Clements recovering from stroke

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN - Gov. Bill Clements was hospitalized after suffering a mild stroke, but he was later described as alert and in good condition, aides said.

Clements, 71, complained of illness earlier before admitting himself into Seton Medical Center around 6:30 p.m.

'Gov. Clements has had a slight stroke that had affected his vision," his spokesman, Reggie Bashur, said Tuesday night. "His vision right now is almost all back to normal. There are no other difficulties or symptoms.

Bashur said Clements was expected to remain hospitalized for two to three days for observation and testing.

George Bayoud, Clements' chief of staff, said he was in his office when Clements walked in Tuesday afternoon and said he was not feeling well and was going to see his Later at the hospital, Clements appeared to be feeling better.

"He's walking around joking (and) says he's going to have some ice cream," Bayoud said.

Clements was listed in good condition late Tuesday, said M.A. Bengston, a hospital spokeswoman. Cardiologist Dr. David Morris also was attending Clements, Bayoud said. Doctors at Seton were not immediately available for comment

Bayoud said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, placed a call to Clements, but didn't talk to him. Bayoud said he spoke with a Hobby aide about the governor's health.

Bayoud said there was no reason for Hobby, the state's second-incommand, to return to Texas early. "The governor is wide awake. If you saw him right now . . . he looks absolutely normal," Bayoud

Hobby spokesman Glenn Smith said the offices of the lieutenant governor and governor have been in contact. "The governor's office caution," he said. After Hobby, State Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, would be next in the line of command, Bayoud said.

Bashur said the governor was expected to remain at Seton for two to three days for observation. He said aspirin was the only medication being administered to the governor.

(Clements) is walking around. He's smiling. He feels fine,' Bashur said. Clements' wife, Rita, also was at the hospital.

Cameo Homes closes; 150 out of work

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Nearly 150 Cameo Homes employees are without jobs today as a result of an "involuntary bankruptcy filing" against the firm's parent company.

John Beddow, general manager of Cameo Homes and a vice president for Sunrizon Homes, Inc., said this morning that three creditors had apparently "forced the issue" and filed against Sunrizon.

He said that "there is a reasonable chance" that the plant could reopen under a different operator. That possibility is being investigated, he said.

Such an involuntary bankruptcy is not the same as a voluntary action by the firm, he said, and does not allow the plant to operate while reorganizing in an attempt to repay creditors

The news came to Cameo employees Tuesday afternoon, Beddow said, when he made the general announcement. It was effective immediately.

The weekly payroll at Cameo amounted to $35,000 to $40,000, he estimated.

Cameo Energy Homes, located at FM 700 and 11th Place, is closing after doing business for 17 years. The action means about 150 employees will be unemployed, officials said.

ficulty for some time," he said, "with a lot of patient creditors." However, Beddow said, "it takes three to force the issue — and they did." They were three of many the manager said

Sunrizon had operated five plants until January, when two were closed. As of Tuesday, Beddow said, there were three Sunrizon plants in operation: one in Duncanville and another in Lake Providence, La. Each had approximately 150 employees, Beddow said.

Plans for expansion at Cameo were announced in January at the time of the closing of the Sunrizon plant in Diboll, about 10 miles south of Lufkin. Beddow estimated then that increased production would lead to the manufacture of an additional 30 to 50 homes per month.

That change was expected to lead to the "sale of a different product on a different market," Beddow said at the time

However, the involuntary bankruptcy changes that. The future of Cameo Homes in Big Spring is apparently open to speculation.

Beddow said that talks were underway before the bankruptcy notice for a new firm to be created through the acquisition of assets from the bankruptcy court. That could yet be achieved, Beddow said today, but it depends on the progress of negotiations

There is a reasonable chance," he said, that it could occur. "It would have been easier if this hadn't happened," he said. 'Whether it will occur, I don't

Dukakis to claim Demo nomination

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA - Energized by waves of rhetoric ridiculing George Bush, the Democratic Party awards its presidential nomination tonight to Michael Dukakis, suburbanite son of immigrants and spokesman for a new political generation.

Both Dukakis and Jesse Jackson will have their names entered in nomination at the Democratic National Convention but when the roll is called, it will be the steeltempered Massachusetts governor, not the fiery preacherpolitician, who will triumph. Dukakis will claim his prize with an acceptance speech Thursday night following the convention's ratification of his choice of a Southern moderate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, as running mate.

Jackson had his night in the spotlight Tuesday, delivering a graceful swan song before a noisy and excited house. Citing dangerous overcrowding, police sealed all entrances to the Omni shortly before Jackson spoke, locking out about 1,000 delegates, guests and reporters.

Inside the hall, Jackson declared, "We meet tonight at a crossroads, a point of decision. Shall we expand, be inclusive, find unity and power, or suffer division and impotence?

"The only time we win is when we come together," Jackson said, as his supporters waved a sea of red banners proclaiming, "Jesse." On orders from Dukakis' floor leaders, the governor's supporters kept their own blue-colored placards out of sight.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other speakers trained their sights on Vice President Bush, the certain nominee when the Republicans convene next month in New Orleans.

Kennedy derided Bush as the man who "keeps burying his head in his hands and hiding from the record of the Reagan-Bush mistakes.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told the delegates that Bush was a

Even before Jackson mounted the podium, the convention had rebuffed his calls for higher taxes on the wealthy and a pledge to reiect the first use of nuclear weapons. Instead, delegates approved a Dukakis-endorsed platform worded in such general terms that it won't provide much of a target for Republicans.

Showing no sign of defeat, Jackson, told the delegates. Tonight I salute Gov. Michael Dukakis. He has run a wellmanaged and dignified campaign. No matter how tired or how tried, he always resisted the temptation to stoop to demagoguery.'

Yet, Jackson did not offer Dukakis an endorsement, probably because his own candidacy is alive for a few more hours. "I'll make

College numbers rise again

Howard College's enrollment of 342 students for the second summer session marks the fourth consecutive semester the school's enrollment has increased Howard College President Bob Riley announced the summer enrollment figure to the school's board of trustees during its regular meeting Tuesday.

Last year's second summer session enrollment was 219 students, Riley said. He attributed the college's steadily increasing enrollment in part to economic conditions that are leading more students towards vocational programs. He also said the college is attracting an increasing number of recent high school graduates.

"Howard College is becoming a more viable option for local young people," he said.

"The enrollment is not so nuch due to our programs expanding," said Mary Dudley, Riley's assistant, "but we're Riley's assistant, getting stronger, our programs are becoming more established.

Riley said enrollment in the college's nursing program is rapidly increasing because of the demand for nurses nationwide.

He also informed the board of construction projects underway on the Howard College campus and SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

The women's dorm, which is expected to be full next fall, houses 48 students, Riley said.

Construction at SWCID includes the removal of walls to provide classroom space. Riley estimated those renovations will be complete in about two years.

The SWCID facility was formerly the Webb Air Force Base hospital, and is being renovated to better serve as an educational building, Riley said. Construction at the Coliseum

Associated Press Writer LUBBOCK - Hundreds of faithful from across Texas have been flocking to a cavernous underground church each week to hear parishioners report what they claim are messages of peace and hope from the Virgin Mary.

A Mass and rosary service previously attended by only a handful of people at St. John Neumann Catholic Church here drew 800 people - the largest number ever to attend - on Monday night, church officials said.

The worshipers came to see three parishioners who knelt on the altar during the reciting of the full rosary, scribbling the "messages" in notebooks as people said the

After the rosary, the crowd fell silent as the first of the messengers read from his notebook.

'My dear little children, listen to me your mother, I want to help you," read Mike Slate. "I want you to be in heaven, where we can pray and serve our father for all eternitv. Yes, my dear ones, you must have signs and you will have these but it will be up to you to believe.

Messages from Slate, a retired Air Force officer, were followed by others from Mary Constancio, a former hospital therapist, and Teresa Werner, a housewife and

"My children, do not be sad," read Mrs. Constancio softly, after first delivering the message in Spanish. "Have joy in your hearts, have peace. Listen to the prayer that you ask, for the Lord-will give

Following the reading of the messages, worshipers crowded around the messengers, seeking blessings. The three laid their hands on people with physical or personal problems.

This has been life-changing for me," he said. "It's much more lifegiving that any of the (theological) stuff I've read.

A few skeptics have surfaced since the parishioners began reporting réceiving messages, James

"Until this would be officially investigated (by the Catholic Church), I can't say somebody has to believe this," he said.

Lubbock Bishop Michael Sheehan is on vacation and has not commented publicly about the message reports.

James said he has interpreted many of the messages as indicating that something miraculous will happen Aug. 15, the day Catholics celebrate the Assumption of Blessed Mary.

"I think we're going to see some beautiful, beautiful thing - experience her presence," said the 56-year-old priest.

Plans are being made for the parish to host 20,000 people for the Monday night rosary.

'We don't know how many people are coming," said David Garza, the parishioner in charge of preparations. "How do you know how many portable potties to get?"

The parish is working with city officials on crowd control, transportation and parking, and plans to set up a public address system for worshipers once the 850-seat sanctuary capacity is reached, said church officials. Although James said many people's lives have been touched by the reported messages and hundreds of people have discovered his church, he's worried that the messages may stop.

