'Everyone's question: How's the countdown going?'

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Mission Control was a sea of quiet and prelaunch preparation today, but "after a long, hard 2½ years" an air of expectancy engulfed the center of the nation's manned space program.

A lockdown of the control room last week put a freeze on any equipment changes and only authorized personnel — a few controllers babysitting the Cape Canaveral countdown — were allowed in today.

Flight controllers have been given several days to adjust their body clocks because many must work through the night during the four-day mission. At 4:30 a.m. Thursday, a full team is to assemble at their Johnson Space Center consoles to guide Discovery into orbit a few hours later.

The flight will return NASA to the shuttle business after 32 months. Mission Control takes over command of the mission just as the shuttle clears the launch tower in Florida.

"There's a sort of 'let's do it now' attitude," said Steve Nesbitt, the public affairs officer here who was at the microphone when the Challenger blew up January 1986. "It's been a long, hard 2½ years for people throughout NASA."

Some almost can't believe the time has actually come.

"This is much like the excitement before STS-1, the first shuttle flight," said astronaut Michael Coats, who is scheduled to fly Discovery in February. "Everybody you pass in the hall, the first question is, 'How's the countdown going?'"

Said Tim Pelischek, an engineer here: "You hear people say that they've been waiting 2½ years for this and then, all of the sudden, it's just three days away and they can't believe it. I think it's more real to the flight director people. But I think people are getting excited about it finally."

After working seven years at NASA, Pelischek finally gets to see a launch. He worked on the new escape system for Discovery and was to go to Kennedy Space Center to help troubleshoot last-minute problems.

A small crew of flight controllers are monitoring the countdown at Kennedy, checking communications equipment and keeping track of weather conditions.

Other controllers periodically check documents they will need and assemble creature comforts such as coffee cups and trash cans. "They're going to be living out of that room for the next week," said Brian Welch, a spokesman at Johnson.

Outside the center, merchants are expecting an increase in business as hundreds of journalists from around the world gather to cover the four-day mission.

As of Tuesday, 152 journalists registered here. About 2,400 broadcast and print journalists have signed up to come to the center but officials expect that many of them actually will cover the mission from Kennedy and then fly to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., for the landing.

In the surrounding community, business signs carry greetings for Discovery's five crew members, and residents eagerly await the liftoff.

"I am naturally very excited and very optimistic about the flight. You can't put your finger on it, but there's always a certain amount of excitement here when we're ready to go into space," said Irene Kochiss, who lives in nearby Friendswood.

"Of course they are going to be fine," she said, adding: "Of course I'll say a prayer for them."

Council commits to hazardous loop

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council had the first reading of a State Department of Highways and Public Transportation Commission minute order Tuesday night, and made a commitment to fund rights of way and utilities for a hazardous cargo loop.

The council's approval is necessary for the Highway Department to designate and make plans for the yet-to-be-finalized construction route.

City Manager Hal Boyd said he doesn't expect the city to be required to provide funding until at least 1990.

"We have to accept this or they will drop us from the planning process," Boyd advised the council.

The council, in a 3-3 vote, denied a request by Harry J. Hepner, 4504-06 West Highway 80, for a one-year temporary mobile home permit.

Hepner's previously granted one-year temporary permit expired earlier this month.

Tom Decell, public works director, said the mobile home is located in a heavy commercial zoning area.

Councilman Sidney Clark inquired about the possibility of changing the zoning ordinance; however, Decell informed him that

City debates 'buy locally' for supplies

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

In an effort to allow the city of Big Spring to conduct more business with local vendors, Councilman Sidney Clark requested a list of the city's out of town suppliers.

That issue was among the items discussed at Tuesday night's council meeting attended by virtually no one but city officials, council members and the media.

During a discussion on advertising for bids on annual contracts for basic services, Councilwoman Gail Earls questioned why the city contracted for lube and oil changes.

Earls said she believed it would be more efficient and less expensive to have the services performed at the city garage.

Tom Decell, public works director, informed her the city has completed surveys that have determined it is less expensive to contract for the those services.

Clark said after reviewing the disbursement list he felt that "99

Coltrane: Deafness has always been a way of life

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

As admissions counselor for SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, Bob Coltrane, 37, has met with groups of deaf students across the United States to inform them of opportunities available at the local facility.

During such encounters, students often assume Coltrane is deaf, for his command of American Sign Language is highly advanced.

Coltrane sees little point in interjecting into the flow of conversation with students whom he's just met the fact that he is not hearing-impaired. Thus, it is often not until he begins talking to a hearing person that the students discover he isn't deaf.

Since mastering American Sign Language normally takes years of practice, Coltrane is honored by the students' assumption.

"It's a compliment to me, but it's a shock to them when they find out otherwise," Coltrane said.

Coltrane became proficient at sign language at an early age. Both of his parents were born deaf, and taught their four children sign language.

"Growing up with deaf parents, I didn't have to sweat to get this skill," Coltrane said. "I have to commend the people who begin learning sign language when they are older because it's tough, it's not easy. It's like learning a completely different language."

Coltrane considers American Sign Language his first language, and believes this skill and his early exposure in the deaf culture were strong influences on his decision to pursue a career in deaf education.

"You never know what I would have ended up doing otherwise, but certainly my communication skills have helped me in this career," he said.

Growing up in Charleston, S.C., Coltrane had an insight into two distinct ways of life.

"I feel like I gained by having deaf parents because I was able to take part in two different cultures, the deaf culture and the hearing culture. And they are two different cultures."

While the "daily grind of life" was similar to that of hearing families, Coltrane said he and his three sisters, two of whom are also involved in deaf education, gained a sense of responsibility alien to most children.

Coltrane said he and his sisters often had to interpret for their parents when they needed to interact with hearing people.

They would aid their parents in communicating with such people as doctors, salespeople and

SWICD founder Burke dies

Douglas Burke — one of the founders of SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf and a former executive director — died Tuesday at his home in Big Spring after a lengthy illness.

Burke has been described by the National Association of the Deaf Broadcaster as "a man held in high esteem for his contributions to the deaf community nationwide."

In October 1987, Burke was named Assistant Director for Programs of the Texas Commission of the Deaf. He was also a former director of transitional planning at SWCID, and was the founder of the NAD National Cultural Program for the Deaf, an organization that supported the efforts of deaf artists, writers and performers.

"All of the things that people are normally involved with as adults we were involved with at an early age," he said. "As a result I got a well-rounded education because I saw a part of the world that people usually don't get to see until they are much older."

While he had more responsibilities than his peers, Coltrane also got away with activities his friends could only dream of doing. "My friends could call at 2 a.m. and my parents would never know," he said.

He was also free to set the television or radio at extreme volume levels. "We really cranked it up," he said.

And during a family meal, when he or his sisters didn't want to eat a particular vegetable, they simply turned their heads, called the family dog and held the food beneath the table — where it was promptly disposed of.

Coltrane's early exposure to the deaf culture didn't immediately lead him to a deaf education career. After graduating from high school, he held a variety of jobs.

He achieved success as a life insurance agent, but was left unfulfilled. "I just got tired of talking about death all the time," he said.

While working as an insurance agent, he volunteered to teach sign language to community groups in Charleston and he also worked as a freelance interpreter.

President vetoes bill on imports

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, as promised, today vetoed legislation tightening curbs on textile, apparel and shoe imports. He said the bill would have "disastrous effects" on the U.S. economy.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan vetoed the bill as soon as it arrived from Capitol Hill.

"We vetoed it as soon as we got it," Fitzwater said.

The bill, intended to protect American industries against foreign competition, won final congressional approval last Friday, but without the two-thirds margin needed to override a veto.

"It would impose needless costs on American consumers, threaten jobs in our export industries, jeopardize our overseas farm sales, and undermine our efforts to obtain a more open trading system for U.S. exports," the president said.

"This bill represents protectionism at its worst. At a time when American exports are booming, the United States must not embark on a course that would diminish our trade opportunities."

Asked about possible repercussions of the veto on Vice President George Bush's election effort in the South, where even some staunch Republicans had backed the bill, Fitzwater replied, "It's our belief that, politics aside, ... protectionism is the issue here."

The bill would:

- Freeze textile and apparel imports at 1987 levels this year and limit growth to 1 percent annually starting in January.

- Freeze imports of non-rubber footwear with no provision for increases.

- Impose import quotas on 180 categories of textile products and 30 types of footwear, a system that would be reviewed after 10 years.

- Set up a one-year program under which the government would auction import licenses and set a special quota for silk neckties.

Anticipating a veto, Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C., said Friday that he anticipated Congress would mount an effort to override Reagan's veto in the first week of October.

Fitzwater said today he was confident the veto would not be overridden.

The House approved the bill on a vote of 248-150 on Friday. Earlier this month, the Senate approved the measure 59-36.

The textile and apparel industries, along with a number of unions and their congressional allies, had called the bill vital to halting job losses.

Midland Courthouse going batty

MIDLAND (AP) — Residents in this West Texas county are going batty over what they say is a horror of a stench seeping through the building as bats return for their seasonal roosting.

Colonies of bats have been in the Midland County Courthouse for years, coming and going at will in their nocturnal flights to feed.

But as the numbers grow, so are the piles of guano, court officials say.

"After this last rain, I got complaints about the smell," said Midland County District Attorney Al Shorre Jr. His office is directly below the space where the bats roost.

Donna Harper, one of Shorre's staffers, complained most vocally. "I can tolerate the bats," she said. "It's what they leave behind I can't stand."

In their seasonal visits, the bats depart the courthouse about dusk in their flight for food and return about dawn to roost.

County commissioners met to discuss the problem and asked county officials for help, but the solution remains up in the air.

"The experts at Texas A&M said there was no solution but to stop up entrances to the bats' roosting place," said County Auditor Floyd Jarnagin.

Midland County Commissioner Durward Wright suggested the bats "mess" be cleaned up.

"We might have a commercial enterprise here," Jarnagin said.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter mixed suggestions of killing the flying mammals.

"You can't (kill bats) within the city limits of Midland," the sheriff said. "It's a game preserve."

Midland is a bird sanctuary.

Midland County Attorney Mark H. Dettman, who is accustomed to talk of the bat nuisance, seemed to accept the coming and going of the bats.

"It seems they come at Halloween, isn't that right?" Dettman asked. "It's fixing to be bat season."

Jail inmate hangs himself

ODESSA (AP) — A convicted murderer found dead in his jail cell had not been checked for three hours, although Ector County Sheriff Bob Brookshire said isolated inmates generally are checked hourly.

Robert Allen Autry was found hanging by a bedsheet at about 4:50 p.m. Monday, three hours after he was last seen alive, said Ector County Sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss.

Autry's death was the second hanging in the Ector County Jail this year. In June, Curtis Lloyd Ray, 36, of Odessa, also was found hanging in his isolation cell.

"I just don't know how you can stop somebody from killing himself," Sheriff Bob Brookshire said Monday, adding he didn't blame his employees in the most recent death.

Autry was convicted two weeks ago of murder in the death of Zola Frazier. She was killed on June 22, 1984 — about a month after Autry's brother, J.D. Autry, was executed in Huntsville for a robbery-double homicide.

Burglar bars hamper firefighters

DALLAS (AP) — Three young children and two teen-agers were killed today as fire raced through a house where firefighters struggled to break through burglar bars blocking the windows.

"Just guessing, I'd say it took at least five minutes longer getting in," because of the bars, said Dallas Fire Department investigators Doug Preston.

"It could have been longer. A few minutes can be the difference between life and death," he said.

Preston said firefighters had to use a circular saw to enter the house, located on the city's southside.

Beverly Handy, a field agent with the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office, identified the victims as: Jasmine Jordan, 1, Ericka Jordan, 9, Jamal Jordan, 6, Bernard Jordan, 16, Demetra Jordan, 18.

Fire investigator Don Howard said firefighters were also hampered by a loveseat pushed against the house door.

Fire investigator Howard said the children lived at the house with their grandmother, but the woman was not at home at the time. Authorities believe she had been at work, and arrived home to find the disaster.

Disaster status requested

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has formally asked President Reagan to declare three Texas counties major disaster areas due to damage sustained during Hurricane Gilbert.

The counties are Cameron and Hidalgo, which were the hardest hit by the hurricane, and Bexar, where several tornadoes spawned by the storm touched down.

In his request Tuesday, Clements noted that preliminary estimates show 23 homes destroyed, 38 sustaining major damage and 762 homes with minor damage. Clements said 286 apartment units were destroyed or suffered major damage from the hurricane and other storms it triggered. Eight businesses also were destroyed, he said.

According to Jay Rosser, a spokesman for Clements, the disaster declarations, if approved, would make Texans eligible for a variety of state and federal assistance, including:

- Temporary housing, providing rent payments for funds for minor repairs to eligible people displaced by the storm.

- Disaster loans, which would provide low-interest loans of up to $20,000 for personal property damage, up to $100,000 for damage to real property and up to $500,000 for damage to small businesses.

House stops USX sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House vote in favor of legislation that seeks to stop the sale of equipment from USX Corp.'s idled Texas works plant to Iraq puts pressure on the Pittsburgh steel giant to consider offers from domestic companies, says Rep. Jack Fields.

Fields' amendment passed the House on Tuesday as part of legislation that establishes sanctions against Iraq for alleged poison gas attacks on Kurdish villages in the northern part of the country. The bill passed by a vote of 388-16.

"This indicates the United States Congress has taken a position on USX's proposed sale to Iraq. It creates more pressure, intense pressure, for USX to consider the viable domestic interests that are interested in reopening the Texas Works plant in Baytown," said Fields, R-Humble.

USX announced last week it was abandoning its negotiations with Iraq over the sale for at least six months, but Fields said that would not derail his push for legislation that attempts to keep the $100 million deal from going through.

"The vote means that if USX is willing to negotiate seriously with domestic firms interested in buying the plant, we can preserve approximately 800 domestic steel-making jobs and our domestic steel-making capacity," Fields said late Tuesday.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference committee.

Church ordered to stop food giveaway

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fort Worth authorities have told a controversial minister that his church must stop giving sandwiches to poor people in downtown Fort Worth because it is illegal to hand out the food without a permit.

Such problems with the law are not new to the Rev. W.N. Otwell, who in the past has clashed with state authorities over his unlicensed home for boys at Fort Worth.

The minister and members of his church have been holding worship services each Sunday morning at the Fort Worth Water Gardens and then handing out sandwiches, chips and canned soda to the street people who attend the services.

"We've been handing out about 150 sandwiches to street people every Sunday," Otwell said Tuesday. "Last Sunday the health services people came by and said we had to cease operations."

C.J. Hampton of the Fort Worth Health Department gave Otwell a warning ticket and told him it is illegal to hand out the food without a permit, the minister said.

"I guess the city would rather see the poor eat out of garbage cans," he added. "I'm not going to apply for any stinking permit and I'm going to go right on feeding people."

Jody Hennecke, environmental health supervisor with the Health Department, said Otwell must obtain a permit for temporary food distribution, which costs $25 for the first day and $5 for each additional day up to a maximum of 14 days.

Ms. Hennecke also said, "Another issue we must address is that the food products must come from an approved source and you cannot distribute or sell food that is prepared in a home kitchen."

The food products, she said, must come from a restaurant, grocery store or manufacturing facility that is regularly inspected by health authorities.

"It's an emotional issue," she said. "But the stand we have to take is that the indigent has the right to be protected" from potentially dangerous food products.

Hennecke said the minister will be given a citation if he continues to give away the food. Such a citation could cost him a maximum fine of $1,000.

Otwell said his wife and other church members make the sandwiches and put them in bags with the chips and soft drinks.

The minister said he will not apply for a permit on grounds that it would violate the church-state separation of the U.S. Constitution, the same argument he has used for refusing to license his church-sponsored children's home in suburban Rendon.

Otwell said his congregation will be back in downtown Fort Worth this Sunday unless it is raining and they will distribute the free food after the service.

Retaliation feared for rape conviction

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Several of the jurors who convicted the first of 10 gang rape defendants say the defendant's testimony was damaging to his defense and two of the jurors say they fear retaliation from friends and relatives.

Jurors deliberated about two hours early Tuesday before finding Orlando Garza, 24, guilty of forcing the woman to have sex with him and then took about 20 minutes to recommend that he be given the maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

The victim claims that as many as 23 men forced her to have sex with them after she was abducted by Garza and three other men as she walked on a street near her home in the Duval County seat town of 5,000.

Some of the jurors were hesitant to discuss the case and two were fearful of retaliation by friends or relatives of Garza or the other 10 defendants.

The six jurors who would comment on the trial said they felt that they reached the right decision in finding Garza guilty.

Juror Edna Garza of Benavides, said that the two hours of early-morning deliberation yesterday were tedious and tense.

"There were two jurors who thought he (Garza) was not guilty, and this held things up," she said.

One juror who is a lifelong resident of San Diego asked that his name not be used because he fears that he would be killed if his name were published.

"You don't know these (people) here," he said. "They'll kill you if you talk."

Fuel standards need tightening

For the past three years, the Reagan administration has excused auto manufacturers from having to meet federal fuel efficiency standards. Last year, it went a step further and tried to get the fuel efficiency law repealed outright.

Thus, the recent Transportation Department proposal to do no more than partially reduce the mileage requirements for 1989 and 1990 model cars can be seen as a kind of progress. But that's hardly good enough.

Congress voted in 1975, in the middle of the energy crisis, to require every automaker (foreign and domestic) to annually raise the average fuel efficiency of its fleet to a specified level. And while that might not have been the most refined method for reducing oil consumption in America, it was a simple, swift-working and essentially fair program — and it was extraordinarily successful, helping to raise average car mileage in the nation by a third before the Reagan administration started backpedaling.

If anything, the argument for reviving and preserving federal mileage requirements is even more compelling today. The country's oil dependence remains as serious as ever, and it's now compounded by new information about the long-term environmental risks of excessive fuel-burning.

There is, moreover, no more effective fuel conservation strategy on the political horizon; the Reagan administration has canceled every other significant energy conservation program the nation once had.

Every time the administration has rolled back federal mileage standards, it has talked about saving jobs for autoworkers, but that is a red herring. The standards are as likely to create new jobs building small cars as to eliminate jobs building large cars; and if that isn't what happens then the federal requirements should be fixed, not scrapped.

What's really at issue is the administration's desire to save General Motors and Ford the trouble of having to either redesign their big cars or offer more attractive bargains on their small cars to meet the required fleet averages. But that is precisely the trouble the manufacturers have to be put to if any progress is to be made.

It's long past time to enforce the 27.5 miles per gallon fleet average that federal law says was supposed to be achieved by 1985, but which the administration isn't planning to require even by 1990. It's time, in fact, to move past that and start talking about even tougher standards for the future.

Cosmonauts were in deep doo-dinski

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Lyakhov turned the switch on the engine that would soon propel him and his comrade in space, Abdul Ahad Momand, back to Earth. Lyakhov and Momand were on a routine mission in their Soyuz T-5 capsule, traveling approximately 234 miles above the Earth's surface.

"Won't be long now, comrade, until we'll be back in Soviet Union as heroes," said Lyakhov.

"And get new hats and shoes," said a smiling Momand.

The engine purred for approximately a minute and then suddenly shut down.

"Uh-oh," said Lyakhov.

"What is this 'uh-oh'?" asked Momand. "You have accident in spacesuit?"

"Worse, comrade," said Lyakhov. "The engine, it has stopped."

"What should we do?"

"I'm not certain. Hand me screwdriver."

Lyakhov worked frantically, but the engine remained silent.

"What does this mean?" asked Momand, becoming a bit nervous.

"If engine starts again, it means nothing," explained Lyakhov.

"And if it doesn't?" asked Momand.

