AG pledges investigation

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — Mexico's attorney general vowed to remove "bad elements" from the federal police and conduct a full investigation into the deaths of a TV anchorwoman and two other people by police machine-gun fire.

"We're not going to stop fighting corruption. We're going to clean up the police force," Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez said during a visit to this city on the U.S. border to initiate an investigation into the shootings.

Linda Bejarano, 28, co-anchor for XHJ-TV of Juarez; her mother-in-law, Lucrecia Martinez de Gomez, 58; and family friend Carlos Alfonso Garcia, 25, were gunned down in their car about 3 a.m. Saturday by men identifying themselves as Federal Judicial Police, officials said.

Ms. Bejarano's husband and co-anchor, Manuel Gomez, was in the car but escaped injury by lying on the floor.

A Federal Judicial Police officer and three officers on the city police force were arrested, according to Notimex, Mexico's government news agency.

Garcia said the three were "madrinas," underlings who work illegally for members of the elite federal force.

Though illegal, the use of madrinas reportedly is widespread in Juarez. The "officers," lured by the chance to work with Mexico's highest police agency and carry automatic weapons, often have little or no training.

City police Chief Fernando Motta Allen later denied the three were on the city police force.

If an investigation determines the three are not commissioned officers, they will face charges of usurpation of police powers as well as of homicide, District Attorney Alberto Salinas said Sunday.

Garcia suspended the chief of the Juarez Federal Judicial Police pending an investigation, and said he wanted the use of madrinas to end.

"I am absolutely against that corrupt and dishonest practice," he said. "My indignation is great."

"The bad elements (in the federal force) will be removed. There are good elements in the force, ones who devote their lives to it. That isn't the case in this instance. But the bad agents will be removed. We won't let this blow over."

Carlos Armendariz, acting head of the Juarez detachment of the federal police, said the four detainees mistook the victims' car for one involved in a police shootout two hours earlier on a highway south of Juarez.

Occupants of the first car were suspected of being drug traf-

Arrest made in Yanez shooting

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

An 18-year-old man is free on $40,000 bond after being arrested in connection with a shooting at the Northcrest Apartments late Saturday, according to police.

Police stopped the car Filomeno T. Franco III, 1606 State St., was driving about 10:25 p.m. in the 300 block of West 14th Street for an alleged traffic violation and then executed a search warrant signed by 19th District Court Judge John Sutton, Detective Sgt. Bill King said.

A handgun — believed to have been used in the shooting of Billy Yanez, 25 — was allegedly recovered from the vehicle, King said.

Franco was arrested on a warrant, issued by Justice of the Peace China Long, charging him with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, King said.

Yanez was treated for a gunshot wound at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, but was released Sunday, a nursing supervisor said.

Yanez suffered a gunshot wound underneath his right arm about 9:30 p.m. at the apartment complex, 1002 N. Main St., King said.

Police were called to the scene of the shooting at 2:15 p.m. and about 6:45 p.m. Saturday in response to disturbance calls, according to police reports.

"We'd (police) been out there several times prior to the shooting," King said.

King said Yanez was related to Lydia Yanez, 39 — one of two women shot only eight days earlier at the apartment complex.

Lizzie Franco, 20 — Lydia Yanez' daughter — suffered gunshot wounds in the same incident, police said.

Franco spent less than 3 1/2 hours in jail. He was released on bond shortly before 3 a.m., according to police reports.

King said investigators are still unsure what prompted either shooting.

Pedro Mendez Cantu, 40 — who also suffered gunshot wounds in the July 15 early morning shooting incident — was arrested at the hospital after a warrant charging him with two counts of aggravated assault was issued.

Police are still seeking another unidentified man who has also been charged with two counts of aggravated assault in connection with that incident.

Cantu is being held in the Howard County jail in lieu of $90,000 bond.

District Attorney Rick Hamby filed a petition to have Cantu's probation revoked last week.

ADD symptoms varied — and treatable

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of articles in the Herald on the subject of attention deficit disorder.

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Attention Deficit Disorder is a complex medical syndrome in that symptoms of the disorder are exhibited by people with ADD as well as those without the disorder.

It is the degree to which the symptoms occur and repeat themselves that identifies a person as having ADD.

ADD affects both children and adults and can be diagnosed with hyperactivity (ADD-H) or without hyperactivity (ADD).

It is estimated that between 5 and 15 percent of school children have the disorder. And specialists believe that it affects at least 2 million American adults, most of whom probably don't know they suffer from ADD.

Symptoms of ADD are primarily ly related to inattention and impulsivity.

According to several documents and regional authorities on the subject, children with ADD may exhibit the following inattention related symptoms:

- Short attention span.
- Not seeming to listen.
- Easily distracted.
- Failure to complete tasks that are started.

• Difficulty concentrating on tasks that require sustained attention.

• Difficulty staying with a play activity.

Children with ADD may exhibit the following symptoms relating to impulsivity:

- Acting before thinking.
- Need for excessive supervision.
- Shifting excessively from one activity to another.
- Frequently calling out in class.

• Difficulty awaiting turns in games and group activities.

Children with ADD may exhibit the following classroom characteristics:

- Poor handwriting.
- Impatience.
- Inattention.
- Loss of personal items.
- Poor retention of information.

- Inconsistency in work.
- Inability to follow detailed instructions.
- Daydreaming.
- Incomplete assignments.
- Poor peer relationships.

As with any medical disorder, the final diagnosis of ADD must be made by a physician.

Tests exist that can tell a trained clinician whether a person has ADD or some other problem. The tests range from neurological examinations to I.Q. tests to questionnaires.

Severe cases of ADD are treated with drugs. But drugs are not a cure, and children who have ADD will retain most of the characteristics of the disorder for life.

Children who have ADD with hyperactivity may gradually grow less active, but the other characteristics of the disorder will remain.

For children with mild cases of ADD, subtle changes in the way

Support group

An attention deficit support group consisting primarily of Big Spring and Coahoma residents whose children have ADD was formed last year.

Approximately 30 parents are involved in the group, said Cindy Overton, founder of the organization.

One of the group's goals is to educate parents, teachers and school administrators about the disorder, she said.

they are taught at school are prescribed. And parents are instructed in how to best deal with their children with ADD.

ADD has been described in medical literature since 1902, and children have been treated for it for five decades.

Dukakis at home; Bush unveils plan

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

Michael Dukakis, back in Boston for the first time since winning the Democratic nomination last week, goes to work today in the Statehouse. Republican George Bush, meanwhile, got mixed reviews when he sought to shore up support among women.

The Massachusetts governor, returning Sunday night from a three-day campaign trip, was greeted warmly by about 150 people in soggy weather at Boston's Logan International Airport.

Dukakis and his running mate, Lloyd Bentsen, traveled to five states, including the key fall battlegrounds of California and Texas. They set off on their inaugural campaign trip last week, just after accepting their respective nominations at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta.

The Republicans, meanwhile, were looking ahead to their own convention, which opens three weeks from today in New Orleans.

Bush, the certain GOP nominee, was back in Washington today after spending five days on the road. His campaigning between now and the opening of the GOP gathering will be curtailed because he has spent nearly the legal limit for pre-convention campaigning.

But the White House said Sunday that President Reagan probably will campaign in the Midwest on Bush's behalf between now and the convention. That word came from White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater as Reagan was flying back from California on Air Force One.

Also aboard was Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, who had been in California for a weekend fund-raiser, and his presence fueled new speculation about an imminent departure from the administration to run Bush's campaign.

Fitzwater said Baker had "a very brief chat" with Reagan and added: "He's still treasury secretary, put it that way."

When reporters sent Baker a note asking him to come back and talk to them about the matter, he sent back a dollar bill and suggested that reporters take a close look at the banknote bearing his signature.

"Please note the title under the signature," Baker wrote. That title, of course, is secretary of the treasury.

Later, asked by reporters to "share the news," he responded: "There's no news to share."

Strike Writers, producers schedule more talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A negotiating session between striking scriptwriters and producers recessed early today after nearly 13 hours, but more talks to end the 20-week-old strike were scheduled, union officials said.

The session between the striking Writers Guild of America began about 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Sherman Oaks headquarters of the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers and was monitored by a federal mediator.

The talks recessed at 2:15 a.m. today but were scheduled to resume at 3 p.m., said Cheryl Rhoden, a guild spokeswoman.

"We went to the meeting prepared to negotiate in good faith in order to reach a fair deal to both sides," Brian Walton, executive director of the guild's West Coast unit, said in a taped message to members. "We're committed to do that and to continue the process."

The session that ended early today followed a 13-hour round of talks Saturday. That was the first time the two sides had conducted formal talks in more than a month.

Guild President George Kirgo said union negotiators were prepared for any new development that may arise, but refused to elaborate, citing a news blackout agreed upon by both sides at the request of federal mediator Leonard Farrell.

Previous talks ended in June with scriptwriters coast-to-coast overwhelmingly rejecting a compromise offer from producers.

Since the strike began March 7, the main sticking point has been the share of money writers make when hour-long television shows go into reruns.

Despite some internal dissension, the 9,000-plus member guild has remained firm in its demand for a bigger cut of the so-called residual profits, and has divided producers' ranks by getting some independent filmmakers to defect, allowing them to hire writers under separate contracts granting guild demands.

The strike has slowed down the entertainment industry and resulted in layoffs.

Suspect hides in crawl-space

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police had to burrow underneath a house to arrest a 48-year-old man suspected of fatally shooting a man for parking on his property.

The suspect and Eulio Lopez, 47, argued Sunday afternoon about a grassy strip beside the suspect's home. During the argument, Lopez was shot five times with a semiautomatic rifle. He died on the way to a hospital, police said.

Officers threw tear gas canisters inside the home.

Paraquat publicity bothers town

WHEELER (AP) — The potentially toxic herbicide called paraquat has been used to kill wild marijuana crops in this small Panhandle town, and the accompanying national attention has upset some residents.

"The feds went out of the way to get publicity, and I think it's wrong because everyone in the United States knows we have marijuana that grows wild," a county employee who declined to be named told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

In 1983, a U.S. district court order blocked the use of paraquat on marijuana after lawsuits by environmentalist groups and the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

But a settlement was worked out this month after the government agreed to spraying guidelines, said Hank Graddy, national chairman of the Sierra Club's agricultural committee.

Graddy says his group is still concerned about the chemical.

"It is a toxic chemical that is very powerful," Graddy said. "Its consequences have not been fully demonstrated."

Starting last Tuesday and continuing through the end of the week, the Drug Enforcement Agency began spraying 51,000 plants on 16 acres of land.

