Crossroads weather

Forecast for the Big Spring area: Mostly sunny and hot days and fair nights through Friday. Highs Friday mostly mid 90s to near 100. Lows tonight mid 60s to mid 70s. Wednesday's high was 96 and the low was 73.

Democrats open nominating convention

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Democrats, denied the White House four out of the last five presidential elections, open their national convention tonight certain of nominating Michael Dukakis and hoping for a show of unity with his unbowed rival, Jesse Jackson.

Toward that end, the two candidates arranged to meet early today for negotiations on several issues, including Jackson's insistence on playing a significant role in a transition effort to form a Democratic administration if Dukakis wins in November. Dukakis' aides said it would be better to deal with that idea after the election.

In a conciliatory gesture Sunday night, Dukakis told a crowded party audience, "We're going to need Jesse, we're going to need all the delegates that are at this convention."

Even so, Dukakis said earlier in the day, "You can't have two quarterbacks. Every team has to have a quarterback. That's the nominee."

Jackson, refusing to act like an also ran, said it was "an illusion" that Dukakis should dominate the convention and declared, "this is not a coronation." He warned he might contest Dukakis every step of the way.

Meanwhile, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen set out to win over those Democrats who would have preferred Jackson for the No. 2 spot on the ticket. Bentsen is making the rounds among state delegations to press his case.

He made a point of including the New Jersey delegation, where there are mixed feelings about the choice of the Texas senator.

"We're not happy with Bentsen," said Assemblyman Alan Karcher of Middlesex, N.J. "We want to know about his positions."

But Topic A in this sweltering convention city remained the Dukakis-Jackson rift.

Sources said Jackson wanted an agreement outlining an official role in the fall campaign, including financial support from Dukakis. It was not clear whether Jackson had explicitly asked Dukakis to provide him with a charter jet to travel in.

Dukakis aides said they would welcome campaign efforts by Jackson, but that any funds would have to come from the Democratic Party.

Dukakis also was said to be insistent that party chairman Paul Kirk remain in his post as long as he wants, despite any demands to the contrary.

Mayor Richard Arrington of Birmingham, Ala., a prominent Jackson delegate, expressed con-

Native Texan swaps 'Howdy' for 'G'day'

By STEVE GEISSEN

As they stood side by side waiting to be photographed Wednesday, it wasn't difficult to guess which of the Main brothers lives in Australia and which calls Big Spring his home.

Buck Main wore blue jeans, a short-sleeve Western-style shirt, black cowboy boots and a cowboy hat, while brother Jack was clad in yellow shorts, a blue T-shirt featuring a Botany Bay Traders logo and sandals.

Jack — a transplanted Texan who has lived in the land down under for 22 years — now greets people with an authentic Australian "G'day," rather than "Howdy."

He recently came to Big Spring — along with his wife, Judy, and her parents, Geoff and Margaret Platt — to visit his brother Buck, who's employed with a local independent oil company.

The Mains were born in Vernon and raised in Roy, N.M. Before moving to Sydney, Australia "for a bit of adventure," Jack lived in Los Angeles for 8 years.

In Los Angeles, Jack worked as a deputy coroner and an assistant to Thomas Noguchi, the famed "Coroner to the Stars."

In Australia, Jack works as an embalmer. "There aren't many embalmers in Australia," he said.

He met Judy at the funeral of a mutual friend, and the two were married soon thereafter — two

Police warn of con game

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

An article in a national tabloid magazine last week was the apparent inspiration for a couple to successfully carry out a confidence game — resulting in a $350 loss for one Big Spring resident, according to police.

Detective Sgt. Bill King is advising area residents to be wary of what appears to be an easy opportunity to make money.

King said a convenience store clerk received a call at work over the weekend from a "well-to-do" Odessa man who told him he had lost his deceased brother's expensive dinner ring while using a pay phone outside the store.

The caller asked the clerk to look outside the store for the ring, King said.

"When he went out, a woman was holding the ring and told the clerk she wouldn't give it to him. When he returned to the store, the caller told him there was a $700 reward in it for him if he could get the ring back," King said.

The caller told the clerk to offer the woman $350 for the ring and he would come to the store and pay him the reward, King said.

"The caller told the clerk he could double his money," the detective said.

The woman accepted the money but — unfortunately for the clerk — the caller never arrived and the ring was an imitation, King said.

He refused comment on whether the clerk used his personal money — or that of the store's — to pay the woman.

"The Sun tabloid ran a story almost to the word about a similar incident in last week's edition," he said.

This incident is only one of many that have occurred during the past five years in Big Spring — resulting in a substantial loss of money or property for residents, King said.

"They (con men) often prey on people who desire to get something for nothing," he said.

Memorial Service held for Guadalupe drowning victims

DALLAS (AP) — Family and friends of 10 teen-agers who died in a Hill Country flooding accident last year remembered the youths with a memorial services and graveside visits.

"I come out here almost every week to put flowers on the graves," said 15-year-old Leanne Pond, who was rescued from the floodwaters, during a visit to Laurel Oaks

Memorial Park, where five of the victims are buried. "Sometimes, when I'm out here, I talk to them."

The remembrances in suburban Balch Springs Sunday came a year after the accident at the Pot O' Gold Ranch near Comfort, when a church bus stalled as the Guadalupe River rose and a van traveling behind it also was forced to stop.

As water rose around the vehicles, the 43 jumped out and formed a human chain to try to make it back to dry land, but a wall of water hit and sent them into the river.

In the next five hours, 33 people were picked from trees by helicopters, and in the four subsequent days nine bodies were recovered from the river.

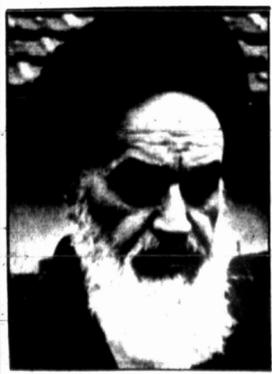

But the body of John Bankston Jr., who rescued several fellow campers including one in a leg cast before being swept away, has yet to be recovered.

"We live in a nightmare every day," said Bankston's mother, Rosie. "But it's something you can't dwell on, because you'd lose your sanity if you did. I'm praying and hoping that my son's body will be found. We won't give up."

John Bankston Sr. has returned to the Hill Country periodically during the past year to search for his son's remains. He said he plans to renew his efforts after flooding last week on the river may have dislodged his son's body from the piles of debris left by last year's flood.

Iran will accept cease-fire in eight-year war with Iraq

AYATOLLAH KHOMEINI

By NEIL MacFARQUHAR
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran said today that it will accept a U.N. resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire in its nearly 8-year-old war with Iraq, which has claimed an estimated 1 million lives.

However, Iran also said it will not withdraw its troops from its borders and called on Iraqis to prepare to thwart further Iraqi aggression.

The announcement came one day after President Saddam Hussein of Iraq cited his country's recent string of battlefield victories and urged Iran to accept an "honorable" peace.

In a message to U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, Iran said it accepts cease-fire Resolution 598 in the "interests of security on the basis of justice," the official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

In a report monitored in Nicosia, the news agency said the General Command of the Iranian Armed Forces announced in Tehran that the government was accepting the cease-fire resolution.

"Today new conditions have been created which call for adoption of new stances in order to continue the sacred defense and protect Islam," IRNA said.

"We once again urge the Iranian people to man the war fronts to confront the enemies' aggressive nature and foil their criminal acts," the General Command of the Armed Forces said. "All Muslim combatants deployed on the war fronts are prepared to respond to any aggression and movement of the enemy."

Iran did not say when the cease-fire would go into effect.

There was no immediate reaction from Iraq, which has already accepted the resolution, which passed on July 20, 1987.

The United States maintains a fleet of 27 ships in and around the Persian Gulf to protect neutral shipping from war-related attacks. In Washington, the State Department said it would have no immediate comment on Iran's statement.

Tehran, in announcing its acceptance of the cease-fire, said it had been portrayed as "warmongering Muslims before world public opinion."

The statement said the cease-fire acceptance was part of a strategy of defending the Islamic Revolution that toppled the government of Shah Reza Pahlavi in 1979.

In the past three months, Iraq has recaptured nearly all the territory it lost to Iran over the past six years. There has been no official casualty toll in the war, but foreign analysts put it at more than 1 million.

One of the conditions for the U.N. cease-fire was that both countries return to their borders at the time the war started in 1980. The resolution also calls for an exchange of prisoners and determination of who was responsible for starting the war.

Iran had demanded that Iraq be labeled the aggressor before it accepted the resolution, and it claimed in its announcement today that Iraq had initially violated Iran's territory.

In addition to its battlefield defeats, the Tehran government has found it increasingly difficult to recruit soldiers and keep its economy afloat.

In April, the Iraqis began recapturing territory lost to Iran and claim they have since seized about 133 strategic heights in the northern region of the 730-mile long front.

Last year, the U.S. Navy began escorting 11 Kuwaiti tankers that had been reflagged with the Stars and Stripes.

Richards: a master at good ol' boy talk

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Treasurer Ann Richards, the keynote speaker for the Democratic National Convention, says she learned how to act like a good ol' boy from the best ol' boy she knew — her father.

As a child growing up in Waco, Texas, she would sometimes make the drugstore rounds with her father, Cecil Willis, a pharmaceutical salesman who knew that small talk could lead to big sales.

"That's where I first learned how good ol' boys talk to each other. There's a lot of laughing and a lot of hurrahing and a lot of back-slapping and a lot of fish stories," Ms. Richards recalled.

"It's tremendously important because it is a bond. It's a link that lays the predicate for whatever serious business you have to do. It kept women out because we didn't know how to do it. And we're still not very good at it," she said.

But those who have watched Ms. Richards' career say she has become a master at good ol' boy talk, and it is a key to her success. In 12 years she has gone from housewife to county commissioner to state treasurer to likely candidate for governor in 1990.

ANN RICHARDS

Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, state chairman of Michael Dukakis' presidential campaign and a friend of Ms. Richards, remembers taking her to meet some oilmen friends in Midland.

"I came back from the rest room and Richards and these oil guys were sitting there on their hands and knees shooting dice up against the wall. Had there been money passing hands, those guys would still be paying debt. She had all the little scraps of paper in front of her," Sharp said.

"That little story probably illustrates the secret of her popularity. She has never met a stranger. She always fits in," he said.

Earlier in her life, Ms. Richards, now 54, fit into the traditional female role of the day. Politics played little part in it.

But in 1976, some friends called the Richards' home and asked husband David to run for county commissioner. He could not make the race. So they turned to Ms. Richards, who had helped engineer victories for two female legislative candidates, and she eventually said yes.

She upset an incumbent and kept the job until 1982 when she ran for state treasurer, trying to follow two unlikely named treasurers — Jesse James, who held the job for almost 40 years, and Warren Harding, who eventually was indicted for official misconduct.

Ms. Richards took 47 percent of the vote and advanced to a Democratic runoff against Harding. He withdrew and Ms.

Richards handily beat a GOP challenger.

She was re-elected without opposition in 1986 and has been credited with taking a quill-pen agency into the computer era. She is also proud of increasing the number of women and minorities working in the agency.

The political success came despite personal problems. In 1980, at her family's urging, she sought treatment for alcoholism. She says she has not had a drink since then.

In 1984, David and Ann Richards were divorced. She said it was as amicable a split as possible. David Richards was on hand to congratulate his ex-wife on the day the Democrats picked her as keynote speaker.