"You always have people jumping on the bandwagon," he said. "The question is who will be there in the heat of the day? Who's going to be praying when there aren't

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) -A team led by Texas troubleshooter Red Adair extinguished the largest fire still burning on the Piper Alpha platform, which was ripped apart by an explosion two weeks ago, operators

Occidental Petroleum Corp., one the rig owners said a fire in the wellhead was put out Tuesday night but that four other wells continued to burn.

Adair's team pumped hundreds of gallons of sea water into the well ment, said a company official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Work was halted today, she said, because of strong winds that were blowing smoke and flames onto the Tharos, the rescue rig floating alongside the platform.

A huge explosion following by a raging fire wrecked the North Sea platform 120 miles off Scotland on July 6, killing 166 of the 230 men on disaster in history.

Two-thirds of the platform sank, trapping many victims. Police said three more bodies were brought to the surface Tuesday and early toto cool it before capping it with ce- day, bringing to 35 the number of bodies recovered. Another 131 men were missing.

DA wants life for drug dealers

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas County's district attorney said he will ask the state legislature to approve life in prison without parole as the sentence for drug dealers.

District Attorney John Vance said Tuesday the sentence should be imposed on first-time drug offenders who possess large quantities of drugs and habitual offenders who have been convicted of at least one first-degree felony.

"I think the drug dealers will fear that more than the death sentence," Vance told the Dallas Times Herald.

Congress is debating a plan to stem drug trafficking with the death penalty.

Texas has no provision for a literal life sentence, and legislators, faced with an already overcrowded state prison system, have previously rejected the idea.

Accuser recants, but man commits suicide

A school official charged with lewd behavior killed himself after making a videotape proclaiming his innocence, not knowing that his 15-year-old accuser had recanted her story two days earlier.

"I think that somebody somewhere along the line could have told somebody that the story had been altered," the girl's mother told the St. Petersburg Times in Tuesday's editions.

Douglas Tarrant, 41, Pinellas County assistant school superintendent for finance, died Friday in his car of carbon monoxide poisoning. He was arrested July 11 on a charge of committing a lewd and lascivious act.

The 15-year-old told police that Tarrant asked her to get into his car and was masturbating. But under questioning July 13, the girl said Tarrant did nothing more than ask her to get into his car, according to her mother

The mother called police and school officials to tell them her daughter had recanted the sexual allegation, and the teen-ager was asked to give a sworn statement to state prosecutors. The session was scheduled for July 25.

"It's too late now. I did everything I knew to do," the mother said after Tarrant's death. Tarrant's family said he was

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) depressed over a serious health problem and that his arrest was more than he could handle.

He had worked for the school district since 1971 and was a finance official for the past two years. He had been on medical leave since June because of a serious heart condition that prompted two heart attacks.

Tarrant's brother Jeff said the girl's mother called him Monday to tell him what had happened.

'She was very upset," he said. "I'm just too shocked over the whole thing.

Detective James Dressback said the mother called School Superintendent Scott Rose on Thursday and he referred her to Steve Crosby, personnel director, who was investigating the accusation.

Crosby said he talked to the mother Friday morning, then called Tarrant but didn't mention the mother's call because he was unsure which story was correct.

Trying to dispel the notion that Dukakis is cold and unfeeling, Clinton said, "If he gets elected, as I think he will, people will see that he's got a sunny side to his personality, just like Reagan does." For Dukakis, the nomination marks the end of a 17-month battle against six other Democrats to carry the party's banner in the presidential campaign. A product of the comfortable

Boston suburb of Brookline, Dukakis is a new breed of politician one who considers politics to be as much a profession as engineering.

In the rough and tumble of the Massachusetts Legislature, he gained the grudging respect of oldline politicos despite an aloof style that stressed statistical argument over back-slapping and backroom deals

As the party's nominee, Dukakis will face Bush, the target during the second night of the convention of verbal abuse from some of the Democrats' top stars.

Office hours have been shortened from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday - generating a "few complaints" from customers Robison said.

The shortening of hours was mandated by Congressional passage of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act in 1987, Robison said.

Beginning on Sept. 10, a revision in postal hours will go into effect "based on the needs of our customers," Robison said.

For the record

A photo caption in Tuesday's edition of the Big Spring Herald incorrectly identified a pictured policeman as the driver of the patrol car involved in an accident. The officer pictured, Sgt. Tom Hain, was investigating the accident. It involved a patrol car driven by Officer Jim Rider, who was approaching a stalled vehicle operated by John William McCauley.

A witness said that the police officer pulled behind the car driven by McCauley. Bob Noyes, at the scene at the time, said this morning that McCauley's engine was not running and that the police vehicle had pulled behind the McCauley auto and parked along the edge of the street in the path of the Mc-

Cauley vehicle.

McCauley was apparently attempting to allow his stalled vehicle to roll backwards and out of the path of traffic when it collided with the police vehicle.

Hain investigated the accident because police regulations require supervisor, not another patrolman, to investigate accidents involving police officers, police officials said.

131 ambulance calls last month

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Operations manager Michael Black said Wednesday that Rural/Metro ambulance service answered 131 emergency calls during June

"The total number of ealls went down," Black said. Sixty-one of the responses were for emergencies: the remaining 70 were nonemergency responses, he said.

Cardiac emergencies accounted for 3 percent of the total, with 15 percent of emergency calls involving motor vehicle accidents and 5 percent involving other traumas, he said.

Respiratory emergencies accounted for 5 percent of the calls and other medical emergencies for 72 percent of responses

City calls accounted for 83 per cent of the total, with 50 responses within city limits, while 10 calls were made in the county.

Response times increased inside the city, Black said, from 4.5 minutes to 4.9, and in the county from 11 minutes to 13. The time-onscene average decreased, however, to 16.6 minutes

Times less than or equal to eight minutes per response accounted for 85 percent (49) of all calls; four calls required 10 minutes per response, three required 15 minutes or less and two took more than 15 minutes, according to Black's figures.

Dukakis trouble: His fleeing felons

It's hard to imagine anyone in their right mind who would advocate giving convicted murderers weekend furloughs from prison. But, and at this point it may be best to sit down, one of the two leading contenders for the White House presided for years over a program under which convicted murderers and others of their ilk were let out of jail so they could enjoy a weekend just like any law-abiding folks.

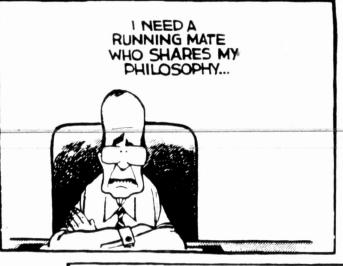

Guess who? It certainly is not Vice President Bush who called recently for the death penalty for drug dealers. That leaves only Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts. And sure enough, the governor heads a state that for years let convicted murderers, robbers and all sorts of prisoners out for a goodtime weekend. Remember, these are not minor traffic offenders. These are the criminal heavies who really worked to earn their spot behind bars. But it was no trick at all to get out periodically as a result of the Massachusetts furlough

One of the most famous beneficiaries of the furlough program was one Willie Horton who was in prison for life because he was convicted of murdering a young service station attendant during a holdup. On his first nine weekend furloughs, convict Horton managed to avoid any additional attention from law enforcement authorities. On the 10th weekend, however, Horton traveled to Oxen Hill, Md., where he broke into a home, robbed and left a man for dead and then raped the man's wife. For that crime, Horton is now serving time in Maryland where there are no weekend furlough programs. Maryland officials say they have no attention of returning Horton to Massachusetts.

Convicts can, at times, be ungrateful chaps. For some, the weekend was not long enough. Instead of returning to their cells and thanking Gov. Dukakis for the brief outing, many convicts just never bothered to go back to prison. At least 81 furloughed convicts are still at large, doing who knows what.

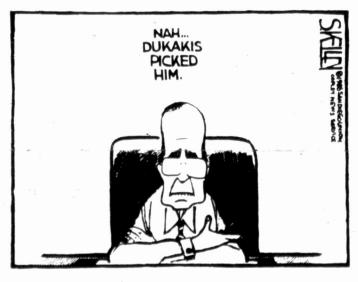

Although the furlough program was operating when Gov. Dukakis took office, he failed to see it for the rip-off that it was. After the Horton incident, the Massachusetts Legislature was struck by a burst of previously missing common sense and passed a bill doing away with the furlough program. But it took 11 months for Gov. Dukakis to sign the bill into law.

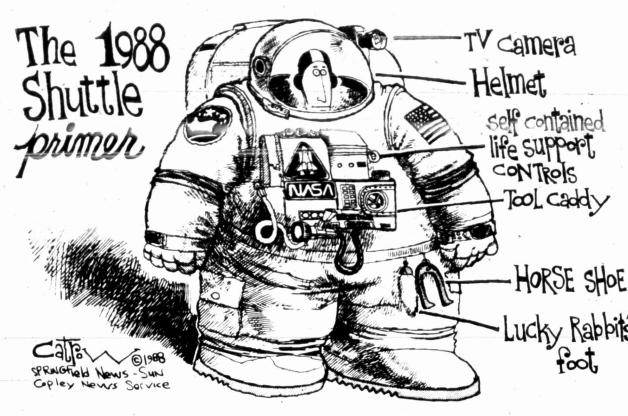

In contract, Vice President Bush has been searching for solutions for the problem of finding places to incarcerate convicts. Mr. Bush recently proposed using old, unneeded military bases to house prisoners. That would appear a much better approach to fighting crime than turning these characters loose for weekend sorties into the law-abiding communities of our nation.