Wheeler was chosen as the first site to be sprayed after the DEA negotiated a settlement with environmentalists opposed to the herbicide and after some complaining from Wheeler County's lame-duck sheriff.

Next week the target will be marijuana growing in neighboring Gray County. It will be chopped and burned because officials say the plant is seeding and spraying would not be that effective.

"It's always something stupid," said two-term Mayor Wanda Herd. "It's a lovely town, and we can't get on the air how friendly we are. They are out there in their zoot suits on television and they're spraying and they're saying Wheeler, Texas."

New laws mean fewer cowboys

HOUSTON (AP) — New immigration laws mean ranchers will have to either pay more for workers or do without them, agriculture experts and ranchers say.

Experienced cowboys have been drifting out of the business for years, but new immigration laws that legalized some alien workers and increased enforcement have reportedly created a stampede.

The law allows fines up to $4,000 for employers who hire illegal aliens, who have filled many of the low-paying agricultural jobs in Texas.

"They did labor that's almost impossible to get anyone else to do," said Ladd Linthicum, who recently let go the illegal workers on his 36,000-acre ranch near Barnhart.

Many of the illegal aliens that ranchers have relied on for cheap labor left for work in cities once they gained legal status under the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, ranchers said.

And many others who didn't qualify under the federal amnesty program were let go by ranchers when the Border Patrol stepped up enforcement of the new law, said Mertz.

The tough, manual labor on ranches extends well beyond the 40-hour week of many urban workers, and cowboys earn few, if any benefits and the opportunity to live miles from the nearest town.

For all that, ranch hands generally earn less than $450 a month, prompting youngsters to flee to cities and creating a void that has been filled by illegal aliens in the years after World War II.

Jailed man's death due to cocaine

ADDISON (AP) — A man believed to have been seeking medical attention but arrested after crashing his van into a fence died in a jail cell about two hours later of apparent acute cocaine intoxication, officials said.

The man was pronounced dead on arrival at RHD Memorial Medical Center Sunday morning. Acute cocaine intoxication causes the heart to beat so rapidly it becomes irregular and eventually fails, a spokesman for the medical examiner's office said. Strenuous physical exertion could contribute to the failure.

The man was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, but Police Chief Rick Sullivan said the man did not appear to have been injured from the accident.

A jailer and officer tried to revive the man but couldn't.

Clements plans working vacation

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, released from the hospital after recovering from a mild stroke, says he will resume a business-as-usual schedule, starting with a one-week working vacation.

The 71-year-old Republican, released from the hospital Sunday after nearly six days, said he would campaign "vigorously" for Bush, a longtime friend.

"My perspective hasn't changed one iota — beat Dukakis," the governor said.

Clements, who admitted himself into Seton Medical Center on Tuesday evening after experiencing blurred vision, talked to reporters in the hospital lobby Sunday before starting a week's vacation.

Although Clements said he felt "great" and does not anticipate curtailing his activities, he said he had canceled plans to go to Taos, N.M., because he wanted to be closer to his doctors.

Dr. David Morris, a heart specialist, and Dr. Jerry Tindel, a neurologist, said tests earlier this week indicated that Clements was suffering from a slight irregularity in his heartbeat, which could have caused a tiny blood clot to form in his heart before passing through his bloodstream and into his brain, causing the stroke Monday night.

Clements was put on digitalis to control his heartbeat, and physicians added Quinidine after a Friday night examination revealed that the heart rate still was not normal, according to press secretary Reggie Bashur.

The governor said doctors had told him that the slight heartbeat irregularity he experienced was common, and most people never see a doctor.

He also said doctors had told him to be sure and take his medicine on time, and expected him "to go back into a normal routine."

Officials applaud Rainbows

ZAVALLA (AP) — Rainbow Family members did a painstaking job of cleaning up after their annual Gathering of the Tribes, forest officials say.

"We gave them 400 plastic garbage bags, and they literally walked over the whole area and picked up virtually everything," said District Ranger Glenn Donahoe. "In all honesty, they left the place cleaner than they found it."

Members of the back-to-nature group re-seeded many of the grassy areas worn bare by foot traffic, placed branches and small logs in tire ruts, and filled in all but two of their latrines, he said. He characterized the oversight of the two latrines as "no big deal."

The conditions during and after this gathering differed markedly from Forest Service accounts of the group's 1987 gathering in North Carolina, which was much larger.

The Rainbows and Forest Service officials disagree about the problems in North Carolina.

Rainbow members said Forest Service rangers refused to cooperate with them after heavy rains flooded their latrines and complicated the cleanup effort, and also said federal agents harassed them and arrested their cleanup crews.

Leader calls for 'happy ending' to hostage crisis

By DONNA ABU-NASR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The spiritual leader of pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem extremists believed to be holding foreigners hostage in Lebanon has called for a new approach to the crisis that would bring a "happy ending."

Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, the spiritual leader of Hezbollah, or Party of God, made the comments just as Iran prepared to enter U.N.-sponsored talks to end its 8-year-old war with Iraq.

Fadlallah, in a sermon Sunday, accused the United States and Europe of using the hostage crisis for political purposes. But he also called for a swift resolution to the problem.

"We call for a just and practical solution to this problem to achieve a happy ending," he said.

"We are aware that the (hostages) problem has reached such a degree of complexity that its political aspect has become mixed up with its humanitarian aspect."

Hezbollah is believed to be an umbrella for the militant Shiite factions holding most of the 18 foreigners missing in Lebanon.

Nine Americans are among the captives.

Fadlallah's comments came during a one-hour sermon to Shiite zealots marking the major Moslem feast of al-Adha in south Beirut's Bir el-Abed mosque.

The hostages are widely believed to be held in Hezbollah's Hay Madi barracks building about ten blocks from mosque in Beirut's southern suburbs, a Shiite stronghold.

Syria has had some 5,000 troops patrolling most of the southern suburbs since May 29, but they have stayed away from the immediate area of the barracks apparently to avert a military confrontation that could imperil the hostages.

Syrian soldiers, however, control all approaches to Hay Madi and man high-rise apartment buildings overlooking the barracks.

It was not clear whether Fadlallah's call signaled a breakthrough for the hostages. He has made similar calls during the past two years with no results.

"On the occasion of this feast, we call on all sides to begin acting in a political sphere so that the humanitarian aspect of this problem could be resolved," he said.

"We feel pain for the detention (of the hostages) because the issue has humanitarian aspects," Fadlallah said.

Fadlallah accused the United States and European nations of "manipulating the issue of the hostages for political reasons to impose their dominance on the world."

"America has not moved to fight terrorism but has rather used it as a means of political pressure on each country and people that resist its imperialist policies," he added. It was Fadlallah's first reference to the hostages issue since Iran announced July 18 that it was accepting the year-old U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in its war with Iraq.

Political observers believe a truce in the war could facilitate efforts for the release of the hostages.

Nine Americans are among the 18 hostages. The longest held is Terry Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was seized March 16, 1985.

Baker's status isn't the only source of speculation surrounding the Bush campaign. The vice president traveled to Albuquerque, N.M., on Sunday with former Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole, who has been mentioned as a potential running mate.

But campaign manager Lee Atwater said Bush won't reveal his choice of a running mate until next month in New Orleans.

"He's going to keep his own counsel on it, and he's going to let us all know at the convention," Atwater said Sunday in an interview on the CBS-TV program, "Face the Nation." He added that he thought an announcement then would be "very exciting and very dramatic."

Bush, in Albuquerque to speak to an organization of professional and business women, unveiled an ambitious $2.2 billion child-care plan that would be phased in over four years. The group's president, Beth Wray, welcomed the plan but tempered her praise by calling it "one of his first concrete gestures" toward women.

When Bush finished speaking, many in the audience broke into chants of "E-R-A" — a reference to the Equal Rights Amendment, which the vice president opposes. He also was presented with a red purse, which organization members said signified the gap between the earnings of women and men.

Dukakis, for his part, encountered anti-abortion protesters at a stop in St. Louis on Sunday, as he had a day earlier in Modesto, Calif. The governor supports a woman's right to an abortion.

In St. Louis, Dukakis and Bentsen were introduced by Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, a one-time rival for the Democratic nomination. Gephardt accompanied them to the church he had attended since childhood.

Later, the two made a stop in Erie, Pa., where Dukakis continued to stress the theme of economic opportunity and commitment to the family.

After the Pennsylvania stop, Bentsen returned to Washington. He was expected to campaign on his own later this week.

Government cuts hurt ex-wives

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vivian Filemyr's health is frail and money is tight, so when the government suddenly slashed her share of her ex-husband's military pension, she had to plead with doctors and creditors to accept less than usual when bills come due.

The 66-year-old Austin, Texas, woman says her main source of income was cut without warning in May, from about $1,100 a month to $900, and she's spent the last two months trying to find out why.

She thinks her ex-husband, a retired lieutenant colonel, is in debt to the government, possibly for taxes, and that the debt was incurred many years after their 1972 divorce.

The military won't say more, she said, because it would be an invasion of his privacy. "We can't tell you that," they said. Where's my privacy, where's my notification," said Ms. Filemyr.

"My credit rating is being hurt; I have to call my creditors and say my check is reduced and I don't know why and I can't pay you."

Congressional officials and members of an ex-wives support group in Alexandria, Va., say Ms. Filemyr's case is not unique, and may illustrate a growing trend as the government cracks down on its bad debts.

"The government — they'll get their money any way they can," said Shirley Taft, former president of EX-POSE, or Ex-Partners of Servicemen-women for Equality.

"We've heard from quite a few (women) and it's quite devastating. They don't even know why it's being reduced and the finance centers won't tell them. They only know the man's gone into debt for something," Ms. Taft said.

She said representatives of the group met with Pentagon officials earlier this month to argue that the ex-wives should not be held liable for debts incurred by their former spouses after the divorce is final.

But the Pentagon told the group "chances of an administrative change are very slim," she said.

Congressional hearings on the matter and other related issues are planned in September before a subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, says a spokeswoman for Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., who sponsored the 1982 Former Spouse Protection Act.

Under the bill, courts can award a portion of a serviceman's retirement check to the former spouse. If the couple were married at least 10 years, the ex-wife can receive the money directly through the military's finance centers, Ms. Taft said.

these hearings. There is no way to anticipate what the final solution might be."

Ms. Taft said her organization plans to poll its membership, at about 3,500 nationwide, about the situation in a questionnaire this month.

"This is not an isolated case," Ms. Filemyr wrote in a letter to Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Texas. "I have spoken with various women across the country who have related to me that they are in the same situation."

