Astronaut: Space dangers overshadowed by rewards

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The dangers in returning Americans to space flight are overshadowed by the rewards, says one of five astronauts scheduled to fly on the first shuttle mission since the Challenger disaster.

"There are certain things in life that the importance really transcends any danger that's involved or risk that's involved," Marine Lt. Col. Dave Hilmers said Monday at the final news conference he and fellow Discovery crew members will hold before their flight.

"The sense of privilege that I have in being a part of this and the purpose very much overshadows any fear that I have."

The launch of Discovery, scheduled for late September or early October, will mark the nation's return to manned space flight. On Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff, killing its crew of seven.

Navy Capt. Rick Hauck, who will command the veteran crew on Discovery's four-day mission, said the flight is important to establish confidence in the space program.

Although safety is important, Hauck said he was concerned about people who believe all risks should be avoided.

afraid to take any risks then "we need to find out who's going to lead the world and follow them," he said.

The mission will be a test flight, Hauck said, noting that the shuttle has undergone 210 modifications since the Challenger tragedy.

Although mechanical failures could occur, he doesn't believe any will be life-threatening.

"We clearly could not afford to lose another vehicle, much less another crew," Hauck said. "I don't think the manned space flight program could withstand another Challenger on STS-26 (his flight)."

"That's high stakes, but I'm not concerned that that's going to happen. In the last year and a half, I've seen how we've modified that machine and how we've done business. So I feel very comfortable with the flight."

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration have been hesitant to set a date for the often postponed launch because engineers still are grappling with two problems that developed during a test firing of Discovery's engines on the launch pad at Cape Canaveral Aug. 10, Hauck said.

One is a small leak of hydrogen gas detected in an area where the orbiter is joined to the external tank. The other is the apparent sluggishness of three gaseous oxygen valves in the fueling system.

Although NASA officials have said they don't think either problem is serious, they still wanted to test both systems. They hope they can announce resolutions and a launch date this week.

The astronauts' main goal will be to deploy a communications satellite. They also will conduct 11 science and technology experiments.

The other crew members are Air Force Col. Richard Covey, the pilot, and mission specialists George Nelson and Mike Lounge.

In addition to the changes in the orbiter, there were 50 modifications to the shuttle booster rockets. The Challenger disaster was blamed on a faulty joint in one of two solid-fuel booster rockets.

On Monday, a tentative, undisclosed settlement was reached

Shroyer: Short hitch in Navy

By LEA WHITEHEAD
Staff Writer

Shirley Shroyer recently completed a "hitch" in the Navy.

She was one of approximately 100 civilians invited to take the Operation Tiger Cruise aboard the USS Samuel Gompers from Hawaii to Alameda, Cal., on the last leg of a six-month overseas deployment. The Navy developed the program for family members or friends of crew members to give them a taste of shipboard life.

Shroyer's sponsor on the three-day cruise was her daughter, Lt. Debbie Shroyer, the ship's navigator.

The USS Samuel Gompers is a destroyer tender, explained Shroyer, displaying the knowledge she gained on the cruise. Named for the founder of the American Federation of Labor, the ship has extensive capabilities for repairing many types of vessels, including nuclear surface ships, submarines and aircraft carriers.

Her services include hull, machinery, electrical, electronics, ordnance and nuclear propulsion repair. The ship also provides services for the crews of ships under repair.

The Tigers, as the guests were called, were exposed to every detail of the ship's operation, said Shroyer. They were urged to qualify for Junior Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialists. To this end the guests were divided into groups and taken on tours of each department; a booklet was provided for each department head to sign to denote "qualification."

Shroyer and the other Tigers participated in fire drills and man-overboard drills.

"These were serious activities," assures Shroyer. "In the man overboard drill, a plastic replica of a man is thrown into the water, representing an actual crew member. The crew doesn't know who it is, and must account for all personnel."

"We had to learn Navy parlance right away," she said, "or else we wouldn't know what they were talking about."

Terms she got acquainted with were "rack" for sleeping place; "wardroom" for officers' dining facilities and "ladders" for stairs: Guests had to carry their own luggage ("now I know why they recommended bringing just one suitcase") and at first Shroyer found it difficult to master the ladders without holding on with both hands.

"I want to point out that while all the Tiger tours were underway, the crew was attending to its regular business," Shroyer said. "I got the feeling that they were working very hard. I felt extremely proud of what they were doing."

It wasn't all work and no play for the guests, of course.

"They made us feel so welcome," recalls Shroyer. "There was a barbecue on the flight deck. One night crew members and Tigers competed in a talent show. We joined in one night to prepare pizza for the crew. And parents attended a

Bristo resigns Staffing troubles for center

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

The executive director of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center has announced his resignation effective November 30.

Larry Bristo — executive director of the center for more than 10 years and described as an "asset, and a very loyal employee" — submitted his resignation Monday at a meeting of the center's board of directors.

He said he resigned to allow the center's board of directors time to hire a licensed physical or occupational therapist who will also serve as the center's executive director.

Bristo said the inability to find qualified physical and occupational therapists coupled with a decline in the center's financial resources, led him to resign so the board could recruit a director who would serve in a dual capacity.

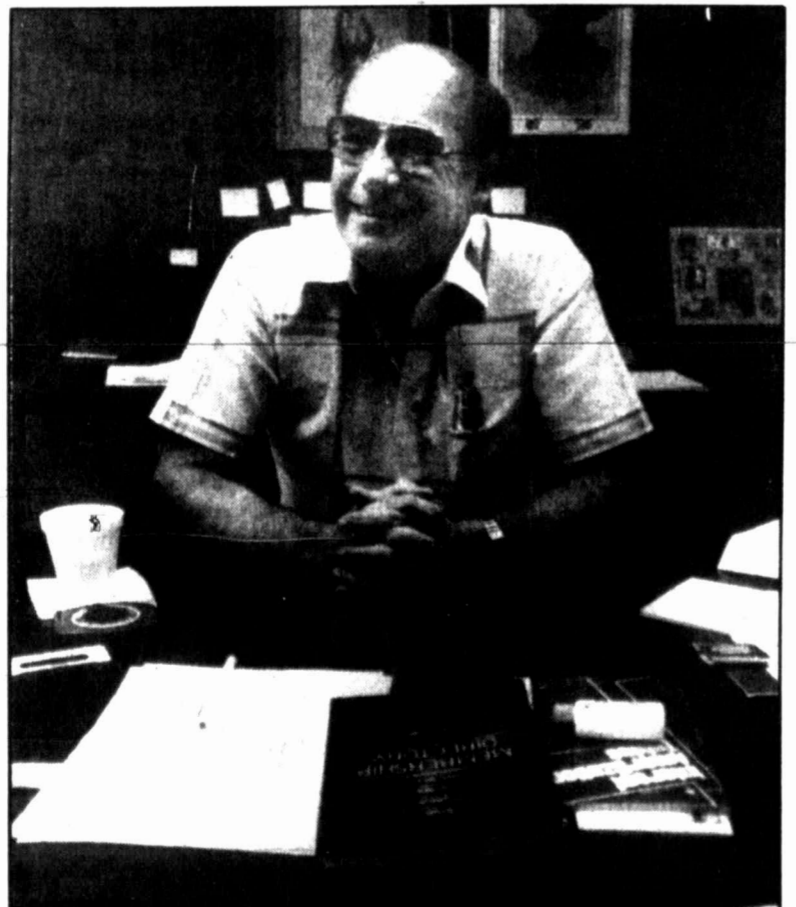

An occupational therapist, a physical therapist and a speech pathologist have recently resigned from the center to accept positions in other cities, he said.

"The financial situation of the center simply does not allow at this point for full staffing," he said.

"By pulling in and in effect giving people additional responsibilities, the center's funds can be better utilized," he added.

"While the financial condition of the community and surrounding area has contributed greatly to the problems that the center now faces, an even greater problem is the inability to recruit and keep quality staff," he said.

Bristo says he has advertised for three months for a physical therapist in state and national trade publications. Despite offering a $28,600 starting salary for an entry-level physical therapist position, the center has not received any responses to the advertisements, he said.

Bristo said that licensed physical therapists are in great demand, and it is extremely difficult to entice recent graduates to accept jobs in small towns.

Frances Wheat, president of the center's board, said the board is "optimistic" that it can recruit a physical therapist with management skills to fill the executive director's position.

She described Bristo as an "asset, and a very loyal employee."

Demos submit Avery

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

The name of Johnnie Lou Avery, Big Spring, is to be submitted to the Texas Secretary of State's office today as the Democratic candidate to replace Larry Don Shaw in the 69th district state representative race.

A council of the Democratic chairmen of the 69th district named Avery, 50, as Shaw's replacement on the ballot Saturday in Kernitt.

It will be the decision of Texas Secretary of State Jack Rains to decide if the Democrats can replace Shaw on the ballot.

"At the present time, I'm pretty sure we're going to accept their nominee," Randy Erben, assistant secretary of state, said Monday.

According to the state election code, an executive committee may make a replacement nomination if the candidate withdraws because of catastrophic illness or if the withdrawing candidate was running unopposed.

Republicans charged that Shaw withdrew from the race because polls placed him far behind his Republican opponent, Troy Fraser.

Fraser said Tuesday Shaw's withdrawal "was probably set up for several months" when Democrats found a "loophole" in the election code.

"It's virtually impossible for her (Avery) to run a credible campaign with the short amount of time left (before the election). I wish her well," he said.

Fraser said he is not running against anyone, but, instead, for the seat Shaw vacated. He added he has organized a group of 1,000 volunteers throughout the 13-county district to work for his campaign.

Texas Republican Party Director Jim Duncan said Shaw stated his real intentions when Shaw said he was withdrawing from the race in a televised statement taped in his Austin office the day before he made a formal announcement.

Democrats maintain Shaw is no longer eligible for the 69th District seat because he has changed his residence to Austin.

