MONTERREY, Mexico - People using picks or their bare hands dug through rubble where their homes had stood, and the search wore on for the bodies of people who died when a river overran its banks and swept away four buses. As of Sunday, rescue workers had found the bodies of 90 of the nearly 200 people believed killed the previous day when a flash flood spawned by Hurricane Gilbert caused the normally dry Santa Catarina River to overflow. The torrent ripped a 40-mile path of destruction through northern Mexico's most populated region, on which Gilbert had dumped about 12 inches of rain in 24 hours after leaving the Gulf of Mexico.

Gilbert, which killed at least 194 people during its week of life, was today a tropical depression that was spreading showers and thunderstorms from Texas to Illinois.

In Mexico, 31 died when the storm slammed into Mexico's homeless Yucatan peninsula Wednesday with winds of up to 200 mph. One woman drowned in floodwaters Sunday in the coastal state of Tamaulipas. The storm killed 30 people in Haiti, 26 in Jamaica, five in the Dominican Republic and eight in Honduras in its deadly rampage through the Caribbean. Two people were killed in Texas by tornados

Many residents used picks or bare hands to dig through the rubble that remained where their tiny concrete and tin houses had stood.

Rescue workers continued to search for bodies, and Jose Natividad Gonzalez Paras, Nuevo Leon state secretary, said a "considerable number" of people still were missing

Journalists saw soldiers uncover the body of one man caught in the mangled remains of an electricity

Further downstream, two dozen soldiers used cranes to pull the crushed and overturned body of an intercity passenger bus from the mud and sand of the riverbed.

New fee to raise $150,000

Staff Writer

Vehicle registration fees increased $5 each Jan 1 for Howard County residents, and at least one resident believes the increase is unnecessary.

Called a bridge fee, the stateregulated increase will raise approximately $150,000 for the coming fiscal year, county officials estimate.

The exact number of vehicles affected won't be determined until the end of the calendar year, County Auditor Jackie Olson explained Wednesday, because the fee was only implemented this year.

Big Spring resident Jack Watkins has called the fee increase unneccessary. "The people don't realize how much money this thing will bring in,' he said Tuesday. "It will affect about 30,000 vehicles this year. It is new money for the county. They have never collected it before and they do not need it now, because they already have a surplus.

The additional revenue is added to the county's road and bridge fund, Olson said, and explained that all county departments budget for a surplus at the end of the fiscal year in order to have operating funds until the new tax collection year

The money is designated for the road and bridge fund, used to pay for sealcoating county roads, caliche, water and other materials for road repairs and maintenance, and salaries for the department's personnel, Olson said. She said in terms of employees, the road and bridge department is the county's largest

Its budget for the coming year includes a beginning balance of $270,000. That figure, like other beginning balances county wide, represents what Olson called a "reserve.

Out of that reserve, she explained, the county's departments operate for the months of October through December. Tax collections for the months of May through mid-December are traditionally very slow, she said, and the county's fiscal year ends in October every year.

Because of that difference between calendar year and fiscal year, Commissioners Paul Allen and David Barr have said, the county's budget normally includes a reserve.

The ending balance projected for the road and bridge fund in the next fiscal year is $205,600. Its projected available funds total $1,999,452, and its expected spending totals $1,793,832.

Watkins has said the additional $5 per vehicle is unneccessary in view of the county surplus.

Polls show Bush closes gender gap; even among male voters

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON

 Recent surveys showing that Vice President George Bush has erased a double-digit deficit and drawn even with Michael Dukakis among women voters also show deteriorating support for the Massachusetts Democrat among

The polls show that Dukakis' unfavorable ratings among men are now much larger than Bush's unfavorable ratings among women.

"If George Bush continues to run even with women, then he wins the election big and at the moment, he is doing extraordinarily well," said Republican consultant Doug Bailey.

Bailey as recently as last July 7 said at a news conference sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs that "if he (Bush) doesn't bridge the gender gap, he will not win.

Now, that's all changed and Bush "has solved the gender gap problem, although he has not closed it completely," Bailey said.

Gender gap is the term politicians use to describe the differences between the way men and women vote. It was evident in the 1980 election, when President Reagan won far more support among male voters than among female voters, according to polls. The trend repeated itself, although to a lesser degree, in Reagan's 1984 landslide re-election.

A New York Times-CBS poll released last week showed that among men, Bush held a commanding 53 percent to 37 percent lead; while among women he held a 43-41 percent lead, which statistically is a dead heat.

That's a far cry from just a few months ago, when Bush trailed Dukakis among women voters by more than 20 points and was even with Dukakis among male voters. Furthermore, a poll in July by Hamilton, Frederick and Schneiders showed that working women then preferred Dukakis by a 2-to-1 margin. Irene Natividad, chair of the National Women's Political Caucus and a former harsh critic of Bush's sensitivity to women's issues, said the narrowing of the gender gap directly reflects positive steps that Bush and his campaign strategists have taken to court the women's

"Whether it's political expediency or real commitment doesn't really matter," she said. "When you have child care as part of the political dialogue along with foreign policy, then I think all women win. This is the first time

Troops fire into crowd; 150 dead in Burma battle

Associated Press Writer

RANGOON, Burma — Troops fired into crowds of students, Buddhist monks and other peaceful marchers today in Rangoon as thousands of Burmese protested the military coup, witnesses said. Unofficial estimates said about 150 people, including 17 soldiers, died.

The military said soldiers firing on "violent and unruly mobs" in the capital and other parts of the country killed 23 people and wounded another 23. The announcement said the figures were incomplete.

However, unofficial estimates based on eyewitness accounts and interviews put the number of dead at about 150, including 17 soldiers, with scores of others reported wounded.

Soldiers were preventing demonstrators from entering this capital of 3.5 million residents, witnesses said. Unrest also was reported in Mandalay, Burma's second-largest city after

The clashes between army troops and protesters flared Sunday after hardline army commander Gen. Saw Maung ousted civilian President Maung Maung. Maung Maung's whereabouts are

Saw Maung also abolished the Council of State, Parliament and all local people's councils, ordered striking government employees to return to work, imposed a nighttime curfew and banned public gatherings of five people or more.

amid public demands for an end to 26 years of repressive oneparty rule.

In the past month, strikes, demonstrations, looting and lawlessness have paralyzed the economy and pushed the nation to the verge of anarchy. Saw Maung in a statement to Radio Rangoon vowed to restore order and to "hold general elections under a multiparty system" at an unspecified later date.

Military spokesman Kyaw Sann said the clashes began Sunday night when "the violent mob attacked security forces with catapaults and jinglees (metal darts) and the troops had to disperse the mob by shooting in many parts of the town.

Although most demonstrators faced the troops without weapons, some carried swords, spears, crossbows and other primitive arms. Kyaw Sann said crowds today raided two police stations, stealing rifles, pistols and ammunition.

More than 40 demonstrators and 17 soldiers were reported killed Sunday in one area of Rangoon, where protesters were seen taking weapons from fallen

Gemini veteran astronaut decries lack of progess

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut John W. Young says he is disappointed in the progress of the nation's space program, blaming the emphasis on the space shuttle for a slowdown in space development and exploration.