"Bad scene," explained Lyakhov. "We will run out of air and food and die."

"And no new hats and shoes," said Momand. "This is some deep doo-dinski we're in."

Lyakhov, still unable to restart the engine, called to Mission Control back in the Soviet Union.

"Mission Control," he began, in his best Chuck Yeager voice, "this is T-5, and we've got a little ol' trouble up here. Probably nothing to worry about, but just thought we'd let you know."

"What is the nature of your trouble?" asked Mission Control.

"Engine won't start."

"Too bad," said Mission Control. "You will soon run out of air and food and die. Have you checked battery?"

"That's a 10-4, Mission Control. Also checked spark plugs and fan belt."

"Then check carburetor."

"Check carburetor," Lyakhov said to Momand, who raised the hood of the space craft and looked at the engine.

"Try now," said Momand.

"Nothing," said Lyakhov.

"Careful not to flood," said Mission Control.

Still the engine would not start, and Mission Control could hear the uneasiness begin to build in the cosmonauts' voices.

"I hate it when this happens," said Lyakhov.

Said Momand, "Perhaps we should say prayer."

"But we do not pray in Soviet Union," said Lyakhov.

"I was in Catholic Church in United States once," said Momand. "I know prayer. Bow head and repeat after me, 'Under the B, 17, Under the O, 75...'"

"Bingo!" cried Lyakhov.

"Get engine started?" asked Mission Control.

"No," said Lyakhov. "Win toaster."

Fortunately, Lyakhov was able to get the reentry engine started again and he and Momand were able to land safely back in the Soviet Union.

Neither ever participated in a Soviet space program again, however. Lyakhov joined the Bolshoi Ballet and Momand defected to the United States, won the Florida lottery and bought Eastern Airlines.

Warning: Labels may be worthless

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

Every year, in the frenzy of bill passing that precedes the October adjournment, Congress passes some downright silly bills.

One that stands a good chance of becoming law this year is the requirement of a warning label on alcohol, similar to that on cigarettes. The label, designed to go on all distilled spirits, beer and wine, will state that alcohol could impair driving abilities and cause birth defects and other health problems.

No one disputes the truth of the statement, only the necessity for it. Is there anyone in the United States who doesn't know the possible side effects of alcohol? Will a warning label reach those who know but make a choice to disregard safety or health concerns? Will it reach those who don't care?

Around the rim

The label won't affect the majority of us who, if we drink at all, drink in moderation and with due caution, except possibly to raise the cost of our drinks. So what's the big deal?

The big deal is a government that thinks a warning label is an effective method of problem solving. Alcohol is undeniably a problem for some people. Those people need far more help than a warning label. A warning label is not a solution. We have already been through this with cigarettes. Yes, the number of smokers in the country is down, but why? Not because of warning labels on each pack and in each advertisement, but because of education and changing social values.

There were a staggering number of automobile accidents in this country last year. Should our cars come equipped with a warning, "The use of this product could result in life-threatening injuries?"

Every year workers are injured on the job. Will Congress eventually require a sign in every workplace, "Warning, working could be hazardous to your health?"

Pedestrians are killed each year — do we need a warning on our shoes? People slip in bath tubs — another warning?

The world, after all, is not a very safe place to live.

The men and women in the House and in the Senate have a unique opportunity to make a contribution toward solving problems. They have the money, the staff, and the resources to look for solutions. To slap on warning labels is a waste of their time and taxpayer money.

If Congress is truly concerned about the alcohol affecting driving abilities and health there are some alternatives:

- Prohibition;
- Educational programs;
- Leadership in enforcing stricter penalties against drunk drivers;
- Early medical care for all pregnant women, regardless of ability to pay;
- Alcohol treatment centers available to all, regardless of ability to pay.

And for Michael, one genuine smile

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The two candidates were off to an awful start, if you can impose intellectual standards on political debates.

The first question was about drugs, and the vice president said that "for a while, as I recall, it even seems to me that there was talk of legalizing, or decriminalizing, marijuana and other drugs, and I think that's all wrong." That is the equivalent of saying that "for a while, as a nation, we considered electing George Bush as president." There is increasing talk about decriminalization, and it has nothing to do with whether the backers of decriminalization think it wrong to take drugs, it has to do with the question what shall we do, face to face with the bankruptcy of the policy of drug interdiction, and face to face with a massive increase in crime.

But Michael Dukakis' irrelevance spared Bush embarrassment. He actually went on and on (returning to the theme later in the debate) about how evil it was for the United States to have dealings with Gen. Manuel Noriega of Panama, a proven drug runner, and how disillusioning this was to agreements made by Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy, with the likes of Stalin, Khrushchev, Brezhnev and Castro.

If Ronald Reagan's dealing with a drug-running foreign dictator to get him out of the way so "disillusions" our young people as to drive them to drugs, imagine how many of them take to drugs after listening to Dukakis speak about foreign policy.

Ah, but then, and quite quickly, it changed. On the budget deficit, Dukakis was driven to saying that he would collect money from delinquent taxpayers. That is the liberal equivalent of the right-wing notion that the deficit can be made up by locating welfare cheats. Sure, there are lots of people out there who aren't paying their taxes. The problem is to find them. There is no reason to suppose that the Democrats have a greater appetite than the Republicans for finding tax cheats.

But Dukakis' fever on the matter of money seemed to shine through his talk. More than once he talked about how George Bush wanted to "take" money from the poor and give it to the rich. The reference was to Bush's call for lowering capital gains taxes to where they were before the 1986 tax law went into effect.

Bush handled the problem swiftly and satisfactorily. He reminded the audience that it was John Kennedy who first proposed reducing the capital gains taxes, that that reduction resulted in higher, not lower, revenues for the government; and that the industrial activity engendered by these lowered taxes resulted in the hugely improved employment figures.

One rather wishes that Bush had looked at Dukakis and said: "I don't happen to be as rich as you are, Mike. But I have no objection whatever to anyone being even as rich as your running mate Mr. Bentsen, in a system in which the way to become rich is to launch enterprises, hire people, and increase the standard of living. You think that kind of thing is done by the state. Well, of the 15 million new jobs created in America under Reagan, only 100,000 or so were the result of government activity. If you don't like wealth, take a vow of poverty, but don't consign the United States to poverty." I like that!

Bush handled the Iran-hostage business with panache. He repeated, more or less in the tone of the soldier giving his name, rank and serial number, that he hadn't known about the Iran-hostage deal. But then he drew a fresh perspective on it all by saying: OK, you go ahead and assign me, George Bush, all the blame for Iran and throw in your version of Noriega if you want to. But the deal is, you give me one-half the credit for everything that went well in the foreign policy of the last eight years.

Dukakis greeted this with one of his forced grins. I swear, when Dukakis grins, it makes one think of everything they are saying about the deficient infrastructure of America: all the billions of dollars that are needed to fortify the bridges, rebuild the rail lines, shore up the tunnels. Add another billion to give Mike a reliable smile.

Brawley story called fabrication

NEW YORK (AP) — The state grand jury investigating the case has developed "overwhelming evidence" that Tawana Brawley fabricated a story of being abducted and raped by whites, The New York Times reported Tuesday.

Miss Brawley was found Nov. 28 outside an apartment complex in which the family once lived in Wappingers Falls, 75 miles north of New York. She was inside a garbage bag, smeared with dog feces, seemingly dazed, and with racial slurs written on her body.

The Times said the grand jury found plenty of evidence to show she was not abducted on Nov. 24 as she claimed. The panel instead determined she stayed in the nearby apartment where her family had lived.

It said she, possibly with an accomplice, smeared herself with the feces, wrote the racial slurs, tore and scorched her clothes and crawled into the bag and pretended to be in a traumatized daze, according to the newspaper.

It said that for weeks, she misled doctors, social workers, police, reporters and others with medical complaints and false and fragmentary accounts of her fabricated episode.

The grand jury speculated that her motivation may have been fear of punishment from her mother's boyfriend for her late nights out, and that drugs and her relationships with shady characters may have played a role, the Times said.

The grand jury report is expected to be released within weeks, the Times said.

Students test federal order

PURDY, Mo. (AP) — Purdy High School students have asked their principal to allow a dance, testing a federal order striking down the school's century-long dance ban.

Students on Monday presented a written request for a Dec. 10 homecoming dance to Principal Ron Richardson, said Joan Fox, whose daughter, Nancy, is student body president.

Richardson and Purdy Superintendent Sheldon Buxton were out of town Tuesday and unavailable for comment. But Buxton has said the dance request would "be handled in a routine manner, the same as we would any activity."

U.S. District Judge Russell Clark, after hearing four days of testimony in a suit filed by Mrs. Fox and other parents and students, ruled in August that the district's dance ban was unconstitutional. Clark said the ban promoted the values of those who believe dancing is sinful.

Earlier this month, the Purdy School Board indicated it would appeal Clark's order.

Much of Love Canal safe

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Much of Love Canal has been declared safe for resettlement, and Nunzio LoVerdi, who spent years trying to stay in the neighborhood that became synonymous with chemical contamination, vowed to be the first back.

"Your home is your home no matter what happens to it," LoVerdi said Tuesday. "I'm going back."

State health officials announced Tuesday that hundreds of former Love Canal residents may return to the homes they left after the neighborhood was declared a disaster by President Jimmy Carter 10 years ago. Up to 80 other families were hoping the study would confirm their decision to stay in their homes near the former chemical dump site.

The state health commissioner, Dr. David Axelrod, said that as a result of state and federal cleanup efforts, most areas of Love Canal contain no more chemicals than other neighborhoods in this industrial city.

The long-anticipated finding was hailed by former residents

Animal welfare and science groups clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The use of animals in research is appropriate, despite the pain suffered by the animals involved, the National Academy of Sciences has concluded.

"Research with animals has saved human lives, lessened human suffering and advanced scientific understanding," the academy said in a report Tuesday from its research arm, the National Research Council.

The report was written as a response to the animal rights movement. It noted that the animals used in research often die, and recommended more frequent use of animals abandoned in pounds and shelters.

"This document says that in the best judgment of people with diverse opinions, it is appropriate to use animals in research for human welfare," said Dr. Dominick P. Piripira, one member of the committee that wrote the report. "It is the job of humans to care for each other."

Another panel member, Christine Stevens, president of the Animal Welfare Institute, refused to sign the report. She said it underestimated the amount of animal abuse in laboratories nationwide.

The report is "scientifically flawed, factually inaccurate, morally unenlightened, defensive and a disservice to animals and people," said People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals. PETA also charged the report was tainted because it was paid for by the National Institutes of Health and pharmaceutical companies that use animals in research.

About 20 million animals, mostly rats and mice, are used by U.S. researchers yearly, and fewer than 200,000 of the more than 10 million unwanted animals killed in pounds or shelter in the United States annually are released to researchers

World

Study shows AIDS increasing

LONDON (AP) — AIDS will strike 150,000 more people around the world this year, more than in all previous years combined, an independent report said.

The report released Tuesday by the independent study group, Panos Institute, also said the virus that causes AIDS appears to be spreading at the rate of one victim a minute worldwide.

The study, "AIDS and the Third World," said an increasing number of countries are imposing AIDS-related restrictions on the entry of foreigners or citizens returning from abroad.

"Worldwide, it seems likely that a new person becomes infected with the HIV (AIDS) virus every minute," said the 200-page report.

"During 1988, 150,000 new cases of full-blown AIDS are expected — as many as are thought to have occurred in all the years of the epidemic so far."

Last week, Dr. Jonathan Mann, director of the World Health Organization's AIDS program, said in Vienna that he estimates 1 million new AIDS cases will be reported within the next five years, a number consistent with the Panos Institute's projections.

AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, weakens the body's defenses against disease. It is spread primarily through sexual contact and the sharing of syringes by drug addicts.

Poland gets new prime minister

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — In choosing a man unpopular with Solidarity to be prime minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski has signaled that authorities are not about to roll over and play dead in talks with the opposition.

The selection of Rakowski at a time when authorities have set aside their longstanding opposition to direct talks with leaders of the banned free trade union movement raised some eyebrows in this capital city.

The round-table talks will be conducted by someone other than Rakowski, who will have his hands full assembling a new governing team and coping with Poland's disintegrating economy.

In the three preparatory talks so far, Kiszczak has taken the lead for the government, and participants said he has shown a good rapport with Walesa.

In addition, there are signs that Rakowski, who until the rise of Solidarity was considered a leading liberal within the communist party, would like to be seen again as a reformer who will bring greater diversity to Polish government.

Family of Olympic boxer broke

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Officials paid the back rent of a Filipino boxer to prevent the family of the country's first Olympic medal winner in 24 years from being evicted from their apartment.

Divina Serantes told The Manila Chronicle that her husband, Leopoldo Serantes, had so much on his mind that he left the family without a cent when he departed for Seoul, South Korea, to compete in the Summer Olympics.

"Pol really left nothing behind," Mrs. Serantes said, referring to her husband by his nickname. She said the family, including three children, was three months' behind in its rent.

On Tuesday, Manila Mayor Mel Lopez sent an aide to the Serantes family with enough money to pay the rent, the newspaper said.

Serantes, who is assured of a bronze medal, tries for the silver on Thursday when he goes against Ivailo Hristov of Bulgaria.

With Tuesday's victory, the Serantes family should have fewer financial worries. By clinching at least a bronze, Serantes is assured of an $18,500 bonus.

Abby defends her position on using animals for research

DEAR ABBY: I read that you are an animal rights activist, and as such, you are opposed to using live animals for testing in laboratories. Abby, please be reasonable. You make no sense at all, woman!

Where would medical science be if live animals were not used? Please rethink your stance. I love animals too, but not so much that I would oppose animal testing that could benefit humanity. — FOR HUMAN RIGHTS IN BALTIMORE

DEAR FOR: You read incorrectly. I am opposed to the use of live animals for testing household products and cosmetics. I am not opposed to using live animals for medical and biomedical purposes when there is no alternative method of testing.

I am aware that much progress has resulted from animal experiments, but if there is no alternative to using live animals, we should treat those animals humanely to prevent needless suffering.

DEAR ABBY: You suggested that people send for little signs that say "Thank You for Not Smoking" if they don't want guests to smoke in their homes. Why don't you tell them to warn guests in advance, so smokers can decline invitations to homes where they are not free to smoke?

You certainly are down on smokers, Abby. I'll bet you would turn down a doomed man's request for one last puff on the grounds that it would be bad for his health.

NORWALK SMOKER
DEAR SMOKER: You are mistaken. I was once put to that test when someone I loved very much begged me to get him a cigarette while he was in a hospital, dying of cancer.

I went out into the hall, bummed a cigarette from a stranger, and granted the dear man his wish. Why not? The harm had already been done.

DEAR ABBY: I come from a very large family — lots of aunts, uncles and cousins. We get together quite often because we all live within a few hours of each other.

Last May, we had a big family wedding, and that's when my first cousin and I realized that we were very much in love with each other. When we were growing up, we had a crush on each other, but we never expected it to lead to marriage. I think we were both fighting it because first cousins weren't supposed to get married.

Well, at this family wedding we had to face our true feelings, Abby, we have so much in common, and we cannot deny that there is a very strong physical attraction between us. We have not gone all the way, but we are getting very close to it. (I am 24, and she is 21.)

If we should decide to marry, can we get married in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Illinois or Wisconsin? If not, in which nearby state? — KISSING COUSINS IN MINNESOTA

DEAR COUSINS: First-cousin marriages are prohibited by law in the states you mentioned. The closest state that permits it is Colorado.

There is a valid reason for prohibiting first-cousin marriages. If you should decide to marry and want children, I would recommend genetic counseling. Good luck.

Larrie Norman honored at bridal shower

Larrie Jean Norman, bride-elect of Steven Bradley Coates, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower Saturday in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth St. Baptist Church.

Other special guests were the honoree's mother, Beverly Norma; her sister, Leslie Newton; two grandmothers: Lorene Norman and Juanan Osborn, four aunts: Linda Alexander, Charlotte Norman, Glenna Osborn and Shirley Ezell. Also, the prospective groom's mother, Marsha Coates of San Angelo; his grandmother, Mrs. T. J. Lynn and his great-grandmother, Tomilee Ford. Other family members included three cousins: Carrie Norman, Debbie Norman and Ronna Osborn.

The honoree, her mother and future mother-in-law were presented with silk corsages in her chosen colors of slate blue and white. These colors were also used in the room and table decorations.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white lace floor-length cloth over a white linen underlay, rimmed at the corners with blue ribbons and centered with a floral arrangement of blue and white silk flowers flanked by white candles in crystal holders.

Shower hostesses were: Jean Slate, Patsy Anderson, Dania West, Latrice Davis, Leta Kirby, Dianne Oliphant, Betty Griffith, Delores Hitt, Pat Rhoton, Mary Cain, Joy Hester, Jeneva Dunagan, Dorothy Shanks, Marguerite Cooper and Frances Lee. Their gift to the honored couple was a vacuum cleaner.

The couple is to marry Saturday at College Baptist Church in Big Spring. They will make their home in San Angelo.

Food

In the Dutch, with cheese recipes

Ready to try something different for your guests? "Eet Smakelijk!"

That's Dutch for good eating and the folks at the Holland imported cheese firm suggest that you give one of their winning consumer recipe contest entries a try.

Five of those winners are included today for your enjoyment, including the grand prize winner by Marise Pokorny:

LEERDAMMER PUMPKIN TRIANGLES

Makes 34 triangles
15 ounces of solid pack pumpkin (cans are usually 29 ounces)
10 ounces of Leerdammer grated cheese
1 pinch of salt plus one tablespoon for the water
1/2 teaspoon of grated nutmeg (optional)
1 package of Square Wonton Skins
1 stick of butter (4 ounces)
4 tablespoons of heavy cream
1 lemon peel, grated

Grate the Leerdammer cheese and lemon peel by hand or with a little Cuisinart. Combine the pumpkin and grated Leerdammer cheese in a bowl (set aside 3 tablespoons of cheese for later), add a pinch of salt, if you like, half teaspoon of grated nutmeg. Take 6 squares of Wonton Skins from package at a time (to avoid drying out). Place in the center of each skin (diagonally) one teaspoon of the mixture of cheese and pumpkin, wet the edges of the skin with water and fold to form a triangle. Avoid breaking the skin. Set the triangles in a plate and start again with the next six. Bring water and a tablespoon of salt to a boil in a large pot. Cook the triangles 6 minutes, drain and place them in a serving dish. Cover with melted butter and heavy cream, sprinkle with the Leerdammer cheese and 2 spoons of grated lemon peel. Serve and enjoy them!

Mary Harlow's DUTCH CHEESE CHOWDER

Serves 4
1 large potato, diced
1 1/2 cup Gouda cheese
1/2 green pepper, chopped
2 med. sized carrots, chopped

3/4 cup milk
4 bacon slices baked and crumbled
2 quarts water
2 bouillon cubes

In one quart of water boil vegetables until tender. Drain, return to pot. Add the other quart of water, bouillon, green pepper and bacon. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and add cheese, stirring constantly. When cheese is melted add milk. Stir until hot.

Florence Rein's STACK O'GOUDANESS

8 7/8-inch flour tortillas
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 16oz can sauerkraut, well drained
12 ozs. Gouda cheese, shredded

Place one tortilla in greased 9-inch pie plate. Spread with about 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sauerkraut. Top with 1/3 cup Gouda, repeat with remaining tortillas, mustard, sauerkraut and Gouda. Bake in preheated 350 degrees oven for 10 minutes. Slice and serve.