In her dozen years as an elected official, Ms. Richards has become a favorite speaker on the political circuit. She uses her wicked wit to make points, but not injure.

"Now are there any other white men who haven't spoken yet?" she said when she recently followed several white men as speakers at a Democratic fund-raiser. "God knows we don't want to leave any of you out."

Building record loss is common

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Building experts, saying it is not unusual for construction records to be lost, were not surprised that key documents of the department store that collapsed are missing.

The three-story structure that housed La Tienda Amigo collapsed July 7 in a torrential rainstorm, killing 14 and injuring 47.

Brownsville officials said the plans, permits and inspection documents for the 19-year-old structure may have been put in a warehouse and later destroyed in a flood.

Building experts say it is not unusual for cities to simply discard documents because of the difficulty in storing them.

"Eighty percent (of U.S. cities) would be unable to tell you about anything more than three or four years old," said Bob Fowler, director of building services in Abilene, Texas, and an advocate of stricter building code enforcement.

Records-keeping, code enforcement, and training and supervision of inspectors are all problems of the construction permit and inspection process that need improvement in many U.S. cities, experts said.

Only 28 states have adopted building codes and only a handful make them mandatory, experts said. Texas is not one of them.

In Texas, for example, anyone can build almost anything outside city limits because no county has been authorized by the Legislature to adopt a building code.

"It's a no-man's zone," Fowler said.

The most commonly adopted model building codes specify minimum requirements for safety. But enforcement is not uniformly adequate. Many cities do not have enough inspectors and many inspectors are not sufficiently qualified or trained, officials said.

Lawmen face federal indictments

TYLER (AP) — The special prosecutor in the trial of three white lawmen acquitted of civil rights charges in the death of a black jail inmate said he will deliver trial transcripts to Justice Department officials in hopes they will seek federal indictments against the officers.

The only black juror in the case said she felt pressured to change her guilty vote and special prosecutor John Hannah said that although that isn't likely to affect the verdict, it may help persuade Justice Department officials to act.

"I don't think it will help set aside the verdict," Hannah said Saturday. "But it does say something about the community. That may have bearing on whether the Justice Department indicts — considerable bearing, maybe."

Dorie Lee Hudson Handy, 45, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram she changed her vote to acquit former Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner verdict even though she believed he was guilty of beating Louisiana truck driver Loyal Garner Jr. and depriving him of medical attention. Garner died two days after his Christmas Day arrest.

Meanwhile, Vollie Grace, president of the Sabine County chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said he plans to organize a boycott of Sabine County merchants in protest of the trial.

Sabine County residents wanted it "found that these men did nothing wrong," Grace said. "I can't go with that any more. That's just blatant racism. If this trial would have been held in hell, they would have had a better chance of getting a guilty verdict. Where does that put Hemphill?"

Ladner, 41, and Sabine County deputies James "Bo" Hyde, 35, and Bill Horton, 58, were acquitted after jurors in Hemphill deliberated nearly 11 eleven hours over two days. The trio still face murder charges in Tyler in connection with Garner's death.

Wildlife face threat from oil spill

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Cleanup crews have recovered close to 11,000 barrels of oil from the Port of Corpus Christi and officials say the Inner Harbor could be reopened to full traffic early this week.

The port was closed at midnight Wednesday after the Nord Pacific, a 780-foot oil tanker, crashed into Southwestern Refinery's Oil Dock No. 3, spilling more than 15,000 barrels of oil.

Friday, the Inner Harbor was opened on a limited daytime-only basis and Saturday there were 23 vessel movements, said Coast Guard Lt. Margaret Jones.

The Coast Guard reported 12 vessel movements Sunday, she said.

"Things are going so smooth that it looks like we might be able to open Monday or Tuesday," Ms. Jones said.

"We're pretty effective at getting the oil out of the water," she said. "There's been some normal sheen of oil in the water, but no oil has been stirred up."

As the port returns to normal operations, officials will begin figuring estimates of how much revenue was lost due to the delays caused by the closure of the Inner Harbor, Cotter said.

The oil spill endangered birds and marine animals and federal officials said last week's mishap would have a long-term effect on wildlife.

"There will be a reduction in food sources, such as plankton, needed by such organisms as shrimp and crabs," Larry Gambel, environmental contaminant specialist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said Saturday.

Gambel said crabs and jellyfish are the most visible organisms affected by the spill. Although the effects on wildlife now seem small, he said, a long-term impact could be realized in the next few months.

Still, the short-term impact of the spill on wildlife has been minimal.

Irrigation pipe theft increases

LUBBOCK (AP) — Irrigation pipe theft has increased along with the rise of aluminum recycling and authorities say it's a difficult problem to stop because the piping is hard to identify.

"There has definitely been an increase of thefts," said Lt. Bill Drell of the Lubbock County Sheriff's Office. "In fact, we've been in contact with adjoining counties (law enforcement agencies), and they've all said they too have seen an increase," he said.

"The problem is that all irrigation pipe looks the same — that is, unless there is a certain kind of marking on it," Drell added. "Scrap yards are buying it, and there's no law against that."

Jim Ketchum, general manager of American Iron and Metals of Lubbock, said the company sometimes suspects pipe it buys from the public is stolen. Unfortunately, he said, there's no way to prove the pipe has been obtained illegally.

"Until we encourage people to mark their property, there's nothing anybody can do," Ketchum said. "The thieves can cut off the pipe where the markings are, but 99 times out of 100, the thieves aren't that bright."

A pound of aluminum irrigation pipe brings between 45 cents to 60 cents in the Lubbock area. The price depends on the grade, weight and size of the pipe, Ketchum said.

Some areas of the country have raised their price for scrap aluminum in an effort to increase the amount recycled. The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported.

Lowery James, a Lubbock-area farmer, said he had $892 worth of irrigation pipe stolen earlier this year.

"There's just hundreds and hundreds of dollars worth being stolen," James said. "The problem has really become bad in the last year."

James faults aluminum buyers who purchase the pipe without being sure of its origin.

"Our problem is we need to prosecute the people who buy the stolen stock," James said. "We need to put them in jail with the thieves."

Search incriminates jailed cult members

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jailed members of a violent polygamist cult linked to killings in Utah and Texas aren't talking, but searches of their rooms and vehicles have yielded clues, authorities say.

Three searches, the latest by investigators from Utah and Texas, have produced items that appear to place the sect members in Texas about the time of the killings, officials said.

Among the items are maps of the Texas cities where the slayings occurred, a Dallas newspaper from around the date of the slayings, a red false beard similar to a beard described by witnesses to a Houston slaying and a pickup truck stolen from Euless, Texas that is similar to the one described by witnesses to a slaying in nearby Irving.

The sect has been linked to killings in Utah and a disappearance in California as well as the Texas slayings, but those arrested here have not been charged in any deaths. They are being held on robbery and theft-related charges.

Bond for two — Heber LeBaron, 27, and Douglas Barlow, 28 — was increased Friday to $560,000 each. The others jailed here were held on lower bonds but faced immediate rearrest by federal officials on Utah material-witness warrants if they posted bail, lawmen said.

None of the five has given statements to investigators, and Lt. Dick Forbes, a Salt Lake County, Utah, attorney's investigator who has tracked the sect since the 1970s, said he did not blame them given the 18 deaths or disappearances of relatives, disciples and critics who crossed the sect's late patriarch Ervil LeBaron.

"Those kids are so damned scared," Forbes said. "They are dead if they talk, and they know it."

The Texas slayings occurred June 27, the 144th anniversary of the slaying of Mormon Church founder Joseph Smith, a practitioner of polygamy.

Fitness, stress study

Barbara Dynneson, a student at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin, asks Thomas Lee Butler questions for a study on the elderly conducted Friday at the Spring City Senior Citizen's Center. One of the goals of the ongoing study — conducted by Dr. Robert Rhodes, professor of sociology at UTPB and Dr. David Hopkins, associate professor of physical education at UTPB — is to determine "to what degree fitness levels buffer the impact of stress on health outcomes (of the elderly)," Hopkins said.

Fonseca to transfer to state penitentiary

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said early today that Jeannie Hernandez Fonseca will be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections this week. Although a date has been set for her transfer, he would not release the date, citing security of the inmate and her escorts during the transfer.

She will be taken to Gatesville for incarceration in a women's unit of the Texas Department of Corrections state penitentiary, officials had said earlier.

Fonseca, 29, Big Spring, pleaded guilty in 118th District Court July 7 to one count of murder and was sentenced to life in prison.

She had been in custody in Howard County jail since October, charged with three counts of capital murder.

Sheriff's log

Howard County Sheriff's Department officers reported investigating the following complaints as of 8:30 a.m. Monday:

• Rene Valdez and other bouncers at The Brass Nail Club, U.S. Hwy. 87 South, reported that when they took a hunting knife from a man at the club Saturday he created a disturbance and threatened to return to the club and shoot them all, according to sheriff's reports.

Reports indicated charges would be filed today against the man.

• Ralph Jimenez, 511 E. Second St., reported a disturbance at his parents' home on Todd Road Sunday. During the disturbance his father, Rudy Jimenez, shot a hole in the hood of Ralph Jimenez's 1981 Chevrolet Camaro. Ralph Jimenez and his mother Pat left the residence to stay elsewhere, reports indicated.

• A clerk at C&G Quick Stop, U.S. Hwy 87 South, reported three checks passed at the store by a black woman. All three of the checks were forgeries and an investigation is continuing, according to reports.

• Irma Padron of Coahoma reported leaving her 1981 Mustang parked in the parking lot of the Brass Nail club overnight Saturday and returning to find windows broken out of the vehicle Sunday. Damages had not been estimated and an investigation continues, according to reports.

• Three men were transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections by motor coach early today, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard.

The men, Wayne (Cadillac) Marshall, Steve Truitt Ayers and Daniel Boyce Fuller, were transported at 5:50 a.m. and accompanied by two sheriff's deputies, according to reports.

Marshall, 32, 310 S.W. 20th St., pleaded guilty to sexual assault charges in 118th District Court and was sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Ayers, 30, S.C. Route Box 75, and Fuller, 32, 102 Carey St., were sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary each after pleading guilty in 118th District court to revocation of probation on charges of driving while intoxicated.

• Two men were arrested Saturday by Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission officers and charged with consuming liquor at an off-premises location and making alcohol available to a minor.

Armando R. Delgado, 23, P.O. Box 652 and Kenneth Kirkham, 20, Sand Springs, were released on bonds totaling $400 each Saturday at 8:10 p.m.

• Jim Bob White, 21, 811 E. 16th St., was arrested late Saturday on charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct. He was released Sunday morning on bonds totaling $1,200 — $500 on disorderly conduct, $500 on assault, and $200 on public intoxication — according to sheriff's records.

• Karen Trawick Ward, 32, 3209 Auburn St., was released on bonds totaling $900 Sunday. She had been arrested by Big Spring police on charges of bondsman off bond and two Department of Public Safety warrants.

• Adam Rodriguez Canales, 21, 800 Willia St., was released on $500 bond Sunday. He had been arrested by Big Spring police on charges of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

department on bonds totaling $4,000.

• A woman who resides in the 1500 block of Wood Street reported two men unlawfully entered her residence, took a 19-inch television and threatened a witness with a knife.

• A man who resides in the 100 block of Lockhart Street reported a .22-caliber rifle was taken from his home without permission.