The orbiters on which NASA staked its future in the early 1970s have never been the workhorses that their supporters promised, Young said.

"I think we were being unrealistic about what our capabilities and limitations were in the old days," said Young, who flew on the first manned Gemini mission in 1965. "It (the shuttle) just has to have too much handson work done with it to make it do all the things we wanted it to do.'

Young, now a safety and engineering trouble-shooter for the Johnson Space Center's director, orbited the moon and explored its surface during the Apollo era. He later commanded the first and ninth shuttle flights while serving as chief NASA astronaut.

Related story on page 5-A

"It is almost 20 years since we landed people on the moon," Young said. "And if you had asked me after the moon landing what we'd be doing in 20 years, I'd have said we'd have a base on the moon in 20 years."

The Apollo-Soyuz joint mission followed the last moon landing, and NASA had already committed to the shuttle after selling it to Congress as a quickly refurbished, inexpensively operated

"I never believed it could be that way," Young said. "I wasn't involved in selling it, but I was involved in the technical details of helping design and build it, and it was too complicated.'

Young said the shuttle is capable of fulfilling its creators' expectations, but tight budgets hurt it when NASA could not afford to stockpile spare parts for quick repairs. Also, he said, the design of the craft makes some areas of repair slow because they are difficult to reach.

The basic assumption that it pays to salvage and reuse each $15 million solid rocket booster may be wrong, Young said. The quick orbiter turnarounds and reflights and the routine Florida landings never panned out, nor is the shuttle an inexpensive way to fly, he added.

The delays are also affecting NASA's supply of flight-ready astronauts.

Businessmen have divided loyalties

HOUSTON (AP) — Many major corporations in the Houston area faced with a choice between Vice President George Bush and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen have solved the dilemma by supporting both, political insiders say.

Both Bush, the GOP presidential nominee, and Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, have Houston ties.

Bush was in the oil business in Houston for many years and represented Houston's 7th Congressional District for two terms. Bentsen is a former Houston insurance executive and three-term Texas senator who heads the powerful Finance Committee.

The Houston business community is torn and therefore they are giving to both," political consultant George Strong told the Houston Chronicle.

The benefits of supporting both parties, Strong said, are "first, you help someone you know personally get elected, and No. 2, you get access to them.

Two months ago, Texas Commerce Bancshares Chairman Ben Love said the political choice "will produce probably more ulcers than the plunge to $10 per barrel in the price of oil.

But as the Nov. 8 election nears, taking sides.

STAMFORD — Authorities continue their investigation into the disappearance of Cortney Lynn Clayton, 7, of Stamford who has been missing since Sept. 2. She is about 4 feet tall with shoulder length blond hair, brown eyes and freckles. She was wearing a white T-shirt, maroon terry cloth shorts and blue tennis shoes. She has pierced ears and a scar on her right index finger.

Child still missing

STAMFORD (AP) -Stan and Candy Clayton left San Diego, Calif., six years ago, they thought Texas would offer them a 'safer, crime-free environment' in which to raise their three

But two weeks ago, they learned that even a West Texas town with fewer than 10,000 residents like Stamford cannot provide a. guarantee of safety

On Sept. 2, their 7-year-old daughter, Cortney, disappeared while returning home with a soft drink from a nearby grocery store. Authorities believe her disappearance may be linked to a suspicious-looking person seen outside the store minutes earlier.

"We cannot seem to get it out of our minds that the reason we left San Diego was because of child abductions and violence,' Clayton told the Wichita Falls Times Record News. "We moved to Texas to get away from violence and fear of things like

Officials from the Jones County Sheriff's Department and the Stamford Police Department have interviewed a witness who claims to have seen a suspect outside the store about the time of the girl's disappearance. Police Chief Don Glasgow said a drawing of the suspect will be

Clayton said he gave his daughter 50 cents to get herself a soft drink at a grocery store a block from their home. The clerk, who knew her, rang up the sale at 8:47 p.m. A motorist saw her walking toward home at 8:53 p.m. But police said when one of the girl's older brothers looked for her at the store at 8:55 p.m., she was gone.

"We don't have any enemies or know anyone who would want to do this," Clayton said. "We have never had any problems with anyone, nothing to even suspect, but we are hoping through newspapers and television that someone who has seen something will come forward.

If the area was a disappointment in terms of crime, the Claytons have found friends in the community since the incident. Already some 200 to 300 volunteers have organized a doorto-door search through the community, stores have posted flyers with Cortney's picture and game wardens in six neighboring counties have been searching by air and land

DALLAS (AP) - Federal investigators say the meticuluous job of determining what caused the crash of Delta Flight 1141 still could take months as they scrutinize virtually every piece of the plane's flight control surfaces.

"We're going to have to take all these things apart and see if there are any 'witness marks' - bends, nicks, cracks and other possible problems that could lead to some sort of failure," said Bernard Loeb, deputy director of the National Transportation Safety Board's bureau of accident investigation.

The Dallas Morning News reported investigators in Washington are examining engines, fuel pumps, fuel lines and fuel-air adjusters on the Boeing 727 that crashed at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Aug. 31, killing 14 people.

Officials close to the investigation suggest that a combination of problems may explain the crash, the newspaper reported.

Rudolf Kapustin, an aviation consultant and former NTSB investigator who led the probe into the 1985 Delta Flight 191 crash, warned that placing too much emphasis on one theory is counterproductive in the early stages of an investigation.

"The fact is that nobody - including the guys working on it - has the slightest clue at this point," Kapustin said.

One question troubling investigators involves the plane's flaps. Investigators say an improper flap setting could have prompted pilot Larry Davis to put the plane in a nose-high attitude, increasing lift and perhaps disrupting the airflow to at least one

Wing flaps on the trailing edge and slats on the leading edge ususally are extended from the wings to provide even more lift on takeoff. But interviews with the three-man flight crew who survived the crash failed to establish the position of control surfaces

If control surfaces, such as the flaps, are not in proper takeoff positions, a device called the Takeoff Warning System should sound at the moment power is increased for takeoff. The cockpit voice recorder picked up no such alarm. 🦼

Some plot however, argue that even if Delta Flight 1141's flaps were left in the up position, that alone might not account for the crash if the crew realized the problem in time. If the case of an engine stall, the pilot of an aircraft in a "nose-high" attitude can attempt to land, add power or dip the nose to gain speed. Davis has told investigators he attempted to "fly out" of the problem.

Crew members also told investigators they heard loud "popping noises" or explosions, and they described a loss of power the jet experienced just as the main wheels lifted off the runway.

Investigators have not ruled out the possibility that a "compressor stall" contributed to the crash. A compressor stall is an engine failure sometimes caused by lack of airflow to an engine that can cause a momentary loss of thrust.

The cockpit's voice recording indicates that the plane's "stickshaker," which causes a physical shake to warn of an impending stall, had activated almost immediately on liftoff.

American Indians fight stereotyping

ARLINGTON (AP) — American Indians who have spent years being educated in English-dominated schools have lost their cultural indentity and tribal languages. Now a Tribal Network says Indians have to regain their roots if they are going to shoot down discrimination and derrogatory

New dictionary may save Indian tribe's language

DENTON (AP) — A group of linguists is working to save the grammar, no records and no dictionary

Heather Hardy, an associate professor of English at the University of North Texas, is leading the effort concerning the East Texas tribe.