Shaw, D-Knott, announced on Aug. 11 that he was vacating the house seat he has held for 8 years to go to work for Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Shaw is out of the state and could not be reached for comment on Avery's selection. Lisa David, his assistant in Austin, said Monday.

"I think the county chairmen selected an excellent candidate who best understands the needs of the voters in the district better than her Republican opponent," said Bob Martin, public information officer for Texas Democratic chair-

Grand jury in session

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County grand jurors convened early today.

The grand jury is expected to hear a number of cases, and District Attorney Rick Hamby has said at least one homicide is among them.

He said last week that his office is preparing the case against Dennis C. Dunn in the April 12 slaying of Dunn's wife, Caryle.

Initial charges of involuntary manslaughter were filed against Dunn who is free on $90,000 bond. Hamby said last week Dunn is believed to be living in the Amarillo area.

"His parents are on his bond," Hamby said. "He has the choice of whether to appear before the grand jury or not. We can't force (suspects) to testify, and most of 'em don't want to."

Dunn, 39, was a Big Spring police officer at the time his 25-year-old wife was shot. She was taken by private vehicle to Scenic Mountain Medical Center where she was pronounced dead.

Howard County Justice of the Peace Willie Grant ruled cause of death a gunshot wound to the chest. Dunn was suspended and later terminated from the police force.

Rules change for hunting and fishing

AUSTIN (AP) — Hunters and fishermen will have several important regulation changes to consider beginning Sept. 1, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Among changes for the upcoming fall seasons, deer hunters will be affected by an earlier season opening date for whitetails — Nov. 5 — and a closing day of Jan. 1.

In South Texas, the season opens one week later but extends an extra week, running from Nov. 12 to Jan. 8.

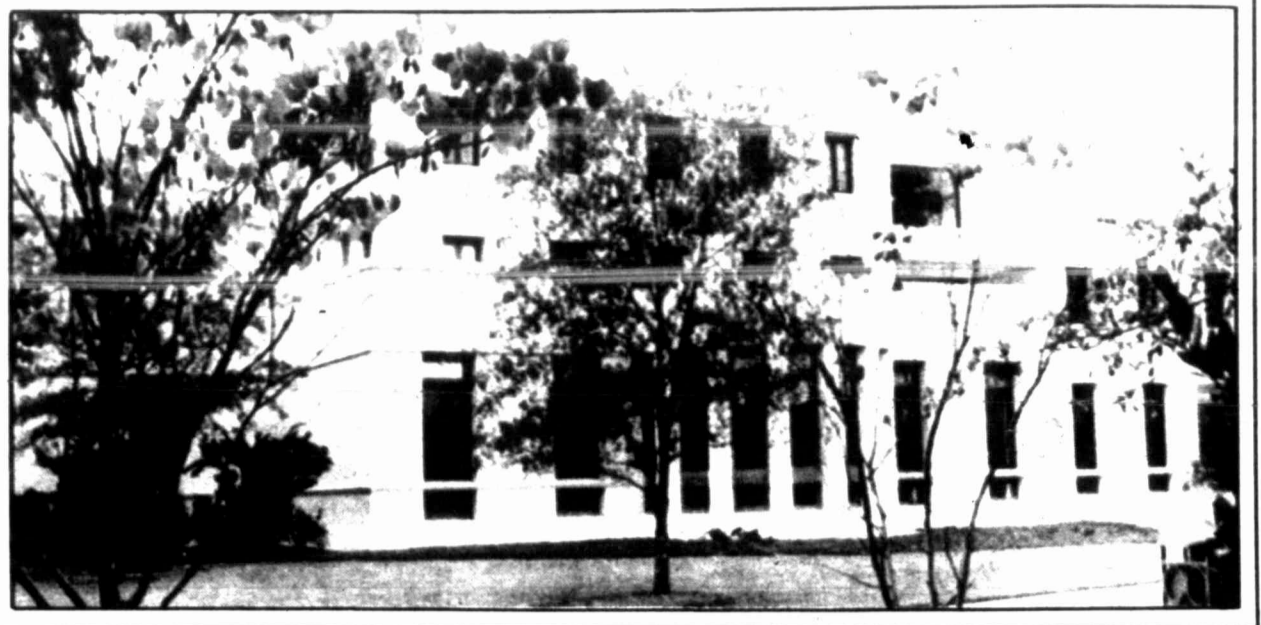

For the first time in decades, there will be no special early teal duck season in Texas this year. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service suspended the season, citing drought conditions that resulted in low populations of blue-winged teal.

A number of changes will affect anglers. For freshwater and saltwater anglers, there is a new method for measuring length.

New regulations governing saltwater fish include a daily limit of three red drum.

Unattended child dies in closed car

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury will investigate the heat stroke death of an 8-year-old Mesquite girl, who died after she was left in a closed car in 102-degree heat, authorities say.

Christina Rudine, who had been left unattended Sunday afternoon when the temperature climbed to 102 degrees, Monday became the seventh Dallas-Fort Worth area resident to die because of the heat this summer.

Police Sgt. Jackie Davidson said state law prohibits leaving children unattended, but police are continuing to investigate the death and have filed no charges. A Dallas County grand jury will review the case to determine if criminal charges should be pursued, Davidson said.

Authorities said that although the temperature was 102, the heat index, a calculation of heat and humidity, had reached 110 degrees at the time the child was left in the car.

"The main thing is knowing how fast a car can reach 125 or 130 degrees, in a matter of minutes," Davidson said.

Her death was ruled an accident by the Dallas County medical examiner's office. Authorities noted that the child's cerebral palsy, severe mental retardation and congenital heart disease were contributing factors.

Police said William Rudine, 34, discovered his daughter unconscious in the car about 3 p.m. Sunday. The man told police he had left his daughter unattended while he was preoccupied minding three other children.

Although Rudine began applying wet towels in an attempt to revive his daughter, neither his efforts nor those of rescue personnel were enough to revive the girl, who died early Monday at Humana Hospital-Medical City, police said.

Rudine told officers he had taken his other children and a neighbor's child to a backyard swimming pool and intended to return immediately to get Christina, who was unable to talk or walk because of her medical condition.

The father told police he became preoccupied with a telephone call and helping a child find a bathing suit and didn't return to the car for about an hour later.

Reports of miracles under investigation

LUBBOCK (AP) — One week after reports of miracles came from worshippers at St. John Neumann Catholic Church, people again flocked to a rosary service, despite a bishop's admonition to church officials against promoting reported "messages" from the Virgin Mary.

Almost 1,000 people attended Monday night's Mass and rosary at the charismatic church, where an Aug. 15 outdoor service drew an estimated 12,000 people, hundreds of whom claimed to see Jesus and Mary in the sky during the service.

"This lowly church has been chosen to bring many to see the glories of God, many to know my son," parishioner Mary Constancio reported Mary as saying. The messages reported by Mrs. Constancio and two other parishioners, which they say come to them during Monday night rosary services, have drawn nationwide attention.

But Lubbock Bishop Michael Sheehan wants some of the spotlight on St. John Neumann to fade as he begins investigating claims of miracles made by worshippers at last week's Mass. He has asked that St. John Neumann pastor Monsignor Joseph James not promote or continue to publish the messages until the investigation is complete.

During Monday night's service, James said he would no longer preach on the reported messages at Sunday Mass, but would continue to speak about them on Monday nights. He urged worshippers to tape record the three parishioners' readings since their words no longer would be printed.

A special panel of bishops will be appointed to study the authenticity of reports of miracles at the church, said Lubbock Bishop Michael Sheehan.

Sheehan, who had remained silent about the reported events since the service, issued the statement late Friday afternoon. His secretary said he declined to speak to reporters.

Sheehan said he also has talked with an official from the office of Pope John Paul II's envoy to the United States.

"An investigation of this kind is normal and the panel will be charged with studying the authenticity of the events," Sheehan said.

FBI agency leader admits bias exists

EL PASO (AP) — Discrimination does exist in the FBI but is rare, one of the agency's leaders says.

Testifying Monday in a class-action discrimination suit brought by Hispanic agents against the FBI, executive assistant director John Glover at first said bias does not exist in the bureau.

After plaintiff's co-counsel Hugo Rodriguez pointed out that Glover had said in a deposition that discrimination sometimes crops up in the agency, Glover said: "On a sporadic or intermittent basis, it may."

Glover's four hours on the stand, three of which were under relentless cross-examination, capped the first day of testimony for the FBI defense, which is expected to last a week. The first half of the day in U.S. District Court was spent going over statistics designed to show that Hispanics are promoted as rapidly and disciplined as fairly as other agents.

The 311 Hispanic agents who joined in the class-action suit contend the FBI discriminates against Hispanics in hiring, promoting, assigning and disciplining. They seek damages and changes in FBI policies.

About 400 of the bureau's 9,400 agents — or 4.3 percent — are Hispanic. Eight percent of the general population is Hispanic.

About 40 FBI agents have testified in the trial that Hispanics are transferred more often to undesirable offices, are given more dangerous or unglamorous assignments and receive less recognition for their successes.

The suit was filed in January 1987 by Bernardo "Matt" Perez, who contends he was forced by superiors in Washington, Los Angeles and elsewhere to accept demotions he didn't deserve. Perez, now the No. 2 agent in El Paso, used to be in charge of the San Juan, Puerto Rico, office and was second-in-command in Los Angeles before his transfer to El Paso.

The non-jury trial is scheduled to end Friday, and U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton is expected to render a decision within six months. Federal employees are not entitled to jury trials when suing the government in discrimination cases.

Hispanic activists have said a multitude of discrimination cases could result if the plaintiffs win. Rodriguez has compared the case to those fought by blacks in the '60s and women in the '70s.

Refugee aid office vandalized

DALLAS (AP) — Vandals wrecked the offices of a group that aids Central American refugees in what the organization's officials called an effort at political intimidation.

Furniture and a computer at the offices of Proyecto Adelante were damaged by vandals who also dumped out stores of flour, rice and beans, police said Monday.