Catastrophic medical care bill for youth to Congress

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON - Children's advocates are zealously trying to do for kids what Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla. has been doing for the elderly on the issue of catastophic medical care. And the youngsters' best ally turns out to be the oldests' best ally — octogenarian Claude

The campaign to upgrade children's medical care has fallen victim to pre-election and budget concerns, stagnation in the House and Senate and the disorganization of the Reagan administation.

But Pepper and a huge alliance of the old and the young, called Generations United, are quietly mounting a major campaign to turn things around in the next session of Congress

The problem of medical care for children is ghastly — $1,000-a day costs for psychotic grammar schoolers who try to harm their parents, the same expenses for ailing newborns doomed to spend months on life-support systems.

Figures from the House Select Committee of Children, Youth and Families sketch this picture:

• Eleven million children have no insurance. Twenty percent of poor children who are already disable have no health benefits. Up to 10 percent of all sick children need long-term care costing more than $10,000 a year.

• Over the last 20 years, the number of children suffering from long-term mental and respiratory diseases has doubled. Yet, the survival rate of children with those diseases, and with disasters such as cystic fibrosis and spina bifida,

Pepper sponsored a bill for inhome medical care for the aged, he included a clause covering in-home care for children, too. The entire bill, including the children's clause, was defeated. Pepper has now agreed to champion a children's medical care bill, called the Young American's Act. He is joined by 80 other members of Congress. On the Senate side, Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., has sponsored a similar bill.

Democratic platforms had been growing wordier for 20 years. They also had become increasingly explicit in their promises, particularly on expensive domestic programs. Republicans won four of the five presidential elections during those years.

By 1984, the platform was a 45,000 word compendium of compromises and commitments that played into the GOP strategy of calling the Democratic ticket a liberal captive of countless factions and interests.

In 1980, then-President Carter had to capitulate and accept a set of platform planks advocated by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, among them a commitment to a $12 billion public service jobs program.

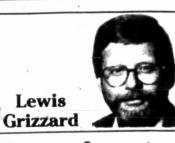

That's the story of party platforms. They don't really help candidates and they can arm opponents.

Hence, the Democrats

Any comparison ends there. The political world will little note nor long remember its phrases. And the platform includes few commandments. The Democrats were purposefully vague about what let Walter F. Mondale forget his they shalt or shalt not do.

RANCH COOKS DISH UP HEAPIN' HELPIN' OF HEARTY EATIN'

Since the early days of Texas ranching, chuckwagon "cookies" have known the way to a cowboy's heart - hearty eating.

Even for the lean, hardworking cowboys of today, the ones who still punch cattle for a living deep in the heart of Texas, nothing is more satisfying than a helping of barbecue brisket, sizzling with the flavor of the great outdoors.

If this leaves you hankerin' for a taste of cowboy cuisine, then the 1988 Texas Ranch Roundup, cheduled Aug. 19-20 in Wichita Falls, is the place to be.

Roundup highlights include a cooking contest showcasing the alents of today's ranch cooks. Just s they do during roundup — and as the original "cookies" did before them — these chefs of the prairie set up their chuckwagons. Then, over white hot mesquite coals, they rustle up their ranch's favorite dishes

From chuckwagon circle, the aroma of angel biscuits baking golden brown in a pot in the ground and cowboy stew and chili bubbling in an iron skillet tempt spectators No TV dinners or meals from a box here, just the kind of hearty, stickto-your-ribs grub-hungry cowboys have long headed for after a day in the saddle.

Roundup spectators can experience the flavor of the Old West from noon to 2 p.m. Aug. 20, by making a $5 contribution to the charities supported by the event. Judges select winning entries according to taste and appearance and the public votes through the donations. First through third place awards are presented in meat, vegetable and baked goods categories, and points also are contributed to the ranch's overall competition score.

The unique lifestyle and spirit shared by Texas ranchers is embodied in wide, open spaces, rugged chores — and in hearty eating.

This week's Recipe Exchange features some sample recipes of ranch-style dishes.

legendary ranches in Texas will compete against each other in the eighth annual Texas Ranch Roundup, co-sponsored by Budweiser and the North Texas Rehabilitation Center, and benefitting three state charities.

The Texas Ranch Roundup was the first event of its kind to be staged in recent years. Activities include a special roundup competition between ranch cowboys, a ranch foods cook off, a ranch first lady contest, talent competition, plus special country music entertainment.

The event will be Aug. 19-20 at Wichita County Mounted Patrol Arena, Wichita Falls. Roundup competition begins at 7:30 p.m.

each evening. Ranch owners and ranch hands from the R.A. Brown Ranch, Throckmorton; Burnett/Triangle Inc., Guthrie; Cowan & Son, Circle Bar Ranch, Seymour; Double U Hereford Ranch, Levelland; JA Cattle Co., Palo Duro; King Ranch Inc., Kingsville; Lewis Ranches, Clarendon; Moorehouse Ranch Co., Benjamin; Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co, Guthrie; kenderbrook-Spade Ranch, Colorado City; Tongue River Ranch and Spur Headquarters Ranches, Dumont; and the W.T. Waggoner Estate, Vernon, will compete. The following ranches have won the Best Ranch in Texas title: Lewis Ranches, 1981; Moorhouse Ranch, 1982; Lewis Ranches, 1983; R.A. Brown Ranch, 1984; Renderbrook-Spade, 1985; Pitchfork Land & Cattle Co., 1986; and Renderbrook-Spade, 1987.

Roundup events are a display of working cowboy skills. Texas Ranch Roundup pits real ranch hands against each other in six events executed just as they would be on the open range, including: Saddle bronc riding — "Ride as ride can" for eight seconds, with experienced saddle bronc judges determining the winner. A standard working saddle must be used. Team roping — A standard, timed cattle-roping event featuring a header and heeler, with optional daly or tie. Team branding — A fourman team, including a roper, two muggers and a brander working together. Thirty head of 300-to-400 pound calves are held behind a line 40 feet from the north end of the arena. The roper approaches the calves on horseback and when he crosses the line, the time begins. He must walk his horse into the herd, rope a calf, drag it from the herd and across the line. After the calf is flanked by the muggers and the rope is removed, the brander removes the branding iron from the barrel, brands the calf and returns the iron to the barrel. Judges must be informed before the event which side of the calf will be branded. The team with the fastest time wins. Wild cow milking — This involves a three-man team. The cow is released from the chute and pursued by the roper, who comes from the roping box adjacent to the arena. The mugger and milker are on foot in the arena awaiting the cow. The roper must rope the cown under specified rules, including no heeling, all heading, optional daly or tie, lap and tap, and not intentional tripping. The rope must be off the saddle horn before the milking begins. The mugger holds the cow with help from the roper, while the milker milks her into a standard 12 oz. bottle. After the rope is removed from the cow, the milker then runs to the judge at the other end of the arena and pours the milk out. If milk is not poured from the bottle, the team is disqualified. The team with the fastest time wins.

• Other events are: Team penning — consisting of a threeman team. The team with the fastest time and most correctly numbered calves penned wins.

• Wild horse race — This race features a three-man team with a maximun of six teams in the event each night. A first place will be awarded to winning teams both Friday and Saturday night.

 Jackpot riding — Each twoman team pays a $25 entry free to participate in this timed cattle-roping event. The pot is then divided among the winning teams on a percentage basis, depending on the total number of teams which enter. Junior and senior barrel racing - This timed event is open to youths in two divisions, ages 9 to 14 and 14 to 19. There will be no entry fee.

Jackson: Nomination a civil rights victory

ATLANTA (AP) - Jesse Jackson is asking the Democratic convention to nominate him for president tonight "as a testament to the struggles of our fathers and mothers" even as he used carefully chosen words of praise for the rival he knows will defeat him.

For 50 minutes Tuesday night, in a valedictory, Jackson appealed to his followers and those of Michael Dukakis to find common ground.

"We meet tonight at a crossroads, a point of decision. Shall we expand, be inclusive, find unity and power; or suffer division and impotence?" he asked the delegates, then answered his own question: "The only time we win is

He said later that he felt a great burden in writing the speech: Whether I was successful would determine whether we could pull this convention together," he said. Jackson saluted Dukakis for "a well-managed and dignified campaign. 'No matter how tired or how tried, he always resisted the temptation to stoop to demagoguery,' Jackson said.

He also emphasized the significance of his own presidential bid that won 7 million votes, crossing lines of race, economic stature and geography

Bush seeks some attention

Bush's unusual attempt to grab headlines during Michael Dukakis' convention is making Democrats grumble and sparking a debate about whether it will pay off for the Republican candidate.

Ignoring the tradition that you don't campaign while your rival is crowned as his party's nominee, Vice President Bush sets out today on an eight-state campaign tour through the Midwest, the South and Southwest.