After receiving a newspaper clipping in 1980 about an Alabama tribe member who was using note cards to create a dictionary of her native language, Ms. Hardy decided to contact the woman.

Ms. Hardy drove to the reservation and found Cora Sylestine, a former teacher. The two women struck a bargain: Ms. Sylestine would guide Ms. Hardy through the thickets of her native language if Ms. Hardy would help her create the dictionary of her dreams. First, Ms. Hardy had to create a system of writing to record the spoken language. And the Alabama grammar had to be deciphered before its words could be broken down for a dictionary. Ms. Hardy said the process has been laborious, done on weekends

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Department of Public Safety officer investigating the hit-andrun death of a 28-year-old man early Saturday said it will be a difficult process locating a suspect.

'We're going to need a witness who was in the (suspect's) car or the driver will have to start getting a guilty conscience," said DPS officer Jim Lasater today.

Lasater said he will be meeting today with the parents of Eusebio Gonzalez, who was struck by a car sometime after midnight Saturday as he walked northbound on U.S. Highway 87, 2.3 miles north of Big

Bush's recent emphasis on his family, on the environment, his "kinder, gentler nation" acceptance speech, his proposal for a $1,000 child-care tax credit, calls for an increase in the minimum wage and for a parental leave program, all have helped him build support among women voters, analysts say

Remember all the POW/MIAs

They marched through miles of starvation and mistreatment in the Japanese-held Philippines and mounted resistance to Nazi captors in the camps of Germany. They battled physical and mental torture at the hands of communist forces in North Korea. They spent years confined to tiny bamboo "tiger cages" in the jungles of Vietnam.

They were American heroes held prisoner in wars. But what of other Americans held captive?

Recently the heroes were honored for the suffering they endured in service to their nation's battles. The occasion was Prisoner of War Day. Created by Congress, it is intended to be an annual event. Bronze service medals were presented at ceremonies across the country to some of the nearly 142,000 men and women who had been held captive. A day of honor much

But disturbingly absent from the official recognition will be the 82 men of the USS Pueblo, the Navy surveillance ship seized by North Korea in international waters in 1968. The U.S. Defense Department determined them to be ineligible for the recognition.

A Defense Department spokesman said the crew members of the Pueblo were considered to be "detainees," not prisoners. He said the ship "was not involved in hostile activities," and "was operating in a solo environment on (an) intelligence-gathering mission for the United States."

But the head of the San Diego Veterans Administration said the agency "has always defined the Pueblo crew . . . as POWs. We still do.'

After one man was killed and 17 were injured during the seizing of the ship, the crew was imprisoned and subjected to 11 months of savage treatment. But the Pueblo case particularly Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher's handling of his ship and crew — was a touchy subject for the military. Unfortunately for those crew members omitted from the observance, it apparently still is.

Each of the injured, including Bucher, has been awarded a Purple Heart — a combat medal. Why then shouldn't they be honored for their 11 months of torture and imprisonment?

We urge the Defense Department to right its wrong and honor the men of the Pueblo. As then-Navy Secretary John H. Chafee said when he dismissed charges against the crew: "They have suffered enough."

Such a day also reminds us that nine Americans prisoners of the war of terrorism — are still being held hostage in the Middle East. We again call for their release. They and their families have suffered enough since they were captured:

Terry Anderson, March 16, 1985; Thomas Sutherland. June 9, 1985; Frank Herbert Reed, Sept. 9, 1986; Joseph James Cicippio, Sept. 12, 1986; Edward Austin Tracy, Oct. 21, 1986; Robert Polhill and Jesse Turner, Jan. 24, 1987; and Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, Feb. 17, 1988.

Terrorism has blurred the lines between the acts of outlaws and orthodox acts of warfare. But one thing remains clear: Nine American hostages in the Middle East are still very much prisoners of war.

Going the wrong way

We've come a long way (in the wrong direction) when an editorialist can reduce abortion to: A legal procedure:

 A generic medical procedure. I can assure you that there are medical facilities, physicians, nurses and auxiliary personnel to whom the nature of this "medicallegal" procedure is far from irrelevant.

Surely no one believes that removing a fetus (some of us still call them unborn babies) is irrelevant to the person(s) doing the removing and no different than, say, an appendectomy. Really!!

By the way, the proper function of a hospital is not to perform abortions — quite the opposite — and opposing the funding of a facility that does is a legitimate avenue of

I-20's in sad shape

To the editor: The highway, beginning with mile marker 181 and continuing west on I-20, is in the worst shape it has ever been durng the last 12 years I have been traveling it.

The seven miles that was recapped twice have been taken up using the same material and is very hazardous! Nothing at all has been done on the next strip that continues to Martin County

Then, the following four-mile strip has been capped two or more times and when the days are hot, the tar comes up with the pavement and leaves holes in the road.

The next 10 miles to Midland County has been under construction, and traveling over this section of the highway is similar to traveling over a washboard.

Nothing has ever been done from the Midland County line to the Ector County line, and the road is difficult to travel in the right-hand, outside lane. The grooves in this section of the road causes weaving, especially when I am operating a set of double trailers.

When you get to the Ector County line, the road has been taken up and put back down, but this section is also like a washboard. The ramps have not been completed and the shoulders have from three-to four-inch drops offs. To me, the roads are very dangerous. If the roads were fixed correctly to begin with, using our tax money efficiently and not letting the contractors off the hook, the roads would be in better condition.

furnish this is a complementary social commitment:

• Adults get to buy the stuff at carefully regulated stores (where the price is kept low enough to discourage a black market, but high enough to accumulate a surplus to be used for drug education).

• Drug merchants caught selling the stuff to minors will be executed

This apparent contradiction — at age 21, you can go buy the stuff at a local counter; at age 20, the man at the local counter who sells it to you goes to the electric chair — is both less than that and more than that. It is an attempt to accommodate two social moods, the first of them fatalistic: There is no way to keep cocaine from coming into this country — no way; the data are overwhelming on the subject. Therefore, let it in.

- The second of them is moral: We extend special protections to our minors. In most states we don't let them buy a bottle of beer. Well, we're going to extend those protections in the matter of drugs, but here is the kicker. We are so resolute on the subject that anyone violating this law will end up hanging from a noose in a federal prison. What would pass for offhand liberalism in licensing cocaine suddenly is viewed differently.

Society is saving: Drugs are a great bane of existence. If we could decree their elimination, we would do so. We can't. But we can express ourselves about them, and do so by handing out the ultimate penalty against those cretins who, in order to line their pockets, would ruin the lives of minors.

The society has nourished its taboos, while acknowledging its incapacity to repeal original sin.

can afford to spend millions on bribes. Already, dazzling amounts have been offered to American law enforcement officials

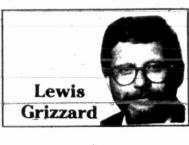

One officer told us about a typical incident. A drug trafficker was stopped on the highway; a cache of cocaine and a briefcase containing $100,000 in cash were found in the car's trunk. The trafficker told the cop, "That isn't my briefcase. It must belong to you.