Sandra Cohen's DUTCH DIPPERS

12 oz. package of semisweet chocolate morsels
3 tablespoons white wine
8 oz. Gouda cheese

Cut cheese into bite-sized cubes. Set aside. Over hot water stir chocolate is melted. Remove bowl. Using hors d'oeuvre forks, dip cheese into mixture.

Joan Trapp's CRAB DELIGHTS

8 oz. Holland Roomkaas cheese
4 tablespoons butter
4 oz. sea legs chopped coarsely (or crab meat)
English muffins

Melt cheese and butter together until smooth. Add sea legs or crab meat, blend. Partially brown English muffins. Cut each half into 4 pieces. Top with cheese mixture. Brown under broiler until golden brown and hot. Eat and enjoy.

Texas campaign heads debate possible energy debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Charging that the Republican administration has ignored energy industry problems for eight years, the chairman of Michael Dukakis' Texas campaign wants to debate his counterpart in the George Bush campaign.

Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, Dukakis' Texas chairman, said he wanted to debate his candidate's position with former congressman Tom Loeffler, co-chairman of Bush's campaign.

"For eight years, the Republicans have ignored the problem of energy-producing states like Texas, hoping they will go away," Sharp said Tuesday.

"They've let our local economies be destroyed. They've let more than 3,000 rigs shut down. They've let people lose their jobs," he said.

"We owe it to the people of Texas to present our respective candidates' views on energy and bring this issue to the forefront of the campaign in Texas," Sharp added during a campaign stop in Longview.

Responding, a spokesman for Bush's Texas effort said, "When it comes to energy, Michael Dukakis may as well come from the planet Mars."

Reggie Bashur, Bush's deputy Texas campaign manager, said such a meeting would be no contest.

"John Sharp should debate Michael Dukakis. Tom feels the people of Texas know George Bush. John Sharp needs to talk to his candidate and ask why he has supported a windfall profits tax, why he has been against the decontrol of natural gas, why he has been in favor of the control of oil prices and why he did not know what a rig count was," Bashur said.

"He (Dukakis) has been until this election year a typical, anti-energy liberal from the Northeast," Bashur charged.

Sharp, in an open letter to Loeffler, said he thought both campaigns understand the importance of energy issues to Texans.

"I know you agree that developing a national energy policy is a top priority for Texas," Sharp told Loeffler.

"I am confident that Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen are addressing this issue and are telling Texans about the energy policy they would develop for this country. Since George Bush refused to address the energy forum in Houston last week, Texans have yet to hear how he stands on this critical issue," Sharp wrote.

Bashur said Texans are aware of Bush's energy policies.

"George Bush is pro-energy," the campaign aide said. "He comes out of the Texas oilfields, where he stated a business in 1948. And Texans know George Bush will form a national energy policy that will stabilize oil prices. He will help open markets for natural gas, which he wants fully decontrolled."

HOUSTON — Republican Vice Presidential nominee Dan Quayle gives the Houston Cougar sign on the University of Houston campus Tuesday afternoon. He addressed student supporters in one of several stops in Houston. He is in El Paso today.

Quayle attacking Dukakis for membership in ACLU

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO — Vice Presidential candidate Dan Quayle, plunging into Lloyd Bentsen's home turf, didn't bother to mention his Democratic counterpart but wasted no time in challenging Bentsen's running mate, Michael Dukakis, to resign his membership in the liberal American Civil Liberties Union.

And while Bentsen has dual races — his Senate re-election bid and the vice presidential contest — Quayle made it clear that he too is operating under a dual strategy: boosting the coffers of Bentsen's Senate opponent and concentrating his firepower on Dukakis, not the No. 2 player.

Quayle has appearances today in El Paso, Amarillo and Dallas in his second consecutive campaign day in Texas, a critical state with 29 electoral votes.

At a Houston rally Tuesday, Quayle called on Dukakis to return his ACLU membership card.

"Let him renounce all their bizarre positions," Quayle said.

The Republicans have attacked Dukakis for being a "card-carrying member" of the organization, and Republican George Bush raised the issue in his debate Sunday with Dukakis, whom he attempted to portray as a liberal out of touch with mainstream views.

Quayle said that the ACLU policy guide includes such positions as removing the words "In God We Trust" from U.S. currency, and that the organization has argued for legalizing prostitution and drugs and advocates abortion on demand.

The ACLU has disputed characterizations made by Bush, and a spokeswoman for the group said Tuesday that Quayle and Bush were "simplifying and misstating at the same time what we do and believe in."

Colleen O'Connor said the ACLU believes the focus in dealing with drug users should be on education and rehabilitation, rather than punishment. A similar approach would work with prostitutes, she said. Decriminalization of both, she said, would remove the profiteering and thus the availability.

Dukakis aides, seeking to distance the candidate from the organization, have noted that the ACLU has filed lawsuits against Dukakis as governor of Massachusetts over his plans to use roadblocks to catch drunken drivers and a policy effectively barring homosexuals from becoming foster parents.

At an El Paso rally, Quayle said Dukakis can, by resigning, show "without waffling, without backsliding, without the famous Dukakis shuffle... that he repudiates all the outrageous positions of the ACLU."

This is Quayle's first campaign appearance in Texas as the Republican vice presidential nominee. Bush and Bentsen both call Texas home, and the Texas senator has spent considerable time in the state campaigning not only for the national ticket but also for his Senate re-election bid.

MHMR youth program funded

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation announced Monday that it has received a $150,000 federal grant to develop a program for identifying youngsters with mental health problems.

The program would train those who work with teen-agers and younger children to spot such problems.

Regenia Hicks, department coordinator of Children and Youth Services, said national figures indicate that 11 percent of children in the United States have emotional problems and two or more percent are seriously emotionally disturbed.

Honors for two in Merit program

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Two Big Spring High School seniors have been recognized as commended students in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Thane M. Russey and Kelly D. Parks will each receive a letter of commendation for placing in the top 50,000 of more than 1 million participants in the 34th annual National Merit Program.

"Being named a commended student in the extremely competitive Merit Program is a credit to these young men and women and the schools which play a key role in the development of academically talented youth," said an official with the Merit Program.

More than 1 million participants entered the Merit Program competition by taking the PSAT/NMS-QT in October 1987 as high school juniors. The 35,000 students who were designated as commended

THANE RUSSEY students scored slightly below the level required for semifinalist standing in their respective states. The 15,000 semifinalists, whose KELLY PARKS names were announced Sept. 15, will continue in the competition for some 6,000 Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring.

Cream that rises to baseball's top

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

With baseball season winding down, and the playoffs about to begin, it's time to take a look back at the season and see who the "real" All-Stars were for the season.

A lot of players make the All-Star teams in July, some because they rightly deserve to, and others because they play in the cities where fans stuff the ballot box. But there are a lot of ballplayers that have great first half of the seasons, get All-Star recognition, then falter miserably during the second half.

Today I will pick my Major League All-Star team for the entire season.

Catcher was hard to chose because there weren't many catchers that had what you would call outstanding seasons. The sentimental favorites are Carlton Fisk and Gary Carter, but on my team the nod goes to Bob Boone of the California Angels. At 40, Boone can still get the clutch hits, and he still has the best throwing arm in the league.

Tony Pena of the St. Louis Cardinals, Benito Santiago of the San Diego padres and Terry Stienbach of the Oakland A's are a step behind Boone, mainly because of Boone's leadership abilities.

There are a host of good players to choose from at first base this season, but I'm going with the San Francisco Giants' Will Clark. He's a power hitter with a good hitting eye. He doesn't chase many bad balls, unlike a Mark McGwire of Oakland — although McGwire has hit 30 homers and driven in 94 runs. Clark is batting .283, with 28 homers and 105 RBI's.

Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees is the best all-purpose hitting first baseman. He has a .308 batting average, but has struggled down the stretch, as has Atlanta Braves' Gerald Perry, who's batting .304.

The nod at second base goes to the Seattle Mariners' Harold Reynolds. Reynolds is unheralded because of the team he plays on, but he has a good glove and bat, and great speed. To date, Reynolds is batting .285 with 34 stolen bases.

He barley noses out St. Louis Cardinals' Jose Oquendo, who is the first major leaguer in 21 years to play all nine positions.

It seems shortstop and the Cardinals' Ozzie Smith are synonymous. There may be some that hit better, but none handle a glove better. His .268 batting average is respectable.

Detroit's Allan Trammell and Los Angeles' Steve Sax are more productive at the plate. Trammell has is batting .311 with 69 RBI's while Sax is hitting .275 with 54 RBIs. Ozzie Guillen, of the White Sox, Tony Fernandez of Toronto and Barry Larkin of Cincinnati also had good years.

Without a doubt Boston's Wade Boggs is my third baseman. He is the best hitter in the game today and will win the AL batting crown again, currently hitting .363, plus he has a good glove. Even more impressive is the seven consecutive 200-hit seasons he's put together.

I had a hard time choosing my outfield, but the three players I came up with truly deserve the title of impact players — Jose Canseco of the A's, Dave Winfield of the Yankees and Kirk Gibson of the Dodgers.

Canseco is the MVP of the majors. His .311 batting average, 41 homers and 120 RBI's speak for itself. And let us not forget the 40 stolen bases, making him the first player in Major League history to hit 40 homers and stel 40 bases in the same season. If he were in the National League, he would win the triple crown.

The same goes for 37-year-old Winfield; he would be in the running for the NL triple crown with his 25 homers, 106 RBI's and .327 batting average.

The Dodgers got Gibson from Detroit, and he's one of the main reason they won the NL West. Although slowed by injuries, Gibson is batting .290 with 25 homers and 78 RBI's. Gibson was an All-America wide receiver at Michigan State, and his speed makes him a threat to hit 30 homers and steal 30 bases a season.

Gibson barley edges out Chicago Cubs' Andre Dawson, who is batting .298 with 23 round-trippers and 74 RBI's.

Others that deserve mention are Kirby Puckett, Twins, Darrell Strawberry, Mets, Eric Davis, Reds, Tony Gwynn, Padres and Hank Greenwell, Red Sox.

Now own to the pitchers. My ace would have to be the Dodger right hander Orel Hershiser with his 23-8 record and 2.35 .ERA. Hershiser has currently pitched five consecutive shutouts, 49 scoreless innings, and is closing in on Don Drysdale's record of 56 2/3 innings of scoreless ball. In fact, Hershiser is scheduled to pitch tonight.

Rounding out my starting rotation is Frank Viola of the Twins, 23-7, 2.54 .ERA, Dwight Gooden, Mets, 18-6, 3.00 .ERA and steady John Tudor of the Dodgers, 10-8, 2.20 .ERA.

My top reliever is Dennis Eckersley of Oakland, who leads the Majors with 43 saves. Then there is Todd Worrell of the Cardinals, Lee Smith of Boston and Dave Smith of Houston.

So there you have it. My official Major League All-Star team. Give me that team and I'll win a World Series.

Olympic security will be tighter

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The South Koreans, world-class friskers and scanners, are drawing their tight security net even tighter around the Olympics as the sports spectacular heads toward its final days.

Seoul's tough-talking student radicals are threatening to disrupt this Sunday's marathon. A representative for two U.S. track stars, meanwhile, believes his athletes have been targeted by some unknown terrorists.

A U.S. security specialist says his biggest worry is the anti-Americanism surfacing among ordinary South Koreans. And one Korean official finds the real security threat coming from the athletes themselves — one might defect and put the Olympic hosts in an awkward position.

After 12 days of Games, the security concerns at Seoul are often in the eye of the beholder.

"We increased the vigil," said an Olympic security official.

Snyder spikes Lady Steers

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

The Big Spring High School Lady Steer volleyballers dug themselves too many holes to climb from Tuesday night in Steer Gym, and as a result lost their District 4-4A contest to the Snyder Tigers, 4-15, 15-12, 4-15.

The Tigers leapt to quick leads in both the first and third games, and the Lady Steers were unable to regroup against the taller Snyder squad.

The Tigers' size advantage — and the Lady Steers' inability to recover from the Snyder blitzes — was the difference in the contest, according to Big Spring coach Lois McKenzie.

"They were a lot taller than our kids," McKenzie said. "We spotted them too many points in the first and third sets. We came back pretty good in the second set, but in the third set, we were a little like a balloon with a slow leak... we came out flat."

Snyder raced to a quick 8-0 lead in the first set, thanks in large part to the serving of Rhonda Echols and Teena Brazil, along with outstanding front-line play from Melody Pickering and Anne Osburn, who ended the evening with eight and six kills, respectively.

A service ace from Kerstin Schmeinger, a palming call against the Tigers and good serves from Renae Reinert and Melissa Martinez narrowed the score to 9-4, but Brazil's serves were too hot for the Lady Steers to handle, and Snyder quickly closed out the first set.

McKenzie took her squad off the court after the first set for a strategy session. It is unknown what she said, but whatever it was, it obviously worked.

"It wasn't anything I did; they just played better," McKenzie said of her team's second-set recovery. "It's taking them a while to believe in themselves." No lack of confidence was displayed by the Lady Steers during the second set. Behind the serve of Marta Mathews and Tracy Schaffner, Big Spring edged ahead, 2-0.

Particularly effective for the Lady Steers during this period were spikers Dorothy Viasana and Martinez. Not to be ignored was the setting of Jennifer Cranford, who did yeoman work all evening feeding her teammates.

Leading 12-4, however, it almost came apart for Big Spring. With Pickering serving and Echols and Osburn minding the net, the Tigers narrowed the gap to 12-11.

But Mathews, Viasana and Schaffner came to the fore at this crucial stage, and Big Spring closed out the second set.

In the third and final set, however, Pickering and company proved to be too much for the smaller Lady Steers. The Tigers raced to a 9-0 lead, and were never seriously threatened the rest of the way.

"Snyder was just a little more consistent than we were," McKenzie said after the match. "... I guess we'll have to crawl a bit before we learn how to walk."

She lauded the efforts of Viasana, Mathews, Schaffner, Martinez and Cranford, saying all four played commendable defense in the contest.

With the loss, the Lady Steers drop to 5-14 for the season, and 1-5 in district play, while coach Patty Grimmitt's Tigers improve to 14-8 and 4-2.

Big Spring also found the going rough in the sub-varsity games, as both the junior varsity and freshmen teams lost to Snyder.

The JVs lost by a score of 15-4, 15-1, while the freshmen were on the short end of a 15-8, 15-9 tally. The JV falls to 2-3 in league play and 6-10 overall.

The varsity spikers next see action Saturday, when they travel to Fort Stockton to take on the Panthers.

Soviets shock U.S. hoopsters

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An NBA-tutored Soviet basketball team teaches the United States a lesson, Carl Lewis' disciple beats the master, and one-handed pitcher Jim Abbott gives the world a study in courage and achievement.

Scandal aside, sports are alive and well at the Olympic Games.

They are, in fact, thriving, despite the lingering gloom of the Ben Johnson drug affair, as old rivalries rev up and young stars shine.

American boxers are digging in for what they call "Operation Gold," an assault that so far has landed eight fighters in the medal round, more than any other nation.

Florence Griffith Joyner, she of the swift legs and long nails, is poised to go after her second gold in the women's 200-meter dash after smashing the Olympic record Wednesday in her second-round heat in 21.76 seconds. The world's fastest woman already has a gold in the 100.

Lewis' solid gold Games melted when teammate Joe DeLoach beat him by four one-hundredths of a second with a time of 19.75 seconds in the 200. But with a silver and two golds in the long jump and 100, the latter thanks to Johnson's disqualification, Lewis is happy.

"This is a tremendous thing that's happened," he said. "Americans sweep the long jump, two Americans win in the 100 and now two Americans win in the 200. The best thing about it is that the U.S. can do well."

For DeLoach, there was no greater satisfaction than beating his friend, training partner and mentor.

"Carl has been the inspiration for me," DeLoach said. "He's made the difference for me. We trained harder than we ever have for this race."

Steve Lewis, no relation to Carl, also led an American sweep in the 400, upsetting world record-holding teammate Butch Reynolds and barely missing a 20-year-old Olympic mark.

Lewis, 19, the youngest man on the U.S. track team, won in 43.87 seconds, one-hundredth of a second off Lee Evans' record in the high altitude of Mexico City in 1968. Reynolds won the silver and Lewis' UCLA teammate, Danny Everett, took the bronze.

It was far from an all-American day, however, despite six U.S. medals. The Soviets added five medals to continue their lead with 85, including 36 gold. East Germany is second with 29 gold and 73 medals overall, and the United States is third with 19 gold and 57 total medals.

In a renewal of an old and bitter rivalry, the Soviet and American basketball teams took the court against each other for the first time since the disputed gold medal game won in the final seconds by the Soviets at the 1972 Munich Games.

All the players this time were children when that last game was held, but so much was made of it going into the Olympics it seemed there was some kind of grudge to settle for the only American loss in Olympic history.

The only thing settled was that now there are two blotches on the otherwise perfect U.S. Olympic hoops record after an 82-76 semifinal victory by the Soviets.

The Soviets thoroughly outthrust and outmuscled the Americans, beating them fair and square and leaving no room for controversy.

Don't forget about the other sprinter

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Florence Griffith Joyner had just set an astounding world record in the 100 meters, leaving Gwen Torrence with a tough act to follow.

"I had to go right after that," Torrence said of the race that Griffith Joyner ran in a sizzling 10.49 seconds. "Everybody was talking about it. I ran a 10.78, but it was hard to run after that."

It happened at the Olympic trials in July. At the Seoul Games, too, Torrence is the other U.S. woman sprinter.

At any other Olympics, she would attract attention as a budding new American talent. At any other Olympics, she would have a shot at stardom. But not at these Olympics.

Torrence placed fifth in the 100 meters with a time of 10.97 and on Wednesday had the third-fastest qualifying time in the second round of the 200, running a 22.25. She is articulate and attractive.

But how do you compete with someone like Griffith Joyner, a woman who sets a new Olympic record almost every time she comes out of the blocks, a woman who has a new, outlandish manicure job for almost every race?

For 23-year-old Torrence, Griffith Joyner is an inspiration, not a frustration.

"When I was training, I thought I was doing everything, but I wasn't," she said. "I wasn't taking my body to the limit like she was."

Griffith Joyner, 28, has taught women athletes just how far they can go, and the lesson hasn't been lost on Torrence.

"I don't feel like it's overshadowing me, because I feel like that gives me something to look forward to," Torrence said. "I look forward to the day when I can beat her, and then I'll be in her spot."

So Torrence is waiting her turn, even though that turn may be four years away.

"I know my day is coming, no doubt about it," she said.

Perhaps her shyness as a child allows Torrence to be

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea — Top Canadian sports officials said Wednesday the medical evidence against disgraced world-record sprinter Ben Johnson precludes any alibi of trickery or sabotage, and reports surfaced that it was the sprinter's personal physician who gave him anabolic steroids.

The physician, George M. "Jamie" Astaphan, a member of Johnson's Olympic entourage and the man the runner sought out on a mysterious trip to the island nation of St. Kitt's in May, denied administering any banned substances to Johnson.

Meanwhile, an Olympic medical officer said that within an hour after the runner's world record in the 100-meter dash last Saturday, Johnson acknowledged that he had taken three different medications before the race — including an injection.

Dr. Lee In-joon was the doping control coordinator who stood guard over Johnson immediately after the race and stayed with him for about 1 1/2 hours until the heavily muscled sprinter could produce a urine sample.

In interviews with New York Newsday and then The Associated Press, the doctor said that he and Johnson talked during the waiting period for at least 30 minutes, and Johnson seemed unusually subdued for someone who had just won a gold medal in the startling time of 9.79 seconds.

Lee said Johnson did not specify the medications he had taken. His sample, as discovered 36 hours later in laboratory analysis, contained the anabolic steroid stanozolol, and Johnson was stripped of his medal and banned from international competition for two years.