The strategy is not to let Dukakis have a free ride during the Democratic National Convention and to curb the surge in

As demonstrators continued to bid for attention during the Democratic National Convention, eight anti-war protesters and four other convention-goers were arrested at various sites around the city Tuesday

Convention security spokeswoman Myrna May said 134 were arrested at a clinic that performs abortions, but only nine of the protesters had given their names and posted bond as of early

The rest told Municipal Court judges during arraignment hearings that their names were "Baby Jane Doe" and "Baby John Doe. Although their bonds were set, authorities would not allow them to post bond under those names, Ms. May said.

The 125 were taken to the city correction center to be held "until they give their names," she said. Charges against them included criminal trespassing, unlawful assembly and interfering with a police officer.

Elsewhere in the city, four members of the anti-war group No Business As Usual were arrested for spraypainting slogans on a building and four others from the group were arrested for blocking a sidewalk during a march near the Carter Presidential Center

Four other people who were part of the convention crowd were arrested for obstructing police when they tried to stop officers who were questioning a skateboarder who had been riding in traffic, Ms. May

Two of those arrested were released on bond while the other two were being held early today because they were refusing to be fingerprinted, the convention security spokeswoman said.

With the U.S. Olympic track trials going on, it's good to see that our women will be able to hold their own in some events against track powers like the Soviets and West Germany.

The American women look particularly strong in the sprints, especially the 100 meters. Florence Griffith-Joyner shocked the track world by blazing to a 10.49 100 meters Saturday, breaking the world record of 10.76 by American Evelyn Ashford.

Track critics quickly called it a fluke. There was much controversy over her performance Saturday, because the wind gauge showed an uncharacteristic 0.00 reading. At the same time the wind reading at the triple jump was just over the allowable 2.0 meters per second for world record consideration.

There was no dispute in Sunday's semifinals and finals. In the semis, the wind was a legal 1.6 meters per second. and in the finals it was 1.2.

In both races, Griffith, who looks like she belongs on the cover of Cosmopolitan magazine, quicky got out of the blocks and ran away from the field. She ran a 10.71 in the semis and 10.60 in the finals. Ashford, the 1984 Olympic 100 meter champion, was second in 10.81. With Griffith-Joyner, Ashford and Gwen Torrance, the American sprint contingent should be strong in Seoul. Other strong categories for the American women should be the heptatlon with Jackie Joyner-Kersee, Griffith's sister-in-law, just setting another world record at the trials. Mary Decker-Slaney should do well in the 3,000 and 1,500 meters, that is if she can manange to keep from tripping on the track.

A promising distance star is Villanova's Viki Huber, who pushed Decker-Slaney to the limit in the finals of the 3,000.

Since he didn't get an at-large bid to the U.S. Olympic Box-offs, Big Spring boxer Juan Baldwin has decided to turn pro.

The 18-year-old, 125-pound featherweight officially turned pro two weeks ago. He is managed by Odessa attorney Mark May and father Jamie Baldwin Sr. Daddy Baldwin is the trainer

Juan is planning on making his professional debut August 2 in Oklahoma City. Tenatively he is scheduled to box in Texas August 18 in a televised bout from Dallas.

Juan said that it's in the working for him to box in Odessa Sept. 29. If all goes well, he will box in the preliminary bout before the main event of former world cnampion weiterwights Gene Hatcher and Harry Arraya While Juan has entered the pro ranks, younger brother

Martin is on a tear in the amateur ranks. The 16-year-old Martin recently won the gold medal in the Sunshine State Games in Jacksonville, Fla. The 139-pound junior welterweight defeated the Pan American gold medalist from Jamaica in the finals.

The Jamaican boxer will represent his country in the Olympics. The Jamacian boxer has also beaten Todd Foster, the number one junior welterweight in the United States, and will represent the United States in Seoul.

Saturday was the end of a long baseball game for the San Antonio Missions and the Jacksonville Mets of the Texas

The game, which began Thursday night, had to be suspended after 25 scoreless innings. The game was ruled incomplete after more than seven hours of play.

But the game, which was resumed Saturday, lasted only 13 minutes longer. In the bottom of the 26th inning, San Antonio's Manny Francois hit a bases loaded single that gave the Missions a 1-0 victory over the Mets.

The game is believed to be the longest scoreless game in baseball history. It took seven hours and 23 minutes to play, a Texas League record by 44 minutes. But it didn't take the Mets long to recover from their heartbreaking loss. Moments after the marathon game, the Mets scored two runs in the top of the first and beat San Antonio 4-0 in Saturday's regular game.

Let's see, that's only run in 35 innings for the Missions. I wonder if that's any kind of record?

USA women looking Americans stay alive

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

MIDLAND — The Big Spring American League All-Stars kept their hopes alive in the District III Little League Tournament play as they soundly defeated Odessa Floyd Gwin 9-1 Tuesday night at Hogan Park Complex.

The Americans rebounded from a 5-2 loss at the hands of Midland Mid-City Monday night. With Tuesday's win, the Americans are now 3-1 in tournament play. Floyd Gwin exits the tournament in sixth place, with an 3-2 record. The Big Spring Americans are the defending District III Tournament champions.

For the second time in the tournament, the Americans got a stout Trey Terrazas. Juan Leyva came pitching performance from 12-year-old hurler Todd Parrish. This time Parrish, who has a wicked curveball, three-hit the Odessans, while striking out eight. In his first start of the tournament, Parrish fired a seven-hitter in an 8-7 win over Odessa Salinas.

The Americans went up on Floyd Gwin 2-1, in the second inning and never trailed after that. Floyd Gwin used three pitchers in the game, but it was not enough to stifle the Americans' barrage. David Vasquez took the loss for Floyd Gwin. He lasted two innings and allowed three runs on three hits.

Vasquez was pulled in the third, with the Americans leading 2-1, after he issued a leadoff walk to in to replace Vasquez.

Ryan Hamby greeted the new hurler with a double, scoring Terrazas with the Americans' third run of the game. Next shortstop David Akin reached base on a error. Hamby scored on a wild pitch, but the American threat was halted when first baseman Brandon Rodgers hit into a double play. Michael Jones struck out to end the ming, but the Americans led 4-1. The Big Spring team iced the game away in the fourth.

Michael Sizenbach led off the inning by drawing a walk. Brandon Hamblin then reached base on an error by the second baseman. After both runners advanced on a passed ball, Greg Biddison drove them in with a single, giving the Americans a 5-1 lead

Parrish made the first out when he lined out to the shortstop. But the ever-present Terrazas, and Hamby got things cooking again with back-to-back singles. The run ners moved up a base on a wild pitch, and Terrazas scored from third on a passed ball. Hamby scored the final run of the game on a fielder's choice by Akin, as the Americans batted around in the

Tyson in contract dispute

NEW YORK (AP) - Mike Tyson, who generally uses his fists to settle his boxing disputes, won't have that advantage in his attempt to get rid of manager Bill Cayton.

Tyson, the undisputed heavyweight champion, claims the contracts he signed Feb. 12 do not tie him to Cayton. Cayton says the contracts make him Tyson's manager until Feb. 11, 1992.

"Tomorrow is round one of a fifteen-round championship fight,' Peter Parcher, one of Tyson's lawyers, said Monday.

Justice David Edwards will decide at today's hearing on a preliminary injunction if Cayton is Tyson's manager until a trial is held in several months. Cayton's laywer intends to call Tyson as a witness in New York State Supreme Court.

Thomas Puccio, the former Abscam prosecutor who in his last major trial unsuccessfully defended former Bronx Democratic leader Stanley Friedman against corruption charges, will be in Cayton's corner. Puccio, now a partner at Milbank Tweed Hadley & McCloy, will be opposed by Parcher, a litigator retained by Michael Winston, Tyson's lead

The legal manuevering reportedly has put Tyson's Sept. 3 title defense against Frank Bruno in England's Wembley Stadium in serious jeopardy.

That's the most disappointing thing, how really bad we played against Dallas in that last game,' Lomax said. "I still remember it well. I just hope it's past and we can build on what we did right.

"We were 7-8 last year after going 4-11-1 the year before that, when we played so poorly on offense. It was like night and day compared to last year. The whole mood this year is pointing to a good season. But we play in the toughest division in the NFL and we got a tough chore ahead of us.

"We just got to play consistent. That seems to be lacking in some years. We played great in 1984 (9-7 record) and then played terrible in 1985. Why? We got a little overcon-

Another NFC East quarterback who will get a lot of attention this season is Doug Williams, who led the Washington Redskins to a Super Bowl victory last January. Williams, who underwent surgery on his left knee during the offseason, went through all of the reguired drills in two 90-minute training sessions Monday.

"It bothers me that everyone talks about Doug Williams' knee. This isn't the first time I've been through this," he said. "The bottom line is if I go out every day and no one hits me, sure I'll make it through the season.

Coach Joe Gibbs was pleased with Williams. "I thought Doug looked good, just like he always does. He looked like he was moving around pretty well, almost normal," Gibbs said.