Mrs. Filemyr said she was divorced after 25 years of marriage and was on welfare for years as she fought for the 1982 law.

"I only had a little job here, a little job there, and I kept getting sicker," she said. "I've had it rough, yes I've had it rough."

"With all my doctor bills, hospital bills, I'm not living very nice. I have to watch my groceries, I'm supposed to eat special food."

And that cut in her check was "a bundle of money." Her only other source of income is a monthly Social Security check of about $160, she said.

"I'll be fighting for it (her share). I'll be walking Congress and talking to the senators and representatives."

Ms. Schroeder's spokeswoman said the congresswoman plans to introduce legislation that would divide retirement pay according to a formula based on the number of years of service and the length of the marriage.

Sheriff's log

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Sheriff's Department officers report investigating the following incidents as of 8 a.m. today:

• Jessie Martinez, 30, 2602 Hunter Dr., was released on $500 bond after being arrested by Big Spring police on charges of resisting arrest.

• Jose Alfaro Lopez, 25, 1907 Bell St., was released to Texas Highway Patrol officers after being arrested by Big Spring police on Department of Public Safety warrants. Bonds on the unspecified warrants totaled $800.

• Filomeno Trevino Franco III, 18, 1606 State St., was released on bonds totaling $40,500 after being arrested by Big Spring police on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and driving while license suspended, third offense.

• Kenneth Dwight Conners, 43, 2502 Larry St., was released on bonds totaling $3,500 after being arrested by Big Spring police on charges of driving while intoxicated second offense and possession of marijuana less than two ounces.

• Daryl Wayne Washington, 21, Sweetwater, was released on $5,000 bond after being arrested on a warrant for forgery.

• Jimmy Graves, Gail Route, reported that someone he knows assaulted him at his residence. Sheriff's records indicated that the victim stated he was hit in the head with a pipe.

Escapee still at large

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A capital murder suspect remains at large today despite a continuing search that Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said will continue to be a priority until the escapee is returned to custody.

Standard said today that the department is investigating both nearby and distant locations as possible destinations for the 21-year-old suspect, who fled from a work detail Thursday night.

Antonio Aguilar, described as 5-6 and approximately 155 lb., with wavy dark brown hair and brown eyes, was last seen fleeing toward the west from the south side of the Howard County courthouse.

He was wearing a white jail uniform coverall and tennis shoes when he fled.

Standard said today that search efforts are continuing, and that as a result of the escape some procedures at the jail have been changed.

One such change will be that inmates will not be brought down to take trash to the dumpster in the future, Standard said.

He said the escape occurred during a situation involving a definite violation of departmental procedure that resulted in improper security.

A review board from the department will convene to examine the incident and determine what disciplinary actions will be taken, the sheriff said.

Farmers: Water surplus threatens Natural Dam

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Water backing up on farmland north and west of Big Spring and U.S. Highway 87 has the potential to wash out Natural Dam and create problems for county and city authorities alike, area residents told county commissioners early today.

According to area farmers Richard Yarber and Frank Long, the water diverted by repairs and alterations to a county road northwest of the city earlier this year has created a series of lakes.

"One more big rain," Long said today, "and that will come out of that lake. When it does, all these people" — indicating approximately 15 persons who had come to the commissioners' court to express concerns about the water — "will be getting it, and clear on down into the city of Big Spring."

"Then you will hear the city of Big Spring yelling about the water, more than they are now."

Yarber said the water, which apparently has been diverted from its natural flow by raising part of a county road and installing a drainage pipe beneath another portion of the road, is standing 20 to 25 feet deep over some 340 to 400 acres.

Commissioners Paul Allen, David Barr and William B. Crooker Jr. were involved in the lengthy and often heated discussions of the problem among the residents, who included E.W. Richardson.

The problem, however, lies within the precinct of Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown, who said today he would make plans to go to Austin to seek help from the state level in resolving the problem.

The other commissioners agreed to seek assistance from whatever state or federal organizations could help study the problem and possible solutions.

State delinquent in enforcing support

DALLAS (AP) — Even as The Texas Attorney General's office boasts of a 300 percent increase in child-support collections, federal statistics show that fewer than one in 10 parents who have sought help from the state in the last year has recovered delinquent support payments, according to a published report.

In a copyright story Monday, the Dallas Morning News reported Attorney General Jim Mattox's child-support enforcement offices in 31 cities across the state operated below the national average for collections last year, according to figures from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

In one example, the newspaper reported, a woman had tracked her ex-husband for months to provide the office with such details as his Social Security number, phone numbers, license plate numbers and address. Even when her ex-husband remitted $300 of the alleged $1,100 in back payments for the couple's 10-year-old daughter, Debra Hicks, 31, of Dallas said the state withheld the money as partial reimbursement for $1,000 she and her daughter received from welfare during the four months she received no child support payments.

Mattox told the Morning News that he faulted the Legislature for cutting his budget and forcing his office to spend some 70 percent of its time working on cases involving single parents on welfare.

Budget on city council agenda

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Big Spring City Council is scheduled to select a contractor to provide engineering services for the Gregg Street widening project at its regularly scheduled meeting on Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 5 p.m. in the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark conference room.

Council members will also discuss the risks of Hepatitis B for Big Spring firefighters and police. The issue was first presented by Acting Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles at the July 12 meeting.

They will also review recommendations of the Ambulance Advisory Committee made regarding the city's annual contract with Rural/Metro.

Other agenda items include: • A presentation by Phillip Welch on the Big Spring Air Show to be held on Oct. 22.

• Request for a temporary home permit for Gladys M. Peach, 1307 Harding St.

• Scheduling of a film presentation regarding reportable quantities of emissions which deal with the community's right to know.

• Approval of an alcoholic beverage application at Old Settler's Pavilion — Cameo Energy Homes employees.

Police beat

Big Spring police reported investigating the following incidents:

• Jessie Martinez, 31, 408 E. 8th St., was arrested on charges of assault, public intoxication and resisting arrest.

• An employee of Cousins Convenience Store, 400 S. Gregg St., reported an unknown person threatened him with a weapon and took two packs of cigarettes.

Free Mandela

Nelson Mandela celebrated his 70th birthday the other day in a South African prison. He was alone.

But the white regime has it wrong. It is Mandela who indicts South Africa. His imprisonment is a symbol of the regime's sabotage of the rights of all non-whites.

But the white regime has offered Mandela freedom if he renounces violence. Pretoria calls the African National Congress, which Mandela spiritually leads from prison, a terrorist organization. But it is the white racist regime that rules South Africa through the violent instruments of state terrorism.

The white regime has offered Mandela freedom if he renounces violence.

"The choice is his," President P.W. Botha said. "All that is required of him now is that he should unconditionally reject violence as a political instrument, a norm which is respected in all civilized countries of the world."

But Mandela has refused, not because he favors violence, but because "I cannot sell my birthright," he answered in 1985. "Nor am I prepared to sell the birthright of the people to be free."

Mandela refused to drop his 25-year indictment of South Africa for a few hours of tenderness, or for his personal freedom. In his lonely cell, Mandela is united with all freedom-loving people. Pretoria is alone in the prison of its racism.

A vote for humor

Struggling through the jungles that has become the selection process for picking a U.S. president has left us confused, exhausted and dispirited. It seemed we would never find a candidate worthy of our endorsement.

However, just as we were losing hope of finding the perfect standard-bearer, he appeared — Pat Paulsen.

His candidacy on the Democratic ticket has been a little erratic. He missed the Iowa caucuses because he thought they said Idaho, and he stumped there.

In his press kit, Paulsen includes a seal on the front of his press kit emblazoned with the "seal of the almost president of the United States."

The 61-year-old comedian denies rumors that he has been shamelessly chasing women for the past 10 years, maintaining it has been going on at least twice that long.

The things that seem to set Paulsen apart from Michael Dukakis and George Bush is that his jokes work. The way we figure, anybody who can be funny as often as Paulsen can probably do other things well, too.

If he is elected, we can probably look forward to new weapon systems like semiautomatic squirting flowers and rocket-launched cream pies. We'll bet they won't mistake clouds for enemy ships, either.

While we doubt our endorsement will push him over the top, we find it refreshing to envision a summit meeting between Paulsen and that great Russian comedian, Mikhail.

The Paulsen presidency will be unlike any other in our history. He may not raise our standard of living, but we're confident he will be able to improve our sense of humor.

Who's sorry for Iran now?

Most of us don't know exactly what to make of the fact that a U.S. missile shot down an Iranian passenger plane and killed all those people.

It's the Russians, not us, who shoot down innocent passenger planes.

And how could all that expensive radar equipment we buy with our tax money not be able to distinguish between a commercial plane and a military aircraft?

Who's been monkeying with this stuff, Eastern Airlines? We think of the horror of the jet's crew and passengers in the last seconds of their lives and we think of the families of the victims.

There's probably no more than half a dozen people on earth who have any idea what all the trouble in the Middle East is about anyway, and three of them are dead, and one's being held hostage somewhere and the other two are out trying to blow up a busload of school children in the name of some religious belief.

But, after all that, the truth is, as a man said to me after I made all the previous points: "It's hard to feel sorry for Iran."

It's like feeling sorry for AIDS. How long have we had to endure this outlaw nation and its nutcase fanatics? For years we've watched the television pictures of Iranians shaking their fists at us and burning our flag.

We've had to endure their threats of terrorism and the terrorist acts they have committed.

After the shooting down of the Iranian passenger jet, we heard the Iranians mourn their dead and cry out against needless loss of life.

If this nation is so concerned about the sanctity of life, why has it sent thousands upon thousands of its young to die in the desert in its war with Iraq? I see pictures of Japanese mourning the dead of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and I see an incriminating finger pointed at us for unleashing the two atomic bombs on those cities.

But then I remember the sneak attack at Pearl Harbor and the cruelty the Japanese showed allied prisoners in World War II, and I can feel no remorse for our actions that ended the war in the Pacific.

It's the same with Iran. No matter what it eventually pays for the trouble it has caused, the cost will never achieve a balance.

Now Iran wants the United States to fork over cash to the families of those killed in the air-bus tragedy.

What did Iran pay to the families of the Americans held hostage for all those months and what did it pay to the families of the soldiers in the effort to free those hostages?

"It's hard to feel sorry for Iran," the man said.

Try it — you'll see what he means.

White House budget pays 94

WASHINGTON (AP) — It takes more than presidents and painters to keep the White House going.

It also takes five calligraphers, one accountant, four florists, two shifts of electricians and 39 domestic employees who serve meals, greet visitors and keep house.