"He never told me he had taken any anabolic steroids," said Lee. But Lee said he had "a hunch," both from Johnson's statements and his demeanor, that he would flunk the drug test. "You get a feeling when you've seen athletes," he said. "Some have no idea of what's going on in doping control, and some are very defensive. I would say Mr. Johnson was more defensive."

Though Johnson and his agents claimed that he must have fallen victim to a saboteur or mistaken testing procedures, Canadian officials expressed embarrassment Wednesday that they even realized that story to Olympic authorities.

"There has been an unfortunate confusion around this issue," conceded Lyle Makosky, the top sports official of the Canadian government. "The tampering option is not defensible."

"Sadly, it kind of reduced the credibility of the Canadian presentation that it was even raised," he added.

When confronted with the evidence against him, Johnson and his personal managers claimed that someone must have spiked a bottle of sarsaparilla carried to the stadium by the runner. The said Johnson had found a smelly, sticky substance at the bottom of the bottle, subsequently washed out by his doctor — Astaphan.

But Makosky said the evidence proved that Johnson had taken steroids on several occasions, and that the chemical had been metabolized — broken down by natural bodily processes. Whether or not there was anything illegal in the water bottle, it would not have been metabolized by the time the urine sample was taken, he said.

"If someone gives you a drink, you can't metabolize it in two or three hours," Makosky said. "It might show up in your urine, but not in a metabolized form."

Moreover, he said, "This particular result, which is technically and scientifically solid, shows extended or repeated use over time."

The lab result shows a series of sharp rises on the graph and "You can't get that result from using steroids one day," Makosky said.

Sports Illustrated and The New York Daily News reported today that Astaphan, whose practice is on

St. Kitt's, near Johnson's native Jamaica, has administered steroids to Johnson in the past, and that he is a firm believer in giving athletes performance-enhancing drugs. Astaphan, long a subject of rumors among athletes about Johnson's purported drug use, denied the allegations late Tuesday on ABC's "Nightline."

Earlier, Astaphan told reporters at the Toronto airport that neither he nor Johnson, whom he accompanied on the flight from Seoul, had any knowledge about the use of banned drugs.

"To my knowledge and to his knowledge, no, he has not taken anything," said Astaphan. "I never gave him any" steroids, and "He never told me he took any."

On "Nightline," Astaphan declared that "these charges are totally untrue and unfounded."

Sports Illustrated said two sources had told the magazine that Astaphan had given Johnson steroids when the runner went to St. Kitt's in late May to seek treatment for a hamstring pull suffered 10 days earlier. The sources, according to the magazine, said Johnson was aware he was getting the drug. Johnson, a Canadian emigrant, and his Toronto coach, Charlie Francis, almost split up when the athlete insisted going to the island rather than accompany Francis and the Canadian track team on a tour of Europe.

TORONTO — Sprinter Ben Johnson — who was stripped of his Olympic gold medal because he tested positive for steroid use — and his mother, Gloria, move through a crowd of reporters after arriving at Pearson International Airport Tuesday afternoon.

LT ready to get back on the field

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Lawrence Taylor took his treatment for substance abuse very seriously and is now ready to return to work, a former teammate says.

"This has been an extremely tough month for him," Beasley Reece, a television commentator with WVIT-TV in Hartford, Conn., said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "He's ready to go to work."

The NFL on Tuesday reinstated Taylor and four other players who had turned in positive urine tests during training camp and were suspended by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Reece said Taylor, a Pro Bowl player in each of seven previous seasons, told him on Sunday that he expected to be reinstated this week and added that Taylor has missed competition since the suspension.

"He has to play in something where there is a definite winner and a definite loser," Reece said. "That's part of his personality. Football is the ultimate for him. There are hundreds of battles on the field and ultimately one winner and one loser, and it can't be him."

Reece said he and four other men played a lot of one-on-one basketball with Taylor this past week.

"It was one-on-one and Lawrence would play someone and then play the next, and the next and the next. If they didn't take him back this week I might be dead," Reece quipped.

Taylor was treated on an outpatient basis and Reece said the seven-time Pro Bowl linebacker has become sort of a buff on the history of drug treatment.

"He is taking this very seriously," Reece said. "He knows this is the battle of his life."

Giants general manager George Young said he would comment on Taylor's reinstatement today.

"I'm not saying anything today," he said Tuesday.

Taylor has missed four games since being suspended on Aug. 29. The Giants defense has struggled and given up an average of 387.8 yards per game and almost 25 points per game. The Giants are 2-2 and face Washington, 2-2, on Sunday.

Defensive end Leonard Marshall, who has the locker next to Taylor, smiled a little on Monday when asked if Taylor could immediately help the Giants.

"To whom much is given, much is expected," Marshall said. "So you know, I just hope the guy can come back and he can stay healthy and help the team."

C-City QB, Forsan guard top players

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The fourth week of Crossroads Country football action brought some new faces into the limelight along with the regulars it seems that make the Honor Roll weekly. This week it was a Colorado City quarterback and Forsan defensive guard that get the nod for the top performers in week four.

Colorado City senior signal-caller Chris Perkin was in complete charge of a Colorado City offense that rolled to almost 300 yards in a 38-14 win over Sonora. Perkin, a 5-9, 155-pounder, accounted for 191 of those yards himself.

In his best performance so far this season, Perkin completed 9 of 15 passes for 151 yards and added 40 more yards rushing on 13 carries, including an eight-yard TD run. For his play, Perkin is named the Player of the Week.

The young Forsan Buffaloes won their first game of the season against the Sterling City Eagles. Forsan's 13-0 win was the Buffaloes' first shutout in a year-and-a-half, as they held Sterling City to 152 yards total offense.

Keying the defensive charge was 6-0, 175-pound senior guard Matt

Evans. According to Forsan coach Jan East, Evans did his main job of keeping the offensive linemen off the linebacker. But in the process, Evans contributed four unassisted and six assisted tackles. His performance earns him the Defensive Player of the Week.

But Evans' performance didn't stop there. Offensively, playing right tackle, Evans graded out 81 percent. This makes the second consecutive week he has fielded the highest grade of all Forsan blockers.

Other top offensive effort from week four were:

- Garden City tailback Tony Ramirez, 31 carries, 146 yards in a 24-6 win over Stanton. Garden City fullback Weldon Hillger gained 77 yards in 11 carries. This was all provided via the blocking of offensive linemen Martin Mier, Jimmy Braden, John Sidenberger, Gregg Huff and Roy Ramirez.

- In their loss to Garden City, Stanton tailback Steve Scurlark gained 112 yards in nine carries, including a 71-yard TD run. Before he was injured in the third quarter, QB Brad Holland completed 6 of 10 passes for 81 yards.

- In a 64-22 win over Blackwell, Grady running back Scott Glaze gained 163 yards in 16 carries. Sophomore quarterback Len Garza completed 14 of 21 passes for 180 yards and three TD's. Wide receiver Scott Terrell caught six passes for 100 yards and two scores.

- In Klondike's 37-27 loss to No. two Christoval, running back Steve Cope gained 86 yards in 12 carries and quarterback Corbitt Foster completed 14 of 25 passes for 135 yards. Clint Kirkland caught four passes for 85 yards.

- In a 15-8 loss to Crane, Coahoma right guard Thomas Hoggard and right tackle Casey Webb graded out 86 and 82 percent respectively. In Coahoma's lone scoring drive, the Bulldogs ran the same play to their side nine of 13 times.

- In a 30-18 victory over Hermligh, Sands running back Teddy Gillispie gained 85 yards in six carries, including a 77-yard TD jaunt.
- In Colorado City's win over Sonora, wide receiver Mark Russell caught three passes for 86 yards while running back Pat Tillis gained 42 yards in 14 carries, and returned a kickoff 85 yards for a score.

- In the win over Sterling City, Forsan running back Charlie Newton gained 132 yards in 17 carries. Quarterback Stephen East completed 4 of 13 passes for 62 yards, including TD's of 11 and 15 yards.

Here are the top defensive performances:

- Garden City strong safety Codie Scott made seven tackles and registered one quarterback sack. G-City defensive ends Tony Aragon and Eleazar Madrid combined for 14 tackles and one QB sack.

- Stanton linebacker Jeff Mendez made 12 tackles and end Jeff Hall was in on 10 tackles, and recorded on QB sack.

- Grady cornerback Danny Valles made 20 stops and lineman Mike McKaskel made eight tackles and intercepted two passes.

- Coahoma end Dale Coates made six tackles, including two behind the line of scrimmage, and registered on sack. Tackle Terry Hall got nine stops and one sack and cornerback Rene Morales made seven tackles, including one behind the line.

Wind makes difference for hurler

By The Associated Press
Calvin Schiraldi knows the difference between Wrigley Field and Olympic Stadium.

"The wind doesn't blow out here like it does at Wrigley Field," he said. "You can afford to give up those 400-foot fly balls, and I gave up some tonight."

NL

Schiraldi scattered eight hits over 8 1-3 innings to end a five-game losing streak and Mark Grace drove in two runs Tuesday night as the Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 5-3.

Schiraldi, 9-13, struck out four and walked two before Rich Gossage finished for his 13th save, allowing a run-scoring groundout to Tim Wallach.

"I struggled in the sixth, seventh and eighth," Schiraldi said. "I sweat a lot and it gets pretty chilly here with the air conditioning, and my arm stiffened up."

Chicago had five hits in the four-run first. Mitch Webster singled, stole second and Grace singled him in. Andre Dawson tripled and scored on Rafael Palmeiro's squeeze bunt. Vance Law followed with an RBI double. Grace added an RBI double in the second.

"It's a lot easier to pitch with a five-run lead," Schiraldi said.

In other games, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 3-2, Philadelphia beat New York 5-4, Houston beat Atlanta 3-2 in 10 innings, San Diego beat Los Angeles 8-4 and San Francisco beat Cincinnati 6-3.

Brian Holman, 3-8, gave up nine hits and all five runs in five innings, losing for the fifth time in seven decisions.

Just 6,131 attended the game, the smallest crowd in Olympic Stadium this season.

Montreal scored in the second on Nelson Santovenia's RBI triple. Dave Martinez hit a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2
Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run single and Andy Van Slyke threw out the tying run at home plate with two outs in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh clinched second place in the National League East.

Pittsburgh, 84-72, had not finished as high as second since 1983.

With Jose Oquendo on third and one out in the ninth, Luis Alica fled out to center and Van Slyke threw out Oquendo at the plate.

John Smiley, 13-10, gave up seven hits in seven innings. Jim Gott pitched the ninth for his 34th save. Ken Hill, 0-1, gave up five hits over five innings in his second major-league appearance and first start.

Phillies 5, Mets 4

Tommy Barrett hit a run-scoring single off Roger McDowell, 5-5, to snap a ninth-inning tie. With one out, Chris James singled and took second on Greg Gross' groundout before Barrett pinch hit for Steve Jeltz.

Steve Bedrosian, 6-6, got the final out in the top of the ninth after relieving Don Carman, who gave up seven hits in 8 2-3 innings.

Astros 3, Braves 2

Alex Trevino hit a run-scoring single in the 10th inning, sending Atlanta to its seventh consecutive loss. Rafael Ramirez singled off Joe Boever, 0-1, Kevin Bass sacrificed and Trevino singled to left.

Danny Darwin, 8-13, pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief.

Padres 8, Dodgers 4

Eric Show, 16-11, pitched a six-hitter for his career-high 16th victory, striking out a season-high nine in his 13th complete game, the most for a Padres pitcher since Randy Jones had 25 in 1976.

Giants 6, Reds 3

Jose Uribe had three hits and drove in two runs as San Francisco snapped Cincinnati's eight-game winning streak.

Race still hot and heavy in East

By The Associated Press
Boston's got it wrapped up, right? They can't miss, right? Well

While Milwaukee and New York were winning, the Red Sox continued to stumble against Toronto and kept the race alive in the American League East.

AL

The Red Sox still lead Detroit, New York and Milwaukee by 3 1/2 games with five left to play, but after being pounded by the Blue Jays a second straight night, they can't be blamed for feeling a little antsy.

Ernie Whitt drove in six runs with two homers and a single in Toronto's 15-9 victory Tuesday night. Whitt, who spent six years in the Boston farm system, couldn't help enjoying his role in slowing the Red Sox' title drive.

Soviet coach Alexander Gomelski thanked U.S. pro and college basketball teams for helping his players beat the United States.

"This is very good preparation," Gomelski. "United States basketball and NBA basketball helps my country. I am very happy, and thank you United States basketball."

U.S. coach John Thompson, who had criticized the Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA for helping Soviet center Arvydas Sabonis recover from an Achilles' tendon injury, steered away from that issue afterward.

"Several NBA teams and franchises helped us, too," he said. "We lost the ball game. The NBA didn't lose the ball game today. I'm not blaming anyone."

On the baseball diamond, though, the Americans avenged another defeat that had bruised the

Yankees 5, Orioles 1

New York got two homers from Don Mattingly and seven strong innings from Ron Guidry to pull into a tie for second place in the AL East.

Indians 4, Tigers 0

Tom Candiotti won his sixth straight decision, a career high, and pitched his first shutout of the season as Cleveland prevented Detroit from gaining ground on the Red Sox.

Reggie Williams and Carmen Castillo homered for Cleveland in the bottom of the eighth.

Brewers 6, Angels 5

Don August also won his sixth straight decision and Milwaukee held off a ninth-inning California rally to keep its faint title hopes alive.

August, 13-6, allowed seven hits in 6 1-3 innings. He led 6-0 after five innings but was chased in the seventh after giving up an RBI double to Devon White.

Chuck Crim replaced August and gave up a three-run homer to Johnny Ray, who had four hits and four RBI. It was Ray's sixth homer. Chris Bosio, the fourth Milwaukee pitcher, allowed Ray's RBI single in the ninth but earned his fifth save.

The Angels have lost eight straight.

Twins 5, Athletics 0

Allan Anderson pitched his first major league shutout and Minnesota set an American League record for attendance in a single season.

With a crowd of 48,300, the Twins pushed their attendance to 2,820,049. California had the old record with 2,807,360 in 1982. The Twins already have enough advance tickets sold for their five remaining games to go over the three-million mark.

White Sox 3, Rangers 2
Shawn Hillegas and Tom McCarthy combined on a two-hitter and Mike Diaz homered on a 3-0 pitch in the ninth to lead Chicago.

Diaz's homer, his third, came off Texas starter Paul Kilgus, 11-15, who lost his fourth straight decision. Diaz, who entered the game batting .194, also had two singles.

Hillegas worked six innings, allowing just Steve Buechele's third-inning triple and rookie Kevin Reimer's homer in the top of the fourth. Hillegas walked four and struck out six.

McCarthy, 2-0, set down the last nine batters in order, striking out two.

Torrence was the 1987 NCAA champion in both the 100 and 200, but was always known as an indoor runner.

"I'm the up-and-coming one, and a lot of people are shocked that I'm doing as well as I am," she said.

With her qualifying time

Wednesday, Torrence ran her second-fastest 200 ever, just one-hundredth of a second slower than Jamaica's Grace Jackson. Griffith Joyner, of course, set a new Olympic record with a scorching 21.76. Torrence's personal record is 22.02 seconds, set at the Olympic trials.

"It was hard making our trials," she said. "I beat out some good girls to make the team, and I've beaten out some good girls here."

But not Griffith Joyner. Like everyone else, Torrence knows Flo-Jo is something special.

"What she's done is unreal," she said.

Torrence has faced the fact that if she wins a medal in the 200 on Thursday, it won't be gold. That will belong to her more celebrated teammate.

"It's not frustrating at all," she said. "As long as she's from our country, it's great."

so long, that's all I'm thinking about," said Gould. "I'm not saying I want to be a bronze medalist. I'm not saying I want to be a silver medalist. Operation Gold, that's what it's all about."

Jones, 156, unleashed a torrent of big rights to bloody Yevgeny Zaitsev in the first U.S.-Soviet Olympic boxing match since 1976, when Michael Spinks stopped Rufat Riskiev in the 165-pound finals.

Zaitsev's nose began bleeding after a right late in the first round, and Jones cut the Soviet's lip in the second en route to an easy 5-0 decision. The fight had to be stopped twice so blood could be wiped from Zaitsev's face.

Bowe, a super heavyweight, added a first-round knockout over Peter Hrivnak of Czechoslovakia four bouts later to cap a day that saw all five U.S. fighters in action win their bouts.

Tech quarterback gains honors

(AP) — Billy Joe Tolliver's reputation is of a big leaguer, $1 million arm and 10 cent judgment.

This season he's trying to silence his critics by completing more touchdown passes to his Texas Tech Red Raider teammates than he does interceptions to the opposition.

If Saturday night's four-touchdown passes in a 36-6 thrashing of the Baylor Bears is any barometer, then his initials "B.J.T." could stand for "Better Judgment-Touchdowns."

Tolliver earned The Associated Press Southwest Conference Player of the Week award with his dazzling performance against the Bears.

On the defensive side of the ball, Texas Christian linebacker Paul Llewellyn earned AP's Defensive Player of the Week laurels with nine unassisted tackles, a quarterback sack, a forced fumble and a pass broken up in the Horned Frogs' 31-17 victory over Boston College.

Landry happy for Tony D

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry who once responded to negative comments made by then-team member Tony Dorsett by saying "Tony who?" said he's happy the running back moved to second on the NFL all-time rushing list.

"I was delighted to see him achieve the goal, because he deserves it," Landry said. "He's been a great player for all these years, and you have to be excited for him. That's quite an accomplishment when he passes Jim (Brown), one of the great, great runners in our game."

Landry made his "Tony who" remark during training camp this year when Dorsett made some negative comments about the Cowboys.

Dorsett, now with the Denver Broncos, rushed for 119 yards against the Raiders Monday to pass Brown and elevate his career total to 12,355 yards.

Dorsett, 34, had 12,036 yards in 11 seasons with the Cowbys before they traded him to the Broncos in June for a conditional fifth-round choice.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Higher visibility brings quicker advancement. Talented people want to join your team. Real estate purchases or property improvements will be lucky. Reduce interest costs by paying off credit cards in full. Something you treasured is returned. Close relationships benefit from a more relaxed lifestyle. If you decide to start a business, do it in February. A June wedding is still best. Invest for the long term.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singing cowboy Gene Autry, TV host Bryant Gumbel, physicist Enrico Fermi, coach Bum Phillips, actress Greer Garson, director Stanley Kramer, singer Jerry Lee Lewis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you are an executive, look for more humane ways to cut personnel. An older person's investment advice is apt to be right on the nose. Shore up a family relationship with regular visits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your ideas ignite fireworks in the marketplace. Although everyday chores bore you, they must be done. Your interest in a newcomer is reciprocated. Be careful not to go overboard on entertainment costs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You gain a foothold in a relationship by doing all those little things that mean so much. Travel may interfere with family plans. You get a chance to show off a special talent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Quit worrying so much about a relationship and let the chips fall where they may. Be honest. Too much analysis will bore mate to distraction. Take things one day at a time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance is bubbling. Be sure you know your own heart before asking how partner feels. Unraveling a financial mystery will solve many problems for you and your loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Optimism replaces doubt when you make a valuable discovery. Modern work methods and special services figure in business successes. A relationship may seem more rocky than it is. Hang in there!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take a cue from mate, and a difficult situation could turn completely around. It is important that you stay near your workplace. Postpone travel and have lunch sent in if possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A hunch could pay off handsomely if you grab an opportunity and build on it. Your intuition helps you reach the right conclusions. You may feel down at times but will win in the end!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have a chance to come from behind and win the whole ball game today. Money people will be more supportive than usual. A child wants approval as well as advice. Plan a journey.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take the initiative in planning for the future. Your career could get a shot in the arm, thanks to something that occurs this evening. Follow your heart when it comes to a good friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dig deep and you will get the information you need to stay ahead of the pack. A tie is no better than a loss. Keep the mineral rights if you sell inherited land.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give free rein to your generosity. Go beyond someone's expectations. You have a chance to secure a special position with a company. Promote new ideas by stressing their practical applications.