The Reds sent 15 batters to the plate in the first against Darling and reliever Terry Leach. Two Mets errors helped the Reds along, including Darryl Strawberry's misplay of a routine fly ball, allowing three runs to score.

The first-inning outburst was five runs shy of the modern-day National League record for first inning scoring. It was one short of the most runs the Mets have ever allowed in any inning

Just before Strawberry's embarrassing missed fly ball, Reds starter Jose Rijo, 11-4, singled off Darling for his first major-league hit. Rijo then added insult to embarrassment in the second inning when he homered off Leach.

The (Bruno) fight is not out of the question, but time is running out," Winston said. "But the person who will make the final decision on the fight is Mike Tyson. He has the final say on all his affairs.

Tyson's lawyers gave a preview of their arguments against Cayton in an inteview Monday at Parcher's mid-Manhattan office.

"This is a case over whether a person, a boxer, any human being. has the right to choose his own manager," Parcher said. "It seems to us as a matter of law the answer is yes

On Oct. 14, 1986, Tyson signed a four-year contract with Jimmy Jacobs, his longtime manager and Cayton's partner. Last Feb. 12, ac-

Tyson signed two contracts, a superseding four-year deal with Jacobs, and an identical contract with Cayton that would take effect in the event of Jacobs' death. Jacobs died March 23.

Winston and Parcher claim that Cayton was obligated to tell Tyson to consult a lawyer before signing the two contracts and that Tyson would not have signed if he knew Cayton would become his sole manager upon Jacobs' death. They also claim that Tyson did not realize that Jacobs was seriously

"What was the emergency that required Tyson to show up February twelfth?" Parcher asked rhetorically. "Why couldn't it have waited if (the contract) had two more years? We conclude, at least it would seem on the surface, there was concern about Jimmy's health cording to a June 24 affidavit, on that day.

Cayton declined comment Monday and Puccio denied the charges. "It's clearly a question of him not wanting to live with the contract," Puccio said. "He really wishes he didn't sign the contract. Not only did he sign the contract but since Jim Jacobs' death he has reaffirmed the contract several times

Veteran golfer returns after seven year exile

Carner spotted Carol Mann in the press tent at the U.S. Women's Open.

"It's about time you came back out," Carner said after exchanging hellos.

Mann, who won 38 tourcareer, hasn't played in a tournament since 1981. She will end her self-imposed exile Thursday when she tees off in the opening round of the 43rd U.S. Women's Open at the Baltimore Country

The 47-year-old Mann, tan and trim and full of smiles, is a different woman from the one who gave up tournament golf after playing in the 1981 Rail Charity Golf Classic at Springfield, Ill.

"I stopped because I lost my love for golf," Mann said Tuesday after a practice round. "I couldn't stand myself when I played golf. ... I was angry, bitter, ugly, out of control, irrational, frustrated, disgusted. You want a list?'

place finish. Remember, this was a woman who only four years earlier had been elected to the LPGA Hall of Fame.

"I was resigned that I couldn't break out of it," Mann said. "... It's hard to continue on when that's how you feel.' So she quit, and Mann hasn't played in a tournament since. She has worked with the men's tour "in corporate hospitality ... 15-20 weeks a year," Mann said.

She also became the president of the Women's Sports Founda, tion, an educational body "which BALTIMORE (AP) - JoAnne works to create more oppor- Mann has worked hard regaining tunities for girls and women in sports," Mann said. She calls this her "non-profit life."

Although she has avoided tournaments, Mann has never strayed far from the practice tee.

"I've always maintained a naments over a 22-year LPGA practice schedule, with only seeking information as a goal, being like a laboratory," she > Mann was given an exemption to play in this year's U.S. Open after a group petitioned on her

"After I got the call, frankly, I hoped they couldn't say yes because I knew it would change my life for the next six months,' she said.

After taking a month before deciding to accept the invitation, Mann began gearing up for the appearance and has spent nearly three months in a "heavy practice" schedule. And during her preparations, something special happened.

What has occurred has been Mann's departure came after something far more special three years and 41 tournaments (than just returning)," Mann with nothing better than a ninth-said. "I have fallen in love with golf again. ... I've sought help from a lot of different people. I didn't get this much help my 22 years on the tour. I've had fun, too. I've had fun practicing, getting ready.'

Mann was the 1965 U.S. Women's Open champion and won two or more events in eight of her 22 years on tour. She was one of the game's top three players from 1965-69 along with Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Haynie, both Hall of Famers themselves. That was a long time ago and as much of her old as possible.

"I don't feel 47, except in the morning when I wake up, maybe," she said. "I'm proud of what I've done with my body. I've gotten a lot of compliments from other players. I had no idea this would happen. I've fallen back in love with the action of golf, rather than the observation of golf.' Mann won't predict how she'll

"I'm still in the process of getting ready. ... There are breakthroughs involved," Mann said. "I was far better today than yesterday and I probably will be better tomorrow.

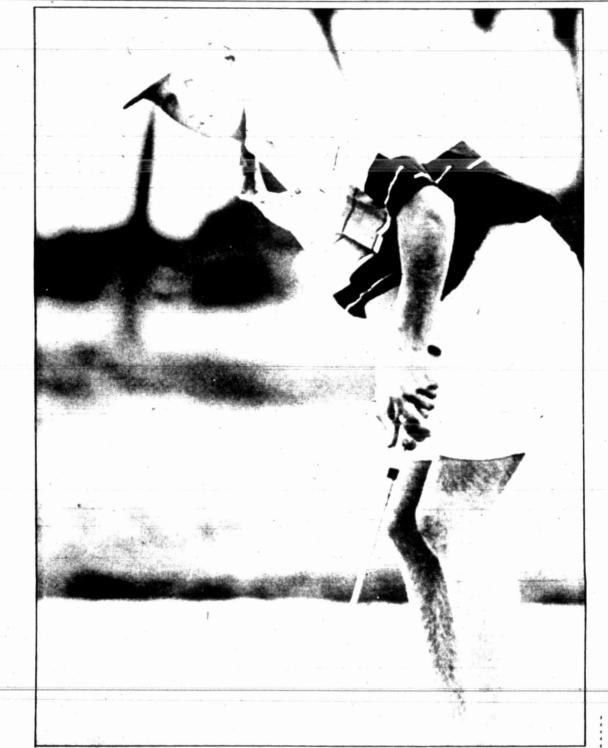

At a recent dinner, Mann told Jack Nicklaus she would be playing in this year's U.S. Women's

'His eyes got all wide and bugeyed," Mann laughed. Nicklaus suggested a warmup event, but Mann declined.

"I was afraid if I did poorly I'd come into this tournament with that baggage," Mann said. "Instead, I have no baggage. I'm like a rookie. This is brand new. I might be terrible, I don't know. I do know I will show up for my tee time and I will complete every round. I'm going to play one shot at a time, one hole at a time, one round at a time. I have no expectations."

As one of the 150 women who will tackle the 6,232-yard, par-72 Five Farms Course, Mann does sense she has one advantage.

"I'm very confident with these greens. And, from what I've seen, not many players are very confident with them."

his confidence renewed and his tar-victory in one of golf's majors since nished image gleaming with a new lustre, Seve Ballesteros is aiming for the top of golf again.

A loser on the course when it matter most in recent years, and a frequent battler with officials and fellow players as he slid down the rankings, Ballesteros took care of both shortcomings as he won his third British Open title in nine

The Spaniard was relaxed and personable, chatting with playing partners and offering encouragement to those he conquered.

"He came out of his shell," said Nick Price, who finished second to Ballesteros by two strokes in one of the finest final founds ever played in golf's oldest tournament. "We may be seeing a new Seve.

Ballesteros said impressions that he had changed from a fiery prima dona into a laughing, backslapping, Latin version of a good ol' boy may be premature.

'You never know what is inside," he said after his final-round 65 left him 11-under par for the tournament. "But I played good all week. I made some putts, and when you are making putts, this game looks easy, and it makes you happy.

Play good golf, he did as non-Americans as predicted == prevailed at a Lytham-St. Annes coure at which no American has won since Bobby Jones in 1926. Gary Koch and Fred Couples were the high Americans, tying for fourth at three-under par, eight strokes behind Ballesteros.

Ballesteros was one of just three golfers — Price and 1987 champion Nick Faldo were the others shoot par or better on all four

His first-day 67, played in the worst of high winds and rain, was a phenominal round, with five birdies on the front nine. That round left his two shots clear of the field shot lead and played well, finishing with a 2-under par 69. At one stretch, be birdied the par-5 sixth, eagled the par-5 seventh and made par on the par-4 eighth. He lost a stroke on that stretch, as Ballesteros birdied No. 8 after matching the birdie-eagle on the previous two holes.

'Sheer class," Price said. Ballesteros said he and Price both played extremely well.

"This was one of those rounds that happens every 25 or 30 years, the winner said. "This game is very unpredictable, and all you can do is try and try, and wait for your momentum. Momentum has not been in Ballesteros' bag lately. While winning one tournament each in the United States and Europe early this season, he has been haunted by failure at the 1985 and '86 Masters

County property values drop

Martin County property values have continued to drop in the past year, leaving most local governments with less tax revenue to draw upon for their upcoming Hardest hit is the Stanton School District which suffered an estimated 16 percent loss of property value, from $172,612,018 in 1987 to an estimated $145,475,508 now. While values still reflect the region's economic slump, the drop this year is about the same as the past year.