The $5.7 million budget for the executive residence is now working its way through Congress, and details are disclosed in hearing records published by the House Appropriations Committee.

They show a staff of 94 people working in a 132-room rabbit warren of a building with floors badly damaged by 37 million people who have walked on them.

They also show that in the White House, as in many other houses, things tend to accumulate and not get disposed of.

Manus J. Fish Jr., director of the National Capital Region of the National Park Service, outlined the budget before the appropriations subcommittee on the Treasury, Postal Service and general government appropriations.

The budget request covers fiscal

Capitol report

1989, which begins Oct. 1. It is down $1.7 million from the amount appropriated for this fiscal year.

That amount, however, included $2.4 million for a major project to remove between 30 and 50 layers of paint from the Pennsylvania Avenue side of the building, and repaint it.

After you subtract this amount, the new budget request is a 13 percent increase.

A major share of the increase is requested to replace floors in the State Dining Room and a private dining room next to it.

"An estimated 37 million visitors had walked on the floors since they were installed during the 1948-1952 renovation," Fish told the subcommittee.

He brought along a piece of the floor which had been removed to show how it had been worn almost to nothing at one end. "High heels, that type of thing, you can see cause some indentations in the wood," he told the lawmakers.

Fish said the Park Service is asking for $65,000 to make the position of curator full-time, bringing the full-time staff to 94. The curator was a part-time job, shared with the State Department, until recently.

The present curator, Rex Scouten, works full time but is paid by the White House Historical Association under a temporary arrangement.

The curator's job is defined as "to assure proper preservation of artifacts and objects of each presidency." There are plenty to preserve.

Fish told the subcommittee that the White House inventory fills 1,100 pages (it is also computerized) and contains information on more than 50,000 "museum objects and utilitarian objects that belong to the Executive Mansion."

Many of them are in a warehouse. After the election, the new president and his wife will probably go to the warehouse and pick out the items they want in their new home, Fish said.

Write from the heart

Take me home, but cut the gab

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

Those of you who listen to the radio have probably heard the phrase "morning drive time."

Maybe you've been annoyed by a morning drive time announcer — you know, the cutesy-poo chat artists who settled on "wake-up shows" after tormenting the nation for several years dragging inane commentary all across the airwaves.

The goofiest have been consigned to irregular appearances on Garry Shandling's show. The slightly-less goofy have invaded the early-morning hours.

I like my 5:30 wake-up call done by someone like George Strait or Earl Thomas Conley — a constructively peaceable approach to the coming day. "Amarillo By Morning," say, or "Common Man," is good, especially when you still have to wash, dress and feed three people before 6:30 a.m.

But then came "morning drive time." No more George Strait. No more peaceful overtures to the coming day.

The daytime announcers who come along when morning drive time's over all brag that they play 12 songs, or more, in a row. If only their early-morning counterparts could take a lesson!

I figured out how to beat the system, though. It's not easy, but on the rare mornings I can handle it, it's worth the trouble. Instead of sleeping late, I'll have my alarm go off at about five; then I have something close to 45 minutes to enjoy the music before the "morning drive time" shows begin.

In spite of the radio, though, I enjoy my morning — and evening — drive times.

One of the things I love about this job is that I don't spend all my time stuck in a cramped office behind a cluttered desk. (Remember, close only counts in horseshoes, hand grenades and H-bombs.)

I spend a third, or so, divided between the cab of my oft-demeaned old truck and my destination. I can't vouch for the rest of the world, but cruising down a West Texas highway is definitely one of my favorite pastimes.

Particularly if I'm homeward bound, when I'm so engaged, and especially if I can get some decent tunes over the radio.

There's no other sky wide enough and high enough to match the shades of sunset you can see from the crest of U.S. 87 off South Mountain, or the various aquas and oyster-shadowed whites of a thunderstorm rising along the horizon on the road to Lamesa.

Those picture-perfect times, cool and sweet, are even prettier accompanied by ballads like "The Bluest Eyes In Texas."

In the evenings, the dark blue grows from under the rose and lilac shades of high-flung clouds, and the sunset pales from orange and scarlet down to pastels brushed on a faded denim night.

Scatter those scenes beneath the evening star, and the view from behind a steering wheel sure makes abandoning that couch and television tempting — especially with some Alabama, say, to listen to.

It's as pretty in the winter as the summer, though not as vibrant in its shades; there's a brilliancy about December's stars you don't see in July. In July, the Charlie Daniels Band sounds best; by January, it's time for Marshall Tucker or Sawyer Brown.

The windows in the winter homes along the way look more comfortable, too, though summer sunrises seem to make the coffee and bacon smell better; makes "Carolina In The Pines," sound fine.

In the mornings, the blue-black velvet sky gives way, gradually, to a lemon streak and a water-color landscape under the sun's first apricot blush, and the road grows from a vague shadow astride the dotted white line to its ordinary daylight form as though by magic. It's as fine a waking as I can imagine.

If they'd just get those idiots off the radio and let me hear some music.

"Harry feels left out. Says he didn't make ANY money illegally during the ENTIRE Reagan administration."

Business highlights

NEW YORK (AP) — Macmillan Inc., already the target of a $1.9 billion hostile tender offer, has received a competing bid from Maxwell Communications Corp. that values the publishing giant at $2.07 billion.

Maxwell Communications, headed by the flamboyant Robert Maxwell of Britain, is willing to pay $80 a share in cash for the company's 25.9 million outstanding shares under certain conditions, Macmillan said Thursday.

Macmillan called the offer unsolicited, raising doubts that Maxwell was the "white knight" many analysts expected to appear to rescue Macmillan from hostile bidder Robert M. Bass Group of Texas.

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has announced its first companywide hiring freeze since the 1984 breakup of the Bell System and said it was moving 3,000 managers into sales and marketing jobs.

The freeze, which will last indefinitely, excludes only some college recruiting and "jobs that are strategic to marketing efforts here and abroad," spokesman Burke Stinson said Thursday.

AT&T Chairman Robert E. Allen said administrative costs are rising too rapidly and he wants to emphasize sales growth.

NEW YORK (AP) — The publisher of Business Week is investigating unusual movements in stocks mentioned in its Wall Street column before issues of the magazine hit the streets, a spokeswoman says.

Mary McGeachy said Thursday that McGraw-Hill Inc.'s legal counsel began tracking stocks mentioned in the magazine's "Inside Wall Street" column "some time back" after noticing unusual rises a day after the magazine was printed but before it reached newsstands.

The probe is reminiscent of a case involving the Wall Street Journal in which a reporter passed advance information on columns to a stockbroker who profited from the knowledge. But McGeachy said McGraw-Hill's investigation was not limited to Business Week's editorial staff.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. reports that its profit rose strongly in the second quarter as overseas operations had a record-breaking performance and sales picked up in North America.

Analysts said the gains in domestic sales reported Thursday should cheer the world's largest automaker, which has seen its U.S. market share erode in recent years.

GM had after-tax earnings of $1.5 billion, or $4.52 a share, in the April-June period — the company's best quarterly profit in four years and an increase of 53 percent from the same quarter of 1987.

The stock market fell broadly Thursday, faced with a weak dollar and rising interest rates. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 24.01 points to 2,086.59.

The dollar declined sharply, while a strong British pound took center stage in worldwide currency trading. Gold prices fell after advancing overseas.

Bond prices fell on the heels of the lower dollar.

Oil prices rose for a second straight day on technical factors. Wheat and corn futures advanced, oats mostly were lower and soybeans were mixed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is cracking down on television pirates who market illegal descrambling devices for backyard satellite dishes.

"We will put them out of business and, if we can, put them in jail," FCC Chairman Dennis Patrick said Thursday.

Bus industry on rough road of recovery

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Despite foreboding, bus czar Fred G. Currey and his investor groups sank millions last year into rebuilding the declining bus industry over the long haul.

They bought Greyhound Lines in March 1987 and few months later acquired Trailways Inc., forming the largest inter-city bus company in the nation.

Now, the merger has received the blessing of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the bus lines boast increased ridership after five years of decline.

"We know there are some things wrong with the system but we're dedicated to bringing the system back," said Currey, a former Trailways director.

But Currey's venture to make the bus a formidable transportation force hasn't been a smooth ride so far. He relates it as a good news, bad news story.

After slashing fares as much as 50 percent and unleashing the biggest advertising blitz in years by either bus line, Greyhound's ridership surged.

The bad news is the bus company wasn't prepared, Currey said.

Terminals were packed, ticket lines were long, luggage and packages were lost and buses were delayed.

"We had a lot of service deficiencies and we had (them) because we were putting together the two largest bus companies in the nation," he said.

Although he is optimistic the company can overcome its problems, Currey acknowledges the only way the bus can make a comeback is by improving long-deteriorating quality.

His plans to refuel the bus lines to include faster ticketing, refurbished and secure terminals, computerized routing, airline-competitive prices and all-around upgraded service.

"We have a fundamental belief in the viability of the business and that really is in sharp contrast with the attitude that the previous owners had about the industry and the business," Currey said.

Greyhound buses await passengers beneath the Trailways sign at the local bus station on Second Street. The bus industry has had a rough road to ride since its merger a year ago.

GLI Holding Co. Inc., an investor group led by Currey, acquired Greyhound Lines for $350 million. The acquisition occurred amid declining ridership and labor disputes between union members and Phoenix-based Greyhound Corp.

Trailways Inc. was on the brink of collapse when another Currey group, GLI Acquisition Inc., spent $80 million to buy some of its fleet, garages and terminals in July 1987.

Despite ICC misgivings that merging the two companies could violate antitrust laws, the buyouts were given temporary approval and on May 17 the merger was endorsed.

"A company like Greyhound faces significant competition," said Michael Redisch, chief of research and analysis in the ICC's office of Transportation Analysis.

"Buses are the people's last choice. If the airline won't go there and it's too far to drive, the bus is the last choice. The bus is also hurt by driving and the growth of the automobile," Redisch said.

"It's a hard way to make a living."

Don't tell that to Currey. He's operating on the premise that the bus and its workers are just suffering from neglect.

"The previous owners of Greyhound, and even to a modest extent Trailways, had kind of a going-out-of-business attitude

"We have a fundamental belief in the viability of the business and that really is in sharp contrast with the attitude that the previous owners had about the industry and the business." — Fred G. Currey which runs buses under the recognizable Trailways name but stamps them with the running greyhound logo — logged 6.3 billion passenger miles, up from 6.1 billion in 1986, ICC statistics show. Passenger miles are the 'total number of miles ridden by paying passengers.

Greyhound predicts a 2.4 percent increase in passenger miles in 1988, said company spokesman George Gravelly.