LANDMARK — Martin County's 'Old Jail'.

Martin County's 'Old Jail' a contrast

By PEGGY LUXTON
Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Martin County possesses something rare and unique. It is the county's Old Jail, as it is called. This is to distinguish it from the New Jail, which is located in the Martin County Courthouse.

The Old Jail sits behind its wrought iron fence on the northwest corner of the courthouse square.

The two-story red sandstone structure has a shiny metal roof and provides a startling contrast to the modern new courthouse that is located just across the fence.

Attached to the front of the Old Jail is a plaque commemorating the building as a recorded Texas Historic Landmark. The building includes a cell block that was part of the Martin County Courthouse built in 1885, the year after the organization of Martin County when Stanton was known as Marienfeld.

The present courthouse is the fourth for Martin County. The first was built in 1882, but it was just a clapboard building.

The Old Jail is probably closer to the heart of Sheriff Dan Saunders than any other citizen of Martin County. He says he can't remember the first time he saw the old building, he just remembers all the Saturday afternoons he spent there. He was raised in Lenorah and came to Stanton only on Saturdays. His Stanton Saturday afternoons were more often than not spent at the Old Jail.

The first Martin County Sheriff that Dan remembers was Milt Yater. He lived in the Old Jail. The last sheriff who lived there was Morris Zimmerman. During Dan's childhood, Zimmerman became a father figure to him. Zimmerman always wore a big hat and drove a black Ford. It is probably no coincidence that Sheriff Dan Saunders wears a big hat and drives a black Ford. Dan says that when he was a boy, he was convinced that Zimmerman was a rich man. "After I was grown," he says, "I realized he was just like I am now. He bought groceries with hard-earned cash just like everybody else."

Dan Saunders decided he wanted to be county sheriff when he was just a little kid, before he reached his tenth birthday. Zimmerman probably had a lot to do with that, as he was a great influence on young Dan's life. Another person who influenced Dan greatly was Dan Henderson. Dan was named for this man, his mother's brother. As he was a prison guard at Huntsville State Prison, his law-enforcement influence reinforced that of Zimmerman. In 1936, Dan Henderson died from injuries sustained while scuffling with a prisoner. He was outdoors, trying to subdue the prisoner, when the pair fell into an automobile. The car had one of the old open bumpers, and Henderson fell on that and punctured a lung. His death was hard blow to 11-year-old Dan, who looked up to him as somewhat of a hero. Dan keeps a pair of his uncle's boots on display in the Old Jail. The boots and the spurs on them were made by prisoners in Huntsville.

The saddle that is displayed beside the boots is one that was given to Dan by one of his closest friends, Raymond Kingsfield. Kingsfield got the saddle years ago from a doctor in Colorado. The doctor had taken the saddle as payment for a medical bill. Dan used the saddle. Kingsfield used the saddle before him. Kingsfield was a farmer in Tarzan. Dan says that back when he was a kid, there was a big difference between the communities of Tarzan and Lenorah. The five miles that separate the two was a lot farther distance then than it is now.

There is also a trophy case in the upstairs room of the Old Jail building. The case is filled with trophies won by the Martin County Sheriff's Posse. The last year the posse, a parade unit, was in existence was 1976. All expenses incurred in outfitting and appearances were paid by the individual members and it became too expensive to keep the group together. The Martin County Sheriff's Posse may no longer exist, but the over 50 trophies displayed in the Old Jail attest to their expertise in performing.

Dan states he is in conflict with some historians on the date the jail was built. History states the jail was built in 1908. Dan contends the jail was built two years earlier than history records it.

Dan bases this belief on stories he was told by Jim Tom, who was a long-time employee of the old First National Bank. Dan worked with Tom in the bank. At that time, the bank was located in the building now occupied by the Stanton Drug. Built into that building is a plaque that bears the date of 1906. The building is of red sandstone, hauled from a quarry in Barstow. The Old Jail is also built of red sandstone.

Jim Tom had been an employee of the bank when the building was constructed in 1906. Tom told Dan many times that the county got "misfit" stones and "mooched" those stones off the First National Bank to build the jail building. Dan said, "We all know that when the building was renovated, we discovered it was built with used, second-hand lumber, some of which had been burned." Tom also told Dan that every time a contractor brought a load of stone to the bank building site, the county would mooch a few more stones, until they finally had enough mooched rocks to build the jail.

Dan said, "Knowing how the county likes to be conservative with money, I know Jim knew what he was talking about. It sounds just like something the county would do."

Dan is of the opinion that perhaps the first courthouse records that give the date of the erection of the jail building gave the date of 1908 because that was the year the courthouse was built. Dan says, "I contend that the jail was built before the courthouse. I'll go along with Jim Tom and the mooching of the sandstone rocks."

The date for the construction of the Old Jail may be a subject of con-

ture, but the date the cell block in the Old Jail was made is certain — it bears a patent date of 1874. It was built into the courthouse erected in 1885. The cell block went into use the year after the organization of Martin County. "That cell block is still functional," says Dan. "There have been some escapes from the Old Jail, but the escapes were due to human error, not mechanical weakness or mechanical error. If there is such as thing as an 'escape proof' cell block, this is it. I would say the Old Jail cells are just as secure as the ones we use every day over in the new courthouse."

The cell block has held up under many years of use, even after Dan Saunders was elected sheriff. It was used for overflow from the new jail and for segregation when necessary. It was used until the department moved into the new facilities in the courthouse. The downstairs room across from the cell block was used as an office at the same time.

When Dan was elected sheriff in 1952, Beth and L. R. Shoemaker were living in the jail and feeding prisoners. Shoemaker's father, Kyle, was sheriff before Dan. L. R. and Beth moved out of the jail building after the election of 1952. At that time, the Old Jail was almost unliveable, it was so much in need of repair.

At the time Dan was sworn in as sheriff, however, the economic condition of much of Martin County was not too good. As Dan put it, "At that time, the county didn't have a dime and Dan Saunders didn't have a penny." Renovation or even repair at that time was out of the question. So Dan Saunders became the first Martin County Sheriff not to live in the jail since it had been built.

Then one day Dan happened to walk into a County Commissioners' meeting to hear a discussion of razing the Old Jail. The jail meant a lot more to Dan than to many of the other county officials and just the idea of tearing it down was enough to get Dan and several other county citizens busy checking into possible ways to save the old building.

Dan said, "The Old Jail is not only a grand and old structure, but it has a character all its own."

Rallying around the Sheriff in his efforts to save the building were many county citizens who shared his fondness for the old structure and his belief that it should be saved. Citizens who worked tirelessly on the project included June Reid, Mary Prudie Brown, Margaret Rouche, Villa Wilkinson, Ruby Haggard, Billy Houston, Sam Houston, Grover Springer, and the late Raymond Glascock, Roscoe Hazelwood, and Cliff Hazlewood, Sr.

Gross sales up 403 percent in Martin County

Taxable sales in Martin County increased by 403 percent from $41.98 million to $211.23 million during the first quarter of 1988, according to a new report.

The reason for the increase — the largest in percentage points of any county in Texas for the first three months of 1988 — is a mystery.

There are 99 reporting outlets in the county.

But Merrell Foote, a spokeswoman for Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock, mentioned several factors that could have afected the first quarter results. "There's been an economic turnaround in the state for the last few months," she said.

Statewide, gross taxable sales rose 19.4 percent from $64.95 billion in the first quarter last year to $77.58 billion in the first period this year.

Also, the state legislature added a long list of previously exempt services to taxable categories since the first three months of 1987, she said.

Among those newly taxed services are pest control, including crop dusting, real estate repair and remodeling, garbage collection, guard services, janitorial services, and surveying, she said.

New and used vehicle sales didn't affect the totals, however, because they are subject to a separate kind of tax and not to the general sales tax levy, she said.

In smaller counties, the percentage changes are often more dramatic because of the smaller total numbers.

"In a smaller county, if there's a couple of new businesses, that can make it jump incredibly," Foote said.

Martin County has not attracted any major new businesses since the first quarter of 1987, however.

Other possibilities remain. Most businesses in Stanton and Martin County are small businesses, many of which report sales tax collections once a quarter, rather than monthly as big businesses do.

So, if a significant number of Martin County businesses were late in filing sales tax returns for a quarter, the sales tax returns could have fallen into the next quarter.

Filing errors also could have affected the numbers for the first quarter, she said.

Borden County, with six reporting outlets, registered the second largest increase percentage wise in gross sales, jumping from $49,555 to $125,377 — a hike of 153 percent.

Sales tax rebate payment to Stanton in September totaled $4,841, compared to $2,933 the same month last year. This is an increase of 65 percent.

Payments to Martin County to date total $50,553, in contrast to $35,665 during the same period last year.

Howard County's tax rebate hit $99,520 in September, compared to $93,373 during the same time span last year — an increase of 6.58 percent.

Payments to Howard County to date total $1,082,533, in contrast to $93,373 during same period in 1987 — a slim increase of .35 percent.

Stanton meets Forsan in homecoming contest

Stanton homecoming activities should spur the Buffs to victory this Friday. Kickoff for the Stanton Buffalos vs. Forsan Buffaloes battle is scheduled at 8 p.m.

Nominees for the 1988 Homecoming queen at Stanton High School are Kelli Gaspie, Stacey Tom, Karen Graves and Kathryn Elmore, all seniors.

Homecoming will feature a community pep rally at 4 p.m. Friday in front of the Martin County Courthouse.

The Stanton-Courtney Exes have announced the 1988 "Coming Home" Queen nominees and invite everyone to the pre-game barbecue.

The barbecue will be catered by Johnny's Barbecue of Midland. The barbecue will be served from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Stanton High School Cafeteria. Voting will be held at the barbecue. All exes are eligible to vote for the nominee of their choice.

The "Coming Home" nominees are:

Lurlene (Geurin) Lawson, is a graduate of Stanton High School in 1947. She was a cheerleader and All-State basketball guard in her senior year.

Lurlene married Ed Lawson and they have three children, Karan, Carla and Larry. She worked as manager of the S and H stamp store in Big Spring for 25 years.

She and Ed reside in the Forsan community and they enjoy watching their grandchildren play sports.

Leza (Britt) Smith, is a SHS graduate in 1978.

She is married to Terry Smith. They have two sons, Chad, eight months old and Brad, seven months.

She worked at First National Bank two years and at White Motor Co. for seven years. She has served as secretary-treasurer of Martin County Chamber of Commerce. She was active in basketball, tennis, track and member of National Honor Society while a student at SHS.

Stanton will be trying to bounce back against Forsan after dropping a 24-6 game to the Garden City Bearcats last Friday night.

Tough Tony Ramirez rumbled for 157 yards and one touchdown for the Bearcats.

Stanton's Steve Scurlock recorded 121 yards and one touchdown.

Mary Ornelas is a Financial/Billing Clerk for Cap Rock Electric Cooperative. When she began work at the Co-Op in 1982, she worked in the Billing Department.

For the past year, however, she has gradually taken over more functions in the Financial Department and is now in charge of the Accounts Payable section of that department.

The entire section is on the cooperative computer, so Mary spends much of her time working with the computer. She also writes checks, posts checks, and pays cooperative bills.

Before coming to work for Cap Rock, Mary worked as bookkeeper for Planned Parenthood in San Angelo. She is married and her husband, John, is a barber in Midland. They have two children. Phillip, 18, is a senior student at Stanton High School. Alex, 14, is in the eighth grade at Stanton Junior High.

Mary was born in Tarzan. Her parents are Jesus Briseno, Sr. and Felipa Briseno. She grew up in Tarzan, graduating from Stanton High School. She moved to San Angelo when she got married. She and her family have been back in Stanton for six years.

Mary received a degree from Commercial College in Midland, where she studied shorthand, typing, and the operation of business machines.

Hobby endorses Johnnie Lou Avery for representative

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby made a special trip to Big Spring Tuesday for the purpose of lending his endorsement and support to the candidacy of Johnnie Lou Avery for State Representative of the 69th Legislative District.

In his first of several stops, he spoke to a large crowd at Howard College, saying "Johnnie Lou Avery is exactly the kind of person Texas needs in Austin to help make the tough decisions which will confront the Legislature when it convenes its 71st session in January." He continued, "Education and economic development are two of the greatest challenges facing the Texas Legislature. Johnnie Lou Avery's experience, intelligence and dedication will be instrumental in making sure the job gets done." In closing, he added, "We need the leadership of people like Avery. She will help make sure the next century is one of prosperity, hope and opportunity."

Hobby next went to the Howard County Fairgrounds where he attended the Ag Barbecue.

Avery said, "I'm very happy about the impressive endorsement of Lt. Gov. Hobby. His record of service and dedication for the Citizens of Texas is outstanding. I appreciate his endorsement."

Museum books special exhibit

The Martin County Historical Museum will have a special exhibit for homecoming. Old pictures, articles, memorabilia. Everyone is invited to attend this special exhibit. Museum hours 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

Cross-country team paced by Jennifer Riddle

Members of the Stanton High School Cross-Country team ran in the San Angelo Meet last Saturday. Over the two mile course on the Santa Fe Golf Course along the Concho River, Jennifer Riddle posted the best local time.

Miss Riddle ran a 14:24 for 20th place, while Tiffany McCalister posted a 16:29 in her first race. Teammates Mitzi Koonce had a 17:06, while Eva Crisman ran a 17:38.

Over the boy's three mile distance, Joe Cazares finished 18th in a time of 18:46. Danny Mulkey ran a 20:02, with Tommy Flores recording a 22:15 time.

Coach Wilma Sturl expects to have her squad back in full strength for the Big Spring meet this Saturday.

NOTICE TO ALL CAP ROCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE MEMBERS
WE ARE NOT PROPOSING A RATE INCREASE
By law, Cap Rock Electric Cooperative is required to publish a Notice of Rate Change Request and Statement when any change in billing procedure is initiated. Such a notice has been published in area newspapers.
THIS IS NOT A RATE INCREASE
Please be advised that any rate modification currently taking place in your Cooperative is not one that will greatly affect your electric rates. It is merely a readjustment of rates for your home that will allow the Cooperative to more closely align its rate design to that of TU Electric. Under this readjustment, when TU Electric rates go down during the winter season, Cap Rock's rates will also go down. By listening to you, our members, Cap Rock has found a way to serve you better.

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST AND STATEMENT OF INTENT
Notice is hereby given that Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc. (the "Utility") intends to change the rate charged to the General Service Class effective as soon as may be permitted by law. Based upon the twelve months ending April 30, 1988, the modification results in a decrease of $9,338 or 13% of revenues during that period.
The changes are applicable to all areas and all General Service customers (approximately 8100) served by the Utility. No other class of customers is affected.
Implementation of the proposed change is subject to approval by the appropriate regulatory authority. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. STANTON ALMOST WON STATE CHAMPIONSHIP — Stanton High School girls, coached by H. G. "Bo-Bo" Hamrick, came to within two points of capturing the Texas State Basketball crown in Hillsboro in 1947. Members of the team, shown left to right, are Mrs. H. G. Hamrick, Edith Davie, Vivian Lomax (deceased), Verna Bell Clinton, Lurlene Geurin, Lanada Davis, Betty Blizzard, Frankie Leonard, Ruby Nell Lawson, Dixie O'Brian, Lola Fay Rahus, and coach H. D. (Bo-Bo) Hamrick. Freona defeated Stanton 15 to 14. That season, Stanton won 35 and only lost two games.

TWO STANTON ALL-STATERS — Lurlene (Geurin) Lawson, a coming home candidate this year, was selected all-state guard and Betty Blizzard was named all-state forward in 1947. Runners-up at Hillsboro, left to right, are Vivian Lomax, deceased; Lurlene (Geurin) Lawson, Frankie

The grant to provide funds for renovation of the old building came from the Mabee Foundation. Joe Mabee, a close friend of Dan, called Dan to his Midland office, where he gave him an envelope. Dan was too nervous to open the envelope until he got back to Stanton. He knew the envelope contained the grant or a letter of regret that the grant would not be forthcoming. When he finally opened the envelope, he found a check for $77,000. That money was used to renovate the exterior and interior of the old building.

After the renovation, one of the first events held was the wedding of Joe Mabee. The ceremony was performed by Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport in the upstairs room.

The year the renovation was made, 1982, is the same year the building was recognized as a Texas Historic Landmark by the Texas Historical Commission.

Dan has spent many hours trying to document some of the tales he has heard about the history of the Old Jail. For instance, he had heard that Frank James was once a prisoner in the jail. He was able to document the fact that James spent three weeks in the Stanton home of Uncle Ed and aunt Net Milhollen. This was the year the famed outlaw wintered in San Angelo. But try as he might, Dan could find no records to prove James ever was a guest of Martin County in the Old Jail. But Dan states that jail records back then were very poorly kept and just because there is no record of James being in the jail does not necessarily mean that James was never in the jail.

Then, on December 23, 1927, the famous Beyes-Smith affair occurred in Stanton. The Texas Bankers Association had put up a reward of $5,000 for any bank robber, dead or alive. Beyes and Smith saw the opportunity.

Cal Beyes was a local farmer who lived south of Stanton and Al Smith was a friend of his who ran a dairy farm in Kermit. Beyes had a wife and five children and was known as a church leader.

One block west of the location of the Old Jail was the Christian Church. On that cold night in December, Beyes and Smith set the church on fire. As with any fire, every available soul in town rushed to the church to fight the flames.

While the townspeople were occupied with the church fire, Beyes and Smith took three trusting and unsuspecting illegal aliens, or "wetbacks," to the old Home National Bank building, located where Terrell Pinkston's office now stands on Highway 80. When they got the wetbacks to the bank building, they shot all three, then immediately went to the office of Martin County Sheriff Virgil Sadler. The pair told Sadler they had caught the illegal aliens trying to break into the bank and had shot them. They claimed a $5,000 reward for each of the dead "bank robbers."

Sheriff Sadler left for the bank and Beyes and Smith left for home, full of plans of how they would spend the $15,000 reward money.

Just after daylight the next morning, Sheriff Sadler showed up at the Beyes farm. Instead of bringing the two the reward money, however, he brought two arrest warrants for murder. Unbeknownst to Beyes and Smith, one of the wetbacks they had left for dead had not died. Instead, he lived to tell the tale and Beyes and Smith were carted off to the Martin County Jail and locked up to await trial for murder.

Sheriff Sadler kept the pair in the Martin County Jail until after Christmas. Then he transferred them to the Midland County Jail for "safe keeping." In May of 1928, the pair broke out of the Midland Jail and were never seen in Martin County again. They never stood trial for the death of the Mexicans. Dan said, "I have always contended that if Beyes and Smith had been left in the Martin County Jail, they would have been around to stand trial."

Al Smith ended up in Arizona. Sometime later, he was shot and killed by a peace officer during a robbery. Cal Beyes went to Oregon, leaving his wife and five children in Martin County without a word. He remarried in Oregon and had five more children, giving them the same first names as the five kids he had left behind in Martin County.

Sheriff Dan Saunders does not keep his fondness for the old Martin County Jail a secret. He says, "As long as I am alive, nothing will happen to the Old Jail." He states with relief that since the building has been named a Texas Historic Landmark, he is not alone in his interest in its survival. "It is now protected by the State of Texas," he says. "I wanted assurance this old building would be preserved for posterity — for our children and our grandchildren. They will see it, they will recognize it, and they will appreciate it."