Gerald Arenberg, executive director of the National Association of Chiefs of Police, estimates that less than 10 percent of the nation's police can be bought. But it takes only a few corrupt lawmen and judges to corrode the system.

The cocaine cartel is passing out bribes today at the local level. Some U.S. neighborhoods are already under its control. It's just a matter of time before the cocaine kingpins — applying the methods that have forced Colombia and Panama to bend — undermine law enforcement and break down the government across the United States, unless they are checked.

That is not simply the job of the police. It is the responsibility of the eople who still think cocaine is a 'recreational'' drug and who use it without regard to the carnage that comes with it

It is also the responsibility of people who think their lives are untouched by drugs. The Medellin cartel supplies 80 percent of the cocaine used in the United States, diverting billions of dollars out of the legitimate U.S. economy and sending execution squads to elminate the opposition.

Grizzard's temptation

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I never would have spent the money to go see the movie "The Last Temptation of Christ" if it hadn't been for all those bluenoses trying to get people to boycott it.

I'm like that. As soon as the dogooders begin preaching against something, I've simply got to see for myself what the trouble's all When the county fair came one year, the preacher took the ladies' Bible class out to the fairgrounds to try to put an end to the hootchiecootchie show. The very next afternoon, me and these two other fools climbed under the tent and received a marvelous blessing indeed.

I can still recall the thrill of watching one of the hootchiecootchiettes performing what the announcer called her "airplane

"Wait'll you see her tail spin, boys." he said.

When there was all that uproar about "Deep Throat," I couldn't wait to see it. And I still buy an occasional Penthouse magazine because Jerry Falwell is against it, and I even once tried to put leaded gasoline in my car simply because the little sign on the dashboard read "unleaded gasoline only. Once a rebel, always a rebel.

I went to see "TLTOC." I was disappointed there were no protestors. Earlier I had read in news accounts there were all sorts. There were cops, though. Four of them. Three to search the purses of those entering the theater and one who sat in an aisle seat, looking quite bored.

'Why are you checking pocket-I asked one of the policemen.

"You never know what somebody might try to bring in here," he said.

I never thought of that. Some of these fundamentalists go off the deep end and start talking to God. What if God said to one of them,

'Go blow up this movie theater.' I took an aisle seat in the back in case I had to make a quick exit.

The movie: What was all the commotion about? First, there was a notation on the screen that it wasn't based on any gospel but on a novelist's imagination. Secondly, the sex scene involving Jesus and Mary Magdalene is simply a dream and not much steamier than what you can see on the afternoon TV soap operas, and, thirdly, Jesus comes off as a man of the flesh attempting to cope with a higher plane of spirit. Duality, and that's sort of the way I had it figured in the first

Earthquake recorded in Nevada

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) -A small quake rattled western Nevada, but there were no reports of injuries or damage, according to the U.S. Geological Survey

The temblor measured 4.6 on the Richter scale and struck at 7:57 p.m. Sunday, said spokeswoman Pat Jorgenson. Its epicenter was 105 miles southeast

The quake was felt as far away as Carson City and South Lake Tahoe, Jorgenson said. A minor aftershock was recorded at 8:20 p.m., but the agency did not record a magnitude.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold in crease in magnitude.

Human rights activists hold rally

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Peace activists, celebrities and former "prisoners of conscience" told a crowd of 200 people in front of the Liberty Bell they need to fight for human rights.

Actress Margot Kidder was among those at Sunday's rally to sign a petition in support of the United Nation's Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The rally was in conjunction with tonight's Amnesty International concert.

Alicia Partnoy, imprisoned by the Argentina military junta in 1976 for her activities as a student, also attended the rally.

Tonight's six-hour concert, which features Bruce Springsteen, Sting, Peter Gabriel and Tracy Chapman, is part of a sixweek worldwide concert tour by Amnesty International.

Protected cranes make a come back

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) -The world's whooping crane population, down to 16 in 1941, probably will exceed 200 this winter. perhaps the highest number of the regal white birds this century.

They have taken a nice jump in the last few years," said James Lewis, whooping crane coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Albuquerque. "We have to give nature an awful lot of credit for that.

Lewis said he expects about 145 cranes from Canada at their winter grounds at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on Texas' Gulf

A flock of 18 birds from Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in southeastern Idaho is expected at its winter grounds primarily along the central Rio Grande Valley in New Mexico, Lewis said.

The Grays Lake flock was started in 1975 in an attempt to create a second whooping crane flock in case disaster should befall the Canadian flock.

A captive flock of 47 cranes is at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center at Laurel, Md.; another whooping crane lives at the International Crane Foundation at Baraboo, Wis., and a single whooping crane lives in a zoo in San Antonio, Texas, Lewis said.

The long-necked whooping cranes, protected by the federal Endangered Species Act, are white with black wing tips, typically stand about 5 feet and can have a 712-foot wingspan.

In autumn, the largest flock flies 2,500 miles to Aransas from its summer nesting grounds at Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada's Northwest Territory.

Israel launches test satellite

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel to enter orbit around the planet today successfully launched test satellite Horizon-I, the space agency announced. It was believed to be the first stage of a program aimed at putting a spy satellite in orbit.

Poland's government resigns

WARSAW, Poland (AP) -Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner today announced the resignation of his government, which had been under fire for its ineffectual handling of the nation's ailing economy.

In a speech to parliament, Messner offered a defense of his government's performance but admitted to "mishaps," implicitly acknowledging that his government had lost public confidence.

It was not announced when a new government would be named, and it was possible that Messner or some of his ministers could be reappointed by the Sejm, or parliament. Under Sejm rules, a new government need not be appointed immediately.

In Poland, the Communist Party is the actual seat of power and appoints the government through its majority in parliament. The government is responsible for executing the goals of the party, which is led by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

The party has criticized the price-hike operation because wages, under pressure from workers, were allowed to rise faster than prices, wiping out any benefits to the economy from the higher prices.

The inflation sparked a wave of strikes in April. A second wave broke out in August, and ended only when authorities and Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa agreed on entering into broadbased discussions that could include the reinstatement of the banned free trade union movement.

Military coup ousts Namphy

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Brig. Gen. Prosper Avril, the army's chief administrative officer, went on national television Sunday and declared himself president of the Western hemisphere's most impoverished nation.

He said Namphy was ousted by the 1,000-man Presidential Guard Saturday night because it was "sickened" by his rule, which was marked by a tolerance for the murder of government opponents.

Avril was a military adviser to Jean-Claude Duvalier before the dictator's February 1986 flight into exile and has since managed to ally himself with the prevailing forces in the 7,000-man military. The government said an unspecified number of soldiers were reported killed in the coup, and Namphy was sent to the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

Port-au-Prince appeared calm Sunday night, though the U.S. and Canadian embassies advised their citizens to stay off the streets. Small groups of people milled in the streets and traffic was light. Television and radio stations resumed their normal programming.

On Nov. 29, independently run elections were thwarted by armed thugs supported by the army who killed 34 people at the polls.