From March 19, 1987, to Dec. 31, 1987, the company lost $27.4 million, Gravelly said.

"We got the revenues we expected and the profit was somewhat lower than anticipated because we incurred such substantial increased costs" in consolidation, Currey said.

Commission: D-FW needs international development

DALLAS (AP) — Business leaders unveiled strategy designed to take the Dallas-Fort Worth area's domestic economic success to the world market, including plans to strengthen research facilities and attract major sporting events.

About 600 Texas business executives and representatives gathered at a hotel downtown Dallas Thursday to discuss a report from the Dallas Mayor's Commission on International Development and ways to implement the recommendations.

The Dallas region ranks high in economic development — third behind New York and Los Angeles,

"Internationally, we're something of a bust," — Michael Jordan, president and chief executive officer of Frito-Lay, Inc.

according to the report.

"Internationally, we're something of a bust," said Michael Jordan, president and chief executive officer of Frito-Lay, Inc., and a commission member. He cited a survey that placed Dallas last among major U.S. cities in international development.

Mort Meyerson, chairman of the commission and former president of Electronic Data Systems Inc., said McKinsey and Co., an international consulting firm, was employed to aid in the report.

Meyerson, who chairs the Texas group vying for the $4.4 billion supercollider project, said the state needs a university with world-class research facilities to further technological development.

"The Dallas-Fort Worth region is unique as a research center because we do not have a major university to anchor it," Jordan said.

Luring the super collider to Texas' proposed site in Ellis County, south of Dallas, might bring a branch campus of Stanford University or the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to Texas, he said.

The report ranked the Dallas-area third behind California's Silicon Valley and Boston, respectively, in technological development.

In addition to strengthening research, the commission recommended the formation of an international trade center and an international sports commission.

The trade center would service foreign industries seeking to bring their business to the region and would link small- to medium-sized domestic businesses to the world market, Jordan said.

The sports commission would work to attract international sporting events such as the Pan American Games. Jordan said these events usually pumps outside funds into the local economy and can bring international prestige on the host city.

Other proposals include the development of a medical council, expansion of the international studies curricula at area public schools, and creation of a cultural affairs advisory board.

September is the tentative starting date for the report's findings to be set into motion.

HOWARD COUNTY
A new field discovery in Howard County's C.C. Gunn Field has been completed by Lakewood & Fulton of Midland.

Designated as the No. 1 Raccoon, the well is 14 miles north of Coahoma.

It showed ability to flow 233 barrels of 48 gravity oil and 271,000 CF gas per day on a 16/64-in. choke. Flow pressure registered 460 PSI. It will produce from perforations in the Pennsylvanian Formation, 7,492 to 7,506 feet into the hole.

The well is in the H&TC Survey.

Mobil Producing of Midland has posted first production figures for three new wells in Howard County's Howard-Glasscock Field, 15 miles southeast of Big Spring.

The wells are designated as the Nos. 49, 50 and 53 Sarah Hyman.

The No. 49 showed ability to pump seven barrels of oil per day, plus five barrels of water and a trace of gas. The No. 50 pumped nine barrels of oil per day, plus five barrels of water and a trace of gas, and the No. 53 pumped six barrels of oil per day, plus three barrels of water and a trace of gas. All wells bottomed at 2,500 feet.

Production intervals will be in the San Andres Formation. Perforations will range from 2,059 to 2,231 feet into the wellbores.

The wells are in a 320-acre lease in the W&NW Survey.

A new producer has been brought on line in Howard County's BC Field, with Demex US Oil of Dallas as the operator.

Located four miles north of Big Spring, the well is in a 240-acre lease in the T&P Survey. It is designated as the No. 2 Stallings.

County's East Vealmoor Field. Located seven miles northwest of Vincent, the well was known as the No. 69 East Vealmoor Unit. It had carried permit for 7,552 feet of hole.

Drillsite was in a 3,353-acre lease in the H&TC Survey.

BORDEN COUNTY
Texaco Inc. of Midland has abandoned three undrilled locations in Borden County's Jo-Mill Field. Located from 15 to 17 miles southwest of Gail, the wells were known as the Nos. 7113, 7223 and 8142 Jo-Mill Unit. They carried permits for 7,670, 7,670 and 7,710 feet of hole, respectively.

The wells were in a 17,754-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

Union Texas Petroleum of Midland has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 1 Neste-Coleman Farms. It was a wildcat try in a Borden County wildcat location. The location was seven miles southwest of Gail. Drillsite was in a 647-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

Spudded on May 16, the well had reached a dry bottom total depth of 9,850 feet.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY
About three years after being labeled as a dry hole, Standard Oil Production of Houston has re-entered the No. 7 M.V. Bryans "A" in the Spraberry Trend Field, Glasscock County.

Located 22 miles southwest of Garden City, the well bottomed dry at total depth of 12,400 feet when completed in November of 1985.

Union Texas Petroleum of Midland has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 1 Neste-Christie Sherrod. It was a wildcat try in a Glasscock County wildcat location. The location was three miles west of Garden City. Drillsite was in a 640-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

Spudded on May 16, the well had reached a dry bottom total depth of 8,500 feet.

The No. 1 Neste-Edwards has been given a "dry hole" label by Union Texas Petroleum of Midland. Located eight miles north of Garden City, the well had been spudded on May 3. It was located in a 634-acre lease in the T&P Survey, Glasscock County, and had reached 10,296-ft. total depth. It was in a wildcat location.

MARTIN COUNTY
At a location six miles west of Tarzan, Parker & Parsley Petroleum of Midland has finished a new oil producer in Martin County's Spraberry Trend Field.

The well is designated as the No. 1 Scharbauer "1" pumping 90 barrels of oil per day, along with 40,000 CF casinghead gas and 150 barrels of water. Bottomed at 9,678 feet, the well will produce from perforations in the Spraberry Formation, 7,960 to 9,540 feet into the wellbore. Location is in a 320-acre lease in the LaSalle CSI Survey.

Anadarko Petroleum of Midland has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 1 Dyer. It was a wildcat try in a Martin County location, seven miles northeast of Lenorah. Drillsite was in a 676-acre lease in the T&P Survey. Spudded on June 11, the well had reached 5,500-ft. dry bottom total depth.

MITCHELL COUNTY
Mobil Producing of Midland has posted first production figures for a pair of new wells in Mitchell County's Iatan. East Howard Field, nine miles southwest of Westbrook.

The wells are designated as the Nos. 231 and 245 Mary Foster.

The No. 231 showed ability to pump 23 barrels of oil per day, plus 429 barrels of water and a slight show of gas after being bottomed at 3,400 feet, while the No. 245 pumped 12 barrels of oil per day, plus 42 barrels of water and a trace of gas and bottomed at 3,320 feet.

Production intervals will be in the San Angelo-Upper Clear Fork Formation. Perforations will range from 3,528 to 2,804 feet into the wellbores.

The wells are located in a 3,840-acre lease in the T&P Survey.

BALTIMORE — Liselotte Neumann of Finspang, Sweden, looks over her ball during the third round of the 43rd U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship at the Baltimore Country Club.

Rookie holds on to capture U.S. Women's Open crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Being an LPGA rookie is obviously no impediment to winning the U.S. Women's Open.

Liselotte Neumann of Sweden, a five-time winner in Europe who joined the LPGA this year, won the U.S. Women's Open championship Sunday by three shots with an Open record 72-hole total of 277.

The 22-year-old shook off a four-putt double-bogey on the seventh hole to better the Open record total of 279 set by Pat Bradley in 1981 and become the second Tour rookie in as many years to win the championship.

Neumann played the final nine holes in 4 under par and finished with a final-round 69 to win the $70,000 first prize.

Neumann's double bogey dropped her into a tie for the lead with Sheehan and Colleen Walker. Walker even took a brief one-shot lead before Neumann birdied three straight holes, beginning on No. 10.

Sheehan wound up second, three shots back at 280. Walker tied for third with Dottie Pepper-Mochrie at 283.

The Swedish rookie had five birdies and a par over the final nine holes to join Laura Davies of Great Britain, who won the Open last year, her first on the LPGA Tour, by capturing a three-way playoff with Ayako Okamoto of Japan and JoAnne Carner.

It was Davies' Open victory that convinced Neumann to try the LPGA Tour. "I had beaten her before," Neumann said earlier in the week. "If she could win, I knew I could, too."

It didn't look like Neumann would be able to after she squandered a three-shot lead on the seventh green. While she was taking a double bogey, Sheehan made birdie to put them both at 3-under.

Walker, playing a group ahead of Neumann and Sheehan, joined them at 3-under with a birdie on No. 8 and took the lead briefly with a birdie on the 10th hole.

However, Neumann put a nine-iron three feet from the cup on 10 and moved to 4-under. On 11, she sank an eight-foot putt for birdie and, on 12, she dropped a 10-footer for a two-shot lead.

Walker stumbled with a double-bogey on 12, but hung in and made a birdie on 14 to get within one shot.

On the 15th hole, Neumann put a five-wood 10 feet from the hole. Sheehan hit a two-iron short of the green, chipped up and two-putted for bogey.

The Swede rolled in her 10-footer and the tournament was hers.

Neumann put the tournament away with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

"Liselotte played unbelievable golf out there," Sheehan said. "She made miles of putts."

"She was really composed out there. Even after the four-putt, she hung in there.... She showed no signs of crumbling. She was very confident. She kept both feet on the ground and played great golf."

Sheehan, who earned $35,000 for finishing second, shot a 1-under-par 70 but lost a stroke to Neumann.

"I had to do better than that," she said of her final round. "I played extremely well. I have nothing to be ashamed of. I'm proud of the way I played. I'm proud of the way I handled myself. I got beat by a better golfer."

Walker, who missed the cut in her first two Open tries, was equally satisfied with her play Sunday. She and Pepper-Mochrie won $21,679 apiece.

"I was a little disappointed with the 6 on 12 but overall this is the best Open I've ever had," Walker said. "I hope to have a lot more like it."

Neumann came into the tournament having never finished higher than 11th in an LPGA event. She was 68th on the 1988 money list with $27,712 in earnings over her first 17 events.

But this week, she set an Open record for the lowest first-round score (67), then tied the record for lowest 36-hole total (139) and the lowest 54-hole score (208).

Texan wins Hartford-Open in sudden death

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — It wasn't only the first time. Mark Brooks said it was also about time he won a professional golf tournament.

PGA

"I was thinking all week long that it's my time to win," the 27-year-old Texan said Sunday after winning the $700,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Brooks, a slightly-built blonde from Ft. Worth, had been back-and-forth between qualifying school and the PGA Tour four times since 1984.