There are "a lot of projects like this around the country and a number of them have experienced various kinds of harassment," said Fran McElvaney, director of education at Proyecto Adelante. Intruders smashed a $2,400 computer and smeared ink on furniture, authorities said. The vandalism probably occurred between 11 p.m. Saturday and 8:05 a.m. Monday.

Ms. McElvaney said she "presumed" the vandalism was politically motivated because it appeared to send a message more than destroy equipment. And, she said, $113 was left in an open drawer.

Vandals poured water on files and threw a telephone through a window after entering through the office's front door.

Discovery benefits university

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston officials were poised today to announce an agreement with E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for commercial development of the superconductivity discoveries of physicist Paul Chu.

UH spokesman Eric Miller said the pact will mean "several million dollars" for the university in licensing fees for a superconducting material Chu's team discovered in 1986. He said future royalties would bring still more income to the school.

Chu said he is pleased with the deal, which reportedly could lead to the commercial production of superconductivity within three to five years.

"I think it's really great," said Chu, who, along with his research team, is considered a leader in the intense competition to develop a superconductor that works at or near room temperature.

Superconductors are materials that conduct electricity without resistance and repel magnetic fields. Their use had been limited by the need to cool them with liquid helium to minus 450 degrees Fahrenheit, but Chu and his team found a new superconductor that works at higher temperatures.

A superconducting material that works at room temperature holds the promise of major advances in the production and use of electricity, more powerful magnets and motors, more sensitive medical equipment and more powerful beams for smashing atoms.

Oil library outgrowing space

FORT WORTH (AP) — The three-year-old Oil Information Library of Fort Worth has already outgrown its quarters, and library officials are embarking on a major fund-raising effort to provide it with a new home.

The repository for oil and gas data stores information about current drilling projects and historical drilling trends. Library users come from as far away as Oklahoma City and Houston. Formed in the fall of 1985, the library already has spread to two other floors of its downtown building and to storage space at an oilfield services company in south Fort Worth.

Keith Davis, a library director, said the goal of the fund-raising effort is to raise nearly $1 million to buy and remodel a group of three buildings in west Fort Worth.

Study explores use of 'grey water'

SAN MARCOS (AP) — A study announced Tuesday at Southwest Texas State University will explore the possibility of reusing "gray water," which is the byproduct of baths, showers, laundry, lavatories, kitchen sinks and air conditioners.

"Gray water is the water that's not clean enough to drink or bathe in but not dirty enough to require heavy-duty treatment before it can be used for something," said Glenn Longley, director of Southwest

Texas' Edwards Aquifer Research and Data Center.

The study will calculate the costs of replumbing existing buildings and designing new ones to reuse such water, according to school officials.

Quayle denies use of influence in speech to veterans

By WILLIAM C. HIDLAY
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Sen. Dan Quayle, wading into the thick of the furor over his military record, told a veterans group he never used his family's influence to get into the Indiana National Guard during the Vietnam War.

The Republican vice presidential nominee's hastily arranged speech Monday night to the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, hours after an appearance by presidential nominee George Bush, won praise from many veterans.

"Quayle showed a lot of backbone by coming here tonight," said Tom Gerlach, 38, a Vietnam combat veteran from Dayton, Ohio. "He made a strong impression. I think he probably picked up a lot of support."

"I think in a way (Quayle's military service) is kind of blown out of proportion," said Billy Stansberry of Joplin, Mo., who also served in Vietnam. "If the man's qualified, that's all that matters to me."

Quayle told about 2,500 veterans attending an awards dinner that he was proud of his six years of National Guard service and said he didn't need his wealthy family's

"My national guard unit was never called up to active duty, but let me say that after these last 72 hours no one can say I've never faced combat." — Sen. Dan Quayle speaking to a veterans' group.

help to get in when he enlisted. "Influence was not even necessary if I had chosen to use it, which I never would have," he said. "The reason is because my Indiana National Guard unit had openings before I applied, they had openings when I applied, and they had openings after I applied. So there was absolutely no influence used."

The crowd cheered when the Indiana senator opened his brief remarks by joking, "My national guard unit was never called up to active duty, but let me say that after these last 72 hours no one can say I've never faced combat."

Quayle, a pro-military conservative in Capitol Hill, told the veterans he hoped his remarks would end the controversy over whether he pulled strings to enter the National Guard in 1969 as his college draft deferment was about to end.

"The question before all of us is: Not what Dan Quayle did 20 years in the past, but what either President Bush or President Dukakis will do in the future to secure world peace," Quayle said.

The veterans at the convention applauded and cheered when Bush emotionally defended his running mate's record. "He did not go to Canada, he did not burn his draft card and he damned sure didn't burn the American flag," Bush said.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported today that records show the Indiana National Guard had imposed a virtual freeze on recruitment 49 days before Quayle's enlistment on May 19, 1969.

The documents appeared to contradict assertions from some former Indiana Guard officers that the Guard had more than 200 vacancies and therefore was open to Quayle without special treatment or favoritism.

Meanwhile, The Des Moines Register, an influential newspaper in the farm belt, called today for Bush to replace Quayle.

Catch 22

Q. What is Catch 22? The phrase appeared in two stories in the Herald on Monday.

A. It is the title of a book by Joseph Heller and is a common reference to an illogical, unreasonable or senseless situation, a no-win situation. An example: In show business, you can have no work unless you have an agent, but you can get no agent unless you have work.

special tie party with the captain." Shroyer even got to man the helm for a brief moment. "I felt a great responsibility," she reports.

The USS Gompers has 39 officers and 1,300 enlisted personnel. "About 400 of these are women," said Shirley, who knows first hand about the opportunities the Navy offers women.

Shroyer's daughter, Lt. Shroyer, graduated from Big Spring High School in 1978, and from the Naval Academy in Annapolis in 1985. She has been assigned to the USS Gompers since her graduation, but will receive a new assignment in November, Shroyer said.

The cruise concluded with an awards ceremony; the commanding officer, Capt. P. S. Labyak, distributed certificates to those who were Jr. ESWS qualified. And Shroyer got a special certificate for "The Tiger most likely to sign up for additional cruises," having taken to sea life so well.

Area unemployment rises

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Unemployment rose in Big Spring and Howard County during July, according to figures released by the Texas Employment Commission today.

Noting that unemployment also rose in Terrell County, Big Spring TEC office manager Joe Wallis released a statement saying, "This increase is an overstated and inflated rate that is not indicative of any trend."

"Terrell's rate should be back to normal next month.

"All of the other counties and metropolitan standard areas followed the state's downward movement. However, it should be noted that one month's change is not necessarily an indication of a downward trend.

"The summer months are when unemployment is relatively volatile," the statement concluded.

Figures from the TEC indicate that Howard County's present civilian labor force of 15,500 people has a 91.9 percent employed rate, with 14,124 persons working. There are 1,376 unemployed, or 8.9 percent of the total.

One year ago, the workforce numbered 15,347 and contained 1,497 unemployed workers, or 9.7 percent.

The figures released today indicate an unemployment rate of 7.3 percent, or 1,114 unemployed workers of the 15,244 total, during June.

Howard County figures show a 262-worker rise in unemployment since June. However, one year ago, there were 119 more unemployed persons in the county than were reported today.

Glasscock County figures — with a total workforce down to 994 from the previous month's 1,039 — show a 1.5 percent unemployment rate, or 15 persons out of work.

One year ago, the 907-worker force registered 28 unemployed workers, a 3.1 percent rate. Last month, Glasscock county had 23 persons unemployed, or 2.2 percent.

Two charged with tampering

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Two men have been charged with tampering with physical evidence in connection with the death of a Big Spring man.

According to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby's office, Manuel Sosa Jr. and Santiago Trevino (no ages or addresses available) face possible indictment by the Howard County grand jury this week for tampering with evidence in the death of Fred Morales Jr.

Howard County Justice of the Peace William Shankles has declined to rule in the death pending a grand jury investigation.

Morales, 39, was found in the 300 block of Trades St. March 29, suffering from a shotgun wound to the chest, of which he later died.

in Richmond, Va., in a lawsuit filed by Jane Smith, widow of Challenger pilot Michael J. Smith, against Morton Thiokol Inc., manufacturer of the faulty booster rocket. The case was the last of the Morton Thiokol lawsuits to be settled.

Also Monday, Thiokol spokesman Rocky Raab said an analysis indicates that safety features in the redesigned booster performed as designed during a crucial test-firing last week despite deliberately incorporated flaws. The test was the fifth and final full-scale firing needed to qualify the solid-fuel booster for flight.

Detailed inspection and analysis of the tested rocket will continue through the rest of the month, Raab said.

As the engineers continued their study, crew members expressed eagerness to return to space.

"It's been a long time, and I think at times each of us has been a little impatient when things have gone slowly," said Nelson.

man Bob Slagle, of the decision to choose Avery.

Martin added that Avery's understanding of business and her rapport with the business community will be an advantage in understanding and improving state government.

"She would be instrumental in getting the essential state services distributed in a fair and equitable manner with the least overall burden to the taxpayer," he said. He confirmed the nomination will be filed today.

Republican budget proposals put the burden of funding services on the property owner, Martin said.

He said the key issues in the election are education, economic development, and jobs.

Howard County Democratic Chairman M.H. "Slick" Boatler said Avery made a positive impression on the 10 county chairmen who attended Saturday's meeting.

"All of them liked her. She went over big," he said.

Avery will have "100 percent" support from Democrats throughout the district and Avery's gender will not be an issue, Boatler said.

As evidence to back his contention, Boatler said Howard County has two elected justices of the peace and a county clerk who are women.

Duncan remains optimistic about Fraser's chances in the Nov. 8 election.

"Troy is doing fantastic. He is going to win it because he is clearly in tune with the views of the district," Duncan said Monday.

Fraser is a "leg up" on Avery because he has been campaigning in the district since winning the Republican nomination in March, Duncan said.