• Joe Alfaro Lopez, 26, 907 S. Bell St., was arrested on city warrants charging him with no insurance, failure to appear, public intoxication, failure to appear before judge and Midland Department of Public Safety warrants charging him with no insurance, two counts of failure to appear and speeding.

Convention

cern Jackson may wait too long to make peace. "There is a danger in taking your followers to the brink," he said.

But Rep. Tommy Robinson of Arkansas complained that Dukakis "doesn't know how to communicate with southern blacks. All the blacks he talks to are Harvard grads. He needs to sit down with Jesse."

Rep. Barbara B. Kennelly, D-Conn., said it is crucial for the Democrats to win the White House this time. "We have been, four out of the last five times now, losers. If we don't win this time, we're not a national party. We're just a legislative party."

Accompanied by Bentsen, Dukakis arrived here Sunday. He defended his choice of a running mate and at the same time took a dig at the Reagan administration for the Iran-Contra affair.

Dukakis said he picked Bentsen because "if there is somebody at the National Security Council who comes to me with a cockamamie idea that we ought to trade arms to the Ayatollah for hostages, he's (Bentsen) going to come into my office and pound the desk and say, 'Mr. President, that's crazy.'"

Bentsen, in turn, said the Massachusetts governor "speaks a language we understand in the South" — jobs and education.

With assistance from a Hollywood production company, the stage was finally set at the Omni for a convention celebration that will conclude Thursday night with Dukakis claiming the presidential nomination he set out 17 months ago to win.

Tonight's convention highlight is the keynote address by Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards, a fiery populist and staunch feminist.

The main podium is fixed on a three-tier platform that towers 85 feet high at its highest point and is 120 feet wide and 100 feet deep. Thousands of seats had to be ripped out to make way for the huge structure, eating up already scarce space.

A two-acre parking lot outside the convention center became a showcase for protesters trying to win the attention of the thousands of reporters here.

A march by about 150 white supremacists was canceled by police when 500 counter-protestors showed up. Public Safety Commissioner George Napper said he was determined to avoid "blood in the streets."

Gay and lesbian rights groups held demonstrations, as did the Mad Housers, a volunteer group that builds huts for the homeless. Far away, Vice President George Bush — the certain Republican presidential nominee — remained out of sight on a fishing trip in Wyoming. Bush will hit the campaign trail on Wednesday, the day Dukakis' name is put in nomination.

The convention will be called to order at 6:24 p.m. EDT and run until 11 p.m. EDT. However, most television viewers will not be able to see it all because ABC, CBS and NBC will not begin their coverage until 9 p.m. EDT. Cable networks CNN and C-Span will carry convention coverage from 5-11 p.m.

In a pep talk Sunday, Democratic Party Chairman Paul Kirk told state delegation leaders to think of the convention as a four-day television mini-series, with the delegates as the live audience.

Stressing the importance of making a good impression within the limits of prime time, Kirk said, "The average working person really doesn't have much time for politics."

Con game

vulnerable to these schemes. "Con men also prey on the old folks' desire to help someone," King said.

The "pigeon drop" is another example of a confidence game that has occurred in Big Spring with surprising regularity, King said.

"Someone claims to find a sack of money in a public place and waits for a 'mark' to come by. It's usually an elderly person. They pull out a wad of money and tell the person it is gambling or narcotics money," King said.

The confidence man then asks the unsuspecting person to withdraw half of the amount of money he claims is in the sack "as a deposit" and says he will get an "honest" third party to hold it for several days.

"Of course, the third party is always someone the con man knows. He tells the person if the sack is not claimed in a couple of days, the money is his.

"The victim will either get a sack full of shredded newspaper or is told to meet the con man someplace and he never shows up," King said.

One of the most common confidence games in Big Spring is usually employed by young people and elderly residents are often the victims, King said.

It often works like this:

A young man or woman knocks on the door of residence, tells the owner their car has run out of gas and asks to use the telephone, King said.

"These people either go into the home and take what they want or check the place for valuables, wait until no one is at home, and come back and take everything," he said.

The detective advises people to never allow anyone they don't know inside their home.

"Offer to make the phone call, but never let them in your home. This scheme is in use right now," King said.

Deaths

Should drugs be legalized?

"How can we, as an intelligent, civilized nation, even consider the possibility of legalizing drugs?"

That question was posed in a letter published recently in Time magazine which, like many publications, has reported the growing debate over making drugs legal in this country.

Our answer is this: How can we rule out any alternatives, including the legalization of some drugs, in light of the incalculable damage being done to our society under current drug laws?

We are not saying drugs should be legalized; we have ample fear about the risk of any form of legalization and can list a dozen reasons why it might have an even worse impact. We are saying this country's drug problem is so profound that the question of legalization should not be instantly dismissed.

Legalizing drugs is not a new issue; it was being debated on college campuses in the 1960s. What is new are three things:

- The widening recognition that current drug laws and their enforcement have failed dismally.

- The staggering, increasing costs to society of drug addiction and drug crime. In dollars, the price has been estimated at more than $60 billion a year. In human life and death, the cost is beyond measure.

- Greater acceptance of the idea that our drug laws, more than the drugs themselves, are causing most of the damage.

One obstacle to a more intelligent debate about legalization is the absence of adequate research. Despite well-written arguments in favor of legalizing drugs that have appeared in highly respected journals, almost no scientific research has been done to predict the impact of new laws.

One other obstacle has been a tendency to see the issue as an either/or proposition. It's not. Drugs are a massive, complicated problem; solving the problem may require many partial solutions.

Legalizing marijuana on a limited basis, for example, is a far different question than unlimited legalization of heroin. And the impact of either also would depend on other variables: How the drugs would be priced, taxed, regulated and distributed.

If limited legalization were to prove beneficial, it would not rule out other, seemingly contradictory steps.

We don't know what might work best. What we do know is that the status quo isn't working, and the nation's drug problem is raging out of control.

Closure notice isn't always the most humanitarian act

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The morning news tells us that Ronald Reagan has given up on the 60-day notice for plant closings.

You see, said the commentator, there are only 25 senators willing to stick with Reagan on an override, so he'd lose in the Senate. And in the House, he just doesn't have the votes. So... he'll just let the bill sit on his desk, and it will automatically become law in 10 days.

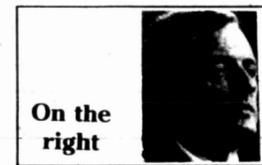

The most satisfaction the president can get is to let the unsigned bill become an act without his signature. This stepfatherly treatment will give him a little satisfaction, but it won't help the republic.

We have here the locus classicus of the political measure that everyone knows is wrong, but everyone is afraid to vote against because it sounds so very simple: You don't let people go without giving them a few weeks' notice.

What Congress doesn't appear to know is that industry needs to absorb in its own way imposition on its normal practices. If you have an operation that you are struggling to maintain, you will consider all alternatives.

One of them is to continue the struggle at full velocity until your damage has reached a certain figure, and then you give up, cutting your losses as sharply as you can. A second alternative is to decide that two months before you would reach the cutoff point, you will make the decision to close and spend the money saved in severance payments.

A third alternative is to close down two months earlier than you might otherwise, but four months earlier — because of the new act.

On the right

It becomes one more burden to bear. Three-fifths of all American businesses fail within two years of starting out. American business has given jobs to 18 million people in the past 10 years.

Contrast that with the performance of the Europeans, who are approximately as wealthy as we are with a population about the same size. They have created not a single new job.

We are today employing a higher percentage of Americans than at any time in history. And this is in spite of the high incidence of failed business.

So the question arises: Ought Congress to get into the business of specifying what are the obligations of enterprises that have become marginal?

Suppose that the idea is to found a small factory and the entrepreneur sets out to raise $1 million. But since the weekly payroll will be $50,000, now he has either to raise an extra $400,000, or else plan to abort the operation before the time felt necessary to give it a reasonable chance of success.

And then there is the entrepreneur who recognizes that the moment he announces that the plant is going to close down he will start losing whatever income he was getting. Everyone who lives in a municipality in which a newspaper or magazine stopped publishing knows the experience.

In my adult lifetime, seven daily newspapers have closed down in New York City — and always those papers have announced at noon on a Monday that the following day's edition will not appear. By serving 60 days' notice, they would lose their advertising revenues and endanger their credit.

The care of laid-off employees, or of employees who suffer from a plant closing, is clearly the business of the labor unions, bargaining with the enterprise.

These unions can look at the economic picture and tailor their demands to what is reasonable. Funds can be created to be invaded in the event of a plant closing.

But each enterprise, in this way, has the advantage of customizing the plan to the situation. The alternative is to force the business to absorb into its contingency plans the cost of closing down. And to do this can rob it of the flexibility needed in order to succeed.

Here we are, with a record number of people employed, the envy of the entire world — and we proceed to hack away at a system that has proved successful and humanitarian. We are left to pity those men and women of conscience who know this, but who do not dare to vote their consciences.

Suppose one were to take the complementary position, and pass a law stipulating that no American can quit his job without serving 60 days' notice? Interesting thought, except it's unconstitutional.

Section One of the 13th Amendment proscribes involuntary servitude. Well, Section Two of the 13th Amendment should proscribe involuntary employment.

"We're going to need Jesse, we're going to need all the delegates that are at this convention." — Michael Dukakis, sounding a conciliatory note at the Democratic National Convention about his rival, Jesse Jackson.

"I can't govern alone. I need

"They'll sit there and be cute and beg for food. They'll eat anything. It's the deers' undoing

My talk with Tom Jefferson

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Each year around the Fourth of July, I talk to one of the Founding Fathers of our country, former President Thomas Jefferson.

Don't laugh. If Oral Roberts can talk to God and Shirley MacLaine can channelize with some guy from the Ice Age, I can talk to Thomas Jefferson.

I attempt to keep Mr. Jefferson up-to-date.

"So," he wanted to know in his last visit, "how were the presidential primaries?"

"They went fine," I said.

"Bob Dole got the nod for the Republicans, didn't he?"

"As a matter of fact, sir," I explained, "Dole didn't do well at all. George Bush won!"

"I would never have believed that. Did Bush shed his wimp image?"

"Sort of, he went at it with Dan Rather during a televised interview and he said, 'Doo-doo' in public."

"Doo-doo?" asked Mr. Jefferson.

"Doo-doo," I reiterated.

"What about the preacher? I forgot his name."

"Pat Robertson, sir? The press found out his wife got pregnant before they were married, and he started making up a lot of stuff about missiles in Cuba."

"On top of that there was a lot of scandal involving television ministers, and that hurt him, too."

"What sort of scandals?"

"For one, Jim Bakker of the PTL Club was nailed for certain sexual indiscretions and then Jimmy Swaggart was caught consorting with a known prostitute."

"We should have mentioned something about television ministries in 'freedom of religion,'" said Mr. Jefferson.

"Why didn't you, sir?" I asked.

"Ben Franklin thought nobody would actually take them seriously. We were wrong about a lot of things. So how did Jesse Jackson do for the Democrats?"

"Very well, he almost ended up as Dukakis' running mate."

"Whose running mate?"

"Dukakis. Mike Dukakis. He is the Democratic nominee."

"I've never heard of him."

"Little short guy with black hair. He is governor of Massachusetts."

"Can he win in November?"

"He's running against George Bush."

"Good point," said Mr. Jefferson.

"That's enough about politics," he continued. "Let's talk baseball. I bet Ben Franklin 10 bucks George Steinbrenner would fire Billy Martin before the 4th of July."