Although a two-time all-American at the University of Texas, Brooks had never finished better than a tie for eighth in the 1986 Hardee's Golf Classic — before Sunday.

"It will probably take a few days to set in," he said. "There's a lot of quirks that go with it like knowing what you're going to do next year and the next year."

Brooks knocked a 7-iron shot within 10 feet of the flagstick on the second hole of sudden death and made the birdie to beat Dave Barr.

Joey Sindelar, who had also finished regulation at 15-under 269, was the first player eliminated when he hit into the water and double-bogeyed the first playoff hole, No. 16.

Barr, using a sand wedge upside down from a left-handed stance, made a miraculous chip from the edge of a water hazard to get close to the pin after his second shot fell short on the par-4, 399-yard 17th hole.

But the Canadian's shot went for naught when Brooks, who shot a 69 in regulation play, made his putt to earn the $126,000 winner's check.

"You hate to lose a playoff, but it was a birdie so Mark earned it," Barr said. "I was never given a chance to putt."

Brooks became the fourth straight first-time winner on the PGA Tour — following Jim Benape, Tom Sieckmann and Blaine McCallister — and sixth this year.

"There are a lot of great players in the country. There's a lot of great players who aren't on the Tour," Brooks said, trying to explain the string of first-time winners.

Barr, 36, didn't miss a green on the way to shooting a 63, the best round of the tournament and one stroke short of the course-record 62, to earn his way into the playoff.

The seventh-leading money-winner on the Tour, Sindelar, 30, of Horseheads, N.Y., shot a final-round 65.

But even though he was easily the least experienced of the three in the playoffs, Brooks said he went about his business calmly.

"You don't feel like you think you're going to feel. But I guess that's just me," Brooks said. "I wasn't shaking. I didn't see stars... I felt better than I thought I would."

Splitting second- and third-place money, Barr and Sindelar each win $61,600.

Ronnie Black and Mark Calcavecchia, who had entered the final round in a three-way tie for the lead with Brooks, both finished with 70s to end up at 14-under 270.

Brett Upper, with a 69, and Roger Maltbie, with a 67, tied for sixth at 13-under.

All-Stars Roundup

Big Leaguers have easy time with Abilene

The Big Spring Big League All-Stars (ages 16-18) used four pitchers to combine for a three-hitter, as they romped to a 23-1 win over the Abilene All-Stars in Subsectional Tournament play Sunday afternoon at Jack Barber Field.

Aaron Allen started and got the win for Big Spring. He pitched two innings. Following Allen was Kevin Rychell, then Brian Mayfield and Eric Boyt. Rychell and Mayfield pitched two innings each, and Boyt hurled the final inning.

The Big Spring offense banged out 14 hits. Paul Bacon had a four-for-five game, with two triples, a double and single. He drove in five runs.

Allen went two-for-five, with a single and three-run homer. He also had five RBI's. Chris Crownover homered, driving in two runs and Chad Wash added two singles. Tony Perez got one hit, and drove in three runs.

Brad McGary got two hits for Abilene and Dell Anderson added one hit.

Big Spring will play Abilene today at 5:30 at Jack Barber Field.

Senior 'Stars rip San Angelo by 18-2 count

Sambo Rodriguez fired a five-hitter and the Big Spring Senior League All-Stars (ages 14-15) ripped the San Angelo Western All-Stars 18-2 in the opening round of the Subsectional Tournament Sunday at Roy Anderson Complex.

In other opening round play, Abilene downed Lubbock 5-4.

Rodriguez, winning his second game in postseason play, again displayed good control, walking two and striking out four. He was aided by a 12-hit Big Spring attack, led by third baseman Marvin Rubio and first baseman Neal Mayfield. Rubio hit three doubles in three official bats. Mayfield added two doubles.

Second baseman Shane Kemper was a defensive whiz, assisting in eight putouts in nine tries.

Big Spring took control of the contest in the first inning, scoring five times. Patrick Chavarria led off the inning with a base hit. Next Rodriguez and Rubio walked. Catcher Steven Robles singled, scoring Chavarria and Rodriguez. Mayfield then stepped to the plate and hit a towering fly to the center fielder, which he dropped for a two base error. Rubio and Robles scored on the error.

The final run of the inning came when the center fielder dropped Shannon Coots fly, scoring Mayfield.

In the fifth Big Spring put the game out of reach by scoring eight runs.

The inning was led off with walks by Michael Hernandez and Thomas Hernandez. Gerald Cobos' single scored both Hernandezes. Rodriguez then drew a walk and Rubio's double scored he and Cobos.

The Big Spring 'Stars will play Abilene tonight at 7:30. Lubbock and San Angelo also play at 7:30.

Abilene South hurler one-hits BS Juniors

ABILENE — The Big Spring Junior League All-Stars (ages 13) lost their first game of the Subsectional Tournament to Abilene South by a 13-1 margin at Scarborough Field Saturday night.

Vaughn rallies for win in West Texas Classic

MIDLAND (AP) — Bruce Vaughan, leading since the second round, overcame a three-stroke, final-round deficit to capture the United Bank Pro Golf Tour West Texas Classic at Green Tree Country Club.

Vaughan, who set a course and tour record 61 on the second round, shot a final round 70 Sunday to finish the four-day event at 266 and pocket $15,000 top prize money.

Second place finisher Jim Woodward also shot a 70, closing out with a 267 and taking home $7,000.

Mike Standly and Jeff Cook tied for third, both at 268.

Par 3 holes on the back nine proved the difference on the final day. Vaughan mastered them, Woodward didn't.

On the 146-yard, par-3, 15th hole, Vaughan, using a 7-iron and driving directly into one of the stiffest breezes of the day, laid his first shot on the fringe but was able to drop in a ten-foot putt for the bird.

"I hit a little Western Kansas shot," said Vaughan, eluding the difficulty of accurate drives to the green in windy conditions. "I grew up playing those kinds of shots and I know how to hit 'em. That pumped me up." With his birdie, and Woodward's break-even on the hole, the two top players were in a dead heat, both at 18-under for the tourney and headed into the final three holes.

Vaughan, Woodward and Standly all broke even on the par-4, 16th hole.

On the 191-yard No. 17, the longest par-3 at Green Tree, Vaughan and Standly read the hole without trouble, but Woodward bogeyed, surrendering victory to Vaughan, since both golfers shot par on the 18th.

"I tried to make it in two," Woodward said of his devastating bogey on 17. "If I'd have made it in two, I was a hero. Four and I'm a goat."

Despite the victory, Vaughan shot his worst single round Sunday.

The Hutchinson, Kan., native fell behind early, shooting a 2-over, 37, on the front side, but made up for it with his 33 on the back.

"I don't know if it was nerves or what," he said of his play on the front. "The first five holes I had no clue at all as to what I was doing."

Unser takes hard-nosed race victory

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Their crews were side-by-side on the crowded pit road at the Meadowlands Sports Complex.

The roaring Indy cars of Al Unser Jr. and Emerson Fittipaldi were out of sight at the back of the 1.217-mile, six-turn temporary circuit and their pits were quiet for the moment.

Unser, 26, was stalking leader Fittipaldi, 41, with 40 laps left in Sunday's Marlboro Grand Prix Indy-car race and tension was high.

Suddenly, the two-way radios in both pits crackled to life and the tableau in front of the high-dollar hospitality suites told the story.

Unser's Galles Racing team was celebrating wildly, hugs all around and fists punching the air.

Fittipaldi's Patrick Racing team stood unmoving, peering out at the track, seemingly unable to believe their driver wouldn't be coming around again.

Heading into the right-handed turn four on lap 111 of the 150-lap, 182.55-mile race, Unser drove alongside Fittipaldi.

The cars bumped together, Fittipaldi's skidding hard into one of the concrete barriers lining the circuit winding around the Meadowlands Arena.

Unser, his car intact, raced on to victory, eventually getting another break when Mario Andretti's car broke two laps from the end.

"Somebody could have gotten hurt real bad," lamented Fittipaldi's car-owner U.E. "Pat" Patrick. "We had it. We had it. We were slowing down, saving the car."

Unser picked up his second straight victory, third of the season and moved past Danny Sullivan into the CART-PPG season point lead, 86-84.

It's the first time since he entered the Indy car series in 1983 that car-owner Rick Galles has been first in the standings.

Fittipaldi fumed, "To be a champanion, you don't have to put somebody into the wall. He (Unser) was trying too hard."

Fittipaldi, who started from the pole, built leads of up to 19.56 seconds — on lap 69 — and led all but three of the first 110 laps.

But Rocky Moran's crash on lap 101 brought out a full-course caution flag that erased nearly all of Fittipaldi's big edge, moving both Unser and Andretti close behind for the restart on lap 109.

Unser dogged the rear of Fittipaldi's car until he made his controversial move.

The angry Brazilian was not injured. He scrambled from his battered car and stood on the apron of the track until Unser drove by.

The frustrated Fittipaldi waved a fist at Unser before making the long trek back to his team's motorhome.

"Al Jr. tried to pass me in an impossible place," Fittipaldi said. "He went to the inside where I didn't expect him to be. I didn't see him. That's it, the race is gone."

Unser refused to accept the blame, saying, "He (Fittipaldi) had made a mistake earlier in the hairpin at the end of the straightaway. He went a little wide and that enabled me to set him up in the next turn. I got up next to him. He decided to go in the corner with me and there was room for only one car. We made contact and Emo had nowhere to go. That's racing. He made the decision."

While Fittipaldi dealt with his anger, the race went on with Andretti adding more drama to Unser's day.

Andretti used the Moran caution period to overcome a nearly disastrous 26-second pit stop in which his crew had trouble getting the right-rear tire off on a four-tire change on lap 55.

With Fittipaldi gone, the 48-year-old racer went after the new leader, finally slipping cleanly past on the inside on lap 138.

Youth wins back-to-back state titles

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Amy Hyden is getting to be an old hand at winning state bowling championships. Not many 14-year-olds can boast of winning two state titles when competing against others six to eight years older.

The Runnels eighth grader recently won her second straight Young American Bowling Allegiance state competition. She was one of 4,200 young bowlers in the state that competed over a six week period in Bryan and College Station. Miss Hyden competes in the 12-22-year-old Jr.-Sr. Division.

Although she's just been bowling competitively for the past four years, Hyden won her first YABA state title came in 87 when she captured the all-events crown. This included singles, doubles and team competition.

Last year, the Big Spring team won the team title. Seventeen of the 21 bowlers competing, finished in the top five.