Values in the Appraisal District have fallen 4.6 percent from last year in real estate and 15.8 percent in oil and personal property.

Single family residences with a homestead on it increased 9 percent, because the state allowed the tax units to give a 30 percent discount the last three years, but this year they will only let the tax units give 20 percent.

Local governments will wrestle with their budgets and tax rates in July and August. The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1, 1988.

Mabee Ranch A bit of history northwest of Stanton

By PEGGY LUXTON

To the northwest of Stanton is a plot of land known as the Mabee Ranch. The Mabee Ranch is a working ranch, complete with Angus cattle, horses, and the usual complement of ranch hands.

But the Mabee Ranch is also something else. It is the headquarters of Classic Aero, an enterprise dedicated to the restoration of antique aircraft. Joe Mabee, rancher, independent oil operator and pilot, heads up Classic Aero. Immaculate hangars at the ranch headquarters at present hold 14 antique planes. Eight of those planes beong to and are flown by Mabee. The other six are planes that are being stored or are in the process of

Planes at present on the ranch include a Grumman TBM Avenger, a Japanese Kate torpedo bomber, a Japanese Aichi (VAL) dive bomber. an American Hellcat, and a Japanese Zero. There is also a Howard DGA, the DGA for "Damned Good Airplane." There is a 1935 Porterfield 35-70, the oldest such plane in existence. The Confederate Air Force owns the Zero, which was used in the filming of "Tora, Tora, Tora" and the "Black Sheep Squadron" TV series. Mabee's mechanic, Ken Shugart, rebuilt six of the planes used in the filming of the Tora movie. All this began in 1974, when a man named Lefty Gardner flew to the Mabee Ranch to spray mesquite trees. After the mesquite was sprayed, he took Mabee for a ride in his P-51 Mustang, an antique plane. That ride changed Mabee, the ranch, and the course of several lives. For on that ride, Mabee fell in love with antique aircraft, a love affair that has extended into a new business and that led to Mabee's collection of planes.

Mabee has been a pilot since 1969. He is a colonel in the Confederate Air Force. "Don't be impressed by the rank," Mabee says, "all 7.000 members of the CAF are colonels. We have no privates and no generals,

The CAF can list among its members Chuck Yeager, the test pilot, Jimmie Stewart, the actor, Joe Engel, the astronaut, and Barry Goldwater, the senator. A man may be a general, but when he joins the CAF, he becomes a colonel. Mabee is also a member of the General Staff of the organization, elected by the members and involved in setting organizational policy. The CAF was begun by a couple of crop dusters in South Texas. They bought an antique aircraft and jokingly called themselves the Confederate Air Force. The group grew and the name stuck. Of the 7,000 members worldwide, only about 15 percent are pilots.

The mission of the CAF is to maintain in flying condition a complete collection of planes used in the World War II conflict. Of the 140 planes the organization owns, about 80 or 90 are at present in flying condition. CAF maintains a museum of the aircraft in its headquarters in Harlingen. Texas, along with other WWII artifacts. Planes not on display in the museum are housed and cared for by various CAF members Mabee's wife, Van, is also a pilot, as is his older son, Guy Jr. Van, Guy Jr. and mechanic Shugart are also CAF members.

The CAF performs in air shows and presents air-power demonstrations. These are demonstrations of great WWII air battles. Their primary mission is to teach history of that period. The members are asked to go out into their communities and teach that history. They speak before school groups and civic groups — any group that has an interest in that history. The CAF's collection of planes includes some that are very rare. One is a Japanese Zero. Even the Japanese do not own one of those.

The first plane Mabee acquired for his personal collection was a P40, a Curtiss War Hawk, built in 1944. Though he has added to his collection a P51 Mustang, an FM2 Wildcat, an AT-11 bombardier trainer, a TBM carrier-placed trainer, and two T34 Mentors, the War Hawk remains his favorite plane. The AT-11 is the same aircraft that was used in bombardier training at Air Force bases in Midland and Big Spring during WWII.

A ground-up restoration of an antique aircraft at Classic Aero may take well over two years. Shugart and his assistants are at present working on an F6F-5 Hellcat, an American Navy fighter plane used over the Pacific during the war. When restored to flying condition, this will be only the third operational Hellcat in the world.

The U.S. government maintains specifications for all planes used by its military. These specs are followed when restoration is in progress. For instance, the Hellcat specs showed 14 inches had been cut from each wing sometime in the past, and restoration included adding those inches to the wingspan. When the plane was received, birds' and rats' nests were found in the wing structure. Restoration of the plane has been under way for over two years and is expected to be completed in about nine more months

As these aircraft were built over 40 years ago, there are many replacement parts that are no longer available. Classic Aero maintains a complete metal-working shop where these parts are built.

The first step in restoring an aircraft is the dismantling. Every bolt is taken out, every piece is removed. Framework is checked and repaired or replaced. Mabee states, "When we've restored an aircraft, it is in better condition than the day it rolled out of the factory.

Both Guy Jr. and John Mabee live with their families, along with Joe and Van, on the ranch, which has been in the family since 1925. The Mabee grandchildren, 13 in number, roam over the sprawling ranch. The family patriarch, Guy Sr., lives in Midland. The Mabee Ranch became a member of Stanton-based Cap Rock Electric Cooperative in the mid-1950s, when the lines finally reached the ranch's remote location.

The cattle and other livestock on the ranch are accustomed to grazing under an aircraft as it takes off or lands on the ranch runways. Joe Mabee takes loving care of his antique aircraft, and his mechanics perform near miracles when they accept rusting hulks of metal and turn out antique aircraft in mint condition

Should drugs be legalized?

"How can we, as an intelligent, civilized nation. even consider the possibility of legalizing drugs?'

That question was posed in a letter published recently in Time magazine which, like many publications, has reported the growing debate over making drugs legal in this country.

Our answer is this:

How can we rule out any alternatives, including the legalization of some drugs, in light of the incalculable damage being done to our society under current drug laws?

We are not saying drugs should be legalized; we have ample fear about the risk of any form of legalization and can list a dozen reasons why it might have an even worse impact. We are saying this country's drug problem is so profound that the question of stantly dismissed.

cost is beyond measure.

■ Greater acceptance of the idea that our drug laws, more than the drugs themselves, are causing most of the damage.

One obstacle to a more intelligent debate about legalization is the absence of adequate research. Despite well-written arguments in favor of legalizing drugs that have appeared in highly respected journals, almost no scientific research has been done to predict the impact of new laws.

One other obstacle has been a tendency to see the issue as an either/or proposition. It's not. Drugs are a massive, complicated problem; solving the problem may require many partial solutions.

Legalizing marijuana on a limited basis, for example, is a far different question legalization should not be in- than unlimited legalization of heroin. Friends of the Museum velenteers registered more than two hundred visitors at the Old Jail for Old Settlers' Day. Numerous Texas towns were represented. There were also visitors from Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, and Oklahoma. Many of the out-of-towners were in Stanton for class reunions held in conjunction with the Old Settlers affair

Special tours were given by Frances Biggs, who lived in the Old Jail when she was ten years and her father was Deputy Sheriff, and Beth Shoemaker, who with her husband, L.R., were the last couple to live in the Old Jail. They occupied the upper floor rooms for about nine months when L.R.'s father, Kyle Shoemaker, was Sheriff. Other volunteers were Ramsey Abbott, Dorothy Deavenport, Colleen Holloway, Dutchy Johnson, and Mary Prudie Brown.

The Chamber sponsored the downtown games on Old Settlers' Day with the help of some former Jaycees. They also sponsored Mike Payne and the Western Stars Band for the traditional street dance that had to be moved to the Community Center by threatening rain. The good music was enjoyed by a capacity crowd.

The Chamber would like to express their appreciation to First National Bank, Stanton National Bank, First Bankers Trust and Savings Association, Tri-City Beverages, Inc., Bill's Grocery and True Value Hardware, Stanton Thriftway, and Tergerson's Fine Foods Inc., Midland, for their help in the Old Settlers' Day activities.

Dorothy Deavenport is now serving as Chamber of Commerce secretary. She has been coordinator for the Friends of the Museum Old Jail operation for two and one-half years, and previously served as a volunteer secretary for the Chamber.

Chamber of Commerce hours in the Old Jail are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. Volunteers from Friends of the Museum extend the hours from 2 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday. You are cordially invited to visit.

Depot News

By RAMSEY ABBOTT

Old Settlers' Day and Reunion has came and gone and we've added it to our memory and recollection of many such days in the past.

It didn't rain on our parade and the grey skies just kept it cool and pleasant for the participants and spectators alike.

A new entry in the parade, this year, was the buffalo soldiers from Fort Concho

Smiling and waving from the float for the class of 1942 was Mrs. James A. Wilson Sr. She is 90 years old and was room mother for this

It had been suggested that people dress up in old fashioned clothes from the turn of the century and Lillian Bevers did so. She looked just like a nice farm lady come to town in her long shirt and matching bonnet.

