilova held serve for a 6-5 lead, Evert fell behind 0-40 before saving two more match points. Then came the disputed point.

"It was a great match," Navratilova said. "It's just a shame somebody had to lose. It was push and pull. Nobody could pull away."

"Chris probably hit the best passing shots she's ever hit against me. They were even better than last year. If a couple of things had gone her way, she could have won."

Evert, playing in her 17th Wimbledon, said the match was "pretty comparable" to last year's 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 semifinal loss to Navratilova.

"It has a lot to do with the court surface and style of play," said Evert, who is 2-7 against Navratilova at Wimbledon. "I have to work a lot harder than she does on grass." Graf's victory over Shriver left her one victory shy of taking the first three legs of tennis' Grand Slam — the Australian and French Opens, which she has won this year; Wimbledon; and the U.S. Open in September.

"The victory over Shriver was easier than expected."

"It wasn't very difficult," the 19-year-old West German said. "I didn't have much trouble against her. I expected more, but she didn't do very much. She wasn't in the right place at the right time."

Shriver, who has been battling mononucleosis, said she felt "very, very naked out there."

"I didn't want to be there," she said. "I knew today there would be no hiding."

Peers say Iron Mike will return

NEW YORK (AP) — Was Mike Tyson's stunning announcement that he was retiring from boxing a spur-of-the-moment decision? Or will the undefeated heavyweight champion stick to his word?

Several great boxers, including Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran, both of whom announced their retirements then returned to the ring, think Tyson, who turned 22 Thursday, will do the same — once he straightens out his personal and managerial problems. So does his trainer, Kevin Rooney.

"He hasn't told me he's retiring," Rooney said. "But people in the fight game are crazy. He's a little crazy. I'm a little crazy. But I don't think he's going to retire."

Neither does Leonard. "I think you'll see him back," Leonard said Thursday at the United Nations, where boxers and dignitaries honored Jose Sulaiman, president of the World Boxing Council, for his fight against apartheid.

"I think it's just a matter of resolving some of the differences he's had in his career, such as his managerial problems," said Leonard, a former Olympic gold medalist and three-time world champion who retired for the third time last year after outpointing Marvelous Marvin Hagler for the world middleweight title.

"He's so young, he has so much going for him. I think he'll take a break to take care of those problems, and then you'll see him back."

"But then again, who's out there for him to fight?"

Tyson, saying he was "burned out" and wanted to devote more time to his family, said this week he would quit. He made the statement after raising his record to 35-0 by stopping previously unbeaten Michael Spinks at 1:31 of the first round at Atlantic City, N.J., Monday night for his 31st knockout.

His decision was based on managerial problems involving Bill Cayton — whom Tyson is suing to prevent the manager from getting his one-third share of a more than $21 million purse from the Spinks fight — and his family difficulties, including a recent miscarriage by wife Robin Givens.

Duran, also a three-time champion who still is fighting after being inactive in 1985, also thinks Tyson will fight again. "He's too young to retire," the Panamanian said through an interpreter. "He'll get that fever and want to come back and fight again."

Also saying Tyson will be back were Joe Frazier, Gerry Cooney, Saoul Mamba and Vito Antuofermo.

Shumate new SMU coach

DALLAS (AP) — John Shumate, an assistant at Notre Dame, was named Thursday as Southern Methodist's new basketball coach and said he would stress academic success as well as athletic victories.

Shumate, 37, replaces Dave Bliss, who resigned to go to the University of New Mexico after leading the Mustangs to the NCAA tournament last spring.

Shumate, a former All-American at Notre Dame who later played in the NBA with six teams during a seven-year career, said he decided to take the job after talking with SMU Athletic Director Doug Single, school president A. Kenneth Pye and a committee of students, players and faculty members on Wednesday.

Following the meetings, Shumate said he was convinced SMU is committed to ensuring that athletes get an education.