This year Amy and her teammates didn't fare as well. Amy still won a state title because she was the singles champion, but she finished in the all-events competition. As a team, Big Spring boys finished seventh at state.

It's no wonder Miss Hyden is a good bowler. Mom Karen, nine-year-old brother Andy, and dad Glenn are all active bowlers at Highland Lanes, where Mrs. Hyden is snack bar supervisor. Mrs. Hyden is also one of the coaches of the YABA team, along with Mark Sanders, control manager at the bowling alley, and owner Harold Aberweg.

Though she's somewhat of a celebrity around the bowling lane, Amy is very shy when it comes to talking about her success. In fact, Karen did most of the talking.

Mrs. Hyden said it's unlikely for a 14-year-old to win two consecutive state titles. "I'd say it's uncommon for her to win two times in a row."

Then she recalls the misfortune Amy suffered this year while preparing for the state tournament.

"The day before the state tournament her bowling ball came up missing from her locker," said Mrs. Hyden. "We looked everywhere and couldn't find it. So we had to get her a ball that was two pounds heavier. She had been using a 12-pound yellow dot. She had to go to a 14-pound purple angle. This gave Amy little time to have a ball prepared for her departure at 6 a.m. that morning. But thanks to Highland Lanes manager, John Denton, pink fingergrrips were sliced and holes drilled overnight, in time for Amy's departure that morning.

Still, Amy didn't feel at ease. "I really didn't think I had a chance," admitted Amy. "I wasn't expecting to win it last year because I never had, and I didn't think I had a chance this year because I was bowling with a different ball."

Things started off badly for Amy at the state tournament. Her bowling was severely below par in the early going.

"She was real frustrated at first," said Mrs. Hyden. "She was throwing a different ball and didn't know how to react. I took her to the corner, put my arm around her and she cried. We had a little talk and she came back.

Boy did she ever. Young Miss Hyden responded to her mother's talk by bowling a 755 series, 51 pins better than she did last year when winning the state crown.

Now that she has another state title under her belt, Amy says she just plans on some fun summer bowling activities, since softball season is over. Her softball team won first place in United Girls Softball Association Division III. Amy also shows her versatility by playing basketball and running track during the school year, not to mention being an honor student in the classroom.

"I've been bowling good this summer," said Amy. "Better than I usually do. I've been averaging about 140 lately, then it will drop down to the 120s. When I'm bowling there's really no pressure, I just go out and try to do my best and have some fun."

And it's always fun to win. Needless to say Amy's been having a lot of fun.

Risen Star retires

NEW YORK (AP) — For Risen Star, one career has ended and another is beginning.

"It's going to be a traumatic experience when he tells us goodbye," trainer and co-owner Louie Rousel III said of the successful horse, who has left racing for syndication purposes.

Risen Star, the son of Secretariat who was appropriately named, was retired to stud Saturday. Rousel said the 3-year-old colt would not race again because of a nagging injury to his right foreleg.

"It's been such an unbelievable experience from the Fair Grounds to winning the Belmont," Rousel said. "The victories have never really belonged to us. They belong to all the people back home in New Orleans."

Risen Star had an 8-2-1 record in 11 starts, including victories in the Belmont and Preakness and a third-place finish in the Kentucky Derby. He earned $2,029,845, including a $1 million bonus for his triple crown performance.

Risen Star's winning time at the Belmont was 2:26 2-5, the second-fastest in history. Secretariat set the record of 2:24 in 1973 when he won the Triple Crown.

"God was real good to us," co-owner Ronnie Lamarque said. "He let us complete the Triple Crown jewels."

Ironically, it was in training for the Belmont Stakes, which Risen Star won by 14 3/4 lengths, that he hurt his leg. Rousel didn't anticipate any further damage.

"He's going to be all right — for all the people who have sent cards and letters," he said. "He's never taken a stiff step."

Risen Star will be shipped Wednesday from Belmont Park to the Walmac International breeding farm in Lexington, Ky. The horse was syndicated for $7 million following his Belmont victory.

Rousel denied that the lucrative syndication deal affected the decision to retire Risen Star.

"The exam showed that healing had taken place, but it probably would be another six weeks to two months before it's completely healed," he said, adding that the injury could be chronic.

KU hoop program being investigated

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The NCAA has informed the University of Kentucky that it will conduct an official inquiry of the school's men's basketball program, the university announced today.

S. David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA, reported to the school in a letter on one allegation — that concerning a package allegedly containing $1,000 being sent March 30 to a basketball recruit's father.

Berst said that "it appears reasonable to expect that the NCAA Committee on Infractions may find a violation of NCAA legislation."

The letter also said that "approximately 10 additional allegations" will be submitted to the university within the next 30 days, but it did not specify what the allegations would concern.

Berst said the NCAA would set a deadline for the university's response after the other allegations had been submitted.

The university has been cooperating with the NCAA in an investigation of the allegation of the $1,000 package. Lexington attorney James Park Jr. is heading the school's participation in the probe.

"The university will make thorough investigations of any allegations received from the NCAA," Bernie Vonderheide, UK director of public relations, said in a news release. "We have not been informed of the nature of the allegations, but we will investigate them and respond to the NCAA in a comprehensive report."

According to a Los Angeles Daily News article in April, UK assistant coach Dwane Casey sent a package to the father of recruit Chris Mills on March 30, and several employees of Emery Air Freight Corp. said the package popped open in transit, revealing $1,000 in cash.

Casey has denied sending the money, and Chris Mills and his father, Claud, have denied receiving any.

Casey has since filed a $6.9 million lawsuit against Emery, contending the company mishandled the package, defamed his character and violated his privacy. He also contended that he suffered "severe and grievous mental and emotional suffering."

Claud Mills said Friday that he would take legal action to get information about the NCAA investigation.

He said he would tell his lawyer, Ron Hecker of Los Angeles, to take whatever action was necessary, including a lawsuit, in order to obtain information.

Chris Mills said he still plans to attend Kentucky this fall.

Packers RB facing big problems

By The Associated Press

Brent Fullwood seems to have found some opponents off the field. The Green Bay Packers running back who was hampered by injuries as a rookie made it through only 1 1/2 of the required four 440-yard runs last week, then was told he out of shape by Virgil Knight, the team's conditioning coach.

When newspapers reported Fullwood's problems and that the 1987 No. 1 draft pick out of Auburn was overweight, Fullwood got mad. He claimed he hurt his back during the offseason lifting weights and it tightened up, forcing him to pull out of the running tests.

Lindy Infante, who has taken over as Green Bay's coach and installed a new offense, was vague in his assessment of Fullwood.

Infante's offense requires the running backs to be receivers as much as ball carriers and Fullwood said he would have no problem with that.

Fullwood rushed for 274 yards on 84 carries last season, when he scored a team-leading five touchdowns and returned 24 kickoff for 510 yards.

SIGNINGS

Among the veterans who reached contract agreements were Buffalo guard Jim Ritcher; Atlanta defensive end Jesse Baker; Green Bay defensive back Mark Lee and offensive lineman Tom Neville; Miami linebacker Jackie Shipp; New England DE Kenneth Sims and TE Willie Scott; Chicago linebacker Ron Rivera; New Orleans linebacker Sam Mills; New York Giants fullback Maurice Carthon; Phoenix QB Cliff Stoudt; and three San Diego Chargers running back Tim Spencer, receiver Kevin House and tight end Dan Sharp.

Sims, who was the first player selected in the 1982 draft, signed a one-year contract. He comes off one of his best and healthiest seasons, when he played in all 12 non-strike games.

"I'm glad it ended a lot sooner this year than last," said Sims, who held out for more than a week last year. "I'd rather be in training camp, getting ready to do what I do best."

Mills, one of the NFC's best linebackers last year and a Pro Bowl player, had boycotted the Saints' practice on Saturday. But he ended the contract dispute by signing a four-year pact Sunday.

"Sam did everything but go out on the field. He will not be fined, because the inability to get a contract was probably as much my fault as his," Saints' general manager Jim Finks said.

The Bears are counting on Rivera as a starter after losing All-Pro Wilber Marshall, a free agent, to the Redskins. Rivera has been mostly a backup since the Bears drafted him in the second round in 1984.

UNHAPPY CAMPERS

Although he is back in Seattle's camp, All-Pro linebacker Freddie Young isn't smiling. Young wanted to renege his contract that will pay him a base salary of $350,000 this year. But the team refused to renegotiate.

Young signed a four-year contract last year after being a holdout in camp. This year, he was upset because he was paid less than rookie linebacker Brian Bosworth, even though Young has been Seat-le's leading tackler for the past three seasons.

Seahawks coach Chuck Knox is planning to move Bosworth to strong inside linebacker from weak inside linebacker and was switching Young to the outside.

Dallas placekicker Roger Ruzek sent a letter of retirement to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Ruzek refused to report to training camp because the Cowboys wouldn't renegotiate his contract.

Ruzek's refusal to report caused the Cowboys to file a $1.36 million lawsuit Friday in Dallas against Ruzek's agent, Steven Weinberg, and the NFL Players Association.

Weinberg, complaining that the Cowboys bargained in bad faith in renegotiating Ruzek's salary, filed a grievance on Wednesday with the NFLPA.

Giants whips Cards in more ways than one

By The Associated Press
The San Francisco Giants and St. Louis aren't fighting for the National League pennant this year. Still, that doesn't mean they can't fight each other.

The Cardinals and Giants, who have a history of bad blood between them, engaged in two bench-clearing altercations in the eighth inning Sunday. Neither side held a clear advantage in the extra-curricular activity; San Francisco won the game 5-0 on Rick Reuschel's 25th career shutout.

"In the old days, they played hard and aggressive, and that's the way I was brought up," said San Francisco's Will Clark, who was at the center of the first incident and was ejected along with St. Louis second baseman Jose Oquendo.

Two pitches later, Cardinals reliever Scott Terry almost hit Mike Aldrete in the head with a pitch. Terry was tossed and players from both dugouts again spilled onto the field.

Two seasons ago, Managers Whitey Herzog of St. Louis and Roger Craig of the Giants nearly got into a fistfight during a bench-clearing brawl. Last October, the teams traded insults during a tense playoff series the Cardinals won in seven games.

This year, St. Louis is frustrated and far behind in the NL East, 15 games in back of New York. The Giants are doing better in the West, trailing Los Angeles by seven games.

Clark hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning for a 5-0 lead. In the eighth, he singled and then slid hard into Oquendo on Candy Maldonado's forceout.

Smith circled in back of Clark and kept punching from behind.