"That makes you a winner, sir," I said to the former president.

What's happening to our mother tongue?

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Words are wonderful devices. They enable you and me, normally, to communicate, not just with each other, but with our immediate peers, comfortably and easily.

Not always accurately or readily, but that's another story.

Take the case of a Houston judge who recently offered a defendant this choice in a bail production hearing: marry your common-law wife and make your two children legitimate, or stay in jail.

The judge, named Walker, called the ultimatum "the Walker policy in common-law cases — you walk her down the aisle."

Now, the argument could be made from the judge's standpoint that the forced matrimony would enable wife and children to collect whatever support they might be entitled to, from him.

From the other side of the ledger, a civil libertarian might argue the woman and offspring would be better off without the judge's last name and "any stigma thereunto appended or attached."

Lawyers talk that way. Their conversations — never mind their correspondence and legal documents — are liberally peppered with extract of Latin.

Sometimes my job leads me so deep into the labyrinth of legal language that I think I'll never emerge. Once in awhile, having emerged safely, I consider turning pro — taking up law.

I also think about pursuing law on the rare occasion I have to do something done by an attorney. Even in Texas, the days of handshakes, deals and word-of-mouth agreements are, alas, numbered.

How tough can it be to practice law?

Well, first you have to be a lawyer. That means you have to pass the bar exam. You can't even take the bar exam until you're a law school graduate.

So you have to qualify for law school. No big deal. You also have to pay for law school — and if I could pay for law school I wouldn't need to worry about money.

County judges and justices of the peace need not be attorneys.

Write from the heart

by order of the state constitution, which apparently aimed to leave at least that level of justice in the hands of the ordinary citizen. Laymen, despite the objection of many a learned counsel, can exercise considerable saivoire faire in those posts.

But the days of the Texas Constitution's authors, as our legislators continually remind us, are no more.

So new statutes (laws) arise and become part of a code (the tax code, the penal code, the civil code) — which really is a pretty good name for it, considering how difficult it can be for an outsider to decipher — and the world becomes more complicated.

Whenever that happens, the language changes too. The changes usually do not bear sharply in the direction of clarity and concision, however. Generally they are weighted towards the minutiae of nicety, the precision of nuance, that makes each separate particle perfectly focused.

The problem isn't that you can't see the particles; the problem is, the cloud they form obstructs the view of justice from the outside looking in nearly as perfectly as does the bandage over that venerated lady's eyes.

Words, like other tools, are wonderful devices. But like other tools — law, for instance, or an automobile, or even a firearm — words are subject to use and to the whims of their users.

Put a loaded pistol in the hands of an escaped murderer facing a policeman and you have the potential for a tragedy.

Put a car key in the hands of a drunk and you have the potential for a disaster.

Put a law in the tein of a fanatic and you have the potential for a holocaust.

But put words at the free disposal of a dedicated obfuscator, and you have the potential for a bureaucracy.

Pick your poison.

Meese report to be issued today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III's involvement with a $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline project and scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. are to be detailed publicly in an 830-page report, which is to be accompanied by a lengthy rebuttal from Meese's lawyers.

The report, to be issued today by a three-member panel of federal appeals court judges, was compiled by independent counsel James McKay after he concluded in a 14-month criminal investigation that there is insufficient evidence to seek an indictment of Meese.

McKay submitted his report July 5, under seal to the appeals court panel which appointed him. Hours later, Meese declared he had been vindicated and announced he would resign.

Despite his impending departure from the Justice Department, Meese's ties to the proposed pipeline and other matters may undergo an ethics review by the department's Office of Professional Responsibility.

NASA delays shuttle decision

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's tiny fuel leak has been stopped but not fixed, and officials have decided to test-fire the ship's three main engines before deciding whether to remove the space shuttle from the launch pad for repairs.

While preparing for that crucial July 28 test, engineers will decide if there is a way to fix the difficult-to-reach leak on the pad, whether the leak can be isolated from the fuel system or if it is so insignificant that it does not pose a flight hazard if left as is.

"By draining and purging the line, engineers have stabilized the leak and feel it is safe to proceed with the flight readiness firing," Chuck Hollinshead, director of public affairs at the Kennedy Space Center, said Sunday.

If Discovery has to be rolled back to a hangar, its planned launch as the first post-Challenger shuttle flight would be delayed up to two months.

Group still faces discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asian-Americans are better paid and better educated than American whites, but a report by government civil rights experts is reluctant to declare an "Asian success story" and insists that discrimination still exists.

Presentation of the 289-page study to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, which had ordered it, prompted concern over its impact. One commissioner, Mary Frances Berry of the University of Pennsylvania, said it might lead to more discrimination when the public realizes how much more Asians are earning.

Six of the seven commissioners voted Friday to hold off on adopting the document as an official government report until more outside experts can review and interpret it.

U.S.-born Filipinos and Indians, along with recently immigrated Vietnamese, have below average incomes.

Skelton collapses during benefit

HONOLULU (AP) — Red Skelton collapsed during a benefit performance, but returned to the stage as the audience sang "Happy Birthday" to the veteran comedian-clown who turns 75 today, an organizer of the event said.

Skelton, overcome by heat and humidity, collapsed into the arms of the sound crew as he left the stage 90 minutes into his two-hour outdoor performance Sunday night, said Lynn Cook, executive director of the March of Dimes Chapter of the Pacific.

"I'm really not feeling well. I'm going to have to leave you. I'm very sorry," Skelton told the audience before he collapsed, according to Mrs. Cook.

Skelton revived with the aid of an ambulance crew that administered oxygen.

Four U.S. soldiers wounded in attack

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Four U.S. soldiers were recovering today from wounds sustained when a carload of men hurled bombs and fired guns at a group of off-duty American servicemen in a discotheque parking lot, officials said.

Authorities had no suspects and were "intensively investigating" the attack early Sunday outside the Confetti disco in San Pedro Sula, said a police official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Charles Barclay said no group had claimed responsibility for the attack, which occurred at about 1 a.m. in Honduras' second-largest city.

Barclay, in a telephone interview, said the four soldiers wounded in the attack were hospitalized in satisfactory condition. Embassy officials refused to identify them until their families were notified.

A U.S. official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the wounded men "were out of danger." He did not elaborate.

The soldiers were on leave from Palmerola Air Force Base, 41 miles northeast of the capital of Tegucigalpa, and were in civilian clothes and carrying no weapons at the time of the attack, Barclay said.

"The American soldiers were on a one-day recreation trip to San Pedro Sula," he said.

They were leaving the nightspot's parking lot in a civilian vehicle rented from a Honduran company when the attackers threw small bombs and opened fire from inside another car in the parking lot, U.S. officials said.

The vehicle with the soldiers immediately sped away.

"The attackers threw explosive bombs and shot at them with small-caliber weapons," Barclay said.

In Washington, Pentagon spokeswoman Maj. Kathy Wood said nine soldiers were attacked as they drove out of the discotheque's parking lot. She said there were 10 or 12 attackers.

"I guess if there's a hero in this, it's the driver," Wood said. "He took evasive action. He drove away fast. He did things right." The driver's name was not available.

Mandela turns 70 today in prison

LONDON (AP) — Words of support and shouts of outrage rippled around the world as thousands of people marked the birthday of Nelson Mandela, the anti-apartheid leader who turned 70 today in a South African jail.

Celebrations ranging from rock concerts to church services were planned today in at least 30 countries. In South Africa, the white-led government has banned events related to Mandela's birthday.

Dozens of nations have in recent days demanded the release of Mandela, who has been jailed for nearly 26 years.

Britain's Anti-Apartheid Movement, which organized a prayer service for Mandela today at St. James Church in London, said 25 activists marched 590 miles from Glasgow, Scotland, to deliver to the South African Embassy here more than 30,000 cards signed by Britons calling for Mandela's release.

Pinochet hits the campaign trail

CONCEPCION, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet, evidently seeking eight more years of rule, has toned down his authoritarian image. In public appearances, he portrays himself as tender-hearted as well as tough-minded.

In addition, the right-wing army commander tries to present his government as more democratic and participative. Political analysts see it as a bid to win the electoral backing of many undecided Chileans.

"I can't govern alone. I need you to help me," he told a group of youths at a breakfast meeting in the southern city of Concepcion during a question-and-answer session peppered with avuncular observations and jokes.

He told the audience a new period of rule for his government "will bring fundamental change. There will be a democracy."

Rio police kill 16 in drug raids

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — In a long day of raids on drug traffickers that involved intense gun battles, police said they killed 16 people and arrested 32 in the city's hillside shantytowns and outlying slums.

Sunday's effort, called "Operation Mosaic", involved 300 policemen and lasted from long before dawn until late at night, said police spokesman Geovanni Azevedo.

Among those killed in gun battles between police and drug traffickers were Rio's top drug kingpins, known as "Naldo" and "Cassiano" as well as "Brasileirinho" — or little Brazilian — a 12-year-old gun runner, police said. Both Naldo and Cassiano were under age 25.

Ten of those arrested were police officers who collaborated with the drug traffickers, according to TV Globo, the nation's largest private network.

Azevedo said at least 12 weapons and unspecified quantities of cocaine, marijuana and ammunition were seized by police who, armed with submachine guns and revolvers, burst into homes in search of drug dealers.

Squatters battle Dutch police

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Riot police attempting to clear Amsterdam's last great squatter stronghold turned back hundreds of stone-throwers today, only to encounter flaming barricades.

The abandoned dock area warehouse known as Conradstraat that police were trying to seize has been home to scores of squatters for more than a decade. Eviction of its occupants would signal the beginning of the end of the city's militant squatter movement.

Led by a bulldozer, riot police converged on the Conradstraat shortly after dawn.

Dear Abby

Dentures prove to be a real pain

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Revolted in Maine," whose husband refused to wear his dentures. She said, "Looking at him is offensive, and watching him eat is unbearable." Believe me, if that's the only thing wrong with him, she's a very lucky woman. I think she wants out of her marriage.

I'm 71 and Abe is 78, and we've been married for 45 years. I don't wear my dentures, either, and I haven't worn any for more than 10 years. I had four sets made by four different dentists and I couldn't wear any of them, but I didn't give up.

I went to three more dentists, and the last one told me to quit wasting my money because there are thousands of people like me who just can't adjust to wearing dentures no matter what. Eating without teeth is no problem for me. There are only two items I can't eat — raw carrots and nuts.

I'm a lousy cook and a worse housekeeper, but Abe never complains. He takes me out for dinner every night and says he doesn't care how I look, as long as I feel good.

TILLIE SCHIFF, DELRAY BEACH, FLA.

DEAR TILLIE: Count your blessings, by gum!

DEAR ABBY: I know this will be too late for Father's Day, but I had to write. You advised us to write a letter to our fathers telling them how much we appreciate them, and why. Well, what do you do when your father does not speak to you or acknowledge your letters?

Ever since I made the choice to move in with my boyfriend, my father has not spoken to me. I have written to him, but my letters have not been answered. I (and my boyfriend) have tried to talk to him. He refuses to speak to either of us.

We intend to get married next year. If our financial situation is such that we can afford a small wedding, we will have one. If not, we will drive to some small chapel and get married.

It hurts me to know that my father cannot even give me his best wishes. I know he thinks my move was a stupid one, but I have never been happier.

FEELING FATHERLESS

DEAR FEELING: How old are you? Are you self-supporting? How old is your boyfriend? Is he self-supporting? If you are both of legal age and are self-supporting, I would say that a pair of adults are responsible only to themselves for their actions.