There was open house at the Depot, Old Jail, Old Convent and the Museum, where the Tom family, as pioneer settlers in Martin County, were honored guests and visited by a host of friends and Well-wisher.

A misty rain drove the barbecue supper and dance into the community center where a festive crowd enjoyed eating, visiting and dancing.

The smoothest dancers on the floor were Edgar Standefer, age 91, and his wife, Oradell.

In addition to Edgar and Mrs. Wilson, another senior past ninety is Galdie Mayberry. She lives alone, cleans her own house and plays the organ just for her own enjoyment and that of her neighbors. These marvelous people are an inspiration to all of us. Ruth Jones is still acting as temporary director at the Depot and doing a fine job.

Anyone interested in this position can apply at Judge Bob Deavenport's office at the courthouse.

Volunteers are needed to deliver a hot lunch to the sick and disabled. Your help would really be appreciated and if you are available please call 756-2791. As predicted, on their trip to Colorado City, some of our band members tried a buffalo burger. One person thought it tasted like liver and they all agreed that it would never replace the beef We're really proud of our band. Their performance drew a stand up ovation when they played for the Texas Association of Accountants at the Midland Hilton. Their next engagement is the Terrace West Retirement Home in Midland. Our very best wishes to Findley Rhodes who celebrated his 83rd birhtday on July 10th. One of his nicest gifts was a pocket watch from granddaughter, Susan, who bought it with her own money from baby sitting.

Findley and Fiji are leaving today, on a family vacation in Kingsland, with their daughter, Susan, her husband, Mike Hall and their children.

The quilters have a dutch boy and dutch girl quilt in the frames and it is very colorful. It is very easy to imagine this as a conversation piece in someone's bedroom.

The groups still goes for happy hour at 5 o'clock on Monday evening and are always going some where and doing something for fun.

If you get bored eating alone come on down to the Depot and eat a good hot lunch with your friends

THE CAP ROCK CONNECTION

By PEGGY LUXTON

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative is moving into a Cycle Billing System. Under cycle billing, members will receive their monthly bill within five days from the date the meter is read and the bill will relflect usage for only the prior 30 days.

Most electric cooperatives in the state are either already on cycle billing or are investigating a change in procedure. Cycle billing provides better service for cooperative members from every department.

Cap Rock Electric is moving to a cycle billing process in answer to requests made by members. Members state that it is hard to remember heavy usage during bad weather when the bad weather is weeks in the past and it is 70 degrees outside by the time they receive the bill for that usage.

Beginning this month and continuing until October, when cycle billing will be in effect, Cap Rock Electric's due dates for electric bills will be moved forward to the 25th of the month instead of the traditional 15th of the month.

Members of the co-op's billing department are familiar with agencies who offer financial assistance to low-income persons in paying utility bills. They will be glad to assist low-income members to determine if they qualify for such

Cap Rock Electric delivered several wooden wire spools to the City Park to be used during the barbecue meal to be served during the Old Settlers Reunion last weekend. The spools are available at the cooperative and are free of charge. You may check on the availability of the spools by calling Roger Fleckenstein in the Purchasing Department of the Cooperative,

Compared to other states, Texas capita personal income of $13,480 ranks slightly below average on most state spending and taxing programs, dead last on welfare spending and above average in property tax levies, the Texas Research League reported

Based on fiscal 1986 figures from the U.S. Census Bureau, the nonpartisan league found that the state and local governments collect $1,292 in taxes from every man, woman and child in Texas. That ranks the state 30th in the nation, 16.5 percent below the national average of $1.547. The government took 8.58 percent of Texans' personal income in taxes, 39th in the country. Texas' per ranks 27th in the country.

Property tax is the lone income category in which Texas places above the national average. The $510 per person, all collected by local governments, ranks the state 20th in the country, 11.7 percent above the national average of $463. Our four neighboring states all rank in the bottom 10.

With $4,489 in tax collections per person — 25.24 percent of personal income - Alaska easily topped the list. Mississippi collected the least in taxes from each of its residents — $965 — and New Hampshire took

Col.(USAF Ret.) Ralph and Lynette Brooks are just back from a reunion of the members of the 50th Fighter Bomber Wing and their wives in Colorado Springs,

This group went to Germany together in the early 50s, Lynette says, and this was the first time many had seen each other in more than 30 years. There was a lot of 'do you remember when?'' she says. Although the group had convened a few times earlier, this was the first one the Brooks' had attended and the first time wives had been included.

Child development

Extension agent

Many parents are anxious for their child to know the letters, numbers, shapes and colors before starting kindergarten in the fall. However, academic-type activities and drill may not be the best thing you can do to ready your child for

The results of child development research tell us that fantasy play activities are more effective in the development of language, social skills and thinking skills - all of which are essential for success in Fantasy play is what children commonly call "pretending." Through fantasy play children learn more abstract thinking and problem-solving skills. They can also test their ideas in a safe situation.

Here are some suggestions for ways to encourage fantasy play in

• Let children have a place for a pretend house, doctor's office, grocery store or museum. They will try out different roles as they play "house," or any variation of this common childhood game.

 Keep a box of old clothes, purses, shoes and other items for dress-up. That also encourages children to try different roles and create stories to go with their costumes.

 Encourage children to use dramatic play to act out their favorite fairy tales and stories.

 Provide low-realism toys and objects that require children to use their imaginations. A big box, for example, can be a house, a rocket ship or a bear's cave, depending on the imagination of the child playing Focus on family

Setting limits for children Children need to explore, feel, touch, experience, be messy, noisy and even skip a meal if they're not hungry. However, children aren't really comfortable with complete freedom to do as they please, according to child development researchers.

Children who are granted complete freedom are often anxious, over-active, and ill-at-ease, not knowing how to handle all their freedom and power.

They want to be protected from harm. They crave the security, warmth and friendship of the home. Despite what they may say, they actually want parents to be consistent in setting limits on their potentially dangerous behavior.

Limit setting is also in order if the child's behavior interferes with the comfort and rights of others. Children want to be stopped when flirting with danger, and want to be sent to bed when they can no longer propel their exhausted little bodies about, or when they try to consume too much or the wrong kinds of

When disciplining, the message to the child should be "I like you, but I don't like or approve of what you are doing." Limits may be one of the greatest gifts parents can give a growing child.

New priorities to consider when buying a home for your retirement

shelter. Financial consultant and real estate expert Stephen Pollan, appearing on The Nightly Business Report on public television advised those action to analyze three elements: Specific location, affordability and purpose for the new home.

He pointed out that an investigation of a location's ambiance, economy and demographics takes on added importance: because a home for the retirement years probably will be the last home a person will buy. Pollan recommends renting before purchasing in order to get accustomed to the area.

"Base your affordability judgments on

MOlder Americans frequently sell their the amount you can afford to spend omes and purchase new retirement monthly on shelter," he said. "Don't let

> Pollan also advised retirees to invest the proceeds from the sale of the pre vious home. "Avoid putting down a large down payment (on the new residence) and certainly don't pay cash," he stated

> Goals change at retirement time. For example, a formal dining room may no longer be necessary if one is going to entertain less frequently, Pollan indicated.

"Forget about buying a home with bedrooms for all of your children. They can stay in a hotel when they come to visit," he added.

Extension agent What can I do to effectively control hornflies in my cattle? Hornfly control on cattle in West Texas has certainly been complicated by resistance to the synthetic pyrethroid eartags. What was once a economical, easy season-long solution to the problem now seems at times to be a guessing game.

Several products have been approved and are being marketed which may help. Two bolus treatments which contain materials which inhibit development of hornfly larvae in manure are on the market. Trade names include "Inhibitor" from Starbar and "Vigilante" by Cyanamid. Both products apparently provide good control of larvae in manure for several months. The limitation of the products is that adult hornflies which migrate in from surrounding areas are not affected and a periodic insecticide treatment might be necessary in addition to the bolus.

Eartags which are relatively new incllude the "Terminator" from Fermenta Animal Health which contains diazinon, MaxCon Plus from Y-Tex which contains a pyrethroid, a phosphate and a synergist and the Tomahawk tag from Coopers Animal Health which you may see advertisements for but it is not being marketed in Texas in 1988. This tag contains pirimiphos-methyl.

Our tests with the Terminator indicate it is effective for 10-15 weeks. This tag seems to work best leading to water, minerals, etc. Mobile Home Spaces 613 June would work well. The grub flies on most herds in this area for 8-10 weeks. If you use these you may want to apply one early and a second one later in the season to extend the control in areas of highest resistance to pyrethroids. We have not tested the MaxCon Plus tag.

The older eartags containing pyrethroid insecticices still control

The other new item is the LiquiDuster from Coopers Animal Health. This applicator is basically a "liquid dustbag" which uses a continuous-flow wicking system composed of a number of ropes which wick the insecticide onto cattle as they pass beneath the duster. The system uses a 1 percent permethrin solution. The data indicates it is highly effective for hornflies. It's limitation is much like that of a dust bug in that it performs best when cattle are forced to contact it. This might occur when it is hung in a gateway

ed, I believe that treatments applied at the same time that the cattle are treated for grubs in early

Sprays, dust bags, back rubbers and oilers are also still effective. The control method to use depends largely on your herd size and management techniques.