Atlanta's German Jimenez, making his final start on a 30-day trial period from the Mexican League, won his first major-league game with a victory in New York.

Jimenez, 26, had lost his first three starts. The Braves must decide today whether to return the left-hander to the Jalisco Charros, send him to the minors or keep him, and Atlanta manager Russ Nixon said Jimenez would stay in the starting rotation.

Phillies 6, Astros 4
Mike Schmidt hit his 540th career home run, a disputed three-run drive in the seventh inning, and Philadelphia stopped Houston's season-high winning streak at six.

Schmidt's 10th homer landed just inside the left-field line and put the Phillies ahead 6-0. Astros manager Hal Lanier argued that the ball was foul.

John Kruk, batting in the leadoff spot for the first time since 1986, homered on the first pitch of the game and San Diego went on to win at Wrigley Field.

Kruk home run off Rick Sutcliffe was his seventh of the season and first since June 8. Roberto Alomar hit an RBI single in the second inning for a 2-1 lead.

Hubie Brooks, Tim Wallach and Nelson Santovenia homered as Montreal rallied past host Cincinnati.

Brooks hit a two-run homer and pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson had an RBI single in the seventh inning, putting the Expos ahead 4-3.

Yanks conclude wild series with win over Royals

By The Associated Press
In four games between the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals, there were 56 runs, 81 hits, 161,019 fans and not a moment of boredom.

American League

The teams capped a wild series Sunday with the Yankees winning 10-8 after blowing a seven-run lead. New York, which lost the previous day despite Dave Winfield's first-inning grand slam, gained a tie for first in the American League East as Detroit lost 1-0 to Oakland.

The Royals and Yankees won two games each.

Kansas City had scored a run in the second, two in the third and five more in the fourth to take an 8-7 lead. But Jack Clark hit a three-run homer in the sixth and relievers Neil Allen and Dave Righetti shut down the Royals.

Blowing leads this season has become all too familiar for the Yankees, who have lost six times when they were one out away from victory and have been beaten 13 times in their opponent's final at-bat. Allen, the winner in New York's 9-7 victory Friday night, conceded that the bullpen must perform better.

Athletics 1, Tigers 0

Detroit, which had been in sole possession of first place in the AL East since June 20, was shut out by Oakland's Bob Welch and lost for the seventh time in 10 games since the All-Star break.

Welch, 12-6, gave up six hits, struck out eight, tying his season high, and walked one for his third complete game. Walt Terrell, 4-8.

Red Sox 3, White Sox 2

Boston pulled within 1 1/2 games of New York and Detroit by winning its 11th straight game and 16th in a row at Fenway Park.

Mike Greenwell drove in one run with a triple and set up another with a double and Wade Boggs had three hits as Boston completed a four-game sweep of Chicago.

Twins 6, Orioles 1

Eddie Murray's throwing error allowed two runs to score in the second inning and Randy

Bush hit a three-run homer in the eighth as Minnesota won.

Alan Anderson, 7-7, scattered nine hits, walked two and struck out one before needing relief help from Juan Berenguer in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Rangers 6, Brewers 4

Paul Kilgus allowed five hits in eight-plus innings and Pete Incaviglia and Geno Petralli homered to lead Texas.

Kilgus, 8-9, who had lost his last four starts, struck out three and walked three but needed relief help from Mitch Williams in the bottom of the ninth after giving up a solo homer to Jeffrey Leonard and a two-run shot by Greg Brock.

Indians 9, Angels 2

Greg Swindell pitched a six-hitter to snap his eight-game losing streak as Cleveland won for just the fourth time in 15 games.

Swindell, 11-9, walked none and struck out eight for his eighth complete game.

Blue Jays 6, Mariners 0

Mike Flanagan pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout in four years. Cecil Fielder hit two homers and George Bell also homered for Toronto at the Kingdome.

A 'gorgeous day' at Shea

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver finally got his perfect ending at Shea Stadium.

The Mets retired Seaver's number 41 Sunday in pregame ceremonies filled with new memories and old friends.

"At no time in the future will any New York Met ballplayer wear number 41," New York general manager Frank Cashen said in making it official.

Seaver's 41 was then unveiled on the left-field fence, next to Gil Hodges' 14 and Casey Stengel's 37.

"This is absolutely a gorgeous day," Seaver told the crowd of 46,057. "I feel twice blessed. For a beautiful family and friends and to be able to display a talent here at Shea Stadium for 10 years."

Seaver was joined on the field by his wife, Nancy, and their two daughters. The Mets gave the Seavers a car, jewelry and a ski vacation in Europe.

Former teammates Jerry Grote, Bud Harrelson and Jerry Koosman also were part of the ceremonies and a letter of congratulations was sent by President Reagan.

After making a brief speech, Seaver said: "To those on the field and in the stands and at home watching on television, I'd like to say thank you. If you'll allow me to say it in my own special way. And if you know me, and you know how much I love pitching, this is the special way."

Seaver, dressed in a sports jacket and tie, then jogged out to the mound from the home plate area and took his final bows.

For 10 years with the Mets, the mound at Shea was his home, his kingdom. And, on one summer night in July, 1969, Seaver almost found perfection.

"If I had to pick one game where everything came together as perfectly as I could have wanted, it was the near-perfect game against the Cubs that Jimmy Qualls broke up with one out in the ninth inning," Seaver said. "I had every hitter doing what I wanted."

NEW YORK — Former New York Mets pitcher Tom Seaver gestures from the pitcher's mound at Shea Stadium during ceremonies to retire his number, Sunday in New York.

Seaver now has a special status in New York that only a chosen few have reached.

"This is special, coming in a town where some of the game's greats have had their numbers retired — the Mantle's, DiMaggio's, Ruth's and Gehrig's," Seaver said prior to the ceremonies. "I don't feel like a legend, not yet anyway," he said. "That may not be my call, I think that may be a relationship that the fans and the press have."

Hodges, who died of a heart attack in April, 1972, was Seaver's manager in 1969 when the right-hander went 25-7 and the Mets won the World Series.

"If there is anything about retiring a number that strikes me, it's that it's going to go up next to number 14," Seaver said. "Gil was extremely important in my professional career. Gil may not be here with us but he is certainly going to be here in spirit, in what he meant to a lot of the people who are here today."

Seaver ended his career with a record of 311-205, a 2.86 earned-run average, 3,640 strikeouts and 61 shutouts. He won three National League Cy Young Awards with the Mets and is the club's all-time leader in games, complete games, innings pitched and strikeouts.

After a contract dispute with then-club chairman M. Donald Grant in 1977, Seaver was traded to the Cincinnati Reds on June 15. The Reds sent Seaver back to the Mets on Dec. 16, 1982, and he went 9-14 in 1983.

The Mets did not protect Seaver in the free agent compensation draft after the '83 season, and the White Sox selected him. It was with the Sox that Seaver won his 300th game in August, 1985 at Yankee Stadium.

"My biggest disappointment was leaving the Mets the first time," Seaver said.

On Sunday, Tom Seaver came home again and he had the perfect ending to his perfect day.

Rice receives rare welcome

BOSTON (AP) — In 14 years with the Boston Red Sox, Jim Rice rarely, but criticized a teammate publicly. He didn't like it last spring when, as team captain, a couple of verbal jabs taken at Todd Benzing in the clubhouse were reported.

Rice just felt, as did some others on the team, Benzing should have been ignoring injuries in the fight for a job.

In a way, Benzing took a page from Rice's book. He refused to reply to criticism, doing things his way instead. But Benzing is much more outspoken than the greatest right-handed slugger in Boston history.

"Jim has been here for who knows how many, maybe a thousand games," Benzing said.

ing the game, Big Spring will play the loser at 8:30 p.m.

Abilene hurler C.C. Witt almost pitched a no-hitter against Big Spring, who advanced by winning the Odessa Junior League Sectional Tournament.

Witt had a no-hitter for six-and-two-thirds innings. But Big Spring's John Kennedy foiled the bid with a single to right field.

Witt quickly retired the next batter and finished with a one-hit, 13-strikeout performance.

Abilene South pounded out 12 hits against Big Spring pitchers. Abilene led 4-0 after the first inning, added two more runs in the second inning, and never looked back after that.

Witt was also tough at the plate, hitting a two run, RBI double in the top of the seventh inning.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, JULY 26, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will take great strides forward in your career. You are surprised by all the good things gravitating toward you now. Family support is a major career asset. Seek points of agreement. Less tension means better health and greater happiness. Your social life accelerates as financial pressures subside. Romance will be more to your liking. A child makes you proud. Focus on family, savings and the environment.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: playwright George

Bernard Shaw, rock star Mick Jagger, director Stanley Kubrick, skater Dorothy Hamill, comedienne Gracie Allen, director Blake Edwards, author Aldous Huxley, tennis' Vitas Gerulaitis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The fun side of a relationship begins to unfold. Romance deepens. Be open about your personal motives and higher-ups will cooperate. Keep your plans flexible. Last-minute changes are likely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not underestimate the importance of little things. You cannot ignore paperwork deadlines and succeed. Resist temptations. Concentrate on long-range goals. A love relationship reaches a new plateau. Make a firm commitment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You know what you must do to stay fit. Do not tempt fate. At times, you are your own worst enemy. Be less critical of your efforts. Accept how very talented you really are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Material things become less important to you now. Your top priority is being with someone you care about and working in an environment you like. Barter your services for something you need.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel may not be all it is cracked up to be now. A vacation will be disappointing if everything costs too much. Plan carefully to avoid any unpleasant surprises. Romance beckons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish what you start. Follow up distant affairs by telephone or mail. An excellent time for renegotiating a contract or signing agreements. Cut expenses by doing your own home repairs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bring a personal problem to the attention of a trusted friend. Sound advice will follow. Teamwork lightens your workload. Business trips will go as planned. Pursue a promising new romance. Be affectionate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Use your brains. Taking a philosophical attitude will help you find new solutions. Try not to be petty. A friend or acquaintance may prove too expensive for your pocketbook. Go your own way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Watch what you say and do. Mate or partner may be in a touchy mood. Postpone signing a contract until your lawyer has clarified certain points. The emphasis now is on creativity, charisma.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Flattery works wonders now, as long as it is sincere. You make money helping others. Huge profits come from sales. You are about to close an important deal; do not rush.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Act independent with your current love; clinging will prove counterproductive. Teamwork boosts profits. Follow trends. Last-minute college financial aid comes through. An appreciative attitude will be rewarded.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Telephone calls will bring both good luck and vital information. Close deals promptly. Creditors are more lenient than you thought possible. Aid a youngster who reaches out for help. Consult with experts.