"(SMU officials) believe in getting the job done the right way, because it can be done the right way. It's tougher, it's more difficult, but that's what it's all about," Shumate said at a news conference at SMU.

SMU's football program was suspended for all of last season by the NCAA for repeated recruiting violations, becoming the first school ever subject to the "death penalty."

SMU also voluntarily suspended its 1988 season after the NCAA reduced its schedule to seven games, all on the road. Football scholarships have been trimmed to 15 per year through 1990.

Single introduced Shumate, an All-American center in 1974 and the Phoenix Suns' first draft pick later that year, as someone who "can be a tremendous role model."

"We've got a guy that I think can keep us on top of the Southwest Conference," Single said. "We want a national power."

The 6-9 Shumate, who averaged 21 points and 12 rebounds per game as a junior and 24.2 points and 11 rebounds per game in his senior year for the Fighting Irish, said he plans an up tempo style of play. He described himself as a "hands-on" coach who is not hesitant to get on the court and show his team how he wants things done.

DALLAS — Former Notre Dame player and assistant coach John Shumate speaks at a press conference at Southern Methodist University Thursday afternoon.

Shumate joins a team on the upswing. The Mustangs won their first outright SWC title last season and their first regular-season conference title since 1967 while posting a school-record 28 victories.

Shumate retired from the NBA at age 29 in 1980 after seven pro seasons. His career was cut short after missing 2½ seasons because of a blood clot in his leg.

In 1983, Shumate was named coach at Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, leading the Antelopes to a 58-33 record before he returned to Notre Dame in 1986 as an assistant to his former coach, Digger Phelps.

Rookie hurls shutout in first win

By The Associated Press
 Brian Holman, who will never forget his major-league debut, always will remember his second game, too.

"This is the sweetest one I've ever had," Holman said Thursday night after pitching a five-hit shutout for his first victory as the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 6-0. "This is one you don't forget."

Holman, a 23-year-old right-hander who was called up last week to replace suspended pitcher Floyd Youmans, struck out five and walked two. Floyd who?

In the only other National League games, it was New York 12, Houston 6, and Cincinnati 4, San Diego 3 in 10 innings.

After failing to survive the fourth inning in his debut last Saturday against Pittsburgh, Holman allowed only five singles, three of them in the last two innings.

"Last time, I found out only in the afternoon that I was pitching, so I didn't have time to get nervous," Holman said. "Tonight I had a lot of nervous energy, and it helped me."

Montreal got its first run off Tom Blavine, 3-9, in the fourth inning when Andres Galarraga led off with a double, took third on Hubie Brooks' grounder and, after Tim Wallach walked, scored on a sacrifice fly by Nelson Santovenia.

Holman protected the slim lead until the Expos scored five times in the seventh.

"The big inning let him breathe a little easier, but he was really pitching in a one-run game," manager Buck Rodgers said.

Holman wasn't concerned with the Expos, only with the Atlanta Braves.

"It's always nice to get a lot of runs, but you can't let your pitching be affected by what the guys are doing with their bats," he said.

In the seventh, Luis Rivera hit his fourth home run with one out.

With two out, Otis Nixon singled and Rex Hudler walked.

After Charlie Puleo relieved, the runners pulled a double steal and both scored when Galarraga beat out an infield hit. Brooks and Wallach added RBI doubles.

Mets 12, Astros 6.
 Darryl Strawberry tied for the NL lead with his 19th homer, a two-run shot, and also singled, tripled and scored four times. Howard Johnson had three hits and four RBI.

Kevin McReynolds hit a solo homer as the Mets backed Bob Ojeda and Terry Leach with 16 hits. Ojeda yielded five hits and four runs, two of them unearned, in 7 2-3 innings. He also had a two-run single off reliever Rocky Childress in a three-run fifth inning that gave the Mets a 7-2 lead. McReynolds hit ninth homer in the sixth.

Losers Danny Darwin was tagged for seven runs — six earned — and 11 hits in 4 2-3 innings.