And a week before the coup, about 20 men armed with machetes, handguns and steel pikes attacked a Roman Catholic Church during a Mass being celebrated by the Rev. Jean Ber trand Aristide.

Knowing when it's all over important for her well-being

DEAR ABBY. For five years I was with a wonderful man I'll call "G". We got along very well and, despite several setbacks, we seemed perfect for each other. We even talked of marriage and spending the rest of our lives together.

During the last three years of our relationship, G. lived in a distant state, and we saw each other only twice in all that time. Each visit was wonderful. We kept in touch, though it was very hard to be so far apart. Over Christmas this past year,

G. came to visit me. It was great seeing him again, but we had grown apart, and the whole visit was rather strained. To save myself the pain of having him break if off, I did it first.

Since then, I've tried to forget him and see other people, but it hasn't worked. I miss him terribly. So. I called him last week and we talked for a long time. I told him I wanted to come to see him, but he said he'd been living the bachelor's life for the couple of months and that several people wouldn't like me to be there! He meant "women," and I could die from jealousy. I wrote to him, just to keep in touch. He didn't answer my letter. What do I do now? I just don't I think I can live without him, but I don't know how to get him back. Help!

LOST IN CALIFORNIA DEAR LOST: Face it. He likes his life the way it is. He could even be otherwise involved and probably is. A good artist knows when a painting is finished. Save yourself further humiliation and back off.

Hot August meant high cooling costs

WASHINGTON (AP Americans spent $449 million more than normal last month to keep their cool.

That's the word from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which said that August's steamy weather raised the national electricity bill to nearly $4.3 billion.

The average residential electricity bill came to $104 in August, $11 more than normal, according to the monthly climate impact assessment issued by NOAA.

Costs varied widely by region. however, ranging from a high of $137 per residence for the month in the West South Central states to a low of $50 along the Pacific Coast. The West North Central region was farthest above normal, while electricity costs in the Pacific states were a dollar below normal. Normal cooling costs are defined as what it would be expected to cost to cool a residence in average August weather, based on temperature records for the past 30 Here is a rundown of the estimated August residential electricity bills in each region and their difference from what would have been expected in a normal August:

• West South Central, $137, $10 above normal. Includes Oklahoma. Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

• East South Central, $118, $12 above normal. Includes Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

• West North Central, $113, $20 above normal. Includes North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri

Oil's Guinness

DALLAS — Mike Killalea, editor of Drilling Magazine, poses with a book of records and trivia that chronicles many of the developments that give the oil business its unique and colorful character. "It's sort of the oil industry's Guinness Book," Killalea said.

August factory use gain fourth in a row

WASHINGTON (AP) -American industry operated at 83.7 percent of capacity in August, the fourth consecutive monthly increase and the highest level in more than eight years.

But the slight 0.1 percentage point increase from July did not raise concerns about inflation because it was attributed entirely to a surge in activity at utilities producing electricity to power air conditioners during the summer heat wave.

The Federal Reserve Board said the overall operating rate at U.S. factories, mines and utilities was the highest since March 1980, when it was also 83.7 percent. The 0.1 percent gain followed a much sharper 0.6 percent rise in July. It was the fourth increase in a row at utilities, where rates rose from 80.7 percent in July to 82.4 percent in August. The 86.9 percent operating rate at electrical utilities in August was last exceeded in

However, the operating rate for manufacturing plants eased in August to 83.8 percent, down 0.1 percent from the month before. The rate for the mining sector, which includes oil and gas drilling, fell from 83.0 percent in July to 82.9

Analysts have been worried by a steady rise in operating rates at factories, fearing that prices would rise if shortages occurred because manufacturers had to strain to produce both exports and goods for U.S. consumers.

The rate at factories making durable goods, "big ticket" items expected to last three or more years, held steady at 82.3 percent in August, while the rate at factories producing non-durable goods fell from 86.1 percent in July to 85.9

Software dispute to court

EL PASO (AP) — An El Pasobased software company has filed a federal lawsuit accusing a Swiss software maker of stealing trade secrets, and the Swiss company is suing the other for complaining too publicly.

Advanced Graphics Systems, a Tulsa, Okla.,-based subsidiary of Aerni-Leach of Liebefeld, Switzerland, filed a federal business slander lawsuit in June against Accugraph Corp. of El Paso and its president, Hector Holguin. This month, Accugraph filed a related suit in U.S. District Court in El Paso against Advanced Graphics Systems, accusing the Tulsa subsidiary of copyright infringement, fraud and misappropriation of trade Specifically, Accugraph is accusing ABS of stealing computer programs that allow architects and draftsmen to do their work on video screens.

The story began in October 1985, when Accugraph — then called Holguin Corp. — bought Bruning, a division of AM International that developed computer-aided drafting programs. The deal gave Holguin Corp. the copyrights to Bruning software and Bruning's customer list.

Holguin Corp. wanted to keep Bruning's software designers and sales employees, and Hector Holguin said he offered jobs to 15 Bruning employees. He said Tuesday that four former Bruning employees who agreed to work for him then formed a partnership with the Swiss company to develop and sell competing software.

The agreement with Aerni Leach violated an agreement the four employees had signed with Bruning, preventing them from working for competing computer companies for at least one year, according to Accugraph's suit. The lawsuit also says the agreement kept the four from benefiting other companies with ideas developed at Bruning.

Hix said he expects the Oklahoma case to be heard first because it was filed first Darryl Clack muffed the ball at the 1 and tried to run it out when he picked it up in the end zone. Mark Collins tackled him, and referee Pat Haggerty ruled it a safety.

In the second half, replay official Armen Terzian ruled that Haggerty made the wrong call although the damage had been

"I'm taking the blame for it, because I was remiss in not reviewing that play," Terzian said. "The rule states that if the return man muffs the ball and it goes into the end zone, he must recover the ball but has no responsibility to take it out."

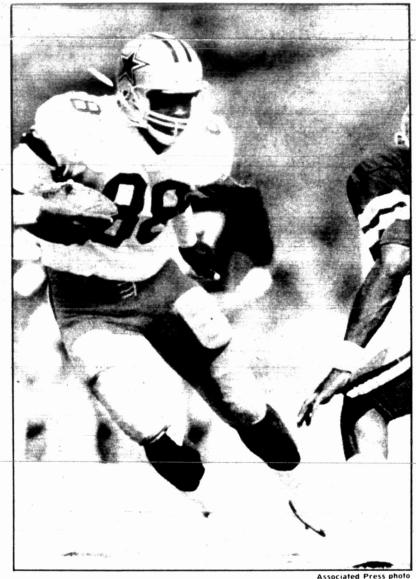

Tex Schramm, Cowboys' club president, said the team shouldn't use that as an excuse for losing.

"There were 59 minutes and 50 seconds left," he said. "I wasn't sure of the ruling myself. I thought it must be OK because nobody was making a big deal out of it.'

It was only the third time since 1974 that New York had won in Texas Stadium.

New York Coach Bill Parcells said Carson's interception on the Giants' 2-yard line and 66-yard return to the Dallas 32 with 7:51 remaining and New York clinging to its two-point lead was the big play of the opportune time," Parcells said. "I thought he played the best game he ever played, and that interception proved it."