The Old Jail, indeed, can be seen. It is shown with pride from 2:00 P.M. to 5:00 P.M. by volunteers of the Friends of the Museum. The Martin County Chamber of Commerce meets in the upstairs room. The grounds are kept by the county.

There are many visitors to the old building. Volunteers conducted tours for 140 persons during August.

If you've never visited the Old Jail, you should do so. It's like opening a door to the past. It's like stepping back in time. It's like a world removed from the hustle-bustle computer-bound world of the 1980s. It's a rare and unique place of history — all bound up in red sandstone and surrounded by black wrought iron.

Basic adult classes start

Stanton ISD is offering "G.E.D." Basic Adult Education classes and E.S.L. classes for adults again this year.

Classes will be offered on Monday and Tuesday evenings beginning this week from 5:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. These classes are provided in cooperation with Howard County Junior College and there is no charge for enrollment.

PUBLIC NOTICE CITY OF STANTON COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The City of Stanton is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Commerce (TDOC) for a Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) grant under the Community Development Fund. This application will be submitted to TDOC on or before October 27, 1988.

A public hearing concerning the proposed grant application will be held at 7:00 o'clock p.m. on Monday, October 10, 1988, at City Hall, Stanton, Texas. The purpose of this public hearing is to review the City of Stanton's proposed 1988 request for TCDP funds including the amount of funds to be requested and the scope and location of proposed project activities. NO displacement of residents is expected as a result of the proposed 1988 TCDP project.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views on this proposed project. Written comments will be accepted by the City up until the time that the City's application is submitted to TDOC. A copy of the City's application will be available for inspection during normal business hours at City Hall, 102 W. School Street, Stanton, Texas.

The basic intent of the TCDP grants is to provide programs to benefit low and moderate income persons, to prevent or eliminate slums and blight and to meet other urgent community development needs. Eligible activities include improved streets and drainage, utility systems and other public facilities improvements. Housing improvement programs are also eligible as are certain public service activities which meet one of the three primary TCDP basic intents noted above.

For further information about the City's proposed TCDP application, contact Jimmy Mathis, City Manager, City of Stanton, at (915) 756-3301. Handicapped individuals who might have difficulty in attending this public hearing should contact City Hall to arrange for special assistance.

'Yes' vote urged for good roads

Texas voters will have the opportunity to endorse the efforts of Texas to have one of the nation's better road systems. The federal gasoline tax of 9 cents goes into the Highway Trust Fund in Washington. This money is returned to the states, and for 50 years Texas has used this money for building and maintaining roads. There have been recent efforts to divert these funds to other purposes. Proposition One, on the November 8 ballot, will mandate that these funds be used for highway purposes. A vote for Proposition One is a vote for good roads.

Letter to the editor

To the editor:
The Stanton Buffalo Booster Club would like to say a big thank you to those folks that attended our annual gathering on Tuesday, Sept. 6. This serves as one of our Booster Club fundraisers, as well as giving the community a chance to meet our band, cheerleaders and football teams. A great time was had by all. A special thanks goes to those who donated supplies and food items for our hamburger feed. Cups for drinks and ice cream by Mike Hall and Tri-City Beverage Co. Hamburger buns by C&C Grocery, tomatoes and onions by Pete and Pat Morrison. Lettuce by Lloyd Cox of Thriftway Grocery. Paper goods, utensils and condiments by Dr. Randy Moore. Homemade ice cream was prepared by a number of players' mothers and Booster wives. The lettuce, tomatoes and onions were prepared by Keitha Moore, Teresa Herm and Kathy Stallings. Those who served tea, ice cream, cooked hamburgers, waited tables etc. are also greatly appreciated. If we overlooked anyone, we apologize. All volunteers were appreciated. We hope this will kickoff a great year for our kids at Stanton Schools. We support you in all your endeavors.

WALT FINLEY EDITOR

Pundit's pokes at politicians

WALT FINLEY

Don't panic! This doesn't foreshadow any political ambitions — now. But in view of recent events, I wonder what it feels like to be elected president of the United States. What it actually feels like, I mean — not in the words of a press secretary, Theodore White, William Manchester or Jim Bishop. If someone has an "in" with Ron Reagan, our President (my first exclusive), and can get him to put it into writing, we'll be glad to print it. If it's any good.

We all wait anxiously to hear Mrs. Reagan's stand on one of Mrs. Dukakis's favorite programs, the house by the side of the interstate road.

Would the 9-million-odd who voted for George Wallace be called the surly fringe on the bottom? Keep those cards and letters coming in, friends.

New Prue's leading surgeon, Dr. Schmoeter, called in to report another appendix transplant.

My Calculating cousin, Jimmy Ladd, Los Angeles, has a new line for testing telltype equipment: "A pox on you Jeremiah, old beanbag; you've squashed my favorite Zweibach."

There is something wrong with a society whose two major concerns are calories and television.

There is a big season for smoke-filled rooms. The political conventions had their share, I am sure, despite the best air-conditioning had to offer.

And I've run into a few recently. Saturday I attended two different meetings (If one is careless, this can happen.) Each had quite a number of smokers. As a reformed nicotine addict, I am quite conscious of the foul things smoking does to the air in a room. I might even add I'm quite sanctimonious about it. It would even worry me that I might get lung cancer by remote control except for one fact: The smoke has been run through the best filter of all: Someone else's lungs.

The Middle Aged Curmudgeon told his wife the other day: "I don't necessarily disagree with you because you're wrong, I disagree with you because you're you."

My bright cousin, Dr. George Ladd, writes: "If you hear an owl hoot 'to whom' instead of 'two who,' you are listening to a Boston owl."

I wonder if any congressman in our country has ever had the courage to tell his constituents he lives in the Washington suburb called Beltsville.

Sometimes the generation gap consists of two mouths open at the same time.

A barber in Tulsa, Okla., sent me a bumper sticker which reads: Keep Arkansas Beautiful Get A Haircut

I don't know whether he's trying to tell me something, but I figure I'm doing about as much as I can for Oklahoma just by living in Texas.

The Sussler at the Big Spring Herald office asks: "Is an aggressive reporter called a paper tiger?"
Yes, among other things.

Jim Beal, thinks it's time once more for one of his favorite jokes. This one features two men standing in front of a store displaying huge "Going Out of Business" signs, and the older says to the younger: "Son, some day this will all be yours."

When are the Jews and Arabs going to sit down and settle their problems like Christians? A man who stopped at my desk asked.

It's an interesting question. The answer may be that they already are — by fighting.

Good old Lee Evans reports: A close relative is one you see between funerals.

Helter-skelter: That circulating man, Rex Duke, reports a political prisoner about to be executed was blindfolded. The captain of the execution squad asked him if he wanted a cigarette. "No, sir," he replied. "I'm trying to quit."

Not all solitary people are lonely.

It is hard to find a place that sells kerosene.

Gossips who are desperate for material will tell unflattering tales on themselves. A penny box of matches costs five cents — and has fewer matches.

One can own a car in relative comfort and happiness without knowing how fast it will go.

That scrappy Sylvester man, Glenn Moffett, said: "Isn't it funny that the youngsters know all the answers except those that are necessary for them to make good grades at school?"

Fast fingers Sandra Green saw a bumper sticker on a Tennessee car on her way to work Friday reading: Don't Re-elect Anyone!!!

Nathan Poss, I'm told, has a friend who watches all the ball games on television, and his wife is getting tired of it.

Finally she was fed up and during a time out she said: "Do you think if I got a skirt made of Astroturf you would notice me then?"

A new definition of irony, Roy Lee Barnhill told me last week, is like when you pay $17,000 for a new car and then have to use your credit card to buy gasoline to drive it home.

Several West Texas towns are saying they want one of those state prisons, feeling that's the surest way to keep it 200 miles away.

Bearkats wallop Buffalos

Big Spring Herald Sports Editor

GARDEN CITY — Friday's non-district clash was supposed to pit the Garden City Bearkats' explosive offense against the Stanton Buffalos' iron door defense. But it was the Bearkats that proved they have a pretty good defense themselves, whipping the Buffalos, 24-6.

The Bearkat defense held Stanton in check except for one big play, a 71-yard scoring run by Steve Scurllark early in the third quarter. The Stanton tailback's jaunt left the "Battlin' Buffs" trailing 14-6, and very much in the game.

But the Bearkats iced the game with a 22-yard field goal by Codie Scott and a seven-yard scoring run by Tony Ramirez in the fourth quarter.

Noted for their vaunted passing attack, the Bearkats got this win on the ground. With Ramirez leading the way, Garden City churned out 218 yards. The diving, twisting Ramirez finished the contest with 146 yards in 31 carries, 103 of which came in the second half.

Fullback Weldon Hillger also found success against the Stanton defense, which had held opponents to 180 total yards per game. Hillger finished with 77 yards in 11 carries. Garden City quarterback Codie Scott only attempted 10 passes, completing four for 42 yards.

"We worked hard all week on stopping their passing game, but we didn't stop their rushing attack tonight," said Stanton coach Dale Ruth. "That Ramirez kid is really good. We couldn't contain him. They had a good running attack; you can't blame them for sticking to it."

"We made a change on offense. We moved Robert Jones from tailback to fullback and Steve Scurllark to tailback. This was our first week to work on it and we couldn't quite get it together. But Garden City has a very good team. I think they'll go far."

It didn't look like Garden City was going very far in the first quarter, as a swarming Stanton defense limited the Bearkats to five yards offensively.

On Stanton's first possession in the game, they drove to the Garden City 27, thanks to a 16-yard pass from quarterback Brad Holland to wide receiver Jeff Hall.

But the drive ended when Garden City defensive end Tony Aragon sacked Holland, forcing a fumble that was recovered by Eleazar Madrid.

Garden City scored in the second quarter, driving 60 yards in seven plays. Ramirez had runs of 12, 5 and 5 yards. Hillger and Juan Morales finished it off. Hillger burst up the middle for 25 yards, got hit at the goal line and fumbled into the end zone. The loose pigskin was recovered by wingback Juan Morales in the end zone for the score.

Codie Scott's extra point gave Garden City a 7-0 lead. Hillger finished the scoring in the half when he scored on an eight-yard run. Scott's PAT was good with 1:41 left in the half.

"Right before the game the kids were so nervous we couldn't even go through our pre-game," said Garden City coach Sam Scott. "This is the first time this school has played Stanton, and Stanton is somewhat of a powerhouse compared to us. Whenever I made this schedule last year, everybody thought I was crazy. When we scored the first touchdown, I could see the change in our attitude."

"Our running game was the key to the win. Without a doubt it was our biggest win of the year. It will help us get ready for district, which starts in two weeks."

Scurllark's third quarter run began the second half scoring. The speedy senior broke up the middle, hit the sidelines and outlegged all Garden City defenders. Scurllark finished the contest with 112 yards on nine carries.

Early in the fourth quarter, Garden City got good field position when Stanton punter Randy Esparaza got a high snap from center and was unable to punt. He was tackled by Madrid and Eric Sidenberger at the Stanton 17.

But the Buff defense held and Codie Scott booted a 22-yard field goal with 9:23 left in the game.

Garden City put together its most impressive drive of the contest on its last possession. The 'Kats began from their own 14, drove 86 yards, eating up seven minutes of the clock. When Ramirez scored, there were 23 seconds left on the clock, and the Bearkats had their fourth win in as many tries. Stanton fell to 2-2 for the season.

Depot News

By RAMSEY ABBOTT

Fall is here and from now till the first of the year will be our busiest season with lots of activity land special events.

The first event is our big social of the year coming up on October 27 at the Community Center.

The Depot will furnish barbecue and beans and members will bring salads and desserts.

There are lots of beauty pageants such as Miss America so the Depot decided to have its own Fair Lady Beauty Pageant just for seniors and we have 5 lovely ladies as contestants.

For the sake of fairness, we will not divulge the names of the judges till that night.

Bonnie Witt is going to be mistress of ceremonies and will sing for us.

Edna Keele and her daughter and son-in-law, Donie and Francis aKenedy went fishing at Mathis, Tx. near Corpus Christi.

They had to cut their trip short when everyone was asked to evacuate because of Hurricane Gilbert.

Maurice Connell had his sons, Dwayne and Whitney and his grandson Kyle for a visit and their annual dove hunting on the Rufus Tom ranch.

Edythe Kelly, Lurlene Morrison and Fern Britton attended Ladies Day at the Church of Christ in Andrews.

Ruth Jones, our temporary director has carried on gallantly while suffering with a bad cold.

Rosa Merrill and Fiji Rhodes spent several days in Clovis, New Mexico, visiting relatives and friends.

Dovie Hawthorne spent a week in Midland for a family celebration of her birthday.

We are starting a textile painting class at the Depot on Friday afternoons.

The class will be taught by Era Burns and will be free with everyone furnishing their own material.

If you are interested, contact the Depot or call Era personally.

Georgia and Lake Charles, Illinois.

The children who came were Margaret Watkins, San Angelo and Kathryn Crawford and her husband Douglas.

Verna Stephens is visiting relatives in Arizona.

On September 15th, Seniors met at the Depot and walked across to the Community Center for the fish and chicken luncheon given by the Farmers Coop Gin.

Seniors appreciate their invitation to this annual affair and always enjoy it.

The Depot has lots of volunteers and one of our most devoted is Edythe Kelly. She not only goes to Stanton Care Center but visits regularly in Big Spring.

Imogene and Lonnie Evans and Mary Kathryn and Doc Brison had a very interesting trip to Canada.

They joined their fellow travelers in Shreveport and flew to Halifax, Nova Scotia, from there they traveled by train to Quebec.

From there, they went to Montreal and Ottawa where they visited Parliament and the training center for the Royal Mounted Police.

They spent a lot of time in the observation car as they traveled and had a perfect view of the scenery.

They were impressed by how clean Canada is. Perhaps there is a lesson in this and we, Americans should work a little harder at keeping our own country clean and beautiful. And West Texas is no exception.

No one, who has looked across the plains on a moonlit night, can fail to be awed by the beauty of our own place on this great continent.

After a family reunion in Colorado City, Frances White took a long trip through the south visiting relatives. She went to New Orleans, Alabama, Mississippi and Florida.

Her birthday was September 26th and she celebrated it twice on this trip and is going to her sons in Midland to celebrate it again this weekend.

We drew a big crowd with lots of enthusiasm on our first bingo night.

We are all kids at heart. The most coveted prize was a stuffed toy a little brown puppy dog.

We are very pleased and happy to have some new members coming to the Depot and taking part in the activities.

All residents of Martin County, 55 and over, are welcome to join us for the good times and fellowship.

Lions hear about Pee Wee football

Stanton Noon Lions Club met Sept. 20 in their weekly meeting. Derald McWhorter installed Kirk Chapman as a new member.

Announcement was made of Pee Wee Football that starts this Saturday and runs for six weeks.

Jimmy Wheeler introduced the assistant band director Kirk McKenzie, who told of his ideas and hopes for the junior high band.

Stanton schools to dismiss early for football games

Stanton schools will dismiss school at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 7, Oct. 21 and Oct. 28 so students and fans will be able to travel to the longer out of town football games. The Oct. 7, date will be the Presidio ball game. The Oct. 21 date will be for the Van Horn game and the Oct. 28 date will be the Iraan game.

Stanton schools will host a parent orientation meeting on Tuesday evening Oct. 4, at 7 p.m. in the Junior High School cafeteria. A panel of school administrators and counselors will present a program on the many special programs offered the students of Stanton I.S.D.

On Oct. 18, the Stanton public schools will host an open house for the public. All school campuses will be open and all citizens are encouraged to attend and visit with the teachers and administrators. Open house will be conducted from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Flood insurance program approved for county

Martin County officials received word over the weekend that rural Martin County has received approval for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. The Federal Insurance Administration released the approval last week.

FIA is part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Flood Insurance coverage is available to all property owners in the community, not just those in special flood hazard areas. Renters can usually insure their contents, even though they do not own the building.

Coverage is available for almost all walled and roofed buildings that are principally above ground and for the contents of these buildings.

The insurance limit for a single family home is $35,000 and $10,000 for the contents.

NFIP is backed by the Federal government, but flood insurance coverage may be purchased through any licensed property casualty insurance agent or broker.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

Old or new furniture damage: a case for Furniture Doctor

Although the Furniture Doctor has established its reputation as a specialist in repair and refinishing of antique furniture, the firm provides these services for new furniture as well.

According to Jan Noyes, new, modern finishes can be marred in home accidents — such as fire, child's play or spills of harmful products. Or maybe the customer has purchased new furniture at a store which doesn't deliver — and the piece is damaged when the owner attempts to move it himself.

The Furniture Doctor has suitable hardware plus refinishing and repair supplies for any newly purchased wood or metal home or office furnishings — to restore that "showroom" quality.

Restoration of antique furniture continues to be a big part of the business, including repairs, parts replacement or refinishing of aged surfaces.

The Furniture Doctor has hard-to-find reproduction hardware for trunks and cedar chests; desk locks; brass hardware; and other antique accessories.

A visit to the Doctor's office may find the staff working on such diverse jobs as a metal office desk and a mahogany grand piano. The Doctor has given "new life" to many a fire- or water-damaged piece.

Repairs may include gluing a chair; hand-customizing replacement parts; repairing veneers; replacing sheet cane or weaving rush chair seats; and repairs to vinyl that has been burned or torn.

In the strip shop, the Doctor's assistants chemically remove paint and varnish finishes from wood or metal, rendering the surface ready for refinishing or painting — either by the owner or the Doctor.

"We will tackle anything," says Jan. "If it's damaged, bring it to us and we'll find a way to fix it!"

The Furniture Doctor does make house calls. He will come to your home or office to give estimates, or make minor repairs on the spot. In most cases it is advisable to send the ailing furniture to the Doctor's office, where adequate tools are readily available.

For your furniture repairs — great or small — call the Furniture Doctor at 267-5811. The firm is affiliated with Bob's Custom Woodwork, and is located at 613 Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park.

The Doctor's hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m., or by appointment.

The Furniture Doctor's assistants — Craig Neighbors and Robert Loveless — begin to reassemble a refinished turn-of-the-century

Glenwood nurse honored by Who's Who of American women

MIDLAND — Glenwood Hospital's Margaret LuWertha Williams was honored recently with her selection into the 16th Edition of Who's Who of American Women.

Williams, a west Texas native, was born in Midland in 1938 to Cotter Craven and Mollie Jo (Tarter) Hiatt. At 17, Williams helped to develop the Junior Volunteers, or "Candystriper" Program at Midland Memorial Hospital. She received her bachelor of science degree in nursing in 1960 from Texas Woman's University in Denton, Texas, and did her clinical experience at Parkland Hospital in Dallas.

In 1964, Williams earned her master's degree in nursing education from Columbia University in New York City, and then went on to teach nursing at Odessa College until 1966.

From 1967 to 1970, Williams instituted, and was the director of, the nursing program at Laredo Junior College in Laredo, and acquired National League for Nursing Accreditation for their nursing program.

During the early Seventies, Williams was assistant professor of nursing at Pan American University in Edinburg.

In 1974, Williams was awarded her masters of education in nursing administration, again from Columbia University in New York, and until 1979, worked on a nursing doctorate while working as a nursing practitioner on the post-op trauma unit at St. Luke's Hospital in New York City. In 1976, Williams was presented with the Isabel Hampton-Robb award for excellence in nursing.

She returned to Texas in 1979 and worked on safety compliance on construction sites for the Area

Food security plans set

All producers that utilize USDA farm programs must have a food security act plan on file with the Soil Conservation Service by 1990. That sounds like a long way off, but when you consider the number of farms in Martin County and the number of days remaining until 1990, it is not far off.