Your father has every right to be disappointed in your decision and disapproving of your lifestyle, but in punishing you, he is also punishing himself.

Gammaberries

Dr. Hilary Stevenson, a researcher at the Northern Ireland Department of Agriculture in Belfast, doses strawberries with gamma rays. The technique is being studied to assess the benefits like extending the shelf life and reducing contamination of food. Irradiation is permitted in several Common Market countries; it is not yet approved in the United Kingdom or widely used in the United States.

Look out Poland; American fast food on its way

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Cheeseburgers with a side of fries may be on their way to Warsaw to put American-style fast food on the Polish menu.

Two Indianapolis companies, SaniServ and Curtis International, plan to open Burger Boy restaurants in Warsaw within the year, said businessman Gabriel E. Aguirre.

"There's nothing there to compare with the fast food as you know it," said Aguirre, president of SaniServ, a maker of food-service equipment. "There's different types of finger foods, but nothing in the magnitude of what we have here."

Burger Boy's menu will be almost completely American, with double and single burgers, cheeseburgers, fish sandwiches, french fries, shakes, soft drinks and dessert turnovers.

"There will also be a minimum of one product known very well to the nationals, like kielbasa," Aguirre said Saturday.

"The restaurants will sell food and buy supplies using the local currency, the zloty, which will make its menu affordable to the average Pole.

"If they charge in local money it will be enormously popular, I

Names in the news

NOVI, Mich. (AP) — Madonna, the star of "Who's That Girl?," may be wondering "Where's my dress?"

A hand-sewn dress of powder blue chiffon worn by the pop singer, in the video "True Blue" from her movie "Who's That Girl?" was stolen Friday from a mall featuring a rock memorabilia exhibit sponsored by MTV, the cable TV music channel.

"It was a mean thing to do," said Chuck Lutz, manager of MTV's Museum of Unnatural History tour.

Phil Morosco, general manager of the mall, said security guards were patrolling the mall when the theft occurred near closing time Friday night.

The thief apparently broke into a plexiglass display case, popped open a frame holding the dress and stole it, leaving behind a napkin signed by Elvis Presley and letter written by Paul McCartney when he was a member of the Beatles, officials said.

ESTORIL, Portugal (AP) — Fans of rhythm and blues singer Ray Charles got a financially profitable proposition when Charles had to cancel a show: complimentary tickets to a concert by crooner Julio Iglesias.

Charles was unable to reach Portugal for Sunday's show at the Estoril Casino outside Lisbon after his plane developed mechanical problems in Toulon, France.

Concert promoters said ticket holders could still attend the dinner and floor show that was to have preceded Charles' performance at the Casino.

As a bonus, they also could attend one of the three shows Iglesias is to give at the same venue this week for no extra charge.

Musical tastes apart, the offer is financially attractive. Tickets to Charles concert went for $100 each.

MADONNA

But seats to the Iglesias shows were on sale for $230 each.

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — A casting call for extras to appear in a Jane Fonda-Robert DeNiro movie drew thousands of people, apparently unfazed by the earlier controversy that surrounded plans for the movie.

The choice of Waterbury for some scenes in the MGM movie sparked protests earlier this year from veterans upset about by Miss Fonda's visit to Hanoi in 1972 during the Vietnam War. But Miss Fonda met with the veterans in June and apologized for her trip to "anoi."

Early Saturday morning, more than 50 people were in line before auditions were to begin. By the end of the day, an estimated 3,000 would-be actors and actresses turned out to vie for the 500 roles for extras in the movie, "Stanley and Iris."

Scenes are to be filmed in the city later this month or in early August.

The movie depicts the story of a factory worker fired when his employer learns he cannot read. The woman he works with teaches him to read, and the two fall in love.

Surgery creates industry

DANVERS, Minn. (AP) — The popularity of fat-removal surgery and the demand for the special body-shaping medical garments needed afterward, more recently, the drought. Danvers is about 140 miles west of Minneapolis.

Pina Productions makes a variety of medical garments for people who have had abdominal surgery, facelifts and other operations.

But its girdle-like garments used to compress and reshape bodies following fat removal, or liposuction, are the company's hottest seller, said owner Bonnie Pina.

The plant employs 15 people in this town of 152, which was hit hard by the farming crisis and, more recently, the drought.

The compression garments, which are applied immediately after surgery, must be made with precision because a seam in the wrong spot can leave a permanent mark in the skin, Pina said. The garments, made of Spandex, usually are worn for six weeks.

"Use of a wrong garment or a faulty seam can mar someone for life," she said. "They need that constant pressure to put the fat cells and muscles back together again."

Liposuction is America's most popular form of cosmetic surgery. A tubular instrument, inserted underneath the skin, suctions off fat tissue that is resistant to dieting.

Production of the garments peaks in the spring "just before bikini season" and "just before the holidays" in the fall, Pina said.

The most frequently used garment, to tighten suctioned buttocks or thighs, resembles a skin-tone, long-legged girdle. It has a 4-inch elastic band at the waist and runs to just above the knee. Versions are made for men and women.

The company also produces wraps for other parts of the body, including the rib cage, chin, neck and arms.

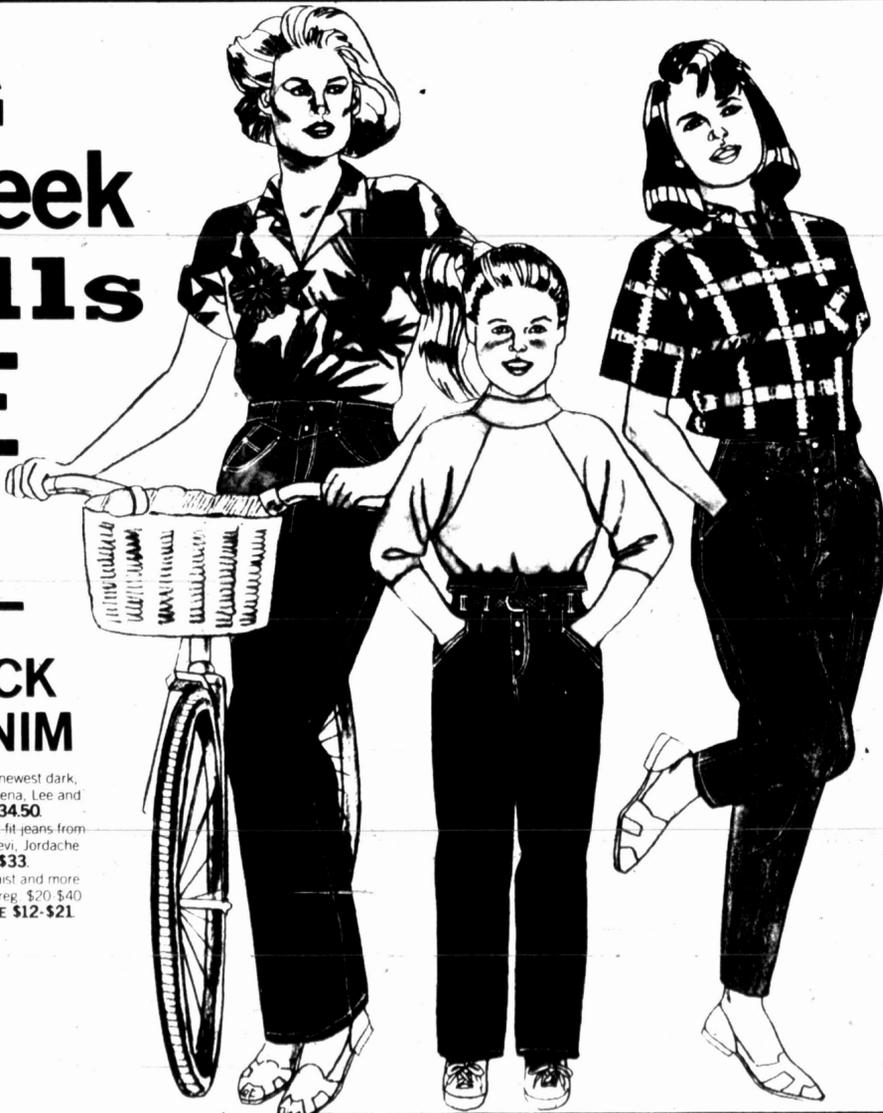

Before compression garments became popular, doctors wrapped patients in large bandages, but they were not as effective.

Is Price right at British Open?

LYTHAM, England (AP) — Nick Faldo, Seve Ballesteros and Sandy Lyle all have won the British Open at least once. Nick Price thought he had joined that group six years ago, but the dream vanished six holes too soon. Now, he said, that disappointment would help him in a final-round battle of champions, real and imagined.

cond at 208, with Lyle, the 1985 champion, another stroke back. Those four were the last golfers scheduled to tee off in today's final round, the first time in 117 editions that the sport's oldest tournament has ended on a Monday. The schedule was pushed back one day after rain washed out Saturday's play. American hopes of winning a first British Open since 1983 were fading rapidly. Larry Nelson, Don Pooley and Andy Bean were tied with Eduardo Romero of Argentina for fifth, but at 212 were distant challengers. Price, a Zimbabwean who has applied for resident status in the United States and plays on the American PGA Tour, knows what it feels like to contest for the Open title late on the last day. In 1982, at Troon, he led the field by three strokes going to the 13th tee. He wound up second, dropping four strokes including a double bogey, as Tom Watson won the fourth of his five open titles. Price did not back into the 54-hole lead. He earned it. After Ballesteros shot an opening-day 67 in horrendous conditions, Price took over on Friday with a 67 of his own for a 36-hole total of 137 and a one-shot lead over the Spaniard. After Saturday's round was rained out — a day off that Price said hurt his rhythm in the early going Sunday — he withstood a day's best 67 by Lyle, a six-birdie 68 by Faldo and a scrambling, slashing 70 by Ballesteros to double his lead. He birdied the first hole, then lost the stroke with a two-putt bogey-5 at No. 4. That's when his putting started to catch up with his short-iron work. He chipped to one foot to save par at No. 5, wedged out of a bunker and holed a birdie putt at No. 6, putted back from the edge of the green for par on No. 7 and birdied No. 9 to pick up two strokes on Ballesteros and Faldo, who started the day two under. Lyle, starting at even par, was just beginning to make his charge. Price had done what he said he had to do — come through the front nine unscathed. Faldo tied for the lead briefly, getting a birdie on No. 13 with Price and Ballesteros a hole behind. But Price quickly regained sole possession of first place by making birdie at 13 as well, sinking a six-foot putt. That was a close as Faldo got. He bogeyed the 15th, as the putter that had been sinking 25- and 30-footers suddenly turned sour and required two strokes from six feet to finish the hole. Price got his final birdie of the round at No. 15. Ballesteros gained a stroke on the day but never got closer to Price. He drove into a bush on the sixth hole, needed two hacking strokes — one left-handed — with a sand wedge to get back on the fairway and salvaged a bogey-6 on a hole producing birdies.