"Troy is enthusiastic and hard working and I sure respect him," he noted.

Approximately 33 percent of the voters in the 69th district reside in Howard County where Fraser is well known, Duncan noted.

Avery is in Midland and unavailable for comment, according to a representative of her office, Avery and Associates.

physical, occupational and speech therapy, and hearing evaluations — has experienced a decline in funding the past four years, Bristo said.

"The last two years have been exceedingly tight," he said.

The center's operating budget this year is about $309,000, he said. Last year, the center's operating budget was $319,320.

Approximately 20 percent of the center's operating costs are provided by donations, he said.

The remainder of the center's funding comes from treatment fees, the center's endowment, the United Way and special fund raising efforts.

Bristo said the center has "received very good support from the community, but the funds simply are not available in the community to allow us to be supported to the level necessary for periods of extended hard times." Bristo — who came to the center after serving as administrative assistant at the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene — said he has no future employment plans.

He said his resignation leaves him "feeling exceedingly disappointed because I have grown to love and respect Big Spring and its people.

"The relationship between the board and me is excellent, and I have enjoyed my job tremendously, but I'm taking this action because I believe its best for the center."

Bristo added that he had "the sincere hope that the new director will be able to build on the foundation laid by the past director, and move the center to accomplish the potential it has, and continue to serve the people of Big Spring and the surrounding area."

Grand jury indicts Flowers

COLORADO CITY — A 25-year-old man has been indicted by a Mitchell County grand jury on two counts of murder in connection with the shooting death of an Arkansas truck driver in July, officials said.

Terry Edward Flowers, Deweyville, was indicted on murder and capital murder charges Friday afternoon, Mitchell County District Clerk Bill Erwin said.

Erwin said the capital murder indictment was filed because Flowers is alleged to have been in the act of committing felony robbery when Allan J. Hall, 45, Jonesboro, Ark., was killed.

Thirty-second District Judge Weldon Kirk set bonds totaling $100,000 for Flowers, who was transported to the Mitchell County jail from Sweetwater Monday, Mitchell County Sheriff Wendell Bryant said today.

Hall's body was discovered on July 18 by an oilfield worker about one-fourth of a mile north of Interstate 20 near the 200-mile marker, 16 miles west of Colorado City, authorities said. He had been shot several times in the head and stomach, Mitchell County Justice of the Peace Ruby Claxton said.

Flowers, a native of California, was arrested on July 20 by New Mexico state troopers following a brief chase when he failed to stop at a weigh station, Texas Ranger John Billings said.

Flowers was driving Hall's tractor-trailer when he was arrested and allegedly implicated himself in the murder, Billings said.

He was transported to the Dona Ana County jail in Las Cruces, N.M., but was later transferred to the Nolan County jail because law enforcement officials initially believed Hall was murdered in Sweetwater, authorities said.

Flowers was convicted in 1986 of larceny of an auto and second-degree burglary in Beckham (Okla.) County and sentenced to 3 years in prison, according to Oklahoma Department of Corrections officials.

He had been under the supervision of the Tulsa (Okla.) County Probation and Parole office at the time of his arrest, but was being sought on a warrant charging him with probation violations, Tulsa officials said.

Commissioners plan new access road

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard County Commissioners Paul Allen and William B. Crooker Jr. confirmed Monday that the county is ready to build a road giving access for a proposed new fire station in the Tubbs Addition area.

The road will connect Angela Road with Richie Road, Crooker said.

Allen said construction on the proposed road can begin as soon as approximately 2,600 feet of fence along one side of the road has been constructed.

The rights-of-way for the roadway were donated by landowners, Crooker said.

The county's budget, approved Monday in a regular session, includes a proposed total of $25,000 for land and building at the station.

The commissioners also said no further word has been received from representatives of Mobil Oil Co. and Chevron Oil Co. concerning the county's share of costs in relocating utility lines as part of the widening of U.S. Highway 87 South.

District design engineer Linda Kay Smith had told commissioners after their last regular meeting that variations in the age and wording of the pipeline construction permits made the owning companies' share of the cost different for each pipeline.

The cost of that project is expected to be used as a guideline in estimating the cost of rights-of-way and utility adjustments along a proposed hazardous cargo route around the city, commissioners have said.

Sheriff's log

Howard County Sheriff's Department officers reported investigating the following incidents as of 8 a.m. today:

• Jimmie Gaston Langston, 26, Panola, was released on $500 bond. He had been arrested on charges of driving while under the influence of drugs, first offense.

• Michael Dean Holbrook, 30, Odessa, was arrested on a Howard County judgment for driving while intoxicated. He has been sentenced to six months in county jail.

• Noel Wayne Truex, 44, Midland, was arrested by Midland County sheriff's officers on a Howard County warrant for revocation of probation on DWI. He was released in Midland on $1,000 bond.

• Patrick Neil Becker, 34, P.O. Box 2467, was released on $1,000 bond after being arrested on charges of revocation of probation for DWI second offense.

• Joe L. Stanhope, 24, 1208 Mesquite St., was sentenced to 90 days in county jail on each charge after pleading guilty in county court to driving while license suspended and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

• Royce Correll Ausbie, 29, 417 Dallas St., was released on $100 total bonds after being arrested by Texas Department of Public Safety officers on outstanding DWI warrants.

• Angela Dawn Collins, 24, 2916 Old U.S. Highway 80, was released on $5,000 bond. She had been arrested by city police on charges of possession of a controlled substance.

• Sally Ann Ficca, 23, P.O. Box 1493, was released on $2,500 bond. She had been arrested by city police and sheriff's officers on charges of conspiracy to manufacture a controlled substance.

• David Wayne Holsenbeck, 21, 1425 E. Sixth St., was released on $400 bond after being arrested on Martin County DPS warrants.

• Donald Farmer reported the theft of license plates from a 1965 Chevrolet pickup at his residence on Hilltop Road.

Police beat

Big Spring police reported investigating the following incidents:

Three people suffered minor injuries Monday night in a two-vehicle accident in the 1800 block of East 4th Street.

The accident occurred about 7:20 p.m. when a car driven by Jeffrey Hart, 28, 502 Washington St., pulled into the intersection at 3rd and Tulane Avenue and East 4th Street after stopping at a stop sign, according to police reports.

Hart's car struck a vehicle driven by Michael William Wallace, 30, Coahoma, that was traveling east on 4th Street, reports stated.

A passenger in Wallace's car, Miriam Wallace, was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for treatment of undetermined injuries, according to police reports.

Hart was cited by police for failure to yield right of way at a stop sign, reports stated.

• Mario Hernandez Sr. and Mario Gomez Jr., 1511 Bluebird Ave., ages unavailable, were arrested on charges of assault/family disturbance.

• Donacion Rodriguez, 18, HC 61, Box 128, Anderson Road, was arrested on a charge of unauthorised use of a vehicle. He was released from the sheriff's department on $3,000 bond.

• Billy Joe Boden, no age listed, 3500 West Highway 80, No. 112, was arrested on a revocation warrant.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Brady selection less than typical

It's no secret that the latest shuffle of Reagan administration jobs is politically motivated. Treasury Secretary James Baker, close friend and former campaign manager of the vice president, is leaving to direct George Bush's race for the presidency. Another Bush confidant, Wall Street executive Nicholas Brady, has been nominated to take over at Treasury, a post he is expected to retain if Bush is elected.

The two moves are meant to bolster the Bush campaign — Baker being one of the Republican Party's most skilled political operatives — while sending soothing signals of competence and stability to Wall Street. But there also is something more interesting going on here. Brady, who chaired the team President Reagan originally appointed to investigate the October stock market crash, is a different breed from the president's regular band of free-marketeers.

Rather than the whitewash expected, his committee's report on the crash was thorough and pulled few punches. It recommended extensive new regulation of the country's financial markets — recommendations that the president has studiously ignored, even going so far as to commission a second study to undercut the Brady report, but which Brady, has continued to press upon Congress on his own.

Brady also has advocated a less ideological and more evenhanded approach to bringing down the soaring federal deficit. And he has had less than complimentary things to say about the current administration's tolerance for corporate buy-outs and mergers that increase only the indebtedness, and not the productivity, of the American economy.

If confirmed by the Senate, Brady can be expected to temper such criticisms for the duration of the Reagan term. But his presence can't help but improve the chance of enacting those badly needed stock and futures market reforms, while implying, as well, that Bush himself favors more reasonable and pragmatic economic policies than Reagan's.

One wouldn't want to read more into this than is really there. Brady may be smart and outspoken; Baker, in his tenure first as White House chief of staff and then as treasury secretary, may have earned a reputation, uncharacteristic of this administration, for getting things done through political compromise.

But their candidate, George Bush, remains as yet explicitly committed to pursuing the Reagan economic dogma in all its unbending purity. If Brady and Baker suggest a different possibility, it is only a possibility. Still, it is a welcome development.

In four letters: Man favored by gods

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random thoughts while car-hunting:

Another hero has been crowned and awaits his adoring public. No, I'm not talking about George Bush or Dan Quayle; it's Douglas Hoylman I'm discussing.

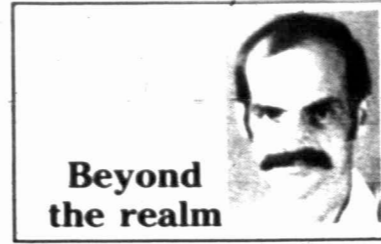

What's that — you never heard of Hoylman? Well, shame on you. The Chevy Chase, Md. resident recently won the 11th Annual American Crossword Puzzle tournament in Stamford, Conn.

Excuse me? You wonder how winning a crossword tournament qualifies one for hero worship?

Well, Doubting Thomases, not only did Hoylman win the contest, he won by perfectly completing the puzzle in 10 minutes and 44 seconds.

And if that doesn't qualify someone as heroic, I quit.