There are approximately 600 plans in Martin County that need to be written in the 15 months remaining until the Jan. 1, 1990 deadline.

If everyone wants to wait until December of 1989 there will be a problem. It is hard to project plans for two years down the road. That is why these plans are flexible. You can change your option at any time to fit your needs.

Writing the plan takes very little of your time. If we know you are coming, we compile all of your information before you arrive. When you come by the office, all we have to do is discuss all of the options.

These plans do not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1990. When we write a plan, it goes into the file until that time. They do not go into effect now.

Just remember, it will be impossible for the SCS to complete all of the plans in Martin County if everyone waits until December of 1989 to initiate these plans.

Melony Sikes has been detailed from Midland since April for the sole purpose of writing FSA plans. She is normally in Stanton from Monday to Wednesday. There are also four other professionals in the office to serve you. Any one of them will be glad to work with you in writing your plans.

Please give these plans some consideration. If you receive a letter or a phone call from the SCS, please respond favorably.

If you have any questions, please come by the office or call at 915-756-3421.

Stanton FHA Chapter meets

By CAROL SMITH

The Stanton FHA Chapter met for their regular meeting Sept. 13. The purpose for this meeting was to get acquainted and let the new members meet the officers.

The chapter members discussed selling magazines which will begin Sept. 27. Members will canvas the town taking orders and will appreciate your support. The money will be used to support local projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerald was elected chapter parents. Mrs. Charlotte Barnes, Mrs. Janice Bundas, and Mrs. Janice Newman were elected as chapter mothers.

Plans were made for the next meeting on Oct. 11. When John Reed from Midland will come to speak to students about alcohol and the dangers of alcohol.

Shannon Koonce who typed the FHA yearbook was elected as FHA member of the month. Shannon was elected for the special work she has done for the FHA chapter. Chapter sponsors for 1988-89 are Mrs. Natha Mitchell and Mrs. Caren Rawlings.

Two Stanton CAP cadets part of encampment

Kenny J. Hobbs, son of Jack and Norma Hobbs of Stanton and Danny Mulkey, son of Jack and Mary Mulkey of Stanton, are members of the Civil Air Patrol.

They participated in a Type A encampment hosted by the United States Air Force.

The cadets were accompanied to the encampment by 245 other youths from around Texas. The age of the CAP cadets at this encampment was between 13 and 20 years of age.

The encampment was held at Lackland Air Force Base, where the cadets were introduced to basic military life.

The cadets attended a demonstration of the Security Police dog training program. They also participated in the officer candidates Leadership Reaction Course, and the basic training Obstacle Course.

The cadets were also introduced to different educational programs in the Air Force such as, the Air Force Academy, Air Force Reserve Officer Training program, and enlisted careers in the Air Force.

At the end of the week, the cadets were involved in a pass and review graduation ceremony that was culminated from a week of hard and demanding drill practice.

With the completion of the encampment, the cadets are able to continue their advancement in the CAP cadet program, which will qualify them for CAP college scholarships.

U R Unique

Most Unique Clothing Store
In The Area
Mickey Trimble — Owner

U R UNIQUE Located at 3323 N. Midland Drive, #104A, phone 694-8440, has the only spin art machine in the area. Customers can paint their own tee shirts or sweatshirts by dabbing colored paint on the fabric, then it is fastened to an appropriate size board and put into the machine. The shirt starts to spin at dizzying speed, circling up to 450 rpm. Centrifugal force has forced the color blots to fly away from the center of the shirt. Now your unique design is splattered across the shirt. Glitter can be added to the design as the paint stays wet, until it is dried at 350° for 4½ to 5 minutes. Customers will enjoy designing their own unique shirt. It is exciting to see the many different designs that come out of the machine. There are no two alike.

Also, available at the shop are tee shirts, tee shirt dresses, sweat shirts, sweat shirt dresses, satin jackets, caps and children's wear.

U R UNIQUE, also specializes in screen printing and monograms. Bring your items to the store to be monogrammed or they will monogram your purchases from their shop. These monogrammed items make very lovely Christmas gifts.

The writers of this 1988 Midland Business Review would like to recommend this unique shop to all of our readers.

Banc Home Savings Association

The Permian Basin's Largest INDEPENDENT
Financial Institution

The savings and loan industry has perhaps gone through more recent regulatory changes than most any other type of financial institution. Limited, but secure, savings instruments and conventional home mortgages were the hallmark of the industry which, by congressional mandate, was designed to house America.

The BANC HOME SAVINGS, with 3 locations in Midland, 1100 Andrews Highway, phone 697-2231, Marilyn Wilson, Manager — Texas and Colorado, phone 1687-0631, Wall and Main Sts., Lynn Clark, Manager and in the Midland Park Mall, phone 1697-4178, Carolyn Wright, Manager — and 4 locations in Odessa, has kept abreast of these regulatory changes and have accepted the challenge of the '80's to provide safe investments and competitive returns. Because they are strong, aggressive, competitive and changing with the times, savings investments they offer are as secure and as safe as they have ever been. Hirt, Matthews wed in Midland ceremony

Cecelia Jo Hirt, Bryan, and David Matthews, College Station, were united in marriage at a 2 p.m. ceremony at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Midland, with Father Frederick Nawarskas, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Eugene and Dorothy Hirt, Garden City.

MRS. DAVID MATTHEWS Formerly Cecelia Hirt

The bridegroom's parents are Marjorie and Bobby Matthews, Andrews. The couple stood before an altar decorated with two candelabra and held arrangements of rubrum roses, alstameria and carnations. Organist was Fred Krieger. Vocalist was Tina Lukens.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of candlelight satin, featuring a fitted bodice, covered in tulle, and a train of tulle and sequins; a dropped front waistline, sweetheart neckline and V back. The chapel-length skirt featured a butterfly bow at the back waist. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Matron of honor was Roxanne Hirt, bride's sister, San Angelo. Bridesmaids were Marianne Hirt, Garden City, bride's sister-in-law; Gina Munn, San Angelo; and Stephanie Frerich, bride's cousin, San Angelo.

Flower girl was Shelby Orr, bride's niece. Best man was Bobby Matthews, bridegroom's brother, Dallas.

Groomsmen were Russell Hanks, Midland; Joe Patterson, Smithville; and "Puncher" Penley, Stanton.

Ushers were Duane Hirt, bride's brother, Garden City; Richard Hatla, bride's cousin, Garden City; Scott Fields, bridegroom's cousin; and Marty Decker, bridegroom's cousin, Haskell.

Candlelighter was Bruce Hirt, bride's cousin, Wilson.

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Power Resources, Inc.'s lawsuit in 118th District Court for an injunction, restraining order and damages against C.R. Wing Cogeneration Plant operator Hawker-Siddeley Power Engineering Inc. has been dismissed without prejudice.

Dismissal without prejudice does not prevent either party in the suit to refile. Counterclaims had been filed by Hawker-Siddeley in the suit to force Power Resources to enter arbitration to settle disputes in an operating agreement between PRI, which owns the plant, and HSPE, its operator.

According to an amended petition filed by PRI, the manner in which HSPE operated the plant put the plant in danger of losing its certification and qualifying status as a cogeneration facility under federal regulations. Problems with steam supply to American Petrofina's Big Spring refinery, which supplies fuel to the cogeneration plant and buys steam from it, had also arisen, according to the suit.

The suit alleged that problems arising from management and operations practices at the plant put PRI's relationships with Fina, Texas Utilities Electric Company, and its lending consortium in danger.

In response to a joint motion of attorneys for defendant HSPE and plaintiff PRI, District Judge James Gregg dismissed the suit in a Sept. 14 order.

In other 118th District Court action:

- Jose Guadalupe Sobrevilla, as next friend and guardian of the estate of a minor, Monica Sobrevilla, and Georgiana Rodriguez, a resident of Mexico, filed suit against a Big Spring attorney as executor of an accident victim's estate seeking unspecified damages.

The attorney, Donald J. Richard, acts as executor of Ronnie Wayne Thompson's estate. Thompson, deceased, was driving eastward in the westbound lane of Interstate Highway 20 at about 12:15 a.m. on July 2 when he collided with a car, killing four of its occupants and seriously injuring the fifth.

Santiago S., Maria Alicia, Claudia D., Manuel E. and Ruth Sobrevilla were killed in the crash. The suit alleges their deaths and Monica Sobrevilla's injuries received in the crash were direct results of Thompson's negligence.

Thompson was driving while intoxicated by alcohol, according to the suit, and was driving the wrong way on a one-way road, and was driving at an excessive rate of speed, and failed to avoid the collision.

The suit has been settled for a total of $40,000. No money from the suit was awarded to Jose Guadalupe Sobrevilla, who has been named guardian of Monica Sobrevilla, or to Georgiana Rodriguez. St. Mary of the Plains Hospital will receive $15,000 to cover the cost of its treatment of Monica Sobrevilla.

Plaintiff's attorney Raul Palomo Jr. will receive $8,250 in attorney fees. Monica will receive $25,000 directly, and $16,750 will be placed in the court's depository for her use and benefit.

• Johnny Rangel has filed suit against Sam Thurman individually and Thurman Oil Co., alleging negligence. Rangel's suit alleges he sustained injuries to his back and spine from a fall during an April 24 visit to Fina Station No. 2, when he slipped in a puddle of oil near a fuel island.

The suit seeks a minimum of $25,000 damages. William Dale Dupree, assistant district attorney, is representing Rangel.

• The State of Texas filed suit against the unknown owners of 145 firearms, ranging from BB guns to sawed-off shotguns and including several illegal weapons, to seize the firearms, which have been turned in to the police department or seized during criminal arrests.

The suit seeks disposition of the firearms by destruction or their further use by the police department.

Why washables are for 'dry clean only'

By NAOMI HUNT

When a plain, untrimmed cotton blouse or a polyester garment is labeled "dry clean only," it seems to defy common sense. Most consumers are aware that these are washable items.

But there is a reason for this direction. Federal Trade Commission laws require that manufacturers provide care labels after testing about washing procedures safe for the garment. But they are only required to give one method, even if others are safe.

As a result, many manufacturers choose the safest method, which is usually drycleaning, to put on the clothing label. This protects them against complaints and legal claims.

So what's the consumer to do? To avoid large drycleaning bills, you have to use your judgment. If the item is expensive, take it to your drycleaner and ask for advice. The cleaner may want to try wetcleaning, depending on the garment and the type of soil and stains, or you may need to protect your investment by having it drycleaned each time.

If it's an everyday cotton, synthetic or blended garment, you may want to wash it using standard procedures for those fabrics. Or you could have it drycleaned when it's new and then switch to washing the garment as it gets older and you're less concerned about possible damage.

COMBINING CLOTH AND LEATHER

Clothing made with a combination of cloth and suede or leather can be very attractive—and a problem to clean. As this type of clothing has become more popular, the International Fabricare Institute has received complaints about the results of cleaning it.

Focus on family

A common problem is a variation in the colorfastness of the leather and the cloth. Usually the leather and cloth parts in the garment match or are similar in color. But when immersed in dry cleaning solvent, part of the dye in either the cloth or the leather may be removed. This means you wind up with a garment that looks faded in some areas.

If the manufacturer's care label instructs you to dryclean the article, this color loss is not the responsibility of the drycleaner. You can only complain to the manufacturer.

Although garments combining fabric with suede and leather are attractive, shoppers should carefully read the care label and look for signs of quality construction and manufacture before buying.

The International Fabricare Institute has also received numerous complaints about Ultracode. Ultracode will naturally become more supple with use and care. To maintain stability in the collar, lapels, facing and pocket areas, a fusible interfacing is usually applied.

Flash fire on rig burns one

ELBOW — An unidentified man suffered first-degree burns Monday morning when a flash fire erupted on an oil rig located 1 1/2 miles west and 1 1/4 miles south of Elbow, authorities said. The man was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center where he was listed in stable condition late Monday morning, a nursing supervisor said. About "12 to 15" volunteer firefighters from the Sand Springs, Coahoma, Lomax and Cosden Fire Departments responded to the blaze, Lomax Volunteer Fire Department Chief Bob Atkins said. The fire started as workers were performing repairs on the oil rig owned by Pool Well Service, Atkins said. "It wasn't as bad as it looked," he said. An oil company representative at the scene, who refused to give his name, said the injured worker was burned when he "opened the well" and a "flash fire" ensued. Cosden volunteer firefighters were called and brought a fire truck containing foam that was used to extinguish the blaze, Atkins said. Foam is the most effective way to control an oil fire, he said. "The fire didn't do a lot of damage to the rig. We saved a lot of it," Atkins said. Volunteer firefighters were at the scene about 2 1/2 hours, he said.

Crimestoppers

The Crimestoppers case of the week is the robbery of First Federal Savings, 500 S. Main St., which occurred Tuesday. Police are asking that anyone who may have information about the crime to contact the Crimestoppers at 263-1151. Physicians Mudambi, Weeks added to VA staff

Drs. Rangarajan N. Mudambi, M.D. and Byron T. Weeks, M.D., were recently appointed as full-time staff physicians at the Big Spring VA Medical Center. Both come to their assignments well prepared academically and professionally, according to Conrad Alexander, Medical Center director. Dr. Mudambi graduated from Bangalore Medical College, Bangalore, India and completed his internship in the combined hospitals attached to Bangalore Medical College in April 1976. In 1977/1978, Dr. Mudambi completed an American Medicine Association approved course entitled Comprehensive Medical Review at Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, New Jersey, according to Alexander.

Prior to this appointment, Dr. Mudambi had assignments at Hammond State School, Hammond, La., as a general practitioner and at Conway Memorial Hospital, Monroe, La. as an emergency room physician. He was engaged in private practice in Eunice, N.M. for the past five years before coming to the V.A. Dr. Mudambi is married and he and his wife have two daughters, ages four and five. Dr. Weeks graduated from the University of Utah College of Medicine, Salt Lake City, Utah in 1951, Alexander said. He ranked fifth in his class and was elected to Alpha Omega Alpha the year before his graduation. Dr. Weeks has held membership and has been active in the American Medical Association, American College of Physicians, Society of Air Force Physicians and has held the office of president, Idaho Falls Medical Society during the 1968-1969 term. Dr. Weeks completed internship medical rotations at George Washington University Hospital and residency training as an Internal Medicine Fellow at Minneapolis Veterans Administration Medical Center and University of Minnesota Hospital, Minneapolis, Minn. He was appointed chief, medical resident at Ancker Hospital, St. Paul, Minn. Prior to this appointment, Dr. Weeks has had assignments as a flight surgeon with the U.S. Air Force in Korea and as a senior consultant in internal medicine for the command surgeon, USAF Europe. He rose to the rank of Colonel with the medical corp while serving in the Air Force and was the commander 12th USAF Contingency Hospital, Fairchild Air Force Base, Washington. He has been affiliated with Tucson Medical Center and St. Joseph's Hospital, Tucson, Ariz. and also served as chief of medicine in Pima County Hospital. He served at Idaho Falls LDS Hospital and Sacred Heart Hospital, both located in Idaho Falls, Idaho. His most recent affiliation was as Medical Director for "intergroup," a Health Maintenance Organization located in Sierra Vista, Ariz. He and his wife, Jolanthe, will establish residence in the community, Alexander said.

Freezers Stretch Family Food Dollar

A home freezer can be a family's best friend, allowing you to take advantage of special food sale prices and quantity purchases as well as freezing and storing seasonal fruits and vegetables. When coupled with the microwave oven, the freezer plays a key role in providing nutritious, homemade "fast foods," and as handling food and proper packaging. According to home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, the secret to good freezing is using containers and wrappings that are designed for freezing, and sealing them securely to keep natural juices in and air out. Freezing doesn't have to be a time-consuming process either. Meats can be securely and quickly wrapped in heavy-duty aluminum foil. Many fruits can be washed, sprinkled with sugar and packaged in freezer bags or rigid plastic cartons. Fresh vegetables can be blanched quickly in the microwave oven and packaged instantly in heat-sealed boiling bags. Freezing, in fact, is a quick and simple preservation process for most foods. Just as with canned and packaged foods, frozen foods have a very definite "shelf" life. Depending upon the food, the recommended food freezer storage time ranges from two weeks (corned beef, bacon) to around one year (fruits, vegetable, margarine). Exceeding the recommended storage time does not make the food unsafe to use, but there may be a loss in quality, flavor and appearance. The key to high quality foods from the freezer at the end of the storage time is the selection of high quality products to freeze. Freezing does not improve quality—you take out just what you put in. Freezing foods is not difficult, but it does require a little knowledge about

Food Processor Transforms Into Citrus Juicer

A food processor is designed to slice, shred, chop and puree foods quickly to save time in meal preparation and let you enjoy the freshest foods. Now, you can expand the use of your food processor with the citrus juicer attachment from KitchenAid. The citrus juicer attachment attaches to the base of the food processor. It is designed to squeeze whole lemons, limes, grapefruits and oranges rather than halves, making for a faster and neater juicing process. Consumers find it convenient to use because up to 2 1/2 cups of juice can be squeezed before having to empty the work bowl. Included with the citrus juicer attachment is a strainer which separates pulp and seeds from the juice; two plastic reamers (one large and one small) and a shaft for attaching the juicer to the base of the food processor. Enjoy getting up in the morning when you know you can have fresh squeezed juice.

Anniversary

The Meeks

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen Meeks will celebrate 30th anniversary today from 2 to 4 p.m. at their home at 4206 Muir Street. "Buddy" and Estelle met on a double date in January 1957 in Big Spring and were married Sept. 20, 1958. Cecil C. Rhodes performed the ceremony at the home of Christine Wood. Buddy is the manager of the Gregg Street Texaco station. The couple belong to the Baptist church. Their hobbies include horse racing, ceramics, and their two grandchildren. They attribute their marital success to allowing "each other their independence." Their children are hosting the celebration. They are Tamra Guinn, of Midland; Tracy Watson, 104 Jefferson; and Tony Meeks, 4206 Muir.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill
 BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new "lazy way" to lose weight has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" to help you steadily lose fat and reduce calories by simply taking their tested and proven new "fat-magnet" pill. The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It's a major scientific breakthrough for weight loss.

You Can "Eat Normally"
 Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits or exercise. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire!"

Flushes Fat Out of Body
 The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles and calories from food that you have just eaten. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body, reducing the calories you absorb "before" they can turn into ugly bulging body fat and cellulite. Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated. "Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug. The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again. Now Available to the Public If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W842, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free (1800) 527-9700, ext. W842.

Fighting fleas and ticks... Health alert quiz for pet owners

Long before the Ice Age, fleas and ticks were roaming the earth, causing misery to all warm-blooded creatures. These parasites, known as the vampires of the insect world, continue to prey on pets and people today. Find out how much you know about these insect enemies by taking this quiz, prepared by Dr. Herbert I. Lapidus, Ph.D., head of the Sulfodene/SCRATCHEX Pet Skin Care Center in White Plains, New York.

Dr. Lapidus has spent much of his 30-year career developing new weapons for the war against these ancient predators of dogdom, catdom and humankind.

- 1) Fleas and ticks:
(A) are dangerous to you and your pet;
(B) should be seen and not heard;
(C) are friendly visitors, welcomed by most cats and dogs.
- 2) If allowed to bite, fleas and ticks can cause:
(A) Flea Allergy Dermatitis;
(B) Roundworm;
(C) Tapeworm;
(D) Lyme Disease;
(E) Rocky Mountain Fever;
(F) Bubonic Plague.
- 3) Without the life-preserving blood from you or your pet, a flea can last:
(A) an hour;
(B) up to three months;
(C) up to several years.
- 4) The flea season:
(A) ends on Labor Day, when most fleas pack to go south;
(B) ends immediately after the first frost;
(C) never ends, although the peak scratching month is October.