UGSA 'Stars' struggling at state

MIDLAND — Saturday was a rough opening day for Big Spring teams in the United Girls Softball Association Class AA State Tournament. Big Spring Division I, II and III All-Stars failed to win a game in five tries. Sunday, Big Spring teams fared better, gaining their first wins of the tournament. The tournament divides teams into pools of play with a round robin format. The top team from each pool advances to a double elimination format that will lead to Tuesday's finals. Saturday, the Division I (ages 7-9), the Big Spring All-Stars lost two heartbreaking games. They lost their first contest to Snyder 9-4, and their next game to Abilene North 5-4. The Division II All-Stars (ages 10-13) dropped a 13-4 decision to Abilene South. The Big Spring Division III All-Stars (ages 13-15), dropped decisions to Snyder and Abilene North. Snyder blasted Big Spring 23-5 and Abilene North defeated Big Spring 16-6. On Sunday, the Big Spring Division I All-Stars started the morning off by defeating Brownwood 11-8. Then they dropped a 10-4 decision to Midland. The Big Spring Division II All-Stars won their morning game over Brownwood, 17-15, and then got trampled by Odessa Pink, 21-4. The Big Spring Division III All-Stars played two close games Sunday. They began by nipping Brownwood 16-15, and then dropped a 14-13 decision to Midland Red. A daily gate pass is $2 and a tournament pass for the entire week is $8. The Class A tournament will begin Wednesday with teams from 241 and Lovington N.M., along with Texas teams of Hawley, Colton, Colorado City, Albany, Breckenridge.

Getting to the point GREENLY, Colo. — Denver Broncos' defensive back coach Charlie West explains a play to the team's number three draft choice Kevin Guidry, a cornerback from Louisiana State, at his first day of practice at the Broncos training camp. U.S. Olympic boxing team says: 'road to Seoul paved with gold'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Kelcie Banks took a look at the U.S. Olympic boxing team he had just barely made and pronounced it ready for the Games in Seoul. "I think we'll get 80 percent of the Olympic golds," Banks predicted Sunday after earning a spot on the team with a 3-2 victory over 17-year-old Ed Hopson at 125 pounds. "The hardest part of this is making the American team." It couldn't have been much harder for Banks, or teammates Riddick Bowe and Andrew Maynard, who all had to win twice during the weekend box-offs to make the squad. All three rallied with decisions to move from the loser's bracket onto the team. "This is something I've worked for for 13 years," said Banks, who won the only U.S. gold medal in the 1987 Pan Am Games. "It feels great. Going to Seoul I'll be real loose." Banks' decision over Hopson, the Olympic trials champion, was loudly booed by the crowd of about 1,000 at Caesars Palace, as was his 4-1 decision on Saturday over Hopson, of St. Louis. Banks had to win both fights or Hopson would have been on the team.

"I think when I'm the underdog it motivates me more," said Banks, of Chicago. "I knew I had to go out in the third round and be aggressive. That's what won the fight for me." Bowe, a super heavyweight, also won his way onto the team by a narrow margin. Bowe used a superior left jab to beat Robert Salters of the Army 3-2 for the second day in a row and earn a spot on the team. Bowe, who lost to Salters in the U.S. Amateur and Olympic trials, actually was tied 2-2 on four scorecards, and a fifth judge had it even. The judge, forced under amateur rules to pick a winner, gave the nod to Bowe. "I've got one more dream to accomplish," said Bowe, of New York. "I'm going to go to Seoul and do the same thing, but in better fashion." Afterward, Bowe posed with his Olympic teammates for pictures and led a chant of "The road to Seoul is paved with gold." Maynard, considered by many one of the favorites for the light heavyweight gold in Seoul, won his second straight 4-1 decision over

Sprinter proves world record was no fluke

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two years ago, Florence Griffith Joyner was an overweight secretary. Now, she's the fastest woman in the world. Griffith Joyner set a world record of 10.49 seconds, in winning a qualifying heat Saturday at the U.S. Olympic Trials, then showed it was no fluke by beating the previous record-holder, Evelyn Ashford, in the semifinals and the final on Sunday. Carl Lewis, Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Edwin Moses, Willie Banks and Mary Decker Slaney also gave fans at the Indiana University Track and Field Stadium visions of Olympic gold with weekend victories. But it was Griffith Joyner who stole the show. Prior to her record-setting run, she posted a wind-aided 10.60 that was below the existing world record of 10.76 set by Ashford in Switzerland shortly after winning an Olympic gold for the United States. There was controversy over her world-record performance, because the wind gauge showed an uncharacteristic 0.00 reading. At the same time, the wind reading at the triple jump area was over the allowable 2.0 meters per second for record consideration. But she laid to rest any doubts that she was a world-class sprinter Sunday by winning her semifinal heat in 10.70 and taking the final in 10.61, with Ashford finishing second in both races. "I don't think Florence's performance Saturday makes things easier on the rest of us," said Gwen Torrence, who also earned a trip to Seoul by placing third in the final. "10.49 is so incredibly fast that I don't think it will be broken for decades. I think we can think about 10.76 or 10.79, but I really don't see 10.49 as being approachable." Lewis, 27, took the first step toward duplicating his 1984 feat of winning four Olympic golds Saturday by winning the men's 100 with a wind-aided 9.78 time — the fastest time ever in that event, but not eligible for record consideration. Jackie Joyner-Kersey, 26, raised her record in the heptathlon to 7,215 points Saturday. She won the long jump with a leap of 22 feet, 11 3/4 inches, settled for a 164-4 throw in the javelin that was third-best overall, then broke her record of 7,158 points, set in the 1986 U.S. Olympic Festival, with a 2:20.70 in the 800. Moses, who turns 33 next month, made the Olympic team for the fourth time and showed he's ready to go for a third gold medal by defeating an all-star 400-meter hurdler field with a meet-record 47.37 — the best time in the world this year. Banks, who set a world record of 58-11 1/2 in the triple jump here in 1985, had the longest two performances in history Saturday as he soared 59-3 on his first attempt and 59-8 1/2 on his last jump. Both marks, however, were wind-aided and will not be recognized as records. Mary Decker Slaney, still trying to put the frustration of the 1984 Olympics behind her when she fell in the 3,000-meter finals, fought off Villanova's Vicki Huber to win in 8:42.53.

Griffith Joyner and her coach, Bob Kersee — Joyner-Kersey's husband — disagreed about how overweight she was when she began working with him in 1986. He said it was 60 pounds — but she she said it was 15. "That was a really down year for me," said Griffith Joyner, who agreed with her coach that reducing to her current weight of 130 has made her a better athlete. "I said to myself I have to run better or move on. I said I know I can run better, I just have to find a way." The hours of work on the track and in the weight room paid off. "In the final I was concentrating on getting out harder. I didn't get out as well in the previous race," said Griffith Joyner, who plans to go after another world record this week when she competes in the 200. "The 200 is my better race... Right now I'm looking for a world-record pace. "I won't say the time, but I look for a world record and I don't know in which race. I've got to go out there and concentrate on what I'm supposed to do, concentrate on running the hardest curve I've ever run in my life and bringing it home. I'm ready. I have four days to rest." There was one disappointment to the weekend for Griffith Joyner. Her husband, Al, failed to qualify for a trip to Seoul as the defending Olympic gold medalist in the triple jump. His career-best 56-8 was only good enough for fifth place and only the top three finishers at the trials earn a trip to the Olympics. "It sort of took some of the joy out of the moment," she said.

INDIANAPOLIS — Coach Bob Kersee grabs world record 100 meter dash holder Florence Griffith-Joyner after she won the 100 in a time of 10.60 in the U.S. Olympic Track and field trials Sunday.

Tillis not quick enough for Holyfield

LAKE TAHOE, Nev. (AP) — Evander Holyfield called his victory over James "Quick" Tillis "the biggest step in my career." But he admitted it was only the first step toward what would be the biggest fight of his career — a challenge to heavyweight champion Mike Tyson. "It was not my best performance, but it got the job done," said Holyfield, the undisputed cruiserweight champion who made his heavyweight debut by stopping Tillis after five rounds Saturday night outdoors at Caesars Tahoe.

In 1986, Tillis became the first man to go the distance with Tyson when he lost a 10-round decision. The men who guide Holyfield's career were pleased with his performance, but they said they did not want to rush into a Tyson fight. "Our goal is not to fight Mike Tyson, but to beat Mike Tyson," promoter Dan Duva said. Shelly Finkel, an advisor to manager Ken Sanders, said he hoped Holyfield could fight Tyson in the second half of 1989. "His next fight will be in the fall," Duva said. "He needs time between fights because he's on a very rigid conditioning program. He can't train while he's on the program." Michael Dokes, Orlin Norris and Pinklon Thomas were mentioned as possible Holyfield opponents. The 25-year-old, 6-foot-2 1/2 Holyfield looked comfortable at 202 pounds, which was seven pounds over the cruiserweight limit and eight pounds less than Tillis. "Weight wasn't a big issue," Holyfield said. "I wanted to go in confident and to bring some strength."

He fought with discipline. "He is a great fighter," said the 29-year-old Tillis, who has been knocked out four times in his last seven fights. "Evander is faster than Tyson. He has very good punching power." Holyfield did not appear as quick on his feet as Tyson, but he was quick and stronger at his new weight. He didn't knock Tillis down, but he slowed him with body punches, shook him several with blows to the head, and Tillis was on the verge of going down when the bell ended the fifth round. With Tillis sitting on his stool with head bowed, referee Richard Steele summoned Dr. Elian Ghanem to the corner. But Beau Wiliford, Tillis' manager had already decided his fighter had enough, so Steele stopped it. "... If he had stayed around for just one more round, I would have knocked him out," said Holyfield, who has 15 knockouts on his 19-0 record. "He was ready to go. He knew it, and I knew it."

Local Teens win opener

The Big Spring American Teenage League All-Stars began Sectional Tournament play with a 6-2 win over the Midland American League All-Stars behind a strong pitching performance by Sambo Rodriguez Sunday night at Roy Anderson Complex. Rodriguez pitched a five-hitter in going all seven innings. He surrendered a two-run homer to a Midland batter in the first inning. Big Spring manager Lupe Lara said there wasn't any hitter for his team that stood out. "Everybody hit the ball last night," he said. The Big Spring Americans will play Midland Internationals tonight at 7:30 at Roy Anderson Complex. Lara said Shannon Coots will start on the mound for Big Spring tonight. MIDLAND INTERNATIONAL 3. MIDLAND NATIONAL 2. The Midland National League All-Stars scored two runs in the first inning, kept the lead until the seventh, only to have the Midland Internationals come up with three runs to win the game. The contest was a pitcher's duel between Internationals' Jeff Johnson and Internationals' Brian Rodriguez. Both pitched two hitless innings. Johnson was that good. Johnson committed five errors in the last inning, propelling the Internationals to the win. Midland Nationals will play Midland Americans tonight at 7:30. The loser will be eliminated from the double elimination tournament.

Pirates make sweep of Giants

By The Associated Press
Barry Bonds found out Sunday that it can be fun to come through in the pinch.
Bonds hit a tie-breaking, two-run pinch homer in the eighth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 5-4 Sunday to extend their winning streak to nine games.

National League

Mets 4, Braves 2
ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Ojeda allowed five hits in eight-plus innings and Darryl Strawberry, Mookie Wilson and Tim Teufel homered as New York beat Atlanta 4-2.
Ojeda, 7-7, retired the first 14 batters before Gary Roenicke lined a soft single to left just out of the reach of shortstop Kevin Elster. The victory kept the Mets 2½ games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 1
CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Sax' two-out, run-scoring single snapped a seventh-inning tie as Los Angeles beat Chicago 5-2 for a sweep of Sunday's doubleheader and the five-game series at Wrigley Field.