Anyone who has ever pulled their hair in frustration over those accursed puzzles will appreciate the magnitude of Hoylman's accomplishment. Perhaps it's partially because of too many hours spent seeking a five-letter word for lima beans that I'm partially bald. Crossword addicts will vouch for me on that one. I'm better now, but it wasn't too long ago that I was hooked on crosswords and related puzzles — and believe me, it wasn't a pretty sight.

Hours upon hours of time that would have been better spent solving the world's problems were wasted figuring 23 Across and 15 Down.

At first, it wasn't so bad; in fact, it was a pleasant diversion. But like other insidious habits — tobacco, alcohol, etc. — it began to demand more and more of my time and energy.

Crosswords, acrostics, logic problems — you name it, I did it. It got to the point where I had a permanent pencil-lead stain on my fingers — a sure indication of a hard-core puzzle junkie.

My dictionary and thesaurus became dog-eared from constant rifling, as I maniacally searched for answers to the clues. I probably could have made a dent in the national debt with all the money I spent on magazines and pencils.

And for what? The hollow satisfaction of having successfully discovered a six-letter word for black hole? Surely, I thought, there has to be more to life than this.

The sad part was I never became proficient in puzzle-solving. Try as I might, it never became easier to complete a crossword or solve a logic problem.

They only gave me headaches. It took a long time, but I finally weaned myself of the shameful habit. By no means was it easy. For months, I would feel a subconscious tug every time I passed a magazine rack, or else I would catch myself idly perusing a puzzle book.

But gradually — like all bad habits — the urge to fill in the blank left me. Today, I can honestly say I can pass by the Herald's crossword with nary a glance.

Most of the time.

So, to Mr. Hoylman — I salute you, sir. By all appearances, it seems you have mastered the demon crossword instead of the other way around. But if it ever becomes an obsession — hey, you know where to find me.

And now, it's time for my Joe Isuzu imitation.

I have been deluged (not really) by responses to my Dump The Steer Poll. For the unaware, I have been campaigning feverishly for the past 12 years (one week, tops) to have Big Spring High School change its mascot from the Steer to something more manly — like my personal favorite, the Lords of Death.

So far, hundreds (well, maybe a couple) of people have called telling me they agree completely with my proposal (it's up in the air, folks).

As stated before, the best responses will be reprinted in this space and cash prizes (say what?) will be awarded. A panel of esteemed Nobel Prize winners (Reagan and whoever else he can con) will judge the entries.

So, keep those cards and letters coming in, people — and believe me, you won't regret it.

After all, would I lie to you? No answers to that, please.

On closing the George Bush gender gap

By ART BUCHWALD

George Bush's main problem in winning the Presidency is closing the gender gap. All the surveys indicate that women do not trust Bush, and if this is true, it could cost him the election.

What to do? A meeting was held in the New Orleans hotel suite of the Vice President with his advisers in attendance.

"I can't understand it," Bush said. "I've always been wonderful to women. I let them precede me through a revolving door, I never order from the menu before they do, and I always lit their cigarettes for them before the Surgeon General declared it illegal."

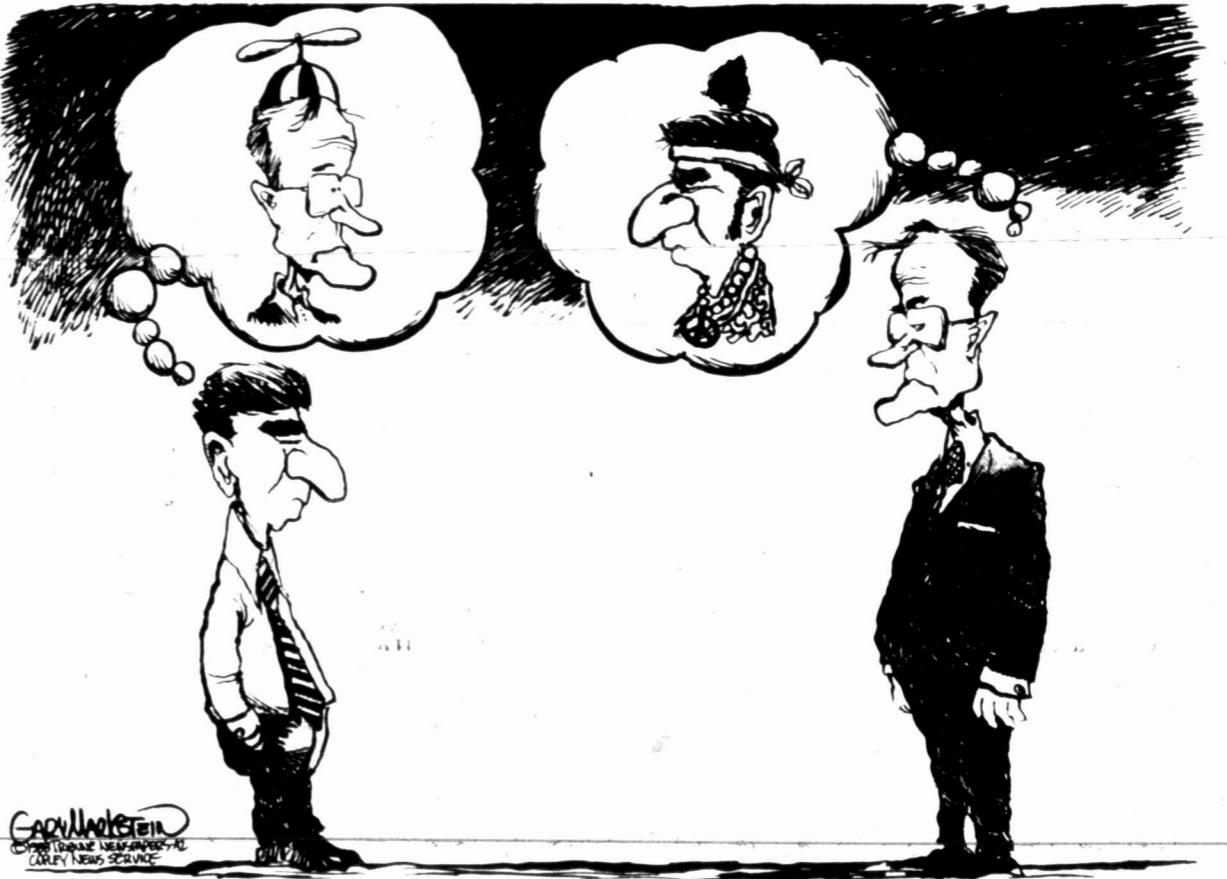

One of the VP's aides said, "That's all good gender stuff, sir, but we believe that the reason women are mad at you is because of some of the things you said during your debate with Geraldine Ferraro. Do you remember that after it was over you told the press how you kicked a little ass?"

"That was just a joke," Bush said. "I wasn't talking about Mrs. Ferraro. I was referring to the Sandinistas in Nicaragua."

"The American women didn't interpret it that way," another aide said. "That's why we have our work cut out for us."

"Well, what do you want me to do?" Bush demanded.

Bush's political pollster said, "Our surveys show that women think of you as someone they can push around. They don't believe you could arm wrestle the Ayatollah Khomeini and win."

"I resent that. Aren't they familiar with my war record?"

"They know about it but it's all canceled out when you use words like doodoo in your speeches. We have to remake your image."

"Could you elaborate on that?" the Vice President asked.

"Do you have any objection to wearing a Green Beret when you get off the plane?"

"No, I don't."

"One of the things our polls tell us is that women dislike you trying to look like something you are not. For example, they say that every time they see you driving a wheat thresher in Kansas, they want to upchuck."

"Does that mean I can't pretend I'm fishing for tuna off Key West?"

"You're not fooling anyone, sir. The only way for you to close the gender gap is to be yourself."

"How?"

"It won't be easy. But if someone said to you, 'Who are you?' what would be your reply?"

"I'd say, 'I am the Vice President of the United States, and I didn't know anything about Noriega in Panama.'" they don't believe you, it sounds honest. Now, women don't expect their Presidents to be terrific lovers, but it doesn't hurt if they think you are a great guy in the bedroom."

"You can pass the word that I'm sensual," Bush said.

"They may not accept that, Mr. Vice President. When it comes to the gender gap everything is perception."

"What do you suggest?" Bush asked.

"Sir, would you try on these cowboy boots?"

"Boy, could I kick some..."

Hefty sum spent on USDA workshop

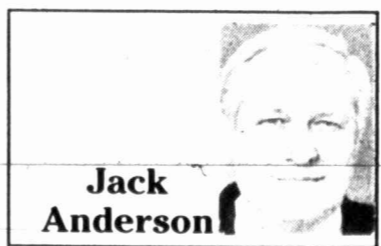

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — As drought began to sear America's farmland last spring and farmers watched their hopes turn to dust, there were no parched throats at an Agriculture Department convention in Kansas City, Mo.

Forget the $198,500 cost of the convent... plus the price of flying in about 250 bigwigs from USDA offices around the country. The USDA also sprang for the booze — an apparent violation of government spending laws.

The USDA's computer office hosted the three-day "workshop" in May so USDA techies could compare bits and bytes. They toured the USDA's new computer center in Kansas City. Computer whizzes from agencies as diverse as the Forest Service and the Farmer's Home Administration had the chance to see what each other was doing with computers. Experts from each agency set up a booth to show off their latest computer advances.

And they drank — at lunch, at dinner and at evening get-togethers — around an open bar. Government officials are not supposed to buy hooch with funds appropriated by Congress, an expert in government spending law at the General Accounting Office told our associate, Stewart Harris. Government agencies can buy liquor with "representational funds" or those that are raised independently by the agency, such as donated funds.

John Okay, associate director of the USDA's Information Resource Management office, told us that free booze is not the usual bill of fare at a USDA convention. In Kansas City, the open bars were arranged by the private contractor who was hired by the USDA to set up the workshop. Of course, the contractor didn't work for free — the USDA paid the bill.