- 5) A typical flea marriage can produce:
(A) 250,000 offspring;
(B) in-law problems;
(C) a mortgage.
- 6) You can best control flea problems by:
(A) training them to become circus performers;
(B) allowing your pets to scratch back;
(C) using a product containing pyrethrins, an extract from a daisy-like flower distantly related to the chrysanthemum.
- 7) The safest flea-killing products contain:
(A) pyrethrins, used successfully for over 2,000 years;
(B) chemically produced synthetics;
(C) no artificial flavoring.

- 8) Pyrethrins are the most effective natural insecticides because:
(A) fleas find them irresistible;
(B) fleas prefer organic foods;
(C) fleas like the smell of flowers.
- 9) The overwhelming majority of veterinarians prefer:
(A) pyrethrins, because they are safe, natural and biodegradable;
(B) other, potentially carcinogenic, insecticides;
(C) hot fudge sandwiches with whipped cream.

- 10) You can end a flea infestation by:
(A) moving to a different state;
(B) attacking the flea, using an effective battle plan involving flea shampoo, powder and dip for your pets, and flea spray for your pet's bedding and the rest of your house;
(C) teaching your pet to take care of

- the problem by itself.
11) You can protect your pet by:
(A) reading the labels on pet care products;
(B) looking for "pyrethrins" among the active ingredients;
(C) taking preventive measures.
- 12) You can learn more about fighting the flea by:
(A) sending for the free booklet, "Fighting the Flea," offered as a public service by the Sulfodene/SCRATCHEX Pet Skin Care Center;
(B) going to college and studying Entomology and Parasitology;
(C) enlisting in the Foreign Legion.

Answers

1. A.
2. All are correct. Fleas and ticks are carriers of disease, causing discomfort and death to pets and humans. Flea-borne plague has caused over 200 million deaths. Ticks are responsible for the current outbreak of Lyme disease.
3. B. Fleas hibernate. They love curling up in carpets and couches, resting before the next victim appears.
4. C. Thanks to central heating, fleas never leave town. Since they breed most actively over the summer, infestation peaks in the fall.
5. A. Fleas are among the most fertile insects of the insect world producing 3,000 offspring within a month and 250,000 in an eight-month span.
6. C. The only way to control fleas is with insecticide. The safest insecticides contain pyrethrins, an extract from the pyrethrum plant.
7. A. Pyrethrins have almost no known toxicity to pets or people. Pyrethrins even are used in food processing and storage.
8. None of the above. Although pyrethrins have been used for centuries, fleas and ticks have never developed any resistance or immunity to this, "nature's own insecticide."
9. A. Veterinarians prefer pyrethrins by 66.7 percent over all other insecticides combined, according to a survey conducted at the American Animal Hospital Association's 1988 annual meeting.
10. B. Moving won't help, since fleas and ticks will only move with you. Think of your pet's body as a battleground; you're the general. Arm your pet with a safe, natural flea and tick-killing shampoo and powder. Then spray the surrounding area. Make sure that the active ingredient in the product you use is pyrethrins. (Due to a world-wide shortage, Sulfodene Scratchex products are the only major brand containing pyrethrins.)
11. All of the above. Read the labels on every product you buy. Look for the word "pyrethrins" among the ingredients. Shampoo and spray before you notice signs of infestation.
12. A. Joining the Foreign Legion is a bit extreme, and going to college takes time and money; it's simpler and far more effective to send for the free booklet, "Fighting the Flea," offered as a public service by Sulfodene/SCRATCHEX Pet Skin Care Center. The informative booklet also contains $3 worth of free coupons for Scratchex Shampoo, Power Dip, Power Dust and Spray. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: FIGHTING THE FLEA, Combe Inc., P.O. Box 328FF, White Plains, NY 10602.

Games people play...to keep children busy while traveling

Road signs, other moving vehicles, a few props and creativity are the ingredients that add up to an exciting and educational car trip for restless young travelers and a hassle-free ride for their parents.

Challenging games such as "Geography," "Road Lotto," "The Alphabet Game" and "Ghost" are easily played anywhere, by anyone.

Just use a little imagination to incorporate road signs, city names and license plates into an endless variety of games which can keep Junior occupied for hours.

Advance preparations

For example, prior to a trip, create cards with names of objects one might see on the road. A tree, a stop sign, a fast-food restaurant. Then, as each object is seen, players must mark it off on this card.

Or, in "Geography," each player must state the name of a city, state or country which begins with the last letter of the city, state or country the prior player used.

One can also bring along crayons, paper, a View-Master viewer with story reels and a tape recorder with cassettes to provide entertainment.

With crayons and paper, children can draw what they expect to see, or have already seen, on their journey.

Evoking memories

The View-Master viewer is compact and hand-held, and can help evoke trip memories, as many tourist attractions sell reels featuring 3-D photos of famous landmarks. The tape recorder is another popular way to record trip memories and reactions.

Traveling with children can take a lot out of parents' but, with the right educational, parental toys to keep them entertained, the journey should be no problem at all," says Elliott Keyne, vice president of marketing and sales at View-Master.

"Travel accessories and games can be as important to a successful, memorable vacation as clothing, money and a camera."

L.A.'s oasis by the sea... Marina del Rey offers something for everyone

There is a little hideaway — located just 10 miles west of downtown Los Angeles — that has become known as "L.A.'s Oasis by the Sea."

It is called Marina del Rey and is oftentimes mistaken for an exotic and far-away destination. In fact, it offers all the conveniences and activities of a resort, without requiring its visitors to spend thousands of dollars on airfare or to secure a passport!

Nearly 100 years ago, in 1887, a man named M.C. Wicks envisioned a major commercial harbor near Los Angeles in what was then remote marshland — the Playa del Rey Estuary and inlet.

Though Mr. Wicks did not realize this dream in his lifetime, the legacy survived and, in 1957, construction of the jetties for the Main Channel of today's Marina del Rey began.

In 1988, Marina del Rey is the largest small craft manmade harbor in the world. It offers the best of both worlds: A resort with fresh sea air, outdoor activities and sun, and a thriving business and residential community.

There are almost 11,000 permanent residents in the 804-acre area but in the summer — Marina del Rey's most popular season — an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 people visit on any given weekend!

People from Los Angeles and outlying communities in Southern California, as well as travelers from all over the world, have visited Marina del Rey for its myriad of shopping opportunities and restaurants, its sports and leisure activities, and its glorious hotel accommodations.

Shopping enthusiasts can find it all in the Marina's Fisherman's Village, a replica of a New England fishing town, houses 29 shops, offering wares ranging from decorator prints, to gourmet food, to toys.

And, down the way, on Washington Boulevard, is the Marina Beach Shopping Center, which houses small, unique and service-oriented shops.

For those with a hunger for culinary feasts, the Marina boasts more than 36 restaurants offering a myriad of cuisines, from 50s-style eating at Edie's Diner, to gourmet dining at Stones, to seafood specialties at the Warehouse or the Crystal Seahorse, to Japanese food at Benihana. Or, try the ribs and steaks at Tommy Lasorda's (yes, the Tommy Lasorda!).

Brunch in the Marina is perhaps the most tantalizing, whether at the Marina Beach Hotel's Skyline Lounge, where diners get a 280 degree view of Los Angeles and the Marina, or on the water with the Marina Cruise Line for a one-of-a-kind "Brunch on Board."

And, of course, no seaside resort would be complete without a host of water-related activities. From a coastal bicycle ride from Santa Monica through Marina del Rey to Palos Verdes, to sailing, yachting, sport fishing, wind surfing and jogging, a virtual haven on the water awaits everyone — from beginners to experts.

For the many out-of-town guests visiting the area, Marina del Rey offers superb hotel accommodations suited to every traveler's taste, whether he or she leans to the Marina International Hotel, a quiet "non-hotel" hotel, or the Marina del Rey Hotel, the only hotel on the waterfront, offering guests a resort-like environment.

Or, maybe a deluxe property like the 300-room Marina Beach Hotel, with its spectacular Marina view, is more your style!

Activities abound during the summer months in Marina del Rey. There's the Classic Boat and Car Display at Burton Chase Park in August, and a July 4th sailboat race from Marina del Rey to San Diego, capped off with a spectacular fireworks show.

Summertime in Marina del Rey offers a treasure trove of things to do and places to see — all just a hop, skip and a jump from the other sights and sounds of Los Angeles.

For more information or reservations at any Marina Hotel, please call (800) 8-MARINA (California) or (800) 882-4000 (Nationwide) or (213) 822-1010.

Creative things to do with Pecos cantaloupe

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

We were in Pecos recently for the cantaloupe festival. During that event, they have a cantaloupe roll. Contestants try to see how far they can roll a cantaloupe in a straight line.

They also have a contest to see who can make the best face on a cantaloupe. They don't carve on the cantaloupes the way you'd make a jack-o-lantern. They point on them... put hair on them... may be even eye glasses. The purpose of the contest is to see how close the contestants come to re-creating their own faces on a cantaloupe.

One of the contests features cantaloupe ice cream making. The winner gets $50. Of course, there's a cantaloupe eating contest. Some folks enter a cantaloupe seed-spitting event. One lady makes cantaloupe dolls. The Pecos Senior Center made a quilt with a cantaloupe pattern in it. A Cantaloupe Queen reigns over the festivities.

Music stages provide country, folk, bluegrass and rock music plus Mexican and Norwegian dancing. Sporting events include a tennis tournament, a bicycle rally, and two mile and ten kilometer runs. Booths feature arts and craft items and foods like cantaloupe jelly beans. There's even a fly-in breakfast for pilots.

You can eat a cantaloupe at least two ways. The easiest way is to cut it in half, clean out the seeds and dig in. This way, you have a built-in bowl in case you want to add ice cream or sherbet. The other way is to cut it into slices.

Pecos has three cantaloupe houses which generate millions of dollars a year for the Pecos economy during the eight-week cantaloupe harvesting season, which begins in July.

The T&P Railroad is mostly responsible for spreading the popularity of the Pecos cantaloupe. The dining car would serve the Pecos cantaloupe all along its route. When customers would inquire about it, the reply was, "It comes from Pecos, Texas." Customers the ordered them by the case.

This year the Pecos cantaloupes are especially sweet because of warm nights. Some people say the distinctive taste of the melons is due to the mineral content in the soil and water around Pecos.

The story starts in 1910, when D.T. McKee planted a few cantaloupe seeds from Rocky Ford, Colo., a famous cantaloupe producing area. The crop yielded a fruit that had a superior flavor. The next year he increased his acreage and shipped out a few crates of cantaloupes.

In 1916 M.L. Todd (recognized on a historical marker as the father of the Pecos cantaloupe industry) became a partner with McKee and they planted more acres of cantaloupe seed and started shipping out carloads of melons. It was around this time that T&P became a regular customer.

The true Pecos cantaloupe grows only in a wedge-shaped area beginning just west of Pecos and extending some fifteen miles westward toward Toyah. The light-colored soil has a high content of gypsum, potassium and magnesium. Some authorities claim there is also some saccharine in the soil.

The Pecos Chamber of Commerce sells a Cantaloupe Cookbook for $4. It explains how to tell if a cantaloupe is ripe and how to make things like cantaloupe pie, cobbler, pudding, salad, parfait, butter, conserve, preserves, soup, punch, sherbet, pickles, hor d'oeuvres and a special summer treat called cantaloupe ice.

The ingredients for cantaloupe butter are 4 cups of cantaloupe pulp, 1/4 cup of vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon allspice and 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves.

Select slightly green cantaloupes. Pare, cut into 1 inch strips or cubes. Soak in salt water 2 to 3 hours then drain. Bring sugar, vinegar, water and spices to a boil, then add melon. Cook until transparent. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Yields: 3 pints. Enjoy.

Buy an energy-efficient home now to save money

National energy experts predict increases in the cost of electricity and natural gas through the end of the century.

That could be a bleak forecast for homeowners since, after mortgage payments, heating and cooling costs are today's biggest expense — approximately two-thirds of monthly utility bills.

But, new-home shoppers can beat high heating and cooling costs by paying careful attention to energy efficiency before they buy, advises Michael Krach, marketing manager for Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a leading manufacturer of building materials.

"Energy efficiency is the result of a number of components working together, not just one feature," Mr. Krach says. "So, when shopping for a house, you should know which questions to ask about how it was built."

Owens-Corning suggests you concentrate on these factors when shopping for your home: Orientation and siting; insulation levels; windows and doors; caulking and weatherstripping; and heating and cooling equipment.

Orientation and Siting. A home's position on the lot is important in energy use. In northern climates, for example, the fewer windows facing north, the better, and south-facing windows are a real benefit.

The opposite is true in southern, or warm, climates. Any shielding from prevailing winds — by hills, other buildings or trees — can also substantially reduce the home's energy use.

Attic and Wall Insulation. Insulation is a primary contributor to a home's energy efficiency. Find out what kind of insulation, and how much, was installed in the attic, basement and side walls.

Ask if insulation was installed around band joists, the area in the basement where the foundation ends and the ground-level floor begins. Also check to see that the crawl spaces and floors over unheated areas have been insulated properly.

Glass fiber insulation is very popular because of its excellent thermal protection, and because it will not absorb moisture and will not rot.

The energy-saving potential of insulation is measured in R-values; higher R-values mean greater insulating power. Your local utility or building supply dealer can tell you what the recommended R-values are in your area.

Windows and Doors. Storm windows and doors create a dead air space that serves as insulation. Double-glazed windows offer effective protection.

An easy way to check the number of glazings on a window is to hold a lit match or cigarette lighter near the window; a double-glazed window will show the flame reflected twice.

In addition, many manufacturers are using low emissivity, or Low-E glazings, to increase a window's energy efficiency.

Low-E glass allows nearly all of the sun's visible light to pass through the pane, while reflecting radiant heat via a microscopically thin metallic layer. This glazing reflects heat into the home in winter, and outside in the summer.

Caulking and Weatherstripping. Check to see that all possible air infiltration areas, such as windows, doors and electrical outlets, have been caulked and sealed properly.

Heating and Cooling Equipment. Be sure the heating and cooling system is efficient. In the last few years, high-efficiency furnaces and heat pumps have become available, and manufacturers are required to provide information on a heating and cooling system's efficiency.

In addition, most new homes today move conditioned air from the furnace, heat pump or central air conditioner through ductwork.

To be sure that the conditioned air is being delivered to the room and not lost along the way, check to see if the ductwork is insulated.

Sheet metal ducts can be wrapped with special blanket insulation. The ducts themselves may be made of insulated glass fiber ductboard.

Energy-Design Systems. Check to see if the builder is using some type of energy-design system, such as Owens-Corning's Thermal Crafted® home program.

Owens-Corning's computer-based, energy-design system evaluates virtually every element of home construction that influences energy efficiency.

It analyzes size and siting, number and placement of windows, weatherstripping and caulking, insulation levels, and heating and cooling equipment, and then estimates for the home-shopper the annual cost of heating and cooling the home. (However, because of necessary assumptions made regarding living habits, weather patterns, thermostat settings, construction quality and other features, the actual heating and cooling costs will vary.)

Mortgage motives

Mortgage lenders recognize the cost savings an energy-efficient home can provide. Some even offer lower debt-to-income ratios for new homes that can be documented as energy-efficient. These adjusted ratios allow buyers to qualify to buy a more expensive home.

The premise for this preferential loan treatment is the assumption that buyers of energy-efficient homes have a greater amount of disposable income available for mortgage payments because of lower monthly operating costs.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. (Freddie Mac) and the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) have issued specific guidelines instructing lenders how to offer preferential loan treatment for energy-efficient homes.

Freddie Mac recognizes the Thermal Crafted home program as an acceptable energy rating system for lenders to use in the mortgage evaluation process.

Shop carefully

Noting that buying a home is usually the largest investment most people ever make, Owens-Corning's Mr. Krach advises: "Shop carefully for your new home. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Finding out as much as possible about a home before you buy it will save you money for as long as you own your home."

LEMON GLAZED PUMPKIN BARS are a tasty, wholesome snack, perfect for after-school get-togethers.

Pumpkin bars 'make the grade'

A favorite back-to-school pastime of many youths is getting together after school with friends. Somehow, the excitement and anxiety of how they're ever going to complete all those math assignments for Miss Quigley, or how that new boy in homeroom class is "just the cutest," or how tough cheerleader try-outs or football practice is going to be, are all the more special when shared with classmates.

LEMON GLAZED PUMPKIN BARS

(Makes 30 2x2-inch bars)

- 1 cup LIBBY'S Solid Pack Pumpkin
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 egg
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup oil
- 8 ounces chopped dates
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1-cup-chopped nuts
- Lemon Glaze

Mix pumpkin with soda and set aside.

In a large bowl, lightly beat egg; stir in sugar, oil and dates.

Combine flour, salt and spices. Add to date mixture alternately with pumpkin. Mix until blended. Stir in nuts.

Spread evenly in greased and flour-dusted 15x10x1-inch jelly-roll pan. Bake in 350°F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned.

Cool completely. Drizzle with glaze. Cut into 2x2-inch bars.

Lemon glaze: In small bowl, combine 1/4 cups sifted powdered sugar and two tablespoons lemon juice.

Wholesome and delicious

What better way to enjoy these after-school talks than with some enjoyable, wholesome snacks? To give students energy-packed treats that taste as good as they are good for them, try Lemon Glazed Pumpkin Bars. These tasty bar cookies feature pumpkin, dates and nuts. The tangy lemon glaze adds just the right amount of sweetness.

Nutritional value

This recipe makes 30 bars.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Old or new furniture damage: a case for Furniture Doctor

Although the Furniture Doctor has established its reputation as a specialist in repair and refinishing of antique furniture, the firm provides these services for new furniture as well.

According to Jan Noyes, new, modern finishes can be marred in home accidents — such as fire, child's play or spills of harmful products. Or maybe the customer has purchased new furniture at a store which doesn't deliver — and the piece is damaged when the owner attempts to move it himself.

The Furniture Doctor has suitable hardware plus refinishing and repair supplies for any newly purchased wood or metal home or office furnishings — to restore that "showroom" quality.

Restoration of antique furniture continues to be a big part of the business, including repairs, parts replacement or refinishing of aged surfaces.

The Furniture Doctor has hard-to-find reproduction hardware for trunks and cedar chests; desk locks; brass hardware; and other antique accessories.

A visit to the Doctor's office may find the staff working on such diverse jobs as a metal office desk and a mahogany grand piano. The Doctor has given "new life" to many a fire- or water-damaged piece.

Repairs may include gluing a chair; hand-customizing replacement parts; repairing veneers; replacing sheet cane or weaving rush chair seats; and repairs to vinyl that has been burned or torn.

In the strip shop, the Doctor's assistants chemically remove paint and varnish finishes from wood or metal, rendering the surface ready for refinishing or painting — either by the owner or the Doctor.

"We will tackle anything," says Jan. "If it's damaged, bring it to us and we'll find a way to fix it!"

The Furniture Doctor does make house calls. He will come to your home or office to give estimates, or make minor repairs on the spot. In most cases it is advisable to send the ailing furniture to the Doctor's office, where adequate tools are readily available.

For your furniture repairs — great or small — call the Furniture Doctor at 267-5811. The firm is affiliated with Bob's Custom Woodwork, and is located at 613 Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park.

The Doctor's hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p. m., or by appointment.

The Furniture Doctor's assistants — Craig Neighbors and Robert Lovless — begin to reassemble a refinished turn-of-the-century china cabinet. The Furniture Doctor takes on any "case" of damaged furniture — new or antique.