What is the latest findings for successful control of mesquite? Soil temperatures in mid May in the Howard County area were already near the desired 75 Degrees F at 12 inches for good root kill of mesquite with spraying. Some early demonstration plots were established with reclaim (clopyralid) ahead of cotton planting. Results are expected to be good because the three main characteristics of getting a high root kill were present; healthy mesquite, soil temperature at 75 degrees in the 12-18 inch rooting depth and adequate soil moisture for growth. Soil moisture may be the weakest link in treating mes-

Baby Boomers-growing older gracefully

Boomers are the most sought-after segment of the consumer marketplace. Higher per capita earnings and greater desires for "the good life," as well as a healthful lust for youth, account for this phenomenore

Yet, approximately 20 percent of the Baby Boom population is nearing the age of 40, bringing the total Americans in the over-40 age bracket to nearly 80 million.

As the country's most influential age group matures, a host of healthcare products is coming to the forefront to meet changing physical needs.

Among these products is an innovative development in bifocal contact lens technology addressing the common problem of presbyopia, a condition in which the eve begins to lose some of the the elasticity needed to focus between near and far objects

The Bausch & Lomb Bi-Tech Soft Contact Lens is the most recent entry in the bifocal arena. The lens operates on the principle of alternating vision by having two distinct zones,

The top half contains the prescription for distance correction and the bottom half provides near vision correction, just as bifocal eyeglasses are designed.

But unlike spectacles and other bifocal lenses. Bi-Tech's unique monocentric design eliminates the image jump or to far objects, for example Bifocal contact lenses offer presbyopes an alternative to wearing eyeglasses, the traditional form of bifocal vision correction and one that many people associate with the first sign of aging.

Roger L. Terry, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Hanover College in Indiana, and a member of the Bausch & Lomb InVision Institute's scientific advisory board, is one of the few doctors in the United States who studies the psychological effects of visual correctives.

Says Dr. Terry of his research findings Some people have trouble handling the fact that they are getting older. They need to understand that they don't need to live with a 'spectacle' image if they don't want to. Granny glasses aren't the only alternative for better vision over 40. There is the option of contact lenses.

Recent advancements in contact lens technology have spawned specialty products, so that many people who have been told in the past that they couldn't wear contact lenses may now be candidates. An eye care professional can discuss the options available in soft contact lens correction, including bifocals.

We're all getting older. But old means something different to everyone.

The experts say we all age individually. People's body systems get rusty at different rates. That's why some folks in their 60s are still entering road races while others are putting mileage on their rockers.

Some aging changes, however, appear to be inevitable. According to experts, about 90 million Americans 40 years and older suffer from a common eyesight deficiency called presbyopia - loss of near

Walking: The best medicine

Mature Americans looking for effective, safe exercise can find it right under their noses-at their feet! Walking is one of the few forms of exercise in which the rate of participation does not decline in the middle to later years.

More than 2,000 years ago, Hippocrates considered walking the best medicine. Today, experts agree that a walking program helps promote good health and prevent age-related disease. Physicians consider it therapeutic for people recovering from heart attacks. Walking exercises the whole body, working almost every muscle for overall conditioning. Walking can burn as many calories as jogging without the risk of injury, and helps lower high blood pressure, lubricate joints and reduce arthritis For some who suffer from everyday aches and pains, the hardest part is the fitness, developed with the makers of Icy Hot dual-action pain-relieving rub. "First, get set with the right attire. Wear comfortable clothes and sturdy, but comfortable shoes," says Higdon. "Second, get psyched by having a goal, whether you're losing a few pounds or just walking to the store. Finally, warm up with self-massage and stretching-

Limber muscles enhance performance and minimize aches and pains. Higdon suggests using Icy Hot with self-massage to relieve muscle soreness and joint stiffness and promote mobility.

Unlike many other pain-relieving rubs. Icy Hot combines icy coolness and penetrating warmth. Basic self-massage techniques outlined in his program include: • Stroking is a long sliding action of the hands along the length of the muscle. Apply Icy Hot along the length of the muscle. Begin at the point farthest from the heart and massage toward the heart. This will aid in circulation and loosen tight muscles prior to exercise. • Kneading uses both hands to clasp the muscles. Alternate pressure from one hand to the other, moving up the length of the muscle. The procedure is similar to kneading bread. • Friction is a localized, circular movement made with the fingertips around the joints to reduce stiffness After walking, Icy Hot with selfmassage helps soothe aching muscles.

"Begin your walking program slowly," says Higdon. Start with 20-minute sessions several times a week, working toward an average of three to five miles per hour. Slow down if you tire. The health benefits of walking add up.

Slick

Enjoyin' life — West Texas style

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

M.H. Boatler lives in a rock house in an area just outside Big Spring called Silver Heels. Everybody calls him Slick. He worked in an oil refinery for 41

His place looks like a zoo. He has pea fowls, wild turkeys, quail, goats, sheep, longhorn cattle, fowls guard the place well. If anything comes on the property, they howl. "We've had 'em all the time," says Slick. "I think they're real pretty when they strut their tails and fan them out." Last winer he fed 14 wild turkeys. "They come in the fall and leave in the spring," says Slick. "When it's just me here goin' to the barn and all I can walk amongst 'em and they'll never fly or anything. You let a stranger come up and they head for the hills."

Slick says his area got its name

Smith around 1905 when a refract superintendent, Ray Lawrence, built the first house on what was once ranchland. His wife was sitting on the porch one day looking over the landscape and decided to call it "Silver Heels. Slick was raised in Soash, which is now a ghost town just north of Big Spring. Only a handful of Soash residents are still living. When time came for his birth, his mother went to Big Spring and delivered him in her parents' home.

In a few years the family bought a ranch southeast of Big Spring. Water from a spring in a nearby mountain formed a lake where cattle drank. Slick learned how to build fences and work on windmills.

For a time he worked as a cowboy for a man named John Masters. "We wouldn't have to go to work until 4 or 5 in the morning," says Slick. "We'd work until midnight or so. I got a dollar a day. If I rode horseback I got a dollar and a half.'

Slick worked with 4-H kids in Howard County for 35 years and began when his daughter Wanda became a member. Slick took the youngsters on trips. "I've been coast to coast in our 18-wheel rig that we bought for the kids and their animals," says Slick. "We'd haul the animals in the truck; then, when we got to where we were goin', the kids would wash the inside of the trailer with soap and water and we'd live in there during the show. I built tables in

The 4-H'ers were in California one time during a Miss America pageant. The pageant officials let the Big Spring kids come on stage with one of their favorite steers named Duke. "Those boys and girls talked about that for years," says Slick. "When it came time for Duke to go to the slaughterhouse, all the kids cried. None of them would load it onto the truck. I had to do it.'

Slick and the 4-H organization built the first county barns in Big Spring with a loan from the Farm Bureau. The county then paid off the loan, acquired the barns and began maintaining them.

Slick has a pet longhorn steer on his place. It's perhaps the tamest longhorn in Texas. "You can look down there most anytime and see people pettin' on him. They drive by all the time and let their kids get out and look at the steer. He's real friendly.

Many practical reasons for owning your own home

"There are many practical reasons for owning your own home, in addition to the personal satisfaction," says Kay Moore, owner of Home Realtors:

"Home mortgage interest is one of the few interest deductions we still have," she reminds. "At today's interest rates, approximately 95% of the principal and interest payment made by a homeowner during the first five years would be tax-deductible (according to a brochure from Realty Financial Services, Inc.)'

Another tax break is real estate taxes on personal residences; a significant portion of a homeowner's monthly payment goes toward payment of these taxes (which incidentally support local governments). Homestead exemption lowers the real estate taxes you pay on your principal residence.

If you use your home as an office, there may be other tax deductions. Homeowners over 55 who are thinking of selling may be encouraged to do so because they can sell their residence at a profit without paying capital gains tax.

This exemption often puts many attractive homes in well-established neighborhoods up for sale.

Let Kay Moore and her staff help you decide if this is the year for you to buy a home. They can help you determine what price home you can afford, help you find the home of your dreams, and help find a lender.

"By taking into account the tax breaks and other considerations, Kay says, "a family can often own their own home for less than they are now paying for rent.' Kay mentions other incentives:

"Interest rates are low, there is a large selection of homes for sale in Big Spring, and home prices are lower here than they have been in many years."

Home Realtors is a member of HMS (Homeowners Marketing Services, Inc.) Through HMS, Home Realtors can now offer home warranties to its sellers and buyers which will eliminate the possibility of major costly repairs during the time the home is on the market and for the first year of occupancy for the buyer.

Home Realtors is exclusive local agent for RELO Relocation Service, the nation's referral network of independent real estate brokers, and can draw on RELO's expertise to provide tips and advice for buyers and sellers.

In addition to Kay, the staff includes Doris Milstead, and Doris Huibregtse, brokers; Jo Hughes, Gail Meyers, Kay Bancroft, Elaine Laughner, Carole Lawson, and Marty Johnson, sales associates. Home Realtors is located in Coronado Plaza, 2000 Gregg. Phone them at 263-1284.