The Mets won their third straight game and opened a six-game lead over idle second-place Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Reds 4, Padres 3

Pinch hitter Tracy Jones drew a two-out bases-loaded walk from Mark Davis to force in the winning run in the 10th inning. Davis gave up a two-out single to Barry Larkin, then walked Kal Daniels on four pitches. Chris Sabo on a full count and Jones, batting for Paul O'Neill, on four pitches.

The Reds took a 3-0 lead in the first inning when Daniels hit his eighth home run and Eric Davis hit a two-run homer, his 13th, off Jimmy Jones. Jones then retired 18 consecutive batters.

Marvell Wynne opened the San Diego fourth with his ninth homer and the Padres tied the score with two runs in the fifth off Jose Rijo on Benito Santiago's single, Tim Flannery's ground-rule double and Garry Templeton's double.

Relief ace John Franco pitched the final two-thirds of an inning for the victory. The Padres are 0-6 in extra-inning games, all on the road.

White Sox to stay in Chicago

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — It may have been the Chicago White Sox' biggest victory since they won the West Division in 1983.

Like a crafty manager hoping for a late-inning rally, Gov. James R. Thompson worked the floor of the House and Senate and coaxed lawmakers to go to bat for the American League club.

They responded by narrowly approving an incentive package to keep the team from moving to Florida.

"This is a political resurrection from the dead, a baseball resurrection from the dead," a jubilant Thompson said. "I even told myself a couple times this was dead. But I decided I was not going to let them go."

The deal could cut $60 million from the team's cost of occupying a new $150 million state-financed stadium near the site of its current home, Comiskey Park.

The plan would tie the team's rent on the new stadium to attendance, and give the state Sports Facilities Authority a share of the team's gate receipts, television royalties and other revenue when attendance tops 1.2 million.

"The Chicago White Sox are elated at the outcome of the stadium vote," the team said in a statement.

The "legislative victory is the result of the dedicated efforts of the entire White Sox organization, numerous public officials and loyal Sox fans."

"In triumph there are many heroes," the team said.

Final passage came on a tense 60-55 vote in the House as time ran out on the last regularly scheduled day of the 1988 session. A short time earlier, the package cleared the Senate on a 30-26 vote. There wasn't a vote to spare in either chamber.

Some opponents in the House claimed Thompson and legislative leaders abused their power and flouted a constitutional mandate to finish by midnight in their zeal to get the bill approved.

The House roll call was begun just before a midnight deadline after which the bill would have required 71 votes for passage.

House Majority Leader Jim McPike, presiding over the chamber, declared that the bill was passed "at 11:59 p.m." But other clocks indicated it was after midnight and a computer printout of the vote produced immediately after the roll call was dated July 1.

"I have never seen an abuse of a roll call process like this," said Rep. John Dunn, D-Decatur. "It was clearly a ramrod powerplay and, as we say in baseball, those of us who were against it were robbed."

Thompson denied any fiddling with the clock to prevent extra innings, which would have made it more difficult to win passage because of the higher vote threshold. But he did admit to having doubts he'd sway enough lawmakers.

"You bet I was worried," Thompson said. "Wouldn't you be worried? Weren't you watching the votes?"

In St. Petersburg, Fla., officials who tried to lure the team south conceded defeat.

Old man paces Yankees to 5-3 victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Tommy John just keeps on pitching and winning at the ripe old age of 45.

"He's unbelievable, what else can I say?" said New York Manager Lou Piniella Thursday night after John, with home run help from Jack Clark and relief help from Dave Righetti, pitched the Yankees to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the only American League game.

John boosted his record to 6-2 and notched the 283rd triumph of his career.

"The man can pitch," said Piniella. "There's no end in sight for him. He's the same pitcher I batted against in the Series."

That goes way back to 1977 and 1978, when John was pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers and Piniella was hitting for the Yankees.

Piniella was asked if he thought John could win 300 games.