Carson said: "I just kind of saw the ball floating and reacted to it. There was nobody out in front of me, and going down that sideline I wanted to wave to Tom Landry. I thought that would be a little fancy and I'd better not do that.

The scored was 5-3 at the half, when Phil Simms hit Lionel Manuel with a 9-yard scoring toss in the third period.

Pelluer's 27-yard scoring pass to Herschel Walker cut the margin to 12-10, but Carson's interception ended the Cowboys scoring threat in the fourth

"I'm just thankful we got out of here (Texas Stadium) in one piece and not allow them to come back like they have done in the past," Carson said. "I don't believe in jinxes, but something always happens to us here. Today it happened to them.'

Landry said he should have spoken up on the safety call.

'We should have argued more. I didn't ask for a replay,' Landry said. "It was a muff in our end zone, and we can do what we want to do. I don't know why the officials didn't replay

Landry said Pelluer is still his quarterback despite the damaging fourth period interceptions.

"I still have to go with him," Landry said. "He's just a young quarterback trying to make it in the NFL' Pelluer said Carson "made a really good play. I just have to make better decisions when I'm in that situation. It's hard to come up empty like that. There's nothing I can say that will change things.

"It seems it's always the plays at the end that hurt us." Simms said the "safety thing was trivial. We had some bad calls against us too.

The victory tied the Giants with Washington for the lead in the NFC East with 2-1 records. Dallas dropped to 1-2.

The Cowbovs may have lost more than the game. Running back Herschel Walker strained a calf and won't practice next week. Dallas doctors said he should be ready to play against Atlanta next Sunday.

Inkster rallies to victory

KENT, Wash. (AP) - Juli Inkster caught a cold on the eve of the $225,000 Safeco Classic, and her early golf in the LPGA tournament reflected her misery

But she recovered nicely over the weekend to claim the tournament title by three strokes over South Korean Ok-Hee Ku.

Inkster opened with a 76, improved to 70 on Friday, then fired a healthy 7-under-par 65 Saturday, the lowest round of the tournament.

She closed with a 67 on Sunday to win her 11th career title by a comfortable margin.

She totaled 10 under par 278 for 72 holes on the 6,222-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course. Ku finished with a 69 on Sunday

"I can't remember playing this well on a weekend, going from two over and into the tournament.' said Inkster, a 28-year-old from Rancho Murieta, Calif. "It's the best I felt in a Sunday round, and the most relaxed I've played in a final round.

The victory was her third this year and second in this tournament. She won this title in 1983 on the way to tour rookie of the year honors.

"I had six birdies Friday and seven Saturday, so I knew I was going to make some more," Inkster said. "I hit good iron shots when I had to, and got birdies.'

She went into the final round in a second-place tie with Beth Daniel, JoAnne Carner and tour rookie Danielle Ammaccapane, all a stroke behind Jan Stephenson.

Stephenson birdied the first hole Sunday but bogeyed the third, where Inkster sank a 25-foot birdie putt to gain a share of the lead. Daniel's birdie gave her the lead briefly on the fourth.

Inkster two-putted from just off the fringe of the par-5 fifth green for a birdie that gave her the lead for the first time. Daniel bogeyed

Stephenson went ahead one more time with a birdie on the seventh, then parred the remaining 12 holes. Daniel dropped out of contention with bogeys on 13, 14 and 16. Carner was out of it with bogeys on 7, 11

Ammaccapane birdied the eighth and 12th to close to within two shots of Inkster, only to fall

KENT, Wash. — Jan Stephenson of Fort Worth, chips from the edge of the 11th green Saturday during third round action in LPGA play.

Inkster took over for good with a six-foot birdie putt on No. 8. She birdied the 12th with a five-footer, and the 13th with a 15-footer.

Ku, just ahead of Inkster's final threesome, rolled in a 21-foot birdie putt on the 15th. Then she hit a 3-iron shot to a foot of the cup and birdie. But Inkster followed by hitting a 152-yard 6-iron shot from the rough and made her final birdie.

Ku then missed the 16th green and bogeyed.

The victory was worth $33,750 for Inkster. Ku collected $20,812.

Stephenson took third place at 282 after her 72. Sherri Turner, the leading money winner on the LPGA tour, was at 283 following a 68 that included an eagle-2 on the 371-yard 16th hole. Ammaccapane had a 73 for 284 while matching 74's left Daniel and Carner at 285.

Thirty-footer does trick for Mark C.

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Mark Calcavecchia can legitimately say that he won the Bank of Boston Classic with his eyes closed. A 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole gave Calcavecchia a one-shot victory over Don Pooley, who knocked on the door with a recordtying 63 Sunday. Calcavecchia never saw the ball go in. "I flinched it right in there," the 28-year-old touring pro said after his winning round of 5 under 66. "I didn't even see it go in because I closed my eyes with six inches to go because I knew it was in.' Calcavecchia capitalized on a late collapse by Fuzzy Zoeller, who double-bogeyed two holes on the final nine to finish in a group of three at 8 under par, two shots off Calcavecchia's 10-under 274 finish. The $108,000 payday for Calcavecchia moved him to sixth on the 1988 PGA Tour money list and marked his first victory this year. He has finished second by one stroke in three tournaments this season, including the Masters.

"I'm going, 'Man, what does it take to win out here?"" a relieved Calcavecchia said.

He said he played much of the final round in a relaxed state of mind, thinking there was almost no chance he could catch Zoeller. "I wasn't really worried about it until I heard (a spectator) shout to me that I was tied for the lead," said Calcavecchia, who pulled even on the 16th hole, then reached the 583-yard 18th with two drivers and a sand wedge before sinking his winning putt. Pooley, an early starter, played with a similarly easy-going attitude, figuring there was no chance to make up a seven-shot deficit. Instead, he found himself in the hunt after firing an 8-under-par 63, matching the course record at the 7,110-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club, to finish 9-under at

That score looked better and better as the day wore on.

"I don't think there's much of a chance, but a lot of things can go wrong out there," Pooley said after his round.

Zoeller found out just how wrong things could go on the 394-yard, par-4 13th hole. Standing on the tee, Zoeller held a two-shot lead at 11-under. But he drove a long iron through the dog leg of the fairway and then needed two shots to clear some trees and give himself a shot to the green. His double bogey 6 left him tied for the lead.

Thompson's Time Here is what Big Spring

Steers' coach David Thompson had to say about Friday's 34-16 loss to the Plainview Bulldogs and having an open date this week:

"I don't think we played hard enough to win. I don't think our intensity level was what it had to coaching the Dallas Cowbovs. "We were not very intense in DAVID THOMPSON Warmup. I be for us to win. I don't know why

if I did I would be

don't know if it was the long bus ride or just our inexperience. We've got to have something to hang our hat on.

"If we were playing a medorice team, we would have had a chance to win. But we weren't. They were fired up and we weren't.

"Offensively, we moved the ball in between the 20s, but we've got to get the ball in the end zone. We moved the ball pretty well, considering we were always starting in hole.

"Defensively, we've got a long way to go, and not much time to do it. We've got Monahans in a couple of weeks. We're going to make some position changes and hopefully that will help. The main thing is we've got to make up our minds to play hard.