In the first game, Franklin Stubbs hit a pinch three-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Dodgers a 4-1 victory. The doubleheader sweep moved the Dodgers seven games ahead of second-place San Francisco in the National League West. The Cubs have lost nine of their last 10 games.

With two outs in the seventh inning of the nightcap, Chicago center fielder Mitch Webster misplayed Jose Gonzalez's line drive into a three-base error. Sax followed with a line single to right off reliever Les Lancaster, 4-5, for a 3-2 lead.

Phillies 10, Astros 4
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt's three-run triple sparked a five-run sixth inning and Ricky Jordan homered in his first official major league at-bat as Philadelphia defeated Houston 10-4.

Reds 3, Expos 1
MONTREAL (AP) — Rookie Jack Armstrong allowed two hits in seven innings and Paul O'Neill hit a two-run homer as Cincinnati defeated Montreal 3-1.

Armstrong, 2-3, the Reds' first pick in the 1987 amateur draft struck out five and walked three. Rob Murphy pitched the eighth inning and John Franco got the last three outs for his 16th save.

Brian Holman, 1-2, retired the first 12 batters until Eric Davis led off the fifth with a sharp single to center. O'Neill then hit a 1-0 pitch from Holman into the right-field seats for his 10th homer.

Davis hit a one-out single in the seventh and stole second. Reliever Andy McGaffigan had Davis caught off second base, but threw the ball down the left-field line and Davis scored.

Padres 3, Cardinals 1
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eric Show pitched a five-hitter as San Diego defeated St. Louis 3-1 in 101-degree heat.

Show, 7-9, struck out six and walked one as San Diego took three out of four from St. Louis. It was Show's fifth complete game of the season, tying a career high.

Keith Moreland, Dickie Thon and Chris Brown drove in a run apiece for the Padres off Joe Magrane, 1-4.

The defending National League champions won 3-2 Saturday, but have not won successive games since June 17-18 at Pittsburgh. The Cardinals are 2-11 in July.

Area players win in All-Star tilt

STEPHENVILLE — Tony Timmon's of Wellman scored 34 points to lead the West to a 98-81 victory over the East in the Texas High School Coaches Association Six-Man All-Star basketball game here Saturday.

Playing on the winning West squad were Sands' forward Paul Martin and Borden County guard Shannon Bond. Martin scored six points and grabbed a team-leading seven rebounds. Bonds scored two points.

Wrestler stabbed before match

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Texas wrestler Frank Donald Goodish, known professionally as Bruiser Brodie, was stabbed in his dressing room minutes before a wrestling match and died Sunday on a hospital operating table.

Goodish, 42, was stabbed twice in the stomach during an argument Saturday night just before a match with a wrestler known as Dangerous Danny Spivey, police spokesman Tony Santiago said.

No details were immediately available on Spivey's real name or hometown or with whom Goodish had been arguing.

The stabbing occurred at the Juan Ramon Loubriel Stadium in the suburb of Bayamon, nine miles from San Juan, Figueroa said.

Police said several people were arrested after the stabbing, including wrestler Jose Huertas Figueroa, also known as Invader I.

Viola wins number 15 against Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Viola got his 15th victory the hard way ... and the easy way.

Viola, 15-2, allowed two runs and five hits, in five innings, the minimum number for a starting pitcher to gain a victory, as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles 7-2 in 102-degree heat at Memorial Stadium Sunday.

American League

Viola was helped by two-run homers by Greg Gagne and Kirby Puckett and a solo homer by Gene Larkin. Greg Maddux of the Chicago Cubs is the only other pitcher in the major leagues to win 15 games this season.

Baltimore scored its two runs in the fifth inning, the first on Pete Stanicek's double-play grounder and the second on Cal Ripken's RBI single.

Yankees 7, White Sox 3
NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Guidry pitched one-hit ball for five innings for his first victory since Sept. 5 and Don Mattingly continued his second-half surge with two more hits as the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 7-3.

Dave Winfield went 3-for-4, Jack Clark drove in two runs and Rickey Henderson scored twice in New York's 12-hit attack.

Red Sox 10, Royals 8
BOSTON (AP) — Ellis Burks drove in five runs with a home run, a triple and a double as the Boston Red Sox completed their first-ever four-game series sweep of Kansas City with a 10-8 victory over the Royals.

Staked to a 7-0 lead in the first two innings, converted reliever Wes Gardner, 3-1, scattered six hits, including a two-run homer by Mike Macfarlane, for six innings before tiring in the 99-degree heat.

Rangers 3, Brewers 0
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bobby Witt snapped a personal streak of six consecutive defeats this season with his first career complete-game shutout as the Texas Rangers halted a five-game losing skid with a 3-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Witt, 1-6, scattered eight hits and four walks and struck out six in his second straight effective outing since being recalled from Class AAA Oklahoma City on July 7.

Texas' slumbering offense awakened for 13 hits to end Milwaukee's six-game winning streak in the finale of the four-game series.

Ruben Sierra went 3-for-4 for Texas with a pair of doubles and Scott Fletcher went 3-for-3. Texas was hitting .196 over its previous four games and had four extra base hits in its previous five games.

The Rangers ripped Milwaukee starter Chris Bopp, 6-11, for 11 hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Angels 4, Tigers 0
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Brian Downing snapped a scoreless tie with a two-run single with two outs in the eighth inning and Terry Clark pitched a five-hitter for eight innings as the California Angels defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-0.

Blue Jays 9, Athletics 6
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Fred McGriff drove in four runs with a pair of homers, leading the Toronto Blue Jays to a 9-6 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

The Blue Jays, who were 0-8 against Oakland before going 3-1 in the weekend series, handed the A's their eighth loss in their last 11 games and cut their lead over Minnesota in the American League West to three games.

Oakland took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Ron Hassey's RBI double, but the Blue Jays took the lead with a four-run second featuring a three-run homer by McGriff.

Indians 7, Mariners 4
SEATTLE (AP) — Carmen Castillo snapped a 3-3 tie with a solo homer in the seventh inning and the Cleveland Indians scored three runs without an RBI en route to a 7-4 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Castillo, playing his first game since rejoining the Indians after attending his father's funeral in the Dominican Republic, hit his first home run of the season, a two-out shot off Seattle starter Bill Swift. It was the first homer since Sept. 22 for Castillo, a span of 84 at-bats.

"He's my mentor, he keeps me dedicated. We train together. At least he still has a chance to make the Olympics in the hurdles, but as far as I'm concerned, the world record belongs to him."

In the 400 hurdles, Moses showed his younger challengers that he still believes he's the king of his event as he recorded his 173rd victory in 181 races.

"I think this year has been my best training year in five years," said Moses, who took command by the second hurdle.

The top five finishers, including 1984 Olympic silver medalist Danny Harris who failed to make the Olympics, completed the race in under 48 seconds — the first more than three runners have broken the 48-second barrier.

Andre Phillips, the world's No. 1-ranked hurdler in 1985 and 1986, finished second in 47.58, while two-time NCAA champion Kevin Young of UCLA edged David Patrick and Harris for third and final spot on Cole, who beat him in the Olympic trials in the quarterfinals.

The fight, perhaps the most action-packed of the box-offs, capped a day of four bouts in which 119-pound Kennedy McKinney was the only trials winner to make the team. On Saturday, eight trials winners won spots on the 12-member team.

McKinney beat three-time U.S. Amateur champion Michael Collins 4-1, winning the fight with a big third round in which he stunned Collins on several occasions.

"I only had three minutes to pull it out," said McKinney, of Killeen, Texas. "My corner said I needed the third round, so I concentrated on it."

The U.S. team begins training next week at Fort Bragg, N.C., where it will stay until it meets Canada's national team on Aug. 13.

The squad then goes to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., for the final weeks of training before the Games.

In Saturday's fights, Ray Mercer, an Army infantryman from Fort Hood, Texas, became the U.S. heavyweight hope by scoring a 3-2 decision over Michael Bent of Cambria Heights, N.Y.

Mercer, at 27 the oldest member of the team, used his impressive power to win the trials, but had to rally in the third round to beat Bent, who was on the 1987 Pan Am Games team.

Kenneth Gould, the reigning world welterweight champion, was expected to win and did so easily. Gould won all four of his fights, the final one against Gerry Payne of the team.

Young was timed in 47.72, his career best, with Patrick fourth in 47.75, also his personal best, and Harris fifth in 47.76.

Slaney, the 1983 world champion in the women's 1,500 and 3,000 meters, but who never has won an Olympic medal, battled side-by-side with Huber for much of the race before taking command on the final lap.

There was a tense struggle for third between PattiSue Plumer and Sabrina Dornhoefer.

The two were running together down the final straightaway until the exhausted Dornhoefer fell about 10 meters from the finish.

Plumer then staggered across the finish line and quickly collapsed. Dornhoefer got up and made it across the finish line, but then she also collapsed.

Both were treated at trackside, carried off on stretchers after being iced down and were later released from the track medical facility.

Washington, D.C., to earn a berth on the team.

Other team members include Michael Carbajal, 106 pounds, Phoenix; Arthur Johnson, 112 pounds, Minneapolis; Romallis Ellis, 132 pounds, Ellenwood, Ga.; and Todd Foster, 139 pounds, Great Falls, Mont.

Lewis shooting at four golds

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Carl Lewis, chasing four Olympic medals for the second consecutive Games, continued his relentless pursuit toward that goal today, winning his opening 200-meter heat at the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Lewis, who already has won the 100-meter dash during the Trials, in a wind-aided 9.78 seconds, the fastest ever run, eased to victory in the first round of the 200 in 20.32 at the Indiana University Track and Field Stadium.

COMPUTERIZED ENGINE ANALYSIS $39

With today's high technology cars and light trucks, it makes much more sense to completely analyze the entire engine before doing anything to it. Old stand-bys, such as replacing the spark plugs and adjusting the carburetor, do not a tune-up make.

That's why Goodyear Certified Auto Service Centers recommend a Computerized Engine Analysis before any engine tune-up. Our computerized engine analyzer performs more than 100 comprehensive tests on your car's engine. Problems are pinpointed quickly and accurately. And you'll be given a computer printout that clearly identifies any problem areas.

Trust the care of your car to someone who thinks before he fixes. Trust the technicians at your Goodyear Certified Auto Service Center.

DISC BRAKE SERVICE $89

Don't wait for your disc brakes to get too worn. Let a Goodyear auto technician maintain them. Our disc brake service includes new front disc pads, repacked wheel bearings and resurfaced front rotors. Price applies to conventional rear wheel drive vehicles. Prices vary for front wheel drive. Caliper overhaul $22.50 each if needed. Hydraulic service recommended if needed for safe operation. Limited warranty for 6 months or 6,000 miles, whichever comes first. Ask for details.

COMPLETE AIR CONDITIONING MAINTENANCE $52

Includes up to 3 lbs. refrigerant gas — Performance test system — Leak test all connections and components — Check controls — Check heating and cooling systems — Check drive belts and hoses — Discharge, evacuate and recharge air conditioning system. Limited warranty for 6 months or 6,000 miles, whichever comes first. Ask for details.

OIL FILTER, CHASSIS LUBE & OIL CHANGE $17.95

Lubricate chassis, drain oil and refill with up to five quarts of major brand motor oil, and install a new oil filter. Note: special diesel oil and filter price may result in extra charges. Brands may vary by location.

Businessbeat

Overheard on the beat this week: "Nannies for Grannies" is the name of a unique new company offering services for the elderly and the handicapped in Big Spring.