"He might win 350," the manager responded without batting an eye.

John worked into the seventh inning against the White Sox, allowing three runs and eight hits. He walked only one batter and struck out three but had to work out of a first-inning jam.

Gary Redus led off with a double and Steve Lyons walked as John fell behind the two batters. Both runners moved up on a wild pitch. John then struck out Harold Baines, got Greg Walker to line out and fanned Dave Gallagher to end the inning.

"All in all, I've been sharper," said John, "but I made good pitches when I had to. We scored some runs. When you can win, you've pitched a good game."

Ask John about 300 victories and he starts to stutter, a mark of nervousness he seldom displays while pitching.

"I'll keep going as long as the Yankees let me," said John. "I'm still getting batters out and as long as I can help the club, why not?"

Clark also helped the club on Thursday. He drew a walk in the sixth inning to start a rally in which Rafael Santana, Joel Skinner and Willie Randolph each drove in a run to make a loser of starter Dave LaPoint, 6-8.

Then in the seventh, Clark hit his 16th homer off reliever Joel Davis, after Dave Winfield had singled, to provide the margin of victory.

"I haven't felt good hitting until the last couple of days," said Clark, who also has 47 runs batted in. "I don't know how I have the numbers. It's been a struggle."

White Sox manager Jim Fregosi said "Jack Clark has been known to hit a few."

Midland drops Wichita, 4-2

By The Associated Press
 Tulsa's Kevin Brown held Arkansas to six hits in just over eight innings, but needed relief from Rick Raether to earn a victory.

Tulsa defeated Arkansas 4-3 Thursday night in Texas League action. In other Texas League games San Antonio downed El Paso 9-6, Midland defeated RBI on a sacrifice.

In the ninth, Zeile doubled and Mike Hocutt singled. Harrison got his second RBI of the night when he scored Zeile on a sacrifice. Raether, who picked up his ninth save of the year, walked pinch hitter Jim Puzey, but struck out Mike Robertson to end the game.

Brown, 6-7, walked two and struck out two. Faron fell to 2-5.

In Jackson, home runs by Jeff Carter in the second inning and Deron McCue in the third weren't enough. The Jackson Mets outpaced the Shreveport Captains 5-4.

Shreveport had three runs before Jackson scored in the fourth on a homerun by new first baseman Rick Lundblade. Jackson scored a second time in the fourth and added runs in the fifth, sixth, and eighth innings.

Shreveport scored its other run in the eighth.

Winning pitcher was Jackson's Kevin Tapani, whose record improves to 2-0. Shreveport's Ed Puikunas falls to 4-2 with the loss. Midland capitalized on five Wichita errors, scoring four unearned runs.

Three Midland pitchers scattered nine hits to keep Wichita out of reach.

Mike Fetter, 5-4, was the winner and Kurt Walker got his sixth save.

Matt Maysey, 4-7, was the loser.

San Antonio's Juan Bustabad hit a long double off the center-field wall for one of five doubles the Missions hit in their 9-6 win over El Paso.

San Antonio and El Paso were tied at 6 as they entered the eighth. But Diablo pitcher and loser Ed Puig walked Jose Mota and Manny Francois to start the inning.

Keith Fleming relieved Puig and got Darrin Fletcher to ground into a forced out. But he followed with a pitch that Bustabad drove to the fence.

San Antonio relief Ace Mike Munoz was the winner. Mike Hartley got the save in the ninth.

Texas League

Wichita 4-2 and Jackson edged Shreveport 5-4.

After three scoreless innings, Tulsa's Kevin Weimer homered in the fourth off loser Bob Faron. Arkansas rallied in the fourth when Jesus Mendez scored on a fielding error. Todd Zeile scored Arkansas' second run of the inning off a Brett Harrison base hit.

George Threadgill and Scott Coolbaugh knocked hit an RBI in the fifth inning for Tulsa on base hits and Wiemer got his second