Jets bomb Oilers

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.

(AP) - Ken O'Brien and Wesley Walker kept their minds on football while just about everyone around them was concentrating on mayhem. With most of the New York Jets and Houston Oilers bent on proving their manhood, Walker caught three touchdown passes Sunday. O'Brien threw for two of those and also hit Kurt Sohn with a scoring pass as the Jets registered their largest victory margin ever with a 45-3 rout of the Oilers.

The teams combined for 190 yards in penalties, with nine personal fouls called. Shoving matches were the norm and just about every play was followed by some verbal combat.

"I think we sent them a message early that we were not going to be pushed around," O'Brien said.

"It went bad both ways," Oilers defensive end Sean Jores said. "These were two physical teams playing feisty. We played aggressive, as we always do.

"Everybody is going to try and test us. We are the new bullies in The Jets lost All-Pro receiver Al

Toon for the second half when he was belted — cleanly — by safety Jeff Donaldson late in the second quarter.

In the midst of that, Walker was having his best game in 11/2 years, the defense was shutting down Houston's run-and-shoot attack and O'Brien was enjoying a 17-for-26 performance for 260

"I try not to pay attention to that stuff or get involved in it," said Walker, a 33-year-old, 12-year veteran receiver. "Too much is made of it.

"I knew we wouldn't take anything.

"I dedicated the game to Al," Walker said of his partner, who suffered a slight concussion and lacerated lip. "He was pretty battered in the locker room at halftime.

"I took his hand and told him I was going to pray for him. He didn't say anything, he just squeezed my hand. He knows how this team feels about him.

Walker would be happy to hear how O'Brien feels about him. "Don't kid yourself, Wesley can still do it," O'Brien said after Walker hauled in six passes for 129 yards and scores of 50, four and 23 yards - his first TD receptions since the 1987 season-opener and best game since No. 16, 1986. "Wesley was going long all day, Al (Toon) was cutting under him. I was able to hit Al and, with his speed and moves, I think the defensive backs were getting a little paranoid. When they started moving in on him, it just left Wesley Walker got open behind Houston's secondary — rated the AFC's best after two weeks — for a 44-yard catch that set up Sohn's touchdown in the first quarter. He beat Richard Johnson early in the second period for a 50-yard score to give New York a 21-3 lead.

Red Sox get best of Yankees

Following a 10-3 loss to the Giants on Sunday, Houston manager Hal Lanier was so angry he ordered his team back on the field for a 112-hour workout. 'Quite frankly, I was scared to death of their run-and-shoot,' defensive coordinator Bud Carson said." "We played it together and our whole pass defense played the best I've seen them play in a few years.'

The Jets also have found a pass rush. They added five sacks on Sunday to the five they had in Cleveland.

'The pass rush is the most important thing," said nose tackle Scott Mersereau, who had one sack and pressured Cody Carlson all day. "I don't know if Carlson was rattled, but he sure took some shots

Lewis was given an ultimatum Monday by U.S. sprint-relay coach Russ Rogers: Behave or get kicked off the 400-meter relay team. 'If he continues to disturb the regular-season play. We had a lot of respect for Atlanta going into the game. We needed more," San Francisco coach Bill Walsh said.

The Falcons took the lead eight minutes into the second quarter on a 3-yard run by Gerald Riggs, James Primus scored on a 29-yard run on the Falcons' next possession, and Miller completed the outburst when he ran it in with no time remaining in the half.

Joe Montana passed for 343 yards, 225 in the second half, but was intercepted three times in his 100th career NFL start. Safety Robert Moore made the third, early in the fourth quarter, and went 47 yards for the touchdown which virtually clinched the victory.

The 49ers got their first touchdown late in the third quarter when Montana hit Guy McIntyre, an offensive guard lined up as a tight end, on a 17-yard pass play. Montana passed 13 yards to Mike Wilson for a fourth-quarter TD. San Francisco's Jerry Rice had a big receiving day, with 163 yards on eight catches.

Chiefs 20, Broncos 13 Steve DeBerg had a ball against his old teammates, throwing two touchdown passes, and the Kansas City defense intercepted two John Elway passes to hand the Broncos their second loss in three games.

"I thought I might have the game of my life. There was no question in my mind that we were going to win and I was going to perform well," said DeBerg, who hit 21 of 35 passes for 259 yards and was not intercepted. DeBerg, who played for Denver until the Broncos acquired Elway five years ago, flipped a six-yard scoring pass to Carlos Carson in the second quarter and a 14-yarder to Paul Palmer in the third as the Chiefs, 1-2, seized a 17-10 lead. Nick Lowery added field goals of 50 and 29 vards. Tony Dorsett scored on an 8-yard run late in the second quarter and Rich Karlis kicked two field goals for Denver.

Vikings 31, Bears 7

Tommy Kramer has his job back, and the Chicago Bears aren't too happy about it. Kramer, who began the season on the bench and asked to be traded after the Vikings lost to Buffalo on opening day, passed for three touchdowns.

"It's a great confidencebuilder," Kramer said of the onesided triumph. "We knew it would be tough to run on them well so we decided to put the ball up in the Kramer completed 15 of 28 passes for 258 yards, hitting Anthony Carter with touchdown passes of 40 and 16 yards and Hassan Jones with a 19-yard scoring strike before departing midway through the fourth quarter.

Minnesota capitalized on five Chicago turnovers during the rainy afternoon at Soldier Field, including a fumble by Dennis McKinnon which Chris Martin recovered in the end zone early in the third

Ron Morris in the opening period but fumbled once and was intercepted once before leaving the game in the closing seconds of the first half with a bruised left knee.

U.S. boxer disqualified

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) -U.S. boxer Anthony Hembrick, near tears as he walked away a loser without throwing a punch, was eliminated from the Olympics Monday after he was late for his fight, compounding America's sputtering start at the Seoul

Hembrick, a gold medal prospect in the middleweight class, missed the bus after his coach, Ken Adams, apparently misread the schedule, reminiscent of what happened to two U.S. sprinters at the 1972 Munich Games.

U.S. divers Michele Mitchell and Wendy Williams won silver and bronze medals Sunday, and the U.S. basketball and volleyball teams got off to winning starts.

But the U.S. team could only be declared a qualified success on the first big day of the Seoul Olympics, where the Soviet Union led the parade with the first gold medal, in women's air rifle.

The second day started in Hembrick was due to fight a tough South Korean, Ha Jong-ho, but when the Fort Bragg, N.C., boxer, three-time U.S. Army middleweight champion, was late, Ha won in a walkover.

"I looked at the schedule, and we were the 11th bout from the top,' Adams said, obviously irritated. Actually, Hembrick was scheduled in the fourth bout of the morning

When Hembrick finally got to the bus, Adams said it was so crowded, he couldn't get on.

U.S. Officials immediately filed a protest against Hembrick's elimination.

At Munich in '72, Eddie Hart and Rey Robinson missed the second round of the 100 meters when their coach misread the schedule. Hart had won his earlier heat with a time equaling the world record.