Raven Stewart, owner and operator of the new business, will for an hourly fee, provide "nannies" to help with chores, errands, dressing and personal hygiene. "Nannies" are also available to sit and visit if someone is lonely and wants company.

"I wanted to do something for the community," said Raven. "I like being with older people and I like to help. There is a need for this type of service in Big Spring."

Contact "Nannies for Grannies" at P.O. Box 844, Big Spring, Texas 79721, or call 263-3559.

Foundation concrete was being poured Friday afternoon for Branham Furniture's second facility, in west Big Spring where Third and Fourth streets merge, Lou Branham reported.

She said that walls should be going up this week. "We believe in Big Spring," she said about the expansion to a second retail outlet. Branham's will continue their operation at 1008 E. 3rd St. where new and used furniture and appliances are sold.

Charles Dunagan, formerly of Big Spring, has been named general manager of Shell Oil Company in Houston according to information received by the Herald.

Dunagan is a 1960 graduate of Big Spring High School and a graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor's degree in chemistry. He resides in Houston with his wife, the former Margaret Gary of Big Spring, and their two sons: Kevin, 18, and Eric, 13.

Dunagan joined Shell Oil in 1965 as a chemist at the Houston Refinery. He was manager of the Regional Business Center, Eastern Region, before being appointed to the position of general manager July 1.

LUBBOCK — Three new members, including Dave Wrinkle, owner and manager of KBST radio, have been appointed to the Lubbock District Advisory Council of the U.S. Small Business Administration, according to Walter Fronstin, district director for the Lubbock SBA office.

Also receiving appointment letters from SBA Administrator James Abdnor were two members of the Odessa business community: Diana L. Kiley and Majol D. Lemley.

The new members join four other members whose terms have recently been extended for an additional two years: Donald G. Smith, Lubbock; Oscar Dickerson, Aspermont; Wayne E. Duke, Amarillo, and Robert L. Prock, Abilene.

The Lubbock Advisory Council meets semi-annually. The next meeting is being planned for late August.

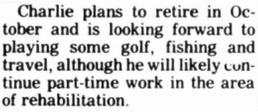

Charles Moore, physical therapy assistant in Rehabilitation Medicine Service at the VA Medical Center, has received a 40-year government service pin, according to Conrad Alexander, Director.

Charlie retired from the U.S. Navy in 1968 after 20 years of service and immediately began work at the VA Medical Center in Long Beach, Calif., where he worked with spinal cord injury patients as a physical therapy assistant until his 1975 transfer to Big Spring.

He said he moved to Big Spring because he and his wife, Ronni, wanted to raise their children in a small town environment. Having stopped only briefly in Big Spring on a trip to visit a brother in San Angelo, Charlie and Ronni were impressed with the warmth of the people and chose Big Spring as their home.

All three of Charlie's children graduated from Big Spring High School. His oldest, David, is pursuing a degree in computer engineering and economics and is currently employed with Electronic Data Systems. His middle child, a daughter, Jennifer is married to David Lucas of Big Spring; they are the parents of Charlie and Ronni's first grandchild, Amanda. Charlie's third child, John is employed by Culligan Water Company and is preparing to go to Texas State Technical Institute in Waco this fall.

Charlie plans to retire in October and is looking forward to playing some golf, fishing and travel, although he will likely continue part-time work in the area of rehabilitation.

Hot oil truck operators must carry shipping papers and placards for the liquid propane gas used in the trucks' heating systems, according to Texas Department of Public Safety License and Weight Service Trooper Marvin Keenan.

The law is in effect now and will be strictly enforced beginning in about 90 days, Keenan said July 11.

Operators who need more information should contact the DPS License and Weight Service office in the courthouse annex at 315 S. Main St. or by telephoning 263-4192.

Connie Geraets, supervisor for House of Lloyd, Inc., national party plan merchandiser of home decor, gifts, and toys based near Kansas City, Mo., recently completed a two-day training course to improve management skills and introduce the 1988 marketing program.

Mrs. Geraets, along with 17 other Supervisors, met in Abilene to participate in a variety of training classes, discuss company programs and preview the 1988 product line.

Anyone interested in a position with House of Lloyd should contact Mrs. Geraets at 263-2366, or write 611 Johnson, Big Spring.

Dumpers

Investigating trash violators

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE Associated Press Writer

EDISON, N.J. — In a weedy field amid abandoned railroad tracks and stacks of 55-gallon drums stands an old brick firehouse called "Butch's Hauling."

A tanker truck is parked next to a sewer drain, setting the stage for "midnight dumpers" to dispose of hazardous wastes illegally and unsafely — and for investigators to practice catching them.

Hundreds of law enforcement agents and environmental officers gather at Butch's Hauling each year to practice ways of investigating reports of illegal waste dumping.

They are the forces battling a national problem that is particularly acute in the densely packed Northeast, with its heavy industrialization, high costs for proper dumping and few places to do it.

The training center is run by the Northeast Hazardous Waste Project, formed in 1980 to fight illegal chemical dumpers and serving as the model for similar projects elsewhere. Fourteen states are part of the project.

"Prior to 1980, there was not really any formalized institution to go after the criminal dumpers legally," said Jeanne E. Rush, director of the Northeast Project. "I don't think there was an awareness of how critical the problem was. After that, everything started being of concern to the states."

The Northeast Project has organized 25 training programs, most lasting three days, for 1,500 participants from local, state and federal agencies, including the FBI and the Environmental Protection Agency.

"A lot of criminal prosecutors don't have the background in environmental prosecutions," said Ms. Rush. "There are a lot of aspects of an environmental criminal trial that are different than a regular homicide trial."

Participants are taught techniques for raiding illegal dump sites, collecting evidence and preparing search warrants.

There is an "awareness" course that helps members of various agencies put aside their sometimes-competing interests and work together.

"With this training, we now have a lot more respect and tolerance for what the other group is doing," said one range officer of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection.

Another course is designed for agents who inspect approved hazardous waste facilities.

An advanced course provides a mock waste case to investigate. First the trainers set up the scene, dumping drums labeled as if they carried toxic material, emptying tainted water into sewers and arranging for a telephone tip to the class.

The trainees put on their protective suits and masks and go to work, investigating the tip as they would a real case of illegal

New owner

Tony Tseng is the new owner of the Golden China restaurant, located between the Brass Nail I and II on South 87. Tseng, who bought the restaurant two months ago, previously ran a restaurant in Taiwan for 15 years. Besides having traditional dinner plates, there is also a luncheon buffet, with a special buffet every Monday and Saturday. Hours are Sunday-Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., and Friday-Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

D-FW air show considered

DALLAS (AP) — A year-round aerospace exhibition and showroom facility topped off with an annual air show is being considered by Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport officials.

"I think it's going to be a reality," said Clay Paslay, assistant director of D-FW Airport's planning and engineering department. "This is an idea whose time has come."

Under the plan, part of a terminal would be converted into an aerospace facility, called the DFWAeromart, where aerospace officials from around the world would come to buy and sell products.

An airshow held during off-peak hours featuring both military and civilian aircraft could one day rival the Paris Air Show, which drew 400,000 when it was last held in 1987, officials say. The Paris event, scheduled again in 1989, is considered the top air show in the world.

"Clay has checked with the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) and the airlines, and they said it would not in any way disrupt normal operations of the airport," said William Cooper, an airport board member.

"It could be done, providing it's done properly," Paslay and airport deputy executive director Arnold Sturms visited the Air Space America 88 show in San Diego in May, where they talked with industry officials about the Dallas project.

However, some aviation experts told the Dallas Morning News they are not convinced that a Dallas air show could ever surpass the Paris show.

"Dallas is beautiful, but if we had the choice, why go to Dallas?" Paris has a "long track record," said Fred Kelley, a spokesman for Seattle-based Boeing Co., adding his company might not display products at the Dallas center.

"I doubt it. We already are selling more than we can manufacture," he said.

Pat McDowell, manager of program development at Colt Industries' Menasco Aerosystems Division in Euless, Texas, near Dallas, also had doubts about the air show plans.

"It's always difficult to unseat the incumbent," McDowell said. "I'm not going to say it's not possible. It's something we need in this country. The big question is where it would be."

However, McDowell said Colt would support and may even display products at DFWAeromart. Airport officials are expected to announce this fall whether they will go forward with the aviation center and air show.

As now planned, the exhibition facility would occupy part of American Airlines' terminal space on the east side of the airport.

American is considering relocating into a new terminal on the west side and has endorsed the airport's plans, officials say. However, the airline has not yet decided whether to move.

Feed store changes hands

The former John Davis Feed Store, 701 East 2nd Street, is now Howard County Feed and Supply, Inc., new owners Ronnie and Don Bowles have announced. The Bowles, father and son, purchased the feed store from Wesley Deats July 1.

The store will be operated by Don, a 1987 graduate of Texas Tech with a degree in agricultural business, with his wife Karla as bookkeeper. Deats will continue with the firm as assistant manager, Don said.

The store has had a long history in Big Spring. It was begun in 1936, when it was founded by John Davis. Deats, a former partner with Davis, became sole owner in 1969.

Howard County Feed and Supply will carry a complete line of Purina feeds as well as hay and tack, said Don. They will also carry lawn and garden equipment and veterinary supplies.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, JULY 19, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Some mental housecleaning and the right associates will get your career moving again. A balanced diet strong on nutrition helps you feel fit. If you make positive changes, an important relationship will take on a new luster. You return from a trip refreshed and raring to go to work! Community work proves highly satisfying. Investments or insurance bring you extra income. Family members will always be there for you.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON

THIS DATE: actor Pat Hingle, singer Vikki Carr, Cubs great Phil Cavaretta, author A.J. Cronin, artist Edgar Degas, former Sen. George McGovern, clinic founder Charles H. Mayo, tennis star Ilie Nastase.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Matters at home require your immediate attention. Pay off debts. Emotional upsets can cause health problems. Eliminate the cause. A dream will prove prophetic. Travel is favored. Contact friends at a distance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A cross-country move could solve all your problems, giving you a second chance in business. You will receive fantastic support from someone who believes in you. Put more fun in your life.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone is bringing negative influences into your life. Get away from this person. Social advantages open doors for you in business. Spend time alone developing new ideas. Showcase a special talent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pragmatic ideas and tireless effort give you an advantage over your co-workers. Travel for fun and romance. Do not take "no" for an answer when you know you are right. Set specific goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you don't value your accomplishments, others won't either. You have the chance to score big career points today. Speak up! Love is a many-splendored thing, thanks to summer entertaining.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A financial situation may not be as sound as hoped. Someone thinks you are very special and lets you know it. An invitation to a glittering affair gives you a tremendous lift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You work like a fiend to accomplish everything today. Additional power or prestige will soon be yours. Give a personal problem time to work itself out. Your patience will be rewarded.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A confidential tip clues you in to a great financial deal. Protect your source by being discreet. Defer making a final decision until you have obtained last-minute information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Uncertainties could plague you, even if you have the support of friends and family. You find out the true meaning of friendship. An out-of-towner adds excitement to the evening. Events move swiftly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Schedule an overdue checkup with the doctor. A social gathering gives you the perfect opportunity to mingle with influential people. You make a good impression. Do more listening than talking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A challenging career development could have you burning the midnight oil. Search for ways to increase your earnings. Touch base with an old friend who has important information. Ask for help.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take advantage of your membership in an influential group. Use your social contacts to further your career ambitions. Long-range goals will be realized if you work at a steady pace.