Okay said his office probably would not host the seminar today, given the drought conditions. Staffers are too busy. But, he said, the drought had not hit in January and February when the workshop was first put on the calendar.

An argument can be made for sharing information in a convention atmosphere, but our math shows the USDA spent roughly $800 per invited guest to do so.

The price included three nights lodging at the four-star Westin Crown Plaza Hotel, which boasts five restaurants, a pool, health club and, in the lobby, a five-story waterfall cascading down limestone rock indigenous to the area. The round-trip airline tickets probably set the USDA back another $20,000. There is no official total on the tickets because staffers charged the cost to their individual agency expense accounts. Officials were flown in from as far away as Puerto Rico and Alaska. And, more than 100 came from the Washington, D.C., area, according to a list of attendees.

Several people who attended indicated the gathering was not a waste of time. There was a spirited exchange of information and business cards. For the most part, senior USDA officials kept the drinking to a respectable level. "I didn't see a lot of wild parties," said Bill Pietrucha, a reporter for Government Computer News who attended the workshop.

HUSSEIN'S RAVINGS — Jordan's King Hussein is noted for sending the most colorful, most outrageous, most bizarre messages that the White House has received from any world leader.

Once, Hussein threatened to go on a "ghazou" unless he got his way. A ghazou is a raid on a neighboring tribe. Some of Hussein's latest letters to Reagan have been less amusing and more blistering. If they had been sent by anyone else, they would have been considered out of line, but the White House is accustomed to receiving outlandish orders from Hussein. Given his propensity for exaggeration, Hussein's recent action to bow out of any business on the West Bank may be just another way to get attention.

HOPE FOR HOSTAGES — The next step in the backstage negotiations between the United States and Iran could be a token release of one or two American hostages. Intelligence sources tell us that Iran was considering such a gesture before a U.S. warship shot down an Iranian airliner over the Persian Gulf.

Despite that accident, the negotiations between the two countries have continued, using unofficial messages through back channels.

MINI-EDITORIAL — For all the blustering military strength shown by the Reagan administration, it hasn't made Americans overseas any safer. Many foreign countries simply don't care anymore if they offend the super power.

A tragic example is the death of Rehbi Barakat Kaid, a Palestinian-American from Columbus, Ohio. He had a heart attack in a West Bank city after Israeli soldiers ordered him to climb 22 steps from his family home to the street. Kaid's son told the Washington Post that Kaid protested, saying he had a bad heart. And he told the soldiers he was an American citizen. Their response, according to the son, was, "We don't care if you are Ronald Reagan."

Defendants: Helped U.S. interests

MIAMI (AP) — Some of the six Cuban-Americans indicted on charges they trained and supplied mercenaries to the Contras through a Florida guerrilla camp say their fight in Nicaragua supported U.S. interests.

The Miami-area men were the second group charged by a Fort Lauderdale federal grand jury with violating the Neutrality Act, which bars people on U.S. soil from launching operations against a government at peace with the United States. The latest indictment was unsealed Monday.

One of the six, Rene Corvo, also is accused of shipping a 20mm cannon, a mortar and other weapons from Fort Lauderdale to Contra bases in Costa Rica under the guise of humanitarian aid.

Victim's parents help trap rapist

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A suspect in dozens of attacks attributed to the "handcuff rapist" was arrested after a victim's parents lured him into a trap in an amateur stakeout lasting more than a year, a newspaper reported today.

The parents spent several nights a week searching for their daughter's attacker despite police warnings they were putting their lives in danger and probably wasting their time. The Columbus Dispatch said in a copyright story.

The father, armed with a gun, would wait in a car while his wife acted as a decoy on the same corner where her daughter was raped in June 1987, the newspaper said.

Workers refuse to return to work

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About 1,700 service workers at six hospitals have refused to return to work, claiming that hospital officials engaged in bad-faith bargaining and union busting.

However, a spokesman for the hospitals said the two sides had an "honest disagreement."

Leaders of Local 250 of the Hospital and Health Care Workers Union said Monday the hospitals violated a back-to-work agreement signed last week. They said they will remain off the job until the issue is resolved.

The union complained that personnel directors of the hospitals represented by Affiliated Hospitals of San Francisco offered individual union members the opportunity to return to work before the general recall if they dropped their union membership.

Arson ruled out in social club fire

NEW YORK (AP) — The death toll in a fire that gutted a basement social club was revised downward from seven to six, and officials said the blaze did not appear to be arson as was originally suspected.

"We believe at this point that the fire was accidental, but many important witnesses who were badly injured have yet to be interviewed by fire marshals," Fire Department spokesman John Mulligan said Monday.

Dozens of patrons who were injured in Sunday's fire at the Bronx club known as The Hole remain hospitalized, many severely burned. Eighteen firefighters also were hurt, none seriously.

Jogger chases escaped kangaroo

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — A jogger chased an escaped kangaroo back into the arms of waiting zookeepers after mistaking the animal for a dog when he heard it moving in a ditch.

Ken Torkelson was running Sunday in a park near the Dakota Zoo when he heard the noise.

"I had been chased by a dog the day before, so I just assumed it was another dog, so I looked down for something to throw at it," Torkelson said.

To his amazement, he said, he discovered that the animal was a kangaroo.

Torkelson said he assumed the kangaroo had escaped from the zoo. Worried it would get into traffic, he blocked its path and gradually chased it back toward the zoo.

Lung specialist: Mandela healthy

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss lung specialist who examined Nelson Mandela said today the imprisoned leader of the African National Congress was in excellent health despite tuberculosis.

"I can say that the state of health (of Mandela) is simply excellent," Professor Heinrich Herzog told Swiss Radio International.

Herzog, until recently president of the European Society of Pleurology, said Mandela told him he "was in perfect health, and felt as well as before the whole thing started."

He said the 70-year-old black leader "looks rather a bit younger" than his age, adding: "He no longer looks ill."

Mandela's lawyer, Ismail Ayob, announced last week that his client was suffering from TB. He said Mandela was short of breath, had a persistent cough and that his speech was impaired.

Herzog saw Mandela at Tygerberg hospital in Cape Town. He did not specify when he examined Mandela, but indicated it was after an Aug. 13 biopsy that showed no sign of malignancy in Mandela's left lung.

Hospital officials had said that Herzog was examining Mandela, but did not specify who invited him to do so.

On Aug. 12, Mandela was transferred to Tygerberg hospital from Pollsmoor Prison, where he is serving a life term for sabotage and conspiracy to overthrow the government. He was imprisoned in 1962.

Herzog said he had "no political talks" with Mandela. But he said comments in the South African media and "indirect remarks, which obviously originate at a higher level, leave the impression that the (Pretoria) government may make use of the situation to set him free."

In Cape Town, the medical superintendent at Tygerberg, Dr. J.G.L. Strauss, said today that Mandela was recovering "faster than he expected." The doctor said Mandela was sitting up in bed, reading newspapers.

Capsized ferry claims nine lives

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A ferry capsized and sank in the rain-swollen Bhangunia River in southern Bangladesh, leaving nine people dead and 58 missing, officials said today.

They said 117 people were on board the ferry ML Shikha when it sank Monday near the town of Barisal, about 120 miles south of Dhaka. Officials said the vessel was built to carry up to 35 people. Nine people drowned and 50 swam to shore, according to the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Annual monsoon rains, which cause many rivers to overflow, began in early June and are expected to last through September.

At least 25 injured in explosion

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — An explosion shattered a fast-food restaurant today in the coastal city of East London, injuring at least 25 people, police said.

Major Trevor Hayes, a police spokesman, said no one was killed. He said the cause of the blast was not known.

The explosion occurred about 1:15 p.m. at a Wimpy hamburger restaurant in East London's central business area.

Witnesses said they heard screams from the restaurant and saw injured people being taken away by rescue workers. Hayes said he did not know how many of the victims were seriously hurt.

Thousands protest one-party rule

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Tens of thousands of people marched through Rangoon today to denounce one-party rule in the largest protest in Burma's capital since rioting toppled President Sein Lwin, a diplomat said.

The Western diplomat said he saw more than 50,000 people march peacefully through downtown streets chanting anti-government slogans. It was the second major demonstration in the capital in as many days.

"Down with Socialism!" and "Welcome Democracy!" shouted about 2,000 demonstrators outside the U.S. Embassy, said the diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Rebels still want to oust Khomeini

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Despite the cease-fire in the Persian Gulf war, the main Iranian opposition group says it has not abandoned its bloody campaign to topple Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic government.

"Under no circumstances will we halt our struggle against his government," said Ali-Reza Jafarzadeh, spokesman for the Iraq-based National Liberation

Army of Iran. "We will fight until its downfall."

But the cease-fire that began Saturday will test the ability of the rebels, led by Massoud Rajavi, to maintain a challenge to the fundamentalist Islamic government in Tehran that began with hit-and-run guerrilla raids and escalated to full-scale military offensives.

U.S. political parties 'imperialist'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega says the U.S. Democratic and Republican parties are "imperialist" because each had an assistance plan for Nicaraguan rebels fighting to overthrow his government.

Ortega said he doubted the inauguration of a new American administration next year would improve U.S.-Nicaraguan relations but held out hope a Democratic administration under Michael Dukakis would seek negotiations.

"What we have said is that a future U.S. government — Democrat or Republican, both have shown themselves to be imperialist — be responsible and wise enough to have learned the lesson (President) Reagan would leave them," he said.

Both parties "have their own plan for aid to the Contras" and "aren't satisfied that there exists a sovereign, free and independent government in Nicaragua," Ortega said.

The United States has supported the rebels, known as Contras, since 1981.

Rescue workers cope with rains, aftershocks

BIRATNAGAR, Nepal (AP) — Rescue workers coped with aftershocks and heavy rain today in an effort to reach remote regions of the Himalayas to help victims of an earthquake whose official death toll neared 700.

Rumors predicting another large quake sent thousands of panic-stricken people fleeing from their homes in India and Nepal.