A few hours earlier, another American boxer, Kelcie Banks of Chicago, was back at the athletes village, discharged from a hospital where he was treated for a headache of Olympian proportions. Banks was kept in the hospital overnight after a first-round knockout by a Dutchman on Sunday. Banks was OK but obviously

While Arthur Johnson of Minneapolis made a successful boxing debut in the 112-pound class with a 5-0 decision over Andrea Mannai of Italy on Sunday, Banks' Olympic career lasted less than two

After Banks missed a right hand, Regelio Turr of the Netherlands, a native of Surinam whose father was a professional welterweight, smashed a right counter to his jaw, knocking him out for at least a minute in a 125-pound class bout. Banks, former world and Pan American Games champion, was taken to Yong Dong Service

Hospital as a precaution and kept

U.S. team physician, Dr. James Puffer, said Banks suffered a severe concussion but that a neurological exam showed his condition to be normal.

Mitchell, the silver medalist in 10-meter platform diving, said the American people were expecting too much of the U.S. team.

The American public, I think, is really spoiled," she said. "It's like if you don't win, you've failed. That's wrong, you know. I'd like to see any of those couch potatoes come here and withstand the pressure.

At the same time, U.S. swimmers, with the exception of Matt Biondi and Janet Evans, were a disappointment, and even they were beaten in preliminary heats.

The men's gymnastics team, hoping for a bronze, wound up 12th after compulsories, trailing the likes of West Germany, France and Italy.

The United States did save some face with a 1-1 tie against reigning world champion Argentina in the soccer tournament, and there was some apparent face-saving going on in Greco-Roman wrestling, too.

A wrestler from the Yemen Arab Republic failed to show up for a second-round match against an Israeli wrestler in what an Israeli official called a poltical snub. Neither the YAR wrestler, Abullah Alizani, nor anyone from his delegation answered phone calls.

Sevdalin Marinov of Bulgaria set a world record in the snatch and won the 52-kilogram (114.4-pound) division in weightlifting. Marinov lifted 120 kilos (264.5 pounds) in the snatch, breaking the old world mark of 119.5 (263.5) set last June by He Zhuogiang of China. Marinov's total winning weight was 270 kilos (595 pounds) also including his clean and jerk.

Chun Byung-kwan of South Korea won the silver, and He won

Mitchell, a 26-year-old from Boca Raton, Fla., made her swan dive in Olympic competition, ending her career with the silver. Williams won the bronze, and Xu Yanmei of China took the gold.

Williams, 21, of Bridgeton, Mo., moved into third after Chen critigism.". Xiaodan, a 14-year-old Chinese, belly-flopped her last dive, a difficult backward 31/2-sommersault.

"I was getting a little teary because I figured I was going to be fourth," Williams said. "Fourth wasn't quite how I wanted to go home. It's terrible to have to sit around and watch and wait for her to open that door for me.

David Robinson, the 7-foot former Navy center, scored 16 points and led the U.S. basketball team to a 97-53 victory over Spain, the team America beat by 31 points to win the 1984 gold medal.

The U.S. volleyball team beat Japan 15-13, 15-2, 15-2. Karch Kiraly, with his 40-inch vertical leap, is considered the best all-around player in the world, and he provided the leadership as the United States defeated Japan for the 38th straight time

"Streaks are made to be broken, but we didn't let it happen today,' Kiraly said.

'I'm sure once I look at the tapes, I though Eastern Europeans had can find a lot of fault and lot of faster times in qualifying for Monday's finals.

"Both of them were fine. They did what they intended to do, which was to get to the finals in good position," Quick said. "It looked like Matt didn't want to push it all the way. He knew he was in good shape.

Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., who is entered in seven events, was second-fastest in 200-meter freestyle heats, although he had a better time than archrival Michael Gross of West Germany.

Evans, of Placentia, Calif., favored to win three swimming gold medals, won her qualifying heat for the women's 400-meter in-Swimming coach Richard Quick dividual medley, but she had only said there was no reason to worry the third fastest time of the day.

Swimmers give fans a wet and wild time

By HAL BOCK

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - They lined up at the Olympic pool start line for the men's 200-meter freestyle like eight greyhounds, waiting for the rabbit.

In Lane Three was Michael Gross of West Germany, owner of the world and Olympic record and seven of the top 10 times ever recorded for the event. He is big and blond, with an armspan the envy of any swimmer.

In Lane Five was Matt Biondi of the United States, Gross' main challenger in the event and equipped with the fastest time in the world for 100 meters, half the distance of this race.

Sandwiched between them in Lane Four was Artur Wojdat of Poland, world record holder at 400 meters, twice the distance of this race, and the fastest qualifier with a heat time of 1:48.02.

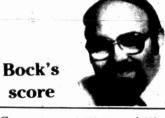

There they were, three world record holders, lined up side by side, each caught up in his pre-race routine, none even glancing at the other. It seemed as if they were preparing to swim a practice heat in some pool at home instead of for an Olympic gold

Now they climbed the blue starting pedestals, their bodies tensed, poised, bent, waiting for the signal to go.

All at once, Gross pulled the trigger prematurely and was in the water. Was the false start premeditated to increase the pressure on the competition? Perhaps. Biondi and Wojdat just backed away, though, thinking whatever a swimmer thinks in that circumstance, before returning to prepare again for the start. This time they went off together, hitting the water almost in unison, the vellow. blue and red lane divide markers shaking at the impact. The crowd roared as the race began and attention was riveted to those three middle lanes where Gross, Wojdak and Biondi were engaged in their own little private drama.

The war in the water was a brilliant duel. Biondi broke in front first, his arms pumping like pistons, his feet kicking furiously. He covered the first 50 meters in 24.98 seconds, almost three-quarters of a second faster than the 25.70 that Gross clocked for the first 50 when he set the world record of 1:47.44 at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Gross was at 25.65 and Wojdat one-hundredth of a second slower than that. But they weren't running 2-3 behind Biondi. Other swimmers were surfacing and for the first time, this became more than a three-man race.

Over in Lane Two American Troy Dalbey, celebrating his 20th birthday, was in at 25.56 and next to him in Lane Six, right next to Biondi, was Duncan Armstrong of Australia at 25.46.

Duncan Armstrong? Who's he? A mystery man in this lineup of swimming heavyweights, he was ranked 25th in the world last year and as low as 46th this year. Nice lap, Duncan. See ya later.

They surely would.

For 100 meters — which is Biondi's best distance — the American was in at a strong 52.25, and running second, not to Gross or Wojdat, but to Anders Holmertz of Sweden, who had the fastest time in the world last year.

Now for the third leg, and still Biondi persisted, leading the others now as his body worked almost as if it were computerized, each arm pulling him through the water. His time was 1:19.62 and now there were just 50 meters to go, one last lap in the chrystal clear blue waters of the Olympic Park pool.

Biondi made his turn and headed for home. "I knew this would be the most competitive race of the Olympics," he said later. "I wanted to swim my race, be ahead at 150 and get home as well as I could."

They came roaring through the last lap together, eight swimmers separated by precious little time and space. And when they hit the finish mark Matt Biondi had an Olympic medal.

"The world record holder and yesterday's fastest qualifier are not here," he