Sunday's pre-dawn quake registered 6.5 on the Richter scale and claimed at least 497 lives in Nepal and 200 in India, government officials said.

Officials in both countries said they expected the death toll to climb when reports arrived from regions difficult to reach even in good weather.

The quake injured at least 2,000 people in India and 1,000 in Nepal, officials said.

In Biratnagar, a city near the Indian border 150 miles east of the Nepalese capital Katmandu, residents poured into the streets before dawn today as men ran from houses to house, shouting that a message came from Katmandu that a new quake was expected before dawn.

Police in the city of 300,000 people said they received no such message.

"I have tried to tell them they are making a mistake, but no one will listen to me," said Dabal Singh, an inspector.

Anonymous telephone calls with similar rumors roused hundreds of people in Katmandu, also before dawn. Sunday's quake was felt in the capital, but no deaths or serious damage were reported in the city.

DARBHANGA, India — An unidentified woman with a fractured arm recovers in a hospital in Darbhanga district Monday, which was hit by an earthquake. The tremor left several hundred dead and thousands injured in eastern India and Nepal.

In Patna, India, thousands of people huddled in the rain in open courtyards Monday as rumors swept the city that another quake was imminent. Patna is the capital of Bihar state, the worst hit area in India.

A quake registering 5.1 on the Richter scale shook eastern Nepal late Monday afternoon, but there were no immediate reports of new casualties or damage.

In general, however, the intensity of aftershocks has lessened. "Compared to the ones on Sunday and Monday, they have been declining," Madhav Prasad Pandey, senior seismologist at Nepal's Department of Geology, said in Katmandu. He said most aftershocks had declined to a reading of 1 on the Richter scale.

Rain continued in quake-affected areas, hampering access on muddy roads already cracked by the quake. Landslides blocked many roads to devastated areas. Railroad tracks sank into the mud, and the quake also cracked bridges over rivers swollen by the monsoon.

In India, the area with the greatest damage and casualties was just south of the border in Bihar, India's poorest state.

News reports said 400 people died in Bihar state, double the Indian government's count. Bihar officials said the reports were exaggerated, while opposition politicians in the state accused the government of suppressing information and claimed the death toll was close to 1,500.

Tremors flattened more than 25,000 houses in India, officials said, and the Bhoothai Balan River flooded nearly 50 villages in the Madhubani district.

Indian army soldiers helped with relief efforts, and the navy and air force were put on alert. Nepalese soldiers, police and volunteers joined forces in the kingdom's remote mountains and valleys.

Niranjan Thapa of the Home Ministry reported extensive damage in 21 of Nepal's 75 districts and at least four affected districts reported 50 or more deaths.

Officials distributed 88-pound bags of rice to families in this kingdom of 17 million people.

Government officials said many offers of assistance had come from abroad, but no decision had been made about whether to accept them.

A U.S. Embassy official said the embassy had offered $25,000 in immediate aid but had not received a response.

Dinner train rolls through South Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — All aboard!!!

After five years of work at a cost of $2.5 million, the Texas Southern dinner train is rolling through South Texas and company president George Pierce couldn't be happier.

The telephone lines have been ringing non-stop this month and reservations and inquiries already number more than 1,000 for people who want to take a ride in refurbished 40- and 50-year-old railroad cars.

"We think this is going to work real well here," said Pierce. "The response has just been phenomenal. There is no other rail track like it and it's a pretty ride through South Texas."

Texas Southern, a company that refurbishes passenger rail cars for other companies, has been using some of its own cars for private use.

About five years ago, Pierce was traveling through Iowa and noticed a successful dinner train operation in Waterloo. Since then, he has sought investors and scoured the countryside for old trains.

"I knew if it worked in Waterloo, where the population base is very low, that it would work in San Antonio because of the number of people, tourists and conventions we have here," Pierce said.

San Antonio is host to more than 900 conventions each year and is visited by more than 10 million annually, pumping in more than $1 billion into the local economy, tourist officials say.

Local attractions include the Alamo, the River Walk, the Spanish missions and Sea World and now, Pierce says, his Texas Southern dinner train.

For $47, each person can take the three-hour train ride and partake in a feast of hors d'oeuvres and a four-course meal. For $10 more, passengers can have dinner in one of two cars that have upper-levels and bird's-eye views of South Texas through glass was difficult, but finding cars, getting them to San Antonio and refurbishing them was equally so. The cars once made up the Zephyrs and Limiteds that gently rolled across the country on the Santa Fe, Burlington, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio and Western Pacific railroads. Many were in scrapyards, but others were parts of restaurants and bank buildings. One car has an original Navaho painting on one end while another train features silver-colored artwork.

Pierce said his company is the only one of its kind in Texas, although a rail service does exist in East Texas and the Tex-Mex Railroad offers a ride every weekend between Laredo and Corpus Christi.

Pierce, a state legislator from San Antonio, said raising funds for the refurbishing work has been supervised by Harold Schroeder, the company's vice president and chief mechanical officer. Pierce is the company's president. The company purchased 40-year-old trains and redecorated them, spending $2.5 million in the process.

"It's a good feeling of success taking cars from different stages and working on them and being there when they're running," Schroeder said.

Pierce, who rode frequently on similar trains during his childhood, said people will be able to go back in time.

"It is nostalgia, seeing what was in the past," Pierce. "But this ride is also very relaxing. You are not confined. You can move around and we think this will help."

"It's one special feature that the city can use to offer to the millions of tourists that come here each year," Pierce said.

Mail tales prove last can be first

DEAR ABBY: My family calls me "Pack Rat" because I save everything, to which I reply, "You never know when it might come in handy."

Well, after reading your column in the Wenatchee World, in which you asked if anyone can top the story about the valentine that took 45 years to get from Idaho to Connecticut, I went straight to a newspaper clipping I had saved since 1964 while I was living in Peru. Here it is:

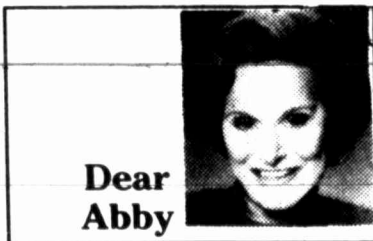

"AREQUIPA, Peru (UPI) — Postal authorities said they had found a 164-year-old letter in a stack of mail marked 'undelivered due to insufficient postage.' The letter was dated July 8, 1800. It was addressed to the president of the Tribunal of Justice in Arequipa — the second-largest city in Peru."

Abby, you be the judge. Have a sunshine day!

PATRICIA L. WINTERMEIER, CASHMERE, WASH.

DEAR PATRICIA: Your pack rat ways paid off. The 164-year-old letter in transit topped them all. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if it's true that it took a valentine 45 years to go from Idaho to Connecticut, but I still have the postcard that Fordham University sent to me in 1951 (just before I graduated), which reached me in California in 1969. By that time I was a married woman with seven kids.

The postcard bears both the 1951 and the 1969 postmarks, but I never did find out where it had been for 18 years!

ANN MAFFEO FURIA, SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I think this will top the 45 years: I took a valentine to get to East Haven, Conn., from Boise Idaho. This item appeared in the Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot-News on Feb. 16, 1988:

In 1907, Joseph Gabner mailed a postcard from Atlantic City, N.J., to his family in Steelton, Pa. It arrived 80 years later in son William Gabner's mailbox.

William Gabner, a retired

Bethlehem Steel Corp. crane operator, received the postcard with a letter from Harrisburg postal inspector C.M. Macho, which said: "Please accept our apologies for the late delivery."

GEORGE MARTER, SUN CITY, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I desperately need an answer to this question. I am due to have my first baby soon. If we have a boy, my husband wants him to be a "Junior." I am all for it, but there is a problem. My husband does not have a middle name, but I would like for our son to have one. Would our son be considered a "Junior" if we gave him a middle name even though his father had none?

LADY IN WAITING
DEAR LADY: No. In order for your son to be a "Junior," his name must be exactly the same as his father's.

WEDDING BELLS? WEDDING BILLS? Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Bears give one to Cowboys, 17-9

IRVING (AP) — For the first time since 1985, the Dallas Cowboys have won two consecutive NFL preseason games and they've done it with opportunistic defense.

The Cowboys turned six Chicago miscues into a 17-9 exhibition victory over the Bears on Monday night, upping their favorable turnover ratio to 14-3 in three games.

"Our defense is young, but they hustle and that's how you win games, getting turnovers," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said.

Manny Hendrix was the unlikely hero.

Relegated to third-team defensive back, Hendrix made the Cowboys rethink their cut list by returning a Jim Harbaugh pass 34 yards for a touchdown with 39 seconds left.

"I have to perform every time I go out," Hendrix said. "I know it's cut time."

Hendrix, a third-year veteran was a basketball player at Utah. The touchdown was his first in professional football.

"I had to pinch myself when I saw the goal line coming up," he said. "I figured I had to be dreaming."

Hendrix said he had been "walking on egg shells" worrying about today's cut to 60 players.

"I think I proved tonight I can play," Hendrix said.

Dallas recovered four fumbles and intercepted two passes in the victory.

"Our defense made some big plays," Landry said. "It was a big interception for Manny. He had been hitting and missing. That interception is the kind of play you look for in the preseason."

Landry said "We wanted to prove we could battle with the Bears on the line of scrimmage and I think we held our own. Of course, the key to our success in the preseason has been our turnovers."

Chicago coach Mike Ditka said Dallas won the way the Bears normally do.

Ditka added "We just played lousy. Offensively we were a tragedy. We couldn't catch a ball.

Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon hit 12 of 21 passes for 209 yards, including an 86-yard scoring pass to Thomas Sanders in the first half.

McMahon's connection with Sanders came after Herschel Walker ran 34 yards for a Dallas touchdown.

Kevin Butler's 29-yard field goal with 13 seconds left in the half ended the Bears' scoring.

First 18-game winner

By The Associated Press

Danny Jackson might be the only one who doesn't think he's ready to win the Cy Young Award.

Pete Rose is convinced. So are the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were blanked 2-0 by the left-hander Monday night. It was Jackson's eighth straight victory as he became the National League's first 18-game winner.

Jackson, 18-5, was traded by Kansas City to Cincinnati last winter after going 9-18. As the Reds' ace, he has a league-leading 12 complete games, including four in a row. He's allowed only two runs and 19 hits in those four games and his five shutouts are second to Tim Lincecum's six.

NL

"I don't think about the Cy Young at all," Jackson said. "I don't consider personal goals at this point of the season, that doesn't do any good. I'd just like to see us get a little bit closer to (NL West-leading) Los Angeles."

Jackson's five-hitter and four Pittsburgh errors lifted the Reds.

Jackson, 11-1 in his last 13 starts, said he's not pitching that much better than he did last season when the Royals scored only 37 runs in his 18 losses.

Jackson struck out seven and walked two in outdueling Doug Drabek, 12-6, who also had won seven in a row.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, has won only 12 of its last 31 games.

Jackson singled with two outs in the seventh and scored all the way from first when third baseman Bobby Bonilla threw wildly on Kal

Mets 7, Dodgers 1

At Los Angeles, the Mets snapped their four-game slide minus Manager Davey Johnson, who was with his mother in Texas before she underwent leg surgery. Dwight Gooden pitched an eight-hitter for his first complete game in seven starts and Keith Hernandez and Kevin McReynolds homered.

Astros 9, Cubs 7

At Chicago, Houston won the second official night game at Wrigley Field as Craig Biggio's first major league home run, broke a tie in the 10th inning. Houston two more runs in the 10th as Gerald Young singled and scored on a three-base error by center fielder Mitch Webster. Glenn Davis then singled in the ninth run.

Giants 3, Expos 2

At San Francisco, Rick Reuschel, 17-6, pitched a five-hitter, struck out a season-high eight and walked none. Reuschel retired the final 12 batters.

Ernest Riles hit a pinch-hit, three-run homer off Bryn Smith in the seventh inning as the Expos' losing streak reached nine games, their longest since 1977.

Twins keep hex on Detroit Tigers

By The Associated Press

The Minnesota Twins keep bagging Tigers.

Allan Anderson led the Twins to their ninth consecutive victory over Detroit, 7-0 Monday night.

"They've been beating up on us all year," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "It's not anything new. Every club has a club that they beat up on and every club has a club that beats up on them. Look at Texas, they came in here and won three out of four. We've been killing Texas. It's not that unusual."

AL

Anderson, 12-7, won his sixth consecutive decision, pitching eight shutout innings. He gave up six hits, struck out none and walked one, raising his record to 11-4 since May 29.

Puckett and Brian Harper drove in two runs each against Alexander, 11-9.

"If they played against the rest of the league like they do against us, they'd be way ahead," Alexander said.

Minnesota scored three times in the first inning on Rickett's RBI double and Harper's two-run single. Dan Gladden and Puckett hit run-scoring singles in the fourth, chasing Alexander. Gene Larkin's sixth-inning single off Paul Gibson made it 6-0 and Randy Bush tripled and scored on Gagne's sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Athletics 9, Yankees 2

Glenn Hubbard's two-run double highlighted a six-run third inning and Curt Young and Gene Nelson combined on a four-hitter, sending New York to its fourth consecutive loss and 10th in 14 games.

Red Sox 6, Angels 2

Bruce Hurst won his sixth consecutive decision since coming out of the disabled list and improved to 11-1 in Fenway Park this season.

Hurst, 15-4, allowed four hits in seven innings, striking out five and walking one. Hurst left after feeling an arm problem and Mike Smithson finished with two-hit relief.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 3

Dave Stieb struck out a career-high 12 batters to match Toronto's club record and pitched a five-hitter as Chicago lost its fifth straight game.

Stieb, 12-8, pitched his fifth complete game of the season and improved his career record against the White Sox to 16-4.

Mariners 7, Orioles 3

Bill Wilkinson, 1-2, pitched 4 2/3 innings of scoreless, one-hit relief and Mickey Brantley and Darnell Coles drove in two runs each for Seattle, which won its fourth straight game.

Seattle scored twice in the fifth to take the lead. Brantley tied the score with a run-scoring single off Oswald Peraza, 5-6, and Coles hit an RBI groundout.

Brewers 7, Indians 3

Dale Sveum drove in three runs, one with a go-ahead double in a four-run sixth.

Mike Birkbeck, 9-6, gave up nine hits in six innings to beat Cleveland for the first time in his career. Chuck Crim pitched three innings for his seventh save.

John Farrell, 13-8, allowed nine hits and all seven runs in 5 2/3 innings.

Rangers 9, Royals 5

Jeff Kunkel's two-run single in four-run fifth inning gave Texas the lead and the Rangers won for the fifth time in seven games.

Oddibe McDowell had three hits and Kansas City pitchers walked eight batters, four of whom scored.

Crossroads Little Football League registration, for players from Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan, is now underway at Big Spring Athletics.

The league is for players in grades 3-6, and registration fee is $11 per player. Parents must be sure and bring their child's birth certificate and insurance policy number (if possible).

Returning players must register before they can participate in practice. Some equipment is available on loan to players that show financial need.

Lady Steers fall to Abilene

ABILENE — For the second time this volleyball season, the Big Spring Lady Steers dropped a match to the Abilene High School Lady Eagles.

Monday in afternoon action, the Lady Eagles won 15-4, 12-15, 15-3. The win improves Abilene's record to 2-2. Big Spring falls to 0-5.

The Lady Steers will host Abilene Cooper Thursday afternoon at 1 in Steer Gym. Junior varsity action starts at 2, followed by freshmen at 3.

Bowling league meeting set

The Men's Industrial Bowling League will meet Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at Big Spring Bowl-A-Rama.

Also, anyone interested in entering the Guys and Dolls League can call Ed Booth at 263-2408.

Adult soccer clinic Wednesday

There will be a free soccer clinic for coaches and parents Wednesday night at 7 p.m. at the under 12 soccer field at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

The clinic will be conducted by two professional players from England.

For more information call Sharon Brandner at 267-5269.

Aussie upsets West German

RYE BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Simon Youl of Australia upset No. 3 Eric Jelen of West Germany 6-2, 4-6, 6-0 in first-round play at the NYNEX Open.

Ramesh Krishnan, India's top-ranked player, also advanced with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Andrew Castle and Tim Wilkeson ousted Marty Davis 6-4, 7-6, (7-5).

Fisk, Davis receive honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlton Fisk, who last week set an American League record for games caught and had the first five-hit game of his 18-year career, was named AL player of the week. Fisk surpassed Rick Ferrell's record of 1,806 games caught last week and, in the same game, had four singles and a triple.

For the week, he hit .556 on 10-for-18 with three homers and eight runs batted in.

Eric Davis of the Cincinnati Reds was named National League player of the week for hitting three homers and driving in 10 runs.

Bound for Seoul

ANCIENT OLYMPIA, Greece — One of 350 Greek runners carrying the Olympic flame across Greece for its journey to Seoul, runs past the crowds lining the pavement of the first village the flame passed after leaving the ancient temple of Hera, after the official flame ceremony this morning.

Expansion team to name coach

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bill Musselman, who achieved success at the University of Minnesota in the early 1970s but may be best remembered for an on-court brawl and off-court NCAA violations, reportedly will be named coach of the NBA expansion Minnesota Timberwolves.

The Timberwolves, who begin play in the 1989-90 season, called a press conference for today and all speculation centered around Musselman, 48.

Both daily Twin Cities newspapers, the Star Tribune of Minneapolis and the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch, say in today's editions that Musselman "will be named" Timberwolves coach this afternoon.

"No comment," Timberwolves president Bob Stein said.

Musselman's telephone was answered by a machine, and calls were not returned.

Musselman coached Ashland College in Ohio to a 129-30 record from 1965-71 and then took over a Minnesota team that was 11-13 in 1970-71. He guaranteed that his team would contend for the Big Ten title in his first year and he produced, coaching the Gophers to their first outright conference championship in 53 years.

Midway through that 1971-72 season, however, a huge brawl broke out in a Minnesota-Ohio State game. Gophers Corky Taylor and Ron Behagen were suspended for the rest of the season and three Buckeyes had to be hospitalized. Musselman was accused of not trying to stop the brawl.

He went on to compile a 69-32 record in four seasons at Minnesota, and his 688 winning percentage is the best in school history. But after he left, more than 100 NCAA rules violations were uncovered during his tenure, resulting in a three-year probation.

American team representing Saudi Arabia

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Dhahran is a lot closer to Mecca than the United States, but Little League coach Cornell Seymour says his team is as American as apple pie.

"We love Saudi Arabia... but our blood is red, white and blue," said Seymour, a Brunswick, Ga., native whose team is the European entry in the Little League World Series for the second consecutive year.

Of the 14 players on the team, 13 are American and one is British. All are sons of Arabian American Oil Co. employees.

Seymour is a chemical engineer for the company, known as Aramco, and Manager Mark Tucker is a land surveyor for the firm.

Coming from a town in the Middle East causes some confusion for American fans, though, Tucker said.

During a consolation game in last year's Little League World Series, fans for the South Region started chanting, "U.S.A. U.S.A."

Saudi Arabia has made the Little League World Series four times, but never won it. Last year, eventual champion Hua Lian, Taiwan, defeated Dhahran 7-0 in the opening round.

Dhahran opens Wednesday against Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, the only other team repeating from last year's Series.

The Far East has won 17 of the last 21 Series, while the European entry has never won it. And this Saudi Arabian team draws its players primarily from the 2,000 American families living in three Aramco-built towns.

Tucker said he and Seymour culled Dhahran's 14 all-stars from five teams with only about 50 players.

"It's just like a small town in America," Tucker said.
